Toner, Davis recommended for top offices

John L. Toner, director of athletics at the University of Connecticut, and John R. Davis, faculty athletic representative at Oregon State University, have been recommended by the NCAA Nominating Committee to serve as NCAA president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, for 1983 and 1984.

Toner, currently secretary-treasurer of the Association, and Davis, who is ending a four-year term as District 8 vice-president on the NCAA Council, head a pair of slates developed by the Nominating Committee for action by the membership at the 77th annual NCAA Convention January 10-12, 1983, in San Diego.

The slates were announced today in conjunction with the mailing of the Official Notice of the 1983 Convention, and they appear as an appendix in that publication.

This is the first time that a Nominating Committee's recommendations for Association offices and NCAA Council vacancies have been made public before the Convention itself. That change in procedure was adopted by the Council in approving plans to restructure and expand the Council, which will be voted upon at the January Convention.

Action will be taken on the Council restructuring proposals early in the business session January 11. If those proposals are approved by the membership, the members of the three divisions will convene separately early that afternoon to take action on the Nominating Committee's recommendations for Council positions from the respective divisions.

The separate division meetings also will elect their division vice-presidents, positions which are comparable to the current chairs of the division steering committees but that will be considered officers of the Association for the first time if the Council restructuring plans are approved.

Recommended by the Nominating Committee to serve as division vice-presidents are Judith R. Holland, senior associate director of athletics at the University of California, Los Angeles, Division I; Edwin W. Lawrence, director of athletics, Cheyney State College, Division II, and Kenneth J. Weller, president of Central College (Iowa), Division III.

Election of the president and secretary-treasurer and ratification of the divisions' selections to serve as division vice-presidents will be by the full membership later in the Convention business session.

The Nominating Committee was directed by the Council to prepare two slates of candidates for Council vacancies, one to be presented for vote if the Council restructuring plan is adopted and another if that plan is defeated. The restructuring plan would expand the Council from 22 to 46 members, including the president and secretary-treasurer. Of the other 44 Council positions, 22 would be for Division I, with 11 each representing Divisions II and III.

Geographical regions would be established within each division, and there would be at least four representatives from each of the four regions in Division I, at least two from each of the four regions in Division II and at least two from each of the four Division III regions.

In addition, the 22 Division I positions would include one for each Division I-AA football conference, one for each Division I-AA Football Championship region, two for independent Division I-AA football institutions, two for institutions that do not sponsor football in Division I, and the remaining positions selected at large.

Nominating Committee Chair Charles H. Samson, Texas A&M University, praised the work of the members of the committee, noting that the provisions of the Council restructuring plan made the assignment "probably the most demanding nominating procedure in the history of the Association."

"There is little doubt that the Council restructuring proposal will assure better representation for all segments of all three divisions," Samson said. "The various requirements of that plan, however, when coupled with other Association policies, placed a number of restrictions on the committee."

He noted the need to maintain balance on the Council in regard to the

Palmer to receive NCAA's Teddy award

Arnold Palmer, the 1960s "Athlete of the Decade" and the man generally credited for the growth in popularity of professional golf during that time, has been named the 17th winner of the NCAA's Theodore Roosevelt Award.

The "Teddy," the Association's highest honor, will be presented to Palmer at the NCAA honors luncheon January 10 in San Diego during the Association's annual Convention.

Palmer, 53, has won more than 80 titles on the professional golf circuit and is one of the sport's most popular players. He was tournament medalist in the 1949 and 1950 National Collegiate Golf Championships and was the top player on the golf team at Wake Forest University for four years.

In addition to his success in professional golf, Palmer has become a highly successful businessman.

The Theodore Roosevelt Award is presented annually to a prominent American "for whom competitive athletics in college and attention to physical well-being thereafter have been important factors in a distinguished career of national significance and achievement."

The award is named for the 26th president of the United States, who played a key role in organizing what later became the NCAA.

Humorist and educator Bill Cosby, whose accomplishments have included earning a doctoral degree from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, was the 1982 winner.

Other previous winners include President Dwight D. Eisenhower, U.S. Senator Everett Saltonstall, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron H. White, Purdue University President Frederick L. Hoyde, National Aeronautics and Space Administration official Christopher C. Craft Jr. and Jerome H. "Bud" Holland, United States Ambassador to Sweden.

17th annual award goes to former Wake Forest champion.

Also, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley; Jesse Owens, perhaps the greatest track and field athlete of the century; President Gerald R. Ford; retired Rear Adm. Thomas J. Hamilton; Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley; Eastman Kodak board chairman Gerald B. Zornow; Los Angeles Times publisher Otis Chandler; heart surgeon Denton A. Cooley, and entertainer Art Linkletter.

Palmer won the Southern Conference golf title in 1948 and 1949 while attending Wake Forest and added the Southern Intercollegiate title in 1950. He served three years in the U.S. Coast Guard before returning to Wake Forest in the fall of 1953.

In the spring of 1954, Palmer won the first Atlantic Coast Conference title and then added the United States Golf Association amateur title, the peak of his career as an amateur.

In addition to his athletic accomplishments, Palmer was responsible for establishing the Buddy Worsham Scholarship at Wake Forest in honor of his former roommate and teammate who was killed in an auto accident. The top annual athletic award given at Wake Forest is named after Palmer.

Palmer has been playing professionally since a few months after winning the amateur title, with his most successful period stretching from 1960 through 1963. During the time, he won 29 of his titles and earned almost $400,000 of his overall winnings of more than $2 million.

Palmer was the leading money winner in three of those years and twice represented the United States in the prestigious Ryder Cup matches.

Seven of Palmer's championships have been in what are considered the sport's four major championships. He won the Masters in 1958, 1960, 1962 and 1964; the U.S. Open in 1960, and the British Open in 1961 and 1962. He came from seven strokes behind in the final round to win that U.S. Open title and has finished second in four other U.S. Opens. He has not won the PGA Championship but has finished second three times.

Financial aid proposals outlined

Editor's Note: This is the second article in a seven-part series on legislation to be considered at the 77th annual Convention. The topical grouping to be considered in this issue is financial aid. In the remaining issues of The NCAA News leading up to the Convention, legislation in the following topical groups will be considered: academic requirements, championships, membership/classification, playing and practice seasons, recruiting, general, eligibility, and personnel limitations.

In the area of financial aid, Convention delegates will face 12 proposals, the most important of which would change the current financial limitations imposed on student-athletes who receive Pell Grants.

Proposal No. 35, sponsored by the NCAA Council, would exempt Pell Grant awards from the limitations on the total amount of financial aid that a student-athlete is eligible to receive under NCAA legislation.

Currently, a student-athlete receiving institutional financial aid and a Pell Grant is limited to a total amount not to exceed the value of tuition, fees, room and board, and required course-related books, plus the amount permitted for miscellaneous expenses under the cost-of-education formula defined by the U.S. Department of Education in the administration of the Pell Grant program (currently $400).

Football TV appeal taken under advisement

The appeal of a Federal-court ruling declaring the 1982-1985 NCAA Football Television Plan null and void has been taken under advisement by a three-judge panel in the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver, Colorado.

In a one-hour hearing November 18, the judges heard arguments regarding antitrust laws and the free-market system. The panel now will issue a written decision, but there was no indication when that decision would occur. The stay of the injunction by the trial court will continue until further order by the appellate court.

The NCAA is asking the appeals court to overturn a September 15 ruling in Oklahoma City by Federal Judge Juan C. Burciaga that the television plan violated the Sherman Antitrust Act.

A requested stay of the decision by the NCAA was denied two days later by Burciaga, but the NCAA obtained a stay of his order September 22 from the three-judge panel of the 10th Circuit Court.

The appeals court asked the NCAA and the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association, plaintiffs in the Oklahoma City case, to file further information concerning the stay and in preparation for the beginning of oral arguments.

In a brief filed November 15, the NCAA claimed its television plan, which gives it exclusive rights to college football telecasts involving its members, does not fit the Federal definition of an illegal monopoly.

The NCAA contends that by limiting the number of televised games, it has increased attendance and made games more attractive.

The three judges hearing the appeal are the same ones who issued the September 22 stay of Burciaga's decision pending the appeal—James E. Barrett.

Swarthmore 'minority' questions priorities

By Ralph Bernstein

Having a top-ranked football team would be a matter of great pride on most college campuses, but some folks at Swarthmore College would just as soon forget it.

Angry team members, meanwhile, have refused to wear the college insignia on their helmets.

"I told them, it's your prerogative," said coach Jim Lapinski. "You want to do it, it's fine with me."

The squad is angry about what it considers an unnecessary review at the school of the football program last year.

Lapinski, a part-time coach who teaches biology at a high school in Delaware, observed, "I don't think most people are angry. It's a very long, very complicated, very complex story. It would take three hours to explain."

There seems to be a lot of controversy swirling around Lapinski's team, 13th-ranked in the NCAA's Division III and winner of eight of nine games this year.

For example, one player this season played four games under an assumed name because he didn't want his parents to know he was playing football. Kevin Lagasse played under the name of Rockwell Thisby.

"I had the role of Thisby in our Shakespeare class when we were studying 'A Midsummer Night's Dream.' I just borrowed his name."

He made up "Rockwell."

Lapinski has a linebacker who is an accomplished pianist. He wears extra heavy padding in practice so he will not bruise his hands.

Swarthmore has only 39 players on its squad. The players constantly switch positions to fill voids caused by injuries.

If things are not tough enough, Lapinski must deal with a certain segment of the college on Philadelphia's main line who think a winning football team is a disgrace.

At least one college spokesman said this vocal minority believes the football team's success spoils the Swarthmore image as one of the leading academic institutions in the nation.

Dave Smoyer, athletic director, and Lapinski both are inclined to overlook this viewpoint.

"It's part of the campus, not the whole," said Smoyer. "Football is one of the important things on this campus. It's just that no one single activity can dominate here. There are too many conflicting activities fighting for people's time."

Both Smoyer and Lapinski point out that football players must score 1,100 and 1,200 on college boards to gain admittance—that is about 200 points more than the average.

Eight of nine seniors who graduated last year are in law, medical or graduate business schools. They played football for fun, because they liked it. They didn't even have to go watch a game.

There are no athletic scholarships at Swarthmore. There is some financial aid, but it goes to students of all departments. If they want to participate in athletics, it is a personal choice.

Lapinski admits he tries to recruit, but, he asks, "How many good football players do you find with board scores of 1,100 or 1,200?"

This season, Swarthmore defeated Moravian, Lebanon Valley, Johns Hopkins, Dickinson, Gettysburg, Upsala, Ursinus and Western Maryland, before closing the season with a loss to Widener.

"On paper, we don't over-personnel anyone," Lapinski says. "These are kids of great emotion with a desire to win and excel."

Swarthmore scored 138 points and allowed only 34 in its first seven games. Lapinski says he has a good scouting system, and he puts all reports in a computer.

"These kids are so smart they remember all the opponents' tendencies and know what they're going to do before they do it," the coach notes.

Lapinski likes to tell one story about his squad.

"We went to play Gettysburg last year with 34 kids, and two of them were kickers. They had a squad of 96. We had seven injuries in the game. One kid passed out after the game. We won, 16-7."

Things have not always been good at Swarthmore. The little Quakers lost 34 straight games between 1971 and November 1, 1975. Everybody on campus loved them. Swarthmore was known for its academics then, not football.

Toczykowski remembered for more than past athletic feats

By Jeremiah Murphy
The Boston Globe

There is an increasingly melancholy tendency as you grow older to find the names of old friends listed on the obituary page in the morning papers.

Recently, there was the name of Henry Toczykowski, and he was remembered as the quarterback who called the famous winning Boston College play in the 1941 Sugar Bowl victory over Tennessee. There can be no question that was a magic sports moment, but I always get a little uneasy when I read an obituary in which some long-ago athletic feat is presented in print as the man's most memorable lifetime achievement. I suspect Toczykowski's ultimate contribution was much more significant.

The first time I ever saw Toz was in the newsreels at the old War Theater in Beverly after Boston College had won that Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans. I was a teen-age kid, and I can still see the beautiful and rhythmic Notre Dame shift on the movie screen as Toz and Charlie O'Rourke and Mike Holovak and Henry Maznicki glided into position before the ball was passed. Toz was the blocking back, and on one play he hit the defensive end so hard that the Tennessee player actually was lifted off the ground. He was some football player, all right.

There was one minor oversight in Toz's obituary. It said he coached at Arlington and Saugus High School. Well, he also coached one year at Beverly High School, and I was on that team. We had lost our previous coach, Nick Morris, who was colorful and occasionally raucous and always magnetic, but his contract was not renewed because of an inevitable controversy.

Toczykowski was only a few years older than his players that fall. He was a blond, handsome guy, and I can still see the teen-age girls walking past him in the school corridors and glancing at him and pretending to faint. We had a tough year, probably because tackle Red Harlow joined the Marines, star passer Paul Harrington joined the Navy and halfback Joe Cuoco broke his leg in practice.

But the point of this story is that high school coaches and teachers always play a critical role, because they get kids at their most impressionable age. It is a brief interlude when sports seem more important than is actually the case, so the coach himself has the critical task of keeping things in perspective because the kids almost invariably look up to him. For example, Nick Morris' mannerisms, including the way he smoked and talked, even some of his favorite phrases ("You ran like Aggie Dooley on that one!"), were adopted by some of his former players and were continued for years. They admired him and a few patterned their personalities upon his. So the coach—any high school coach—must be like Caesar's wife and above reproach. He's got to set a good example.

Toz did. He did not possess one of those unforgettable personalities, but he was straight and honest and proved later in Arlington to be a pretty good coach. But more significantly, how do you measure the impact that he had on so many young people through so many years that fled too quickly? How do you measure the emotional cost of bringing up a nice family, because it is that day-to-day life that's tough. Those are the ultimate tests, and they are much more lasting and significant contributions than the memory of that play so long ago in the Sugar Bowl when O'Rourke faked a pass and cut inside the end and then swerved past Tennessee halfback Bob Fox to win the game.

Toz left Beverly after one year. On his final day, he bumped into incoming coach Charlie Walsh, who personifies the best in being a coach. Toz was in a hurry and apparently angry. Walsh said, "Just let me ask one thing—is there anybody on the team who can throw the ball?" Toz replied, "Yeah, a kid named Robinson," and left. He was certainly right on that. Robby Robinson could throw the ball for what seemed like a mile. He could punt even farther. Robby became a star.

The last time I ever saw Henry Toczykowski was in the early 1960s when the Globe sponsored a reunion of the 1941 Boston College Sugar Bowl champions. I went over to the hotel on the last night with some other reporters for a drink and to meet some of the sports heroes of my youth. Toz and I bumped into each other in the corridor, chatted for a few minutes, told each other that we looked great and agreed that everything was going pretty good. I am not even sure he remembered me.

But I remembered him all right, because he was a good and decent man whom I met while going through those impressionable and sometimes dangerous years. Toz obviously did the best he could. You can't ask for much more than that. He was 63 years old. May he rest in peace.

Weltlich tries to discipline fairly

"If you discipline fairly, it shows how much you care. This is why you discipline children. If you bring a kid into a program, you have an obligation to the athlete and his family so that four years later they will be able to recognize the guy."

Jo K. Kafer, women's athletic director
Virginia Polytechnic Institute
Metro News

"Women are more academically minded because they don't have the professional teams to go to. Consequently, they seek the best academic institutions as well as the best athletic programs."

"The biggest downfall for the AIAW was the lack of money to reimburse the schools. We were having to pay entrance fees constantly for AIAW events. The NCAA does not charge you and even picks up the transportation costs. In time, the AIAW could have done it, but it didn't move fast enough. I would like to see the AIAW evolve into an organization complementing the NCAA."

Herschel Walker, football player
University of Georgia
Dallas Times Herald

"I've never considered myself a hero, because I don't believe in heroes. My family has taught me only to look up to God. A lot of people seem to look up to be because of my football ability, but I try to show them they shouldn't. They should strive to be better than I am and make the world a better place to live.

"I don't see myself as famous. I'm just trying to do my duty, be successful and make it to the top."

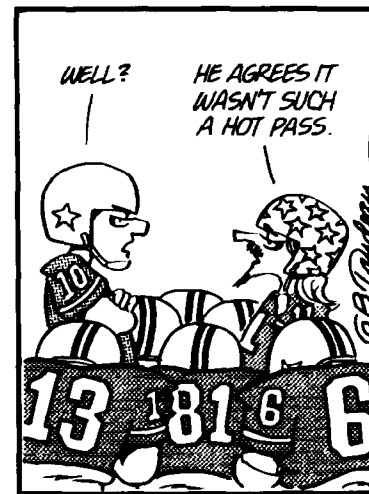

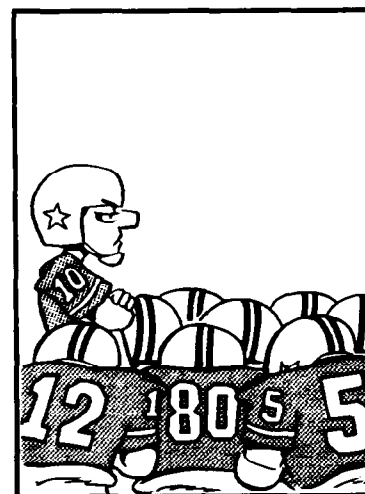

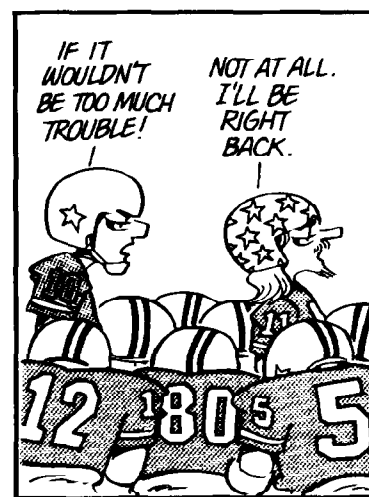

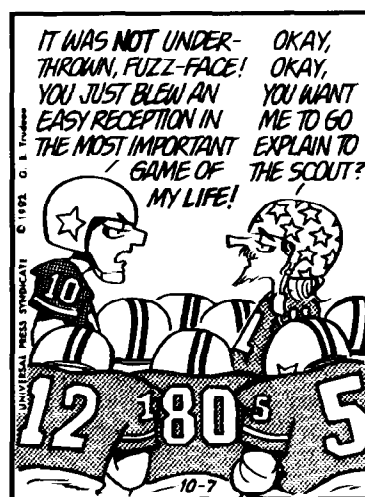

Editorial
USA Today

"The business of American universities should be education—not commercial entertainment, not professional sports, not even semiprofessional sports. The prospect of professional careers, used as an inducement by college recruiters, is too often an empty promise. Far more college seniors will make it into medical school or law school than into professional sports."

"It is one thing for an institution of higher learning to lie to its student-athletes. It is something else for a school to lie to itself. Universities delude themselves if they believe that continued over-reliance on sports and television money won't corrupt their institutions."

"There should be a clear and honest separation between academics and athletics. The tragic triangle of athletics, academics and television should be dissolved, and the traditional integrity of the college institution restored."

Football Notes

Most-improved title still up for grabs

Most-Improved Teams

It certainly was a wild race for bowl bids and conference championships last Saturday, with upsets and bizarre plays, and there is more to come this weekend. That zany, five-lateral, last-play kickoff-return touchdown by California, for instance, made Southern Methodist's dribble-lateral, last-play kickoff-return touchdown a week earlier look ordinary. The victims—Stanford and Texas Tech—still cannot believe it.

The race for the Division I-A most-improved title for 1982 is just as tight and may not be decided until the bowls are completed. Right now, 10-1 New Mexico, which stunned Hawaii when linebacker Johnny Jackson (nicknamed "Medfly" by SID John Keith because the California schools didn't want him) ripped the ball from the quarterback's hands and raced for a touchdown, and 7-3-1 Southwestern Louisiana are on top, both up six full games over 1981. But Louisiana State could reach 6½ games by beating Tulane Saturday, then winning the Orange Bowl game against the Big Eight champion.

The most-improved list includes Boston College, going to its first bowl in 40 years, and Kansas State, bowling for the first time in 87 years of football. It includes first-year coaches Leon Fuller at Colorado State and California's Joe Kapp, who never had coached even as an assistant at any level of football, plus Maryland's Bobby Ross, with previous head-coaching experience but in his first year on this job. The list:

	1981	1982	Games Up
New Mexico.....	4-7-1	10-1	6
SW Louisiana.....	1-9-1	7-3-1	6
Louisiana State.....	3-7-1	8-1-1	5½
Georgia Tech.....	1-10	6-4	5½
Fresno State.....	5-6	10-1	5
California.....	2-9	7-4	5
Kansas State.....	2-9	6-4-1	4½
Colorado State.....	0-12	4-7	4½
Tulsa.....	6-5	10-1	4
Boston College.....	5-6	8-2-1	3½
Maryland.....	4-6-1	8-3	3½
Wichita State.....	4-6-1	8-3	3½
Vanderbilt.....	4-7	7-3	3½

Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt also have regular-season games left and several teams on the list are bowling. Air Force, one of the country's few wishbone teams, reached 7-4 by upsetting Notre Dame and can reach 3½ games improvement by beating Hawaii Saturday. Northwestern ended its long losing streak and reached 3-8, up three games. Long Beach State is up three games with one left. Florida State and Auburn can reach three by winning their last regular-season games, then 3½ each by winning their bowl games. (The most-improved formula? Louisiana State, for instance, has won five more, lost six fewer; total 11, divide by two.)

The most-improved stories are many and varied, with surprising freshmen, redshirt gambles, passing-first coaches and talented quarterbacks. Louisiana State got a boost from a pair of freshman tailbacks, fireplug Dalton Hilliard and bruising Garry James, who have combined for 1,421 rushing yards (surpassing the 1,210 freshman total by SMU's Eric Dickerson and Craig James) behind a veteran offensive line ("The Lunch Bunch") and quarterback Alan Risher. Coach Jerry Stovall never let them forget 1981.

Jack Bicknell, helped by Doug Flutie, his amazing little passer, is taking Boston College to its first bowl since 1942, when the Eagles lost on January 1, 1943, to Alabama in the Orange Bowl. Jim Dickey daringly redshirted eight senior starters at Kansas State in 1981—a move watched closely by most of the country's coaches—and it paid off in the first winning season since 1970 (second since 1954) and the best record since 1954, not to mention the first-ever bowl. Fuller, considered a defensive genius as a Texas assistant, pulled Colorado State up from the Alan Risher, LSU quarterback, ranks second in passing efficiency. He was in fifth place until LSU's big victory over Florida State.

Yale's offense has relied heavily on Paul Andrie. The junior tailback has averaged four yards per carry and 97.6 yards per game.

Duke's Ben Bennett is in fifth place in passing efficiency. The junior quarterback has a 63.10 percent completion mark.

Only a freshman, Dalton Hilliard of LSU has averaged more than 87 yards per game rushing and has scored 10 touchdowns.

depths of 0-12.

Joe Morrison took over at New Mexico three years ago with just 48 players on hand and sold them on a gambling defense. His 10 victories this fall are the most in school history, surpassing the nine by Bill Weeks' 1964 team. In his third year at Southwestern Louisiana, Sam Robertson saw his team explode offensively down the stretch behind QB Dwight Prudhomme. Bill Curry turned Georgia Tech around in his third season. Wichita State got unexpected help from first-year tailback Eric Denson (988 yards) and expected leadership from QB Prince McJunkins. At Maryland, Ross went to the pass with QB Boomer Esiason and it paid off with victories, excitement and a bowl trip. No one can understand now how George MacIntyre's Vanderbilt team could have been picked 10th in the SEC after a solid year by QB Whit Taylor and friends. Tulsa, under John Cooper, had two 1,000-yard rushers and went 10-1.

Veteran coach Jim Sweeney, in his second stint at Fresno State, reached 10-1 (better than 9-2 in '77 on his first stint), most wins since the 1961 bowl team went 11-0. Kapp, of course, is one of a kind. "I think this university is unique in hiring me," he says. "I have studied it since I was a kid and I love this place (he led Cal to its last Rose Bowl 24 years ago). A lot of people had doubts, but never me."

Penn Leads I-AA

In Division I-AA, 7-3 Pennsylvania in Jerry Berndt's second year leads the pack, up six full games. The Quakers are finished for the year, since the Ivy League bans postseason games (and spring practice), thus could conceivably be overtaken in play-off action. Idaho, under first-year coach Dennis Erickson and up five full games, had to settle for a Big Sky Conference co-championship after a final-game loss. James Madison, also up five, did not reach varsity status until 1974 but is in its third I-AA season, all under Challance McMillin, who started the program in 1972. Southern-Baton Rouge, in Otis Washington's second year; Louisiana Tech, in Billy Brewer's third, and Eastern Illinois, in Darrell Mudra's 21st season—five at Eastern Illinois—are all up 4½ games over 1981. Here's the list:

	1981	1982	Games Up
Pennsylvania.....	1-9	7-3	6
Idaho.....	3-8	8-3	5
James Madison.....	3-8	8-3	5
Eastern Illinois.....	6-5	10-0-1	4½
Louisiana Tech.....	4-6-1	9-2	4½
Southern-B.R.....	3-8	7-3	4½
Maine.....	3-7-1	7-4	3½
Morehead State.....	1-9	5-6	3½

Southern can reach five by beating Grambling in the Louisiana Superdome Saturday. Northeast Louisiana finished with a three-game improvement.

Penn had won just two games the previous three seasons. The air was cleared in 1981 after Berndt suspended four players for smoking marijuana. The team grew up and decided to become the Rocky of the Ivy League. Said quarterback Gary Vura: "We just decided we were sick of losing." Penn's success has galvanized the school, but players and students still put football in perspective. Berndt believes, however, that "football in the Ivy League is quite special. Our players choose to play. They play for reasons similar to why they played in high school. You find a real esprit de corps."

Anderson Is Earnest

The national I-A rushing leader, Oklahoma State junior Ernest Anderson, is playing despite a cracked rib, bruised shoulder and sprained toe. A flak jacket and special air-filled shoulder pads are standard equipment. "You can't do anything standing on the sidelines," he told Jonathan Rand of the Kansas City Star. "Nobody gives you anything. That's the way I was brought up. . . . I don't like to say I'm hurt. I'm afraid they're going to say I can't play, and I don't ever want to hear that."

Anderson's lead in the rushing race is 141 yards, which means that Georgia's Herschel Walker will have to outrush him by a margin of 142 yards Saturday to win the championship. Most of the other individual statistical championships in I-A will be on the line this weekend, but some titles will not be decided until December 4. The national scoring leader (Florida State's Greg Allen) and the fourth-place passer (Florida's Wayne Peace) both play that day, for instance, so the final I-A wrap-up won't come until December 6.

The top three field goal kickers all have smashed the former record. Tennessee's Fuad Reveiz needs two field goals against Vanderbilt Saturday to win the title and break the record 28 by West Virginia sophomore Paul Woodside, who has finished the regular season. UCLA's Tom Ramsey has finished at 153.5, now No. 1 in passing efficiency, but LSU's Alan Risher and Peace still have a game left. Stanford's John Elway finished with 9,349 career passing yards and 9,070 in total offense, both No. 2 on the all-time lists. Southern Methodist's Eric Dickerson finished with 4,421 yards in career rushing (11th all-time) and teammate Craig James 3,663 for a combined 8,084—unprecedented for players alternating at the same position.

Quotes Of The Week

Asked about his latest hobby, Arkansas' all-America defender, Billy Ray Smith, replied: "Please don't say anything about video games—that's all I've been hearing. Tell people my latest hobby is wrestling alligators. Actually, I wrestle cockroaches, but some I've seen are as big as alligators." (Rick Schaeffer, Arkansas SID)

Illinois coach Mike White was expecting "the lady who doesn't know a quarterback from a hockey puck" at his football clinic for women last week but came away impressed with the depth of the questions from a gathering of 500 women wanting to know more about the game. Said Carla Brown of Champaign, Illinois: "I thought I knew the basics before the clinic, but he brought out the details. I know I'll enjoy the game a lot more now because of those details. And I'll tell my husband so he'll know how much more I know." Said White: "I wish I'd done this earlier." (Tab Bennett, Illinois SID)

Randy Theiss, senior offensive tackle with a career grade-point average of 3.48 in business administration, to Steve Sinclair, Omaha World-Herald, on his goal: "A 4.0 grade-point average one semester before I graduate—that's my ambition for my last year at Nebraska."

Nebraska quarterback Turner Gill, asked by Maury White, Des Moines Register, why he turned down a $90,000 baseball bonus, replied: "I wanted four years of having fun in my life before I turned to pro sports."

Oklahoma offensive guard Steve Williams, who wrestles professionally in the off-season under the name "Dr. Death," told Bob Hentzen, Topeka Capital: "I am a good guy to the fans—they love me down in the mid-South." Maybe so, but Oklahoma quarterback Kelly Phelps says, "I consider him the type that would bite somebody in the face." And Williams still thinks Oklahoma will make it to the Orange Bowl: "We're going to surprise a lot of people. . . . I love the Orange Bowl—a big, big game, the beach and pretty women."

Oklahoma freshman Marcus Dupree is 6-3 and 235, bench presses 400 pounds and ran a 9.5-second 100-yard dash the last time he was timed, which was in the ninth grade. Already this fall he has touchdown rushes of 63, 75, 30, 80 and 70 yards plus a 77-yard punt-return TD. No wonder coach Barry Switzer says: "He came here with E. T.—he's from a different world." Adds Switzer, "I predict he'll letter."

Kansas tailback Dino Bell to Chuck Woodling of the Lawrence Journal-World, on the mysterious initials of Jayhawk fullback E. J. Jones: "I guess I'll find out when he graduates. I even asked his mom, and she wouldn't tell me." (Bill Hancock, Big Eight Conference SID)

Penn State leads toughest-schedule list with winning percentage of .653

Alabama coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, on his ability to motivate teams: "Fifteen years ago, I could get them to play, no matter who they were. I could have won at Vassar." (Larry White, Alabama SID)

"What Letter?"

Georgia Tech fullback Eddie Fortier had labored four years without scoring a touchdown (1982 is his first year as a full-time starter), so his fraternity brothers wrote a letter to head coach Bill Curry before the Wake Forest game, asking that Fortier be allowed to score before he graduated. And what happened? Fortier rushed for a career-high 104 yards and scored two touchdowns, one a 20-yard run. "What letter?" asked Curry after the game (it was sent but didn't arrive before the game). (Brooks Tinsley, Georgia Tech SID)

Penn State Schedule Toughest

With the regular season drawing to a close, Penn State leads the toughest-schedule listing. The 11 Division I-A opponents on its 1982 schedule have won 61, lost 32 and tied two against other I-A teams for a winning percentage of .653 when not playing Penn State. Alabama is a close second at .651. Others in the top 20 are Florida State .644, Kentucky .640, South Carolina .630, Oregon .626, Florida .622, West Virginia .609, Stanford .602, Southern California .593, Syracuse .587, Mississippi State .574, Texas Tech .571, Auburn .570, Oregon State .569, Notre Dame .564, Mississippi .562, Texas-El Paso .560, Pittsburgh .555 and San Diego State .554.

I-A, I-AA headed for 30 million

With only 27 regular-season games left—23 of them this weekend—attendance for Divisions I-A and I-AA combined seems certain to hit 30 million for the first time. It could happen this weekend. The remaining games include many big-attendance traditionals in I-A, where the per-game average is running 921 ahead of 1981. Division I-AA is a little behind but could still top last season because one of three remaining I-AA games is Grambling vs. Southern, which drew 67,520 to the Louisiana Superdome in 1981.

Division I Field Hockey

Eveline LePoole's goal scoring and Old Dominion's ability to come from behind told the story of the 1982 National Collegiate Division I Field Hockey Championship. Old Dominion came from a 2-0 deficit in the final game to defeat defending champion Connecticut, 3-2, for the title.

the score, and LePoole's second goal—just three minutes into the second half—was the winner.

It was the second straight day of comebacks and goals by LePoole for the Lady Monarchs. In semifinal action, Penn State took a 3-0 lead against Old Dominion before two goals by LePoole helped erase the deficit. Old Dominion ultimately defeated Penn State, 4-3, in overtime.

Connecticut, a winner over Massachusetts in last year's inaugural tournament, reached the finals by defeating Delaware. The Huskies ended their season with a 17-3 record, while Old Dominion finished 19-1.

Despite her exceptional goal scoring, LePoole was named to the all-tournament team on defense, along with teammates Yogi Hightower and Amanda Stewart, plus Judy Mahaffey of Penn State and Carolan Norris of Connecticut. The all-tournament goalie was Stacie Indelicato of Delaware.

Selections on offense included Old Dominion's Morgan and Diane Bracalente, along with Brenda Stauffer of Penn State, Sharon Wilkie of Delaware and Rose Smith of Connecticut.

Division II Field Hockey

A home-field advantage was not enough to overcome Lock Haven State's outstanding defense as the Bald Eagles defeated host Bloomsburg State, 4-1, to win the 1982 NCAA Division II Field Hockey Championship.

Lock Haven State nearly made it through the championship without being scored on. The Eagles defeated Kutztown State, 3-0, in a second-round game and held Bloomsburg State scoreless until 19 minutes into the second half.

A first-half goal by Sandy Miller was all Lock Haven State needed, and the Bald Eagles kept play in Bloomsburg State's end of the field after that point. All-America Ann Grim added a goal just four minutes into the second half, and Jill Ridley's goal increased the Lock Haven lead to 3-0 before Debb Minsky broke the shutout. Sherry Derr's goal completed the scoring.

Lock Haven State, the No. 1-seeded team in the six-team championship, finished the season with a 16-1 record. Bloomsburg State entered the tournament seeded second and defeated Chico State, 1-0 on penalty strokes, to reach the finals. Bloomsburg State finished with a record of 16-5-1. Defending champion Pfeiffer did not reach the championship this year.

Division III Field Hockey

Exceptional defense proved to be the key factor in helping Ithaca to upset previously undefeated Trenton State, 2-1 by penalty strokes, and win the 1982 National Collegiate Division III Field Hockey Championship.

Ithaca, which allowed just two goals in three games, did not permit any shots on goal by Trenton State in the first half. The Lions had just three shots on goal in the second half, including the tying goal, and just three more in the two overtime periods.

Tracy Moyer scored a first-half goal for Ithaca, but the Bombers could not increase that lead despite dominating play throughout the game. The top-seeded Trenton State team evened the score on a penalty-stroke goal by Donna Aromando midway through the second half. The game then remained scoreless through the remainder of the second half and two overtime periods.

Ithaca earned the championship with a 4-2 advantage in penalty strokes in the prescribed "flick-off" after two overtimes. The champion Bombers ended the season with an 18-3 record, while Trenton State finished 26-1.

Moyer was one of five Ithaca players named to the all-tournament team. Other choices on offense were Cathy Foto and Liz Parry of Ithaca, Lori Jung of Trenton State and Sandy Swope of Franklin and Marshall.

Selected on defense were Diane Rapp and Clare Lamont of Ithaca, Leanne McFalls of Franklin and Marshall, Nancy Dillard of Denison and Diane Smith of Trenton State. The goalie was Dina Ayres of Trenton State.

Championships begin in water polo, women's volleyball

Stanford will be hard pressed to defend its NCAA Men's Water Polo Championship November 27-28 in the Belmont Plaza Pool at Long Beach, California.

Undefeated in 31 matches last year, Stanford has a 24-4 record this season, with three losses to California-Irvine, which is undefeated in 23 outings.

The Cardinal defeated Cal-Irvine in a semifinal match in the 1981 championship en route to a second straight NCAA title.

Anteaters' coach Ted Newland has his 1981 team intact for this year's championship, in addition to three-year starter Peter Campbell, who redshirted last year. He leads the team in scoring with 29 goals.

Championship Previews

shirted last year. He leads the team in scoring with 29 goals.

What Newland said at the beginning of the season has held true. "It will be my best team ever," the 17-year Anteater coach predicted.

Cal-Irvine last won a national championship in 1970 and has been runner-up five times since.

The Anteaters have been ranked at the top of the U.S. Water Polo Coaches Association poll since the beginning of the season. In the November 1 rankings, Stanford was second, UCLA third, California fourth and Southern California fifth.

Rounding out the top 10 were California-Santa Barbara, Pacific, Loyola (Illinois), Long Beach State and Pepperdine.

In addition to Loyola, Brown is a strong contender in the East. The Bruins have a 25-2 record and an eighth straight New England championship.

Division II Women's Volleyball

Sixteen teams will be selected this week to compete in this year's NCAA Division II Women's Volleyball Championship. Although selections, seedings and pairings were not determined at press time, Northridge State and California-Riverside likely will be the first teams to receive invitations.

Northridge State and California-

Riverside have been battling for the No. 1 ranking among Division II teams this season, as well as the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) league championship. Northridge State claimed the No. 1 spot in the final NCAA rankings; however, the championship of the CCAA will not be determined until the final regular-season matches. The CCAA is the only conference that receives an automatic berth in the tournament.

Northridge State had to defeat unranked Cal Poly-Pomona in its last regular-season match to force a one game play-off with California-Riverside. A Northridge State loss would make California-Riverside the outright champion of the conference with an 11-1 league record.

Those matches were doubly important to Northridge State because the CCAA champion will host the West regional. The Matadors are hosting this year's championship, so they could conceivably play the regionals and advance to the finals without leaving home.

Whatever the outcome, both teams undoubtedly will be two of the 16 teams selected. This year's championship gets under way December 3 and 4 with four regional tournaments. Regional competition will be single-elimination, best-three-of-five-game matches to determine the first-place teams. The regional winners will advance to the finals.

In addition to Northridge State and California-Riverside, the state of California could have three other teams in the tournament. Defending champion Sacramento State should return to defend its title. The Hornets have relied on a strong hitting game this season and were ranked third in the last regular-season poll.

Chapman, another member of the CCAA, was ranked ninth in the latest poll and likely will receive an invitation. California-Davis, a team that was unranked early this season, finished strong and was ranked eighth in the last poll.

Lewis, last year's runner-up, also should receive strong consideration for a berth. The Flyers have good depth and play-off experience.

Florida Southern, another team with play-off experience, also should be in this year's field. The Moccasins placed fourth in last year's championship and finished the ranked fifth.

Other teams that will receive consideration for play-off berths: Portland State, Angelo State, Wright State, Florida International, Ferris State, Nebraska-Omaha, Northern Colorado, Edinboro State, Wayne State (Michigan), Central Missouri State, C. W. Post, Sam Houston State and North Dakota State.

Division III Men's Cross Country

North Central successfully defended its team title at the NCAA 1982 NCAA Division III Men's Cross Country Championships November 20 in Fredonia, New York, led by Tony Bluell's fourth-place finish in the individual competition.

The Cardinals, who have won six of the 10 Division III championships and four of the last five, finished with 51 points. Brandeis was second with 89 points, and Glassboro State had 105 points.

St. Thomas, which won the women's meet on the same course, captured the men's individual competition with Nicolae Manciu's 26:06 in the 8,000-meter race.

The runners were bunched throughout the race, with only 40 seconds separating the first and 10th finishers. In fact, only 1½ minutes separated the first and 70th runners.

In team scoring, North Central captured third, fourth, sixth, 13th and 25. Behind Bluell were Bob Dunphey, Jay Rogers, Ray Krauss and William O'Neill.

Bluell, Dunphey and O'Neill all were among the top 25 a year ago; Krauss was 48th for the Cardinals last year.

Manciu broke the course record set a week earlier in regional competition. The St. Thomas runner led most of the way on a course made muddy by rain earlier in the week.

Division III Women's Cross Country

St. Thomas captured three of the top five team spots to win the 1982 NCAA Division III Women's Cross Country Championships November 20 in Fredonia, New York.

Debra Thometz, Sarah Hintz and Teresa Mayer finished second, third and fourth to pace the Tomnies. Michelle Brisbois was 16th, and Laura Inderieden ran 19th to complete the scoring for St. Thomas.

Tori Neubauer, whose Wisconsin-LaCrosse team finished second with 83 points, set a new course record and missed the NCAA Division III women's championship record by .03 seconds with her 18:45 time in the 5,000-meter race.

The race was run in a steady rain on a muddy course after the Division III men's race.

In addition to Neubauer, Thometz and Hintz, the other top five individual finishers were Ylonka Wills of Barnard and Jennifer Colgrove of Allegheny.

Cynthia Nagle, Claremont-Mudd-Scripps, who was the highest returning finisher from last year (second), finished seventh; and Southeastern Massachusetts' Cathy Carnes, who was fourth last year, finished 10th.

Occidental edged Southeastern Massachusetts, 106-107, for third place.

Heels added their second goal at 69:30 on another unassisted goal by Amy Machin, a member of the all-tournament team.

The Tar Heels advanced to the championship by defeating Missouri-St. Louis, 2-1, while Central Florida downed Connecticut, 3-1.

Despite North Carolina's dominance of the championship, Central Florida players garnered all three top individual awards. Mary Varas was named the tournament's outstanding offensive player, Linda Gancitano was named the best defensive player and Central Florida's Kim Wyant was selected as most valuable player.

Besides Machin, others named to the all-tournament team were Marianne Johnson, North Carolina; Stephanie Zeh, North Carolina; Moria Buckley, Connecticut; Melissa Morrone, Connecticut; Donna MacDougall, Connecticut; Emily Pickering, North Carolina; Peggy Keough, Missouri-St. Louis; Stacy Nelson, Central Florida; Tora Buckley, Connecticut, and Janice Gettemeyer, Missouri-St. Louis.

Rifle student-athletes warned about prizes

Kenneth G. Germann, commissioner of the Southern Conference and chair of the NCAA Men's and Women's Rifle Committee, reports that student-athletes may be ruled ineligible for NCAA competition if they accept improper gifts or prizes awarded in various rifle tournaments.

According to Germann, some rifle competitors have been awarded merchandise items that cannot be personalized properly for placing in rifle tournaments. Germann cited a recent rifle competition, sponsored, in part, by a gun manufacturer, where prizes such as a $200 scholarship, air rifles and ice chests were awarded to competitors.

Jane Sarwin, Franklin and Marshall, no time available.

Under NCAA regulations, student-athletes who accept merchandise or cash prizes can be ruled ineligible.

Germann said that student-athletes and their coaches do not realize that accepting such prizes at rifle tournaments is illegal under NCAA rules.

"We've told the NRA (National Rifle Association) to get the word out that this practice is illegal," Germann said. "I think the problem lies in the fact that rifle is such a new sport, and the word hasn't circulated to the various groups involved."

Germann said that the National Federation of State High School Associations also is aware of the problem and is attempting to make high school student-athletes aware of the rule.

According to East Tennessee State coach Ray Carter, most college student-athletes competing in rifle are aware of NCAA rules, but in some cases a student-athlete may be unaware of NCAA rules and subsequently accept improper awards.

"You have to remember that there were a lot of tournaments sponsored by a variety of organizations before the NCAA took over," Carter said. "It's like a whole new generation of shooters has started to compete, and the word doesn't get out that accepting merchandise or cash prizes is illegal under NCAA rules."

Carter also said several rifle coaches also may be unaware of NCAA regulations.

Suit against Cornell settled out of court

Gretchen Downing, a former Cornell University women's gymnastics coach, has reached an out-of-court settlement in her sex discrimination suit against the university. She charged that Cornell paid female coaches less than male coaches, and she sought about $50,000, which included back pay and legal costs.

Injuries in diving focus of new booklet

In an effort to reduce the number of diving accidents each year, the National Swimming Pool Foundation has started a program aimed at teaching proper diving methods.

An eight-year study by the Arthur D. Little organization produced the following statistics:

- Approximately 500 diving-related spinal injuries occur each year.
- Only 25 percent of these injuries occur in swimming pools; 75 percent occur in a natural aquatic environment.

- More than 95 percent of the spinal injuries that occur in swimming pools happen in the shallow end of the pool; less than five percent occur in deep or diving areas.

- Following an incorrect dive, a water depth of 22 feet is necessary to slow a diver to a safe velocity.

- 90 percent of diving related accident victims are 13 to 23 years of age.

Because of these facts, the NSPF has published a booklet entitled "Knowing How to Dive." The booklet contains some do's and don'ts of diving.

The booklet is available from the National Swimming Pool Foundation at 10 cents per copy, and discounts are available for large quantities. To obtain the booklet or additional information, contact the National Swimming Pool Foundation, 2000 K Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20006.

Media guides needed

Sports information directors at NCAA member institutions are reminded to send copies of all media guides for winter sports—men's and women's—to the NCAA national office. A complete collection of media guides is kept on file in the national office library for reference purposes. Guides should be sent to: NCAA Library, P. O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

Questions about the library and its collections should be directed to Eric D. Zemper, research coordinator, at the NCAA national office.

Baseball Committee approves Pac-10 berth

Recommendation of a second automatic qualifying berth for the Pacific-10 Conference was among the significant actions taken by the NCAA Baseball Committee at its meeting in Kansas City November 8-11.

The decision would result in positions for both the Northern and Southern sections in the Pac-10's baseball-playing group. Gonzaga University, Portland State University and the University of Portland compete within the Pac-10 in baseball only.

A total of 24 automatic qualifiers again will be part of the 36-team field for the 1983 NCAA championship, pending Executive Committee approval. The Eastern College Athletic Conference, with berths for three section winners, is the only other conference with more than one spot. Requests from the Trans America Athletic and Midwestern City Conferences for automatic qualification were not approved.

The committee also received preliminary information about 1982 championship finances. Unofficial figures indicate that more than $35,000 in net receipts will be distributed to Division I institutions that participated. Divisions II and III again showed a deficit but had more success than in many other years.

Jerry A. Miles, director of men's championships for the NCAA, cited two primary reasons for the financial improvement: savings generated by the use of the NCAA travel service and sound placement of teams in regional tournaments by the committee.

"The committee tried to keep teams in their natural regions as much as possible," Miles explained. "This resulted in lower travel costs, plus better revenues because of improved attendance."

There was a discussion of rules approved for the 1983 season. In addition to reviewing collegiate rules, the committee discussed high school rules with Bradley A. Rumble, assistant

Basketball tryouts scheduled

The Amateur Basketball Association of the United States of America (ABAUSA) is inviting athletes to participate in trials to select teams that will represent the United States in women's basketball competition next summer.

Trials for two U.S. national teams will be held June 9-12 at the U.S. Olympic Sports Center in Colorado Springs. One team will compete in the world championships July 24 to August 6 in Sao Paulo, Brazil. A second team will compete in the Pan American Games August 14-20 in Caracas, Venezuela.

Trials for four regional teams to be

Government will mint coins for 1984 Olympic Games

The Federal government is about to begin minting silver and gold coins as a fund-raising project in support of U.S. participation in the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

The proof coins—$1 silver ones and $10 gold coins—will be legal tender, but they will cost about 25 times their face value.

The silver coins will sell for about $25, and the gold ones will cost more than $300. U.S. Treasurer Angela Buchanan said she hoped that two million gold coins and 50 million silver ones could be sold. Those are the numbers authorized by Congress.

A complete sellout would raise about $600 million, to be divided by the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee. Purchase of the coins will not be a tax-deductible expense as are many contributions to the Olympics.

The government will be reimbursed for its expense in the project.

Order forms for the coins probably will be available at banks and post offices, Buchanan said, and the offer will be advertised in newspapers and on radio and television.

Prices quoted in the initial order form are as follows:

—$24.95 for a 1983 silver coin.

—$48 for 1983 and 1984 silver coins.

—$352 for both silver coins and the 1984 gold coin.

Future prices will be adjusted in line with market prices for silver and gold.

Both Olympic committees had favored an earlier version of the plan that would have had private companies market many more commemorative coins. But they since have supported the current measure, which was sponsored in the U.S. House of Representatives by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Illinois.

Basketball triggers explosion of women's athletic conferences

Some of the names are familiar. Any sports fan, male or female, is likely to recognize conferences such as the Atlantic Coast, Big Eight and Southeastern.

But, unless you are tuned into women's sports and particularly women's basketball, conferences such as the High Country, Mountain West and Gateway are not likely to be very identifiable.

In the last year, there has been a small explosion in the number of women's athletic conferences. Many coincide with the traditional men's leagues. Almost all are centered on their basketball programs, and the lure of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship is a prime reason behind their development.

"I believe the majority of people in our conference felt the direction of women's athletics was moving toward the NCAA," said Lu Wallace, head of the High Country Conference and director of women's athletics at Brigham Young University. "We felt that if it was going to move that way, we wanted to have automatic qualification. It played a fairly large role in our decision to form a conference."

For the High Country, that decision was made in December 1981. The champions of the High Country and of a dozen other conferences will receive automatic bids to the 1983 NCAA Division I championship.

The NCAA Women's Basketball Committee took a hard look this summer at the strength of each conference and drew up guidelines for granting automatic qualification. Schedules for the coming season, along with results from last year, were scrutinized.

"The committee reviewed the material and made the automatic-qualification decision based on the strength of the conference and individual institutions' schedules, and also on the success the teams had during the 1981-82 season," said Ruth M. Berkey, NCAA assistant executive director.

For those conferences that were not selected for automatic qualification, the committee instituted an appeal process. Those conferences seeking automatic bids were asked to submit 1982-83 schedules, results from last season, a list of teams that had been nationally ranked the past two years and a list of conference members that had participated in NCAA, AIAW or National Women's Invitation Tournament postseason play.

The Mountain West Conference is one of the leagues that hopes to be granted automatic-qualification status in the future. When representatives of its member institutions first met to begin discussing the formation of the league, the question of the NCAA tourney was not a factor. However, it has become an important consideration since the Mountain West officially was formed in February.

"When we first started meeting two years ago, it was before the NCAA-AIAW problems were really that

Conference cancels rules experiment allowing six fouls

The Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference has canceled a proposed men's basketball rules experiment that would have permitted players six personal fouls before disqualification.

Conference athletic directors approved the experiment for the 1982-83 season in May. It would have been the only experiment of its kind conducted during the coming season.

However, interim commissioner Jerry Lovelace cited the numerous experiments being conducted around the country (most involving three-point plays and shot clocks) as the reason for the about-face.

Women's athletic teams at Southern California and Arizona State are members of the Western Collegiate Athletic Association, while men's teams at those institutions compete in the Pacific-10. Here, Pam McGee scores for the Trojans.

prominent," said Sharon Holmberg, executive director of the Mountain West. "Now, it works out that automatic qualification (for the NCAA tournament) is a consideration. That's the way to go."

Another consideration for many of the new leagues has been to develop a sense of identity.

"We were driving the media crazy with all the initials," Holmberg said. "We wanted an identifiable entity."

It helps if that entity coincides with a men's conference, but even the separate women's conferences believe their identities will begin to solidify as time passes.

"Six members of our conference have men's programs that are members of the Big Sky," said Holmberg. "The people at the Big Sky office have been a big help to us. They've been around for 20 years, and they are a great role model for us. So far, we don't feel like we are losing any identity."

It is that kind of conference identity that may help accelerate the growth of women's basketball.

"I think there is more media coverage given a school if you can say that you are champions of such-and-such a conference," Wallace said. "That's much better than simply saying, 'here's our record.'"

"It used to be a problem in this area when a team went to an AIAW championship, and the papers used to say it was an NCAA championship. Also, the papers would often identify our school as WAC (Western Athletic Conference) champions. But, that's begun to change the last couple of years."

Here's a look at the NCAA Division I conferences that sponsor women's basketball championships:

Executive Regulations

Editor's Note: The NCAA Executive Committee has adopted executive regulations consistent with the provisions of Constitution 6-3. Executive regulations may be amended at any annual or special Convention by a majority vote of the delegates present and voting in accordance with the procedures set forth in Bylaws 11-1, 11-2 and 11-3. Executive regulations are not subject to divided voting.

Executive Regulation 5-4, page 168, was revised as follows:

Section 4. Baseball and Softball Statistics. (a) Both teams in a 'Southern-tour' game shall agree prior to the game as to whether the game is to be counted for purposes of won-lost records and team and individual statistics. A game shall be counted or not counted by both teams, not by only one team.

Executive Regulation 2-1-(e), page 165, was revised as follows:

(c) The following procedures shall be observed by the chairs of standing or special committees of the Association in obtaining approval of a meeting site:

(1) Site recommendations shall be submitted by the committee chair to the NCAA executive director.

(2) Committees that meet more than once during the academic year shall conduct at least one-third of their meetings in the greater Kansas City metropolitan area.

(3) Committees that meet only once per year shall conduct their meetings in the greater Kansas City metropolitan area in alternate years.

(4) Only meetings of governing sports committees, as defined in Executive Regulation 1-2-(a), conducted away from the site of their championship's finals shall be considered in applying the provisions of Executive Regulations 2-1-(c)-(2) and (3).

Executive Regulation 2-1-(c), page 164, was revised as follows:

(c) The expense allowance that may be claimed by an individual attending an NCAA committee meeting shall be determined as follows:

(1) If a committee member travels via commercial airline, the member may travel via first class or coach accommodations. If the committee member travels via coach, an additional $100 may be claimed to apply toward local transportation and other expenses.

(2) If a committee member travels via automobile, the member may claim 20 cents per mile round trip, based upon the most direct route between the two points.

(3) A per diem allowance of $80 may be claimed for each day, or part thereof, away from home, except that no more than one day's travel each way may be claimed; further, only one-half day's allowance may be claimed for the day of departure from the meeting site.

[Note: Paragraph (4) remains unchanged.]

Executive Regulation 1-17, page 163, was revised as follows:

Section 17. Advertising. (a) Advertising policies of the NCAA are designed to exclude those advertisements that do not appear to be in the best interests of higher education. The executive director shall have the authority to rule in cases where doubt exists concerning acceptable advertisers and advertising copy of game programs, broadcasts and telecasts of NCAA championships; however, the following expressly are prohibited: alcoholic beverages (except malt beverages, beer and wine as limited hereafter), cigarettes or tobacco used for purposes of smoking, professional sports organizations or personnel (except as specified hereafter) and organizations promoting gambling.

[Note: Paragraphs (1) and (2) remain unchanged.]

Executive Regulation 1-17-(a)-(2), page 163, was revised as follows:

(2) Advertisements featuring active professional athletes from the sport for which an NCAA telecast, broadcast or game program is being produced shall be prohibited. Advertisements featuring active professional athletes in other sports may not comprise more than seven percent of the space devoted to advertising in a game program or 30 seconds per hour of any telecast or broadcast. Parties representing the NCAA in advertising sales or involved in advertising sales for NCAA telecasts, broadcasts or game programs shall take every reasonable step to discourage the use by advertisers of active professional athletes from sports regulated by the NCAA, informing the advertisers of the NCAA's desire that such professional athletes not be used. Every potential sponsor shall be advised of the terms of this provision prior to contracting with such sponsor. Advertisements in telecasts, broadcasts or programs are not acceptable that contain reference to or photographs of the games, personnel (except as noted above), broadcasts, telecasts or other activities of professional sports organizations. Advertising content in a game program shall not exceed 40 percent of the total pages in the program, including the cover pages.

Executive Regulation 1-8-(e), page 156, was revised by the addition of the following paragraph:

(8) An institution serving as host to a common-site championship may deduct the minimum amount described in Executive Regulation 1-8-(e)-(1) through (4) for both men's and women's championships.

Executive Regulation 1-6-(b)-(2)-(i), page 153, was revised as follows:

(b) Prior to recommending that a conference receive automatic qualification, a governing sports committee shall ensure that the conference:

(2) Has been an allied member of the Association for two consecutive academic years and has conducted competition in the sport in question for two consecutive years at the time of its application for automatic qualification.

(i) In order to be eligible for automatic qualification into the Division I Men's Basketball Championship, an allied conference must have been a member of the Association for three consecutive academic years and must have conducted competition in the sport of basketball for three consecutive academic years, provided it is composed of institutions that have been members of Division I more than five years. A conference that contains one or more institutions that have been members of Division I for less than five consecutive academic years is required to wait five years before becoming eligible for automatic qualification.

(c) In individual-team championships, member institutions from Division II and Division III may enter student-athletes in Division I meets and tournaments, provided the institution is in good standing and the individuals meet the prevailing eligibility requirements, including those in Bylaw 10-6-(c), and the following individual criteria of successful performance in the particular Division II or Division III championships:

(3) Men's gymnastics—first two finishers in each event and first two finishers in all-around competition in Division II.

(4) Women's Gymnastics—first two finishers in all-around competition in Division II.

[Note: Paragraphs (1) and (2) remain unchanged; renumber paragraphs (4) through (7).]

Despite its dominance during recent years, Texas-El Paso is not the all-time leader in NCAA Division I cross country team titles. The Miners have won seven, but the all-time leader has eight. Can you name that school?

Olympic training center opens

The U.S. Olympic Committee has opened a training center for winter sports in Lake Placid, New York, site of the 1980 winter Olympics.

This will be the second training center for American athletes sponsored by the USOC, which also operates a 34-acre training center in Colorado Springs.

The facilities at Lake Placid will be used by American athletes who compete in the seven Olympic winter sports. An administrator for the Lake Placid training facility is expected to be named soon.

Florida women take golf tourney

Florida bested 11 other women's golf teams in winning the second Women's University Golf Tournament in Monterrey, Mexico, November 13.

Florida shot 881 for 54 holes, followed by Texas Christian (885) and Tulsa (902).

Deb Richards of Florida was first in individual standings with 216, followed by Marci Bozarth of Texas Christian (217).

Portland to expand facilities

The initial portion of a $46.5 million capital-fund campaign at the University of Portland will be used to fund development of an athletic and convocation center, a racquet and recreation center, and track and soccer fields, including grandstands.

The athletic and convocation center will be the largest of the facilities, stretching 100 yards in diameter and 60 feet high. It will be designed to seat 5,000 people.

The three projects are expected to cost $7.7 million.

U.S. hockey team qualifies for '84

The United States no longer has to worry about whether its ice hockey team—the defending gold-medal winner—will have a place in the 1984 Olympic Winter Games in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

The International Ice Hockey Federation has been awarded an automatic berth as the result of its 1980 championship. The United States had been forced into a qualifying position when its national team finished last in the "B" Pool in the 1982 World Ice Hockey Championships.

Without the automatic berth, the 1983 national team—unlikely to be as competitive as the 1984 Olympic squad—would have had to finish fourth or higher in "B" play.

The 1984 U.S. Olympic ice hockey team will be selected from competitors in the 1983 National Sports Festival.

James K. Logan and Stephanie K. Seymour.

In a friend-of-the-court brief November 3, the U.S. Department of Justice agreed with Judge Burelaga that the NCAA restrictions violate Federal antitrust law, but Department of Justice lawyers said Burelaga went too far in declaring that the NCAA policy was on its face a form of price-fixing or a group boycott in violation of Federal antitrust law.

The NCAA, however, said the Department of Justice failed to answer the key question of whether the NCAA's restrictions are procompetitive and output-enhancing or anticompetitive and output-reducing.

NCAA lawyers have argued that unless the restrictions reduce output, they cannot harm consumers and therefore do not violate antitrust laws.

Frank Easterbrook, an attorney representing the NCAA, told the three-judge panel that "output" should be defined as the total number of viewers watching on television. Easterbrook added that the NCAA's television plan has increased attendance by limiting the total number of televised games.

Easterbrook also said the justice department brief had agreed with the NCAA that the case should be determined on the rule of reason; that is, whether the plan constitutes a reasonable activity by an association of educational institutions.

student-athletes could not exceed the value of tuition, fees, room and board, and required course-related books, plus $900.

These proposals are designed to benefit the student-athlete who needs additional financial assistance beyond the standard scholarship limits set forth in NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(1).

Proposal No. 40, sponsored by nine members of the Pacific-10 Conference, would exclude financial aid that is not based upon athletic ability from counting against an institution's maximum awards permitted in an "equivalency" sport.

The Pac-10 also is sponsoring Proposal No. 39, which would establish a maximum amount of $1,000 for the value of tuition and fees in the equivalency computational method. The proposal would allow member institutions to subsidize any tuition over $1,000 without the subsidy being counted in the equivalency calculation.

The nine Pac-10 sponsors of Proposal No. 40 also have formulated Proposal No. 41, which seeks to reduce the maximum number of awards from 95 to 80 in Division I-A football. The proposal also includes an addition to Bylaw 6-5-(c) that would establish a limit of 50 initial awards in any two-year period, retaining the limit of 30 in any one year.

Proposed dates for the implementation of that proposal are the 1984-85 academic year for the two-year plan and the 1985-86 academic year for the overall limit of 80 awards.

Convention delegates also face a proposal to reduce the number of maxi-geographical regions and the minimum allocations for women, as well as achieving the specific representation requirements in Division I. In addition, the continuing terms of incumbent Council members could not be interrupted, and the committee determined to give each Division I-A conference its first choice for Council service and to give every possible consideration to current non-Council members of the three division steering committees.

"Faced with all of those interrelated considerations, I believe the members of the Nominating Committee did an outstanding job," Samson stated. He also noted that members are free to submit nominations from the floor at the Convention as long as those nominations meet the same representation requirements as those they are intended to replace.

Kansas court reaffirms ruling

A May 27 ruling by the Kansas Supreme Court was reaffirmed November 13, ordering the NCAA to release specified confidential documents that were deemed by the court to be relevant to the processing of a libel suit filed by a student-athlete against a newspaper in Alabama.

Last spring, the Kansas court ordered the Association to release certain documents from its investigation into the recruitment of an Alabama high school basketball star. The information had been sought by the Birmingham (Alabama) Post-Herald to defend itself against a libel suit brought by the player and his former high school principal over an article in the newspaper that alleged the player was recruited improperly.

The Post-Herald obtained an order in an Alabama county circuit court demanding that the NCAA turn over all files on the recruitment investigation. The NCAA appealed the order in Johnson County (Kansas) District Court but was ordered to turn over all documents. The Association appealed the ruling to the Kansas Supreme Court, which partially reversed the order by determining that the only material to be released by the NCAA would be those documents deemed by the court to be clearly relevant to the processing of the libel case.

Two Kansas justices dissented from the ruling, stating that any disclosure order would make it difficult for the NCAA to conduct investigations into

Palmer

Of added significance in Palmer's career as a golfer is the magnetic personality that contributed to the growth in popularity of professional golf at the same time his success was growing. Palmer's fans informally became known as "Arnie's Army."

Palmer's business interests have been built along with his golf career, with the guidance and efforts of his business manager, Mark McCormack, and his organization.

Arnold Palmer Enterprises, a multi-division structure encompassing much of his commercial activities, is headed by Palmer as president. It is based in Cleveland and New York, with additional branch offices. He also owns a Cadillac dealership and is involved in the ownership of several country clubs.

which would permit an incoming student-athlete to receive financial aid during the summer prior to the student's freshman year.

Proposal No. 38, sponsored by six Division I institutions and one Division II institution, seeks to exempt certain institutional honorary awards from the definition of financial aid in Bylaw 6.

Regarding women multiple-sport participants, Council-sponsored Proposal No. 45 specifies that a woman student-athlete who is countable under financial aid limits and plays volleyball and another sport (other than basketball) must be counted in volleyball.

Proposal No. 46, sponsored by the Big Ten Conference, is the same as No. 45, except the proposal deals with field hockey instead of volleyball.

alleged violations of its rules.

Justice Harold Herd said the NCAA's promise of confidentiality for its records was its most powerful tool for gathering information and to remove that tool could impair the NCAA's ability to gather information.

Additional activities in which Palmer is involved include ProGroup, Incorporated, a sporting-goods manufacturer that markets various leisure-industry products (Palmer is on the board of directors), and a golf course design business called Palmer Course Design.

In addition to the Athlete of the Decade award, presented by the Associated Press, Palmer was the recipient of the 1960 Hickok Athlete of the Year and Sports Illustrated's 1960 Sportsman of the Year trophies. He is a charter member of the World Golf Hall of Fame at Pinchurst, North Carolina, and a member of the American Golf Hall of Fame at Foxburg, Pennsylvania.

His charitable and educational involvements have included a position since 1970 as honorary national chairman of the National Foundation March of Dimes.

Palmer's home and personal offices are located in Latrobe, Pennsylvania, 50 miles east of Pittsburgh in the foothills of the Allegheny Mountains. He now owns the Latrobe Country Club, where his father worked from 1921 until his death in 1976, serving as golf professional and course superintendent during much of that time.
