JUSTICE BYRON WHITE 1969 TEDDY RECIPIENT

GRID QUEEN BALLOTING IS NOW UNDERWAY

With all 14 finalists chosen, balloting is currently being conducted to pick the College Football Centennial Queen to reign over 1969's celebration of the game's 100th anniversary.

College football fans—who had an opportunity to meet each contestant on the telecast of the USC-Notre Dame game—may vote for their favorite via the ballot which accompanies the pictures of the finalists on pages 6 and 7 of this issue of the NEWS.

Ballots and a picture of each finalist also appear in the Dec. 6 issue of LIFE Magazine. Only one ballot may be submitted in a single envelope, however.

December 18 Deadline

The balloting deadline is Dec. 18. The Queen and two princesses will be crowned at halftime of the Shrine East-West Game Dec. 28 in San Francisco. The East-West Game, and the crowning, will be nationally televised on ABC-TV.

Immediately after being crowned, the Queen will begin a year of activity on behalf of college football.

She will attend many of the events planned in tribute to this great American game and lend her charm to each event by serving as a spokesman for football's traditions and its values on the university campus.

She also will receive a $1,000 NCAA Scholarship and will be provided a Camaro Rally Sport by Chevrolet for use during her reign.

Each princess will receive a $500 scholarship.

Already Queens

The 14 finalists represent the 11 major conferences, the major independents, the College Division, East, and the College Division, West, so each is a queen in her own right already.

Budget

A record budget of $900,550 has been adopted by the NCAA Executive Committee for the Association's 1968-69 fiscal year.

The $900,550 figure includes a budget of $507,550 for the Kansas City Executive Office, $209,000 for National Collegiate Sports Services and $184,000 for College Athletics Publishing Service.

JUSTICE BYRON R. WHITE
1969 Theodore Roosevelt Award Winner

Former Colorado Grid Great Voted Highest NCAA Honor

Byron R. White, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, is the 1969 recipient of the NCAA's highest honor—the Theodore Roosevelt Award.

One of football's finest players, "Whizzer" White will receive the Teddy Award in person at the NCAA Honors Luncheon Tuesday, Jan. 7, 1969. The fourth annual Luncheon will be at noon in the Pacific Ballroom of the Statler Hilton Hotel, site of the Association's 63rd Convention in Los Angeles.

Justice White joins former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Senator Leverett Saltonstall as winners of the Theodore Roosevelt Award.

It is presented to a prominent American "For whom competitive athletics in college and attention to physical well-being thereafter have been important factors in a long-term career of national significance and achievement."

In addition to White, the NCAA will honor former college lettermen who have achieved distinction in the entertainment industry and 1968 recipients of NCAA Postgraduate Scholarships.

Three-Phase Honors Program

Through this three-phase honors program, the NCAA seeks to illustrate achievements of collegiate athletes both as undergraduates and in their subsequent careers.

Scholarship winners and distinguished members of the performing arts, who will receive NCAA commemorative plaques, will join White at the head table, Jan. 7.

The former Colorado back not only is a member of the Football Foundation's Hall of Fame, but was the 1962 recipient of the Foundation's Gold Medal.

As befits a Teddy winner, he has maintained a deep interest in athletics—and his undergraduate institution—over the years.

Of football he states: "It contributes to self-reliance, initiative and integrity."

American Gym Commission Set By USGF, AAU

Agreement to establish a National Gymnastics Commission has been reached by the United States Gymnastics Federation (USGF) and Amateur Athletic Union (AAU).

It is designed to provide cooperative direction to the sport in the United States.

The Commission will be composed of five delegates from both the AAU and USGF. A non-voting chairman will be selected annually by each organization on an alternating basis.

If the Commission is unable to reach a decision, the matter will be referred to the president of the International Gymnastics Federation (FIG), who will recommend a solution.

Arthur Gander, president of the FIG, presided at the formal signing of the agreement in Mexico City. It was witnessed by the international body's Executive Committee.

"U. S. a World Power"

Gander predicted that the Commission will combine the talents of the USGF and AAU to stimulate sufficient activity to "make the United States a world power in gymnastics."

The AAU will continue its membership in the FIG. It was agreed, however, that "all decisions reached by a majority of the Commission . . . will be accepted unreservedly" as the action to be followed by the AAU.

One of the primary responsibilities of the Commission is the selec-

BEER SPONSORSHIP ON GRID TELECASTS LOSES CLOSE VOTE

By a narrow margin, the NCAA membership has denied approval to the Television Committee to authorize sponsorship of NCAA football telecasts by producers of malt beverages.

In voting ending November 18, 211 votes were cast for permitting beer sponsorship, while 115 were cast against.

The percentage in favor therefore was 64.7, just below the 66.7 per cent (two-thirds approval) needed of those voting.

The referendum had been presented to the membership by the TV Committee in an attempt to broaden the area of potential sponsorship for sales by ABC-TV, which telecasts NCAA football.

The Editor's View

Queen Candidates Outstanding Young Women

Those persons tired of hearing of the hippies, yuppies, protestors and trouble-makers—particularly when characterized as “typical” young people of today—can be proud of a group of college students with whom the NEWS has been in contact recently.

This group rivals in excellence of achievement and attitude the student-athletes of whom so many people on and off the nation's campuses are rightfully proud (because they accept discipline and give cooperation).

The individuals of whom we speak are the young ladies nominated by the NCAA's member institutions in the Centennial Queen contest.

As representatives of the students on America's campuses today, they are outstanding. Their grades are good, although scholarship was not a major consideration in their selection, they have commendable—even lofty—career goals, they are dedicated to working to make their universities and communities better places.

Teaching, Medicine Goals

In one six-member conference, three of the candidates are majoring in special education with plans to teach retarded children, two are majoring in applied mathematics and one plans to enter medical school.

The parents of one girl were immigrants. Her father started in this country as a waiter and dishwasher, now he owns a restaurant. She is a state champion in synchronized swimming.

The grade point averages in one conference went 2.4; 3.84; 3.16; 2.5; 3.8; 2.9; 3.7; 3.03, and 3.6.

Among their activities and accomplishments are trips abroad entertaining servicemen; lead roles in professional musical comedy productions; work as professional singers; speaking and translating foreign languages; serving as a hostess at the National Governors' Conference; modeling; starring in TV commercials; teaching voice; innumerable campus activities; tutoring children and participation in many different sports. Surprising was the number who listed family fishing and camping outings as a favorite activity.

But while they're all-America girls, they consider themselves citizens of the world. In addition to a good number who have already lived or travelled abroad, many more plan to at least travel outside the United States soon after graduation from college.

Love College Football

They are bright, talented, concerned and very pretty. They all eloquently testify their belief that college football adds spirit, tradition and enjoyment to their college years.

Almost without exception, they state that college football provides a strong sense of unity to a university, and, in doing so, express an unspoken feeling that this unity is very important to an institution.

Stated one candidate:

“College Football speaks for itself. It's a competitive sport blending physical contact with individual effort. It was one of the first things I thought about after starting college. Sitting in the stands, I can almost feel the disappointment a player feels when a pass is incomplete. When a touchdown is made, I share the joy and thrill of the score. This is one of the good things about being a spectator. We can shout and cheer and sometimes cry, but we can keep the team motivated, even when the chips are down, and that's what counts. Nothing takes the place of Saturday's big game.” (Vickie Lynn Chesser, The Citadel.)

They are worthy products of higher education today.

Columnary Craft

Reprinted below are excerpts from news columnists commenting pertinently about the collegiate position on various matters. They are selected, not because they may be favorable, but because they make points about intercollegiate athletics which the NCAA News feels need to be emphasized.

John Hall, Los Angeles Times

(Interviewing John McKay, USC football coach.)

“Winning is tougher than losing,” said John McKay, the winner. Sitting in his office the other day, McKay let himself go in rare fashion on the subjects of ratings, rankings, pressure, tension, victory, fun, fear and defeat.

“Friday is always the most difficult day,” he said. “All the work is done and the only thing you have to do is sit around and think about all the things that can go wrong. You get yourself into a stew, a mental state of I don't know what.”

“Coaching wasn't really meant to be like this,” said McKay. “But we've all fallen into the trap. Machines, projectors, movies . . . By the Notre Dame game we'll have 10 sets of game films to check. We'll chart movies till we go blind.

“I used to be known as a good humor man, now I don't know any man in the country more irritable. I don't smile as much. Things I've always enjoyed seem to be missing now.”

McKay blamed the pressure of constant winning for most of his gloom. “The challenge of preparing for a good opponent is not what I'm talking about. It's the fear of defeat. The more you win, the more you can't stand the thought of losing. You hate the thought of losing.

“We all know better, but you get so involved you can't help yourself. I've been beaten before and beaten badly. I know there are millions of people on this planet who don't even know or care there is such a thing as football. It's not that important.”

“But the fear of defeat crawls at you. I begin to wonder if I'll ever get over this tenseness. There's not a coach I know who can relax during the season. At least four months every year, you're completely separated from your family.

“You end up in a little world all your own, and I've always felt that people who do that are on their way to oblivion.

“I ask myself if I'm becoming such a bad person. The more you win, the worse it gets. Your personality changes. I catch myself thinking ‘I can't lose. I can't lose . . .’

“Why can't I lose? The world won't come to an end.

“ . . . I've got to say a lot of the joy has gone out of it. It's much more fun when you're an assistant coach. That's when you work directly with the kids.

“As head coach, I really coach nobody. I coach only the assistant coaches, the alumni and the press. I find myself talking a mile a minute all over the place and saying nothing.”

Well, maybe you charge it up to blue Friday, the worst day in the week for every coach, even the most successful in the game.

No. 1, you are a lovely digit. You are also a large pain in the neck.

Sporting News

(Commenting on record crowds at ten games with largest attendance on October 12)

The average attendance of over 69,000 for the 10 top college football games could well be the envy of the high-flying pros, many of whom lack stadiums with that much capacity, to say nothing of the drawing power to fill same if they had them.

NCAA figures show that college grid attendance hit an all-time high of 26.4 million in 1967, and the evidence indicates another record year in the making. In 14 years of successive increases since 1953, college crowds have advanced 58.4 percent, including a gain of five million in the last five years. Wall Street's security analysts would have to label this one a growth industry.

College football is far from an ugly duckling in the video sweepstakes, too. A pre-season survey revealed that the colleges' combined take from TV and radio rights in 1968 will exceed $15.6 million. Two-thirds of this—$10.2 million—is contributed by the American Broadcasting Co. for TV rights to Saturday games during the regular season. The rest comes from bowl-game telecasts and local radio and delayed TV broadcasts.

College football is doing better than all right. At the rate it's going, it should stay comfortably ahead of inflation, and that is a hot pace indeed.

Letters to the Editor...

Mr. Walter Byers
Executive Director, NCAA
Kansas City, Missouri 64105

Dear Mr. Byers:

As you know, as of August 25, 1968, I retired from all associations with teaching and athletics, but because I am still interested in both I may soon resume publication of the weekly news release “Bench Talk Heard.”

I was happy that I had requested to be continued on the mailing list for the NCAA NEWS and to read your article, A Personal Viewpoint, “The Ironical Contradiction,” in the September NEWS.

After 4 years of high school, 3 years of college competence, 52 years of teaching physics and chemistry, 13 years of college coaching and 39 years of athletic administration and officiating, I feel your article is an expression of the true spirit of amateur intercollegiate competition. As a teacher and coach, I was in accord with rules of scholarship requirements for athletics. My vote was always for the 1600 rule as it was found that that was the highest scholastic rule that could be passed.

Laurel wreaths to you for your article, and I hope you will continue to speak out for scholarly athletics, not for Roman amphitheater gladiators to be exploited before betting spectators.

Kindest regards to you and my friends in NCAA.

Sincerely,
B. T. HARVEY

CD Football History Background for Round Table

Discussion of the proposed creation of a "Third" or "Private" Division for classification of NCAA member institutions in football will be a feature of the College Division Round Table session at the Los Angeles Convention.

The Round Table will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday, January 7, in the Golden State Room of the Statler Hilton Hotel.

To provide background information on the Association's College Division football program upon which this discussion can be based, the NCAA College Division Football Committee has prepared the following statement, which includes the Committee's recommendations and opinions expressed by the membership in answer to a Committee survey.

Cecil Coleman, Fresno State College, is Committee chairman. Other members are Ernest C. Casale, Temple; Garvin Beauchamp, Abilene Christian, and Edgar A. Sherman, Muskingum.

College Division Football

The Association's College Division football program was established to accomplish the following objectives:

- (1) Stimulate and bring deserved attention to the sport of football among College Division institutions.

- (2) Enhance the sports programs of College Division institutions.
- (3) Extend to College Division members the opportunity to participate in NCAA championship competition in the sport of football.

After five years, most people familiar with the program are of the opinion that it is accomplishing its purposes and it appears the news media are giving more attention to College Division football.

Through this exposure, as well as television and "in person" attendance, the public is recognizing the football talent and ability of the nation's College Division institutions.

If the program has a weakness, it is that all College Division members do not have a fair opportunity to be selected. Since their inception, the College Division Championships have tended to be dominated by state institutions with burgeoning enrollments.

Therefore, while the NCAA provides an opportunity for some institutions, other College Division members still are being deprived of the experience of participating in postseason football competition.

Last spring the NCAA College Football Committee conducted a survey among football-playing institutions in the College Division to ascertain the desirability of creating a "Third" or "Private" Division in the sport of football.

Over 100 institutions indicated their interest in participating in such a new division.

The Committee was encouraged with the results of the study and is prepared to recommend to the Executive Committee the inauguration of a new division for the 1969 football season.

The College Football Committee believes two games should be established on a trial basis, with, perhaps, one for the Atlantic Coast Region and one for the remainder of the country.

The games would be played at the site of one of the competing teams, on either the last Saturday in November or the first Saturday in December.

Neither date would conflict with the Association's four other College Division regional championships which are conducted on the second Saturday in December.

The sites would be determined by the College Football Committee. The Committee would be responsible for the games and would select the competing institutions, although additional advisory committees might be established to assist in the third division.

A plan has been advanced which would guarantee the expenses of the participating teams in these games from the College Football Reserve Fund. In all probability, however, the championships would draw well.

In accordance with NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(b), it is not necessary to adopt legislation to establish additional College Division football competition. Executive Committee approval is all that is required.

"GYM EXCHANGES TO EXPAND"—BARE

ffective upon the approval of the appropriate governing bodies of the respective organizations.

Progressive Move

Frank Bare, executive director of the USGF, hailed the Commission as a progressive move in the best interests of gymnastics.

"The Commission will enable this country to expand its program of international exchanges," Bare said. "This country's Olympic potential will be enhanced through competition with the great gymnasts from other countries," he added.

The USGF's annual Coaches Congress was held in Chicago, Nov. 2-3. More than 150 gymnastics coaches and leaders, including many AAU gymnastics representatives, attended.

FIG President Gander, world-renowned for his technical knowledge of gymnastics, was the featured speaker.

Increase Activity

"It is the USGF's intention to increase this type of activity," Bare said, "so that more Americans can learn about gymnastics from acknowledged world leaders."

He continued, "It is immaterial who sponsors such activities as long as we can improve and promote gymnastics."

Bare's words were echoed by NCAA Secretary-Treasurer Ernest B. McCoy, an active champion of the USGF's cause.

He stated: "Hopefully, the days of threats and suspensions in gymnastics are over so that those desiring to work for the betterment of the sport may pursue their mission."

Louisville Awaits 1969 Basketball Championship

This colorful new design currently brightens the center circle of the new basketball court at Louisville's Freedom Hall at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, site of the 1969 National Collegiate Basketball Championship. Five NCAA tournaments were played on the old court, replaced just prior to the opening of the 1968-69 season. The last tourney played at Freedom Hall was in 1967, when UCLA defeated Dayton for the title.

TEXT OF KEY AMENDMENTS GIVEN

Many proposed legislative and policy changes will be presented for consideration by delegates attending the Association's 63rd gathering in January in Los Angeles.

As reported in the November NEWS, the NCAA Council has endorsed 10 amendments, 13 new Official Interpretations or rulings and two new Recommended Policies for Convention approval.

In addition, other suggested revisions to the Association's rules have been presented by member institutions and allied and affiliated members. November 15 was the deadline for submission of proposed amendments to the Constitution and Bylaws.

OFFICIAL NOTICE MAILED

All of the items to be considered were printed in full in the Official Notice mailed last week to the chief administrative officers, faculty representatives and directors of member institutions, and to all allied and affiliated members.

To provide persons other than those receiving the Official Notice an opportunity to read the most significant items proposed and thus be able to discuss them prior to the Convention with the voting delegates, the NEWS prints below six proposed amendments.

In addition, the source and intent of five different proposed amendments to Bylaws 4, Sections 1 and 2, which govern the eligibility of student-athletes for NCAA competition, are printed. Space will not permit printing all five proposals in full here, but they are in the Official Notice and Bylaws 4-1 and 4-2 may be found on pages 35-37 of the 1968 NCAA Manual.

The Roman numerals in the titles refer to the order in which the proposed amendments appear in the Official Notice.

HARRY ARLANSON

Arlanson, Past CD Chairman, Now On Council

Harry Arlanson received a degree in mechanical engineering from Tufts College in 1931, but since then has spent most of his time engineering winning football teams, many of them at Tufts where he is now director of athletics.

He also has been a tireless contributor to NCAA committees, including the Association's Council, on which he is now serving his third year.

When formerly chairman of the College Division Committee, he was instrumental in the establishment of the College Division Regional Football Championships.

Arlanson began his coaching duties at Montpelier Seminary, and compiled a record of 26-6-3 in four years. He completed work on his master's degree at Boston University, and took over the head coaching duties at Weymouth (Mass.) High School in 1935.

Naval Officer

With the exception of 30 months spent as a Naval Officer during World War II, he coached at Weymouth from 1935 until his return to Tufts, this time as head coach, in 1954.

At Weymouth his teams compiled a 134-18-10 record, and in one stretch, built a 31-game winning streak.

At Tufts his teams won 57, lost 35 and tied two. In all, only three of his 33 years in coaching were losing ones.

Arlanson was chosen College Football Coach of the Year in New England in 1959, and NCAA College Division District One Coach of the Year in 1960.

Add his record at the three institutions together, and you come up with 217 wins, 59 losses and 15 ties, and that's a lot of engineering. He gave up his coaching duties in 1965, but remains as director of athletics and physical education.

College football players were urged to wear mouth guards by the American Prosthodontic Society, at its annual meeting recently. The dentists say that the mouth guards have virtually eliminated mouth injuries among high school and junior college players.

CD Grid Championships Scheduled for Dec. 14

Eight outstanding College Division football teams have been selected for the four NCAA regional Championships to be contested Dec. 14.

North Dakota State, with a 9-0 record, will be the only team returning to a bowl when it plays Arkansas State in the Pecan Bowl at Arlington, Tex. ND State lost to Texas Arlington last year, 13-0, but won the Midwest championship in 1965, beating Grambling 20-7.

Arkansas State earned the title game berth by winning the Southland Conference crown, and rolling up a 7-2-1 record, including a clutch 22-21 win over Texas Arlington in the final game of the season.

The Pacific Coast Championship game, the Camellia Bowl at Sacramento, brings together the champions of the Far Western Conference, Humboldt State, and the California Collegiate Athletic Association, Fresno State.

Humboldt had a 9-1 record, losing its opener but coming back to win the nine in a row. The Far Western Conference is said to be stronger this year than usual. Humboldt repeatedly came through with pressure wins over league opponents, winning four of the league games by a touchdown or less.

Fresno Finishes Strongly

Fresno also got off to a slow start, losing to Idaho State and San Jose in its first two games of the year, but came back with a 7-3 record, the other loss to San Diego State. Fresno earned the berth with a decisive win over Montana State, co-champion of the Big Sky Conference, then beat Pacific, a University Division team.

The Mideast Championship game could be one of the most exciting bowl games in the country this season. Two of the College Division passing leaders will collide.

Terry Bradshaw leads Louisiana Tech's forces into the Grantland Rice bowl at Murfreesboro, Tenn., against Don Zwisler and Akron.

18 TD Passes

Louisiana Tech has an 8-2 record and finished second in the Gulf States Conference. Bradshaw had thrown for 18 touchdowns into his final game.

Zwisler also has a fine arm, throwing for 13 scores, as Akron compiled a 7-2-1 record.

The Atlantic Coast game will be played indoors, at the Atlantic City Convention Hall. Indiana University of Pa., with a 9-0 record, goes against the University of Delaware, with a 7-3 record, and the leading ground gaining team in the nation's College Division.

Indiana finished the season with a flourish, beating C. W. Post, a contender for a bowl bid, 35-13. Delaware also finished strong, beating a good Boston University team and Bucknell in its final two ball games.

The teams were selected by the College Football Committee, Ernest Casale of Temple, Edgar Sherman of Muskingum, Garvin Beauchamp of Abilene Christian and Chairman Cecil Coleman of Fresno State.

The Pecan and Rice bowls will start at 12:50 p.m. local time, the Camellia Bowl at 12:20 p.m. and the Boardwalk Bowl at 1:50 p.m.

Football Memorabilia Sought by NFFHF

A search for college football memorabilia has been started by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

It seeks stories, programs, photographs, ticket stubs, items of equipment and anything else which would help to illustrate college football's first 100 years for display in the planned Hall of Fame at New Brunswick, N. J.

Directing the program is Jerry Klein, brother of NCSS Director Larry Klein.

He sent each SID a letter in August asking for his help. The foundation is seeking items from institutions and private collectors.

Klein would like the names of any of the latter who may be known to NEWS readers.

He may be contacted at the NFFHF's New Brunswick office: 137 Church St., New Brunswick, N. J. 08901.

Wheaton Wins Fourth Mideast Soccer Crown

WOOSTER, OHIO Wheaton College is making a habit of winning the NCAA's Mideast Regional College Division Soccer Tournament. This year Wheaton defeated the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle, 3-0 in the championship game, after a semifinal 3-1 win over Cleveland State.

Wheaton has appeared in all but one of the seven Mideast tournaments, winning the title four times. This year it was a well disciplined offense that did the trick for Coach Russ Enslow's booters.

Early Lead

In both games, Wheaton jumped into the lead in the first period, with two goals. Paul Avila and Paul Elsen both scored twice for the champions.

Chicago Circle knocked host Wooster from championship contention with a 1-0 win in the semifinals. In the consolation round, Cleveland State scored three goals in the third period to gain a 3-1 victory over Wooster.

Rich Kuczerenko scored the lone goal for Chicago Circle in its Wooster game, to break a scoreless deadlock. He booted the winner 25 seconds into the second overtime period.

Air Force Frosh Play Indoor Grid Contest

The weather was bad Nov. 15, so the University of Colorado at Air Force Academy freshman football game was moved indoors. The spacious new Academy field house was the scene, as the home forces fell to defeat, 28-6.

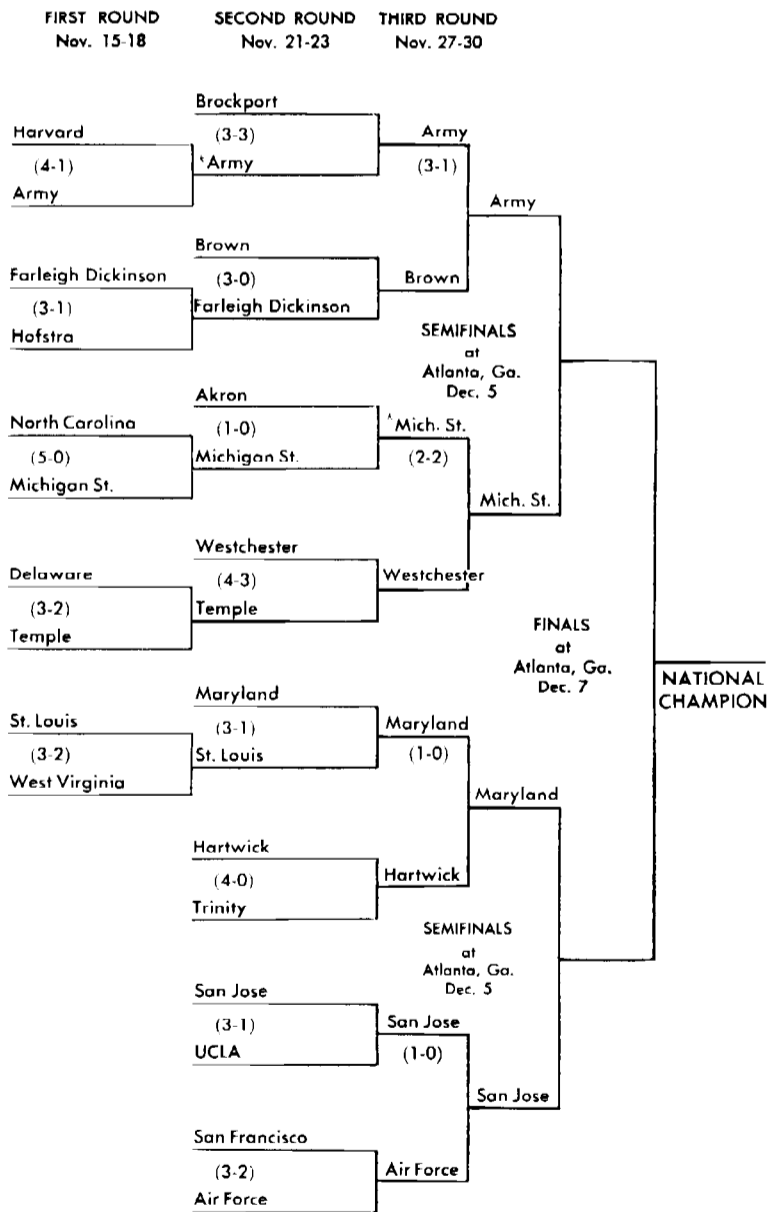

The rules had to be adjusted, since the building isn't high enough to allow for a kicking game, and there are no goal posts. A team due to receive a kickoff got the ball on its 25-yard line. Punts were not allowed, so when a team wanted to punt, the official advanced the ball 35 yards from scrimmage.

Touchdowns were counted as seven points, unless a team wanted to go for the two-point conversion. In that case, the touchdown reverted to six points and the two-point conversion was attempted.

Over 1,000 watched the game.

The new facility was featured in the November News.

Columnary Craft

Reprinted below are excerpts from news columnists commenting pertinently about the collegiate position on various matters. They are selected, not because they may be favorable, but because they make points about intercollegiate athletics which the NCAA News feels need to be emphasized.

James K. McGee, San Francisco Examiner

(In answer to a question on where he was spending Saturday afternoon, and why.)

"Where have you been sneaking off to these Saturday afternoons lately?" my wife wanted to know.

College football I told her.

"I suppose the stands are full of those people who look like a cross between an English sheepdog and a dirty mop. Are they going around in front of the stand with signs like 'Freedom for All to Coach,' or do they demand to sit on the bench? I know none of them are carrying signs demanding to play."

"Very few of the far-outs or hippies are around," I said. "Everything is just the same as it always was. Rooters, card stunts, yell leaders and bald-headed men. The only straggly stuff around is the paper streamers carried by the pompon girls. And they're as lovely and pert as ever too."

"The revival of college football in 1968," I said, "is one of the biggest shifts in sports trends in years. People are returning to college stadiums in throngs. All the charm and fun, the spontaneous, real thing that only college football can generate, is still there. I'm sure the people in the stands are not unaware of crises in the world and in their own country. But if they want to relax for an afternoon, who can blame them? And the football is better than it ever was. Remember, to endure, college football must engender some lasting qualities—like loyalty to school and coach and team discipline. Dedication to a cause is there. College football may be the last refuge of law and order."

"I think," she observed, "I'll get a new dress."

"A new dress?" I screamed. "What has that got to do with college football?"

"You've sold me on it," she said. "You're taking me to the Big Game Saturday."

Gar Yarbo, The Football News

The pros may grab the headlines, but college football is still supreme.

Altogether this season some 30 million fans will witness college football games and this is a tremendous testimonial to the quality and drawing power of college football.

I have always thought that college football produced the greater upsets because the game is based more on spirit and desire than pro football.

Colorado's White Is Teddy Winner

National Leader

Justice White was a triple threat man at Colorado, starting in the backfield for three seasons. 1935-36-37. In 1937 he led all major college players in both scoring and rushing, pacing Colorado to an undefeated season and a Cotton Bowl berth.

Colorado lost to Rice in the Bowl game, but White was named to the All-America team, and finished second in the Heisman Trophy balloting.

White's athletic prowess didn't end on the football field. He also was named to all-conference teams in both basketball and baseball.

His leadership was demonstrated by his election as student body president.

Scholastically, he was just as outstanding. He was a Phi Beta Kappa, graduating with a record of 180 hours of A, and six hours of B in 186 hours of study.

Rhodes Scholar

He was a Rhodes Scholar, and did post-graduate work at Oxford College in England. He played professional football both before and after his study at Oxford, and was named to the National Football League All-Star team. During the off season he was a student in the Yale Law School.

White's extraordinary career continued in his service with the Navy during World War II. He earned a Bronze Star during his tour of duty in the Pacific, and also became a close friend of John F. Kennedy, a friendship which would later bring White into a role in the national government.

White returned to Yale Law School, and graduated first in his class in 1946. He then served as a

Joe Harper, football coach at Cal Poly, SLO, has been appointed director of athletics. Joe is in his first year as head coach. He succeeded Sheldon Harden as coach, and Richard Anderson as athletic director. Anderson remains on the staff as swimming and water polo coach. Harper is a graduate of UCLA, and spent five years as an assistant coach at Colorado.

The new football rule which stops the clock after a first down has been made has stretched football games out some. Says Woody Hayes, Ohio State coach, "I don't know yet whether I like the rule, but the fans sure should. They get to see that much more football."

Colgate backs were more impressed with the football shoes than the artificial grass at the new Boston University facility. They felt that the canvas shoes with rubber cleats were far more comfortable than the regular football shoe they normally wear. B. U. has a shoe pool for visiting teams.

Gym, Track Certification Is Delayed

The need to obtain more complete information on a number of meets has delayed the NCAA Extra Events Committee in issuing a list of those winter track and gymnastics meets which will be certified by the Association for 1968-69.

With Bylaws 7-B and 7-C effective again, member institutions and their athletes may not participate in an uncertified "outside" meet without being in violation of those provisions.

While the Committee had hoped to issue the list of certified meets prior to this date, Chairman Stan Bates of Washington State reports that minor discrepancies or omissions in the forms submitted by a number of meets required the Committee to contact the meets a second time, with the delay to the present time resulting.

Bates stated the Committee plans to circulate a list of the approved meets to the membership by mail as soon as possible, certainly in the very near future.

He added the Committee is quite aware of the impending meets and the difficulty institutions will have with scheduling if such a list is not provided in the immediate future.

The initial list will cover meets in January, February and March. A later list will cover spring and summer meets.

COLLEGE MARCH RECORD OFFERED

A Centennial record of college football marches is available through a joint effort of the NCAA and Lycoming Records.

Besides featuring 19 well-known songs, it introduces the new "NCAA Champions" march.

Price of the stereo album is only one dollar. It may be ordered with the accompanying coupon.

With a cover showing the four Centennial paintings, the album pays tribute to 1969's College Football Centennial. It is produced by Richard Wolfe, a former intercollegiate athlete at the University of Delaware.

Also available via the coupon are the four 18" x 24" four-color reproductions of the Centennial paintings (which were printed in the October NEWS), a 2 3/4" bronze medallion, a 1 1/2" bronze coin and a 1 1/2" sterling silver coin.

All may be ordered from L. G. Balfour Co., P.O. Box 11608, Salt Lake City, Utah 84111.

The paintings are by artist Arnold Friberg.

The two sides of the medallion and coins combine to commemorate college football's colorful history and tradition. On one side is a scene taken from Friberg's painting of the first game between Rutgers and Princeton in 1869.

On the other appears a football set in a wreath with a large "100" imposed upon it, with a torch of learning in the background.

This design will be the official symbol of the Centennial and it—or different elements from it—will be used in many ways during 1969.
