COUNCIL PROPOSES 10 AMENDMENTS, 13 O.I.'s, 2 POLICIES

Ten proposed amendments, Official Interpretations or rulings and two new Recommended Policies have been endorsed by the NCAA Council for reporting to the January Convention.

Of greatest interest among these is a proposed amendment which is a compromise on freshman eligibility for varsity competition.

Also noteworthy is the lack of substantive, philosophical proposals to change the 1.600 legislation which has provided most of the Convention fireworks for the past three years. The Council has formulated eight Official Interpretations or rulings of the 1.600 legislation [Bylaw 4-6principally directed toward (b)]. making the legislation more definitive.

The two Recommended Policies are a stronger statement urging member institutions not to make facilities available to professional sports organizations, and a recom-mendation against the establishment and use of athletic dormitories.

A compromise amendment toward restoring the principle of the freshman residence requirement has been advanced by the Council. It would reinstate the residence requirement now specified for football and basketball for all NCAA championship sports except that those freshmen who compete on varsity teams during regular season play would be entitled to three additional years of NCAA competition, although ineligible for such as freshmen.

It would change the present rule, adopted in January which permits -season and championship competition by freshmen. Participation in NCAA events would be restricted to three years beginning with the student-athlete's sophomore year, except for the present policy for College Division events.

The other recommended amendments are topped by a proposal to amend Constitution 3-10 which would make the residence rules for transfer students contained in Bylaws 4-1-(d) mandatory for all competition.

Transfers Affected

Affected would be student-athletes transfering from one four-year institution to another, plus junior college transfers. An exception to the restrictions would be for participation in junior varsity competition.

The Council will sponsor an mendment to Constitution 3-9 prohibiting collegiate teams from appearing on doubleheader programs with professional teams. It was recommended by the Professional Relations Committee.

An amendment to Bylaws 4-1-(d) offered by the NCAA Junior College Committee would permit immediate eligibility for a junior college transfer who predicted 1.600 on the NCAA national experience table at the time of graduation from high school and who had attained a minimum 2.500 first-year grade point average at the junior college attended.

Another endorsed amendment pertaining to junior college transfers concerns the JC transfer to a fouryear institution who had previously attended another four-year institution. Bylaws 4-1-(d)-(1) would be amended to require the student to have spent a full academic year at the junior college and to have graduated from the junior college.

The transfer rules of B-4-1-(d) would be waived for alien students who are required to transfer one or more times because of a pre-determined study program set by the student's government or sponsoring educational organization if another endorsed amendment is adopted. New National Collegiate Championships in water polo and volleyball will result if the Convention approves amendments to Bylaws 5-1-(a). The Swimming Rules and Meet Committee would conduct the water polo meet, a new Volleyball Tournament Committee would be established to administer that event.

Assembling an institution's basketball squad one day out-of-season to take publicity pictures would be permissible if Bylaws 8-2-(b) is amended. Previously such a photo session had been in violation of this Bylaw The Public Belations Committee forwarded the recommendation to the Council.

Students admitted with advanced standing benefit from an amendment proposed to Bylaws 4-1-(d) as recommended by the Advance Stand-ing Committee. It would read:

"A student who is admitted with a minimum of 24 semester hours or 36 quarter hours of advanced placement from a CEEB examination (or from a similar proficiency examination) and/or concurrent high schoolcollege credit without previous en-Continued on page 3

A personal viewpoint ECONOMIC MORALITY

Acting on the theory that economists have second-guessed losing coaches more than occasionally, and holding an unusually warm feeling for beleaguered coaches (and financially-concerned former coaches who now are athletic directors), it seems appropriate to hold a Monday morning review of the discredited theories of many of our most widely quoted economists. It is appropriate because their miscalculations endanger the essential expansion of intercollegiate athletics.

What's to be done with these Keynes-orientated thinkers who successfully hawked the theory that modest annual inflation ("Oh, about 2%") was healthy? After all, they remarked confidently, look at the GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT. Those box car GNP figures may serve as the crutch for the Keynesians' faulty rationale, but they don't help any of us meet the day-today skyrocketing costs of intercollegiate athletics. (The point also should be made that inflation penalizes thrift, industry and the urge to be self-reliant, but I suppose that is too bourgeois for some of the modern day intelligentsia.)

The economic scorekeepers now report that we are losing 5 cents on the dollar each year. Well, how about this? In seven years, the cost of providing tuition and room and board at a group of Midwestern institutions has increased approximately 35%; and in the last three years (1965-66 to 1968-69)—22%. This relates to in-state costs and does not take into consideration the increase or decrease in institutional financial support. (Research provided complimentarily by a member conference.)

Inflated Economists

Economists probably shouldn't be fired in the manner some of them demand losing coaches be sacked. It seems reasonable, however, that they be inflated at the same rate as the dollar. Thus, they would rise gradually into the outer atmosphere where they could maintain a continuing dialogue with themselves and give some of us 2 + 2 = 4 thinkers time to get our financial houses in order.

Cheap money does more than dilute savings accounts and erode pension funds. It has a slow, cancerous effect upon an individual's sense of values. The euphoric feeling that anything goes may carry us along until everything's gone.

Now, really, haven't we in intercollegiate athletics played the easy-money game far too long for our own well being?

Moralizing never has been as persuasive as economic necessity. And today, for the good of all of us, intercollegiate athletics must face up to the financial facts of life. What a golden (sorry for the weak pun) opportunity it provides. By economizing, we can discontinue some undesirable practices and, at the same time, bring the ledger sheets into more realistic balance.

The NCAA Council, in commenting recently upon the excellent progress report of the Special NCAA Committee on Recruiting (Edwin H. Cady, Indiana University, chairman) provided a philosophical catalyst which could lead us into dollar savings:

"... the Council expressed the earnest hope that the Committee (on recruiting) will consider all possible ways and means of eliminating or at least minimizing those practices which place the prospect in a separate and exalted position, thus giving him and others a warped impression of higher education and college athletics ..."

After all, the motivation for enactment of the 1.600 rule was a blending of philosophical and practical arguments which came out something like this: 1. Student-athletes should be representative of the student population of their institutions; 2. The image of intercollegiate athletics should be improved; 3. Economics dictate prudent expenditure of educational and athletic funds.

Tom Phillips, Kent State University freshman football coach, was disturbed at a doctor for not allowing him to continue on a scouting assignment. The doctor's reasons appear valid however. Phillips had suffered a complete cardiac arrest on his way to scout the Louisville at Wichita game. But that wasn't all. When doctors

But that wasn't all. When doctors revived him by beating on his chest to get his heart started, several of his ribs were broken. He still wanted to scout.

Chancellor Charles E. Young of UCLA on that institution's recruiting "... we work as hard at recruitment of excellent scholars as we work at recruitment of athletes. We are working much harder at recruitment of disadvantaged students than we work at the recruitment of athletes."

Doug Holmquist has been named head baseball coach at the University of Vermont. Holmquist had been head coach at Sacred Heart University, Bridgeport, Conn. A graduate of the University of Bridgeport, Holmquist had previously been freshman coach at Michigan State. He succeeds Jim Cross, who had served as interim coach in 1968, following the death of Ralph LaPointe.

Along with being attractive, the candidates for Centennial Football Queen in the Atlantic Coast Conference have brains, and ambitious career plans for the future. One hopes to enter medical school, two are majoring in applied mathematics, and three others plan to work with retarded children after college.

Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, is designing an NCAA Scholarship Hall of Fame in the field house lobby to honor the recipients of NCAA Postgraduate Scholarships. Luther has had five winners in the last three years, with Duane Monick the lat-

Recruiting Cost-Saving

Cannot similar arguments be made for several current cost-saving suggestions, a number of which are under active consideration by the Committee on Recruiting:

- 1. Limit the total number of institutions a prospect may visit with expenses paid.
- 2. Limit the total number of paid visits a prospect may receive from any one institution and its friends.
- 3. Restrict entertainment to the type of meals and lodging the prospect normally would receive if he enrolled at that institution.
- Confine recruiting to a specified time period and prohibit interference with the high school academic and athletic program.
- 5. Transportation provided by alumni and "other friends" for a prospect shall be permitted only if both parties come from the same community or contiguous communities.
 - [The financial aspects of football's substitution rule and unlimited grants-in-aid are subjects worthy of a separate study.]

Although unqualified to assess completely the economic implications of the "athletic dormitory" (undeniably, a lot of athletic dollars have been spent on these buildings), it does seem a fitting moment for a consensus also to lead a movement to abolish this activity. There scarcely can be found a more dramatic denial of the student-athlete concept than the athletic dormitory.

Several of our closest and best-intentioned friends argue in favor of the practice—e.g., recruiting necessity (keeping up with The Joneses), administrative convenience (simplifies board and room bookkeeping), facilitates coaching discipline (easy bed checks) and improves communications (fewer notices on fewer bulletin boards?). These contentions, singly or in combination, cannot succeed against the basic contradiction because the very concept depreciates the values which we so assiduously promote.

The athletic dormitory makes the resident an athlete first and a student second. It connotes segregation as distasteful to the educational community as racial segregation is to our society at-large. "Separate but equal" was not a sufficiently persuasive argument in the latter case; it shouldn't be allowed to persist in the former.

Lord Keynes probably never speculated (his tendencies weren't very masculine, anyway) that his economic theories of government-manipulated deficits and inflation would lead American intercollegiate athletics to do some soul searching in the Late Sixties—but what a challenging opportunity it provides to advance further those basic intercollegiate athletic principles to which we are so deeply committed.

NCAA athletes were responsible for much of the United States Olympic success in Mexico City, and also performed well for other countries. Shown here are four of the many who captured gold medals. Bob Seagren of USC, left, thrilled the sports fans of the world by winning at 17-18½ the most competitive pole vaulting competition ever contested. Dove Hemery of Boston University, second from left, won the 400-meter hurdles, taking the gold medal to England. Swimmer Doug Russell of Texas Arlington, second from right, was the upset winner of the 100-meter butterfly in :55.9, equaling the Olympic record. Lee Evans of San Jose State, right, won the 400-meters in the world-record time of 43.8. Evans also anchored the 1,600-meter relay team which won the gold medal with a world-record time of 2:56.1. Foreign Student Eligibility, Full Frosh Season Are Proposed

A final amendment, to Bylaws 8-2-(b), would confirm the rules of competition under which NCAAsponsored events are conducted. The O.I.'s which do not concern student-athlete initially entering college at mid-year to commence his freshman competition at the be-ginning of the freshman sport season the following year and to participate as a freshman throughout the complete season, although he may achieve sophomore academic status during the season.

1.600 are five in number. A new O.I. 110 would permit a

Foreign Students Eligible

It is proposed to amend O.I. 104 to allow bona fide foreign exchange students to become immediately eligible for NCAA events. O.I. 101 would be amended to free from requirements of the transfer rules a student-athlete who spends one year at a second fouryear institution in accordance with his planned academic program, if recommended by the appropriate academic officer, to permit him to return to his initial institution and be immediately eligible for NCAA events.

The student must be in good academic standing when he leaves his initial institution and may not compete while attending the second institution

Complimentary Football Tickets An O.I. would be added if approved requiring administration of complimentary football tickets for away games through a will-call system and prohibiting purchase of unused tickets by the institution. The four-ticket limit remains the same as does current administrative policy for home games. A new O.I. would be cstablished for Constitution 3-4-(c) confirming that institutions which utilize oneyear grants-in-aid must notify each student-athlete in writing every year of the renewal of the grant and of its conditions.

1.600 O.I.'s The O.I.'s and rulings concerning 1.600 are eight in number. They are: 1. Only SAT or ACT test scores may be used in establishing predictability, and those tests must be taken on nationally-administered testing dates. Institutionally-administered tests would no longer be considered valid. 2. National, conference and institutional prediction tables must be reevaluated and updated every three years, commencing Sept. 1, 1969. 3. Only class rank shall be used for prediction purposes. If the high school or prep school states in writing that rank is unavailable, the g.p.a. may be used applying a con-version table approved by NCAA.

4. O.I. 113 is to be amended. A student who transfers to a prep school prior to high school graduation must use high school rank for prediction purposes unless he com-pletes at least two full academic years at the prep school.

5. O.I. 115 is to be amended. A student who has established predictability may not be subsequently retested after enrollment or after reporting for uniformed squad practice, whichever is earlier.

6. O.I. 116 is to be amended. A student who has not established predictability and reports for practice shall be required to establish his predictability within two weeks following the receipt of scores resulting from the first nationally-administered ACT or SAT test for which he is eligible subsequent to his enrollment. Until the report indicates he predicts 1.6 or better, he may practice but may not participate in competition. If he does predict 1.6 or better he is eligible to continue practice and represent his institution in accordance with institutional eligibility rules. 7. The Council allowed institutions which have been in conform-ance with the 1.6 legislation, but which were required to submit new or clarified prediction tables based on 1968 Convention action, to compete in NCAA events until December 1. In essence, it extended the Sept. 1 deadline for filing new tables. This action applies to 30 institutions.

8. A new O.I. 117 related to Bylaw 4-6-(b) would be established to require a student-athlete who did not predict 1.600 or better on the national predictability table upon graduation from high school, and who subsequently attended a junior college, to present an accumulative academic record of 2.5 or better and a minimum of 24 semester or 36 quarter hours of transfer-able degree credit to be eligible for aid, practice and competition at an NCAA member-institution.

Contest Still Open to Campus Scribes

The deadline for submission of college football stories by undergraduate writers is fast approaching, Chairman Robert T. Bronzan of the NCAA Committee for the Advancement of Football reminds campus scribes.

December 1 is the deadline for submission of the stories to NCSS. His committee is sponsoring, for the first time in 1968, a contest where writers on the campus papers of NCAA member institutions may win scholarships for outstanding stories on college football.

Awards of $200, $100 and $50 will be made in two categories—game stories and column or feature storics-for the best three stories of each type.

The Football Writers of America will judge the entries for the NCAA.

The entries, limited to one story per person in each category, are to be given by the writer to the sports information director of his institution.

The SID is to forward the entries to NCSS, Box 757, Grand Central Station, New York 10017.

Jesse T. Hill has never been on the sidelines of intercollegiate athletics. As athletic coach and director, Jess Hill has been active, involved and successful. The director of athletics at the University of Southern California for the past twelve years, he currently is serving on four NCAA committees, including the Executive Committee. He is one of only five men in the NCAA serving on four committees.

Hill is a member of the NCAA Olympic Committee, and the U.S. Olympic Committee Board of Directors. He also is a member of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Committee.

Hill's athletic background is outstanding. He graduated from USC, after a distinguished career in football, baseball and track. He was the first USC athlete to surpass 25 feet in the broad jump, winning the IC4A title in 1929 with a jump of $25' \frac{7}{8}''$.

UD Basketball: PRESS HEADQUARTERS SET

NCAA Public Relations Committee Chairman Bob Cheyne of Arkansas and Bill Sims of the Kansas City STAR, president of the United States Basketball Writers Association, have announced Stouffer's Louisville Inn will be the press headquarters for the National Collegiate Basketball Championship, March 20-22. The tournament will be played at Louisville's Freedom Hall.

Room reservations must be made through Tom Hansen, Public Relations Director, NCAA, Midland Building, Kansas City, Mo. 64105. Hansen also handles all requests for working press credentials.

Facilities: TWO ARE IMPROVED

Improvements have been made in at least two facilities where NCAA Championship events will be played this year. Freedom Hall, Louisville, Ky., site of the National Collegiate Basketball Tournament, has replaced the old basketball court with a new wooden floor.

At Southwest Missouri State College, site of the College Division Baseball Tournament, the infield has been sodded and the centerfield fence has been moved back.

Another change has been made at Wheaton (Ill.) College but it's more an addition than an improvement, with the cross country course being stretched from four to five miles for the College Division Championships to be held Nov. 16.

Soccer: MEETING TIMES SET

Chairman Bob Baptista of the NCAA Soccer Rules and Tournament Committee has a full agenda planned for the National Collegiate Soccer Championship the first week in December at Atlanta, Ga. All meetings will be held at the Howell House Motor Hotel in Atlanta.

The Tournament Committee will meet with the competing teams on Dec. 4, at 4 p.m.

The tournament semifinal games will be played at Grant field, Georgia Tech University, Dec. 5, at 6 and 8:30 p.m.

The NCAA Soccer Rules and Tournament Committee will hold its annual meeting Dec. 6, starting at 9 a.m. At noon, a luncheon is planned for the four teams and the Rules Committee. At 2 p.m., the Committee will continue its meeting.

Chairman Baptista will reconvene the Committee for its final session Saturday morning, Dec. 7, at 9 o'clock. The championship game will begin at 1:30 p.m. at Grant Field.

Among the items up for discussion by the Rules and Tournament Committee are consideration of a permanent site for the tournament; assignment of the 1969 site; suggested nominations for the Olympic Soccer Committee and consideration of a junior college representative on the Soccer Rules and Tournament Committee.

There also are some minor rule changes to be proposed, but Baptista says there "will be nothing of an earth-shaking nature."

SOCCEP: ATLANTIC COAST AT SPRINGFIELD COLLEGE

The NCAA Atlantic Coast Regional Soccer Tournament will be held Nov. 15 and 16, at Springfield College, Springfield, Mass. This will be the only regional championship for college division teams this year. Chairman Bob Baptista and the Tournament Committee will consider a national College Division tournament at the Atlanta meetings.

UD Cross Country: scoring computerized

The team scoring for the National Collegiate Cross Country Championships at Van Cortlandt Park, New York City, will be done on a computer, according to Meet Director Jim McHugh, coach of the host Manhattan College team.

McHugh says that the Manhattan College Computer Center, located two blocks from the site, will run the scoring. A system of couriers will be set up for speeding the list of finishers to the computer.

McHugh has also announced that the Executive Committee of the Cross Country Coaches Association will meet Sunday afternoon, Nov. 24, at 2 o'clock, followed by the general business meeting of the Association at 4 p.m. Dinner is planned for 7 o'clock, with the scratch meeting to follow the meal.

All meetings will be held at Thomas Hall on the Manhattan College campus.

The championships will get under way at 11 a.m., Monday, Nov. 25, with a record number of entrants, estimated at 250, expected to compete.

The race will be taped by ABC-TV for showing at a later date on the Wide World of Sports show.

AMATEUR CAGE PROBLEMS WILL BE STUDIED BY FIBA

The International Amateur Basketball Federation, commonly known as FIBA, will send a five-man delegation to the United States in January in an attempt to solve the problem of this country's international representation in the sport of basketball.

During its World Congress in Mexico City, FIBA voted that the United States should be represented by a single-purpose organization whose sole interest is in the sport of basketball.

The action was taken after receiving reports from the Amateur Athletic Union, currently this country's FIBA representative, and the Basketball Federation, which applied for international membership.

It is reported that if the FIBA delegation is unsuccessful in finding a satisfactory solution to the problem of international representation, this country's membership in FIBA may be cancelled.

The FIBA committee will be headed by the organization's immediate past president, Reis Carnero of Brazil. Other members include R. William Jones of West Germany, FIBA's secretary-general, Kai Boh of Malayasia, Frank Hepp of Hungary and Jack Cross of New Zealand.

Clifford B. Fagan, president of the Basketball Federation, said his organization enthusiastically welcomes an inspection by FIBA.

"The constituents of the Federation, which include the NCAA, the high schools, the junior colleges and others, provide more than 90 percent of the organized basketball activity in this country," Fagan stated.

"This country's great heritage in the sport is directly attributable to the Federation's members," he continued, "and we are pleased to have FIBA view our programs first hand."

Fagan, who is also executive secretary of the National High School Federation, headed a Basketball Federation delegation in Mexico City that included the organization's executive director, John Bunn, Adolph Rupp, the University of Kentucky's famous basketball coach, and Ed Steitz of Springfield College, who also is the official rules interpreter for basketball.

Annual All-America Wrestling Clinics Set By Coaches

The second annual All-America Wrestling Clinics, sponsored by the NCAA Wrestling Coaches Association, will be held in four locations this month.

NCAAWCA President LeRoy Alitz of the U. S. Military Academy announced that Auburn University and Rochester Jr. College (Minn.) would host clinics on Nov. 16, with Springfield College and the El Paso Public Schools hosting the Nov. 23 clinics.

Swede Umbach will direct the Auburn clinic, with Grady Peninger of Michigan State the lecturer. This clinic will cover the states of Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida and the Carolinas.

The Rochester clinic will be directed by John Philo, with Harold Westcott as the lecturer. This will cover the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska.

Doug Parker will direct the Springfield clinic, with Ed Peery of the U. S. Naval Academy as the lecturer. Coaches from the New England states, New York and New Jersey will be in attendance.

The El Paso clinic will be held at the Coronado High School, with Al Messer the director. Tom Evans of Oklahoma will be the lecturer. New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, Kansas and Colorado are the states included in this area.

New Events: COUNCIL SPONSORS TWO

Sponsorship of legislation approving two new NCAA Championship Events—in volleyball and water polo—was endorsed by the NCAA Council at its recent fall meeting.

Proposed by the Executive Committee, the enabling legislation for the two new events now will carry the approval of both groups at the January Convention in Los Angeles.

The Council declined to support a similar amendment to Bylaw 5-1-(a) which would establish a Trampoline Championships as a completely separate event from the Gymnastics Championships. Unless the Convention proceeds to adopt such an amendment without Council backing, the Trampoline Championships will be conducted at the site of the National Collegiate Gymnastics Championships, but scored separately.

AF FALCONS BUILD HUGE, VERSATILE FACILITY

Variety of Uses Planned For Three Athletic Areas

One of the most outstanding sports structures in the nation has been opened at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

The $5.6-million-dollar field house was completed last spring. It is five stories high and 396 feet by 426 feet, the size of three football fields laid side by side. The structure is divided into three

The structure is divided into three areas: basketball arena, ice hockey arena and a massive multipurpose area. The three sections have a combined seating capacity of 10,000. Many Facilities

The building provides space for competition in basketball, indoor track, wrestling, fencing, gymnastics, lacrosse and hockey.

Practice facilities are also available for football, baseball, track, soccer, golf and tennis, as well as for intramural events.

Both Tartan and Astroturf surfaces were utilized in the building. The basketball court and indoor track are covered with Tartan surfaces. The basketball court is not as hard as the conventional wooden courts, provides good traction and gives more bounce to the ball. The one-sixth-mile track also is

The one-sixth-mile track also is covered with Tartan surface, but a rougher surfaced version. This should give longevity, require less maintenance than the normal track, and provide greater traction to the runners.

Inside the track is a netted area, 119 by 125 feet, which includes a baseball infield and one half of a football field.

Special Rooms Included

Spectators for both the hockey and basketball games will be seated above the playing surface, with participants on the lower level. The lower level includes dressing rooms, supply areas, medical rooms and laundry.

Also on this level are the offices of the department of athletics.

The hockey arena, where one of the 1969 National Collegiate Championship games will be contested, seats 2,600.

Dual Press Box

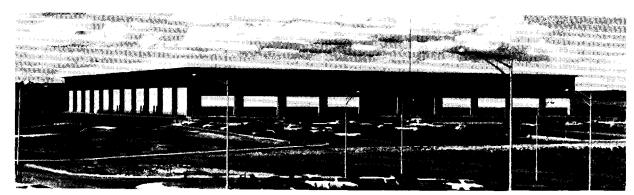

One of the innovations is a press box located between the hockey and basketball arenas. It's 80 feet long, and allows reporters to observe both areas from the single vantage point. There are also four 10-foot radio booths, and another 40-foot press area.

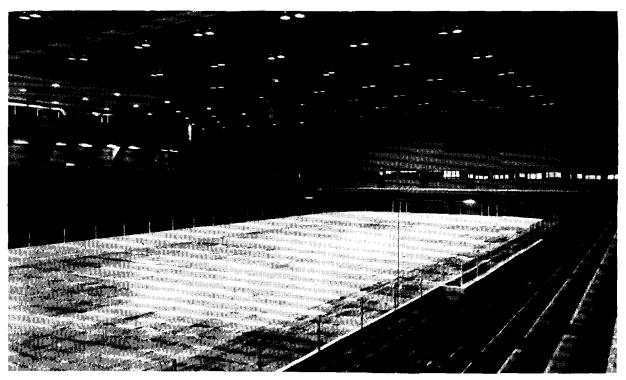

Robert J. Weber, director of athletics at the New York State University at Cortland for the past 12 years, has been promoted to the position of chairman of the Men's Physical Education Department.

Dr. Francis J. Woods has been appointed to succeed Weber as the director of athletics. Woods is a Cortland graduate, and recently completed his doctorate at Ohio State.

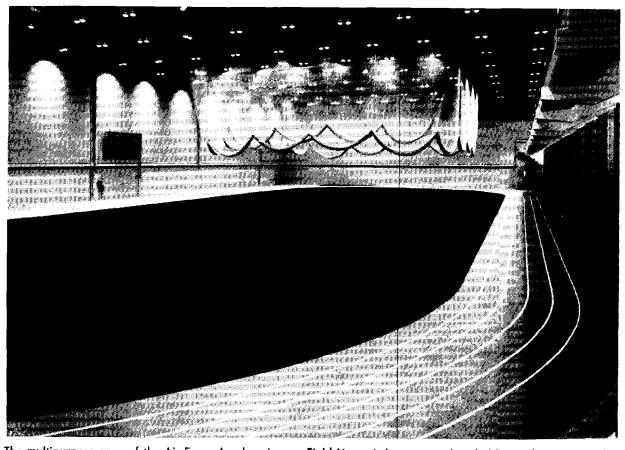

David Bondurant has been appointed sports publicity director at Transylvania College, Lexington, Ky.

The U.S. Air Force Academy Field House is a five-story structure, measuring 396 feet by 426 feet. The one building houses a basketball arena, hockey arena and a multipurpose area. The building was opened last spring.

A hockey arena which can seat 2,600 fans is included in the huge Air Force Academy Field House. The playing area is 84 feet, 8 inches wide and 200 feet long. The press box on the left side of the rink also affords a view of the basketball court.

The multipurpose area of the Air Force Academy's new Field House is large enough to hold a six-lane, one-sixth mile track. Inside the track is a netted area measuring 119 by 125 feet, which can be used for baseball drills. When the nets are raised football practice can be held on the Astroturf surface.
