Four regional sites in May

Women's rules to be explained

Four regional meetings designed to inform administrators and coaches in women's athletics of NCAA rules and procedures have been scheduled in early May.

The NCAA officers approved the series of meetings after noting that numerous member institutions have submitted inquiries to the NCAA national office regarding the application of various regulations and procedures to their women's athletics programs.

"Institutions are taking advantage of the 1981-to-1985 period provided in the NCAA governance plan to learn about the Association's activities, procedures and rules before deciding whether to affiliate their women's programs with the NCAA by 1985," President James Frank and Secretary-Treasurer John L. Toner said.

"While the national office staff has attempted to answer all inquiries as they arose and to inform the membership of various procedures and rules applications in the NCAA News, it now appears that we can offer a more effective service to interested member institutions by conducting regional meetings to explain and answer questions regarding these matters in person," the officers said.

The meetings have been scheduled as follows:

Wednesday, May 5—Midwest (NCAA Districts 4 and 5), Hyatt Regency O'Hare, Chicago, Illinois.

Friday, May 7—East (Districts 1 and 2), Hyatt-Cherry Hill, Cherry Hill, New Jersey.

Monday, May 10—South (District 3), Holiday Inn-Airport South, Atlanta, Georgia.

Tuesday, May 11—West (Districts 6, 7 and 8), Stouffer's Denver Inn, Denver, Colorado.

Each meeting will be a one-day session from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The meetings will be conducted by Ruth M. Berkey, assistant executive director and director of women's championships, and Stephen R. Morgan, director of legislative services. Patricia E. Bork, Cynthia L. Smith and Patricia W. Wall, assistant directors of championships, will participate in some of the meetings instead of Berkey.

"We urge primary women athletic administrators and head coaches of women's sports to consider attending the meeting in their area," the officers said. Any other interested institutional or conference personnel also are welcome to attend, and persons may attend any of the four meetings.

The officers also emphasized that attendance at the meetings is voluntary and at the expense of the institution or individual. The NCAA will provide a buffet luncheon at each site.

Included in an April 12 mailing to the membership was a form to be used in informing the national office of plans to attend the meeting. That form also provided an opportunity for the membership to suggest topics or questions to be discussed at the meetings.

"We know that many people working in women's athletics have questions about NCAA legislation dealing with recruiting, financial aid and transfers, as well as championships procedures," Berkey said. "We hope they also will take this opportunity to present other matters that they would like to have explained."

ABC, CBS announce TV dates

ABC-TV and CBS-TV, which have purchased the rights to the 1982-85 NCAA Football Television Plan, have announced eight national telecasts for the 1982 college football season.

Both networks will begin their 1982 coverage with week-day, prime-time telecasts. ABC will carry defending national champion Clemson against Georgia Monday, September 6. CBS will follow with North Carolina at Pittsburgh Thursday, September 9.

Under the terms of the $263.5 million package, two networks will own the rights to NCAA football for the first time in history. During the 1982 season, each network plans to carry eight national games and six regional exposures.

The two networks also announced an agreement dividing 12 control dates. ABC will have first choice of games on September 11, October 23, October 30, November 13, November 20 and a second game to be aired on November 26 along with CBS's coverage of Oklahoma vs. Nebraska. CBS will have control dates on September 18 (afternoon), September 25, October 2, October 9, October 16 and November 6.

In addition to the network coverage, a two-year supplementary series will be cablecast by Turner Broadcasting System, Inc. Turner will carry live 19 national games this fall. The games will not conflict with the network exposures.

Following are the announced national telecasts, with Eastern-time kickoffs in parentheses, that will be carried by the two networks:

ABC

September 6 (9:05 p.m.)—Clemson at Georgia
September 18 (TBA, night game)—Michigan at Notre Dame
November 27 (12:30 p.m.)—Alabama vs. Auburn
December 4 (3:50 p.m.)—Texas at Arkansas

CBS

September 9 (TBA, night game)—North Carolina at Pittsburgh
November 26 (2:45 p.m.)—Oklahoma at Nebraska
November 27 (3:50 p.m.)—Notre Dame at Southern California
December 4 (12:30 p.m.)—Army vs. Navy.

North Carolina's James Worthy takes a mammoth leap toward the basket in the Tar Heels' 63-62 victory over Georgetown for the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship. Worthy was named the most outstanding player for the event. See the results of this and other championship competition beginning on page four.

Basketball championship draws second-highest rating

Despite strong head-to-head competition with the Academy Awards telecast, the 1982 Division I Men's Basketball Championship received the second-highest television rating in the history of the final.

The March 29 championship game in New Orleans, in which North Carolina edged Georgetown, 63-62, received a 21.5-percent rating and an audience share of 30. The 21.5-percent rating represents approximately 17.5 million homes tuned into the live telecast carried by CBS-TV. (The rating is a percentage of possible television homes viewing the program, while the audience share is a percentage of nation's sets in use viewing the program.)

The only final to receive a higher rating was the 1979 championship between Michigan State and Indiana State, which was carried by NBC-TV and had a 24.1-percent rating. Last year's Indiana-North Carolina final, also carried by NBC, drew a 20.7 rating.

"We are extremely pleased with the rating," said Kevin O'Malley, CBS vice-president of program planning and development. "We feel it is an outstanding rating considering the tough counterpart programming from the Oscars. It is an excellent example of the popularity of college basketball."

In the past, the telecast of the final has run over by a few minutes into the Oscar presentations. Because of scheduling changes, the two broadcasts overlapped this year for more than an hour.

Including four late-night, early-round games, CBS televised 16 games during the 1982 tournament, five more than last year. The overall rating for all 16 telecasts was 9.9 percent, while the rating improved to 11.3 percent without the late-night telecasts.

Last year's rating for 11 telecasts, none of which was late-night, was 11.1 percent. Ratings also were up this year for Saturday telecasts (seven this year and six in 1981, including the semifinals), Sunday telecasts (four each year) and total weekend broadcasts.

National television exposure of the championship began in 1969. In moving into the No. 2 spot, this year's final passed the 21.3-percent rating received by the 1975 Kentucky-UCLA championship.

Discipline a misunderstood term

"Discipline. You know, that's the most misunderstood word there is. We think of it in terms of punishment. I remember when I was a boy, my mother would always say, 'When your father gets home, he's going to discipline you.' It meant I was in trouble.

"That's not what it means. It means sticking to a plan, a philosophy, then working hard."

John Thompson, basketball coach

"Don't you protect your children from things that would embarrass them or hurt them? To those people who say, 'Expose them to me so they'll know what life is all about,' I say, 'Bull. . . . I don't believe in this school of hard knocks. You don't teach a kid to swim by throwing him in the rapids.'"

Tom Milkovich, assistant wrestling coach
Iowa State University
Des Moines Register

"I think we're (wrestling coaches) defeating ourselves with a lot of changes. We're tampering with what made the sport good. We should take a lesson from football and basketball. They don't change their rules. A touchdown is still worth six points and a basket is still worth two points."

Richard Sharvy, professor of philosophy
University of Miami
The Miami Herald

"We can hope for renewal of genuinely amateur college athletics, as well as better and more serious universities, if we take the following steps:

"Abolish so-called 'athletic scholarships' and award scholarships on the basis of scholarship.

"Abolish other perks for student-athletes, such as special dormitories, private tutors, special food, etc.

"Abolish Mickey Mouse courses with no intellectual demands that have been the favorites of many professional student-athletes.

"Create rules that have some teeth to prohibit students who are not truly in good academic standing from representing their schools in athletic competition. Specifically, prohibit participation of athletes whose grade-point average is below a C (2.0).

"I do not begrudge professional athletes and other entertainers their huge salaries. I do want such things tossed out of universities, where they just do not belong and where they are a destructive and demoralizing cancer."

Jerry Tarkanian, basketball coach
University of Nevada, Las Vegas

"Every team that gets in the play-offs should have to take a polygraph test. That would really be interesting. I'm just throwing this out off the top of my head, but I like the idea."

Bill Bradley, United States senator
Chicago Tribune

"I have long felt that college athletic programs simply should operate on two different tracks, semipro and amateur. Colleges that elected to go the semipro route would accept and pay the star athletes who are uninterested in academics but eye careers as professionals.

"I favor there being some semipro programs because colleges should not have to make the pretense that all athletes are in college to gain an education when, obviously, many of them are not. In such semipro programs, the colleges would not have to compromise their academic ideals. The athletes would not have to pretend that their basic interest was a quality education."

Jerry Claiborne, football coach
University of Kentucky
Louisville Courier-Journal

"My feeling about spring practice has never changed. It is important. The rule doesn't say you have to have it, so any of those coaches who say they don't get anything out of it can just drop it. It says you can conduct 20 workouts in 36 days, but it doesn't force you to."

Francis W. Bonner, vice-president and provost
Furman University
Eugene Register-Guard

"I agree that the athlete's college expenses should be provided—if the school can afford it. But I do not advocate putting him on salary, regardless of the benefit his skills may bring to the school's coffers.

"My basic premise is simply that we should try hard to reverse the trend which is driving college athletics further toward professionalism. I would like to see the game returned to the students, to young men and women who want to get an education and, while doing so, enjoy the immense benefits that can be derived from competition on the playing field or court."

"If you have a kid for four years and he doesn't get a degree, that's not good. They're cheating the kid academically. . . . Then you really are kind of a pro farm team."

Coaches shun union idea

By George White
Houston Chronicle

Rice is playing the University of Houston in a late-season football game which will decide the Cotton Bowl representative. Owls' ball, third-and-two, at the Cougar eight-yard line.

The Rice quarterback takes the snap and pivots to hand off. The running back has faked a step to the right, then planted a foot and surged back toward the middle to accept the handoff.

Suddenly he stomps on the brakes and skids to a teetering stop. Up in front of him, something very strange is taking place. The offensive line, instead of snarling and grappling with the red shirts, is standing there like seven mannequins.

And over in the red uniforms, the Cougar linebackers are walking off the field.

Obviously, the union is here. The Association of College Athletic Laborers has called its first strike, a selective action in this game involving only linemen and linebackers.

Pure silliness, of course. But those are the kind of scenarios that come to mind when you dwell on Ed Garvey's idea of unionizing the college players.

Garvey is the executive director of the National Football League Players Association. Speaking at a seminar recently in Houston, he said he definitely thinks a college players' union will be organized soon. He isn't the first to advance the idea. Several others have advocated the unionization in recent months.

Naturally, that isn't the most welcome of news to college coaches who already have been bombarded with suggestions that their players be tendered a regular salary. Apparently touching off this rash of novel ideas was a recent report that the NCAA will receive ($263.5) million from the networks in the latest television contract.

Bill Yeoman of the University of Houston and Rice's Ray Albarn addressed the issue recently with a similar three-point stance: nonsense, hogwash and no way.

"My initial reaction when I first heard that story was this: Professional athletics is the pits, and now they're trying to throw the pits over to the young people," said Yeoman.

"Now, please understand that there are a lot of fine people in professional athletics, but the system itself is terrible. And if something like this (college unionization) ever went through, our system would be every bit as terrible as the pros' is."

Garvey and others who have proposed the unionization have emphasized that college players risk their future professional careers every time they step on the field to play for old State U. If they are injured, the argument goes, there is no organization to look after their welfare in the years when they could be earning a professional salary.

That contention in particular riles both coaches since it suggests that college football is merely a kindergarten for the pros, an incubator for little Dallas Cowboys.

"In theory, and ideally, college football scholarships were originated for one purpose only: to give an athlete an education," contends Albarn.

"In no way do we owe a college player a professional athletic career. We do owe him the opportunity to secure the best education possible. If that education leads to an eventual future in athletics, or science or whatever, so be it."

"If a kid gets hurt," says Yeoman, "it doesn't affect one iota our promise to him when he came to school here. He still maintains his scholarship and therefore his access to an education. The University of Houston, Rice and Texas Southern are here to contribute to the community in the way of an education. That's what we give to the city, not a breeding ground for professional athletics."

And about the concept of salaried college players?

"To begin with, someone would have an awfully difficult time deciding how to structure the pay scale," Albarn said.

"Are you going to pay a player according to what he contributes to the university? If so, some guys would be paying us."

Yeoman says research has established that a full-tuition scholarship at UH is worth approximately $400 a month. Obviously, it would be worth more at Rice, which is a private university.

"That scholarship is just like my walking up to a youngster every month and handing him a check for $400," Yeoman said. "We don't pay them in dollars, but in addition to a $400 value, he's getting an exposure to an excellent education."

He's also getting an exposure, reminds Albarn, to invaluable business contacts. "If a player makes a little bit of a name for himself, that will open all kinds of doors for him when he leaves here. There aren't many better business introductions than for a person to have already established a reputation as a college football player.

"I don't know how you could place a value on an intangible like

Committee recommends satisfactory-progress guidelines

The NCAA Academic Testing and Requirements Committee has submitted recommendations to the Council regarding situations that may arise in applying the satisfactory-progress rule.

Council-sponsored legislation at the 1981 Convention established the first national policy requiring student-athletes to make satisfactory progress toward a degree.

The first application of the satisfactory-progress rule will be for the 1982-83 academic year based on performance during 1981-82. Under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6), a student-athlete must complete an average of 12 hours each term or 24 semester hours between seasons of competition. However, these requirements apply only to student-athletes who first enrolled last fall.

The committee's recommendations are in response to the Council's directive for policy interpretations regarding remedial credit, repeated classes, incomplete courses, credit by examination, midyear enrollment, nonrecruited and non-participating athletes and injuries. The recommendations:

Remedial or tutorial classes may be used to maintain satisfactory progress only if the institution considers them to be prerequisites for taking acceptable degree-credit courses and gives those classes the same weight as others at the institution in determining the individual's status as a full-time student.

Courses in which incomplete grades have been replaced by an acceptable grade or courses that are repeated due to an unsatisfactory initial grade may be utilized only once in meeting satisfactory progress.

Credit by examination may be utilized if the institution offers as acceptable degree credit the subject for which the examination is an alternative.

Satisfactory progress may be prorated at 12 units per term of attendance during the initial regular academic year (excluding summer terms) for students entering at the beginning of the second semester or second or third quarter.

The committee also recommended an initial waiver for a student-athlete who has been enrolled for at least one academic year but was not recruited, does not receive any athletically related financial aid and has not participated in a sport during his enrollment.

The committee also reviewed situations in which injuries or other conditions force a student to either drop courses or drop out of school for a term. However, the committee did not submit a recommendation.

Team coverage tradeoffs among networks approved

A method of trading appearances was one of a number of actions approved by the NCAA Football Television Committee during its meeting March 28-29 in New Orleans, Louisiana.

Under the terms of the 1982-85 Football Television Plan, college football games will be carried live by ABC-TV and CBS-TV. Each NCAA member institution may appear a maximum of three times on any one network in either two-year period of the plan.

The plan of trading appearances will allow a given network to trade its rights to an appearance of a particular institution to the other network. For example, if CBS held the rights to a particular game under the terms of the plan but already had carried three appearances by a team involved, CBS could trade for an appearance from ABC, provided ABC had not carried either team three times. In turn, ABC would receive the rights to a fourth appearance of another institution.

"The committee thought this concept would be beneficial, especially during the second year of the plan when the process of selecting games becomes more difficult because of the appearance restrictions," said Wiles Hallock, Football Television Committee chair. "This should give the networks more flexibility and provide the membership with greater exposure opportunities."

The committee also approved a new format for higher education promotional messages. All games on both networks and the Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., which has purchased the rights to a new supplementary series, will have higher education messages of 90 seconds. This will increase the number of such messages from 13 last year to 47 in 1982.

Each institution also will receive a 30-second spot for each appearance, regardless of whether it is appearing on a national or regional telecast. Under the old format, institutions received a 30-second spot on national telecasts and a 60-second spot on a regional game. However, only one spot a year was permitted on regional appearances.

In two other actions, the committee voted to increase rights fee for Divisions II and III telecasts by the same percentage that regional rights fees increase from 1981 on the network series. This percentage will be established after the networks select games and establish average prices for 1982. The committee also voted to allow the use of a beer commercial in the "additional" 27th commercial slot, which may be used only when the length of a game exceeds three hours, five minutes.

CBS and ABC both announced plans to conduct pre-season promotional tours similar to the tour sponsored by the NCAA and ABC the past seven years. Both networks also will air preseason shows August 29, and both have announced plans to telecast eight national and six regional exposures in 1982.

The committee also reviewed the supplementary series with Turner representatives. Turner, which bought the two-year series for nearly $17.7 million, will cablecast live 19 games in 1982. The games will start at 8 p.m. Eastern time.

Turner officials informed the committee that 80 million American homes are now wired for cable television and that this number is growing at a rate of 200,000 a month. Turner currently reaches 21 million homes and should reach 23 to 24 million homes by the beginning of football season.

The next meeting of the Football Television Committee will be July 20-22 in Keystone, Colorado.

Illinois, Longmont found in compliance

The University of Illinois, Champaign, and Longwood College have received word that their intercollegiate athletic programs are in compliance with Title IX.

The Office for Civil Rights of the U.S. Department of Education notified Illinois March 31 of its compliance. Title IX prohibits discrimination by sex in education programs and activities that receive Federal funds.

In a letter to Illinois Chancellor John E. Cribbet, OCR Regional Director Kenneth A. Mines said, "We congratulate the University of Illinois for excellence in achievement of compliance with Title IX in the award of athletic financial assistance. We are pleased that the university is implementing plans for the intercollegiate athletic program which will ensure continuing compliance."

Karol Kahrs, Illinois assistant director of athletics, said OCR found equivalency in 11 of the 13 programs it examined. The institution was among the first 80 colleges and universities selected for Title IX compliance reviews in sports. OCR investigators visited the campus in March 1981, interviewing about 100 administrators, coaches and student-athletes and inspecting facilities.

The Longwood case involved an allegation of sex discrimination against men. Former men's athletic director and basketball coach Ron Bash charged that the college discriminated against male athletes in the provision of athletic financial assistance and practice and competitive facilities.

Committee modifies jump-ball rule

The NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee has modified the jump-ball rule that was adopted last year to stipulate that the defensive team will be awarded the ball out-of-bounds in all closely guarded, five-second situations.

Edward S. Steitz, secretary-rules editor of the committee and director of athletics at Springfield College, said the rest of the rule—which calls for jump balls to begin the game and any overtime periods, with alternate possessions on held-ball situations thereafter—remains intact.

"The committee believed that this addresses the major objection to the rule," Steitz said. "Our surveys and experimentation in the Pacific-10 Conference indicated this is an appropriate revision."

The committee also discussed at length the delay or lack-of-action games that occurred during the 1981-82 season. Addressing this problem, the committee voted to cut the warning period for lack of action from 10 to five seconds.

"By cutting the warning period in half, the committee hopes to minimize the lack of activity," Steitz said.

The committee also urged NCAA allied conferences to experiment and research a number of topics, including three-point field goals from varying distances; 30-, 45- and 60-second shot clocks, and reducing the front-court area. The committee established specific guidelines for research experiments and asked allied conferences to obtain authorization from the committee for experimentation.

The committee also discussed more stringent safety requirements for movable rims, emphasis on illegal post play, airborne charge/block fouls and a defensive player's right to rise vertically from his position.

David Seifert changes posts

David P. Seifert, a member of the NCAA staff since 1977, has returned to the publishing department as a publications editor.

Seifert was an NCAA publications editor for two years before serving as assistant director of public relations and promotion in the communications department and then as executive assistant in the general administration department.

He replaces Timothy D. Schmad, who resigned after 2½ years to become director of public relations at Ak-Sar-Ben, an Omaha, Nebraska, race track and entertainment complex.

Tar Heels win thriller

In a contest widely hailed as the best championship game in recent history, North Carolina edged Georgetown, 63-62, to win the Division I Men's Basketball Championship in New Orleans.

The Tar Heels, a 13-point loser to Indiana in last year's final, were making their ninth appearance in the Final Four (they won the title in 1957) and their sixth under head coach Dean Smith. Georgetown had made only one previous appearance in the Final Four, losing to Wyoming in the 1943 title game.

Both teams survived tight semifinal matches. North Carolina downed Houston, 68-63, while Georgetown overcame Louisville, 50-46, before a Superdome crowd of 61,612, the largest crowd ever to see a college basketball game.

Georgetown's early 12-6 lead was the biggest of the game. Carolina cut that deficit to one at half time and pulled out to a three-point lead early in the second half, only to see the Hoyas go back in front by four, 47-43, with 12:51 remaining.

Two slam dunks by junior forward James Worthy put the Tar Heels ahead, 54-53, with 8:37 left. The teams traded baskets until freshman Michael Jordan hit a clutch 16-footer from the left wing with 32 seconds to go, giving Carolina a 63-62 margin that stood up despite a flurry of activity that included a Georgetown turnover and two missed free throws by Worthy.

Worthy earned most of the accolades. His 28-point performance (13 of 17 from the field), coupled with a 14-point game against Houston, earned him the tournament's outstanding player award. Teammates Jordan and Sam Perkins, who hit for 25 points against Houston, joined Worthy on the all-tournament team, along with Georgetown's Eric Floyd and Pat Ewing.

North Carolina finished the season with a 32-2 record. Georgetown, under head coach John Thompson, finished with a 30-7 record.

Lady Techsters battle back

Unfazed by an early 16-8 deficit, Louisiana Tech roared back to capture a 76-62 victory over Cheyney State and win the first NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship.

The top-rated Lady Techsters pulled to 22-22 with 6:44 left in the first half and then rattled off 12 consecutive points to take command. The lead widened to 18 points in the second half as Louisiana Tech won its second straight national title (it won the AIAW crown last year) before a sellout crowd of 9,531 in The Scope in Norfolk, Virginia.

Tech, which finished the season with a 35-1 record, rolled through its opposition in the tournament. Coach Sonja Hogg's squad won its five championship contests by a total of 158 points (an average margin of 31.6 points), with only Cheyney State coming within shouting distance.

Cheyney State, 28 3 for the year, advanced to the final with a 76-66 win over Maryland. Louisiana Tech advanced with a 69-46 semifinal win over Tennessee.

Despite its early success against the Lady Techsters, Cheyney State was worn down by Tech's inside punch of Janice Lawrence (20 points), Pam Kelly (14 points) and Debra Rodman (14 points off the bench). Valerie Walker kept the Lady Wolves in the contest with 20 points.

Joining Kelly, Lawrence and Walker on the all-tournament team were Tech point guard Kim Mulkey and Cheyney State forward Yolanda Laney. Lawrence, who had 15 points in the semifinal win, was named the tournament's outstanding player.

Wayne State women No. 1

Wayne State swept through round-robin competition with a 7-0 mark to win the first National Collegiate Women's Fencing Championships. One week earlier, Wayne State captured the men's title.

Gina Farkashazy and Janet Lange led the Tartars as they finished third and fourth, respectively, in the individual overall standings.

Top honors went to Joy Ellingson of San Jose State, the host institution. Ellingson and Laurie Clark (sixth-place finisher) helped the Lady Spartans to a second-place finish.

Team results: 1. Wayne State, 7-0; 2. San Jose State, 6-1; 3. Ohio State, 5-2; 4. North Carolina, 4-3; 5. Northridge State, 3-4; 6. Notre Dame, 2-5; 7. Stevens Tech, 1-6; 8. Clemson, 0-7.

Individual results: 1. Joy Ellingson, San Jose State; 2. Ruth Botengen, Northridge State; 3. Gina Farkashazy, Wayne State; 4. Janet Lange, Wayne State; 5. Coreen Richter, Ohio State; 6. Laurie Clark, San Jose State.

Husker gymnasts repeat

UCLA's Peter Vidmar upset Nebraska's Jim Hartung in the all-around, but there were no surprises in the team competition as the favored Cornhuskers registered their fourth straight title at the NCAA Division I Men's Gymnastics Championships.

Vidmar edged Hartung, 116.30-115.80, to deny Hartung a third straight all-around crown and also a shot at equalling Joe Giallombardo's 42-year-old record of seven career titles. The Nebraska senior did manage a co-championship on the rings, but that left him one victory short of the record.

The Cornhuskers easily outdistanced UCLA in the team competition. Performing before a home-town crowd in Lincoln, coach Francis Allen's squad ran up a 285.80 total to UCLA's 281.05. Penn State finished third at 276.65.

UCLA's Vidmar also took an individual title on the pommel horse with a strong 9.90 performance. Hartung's teammates Steve Elliott and Jim Mikus tied for first in the floor exercise, and Nebraska's Phil Cahoy won on the parallel bars for the third straight year.

California claimed a pair of individual titles, with Randall Wickstrom winning the vault and Bill Paul edging Vidmar on the horizontal bar. The other individual winner in the meet was UCLA's Alex Schwartz, who shared honors on the rings with Hartung. Hartung had won the rings competition the past two years.

Individual winners: All-around—Peter Vidmar, UCLA, 116.30; Vault—Randall Wickstrom, California, 9.80; Rings—Alex Schwartz, UCLA, and Jim Hartung, Nebraska, 9.75; Horizontal bar—Bill Paul, California, 9.80; Pommel horse—Vidmar, UCLA, 9.90; Parallel bars—Phil Cahoy, Nebraska, 9.80; Floor exercise—Steve Elliott, Nebraska, and Jim Mikus, Nebraska, 9.70.

Team results: 1. Nebraska, 285.80; 2. UCLA, 281.05; 3. Penn State, 276.65.

Utes meet expectations

Led by freshman Sue Stednitz's surprise win in the all-around, host Utah won the inaugural NCAA Division I Women's Gymnastics Championships.

Competing before their home-town fans in Salt Lake City, the Utes were solid favorites. Stednitz's victory, however, surprised most observers. Her 37.20 total edged teammate Christa Canary (37.10) for the all-around title and triggered Utah to a 148.60-144.15 margin over Fullerton State.

Stednitz was a model of consistency, with a fourth-place finish on the balance beam, a tie for fourth in the vault and a fifth in floor exercise. A 12th-place finish on the uneven bars kept her margin from being wider.

Utah, last year's AIAW champion, dominated the team competition, taking top honors in all four events. The Utes got wins from Elaine Alfano in vaulting and Stednitz on the beam. Other individual winners were Lisa Shirk, Pittsburgh, uneven bars, and Mary Ayotte-Law, Oregon State, floor exercise.

The championships drew a two-day paid crowd of 14,205.

Individual winners: All-around—Sue Stednitz, Utah, 37.20; Vault—Elaine Alfano, Utah, 18.90; Uneven bars—Lisa Shirk, Pittsburgh, 19.00; Balance beam—Sue Stednitz, Utah, 18.70; Floor exercise—Mary Ayotte-Law, Oregon State, 18.85.

Team results: 1. Utah, 148.60; 2. Fullerton State, 144.15; 3. Penn State, 143.10.

Oshkosh defends title

An outstanding performance by Wisconsin-Oshkosh's Dan Nekich highlighted the 1982 NCAA Division II Men's Gymnastics Championships in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Nekich captured four individual titles, including the all-around crown for the second straight year, as he led the Titans to their third straight team championship. Nekich's haul of four firsts was one short of the meet record.

Wisconsin-Oshkosh topped runner-up East Stroudsburg State, 216.05-211.20, while host Springfield was third with a 208.95 total. The three team titles tie the Titans with Southern Connecticut State and Fullerton State, both now in Division I, for the most championships in Division II history.

Nekich bettered California-Davis' Chuck Gaylord, 55.50-54.35, in the all-around and then went on to win the pommel horse, parallel bars and horizontal bars.

Another Titan, Mickey Smith, had the meet's top mark with a 9.80 in the vault. Franklin Winstead, East Stroudsburg State, who shared the floor-exercise title last year, took the crown outright this winter. Springfield's Jeff Coelho turned in a solid 9.75 to win the rings.

Individual winners: All-around—Dan Nekich, Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 55.50; Floor exercise—Franklin Winstead, East Stroudsburg State, 9.30; Pommel horse—Nekich, Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 9.50; Rings—Jeff Coelho, Springfield, 9.75; Vault—Mickey Smith, Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 9.80; Parallel bars—Nekich, Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 9.15; Horizontal bar—Nekich, Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 9.60.

Team results: 1. Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 216.05; 2. East Stroudsburg State, 211.20; 3. Springfield, 208.95.

Kim Gardner, Northridge State

Northridge State triumphs

Competing in a national gymnastics tournament for the first time in its history, Northridge State was a convincing winner in the inaugural NCAA Division II Women's Gymnastics Championships.

The Matadors defeated runner-up Jacksonville State by more than four points in what was expected to be a much closer meet. Another premeet favorite, Southeast Missouri State, finished third.

Northridge State was led by freshman Lynn Barrie, who edged Chico State's Valerie Wauchope, 34.50-34.45, in the all-around. Barrie also won the balance-beam title, and teammate Linda Moody was a winner in the floor exercise.

With Cindy Lazzarino, San Francisco State, winning the vault and Jodi Mabb, Cal Poly-Pomona, capturing the uneven bars, the West Coast swept the individual titles.

The meet was conducted in Springfield, Massachusetts, in conjunction with the NCAA Division II Men's Gymnastics Championships and attracted a capacity crowd of 3,000 for the finals. Springfield College now has served as host for the first women's intercollegiate championships (1969), the first NCAA Division II meets (1968 and 1982) and the first combined championships.

Individual winners: All-around—Lynn Barrie, Northridge State, 34.50; Vault—Cindy Lazzarino, San Francisco State, 18.20; Uneven bars—Jodi Mabb, Cal Poly-Pomona, 17.80; Balance beam—Barrie, Northridge State, 17.75; Floor exercise—Linda Moody, Northridge State, 17.75.

Team results: 1. Northridge State, 138.10; 2. Jacksonville State, 134.05; 3. Southeast Missouri State, 132.65.

Eagle shooters defend title

Tennessee Tech took home the 1982 first-place trophy from the National Collegiate Men's and Women's Rifle Championships, maintaining its standing as perennial champion.

Strong performances in the smallbore competition made the difference for the Eagles. They scored 4,630 points in that event and 1,508 in the air rifle. Tennessee Tech edged West Virginia by two points, 6,138 to 6,136, to defend its title.

Kurt Fitz-Randolph of Tennessee Tech won his second individual smallbore title with scores of 400 (prone), 374 (standing) and 393 (kneeling), for a total of 1,167. West Virginia's John Rost repeated as individual air-rifle champion, scoring 390.

Shooting for Tennessee Tech in the team smallbore competition were Kurt Fitz-Randolph (400-378-396-1,140), Ray Slonena (398-367-395-1,160), Mark Fox (398-370-388-1,156) and Ron Zerr (400-366-374-1,140).

West Virginia won the team air-rifle event with John Rost (98-98-96-98-390), Michelle Stamates (89-94-95-94-372), Dave Ridensur (94-97-96-97-384) and Burt McNealy (96-95-96-94-381). The Mountaineers' total was 1,527. Virginia Military Institute hosted the event.

Team results: 1. Tennessee Tech, 4,630-1,508-6,138; 2. West Virginia, 4,609-1,527-6,136; 3. Eastern Kentucky, 4,622-1,506-6,128; 4. East Tennessee State, 4,612-1,513-6,125; 5. Murray State, 4,589-1,500-6,089; 6. Army, 4,537-1,477-6,014; 7. Navy, 4,539-1,473-6,012; 8. St. John's (New York), 4,513-1,455-5,968; 9. North Carolina State, 4,462-1,472-5,934.

Sioux skate to victory

North Dakota won its second NCAA Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship in the last three years with a 5-2 victory over Wisconsin, last year's national champion.

The two teams, who came into the national finals ranked Nos. 1 and 2 in the country, played a thrilling championship game before 9,752 at the Providence Civic Center in Providence, Rhode Island. The Fighting Sioux took a 1-0 lead as Glen White scored at the 1:26 mark of the opening period. The Badgers countered shortly thereafter as Ron Vincent put Wisconsin on the board with 3:56 gone in the period.

The two powerhouses also traded goals in the second period. North Dakota's Phil Sykes, later named the tournament's outstanding player, scored at 1:09 before Wisconsin's John Newberry tallied at 5:30 to knot the score.

The third period belonged to North Dakota, as Sykes scored twice and Cary Eades once.

It was the seventh meeting of the year between the two teams. Going into the championship game, each had won three games.

Named to the all-tournament team were North Dakota's Sykes (forward), Eades (forward), Jim Patrick (defenseman) and Darren Jensen (goalie) and Wisconsin's Newberry (forward) and Bruce Driver (defenseman).

North Dakota ..... 1 1 3-5

NCAA awards postgraduate scholarships in basketball

The NCAA has awarded postgraduate scholarships of $2,000 each to 20 student-athletes who have displayed their talents in the classroom and on the basketball court.

For the first time in the history of the awards, which began in 1964, women are eligible. Half of the basketball scholarships annually will go to women student-athletes. In all, the NCAA awards 90 grants each year—25 in football, 20 in basketball and 45 (25 for men and 20 for women) in other sports in which it conducts championships.

The program now has awarded $1,674,000 to 1,309 student-athletes since its inception. To qualify, a student-athlete must maintain a minimum 3.000 grade-point average on a 4.000 scale (or its equivalent) and perform with distinction in a varsity sport.

Was a third-team selection on the academic all-America team this year. Coach Sonja Hogg: “Angela Turner has represented herself, her family and certainly Louisiana Tech in a manner that is above reproach.”

Championship Corner

1. The 1982 Division III Women’s Softball Championship will be reduced from 16 to 10 teams, based on the total number of NCAA member institutions that have declared their willingness to participate in the championship. At least one team will be selected from each of the four regions. The remaining teams will be selected at large. The final four teams will compete in the double-elimination finals at Trenton State College, Trenton, New Jersey, May 28-30.
2. The newly formed NCAA Women’s Soccer Committee will conduct its first meeting May 11-13 in Boston. Members of the committee are Jean Tuerck, University of Cincinnati, chair; Ken Banda, University of Massachusetts, Amherst; Anson Dorrance, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Jim Rudy, University of Central Florida, and Michelle Morgan, Amherst College.

that, but that certainly is worth something. These guys (union proponents) never stop to consider what those kinds of things mean in dollars.”

Nonetheless, Alborn can sympathize with the long hours required of his players during the season from September to November and is not completely unsympathetic to the notion that it might be worth a paycheck.

“I was a college football player here once, too, and I know what it was like,” he says. “But believe me, there are a lot worse ways to put yourself through college than to take advantage of a college scholarship.

“I think our guys realize that they really don’t have it so rough, especially when they consider the kids over at the cafeteria who are busing tables to get through and the other students who are working part-time while they are taking a full load of classes.

“Those students are getting paid, sure, but they are giving their entire paycheck to Rice University to pay for their tuition and books.

“And that’s exactly what the football players are working for, too. Correct me if I’m wrong, but I don’t see one single problem that would be solved by having a college players’ union.”

Bruins swim to title

UCLA went into the final race of the 1982 Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships three points ahead of Texas and had to edge the Longhorns in the 400-yard freestyle relay for the title. The Bruins responded with a winning time of 2:53.15 and edged Texas, 219-210.

UCLA won four events in capturing its first swimming championship. Bill Barrett swam to a record-breaking 1:45.00 in the 200-yard individual medley and became the first swimmer in NCAA history to take the event three straight times. His time established American, championship and NCAA records by shaving one-hundredth of a second off the previous record of 1:45.01, which he set at the 1981 NCAA championships.

Other UCLA firsts were by Robin Leamy in the 50-yard and 100-yard freestyle events.

Texas was first in the 400 medley relay, 100 backstroke (where Clay Britt repeated as champion) and 200 backstroke, won by outstanding freshman Rick Carey in 1:46.01, a meet record.

Stanford finished third with 191 points, California fourth with 170 and Florida fifth with 121.

Another record fell in the 200 butterfly. Florida's Craig Beardsley swam a 1:44.10 to break his previous record of 1:44.15 set in last year's championships.

The meet, conducted by the Walter Schroeder Aquatic Center in Brown Deer, Wisconsin, was hosted by the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Individual winners: 500 freestyle—Andy Astbury, Arizona State, 4:18.15; 200 individual medley—Bill Barrett, UCLA, 1:45.00; 50 freestyle—Robin Leamy, UCLA, 19.85; One-meter diving—Bob Bollinger, Indiana; 400 medley relay—Texas, 3:14.24; 400 individual medley—Jeff Float, Southern California, 3:49.00; 200 freestyle—Pelle Holmertz, California, 1:36.46; 100 butterfly—Matt Gribble, Miami (Florida), 47.35; 100 backstroke—Clay Britt, Texas, 49.09; 100 breaststroke—Steve Lundquist, Southern Methodist, 53.09; 800 freestyle relay—California, 6:28.94; 1,650 freestyle—Arne Borgstrom, Alabama, 15:02.24; 100 freestyle—Robin Leamy, UCLA, 43.59; 200 backstroke—Rick Carey, Texas, 1:46.01; 200 breaststroke—Steve Lundquist, Southern Methodist, 1:56.84; 200 butterfly—Craig Beardsley, Florida, 1:44.10; Three-meter diving—Ron Merriott, Michigan; 400 freestyle relay—UCLA, 2:53.15.

Team results: 1. UCLA, 219; 2. Texas, 210; 3. Stanford, 191; 4. California, 170; 5. Florida, 121; 6. Arizona State, 114; 7. (tie) Alabama and Southern California, 112; 9. Miami (Florida), 97; 10. Southern Methodist, 90.

Matador men also No. 1

Northridge State convincingly captured its sixth title in the Division II Men's Swimming and Diving Championships, amassing 444 points to second-place Puget Sound's 244½.

Northridge State's Pete Accardy became the first coach in history to coach both women's and men's teams to NCAA championships. The Matador women claimed the Division II women's title a week earlier.

Jeff Thornton led Northridge State by winning his fourth consecutive titles in both the 500 freestyle (4:36.17) and the 1,650 freestyle (16:01.50). The Matadors' other first-place finishes were in one-meter diving, won by Bob Sola; 200 freestyle, won by Robby Cordobes; 800 freestyle relay, in a record-setting 6:46.99; 200 butterfly, won by Ed Althof, and 400 freestyle relay.

Robert Jackson of Puget Sound also won his fourth NCAA title in the 100 breaststroke, pacing the Loggers to their second-place finish.

Individual winners: 500 freestyle—Jeff Thornton, Northridge State, 4:36.18; 200 individual medley—Tracy Huth, Oakland, 1:54.00; 50 freestyle—Vern Rogers, California-Davis, 21.02; One-meter diving—Bob Sola, Northridge State; 400 medley relay—Puget Sound, 3:26.23; 400 individual medley—Tracy Huth, Oakland, 4:02.47; 200 freestyle—Robby Cordobes, Northridge State, 1:41.62; 100 butterfly—Devin Gray, Southern Oregon State, 50.62; 100 backstroke—Brian Wilkerson, Cal Poly-SLO, 52.98; 100 breaststroke—Robert Jackson, Puget Sound, 55.40; 800 freestyle relay—Northridge State, 6:46.99; 1,650 freestyle—Jeff Thornton, Northridge State, 16:01.50; 100 freestyle—Vern Rogers, California-Davis, 46.22; 200 backstroke—Leo Kosenkranus, Puget Sound, 1:56.79; 200 breaststroke—(tie) Robert Jackson, Puget Sound, and Donald Jensen, Lowell, 2:05.25; 200 butterfly—Ed Althof, Northridge State, 1:51.70; Three-meter diving—Don Mason, Wayne State (Michigan); 400 freestyle relay—Northridge State, 3:04.53.

Team results: 1. Northridge State, 444; 2. Puget Sound, 244½; 3. Oakland, 229; 4. Chico State, 198; 5. Clarion State, 152; 6. Cal Poly-SLO, 121; 7. Southwest Missouri State, 86; 8. Tampa, 73; 9. California-Davis, 66; 10. Shippensburg State 51.

Kenyon depth pays off

Kenyon College won just two events in the 1982 Division III Men's Swimming and Diving Championships but coasted to its third straight team title, 299-197, over Williams.

The Lords set a record in the 400 freestyle relay and also won the 800 freestyle relay, but they had to rely on depth to earn the crown. At least one Kenyon swimmer competed in the championship final of every event except the 1,650 freestyle.

Several outstanding individual performances also highlighted the event, which was conducted at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Virginia.

Doug Jones of Claremont-Mudd-Scripps and Joseph Gentile of William Paterson each won three titles. Jones set national records in the 100 and 200 backstrokes, while Gentile was a record-breaker in the 100 freestyle. Gentile's narrow victories over Washington and Lee's Michael Bernot in the 50 and 100 freestyles were among the most exciting moments of the meet.

Individual winners: 500 freestyle—Doug Jones, Claremont-Mudd-Scripps, 4:33.68; 200 individual medley—George Nichols, St. Lawrence, 1:55.31; 50 freestyle—Joseph Gentile, William Paterson, 20.88; One-meter diving—Chris VanDeMark, Grove City, 437.75; 400 medley relay—Williams, 3:30.43; 400 individual medley—Barry Zacharias, Rochester Tech, 4:08.17; 200 freestyle—Joseph Gentile, William Paterson, 1:41.60; 100 butterfly—Jim Lilley, Tufts, 50.67; 100 backstroke—Doug Jones, Claremont-Mudd-Scripps, 52.04; 100 breaststroke—Howard Seidman, Alfred, 57.88; 800 freestyle relay—Kenyon, 6:51.43; 1,650 freestyle—Palmer Lewis, Norwich, 15:54.57; 100 freestyle—Joseph Gentile, William Paterson, 45.57; 200 backstroke—Doug Jones, Claremont-Mudd-Scripps, 1:52.00; 200 breaststroke—Howard Seidman, Alfred, 2:05.33; 200 butterfly—Kirk Hutchinson, Bowdoin, 1:52.63; Three-meter diving—Keith Miller, Tufts, 510.95; 400 freestyle relay—Kenyon, 3:04.87.

Team results: 1. Kenyon, 299; 2. Williams, 197; 3. St. Lawrence, 147; 4. Claremont-Mudd-Scripps, 145; 5. Johns Hopkins, 118; 6. Tufts, 95; 7. MIT, 58; 8. Coast Guard, 54; 9. Washington and Lee, 51; 10. Allegheny, 50.
