College Football's Centennial

This month's NEWS is largely devoted to College Football's Centennial season, and the events colleges and universities have held or are planning during the 1969 season.

September will be a month of exciting Centennial activity—Rutgers-Princeton on the 27th; the Centennial stamp on the 26th; the All-Time Team dinner the 24th; the ABC Special the 12th; a special Sports Illustrated salute and a Presidential proclamation.

In the latter part of this month and in October, each institution will have a Centennial observance on its own campus as homage is paid to this traditional American game, so worth while because of its values and contributions.

Under the leadership of such men as Bob Bronzan, Bob Cheyne, Bill Murray, Asa Bushnell, Norvall Neve, Larry Klein, Wayne Duke, Bill Flynn, Tom Hamilton, Wiles Hallock, Tom Frederick and George Killian, the NCAA and other national and regional organizations have attempted to create and make available tools with which institutions can build appropriate local Centennial salutes.

The NEWS believes—and hopes you agree—that they have done their work well. The flags, medallions, certificates, symbol, press kits, television slides, billboards and other items are out. Chevrolet has helped a great deal with its game kit and other support.

Now it is up to the institutions to make the Centennial a notable success. The NCAA wishes each school, college and university well in its commemoration of College Football's Centennial.

Letters to the Editor...

Dear Sir:

I was privileged to attend the 1969 baseball College World Series. I appreciate very much the fine work of the local sponsors, the Games Committee, and Chairman L. C. Timm and the NCAA Baseball Tournament Committee.

I thought the Series brought great credit to higher education. I, for one, hold one wish for the future. That is that Mr. Byers and the Committee might find it possible to put at least the championship game on national TV.

There is nothing quite comparable to it in baseball today. The speed of the game, the clean-cut action, and the college spirit publicized by national TV would add another dimension of public support for higher education, offset some of the recent "demonstrations" and many of the sometimes trivial incidents, and would also, possibly, inspire the entire game from sandlot to the major leagues.

Sincerely yours,
G. Homer Durham

NCAA Council to Sponsor Recruiting Restrictions

The comprehensive proposals to limit, regularize and improve college recruiting of prospective student-athletes are one step closer to adoption by the NCAA.

The Association's policy-making Council voted to sponsor the proposals—created by the Special Committee on Recruiting—before the annual Convention in January.

While Council sponsorship does not guarantee passage by the membership, it considerably enhances any measure's chances for approval.

First reported to the Council at its April meeting, the four proposed amendments and five proposed Official Interpretations were "endorsed in principle" by the group at that time.

Proposals Circularized

Additionally, the proposals were circularized to various conferences and the member institutions for study and recommendations to the Council.

Meeting in late August at Atlantic City, the Council began thorough, detailed study of the specific proposals, and approved most of them subject to final editing.

The proposals will be offered to the Convention as steps by which colleges and universities may reduce recruiting costs, reduce the time consumed by recruiting and ease pressures on prospective student-athletes of outstanding ability.

The full text of each proposal appeared in the May, 1969, NEWS. Most dramatic among them are a limit of two expense-paid visits by a prospect to an institution's campus and a limit of two off-campus visits to the prospect's home by the institution's athletic representatives.

No Contact With Juniors

Another would prohibit contact at the site of a high school athletic contest in which the prospect is a participant. Contact prior to the end of the prospect's junior year in high school would be banned by another proposal.

In a move to cut lavish entertainment, a proposed O.I. would require a prospect when visiting a campus to live and take his meals on-campus as regular students normally do. His entertainment would have to be conducted on-campus as well.

The Committee also had made three recommendations to the Council. The first, adoption of a national letter of intent, has been shelved in favor of letting the current voluntary program continue.

The second, a recommended financial aid form, was presented to the meeting and referred to the Collegiate Commissioners Association so it might make recommendations to the October meeting of the Council.

The third, adoption of a limitation on the number of institutions which a prospect could visit, is still under study by the Council.

The proposed ban on announcements of the signing of prospects was referred back to the Committee on Recruiting and the Public Relations Committee.

At the time it made the several recommendations, the Recruiting Committee stated they were submitted on the basis that:

(1) The justification of expense-paid campus visitation is to acquaint the prospective student-athlete with the facilities, patterns of life and atmosphere normal to student life on that campus and its environs;

(2) Two expense-paid visits to the campus are sufficient for the purposes described above;

(3) On-campus entertainment of parents or guardian should be restricted to two persons and one visit.

Football All-Time Teams To Be Chosen

College football's very best players will be selected in mid-September of the game's Centennial season, in one of the grand elements of the 100th Anniversary celebration.

The Football Writers Association of America is picking two All-time teams which will be sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Division.

The make-up of the teams—one will be chosen for pre-1920 and one for post-1919 play—will be announced Sept. 16 and 17.

The All-time players then will meet the nation's media at a gala formal dinner Sept. 24 at the New York Hilton, which Chevrolet will sponsor. This staunch friend of college football will pay the writers' expenses, too.

Institutions Represented

On that occasion, the institution of each honored great will be represented and college football's leaders will gather to pay tribute to the finest of the premier players.

Regional selection committees of the FWAA have already picked conference and regional teams, and the nominees are before a blue-ribbon panel of the nation's top college football writers.

Most of these men have seen nearly every nominee for the modern team, and more than a few of the old-timers.

Extensive Coverage

Writers from across the nation, plus radio and television, will be in attendance in New York for a once-ever chance to interview each of these immortals.

Following the New York gathering, ceremonies honoring the selectees will be held on the campus of each man's university or college. Chevrolet will make available a plaque marking his selection for him to present to his institution.

Planned also is a scholarship in the griddier's name for his institution.

Master of ceremonies for the New York dinner will be ABC's voice of NCAA football, Chris Schenkel.

Bill Young, University of Wyoming sports information director, has been named chairman of the NCAA Public Relations Committee. He replaces Bob Cheyne, who left the University of Arkansas to enter private business. Cheyne was replaced as District Six representative by Jones Ramsey, University of Texas, Austin, SID.

Adams State Now NCAA CD Member

Adams State College has officially become a member of the NCAA's College Division. Adams is the first institution to have its petition to move from UD to CD approved by the NCAA Executive Committee since the UD-CD classification division took place.

The Committee reminds members who wish to change classification that those wanting to go from CD to UD may do so by notifying the NCAA executive office and such change will become effective with the beginning of the following academic year.

To have its classification changed from UD to CD, an institution must notify the executive office of its intent by July 1. The request then goes to the College Committee, which in turn shall submit its recommendation on the request to the Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee stressed that notification must be submitted by July 1 for action to be taken in that year.

Jack McClelland Assumes U.S. Cage Federation Post

Jack McClelland, commissioner of the North Central Intercollegiate Conference, has been appointed executive director of the Basketball Federation of the USA.

McClelland's appointment was announced by Edward S. Steitz, president of the Federation.

McClelland replaces John Bunn, who has retired after serving as executive director for six years. McClelland will continue in his post with the North Central Conference.

"I look forward to the opportunity of working with the Basketball Federation, as I have been keenly interested in its development and greatly impressed with the significant contribution the Federation has made to the development of basketball as an international sport in its brief existence," McClelland said.

"The Basketball Federation is the vehicle that will enable the United States to share its expertise and progress in the sport with the rest of the world."

McClelland, 49, graduated from Drake University and played basketball there. He also was employed by Drake University for a period of 18 years, serving as director of athletics for 11 years and head basketball coach for nine years.

Bunn Praised

Steitz praised the work of the retiring Bunn, saying, "No man has given more of his life to a sport. He has been extremely effective in enhancing the game of basketball both in this country and abroad. The Federation has risen to new heights through John Bunn's efforts, especially in the field of international competition, where significant expansion has taken place.

"The Federation is happy to have a man of McClelland's background available to take over. His knowledge of basketball has been proven, and his grasp of athletic administration makes him an ideal executive director."

NCAA Budget

A record million-dollar budget has been adopted for the NCAA's 1969-70 fiscal year by the Association's Executive Committee.

The exact figure of $1,056,100 includes a budget of $602,800 for general Association operations, $249,500 for National Collegiate Sports Services and $203,800 for College Athletics Publishing Services.

The budgets reflect the Association's expanding programs. A year ago the total budget was $900,550, general operations being set at $507,550, NCSS $209,000 and CAPS $184,000.

Membership at 719

The NCAA's membership moved to a new high of 719 with the beginning of the 1969-70 academic year.

By categories, there are currently 625 active members, 40 allied members, 30 associated members and 24 affiliated members.

Of the actives, 225 are classified University Division and an even 400 are College Division as the year begins.

When last reported in May, the total membership stood at 713.

Chevrolet SID Contest on, Game Kits Are Ready

Two of Chevrolet's College Football Centennial projects were in full swing as the NEWS went to press.

The Centennial Game Kits were arriving in the hands of the Chevrolet zone managers across the country.

The zone managers in turn will personally deliver a kit to the director of athletics of each NCAA football-playing institution.

The Insta-Matic Centennial contest for sports information directors was underway too, with many SID's planning to include pre-season activities in their entries in the unique, easy-to-enter contest.

Chevrolet's assistant national merchandising manager, Russ Fons, reported great interest among SID's in the contest, and receipt of many early entries.

SID's wishing to enter the contest who have not received an entry blank still may join up by writing Fons on institutional letterhead at Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Corporation, General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich. 48202.

The deadline for receipt of entries by Chevrolet is Dec. 15.

Each entrant will receive a Kodak camera kit with which to take the pictures which will constitute his official entry. Prizes include two Camaro cars and 25 Panasonic portable television sets. Winners will be picked in both "Major" and "College Division" categories.

Game Kit Contents

The elaborate Game Kit includes a Centennial flag; a trophy for the winning team; a plaque for the band; a variety of certificate-medallions for athletic department personnel and others important to the program of a member institution; Centennial posters; medallions and coins; and a queen's tiara.

Fons is directing this project, too.

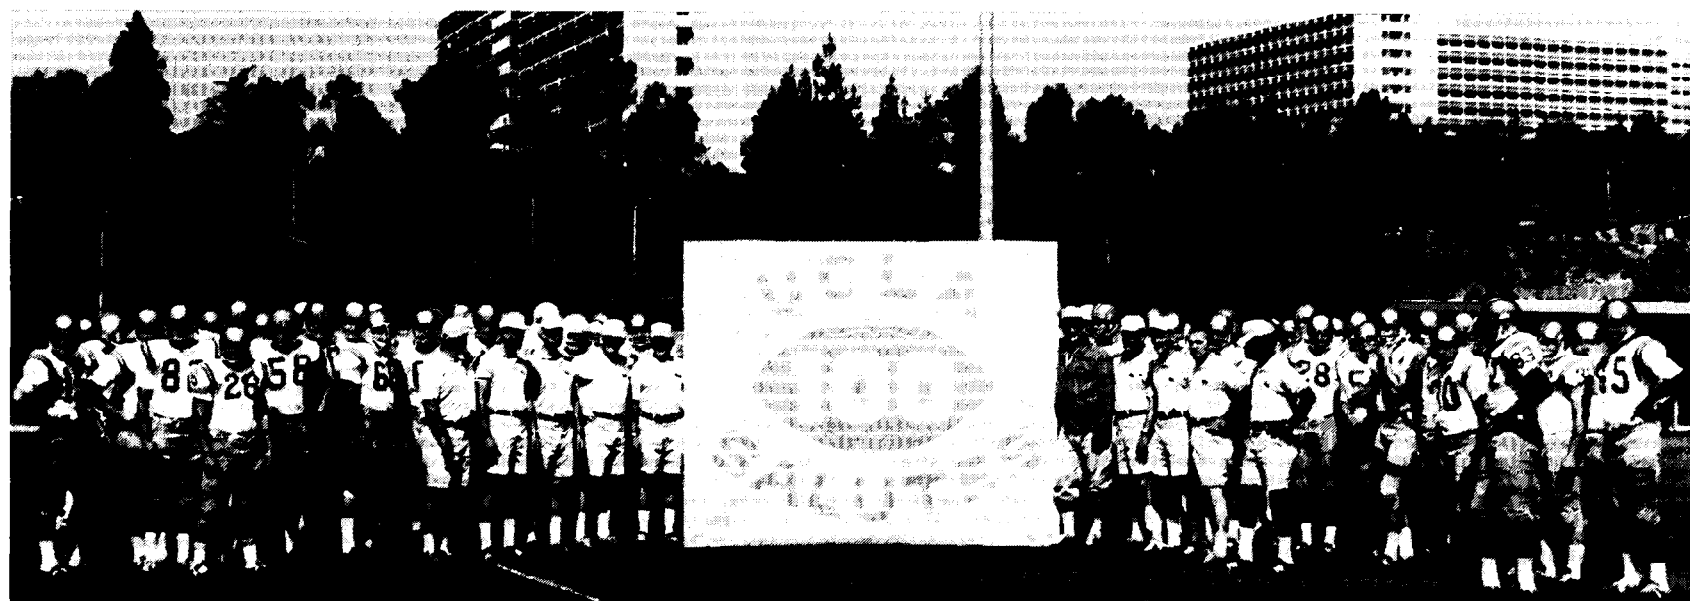

In addition, the major sponsor of NCAA football television Saturday's on ABC-TV has offered to make trucks available to interested NCAA institutions for the duration of the 1969 season. The institutions which will appear on the television series have already been contacted. Others should consult the truck merchandising manager of their respective Chevrolet zones.

An institution not familiar with the Chevrolet personnel in its zone may contact Carroll Worthington, assistant merchandising manager, Chevrolet Trucks, at the same Detroit address.

Further details on the Game Kit may be found in the June issue of the NEWS and on the Insta-Matic contest in the August issue.

East and West Offer Football Centennial Salutes

The UCLA Bruins and Coach Tommy Prothro started their annual photo session with a salute to College Football's Centennial. Prothro is just to the right of the 8'x10' Centennial sign. UCLA opens its 1969 season Sept. 13 with a night game in Los Angeles against Oregon State.

Former Duke University head football coach William Murray, now Executive Secretary of the American Football Coaches Association, is shown as he addressed a College Football Centennial kickoff breakfast recently in Durham, N. C. Murray appeared on the program with other former head Blue Devil coaches Eddie Cameron (second from right) and Wallace Wade (extreme right). The breakfast was part of a special two-week promotion of Duke football in the 100th year of the game. Murray coached the Blue Devils from 1951-65. The Centennial billboard serves as the backdrop for the head table.

GOVERNORS JOIN CENTENNIAL FESTIVITIES

As illustrated by the representative photos at right, the nation's Governors are joining in the observation of College Football's Centennial.

Across the country proclamations are being issued as chief executives of the states receive college football delegations and attend Centennial breakfasts, brunches and luncheons.

The participation of Governors Williams and McNair is typical of the tribute being afforded college football and its 100 years of progress in all parts of the land.

TWO OLYMPIC GAMES CAGE CHANGES FOR '72 ANNOUNCED BY USOC

Two events of major significance concerning the basketball program of the Olympic Games have been announced by the United States Olympic Committee following action at a recent International Olympic Committee meeting.

Women's basketball has been added to the Summer Games program, effective at Munich in 1972.

At the same time, the number of men's teams permitted to enter the Games competition has been reduced from 16 to 8. Women's teams will be limited to eight, also.

Although information concerning the method to be used in determining the eight countries to participate has not been received from the International Basketball Federation, and may not be available until 1970, USOC officials did hint at a possible procedure.

World Championships Basis

That would base qualification for the Games on the final standings in the World Championships.

Such a system would mean the United States would be forced to a much more serious effort to put a top team into World Games competition than it exerts at present.

Charles M. Neinas, NCAA assistant executive director in charge of administration of the NCAA's basketball program, an Association delegate to the Basketball Federation of the USA, and a former member of the USOC Board of Directors, warned that the change could prove detrimental to the U. S. cage efforts.

"The United States' domination of Olympic competition is evident from its having won every gold medal in basketball and never having lost an Olympic basketball game.

"Significant College Contributions"

"Much of the success of the American teams can be attributed to the significant contributions of athletes from NCAA colleges and universities.

"The World Championships often have been scheduled at times inconvenient to the United States' basketball program, or in direct conflict with its regular season, thus the U. S. has never placed great emphasis upon or done well in the World Championships," he continued.

"Hopefully, FIBA will place greater emphasis upon Olympic competitive records than upon competition in non-Olympic events."

M. R. "Dick" Clausen, right, director of athletics at the University of Arizona, presents Governor Jack Williams of Arizona with a College Football Centennial Medallion. The presentation took place at a Centennial Luncheon hosted by the Phoenix Kiwanis Club.

Paul Dietzel, right, director of athletics at the University of South Carolina and president of the American Football Coaches Association, kicks off college football's Centennial season by presenting season tickets to South Carolina Governor Robert McNair. The official Centennial flag adorns the Governor's office in the background. Governor McNair and his colleagues across the nation are issuing proclamations heralding the 100th Anniversary of America's traditional game.

ARTISTS' CONCEPTS OF FIRST GRID GAME

Different concepts of the first Rutgers-Princeton game in 1869 are offered by two artists in these paintings. At top is one by William Boyd, Rutgers '32, while at the bottom is the painting by Arnold Friberg for the Chevrolet Sports Art Collection. It is one of four covering college football's 100 years.

ABC Telecast Hails Football's First 100 Years

"What the Cheering Was All About . . . College Football's First 100 Years" will be shown Friday, Sept. 12, as ABC-TV's salute to College Football's Centennial.

The show is scheduled for 8 p.m. (EST) and corresponding time slots across the nation, although it may be shown at other times in certain areas. College football fans should check local programming schedules to determine when the program will appear in various areas.

Chris Schenkel, play-by-play announcer for the Saturday afternoon NCAA football telecasts on ABC, will be host for the show.

It will include footage of great players in action, shots of the famous coaches, unusual games, upsets and highlights of traditional series.

Interviews with players and coaches will be aired.

"Cheering" will precede by some 24 hours the opening of the 1989 NCAA series, which features Air Force meeting SMU in Dallas, Saturday night, Sept. 13.

Council Plans October Meeting in Kansas City

The NCAA Council will visit the Association's headquarters city for its annual fall meeting.

The 18-man policy-making body has decided to hold its Oct. 20-22 sessions in Kansas City, Mo.

While the Council has traditionally met three times each year—at the annual Convention, in the spring and in the fall—the ever-expanding membership, legislative demands and competitive program of the Association have made it necessary for the group to add an August meeting each of the past two years.

The Council has not met in Kansas City recently, and the October sessions will afford most members their first opportunity to visit the executive office of the Association.

Rutgers—Princeton Centennial Clash September 27

The 100th Anniversary game between the two institutions which started intercollegiate football will be played in New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 27, when Rutgers hosts Princeton as it did in 1869.

Long, hard work by Rutgers has produced a full weekend of significant ceremonies in conjunction with the game. They will be taped by ABC-TV for use on the halftime shows of the NCAA series regional telecasts that day.

While every football-playing institution is planning its own Centennial game, the Rutgers-Princeton game carries special significance and should be the premier Centennial activity.

CENTENNIAL GAME SCHEDULE

Rutgers vs. Princeton

New Brunswick, New Jersey—September 27, 1969

Friday

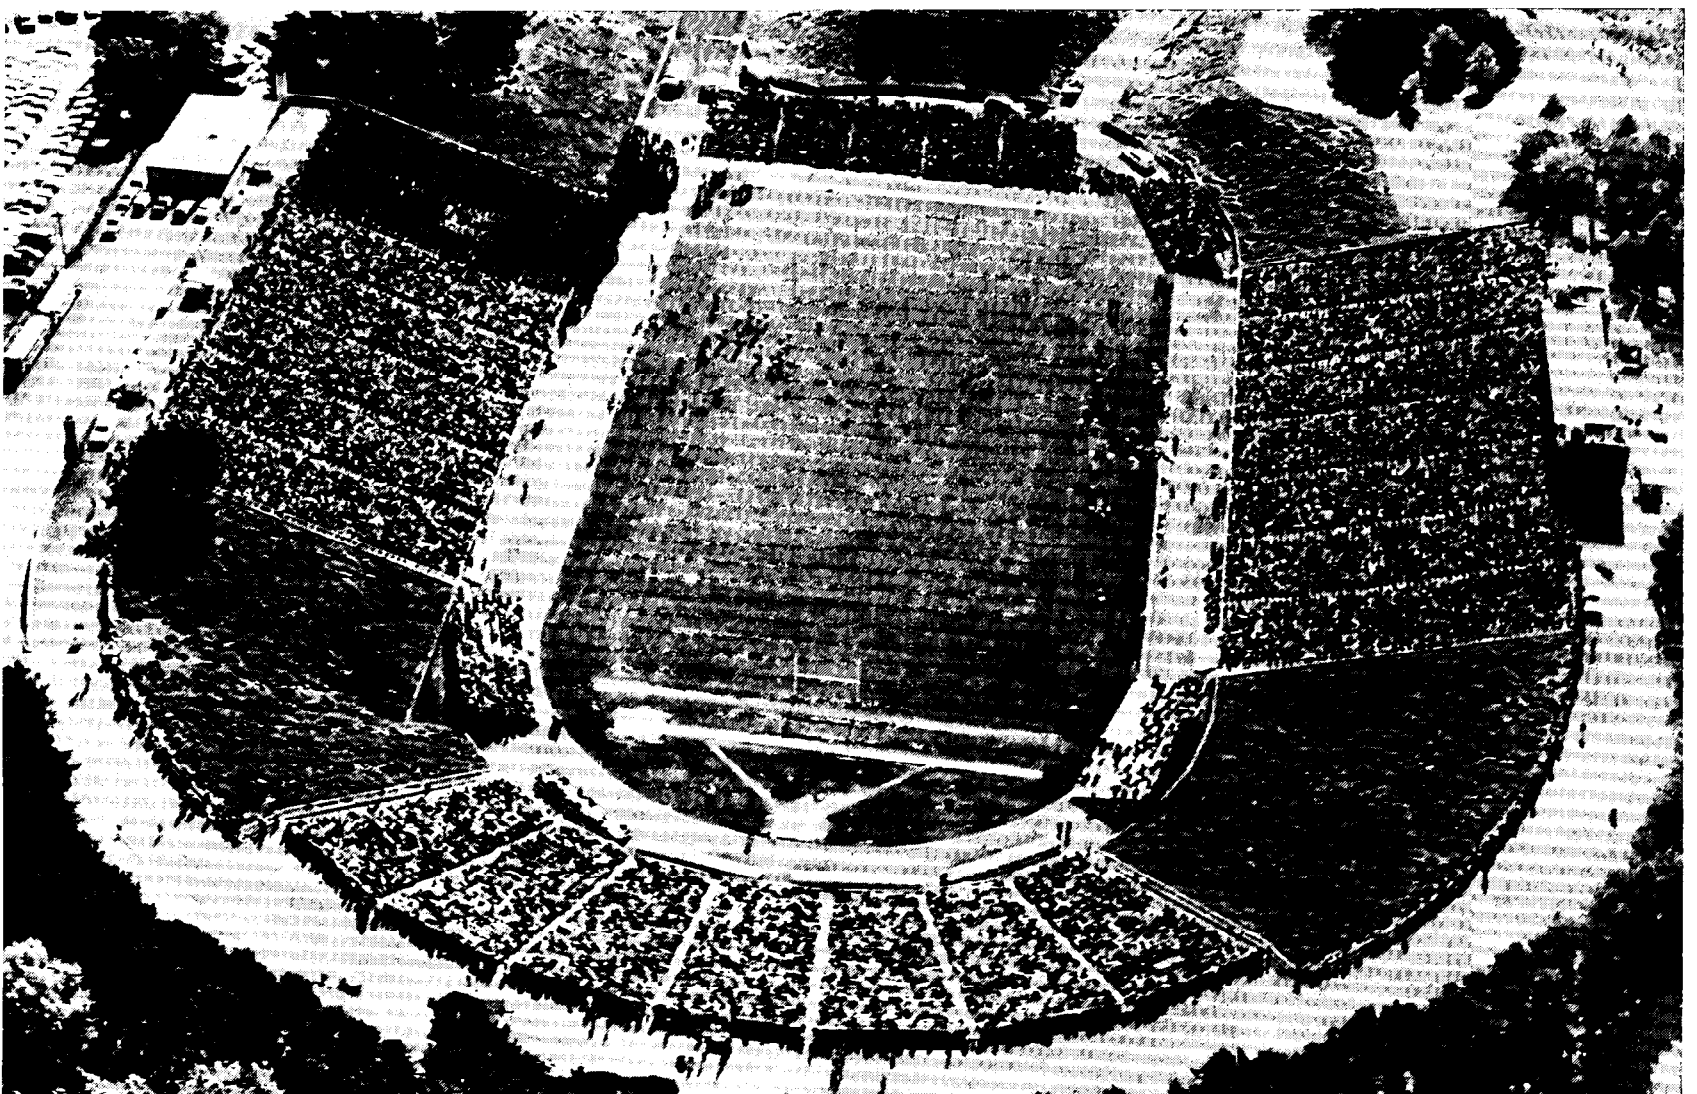

- 10 a.m. Ceremony for issuance of Centennial U.S. stamp.
- Noon First Day stamp luncheon, combined with Touch-down Club Luncheon.

RUTGERS STADIUM—CENTENNIAL GAME SITE

This is Rutgers Stadium in New Brunswick, N. J., the place where the first game of intercollegiate football was contested in 1869 by Rutgers and Princeton. This is how the scene will look Sept. 27 when the two institutions meet in the 100th Anniversary of that inaugural contest. The game will cap a big week which will include a Sept. 24 fete of the All-time teams in New York, issuance of the Centennial U.S. postage stamp Sept. 26 and a weekend of activities on the Rutgers campus.

1969 Football Television Schedule Finalized

Air Force's Falcons and SMU's Mustangs open the 1969 NCAA football television series when ABC-TV covers their Saturday night battle in Dallas Sept. 13.

Following that debut come 36 other college football games, including the Rutgers-Princeton Centennial Game and many of the game's great rivalries.

Special features of the series include four night games, three double-headers, a national wildcard game and a weekend where games will be selected in four regions during the week (Nov. 22) of the telecasts to bring football fans the best games of the day.

The 15 weeks of college grid action conclude Dec. 13 with the telecast of the four College Division Regional Championship games.

Texas-Arkansas Wrap Up

The Dec. 6 Texas-Arkansas game, which forecasters predict should be one of the Centennial season's top matches, concludes the regular-season telecasts.

In addition, Army-Navy, USC-UCLA, Florida-Georgia, Oklahoma-Texas, LSU-Mississippi and Mississippi-Alabama will be shown.

National games will be shown on nine Saturdays and regional games on six dates (there will be both a regional and a national telecast on Nov. 22) in addition to the College Division bowl games.

All of the Centennial season may not be this pleasant for the University of Louisville's co-captain Mike Detenber, but he certainly is caught up in the spirit of the 100th Anniversary of the college game. He will wear jersey No. 100 this fall, while Louisville will fly this Centennial flag. Detenber models his home jersey while coed Bonnie Nelson wears his road version.

CHARLES KENNEDY, FORMER NCAA PRESIDENT, IS DEAD AT 87

Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, former NCAA president for two terms (1930-34) and a past vice-president of the United States Olympic Committee, died Sunday, July 13, at his home in La Jolla, Calif., at 87 years of age.

Kennedy, Professor of English Literature, Emeritus, at Princeton University, had been in failing health for several years.

A member of the Princeton Faculty from 1906 until his retirement in 1944, his scholarly career was capped in 1960 by Oxford University Press' publication of his "Anthology of Old English Poetry."

He was a native of Staten Island, N. Y., and a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Columbia University in 1902. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at Princeton, and also studied at the New York Law School and the University of Munich.

To Princeton in 1906

Professor Kennedy was appointed an instructor at Princeton in 1906; he became a preceptor four years later. He was named Murray Professor of English Literature in 1938.

He was keenly interested in amateur athletics and was intercollegiate broad jump champion at Columbia. He served for nine years as chairman of the Faculty Committee on Athletics and on the Board of Athletic Control at Princeton. He was designated Princeton's equivalent of a modern-day director of athletics in 1923.

While he succeeded in erasing an athletic deficit of $110,000 and in launching a new program of "athletics for all," including an intramural program involving nearly 90 per cent of Princeton's undergraduate body, a number of his policies and innovations provoked protest.

For instance, the Kennedy-inspired experiment of having college baseball coaches remain in the stands during the games not only promoted yards of newspaper copy but also proved that the "boys did not want their game given back to them."

In the 1930's, when the Carnegie Foundation indictment of intercollegiate football initiated widespread reappraisal of collegiate athletic programs, he insisted that educators are just as responsible for the proper development and direction of their athletic programs as they are for any other phase of college life. His book, "Collegiate Athletics," discussed the place of sport in the academic community, the administrative control of college athletics and its proper business management.

Busy Author

In 1932, Kennedy relinquished his athletic duties at Princeton to devote full time to teaching and scholarship in his fields of special interest, old English literature and the literature of the 19th century. He was the author of several volumes of old English translations, including "Beowulf," "The Legend of Juliana" and "The Poems of Cynewulf," and also had published a collection of his own occasional poems.

In 1944, with the publication of his "The Earliest English Poetry," Professor Kennedy was described as the "eminent scholar who happens to be the most gifted translator of Anglo-Saxon poetry who has ever practiced that difficult art."

Championship Corner...

The Executive Committee of the NCAA acted on many matters of Championship import at its recent meeting. The Committee:

 Gave approval to re-schedule the Indoor Track Championships to the second weekend in March, a change on the permanent calendar from the third weekend in March. The event will be held in Detroit's Cobo Hall, March 13-14, 1970.

 Adopted an Executive Regulation stating that points earned by College Division athletes who perform in University Cross Country, Golf, Gymnastics, Swimming, Tennis, Track and Field and Wrestling Championships will not be computed in team scoring.

 Urged meet and tournament Committees to schedule events two years in advance to assist the hosts in organizing, administering and promoting the event.

 Approved a contract with the Springfield, Mo., College Baseball Tournament Committee for the 1970 College Division Baseball Championship. Southwest Missouri State College will continue to act as host.

 Increased the official traveling party and per diem expenses for the College Division Basketball Championship. A per diem of $17.50, an increase of $2.50 and travel expenses for a party of 16, an increase of two, will be allowed.

 Approved a formula for appointing judges to the College Division Gymnastics Championships. Nine judges will be appointed from the host's region, with one judge from each of the other three regions.

 Voted to survey all institutions with intercollegiate gymnastics programs to determine reaction to terminating the Trampoline Championships. Institutions favoring retention of the Championships will be asked if they plan to compete. The question of whether the Championships would be more appealing if held at the site, and at the approximate date, of the National Collegiate Gymnastics Championships also will be asked.

 Voted to prepare a Bylaws amendment to establish a Water Polo Rules and Tournament Committee.

 Voted to add the decathlon to the National Collegiate Track and Field Championships, to score the event as the other events are scored and to include the event in scoring for the team title. The decathlon will be held on Thursday and Friday.

 Agreed to sponsor an amendment to establish a National Collegiate Lacrosse Championship, to be administered by the Lacrosse Rules Committee. The initial Championship would be contested in 1971, with the Rules Committee responsible for details.

 The Executive Committee also appropriated money for a time and motion study of collegiate baseball games. Louis Spry, NCAA director of research, will direct the study. Of interest is that in the 1969 National Collegiate Baseball Championship, five of the 15 games were played in under two hours, with the Championship game played in 1:39. The longest nine-inning game went 2:42.

University of Kansas kicking specialist Bill Bell is commemorating College Football's Centennial this season by wearing jersey No. 100. Most appropriately, the Jayhawk senior warmed up for the Centennial by scoring an even 100 points in his first two seasons. However, 100th Anniversary of football or not, he isn't likely to get such attractive holders as KU pompon girl Jan Merrick when the action starts.

NOTES and QUOTES

Dick DeSchraver has been named head track and field and cross country coach at East Stroudsburg State College. DeSchraver has been assistant coach at Minnesota for the last four years. He is a graduate of Notre Dame.

Harold Bateman has been appointed director of sports information at the U.S. Air Force Academy. Bateman was formerly at Western Michigan in the same position.

Forbes Keith has been appointed varsity hockey coach at Ithaca College. Keith is a graduate of Boston University, and has been coaching for the past seven years at Lexington, Mass., high school. He will also be freshman soccer coach and assistant professor of physical education at Ithaca. He replaces George Moore, who has taken an administrative position in Canada.

Dave Kaminer has become the director of sports information at C. W. Post College. He is a former sports editor of the Yonkers Herald Statesman and the Mount Vernon Daily Argus. He replaces Frank Barning, who has moved to Hofstra.

Anthony C. Morella, faculty representative to the NCAA from The American University, has been named to the new post of vice president and general counsel of that institution. Morella is currently the dean of the Washington College of Law at AU.

Ralph Lawson has been named cross country coach at New Haven College. Lawson is a graduate of Southern Connecticut, where he lettered in track and cross country. He succeeds Gary Liberatore, who has entered the Army for a two-year tour of duty.

Frank Galey has become the director of sports information at LaSalle College, Philadelphia. He takes over for Robert Lyons, who has become director of the news bureau at LaSalle.

Harold Davis has been named head basketball coach and assistant professor of physical education at Westminster College. Davis is considered one of the greatest athletes in Westminster history, starring in football, basketball and track from 1953 to '57. He replaces Ron Galbreath, who has gone to Clarion State.

C. W. Post equipment managers, brothers Al and Gene Venturino, perform what has become a familiar Centennial season ritual for equipment men across the nation—application of Centennial helmet decals. Nearly all college teams will wear either the decal or a similar jersey patch in 1969.

Wrestling Federation Names Myron Roderick Its Director

Myron Roderick, one of the most successful coaches in the history of college wrestling, has become the executive director of the U.S. Wrestling Federation.

Roderick, a three-time National Collegiate champion in his undergraduate wrestling days at Oklahoma State, has been coaching the Cowboys for 13 years, and brought seven National Collegiate team titles back to Stillwater.

He has announced that he will establish the executive offices of the Wrestling Federation in Stillwater.

Roderick became the OSU varsity wrestling coach just a year after he graduated and had competed in the 1956 Olympics. He was only the third wrestling coach at Oklahoma State, and compiled a sensational record.

Among Roderick's first-year objectives for the USWF are setting up of strong organizations on state levels, initiating two national tournaments each year, and promoting and giving leadership to high school wrestling.

Roderick's appointment was an-

Indoor Track Date Shifted On Events Schedule Formula

One change has been made in the perpetual NCAA Championship Events scheduling formula, first approved by the Executive Committee in the spring.

The Indoor Track Championships have been moved up one week, from the third to the second weekend in March.

The formula solidifies dates for all NCAA events, and gives conferences and member institutions an opportunity to schedule events well in advance.

It is suggested that NEWS readers retain the formula for future reference. It is run again in its entirety so they may have a complete, correct copy.

The formula:

Six Bowl Games Set for College Division

Two Games Added for Small Colleges

Two additional Football Bowl Games for the NCAA's small College Division colleges, will add spice to this Centennial Year of College Football.

The two games, which will be played at the sites of two of the competing schools, don't have names as yet, but the lists of eligible institutions are below.

These games will be played not later than the first weekend in December, and preferably earlier. Thanksgiving and the Saturday following are the most likely dates.

This means the NCAA's College Division for the sport of football has been divided by institutional determination into two groups. There are 156 institutions in the Old College Division, and 163 now in the Small College football division. Those in the established College Division will compete in the regional bowl games and members of the new division in the two new games.

The Executive Committee of the NCAA, at its August meeting, voted to guarantee expenses to the four teams involved in the Small College games.

Travel and per diem expenses for four days for a party of 45 will be guaranteed, just as in the four Regional Championships for the College Division.

All four College Division games will be played Dec. 13. Interest in the CD football program is reported high at each site.

It has been announced that each of the eight teams in the four CD bowl games in 1968 was reimbursed for its expenses, and also received $8,059.39 as its share of the net receipts.
