Championship plans announced

EDITOR'S NOTE: Information regarding several NCAA women's championships that will be implemented in the 1981-82 academic year has been sent to the membership. In addition to information about dates and sites and championship formats, the April 13 mailing also included listings of the appropriate sports committees, a reminder of the eligibility provision created by the governance plan at the 1981 Convention and provisions for automatic qualification for NCAA women's championships.

The committee listings and the eligibility provisions already have appeared in the NCAA News. Information regarding championship formats, sites and dates and automatic qualification follows.

1982 Division I Women's Basketball

1. Dates. First-round games will be played March 12-14, and regional games will be played March 18-21. The national semifinal and championship games will be played March 26-28.

2. Sites. First-round games will be played on the campus of one of the competing institutions. Site preference will be given to the highest-seeded team in each region, as approved by the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee. Regional, national semifinal and championship games will be played at predetermined sites.

3. Regions. For the purpose of selecting teams to participate in the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship, the committee divided the country into four regions. Each region was determined on the basis of the total number of NCAA member institutions that sponsor women's intercollegiate basketball in Division I (257) and the strength of the sport throughout the country. The four regions are East, Midwest, Midwest and West.

4. Championship format. The NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship provides for a field of 32 teams. (However, the size of the field may change contingent upon the number of institutions that declare their intention to compete in the championship.) The bracket will be filled by a combination of at-large entries and automatic qualifiers from selected NCAA allied conferences. The committee received requests for consideration for automatic qualification from nine con-

Council, Executive Committee to meet

A report by the Football Television Committee that will include the principles under which the committee will negotiate the Association's next football television contract is among the items on the agenda for the April 25-27 meeting of the NCAA Council.

President James Frank will preside over the meeting at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri.

Wiles Hallock, Football Television Committee chair, will present that report. The committee's consideration of various issues is reviewed elsewhere in this issue.

Recommendations ranging from possible legislation for women's athletic programs to approval of postseason football games will come from other committee reports. The Council will hear from the Classification, Eligibility, Executive, Gambling, Governance, Governmental Affairs, legislative review, Long Range Planning, Postgraduate Scholarship, Postseason Football and Public Relations Committees.

The Council will appoint the Nominating Committee and the Men's and Women's Committees on Committees, the women's group being named for the first time. It also will review the 1981 NCAA Convention and consider initial planning for the 76th annual Convention, to be held January 11-13, 1982, in Houston, Texas. That review will include all proposed legislation on file in the national office.

Also on the agenda are consideration of several key enforcement issues and a review of plans for the second annual NCAA-sponsored meetings of institutional chief executive officers in September.

The remainder of the agenda consists of the Council's ongoing business, including a review of all actions taken by the officers since the January meetings, consideration of new and revised interpretations of Association legislation and action on several membership administration items. The membership category includes the first application for allied membership by a women's athletic conference, the Western Collegiate Athletic Association.

The April gathering will be the first full meeting of the Council since it was expanded to 22 members by the 1981 Convention.

New members of the Council who will be attending their first full meeting: Andrew T. Mooradian, University of New Hampshire; Richard G. Shrider, Miami University (Ohio); Charles H. Samson, Texas A&M University; Francis W. Bonner, Furman University; Judith R. Holland, University of California, Los Angeles; Elizabeth A. Kruczek, Fitchburg State College; Edwin W. Lawrence, Cheyney State College; Edwin D. Muto, State University of New York, Buffalo; Gwendolyn Norrell, Michigan State University, and Laverne Sweat, Hampton Institute.

A report from the Subcommittee on Program Evaluation will be among the key items considered when the NCAA Executive Committee meets April 23-24 in Kansas City.

The subcommittee, chaired by Robert C. James, Atlantic Coast Conference, is in the process of reviewing various NCAA programs. It will judge what cuts might be necessary in the Association's programs and also will seek means to increase revenue. The subcommittee will meet April 22 in Kansas City.

The Subcommittee on Championship Standards, chaired by Seaver Peters, Dartmouth College, also will report to the Executive Committee after conducting an April 22 meeting in Kansas City.

For the first time (excepting an earlier conference call), the Executive Committee will hear reports from women's sports committees. The following women's committees are on the agenda: tennis, Division I basketball, volleyball, swimming, gymnastics and track and field.

Men's committees planning reports include water polo; soccer; Divisions I-AA, II and III football, and gymnastics.

Football, basketball books affected

NCAA publications to be altered

Several changes in NCAA publications will be implemented this year, especially those related to football and basketball.

The 1981-82 series of NCAA guides will focus on statistical information from the past season and will include brief summaries of the preceding year's championships. Also included will be records, capsule forecasts for Division I institutions and schedules for the approaching season. Where applicable, conference standings and meet results will be included as well.

The traditional preview and review articles will be deleted in an effort to make the books more useful as reference publications. Because of the need for schedules to be available as early as possible, the traditional stories had been written so far in advance that they were outdated by the beginning of the season.

In football and basketball, the guides will be discontinued, and the information will be absorbed into expanded records books and into supplements that will be placed in Sunday newspapers across the country.

Although the final production of the supplements is contingent on the sale of advertising, plans are for the NCAA to join with the College Sports Information Directors of America, the Football Writers Association of America, the United States Basketball Writers Association, the American Football Coaches Association and the National Association of Basketball Coaches in producing 32-page, four-color products that would be included in approximately 21.5 million Sunday newspapers.

More than 175 newspapers will carry the product, including the New York Daily News, the Chicago Tribune, the Los Angeles Times, the Dallas Times Herald, the Detroit Free Press, the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the Boston Herald-American, the Philadelphia Bulletin and the Baltimore News-American.

The supplements will include feature articles from six regions of the country, prepared by leading newspaper sports writers. Also included will be regional roundups of conference and independent contenders, schedules, statistical information and Divisions II and III information.

Schedules for all three divisions (including women's schedules in basketball) will be added to the expanded football and basketball records books. To cover the increased production costs of the larger books, the 1981 NCAA Football Records and 1982 NCAA Basketball Records will sell for $5 each.

The other seven guides—soccer, swimming, wrestling, ice hockey, track and field, baseball and lacrosse—will continue to sell for $3 per copy and will contain the rules for the sports as in the past. Material on women's basketball, swimming, track and lacrosse will be added.

Publications catalogs and order forms are available from the national office.

"Any coach can get you into shape. It's keeping you in shape that's important. The great coaches are the ones who can hold you back. You have to come off that track every day feeling on top of the world instead of throwing up and coming off the track beaten."

Bill Halls, columnist
The Detroit News

"One plan (Indiana coach Bobby Knight) suggests is reimbursing Division I schools for scholarship money for every basketball player who graduates. For example, if a school graduated five seniors this year, the NCAA would pay them what the athletic department spent on room, board, tuition and fees for the four-year scholarship of each player.

"If none of the seniors graduated, the school wouldn't be reimbursed.

"This is a pretty good idea. It would put a premium on the scholar-athlete getting his degree and give the school incentive to see that the young man worked to that end."

Stan Isaacs, columnist

"The question for today is: Will the media—the newspapers, magazines and TV—ever get beyond the scoops about the details and identities of alleged fixers and deal with the conditions in college basketball that bring about these periodic scandals?

"I'd like to see particular questions addressed to the coaches, to the athletic directors and to the presidents of schools accused of dumping. These questions should be addressed as well to the president of any school that has been involved with recruiting and transcript violations.

"Questions like these:

"Did the students involved in the scandals belong in school as bona fide students? Did they come in without any special concessions made to them because they were athletes? Did they carry workloads equivalent to those of nonathletes? Did they do the schoolwork required of them? Did they receive legitimate passing grades? Did they graduate?

"Is the school an academic institution or one trying to serve a bigtime entertainment function for the community, for its alumni?"

"Is the school interested in basketball as a campus activity or does it want the glare and publicity that comes from playing in bigtime arenas? Is the school interested in basketball as a student activity or does it want to use the sport as a means of attracting television revenue?"

Joey Meyer, assistant basketball coach DePaul University
Chicago Tribune

"The NCAA has new rules for recruiting that are intended to take pressure off the recruit.

"But, in my opinion, the NCAA should complement that decision by broadening the time a recruit can officially sign with a university. Right now, the rule says April 8. I believe a recruit would benefit from having a chance to sign as early as January.

"The NCAA rules I refer to are those that will make it illegal to visit a recruit from October 1 to the end of his basketball season and from May 15 to August 1. Besides a recruit using one of his six visits, recruiters can make only phone contact during the aforementioned periods.

"The rules are made with a sound basis. Kids should have the opportunity to be involved primarily with the studies and their basketball.

"What I'm suggesting is that an early commitment, giving it significance with a written agreement rather than just verbal, is aimed toward the same end."

Columnary Craft

Reprinted below are excerpts from the writing of selected news columnists commenting pertinently about the decision to play the Division I Men's Basketball Championship despite the assassination attempt on President Reagan. The material is selected because the NCAA News feels it makes a point and discusses a topic that will interest readers. Was it right to play?

Ken Denlinger, The Washington Post

"It would have been an inspiring bit of leadership for NCAA officials to say when they learned of the shooting: 'We are not opening the gym tonight. This is a time for national reflection—and as responsible leaders who value citizenship above all else, we are cancelling the third-place game and postponing the championship game until Tuesday afternoon.'

"This will be a great inconvenience and might cost us an enormous amount of money. But what we're doing simply is right. And if the colleges, at the highest level, do not offer leadership, who will?"

"It would have been the best symbolic act possible, better than ribbons because a lot of people would have lost a lot of time and money. Nobody expected it, because these are Games rather than games, the final scene of a nearly $13 million tournament."

David McCollum, Arkansas Democrat

"For once on Monday night, a major sporting event was viewed in its true perspective.

"The NCAA title game was entertainment. It was relaxation. It was escapism. It was recreation, both literally and symbolically.

"And it wasn't life or death.

"These exercises in fun and games that so many of us are fond of viewing were originated for escapism—before many people in our competitive and media-oriented society began placing them on the same level as Armageddon. They were designed as ointments to temporarily salve the injuries of day-to-day reality.

"With the advent of realism in the movies and the closer link between sports and the whole of society, that sense of escapism many times has been lost. The escape many times hurts more than the reality. . . .

"Considering the potential developments and consequences on that memorable Monday afternoon, Americans had more cause for celebration and good, solid, exciting escapism than grief Monday night."

Dave Anderson, New York Times

"After 11 members of the Israeli Olympic team were slain at Munich in 1972, the late Avery Brundage, then the president of the International Olympic Committee, proclaimed, 'The Games must go on.' Go on they did, to their conclusion. And to their embarrassment.

"Monday night the NCAA and NBC, not necessarily in that order, surrendered to that same heartless philosophy.

"After all, President Reagan was in good condition. Good enough for NBC to collect those several million dollars."

Bob Hammel, Bloomington (Indiana) Herald-Telephone

"It has been surprising to me to read in the last two days the widespread and sometimes vitriolic criticism of the NCAA for going ahead with its basketball finals Monday night, hours after President Reagan was shot. . . .

"The NCAA is asked how it could run the finals of its tournament, although not one critic I have seen has questioned why the rest of Philadelphia went on with the routine of the day . . . why, indeed, the rest of the nation did.

"It's strange that somehow it was blasphemous to let young athletes go ahead with the peak moment in their lives while no one noticed that The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas ran its usual performance on Broadway. As did The Woman of the Year and A Chorus Line and Ain't Misbehavin' and Annie.

"NBC is assailed for running a basketball telecast, Bryant Gumbel disowned his own network and Al McGuire pleaded innocence, though no one said either couldn't forfeit his paycheck that night and walk away if he truly felt business as usual, business as obligated—real or perceived in the extent of that obligation—shouldn't have continued.

"It amazes me that it somehow was wrong for NBC to run basketball but acceptable for ABC and CBS to resume their regular programming at roughly the same time NBC did. No one in Bloomington may be able to confirm it, but ABC says it ran a David Frost special on show business, with special features on Marilyn Monroe (subtitled 'Suicide or Murder?') and Pat Benatar (subtitled 'Hot Queen of Rock') and a John Denver-George Burns special during the time of the basketball telecast. CBS went back to its potent Monday night lineup, with M*A*S*H and Lou Grant, while Indiana played basketball."

Dave Kindred, The Washington Post

"Obviously, the NCAA has set a real cute precedent. If you've got a big game and the President is shot that afternoon, go ahead and play as long as he doesn't die. Some things are too important to put off for a day or two while a nation looks for its soul. Some things are too important to forget about while we wonder if that TV film really came from downtown Washington and not a desert sheikdom.

"Basketball is that important, the NCAA is telling us."

Florida Southern wins

Florida Southern defeated Mount St. Mary's, 73-68, to win the Division II Men's Basketball Championship at the Springfield Civic Center in Springfield, Massachusetts.

The title was Florida Southern's first and marked the 12th consecutive year that a new Division II champion has been crowned. The last back-to-back titles were won by Kentucky Wesleyan in 1968 and 1969.

Florida Southern scored the opening basket and trailed only twice in building a 34-29 first-half lead. The Moccasins outscored Mount St. Mary's by 11-2 in the first four minutes of the second half to take a comfortable 45-31 lead.

Mount St. Mary's cut the margin to one point with four minutes remaining, but Florida Southern turned back the Mountaineers' charge with key free-throw shooting down the stretch.

Published scouting service

Case No. 198

Situation: An institution's athletic department wishes to subscribe to a periodic, regularly published scouting service pertaining to prospective student-athletes. This service takes the form of a printed report relating athletic and/or academic qualifications of prospects. (126)

Question: May an institution or one of its athletic department employees pay a fee to subscribe to this service?

Answer: Yes. It is permissible to subscribe to a regularly published scouting service involving prospective student-athletes, provided this service is made available to any institution desiring to subscribe and at the same fee rate for all subscribers. [B 1-5-(b)]

Reimbursement of representatives—recruiting

Case No. 199

Situation: A representative of an institution's athletic interests transports a prospective student-athlete to visit the campus. (168)

Football TV Committee

Negotiation plans are drafted

The NCAA Football Television Committee has completed drafting principles for negotiating the next Football Television Plan and is prepared to submit the principles to the membership for approval.

The negotiating principles were completed at the committee's March meeting in Philadelphia.

The Football Television Committee was to discuss the document during a mid-April conference call. The NCAA Council then will evaluate the principles at its April 25-27 meeting in Kansas City and determine whether to authorize a referendum.

When the principles are submitted to the membership, each institution will be allowed approximately three weeks to cast its vote. All materials will be sent to the chief executive officer, the faculty athletic representative and the director of athletics of each member, with the chief executive officer receiving the ballot with which the institution's vote will be cast.

After the ballots are returned, the Football Television Committee will meet and provide final guidance to the negotiating subcommittee.

After that session, the subcommittee then will enter negotiations with the current carrying network, ABC. Following those negotiations, the subcommittee would negotiate with other companies for rights to other portions of college football television. The principles stipulate that NCAA football should be carried by two national networks on Saturday afternoons and that a supplementary package should be explored for some other time during the week.

The Football Television Committee's next meeting will be May 13-14 in Kansas City.

Record exposure for tournament

NBC Sports, NCAA Productions, the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network and Jim Host and Associates provided record television and radio exposure for the 1981 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

NBC Sports, which has held exclusive television rights to the event since 1969, televised 23 of 48 games played in the tournament in the final year of its contract. NBC's coverage included national double-headers of the four regional final games (March 21 and 22), a national doubleheader of the two national semifinal games (March 28) and prime-time presentation of the March 30 national finals between Indiana and North Carolina. NBC Sports also regionally telecast 16 second-round contests March 14 and 15.

In addition to those games, NCAA Productions provided coverage for games not televised by NBC Sports for the fifth consecutive year. NCAA Productions coverage included 16 first-round games (March 12 and 13), eight regional semifinal games (March 19 and 20) and the national third-place game (March 30).

ESPN also provided nationwide cable television coverage for all 25 games produced by NCAA Productions, although it did not carry games in the markets previously sold to over-the-air stations by NCAA Productions. ESPN carried 10 live telecasts, while the other 15 contests were broadcast within 24 hours of tipoff.

NCAA Productions negotiated regional television rights to a record 159 stations for the 25 games it produced. The heaviest demand was for the semifinals of the East regional from Atlanta, which featured Virginia vs. Tennessee (16 stations) and Brigham Young vs. Notre Dame (14 stations). The Midwest regional semifinal game between LSU and Arkansas from New Orleans was aired on 16 stations. The West regional semifinal contest from Salt Lake City involving Kansas State and Illinois was carried by 12 stations, while the Mideast regional semifinal from Bloomington, Indiana, featuring Indiana and Alabama-Birmingham was aired on 11 stations.

Jim Host and Associates of Lexington, Kentucky, which owns exclusive radio rights for the championship, teamed with NBC Radio to broadcast the Final Four games from Philadelphia over a record network of 409 stations, the largest network ever assembled for a sporting event. In addition, more than 400 stations overseas carried the broadcasts through the facilities of the American Forces Network. Host and Associates also coordinated radio rights for stations broadcasting all first- and second-round competition, plus regional action.

Athletics self-study booklet available

The "Evaluation of Intercollegiate Athletic Programs: A Suggested Guide for the Process of Self-Study" has been completed and is available from the NCAA national office.

Upon request, member institutions will receive the self-study guide at no cost. Non-members may purchase the publication at $4 per copy (which includes handling and postage).

At the 75th annual NCAA Convention in January, the membership approved a resolution specifying that the NCAA shall "encourage each of its member institutions to engage in a periodic self-study and evaluation of its intercollegiate programs and . . . make available to any member, upon request, a recommended guide for use in that endeavor."

The study guide treats the following aspects of an intercollegiate athletics program: philosophy and purpose, organization and administration (control), finances, personnel, the student-athlete, facilities and planning for the future.

As stated in the introduction to the guide, the method suggested is that of "inquiry"—asking questions rather than setting forth quantitative directives and recommendations. This approach is recommended in view of the "very wide variety of athletic programs" at the nation's colleges and universities, which prevents application of a single set of criteria or specific measures to all institutions.

In sending the regional accrediting agencies a complimentary copy of the study, NCAA President James Frank said, "I believe the work of the committee represents an important and constructive contribution to intercollegiate athletic management."

The document was developed by the NCAA Special Committee on Institutional Self-Study of Athletics. The members of the committee were Francis W. Bonner, Furman University, chair; Robert F. Ray, University of Iowa, and the late Stanley J. Marshall, South Dakota State University.

NCAA, AIAW to meet April 30

Representatives of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women and the NCAA will meet April 30 in Chicago to comply with the terms of a resolution adopted by the NCAA membership in January.

The resolution (Proposal No. 71), almost identical to one adopted by the AIAW delegate assembly earlier in January, called for the NCAA Council to issue a formal invitation to AIAW to discuss a mutually agreeable unified governing structure.

Representing the NCAA at the meeting will be President James Frank, Lincoln University (Missouri); Secretary-Treasurer John L. Toner, University of Connecticut; and Council members Judith R. Holland, University of California, Los Angeles; Edward W. Malan, Pomona-Pitzer Colleges, and Gwendolyn Norrell, Michigan State University.

Women's championships

semifinal games will be played on the campus of one of the competing institutions. Site preference will be given to the highest-seeded team in each region, as approved by the NCAA Field Hockey Committee. The championship game will be played at a predetermined site.

3. Regions. For the purpose of selecting teams to participate in the NCAA Division II Field Hockey Championship, the committee divided the country into four regions. Each region was determined on the basis of the total number of NCAA member institutions that sponsor women's intercollegiate field hockey in Division II (54) and the strength of the sport throughout the country. The four regions are Northeast, Atlantic, Great Lakes and West.

4. Championship format. The NCAA Division II Field Hockey Championship provides for a field of eight teams. (However, the size of the field may change, contingent upon the number of institutions that declare their intention to compete in the championship.) Each of the four regions will be awarded one berth; the remaining four teams will be selected at large.

5. Regional advisory committees. The committee established four regional advisory committees to assist in ranking, selecting and seeding teams in the championship. In addition, these committees will assist the NCAA Division II Field Hockey Committee in compiling weekly reports and participate in biweekly conference calls for the purpose of conducting national polls throughout the season. The regional advisory committee chairs are: Northeast—to be determined; Atlantic—to be determined; Great Lakes—to be determined; West—Margaret A. Peterson, University of North Dakota.

6. Team selection. Teams will be selected by the committee on the basis of the following criteria (not in preferential order): (1) won-lost record, (2) strength of schedule, (3) reference to an objective statistical tool and (4) eligibility of student-athletes for postseason competition.

The committee will select and seed teams during a conference call Sunday, November 8. Teams will be notified of their selection no later than Monday, November 9.

7. Availability questionnaire. By September 10, an availability questionnaire will be sent to the director of athletics of each NCAA member institution that sponsors women's intercollegiate field hockey in Division II. The director of athletics will indicate the institution's willingness to participate in the championship if selected and will list the names of the players not eligible for post-season competition. The questionnaire must be returned postmarked no later than October 1, even if the institution does not wish to compete.

8. Squad size. All participating teams are limited to a traveling party of 20, with a limit of 16 players in uniform for any one contest.

9. Rules. The 1981 NCAA Division II Field Hockey Championship will be conducted according to the United States Field Hockey Association Rules with the following adopted collegiate rules: (1) lift on a push-in, (2) any legal stroke on a free hit, (3) four substitutes and (4) time out for substitutions.

1981 Division III Women's Field Hockey

Automatic qualification for women's championships

Each governing sports committee may recommend annually to the Executive Committee those conferences which should receive automatic qualification for their teams or individual student-athletes into NCAA meets or tournaments. Prior to recommending that a conference receive automatic qualification, a governing sports committee shall ensure that the conference:

1. Is an allied member of the Association. Effective August 1, 1985, the conference also must have been an allied member of the Association for two consecutive academic years and must have conducted competition in the sport in question for two consecutive years at the time of its application for automatic qualification.

2. Is composed of at least six members which sponsor the sport on a varsity intercollegiate basis in the division in which automatic qualification is sought.

3. Conducts conference competition in the sport in question and determines the conference champion in that sport either by regular, in-season conference competition or a postseason meet or tournament.

4. Effective August 1, 1985, maintains and actively enforces compliance with eligibility rules at least as stringent as those of NCAA Bylaw 5.

5. Competition in the applicable sport is of sufficient quality to warrant automatic qualification.

6. Assures that no fewer than six of its member institutions have agreed to participate in the appropriate NCAA championship. Effective August 1, 1985, all conference member institutions must have agreed to participate in the appropriate NCAA championship unless an institution or an individual student-athlete elects not to participate in any postseason competition in that sport.

The above requirements for automatic qualification in NCAA-sponsored championships for women constitute modifications of NCAA Executive Regulation 2-6 and were approved by the Executive Committee in a telephone conference March 31, 1981.
