Supreme Court temporarily stays TV ruling

Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White July 18 granted a stay of a lower-court ruling that would have invalidated the 1982-1985 NCAA Football Television Plan.

The stay, which will remain in effect until further action by White, was requested by the NCAA following a decision July 11 by the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals not to stay its earlier ruling that the NCAA Football Television Plan was in violation of Federal antitrust laws.

Attorneys for the Association then asked the Supreme Court for the stay. The 10th circuit comes under Justice White's jurisdiction in such matters. NCAA legal counsel cited the potential problems that could occur if controls were removed from college football television this close to the beginning of the 1983 season.

"The nation's colleges and universities are counting on the receipt of the $74 million payment under the (existing) network contracts. There is little to gain and much to lose by attempting to effect a fundamental change in the telecasting of college football with so little time to go before the 1983 season," NCAA lawyers contended in their request.

Association counsel also has filed a writ of certiorari, asking the Supreme Court to hear the case.

After granting the stay, White ordered lawyers for the plaintiffs—the University of Georgia Athletic Association and the University of Oklahoma—to respond to the NCAA's request by 5 p.m. July 19.

"The views of the United States would also be welcome, should the Department of Justice care to present them prior to the time indicated," White said.

The plaintiffs and the justice department both filed responses July 19, urging Justice White to deny the NCAA's request for a stay.

The plaintiffs earlier this month had requested that the circuit court deny a stay. In their brief filed at that time, the plaintiffs disagreed with the NCAA's contention that television controls should remain in effect for the 1983 season while the Association asked for a hearing by the Supreme Court.

The brief cited an affidavit signed by Daniel G. Gibbens, faculty athletic representative at Oklahoma, that "the colleges, universities, networks and other broadcast entities are well prepared for the eventuality that the NCAA plan will not be in effect this coming fall." Gibbens and the plaintiffs' lawyers argued that the nation's major football institutions were ready to proceed with alternate plans for 1983 and the income potential was more attractive.

However, most of the proposed alternative plans, including a "coalition plan" involving members of the College Football Association and the Pacific-10 Conference and the Big Ten Conference, still are in the formative stages. The overwhelming majority of Division I-A appears to favor the maintenance of the NCAA plan at least through the coming season.

"I think the pulse around the country is to stay with what we have in 1983," DeLoss Dodds, director of athletics at the University of Texas, Austin, told the Associated Press.

"The majority of the schools wanted the NCAA plan to stay in place this year because of the chaos that would be created if it didn't," said Charley Thornton, associate athletic director at Texas A&M University.

"The vast majority of opinion in Division I-A has been to try to hold things the way they are for at least a year," said Wiles Hallock, immediate past chair of the NCAA Football Television Committee. "Very few schools—you can count them on one hand—are sorry this whole lawsuit took place. Everyone realizes it would be difficult to generate the revenue that was in the NCAA package if everyone goes his own way."

Pending further action by the Supreme Court, planning for a special meeting of NCAA Divisions I-A and

Interest in freshman ineligibility wanes

Freshman ineligibility—an issue that appeared to be growing in Division I support earlier this year—is not likely to be implemented, based on the consensus of those attending the first Division I summer meeting June 24-25 in Kansas City.

All six of the separate sessions at the summer meeting—for faculty athletic representatives, directors of athletics, primary women administrators of athletics programs, conference executives, head football coaches and head basketball coaches—came out against making freshmen ineligible for varsity competition, whether in all sports or only in Division I football and basketball.

Opponents of the concept cite two concerns: the possibility that freshman ineligibility would result in rescission of the new academic requirements for initial eligibility (Proposal No. 48 at the 1983 NCAA Convention) and the lack of data to document the belief that an appreciable number of freshmen are unable to handle varsity competition and classwork in their first year of college.

In another issue facing most of the groups at the meeting, there was nearly unanimous concern that priority attention should be given to problems posed by player agents.

Two other topics resulted in considerable discussion—implementation of the provisions of Proposal No. 48 and Proposal No. 56 (satisfactory progress) and concerns regarding the Division I membership structure. In both cases, the consensus appeared to be to await the reports of special NCAA committees that have begun work in those areas.

Following are summaries of the presentations and discussions at the summer meeting, which was attended by 179 representatives of Division I institutions and conferences.

Joint session

In his opening remarks, President John L. Toner, University of Connecticut, praised the response to the first Division I summer meeting, which he noted was designed to establish an annual midyear forum for discussion of the key issues facing the Division I membership well in advance of the annual Convention and to involve different constituencies of the Division I membership.

He urged the participants to feel free to discuss any issue they desired, noting that the meeting was not a legislative session but an opportunity to understand fully the key Division presented a progress report on the work of the independent commission. He reported that the committee hoped to have its final report available in September. He also emphasized that the committee had reserved the right to review all of its conclusions prior to announcing any of them to the public; therefore, nothing in his report to this meeting should be considered final.

Issues and possibly to work together toward positive solutions. He emphasized the need for all participants to participate in the discussions in that vein.

Toner reported that the results of the meetings would be published in The NCAA News; reviewed in both August and October by the Division I Steering Committee and the NCAA Council, and considered by the Select Committee on Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education, the annual Division I chief executive officers meeting in September and by all Division I conferences.

On that basis, Schaefer reported these tentative positions taken by the select committee:

•Support for the "primacy of the student role all of our student-athletes must assume," including stronger academic requirements both for initial eligibility and progress toward a degree.

•Similar academic requirements for transfers from community or junior colleges. "They should not be able to circumvent a poor high school performance by going the junior college route."

•Curtailed participation by freshmen in Division I football and believe, if properly structured, this will provide a larger moral voice for universities to use in assuring that those in their programs are real student-athletes and not athletes who are trying to pass themselves off as students, and who really don't belong in a university or college setting."

•Interest in recommending some changes in the legislative structure of Division I, although no precise proposals had been determined as yet.

•Removal of the legislation limiting the value of an athletics grant-in-aid from the constitution, placing it in the bylaws for separate action by the respective divisions.

•Greater involvement by chief executive officers in the affairs of the NCAA, perhaps by continuing some type of committee like the select

Nominations open for 12 Council positions

The Nominating Committee for the 1984 Convention is seeking nominations for consideration by the committee for 12 Council positions that expire in January 1984.

The vacancies include the positions of Edwin W. Lawrence, Division II vice-president, and Kenneth J. Weller, Division III vice-president, who are not eligible for reelection.

The deadline for submitting nominations is September 15. Nominations may be sent to Charles H. Samson, committee chair, or to any member of the committee. Nominations also may be sent directly to Fannie B. Vaughan, administrative assistant, at the NCAA national office.

Six Division I Council positions are included among the vacancies. Five of those six members are eligible for reelection to a full term. Four positions are to be filled in Division II, with only one Council member eligible for reelection. In Division III, two vacancies are to be filled, with both current Council members ineligible for reelection.

Those eligible for reelection to a full term in Division I are Eugene F. Corrigan, University of Notre Dame; Jack V. Doland, McNeese State University; Mikki Flowers, Old Dominion University; John W. Kaiser, St. John's University (New York); and David L. Maggard, University of California, Berkeley. John W. Sawyer, Wake Forest University, is not eligible for reelection.

In Division II, Ade L. Sponberg, North Dakota State University, is eligible to serve a full term. Lawrence, University of Alaska, Fairbanks, and P. LaVerne Sweat, Hampton institute, are not eligible for reelection, and Billy M. Miller, Southwest Texas State University, will be replaced inasmuch as his institution will move to Division I in September 1984.

In Division III, both Donald M. Russell, Wesleyan University, and Weller, Central College (Iowa), are not eligible for reelection.

The 1983 Convention voted to expand the Council from 22 to 46 members, with the president and secretary-treasurer included as ex officio members.

The remaining 44 members of the Council include 22 Division I members, including at least six women; 11 Division II members, including at least three women, and 11 Division III members, including at least three women.

A form for the membership's use in submitting nominations for Council vacancies appears on page 12 of this issue of The NCAA News.

The following Council vacancies are to be filled at the Convention:

Off-season coaching inspires Badgers' Sauer

The hockey coach would not have been more proud of his players if they had just won the NCAA Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship. They did not. Far from it.

Instead, they scrimmaged to a 10-10 draw in an exhibition game against a collection of all-stars, including Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita.

That's pretty fast company—even if the older guys were skating at only half speed. But no one noticed. The score was not important to Jeff Sauer, who guided the University of Wisconsin, Madison, to its fourth NCAA crown in March.

On this steamy June night in a suburban Chicago hockey rink, he was coaching a different team for different stakes and for different reasons.

No title was on the line. And his players were not as smooth, not as quick and not as skilled. They never heard the crowd. Sauer's all-stars were deaf.

"It's one of the most rewarding things that I've ever done personally in a coaching situation," said Sauer. "But don't make a big deal about it. It's just something that I enjoy."

For the past five summers, Sauer has been an instructor at Stan Mikita's

Hockey School for the Hearing Impaired.

The one-week session concluded with the annual all-star game in which many of Mikita's old teammates from the Chicago Black Hawks participated.

Mikita, who recently was selected to the National Hockey League Hall of Fame, gave his name to the school 10 years ago.

"I was running a camp in Colorado Springs when the American Hearing Impaired Hockey Association sent us two players," said Sauer, explaining the roots of his involvement in 1978.

"That first morning, I spent two hours with the kids just finding out what kinds of problems there would be. After my camp was over, one of the fathers invited me to come to Chicago the following year.

"It worked out well. My wife is from Chicago, and I figured we could combine a vacation with my involvement in Mikita's camp. As it turned out, I was there for three days and I was hooked."

He still is. Throughout the year, Sauer corresponds with many of the youngsters he helped coach at the school. In fact, he invited one of his pupils, who lives in Minot, North Dakota, to be his guest at the national tournament in Grand Forks.

"I write to them, and they write to me," Sauer said. "I just like to know where they are and what they're doing. It's nice to keep the connections."

Along with Sauer, Gene Ubriaco (the coach of the year in the Central Hockey League), Lou Angotti and Bob Pulford (the general manager of the Black Hawks) are members of the school's coaching staff.

Many others in the Northbrook and Glenview communities donate their time and energy and funds to ensure first-class standards.

To qualify for enrollment, a youngster must have a hearing impairment.

"But a lot of the kids have other physical problems, too," Sauer said. "We had one kid this year who walked and skated with a limp. He's a goaltender. And he did a helluva job."

The school's top goaltender is Mike DeVries (Madison LaFollette), who played on Sauer's junior varsity last season.

Cindy Cisluycis also is a goalie and the first female player to sign up for the camp. Cisluycis is from Staten Island, New York, and her older brother has been attending the school for seven years.

"People who are deaf are labeled deaf and dumb, and that's unfortunate," Sauer said. "They're not dumb, and they're not stupid. They're very normal. And they're very smart."

"This past session, we had about 63 players on three teams. They ranged in age from 10 to 24. They became a very close-knit group."

"And we developed some of the unity by playing Chicago area teams.

For the first time this year, our little guys played four games and won all four games. They were really fired up."

"I would say that we have a couple of players who are capable of playing college hockey; but whether it's on the Division I level or not, I don't know."

"But these kids are attentive, and they want to learn. And it's a different kind of challenge for me. It's embarrassing at times when I don't understand them. I do sign (language) a little bit. But mostly, it involves hockey terms."

In his wallet, Sauer carries a card on which the sign language alphabet is illustrated.

"I can converse with some of the kids; but when we're talking to them in a group, they're watching an interpreter," he said.

"Each year I attend the school, I find some kids who have lost more of their hearing and some who have improved, maybe just from learning how to read lips. And, as they progress, you discover their personalities more and more."

"I really can't express to you how rewarding it all is. I know one of the fathers said that this annually is the happiest week of the year for his son."

"The singular success of the 1983 (NCAA) Convention has a very simple explanation, namely the direct participation of college presidents. More than 100 of them attended this meeting, and the great majority were present to work for passage of proposals they were sponsoring collectively through the American Council on Education."

"All kids don't excel in all areas. Is it fair to tell some that because they can't live up to the standards in the area that we have deemed most important, they don't deserve to participate in any other? What if the situation were reversed? Would it be just to tell a child he couldn't qualify for computer classes because he couldn't punt a football? Why must we classify our young people so rigidly? Why can't we let each boy and girl go in the direction that natural talents take him or her? If it happens to be jumping a hurdle or dunking a basketball, so be it. Are we to reserve all the rewards for the lucky few who are able to master everything and deny for the others any pride in themselves? Do we tell kids, 'If you can't do this one thing, you can't do anything?' Isn't it possible to give all our children the feeling that they can belong, whether it be in scholastics or sports?"

"I'm a firm believer in the old saying that if it's not broken, don't fix it. There is a uniqueness in the college game today, and I think we should work diligently to try to maintain that uniqueness. A lot of these experimental rules are taking us closer to the style of play we see in professional basketball. Right now, we serve as an alternative to the basketball fan as to what style he wants to see. And I think we should continue to give him that alternative."

"We're not striving for the gold ring anymore. We're not striving for the top 20 year in and year out."

Digger Phelps, basketball coach
University of Notre Dame
The New York Times

"I think we do a very good job (acting on recruiting violations) and a thorough job. The only thing we require now, I think, would be stiffer penalties for the athletes involved, stiffer penalties for the institutions—like a four-year automatic probation on a major infraction and four years of no television and forfeit TV revenue—and to the coach, a probation. That coach is not permitted to be a part of this program for a period of time. I think the stiffer penalties will discourage people from doing the things out of habit."

Five years ago

The NCAA Division I Basketball Committee, meeting July 10-13, 1978, in Salt Lake City, proposed that the Division I championship bracket be expanded from 32 to 40 teams, with 23 automatic qualifiers, 16 of which would receive first-round byes. (July 15, 1978, NCAA News)

The University of California at Santa Barbara became the first NCAA University Division institution to adopt a sports logo featuring both a man and a woman "in an effort to give equal and proper recognition to its women athletes." (July 15, 1973, NCAA News)

Twenty years ago

Big Ten Conference Commissioner William R. Reed reported these academic data on Big Ten athletes in 1962-63: The median class rank for entering freshmen receiving grants-in-aid was the 73rd percentile, the median SAT score was 990 and the median ACT score was 22. (The 1963-64 NCAA Yearbook)

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q. Is it permissible for a member institution to reproduce the NCAA logo and/or seal?

A. The NCAA Council has determined that the NCAA logo and/or seal may be reproduced only by active, allied, associate or affiliated members of the Association. These identifying marks may be reproduced on stationery, for example, provided the logo and/or seal are positioned near the following statement: "An active (allied, associate, affiliated) member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association."

Q. Are the NCAA logo and/or seal decals available for purchase?

A. Member institutions may purchase the NCAA logo and/or seal vinyl decals for use in athletics offices, gymnasiums, stadiums, etc. Both the logo and seal are available in black and gold colors in 24-inch and 48-inch diameters. The 24-inch decal is priced at $8; the 48-inch decal is $16. These prices include shipping. Orders should be directed to John T. Waters, director of promotion and public relations, at the NCAA national office.

academic standards in high schools and colleges, they had to decide to interject themselves directly into NCAA affairs.

"Clearly, they were in command of this Convention. Without a doubt, it was their uncharacteristic involvement (long overdue, many believe) that secured the passage of the academic proposals. It also is clear that they must continue their leadership if this initial success is to stimulate the positive trend we must have."

Michael Oriard, sportswriter
The New York Times

"College athletics have provided opportunities for many young people to receive an education and future options otherwise closed to them. But many others have performed their athletic specialties for three or four years, and then have been dumped on the world without any real education and without hopes or illusions. The toughest question facing those who control or ought to control college athletics can be simply stated: When does providing legitimate opportunity become mere exploitation and a threat to the university's academic integrity? Simply stated, but answered with great difficulty."

committee "as an arm of the NCAA" to assure "a meaningful exchange between chief executive officers of the universities and the NCAA Council and administration."

- The possibility of a summer meeting with certain limited legislative authority, subject to review by the annual Convention.

- Greater involvement in the Association's legislative process by football and basketball coaches, as well as in meetings of this type.

- Support for review and streamlining of the NCAA Manual.

- Increased efforts to educate all persons involved in the recruiting process, including students, parents, coaches, alumni, boosters and the institutions themselves. The committee desires to "increase the humaneness" of the recruiting process for all concerned, including the possibility of a "cooling-off period" with no contact of any type immediately prior to the National Letter of Intent signing date.

Schaefer termed the select committee "a very worthwhile activity" and expressed the hope that the Association would be well-served by its report.

Football television

Wiles Hallock of the Pacific-10 Conference, immediate past chair of the NCAA Football Television Committee, discussed a memorandum that had been distributed to all participants at the meeting. The memorandum outlined the current legal status of the football television litigation and discussed steps to develop an alternate NCAA plan or plans in the event the existing plan cannot be administered in 1983. He emphasized that the existing plan and controls remain in effect while the Association pursues an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, unless the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals declines to continue its stay of the earlier Federal district court's injunction.

After reviewing several of the possible legal developments, Hallock emphasized that "it is essential that a democratic procedure be established whereby all of the football-playing members of the division may participate in the decision-making process that could have significant impact upon future institutional programs, not only football, but other programs as well."

He reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 8-2, which permit the football-playing members of each NCAA division to determine their own football television principles and plans. The Football Television Committee proposed that the Division I Steering Committee recommend to the Divisions I-A and I-AA memberships that a special meeting be authorized for the purpose of considering alternative television policies in the event that legal developments make it necessary.

Hallock then outlined examples of several principles that the committee believes should be included in any alternate television policy and plan, should one become necessary and legally possible:

- A limitation on the number of appearances any institution could enjoy on television in a given year to prevent "a relatively small group of Division I-A institutions from monopolizing college football television to the detriment of other Divisions I-A and I-AA institutions."

- A definite time period, known in advance, of at least three hours on Saturday afternoons during which telecasts of member institutions' games would be limited to the NCAA network plan, thus enabling institutions that wish some gate protection to schedule their games within that period. "Despite what the plaintiffs have contended in the pending legal action, college football is not like college basketball from the standpoint of facilities, spectator tendencies, scheduling convenience and television," Hallock said. "Significantly, 97 percent of all college football games are played on the Saturdays of the traditional fall season."

- Greater freedom for member institutions to arrange for the televising of their games outside the Saturday afternoon period.

- "We do not believe the NCAA should be involved in football television planning if television marketing is the sole purpose," he said. "We believe appearance limitations and in-person gate protection remain important and valid purposes and have been instrumental through previous NCAA controls in bringing college football to its present high level of public acceptance and support."

Hallock expressed the hope that "the Division I membership of this Association can unite in a common and satisfactory approach to this distressing and complicated problem, to the end of seeing to it that a majority of those most directly affected will have a fair opportunity to determine what our future course should be in this area, provided the Federal judiciary permits some form of concerted action."

Faculty representatives

NCAA Secretary-Treasurer John R. Davis, Oregon State University, reported that the faculty athletic representatives, in their separate meeting:

- Agreed that certain modifications may be desirable in Proposal No. 48 prior to its 1986 effective date, but with no agreement on what those might be. The faculty representatives believed that any specific action would be premature in view of the research project that is under way. In a series of straw votes, with a number of abstentions, elimination of the test-score requirement was not favored, but there was some interest in converting it to an option. In regard to Proposal No. 56, the group cited a need for interpretations or waivers to cover certain unique academic programs.

- Strongly favored continuation of current legislation regarding freshman eligibility, noting, however, that all alternatives were not available for consideration in the straw votes that were taken. The group did suggest that the research project on Proposal No. 48 include data that might assist in determining whether freshmen in various sports ought to be eligible or ineligible.

- Reached no conclusion regarding Division I membership criteria, although a number of thoughts and concerns were expressed. The faculty representatives encouraged the new Special Committee on Division I Criteria to keep the membership informed of its conclusions as its work progresses.

- Favored having the Council resubmit 1983 Convention Proposal No. 36, which would exempt up to $900 of the Pell Grant from the NCAA limitation on the value of an athletics grant. The group also favored study of other possible alternatives to assist student-athletes more realistically.

- Supported some system of controlling player agents' contacts with student-athletes and generally supported the concept of a certification program for agents. The group also suggested that the membership be reminded of the availability of a booklet regarding player agents, produced earlier by the Collegiate Commissioners Association.

- Generally supported the concept of a "quiet period" in relation to the National Letter of Intent signing date, suggesting that all kinds of contacts, including telephone and including those with the immediate family of the prospect, should be eliminated during such a period.

Directors of athletics

David L. Maggard, University of California, Berkeley, reported that the directors of athletics:

- Arrived at no consensus regarding any specific approach to solving concerns regarding Division I membership criteria, noting that the matter is sensitive and controversial and requires additional study. The ADs suggested that the Special Committee on Division I Criteria consider sport-by-sport classification—a "sport federation" concept—as an additional alternative, and some of those in attendance expressed support for establishment of I-A and I-AA subdivisions for legislative and competitive purposes in all sports.

- Expressed some concern regarding the validity of test scores as requirements for initial athletic eligibility and the demands the new Division I academic requirements may place on registrars and admissions personnel. The directors urged that the National Federation of State High School Associations be kept informed of developments regarding the new requirements and be encouraged to raise the expectation level of high school athletes.

- Expressed concern about the present status of football television, acknowledging that "everything is being done to determine the immediate and future status of a football television plan."

- Discussed at length current and potential future problems in dealing with player agents and supported the appointment of the new NCAA special committee to consider that topic. The ADs indicated a desire to develop some type of legislation that would permit student-athletes to seek legal counsel on their own campuses at no charge. They also suggested that the special committee consider such sports as track and field, tennis, and golf, in addition to football and basketball.

- Agreed that there should be some modification of the present limitation on the value of a grant-in-aid and favored (20-10 straw vote) resubmission of Proposal No. 36 from the 1983 Convention (to exempt from the grant limit up to $900 of a Pell Grant). It was the consensus of the group that student-athletes should be treated more like the general student body in terms of financial aid.

- Unanimously recommended that the contact and evaluation periods in football and basketball be unchanged for at least another year.

- Urged further study of the concept of beginning the Division I basketball season approximately one month later and reported a 12-15 straw vote opposing such a change now.

- Endorsed funding to assist the Special Committee on Officiating Improvement in its attempts to determine ways of recruiting outstanding young officials and providing better training for prospective officials, especially in basketball.

- Unanimously opposed the concept of making freshmen ineligible for college athletics.

- Agreed (19-10 straw vote) that the part-time coach should be eliminated in basketball.

Women administrators

G. Jean Cerra, University of Missouri, Columbia, reported that the primary women administrators:

- Reviewed NCAA legislative procedures, especially as they relate to women's issues, and unanimously recommended legislation that would permit the primary woman administrator, in addition to the chief executive officer, faculty athletic representative and director of athletics, to submit amendments for an institution.

- Unanimously favored retention of the August 1, 1985, deadline for institutions to determine if they wish to include their women's programs in the NCAA.

- Voted unanimously to continue to permit freshmen to be eligible for intercollegiate athletics and suggested that the research being done regarding the provisions of Proposal No. 48 include development of data on freshman grade-point averages or other academic information relating to the question of freshman eligibility. The women administrators also asked that the academic research project include data on the socioeconomic backgrounds of student-athletes.

- Strongly supported the NCAA Council's current position favoring stringent criteria for waivers permitting a women's program to be classified in a division other than the men's program. In essence, the group supported the concept of an institution conducting its men's and women's programs in the same membership division.

- Agreed that a minimum sports sponsorship requirement for women that would equal the division requirement for men should be implemented by 1987.

- Did not support restructuring of Division I and did not favor the establishment of I-A and I-AA subdivisions in women's basketball.

- Agreed with the directors of athletics that the student-athlete should have the same privileges in terms of financial aid as other students and that Proposal No. 36 should be resubmitted for consideration at the 1984 NCAA Convention.

- Favored (19-1 straw vote) a requirement that a conference conduct single round-robin regular-season play in addition to a postseason conference tournament to gain automatic qualification for the Division I Women's Basketball Championship and narrowly favored (12-11) the concept of requiring double round-robin in-season play if the conference does not have a postseason tournament.

- Unanimously favored seeding the best four teams in the bracket for any women's team championship, without regard to geography.

- Voted that the size of the championship bracket in any women's sport should be sufficient to allow for a number of automatic-qualifying berths and a number of at-large teams to reflect the strength of that sport in various areas.

- Unanimously favored limitations on the number of contests in NCAA sports but not limitations on the starting or ending dates for sports seasons.

Cerra also reported that the women's administrators were unanimous in recommending that this type of meeting continue.

Basketball coaches

Bob Knight, Indiana University, Bloomington, reported on the meeting of basketball coaches, noting that this session supplemented a May meeting that was open to all Division I head coaches. In this session, the coaches:

- Substantially agreed with Proposal Nos. 48 and 56 except for the mandatory use of SAT or ACT scores. It was suggested the test-score requirement be eliminated or left to institutional discretion.

- Favored no change in the current freshman-eligibility legislation, including the permissibility of redshirting freshmen. (The coaches indicated an additional three to five grants would be necessary in their sport if freshmen were to be ineligible.)

- Favored legislation that would exempt the Pell Grant in its entirety from the limitation on a grant-in-aid and recommended that summer jobs be permissible for athletes with an athletic grant who are attending the institution's summer school. "We think the most important consideration to be made for the grant-in-aid is giving relief to the athlete so he can participate in the school community as a normal student," Knight said.

- Recommended that freshmen who will be eligible to compete in their first year should be allowed to attend the institution's summer school and receive financial assistance prior to the fall term of the freshman year.

- Recommended that all freshman nonqualifiers be permitted to receive grants-in-aid and retain four years of eligibility thereafter.

- Suggested that their own association (NABC) produce a publication outlining for athletes the involvements with player agents, the difference between hourly fees and percentages as compensation for agents, and what can be expected from professional teams. In addition, coaches should be more active in counseling their athletes regarding the entire process of becoming a professional.

- Asked that discussion of delaying the beginning of the basketball season in Division I be postponed until the coaches' May 1984 meeting. In this meeting, the coaches voted 11-5 (with two abstentions) to retain the present dates of the basketball season.

- Strongly recommended converting the current part-time basketball coaching position to a full-time position (i.e., one head coach and three assistants), with the institution to determine the salary. The coaches strongly favor the current permissible number of coaches (four) and would support elimination of the part-time position only if it could be converted to full-time. They believe the institution should designate among the four the three coaches who would be permitted to recruit off campus.

- Recommended an evaluation period in basketball from June 15 to August 1 and from the first game a prospect plays until the last game, adding approximately two weeks to the current period.

- Recommended a recruiting contact period in basketball from September 1 to October 10 and from March 1, or the end of the prospect's season, to May 15. This would subtract approximately three weeks from the present period.

- Recommended that the "quiet period" in conjunction with the Final Four of the Division I Men's Basketball Championship be interpreted to eliminate all personal contact with prospects, on campus or off (e.g., no official paid visits during that period).

- Unanimously supported the current project to simplify the NCAA Manual.

- Favored permitting coaches to be involved in speaking engagements during "quiet periods" in cases where there is no personal contact with prospects in connection with the speech.

- Supported giving three complimentary tickets to prospects to attend away games, as well as home games.

- Recommended that two pre-season scrimmages as described in NCAA Bylaw 3-2(e) be permitted without counting against the permissible number of games.

- Favored retention of the one-year grant and supported the new provisions of Bylaw 1-2(b) (eliminating recruiting contacts by anyone except institutional staff members), noting that these issues will be discussed by the coaches next May.

Knight urged the NCAA Council and voting delegates at the annual Convention to pay particular attention to the coaches' proposals that affect the game of basketball without affecting the economics of college athletics. Knight urged the group to "pay attention to the athlete and what is best for the athlete."

Young, Caulkins head CoSIDA academic all-Americans

Villanova quartermiler Carlton Young and Florida swimmer Tracy Caulkins led selections to the first men's and women's academic all-America at-large teams selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

The at-large teams are composed of student-athletes who participated in sports other than football, men's basketball, women's basketball and women's volleyball. CoSIDA has separate academic all-America teams for those four groups.

Young, the 440-yard dash champion at the 1983 NCAA Men's Indoor Track Championships, had a 3.900 grade-point average in biology and premedicine. He was joined on the first team by teammate Michael England, who carried a 3.600 GPA in general science.

Caulkins, winner of three events at the 1983 NCAA Division I Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, was one of seven swimming and diving participants on the 10-woman first team. Caulkins had a 3.790 GPA in broadcasting and was joined by teammate Megan Neyer, 1983 NCAA champion on the one-meter and three-meter boards in diving.

Water polo standout John Friedman of MIT led the balloting for the 10-man College Division first team. Friedman compiled a 5.000 (5.000 scale) GPA in architecture. Central College (Iowa) track performer Lisa Broek led the voting for the College Division women's team. Broek registered a 3.950 GPA in biology and sociology.

Following are the University and College Divisions academic all-America at-large teams selected by CoSIDA:

Student-athletes add to medal collections

Student-athletes from NCAA member institutions brought home their share of gold medals from the recently completed National Sports Festival and the World University Games.

In individual sports that the NCAA sponsors, student-athletes from member institutions won 37 gold medals at the sports festival in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

At the World University Games in Edmonton, Alberta, American collegians won 12 gold medals—five in track and field, three in tennis, two in diving, one in swimming and one in women's basketball.

Highlighting the two events was Calvin Smith's world record of 9.93 in the 100-meter dash at the sports festival. Smith, a senior at Alabama, was runner-up in the 100-meters at the 1983 NCAA Division I Men's Outdoor Track Championships.

Another notable performance was turned in by Nebraska's Scott Johnson, who won five gold medals in men's gymnastics at the sports festival. Michael Carter, Southern Methodist, captured the men's shot put title at both events.

The U.S. medal total at the World University Games was 12 golds, 22 silvers and 21 bronze. That put the Americans a distant second to the Soviet Union, which ran up 59 golds, 29 silvers and 27 bronze medals.

Following is a rundown on current collegians, including those who completed their eligibility in 1983, who won gold medals in NCAA-sponsored individual sports at the National Sports Festival and World University Games:

National Sports Festival

Men's diving Greg Louganis, California-Irvine (does not compete for school), three-meter, 10-meter.

Women's fencing Jana Angelakis, Penn State, foil.

Men's gymnastics—Scott Johnson, Nebraska, all-around, floor exercise, still rings, parallel bars, high bar; Mark Caso, UCLA, vault.

Men's swimming—John Saurland, UCLA, 50-meter freestyle; Dennis Baker, Arizona, 100-meter butterfly, 200-meter butterfly; Steve Lundquist, Southern Methodist, 100-meter breaststroke, 200-meter breaststroke; Cliff Looschen, Nebraska, 100-meter backstroke, 200-meter backstroke.

Sponsorship forms to be mailed July 25

The 1983-84 Official Institutional Information and Sports Sponsorship Forms will be mailed by July 25 to all active and associate members of the NCAA. The forms are mailed to directors of athletics at all member institutions.

This information is needed to ensure that all NCAA eligibility lists, mailing lists and other records are correct. The information also is used to produce the NCAA Directory.

Names of each institution's chief executive officer, faculty athletic representative, director of athletics and primary woman administrator of athletic programs are requested, along with the number of contests for men's, women's and mixed teams in each varsity sport sponsored by the institution. An active member institution may be required to pay a penalty of $150 or $300 for failure to indicate sponsorship of a varsity sport, if it later wishes to be eligible for championship competition in that sport in accordance with Executive Regulation 1-5-(c).

Forms should be returned by August 15 to Shirley Whitacre, membership coordinator, at the NCAA national office. In accordance with Executive Regulation 1-5-(b)-(5), forms must be returned by institutions by September 15 to be eligible for NCAA fall championships.

Men's track and field Calvin Smith, Alabama, 100-meter dash; Willie Gault, Tennessee, 110-meter high hurdles; Michael Carter, Southern Methodist, shot put; James Howard, Texas A&M, high jump; Jeff Buckingham, Kansas, pole vault; Dave McFadden, Virginia State, triple jump; Mike Ramos, Washington, decathlon.

Women's track and field—Kim Turner, Texas El Paso, 100-meter hurdles; Lori McCauley, Rutgers, 400-meter hurdles; Diane Dixon, Ohio State, 400-meter dash; Patti Sue Palmer, Stanford, 3,000-meter run; Carol Cady, Stanford, discus; Marlene Harmon, Northridge State, heptathlon.

Wrestling (freestyle)—Charlie Heard, Tennessee-Chattanooga, 114.5 pounds; Barry Davis, Iowa, 125.5 pounds; Mark Schultz, Oklahoma, 180.5 pounds; Peter Bush, Iowa, 198 pounds.

World University Games

Men's diving—Louganis, California-Irvine, three-meter, 10-meter.

Men's swimming—Bruce Hayes, UCLA, 200-meter freestyle.

Men's tennis—Rich Gallien, Pepperdine, singles; Jeff Arons and John Sevely, Stanford, doubles.

Women's tennis—Cecilia Fernandez, Southern California, singles.

Men's track and field—Carter, Southern Methodist, shot put; 400-meter relay (Terry Scott, Tennessee; Sam Graddy, Tennessee; Ken Robinson, Arizona State; Gault, Tennessee); 1,600-meter relay (Elliot Tabron, Michigan State; Alonzo Babers, Air Force; Sunder Nix, Indiana; Cliff Wiley, Kansas law school).

Women's track and field—Randy Givens, Florida State, 200-meter dash; 400-meter relay (Michele Glover, Houston; Jackie Washington, Houston; Brenda Chette, Florida State; Givens, Florida State).

Nominations sought for general committees

Faculty athletic representatives, directors of athletics and primary women athletic administrators at NCAA member institutions have been requested to submit nominations for NCAA general committees.

The vacancies to be filled are for terms beginning September 1, 1984. The Council appoints general committee members according to the provisions of Bylaws 12-1 and 12-3 of the NCAA Manual.

A form soliciting nominations was mailed in mid-July. Any nominations are to be returned to Fannie B. Vaughan, administrative assistant, at the national office before August 22.

A list of all general committee vacancies follows. A complete listing of all committees may be found in the 1982-83 NCAA Directory. Changes in the committees that occurred after publication of the Directory were printed in The NCAA News.

Academic Testing and Requirements—One expiration. Not eligible for reappointment: Robert F. Steidel Jr., University of California, Berkeley (I). Steidel must be replaced as chair.

All-Star High School Games—One expiration. Not eligible for reappointment: Hansel E. Tookes, Florida A&M University.

Recruiting—Three expirations. Eligible for reappointment: Libba Birmingham, Mississippi State University (I); Douglas W. Weaver, Michigan State University (I). Not eligible for reappointment: Robert C. James, Atlantic Coast Conference (I—chair). James must be replaced as chair.

Research—Two expirations. Not eligible for reappointment: Fred Jacoby, Southwest Athletic Conference (I—chair); Mitchell H. Raiborn, Bradley University (I—research). Jacoby must be replaced as chair.

Summer Baseball—One expiration. Not eligible for reappointment: Charles R. Mink, Lincoln University (Missouri).

Television, Football—Six expirations. Eligible for reappointment: John D. Swofford, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill (I-A—3); Hugh D. Hindman, Ohio State University (I-A—4, chair); August Erfurth, Rice University (I-A—6); Phyllis L. Howlett, Big Ten Conference (at large, I-A); James E. Delany, Ohio Valley Conference (at large, I-AA Central). Not eligible for reappointment: Ronald Schipper, Central College (Iowa) (at large, III).

Top Ten Selection—Three expirations. Eligible for reappointment: Gail Fullerton, San Jose State University; Fred Russell, Nashville Banner (nationally distinguished citizen). Not eligible for reappointment: Wilbur Evans, Salado, Texas (nationally distinguished citizen). Evans must be replaced as chair.

Boda honored by CoSIDA

Steve Boda Jr., associate director of statistics at the NCAA, was honored recently by the College Sports Information Directors of America for his years of meritorious service to intercollegiate athletics.

The award was presented to Boda at CoSIDA's annual convention last month in San Diego. From time to time, CoSIDA recognizes individuals who have contributed to the organization and intercollegiate athletics in general.

A native of South Bend, Indiana, Boda began his association with the NCAA in 1949 after graduating from Indiana University, Bloomington. From 1949 to 1961, Boda worked with the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau in New York. The NCAB had a working relationship with the NCAA until 1959, when the NCAA assumed total control.

With the NCAB, Boda began compiling career records and coaching records for football. Currently, he is the NCAA's chief football records historian and archivist. Boda has compiled all existing records in NCAA Football, the Association's football records book.

Boda left the NCAA for a seven-year period (1961-1968) to work with Spencer Marketing, although he still was involved with NCAA member institutions in his duties at Spencer. He returned to the NCAA in 1968 and reassumed his duties with the statistics bureau, then known as the National Collegiate Sports Service. Boda and the remainder of the NCSS staff then moved to the NCAA national office in Mission, Kansas, in 1975, when the name was changed to the NCAA statistics service.

Today, Boda's primary duties remain in the area of football. Besides his duties as researcher, archivist and historian of football records, Boda works with the weekly compilation of football statistics, the football and basketball statistician's manuals, and other statistical research.

Men's basketball adds opening-round game

A fifth game will be added to the opening round in the 1984 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship. The additional game will be used to narrow a 53-team field down to a 48-team bracket.

Meeting last week in Monterey, California, the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee examined arguments for and against an expansion of the championship bracket to 64 teams. The committee voted to review all pertinent information concerning the possibility of establishing a 64-team bracket for the 1985 championship at its meeting November 30-December 2 in Lexington, Kentucky.

"The committee reviewed in depth the advantages and disadvantages of both the current bracket and the possibility of expanding to 64 teams," said David R. Gavitt, committee chair and commissioner of the Big East Conference. "The committee agreed that it should continue to develop additional information concerning a 64-team bracket before committing itself to an expansion of the bracket. We hope that we can develop much of that information between now and December."

Because of the continuing discussions on the future format of the championship, sites for the 1985 tournament will not be announced until the December meeting. The committee also did not announce any future sites for the Final Four. Two sites—New Orleans in 1987 and Kansas City in 1988—were selected last year.

The only change the committee adopted for the 1984 championship involved the opening round. A fifth game will be added to next year's opening round March 13. The games will be played at two still-undetermined sites—one hosting a double header and one a triple header.

Four of the opening-round winners will be placed in the 48-team bracket as No. 12 seeds in each of the four regions. The fifth winner will be placed as a No. 11 seed. The committee will announce those seedings when it announces the entire championship field March 11.

The committee added the fifth opening-round game to keep a balance of 24 at-large and 24 automatic qualifiers in the 48-team bracket. For the first time, the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference will be eligible for automatic qualification in the 1984 championship, raising the total of conferences with automatic qualification to 29.

The committee will select 10 conferences to participate in the 1984 opening round, based on the results of the 1983-84 season. Those conferences will be notified March 9.

The 1984 Final Four will be held March 31 and April 2 in Seattle's Kingdome. The regional winner from the Mideast will face the West and the East will meet the Midwest in the semifinals.

In other committee business, a joint session with the board of directors of the National Association of Basketball Coaches was held to discuss the administration of the championship.

"We had a very productive meeting with the NABC board of directors," Gavitt said. "We reviewed the coaches' concerns about the tournament and believe the interchange we have with the coaches has been beneficial in helping the committee improve the administration of the championship, which has become one of the premier amateur sporting events in the world."

The committee also examined financial reports from the 1983 championship. Participants in the Final Four received $530,979, while regional participants received $398,234. Teams in the opening, first and second rounds received $132,744.

Women's basketball committee examines officiating standards

Concerns about the improvement of officiating and the selection of automatic-qualifying conferences were major topics last week at a meeting of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee in Monterey, California.

Beginning with the 1984 NCAA Division I women's championship, the committee will ask conferences with automatic-qualification status to recommend three officials (plus a fourth if that conference had a team advance to regional play in the 1983 championship) for championship assignments. Conferences without automatic qualification will be asked to recommend one official. Officials from conferences with in-season rating systems will be given first consideration for assignments during the 1984 championship.

The committee also will submit recommendations to the Special Committee on Officiating Improvement for improving officiating in women's intercollegiate basketball, including working through conferences in the assignment of officials for the NCAA championship, development of officiating camps, educational and instructional films, television spots to improve the public image of officials and to attract new officials, and an evaluation of the three-official system.

"The committee views the improvement of officiating as part of the overall growth of women's intercollegiate basketball," said Nora Lynn Finch, committee chair. "As the level of play in women's basketball improves, it is important that we develop a sound program for improving officiating."

The basketball committee also voted to require that conferences must play a minimum of either a single round-robin in-season schedule plus a postseason tournament or play a double round-robin schedule to be considered for automatic qualification. The scheduling requirements must be approved by the Executive Committee at its August meeting and would take effect for the 1984-85 season.

The committee added three conferences to the list of automatic qualifiers for the 1984 championship, bringing the total to 17. Conferences granted automatic qualifications for the first time were the Mountain West Athletic Conference, the Ohio Valley Conference and the Southland Conference.

Conferences retaining their automatic-qualifying status included the Atlantic Coast, Atlantic 10, Big East, Big Eight, Big Ten, Gateway Collegiate, High Country, Metropolitan Collegiate, Mid-American, Northern Pacific, Southeastern, Southwest, Sun Belt and Western Collegiate Athletic Association.

The committee agreed to maintain a 32-team bracket for the 1984 championship and not conduct the four opening-round games that were played last year. Next year's semifinals and final will be played March 29 and March 31 at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Budgets for regional and final competition for the 1985 and 1986 championships were reviewed by the committee. Three regional sites were selected for 1985: East—Old Dominion; Midwest—Northeast Louisiana; West—UCLA. The Mideast regional site, along with recommendations for the sites of the 1985 and 1986 semifinals and finals, will be determined in early August and sent to the Executive Committee for approval. Next year's regional competitions will be held the weekend of March 21-24, with exact dates to be determined.

Two changes in dates were made for the 1984 championship. The West regional at the University of Southern California will be played March 22-24, and the Mideast regional at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, will be held March 23-25.

The committee recommended that a study be conducted on the possibility of establishing NCAA women's basketball rules. The committee also will ask the Executive Committee for the option of being able to seed the top eight teams in the championship field.

Interpretations of new NCAA rules outlined

The NCAA Administrative Committee, acting for the Association's Council, recently issued the following interpretations regarding legislation adopted by the 1983 NCAA Convention, which becomes effective August 1, 1983. Regarding student-athlete complimentary tickets [Constitution 3-1-(g)-(3)]:

(1) The disbursement of a student-athlete's complimentary tickets must be made on a single-game (as opposed to a season-ticket) basis.

(2) If the complimentary tickets are received in person by the individual designated by the student-athlete, the individual receiving the tickets must have proper identification and must sign a receipt for the tickets.

(3) It is permissible for an institution to mail complimentary tickets to the individual designated by the student-athlete; however, tickets may not be mailed prior to 10 days before the contest in question.

(4) The same individual may not be designated by more than one student-athlete as the recipient of complimentary tickets.

(5) These restrictions on the provision of complimentary tickets apply to both home and away contests.

Regarding Division I graduate assistant coaches [Bylaw 7-1-(h)]:

(1) The determination of compensation equivalent to "commonly accepted educational expenses" shall be calculated on the basis of the normal stipend for graduate students enrolled in the certifying institution.

(2) The prohibition against arranging additional employment opportunities for graduate assistant coaches shall not relate to summer employment, unless the individual remains enrolled in the institution's graduate program during the summer.

(3) An individual serving as a graduate assistant coach shall be required to be enrolled in a specific graduate degree program.

Summer basketball camps [Bylaw 1-10-(a)]:

Although not new legislation, the Administrative Committee determined that it would be contrary to the provisions of Bylaw 1-10-(a) for a member institution to cosponsor a summer basketball camp that is underwritten by a corporation for the purpose of permitting outstanding prospective student-athletes to attend the camp at a reduced admission rate, inasmuch as such an agreement would constitute an unfair recruiting advantage.

Coy joins staff

Jeff Coy has joined the NCAA communications department as assistant statistics coordinator.

A 1980 graduate of New Mexico State University, where he was named outstanding journalism student, Coy has been assistant sports information director at Arizona State University since that time.

A former 10-year resident of Kansas City, Coy will be responsible for updating the NCAA's basketball records and helping with the compilation of weekly football and basketball statistics.

Research proposals under study

More than $100,000 in NCAA-funded research is being proposed for the 1983-84 academic year.

If approved by the Executive Committee in August, the bulk of the expenditures ($70,000) will be used for 10 projects conducted at various member institutions. An additional $8,000 is being proposed for expansion of the Association's injury-surveillance system, and $21,000 is allocated for contingency projects and some staff research.

The Research Committee considered 30 proposals at its meeting July 7-8 in Kansas City. The percentage approved (one-third) was similar to a year ago. The $108,000 total compares to a budget of $100,000 for the 1982-83 academic year.

In addition to acting on 1983-84 proposals, the committee reviewed the progress of projects funded this year. Most still are under way but should be completed by the end of the calendar year. The committee also discussed methods of administering requests that are significantly larger than those traditionally approved, including some that include funding for the salary of a principal investigator. One such project (a drug-use study) was approved for 1983-84, and the committee decided to handle similar requests on a case-by-case basis. Association policy generally has prohibited payment of salaries to researchers.

Off-campus recruiting restricted under revision in contact rule

A revision of the contact rule adopted at the 1983 NCAA Convention (to be effective August 1 of this year) will sharply restrict the off-campus recruiting activities of member institutions' financial contributors, boosters and other athletic representatives.

Adopted almost unanimously by Divisions I and II members in January, the amendment to the Association's legislation governing contacts with prospective student-athletes states that "all contact in person with a prospective student-athlete of the prospect's relatives or legal guardian off campus for purposes or recruitment shall be made by institutional staff members. Such in-person, off-campus contact by representatives of an institution's athletic interests is prohibited."

This legislation, which was recommended by the NCAA Recruiting Committee and sponsored by the NCAA Council, is incorporated in the 1983-84 NCAA Manual as Bylaw 1-2-(b). The Association's Administrative Committee recently reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 1-2-(b) and approved (also to be effective August 1 of this year) the following official interpretations of this regulation:

1. The regulation would not be applicable to off-campus recruiting contacts made by an institution's representative in conjunction with the institution's regular admissions program for all prospective students, including nonathletes.

2. The regulation would not be applicable to contacts made with a prospective student-athlete by an established family friend or neighbor, it being understood that such contacts are not made for recruiting purposes and are not initiated by an institution's coaching staff member.

3. The regulation would preclude an institution's representative from participation in any off-campus entertainment activities involving a prospect's official campus visit.

Constitution 3-2-(c) defines a representative of an institution's athletic interests as an individual who is a member of a booster club or other organization involved in the promotion of the institution's athletic program, or who has made financial contributions to the athletic department or athletic booster organization, has been requested by the athletic department staff to assist in the recruitment of prospective student-athletes or who is assisting in the recruitment of prospects, has assisted or is assisting in providing benefits to enrolled student-athletes or is otherwise involved in promoting the institution's athletic program.

The recent revision of the contact rule does not affect a representative's ability to contact prospects either by telephone or in writing. In addition, this legislation still permits a representative to visit with a prospect on campus; e.g., when the prospect is involved in an official visit to the institution's campus. As noted, the representative could not be involved in off-campus entertainment of the prospect under such circumstances.

The prohibition of off-campus recruiting by representatives will affect rules concerning the transportation of prospects to campus. Prior to the change, under the provisions of Bylaw 1-8-(c), any person, at his own expense, could transport or pay the transportation costs of a prospective student-athlete to visit the campus of a member institution one time, provided the person, at his own expense, accompanied the prospect on the visit. Since contact with a prospect during a trip to campus now would be contrary to the provisions of Bylaw 1-2-(b), representatives of Division I and Division II institutions no longer (beginning August 1) may transport prospects to an institution's campus under any circumstances.

Division III representatives may continue to be involved in off-campus recruiting, since the amendment (Proposal No. 91 at the 1983 Convention) was adopted at the Divisions I and II levels only.

Briefly in the News

NCAA President John L. Toner, director of athletics at the University of Connecticut, received the National High School Athletic Coaches Association's "National Citation" at that organization's annual convention July 1 in Albuquerque. Toner is only the fifth recipient of the award in the organization's history, joining Paul "Bear" Bryant, Duffy Daugherty, Pete Rozelle and Eunice Kennedy Shriver. Thomas A. Mont, a member of the DePauw University athletics staff since 1959 and director of athletics since 1972, was named winner of DePauw's 1982-83 Alumni Faculty Award, which carries a $1,000 prize.

The University of Southern California's defending Division I women's basketball champions will play all seven of the other teams that made the final eight in the 1983 tournament. Included on the Trojans' 1983-84 schedule are Louisiana Tech, Old Dominion, Georgia, Tennessee, Penn State, Texas and Long Beach State. West Georgia College, last year's Division III football champion, has moved to Division II, joined the Gulf South Conference and added the University of Tennessee, Martin, to its 1983 schedule (in place of Livingstone College) in order to qualify for the Gulf South football title.

Lute Olson, new University of Arizona basketball coach, will require his players to attend 2½-hour study sessions each evening from Sunday through Thursday this year. He said that 95 percent of his players at the University of Iowa received their degrees. He also pledged to have the Arizona players involved in community activities. In a report to the American Optometric Association last month, Arthur Seiderman, a Philadelphia optometrist, said that more than one-fourth of the umpires and referees he studied cannot see very well. He studied 40 people who officiate college, high school and amateur sports and found that 28 percent did not have normal vision—either naturally or with corrective lenses—and one's eyesight was so bad he would barely qualify to drive a car.

Philadelphia's venerable Franklin Field is receiving a new track surface this month. The surface is called "Versaturf 360" and is projected to cost $275,000. The 88-year-old stadium is used from 7 a.m. to midnight throughout the academic year by University of Pennsylvania students and faculty and the general public. Meanwhile, the University of Pittsburgh is replacing the four-year-old surface at Pitt Stadium with a new "Superturf" covering. Pitt also is building a new administrative building to house most of the athletics department offices at the stadium.

Handling color commentary for East Carolina University football and basketball broadcasts this year will be Dave Hart Jr., son of Dave Hart Sr., director of athletics at the University of Missouri, Columbia. The younger Hart, 34, is the new assistant athletic director for marketing at East Carolina. A group called the International Runners Committee, based in Eugene, Oregon, is attempting to persuade the organizers of the Los Angeles Olympic Games to add the women's 5,000- and 10,000-meter runs to the track and field program, noting that the women's Olympics distance races jump from the 3,000-meter event (less than two miles) to the marathon (26.2 miles). The 5,000 and 10,000 both are included in the NCAA Divisions I, II and III women's championships.

Interest

•Supported the revision of the NCAA Manual, favoring both modification of rules and deletion of "unnecessary rules."

•Unanimously supported the core-curriculum requirement of Proposal No. 48 and made no recommendation regarding the test-score requirements in view of the research to be conducted in that regard.

•Supported the freshman-eligibility legislation as it now exists and suggested that proponents of a change in that rule develop proper data to prove that participation by freshmen is a "disruptive influence on their academic pursuits." Schembechler said many of the coaches believe participation in the first year enhances the scholastic efforts of freshmen. He also noted that the coaches believe an additional 10 grants-in-aid would be necessary if freshmen were ruled ineligible.

•Supported a proposal to exempt one year of junior-varsity competition from the four-year eligibility limitation, with the understanding that the jayvee competition would be limited to five games.

•Favored exemption of the Pell Grant in its entirety from the financial-aid limitation and supported the concept of permitting a student-athlete on a grant-in-aid to have a job while attending summer school.

•Favored continuation of the one-year grant rather than establishing a four-year scholarship award.

•Supported the work of the Special Committee on Player Agents and the objectives of an agent certification program, as well as a clearinghouse to assist in educating student-athletes regarding player agents.

•Confirmed coaches' earlier support of the National Football League draft system and recommended that the Special Committee on Player Agents review the issue of congressional legislation to provide professional teams with an antitrust exemption related to draft policies.

•Recommended exempting from the contact limitations coaches' speaking engagements at general public meetings that include prospects in attendance but do not involve personal contact with those prospects.

•Supported the Division I Steering Committee's interpretations regarding the application of Proposal No. 91, which prohibits off-campus recruiting by boosters and alumni.

•Voted to support legislation to establish a moratorium on recruiting during the AFCA convention. "It is our intention to become a much stronger group," Schembechler said. "and we think that a moratorium will allow coaches to attend our convention. We want the American Football Coaches Association to become a greater voice in the legislative process affecting our game."

•Agreed to maintain the present rule permitting a head coach to recruit off campus.

•Supported development of a recommended policy assuring six months of job security for assistant coaches when a head coach is discharged. "We think it is important to protect our assistant coaches when the head coach has been dismissed and he gets paid for six months or until such time as he gains other employment," Schembechler said.

He also thanked the NCAA for providing the coaches an opportunity to participate in the summer meeting and urged the Association to give serious consideration to the legislative items deemed important by the coaches.

Commissioners

Fred Jacoby, Southwest Athletic Conference, reported that the conference commissioners:

•Decided it was premature to arrive at conclusions regarding the provisions of Proposal Nos. 48 and 56 in view of pending research and legislation.

•Generally expressed a desire to continue with the existing legislation regarding freshman eligibility, citing a number of variables that make it difficult to take a position on the desirability of declaring freshmen ineligible.

•Took no position regarding modifications of the value of an athletics grant-in-aid, suggesting that considerable additional study is required, especially regarding financial implications for institutions.

•Supported a study regarding player agents, especially involving a certification program.

•Expressed some interest in a later starting date for the basketball season in Division I but agreed that more study is necessary, especially in regard to television implications of having the NCAA championship in April rather than March.

•Favored legislation to establish a "quiet period" surrounding the National Letter of Intent signing date, specifically 48 hours before and 48 hours after the initial signing date. During that period, there would be no on- or off-campus contact by any representative of the institution, except that telephone calls would be permitted.

•Reacted favorably to a Big Ten Conference proposal to develop a workshop for conference women administrators, noting that such a program may be introduced in the fall of this year.

Division III members will elect

Special committee examines criteria for Division I

The Special Committee on Division I Criteria conducted its first meeting July 7-8 in Chicago and asked that additional information be prepared for consideration at its next meeting.

In addition to requesting updated statistical data on Division I members and other information, the committee agreed to discuss a possible statement of philosophy for Division I members. Divisions II and III have established such philosophy statements, which appear in the NCAA Manual.

The committee will present a progress report at the August meeting of the NCAA Council and Division I Steering Committee and will hold its next meeting September 13, again in Chicago.

It then will report to the annual Division I chief executive officers meeting September 19-20 and will present its final report to the Council and steering committee in October, possibly after meeting again to complete that report.

"The committee agreed that it is premature to comment on our deliberations at this time," John R. Davis, committee chair and NCAA secretary-treasurer, reported. "We are looking at the development of a philosophy statement and at various types of solutions to the problems in the Division I membership structure, but we have taken no final actions and are not ready to report publicly until that occurs."

The Division I Steering Committee's charge to the special committee is "to review the criteria for membership in Division I and to develop a solution or alternative solutions to the Division I membership problem for consideration by the Division I Steering Committee and Council, the Division I chief executive officers meeting in September, and, possibly, the 1984 NCAA Convention."

In addition to the chair, members of the committee are:

Division I-A: William A. Baughn, faculty athletic representative, University of Colorado; Eugene F. Corrigan, director of athletics, University of Notre Dame; Norman Hackerman, president, Rice University; Gwendolyn Norrell, faculty athletic representative, Michigan State University; Wesley W. Posvar, chancellor, University of Pittsburgh, and Otis A. Singletary, president, University of Kentucky.

Basketball leagues approved

Applications from eight additional summer basketball leagues have been approved by the NCAA Administrative Committee, acting for the Council.

The following are the most recent leagues to be approved:

Men's leagues

Florida—Riverfront Summer Basketball League, Tampa; Illinois—Naperville YMCA

Summer camp interpretation is reviewed

As a result of recent inquiries on the subject, member institutions are reminded of the provisions of Case No. 407 (pages 344-345, 1983-84 NCAA Manual), which prohibit an individual who is eligible for admission to a member institution or who has started classes for the senior year in high school from participating in or being employed by a summer camp involving a member institution.

The prohibition applies to a camp when an NCAA member institution (1) operates the camp either on or off its campus, or (2) one or more of the institution's athletic department personnel are involved in the operation of the camp, or (3) the institution permits the use of its facilities for the camp.

Further, the restriction would apply even if the prospect had signed a National Letter of Intent to attend the involved institution.

A member institution could not avoid the application of this rule by scheduling a preseason practice to include prospective student-athletes [as permitted by NCAA Bylaw 1-6(b)] to be held in conjunction with a summer camp.

The regulations would not prohibit an institution from conducting regular squad practices prior to the beginning of an academic year for sports that are not restricted otherwise by the Association's bylaws or conference rules. However, compliance with Case No. 407 would require any such preseason practice sessions to be conducted outside the structure of a summer camp if the institution requires the attendance at the practice of incoming freshman and junior college transfers who have been accepted for admission.

Select committee sets final meeting agenda

The Select Committee on Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education has scheduled its final meeting for September 11 in Chicago.

In its July 17-18 meeting in Monterey, California, the committee completed its review of the substantive topics included in its charge. It also began its review of a preliminary draft of the committee's final report, which will constitute the agenda for the September 11 meeting.

"We intend to have the final report ready to submit to the NCAA Council and the Division I Steering Committee in their October meetings," John P. Schaefer, executive director and acting chair of the committee, explained. "If at all possible, we also would like to be able to report on our more significant recommendations at the Division I meeting of chief executive officers September 19-20."

In its Monterey meeting, the committee agreed on changes or modifications in some of its earlier recommendations. It will have that same opportunity as it reviews the final draft in September.

Among the earlier positions modified by the committee was its stand on freshman eligibility. In earlier discussions, the committee had favored legislation to make freshmen ineligible in Division I football and basketball. After reviewing discussions in the Division I summer meeting, however, the committee decided not to recommend a change in freshman eligibility at this time in view of the desire to implement the new Division I academic requirements for initial eligibility. Several members of the committee emphasized, however, that there are serious continuing concerns regarding freshman eligibility.

Higher education features selected for broadcasts

Fourteen academic curricula have been selected to feature on the NCAA's higher education promotional series on football telecasts this fall.

Broadcasting of these messages is contingent on the final disposition of litigation involving the NCAA's control of college football television. If legally permissible, the 1983 football season will be the fifth consecutive year the NCAA has devoted promotional time on regional and national football telecasts to inform viewing audiences about contributions of higher education.

The following curricula at NCAA institutions were selected to be featured after ideas were requested in the May 18 issue of The NCAA News and through consultation with the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE):

Allied health professions (University of Connecticut); broadcast journalism (Syracuse University); engineering (Old Dominion University); agriculture (Oregon State University); adult fitness (Furman University); anthropology (University of Tennessee, Knoxville); computer integrated design (Purdue University); geography (University of California, Los Angeles); sports management (Robert Morris College); meteorology (Pennsylvania State University); building constructions (University of Washington); mineral engineering (Colorado School of Mines); zoology and environmental studies (University of Wyoming); international studies (Central College of Iowa).

I-AA football-playing member institutions to discuss alternative football television policies has been delayed. Ballots were mailed earlier this month to all Divisions I-A and I-AA chief executive officers asking them or their designated representatives to vote for or against authorizing the Division I Steering Committee to call such a meeting under the terms of Bylaw 8-2 any time before the 1984 NCAA Convention January 10.

Response from the membership was overwhelmingly in favor of a special meeting. Based on ballots received at the national office by the deadline, the authorization was granted by a 138-7 margin (72-4 in Division I-A and 66-3 in Division I-AA).
