Council supports several classification proposals

Testifying for the NCAA

Representatives of the NCAA were afforded the opportunity to testify before the House Commerce Committee's Subcommittee on Oversight of Investigation September 27-28. Among the NCAA witnesses were President J. Neils Thompson (top), Executive Director Walter Byers (above left) and Secretary-Treasurer Edgar A. Sherman (above right). Photo by John C. Phillips, The Chronicle of Higher Education.

The NCAA Council has voted to sponsor several legislative items relating to membership classification for consideration at the 73rd annual Convention in January.

Acting at its October 16-18 meeting in Dallas, the Council also agreed to sponsor legislation which would introduce a "triple-option" eligibility rule and eliminate the freshman "redshirt" rule in Division I and implement terminal championships for Divisions II and III.

The legislation regarding membership classification is headed by a proposal which would establish an inactive membership category for an institution which does not meet the membership criteria of any NCAA division. Such a member would not be eligible for championship competition in any division, but it would retain voting privileges in constitutional matters.

Currently institutions not meeting the requirements of any division automatically are reclassified as associate members.

The Council also elected to sponsor a proposal establishing procedures by which an institution which does not meet the criteria of its desired division could request a waiver of those criteria from the membership of the division itself. The current "qualifying status" would be eliminated if this proposal were approved.

In another classification matter, the Council decided to sponsor an amendment to establish a waiver opportunity which would not require an institution to remain in its new division for three years if the reclassification had been the direct result of the creation of a new NCAA division or subdivision.

Triple Option

The triple-option rule would replace the current 2,000 rule with an eligibility regulation based on one of three alternatives (high school grade point average of 2.250, ACT score of 17 or SAT score of 750). Division I voters will be able to adopt one or any combination of those alternatives.

The legislation relating to the "redshirt" rule states that a student-athlete in Division I would be permitted only three years of competition after his freshman year for championship competition in Division I, as was the case before the 1978 NCAA Convention.

In another matter related to seasons of competition, the Council proposed legislation designed to equate the competitive experience of individuals competing in NCAA Championships. The "common-age" proposal would count as a season of competition any type of organized participation after the 20th birthday and prior to enrollment in a member institution.

Following the recommendations of the Divisions II and III Steering Committees, the Council chose to support legislation which will establish terminal championships in Division II and III. Currently, student-athletes from Divisions II and III can earn the right to compete in Division I championships in certain sports.

The Council, again acting on a recommendation from the Divisions II and III Steering Committees, voted to sponsor legislation which will permit the Convention as a whole to act on amendments to the "common" bylaws in the event any division does not have a quorum.

Divisions

Also approved for presentation to the Convention were a number of proposals relating solely to one of the Association's three divisions. The following pertain to Division I:

- Those institutions which do not sponsor football or do not classify their football in Division I would be required to sponsor at least eight varsity intercollegiate sports as a criterion for Division I membership.

- The Division I basketball scheduling requirement would be increased from at least 75 per cent to at least 85 per cent, and an institution would not be permitted to schedule less than 75 per cent against members of Division I while seeking to conform to the new criterion.

- Only head coaches and full-time assistant coaches would be allowed to recruit or scout off campus.

The following are proposals relating to Division II:

- A Division II member in the sports of football and basketball would be required to schedule at least 50 per cent of its games against Division II or Division I members in those sports. Waiver opportunities would be provided for those institutions with geographic problems or problems regarding the membership composition of their conference.

- The maximum awards limitation in Division II football would be reduced from 60 to 45.

The following are proposals pertaining to Division III:

- Postseason practice for Division III institutions would not be allowed in the sports of gymnastics, ice hockey, lacrosse, soccer, volleyball, water polo and wrestling. Further, preseason practice in those sports would be limited to specific starting dates.

- Spring football practice in Division III would be eliminated by removing the present waiver opportunity.

- Division III basketball members would be required to schedule more than 60 per cent of their games against members of Division III in that sport.

- Each Division III member would be required to conduct its regular-season competition under eligibility rules as demanding as those of the NCAA (Bylaw 4-1).

Council to respond to recommendations

The NCAA Council has discussed for a second time the 46 proposed changes in the Association's enforcement program suggested by certain witnesses during the Congressional investigation of the Association and will issue a report on the subject later this month.

The proposed changes were among the topics discussed when representatives of the NCAA appeared before the House Commerce Committee's Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations late in September.

The subcommittee has not written its report.

Chairman John E. Moss (D-California) indicated he would hold the subcommittee's record open until it had received a report of the Council's actions from the NCAA.

The Council first reviewed the proposals during its August meeting, prior to the September 27-28 appearances by the Association's witnesses. Although President Thompson reported the Council's position on each recommendation to the subcommittee, he agreed to bring them before the Association's policy-making body at its October meeting.

Goings-on in Washington, D. C.

A senate proposal to disallow the business entertainment expense deduction for tickets to athletic events has been defeated for the current Congress. While this legislation apparently was aimed principally at the professional ranks, one must conclude the colleges would have suffered, also.

Although intercollegiate programs do not rely on ticket sales to business quite as much as do the professionals, the income derived from such sales nevertheless is significant in many instances. It is crucial to note, however, that money received from the sales of the college tickets does not find its way to the pockets of sports franchise owners; instead in most cases such money goes for educational purposes or for the other expenses of programs for college students.

Consider this: At one major university, season tickets for certain seats may be purchased only after a $100 option payment has been made. Businesses obviously are interested in these seats, which are among the best in the stadium. If a business makes the maximum purchase of a 32-ticket bloc, then $3,200 (which in this case equals two scholarships) will be realized.

This same institution has earmarked 80 per cent of the money so gained to be contributed to sports other than football.

Encouraging is the fact that an overwhelming majority (more than two-thirds) of the Senate saw fit to table this amendment which would have disallowed business entertainment expense deductions for athletic tickets.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the capitol, the House Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations was winding down its 12-month investigation into the NCAA enforcement program. In leafing through the voluminous transcripts, we have become intrigued by the questions which were not asked.

For example, which Charles Alan Wright (chairman of the NCAA Committee on Infractions) was testifying, this exchange took place between Mr. Wright and Congressman James Santini of Nevada:

Mr. Santini: "... Therefore, you stated as your standard and your measure and your test that whenever the issue is creditability, or whether the question is whether witness one is telling the truth or whether witness number two is telling the truth, there is no corroboration.

"Then the staff has the burden and you will not find a violation by your own standard. You apply that standard to the most serious allegation (a finding concerning unearned academic credit for a student-athlete) levied against Coach Tarkanian.

"So how can it be sustained in that context?"

Mr. Wright: "Representative Santini, I would not myself accept the characterization that this was the most serious charge in the case. I felt the most serious charge was the charge that he (Mr. Tarkanian) endeavored to persuade witnesses to change their testimony..."

In the interests of understanding and evaluating the functions of the NCAA Committee on Infractions, it seems unfortunate no one asked for more information concerning the charge which Chairman Wright considered the most serious of all those which involved the UNLV head basketball coach.

A pep talk to remember

By FREDERICK C. KLEIN
The Wall Street Journal

A lot of companies like to enliven their sales meetings by bringing in people from the world of sports to give inspirational talks to their troops. Football figures are especially in demand. There's something about the appeal they make to pride, discipline and teamwork that goes over big with salesmen. At least, that's what I'd been told.

The sportsman-philosophers usually employed to do that sort of thing are well-known types such as George Blanda and Ara Parseghian, whose reputations command immediate attention, so the 150 or so IBM salespeople assembled here for a regional meeting one morning last May were somewhat put off to learn that their speaker for the day was to be Gerry Faust, a high school coach from Ohio.

Now, you can say what you will about IBM, but you have to admit it can field as well-turned-out a crew of salespeople as anyone, and this group was no exception. Their skepticism about the value of the hour ahead increased when Mr. Faust, an enthusiastic, chunkily built man of 43, showed up wearing a very un-IBM-like costume of golf shirt and wash pants.

Their spirits improved a good bit when Mr. Faust was introduced by one of their number. He told them that in his 15 years as head football coach at Moeller High, a Catholic school near Cincinnati, Mr. Faust's teams had won 140 games, tied 2, and lost 16, and that they hadn't been beaten or tied since 1972.

That streak ended at 53 games recently, when Moeller lost 13-12 on a field goal with six seconds left.

The IBM man went on to note that last season, in winning the Ohio state championship, Moeller registered a 466-to-54 scoring edge over its 12 opponents, who had a combined won-lost mark of 80-40. A national sports magazine named Moeller the best high school team in the country last year and the year before, he said.

The recitation of the Faust record, which contained other glories too numerous to mention here, was greeted by mounting "oohs" and "jeezes" from the audience, and properly prepared it for the man himself, who appeared holding a device that activated a slide machine at the rear of the hall. When he wanted to illustrate a point, a photo showing some aspect of Moeller football was projected on a large screen behind him. It was a nice effect.

Go First Class, Be First Class

He told the group that in case it was wondering what a high school football coach could tell an IBM salesman, the answer was plenty. Success, he assured them, wasn't reserved for geniuses or supermen. "Our kids are no different than you'll find in any other school," he said. "Some people think we recruit, but we don't—honest to God we don't, and I say that as a good Catholic.

"It's a matter of having the right tools, getting prepared and knowing how to deal with people. It's the same in any field—sports, business, religion, what have you."

"Mr. Faust then turned his full attention to football. At Moeller, he said, "having the tools" means having 12 assistant football coaches, all of whom also teach academic subjects at the school, "equipment as good as the Cincinnati Bengals have," volunteer team physicians who attend all games and most practices, a weight lifting room to build players' strength and ballet lessons to build their agility. "If you go first-class you are first class," said he.

Preparation, he went on, means having a coaching staff willing to spend 2½ hours a night planning the next day's practice sessions, down to such details as rehearsing how the team will run onto and off of the field during games and players willing to participate in year-round conditioning programs.

The part about dealing with people is the toughest, he said. It involves setting rules for coaches as well as players (neat haircuts, no cussing), instilling dedication and even love. "We're a very emotional bunch," he said. "We're not afraid to express our real feelings to each other and the people we care about. We have a parents' day every year, and every member of the team steps out and kisses his Mom and Dad. My folks come too, and I do the same. It's beautiful. It's what being alive is about.

"Mostly, though, we always remember that it's not just the team that's involved when we play but everybody—the whole student body, the faculty and the parents. You ought to see our pep rallies. We have them four-five times a year. We have only 1,000 students at Moeller, but we get twice that many people for the rallies.

"The best one always comes right before we play for the state championship. We get the crowd stirred up with fast music. Then we turn off all the lights in the gym. We drop a sign saying 'Moeller' from the top of the stage and shine a spotlight on it. (Click goes the slide projector.) Everybody cheers.

"Then we drop the initials 'GCL,' meaning we won the Greater Cincinnati League. (Click.) More cheers. Then a sign saying 'City,' showing we're the city champs. (Click.)

"Then the curtains open and on stage, all lit up, are these huge eight-foot gold letters spelling 'STATE.' My God, the place goes wild! You can't believe how exciting it is!"

The IBM salesmen believed it, all right. They were on their feet applauding. And you know, I was pretty excited too.

Opinions Out Loud

—Frank W. Gordon, president
Riddell, Inc.

Chicago Tribune

"Riddell and other helmet manufacturers have spent millions of dollars in engineering research and many years of specially trained engineers' time in an effort to produce the best protective systems possible. When we place a football helmet on the market, it is only after that helmet has passed the stringent tests required by the National Operating Committee for Standards in Athletic Equipment (NOCSAE). The effect of these tests has been to drive inferior football helmets off of the market, since colleges are now required to use only NOCSAE-approved helmets and high schools will be required to do so by 1980.

"All this, however, is not to say that we or any other company manufactures the 'ultimate' helmet. The manufacturer must incorporate as many protective features as possible in his design, keeping in mind the fact that coaches and players will also insist that helmets be relatively light, good looking and comfortable. Although Riddell incorporates some features in our helmets that are different than those which our competitors offer, each of us in the industry is doing everything within our means to provide the best possible protective systems for today's football players."

Advisory Committee
National Athletic Injury Reporting System
The Wall Street Journal

"I'm disturbed that so much of what I've been reading about football injuries is emotional and simplistic. There's certainly a risk involved in playing football, and it shouldn't be minimized, but as best as we (NAIRS) can determine, the game is safer than it used to be in many ways, and the equipment players wear is doing its job quite well."

—Brice Durbin, executive director
National Federation of
State High School Associations
The Associated Press

"Our reports show the cost of operating a sports program is less than one per cent of the school budget.

"Rockford, Illinois, dropped all of its sports programs for one year. They discovered the absence of the program had a disastrous effect on morale and on allied groups such as the band and cheerleaders. When they realized what they had lost, they reinstated everything and even added a few more.

"If you look at what you get for your money, a total athletic program may be the best bargain in the educational system."

—Joe Falls, columnist
Detroit Free Press

"Some tried-and-true fans say it is a good thing to keep the media away from the players because, to them, the media represents some sort of menace. What they forget is one simple fact: the media represents them in obtaining information about the team they are following.

"If there were no such things as newspapers or radio and TV stations, how would the fans know anything about their teams except what they see on Saturdays? And what you see isn't always the true story of what's going on.

"Some of these tried-and-true fans don't want to hear anything critical or negative about their teams.

"In other words, if you don't tell me anything, then nothing can be wrong."

—Bo Schembechler, football coach
University of Michigan
Detroit Free Press

"We've decided we're not going to use freshmen just to let 'em play. We used to play 'em to get experience. We didn't play 'em to win games, but we've lettered half a dozen freshmen a year.

"Now a coach is reluctant to play (a freshman) half a dozen plays when down the road you might be able to really use him... so that's the approach we've taken.

"I'm against the rule, I can't see it... Unless the NCAA is absolutely insane, they'll rescind it in January. Unless they're absolutely stupid. I mean, what sense does it make to say on the one hand that you can use freshmen, and on the other hand to say it's all right to redshirt 'em?"

Nomination deadline nearing

Nominations for vacancies on NCAA committees to be filled at the Association's 1979 Convention must be forwarded to each member's district representative no later than December 1, according to George S. King Jr., chairman of the Committee on Committees.

The Committee on Committees is charged with soliciting nominations and recommending staff members from institutions to serve on NCAA committees to the annual Convention.

Any nomination must be submitted to the district representative by the prescribed deadline so that body may review all nominees at its meeting before the 73rd Convention January 8-10 in San Francisco.

Members of the 1979 Committee on Committees are: Harold S. Westerman, University of Maine, Orono (District 1); John M. Tulley, Elizabethtown College (District 2); Howard Davis, Tuskegee Institute (District 3); Joseph T. Hoy, Western Michigan University (District 4); Bernard F. Cooper, University of South Dakota (District 5); Marvin Tate, Texas A&M University (District 6); Lavon McDonald, University of New Mexico (District 7); and E. John Larsen, University of Southern California (District 8).

At-large members are Gordon M. Brewer, Hope College; Harry Pure, Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science; F. Paul Bogan, Westfield State College; and King, Purdue University, chairman.

King Jr., Director of Athletics, Purdue University; West Lafayette, Indiana 47907. A copy should be mailed to Fannie B. Vaughan; NCAA Administrative Assistant, P. O. Box 1906, Shawnee Mission, Kansas 66222.

Any institution submitting nominations is urged to pay particular attention to eligibility requirements in connection with respective division, district and other requirements stated in By-law 10 in the NCAA Manual, King said.

Other qualifications of a candidate for committee membership include: The reputation and character to indicate clearly that he will use committee membership to serve the Association and not his self-interest or that of his institution or his particular conference; the respect of others engaged with the responsibilities of that committee; and the time and ability to perform the duties involved.

Recommendations and nominations are solicited for the following committees. Nominees will be presented to the convention delegates for their consideration. Roman numerals in parentheses indicate divisional representation.

Senate tables proposal regarding sports tickets

The Senate has voted to table a proposal which would have prohibited businesses from deducting expenses for, among other things, the purchase of tickets to athletic events.

Senator Edward Kennedy (D-Massachusetts) made the proposal, which was tabled by a vote of 70-22. He claimed that large corporations were purchasing most of the tickets to athletic events thus making it difficult for average fans to gain admission. "The best seats at baseball, basketball, football and other sporting events are always occupied by the subsidized spectators," Kennedy said. "The average fan, paying for his own ticket, sits in the farthest reaches of stadium or arena."

Here is how each of the senators voted on whether to table (and thereby defeat for the current Congress) the proposal:

New museum to focus on Rupp era

Plans have been announced for the Adolph F. Rupp-University of Kentucky Basketball Museum that will emphasize the long and colorful Rupp era.

The museum will be located in Lexington Center adjacent to the entrance to Rupp Arena and it will contain photographs, trophies, other memorabilia, tape recordings and films showing some of the great UK teams in action.

Funding for the approximately $200,000 project will come from tax-deductible donations from the public. Operation of the museum will be funded by a small admission charge "not to exceed $1," according to DeWitt Hisle, Lexington Center Corporation treasurer and museum committee chairman.

"We have a unique opportunity to perpetuate the legend of the late Adolph Rupp and the rich basketball tradition that has been established by the University of Kentucky," said Hisle. "The museum will give basketball fans everywhere a fascinating insight into what this game has meant to followers of the UK Wildcats."

Cliff Hagan, athletic director for UK and a committee member, announced that approval from the Athletic Association has been granted to donate the net proceeds from a pre-season game between UK and Poland to the museum fund.

Charles L. Atcher, curator, noted that the museum will cover UK basketball from the first season in 1903 when the team recorded a 1-2 won-lost record through the most recently completed season.

"One of our basic concepts for this museum is that it will be an ever-changing, open-ended museum which will expand as the years go by and also make changes from time to time in the displays from years past," said Atcher.

Atcher mentioned several ideas for display areas that are being considered by the committee:

—A small theatre area with a film that would show the changing style of basketball over the past 75 years.

—Displays that would highlight a specific era of UK basketball, with a film clip and memorabilia from that time.

—Use of the oral history concept, whereby tape-recorded interviews with former UK players and coaches from opposing teams would be played back as part of a display area.

"Obviously one of the major advantages we have in establishing this museum is the fact that we can build it around a central figure, the late Adolph Rupp, whose 41 seasons as UK head coach resulted in some of the greatest accomplishments in the history of collegiate basketball."

Rupp coached the Wildcats from 1930 through 1972, during which time he compiled an amazing record of 880 victories against just 190 losses for a winning percentage of .822. Rupp guided UK to four NCAA titles, an NIT championship and 27 Southeastern Conference crowns.

The Division III soccer finals will be played November 24-25 at Babson College in Wellesley, Massachusetts with the Division II soccer championship set for December 1-2 at Florida International University in Miami. The University of South Florida will host the Division I finals December 9-10 in Tampa.

NCAA Legislative Process

Purposes listed for postseason contests

The Extra Events Committee, in anticipation of the 1978-79 bowl season, has adopted a set of objectives and policies for itself and also has drafted a list of purposes for postseason football games.

The following objectives and policies were listed for the Extra Events Committee:

- To see that postseason games are conducted in the best interests of the student-athletes, the participating institutions, the participating conferences and the sponsors of the game.

- To make sure the games are operated on a high plane that enhances the accomplishments of the football teams.

- To protect the interests of NCAA member institutions in the distribution of revenues, number of tickets allocated, location of tickets, hotel accommodations and all other factors related to the game.

- To ensure local support of each bowl game.

- To review carefully each application for a new bowl game. (Chairman Dave Strack, University of Arizona director of athletics, noted that the committee feels there should not be an arbitrary limit on the number of bowl games and that each application should be reviewed on its own merit.) Such important considerations as location of the bowl, financial responsibility and local support are areas which must be reviewed annually.

- To ensure that no bowl established after 1970 is operated for the personal profit of private individuals or the financial gain of sponsoring organizations, unless such organizations are educational or charitable in nature.

- To review annually each bowl game prior to recertification to ensure continued efficient administration and compliance with NCAA policies.

- To mediate conflicts between and among bowls as to dates and times and to recommend same when the bowls cannot resolve the conflict themselves.

- To impose certain conditions when necessary to assure adherence to the purposes and objectives of postseason games.

Early signing for all-star games violation of rules

The Extra Events Committee has reminded member institutions that the provisions of Constitution 3-1(b) apply to student-athletes from member institutions who agree to participate in professional all-star contests before their team has played in its postseason bowl game.

Constitution 3-1(b) states, "Any student athlete who signs or who has ever signed a contract or commitment of any kind to play professional athletics in a sport, regardless of its legal enforceability or the consideration (if any) received; plays or has ever played on any professional athletic team in a sport, or receives or has ever received, directly or indirectly, a salary, reimbursement of expenses or any other form of financial assistance from a professional organization in a sport based upon his athletic skill or participation, except as permitted by the governing legislation of this Association, no longer shall be eligible for intercollegiate athletics in that sport."

Dave Strack

For example, new bowls are asked to name charities which will benefit from the game and are required to provide financial guarantees for the competing institutions. Also, the Independence Bowl was required to limit its selection of teams to independents and leagues not directly involved in other bowls in order to broaden the base of team selection.

- To provide opportunities for enhancement of each participating institution's offerings and achievements as an institution of higher education.

- To protect existing programs of the Association such as the Divisions I-AA, II and III Football Championships by eliminating interference or conflicting scheduling with those contests whenever possible.

Postseason Games

The committee also listed seven primary purposes for postseason football games:

- To serve as a showcase for intercollegiate football.

- To provide the student-athlete with an experience over and beyond his normal activities.

- To reward teams for excellent performances.

- To permit institutions with outstanding teams and records to compete against other institutions they traditionally may not play.

- To provide an opportunity for alumni, faculty, staff and friends of an institution to become more involved in the athletic program.

- To provide an opportunity for institutions and conferences to obtain additional revenues to further support their athletic programs.

- To serve as an alternative to a national championship.

The committee also developed five policies to supplement Bylaw 2-2 in governing postseason football games.

According to the new policies, a minimum of 40 per cent of stadium capacity must be sold by the sponsoring agency. All financial reports and applications must be received by the committee by April 1.

Also, neutral officiating crews must be from booking agencies (conferences) which regularly assign officials for a minimum of six Division I institutions, at least one of which is participating in a bowl game that season. The radio station officially designated by the participating institution will be permitted to broadcast the game to its home audience.

A change of format, location or administrative personnel of a proposed game will constitute a new contest, and reapplication will be required.

NCAA-Japan matches approaching

International competition between NCAA and Japanese collegiate golfers has been set for November 15-17 in Pebble Beach, California, and will be followed in January by similar competition in volleyball.

This will be the first time in the four-year history of the golf competition for the matches to be played in the United States. NCAA teams won the competition in 1975 and 1977 while Japan took the crown in 1976. The first three matches were played in Japan.

The American team will comprise the top eight undergraduate place winners from the 1978 National Collegiate Golf Championships. The team will be led by the University of Georgia's Griff Moody and Arizona State University's Scott Watkins, who finished in a tie for second in the NCAA championships. Other members of the team will be Bobby Clampett (Brigham Young University), Dan Croonquist (Arizona State University), Mike Gove (Weber State College), Gary Hallberg (Wake Forest University), John McCough (University of North Carolina) and Mark Wiebe (San Jose State University).

The Japanese team will be composed of the top eight undergraduate place winners from the Japan Student Golf Association Championship.

Mike Holder, coach of 1978 national collegiate champion Oklahoma State, will coach the NCAA team while Rod Myers, NCAA Golf Committee chairman, will be the team leader.

Griff Moody

Play will open November 15 with four-ball competition on the Spyglass Hill course, followed November 16 by match play on Pebble Beach. Competition will conclude November 17 with match play on Spyglass Hill.

Volleyball

The Japanese volleyball team will visit the United States for the third consecutive year to compete against four NCAA teams and the United States national team.

This year's series will open January 9 with the Japanese team meeting Pepperdine University, the defending national collegiate volleyball champion at Malibu, California. The U. S. national team will play the Japan all-stars at Wright State University January 11 in Dayton, Ohio. The series will continue January 12 against Ohio State University at Columbus, Ohio; January 13 against Pennsylvania State University at University Park, Pennsylvania, and conclude with a January 14 match at Springfield (Massachusetts) College.

In 1977, the Japanese edged UCLA, 2-1, in a three-game international series. Last February, the Japanese won four or five matches against NCAA member institutions.

Both the golf and volleyball competition are sponsored by the NCAA in cooperation with Sports Nippon Newspapers, a Japanese sports and recreation newspaper.

Rich Hunter joins events department staff

Richard D. Hunter has joined the NCAA staff as an assistant director of events.

Hunter will assist in the conduct and administration of championships in addition to staffing championships, meeting with sports committees and coaches associations and receiving and processing proposed budgets and financial reports for selected championships.

Hunter joins the NCAA after serving the City of Overland Park, Kansas, as Superintendent of Recreation.

The 1973 graduate of Kansas State University is married and has one child.

Hunter is a member of the Kansas and National Recreation and Park Associations and the Kansas Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. While in college, he was a registered high school official and also was a member and huddle leader of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Former NCAA President Earl Ramer of the University of Tennessee was honored recently for his service to the university and to college athletics. Joining Ramer (far right), who retired September 1, on the field before the Tennessee-UCLA game were (left to right) Tennessee athletic director Bob Woodruff, Southeastern Conference commissioner Boyd McWhorter, Sugar Bowl representative A. B. Nicholas, Tennessee athletic committee chairman Col. Tom Elam, NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers and Mrs. Ramer.

Executive Regulations

The Executive Committee has the authority to adopt executive regulations consistent with the constitution and bylaws of the Association. The following regulations have been adopted by the NCAA Executive Committee during the course of 1978.

Executive Regulations may be amended at any annual or special Convention by a majority vote of delegates present and voting in accordance with the procedures set forth in Bylaws 11-1, 11-2 and 11-3. Executive regulations are not subject to divided voting.

Misconduct

Regulation 2-1-(1), page 112, was revised as follows:

(1) A governing sports committee, or the games committee authorized to act for it, may (i) reprimand publicly or privately, and/or (ii) disqualify from further participation in the NCAA championship involved, and/or (iii) ban from participation in a subsequent championship(s) of the sport involved a student-athlete or representative of an institution who is guilty of misconduct occurring at or at any time preceding or subsequent to the competition during the official dates of the meet or tournament. "Misconduct" shall mean any conduct contrary to the principles set forth in Constitution 3-6-(a) and may be found upon informal hearings granted to the student-athlete or representative involved. When a student-athlete or representative is banned from participation in a subsequent championship, such penalty shall be applied to the next tournament(s) in which the individual's team is involved and he otherwise is eligible to participate; or in the case of an individual event, the penalty shall be applied to the next meet(s) or tournament(s) for which the individual qualifies and otherwise is eligible to participate. Any action hereunder may be reviewed by the governing sports committee upon request of any institution participating in the tournament. Each games committee will hold a pretournament meeting with the coaches of participating institutions to review and explain this policy. [Revised: 1/10/78]

Institutional Eligibility

Regulation 2-2, page 114, was amended by adding revised paragraph (g), from the tournament handbooks, as follows:

(g) In team championships, the governing sports committees may require institutions to submit availability questionnaires including a listing of team members who are not eligible for NCAA championship competition under the provisions of Bylaw 4. If an institution fails to report an ineligible player on its availability questionnaire, the governing sports committee may declare the institution ineligible to participate in the immediate championship as well as the championships for the next year or two years. [Revised: 8/10/78]

Soccer Guarantees

Regulations 2-7-(c)-(3), (4) and (5), page 118, were revised as follows:

(3) Institutions serving as host to first, second or third-round games of the National Collegiate (Division I) Soccer Championship shall guarantee net receipts of at least $250. [Revised: 4/22/78]

(4) Institutions serving as host to first or second-round games of the Division II Soccer Championship shall guarantee net receipts of at least $150. [Revised: 4/22/78]

(5) Institutions serving as host to first or second-round games of the Division III Soccer Championship shall guarantee net receipts of at least $100. [Revised: 4/22/78]

Allowances to Host Institutions

Regulation 2-7-(e), page 119, was revised as follows:

(e) Net receipts shall be the balance remaining after deducting game expense from gross receipts.

(2) An institution using its facilities in serving as host to NCAA finals competition first may deduct 10 per cent or $500, whichever is greater, from the net receipts. [Revised: 8/11/78]

(3) A governing sports committee may recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that an institution serving as host to NCAA pre-regional or regional competition conducted in an off-campus facility be permitted to deduct 1 per cent or $200, whichever is greater, from the net receipts. [Adopted: 8/11/78]

(4) A governing sports committee may recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that an institution serving as host to NCAA finals competition conducted in an off-campus facility be permitted to deduct 1 per cent or $500, whichever is greater, from the net receipts. [Adopted: 8/11/78]

[Note: Paragraphs (2), (3) and (4) have been renumbered but otherwise are unchanged.]

Championships Expense Guarantees

Regulation 2-10, pages 121-122, was revised as follows:

Awards of Circumstance approved

Nine NCAA Division III institutions have had financial aid programs approved by the NCAA Council as "Awards of Circumstance."

Approval by the Council under the provisions of Bylaw 9-3-(a)-(3)-(ii) means such an award may be made by the institution without consideration of the financial need of the recipient.

Division III will initiate as a divisional membership criteria on August 1, 1979, a requirement that all institutionally administered financial aid awarded student-athletes be based on need. No award of circumstance not approved by the Council may be granted subsequent to that date.

A number of other institutions submitted awards programs for consideration on which the Council determined it needed additional information. The NCAA staff was requested to contact these institutions. The awards submitted by other institutions in answer to a late-summer request by the Division III Steering Committee were found not to meet the criteria of the Bylaw.

Although the need requirement does not become effective until August 1 of next year, Division III institutions currently are recruiting students who will be entering in the fall of 1979, hence various Awards of Circumstance will be offered soon, said Division III Steering Committee Chairman, Raymond J. Whispell, Muhlenberg College.

He said the Council emphasized the granting of the award must be automatic, dependent only upon the student meeting the conditions of the special circumstance. He indicated a number of institutions would be contacted for confirmation that an award submitted to the Council is provided automatically, and that he expected the list of institutions with approved awards to grow.

Whispell noted, too, that Bylaw 9-3-(a)-(5) specifically permits tuition remission or similar remuneration granted as a benefit of employment to a faculty or staff member. Such grants otherwise would be awards of circumstance, he stated.

He requested that any institution which failed to submit an award program for approval, or which may have a question concerning the Council's application of the Bylaw, contact NCAA executive assistant Stephen R. Morgan at the national office.

The institutions and the approved awards include:

Baldwin-Wallace College: Ministerial grant.

Muskingum College: Sibling tuition remission, clergy credit.

Thiel College: Clergy grant, family grant.

Central College (Iowa): Reformed Church grant, family tuition grant.

Cornell College (Iowa): Cornell ministerial award.

Upper Iowa University: Sibling grant.

Emory and Henry College: Minister's child courtesy grant.

Ohio Northern University: Ministerial deduction, sibling award.

Mount Union College: Ministerial grant.

SAT verbal scores same as last year

The average verbal score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test this year was 429—the same as last year—while the math score continued a long-term decline and slipped to 468 from 470 a year earlier. The new scores were released by the College Board which said the tests were taken by one million high-school seniors. It was the first time in 10 years the verbal score average did not drop.

"During the last three years, the decline in SAT scores has not been as precipitous as it was in the early 1970s," said Robert G. Cameron, program service officer for the board's Admissions Testing Program. "However, it's impossible to predict whether the decline will be arrested, whether the downward trend will reverse itself, or whether we have a momentary pause."

New copyright law affects membership

On August 17, a memorandum outlining the steps to be taken to assure participation in the distribution of cable television royalties under the new Federal copyright law was sent to the NCAA's members by NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers. Responses to that memorandum disclose that many institutions had been unaware of the impact of the new law on their broadcasting policies, according to Byers.

Accordingly, he prepared the following summary of the major points discussed in the memorandum, to assure that all NCAA members which make radio or television broadcasts of any of their games are aware of their new rights.

Byers said the summary is for the general information of member conferences and institutions, and those affected are urged to consult their own legal advisors for further details.

General Summary

The new copyright law extends for the first time federal copyright protection to radio and television broadcasts. As a result, colleges and universities now have the right to prevent the unauthorized use, including retransmission, of copyrighted broadcasts, subject to a number of exceptions.

The most important limitation is that cable television systems (CATV) may carry broadcast signals without specific permission, provided that they are authorized to do so under FCC rules and that they make an appropriate filing with the Register of Copyrights.

However, in the case of non-network broadcasts, specified copyright royalties must be paid by the CATV systems. The resulting pool of royalties is to be distributed to owners of copyrighted broadcast programming who file a proper claim.

Obtaining Copyright

In order to obtain copyright in a sports event broadcast under the new federal law, the following steps must be taken:

1. Establishment of Ownership. Copyright protection is given to the "author" of an eligible work under the new law. However, it is unclear whether the "author" of a live broadcast of a sports event is the organization that conducts the event or the producer of the broadcast of the event. The legislative history of the new law supplies some support for the claim of the broadcaster. To eliminate any questions as to who may claim copyright in the work, broadcasting arrangements for the contests of NCAA members should specify which party is assigned copyright in the broadcast.

2. Fixation. To be eligible for federal copyright, a broadcast must be "fixed in a tangible medium of expression." For delayed telecasts, where the game has been filmed or taped, this requirement presents no problem. In the case of live broadcasts, it is met by taping the broadcast in full at the time of transmission.

3. Notice. Notice of Copyright must be given on all authorized publications of a work. This notice consists of: (a) the word "Copyright," or the abbreviation "Copr.," or ©; (b) the year of first publication; and (c) the name of the copyright holder.

For example, the NCAA currently uses the following notice:

Copyright 1978 The National Collegiate Athletic Association
The notice should be placed on all copies made of any broadcast before there is distribution of copies. In the case of video cassettes or movie reels, the notices should be placed on the cassettes or reels rather than on a container or case in which the reel is stored or shipped.

Although not required, notices probably also should be spliced into the opening and/or closing credits of such copies, and given over the air on live broadcasts, at least for deterrent value.

CATV Royalties

The new statute permits cable television systems to carry copyrighted transmissions upon making a simple filing with the Register of Copyrights, if the carriage is authorized under FCC regulations.

However, CATV systems now are required to pay royalties for carrying non-network telecasts. The royalty pool is to be distributed among qualified owners of copyrighted programs.

To qualify for distribution of royalties, a copyright owner must file a claim at the appropriate time, and must have satisfied the technical requirements listed above for obtaining copyright in a broadcast. The Copyright Royalty Tribunal has ruled, however, that it is not necessary to submit videotapes to it, or even to retain copies of the tapes in order to qualify for distribution.

An affidavit establishing that the broadcast was in fact filmed or taped in its entirety is all the proof required. A CRT regulation outlines the information to be included in the affidavit.

Royalty claims for the first six months of 1978 were filed in July of this year, and the NCAA made a submission covering NCAA-copyrighted, non-network broadcasts.

NCAA members which have not already filed for the first half of 1978 may not do so now. However, under its previously filed claim, the NCAA will seek royalties for any first-half-of-1978 broadcast for which copyright is assigned to it by a member and will distribute the proceeds to the assigning conference or institution. Claims for the last six months of 1978 are to be filed with the Copyright Royalty Tribunal during the month of July 1979. A claim may be filed for that period—or for any succeeding period—whether or not the copyright owner concerned filed a claim covering the first half of 1978.

Infringement Protection

Prior to the new copyright law, protection against piracy of live sports event broadcasts was available only under local common or statutory law. Now, if a broadcast is filmed or taped, the federal law applies. If the broadcast is not filmed or taped, recourse must still be to local law.

Merely to obtain federal copyright to a filmed or taped broadcast of a sports event (or to qualify for cable television royalties), it is not necessary to register the copyright.

However, registration is a precondition to any suit for an injunction against infringement or for recovery of monetary damages. The timing of registration may be important in some cases, because certain types of monetary recoveries ordinarily cannot be obtained unless registration occurs within a specified time.

Where pirating of broadcasts is a concern, institutions and conferences should consider formulating a policy regarding registration of copyrights and use of local law remedies, based on the costs and potential benefits involved.
