

NCAA basketball tournament wins top TV sports award

CBS-TV's production of the 1982 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship has been honored as the outstanding live sports special of 1981-82 by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The award was presented March 1 at the fifth annual Emmy Awards for Sports Programming in New York. It was the first time a basketball game of any type had received the award.

The 1982 championship in New Orleans matched the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, against Georgetown University. North Carolina won a thrilling 63-62 contest before the largest crowd in the history of college basketball (61,612) in the Louisiana Superdome.

Kevin O'Malley, executive producer of college basketball for CBS, accepted the award. O'Malley thanked his staff and coaches and players.

"I hope you can appreciate the people aspect of the event," O'Malley said. "We had hoped to rise to the occasion. That's what our business is all about."

The other four nominees for the prestigious award were Super Bowl XVI (CBS), the Masters golf tournament (CBS), the Kentucky Derby (ABC) and the U.S. Open golf championship (ABC). Events from July 1981 to June 1982 were eligible for nomination.

No more early signings: USFL

United States Football League representatives assured the American Football Coaches Association in a meeting March 3 in Dallas that the new professional league would not sign additional undergraduate student-athletes.

Representatives from the USFL, AFCA and the NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee met to discuss the New Jersey Generals' signing of Georgia's Herschel Walker to a multimillion-dollar contract. Walker, the 1982 Heisman Trophy winner, had one year of eligibility remaining for the Bulldogs.

Chet Simmons, commissioner of the USFL, said the league "will enforce the existent eligibility rules currently in effect in professional football. And, I can enforce them."

Simmons also invited the National Football League to a series of joint meetings "to pursue the development of a reasonable set of guidelines that would be considered to be legal" in the handling of undergraduate student-athletes.

Charles McClendon, executive director of the AFCA, accepted Simmons' statement and said USFL scouts would be welcome again on college campuses.

"The line of communication is now open with the USFL," McClendon said. "The incident is behind us and is now a dead issue. The USFL knew how we felt, and now we have to live together and work together. We (the AFCA) are very well satisfied."

McClendon was accompanied by coaches Emory Bellard of Mississippi State and George MacIntyre of Vanderbilt; Wiles Hallock, chair of the NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee; Carl James, commissioner of the Big Eight Conference, and Fred Jacoby, commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference. David E. Cawood, NCAA assistant executive director, also attended.

"We wanted to discuss the circumstances and explain the background of the Herschel Walker situation," Simmons said. "We wanted to make sure they understood that we will abide by the guidelines of eligibility in college football."

Bellard, who earlier in the week had said that USFL scouts would not be welcomed at Mississippi State, said he was satisfied to the extent that he now would allow USFL scouts at his practices.

Courts sidestep deciding whether Title IX applies to sports programs

Federal appeals courts recently decided two cases that were expected to clarify whether there are circumstances in which Title IX may apply to athletic programs that do not receive direct Federal aid.

Instead, the courts decided both cases on other grounds without addressing the fundamental question of whether the sports programs involved were covered by Title IX. However, the United States Supreme Court agreed February 22 to hear Grove City College vs. Bell, a Title IX case that does not involve athletics but which may result in a decision clarifying the scope of the statute generally.

One athletics case was Othen vs. Ann Arbor School Board, a private Title IX action brought by the father of two female high school student-athletes against the local school board. In that case, the plaintiff had alleged that the school board and the high school golf coach discriminated on the basis of sex in selecting members of the golf team.

Prior to the trial, the plaintiff dismissed all of his claims against the school board except his request for attorney's fees, based on the high school's plan to add a separate girl's golf team. The district court ruled that he had failed to state a claim for which relief could be granted and was not entitled to attorney's fees because the high school athletics program in question did not receive direct Federal financial assistance and therefore was not subject to Title IX.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit affirmed February 2 the judgment of the district court on other grounds, holding that the plaintiff was not entitled to attorney's fees because he was not a prevailing party within

Select Committee to discuss governance

Issues relating to the governance of intercollegiate athletics will be the primary topic on the agenda for the next meeting of the Select Committee on Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education April 5-6 in Atlanta, Georgia.

Included among those issues will be institutional control and responsibility, booster and alumni groups, the role and structure of the NCAA, the complexity of NCAA regulations, the authority and composition of the NCAA Council, and external forces affecting governance.

Another issue relating to athletics governance—enforcement procedures and penalties—was reviewed by the committee in its meeting in Chicago Sunday and Monday (March 6-7). Junior college transfers and various recruiting issues also were discussed in that meeting.

The committee does not announce any of its decisions or recommendations after its meetings because all will be subject to the committee's review in approving its final report this summer.

After the April 5-6 meeting in Atlanta, the committee will return to Chicago for another session April 30 and May 1. The agenda for that meet-

Home team has no advantage in play-offs

Historically, what are the chances of an NCAA regional tournament championship being won by a team playing on its regular home court or in its home city?

Ten teams have won a regional championship at home, using the above definition, out of the 496 teams that have competed in the four regionals during the 31-year history of this format. That makes the odds against such a winner nearly 50 to 1.

It happened five times in just the first seven years (that is, out of the first 112 teams; each regional has four teams in the round of 16). La Salle won the East in its home city of Philadelphia in 1954 and 1955, Temple won it in Philadelphia in 1956, Iowa won what is now called the Midwest at home in 1956 and Kentucky took the Midwest at home in 1958.

However, in the last 24 years, the odds lengthened to almost 77 to 1. Starting with 1959, just five home teams won regional championships—UCLA in 1969, 1973 and 1976, North Carolina State in 1974 and Indiana in 1981 (and all five went on to the National Collegiate Championship).

Actually, only 27 teams have even reached a regional on their home court or in their home city during the 31-year history. That makes the odds better than 18 to 1 against a home team advancing to the round of 16. Of those, 17 won the first, or semifinal game, and 10 of these went on to win the second, or championship game, while 10 were beaten in the first game of the regional.

The Midwest jinx

In the view of many fans, just having the regional at home is a hex. For instance, the 31 Midwest regionals never have been won by a home team. In fact, only five home teams even made their regional. Even though Kansas and Kansas State won most of the Big Eight titles in that span, just having the regional at home proved to be a jinx. In the eight Midwest regionals at Kansas, the home team made it just once, while rival Kansas State made it four times. Conversely, Kansas State was the host six times but the Wildcats never played in one, while Kansas did twice. In addition, Wichita State was the Midwest host three times but made it only once. Wichita State's only regional championship was won at Kansas State.

Excluding third-place games, the home-court or home-city teams have won 27, lost 17 for a .614 winning percentage in the 31 regionals.

An inexact science

Admittedly, defining a home-court crowd is an inexact science. However, expanding the definition to include a team from a nearby city or a team playing a regional in its home state would add 25 teams, eight of them regional champions: Kansas won at Kansas City in 1952, at Kansas State in 1953 and at Wichita in 1971; Illinois won at Chicago in 1953; Wichita State at Kansas State in 1965; Texas-El Paso at Texas Tech in 1966; Louisiana State at New Orleans in 1981, and North Carolina at North Carolina State in 1982.

Eight more such teams lost in the regional finals: Duke at Charlotte in 1960, Wake Forest at Charlotte in 1961, Kentucky at Louisville in 1961, California at San Francisco in 1958, Ohio State at Ohio in 1971, Kansas at Kansas State in 1960 and Kansas State twice at Kansas, in 1959 and 1961. (California won the West at San Francisco in 1959 but was playing another Bay Area team—St. Mary's, which was a neutral game.) The other nine such teams lost the first game of the regional.

Excluding third-place games, these teams from a nearby city or the same state won 24, lost 17 for a .585 win-

Deborah Temple of Delta State ranks second in scoring and fourth in rebounding

Ray McCallum has averaged 20.4 points a game for Ball State to rank among the leaders ning percentage over the 31 years. And just 25 such teams even reached the round of 16, making the odds against it nearly 20 to 1. Just eight winners figures exactly 62 to 1.

The Final Four

Over the same 31-year span, only three home-court or home-city teams even reached the Final Four. UCLA won the championship at the Los Angeles Sports Arena twice—in 1968 and 1972—while Louisville finished fourth at home in 1959. That's two home winners out of 124 teams. Adding the nearby city or home-state teams, Kentucky won the championship at Louisville in 1958, North Carolina State won it at Greensboro, North Carolina, in 1974 and UCLA won it at San Diego in 1975. Five others reached the Final Four. Kansas was second twice at Kansas City, in 1953 and 1957 (going all the way to Seattle for its only title in 1952; Kansas also was second a third time at Kansas City, in 1940, but that was before this 31-year span, in the days of eight-team NCAA tournaments); California was second at San Francisco in 1960 (it could be argued that this was a home-city case); Kansas State was fourth at Kansas City in 1964, and Purdue was third at Indianapolis in 1980.

First-, second-round home teams

Of the 363 first- and second-round games played during the same 31 years, only 44 involved a home-court or home-city team. The home team won 29, lost 15 of those. Once again, though, such games were far more prevalent in the early years of the format. Over the last 20 years, there have been only 24 such games among 283 first- and second-round games, a ratio of almost one in 12. The home team won 14 and lost 10. In the first 11 years, there were 20 such games of the 80 first-round games (no second round, smaller field in those years), or one in every four games. And the home team won 15 of the 20.

The 1983 picture

Regional hosts will tell you that a lot of time and effort goes into staging an NCAA regional or subregional, but they also will admit that they usually have hopes of seeing their home team play. Among the first- and second-round hosts this year are Houston and Louisville, and history suggests such top-ranked teams have a better chance of making it to their home city. The four regionals are at Tennessee (Midwest), Weber State (West), Kansas City (Midwest) and Syracuse (East); and the chances look slim at those sites. The Final Four is at New Mexico.

If it's March, it must be tournament time

The Women's Division I Basketball Committee will meet Saturday, March 12 to announce the teams and pairings for the second Division I Women's Basketball Championship. The championship format provides for a field of 32 teams; the bracket will be filled with a combination of at-large teams and champions of conferences that have been granted automatic qualification. Fourteen conferences were granted automatic qualification in 1983 (up from 13 in 1982): Atlantic Coast, Atlantic 10, Big East, Big Eight, Big Ten, Gateway, High Country, Metropolitan, Mid-American, Northern Pacific, Southeastern, Southwest, Sun Belt and Western Collegiate. At this time, four teams from conferences granted automatic qualification were headed for first-round competition: Maryland (Atlantic Coast), Penn State (Atlantic 10), St. John's (New York) (Big East) and Georgia (Southeastern).

Basketball City

Springfield, Massachusetts is the acknowledged birthplace of basketball, but Norfolk, Virginia is making a strong bid for Springfield's nickname of "Basketball City." Norfolk was the site for the inaugural NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship and will host the event again this year. Old Dominion, long a powerhouse in the sport, is expected to be a contender for the championship. The Norfolk State women's team has received a bid to the 1983 Division II tournament, the finals of which will be played in Springfield.

Let there be light?

Widener was scheduled to host a Middle Atlantic Conference women's championship game against Gettysburg at 6:30 p.m. and a MAC men's semifinal game against Moravian at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, February 24. The campus electric generator was uncooperative, however, and the following scenario resulted: At 8 p.m. Wednesday, a campus-wide power failure occurred. Electricity was restored at 7 a.m. Thursday, only to depart again at 3 p.m. A telephone call was placed to Gettysburg in an effort to prevent the team from making the trip to Widener but was too late—the squad already had departed. Widener officials had better luck reaching Moravian and arranged for the game to be postponed for a few hours while either an alternate location was found or the generator problems diagnosed. An emergency generator truck arrived at 7 p.m., and by 7:30 p.m., Schwartz Arena was lighted. However, the lights went out again at 7:45 p.m. The electricity alternately came on and went off for the next hour and 15 minutes. At 9 p.m., the Gettysburg women decided they had seen (or not seen) enough and returned home. An expert from the generator rental company subsequently arrived and diagnosed the problem as a faulty relay system. Power was restored again at 9:30 p.m. Meanwhile, the spectators who had arrived at 7:30 were still present, preferring the on again-off again atmosphere inside to the cold outside. The men's game finally began at 10:15 p.m. and was close, emotional and exciting from the tip-off, with Widener trailing by one or two points throughout. At 11:45 p.m., with 3:23 remaining and the score tied 55-all, the generator failed again. The expert was recalled; he repaired a fuel line that had ruptured and play resumed. Widener finally pulled out a 63-59 victory at 12:50 Friday morning. The headlines for the game story in local newspapers read: "Widener Powers to Win" and "Pioneers Turn Lights Out on Moravian." (Bruce Bryde, Widener SID)

No Miss-M*A*S*H

Among the millions of television viewers anxious to watch the final episode of the popular program M*A*S*H, which was aired February 28, were members of the Clarion State men's and Hartford women's basketball teams. Both teams were scheduled to play in first-round conference tournament games, Clarion State in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference and Hartford in the Northeast-8 Conference. The original 8 p.m. starting time for Clarion's game with Shippensburg State was changed to 7 p.m., so as not to miss the 8:30 start for M*A*S*H. Hartford coach Roger Wickman, whose team was to face Bentley, asked Bentley athletic director Al Shields for permission for his team to watch the program in the lobby of the school's Dana Athletic Center. (Rich Herman, Clarion State SID, and Dick Lipe, Bentley SID)

Quotes of the week

Morningside had recorded a 19-4 record, was ranked fourth nationally in the weekly Division II poll and was leading the North Central Conference when the Chiefs were upset at home, 87-79, by the conference's seventh-place team, Northern Colorado. Morningside coach Dan Callahan viewed the loss philosophically, remarking, "I guess we spent a lot of time in the penthouse, so now we're in the outhouse." (Alan Hansen, Morningside SID)

After Bakersfield State gained its 20th victory of the season by defeating California-Riverside on the road, 52-50, with a shot at the buzzer by guard Pete DeCasas, Bakersfield State head coach Bobby Dye was asked by a reporter to explain his team's four losses. Dye politely inquired whether the reporter had attended the just-completed game. Receiving an affirmative reply, Dye corrected, "The question is not how we managed to lose four; the question is how in the world did we win 20?" (Jeff Dimond, Bakersfield State SID)

Two-time consensus all-America Ralph Sampson, approaching the end of his college career, played in his final home game on March 6 against Maryland. Prior to the game, the 7-4 center was asked for his reaction to his last game on the Virginia campus: "Right now, I don't have too many thoughts about it. I'm going to just wait and see what happens on the court and how the fans react, and I guess I'll react to them too. I don't really know if I'll get caught up in the emotion. I just want to play hard and play well in my last home game. It is hard to believe that four years have passed so quickly. I can remember coming into the dorms in my first year and bringing all my things over from Harrisonburg (Virginia, his home). It's as clear as yesterday. Four years has been a very short time and basketball has been fun. But I guess everyone has to move on eventually." (Doyle Smith, Virginia sports information office)

Women's basketball challenges limitations

In just its second year, the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship already may be too big for its bracket.

With the growth of women's basketball and the development of more and more good teams, the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee is faced with a difficult task of narrowing a field to 32 teams. A strong case is being made by some for expansion of the tournament field.

"I'm in favor of expansion, but I'd like us to be able to show the women are capable of producing revenues to support it first," said Nora Lynn Finch, committee chair.

Nowhere is the plethora of qualified teams more evident than in the Southeastern Conference. Six teams in the league finished the season with 20 or more victories. Georgia (24-6) defeated Mississippi (25-5) last week in the final of the conference's postseason tournament, and Auburn, Kentucky, Louisiana State and Tennessee are legitimate candidates for at-large bids.

The committee loosened the log jam when it created four opening-round games March 15-16. These games will match the following conference champions: Ivy Group vs. Cosmopolitan, Mid-Eastern vs. East Coast, Southwestern vs. Ohio Valley and Southland Women's vs. Mountain West. Monmouth (New Jersey) from the Cosmopolitan, South Carolina State (MEAC) and Jackson State (SWAC) already have clinched opening-round berths.

The four opening-round winners will be fed into the 32-team championship bracket as No. 8 seeds. They will be joined by automatic qualifiers from 14 conferences and 14 at-large entries.

In addition to Georgia, St. John's (New York) has locked up a berth in the championship, thanks to a victory over Providence in the Big East Conference tournament.

Also in the field as automatic qualifiers are Atlantic Coast Conference tourney winner Maryland, Atlantic 10 conference tournament champion Penn State and High Country champion Utah.

Meanwhile, everyone is eyeing defending champion Louisiana Tech. The top-ranked Lady Techsters (26-1) have put together a 25-game winning streak since an early season loss to Southern California. That streak includes a win over Southern Cal in a January rematch.

The Lady Trojans have run up a 23-2 record and No. 2 ranking behind the inside play of twins Pam and Paula McGee and the all-around ability of freshman sensation Cheryl Miller. Rounding out the nation's top five, as of February 27, were Texas, Old Dominion and 1982 NCAA runner-up Cheyney State.

First-round games will be played March 17-20, followed by the regionals March 24-27. The final four again will meet in Norfolk, Virginia (April 1 and 3).

Here is a look at the top teams in each of the nation's automatic-qualifying conferences and the top independents, with season records as of March 6 in parentheses:

Opening Round—Cosmopolitan: *Monmouth (New Jersey) (14-14); East Coast: Delaware (12-11); Ivy: Dartmouth (18-7); Mid-Eastern: *South Carolina State (16-7); Mountain West: Montana (24-3) and Weber State (20-7); Ohio Valley: Middle Tennessee State (23-4); Southland Women's: Northeast Louisiana (20-5); Southwestern: *Jackson State (21-7).

Atlantic Coast—*Maryland (25-4), North Carolina (22-7) and North Carolina State (22-7).

Atlantic 10—*Penn State (24-6), Rutgers (19-10) and Temple (18-10).

Big East—Providence (21-5) and *St. John's (New York) (23-5).

Big Eight—Colorado (20-5), Kansas State (22-5) and Missouri (22-5).

Big Ten—Indiana (17-9), Minnesota (18-7), Ohio State (23-4) and Wisconsin (18-7).

Gateway—Drake (20-7), Illinois State (18-9) and Southern Illinois (20-8).

High Country—Brigham Young (17-8) and

USC's Cheryl Miller

*Utah (22-6).

Metro—Cincinnati (18-9), Florida State (23-4) and Memphis State (16-10).

Mid-American—Central Michigan (19-8).

Northern Pacific—Oregon State (21-5) and San Jose State (17-9).

Southeastern—Auburn (22-7), *Georgia (24-6), Kentucky (23-4), Louisiana State (20-7), Mississippi (25-5) and Tennessee (23-7).

Southwest—Arkansas (19-7), Texas (25-2) and Texas Tech (20-7).

Sun Belt—Old Dominion (24-5) and Western Kentucky (20-6).

Western Collegiate—Arizona State (22-6), Long Beach State (21-6), Southern California (23-2) and UCLA (18-9).

Independents and others—Cheyney State (26-2), Cleveland State (23-6), Louisiana Tech (26-1), Nevada-Las Vegas (24-4), St. Peter's (25-3) and Stephen F. Austin State (18-6).

Wisconsin tops defending champion, eyes Division I hockey play-off spot

If conference tournament results are any indication, there could be a new champion in Division I men's ice hockey this year.

North Dakota's Fighting Sioux, champions in 1980 and 1982, were defeated by Wisconsin in the second round of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association play-offs. North Dakota (21-13-2) still might be selected for the 1983 NCAA Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship and have a chance to defend its title, but it will have to qualify as an at-large entry.

Wisconsin (27-10-4), runner-up last year, will play top-ranked Minnesota (30-8-1) this weekend for the WCHA championship and an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament. Minnesota-Duluth (28-14-1) is the other remaining WCHA contender for an at-large spot.

Two other automatic bids will be determined this weekend, as play-off action in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association and the Eastern College Athletic Conference is completed. Four teams still are alive in both leagues.

In the CCHA, regular-season champion Bowling Green State (27-7-4), led by the nation's leading scorer, Brian Hills, takes on Northern Michigan (18-16-4) in one semifinal. The other semifinal pairs Michigan State (28-10-0) with Ohio State (25-8-5).

In the ECAC play-offs, Providence (27-8-0 through February 26) is the top-seeded team after the first-round competition. Others remaining alive for this weekend's action are Harvard (17-7-1), New Hampshire (18-8-1) and St. Lawrence (21-6-1). Clarkson, Boston University and Rensselaer have been among the other strong Eastern teams.

Eight teams will participate in the NCAA championship. In addition to the three automatic qualifiers, two at-large teams will be selected from the West region and three from the East region.

First-round play will consist of two-game, total-goals competition March 18, 19 or 20. The top two seeds in the East and the West will host first-round games.

Winners from the first-round games will advance to the national semifinals and finals at North Dakota. The semifinals will be played March 24 and 25; the third-place and championship games are scheduled for March 26.

CCHA and ECAC representatives will be trying to overcome the traditional strength of the WCHA. In the past four years, only one current non-WCHA team (Northern Michigan in 1980) has reached the final game. The final games have included at least one WCHA team in all but one of the past 10 years, that in 1978 when Boston University and Boston College were matched.

Tournament berths go down to wire

The possibilities are almost endless in the 1983 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

Can North Carolina become the first team to repeat as champion since UCLA turned the trick a decade ago? Can Ralph Sampson finally lead Virginia to the national title? How about UCLA—are the Bruins capable of winning trophy No. 11?

If you really like long odds, what are the possibilities of a repeat Final Four? The only time that has come close to happening was in 1967 and 1968 when UCLA, Houston and North Carolina made back-to-back trips. Last year's final foursome of the Tar Heels, Cougars, Louisville and Georgetown all have legitimate championship aspirations; depending on how they might be placed in the bracket, each could make it to Albuquerque, New Mexico, April 2 and 4 for the semifinals and final.

Then, there is surprising Nevada-Las Vegas, resurgent Kentucky, and Villanova and St. John's (New York) from the Big East Conference. Or, how about darkhorses such as Arkansas, Missouri and (take your pick) almost anyone in the top half of the Big Ten Conference?

As usual, what it all adds up to is a competitive field. It is a field that will be difficult to evaluate until it is announced March 13.

It is a foregone conclusion that upsets in postseason conference tournaments will lead to some last-minute shuffling by the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee. It also looks as if the committee will have to hold until the last minute in the Big Ten, Western Athletic and West Coast Athletic Conferences, where regular-season races (none of the three has a postseason tournament) are headed down to the final weekend.

There also is a chance that Washington State could catch UCLA in the Pacific-10 Conference, pending the outcome of games this weekend.

The only thing for certain right now is that Alabama-Birmingham, Princeton and North Carolina A&T will be in the field somewhere. UAB pulled a mild surprise by winning the Sun Belt Conference tourney last weekend, while North Carolina A&T prevailed in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference postseason tournament. Princeton finished a game ahead of Pennsylvania in the Ivy League, which does not have a tournament.

In addition to the difficult task of selecting 24 at-large entrants, the committee also must select the eight teams that will meet in the new opening-round double-headers March 15. The winners will be placed in the 48-team bracket as No. 12 seeds. Those eight teams, which will be from automatic-qualifying conferences, will be selected based on their 1982-83 competition.

First-round play in the championship will get under way March 17 and 18. The second round will be played March 19 and 20, followed by regional play March 24-27.

Here is a look at the leading teams from each of the automatic-qualifying conferences and the top independents, with season records through games of March 7:

Atlantic Coast—Maryland (19-8), North Carolina (25-6), North Carolina State (17-10), Virginia (26-3) and Wake Forest (17-10).

Atlantic 10—Rutgers (21-6), St. Bonaventure (19-8) and West Virginia (20-7).

Big East—Boston College (22-5), Georgetown (21-8), St. John's (New York) (24-4), Syracuse (19-8) and Villanova (21-6).

Big Eight—Missouri (24-6), Nebraska (18-8), Oklahoma (23-7) and Oklahoma State (21-6).

Big Sky—Idaho (20-7), Montana (21-7), Nevada-Reno (17-10) and Weber State (21-7).

Big Ten—Illinois (19-10), Indiana (22-5), Iowa (18-8), Minnesota (18-8), Ohio State (19-8) and Purdue (18-8).

East Coast—American (18-9), Hofstra (18-8) and Rider (19-8).

ECAC—North: Boston U. (18-9) and New Hampshire (15-11); Metro: Long Island (18-8) and Robert Morris (19-7); South: William and Mary (19-7).

Ivy—Princeton (18-8).

Metro—Louisville (27-3), Memphis State (21-6) and Virginia Tech (21-9).

Mid-American—Bowling Green State (20-7) and Ohio (19-8).

Mid-Eastern—*North Carolina A&T (23-7).

Midwestern City—Loyola (Illinois) (18-9) and Xavier (20-7).

Missouri Valley—Illinois State (21-6).

Ohio Valley—Murray State (21-6).

Pacific Coast—Fullerton State (21-6), Nevada-Las Vegas (25-2) and Utah State (20-7).

Pacific-10—Oregon State (17-9), UCLA (22-4) and Washington State (22-5).

Southeastern—Georgia (18-9), Kentucky (21-6), Louisiana State (19-11), Mississippi State (17-10) and Tennessee (17-10).

Southern—East Tennessee State (20-7), Marshall (20-7) and Tennessee-Chattanooga (23-3).

Southland—Lamar (20-7) and Louisiana Tech (19-8).

Southwest—Arkansas (25-2) and Houston (25-2).

Southwestern—Alabama State (22-5) and Texas Southern (21-6).

Sun Belt—*Alabama-Birmingham (19-13), South Florida (21-9) and Virginia Commonwealth (23-7).

Trans America—Arkansas-Little Rock (22-5) and Houston Baptist (20-8).

West Coast—Pepperdine (19-8) and Santa Clara (20-7).

Western Athletic—Brigham Young (14-14), Texas El Paso (19-9) and Utah (15-13).

Independents and others—DePaul (16-10), Iona (21-8), Marquette (18-9), New Orleans (22-6), Notre Dame (18-9), South Carolina (20-8), Southwestern Louisiana (22-5) and Stetson (19-9).

Top three '82 fencing teams back for women's title bid

The top three teams from the 1982 championships highlight the field selected to compete in the 1983 NCAA Women's Fencing Championships. The competition is scheduled March 17-19 at Pennsylvania State University.

Defending champion Wayne State (Michigan) heads the team category but will have 1982 runner-up San Jose State and third-place finisher Ohio State as challengers.

Only two of the top six 1982 individual finishers return, led by runner-up Ruth Botengan of Northridge State. Third-place finisher Gina Farkashazy of Wayne State also returns.

The complete field is as follows:

Teams
West—San Jose State, Stanford; Midwest—Wayne State (Michigan), Ohio State, Notre Dame; Mid-Atlantic/South—Penn State, Pennsylvania, Temple; Northeast—Barnard, Cornell, Yale; At Large—Wisconsin.

Individuals
West—Ruth Botengan, Northridge State; Cathy Kay, San Jose State; Katy Koomb, San Jose State; Alison Reid, Stanford.

Midwest—Gina Farkashazy, Wayne State; Holly Hamilton, Wisconsin; Csaga Hovany, Ohio State; Susan Valdiserri, Notre Dame; Georgann Weisgerber, Wisconsin.

Mid-Atlantic/South—Rachael Hayes, Temple; Sandy Hill, Princeton; April Miller, Penn State; Mary Jane O'Neill, Pennsylvania; Hanne Skattebol, Penn State.

Northeast—Diana Mendley, Yale; Andrea Metkus, Yale; Sharon Monplaisir, Hunter; Lisa Piazza, Barnard; Randi Somet, St. John's (New York).

Caulkins leads Florida's women swimmers

Florida has quality, Stanford has depth and both have a chance to win the Division I Women's Swimming and Diving Championships March 17-19 at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

"I think we are clearly the third best team in the meet, on paper," said coach Richard Quick of Texas. "There is no question that Florida and Stanford are the teams to beat."

If that is the case, what do the cofavorite coaches have to say? "I think we're in a pretty good situation at this point; we are in pretty good shape heading into the NCAA championships," said Florida's Randy Reese. "We are coming off a respectable SEC (Southeastern Conference) meet."

Define respectable as 19 Gator victories in 24 events. Possibly the most well-known women's swimmer of all-time, Florida's Tracy Caulkins won five events and set a conference record in the 200-yard butterfly with a clocking of 1:57.66.

"With Tracy in the meet, people realize that she will get her share of the pie," said Reese, in reference to the upcoming national championships. "The rest of our team will have to swim well for us to get the other pieces."

On the West Coast, Stanford coach George Haines saw his Cardinal swimmers cop the Western Collegiate Athletic Association crown and is preparing for a major challenge to Florida's status as defending champion.

"If we are going to have a real chance of winning, our borderline people have to come through, and we must be real solid in the relay events," Haines said. "But Florida may just have too many front-line people for us. If I see any weakness in them at all, it may be that Randy may not be able to put as many front-line people in the relay events as he would like to. It all depends on how he looks at the meet and where he feels he needs to be strongest."

Quick is not ready to count his Texas squad out, however.

"We have a chance to finish higher than third, but to do that, the rest of the field would have to cut into Florida's and Stanford's depth," Quick said. "I think we can be a factor no matter what happens, because our performance could determine who wins the meet."

"Our challenge going into the meet is to be as close to Florida and Stanford as possible and hold off the challenges I'm sure we'll get from North Carolina and Southern California."

The Tar Heels successfully defended their Atlantic Coast Conference title, and coach Frank Comfort seems optimistic. "We have quite a few athletes qualified for the meet, and our entire team needs to swim well. I feel like everybody we are bringing to the meet is capable of scoring well. Winning the championship is unlikely for us, but it certainly is not out of the question."

Southern California also seems a legitimate contender for a high finish. The Trojans finished second to Stanford in the WCAA championships, and coach Don LaMont said the relays events are critical to the outcome of the meet.

"We maybe have a little more depth than some of the other teams in the meet, but I think the relays will be a big factor. Each coach will decide where he wants to be strongest."

"For example, Texas will be tough in the 400-yard freestyle, and we will be strong in the 800 free. North Carolina will be strong in the medley relays. I would like to think that we have a chance to do real well," LaMont said.

Division II Women's Swimming

A four-team race is shaping up for the 1983 NCAA Division II Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, which will be contested with the men's competition at the Belmont Plaza Pool March 16-19 in Long Beach, California.

"The women's meet really is a mystery at this point," said Peter Accardy, head coach of Northridge State's 1982 men's and women's champion teams.

"Rumors are about all anybody can go on, but it looks like Clarion State, California-Davis, Furman and Northern Michigan will be the strongest entries."

"I don't believe we will be as strong in the women's meet as we will be in the men's competition," said Accardy. "Clarion, for example, has a strong diving program, and diving is one of our weaknesses this season. I think the meet probably will come down to one of those other teams."

Clarion State coach Becky Rutt agrees. "I think we will be very strong but so will Cal-Davis and Furman. And there could be even more people that get hot at the meet. Things could get very tough out there."

Even so, Rutt has reason to be optimistic. Despite an abundance of freshmen this year, Clarion State recently won its eighth consecutive Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference title, taking 20 of 24 events. The Golden Eagles also swept first through sixth places in both the one- and three-meter diving competition.

"We have a lot of versatility and depth this year, and I feel like we have some definite first-place people," Rutt said. "But to win the meet, we will need a lot of help from our relays."

A similar sentiment was voiced by California-Davis coach Richard Henderson. "The key to our success at this meet will be getting all of our relay teams in the top six in their races. That is where we can win the meet."

If hard work counts, Furman should finish at or near the top. Lady Paladin coach Howard Wheeler has developed a different approach to premeet training.

Wheeler said his team spent its spring break in training and will continue strenuous workouts until the last minute. "I work the girls harder for a longer period of time, because I don't think they need as much rest as one might expect."

"Last season, we went from 19th place the year before to fifth place, so the training routine worked. We swam well as a group, and that is our goal this year. We have everyone back, and they are all working hard."

Northern Michigan coach Joan Peto will back up Wheeler on that. Two of her swimmers suffered debilitating burns in a grease fire during the Wildcats' December training trip to Florida, seemingly dashing her hopes for a championship.

"We are deeper than we were last year, but we have had a lot of problems. Losing Julie Bauman and our freshman diver, Diane Battles, because of burns really hurt."

"On the positive side, our diving has improved 200 percent. But because of the competition, I think we have to be better as a team than we were a year ago. I think we'll be as strong as we were last season but maybe not stronger."

Division II swimming field led by Matadors

Peter Accardy is certain to be a busy man March 16-19 at the Belmont Plaza Pool in Long Beach, California. Accardy is the head coach of Northridge State's NCAA Division II champion swimming teams, and he is all set to juggle duties as he tries to lead both the Matadors' men's and women's squads to repeat titles.

"I think it's going to be a real zoo," Accardy said. Although his women's team is not as strong as it was a year ago, Accardy is very optimistic about his men's chances.

"If we compete as well as we did last year, I think we are the team to beat. The meet probably will be a lot closer in scoring than some people might expect, but I think you will see Northridge, Chico State and Oakland battling for the title."

"We are very deep, and we have a lot of people who can score well. Our diving is very strong, too. I think Oakland has a lot of first-place strength."

"Chico State may be the surprise team of the meet. Chico is a lot like we are in terms of depth, diving and overall scoring potential," Accardy said.

Chico State's depth already has paid dividends this season. The Wildcats scored 819 points in their conference meet, the highest total in coach Clark Yeager's tenure.

"We have a fairly large team going to Long Beach, and I can see a couple of our people winning their events," Yeager said. "But to win the meet outright, we have to do well in the freestyle events."

"We seem to be on a roll right now, too. The kids think they can do it, and I certainly am not going to get them thinking anything different."

Oakland coach Peter Hovland took a different approach to the regular season and got good results. Included in Oakland's regular-season accomplishments were dual-meet victories over Michigan State and 1982 Division III champion Kenyon.

"Our ultimate goal, as it has been every year, is to win the title," Hovland said. "I think Northridge definitely is the team to beat, but we hope to get some help from some of the other teams at the meet. If they can take away some of Northridge State's power, we may be in good shape."

One of the teams that could be a "spoiler" is California-Davis. "We are not quite as powerful as we have been in past seasons," said Mustangs' coach Jerry Hinsdale. "We have some talented people swimming in the meet, though."

"I do not see us with enough depth to finish in the top three, but we certainly will score some points and should conservatively finish in the top five or seven."

Division III Men's Swimming

Superlatives are a dime a dozen when Division III men's swimming coaches talk about the 1983 NCAA championships, set for March 17-19 at the C. T. Branin Natatorium in Canton, Ohio.

"I have predicted that every Division III national record will fall," said coach James Steen of Kenyon. "I think we are in for some startling individual and team performances." The Lords have won the last three team titles but face what could be their toughest test ever in Claremont-Mudd-Scripps.

"I think Claremont has the finest group of talent ever assembled at a Division III school," Steen said. "It looks like the meet will come down to Kenyon and Claremont, but I wouldn't call it head-to-head competition. It is going to be a battle between our depth and their talent."

"Claremont has some pretty sure winners. It's just a matter of how fast they go. This is a good, fast pool, so I know the times will be exceptional. If anything, all the talent and depth may cut into our chances of winning. If we want to stay with Claremont, we will have to place a lot of people in every event."

Claremont-Mudd-Scripps coach Michael Sutton is confident, although not ready to claim victory. "You know, we have gotten some nice publicity and that has been a great pat on the back for our kids."

"But I really think the only chance we have to win this meet is if we swim great and everybody else takes some

West Virginia is favorite in rifle

West Virginia looks like the team to beat in the National Collegiate Men's and Women's Rifle Championships March 18-19 at Xavier University in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Mountaineers have been the premeet favorite the past two years but have lost close matches to Tennessee Tech, the only national champion in the three-year history of the competition. In 1982, the Eagles' margin of victory was one point. The year before, three points was the difference.

"For the past two years, we have gone into the championship match, shot our season average and won," said Tennessee Tech coach James Newkirk. "I do not believe we can shoot our average and win it this time."

"The way people have been performing for the last three or four weeks, if we shoot our average I believe we will win it," countered West Virginia coach Edward Etzel. "One thing in our favor is that this team knows it can score well on that range. We fired our season high in smallbore at Xavier earlier this year."

Another potential contender is East Tennessee State.

"We will have to fire quite well to have a chance at winning the championship, but it is not impossible," said Buccaneer coach Ray P. Carter. "And we're just about due for a good match, too. You never know what to expect at this meet. There always seems to be a surprise."

The eye-opener this time around may come from Murray State. "I don't think you can count Murray out," said Newkirk. "They have balance, and this meet is a golden opportunity for them. Murray State is a power to contend with."

"We're hopeful of doing well, and we have been shooting pretty consistent all year long," said Racers' coach Elvis Green. "Winning the championship will be hard to do, but if everyone has a good day, it is possible."

Two individual matches also will be contested, and early indications point to more close competition in both the smallbore and air-rifle events. Carter has been serving as an unofficial records/keeper and found it easy to pinpoint the top contenders.

"The smallbore competition should be excellent," he said. "Tony Leone of Tennessee Tech has been shooting around 1,164 (1,200 is a perfect score), and Ray Slonena of Tech has been averaging around 1,163."

"West Virginia has three shooters with fine averages at this point. Dave Johnson is right around 1,160. David Ridenour has averaged 1,154 and Bob Broughton is at 1,157. And I understand Jens Nygard has returned to shoot and has done quite well."

"Joe McGuigan at East Tennessee State has been shooting right around 1,167, and Elizabeth McKay is at 1,156. David Canella of the U.S. Military Academy has fired around 1,155. So, I think you can see the potential for a close smallbore match is evident."

That potential seems to carry over to the individual air-rifle event as well.

"The averages here are very close, too," Carter explained. "Ray Slonena of Tech has a 386 (400 is perfect); Dave Johnson and Dave Ridenour of WVU are at 384 and 382, respectively, and Elizabeth McKay from East Tennessee State has fired around 383."

"I look for another very close meet," said Murray State's Green. "I hope everybody has a good day, because all of the shooters have worked very hard to get to this point. It should be an excellent championship."

points away from Kenyon's depth. Jim Steen and his team have the edge at this point, based on their numbers and experience. They have been there many times before. We are kind of the new kids on the block."

Even so, Sutton has a lot of talent on the squad he will take to Canton. The top performers are Doug Jones, sophomore, and Tom Harrison, a freshman. Jones set three records in last year's championships, and Harrison's high school times in the individual medleys were lower than the current records.

Changes made in enforcement area

Two personnel changes have been announced by the NCAA enforcement and legislative services department.

Michael M. Gilleran, an enforcement representative since 1976, has been named assistant director of enforcement; and Kevin J. McCormick has joined the staff as an enforcement representative.

Gilleran was named to the position following the departure of Ronald J. Stratten, who left the Association to enter private business.

McCormick, a graduate of Xavier University, has served for the past two years as an assistant football coach at the University of Notre Dame. His duties included coordinating computer programming and film analysis for scouting purposes.

McCormick participated in three years of varsity football competition at Moeller High School in Cincinnati under Gerry Faust, who later became head football coach of the Irish. A business administration major at Xavier, McCormick was employed as a sales and service representative with the McCormick Equipment Company before joining the staff at Notre Dame.

March 11: New Rochelle at Clark; Minnesota-Morris at North Central. March 12: Kean at Elizabethtown; Knoxville at Wisconsin-LaCrosse.

Harrison is a strong favorite in the 400-yard and 200-yard individual medleys.

"I'd like to be there at the top when the meet is over, but we are probably a year away," Sutton said. "If we have another good recruiting year, we could be pretty tough next season."

The quality vs. depth battle is nothing new to Kenyon. Johns Hopkins coach Tim Welsh recalled a similar situation three years ago. "We got in that kind of fight with Kenyon and lost. That was when they (Kenyon) won their first team championship of the string."

Welsh said the Blue Jays need a lot of help to get in a fight for the title this time around. "You have to be able to score in every event to win the team championship, and, in that respect, we have some giant holes. We're going to the meet with a three-part philosophy.

"If we can get a lifetime best out of every swimmer, if our relays swim as fast as possible and if the people on our team who have never scored at the NCAA meet will score this year, our finish will take care of itself. If we do those things, we can be right up there."

Tufts coach Donald Megerly is hoping for a repeat of 1982 from his swimmers. "Last year, we went from the New England championships to the NCAA meet and swam faster. We had an exceptionally good meet and hope we can do that again this season. Our sprinters and relays should do well, but Claremont has the potential of winning the meet just on sheer first-place finishes."

Championship Corner

1. The order of events for the women's heptathlon has been changed by the International Amateur Athletic Federation and The Athletics Congress, switching the shot put and the high jump. The NCAA Women's Track and Field Committee has agreed that these changes will be made in the heptathlon competition for the 1983 outdoor track championships in all three divisions. The new order of events is the 100-meter hurdles, high jump, shot put and 200-meter dash on the first day, with the long jump, javelin and 800-meter run contested on the second day.

2. The Division II subcommittees of the Men's and Women's Track and Field Committees will consider proposed budgets from institutions interested in serving as host for the 1983 Division II Men's and Women's Cross Country Championships. Institutions wishing to submit a proposed budget for consideration should contact Cynthia L. Smith, assistant director of championships, at the NCAA national office.

Doom, Compton make UCLA tough to beat

By David P. Seifert

The NCAA News Staff

If Debbie Doom can top her debut in NCAA championship play last year as a freshman, it will have to rank as one of the great accomplishments in college sports.

Doom pitched UCLA to the 1982 Division I women's softball title with five victories in the first Softball College World Series. She allowed just one run in 41 2/3 innings, had 62 strikeouts, tossed one complete-game no-hitter and shared another no-hitter with teammate Tracy Compton. She warmed up for that performance with a no-hit victory in regional play.

UCLA coach Sharron Backus concedes that it will be "hard to top" that freshman performance but says Debbie is "working on her strength in case she has to pitch that many games again."

The fact that Doom was not supposed to pitch that much in the finals—but was forced to because of an injury to Compton, another freshman sensation—is just one of the reasons the Bruins are a solid favorite to repeat as Division I champion in 1983.

Backus says "the kids are responding well" to the defending-champion status and a preseason No. 1 ranking. The pitching staff, led by Doom (11-2, 0.31 earned-run average overall last year) and Compton (10-2, 0.21), opened the season with five straight shutout victories. All-America shortstop Dot Richardson (.329) also returns.

Domination of the game by pitchers like Doom and Compton could be one of the few worries for women's softball, which entered NCAA sponsorship with substantial success in 1982.

"We were very pleased with the support," NCAA Women's Softball Committee Chair Mary Higgins Creighton University, said of the first Softball College World Series. "We drew about 17,000 fans to the series, and the opening game was viewed by 3,500; we believe that was the largest crowd ever to see a women's softball game."

"It can be a problem when two high-caliber pitchers face each other," she acknowledges, "because not all fans appreciate the pitching skill.

"Although the committee has not discussed any rules modifications to increase offense, it might be a good idea to consider some changes."

Backus also acknowledged that help for the offense might be a good idea but emphasized that "it could go both ways—we have noticed some real fan appreciation from those who follow our team on a regular basis. In many cases, the fans are amazed by the talent, not bored by the result."

Higgins also emphasized that the astounding pitching match-ups usually do not occur during the regular season, only during tournament play, and that most fans like the quickness of women's softball games, which average less than 1 1/2 hours in duration.

Although the return of Doom and Compton indicates that 1983 could be a year similar to 1982 in Division I women's softball, change could occur due to the arrival of several strong teams that competed in Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women play last season.

The best of these teams is Texas A&M, ranked No. 2 in a preseason poll and most likely challenger to UCLA. The Aggies also have a pair of dominant pitchers, all-America Lori Stoll (24-4, 0.35) and Shan McDonald (22-2, 0.43). Shortstop Carrie Augusten (.366) leads Texas A&M's hitters.

UCLA will have plenty of competition in the West region, with four other nationally ranked teams. Fullerton State seems to be the strongest of them, helped by all-America outfielder Sue Lewis (.311 batting average, nine home runs-50 runs batted in).

Utah State appears to be Texas A&M's top foe in the Central region, with pitcher-outfielder Mary Lou Ramm (10-6, 0.80; .298) leading the way.

The Midwest region is expecting a two-way battle for prominence between Western Michigan, a finals team last year, and Central Michigan. Both teams will rely on outstanding pitching, with all-America Bonni Kinne (17-2, 0.15) anchoring Western's efforts and Jenelle Zook (13-2, 0.65) leading Central.

Three teams emerged from the Midwest region last year to reach the Softball College World Series, including host Creighton. The Lady Jays will be strong again this year, but Oklahoma State may be even better. Creighton has three pitchers returning with earned-run averages under 1.00 in Ann Coughenour (9-0, 0.46), Marcia Jacobsen (11-3, 0.48) and reliever Candi Letts (9-5, 0.65, nine saves). Oklahoma State will be led by shortstop Jan Krug and pitcher Tracey Huclock (7-1, 0.78).

Two of the nation's top six teams are from the Northwest region, and Fresno State and California probably will battle for dominance all season. Pitchers Wende Ward (24-6, 0.39) and Barbara Cambridge (17-2, 0.93) give Fresno a staff that is hard to match, but California's Margaret Sutter is 42-10, 0.53 during her career. Outfielder Kelly Kirkland (.300) also returns for California.

Several teams look like possible contenders from the Northeast region, with 1982 tournament team Adelphi having the early advantage. Connecticut and Massachusetts are other possible national contenders from this area.

In the South, Louisiana Tech appears to be a clear favorite. Pitcher Tami Cyr (21-5, 0.81) and catcher Lee Ann Jarvis (.346, 6-28) form one of the nation's best combinations.

The Atlantic region does not have such a clear favorite. Bowling Green State represented the area in last year's tournament, but Rutgers and Delaware appear to be more likely choices for 1983. Pitcher Sharon Martin has won 27 games for Rutgers.

Some of the other top teams and individuals include:

Northeast

Teams—Rhode Island, Brown, Iona.

Players—Shortstop Allyson Rioux, Massachusetts; catcher Mary Schneider, Connecticut; pitcher Tracey Dickerman, Brown; third baseman Pat Horne, Harvard; catcher Jackie Gaw, Massachusetts; pitcher Sherri Denis, Maine; outfielder Jackie Sullivan, Niagara; pitcher Linda Gure-

Changes in designated-hitter rule should give coaches more options

Understanding the role of a designated hitter can prove to be confusing to coaches as well as fans. Understanding the limits on the use of a designated hitter can be even more confusing.

The NCAA Women's Softball Committee has revised the special rule for entry of designated hitters to minimize that confusion and help coaches.

The major rule change from the 1982 season is that a designated hitter now can enter the game and play defense. According to Mary Higgins of Creighton University, chair of the committee, that change is designed to "give more flexibility to the coaches."

The designated-hitter rule is the major departure from the Amateur Softball Association Rules that are used in NCAA championship play (a provision specifying the size of uniform numbers also differs from the ASA rules). Its use during the regular season is optional, depending upon a pregame agreement by both coaches.

"We encourage the use of the rule," Higgins said, "especially during invitational tournaments."

Modifications and interpretations of specific situations naturally occur as the DH rule is used.

"We expect that periodic clarification of points included in the rule will be necessary," Higgins said. "For example, a point that has come to my attention recently is the need for a clearer statement that substitutes may not reenter the game defensively or offensively."

"Also, any player who is playing both offense and defense is considered removed from the game only if she has been removed from the batting order."

Women's softball coaches at NCAA member institutions received a copy of the rule as approved by the Executive Committee when the administrative handbook for the championship was mailed this winter. The complete rule is as follows:

1. A hitter may be designated for any one starting player and all subsequent substitutes for that player in the game.

2. The designated hitter (DH) must be selected prior to the start of the game, and her name must be included on the lineup card when submitted to the umpire. (It is recommended that the defensive player who is not in the offensive lineup be listed in the No. 10 spot on the lineup card.)

3. It is not mandatory that a DH be used, but failure to declare a DH prior to the game shall preclude the use of a DH in the game.

4. The DH may enter the game as a defensive player only under the following provisions:

a. The DH may enter the game as any defensive player once and assume a defensive position to replace a player in the field. The role of the DH is terminated during this time.

b. In the event the DH shall enter the game as a defensive player, the defensive player who has been replaced must continue to occupy the same position in the batting order as originally occupied at the outset of the game and may be replaced in the batting order by a pinch hitter and/or pinch runner. If the defensive player who has been replaced in the field also is replaced in the batting order by a pinch hitter, the pinch hitter may continue to hit in that place in the batting order for the duration of the game.

c. In the event the DH shall enter the game as a defensive player, she shall continue to bat in the same position in the batting order as occupied at the outset of the game.

d. If the player replaced on defense by the DH reassumes her defensive position, the DH shall revert to her original role and may not again play defense for the remainder of the game.

e. A starting player or any substitute thereafter (who only played defense and did not hit) who has been removed from a defensive position may reenter the game defensively one time. She may not ever enter the game offensively.

f. A starting player who originally occupied both a defensive position and a position in the batting lineup and who has been removed from a defensive position and replaced by the DH may reenter the batting order once under the reentry rule to reassume her original position in the batting order.

5. In the event the player who is named as the DH at the start of the game is removed for any reason, she shall not reenter the game.

Pitching rivals return for Division II powers

No one could blame Sue Oran if she never wanted to see Val Greenwall again. It will not be a surprise, however, if these two dominating pitchers are again the story of the Division II softball season.

A year ago, Greenwall pitched Sam Houston State to the national title by winning three games in the finals series after picking up a shutout victory and a save in regional competition.

Oran, Northridge State's ace, pitched even better than Greenwall by not allowing an earned run during 45 innings of pitching (regional and finals) but came out second best.

A day-by-day review:

May 28—Greenwall pitched a three-hit shutout victory over Northeast Missouri State; Oran pitched a nine-inning, one-hit shutout victory over Sacred Heart.

May 29—Greenwall a three-hit shutout victory over Northridge State's Angelo Lucero; Oran a one-hit, 11-inning shutout victory over Sacred Heart.

May 30—Greenwall and Oran hooked up in a double-header to decide the national title.

Northridge State had to win the first game to stay alive, and Oran took a 1-0, 11-inning decision over Greenwall. In the second game, Greenwall came back to win, 3-2.

Greenwall finished last season 21-3, with an earned-run average of 0.68. Her return, along with pitcher Debra Pearson (12-1), might make Sam Houston State a slight favorite to repeat as Division II champion. All-America third baseman Carol Sullivan (.319, three home runs-23 runs batted in) and outfielder Kathleen Hrozek (.314) also return.

Oran, 20-10 with an 0.75 ERA in 1982, again will have Lucero (12-7, 0.76) for mound help as Northridge State tries to oust the Beakats. Other returning regulars include outfielder Linda Lowande (.323), shortstop Kathy Toerner (.256) and first baseman Becky Drake (.396).

These two rivals are expected to be the dominant teams in the South and West regions, respectively, but there are others waiting for a chance.

In the Central region, Northeast Missouri State looks like a good possibility to return to the finals series. The Bulldogs will be led by pitcher Joan Allison (7-6, 0.49) and catcher Renee Harper (.326, 1-21).

Augustana (South Dakota) and Nebraska-Omaha both could be national contenders from the Midwest region. Augustana's Connie Hayne (9-4, 0.70) and Nebraska-Omaha's Jenny Pullen (18-10, 1.02) are among the nation's top pitchers.

Sacred Heart may be the strongest in the Northeast again this year. Pitcher Carol Ball lost both of the 1-0 decisions to Oran in the finals series, after a 20-4, 0.38 season. Catcher Pat Suchower (.328, 16 RBIs) and outfielder Mary Helen McCarthy (.321) will give Sacred Heart a strong hitting attack.

The Mid-Atlantic appears to be the most balanced region in Division II competition this year, with Bloomsburg State and Shippensburg State the most likely national powers. Bloomsburg State will rely on pitcher Tina Souders (21-2, 0.25), while Shippensburg State has outfielder Suzy Abeles (.381, 4-25).

Some of the other top teams and individuals include:

Northeast

Teams—Stonehill, American International, Quinnipiac, C. W. Post, Central Connecticut State, Springfield.

Players—Catcher Sharon Donovan, Stonehill; shortstop Judy Harrison, St. Anselm; pitcher Pat Caron, Quinnipiac; second baseman Karen Doucette, Assumption; catcher-first baseman Barbara Dittmeier, Long Island; outfielder Lynn Luca, Quinnipiac; first baseman Diane Trembly, Bryant.

Mid-Atlantic

Teams—Charleston, Slippery Rock State, Kutztown State, Lock Haven State, Akron, Davis and Elkins.

Players—Pitcher Laura Ames, Mercyhurst; outfielder Sheilah Lingenfelter, Clarion State; shortstop Denise Wentz, Charleston; pitcher Laura Morgan, Slippery Rock State; pitcher Dani Vance, Akron; pitcher Annette Olenchick, Charleston; pitcher Terri Hobbs, Wright State; catcher Cathy Carney, Davis and Elkins; pitcher Lori Gross, Kutztown State; catcher Denise Henderson, Bloomsburg State.

South

Teams—Stephen F. Austin State, Longwood, Liberty Baptist.

Players—Pitcher Michele Agnew, Liberty Baptist; outfielder Kathy Walker, Stephen F. Austin State; pitcher Donna Kanary, Longwood; second baseman Kathy Gunning, Longwood; catcher Leslie Bryne, Liberty Baptist.

Central

Teams—Northwest Missouri State, Central Missouri State, Ferris State, Grand Valley State, Southern Illinois-Edwardsville.

Players—Pitcher Roxanne Szczes-

Val Greenwall

niak, Wayne State (Michigan); shortstop Sharon Strandt, Southern Illinois-Edwardsville; designated hitter Judy Burke, Central Missouri State; first baseman Amy Merritt, Central Missouri State; pitcher Linda Emmons, Ferris State; pitcher Becki Saylor, Southern Illinois-Edwardsville; pitcher Mary Gnatkowski, Ferris State; shortstop Teresa Gumm, Northwest Missouri State.

Midwest

Team—Mesa.

Players—Outfielder Janelle Christiansen, St. Cloud State; third baseman Gretchen Born, North Dakota State; pitcher Paige Gilmore, Metropolitan State; shortstop Dena Sikole, Northern Colorado; infielder Deb Berndt, Southwest State (Minnesota); pitcher Julie Engmark, St. Cloud State.

West

Teams—Dominguez Hills State, Chico State, Sacramento State, Portland State.

Players—Pitcher Deb Fitzhugh, Portland State; pitcher Barrie Greer, California-Riverside; infielder Tammy Quarry, Dominguez Hills State; catcher Mary Ross, Portland State; pitcher Anna Ferrigno, Sacramento State; catcher Amy Bush, Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo; pitcher-first baseman Cheryl Clark, Humboldt State.

Returning stars give advantage to Division III defending champ

Most coaches would be happy to have five regulars returning from a national championship team. Eastern Connecticut State's Clyde Washburne not only has that luxury but also has five all-America players returning from the team that won the 1982 NCAA Division III Women's Softball Championship.

Pitchers Lisa Kirk (17-4, 1.31) and Anne Costello (6-5, 2.63) are at the top of that list and are the primary reasons that the Warriors are an early favorite to repeat as the best in Division III.

Eastern Connecticut State was unbeaten in the finals series last year. Costello won a pair of games and Kirk had a victory and a save. The Warriors' only defeat in tournament play was in the Northeast regional when Scranton's Sue Moore took a nine-inning 1-0 decision over Kirk.

The Warriors' strength does not stop on the mound, though. All-America outfielders Sue Smuller (.336, 15 stolen bases) and Sheena Carpenter (.299) return, along with all-America catcher Debbie Dalton (.321). Still another regular returning is second baseman Sue Murphy (.371, two home runs-23 runs batted in).

The primary threat to Eastern Connecticut State's dominance is likely to come from last year's runner-up, Trenton State, which looks to be the best in the Atlantic region.

Like Eastern Connecticut, Trenton State has a pair of outstanding pitchers: Robin Payne (15-4, 1.52) and Gina Lamandre (13-8, 1.07). Lamandre suffered a 2-0 loss to Costello in last year's final game. All-America outfielder Donna Michal (.405, 2-36) will lead Trenton's hitters.

Another team from last year's finals series, Westfield State, looks like the strongest team in the East region. Second baseman Donna Coombs (.347, 3-14) and outfielder Dec Foster (.253) are Westfield's top players.

The Midwest could be one of the most balanced regions in Division III this year, with several teams looking like possible national contenders. The best appear to be Scranton and Wilkes. Pitcher Sue Moore (13-5) returns for Scranton after finishing eighth nationally with a 1.09 earned-run average. Outfielder Mary Ann Tarantino batted .434 with 11 home runs and 44 runs batted in. Wilkes' efforts will be led by pitcher Sue Schwartz (13-7, 2.30) and catcher Karen Johnson (.485, 7-34).

Another of the country's balanced regions is the Central, where Aurora emerged as the best a year ago. Pitcher-third baseman Katie Keller (12-8, 1.12; .384, 0-30) may contribute enough for Aurora to repeat, but several strong challengers are waiting.

If good hitting can overcome dominant pitching, Illinois Benedictine could win in the Central. Catcher Rita Schulz was a "triple-crown" winner in Division III competition last year, topping the nation in batting average (.505), home runs (11) and runs batted in (55). Second baseman Laura Martinek batted .429.

Calvin and North Central also look like national contenders, led by pitchers Sharon Boeve (9-5, 0.81 for Calvin) and Dawn Schabacker (15-8, 1.34 for North Central).

The outlook is not as clear in the West. An early favorite is Buena Vista, thanks to pitcher Chanel Finzen (14-6, 1.04), one of the nation's best in victories and earned-run average a year ago.

As in the other divisions, the inclusion of strong teams that competed last year in Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women play, such as North Central, could make a significant difference in Division III competition.

Some of the other top teams and individuals include:

New England

Teams—Bates, Rhode Island College, Southern Maine, Castleton State, Colby.

Players—Outfielder Georgeanne Ebersold, Bates; pitcher Betsy Whitman, Bates; outfielder Donna Dinola, Plymouth State; shortstop Alicia O'Brien, Western Connecticut State.

East

Teams—Queens, Brockport State, Western New England, Mount Holyoke, Clark (Massachusetts), Salem State, Ithaca, MIT, Stony Brook State.

Courts

the meaning of the Civil Rights Attorney Fee Act. The court said that it was not necessary to consider the applicability of Title IX to the high school athletics program at issue.

The second athletics case, Bennett vs. West Texas State University, was a private Title IX action brought by six female student-athletes alleging that the university discriminated on the basis of sex and denied women equal opportunity in its intercollegiate athletics program. The district court granted the university's motion for summary judgment, holding that Title IX did not apply to the university's intercollegiate sports program because the program did not receive direct Federal aid.

Without deciding whether Title IX applied to the intercollegiate athletics program at issue, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit reversed the decision of the district court and remanded the case to allow the plaintiffs an opportunity to introduce evidence concerning direct Federal funding of the athletics department and sex discrimination in the intercollegiate athletics program. The court action was taken January 31.

The basic issue presented by Grove City College vs. Bell is whether Federal student financial assistance provides a basis for Title IX jurisdiction over the institution in which the students receiving the aid are enrolled.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit held in the case that Federal aid to students constitutes assistance to the college they attend; that the "program" receiving general, non-earmarked assistance like student aid is the entire educational institution, and that Grove City College therefore is required to execute an Assurance of Compliance with Title IX.

The college contends that Title IX does not apply to it because it does not receive Federal aid and does not administer any program that receives Federal financial assistance.

The government contends that the only question presented is whether the institution is a recipient of Federal aid and therefore must execute an Assurance of Compliance with Title IX. The Supreme Court simply may decide whether the college is a recipient or may go further and consider the extent, if any, to which Title IX applies to specific programs conducted by the college.

Last May, the Supreme Court held in North Haven Board of Education vs. Bell, an employment case, that Title IX is program specific. A number of courts of appeals have held, in cases not involving athletics, that specific programs were not covered by Title IX because they did not receive direct Federal assistance.

One appeals court, the third circuit, has held to the contrary in an athletics case. In public statements and court filings, the Department of Justice has indicated that it agrees with the view that Title IX is programmatic, not institutional, in scope.

Further, the government elected not to appeal the University of Richmond athletics decision that interpreted the statute in that manner.

The question still to be resolved in the athletics area is not whether Title IX is program specific but rather the circumstances, if any, in which Title IX will apply to an athletics program that does not directly receive Federal aid.

Frederick L. Hovde

Former Purdue president Hovde dies March 1

Frederick L. Hovde, former president of Purdue University for 25 years and 1970 winner of the Theodore Roosevelt Award, died March 1 in West Lafayette, Indiana.

Hovde, 75, was president of Purdue from 1946 to June 30, 1971, and remained active in private fund-raising for the university after retirement. A memorial service was held March 3 on the Purdue campus.

Hovde competed in football and basketball at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, in the late 1920s. He also played three years of varsity basketball and rugby at Oxford University (1930-1932). He was the leading scorer (football) in the Big Ten Conference in 1928.

Hovde held 16 honorary degrees, including the Doctorate of Civil Laws from Oxford.

have," Bellard said. "I hope the NFL will accept and join us in future meetings with the USFL."

The three groups formulated a statement during their four-hour meeting. The following is the conclusion of that statement:

"While these committees pursue this goal, the USFL will enforce the existing eligibility rules currently in effect in professional football. The AFCA will recommend that all its coaches cooperate fully with the USFL and its scouts and asks for thoughtful input on this issue from its members."

ing will deal with financial factors in college athletics and a review of earlier decisions made by the committee.

John P. Schaefer, executive director of the committee and former president of the University of Arizona, chaired the meeting this week in Chicago in the absence of David P. Gardner. The committee was informed that Gardner will resign as chair of the select committee as a result of his being selected as president of the University of California system. The NCAA Administrative Committee will consider that resignation in its next telephone conference.

ACE Committee affirms position

The American Council on Education's ad hoc committee on athletics has reaffirmed its commitment to more demanding academic standards for student-athletes but says it is willing to consider options in achieving that goal, including the possibility of making freshmen ineligible for all intercollegiate competition.

The committee of college presidents and chancellors, which was instrumental in formulating Proposal Nos. 48 and 56, both adopted by the 1983 NCAA Convention, met February 25 in Washington, D.C. It called for talks this spring with the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education, a group of historically black institutions, which has expressed opposition to the Association's new requirements for initial eligibility that become effective in 1986.

Academic all-Americans

Notre Dame's Paxson heads CoSIDA team

Notre Dame guard John Paxson was the runaway winner in balloting for the 1982-83 academic all-America basketball team announced last week by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

A first-team selection last year, Paxson was named on 88 percent of the ballots submitted by the nation's sports information directors. Paxson, a 6-2 senior, is averaging 17.4 points per game and maintains a 3.640 grade-point average in marketing.

Other players named to the first team in the university division were Danny Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas, Steve Stipanovich of Missouri, John Pinone of Villanova and Randy Wittman of Indiana.

Tarkanian, son of Nevada-Las Vegas coach Jerry Tarkanian, is the only junior named to the first team. The 6-2 guard has averaged 7.6 points and nearly 10 assists per game in helping the Runnin' Rebels to a 24-2 record. Tarkanian carries a 3.850 GPA in business and economics.

Stipanovich has helped Missouri to the Big Eight Conference championship in each of his four years. The 6-11 senior is averaging 18.4 points per game. He has compiled a 3.350 GPA in marketing.

Pinone is a big reason that Villanova tied for the Big East Conference title. The 6-8, 230-pound forward was second-team academic all-America and honorable mention all-America last year. A 3.240 student in finance, Pinone is averaging 16.8 points per game.

Wittman also was a first-team academic all-America selection last year and was named to the second team in 1981. A member of the 1981 national-championship team at Indiana, Wittman is averaging 18.8 points per game and carries a 3.200 GPA in public and environmental affairs.

One member of the university division's third team compiled a perfect 4.000 GPA. Colorado State's Mark Steele, a 6-9 forward, carries a 4.000 GPA in agronomy. Three members of the college-division teams have 4.000 GPA's—Scranton's Micky Banas (first team, premedicine), Slippery Rock State's John Samsa (second team, biology) and Western Maryland's Douglas Pinto (second team, biology).

Three teams are selected in both the university and college divisions. Sports information directors nominate athletes, all of whom must have at least a 3.200 (on a 4.000 scale) grade-point average, for a district team, from which the national finalists are selected.

Following are the CoSIDA academic all-America teams for 1982-83:

UNIVERSITY DIVISION

First team

Guards—John Paxson, Notre Dame, 3.640 grade-point average in marketing; Danny Tarkanian, Nevada-Las Vegas, 3.850 in business/economics. Forwards—Steve Stipanovich, Missouri, 3.350 in marketing; John Pinone, Villanova, 3.240 in finance; Randy Wittman, Indiana, 3.200 in public and environmental affairs.

Second team

Guards—Maurice Roulhac, Jacksonville, 3.850 in premedicine; Steve Reid, Purdue, 5.380 (on 6.000 scale) in management. Forwards—Devin Durrant, Brigham Young, 3.600 in American studies; Marc Morotta, Marquette, 3.700 in prelaw; Willie Hinz, McGill, 3.860 in accounting.

Third team

Guard—Keith Cieplicki, William and Mary, 3.500 in religion. Forwards—Mark Steele, Colorado State, 4.000 in agronomy; Mitchell Adamek, Toledo, 3.620 in human resources; Bryce McPhee, Gonzaga, 3.680 in chemistry; Gordon Enderle, Princeton, 3.400 in civil engineering.

COLLEGE DIVISION

First team

Guards—Jeffrey Brezovar, Milwaukee School of Engineering, 3.690 in mechanical engineering; Herb Taylor, Bates, 3.870 in economics; Rick Clark, Marietta, 3.790 in premedicine. Forwards—Micky Banas, Scranton, 4.000 in premedicine; Joseph Dickson, Merrimack, 3.800 in business.

Second team

Guard—John Samsa, Slippery Rock State, 4.000 in biology. Forwards—Bill Burgess, California Lutheran, 3.930 in biology; Preston Neumayr, California-Davis, 3.800 in biological science; Mark Hanson, Gustavus Adolphus, 3.670 in environmental studies; Douglas Pinto, Western Maryland, 4.000 in biology.

Third team

Guards—Jack Inselmann, Trinity (Texas), 3.780 in communications; John Paganetti, Lowell, 3.610 in computer science. Forwards—Mark Sulek, St. Mary's (Michigan), 3.720 in chemistry; Mark Smith, Grove City, 3.580 in chemistry/premedicine; Chris Jerome, Bowdoin, 3.630 in economics/mathematics.

10 top amateurs selected for Walker Cup Match

Ten outstanding amateur golfers, led by captain Jay Sigel, recently were selected to represent the United States in the 29th Walker Cup Match. The Walker Cup Match is the oldest international competition in golf. It has been conducted biennially since 1922 (the series was interrupted by World War II), with the site alternating between the United States and Great Britain and Ireland.

This year's event will be held at the Royal Liverpool Golf Club in Hoylake, England, May 25 and 26. The United States will compete against a team representing Great Britain and Ireland.

The members of the 1983 U.S.

Walker Cup Team, as selected by the United States Golf Association are: Nathaniel Crosby, University of Miami; Brad Faxon, Furman University; Rick Fehr, Brigham Young University; William Hoffer, Elgin, Illinois; Jim Holtgrieve, St. Louis, Missouri; Bob Lewis, Warren, Ohio; Jay Sigel, Berwyn, Pennsylvania (captain); David Tantis, University of Houston; Billy Tuten, University of Houston, and Willie Wood, Oklahoma State University.

In the Walker Cup Match format, the two teams play four 18-hole four-somes in the morning and eight 18-hole singles in the afternoon on each of the two days. Victory in a match scores one point. If a match is even after 18 holes, no extra holes are played, and each side is awarded one-half point. Either the larger American ball or the smaller British ball may be used in the competition.

The United States has won 25 matches in the series, including five in a row dating to 1973. Great Britain and Ireland have won twice, and one match ended in a tie. The United States won the 1981 match, 15-9, at the Cypress Point Club in Pebble Beach, California.

The Walker Cup was donated in May 1921 by George Herbert Walker, who served as president of the United States Golf Association in 1920. The first match was played at the National Golf Links of America in Southampton, New York, in August 1922.

Ticket application forms available

The 1983 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship gets under way next week, but fans interested in attending the 1984 semifinals and final in Seattle, Washington, now can receive ticket application forms.

The 1984 Final Four will be held March 31 and April 2 in Seattle's Kingdome, where approximately 38,000 seats will be available. Prices for the two-night, three-game series will be $42.50, $32.50 and $22.50. Individual orders are limited to four tickets, and tickets for individual sessions will not be available.

All requests for tickets must be accompanied by an official ticket application form and must not be postmarked prior to April 5. Envelopes postmarked April 5 will be the first chosen in a common draw.

Individuals wishing to obtain ticket order forms may contact The Kingdome, 201 South King Street, Seattle, Washington 98104 or call 206/628-3312 or 628-3383.

Sponsorship survey completed in women's slow-pitch softball

An NCAA slow-pitch softball survey has indicated that less than 10 percent of the membership sponsors the sport on a varsity basis for women.

The survey was conducted under the direction of the Special Committee on Championships Standards in response to action taken by the membership at the 1983 annual Convention.

At that time, the membership directed the committee to study more fully Proposal No. 59. That proposal would have permitted a women's championship in a sport in which no championship had been established prior to the 1979-80 academic year to be established between August 1, 1981, and August 1, 1985, in accordance with Executive Regulation 1-1(a) (requiring sponsorship by seven percent of the membership) rather than Executive Regulation 1-1(b) (requiring sponsorship by 25 percent).

The 25-percent rule would require nearly 200 institutions to sponsor slow-pitch women's softball, rather than the approximately 70 that currently sponsor the sport. Survey results indicate 19 such programs in Division I, 29 in Division II and 21 in Division III. A total of 596 institutions responded out of 787 surveyed.

Fourteen institutions reported that they would elevate current club-level programs to varsity status if a championship were established. Fifteen respondents currently have such club teams.

The survey also revealed that institutions with slow-pitch programs award an average of five scholarships. The most scholarships awarded was 15; many institutions award none.

The average season is 28 games, with a range from eight to 65.

Results of this survey will be studied by the championships standards committee at its meeting in May. Its findings and recommendations will be forwarded to the NCAA Executive Committee for consideration in August.
