Championships criteria to be strictly enforced

In its May 2 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the NCAA Executive Committee voted not to sponsor championships after the 1984 Olympics that no longer meet the criteria established in Executive Regulations 1-1-(a) and 1-1-(b).

The Executive Committee denied a request to continue championships that do not meet the criteria, but with no subsidy for transportation and other expenses. All current championships will be conducted in 1983-84; however, those championships that do not meet the criteria will be discontinued for the 1984-85 championships season.

For sports in which championships were established prior to the 1979-80 academic year, a championship can be continued if at least seven percent of the active members of the Association sponsor the sport on a varsity intercollegiate basis. If at least seven percent sponsor the sport, a division championship can be continued if 20 percent of the division's active members sponsor the sport on a varsity intercollegiate basis.

In sports in which championships were not established prior to the 1979-80 academic year, a championship can be continued if at least 25 percent of the active members of the Association sponsor the sport on a varsity intercollegiate basis. A division championship then can be continued if at least 25 percent of the active members of each of the three divisions sponsor the sport on a varsity basis.

The only exception to these criteria is contained in Executive Regulation 1-1-(d), which states that if a championship falls below the required minimum sponsorship percentage, it can be continued if net receipts exceed all expenses (including transportation and per diem).

With 787 active members at this time, the seven-percent figure to establish a National Collegiate Championship is 56. However, sponsorship figures for the 1984-85 championships will be based on next year's membership and sponsorship totals.

Along these same lines, the Executive Committee approved a recommendation from the Special Committee on Championships Standards to deny a request that the Association sponsor a championship in slow-pitch softball. The request was denied because far less than 25 percent of the active members sponsor the sport.

In financial matters, the Executive Committee approved a recommendation to close the championships reserves and transfer monies to the Funded Operating Reserve account and an unallocated surplus account.

The Executive Committee transferred $950,000 from championships reserves to the Funded Operating Reserve account, bringing the total in that account to $2.2 million. Another $405,886 was transferred to an unallocated surplus account, which clears the deficit of operations from 1981-82 and the loss from College Sports Supplements, Inc. Transportation guarantees for all championships now are included in the general operating budget.

The Executive Committee deferred

Decision on overseas football game delayed

A decision regarding a championship game between the NCAA Division III football champion and the Japanese collegiate football champion has been delayed until the August meetings of the Division III Steering Committee and the NCAA Council.

This was one of a number of recommendations from 19 sports committees considered by the NCAA Executive Committee at its May 2 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

The Executive Committee allocated

$1,500 to begin negotiations with International Management Group, which presented the idea to the Division III Football Committee. Bargaining rights will continue for two months, but a final decision will not be made until August.

Among the concerns of the Executive Committee were that the game should be scheduled during a vacation period, that the NCAA should be responsible for game administration and that the game should have an educational benefit.

In other championships matters, the Executive Committee approved a request from the Men's Soccer Committee to seed four of the final eight teams in the Division I Men's Soccer Championship. The soccer committee had recommended seeding the final eight teams; however, the Executive Committee approved the slightly altered arrangement.

The same format has been used in Division I men's soccer since the inception of the event in 1959. Because of the strength of some regions and with the same regional matchups always in effect, many top teams annually are eliminated prior to the quarterfinal round. This change should result in more evenly matched quarterfinal matches.

In women's swimming, the Executive Committee approved a recommendation to reduce the number of events from 24 to 20 in all three divisions. The Women's Swimming Committee had recommended a reduction to 20 in Divisions I and II and 21 in Division III; however, the Executive Committee approved 20 for all three divisions. This change is effective with the 1984 championships.

In Divisions I and II, the events to be eliminated are the 50 breaststroke, 50 backstroke, 50 butterfly and 100 individual medley. The 20 events in Division III will be determined at a later date. The Executive Committee recommended that the Women's Swimming Committee consider an 18-event format eventually.

The Women's Gymnastics Committee's recommendation to increase from two to three the number of the six gymnasts per event in Division I who can be designated as specialists was approved by the Executive Committee.

Any competition by women's gym-

Nashville named as site of '85 NCAA Convention

Convention delegates will have new surroundings in 1985 at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tennessee, which has been selected as the site for the 1985 NCAA Convention.

In its May 2 meeting in Kansas City, the Executive Committee approved the site for the 1985 Convention, to be held January 14-16. This will be the first trip to Nashville in Convention history.

"We had intended to go to Atlanta in 1985; however, based on 1983 attendance figures, the hotel's (Hyatt Regency) ballrooms are not large enough to house the business session," said Louis J. Spry, NCAA controller. "Because of the continual growth in Convention attendance, it makes it extremely difficult to find a hotel that can house all the delegates and provide adequate meeting space."

The Opryland Hotel, adjacent to Opryland USA and the Grand Ole Opry, has 225,000 square feet of public space, 1,070 guest rooms and the largest exhibit hall in North

Progress reported on school reforms

There is considerable optimism in the education community that reforms recommended by the National Commission on Excellence in Education will be implemented in the country's high schools and colleges.

Some of the proposals recommended in the 18-month study released in late April already have been adopted in some states.

"There are indications that what the commission wants already is under way," said Scott Thomson of the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Otis A. Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky, said, "There basically was not a lot new in the report, but what I do notice is a different emphasis on academic excellence. It has been moved to the front burner, and that is long overdue. There are a number of indicators now for politicians and the public to get interested in it (education reform) now."

In North Carolina, where significant strides have been made in recent years to upgrade public education, President William Friday of the University of North Carolina system said that beginning in the 1960s, state governors put education in the forefront. "Nobody could run for public office now and fail to do that."

In summary, the commission on excellence recommended upgrading academic standards, increased pay for teachers on a performance basis, a longer school day and a longer year, increased homework assign-

In recruiting, 'the good one' never gets away

By Tom Cornelison

Jacksonville (Florida) Journal

University of Florida football coach Charley Pell can rest assured that he is not alone as a rumor victim. Add newly signed Jacksonville University basketball prospect Wayne McDuffie.

How dirty can collegiate athletic recruiting be? Much dirtier than what follows, and that's the tragedy. "What they said" about McDuffie is grimy enough.

A relative of McDuffie's I will not print the relationship or the name, only that the name is not McDuffie—is scheduled to appear in court soon on a charge that is not too serious in Barnwell, South Carolina. The charge is not going to be printed here either, though it is a victimless crime.

One of the most respected citizens in Barnwell is Solomon Blatt, a Federal circuit judge. He is the father of Jacksonville assistant basketball coach Greg Blatt, who was assigned by head coach Bob Wenzel to recruit McDuffie.

The elder Blatt is a prominent athletic booster for the University of South Carolina. He stepped aside on the McDuffie matter in favor of his son and did not try to convince the prospect to go to South Carolina. South Carolina, along with Georgia and JU, were the finalists and were narrowed down from a much larger list of schools that had shown interest in McDuffie's talents.

The story I received is that McDuffie's relative was to be tried by Judge Blatt. The sources for the story were both good ones. For an example of just how good they were, both made it plain from the start that they did not know the details and only were passing on what they had heard.

Usually, people who pass on recruiting talk have a "world's greatest authority" attitude.

I wonder how many other people heard the story? Alumni from schools that finished out of the McDuffie sweepstakes? Coaches and recruiters explaining over cocktails why they missed out on the prospect?

The method is simple enough. McDuffie's whatever is being tried by a judge whose son is recruiting the kid for JU. The listener is then expected to conclude—it would not be subtle for the storyteller to draw the conclusion—that McDuffie is being pressured into signing with JU because of the court case.

Columnary Craft

The presiding judge is named Rodney Peebles.

It took several dozen phone calls to find out. Efforts to reach either of the Blatts failed. Efforts to reach collegiate recruiters from other schools that had recruited McDuffie were more successful.

"Yeah, I heard that, but you'll have to confirm it with someone else. . . ."

The charge seemed rather minor to be tried by a Federal circuit judge. It was. The confirmation finally came from the county clerk's office in Barnwell, South Carolina.

The point is, everyone from a school that tried to recruit McDuffie but failed was willing to pass on the rumor. Everyone who passed the tumor along had a way of covering himself: "Only thing is, I'm not sure what the charge is." Or, "I don't know if Judge Blatt is trying the case or is acting as counsel for the defense." Or, "Yeah, it's true, but I don't know what the relative's name is."

This same philosophy is applied whenever a top-notch, blue-chip prospect gets away. My favorite is, "He didn't have the grades to get in to our school." A coach from a state university once told me that about a prospect who eventually signed with the U.S. Naval Academy.

The "didn't have the grades" excuse is the most common. It serves three purposes: 1) gets the recruiter off the hook for not signing the prospect, 2) makes the recruiter's school look good, 3) makes the other school look bad.

At least that is the theory. Me? I always think of some of the rock-headed athletes I've interviewed from the recruiter's school and wonder, "If a guy that dumb can get in, how dumb was the kid who got away?"

Another favorite recruiting sour grape is "don't quote me, but they bought him." Gee, coach, you mean they came up with something better than those Trans Ams your guys are driving around?

The problem with all of these excuses is that they are designed to insult the other school. They wind up insulting the youngster. Coming from a coach, such rumors have an air of authenticity.

Isn't it a shame the NCAA can't put a school on probation for telling lies . . . at least about the players it did not sign?

Americans concerned about quality of education system

By Shelley Rolfe

Richmond Times-Dispatch

The Russians did not launch Sputnik over the weekend. They did not achieve anything, as far as I know, that was in any way comparable to their orbiting the first satellite a quarter of a century ago.

But this week, a correspondent in Washington has a sense that something like the Sputnik Effect is again in force. That is, a lot of Americans are thinking seriously again about our system of education and concluding that it is not nearly as good as it ought to be.

This time the provocative event was of domestic origin and without outward drama. Another commission in Washington published another report, for heaven's sake.

But this one matters. It strikes you hard because it keeps telling you things you had long suspected were true, but they were things you had put off thinking about in any coherent pattern. The report is sad, embarrassing and even scary. It also makes some positive recommendations in a quiet but urgent tone.

The report, which comes in a thin blue pamphlet, is called "A Nation at Risk: the Imperative for Educational Reform." It is the product of a couple of years of work by the 18 members and staff of the National Commission on Excellence in Education. You can order the report from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402, for $4.50.

I was conditioned in advance of this publication by Beverly Orndorff's series of articles in The Times-Dispatch on science illiteracy. Bev seemed to be telling us that we are sailing into the era of high tech with our clichés streaming like flags. And our general ignorance of fundamental science is a national scandal.

So Bev's readers were thinking in terms of fairly large trouble when the commission report came along on the same day his series concluded.

The commission said, in effect: That's right about science illiteracy, but it's only part of the problem. The whole education system in the United States is caught in a "rising tide of mediocrity." We have drifted and deluded ourselves into lax standards and silly priorities that would be ludicrous if they were not so damaging to education, to the country and to whatever we stand for in the world.

You can read the report without finding much that is written in the funny language of the education fraternity. Nor do you find much that is ideological or political, or gratuitously old-fashioned or new-fangled. I will not attempt to summarize the findings here, but a sample would include 23 million functional illiterates; average high school achievement tests lower than 25 years ago; armies of students getting through high school and college without having to meet even basic levels of competence in English, science, math or social studies; class time routinely wasted by irrelevancies and disrupted by behavior problems, and exhausted teachers and incompetent teachers, too many of them predictably from the bottom quarter of their own.

It goes on and on. The commission characterizes the findings in a sentence that may cross the line into hyperbole, but the report may justify it: "If an unfriendly foreign power had attempted to impose on America the mediocre educational performance that exists today, we might well have viewed it as an act of war."

The recommendations for reform include revived standards for English, science, math and social studies; longer school days; increasing the school year from 180 days to 200 or 220; more homework in high school; better teacher salaries for a contract period of 11 months rather than nine; separation of disruptive students from ordinary classrooms, and more attention to students with special aptitudes and problems.

There are pages of these recommendations and suggestions for approaching them. National consideration of them will be difficult and that is a great pity because it is the nature of politicians, educators and the news media to jump in and divert attention to the budgetary and philosophical conflicts, ironies and hypocrisies available for exploitation.

Yes, the Reagan administration seems to prefer prayer to Federal funds. Yes, the states are hard up. Yes, the teachers' unions. . . .

Before we are swamped in all that, people in 16,000 school districts need to get the message of the report itself.

Opinions Out Loud

think the real reason, and I hope the real reason all of us are in intercollegiate athletics is for the great lessons you learn from the game of football. You don't learn any more lessons by playing three more games.

"I think the NCAA, in a couple of years of adding the 11 games, has enabled every team to play one more game, and I think every team has benefited from it. Now, just to have three or four more just to go in to the play-offs, I don't think that is an advantage really for intercollegiate athletics."

Akeem Abdul Olajuwon, basketball player
University of Houston

Houston Chronicle

"I will make much of the decision (whether to turn professional) on my own. I do not think I will consult with my parents. My parents do not understand. I have sent them some more clippings from the tournament, but they do not know what I am talking about.

"This is not the kind of thing that you can talk about on the telephone and make them understand it. It is such a long way from Nigeria to Houston, and the lines are not always clear. Even if I went there and talked to them, I don't think I would be able to convince them.

"They own a cement company, and they expect me to come back home after I finish school and work there. They do not realize that I can make a great deal of money here playing basketball. If I told my father how much money I could be paid playing basketball, he would not believe me. He would say I am lying.

"So, when I eventually make my decision, I am going to have to bring my family here and actually show them what I can do. That is the only way they will believe me."

Harold L. Enarson, president emeritus
Ohio State University

Educational Record

"We make common-sense judgments every day about quality, whether in eggs or cars or clothes or concerts, in sports or Sunday sermons. So why not give the benefit of the doubt, therefore, to those of us who have spent our lives in colleges and universities—as professors, deans and presidents—when we try to tell the public that quality in higher education built up over the years is now in jeopardy?"

Lacrosse crown is up for grabs

Carolina blue may give way to a different hue when the 1983 Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship is contested May 28 in New Brunswick, New Jersey. While the North Carolina Tar Heels are considered strong enough to win a third straight title, most experts also will admit that the 1983 play-offs should be wide open.

"Based on the regular season, I do not believe you can accurately predict a favorite to win the championship," said Johns Hopkins coach Henry Ciccarone. Although losers to North Carolina earlier this season, Ciccarone admitted that his Blue Jays have a shot at dethroning the Tar Heels and returning Columbia blue to the winners' circle.

"The play of our defense has been very pleasing this season, as has our midfield game. Hopkins teams traditionally have been attack-oriented, but this year we are the opposite. We have gotten balanced scoring from the midfield, but I think we need to get our attack people more involved as we head into the play-offs. People are starting to key on our midfield, so we need to get the attack developed into a more productive offensive unit."

A powerful offense has helped Syracuse burn up a tough schedule of opponents in a blaze of orange. "We are certainly not a one-person team on offense," said head coach Roy Simmons Jr. "We have averaged 10 people a game with a goal or an assist. And our defense has been a tremendous asset by initiating our offense."

Virginia coach James Adams, whose Cavaliers sport a combination of the blue and orange that prevail in the 1983 play-off picture, watched his team defeat North Carolina for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.

"That was a good one," Adams said. "It was a real good effort by everyone on the team. The improvement of our offense since we lost to Hopkins early in the season has made a big difference. We changed our personnel around a little bit and went to a little faster tempo, and the overall play of our attack has benefited from it."

"We started out the year with a strong defensive unit, and that also has continued to get better. I don't think you will ever find a coach in intercollegiate athletics who ever is satisfied, and I feel like we still need to work on developing balance as a team."

The biggest test of all in the 1983 play-offs may await the defending champion Tar Heels, who opened the regular season with a loss to Division III champion Hobart and dropped the ACC title game to Virginia. North Carolina, however, had enough firepower to beat Johns Hopkins, 14-13, in a double-overtime thriller.

"Winning the ACC tournament was one of our goals, and we are disappointed that we could not attain that," said North Carolina coach Willie Scroggs. "Another of our major goals was to get into the NCAA play-offs, and it looks like we will do that."

Division II men's golf

Are the Moccasins up to par?

Florida Southern's reign as the No. 1 Division II men's golf team could be coming to an end. The Moccasins, who have won the last two NCAA Division II Men's Golf Championships by wide margins, could find several teams on their heels at the 1983 championships May 17-20 at California State College in California, Pennsylvania.

Despite winning the Sunshine State Conference, Florida Southern has had an up-and-down spring season and will need good performances by Mike Domalske and Gregg Gamester—both of whom finished in the top 10 last year—if it is to win its third consecutive NCAA title.

Florida Southern coach Charley Matlock has juggled the other three spots in his lineup in hopes of finding a winning combination. The Moccasins placed fifth in the recent Southeastern regional, 42 strokes behind Columbus, which has to be considered one of the top contenders this year.

Columbus has two of the top Division II golfers in Mike Walton and Johnny Hammond. Walton won the individual title in the Southeastern regional and should be a top-10 finisher in the NCAA championships. Hammond, who finished three strokes behind last year's individual titlist, has a good shot at winning the title this year, in view of the graduation of Northridge State's Vic Wilk, last year's champion.

Despite the departure of Wilk, Northridge State has a well-balanced squad and has strengthened its lineup with transfers Marc Stevens and Joe Hajduch.

Southwest Texas State also is a contender. The Bobcats, who were ranked No. 1 in the latest Golf Coaches Association of America Division II poll, placed second in last year's championships and appear to have the talent to win it all. Coach Bill Woodley's squad is led by Marty Auch and Chris Young.

Gregg Gamester

Indiana (Pennsylvania) cannot be counted out of the title picture. The Big Indians finished behind Southwest Texas State last year and return top golfers Rob Yeager, Kirk Stauffer and Bernie DiLoreto.

Other golfers who should contend for individual honors include Drew Campbell and Mickey O'Kelley, Jacksonville State; Terry Mobley and Flip Bradley, Troy State; Mark Diamond and Larry O'Toole, Rollins; Bob Royak, Tampa; Joe Foquith, Central Florida, and Pat Nanney, Tennessee-Martin.

UCLA wins 10th volleyball title

UCLA won its third consecutive NCAA Men's Volleyball Championship May 7 by defeating Pepperdine, 15-10, 16-14, 15-7, at St. John Arena in Columbus, Ohio.

The Bruins came from behind to win the first game, survived a furious Pepperdine rally in the second game and dominated the third game to take their 10th NCAA volleyball title in the 14-year history of the championship.

In the third-place match, host Ohio State defeated Penn State, 15-13, 15-12, 13-15, 15-10.

UCLA advanced to the title game by defeating Ohio State, 15-4, 15-4, 15-4. Ohio State has lost to the Bruins in the opening round of the last four tournaments, losing each match by 3-0 margins.

Pepperdine, which made its first tournament appearance since it defeated UCLA in the 1978 championship, also at Columbus, defeated Penn State, 15-12, 15-7, 15-9, to gain the championship match.

Pepperdine had the Bruins down 9-5 in the first game of the title match before UCLA scored nine consecutive points for a 14-9 lead. The Waves scored one more point before UCLA's Steve Gulnac spiked the ball down the middle for the winning point.

The Waves trailed UCLA by six points in the second game before they came back to tie the score at 13. Pepperdine took a brief lead on John Garacochea's spike, but UCLA scored the next three points to win the game, 16-14.

UCLA also dominated the all-tournament team. The Bruins were represented by Gulnac, Wally Martin, Doug Partie and Ricci Luyties, who also was named the tournament's

Golf title would suit Warriors to a T

May 17 cannot arrive too soon for Stanislaus State golf coach Jim Hanny. That date signals the start of the four-day, 72-hole NCAA Division III Men's Golf Championships, and Hanny has waited very patiently for this year's championships.

Ramapo halted Stanislaus State's six-year domination of Division III golf last year with a one-stroke victory over the Warriors, and Hanny is eager to prove that last year's defeat was a fluke.

"We had three guys three-putt on the final hole last year," Hanny said. "I'm not taking away anything from Ramapo, but it was our own fault that we lost. It was pretty tough to take, but our chances look real good this year."

Hanny is optimistic despite the graduation of his top player and last year's individual champion, Cliff Smith. The Warriors have fared well against Divisions I and II schools this spring under the leadership of Doug Dunaky and Steve Hahn. Through 23 rounds, Dunaky had averaged 75.5. Hahn, a junior college transfer, has a 75.6 average and has proved to be a valuable addition to the squad. The balance of Hanny's squad consists of Tom Ringer, Dean Kain and Pat Ward. Ringer and Kain tied for 10th in last year's championships.

Although Hanny has reason to be optimistic, Ramapo is considered by many to be the favorite. The Roadrunners were ranked No. 2 in the latest Golf Coaches Association of America Division III poll and, like Stanislaus State, have had a good spring season.

Ramapo is led by seniors Tom Dee and Barry Evans. They tied for second place last year with 297 totals. Coach Vince Nardiello also returns Tom Zahuta, who has compiled a 72.8 average this spring. Ramapo's other two spots will be filled by Carl Campanelli and Scott Cornaby.

If either Stanislaus State or Ramapo stumbles, Methodist could take the title. The Monarchs finished third last year with four freshmen on the squad. Methodist was ranked third in the latest GCAA Division III poll.

Other teams that have a shot at the title include Ohio Wesleyan, Allegheny, Greensboro, Capital and Wittenberg.

Pressures in athletics can be diminished

There is no way to remove all of the pressures that are placed on institutions and coaches in major college sports, but there are steps an institution should take to diminish those pressures.

That is the message in a document entitled "The Pressures on Institutions and Coaches To Win at All Costs: How Can These Pressures Be Reduced," written by former NCAA President J. Neils Thompson, professor of engineering and former faculty athletic representative at the University of Texas, Austin.

The topic of pressures in college athletics has been discussed for the past three years by the NCAA Long Range Planning Committee, of which Thompson is a member. The document was approved by that committee in its February meeting and submitted to the NCAA Council last month.

"Winning itself is the basic ingredient of athletic competition," Thompson states in the introduction to his paper, "and the desire to win is a logical, to-be-expected characteristic of all coaches, athletes and administrators. It is only when the desire to win becomes so enormous that other, equally noble values become distorted that one must become concerned.

"Certainly, the pressure to win felt by many coaches is self-imposed," Thompson writes. "The problem facing administrators, then, is twofold: (1) assuring that unreasonable administrative pressures are not added to the self-imposed pressures, and (2) acting as a buffer between the coach and influential supporters."

Thompson's document analyzes 12 factors that result in pressures on institutions and coaches, acknowledging that the intensity of those pressures will differ from institution to institution. The 12 factors:

- Coaches' tenure
- Institutional philosophy and governance
- Alumni philosophy and leadership
- Characteristics of other supporters
- Nature of athletics administration
- Process of selection of coaches
- Nature of coaches' agreements or contracts

- Coaches associations
- Coaches' motivations
- Financial pressures
- Competitive arena
- Governance of collegiate athletics

The document comments on each of those factors and emphasizes that the institution's president, athletics board or council, faculty and director of athletics can ameliorate many of the negative aspects caused by those factors "if they are very familiar with the actual circumstances of the program, have a clear understanding of the interrelatedness of athletic and academic objectives, and enjoy a political support base developed within the faculty and the governing board" of the institution.

Thompson's document concludes with a list of 15 steps an institution can take to diminish the "win-at-all-costs" pressures:

1. Adjust the institutional philosophy.
2. Review the pertinent institutional governance.
3. Educate the alumni leadership.
4. Closely monitor fan-support clubs ("booster groups").

5. Keep salaries at appropriate levels and in accord with responsibilities and risks.

6. Select coaches who are well-balanced and who believe in high educational commitments.

7. Be sure that institutional control of athletics is fully in accord with the NCAA constitution and bylaws.

8. Use search and selection procedures in hiring coaches that are fully in accord with administrative responsibilities.

9. Be certain that the coach's agreement or contract is fully under the control of the institution and does not depend on performance of outsiders.

10. Encourage coaches to be active in their coaches associations and to improve those associations.

11. In the appointment or selection of a coach, be sure that he or she realizes satisfaction from training young people and is not in it for "just the money."

12. Do not overlook the maintenance of minor sport coaches just because their sports do not bring in funds.

13. A sport should not be sponsored by an institution on a multiple-support basis. It is better not to sponsor it at all.

14. Encourage the NCAA to develop a system that provides coaches with more of a feeling of being a part of the decision-making process in their sport.

15. Develop a close understanding with the sports reporting media in order to keep misunderstandings from causing conflicts and disputes within the administration of collegiate sports in an institution.

At the recommendation of the Long Range Planning Committee, the Council voted to refer the document to the Select Committee on Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education and to make the full document available to any NCAA member on request. Distribution will be limited to one copy per member institution, and that copy can be obtained by writing Ted C. Tow, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Hallock named Corbett winner

Wiles Hallock, retiring after 34 years of service to intercollegiate athletics, has been named the 1983 recipient of the annual James J. Corbett Memorial Award.

Hallock's career in intercollegiate athletics began in 1949 as sports information director at the University of Wyoming (he also was track coach from 1952 to 1956). After serving as an SID at the University of California, Berkeley, from 1960 to 1963, Hallock became public relations director of the NCAA in 1963 and served until 1967.

In 1968, Hallock was named commissioner of the Western Athletic Conference. After a three-year stint, he moved to the Pacific-10 Conference (then Pacific-8) as executive director, the position from which he is retiring next month.

Hallock has made numerous contributions to intercollegiate athletics. He is chair of the NCAA's Football Television and Professional Sports Liaison Committees. In addition, Hallock was a member of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee for seven years.

For his 14 years as a sports information director, Hallock earned the three highest honors offered by the College Sports Information Directors of America. He was CoSIDA's first president in 1954, won the Arch Ward Award as the nation's best sports information director in 1963, and, in 1969, was elected to the CoSIDA Hall of Fame.

"Knowing the caliber of previous Corbett Award recipients, and others who could have been chosen, I am overwhelmed," said Hallock. "It is truly a great honor and one I will always cherish."

Hallock is married to the former Marjorie Eldred, and they have two children and three grandchildren.

The Corbett Award first was awarded in 1967 to Bernie Moore, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference at that time. Other winners of the award:

H.O. "Fritz" Crisler, University of Michigan, 1968; Asa S. Bushnell, Eastern College Athletic Conference, 1969; Dick Larkins, Ohio State University, 1970; Tom Hamilton, Pacific-10 Conference, 1971; Bill Reed, Big Ten Conference, 1972; Ernie McCoy, University of Miami (Florida), 1973; Al Twitchell, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, 1974; Jesse Hill, Pacific Coast Athletic Association, 1975; Walter Byers, NCAA, 1976; Robert Kane, U.S. Olympic Committee, 1977; Bill Orwig, Indiana University, 1978; Harry Fouke, University of Houston, 1979; Stan Bates, Western Athletic Conference, 1980; William J. Flynn, Boston College, 1981; Edgar A. Sherman, Muskingum College, 1982.

Challenge to transfer rule fails

A motion for a preliminary injunction has been denied a University of Pennsylvania tennis player who had challenged the NCAA's transfer rule in Federal district court in Philadelphia.

Judge Clifford S. Green ruled May 4 that Farley Weiss, 19, had not offered sufficient evidence that he would be irreparably harmed if the injunction were denied. Judge Green also dissolved a temporary restraining order preventing the Eastern College Athletic Conference from applying the transfer rule to Weiss' situation.

Weiss transferred from Arizona State University to the University of Pennsylvania last fall. The transfer rule [NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(7)] requires a student-athlete to spend a full academic and calendar year in residence at the new institution after transfer from another four-year collegiate institution prior to representing the second institution in postseason competition.

Although Weiss had not been recruited by Arizona State and did not receive a grant-in-aid, he did play tennis in intercollegiate competition at the university. Accordingly, he could not qualify for a waiver of the transfer residence requirement under Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(10).

NCAA attorney David Bruton argued that the rule's intent is to keep schools from raiding each other's athletic ranks and to require student-athletes who transfer to attend the new institution for a period of time in order to become more representative of its student body. Also, Bruton said, college students should not be able to transfer from one institution to another for strictly athletic reasons and be eligible immediately.

"It generally is accepted that students will do better academically if they pursue a course of study at one institution, and that's what we hope they are there for," Bruton said.

TV in the News

SEC signs basketball contract

The Southeastern Conference has signed a three-year contract with Sports Production Inc. and Petry Televisions for telecasts of conference basketball.

The SEC and Sports Productions said the agreement includes the right to televise between 35 and 40 games each year beginning with the 1983-84 season. All nine conference games will be televised, and the finals will be shown nationally.

Petry Televisions will handle advertising sales for the telecasts, while Sports Productions will negotiate with CBS, NBC, Atlanta's WTBS, ESPN and the USA Network to broadcast the games. Sports Productions retains the right to negotiate for national telecasts in nonconference games by SEC schools.

The value of the contract was not announced.

"We are indeed fortunate," said SEC Commissioner H. Boyd McWhorter, "that the caliber of SEC basketball has reached the level that can afford us such an attractive and beneficial agreement."

CBS wins prime-time battle

CBS-TV again has edged out ABC-TV in the annual prime-time ratings battle.

CBS evening programming drew an 18.2 rating and a 28.7 share for the 1982-83 season, while ABC came in at 17.7 and 27.9. NBC-TV was third with 15.1 and 23.8.

However, NBC held steady in comparison to its 1981-82 ratings, while both CBS and ABC dropped. The three-network combined rating dropped two percent to 51, and the combined share declined three percent to 80.4.

This was despite a modest one percent increase in the number of households using television. It appears consumers are watching more nonnetwork programming as well as using television-related technologies such as videocassettes, videodiscs, video games and home computers.

USFL discusses blackout rule

The age-old argument about blackouts apparently is causing some friction in the new United States Football League.

A recent article in Advertising Age reports that a rift may be developing between USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons and some of the league's marketing executives concerning the impact of television exposure on ticket sales.

While the league's ability to seal contracts with ABC-TV and the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network were early keys to its visibility, some league executives think the league's no-blackout rule is hurting ticket sales.

"On the one hand, we've got to establish identity through television," said one club official, "but on the other, we are killing our own product."

The league office has encouraged clubs to pursue new marketing avenues, and the blackout question was addressed at length during a recent league meeting in Chicago.

Poor weather has been a factor in USFL attendance to date. However, there have been games where the no-blackout rule may have had an effect. On Easter Sunday in Los Angeles, the baseball Dodgers and the Montreal Expos drew 39,873 with a blackout in effect, while the USFL's Los Angeles Express and the Philadelphia Stars drew 18,671 without a blackout.

Turner says contract unfair

Ted Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves and Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., recently told a group of Virginia cable operators that the $1 billion television contract signed by Major League Baseball with NBC-TV and ABC-TV was unfair.

Turner said, "We've been taken to the cleaners." He indicated that he would be willing to offer a $1.2 billion contract for the same six-year period to carry baseball on his cable network, provided pay-for-view rights were included.

Major League Baseball reportedly is examining the prospect of setting up a pay-cable television network during the next six years, with both NBC and ABC involved.

Nittany Lions attract audience

Penn State's annual spring football game May 7 attracted more than the normal local interest.

The Blue-White intrasquad game was carried over an extensive television network, reaching 10 million homes. Commercial television stations in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Cincinnati carried the contest along with cable systems in New York, Hartford, Providence, Boston, Phoenix and Kansas City.

74 leagues approved in basketball

Applications from 26 more summer basketball leagues have been approved by the NCAA Administrative Committee, acting for the Council.

The Council now has approved 74 summer leagues. Under the provisions of NCAA Constitution 3-9-(b)-(1), a student-athlete (male or female) with intercollegiate basketball eligibility remaining may participate between June 15 and August 31 on a team in a basketball league approved by the NCAA Council.

Following are the additional 26 leagues that have been approved:

Men's and women's leagues

Illinois—Carver 1983 Summer League, Galesburg; Michigan—Sandy Sanders Summer Basketball League, Ann Arbor, Texas—YMCA Summer Basketball League, Waco.

Thompson joins NCAA staff

David Thompson has joined the enforcement and legislative services department as an enforcement representative.

Thompson served a one-month internship at the national office earlier this year, and his involvement in that program enabled him to earn his master's degree from the University of Idaho.

While completing his master's at Idaho, Thompson was a teaching assistant in the physical education department and served as an assistant women's volleyball coach.

Thompson received his bachelor's degree from Sonoma State University in Rohnert Park, California. He participated in varsity basketball at Sonoma State and was elected team captain in his senior season. Thompson also was a student representative on the university's athletic advisory board.

Championships Corner

In its May 2 meeting, the Executive Committee approved the following sports committee recommendations:

1. In Division II women's basketball, eight first-round games will be played prior to eight regional tournaments. First-round games will be played March 6, followed by regionals March 10.

2. The University of Wisconsin, Parkside, will serve as host institution for the 1983 Division II Men's and Women's Cross Country Championships November 12. The following hosts were selected for Division II regionals October 29, 1983: South Dakota State University (Central); University of Wisconsin, Parkside (Great Lakes), and California State University, Sacramento (West).

3. The 1983 NCAA Division II Football Championship will be held December 10 in McAllen, Texas.

The 1983 Division III Field Hockey Championship will be conducted on the campus of one of the finalists. The 1983 Division II Field Hockey Championship will be played November 11-12, with first-round play scheduled November 4-5.

6. The 1984 Division II Men's and Women's Gymnastics Championships will be held at Springfield College, March 29-31. For the third year in a row, the meet again will be a common-site championship with the Division II Women's Gymnastics Championships. The following institutions will serve as hosts for Division II women's gymnastics regional competition March 17, 1984: Jacksonville State University (Midwest) and U.S. Air Force Academy (Central).

7. The 1985 Division I Women's Gymnastics Championships will be held April 12-13, with the University of Utah serving as host institution. The following institutions will serve as hosts for Division I women's gymnastics regional competition March 24, 1984: California State University, Fullerton (West); University of Utah (Midwest); University of Missouri, Columbia (Central); Pennsylvania State University (Northeast); University of Florida (Southeast). New Division I women's gymnastics regions were established. Following are the states in each region: West—Washington, Oregon, Idaho, California, Nevada, Alaska, Hawaii; Midwest—Montana, Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Utah, Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma, Texas; Central—Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama; Southeast—Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia, Virginia, District of Columbia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida; Northeast—Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio.

8. The 1983 Division I Men's Soccer Championship will be played December 10 at Lockhart Stadium in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

9. The 1984 Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships will be held March 21-24 in Cleveland, Ohio, with Cleveland State University serving as host institution. The 1985 Division I championships will be conducted March 28-30 in Austin, Texas, with the University of Texas, Austin, serving as host institution. The 1984 Division III Men's Swimming and Diving Championships will be held March 15-17 in Atlanta, Georgia, with Emory University serving as host institution.

10. The third-place match for the 1983 Division I Women's Volleyball Championship will be played December 18. First-round competition in Division I women's volleyball will be held December 2-4, and regionals will be contested December 8-11, all at on-campus sites.

11. Florida Southern College will be the host institution for the 1983 Division II Women's Volleyball Championship, to be held December 9-10.

Certifications

The following 1983 track meet has been certified in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 2-4:

S & W Modesto Invitational, May 14, Modesto, California.

The following 1983 gymnastics meet has been certified in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 2-4:

U.S. Open Gymnastics Championships, May 27-28, Princeton, New Jersey.

Nashville

America. The hotel, originally constructed in 1977, is undergoing expansion and will be at total capacity this fall.

The Presidential ballroom, which will house the business session, has 29,400 square feet, compared to the 24,044 square feet in the ballroom that housed the 1983 business session at the Town and Country Hotel in San Diego, California. The Tennessee ballroom (19,200 square feet) will be used for the honors luncheon.

"We require a hotel to have two ballrooms of at least 22,500 and 15,500 square feet, and this space must be unobstructed," Spry said. "Because of the increasing size of our Convention, there probably are only 10 to 12 hotels in the southern part of the United States that can meet our requirements."

The Opryland contains 48 meeting rooms, 16 of which have at least 1,000 square feet. The Ryman Exhibit Hall, with 525 exhibit booths, is the largest exhibit hall in North America.

The Opryland Hotel is about 10 minutes (seven miles) from the Nashville airport. The NCAA will have approximately 1,000 rooms at the Opryland Hotel, with an additional 300 rooms at the Holiday Inn, which opened in 1981. The Opryland will provide bus service between the two hotels, although driving time is only five to seven minutes.

While attendance at many organizations' conventions across the country is declining, the 1983 NCAA Convention attracted an all-time high 1,521 persons, an increase of 15.7 percent over the previous year.

The NCAA will be making only its second trip to Dallas next year, with the 1984 Convention scheduled January 9-11 at the Loews Anatole. The only other Convention held in Dallas was at the Adolphus Hotel in 1951.

Decision

nastics teams against private club teams and meets involving only all-around competitors now will not count for qualification purposes.

The Executive Committee also approved a realignment of regions for Division I women's gymnastics, and six, instead of seven, teams and all-around competitors now will participate in regional meets. (See Championships Corner, page 5, for new regional alignments.)

Also instituted for women's gymnastics were tie-breaking procedures for the all-around and individual competition at the national championships. In individual-event competition, ties will be broken by reverting to the highest score in the event during team and all-around competition the preceding day; if a tie still exists, it would stand. In all-around competition, ties will be broken by reverting to the highest individual event score, then the next highest, etc., until the tie is broken.

In Division II women's gymnastics, the Executive Committee approved a recommendation to base qualification and seeding for Division II regional competition on the average of the four, rather than three, best regular-season meets. Also, regional scores will count one-half instead of one-third in determining national championship seeding.

Following are other sports committee recommendations acted upon by the Executive Committee:

Field hockey—The rules modification to allow any legal stroke to be used on a free hit was deleted. This will be in effect for all three divisions in the 1983 championships. Also, the maximum squad size was increased from 16 to 17, and the traveling party was increased from 20 to 21. A recommendation to alter the Division II championships structure was denied.

Men's gymnastics—A recommendation to establish a computer program to assist in Division I selection was referred to the Special NCAA Program Evaluation Subcommittee. A proposal to alter the format for qualifying Divisions II and III gymnasts for the Division I championships was denied.

Men's soccer—In Division III, all regions now will be permitted to play separate first-round games. This will allow pairings of teams in similar geographic areas to help cut costs of air travel. The committee will use this plan only if the situation warrants; it is not a change in policy.

Men's swimming and diving—In Divisions II and III, a recommendation was approved to incorporate a degree of difficulty in diving events in addition to the minimum-point standards. In Division II, the degree of difficulty is 14.1 in the one-meter event and 15.8 in the three-meter event. In Division III, the degree of difficulty on the one-meter board is 13.8 and 14.8 on the three-meter board. Qualifying standards for all three divisions were approved as recommended by the Men's Swimming Committee. These standards will be published in future issues of The NCAA News. A proposal to increase the number of events in Divisions I and II from 18 to 20 was denied.

Women's swimming and diving—Qualifying standards for all three divisions were approved as recommended by the Women's Swimming Committee. Those standards will be published in future issues of The NCAA News. In Division I, the number of divers from each zone who advance to the national championships now will be based on that zone's performance in the previous year's championships, with each zone receiving a minimum of three entries. Automatic qualification was granted to the following Division I conferences: Southeastern Conference, Big Ten Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference and Western Collegiate Athletic Association. In Divisions II and III, a degree-of-difficulty standard now will be required, in addition to minimum point totals.

Division I women's volleyball—The following allied conferences were granted automatic qualification for the 1983 Division I Women's Volleyball Championship: Big Eight Conference, Big Ten Conference, Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference, High Country Athletic Conference, Northern Pacific Athletic Conference, Southeastern Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Association, Mid-American Athletic Conference, Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic-10 Conference, Big East Conference, Western Collegiate Athletic Association and Southland Women's Conference. For a conference to be considered for automatic qualification in 1984, it must conduct either double round-robin, in-season competition plus a postseason tournament to determine the conference representative to the NCAA championship. All conference matches must be three-of-five game matches played to 15 points. A recommendation to have the national-office staff compile national statistics in women's volleyball was denied. The 1983 Division I championship will be conducted under rules of the National Association for Girls and Women in Sport, except changing courts after the eighth point in the fifth game will be mandatory rather than optional. Regionals now will be played at on-campus sites, December 8-11.

Division II women's volleyball—The following allied conferences were granted automatic qualification for the 1983 Division II Women's Volleyball Championship: California Collegiate Athletic Association, Northern California Athletic Conference and North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. The regional alignment was changed to divide the West region into two separate regions (Northwest and Southwest).

Division III women's volleyball—The Executive Committee requested that the Division III Women's Volleyball Committee consider additional conferences for automatic qualification for the 1983 championship. The volleyball committee had recommended the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference, Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Division I women's softball—Automatic qualification for the 1983 championship was withdrawn from the High Country Athletic Conference. Wyoming dropped its intercollegiate softball program, leaving only five institutions in the conference sponsoring the sport. A minimum of six was needed to retain automatic-qualification privileges.

Men's water polo—A recommendation was approved to allow an additional team to be selected from the East region. A minimum of two institutions now will be selected from the East region. A proposal to extend the championships from one to three days was denied.

Wrestling—The field for the Division II championship will remain at 160 participants, and the Division III field will remain at 233 participants. The sizes of the championships fields were to have been reduced to 100 and 175, respectively, but the Executive Committee approved the Wrestling Committee's appeal to remain at last year's numbers.

Championships field announced

The field for the 1983 Division I Men's Tennis Championships has been announced by the NCAA Men's Tennis Committee.

First-round team pairings for the tournament, which begins May 14 in Athens, Georgia, are as follows: Southern Methodist vs. Utah, Clemson vs. California-Irvine, Pepperdine vs. Wichita State, UCLA vs. Michigan, Miami (Florida) vs. Trinity (Texas), Texas vs. Southern California, California vs. Arkansas, Harvard vs. Stanford.

Following team competition, 64 singles players and 32 doubles teams will begin individual competition.

Sixteen teams also were selected for the 1983 Division I Women's Tennis Championships, to be held May 14-22 in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

First-round team pairings for the women's championships: Southern California vs. Pepperdine, Trinity (Texas) vs. Northwestern, UCLA vs. Florida, Stanford vs. Princeton, San Diego State vs. Miami (Florida), South Carolina vs. Indiana, Clemson vs. Oklahoma State, California vs. Texas.

Following team competition, 64 singles players and 32 doubles teams will begin individual competition.

a number of items until its August 15-16 meeting in Denver, Colorado. Among those was a request to clarify the policy that requires championships participants within approximately 250 miles of a championship site to travel via ground transportation rather than by plane. Also delayed until August was a request to determine a standard mileage figure for all championships competition. The Special NCAA Program Evaluation Committee, chaired by Charley Scott, will report on the effect this policy would have had on the 1982-83 championships.

Another item of discussion for the Executive Committee, which was expanded from 12 to 14 members at the 1983 NCAA Convention, was the possibility of the Association purchasing loss-of-revenue insurance for major revenue championships like the Division I Men's Basketball Championship. Discussions have been started with two insurance companies, and the staff was directed to study the type and length of coverage necessary in case of a catastrophe-type occurrence at an NCAA championship. Another report will be made at the August meeting.

The Administrative Committee was directed to work with the staff to implement a study of the future financial potential of the Association. The committee will attempt to anticipate the future expenses and revenues of the Association on immediate and 10-year bases.

The Executive Committee also appointed officers for the NCAA Realty Corporation. John R. Davis, secretary-treasurer, automatically becomes president of the corporation. NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers, secretary, and NCAA controller Louis J. Spry, treasurer, continue as members. New members selected were Executive Committee members Connie Claussen, University of Nebraska, Omaha, and Robert F. Riedel, Geneseo State University College.

Reports also were received by the Executive Committee from the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports and the Special NCAA Committee on Officiating Improvement.

The competitive safeguards committee's requests to add other sports to its injury-surveillance program and to publish another edition of its sports-medicine handbook were referred to the program evaluation committee.

The officiating committee is seeking to narrow its focus to concentrate solely on men's and women's basketball. The committee wants to concentrate on selection, training, mechanics and teaching of officials. It also hopes to have an effect on coaches' attitudes. The committee will meet sometime this summer, and it was granted authority by the Executive Committee to modify the charge of the committee as recommended. The officiating committee originally was directed to study ways of improving officiating in all sports.

The Executive Committee also approved the Association becoming an allied member of the Amateur Softball Association. Additionally, the NCAA will be represented at the May meeting of USA Swimming, the national governing body for swimming, to explore further the feasibility of the Association becoming an allied member of that organization.

ments, increased foreign language study, and tougher admissions standards at four-year colleges.

A recent report in Newsweek magazine noted that "27 states are making it tougher for students to get into their state universities."

Actually, the validity of some of the commission's criticism has been questioned by the National Association of Secondary School Principals. Executive Director Thomson said that more students are taking additional English, math and science than is reflected in the data on which the commission relied.

Thomson told the Wall Street Journal he welcomed the unfavorable comparison of U.S. schools with the schools in other industrialized nations, saying it would help dispel the popular belief that we are the best.

Reform movements also are under way in Mississippi, long considered to be lagging in public education;

Texas, and Ohio.

In Texas, the legislature has enacted reforms that include specific graduation requirements for every school in the state. Curriculum requirements similar to those suggested by the commission will be implemented for Texas high school sophomores in the fall of 1984.

Mississippi's legislature recently approved a major education reform bill.

In Ohio, Franklin B. Walter, superintendent of public instruction, said the state legislature already has been requested to implement some of the commission's proposals. He said recommendations include a longer school day and longer year, increased graduation requirements, and the implementation of a college preparatory curriculum in public schools.

Walter does not subscribe to the belief that the reforms will entail large expenditures.

Only one commission recommendation—lengthening teachers' contracts to 11 months—is considered costly. The National Education Association has estimated that extended contracts would increase the nationwide bill for teachers from $53.2 billion to $58.5 billion.

NEA President Willard McGuire told U.S. News and World Report, "Local school districts and state governments—already pinched by recessionary budgets—can't do it alone. They need more help from the Federal government."

But, in a speech May 7, Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, said that if teachers do cooperate with the reform effort, there are powerful business, education and government leaders who are willing to support "a massive infusion" of new funds to education and significant increases in teacher salaries.

Shanker cited the California Round Table, a group of 86 state business executives who are supporting an increase of up to $1 billion in aid to education in California, contingent upon a program to improve education.

Some educators question the dependency on Federal dollars, noting that public-school spending more than doubled between 1970 and 1980.

Exception telecast procedure explained

NCAA member institutions interested in presenting exception telecasts or cablecasts during the 1983 football season and who need to discuss this subject should contact C. Dennis Cryder, NCAA associate television program director.

Procedures for presenting exception telecasts and cablecasts are contained in the 1982-1985 NCAA Football Television Plan, Article 16. Cryder can be reached at the NCAA national office.
