

Financial Aid Committee Readies Final Report

Limits on the number of grants-in-aid an institution may give in sports other than football and basketball were set and candidate's declaration dates for signings were established by the NCAA Financial Aid Committee July 1-2 in Dallas, Texas.

The Committee will present its report—which also contains proposals that would base all athletic aid on the need of the individual student-athlete and would limit the number of initial grants an institution could give for football and basketball—to the NCAA Council at its August session.

A Dollar-Saver

The need program is the biggest money-saver put forth by the Committee, formed in the wake of a financial crisis which has hit the nation's campuses. "We don't necessarily love the need program," commented William J. Flynn, director of athletics at Boston College and chairman of the Committee. "We're not wedded to it, nor are we crusaders for the need principle."

"But scholarships are the big expense faced by athletic departments, and it is the big area where we can save money."

"We have to save money because we are part of educational institutions which also are facing tremendous financial problems. Scholarships in general are being cut back. There is less money available for higher education now than there ever has been. Many schools have scheduled no raises for faculty and administrative personnel. Some have eliminated entire departments. We have to start looking for ways to save money, too."

The need principle will save some institutions more than $250,000 this year. It is the more affluent institutions, athletically speaking, which will benefit from the numbers section of the Report, Flynn observed.

Both Needed

"The need and numbers sections go together," Flynn said. "If just the need formula is implemented, then institutions haven't gained a thing. They can give out as many need grants as they wish and spend as much or more money than when they gave out full grants."

The Committee set limiting numbers on grants in sports besides football and basketball in Dallas, and set limits on the number of grants an institution could bank or carry over in each sport. It also set limits on the number of athletes an institution could have on aid at one time in each sport.

The limitation figures for "other" sports:

	Grants Per Ranking Year Figures	Maximum Number of Grants
Baseball	5	20
Cross country-track	6	24
Fencing	2	8
Golf	2	8
Gymnastics	3	12
Ice Hockey	7	28
Lacrosse	6	24
Skiing	3	12
Soccer	5	20
Swimming	5	20
Tennis	2	8

Volleyball	2	1	8
Waterpolo	2	1	8
Wrestling	2	1	8

Under the plan proposed by the Committee, an institution would be able to bank only a restricted total number of grants in "other" sports, a figure which would be one-third of the total grants that an institution could award in "other" sports per year.

The Committee established March 1 as the candidate's declaration date for fall sports, and May 1 as the date for all other sports. These dates would call for a common timing of offers to prospective student-athletes. The March 1 date was proposed for football at the request of advisory members of the Committee, who wanted an earlier signing date to save money on recruiting costs.

Running a Program at Reduced Cost

NYU, Miami, Vermont, Colorado State, Texas El Paso.

All have been faced with the spiraling costs of athletics the last two years, and all have made the decision to eliminate sports from their intercollegiate athletic programs.

And although NCAA statistics show that more institutions are adding sports than dropping them, more schools are going to be faced with the problem in the future.

"There always has been a problem with financing athletics," commented Dick Koenig, a member of the NCAA Council and vice-president for public and alumni affairs at Valparaiso University.

"But now the problem is different. The entire area of higher education is having financial problems, and athletics are only one phase of that total problem. It's difficult to argue for athletics when the institution itself is hurting financially, too."

Strong CD Programs

Koenig, along with Dr. Edward S. Steitz of Springfield College and Doug McArthur of the University of Puget Sound, run successful College Division programs, and have advice for institutions which may be faced with a situation of dropping a sport or sports instead of de-emphasizing a program in order to meet costs.

"If the choice is to run a program at a reduced level or run no program at all," Koenig said, "then the choice is obvious. You have to think of the individual student and run a program that offers an intercollegiate opportunity for students who may want the program at whatever level it is run."

"Some schools have dropped sports instead of running them at a reduced level to save money, and I think this is indeed a tragedy."

"We offer nine sports now at Puget Sound," commented McArthur. "We wouldn't cut to three sports to have the best basketball team, which is probably our strongest sport now. We wouldn't sacrifice those sports. We would have to lower our level of competition and readjust our aims."

All three of the College Division men are involved with athletic programs which run smaller budgets than many major institutions.

The Big Cost

"Many institutions spend an enormous amount of money on scholarships," McArthur said. "They should be able to get by on 60-75 football scholarships. It is incomprehensible to me to use 120 scholarships. That's a lot of money spent just to have young men sit around — you can't play them all. They don't go to other schools, either. If schools would put a limit on the number of scholarships they give out, then the Eastern Michigans, Puget Sounds and the Valparaissos would have all kinds of available athletes, and they'd be able to play."

"Our scholarship program," said Steitz, "is based on the need of the individual student-athlete. We have been operating for years under the need program. I think that it is good that the NCAA is getting around to offering a scholarship program under the need principle."

The NCAA Financial Aid Committee has been meeting since appointed in late 1969, and has proposed a program which would base all scholarships to student-athletes on need and would limit the number of initial grants that each institution could give.

Cutting Other Costs

Valparaiso, Puget Sound and Springfield also cut costs at other corners—on schedules, travel and staff size.

"Our coaches also are on the physical education staff and have teaching assignments," Koenig said. "Each of them has staff rank and all the privileges that go with it. Their coaching assignment is part of their class load. Therefore, their cost isn't solely applied to intercollegiate athletics, as it is at some institutions."

"Everybody is trying to keep up with the Joneses," Koenig added. "If some other institution gives 40 full rides, then they feel they have to. If someone installs artificial turf, then they think they have to do it, too. Program costs are on a spiral with everyone trying to keep up with the other guy."

Springfield College's athletic department has convinced its administration that intercollegiate athletics are an educational part of an institution—and had its budget increased last year.

"The only way that athletics can exist on a college campus is that they are an educational opportunity for students," Steitz said.

"Athletics are not extra-curricular, they are co-curricular—part of the curriculum. Our institution believes that athletics provide education to the body, mind and spirit perhaps more than any other discipline on campus."

"Athletic education is a discipline. But instead of using test tubes, we use playfields and gymnasiums."

Council, Executive Committee To Meet in San Francisco

A meeting which should produce significant long-range decisions will take the NCAA Council to San Francisco August 19-21.

Those sessions will follow two days of fall meetings by the Association's Executive Committee, and a two-day meeting of the Long-Range Planning Committee. All sessions will be held at the St. Francis Hotel.

The Council will consider recommendations from the Association's Committee on Financial Aid, which has been laboring since appointed in October 1969 to find means whereby intercollegiate athletics may reduce operating expenses.

Financial Aid Committee Chairman William J. Flynn, immediate past secretary-treasurer of the NCAA and director of athletics at Boston College, will present his body's recommendations to the Council, thus ending its arduous assignment.

The Council then will weigh each point, decide which it will support, and draft amendments to the NCAA Constitution and By-laws to incorporate each.

These proposals next will be presented to the 1972 NCAA Convention, set for January 6-8, Hollywood, Florida, for deliberation by the membership.

The Executive Committee will conduct its annual August review of the Association's financial reports, and will prepare and adopt a 1971-72 budget. The NCAA's 1970-71 figure, exclusive of its NCSS and CAPS operations, was

The Council will consider other legislative proposals, and both groups will receive reports from a number of Committees.

NCAA President, Earl M. Ramer, University of Tennessee, will preside at both meetings.

Dean William H. Baughn, University of Colorado, is chairman of the Long-Range Planning Committee.

Editor's View—

Financial Aid:
A Money-Saver

If the nation's collegiate institutions are to operate under the principle that intercollegiate athletics are an educational experience for as many students as possible, then implementation of the NCAA Financial Aid Report is a must.

A significant number of institutions has been forced to reduce expenses recently, and athletic departments are feeling the pinch just as the English, chemistry and fine arts departments feel it.

Several institutions have chosen to eliminate sports, and others are considering terminating certain athletic activities—usually ones which fail to generate revenue.

But non-revenue sports are a learning experience, too. Who is to say that a gymnast, whose sport was just eliminated by an institution trying to save money, has not benefitted as much from his competitive experience as a football player?

Already the Financial Aid Report is a controversial one. Its proposals have been criticized months before they were scheduled for presentation in final form.

The Plan would save money for most of the 750 members of the NCAA. It would base all athletic aid on the need of the entering student-athlete—a plan which would have saved some institutions more than a quarter of a million dollars a year and others 60% of their scholarship funds. It also will limit the number of initial grants-in-aid which an institution may give—a principle which will save funds for those already on the need plan.

The NCAA Financial Aid Committee has reached the conclusion that the various elements of the Report devised are the most effective means of saving money for the nation's athletic departments. If the Report is not adopted, many students who otherwise would have competed in an intercollegiate activity, may be deprived the opportunity.

Passage of the Financial Aid Plan is a necessity. It will help deter termination of important educational activities.

Promoting Football

Although it may seem that spring sports are hardly over, it nearly is time for college football's season to begin—a time that is to many the most exciting of the year.

To convey the excitement of college football to the public and the media is the assignment of the NCAA Promotion Committee, of which Don Canham of Michigan is chairman.

The Promotion Committee this year has produced the summer radio and television pieces which now are running, distributed college football billboards (they are still available, incidentally), produced Forum '71, initiated the summer series of statistics rankings and stories and has provided symbols and slides. The Committee also is working with ABC-TV and Chevrolet, a major supporter of college football, to coordinate NCAA efforts with the activities of both.

Other groups help—such as the Public Relations Committee with its Football Program Feature Series edited by Bill Callahan of Missouri—in the effort to tell college football's unique story.

It is hoped each member is utilizing the national program as it is applicable to the local situation and is augmenting it to combine the colleges' forces into a solid national effort.

Calendar Survey: An Aid For Scheduling

A three-year survey of the dates of the academic calendars of member institutions has been conducted to determine the current pattern and whether changes are imminent.

The survey was authorized by the NCAA Executive Committee. It hopes to use the information acquired as an aid in scheduling championship events, especially those normally conducted in June.

More than 81 per cent of the membership provided information on the 1970-71 college year; response for 1971-72 dropped to 44.1 per cent, and 26.6 per cent submitted calendars for 1972-73.

In classifying an institution according to its calendar, 85.8 per cent use one of the traditional calendars—65.6 per cent semester; 20.2 per cent quarter. Other calendars used include: term, 4.8 per cent; four-one-four, 5.0 per cent; and trimester, 4.4 per cent.

Separate analyses were prepared for University Division and College Division institutions. However, their calendars proved to be quite similar and the accompanying tables show combined figures for each classification. In no instance did the variance between the two divisions reach as high as 12 per cent.

NCAA Introduces Third Insurance Program

A Loss of Revenue Plan has been developed by the NCAA Insurance Committee, and will be made available to member institutions for the first time in 1971-1972.

Known as the Loss of Revenue or Team Catastrophe Insurance Program, the plan is devised to reimburse an enrolled institution for loss of receipts due to game(s) cancellation by reasons of illness or injury to its own team members.

The program was founded in the wake of the plane crashes which crippled football programs at Wichita State and Marshall Universities, and a hepatitis attack which struck Holy Cross gridirers in 1969 and forced cancellation of eight football games.

The plan is restricted to the sports of football and basketball. A benefit limit is available in units of $10,000, subject to a maximum of 80% of the anticipated gross gate receipts from games to be played in the coming season by the enrolled team, or 80% of gross gate receipts of the previous season's games played by the institution.

The limit of benefit is $2,500,000.

The cost of this insurance is $7.50 per $10,000 coverage. The program is being underwritten by Aetna Life Insurance Co. in Hartford, Conn., also underwriter of the NCAA Travel Accident Insurance Program.

The importance of the travel plan was emphasized by the two tragedies which befell intercollegiate football last season. This plan has been renewed for a period of three years with rates decreased in policies under $10,000 and increased in policies of $10,000 or more.

Approximately 43,000 students and staff members from 177 institutions were covered by this plan in 1970.

The third program available through the NCAA is the Intercollegiate Athletic Accident Insurance Plan, underwritten by Travelers. The plan, which insures enrolled institutions against injury to students in all sports, is beginning its 20th year. 53,165 students in 174 institutions were covered by this plan a year ago.

Two Reclassified
UD for Football

Two institutions, Temple University and the University of Texas Arlington, have been reclassified to University Division status for the 1971 football season.

The reclassification raises the number of major college football teams to 119. The National Collegiate Athletic Association has 331 College Division members playing football.

The two teams were named after an analysis of their schedules and other criteria which bear on their football programs.

CD Track

The Wonder Five

"Looks like you'll win," a rival coach told Kentucky State's Ken Gibson after KSC's Dick Garrett won a five-man photo in the 100-yard dash at the 1971 NCAA College Division Track Championships.

"What do you mean?" asked Gibson, who had brought a team made up of only five sprinters to Sacramento State's Hornet Stadium, July 10-12.

What he meant was that Kentucky State had piled up 28 points in three events and had finalists in the 220 and mile relay, among the closing events on the program.

When Gibson told his "Wonder Five" that things looked good, it was their turn to say, "What do you mean?"

Kentucky State "Doesn't have a track worth a dime," according to the coach, and minus any points in the field events, the aptly named Thorobreds didn't even dream about winning the Championship.

As late as halfway through the finals Saturday night, Kentucky State didn't have a point. Then in rapid order, the 440 relay team finished second, Steve Jordan won the 440 and Garrett copped the 100.

Attention then turned to the 220 where Garrett faced runners from defending champ Cal Poly SLO and host Sacramento State, the other teams still in contention.

An hour after winning the 100 and running a leg of the 440 relay, Garrett wheeled to a second-place finish in the 220. It was worth 8 points and put the Thorobreds over the top. In only four events, with two firsts and two seconds, Kentucky State captured its first CD Track Championship. A third-place finish in the mile relay, the final event, was just icing on the cake.

Moments later, a stunned but smiling Gibson was named CD Track Coach of the Year. His track might not be worth a dime, but with four of his "Wonder Five" returning, he's got something that money can't buy.

A Hurler Gets Even

A record crowd saw Southern California down Southern Illinois, 7-2, to win its seventh title in the Silver Anniversary of the College World Series at Omaha, Nebr., June 11-17.

An overflow crowd of 13,945 watched the Trojans and Salukis play for the championship which sent the week's attendance soaring to a record 77,460 for 10 sessions. The previous marks of 12,798 and 74,683, respectively, were established in 1970. Omaha has hosted the past 22 tournaments and, in 1972, the one millionth fan will pass through the turnstiles.

Righthander Steve Busby avenged an earlier Series loss in taking the championship victory. He went the distance in the finale, allowing only eight hits. Only one Saluki advanced beyond second base until the ninth inning when a walk and three singles plated the final run for the losers.

The Trojans, coached by Rod Dedeaux, spotted SIU a second-inning run, but scored in the third by putting together a walk and singles by Busby, George Ambrow and Dick Cross to take a 2-1 lead.

Frank Alfano, an All-Tournament repeater at second base for USC, scored on an infield out in the fourth and singled home two runs in the fifth inning to put Southern Cal in front, 5-1. Catcher Craig Perkins and Alfano busted back-to-back homers in the seventh for the final Trojan tallies.

Joining the two finalists in the fourth round were Tulsa and Pan American, the latter making its first Series appearance. Southern Illinois eliminated Pan Am, 8-6, while Southern Cal handed Tulsa its first loss of the tourney, 8-4. After SIU coach Itchy Jones drew the fifth round bye, the Trojans again defeated Tulsa, 3-2.

Although Tulsa ripped off three straight wins, led the tournament in fewest earned runs allowed and batted .314 as a team with freshman Jerry Tabb (.500) being voted the Most Outstanding Player, its 18 errors, a Series record, finally caused its downfall. In both losses to the Trojans, the deciding runs were unearned.

Tabb tied a Series record with 10 runs batted in on 10 hits including a pair of Catcher Larry Calufetti of Southern Illinois topped all Series hitters with a .533 average. His run-scoring single in the ninth inning of the title game pushed him past Tabb and Honeycutt for the batting USC's Mark Sogge and Steve Rogers of Tulsa emerged as the top pitchers, each winning two games. Sogge's 1.50 era was best among those with 10 or more innings. Rogers fanned 22 and walked only one in 16 1/3 innings.

Without the Relay

From 1966 until 1970, the team that won the 440 relay at the National Collegiate Track and Field Championships went on to win the team title.

So after Ronnie Welch failed to get the baton to anchor man Wayne Collett in the Friday semi-finals of the event, it caused UCLA Coach Jim Bush to worry.

"But these kids," said Bush, "told me, 'Coach, don't you worry. We're going to win it'."

With three events left to be tabulated at the 50th NCAA meet at Seattle June 17-19, Southern California had scored 41 points to the Bruin's 24, and some thought the Trojans were coasting to their 26th Championship.

Points in Three Events

But then the UCLA team of Warren Edmondson, Reggie Echols, John Smith and Wayne Collett won the mile relay. Francois Tracanelli cleared 17-0 and placed second in the pole vault. And Denny Rogers and James Butts went 3-4 in the triple jump, and the Bruins had accumulated 52 points.

Meanwhile, Southern Cal, which had beaten the Bruins earlier in a dual meet but had lost to them in the Pacific-8 Conference Championships, failed to score another point, after suffering some bad breaks.

"Look at all the schools who had bad luck," Bush said. "USC had some bad breaks. Deckard (Willie) not running well gave us a lift."

Deckard, picked as a favorite prior to this meet in the 220 and as a high-place finisher in the 100, failed to get a single point in either event.

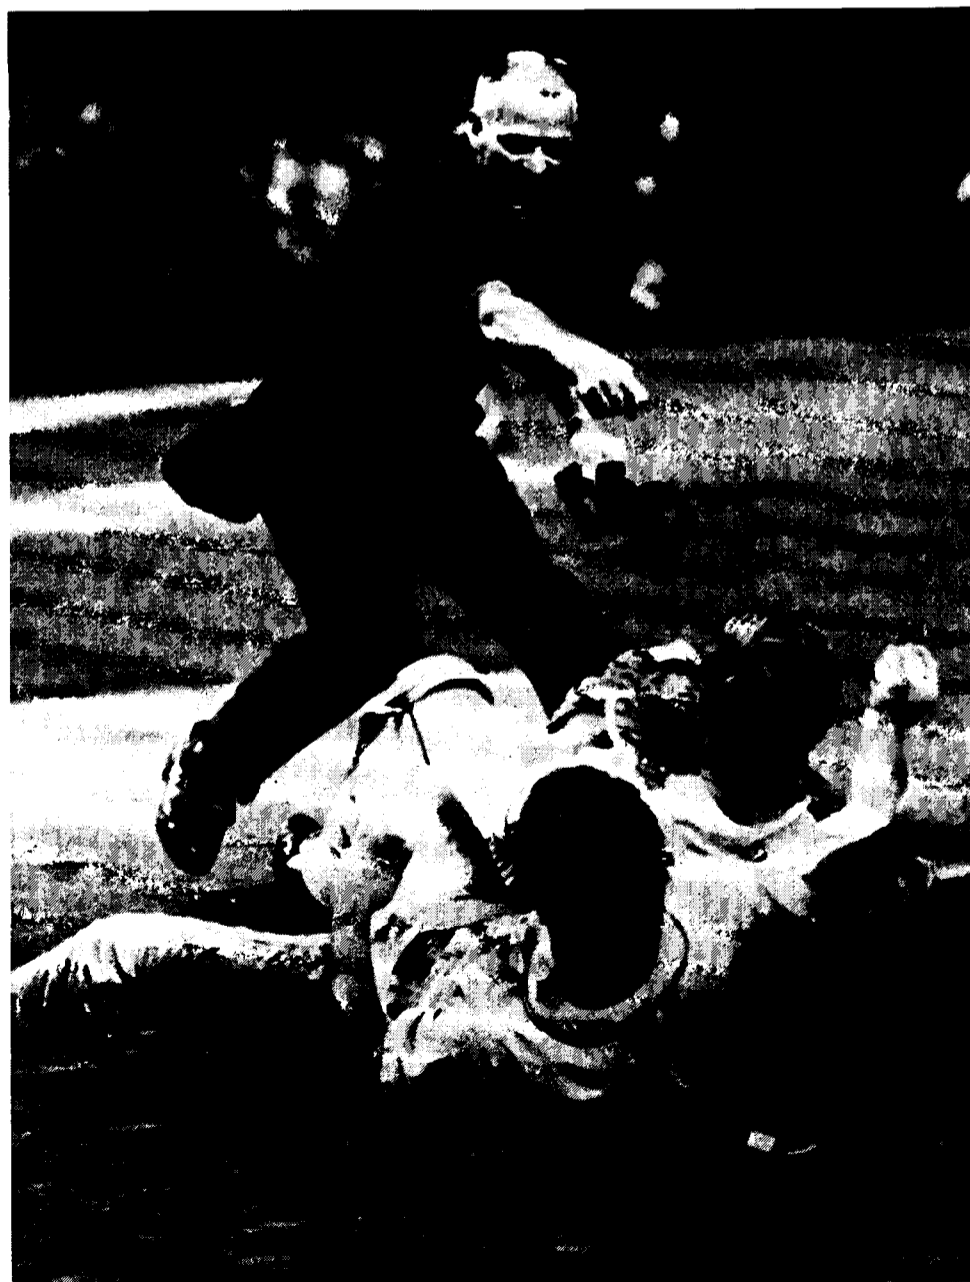

"I was tired, I was tired," he said after the completion of the 220. "I can't figure why. I just didn't pick up coming down the straightaway. It was the slowest 220 of my USC career. I was tired, I was tired."

Two Firsts

The Bruins took two firsts en route to the team championship, the victory in the mile relay, and a win in the 440, when John Smith nipped USC's Edesel Garrison at the tape in the classic race of the meet.

The 440 field was an impressive one. There was Smith, Garrison, Collett, Tennessee freshman Darwin Bond, and Murray State's Tommy Turner.

Collett, one of the pre-race favorites, drew lane eight, a lane he likes. But he was well back at the final turn. Garrison moved well on the backstretch and was running in first position at the head of the final turn. But Smith slowly made up the deficit and hit the tape at 45.3, one-tenth of a second faster than Garrison.

"The last time I raced against Edesel," Smith said, "I panicked. This time I let him go. I relaxed at the 330. I just told myself to be relaxed. I swung my arms, I lifted my legs, and I just let loose. I wasn't going to be bothered about thinking about him, and just ran on in as fast as I could. My vision was a little blurry at the finish, and I almost missed the tape."

Garrison said he didn't even see Smith at the finish.

"One second he was there and the next second he was at the line. I was listening to the announcer, looking for Turner on the other side. I could have beaten him, I know I could. It really hurts me."

"I thought the quarter was mine."

Lacrosse

The First Time Around

In 1970, Cornell's undefeated lacrosse team was overlooked in the voting for the Wingate Trophy, emblematic of the championship of the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association.

The trophy was shared by once-beaten Navy, Virginia and Johns Hopkins. In defending their choice, selectors pointed out that the Big Red had not met any of the major lacrosse powers.

In 1971, the selectors gave way to an eight-team single-elimination tournament, the 26th NCAA championship event. On June 5 at Hofstra University, it was Cornell, striking a blow for playoff competition and Northeastern lacrosse, defeating Maryland, 12-6, to capture the inaugural event.

The Tournament teams were selected from 114 schools which now sponsor lacrosse. Cornell upset Army 17-16 to advance to the final, while Maryland got there with a 10-7 win over Navy. Virginia, Brown, Hofstra and the Air Force Academy rounded out the field, which was pared down on three successive Saturdays in late May and early June.

The final was witnessed by 6,000 fans. The site of Hempstead, Long Island, for the Cornell-Maryland clash was fitting. Nearly a third of the players on the two squads make their homes on Long Island, while Big Red coach Richie Moran won the 1968 club title with the Long Island A.C.

Cornell All-American Al Rimmer opened the scoring after 59 seconds and added five more tallies before the afternoon was out. Goalie Bob Buhmann was outstanding, as was the entire Cornell defense, lauded by Moran for shutting off the potent Maryland attack.

The march of the freshmen got a big boost in the College Division Tennis Championships, where UC Irvine successfully defended its title. The CD tourney was played at Depauw University, June 8-12.

Myron McNamara's Anteaters had a much tougher time than in 1970 when they played friendly intrasquad matches in both the singles and doubles finals. Doubles champs Greg Jablonski and Charles Nachand were back to lead UC Irvine in the 1971 Championships but when it was over, the headlines belonged to freshman Bob Chappell.

Chappell, the top seeded singles player, breezed through the field without losing a set. He defeated Rollins' John Lowman in the final. Lowman and teammate Ron Lague were giant killers in the doubles. They beat Jablonski and Nachand in a three-set semi, then disposed of Chappell and his freshman partner, Bob Cripe, in the final.

The Rollins rally made the final standings close with UC Irvine on top by three points.

A Loser Wins

Central Michigan looked to be coasting to its first College Division baseball title at the CD World Series played June 3-6 at Springfield, Mo.

It bombed Mankato State, 9-0, behind Ralph Darrin's two-hit pitching on the first day of the tourney. Then Central defeated the other first day winner, San Diego, 5-3, on the following day.

All it had to do now was to beat the team that was coming up through the loser's bracket, which would have to win three games in 24 hours in order to capture the CD crown.

It wasn't to be Mankato State. After suffering the 6-0 loss to Central Michigan, the Indians packed up and went home after losing to Florida Southern, also by a 6-0 count.

That left the Florida team and San Diego to fight it out in the loser's bracket, the winner of which would have to beat Central Michigan twice in order to take the title.

Florida Southern's Moccasins earned the right to face the Central Chippewas by avenging their first-day loss and defeating San Diego 11-4.

Then they successfully defeated Central Michigan in the first game, 9-6, to earn the right to meet Central again for the title.

But the Chippewas had their ace back on the hill—Darrin, who hadn't pitched since Thursday—a three-day rest. Meanwhile, the Moccasins had to throw Jay Smith, who had gone a full nine innings just two days before.

However, Smith was up to the occasion, as he threw his second straight shutout for Southern. Teammates second baseman Greg Pryor, third baseman Kevin Bryant, and outfielders Atlas Jones and Artie Gonzales, all named to the All-Tournament team, provided the necessary hitting power to score four runs and take a 4-0 win.

CD Golf

Those Long Courses

Louisiana State New Orleans is accustomed to playing long golf courses, according to coach Robert Brown.

The College Division Championships, hosted by Chico State, June 15-18, was played on two courses, the rolling 7,000-yard Battle Creek layout and the shorter Bidwell Municipal links.

Shooting true to form, LSU took the lead at Battle Creek on opening day, fell behind at Bidwell, then returned to Battle Creek for the final round and a come-from-behind four-stroke triumph over defending champion Rollins.

LSU finished with a four-man total of 1198. The winner of the individual title was the Privateers' Stan Stopa, who came out of the pack on the final day to card a 72 for a 72-hole total of 292.

LSU had three of the top eight finishers, with Bill Springer in at 297 and the 1970 runnerup, Dick Gaille, a stroke back at 298.

Stopa, a freshman who makes his home only four blocks from the LSU New Orleans campus, won the Southern Amateur Championship a year ago. His 292 gave him a two-stroke margin over Dave Christensen of San Fernando Valley and Rollins' Mike Ford, son of golfer Doug Ford.

UD Tennis

Shouldering the Load

The way the University Division Tennis Championships were progressing at South Bend, June 14-19, an observer might have thought Sidney Wicks and Co. were playing fullcourt at Pauley Pavilion. So total was UCLA domination, that Coach Glenn Bassett admitted, "we felt we had it won in the quarters."

The Bruins had three players in the round of eight and a day later, three of the four singles semi-finalists. In doubles, both UCLA duos made it to the semis. The team of Haroon Rahim and Jeff Borowiak captured the title in a tense final against the Trinity (Texas) combo of Dick Stockton and Bob McKinley. The score was 7-6, 7-6.

In any other year, they might still be playing. 1971 marked the introduction of the tiebreaker system, a seven-point game to decide sets deadlocked at six-apiece. According to Bassett, the tiebreaker is exciting and most of the coaches and players liked it because it helped ease the grind of the physically demanding six-day tourney.

One player who found it especially tough was UCLA's Jimmy Connors, who captured the singles crown. Only a freshman, Connors was scheduled to play at Wimbledon following the NCAA tourney, but had to cancel because of bursitis in both shoulders—a condition which plagued him while he was winning the NCAA title.

Each night during the tournament, Bassett rubbed Connor's sore shoulders and watched the next day as Connors parlayed guts and his two-hand backhand to victory. He beat the 1970 runnerup, Stanford's Roscoe Tanner, in a four-set final.

UD Golf

Final Round Heroics

Everyone at Tucson National Golf Course knew about it as soon as it happened. "Kite just eagled the fifth. He's six under after five."

The Kite who was flying was Tom Jr., captain of the Texas team which trailed Florida by 15 strokes going into the final round of the University Division Golf Championships. By holing an eight iron at the 400-yard, par-4 fifth, Kite cut the lead to nine shots. He had birdies on the first four holes.

Right behind him, three other Texas players were playing subpar golf, while the Longhorn ace, Ben Crenshaw, waited in the clubhouse with a late starting time. According to Texas coach George Hannon, "When the first four made the turn, I thought we had a chance. When they dropped three shots to par on the 18th, I wasn't so sure."

No. 1: Crenshaw

Crenshaw, a freshman, had begun his run at the individual title, carrying the Longhorns' team hopes as well. Still on the course were the leaders from Florida, Houston and Wake Forest, but they began to falter as Crenshaw rammed home birdies on 11, 13, 14 and 15. The last one drew Texas even with Florida and while Crenshaw parred out, the Gators dropped 10 strokes to par on the final holes. The Longhorns' seven stroke margin at the finish made it look easy.

For Crenshaw, Kite, George Machok and William Cromwell, who grew up together in Austin, it was a dream come true. "Ever since we were kids, we wanted to win a national championship together," Machok said. With San Antonio product George Tucker tying Machok at 292, the entire Texas team shared in the triumph. And Crenshaw won the individual title with an NCAA record 273.

Scholarship Renewal

Situation: An institution notifies a student-athlete by July 1 that he will not be the recipient of financial aid for the next academic year.

Question: Is the institution prohibited from awarding financial aid to the student-athlete after issuing such notification? (33)

Answer: No. [C3-1-O.I. 2—1970-71 Manual]

Situation: An institution renews a student-athlete's financial aid for the next academic year in accordance with Official Interpretation 2.

Question: Is the institution obligated to notify the student-athlete in writing of the renewal? (36)

Answer: Yes. Although Official Interpretation 2 does not specifically require written notification, C3-4-(c) does require a written statement of the amount, terms, conditions and duration of an award. [C3-4-(c)—1970-71 Manual]

Professional Rulings

Situation: Prior to enrollment in a collegiate institution, a young man engages in one or more activities which are contrary to NCAA "Professional Rulings" described in Official Interpretations 11-13 (e.g., signs a professional contract, plays athletics for pay, enters an agreement with an agent, receives expenses for reporting or visiting a professional team).

Question: Does one or more of these occurrences prior to college enrollment affect the student-athlete's eligibility when he enrolls in an NCAA member institution? (6A)

Answer: Yes. Official Interpretations 11-13 apply to a person at any time. [C3-1-O.I. 11-13—1970-71 Manual]

Situation: Prior to enrollment in a collegiate institution, a young man participates on a professional team as defined in Official Interpretation 14. He does not receive any payment for his services and does not otherwise professionalize himself under Official Interpretations 11-13.

Question: Does participation on a professional team prior to enrollment in a collegiate institution affect a person's eligibility upon enrollment in an NCAA member institution? (6B)

Answer: No. Official Interpretation 14 [excluding paragraphs (a), (b)] applies only to the participation of a college student-athlete on a professional team. [C3-1-O.I. 14—1970-71 Manual]

Transfer Requirement-Military Exception

Situation: A student-athlete attends a collegiate institution for a period of time before serving on active duty in the United States Military for at least 18 months. Upon release from active duty, he enrolls at an NCAA member institution.

Question: Is the student-athlete immediately eligible to represent the member institution in an NCAA event without fulfilling a residence requirement? (61)

Answer: Yes, provided that he meets the transfer requirements of NCAA Bylaw 4-6-(b) [1,600 rule] as well as the eligibility and transfer rules of the institution in which he enrolls. The 18-month active duty exception relieves a student from the transfer requirements of Bylaw 4, Sections 1-5, but does not pertain to other NCAA eligibility rules including the provisions of Constitution 3-10 and Bylaw 4-6-(b) [1,600 rule]. NCAA Awards Final 32 Grants to Outstanding Seniors

The last 32 of 80 $1,000 Postgraduate Scholarships have been awarded by the NCAA for the 1970-71 academic year. Outstanding student-athletes participating in sports other than football and basketball are included in this last group.

Each award constitutes a significant honor for the selected student and a tribute to his institution, considering the number of potential candidates across the nation.

Twelve awards were given in the University Division and twelve in the College Division, while eight were bestowed in the At-Large category. There were five alternates. If any one of the original awardees does not utilize his scholarship, it automatically reverts to an alternate in the order in which the alternates are ranked, according to Postgraduate Scholarship Committee policy.

A "B" Average

Each winner has earned better than a 3.0 or "B" cumulative grade average for his college career and has performed with distinction in his particular sport(s). In addition, each must have signified his intention of beginning graduate studies as soon as possible and must have been judged capable of doing postgraduate work by his major professor.

Youth Is Served in NCAA Spring Championships

Exploding on the scene: Texas freshman Ben Crenshaw blasts out of bunker at Tucson National Golf Course during UD Golf Championships. He carded a 65 on the final day to capture the individual crown.

Bringing it back home: UCLA tennis coach Glenn Bassett displays UD Tennis Championship trophy to Stanford coach Dick Gould. The Bruins retained the trophy. Looking on are UCLA freshman Jimmy Connors (left) who won the singles title and runnerup Roscoe Tanner of Stanford.

The 1971 NCAA Spring Championships will be remembered for the freshmen who graduated to upper class status with honors. No less than four members of the Class of '74 won major individual titles, while a host of others made it the best freshman showing since the NCAA granted four years of Championship eligibility in 1968.

Ben Crenshaw's 72-hole total of 273 set an NCAA mark as Texas won the University Division Golf Championship. UCLA's Jimmy Connors won the UD Tennis title as the Bruins successfully defended the team crown. In the College Division, Stan Stopa paced LSU New Orleans to the golf title, while Bob Chappell enabled UC Irvine to retain its tennis championship by capturing the CD singles final.

The only double winner at the CD Track Championships was Gordon Minty, a freshman at Eastern Michigan. And at Omaha, while Southern California was winning the UD Baseball Championship for the seventh time, the Most Valuable Player award went to Tulsa first baseman Jerry Tabb. Tabb, if you haven't guessed, also was a first-year man. (Championship events stories, pages 3-5)
