

NCAA Awards Seniors Final 32 Grants

The last 32 of 80 $1,000 Postgraduate Scholarships have been awarded by the NCAA for the 1968-69 academic year. Awards in the last group go to outstanding student-athletes participating in sports other than football and basketball.

Twelve awards were given in the University Division and twelve in the College Division, while eight were bestowed in the At-Large category. There were seven alternates. According to Postgraduate Scholarship Committee policy, if any one of the original awardees does not utilize his scholarship, it automatically reverts to an alternate in the order in which the alternates are ranked.

Each winner has earned better than a 3.0 or "B" accumulative grade average for three years of college work and has performed with distinction in his particular sport(s). In addition, each must have signified his intention of beginning graduate studies as soon as possible and must have been judged capable of doing postgraduate work by his major professor.

The majors of the 32 cover most of a university curricula—including English, aerospace and mechanical engineering, political science, psychology, forestry, biology, chemistry, history, economics, etc.

The NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee which made the selections is composed of: Larry Woodruff, Kansas, chairman; A. D. Kirwan, Kentucky; Sherman Stanford, Penn State; Samuel E. Barnes, Howard; Maj. Peter M. Dawkins, U.S. Military Academy; Max Schultz, Minnesota; J. Neils Thompson, Texas; and W. H. H. Dye, Northwestern.

5,000th Champ Crowned at Golf Tourney

Bob Clark of California State, Los Angeles, became the 5,000th individual National Collegiate Champion June 28 by winning the individual title of the National Collegiate Golf Championships at The Broadmoor, Colorado Springs, Colo.

NCAA President Harry M. Cross was on hand to present him a special NCAA plaque commemorating the significant occasion.

The national collegiate championships date back to 1883 when tennis was established as a national tournament for college athletes. That was 23 years before the founding of the NCAA, but the Association has included the tennis and golf winners of the early years in its figures.

The first golf championship was conducted in 1897 with Louis P. Bayard of Princeton the winner.

In recent years the annual number of individual champions has increased markedly, with the inclusion of many additional sports in the championship series, to this year's total of 190.

In the current year, 1968-69, the NCAA is sponsoring 15 National Collegiate Championships plus another nine national championships on the College Division level. Two more championship events, water polo and volleyball, will be added next year.

Bob Clark of California State, Los Angeles, became the 5,000th National Collegiate Champion, when he won the individual title of the National Collegiate Golf Championships at The Broadmoor last month. Bob is shown here with the plaque which was presented to him by Harry Cross, president of the NCAA.

The Editor's View

Peaceful Sports Coexistence

Wayne Duke, a member of the NCAA Executive Committee and the Commissioner of the Big Eight, made the following remarks at a panel on "College-Professional Athletics, Can They Co-exist?" at the NACDA meeting in Kansas City, June 23. The editor offers them as a frank, articulate, timely examination of an area of major concern to intercollegiate athletics.

It appears obvious that collegiate and professional sports should co-exist. Saying it plainly, the pros are here to stay, and so are we. We've been around longer, and our popularity in a multiple of sports has never been higher. The pros aren't going to go away, and they're going to continue to be competition for the entertainment dollar. They will continue to play a most prominent role in coverage by our news media and in the thinking of the populace.

I am a journalist by educational training, though my good friends in the newspaper profession oftentimes attempt to disown me. Much of that, I suspect, is because of their characterization of me as a "hawk" when it comes to college-professional relations. This is based much upon my sincere concern relative to the inroads of professional sports on the interscholastic and intercollegiate programs and my idea that you just shouldn't roll over and play dead simply because the pros are here to stay. I oftentimes offer an analogy to my newspaper friends, comparing professional football, for example—in our scheme of things—to the television media in the newspaperman's eyes. Here's television, with its recently found popularity, its glamour as a news-gathering and entertainment media, and its influence for changing starting times—yes, even playing dates—of athletic contests, control of time-outs, and the like. Here is the newspaper media—on the other hand—vitaly concerned with the competition and the challenge offered by television as a news agency and a power of influence on its day-by-day operations. Television, too, is here to stay, but the newspaper profession can't roll over and play dead by merely accepting that fact. The point is you just don't accept the premise that because they're here to stay that nothing can be done about it. You continually attempt to develop new and workable arrangements with your competition, and you attempt to do a better job of merchandising or improving your own product—and to me that's not being a hawk.

Merchandising the Collegiate Product

Obviously, there are a number of different ways to better merchandise the collegiate product—and these more appropriately are discussions of another panel later in these meetings. But, I do have a thought or two regarding the matter of merchandising our product and the fact that we must develop a mutual respect for each other's problems and concerns for intercollegiate and professional athletics to coexist, and, that those of us involved in intercollegiate athletic administration must do a better job in conducting athletics within the educational framework.

Coexistence, by Webster's definition, is "to exist together or at the same time" or "to live in peace with each other." It doesn't mean that you necessarily see "eye to eye" on all matters, and it doesn't mean that you can't retain a firm line of demarcation between college and professional sports if the two are based on completely opposite principles and objectives. I am convinced that that is the case. Professional sports is strictly a business, and, as a business, its primary purpose is to make money. I would like to think that we're in the education business—and if we aren't, we'd better be re-defining our principles and objectives and undertake some soul-searching to make certain that we are, or we won't have any basis whatsoever for our own existence, let alone coexistence.

Let me cite two anecdotes which happened to me in one week in 1963 which brought home this fact more forcefully than anything else . . .

The supervisor of officials for the American Football League stopped by my office one day in 1963 shortly after I had assumed my present position with the Big Eight Conference, and related this incident which had happened to him the previous Sunday. It seems that an owner of an AFL club sought out the supervisor in the pressbox after a particularly close professional game, shook his fist in the supervisor's face, and said "Do you realize that last call by one of your officials cost me $200,000?"

Contrast this with another incident that same week. A Big Eight Conference football coach, going for the Conference championship and a possible chance at an Orange Bowl bid, decided to go for a two-pointer instead of a one-point conversion play—when either, if successful, would have kept his team in the thick of the Conference race and a possible bowl bid. Only a great play by a defensive halfback thwarted the attempted two-point conversion pass play. A TV commentator asked him the next week, "Did you ever think about going for one and settling for the tie?" The response: "I'm not paid to win football games, I'm paid to teach boys how to win football games."

Education Prime Purpose

Now, I don't for one minute want you to believe I'm so naive as to pretend that we aren't in the entertainment or the winning business. We are. But my point to you is that we in intercollegiate and interscholastic athletics have purposes and objectives which far transcend those of entertainment, winning, or the dollar sign—that of educating our athletes and making certain that through a student's athletic experiences he receives the educational experiences for which athletics was originally intended. Within this respect for professional athletics and its proper role in our modern-day society, those of us in collegiate athletics need to develop another type of respect—some self-respect for our own purposes, our own objectives, and that's why I maintain a firm line of demarcation need be retained between college and professional sports. And, I think you can co-exist though you do retain such demarcation.

Frankly, as an individual, I become deeply chagrined at the aborting of the true purposes and objectives of intercollegiate—and interscholastic athletics—by the emphasis on the pros, but I think it's our fault for not preaching positively the gospel of our purposes and objectives. We're living in an era when it's common-place—because of this abortion of the values of our sports—to believe that the objective of interscholastic athletics is to prepare players for the colleges, and the objective of the intercollegiate program is to prepare players for the pros. What a fallacy! Even if one were not imbued with an idealistic philosophy that the real purpose is of an educative nature, sheer numbers would disprove such a theory.

Colleges Not Building Pros

The National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations on May 19 of this year released its 1969 "Sports Participation Survey," showing that a total of 902,430 boys participated in interscholastic football last year. The National Collegiate Athletic Association conducted a similar survey recently showing that some 30,000 persons participated in football programs in our nation's colleges and universities in 1969. How many professional football players are there? Roughly, 1,000.

Translated, it means simply this. Only 3 of every 100 boys who ever plays high school football will ever play intercollegiate football. Only one of every 30 boys who plays college football will go on to the pros—just one person on the entire college squad, if that. (And, you can reduce that figure greatly by a more complete analysis of participation figures.) I sometimes wonder whatever happens to those other 97 boys out for high school football, or the other 29 college boys. Those of us in interscholastic or intercollegiate athletics better have other purposes and objectives for our programs, than to produce players for the colleges, or for the pros.

The basketball figures are even more convincing. That same NFSHSAA survey shows 676,559 high school basketball players in 1969-70, the NCAA survey shows some 16,000 collegiate basketball players. Do you know how many professional basketball players there are? 288. Now, really, should there be any question at all where we need place the emphasis in our programs?

For college and university people, this serves to re-emphasize that if we don't have that approach, the real purposes and objectives of college athletics as our goals, we'd better re-define what we're doing. We're in the education business, and, to paraphrase our teenage sons and daughters, we'd better be telling it like it is.

Recognize Differences

For the professionals, we ask that you recognize that we are different than you. Our policies, our rules, are founded on basic educational principles—we've got work of our own to do to make certain that all of us adhere to these principles, but we need your help, too. We don't ask for monetary help in forms of scholarships; we ask for support of our principles.

- Don't take our kids before they have an opportunity to complete their educations.
- Don't try to buy our coaches' recruiting assistance at the expense of the college program.
- Don't attempt, through legislative or civic pressures, to utilize our facilities.
- Don't televise against the high schools' football games or televise games that interfere with our basketball TV programs, or generally over-expose sports through television, length of seasons or expansion of franchises which will be to the detriment of all sports.
- Recognize that we are concerned with as many as 20 different sports and have a responsibility and obligation to maintain all of them.
- Keep in mind that the collegiate concerns are many—620 teams in football and over 800 teams in basketball—as opposed to the interests of some 20 owners.
- Don't tell us you want to live with us, then do what you want, based upon the economics of the matter!

Our principal concern, as best expressed in a recent report of the colleges' professional relations committee is "the preservation of the values of our sports, their economic structure, and the protection of students from professionalism until their education is completed." We don't say we have the problems whipped within our own structure, but we ask your respect and support in achieving these objectives. Practices by professional sports and internal activities of our own which tend to reduce or obscure the demarcation between professional and intercollegiate athletics, can only have an adverse effect on such coexistence.

Council, Exec Comm To Meet

The NCAA Council and Executive Committee will meet in Atlantic City, N. J., in mid-August.

For the Executive Committee, the meetings will be the annual fall sessions of the 10-man administrative group.

The Council meeting will be a special summer gathering due to an ever-expanding work load resulting from the Association's growing membership and competitive program.

The Executive Committee will meet Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 18 and 19, while the Council will meet Wednesday through Friday, Aug. 20-22.

To Adopt Budget

The major item of business facing the Executive Committee is adoption of the Association's budget for the NCAA's 1969-70 fiscal year. In addition, several sites for championship events must be selected for the coming academic year.

NCAA President Harry M. Cross of the University of Washington will preside at the meetings of both the Council and Executive Committee.

Centennial celebration by sports information directors at NCAA member institutions is being sponsored in 1969 by the Chevrolet Motor Division.

Designed to encourage greater contest participation than in past years, the contest features a camera kit for each entrant, two Camaro cars as grand prizes and 25 Panasonic battery-operated portable television sets.

The sports information director, or other college official performing that function, at each NCAA member institution is eligible to enter by writing Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Corporation, Detroit, Michigan 48202.

Announcing the contest at COSIDA's annual workshop, Chevrolet's Assistant National Merchandising Manager Russ Fons stated:

"Easy to Enter"

"This contest is designed to make it easy to enter—through our special contest format—and easy to win, because we've added the additional prizes.

"We want each SID to feel he has a chance to win, because each of you does such a fine job for college football."

To encourage participation and to facilitate entry, Chevrolet will send each SID who returns the entry post card a Kodak camera kit, with which he can then take photos of his promotional activities.

The photos are to be mounted in an "Insta-Replay" album—which is also to be sent to each entrant—and the album simply mailed to Chevrolet.

That quickly and easily an SID is entered in the finals of the contest. Elaborate, costly and time-consuming presentations are out, all entrants will be limited to the same number of photos taken with the same type of camera.

In the contest, prizes will be awarded in both "major" and "College Division" categories to even further equalize the competition each SID will face and his chance for winning a car or TV set.

Trucks Offered

Entries will be judged on the basis of the enterprise and originality shown by the SID in the display of Chevrolet cars and trucks in promoting college football and its Centennial.

Chevrolet also invited each NCAA institution which has use for a truck to contact the truck merchandising manager of its Chevrolet zone to obtain a vehicle for use during the coming season.

Chevrolet already has contacted the institutions which will appear on the NCAA television series to offer use of a truck, but also is extending the offer to all other football-playing member institutions. An institution which is unfamiliar with Chevrolet personnel in its zone may write Carroll Worthington, assistant merchandising manager, Chevrolet Trucks, in Detroit.

SID's in attendance in Chicago received a list of Chevrolet zone personnel.

ABC College Grid Special Airls September 12

An hour-long television special on college football's Centennial will be shown on ABC-TV Friday, Sept. 12.

Scheduled for 8 p.m. (EDT), the show will be presented at corresponding times in other parts of the country. It may be presented on a different date in some areas, so college football fans should check local programming schedules.

Schenkel To Be Host

Titled "What the Cheering Was All About . . . College Football's First 100 Years," the show will be hosted by Chris Schenkel, the voice of NCAA football on Saturday afternoons.

The script is by Jack Clary of the Boston Herald-Traveler.

The show will include films of great players and coaches in action. Unusual games, upsets and traditions will be featured.

Interviews with former players and coaches will be aired.

The show precedes by one day the opening of the 1969 series of live games, which is kicked-off with the Air Force meeting SMU in Dallas Saturday, Sept. 13.

ILLINOIS STATE CD DIAMOND CHAMPION

Illinois State U. is the 1969 College Division baseball champion. The Red Birds convincingly throttled the opposition in the second annual tournament, at Springfield, Mo., winning the four-team, double-elimination tournament in three days.

The wins were so convincing that Coach Duffy Bass used just three pitchers who gave up a total of two earned runs while beating Puget Sound 5-3, Southwest Missouri 5-1 and 12-0.

The opening victory over Puget Sound was the toughest. The team from the northwest was tough at the bat, ringing nine hits off Buzz Capra, but couldn't put them together.

Puget's Rick Hand, a strong pitcher, limited Illinois to six hits but was victimized by four errors.

The host team, Southwest, made it into the winners bracket by beating Florida Southern 6-3 in one of the most exciting games of the series. Southern threatened many times, but SW's Ken Watkins managed to keep Southern from crossing the plate after the fourth inning.

Southwest got a taste of things to come in the game against Illinois State, losing 5-1, scoring the run in the ninth inning. The winners had jumped to a 3-0 lead by the third inning and added another pair of runs in the fourth. Pitcher Bob Graczyk showed he enjoyed the lead by holding Southwest to five hits.

Florida Southern came back to beat Puget in the losers bracket, in a wild and woolly game, 13-10. Seven errors were committed, seven batters were hit with pitched balls and 19 walks were issued, 14 by Puget Sound pitchers. Southern left 17 runners on base, Puget Sound, 12.

Southwest knocked the Floridians out of the tournament 11-5, taking advantage of the tired Florida Southern pitching staff. The Bears rattled 13 hits, including a homer by Dan Cook, off three Florida pitchers.

That got the Bears into the championship game, but coach Bill Rowe's pitching staff was depleted, while Illinois still had plenty of pitching in reserve.

The Red Birds didn't waste any time, scoring eight runs in the second inning. Pitcher Paul Sperry threw a six-hitter, and didn't walk a man, to hand Southwest its first shutout of the season.

Illinois State put five men on the All-Tourney team, Southwest and Puget Sound two each, and Florida Southern one.

Catcher Dave Trayser, first baseman Tom Klein, second baseman Ernie Pedersen, right fielder Larry Hallaert and pitcher Bob Graczyk made it from the winners.

Puget Sound placed shortstop Mick Kelleher and Rick Hand on the star team. Hand made it as an outfielder, after hitting a booming homer and playing solid defense. Southwest had pitcher Ken Watkins and hard hitting third baseman Dan Cook on the squad, and Florida Southern's Gary Morgan made it in centerfield.

Klein was named the most valuable player, edging teammate Buzz Capra. Capra pitched one game, played short in the other two. He made two outstanding plays in the first Southwest Missouri game at short.

Klein had six hits in 13 at bats, hit two triples and a double and and drove in six runs. He also scored three runs.

Golf Crown To Houston At Broadmoor

The University of Houston, with three golfers in the top eleven, climbed back to the pinnacle in the National Collegiate Golf Championships at the Broadmoor course.

The Cougars were dethroned by Florida last year, but with Bob Barbarossa shooting 301, Don Olson 304, John Mahaffey 306, and Bruce Ashworth 312, the Cougars took their 11th crown in the last 14 years.

Bob Clark of Cal State Los Angeles shot a 298 for the 72 holes to take the individual crown, then became the 5,000th champion in National Collegiate history. NCAA President Harry Cross was on hand to present Clark with a commemorative plaque. Clark shot rounds of 76-71-77-74.

Wake Forest finished second, nine strokes back, with Arizona State and Brigham Young still another eight behind. Florida, the defending champion, tied with Georgia at 1,241 strokes.

Tom Watson of Stanford was the longest hitter in the driving contest, whacking one drive 298 yards, and averaging 294.3. Bill Eaton of UCLA was second in both categories, with a long drive of 296 and an average of 288. Bob Risch of USC drove one 289, and Leonard Thompson averaged 267, both good for third place.

San Fernando Valley Champion

San Fernando Valley State College, led by Corky Bassler, annexed the NCAA College Division Golf Championships June 17-20 at the University of New Mexico golf course.

Bassler finished in a tie for the individual championship with Mike Spang of Portland State, both shooting 289 for the 72 holes, the highest score yet to win in the seven years of the tournament.

Bassler had a two stroke lead over Spang going into the final 18 holes, but Spang came through with a 73 to pull even. Gary McCord of UC, Riverside, had the best round of the final day, a 72, to move into third place with 299. Bassler had a third-round 70, the finest round of the tournament.

Twenty-two full teams and 124 golfers competed. San Fernando wound up with 1,231 strokes, never shooting more than 310 a round. Rollins College finished second, one stroke back, with UC Riverside also in contention with 1,238 strokes. Then it was a 17-stroke dropoff to Illinois State.

SPRINTERS LEAD SAN JOSE STATE TO UD TRACK TITLE

Ten records were broken and two others tied, as San Jose State ran to the championship in the National College Track and Field Championships at Tennessee's Tom Black track.

San Jose didn't have any of the record breakers, although John Carlos equalled the mark in the 220, with a 20.2. The Spartan dash men came through in great style to garner most of the 48 points it took to defeat Kansas, the indoor champion.

Carlos was first in the 100 and 220 and ran the anchor leg of the 440 relay. It took a world record, 44.7, by Curtis Mills of Texas A&M to beat SJ's Lee Evans in the 440. John Powell came through for the Spartans with a fourth in the discus.

Kansas rang up 45 points for second place, a disappointment for the Jayhawks who had hoped to grab off both Track and Field titles.

Following close behind were Washington State and Oregon State, with 40 points apiece, and UCLA with 39.

Mills set the only world record, with his 44.7 in the 440. Bob Seagren just missed the magic 18 foot mark, clearing the bar, but hitting it with his hand on the way down. His 17-7 was still good enough for a meet record.

Villanova came up with two marks, Erv Hall zipping over the high hurdles in 13.2, and Marty Liquori finally beating Jim Ryun and setting the NCAA mark of 3:57.7 in the mile. Oregon State also had a pair of record breakers: Dick Fosbury going 7-2½ in the high jump and Jim Barkley running the steeplechase in 8:44.4.

Bill Skinner of Tennessee threw the javelin 273-7 to establish a mark, and Washington State's John van Reenen heaved the discus 200-8 for a record.

Byron Dyce of New York University continued to sparkle in the National Collegiates, with a run of 1:45.9 in the 880 that will put him in the record book twice. He also holds the record in the 800 meters.

The UCLA mile relay team also established a new mark, of 3:03.4.

The other record tied was in the intermediate hurdles, where sophomore Ralph Mann of Brigham Young ran a 49.6. Mann says the win was "the biggest thrill of my life. The week before the meet I was so psyched up I couldn't even train. I had been pointing to the race for a year, but I hardly knew where I was."

Curtis Mills, a sophomore journalism major at Texas A&M, was asked what he'd use for a story lead if he were writing the newspaper account of his record breaking race, and replied "It was a helluva run."

Frank Shorter of Yale nearly became a double winner. He took the six mile run on Thursday, and came back to finish second in the three miler to Ole Oleson. Said Shorter, "I waited too long to turn it on . . . Ole misjudged the finish line, I think, and started to pull up one line early. He eased up and started again when he realized the finish line was in front of him. It would have been a shame if I had passed him in that situation."

The attendance for the three days was estimated at 16,700, with the finals drawing 8,200. Thursday's attendance was 3,400; Friday's, 5,100.

A total of 618 competitors from 133 institutions participated in the meet.

1969 CD Track and Field Records Set at Ashland

A triple jump of 53-9 and records in the steeplechase and three-mile run were the highlights of the NCAA College Division Track and Field Championships at Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio.

John Craft of Eastern Illinois turned in the triple jump, the best in the nation for this year up to that time.

Gary Tuttle and Bill Scobey, both of Humboldt State, were the other record breakers. Tuttle smashed his own record in the 3,000 meter steeplechase with a time of 8:54.9. The old record was 9:10.4, set last year.

Scobey knocked ten seconds off the three-mile standard, running it in 14:00.4. John Peterson of Northern Illinois had established the old mark in 1966.

But the team story was again Cal Poly SLO. The defending champions did just that, and convincingly. With first place finishes in the 100-yard dash by Ruben Smith, the 880 by Mathias Michael, the 440 relay team, and good team balance, Poly was up by 33 points over Occidental at the windup of the meet.

The win marks the sixth straight for a West Coast team, with Maryland State, winner of the first championship in 1963, the only team outside of California to win the battle.

This was also the second national championship for Cal Poly this year. The institution also hosted and won the College Division Wrestling Championship.

ALL-TIME FOOTBALL RECORD BOOK AVAILABLE

College football opens its second century with something it never had in its first: an All-Time Record Book.

Published in early August by the NCAA's New York office, National Collegiate Sports Services, the 176-page All-Time Record Book features more than 25,000 facts about some 5,500 college football players and teams.

Included are 32 pages of game, season and career records and—for the first time anywhere—game-by-game statistical charts on such early-day greats as Willie Heston, Jim Thorpe, George Gipp, Red Grange and the Four Horsemen.

Also listed are year-by-year highlights of the first 100 years, pictures of many top players and coaches and illustrated stories on 19 career and season record-holders of the modern era.

Official national statistics ranking began in 1937 with a system of nationwide reporting devised by Homer F. Cooke Jr. and has been refined over 30 years. Before 1937, however, compilation of statistics beyond scoring was sketchy, with no uniform guidelines.

The pre-1937 records might have remained unknown except for the efforts of NCSS's Steve Boda, college football's foremost researcher.

For 20 years, Boda has worked diligently, collecting, compiling and checking and cross-checking literally millions of statistics and game reports. He traveled to the Library of Congress more than 100 times and corresponded with countless cooperative college officials and sports-writers.

A few of Boda's did-you-knows contained in the book:

—That Dwight Eisenhower gained 29 yards to Jim Thorpe's 340 in the 1912 Army-Carlisle game.

—That Supreme Court Justice

Byron (Whizzer) White of Colorado won four national statistical crowns in 1937—a feat never equaled.

—That Skipper Butler of U. Texas at Arlington needs only four field goals this fall to establish an all-time collegiate career record.

—That Glenn Davis of Army averaged almost one TD every three plays in 1944, and 10.1 yards every time he handled the ball in four seasons.

Among the first-time-ever features are a ranking of the game's top 150 coaches of all time; longest plays of all time in every category; all-time won-lost records for all current NCAA college teams; height, weight and hometown of every Consensus All-America player since 1924; school-by-school Consensus All-America selections back to 1889; the modern era's top 40 major-college career and season totals' leaders (and the college division leaders) in every player category—rushing, passing, total offense, scoring, pass receiving, etc.; and the annual champions in every player and team category—both major college and College Division—for the modern era.

Also, Heisman and Outland Trophy winners, all-time rule changes, attendance totals and, for both University and College Division, Coach of the Year winners, national champions and bowl winners, undefeated-untied teams of all time, longest winning streaks and longest series.

College Football's All-Time Record Book may be purchased by sending a check or money order for $4.95 to National Collegiate Sports Services, 420 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10017.

Prices for larger quantities are, one to nine books $4.95; 10 to 19 books $4.45; 20 to 49 books $4.21; 50 or more $3.96. Prices include shipping.

San Fernando Valley Wins CD Tennis Title

by PETE NEVINS
East Stroudsburg S.I.D.

Steve Messmer and George Benedict won the doubles finals to break a tie and give San Fernando Valley State a one-point victory over Northeast Missouri for the NCAA College Division Tennis Championships at East Stroudsburg.

Messmer and Benedict defeated Ron Selkirk and Dave Romberg of Northeast Missouri, 6-3, 8-6, in an unprecedented tourney showdown.

Earlier, Messmer put the Californians into a tie for the lead by beating Doug Barrow of Hope College, 6-2, 6-1, for the singles crown.

San Fernando Valley finished with 17 points while Northeast Missouri had 16. Host East Stroudsburg State wound up third with 13, most ever by an eastern school.

It marked the sixth time in the seven-year history of the tourney that a team from the strong California Collegiate Athletic Association won the title. San Fernando finished third in 1969 behind fellow conference members Fresno State and Los Angeles State, both of which moved up to University Division in 1969.

A record field of 74 singles players and 33 doubles teams from 29 colleges participated. The closeness of the tourney was reflected in that only one school, Northeast Missouri, sent more than one singles player and one doubles team into the quarter-finals.

Messmer and Benedict were only eighth seeded in the doubles competition. Selkirk and Romberg were top seeded and barely survived the quarter-final round, fighting off triple match-point to defeat Rolf Wulfsberg and Frank Barth of Luther, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

In singles, Messmer was ranked fourth and Barrow was unseeded. Barrow eliminated the top-seeded player, Wulfsberg, in the semi-final round, 5-7, 6-4, 10-8.

CENTENNIAL C-O-U-N-T D-O-W-N

The State of Idaho is literally flying for the Centennial of college football.

Under the leadership of U. of Idaho SID Bob Maker and Bob Melgard of the Moscow Chamber of Commerce, the Centennial message will be carried to all parts of the state during the week of Sept. 21-27.

Each morning members of the flying "Pea-weavils" (Moscow claims to be the split pea capital of the world) will fly 50 planes from that city to some other area of the state for a Centennial breakfast or luncheon with the local Chamber of Commerce and representatives of local colleges and schools.

At each stop the Centennial flag will be flown and Centennial posters and literature will be distributed for local display.

As the NEWS went to press 329 of the 431 football-playing NCAA institutions had ordered helmet decals for the Centennial season. The decals worn by players in the Coaches' All-American game showed up well on television and in newspaper photos. Under the leadership of AFCA Executive Director Bill Murray, the A-A game did a first-class job of promoting the Centennial and the coming season.

Sports Illustrated is planning a special Centennial issue, and at last report all three television networks were planning special documentary programs on America's traditional game.

The Centennial billboard is proving to be a popular promotional item. Over 50 institutions have ordered boards in quantities up to 20.

Centennial Queen Barbara Specht has been busy all summer promoting college football's 100th Anniversary, and her pace is due to pick up. Two big events ahead are All-Star week in Chicago and the Rutgers-Princeton 100th Anniversary Game Sept. 27. She will participate in Centennial festivities at the SMU-Air Force game, which opens the 1969 NCAA television series on ABC-TV, Sept. 13.

FOOTBALL FEATURE SERIES ADDS CENTENNIAL, NATIONAL FLAVOR TO GAME PROGRAMS

Still available to football program editors for the 1969 season is the NCAA's feature series.

A service of the Association's Public Relations Committee, the feature series is designed to add national flavor—and in 1969, Centennial flavor—to college football programs across the nation.

For example, noted sportswriter Allison Danzig has done a series on the history of intercollegiate football that's the most comprehensive account of the game's history and progress short of the historical books on the game.

A participant in the first game tells how it was on the Rutgers field in 1869 when Princeton met the Scarlet Knights in what is considered the first intercollegiate game.

Greatest Games

The greatest football games of the first century have been picked by a distinguished panel as the basis for a story by Fred Russell and Blackie Sherrod pokes fun at the changes in the game's rules as only he can.

There's a photo spread on the activities of college football's Centennial Queen, Barbara Specht, while a story on the Heisman Trophy and the men who have won it carries out the historical pattern.

A story on how football has influenced the life of President Nixon, a page of football officials' signals, a story of football's famous bloopers and a new series of "Halfback" cartoons round out the versatile series.

The Danzig, Heisman Trophy, President Nixon and Barbara Specht stories can be used in combination with special covers in the Spencer Advertising cover service by those institutions utilizing the service of the New York program firm.

The feature series is available from the NCAA executive office. The price for mats of the series is $15 for institutions with a program circulation of less than 10,000 and $25 for those with circulations over that mark.

The prices for offset proofs for the same categories are $10 and $20.

Arizona State Takes World Series Title

OMAHA, NEBR.—Arizona State battled back from a deflating three-hit shutout defeat in its opening game to win five in a row and earn the 1969 College World Series title. Its final victim was Tulsa, by a 10-1 margin.

It was the third odd-year championship for the Sun Devils of Bobby Winkles, titlists in 1965 and 1967.

Leftfielder John Dolinsek, who did not start the opening game for the Sun Devils, and pitchers Larry Gura and Lerrin LaGrow earned most of the kudos over the last five games.

Dolinsek hit on 10 of 20 occasions during that stretch and led the Series in hitting with a .476 average. His 2 home runs, 9 runs scored, 10 hits and 6 runs-batted-in were also Series high marks.

19-2 Record

Gura, who finished the season with a 19-2 mark, pitched the final victory and added a win and a save in relief, all in a span of four days. LaGrow pitched a pair of complete game victories, giving one or the other an appearance in every game the Devils played.

Tulsa and NYU picked up the "Cinderella team" tags. The Hurricane, 3-2 for the week, lost twice to Arizona State, 11-3 and 10-1, but defeated UCLA, Texas and NYU enroute to the final. The Violets were the first District Two entry to advance to the fifth round since 1957.

Texas finished fourth, but showed an outstanding freshman pitcher, Burt Hooton, whose two Series victories ran his first-year record to 12-0. The Longhorns were eliminated by NYU, 3-2, but had the tying run heading for the plate when the last batter was called out on a controversial play which resulted in perhaps the biggest rhubarb in Series history.

Balance may have been the key to Arizona State's comeback. The champions led the Series in batting with a .266 mark, 27 points higher than runner-up Texas. Sun Devil pitchers had a combined earned run average of 1.45, second to UCLA at 0.89. Six of the eight runs the Bruins allowed in their two games were unearned.

Arizona State pitchers fanned 54 batters in 56 Series innings.

On paper, the Sun Devils finished third in fielding behind Texas and NYU, but their eight double plays (twice as many as anyone else had) belie this standing.

Games Move Fast

Arizona State accomplished its feat in the fastest time in memory, playing its six games in an average time of one hour, 59 minutes. The title game took only 1:39. Average playing time for all 15 Series games was 2:09, including two extra-inning games.

Attendance for 10 sessions totaled 63,265, third highest in history and the fourth 60,000-plus figure in the last six years.

Three records were established in the 1969 tournament. In the Series itself, Arizona State shortstop Roger Detter stole seven bases, surpassing the mark set by Bob Fry of Washington State in 1965.

In the District Four playoff, second baseman Terry Brumfield of Southern Illinois hit three home runs against Ball State, while his teammates cracked six more for a total of nine, both marks being the best ever. Fifteen players have hit two home runs in a tournament game, but Brumfield is the first to break that barrier.

The old record for a team was five set in 1954 by Colorado State College.

The 1969 All-Tournament team, as selected by the news media representatives in attendance, is as follows: Steve Caves, Tulsa, first base; Lou Bagwell, Texas, second base; Les Rogers, Tulsa, third base; Roger Detter, Arizona State, shortstop; John Dolinsek, Arizona State, outfield; Jim Cardasis, NYU, outfield; Paul Ray Powell, Arizona State, outfield; Billy Cotton, Arizona State, catcher; Burt Hooton, Texas, pitcher; Larry Gura, Arizona State, pitcher.

NSYSP Helps Them...

The National Summer Youth Sports Program has provided a new experience in competitive sports on 100 college campuses for some 35,000 urban youngsters this summer. They received the best instruction available, in and on top facilities and equipment, plus much more, as these photos indicate — extensive physical examinations, good food, training in personal hygiene and exposure to a college campus and what education can mean to them in life. These photos illustrate some of these activities around the nation. At the University of Missouri, St. Louis, a youngster grabs a rebound in a fast basketball game. (2) A Rutgers University doctor gives physical. (3) At Arizona State, head gymnastics coach Don Robinson (left) and top varsity rings performer John Price teach gymnastics. (4) Great intensity, shown in this baseball game at Southwestern University, Memphis, was often present, indicative of the NSYSP participants' desire to learn and play well. (5) Hard play builds big appetites, and NSYSP whetted them and then eased them with plenty of food in university cafeterias like this one at Norfolk State College. (6) Swimming was one of the most popular sports, and many non-swimmers soon were splashing through the water and enjoying the summer a lot more. Action here is at Missouri, St. Louis. (7) These youngsters really concentrate on a basketball game at Rutgers. (8) Learning track fundamentals, this youngster works with the shot at St. John's, New York. Most instruction was by varsity coaches and varsity athletes, with a blending of outstanding high school coaches and counselors. The NSYSP was a joint effort of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports and the NCAA and the nation's colleges and universities.
