Council approves CEO commission proposal

The NCAA Council voted November 1 to propose legislation at the 1984 Convention to establish an NCAA Presidents' Commission as a means of involving institutional chief executive officers more effectively in athletics matters.

The detailed plan was developed by the NCAA Special Committee on Governance Review and unanimously adopted by the Council at a special November 1 meeting in suburban Kansas City.

"This is a major commitment by the Council to develop an effective mechanism for the involvement by chief executive officers in the overall governance and control of intercollegiate athletics," NCAA President John L. Toner said. "The NCAA was founded on democratic principles and the Council plan maintains that fundamental principle while enhancing the participation of CEOs in national policy considerations."

Members of the Special Committee on Governance Review—all members of the Council—are John R. Davis, NCAA secretary-treasurer and chair of the committee, faculty athletic representative at Oregon State University; Wilford S. Bailey, interim president, Auburn University;

William H. Baughn, faculty representative, University of Colorado; Asa N. Green, president, Livingston University; Arliss L. Roaden, president, Tennessee Technological University; and Kenneth J. Weller, NCAA Division III vice-president and president of Central College (Iowa).

The legislation to be voted upon at the 1984 NCAA Convention in Dallas would amend the NCAA constitution to establish a body of 44 chief executive officers that would be called the NCAA Presidents' Commission. Included would be 22 representatives from Division I and 11 each from Divisions II and III. At least three women CEOs would be included, assuring representation proportionate to the number of female CEOs in the membership.

The Division I representation would include one CEO from each of the nine Division I-A conferences (selected by the conferences themselves, as is the case on the NCAA Council), one from each of the four Division I-AA football regions, two representing Division I-A independent institutions, four representing Division I members that do not sponsor football in that division ("I-Other") and three selected at large. The three at-large positions would be earmarked for Division I-A, Division I-AA and Division I-Other.

The representation would assure regional balance in the same manner as on the NCAA Council. Members of the Presidents' Commission would serve four-year terms, and the Commission itself would elect one of its members to serve as chair for a two-year term.

In keeping with the federated structure of the Council, the Commission would act as one body to deal with matters involving overall Association policy and interdivision interests. Members of the Commission from each division would consider and act separately on issues relating to those divisions.

The Presidents' Commission would be empowered to:

1. Review any activity of the Association;
2. Place any matter of concern on the agenda for any meeting of the Council or for an NCAA Convention.
3. Commission studies of matters of concern in intercollegiate athletics and urge certain courses of action;
4. Propose legislation directly to any Convention, a privilege now enjoyed only by the Council and division steering committees;
5. Establish the final sequence of legislative proposals in any Convention agenda (within the constricts

UCLA will play host to six championships

A November 9 press conference will mark the official beginning of an unprecedented task for the University of California, Los Angeles, in being host to six NCAA championship events, all in a two-month period.

UCLA will be the site of the Division I Men's Basketball Championship West regional (March 23 and 25), the Division I Women's Basketball Championship final four (March 30 and April 1), the Division I Women's Gymnastics Championships (April 6-7), the Division I Men's Gymnastics Championships (April 12-14), the Men's Volleyball Championship (May 4-5) and the Division I Women's Tennis Championships (May 12-20).

Plans for the six events will be detailed during the luncheon press conference at Pauley Pavilion. Serving as master of ceremonies will be Gary Bender, CBS Sports college football and basketball announcer. Guest speakers will be John L. Toner, NCAA president; Charles E. Young, UCLA chancellor; Thomas Bradley, mayor of Los Angeles, and Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee.

Six student-athletes, representing each of the competitions, will be introduced at the luncheon by 1960 Olympic decathlon champion Rafer Johnson.

Judith R. Holland, senior associate director and director of women's athletics at UCLA, will coordinate the administrative efforts for the events. With the 1984 Summer Olympics scheduled for Los Angeles, Holland sees the NCAA championships as an important part of the city's summer of sports.

"We believe the NCAA championships are the premier events to host, and we wanted Los Angeles to be the city to host them in the Olympic year," she said. "The NCAA championships are the pinnacle of competition for the college athlete and one step before the Olympics. For some athletes, the NCAA championships are their Olympics."

"At UCLA, we have a commitment to college sports. We also have a commitment to the amateur sports world, and NCAA championships mean the best in amateur sports."

Holland, who will be backed by 10 full-time UCLA staff members and possibly as many as 500 volunteers, said one of the school's goals is to

Amendment total highest since 1977

Delegates to the 1984 NCAA Convention in Dallas will be facing a the highest number of legislative proposals in seven years.

A total of 162 proposals will appear in the Official Notice of the Convention, which will be mailed from the national office November 22.

The 162 proposals are the most since 1977, when 175 proposals were before Convention delegates. The 1977 total was preceded by a record 225 proposals in 1976.

In 1978, 161 proposals were on the Convention floor, followed by 132 in 1979, 103 in 1980, 121 in 1981, 122 in 1982 and 132 last year.

The 1984 proposals are distributed among 11 legislative topics. The additional grouping this year is amateurism.

Although the playing-and-practice category contains the most proposals (24), the most important topics appear to be governance issues and academic proposals.

The NCAA membership will consider the proposed legislation when the Convention assembles January 9-11 at Loews Anatole in Dallas.

Chief executive officers of active and allied members will receive forms to be used in appointing voting delegates, alternates and visitors to

USA Network to cablecast 46 men's basketball games

The USA Network has announced a 46-game schedule of cablecasts during the 1983-84 men's college basketball season.

The schedule features 21 teams that were selected for last year's NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship and includes a 13-game package of Big East Conference contests. Additional cablecasts, provided through an agreement with Madison Square Garden Productions, will be added to the schedule.

The network also has contracts with five other syndicators.

Following is the network's schedule. USA is available in more than 20 million homes. (Note: Games marked with an asterisk will be shown on a tape-delayed, same-day basis.)

Coach won't let family pay price of success

By Ron Green

The Charlotte News

When the college football season was over last year, several schools that shed their coaches for one reason or another began casting their eyes to the picturesque campus of Furman University.

Six miles north of downtown Greenville's (South Carolina) bustling growth, on 750 acres of schoolyard that has the lovely features of a rich country estate, is the workplace of Dick Sheridan.

With 20 fewer scholarships than most of the teams his Furman Paladins face and 40 fewer than some, and with greater scholastic restraints than most of his rivals have, Sheridan fashions winners.

Since he graduated from assistant to head coach in 1978, Furman has won 40 games, lost 16 and tied one. Of those losses, six were to North Carolina, North Carolina State, Clemson, Florida, Vanderbilt and South Carolina. Occasionally, Furman gives the big guys fits and last year beat South Carolina. In the Southern Conference, Sheridan's teams have won 26 and lost seven.

All things considered, it's been one of the most successful football programs in the Carolinas for the past five seasons.

Because of that, because of the way he does it and because he works for a school that is classified I-AA by the NCAA, a cut below the top-level starting quarterback, starts for the basketball team and is president of the student body at Traveler's Rest High School," said Sheridan. "My younger son, Jon, starts on offense and defense for the junior varsity team there. They were looking forward to this year.

"They're real happy. If I had left, I circumstances would have to be perfect."

In the meantime, coaching at Furman is not the worst way a man in that profession could earn a living. It's a superior school with fine facilities, and it plays football in a conference in which it can win, given the acumen of a Dick Sheridan.

And the record shows it is his hand that has reshaped Furman football into a winner. Before he took over and delivered 8-3, 5-6, 9-1-1, 8-3 and 9-3 records, Paladin teams had won more games than they lost only three times in 15 seasons.

How does he do it with 55 scholarships, 20 less than I-AA teams are allowed, 40 less than I-A teams get and with scholastic expectations what they are at Furman?

"As a school with such high academic limits, we can't always recruit the best athletes," he said, "but we can recruit the best people. We've found that two years later, those people are often as good as those who were considered better athletes."

All coaches talk academics but too often, it's just that, talk. Furman showcases its scholars, devoting two pages of its football brochure to players who have scored 3,000 or higher in any of the three terms. Last year, there were 28 in the fall term, including four players who had perfect 4.000 grade-point averages; 25 in the winter term, with two 4,000 students and 23 in the spring term with one 4.000.

One player in the fall term with a 4.000 GPA was running back Stanford Jennings, Southern Conference player of the year for the past two seasons, the first player Furman has had to gain 1,000 yards rushing in successive seasons.

Since 1973, 138 of the 140 football players who completed four years of eligibility graduated. Since 1978, 47 Paladins have made all-Southern Conference.

That is a remarkable program.

Sheridan thinks his team can compete with the best at the I-AA level "and I'm anxious to find out. Our goal is the national championship."

If that happened, Sheridan's phone would never stop ringing.

Columnary Craft

football schools, Sheridan is about as hot a prospect for a major coaching job as you'll find.

Among those who called about a job last year were Army, Tulane, Duke and N.C. State. He quickly rejected Army and Tulane because he did not want to live in New York or New Orleans. He talked with Duke. He could have had the N.C. State job and liked everything about it, except one—he did not want to leave Furman, not yet.

This reason was one any caring mom or dad would applaud.

"My older son, Bobby, is the "Whatever I decided, I was going to feel bad, either professionally or personally. I'm not looking to move, but it would be a challenge to try to win someplace else, in a bigger program.

"Athletics in schools as a means of teaching cooperation, tolerance, team work, sportsmanship, life-long physical fitness and the acceptance of winning and losing as part of living, have a definite place in the educational program. However, if athletics leave these purposes and become primarily a means of providing entertainment for school and community spectators, resulting in unhealthy pressure on young people with winning-at-any-cost as their goal, then that athletic program deserves whatever public criticism it gets."

"Most high school athletes want to do as well as they can. They learn through participation the values of teamwork, practice, conditioning and performing before others. The acid test is the knowledge of results of these efforts that can only come from competition. When they win, athletes develop a feeling of confidence. When they lose, they acquire an understanding of the need for reassessment that comes from failure. Both of these circumstances can serve the individual well in present and future endeavors.

Special report on governance issues mailed

The NCAA Council has sent a letter to the chief executive officers of all active NCAA member institutions outlining key issues affecting the governance of intercollegiate athletics, especially dealing with means of enhancing the participation of chief executive officers in the policy deliberations of the Association.

Copies of the letter also were sent to faculty athletic representatives, directors of athletics, primary women administrators of athletics programs, and executive officers of allied conferences and affiliated organizations.

The text of the letter is reprinted here in its entirety.

This constitutes a special report to the member institutions of the NCAA on key issues affecting the governance of intercollegiate athletics at the national level.

The governance mechanism of the NCAA has been under review and subject to considerable adjustment during the past five years. Women's intercollegiate athletics is now an integral part of the NCAA, and the Association has refined its division structure in an effort to give more autonomy to the respective divisions. During this time, continuing consideration has been given to the best and most enduring means of enhancing the participation of chief executive officers in the policy deliberations of the Association. Increased presidential participation on the NCAA Council, in the annual September meeting of CEOs and in the annual NCAA Convention are the results of these latter considerations.

As to the heightened involvement of chief executive officers, a number of different proposals have been advanced during the past year from such groups as the Select Committee on Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education, the American Council on Education's (ACE) Committee on Division I Intercollegiate Athletics, the American Council on Education's Interassociational Presidents' Committee on Collegiate Athletics, the NCAA Special Committee on Governance Review, and the NCAA Special Committee on Division I Criteria. Further, a number of informal proposals have been suggested by groups of individuals and conferences.

The Council supports virtually all of the suggestions and proposals of the diverse bodies that have looked at the issues except for principal aspects of the plan advanced by the ACE Committee on Division I Intercollegiate Athletics.

This communication is designed to acquaint you with the analyses and recommendations of the NCAA Council concerning this important subject. We hope you will examine with care the concepts and principles that we believe would be effective in furthering the governance structure of this Association and enhancing participation by chief executive officers.

I.

The NCAA Council believes that the following factors argue in favor of a formal structure providing for direct and increased CEO involvement in national administrative and legislative considerations:

1. The chief executive officer is vested with ultimate responsibility for the athletics program at each member institution. In addition, many CEOs participate directly in conference athletics management.
2. The CEO is obligated under existing NCAA legislation to cast the institution's vote or certify the individual to do so, and to certify the institution's compliance, to the best of his or her knowledge, with NCAA legislation.
3. An organized, national structure would provide a means for chief executive officers to exercise more effective leadership in maintaining the proper relationships between athletics programs and other institutional responsibilities and programs.

Under present NCAA procedures, the CEO already has the authority to control intercollegiate athletics. In fact, some chief executives have suggested that there be no new structure for CEOs within the NCAA, but that chief executives be encouraged to exercise more effectively their existing opportunity to control athletics at the campus, conference and national levels. It is apparent, however, that there is considerable interest in a more formal structure for CEO involvement in athletics.

II.

The following seven principles have been established by the Council as the foundation upon which to build a formal plan for increased CEO involvement:

1. The chief executive's ultimate responsibility for institutional control of athletics should be affirmed and enhanced by building on the CEO's current responsibilities in key NCAA decision-making circumstances, as cited above.
2. The new, partially federated NCAA procedures and the existing governance pattern of athletic conference organizations and NCAA membership divisions should be maintained within the contemplated CEO structure.

3. The fundamental NCAA democratic principle that each institution is entitled to vote directly on each issue affecting it must be maintained, with the majority requirement for bylaws and resolutions continuing in effect and no change in the two-thirds majority requirement for constitutional changes.

4. Member institutions should continue to control directly, through open Convention action, the activities of the Association.

5. The knowledge of the experienced and competent personnel involved in intercollegiate athletics—faculty athletic representatives, athletics directors, and other administrators and coaches—must not be ignored in the development of athletics policies and regulations if such requirements are to be effective.

6. Means should be developed to assist CEOs in maintaining institutional control of athletics, at three levels: First, by recognizing the chief executive who effectively maintains institutional control in the current structure; second, by supporting the CEO who is adversely affected by local pressures in attempting to maintain institutional control, and third, by providing effective presidential influence on the chief executive who chooses not to be involved in meaningful supervision of the intercollegiate athletics program.

7. Current NCAA rules and procedures provide necessary controls on institutional ambitions and outside pressures. Any alterations in the present structure should be designed to strengthen that control and the accompanying inspection procedures, particularly at a time of increased rewards for success in athletics.

Based on the foregoing principles, the NCAA Council will sponsor at the January Convention amendments to the constitution to establish an NCAA Presidents' Commission. The proposal was developed by the special NCAA governance committee composed of four chief executive officers and two faculty representatives. This committee reviewed the recommendations of all interested parties before reaching its conclusion.

III.

The NCAA plan would establish a formal leadership role for chief executive officers in a cooperative framework designed to enhance existing institutional and conference relationships.

The NCAA Presidents' Commission would consist of 44 members—22 from Division I and 11 each from Divisions II and III—with composition, conference and regional representation similar to the blueprint for the NCAA Council. Candidates to serve on the commission would be nominated by conferences and/or a committee of chief executive officers, depending upon the particular division, and would be elected by the member institutions themselves at the annual NCAA Convention. The commission would meet twice annually, or more often if it chose to, and would be staffed and funded by the NCAA.

The NCAA Presidents' Commission would have the authority to:

1. Review any activity of the Association.
2. Place any matter of concern on the agenda for any meeting of the Council or for any NCAA Convention.
3. Commission studies of intercollegiate athletics issues and urge certain courses of action.
4. Propose legislation directly to an NCAA Convention.
5. Establish the final sequence of legislative proposals in any Convention agenda, within the stated Convention rules of order.
6. Call for a special Convention of the Association.

IV.

There are additional governance issues that need to be addressed:

The report of the Select Committee on Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education was mailed to all chief executive officers October 28. The select committee's statements concerning chief executive officers' involvement in athletics policy development can be found on pages 13-14; further, the select committee addressed the need for a more precise legislative forum for the membership of Division I-A and this may be found on page 14 of the select committee's report.

In addition to recommending a presidential commission, the NCAA Council also is urging that the membership support a proposal to permit more legislative autonomy in the divided bylaws for Division I-A and for the other members of Division I, except for the provisions of Bylaws 5-6 and 5-7 pertaining to national championships. This plan would establish an annual legislative meeting of Division I-A members during the month of June at which the Division I-A members could adopt legislation dealing exclusively with that subdivision. The additional autonomy within Division I would be balanced by a procedure in which two-thirds of the Division I membership could rescind an action by either Division I-A or the other members of Division I. No action taken in the summer meeting would be final until the following NCAA Convention had an opportunity to review it.

V.

After careful analysis, we have unanimously concluded there is one proposal we cannot and do not support. It is the plan advanced by the American Council on Education's Division I athletic committee under the chairmanship of President Bok of Harvard University.

The ACE committee plan is based on a narrow, centralized concentration of authority that seems certain to result in adversarial relations and confrontation with the NCAA membership.

We believe the proposal for an NCAA Presidents' Commission is more advantageous to the respective member institutions of the Association than the ACE plan. The NCAA approach maintains the decision-making processes of higher education as they relate to intercollegiate athletics in an open, free discussion forum and protects the rights of the respective colleges and universities. More specifically, as to the ACE proposal:

1. It runs counter to the one-institution, one-vote principle. It permits a small group of presidents—conceivably as few as seven in Division I and four in Division II or III—to suspend what the membership has voted to do in an NCAA Convention, or to adopt a rule of its own apart from a Convention. In either case, it would require a two-thirds vote of the entire NCAA membership to override the action of that small group. The ACE board could specify that the membership vote be by roll call.

In short, the ACE proposal seriously devalues the vote of every member institution, diminishes the effectiveness of the present division arrangements of the Association, and ignores the importance of participating in open discussion, debate and vote on athletics issues.

2. The ACE proposal apparently derives from the sponsors' distrust of the management structure of institutions of higher education when that structure includes faculty representatives, athletics directors and coaches. It is based on the premise that a chief executive officer who chooses not to attend the NCAA Convention cannot rely upon his or her designated voting delegates to cast the institution's vote in the manner the CEO may wish.

This derogates the efforts of the many conscientious individuals who do attend the NCAA Convention and who conscientiously try to further and vote those positions determined by the institutional authority whom they represent. We are concerned that the ACE proposal for an autonomous board would tend to preempt institutional delegates—CEOs, faculty and other institutional professionals—in the affairs of the Association. Their conscientious efforts on behalf of a large number of institutions in open forum would be subordinated to the political lobbying of a small number of CEOs serving on the board.

3. The ACE plan would enable the proposed board to consider matters that, in its judgment, affect "the educational, financial or ethical interests of member institutions." Virtually any issue could be subject to the board's legislative or veto (suspension) authority.

We will forward to you in the near future a further analysis of the options available for achieving the desired CEO involvement in policy considerations.

In closing, we wish to:

A. Emphasize our agreement with the ACE as to the desirability of more presidential involvement.

B. Express our regret that the ACE leadership decided to propose such an extreme change in NCAA governance; we believe the plan will prove divisive and will erode the trust essential to effective internal institutional relationships.

C. Solicit your careful consideration of these important issues and express the hope that you will read and discuss the ACE and NCAA proposals thoroughly after you receive the agenda for the 1984 Convention.

D. Repeat our belief that the Council recommendations represent a cohesive, integrated continuum of presidential involvement in athletics matters, and one that is based on respect and cooperation among all of the individuals involved in the supervision and management of athletics.

E. Strongly encourage your attendance at the annual Convention January 9-11 in Dallas to be an active participant in the deliberations on governance of your Association.

Thank you for your consideration.

THE NCAA COUNCIL

of the Special Rules of Order), and

6. Call a special Convention of the Association if 24 members of the commission agree to do so. (The same requirements would exist for the Council.)

The first Commission would be appointed by an ad hoc nominating committee of 12 chief executive officers, who will be appointed and announced before the 1984 Convention. In subsequent years, the Commission would appoint its own nominating committee, which would seek recommendations for service on the Commission from the NCAA membership and any other source and develop nominees for vacancies. Those would be acted upon by the membership of the respective divisions in the division round tables at the next NCAA Convention, in the same manner as Council members now are elected.

Other portions of the proposed legislation will specify that only the chief executive officer or the CEO's designated representative may submit legislation in the name of a member institution. In addition, a procedure would be established to delay an immediate effective date on any legislative proposal, thus facilitating the Commission's authority to call a special Convention if it chose to do so.

In its November 1 meeting, the Council also considered other governance proposals and voted to sponsor an amendment to the constitution to specify that at least six chief executive officers (two from each division) must be included on the NCAA Council.

The Council reviewed again a proposal from the American Council on Education's Committee on Division I Intercollegiate Athletics that would establish a board of presidents empowered to suspend or replace any legislation passed by an NCAA Convention and to adopt its own rules apart from an NCAA Convention. The ACE would require a two-thirds rescission vote by the entire NCAA Convention to reverse any such action by its board of presidents.

Football notes

Four perfect teams remain in Division I

Four perfect in Division I

Only four perfect-record teams remain—Nebraska, Texas and Toledo in Division I-A, and Southern Illinois in Division I-AA. The NCAA toughest-schedule computer program shows Texas has faced the toughest schedule of the three I-A perfects to date—its eight opponents were 30-20-1 for a .598 percentage against other Division I-A opponents when not playing Texas. Nebraska's 10 foes so far were 37-39-1 for .487, Toledo's 19-30 for .388.

Nebraska finishes against Kansas this Saturday and Oklahoma November 26. Texas meets Texas Christian, Baylor and Texas A&M the next three Saturdays. Toledo faces the toughest part of its schedule—Northern Illinois and Central Michigan, with a combined 12-5 record against I-A opponents thus far. In I-AA, Southern Illinois' I-A and I-AA foes are 32-33-1 against I-A and I-AA opponents when not playing Southern Illinois, and its final opponent—Wichita State Saturday—is 2-7 against such teams.

Auburn still leads nationally in the toughest-schedule rankings. Its past I-A foes were 44-18-2 when not playing Auburn, while its last two opponents (Georgia Saturday and Alabama December 3) stand 14-2-1. That gives the Auburn schedule a 58-20-3 reading for .735. No. 1 by far. UCLA nudges Penn State for second place, .6404 to .6402. Next are Florida at .630, Vanderbilt .608, Florida State .599, Georgia Tech .592, Mississippi State .588, Purdue .582, Louisville .581, Missouri .580, Oklahoma .574, Utah State .572, Maryland .5671, Wisconsin .5667, West Virginia .564, Kentucky .558, Washington State .55063 to .55056 for Michigan, with Clemson 20th at .549, edging Texas' .546.

Rozier's record spree

Nebraska's Mike Rozier has moved ahead of two Billy Sims' yards-per-carry records, threatens to tie the all-time season scoring record and will reach second on the all-time season rushing chart behind Marcus Allen at his current pace. On the career rushing list, only Herschel Walker and Ed Marinaro (Cornell, 1969-1971) among three-year players will be above him. And in career scoring, his current pace will put him second only to Steve Owens (Oklahoma 1967-1969) in touchdowns.

Rozier is averaging 7.82 yards per carry this season and 7.091 for his career, while Sims averaged a record 7.63 in his Heisman Trophy year of 1978 and a record 7.087 in his career at Oklahoma. At his current pace of 24 TDs in 10 games, Rozier would end up with 29 TDs and 174 points, equaling the records set by Lydell Mitchell of Penn State in 1971 (over 11 games; Rozier is playing 12). Rozier also would reach 1,990 season rushing yards at his current pace, moving him past Tony Dorsett, the 1976 Heisman winner from Pittsburgh, who had 1,948, and into second place behind the 2,342 by Marcus Allen of Southern California in his Heisman-winning year of 1981.

Rozier, remember, has a three-season career. He will finish with 53 TDs and 4,622 rushing yards at his current pace. As mentioned, the only three-year players ahead of him would be Owens (56 TDs), Georgia's Walker (5,259) and Marinaro (4,715).

Young and Brigham Young soaring
Steve Young needs only 501 rushing-passing yards in his last two games to break the all-time total-offense record of 385.6 by Brigham Young's Jim McMahon in 1980. Young is averaging an amazing 415.7, with 418 net yards rushing giving him a big boost. Summing up, Young needs just a 250.5 average in his last two games.

Meanwhile, the BYU team is

Willie Totten of Mississippi Valley State leads Division I-AA in passing efficiency and is fourth in total offense

Scott Stankavage of North Carolina ranks among the leaders in Division I-A in passing efficiency

Southern Oregon's Jeff Southern is among the leading rushers in Division II, averaging 108 yards per game

Todd Stoner of Kenyon is in third place in receiving in Division III, averaging 7.6 catches a game threatening to become the first 600-yard team in Division I—that is, average 600 yards total offense. The record is 566.5 rushing-passing yards per game by Oklahoma's Wishbone Wonders of 1971 (6,232 in 11 games). BYU now is averaging 600.7 and needs "only" 827 in its last two games—a 413.5 average (less than Young himself is averaging).

Believe it or not, BYU's current 397.4 passing yards per game is short of the national season record 409.8 by the 1980 BYU team.

By the way, McMahon's NCAA record of 9,536 career passing yards is in jeopardy. Duke's Ben Bennett needs 688 yards in his last two games a 344 average to break it.

McCallum in good company

Navy junior Napoleon McCallum now is averaging 223 yards per game in all-purpose running. If he maintains that figure, he would rank fourth on the all-time season list in yards per game.

The all-time-high was set in the first year of official national statistics rankings—1937—by Colorado's Byron White (now a Supreme Court justice) at 246.3 yards per game. Second is the 232.6 by Southern California's Marcus Allen in 1981 and third is San Francisco's Ollie Matson, 226.3 in 1951.

I-AA record-setters

Jerry Rice of Mississippi Valley State just about owns the Division I-AA record book in receiving, and he is only a junior. His 187 career catches already is the I-AA record, and his 2,865 yards receiving put him in position to break the 3,187 by Howard's Tracy Singleton over four seasons, 1979-1982. His 91 catches tie the season record, and his 1,304 yards receiving already is the I-AA season mark. Earlier this fall, his 24 catches in one game set an NCAA all-time, all-divisions record. He also has 12 TD catches this season and 21 for his career; the records are 15 and 32, respectively.

Idaho's Ken Hobart has an amazing 10,465 yards in total offense during his career. He is only the second NCAA collegian to reach 10,000. Portland State's Neil Lomax had an incredible 13,345 from 1977 to 1980.

Quotes of the week

It had been a frustrating year for 0-7-1 West Texas State, capped by two straight unbelievable, heartbreaking finishes. In a 31-30 loss to Wichita State, West Texas drove 79 yards to the Wichita one-yard line, then lost a fumble with 38 seconds left. Then the Buffaloes led Drake, 26-22, when a desperation, fourth-and-26 pass deflected off the helmet of the defensive back and connected for a 67-yard touchdown with 49 seconds remaining. West Texas stormed back, only to suffer an 84-yard interception

TD. Asked if he had any explanation, coach Don Davis said: "Actually, what happened is that before our first game of the year, on the way to North Texas State, we were all killed in some sort of wreck. We've all died and gone to hell, but we just don't know it yet." (John Askins, West Texas State SID)

Mississippi coach Billy Brewer, when asked by Michael Rubenstein of WLBT in Jackson to comment on a statement by Louisiana State coach Jerry Stovall that Brewer was "blowing smoke" about the talent of the LSU team: "I don't smoke, but I take a pinch now and then." (Rick VanBrimmer, Mississippi associate SID)

Red Grange, the "Galloping Ghost" from Illinois, had a historic game against Michigan in 1924. He scored four touchdowns in the first 12 minutes on a 95-yard kickoff return and rushes of 67, 56 and 44 yards; later scored a fifth TD; threw a TD pass, and finished with 402 total yards in all categories. Now 80, Grange watched Illinois' victory over Michigan on television. "I don't particularly like looking back and reliving the past," he told Michael Davis of the Chicago Sun-Times. "All I did was handle the football well, and the woods are full of those kind of people now." (Tab Bennett, Illinois SID)

California coach Joe Kapp on Golden Bear offensive tackle Steve Shotwell: "Offensive tackles normally don't get any recognition unless something bad happens. Steve has done a good job of not being heard of." (Jim Muldoon, Pacific-10 SID)

Talk about impossible finishes. Colorado State went 80 yards in 40 seconds to beat New Mexico, 25-24, as quarterback Terry Nugent overcame an intentional grounding penalty with a "Hail Mary" pass that tight end Keli McGregor tipped to wide receiver Ron Jenkins at the one. Then Nugent scored as time ran out and threw the winning two-point conversion with no time on the clock. Said coach Leon Fuller: "I opened my eyes just in time to see the end of that last play. I've never seen a finish like that in 23 years of coaching." (Gary Ozzello, Colorado State SID)

Delaware coach Tubby Raymond to Frederick Klein of The Wall Street Journal on his team's 4-5 record this season: "I suppose you can put this season down to character building not our team's character—we've got plenty. I mean our alumni's." (Ben Sherman, Delaware SID)

Iowa coach Hayden Fry to Robert Markus of the Chicago Tribune: "Every day, I wake up in the morning looking for something negative I can turn into something positive. I've always had to do that to survive. I was raised poor, on the wrong side of the tracks. My daddy died when I was young and all that stuff." (George Wine, Iowa SID)

Consecutive kickoff-return TDs

Ever hear of consecutive kickoff-return touchdowns by one team? New Mexico State did it against Drake. Junior Kim Locklin returned the second half kickoff 100 yards for a touchdown. Drake then drove for a TD, kicked off and senior Fred Young returned it 92 yards for a TD. (Pete Kynion, New Mexico State SID)

Well, the Division I-A national record is two kickoff-return TDs in an entire game, done by several teams, but it is impossible to say for certain whether any were on consecutive kickoffs. It is safe to say, though, that no I-A or I-AA team has ever surpassed New Mexico State's feat, because the I-AA record also is two. (No record has been established for Divisions II and III.)

31-3-1 at quarterback

Lance McIlhenny, senior quarterback at Southern Methodist, stands 31-3-1 for his career as a starting quarterback and, with three games left, can surpass Bobby Layne of Texas (1944-1947) as the winningest quarterback in Southwest Athletic Conference history. Layne was 33-8-1 as a starter. (Bob Condon, Southern Methodist SID)

A 55-yard extra-point try

Ever hear of a 55-yard extra-point attempt, into the wind? Kansas' Bruce Kallmeyer was faced with one last Saturday against Colorado and was barely short, ending his PAT streak at 53. First came a five-yard penalty for delay when the Jayhawks were lined up for a two-point try. Kallmeyer kicked it from 25 yards, but there was a 15-yard penalty for tripping the outside rushers. No problem. He drilled it for 40 yards. Then another 15-yarder for tripping. Said Kallmeyer, No. 2 nationally in field goals: "That was ridiculous." (Doug Vance, Kansas SID)

Air Heartland

There certainly have been a number of wild, pass-crazy games in the Heartland Conference this season. In fact, the conference dominates the Division II national rankings, with four of the top five teams in passing offense. Franklin ranks No. 1 at 377.4 yards per game, Evansville second at 313.0, St. Joseph's (Indiana) third at 273.3 and Valparaiso fifth at 258.1. (Carl Galow, Heartland Conference SID)

Rags to riches

Saginaw Valley State has pulled an amazing turnaround from 1982 under new coach George Ihler. The Cardinals are 7-2 vs. last season's final 1-9. The key is senior quarterback Rusty Mandle, who played defensive end a year ago and led the team in quarterback sacks. He is having an outstanding year both passing and running (he was the starting quarterback his first two seasons). (Tom Waske, Saginaw Valley State SID)

After finishing 0-10 a year ago in its first season in Division II, Central Florida amazingly stands 4-4 under veteran coach Lou Saban in his first year on the job. Saban, who turned several previous college teams around, got Central Florida's first victory against a Division I-AA college by defeating Austin Peay State, 10-7, on October 29. (Vince Cotroneo, Central Florida SID)

Receiver to interceptor

A year ago, Matt Didio was a starting flanker and the No. 2 receiver for Wayne State (Michigan). Now the talented senior is the national leader in Division II with 10 interceptions in eight games. Says Didio, "I guess quarterbacks simply enjoy throwing the ball to me." (Mike Bovino, Wayne State SID)

Attendance falls behind again

Attendance last weekend was the lowest of the season in both Division I-A, with a 38,838 average, and I-AA, with 9,053 per game. As a result, the season average in I-A, which had moved ahead of the record 1982 pace last week, fell behind once more by 164 per game, or 0.39 percent. Division I-AA's per-game average now lags behind 1982 by 2.57 percent. Both divisions are behind in percent of capacity.

Balance gives Division I race wide-open look

By James A. Sheldon
The NCAA News Staff

Talk about parity. The National Football League would have a hard time matching the balance that has been reached in NCAA Division I men's basketball.

A few facts:

- Since the UCLA era ended in 1975, seven schools have won the NCAA championship. Only Indiana (1976 and 1981) has managed to repeat during that eight-year span.

- During that same period, 25 schools (of a possible 32) have appeared in the Final Four.

- Big regular-season winners do not always win national championships. Indiana, 26-9 in 1981, and North Carolina State, 26-10 last season, are prime examples of teams that won national titles with less-than-dominating records.

- Seemingly, almost any team can reach the Final Four. Sometimes, it is one key player (Artis Gilmore and Jacksonville in 1970; Larry Bird and Indiana State in 1979). Sometimes, it just seems to be a matter of peaking at the right time (Pennsylvania in 1979; North Carolina State last season).

"It's incredible," said North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano. "This is my 17th year in college coaching, and each year we've gotten closer to that oft-used word 'parity.' Our club last year is a perfect example. At one time we were 9-7, and we finished third in our conference."

Valvano acknowledges that the talent pool in high schools is greater than ever. But, he points to the NCAA tournament itself as an important factor in creating college basketball's balance.

"You can talk to kids today and tell them there's a vehicle (the NCAA tournament) where they can reach the top," Valvano said. "In the past, a kid might have thought he had to go to a particular school to get a shot at winning a national championship."

"Now, you can go anywhere. Everybody can dream the dream."

And, even if things do not go well early in the season, conference post-season tournaments with automatic qualification for the NCAA tourney leave everyone with hope.

"Now, we play so many games that you get the chance to improve," said Valvano. "You have the chance to mature."

"I tell our kids all the time, 'It's too soon to quit.' That's why college basketball is such a marvelous journey."

Who is likely to make that journey this season? Valvano is the first to admit that his team will miss graduated seniors Sidney Lowe, Thurl Bailey and Dereck Whittenberg.

Those more likely to be cutting down the nets April 2 in Seattle would include North Carolina, Memphis State, Houston, Georgetown and Kentucky. But, those are just the favorites, and history has demonstrated what happens to favorites in the NCAA tournament.

Following is a look at the 1983-84 NCAA Division I men's basketball season, including leading conferences, independent teams and top players.

Atlantic Coast: Graduation losses at defending national champion North Carolina State (26-10 record in 1982-83, two starters returning) have been well documented. On the flip side is North Carolina (28-8, four), which tied Virginia for the conference title last season and still retains three starters from its 1982 NCAA championship team. Virginia (29-5, three) will be learning about life without Ralph Sampson. National Invitation Tournament semifinalist Wake Forest (20-12, four) is the league's sleeper, along with Maryland (20-10, five). Clemson (11-20, four), Duke (11-17, four) and Georgia Tech (13-15, three) all fall into the young-but-improving category.

Top players Mark Alarie, sophomore, forward, Duke (13.0 ppg, 6.5 rebounds per game in 1982-83); Adrian Branch, junior, forward, Maryland (18.7 ppg); Ben Coleman, senior, forward, Maryland (15.1 ppg, 8.1 rpg); Johnny Dawkins, sophomore, guard, Duke (18.1 ppg); Michael Jordan, junior, guard, North Carolina (20.0 ppg); Sam Perkins, senior, forward, North Carolina (16.9 ppg, 9.4 rpg); Mark Price, sophomore, guard, Georgia Tech (20.3 ppg); Othell Wilson, senior, guard, Virginia (13.6 ppg); Danny Young, senior, guard, Wake Forest (12.8 ppg).

Atlantic 10: Rutgers (23-8, one) won the Eastern Division title last season, while St. Bonaventure (20-10, two) and West Virginia (23-8, three) tied for the Western crown. With all three rebuilding to a degree, George Washington (14-15, four), St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) (15-13, four) and Temple (14-15, four) could be factors.

Top players Mike Brown, junior, center, George Washington (17.1 ppg, 10.3 rpg); Tony Costner, senior, center, St. Joseph's (15.2 ppg, 9.3 rpg); John Hempel, sophomore, forward, Massachusetts (16.2 ppg); Bob Lojewski, junior, forward, St. Joseph's (18.2 ppg); Lester Rowe, junior, forward, West Virginia (10.6 ppg, 6.6 rpg); Mike Sheehy, senior, guard-forward, St. Bonaventure (13.6 ppg); Terence Stansbury, senior, guard, Temple (24.6 ppg); Marc Upshaw, senior, forward, Rhode Island (injured in 1982-83); Troy Webster, sophomore, guard, George Washington (17.2 ppg).

Big East: Of last year's trichampions Villanova (24-8, three), St. John's (New York) (28-5, two) and Boston College (25-7, four)—only BC did not have significant graduation losses. Georgetown (22-10, five), with talented freshman forward Reggie Williams joining Patrick Ewing and last year's standout freshmen, probably rates a preseason edge. Syracuse (21-10, two) also has problem spots, which could move Pittsburgh (13-15, four) into the league's first division.

Top players Michael Adams, junior, guard, Boston College (16.2 ppg, 5.3 assists per game); Patrick Ewing, junior, center, Georgetown (17.7 ppg, 10.2 rpg); Earl Kelley, sophomore, guard, Connecticut (16.7 ppg); Dwayne McClain, junior, guard-forward, Villanova (10.6 ppg); Andre McCloud, sophomore, forward, Seton Hall (16.6 ppg); Chris Mullin, junior, guard, St. John's (19.1 ppg); Jay Murphy, senior, center, Boston College (17.7 ppg, 8.1 rpg); Ed Pinckney, junior, forward-center, Villanova (12.5 ppg, 9.7 rpg); Otis Thorpe, senior, center, Providence (16.1 ppg, 8.0 rpg); Clyde Vaughan, senior, forward, Pittsburgh (21.9 ppg, 9.2 rpg); Gene Waldron, senior, guard, Syracuse (9.3 ppg).

Big Eight: Missouri (26-8, three) has won four straight league titles, but the Tigers have lost all-Americas Steve Stipanovich and Jon Sundvold. Last season's other NCAA tournament representatives Oklahoma (24-9, one) and Oklahoma State (24-7, three) also had senior-dominated teams. Kansas (13-16, five), Nebraska (26-8, three) and Iowa State (13-15, four) could be championship caliber.

Top players Joe Atkinson, sophomore, forward, Oklahoma State (injured in 1982-83); Greg Cavener, junior, forward-center, Missouri (10.8 ppg, 8.6 rpg); Carl Henry, senior, guard, Kansas (17.4 ppg); Dave Hoppen, sophomore, center, Nebraska (13.9 ppg); Jay Humphries, senior, guard, Colorado (14.3 ppg); Kelly Knight, senior, forward, Kansas (12.3 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Barry Stevens, junior, forward, Iowa State (16.8 ppg); Wayman Tisdale, sophomore, center-forward, Oklahoma (24.5 ppg, 10.3 rpg).

Big Sky: Weber State (23-8, three), which tied for last year's title with Nevada-Reno (18-11, one), looks like a clear-cut favorite. Idaho (20-9) will rebuild with a new coach and just two starters returning. Montana (21-8, three) could provide a stiff challenge.

Top players Buck Chavez, senior, forward-guard, Idaho State (13.4 ppg); Jeff Epperly, junior, guard, Montana State (12.7 ppg); Vince Hinchey, senior, guard, Boise State (17.7 ppg); Rob Hurley, senior, forward, Montana (8.1 ppg); John Price, senior, guard, Weber State

(4.9 assists per game); Doug Selvig, senior, guard, Montana (10.6 ppg); Randy Worster, junior, forward, Weber State (12.3 ppg).

Big Ten: Indiana's (24-6, one) title defense will depend heavily on freshmen. NCAA tournament participants Iowa (21-10, three), Illinois (21-11, three), Purdue (21-9, four) and Ohio State (20-10, three) lost some key people. Michigan State (17-13, five) is young but talented. The same for Michigan (15-13, five). Minnesota (18-11, four) is tall (four seven-footers) and talented.

Top players Uwe Blab, junior, center, Indiana (9.4 ppg, 4.9 rpg); Cory Blackwell, junior, forward, Wisconsin (18.3 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Tony Campbell, senior, forward, Ohio State (18.9 ppg); Tommy Davis, junior, guard, Minnesota (12.8 ppg); Bruce Douglas, sophomore, guard, Illinois (6.1 assists per game); Andre Goode, senior, center, Northwestern (9.8 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Michael Payne, junior, forward, Iowa (10.6 ppg, 7.5 rpg); Steve Reid, junior, guard, Purdue (12.0 ppg); Scott Skiles, sophomore, guard, Michigan State (12.5 ppg, 4.9 assists per game); Greg Stokes, junior, forward-center, Iowa (17.7 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Eric Turner, junior, guard, Michigan (19.2 ppg); Sam Vincent, junior, guard, Michigan State (16.6 ppg); Kevin Willis, senior, center, Michigan State (13.3 ppg, 9.6 rpg); Efrem Winters, sophomore, forward, Illinois (12.4 ppg, 6.9 rpg).

Talented freshmen waiting for opportunity to step in Living up to their high school credentials is something many freshman basketball stars find difficult. However, each year, there are a number who make an immediate impact. Here is a look at some of this season's freshmen who could make major contributions in Division I: Curtis Aiken, guard, Pittsburgh; Steve Alford, guard, Indiana; Tommy Amaker, guard, Duke; Winston Bennett, forward, Kentucky; James Blackmon, guard, Kentucky; Dallas Comegys, forward-center, DePaul; Henry Dalrymple, guard-forward,

East Coast: Hofstra (18-9, five) looks like the class of the league. American (20-10), which tied the Flying Dutchmen and La Salle for the East Section title, returns just one starter. West Section winner Rider (20-9, two) also has holes to fill. La Salle, which won the post-season tourney, now is in the Metro Atlantic.

Top players Jay Andrews, junior, guard, Bucknell (13.7 ppg); Richard Congo, senior, forward, Drexel (13.8 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Fred Lee, senior, guard, Rider (10.3 ppg); Doug Mills, senior, guard, Hofstra (12.9 ppg).

ECAC Metro: Robert Morris (23-8, four), entering its seventh season of varsity basketball, again appears strong in the South Division. Last season's North Division winner, Long Island (20-9, two), could have its hands full with Fairleigh Dickinson-Teaneck (17-12, five).

Top players Greg Foster, senior, forward, FDU-Teaneck (11.1 ppg, 11.2 rpg); Marcus Gaither, senior, guard, FDU-Teaneck (22.9 ppg); Forest Grant, senior, guard, Robert Morris (12.5 ppg); Chipper Harris, senior, guard, Robert Morris (17.4 ppg); Kevin House, sophomore, forward, Loyola (Maryland) (15.0 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Art Redmond, junior, forward, Wagner (16.2 ppg); Carey Scurry, junior, forward, Long Island (12.3 ppg, 10.1 rpg).

ECAC North Atlantic: Conference tourney winner Boston U. (21-10, four) returns a solid nucleus. That is not the case at New Hampshire (16-12, two), which tied the Terriers for regular-season honors. Canisius (11-17, four), Maine (12-14, four) and Northeastern (13-15, four) are hoping for breakthroughs after losing seasons.

Top players Mike Alexander, sophomore, forward, Boston U. (16.9 ppg); Bill Brown, senior, forward-guard, Vermont (15.1 ppg); Jeff Cross, senior, center, Maine (19.2 ppg, 11.9 rpg); Ray Hall, junior, guard, Canisius (19.9 ppg); Mark Halsel, senior, forward, Northeastern (19.5 ppg, 12.5 rpg); Al McClain, senior, guard, New Hampshire (12.8 ppg); Dan Nolan, senior, forward, New Hampshire (16.1 ppg, 9.4 rpg); Gary Plummer, senior, forward, Boston U. (16.3 ppg, 7.9 rpg).

ECAC South: William and Mary (20-9, four) was 9-0 in league play last season but lost to James Madison (20-11, one) in the post-season tournament. Both should be in contention again this year, along with Navy (18-11, three) and George Mason (15-12, three), which has a one-man wrecking crew in Carlos Yates.

Top players Andy Bolden, senior, guard, George Mason (11.0 ppg); Vernon Butler, sophomore, forward, Navy (11.6 ppg, 10.2 rpg); Keith Cieplicki, junior, guard, William and Mary (16.0 ppg); Cliff Mauer, senior, center, Navy (10.0 ppg, 5.5 rpg); John Newman, sophomore, forward, Richmond (12.2 ppg); Derek Steele, senior, guard, James Madison (7.9 ppg); Carlos Yates, junior, guard-forward, George Mason (26.8 ppg, 5.5 rpg).

Ivy: Traditional powers Princeton (20-9, two) and Pennsylvania (17-9, one) face rebuilding years. The Tigers won last year's Ivy crown and upset Oklahoma State in the first round of Georgia Tech; Frank Ford, guard, Auburn.

Wright State has what it takes in Division II

Wright State, like a lot of other top NCAA Division II men's basketball teams, faces the same decision almost every year. Should we go Division I or not?

And, when you win a Division II national championship as the Raiders did last spring, that question becomes even more persistent.

"I feel like we have a Division I program at a Division II school," said Wright State coach Ralph Underhill. "All our players have been highly recruited. Some of our people say, yes; some say, no (about going to Division I).

"We could go Division I right now all we'd have to do is make the application but the problem is conference affiliation. Any conference you'd go into would have to wait two [Editor's Note: Five] years for automatic qualification (to the Division I championship). You can go independent. But, how many independents are making it in the tournament?"

Last year, just two, coach.

And, with the recent flood of schools moving into Division I, there are now 276 basketball-playing schools in the division. For Underhill, the move may not be worth it.

"We've tried to be a big fish in Division II before we decide which way we want to go," he said. "We're talking with the cable networks, I've got my own coach's show and our games are on local television."

Underhill's program has earned those trappings. The Raiders were 28-4 last season. Even though three starters have graduated, there is enough talent on hand to make a repeat championship possible. If that happens, it would be the first time since Kentucky Wesleyan won crowns in 1968 and 1969.

In addition to returning starters Fred Moore (senior center) and Mike Grote (senior guard), Underhill will be able to count on T. C. Johnson (senior guard) and Steve Purcell (senior swingman), both of whom were part-time starters last season.

The Raiders' title defense probably will rest, however, on the progress of three redshirts—Theron Barber, Andy Warner and Mark Vest. All are 6-6 or taller.

Wright State will get regular-season tests against a number of other Division II contenders, namely District of Columbia, Cheyney, Kentucky Wesleyan and Chapman. (The Raiders also will play February 20 at Louisville.) In addition to those challengers, Wright State might have to fend off a number of good New England teams, along with Bloomsburg, Jacksonville State, Morningside and Cal State Bakersfield if it hopes to win another national title.

The Division II semifinals and final again will be played in conjunction with the Division II women's tournament March 22-24 in Springfield, Massachusetts. Regionals will be played March 8-10, followed by quarterfinals March 16 or 17. The following conference champions will receive automatic bids: California Collegiate Athletic Association, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association (two berths), Great Lakes Valley Conference, Gulf South Conference, Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New England Collegiate Conference, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northeast-Eight Conference, Northern California Athletic Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and Sunshine State Conference.

Following is a region-by-region rundown on the 1983-84 Division II men's basketball campaign:

New England

Top teams—This region produced five NCAA tournament entries last year, and only Sacred Heart (27-5 record in 1982-83, two starters returning) had serious graduation losses. American International (23-9, five) and Assumption (21-11, four) again should dominate the Northeast-Eight. Southern Connecticut State (23-9, four) and new member Central Connecticut State (21-9, five) will go after Sacred Heart's title in the NECC.

Top players Jeff Buckson, sophomore, guard, Southern Connecticut State (14.0 points per game in 1982-83); Mark Butigian, junior, forward, Bridgeport (19.8 ppg); Chris Dickey, junior, forward, Bridgeport (17.6 ppg, 10.0 rebounds per game); Nate Dickey, senior, forward, Southern Connecticut State (15.9 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Joe Dickson, senior, forward, Merrimack (26.3 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Mario Elie, junior, forward, American International (15.9 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Ulysses Grant, sophomore, guard, Hartford (18.0 ppg); Gary Grumoli, junior, guard, Springfield (15.9 ppg); Darrell Johnston, sophomore, guard-forward, New Hampshire College (16.9 ppg); Peter Krause, junior, guard, Stonchill (15.5 ppg); Rich Leonard, senior, forward, Central Connecticut State (14.8 ppg); Bob Marcotte, senior, guard, American International (5.6 assists per game); Jim McCallfey, junior, guard, St. Michael's (21.0 ppg); Kevin Nolan, junior, forward, Assumption (16.8 ppg, 12.5 rpg); Todd Orlando, senior, center, Bentley (15.9 ppg, 9.6 rpg); Joe Paganetti, senior, guard, Lowell (18.9 ppg); Darryl Parker, junior, guard-forward, Assumption (11.4 ppg, 8.2 rpg, 5.5 assists per game).

East

Top teams Bloomsburg (23-10, four), Cheyney (26-6, three) and West Chester (19-9, one), all members of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, received NCAA championship bids last season. Slippery Rock (17-8, three) and Mansfield (15-11, five) could be in the picture this season. C. W. Post (22-9, three) hopes to defend its title in the Big Apple Conference and return to NCAA play, as does independent Philadelphia Textile (23-7, four). Two other tough independents will be Adelphi (18-10, three) and Gannon (16-12, four).

Top players Ed Adrien, senior, forward, Pace (22.4 ppg, 8.5 rpg); Bill Benner, senior, forward, Millersville (16.0 ppg, 9.0 rpg); Gerard Conyers, junior, forward, Mansfield (13.2 ppg, 8.0 rpg); Robert Davis, sophomore, guard, Mercy (17.4 ppg); Greg Dixon, senior, guard, C. W. Post (6.2 apg); Barry Francisco, senior, guard, Bloomsburg (14.7 ppg); Kevin Givens, senior, forward, West Chester (18.3 ppg, 9.0 rpg); John Green, junior, guard, Mercyhurst (24.3 ppg); Earle Greer, senior, forward, East Stroudsburg (23.3 ppg, 9.9 rpg); Mike Henderson, senior, center, C. W. Post (14.5 ppg, 8.7 rpg); Kevin Horton, sophomore, forward, C. W. Post (17.0 ppg); Keith Jackson, senior, forward, Southampton (20.2 ppg); Andy Jones, junior, guard, Philadelphia Textile (16.3 ppg); Troy Mild, senior, forward, Slippery Rock (19.9 ppg, 7.5 rpg); Butch Warner, junior, guard, Gannon (14.5 ppg); Ed Weaver, senior, forward, Philadelphia Textile (15.1 ppg); Mike Wilson, senior, guard-forward, California (Pennsylvania) (16.5 ppg, 8.3 rpg).

South Atlantic

Top teams—Both division winners in the CIAA—Hampton Institute (23-7, two) in the Northern and St. Augustine's (21-5, one) in the Southern have positions to fill. Norfolk State (20-9, three), Virginia State (18-9, three) and Virginia Union (20-6, three) are a little more stable. NCAA semifinalist Randolph-Macon (20-10, three) lost all-America Bryan Vacca, and Michael Britt is gone at Division II runner-up District of Columbia (29-3, two). Mount St. Mary's (18-9, four) and Liberty Baptist (23-9, three) will be favored in the new Mason-Dixon Conference.

Top players Charles Bell, senior, guard, St. Paul's (18.0 ppg); Mike Emmanuel, senior, forward, Pembroke State (20.7 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Kenny Gunn, junior, guard, Liberty Baptist (6.1 assists per game); Earl Jones, senior, center, District of Columbia (22.7 ppg); Jerome Kersey, senior, center, Longwood (14.6 ppg, 10.8 rpg); Roosevelt McGruder, senior, forward, Johnson C. Smith (21.4 ppg, 9.1 rpg); Cedric Miller, junior, center, Hampton Institute (9.2 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Willie Milteer, senior, forward, Pfeiffer (20.8 ppg, 8.5 rpg); Charles Oakley, junior, center, Virginia Union (13.0 ppg); David Pope, senior, forward, Norfolk State (20.8 ppg, 11.3 rpg); Joe Reedy, senior, forward, Mount St. Mary's (19.0 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Anthony Rogers, senior, forward, St. Augustine's (15.0 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Troy Russell, junior, guard, Winston-Salem State (18.1 ppg); Cliff Straughn, senior, forward, Virginia State (10.4 ppg, 12.3 rpg).

South

Top teams—Postseason tourney winner Jacksonville State (24-8, four) is the favorite in the Gulf South, while regular-season champion Tennessee-Martin (21-10) attempts to replace three starters. League newcomer West Georgia (22-7, three) will not be eligible for the championship but will be a factor. In the Southern Intercollegiate, Albany State (Georgia) (17-11, two), Alabama A&M (18-9, two), Fort Valley State (17-13, five) and Savannah State (16-9, three) should wage a spirited race. The top three in the Sunshine State Conference could be Florida Southern (23-8, two), Central Florida (19-9, four) and St. Leo (15-11, three).

Wright State all-America candidate Fred Moore

forward, Tennessee-Martin (18.5 ppg, 8.0 rpg); Dan Faison, junior, guard, Central Florida (16.7 ppg); Rodney Freeman, senior, center, Fort Valley State (13.7 ppg, 12.2 rpg); Al Garmon, senior, forward, Florida Southern (12.1 ppg); Kenneth Hayes, senior, guard, Tuskegee (18.3 ppg); Lonnie Jones, senior, forward, West Georgia (12.2 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Marlon Jones, sophomore, forward, Virginia State (15.7 ppg); Scott Kinney, sophomore, forward, Rollins (14.1 ppg); Marvin Madison, senior, center, Troy State (17.5 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Brad McDonald, senior, center, St. Leo (12.1 ppg, 10.1 rpg); Patrick McDonald, sophomore, forward, Florida International (14.0 ppg, 8.8 rpg); Keith McKeller, sophomore, center, Jacksonville State (11.0 ppg, 9.5 rpg); Troy Morris, junior, guard, Columbus (18.0 ppg);

Anthony Roach, senior, guard, Fort Valley State (17.7 ppg); Larry Russell, senior, forward, Biscayne (16.7 ppg); Maurice Stafford, senior, forward, North Alabama (14.9 ppg); Travis Stanley, senior, guard, Florida Southern (13.4 ppg); Mitch Stentiford, senior, guard, Tennessee-Martin (16.2 ppg); Clifford Walton, senior, center, Albany State (7.8 ppg, 9.2 rpg).

Great Lakes

Top teams—Great Lakes Valley Conference winner Kentucky Wesleyan (22-8, two) will have its hands full with defending national champion Wright State (28-4, two), the best of the independents appear to be Chicago State (28-5, three), IU-PU-Fort Wayne (16-12, four), Northern Kentucky (22-7, two) and Tri-State (26-7, three).

Top players Buddy Cox, senior, forward, Bellarmine (20.0 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Bruce Davis, junior, forward-center, Central Ohio (18.5 ppg, 6.6 rpg); Learando Drake, senior, center, Chicago State (14.2 ppg, 8.9 rpg); Rod Drake, senior, guard, Kentucky Wesleyan (12.3 ppg); Jeff Hansen, sophomore, forward-center, IU-PU-Fort Wayne (12.5 ppg); Dwight Higgs, senior, forward, Kentucky Wesleyan (16.0 ppg, 5.3 rpg); Ron Lesiak, senior, forward, Lewis (19.0 ppg); Rick Moorhead, senior, forward, Franklin (24.3 ppg, 6.3 rpg); Fred Moore, senior, center, Wright State (14.5 ppg, 5.8 rpg); Bill Strand, junior, forward, Ashland (16.0 ppg, 7.5 rpg).

North Central

Top teams—Take your pick in the North Central Conference: NCAA semifinalist Morningside (26-6, four), Nebraska-Omaha (19-11, four), North Dakota State (21-9, three) or South Dakota State (16-12, four). Elsewhere in the region, Ferris State (20-9, two), Northern Michigan (19-8, three), Saginaw Valley State (24-8, two) and Wayne State (Michigan) (18-10, four) are the leading teams in Michigan. Farther west, Minnesota-Duluth (24-5, two) and Southern Colorado (20-10, three) are solid.

Top players Bob Benke, senior, forward, Morningside (14.0 ppg, 7.0 rpg); Lance Berwald, senior, center, North Dakota State (17.9 ppg, 8.4 rpg); Haywood Bracey, senior, forward, Wayne State (11.3 ppg); Steve Brandsma,

Loss of small players is Scranton's big problem

This year, Bob Bessoir is not making any predictions.

"Last year, everyone said we had the talent to win the national championship," said the 12-year Scranton coach. "This year, I have some reservations."

"I went on record this time last year and told a magazine that we could win it all. Fortunately, my players backed me up."

Bessoir's players ran up a 29-3 record on their way to the school's second NCAA Division III Men's Basketball Championship title (the Royals also won in 1976).

What worries Bessoir this season is the loss of his diminutive back court. 5-11 Mark Hutchinson and 5-7 Todd Bailey and sixth man Tom Kosin. Hutchinson and Bailey, the school's all-time assist and steal leaders, respectively, were keys to the Royals' up-tempo play.

Bessoir will switch son Bill, the most outstanding player at last year's NCAA final four, from small forward to big guard; and he is confident Dan Polachek can take over at point guard. Up front, starters Jeff Jones and Mickey Banas return, while Bill Maile probably will fill Bessoir's small forward position.

The lineup will be taller than last season but slower. Nevertheless, Bessoir will not change his team's style.

"We will continue to do the same type of things," he said. "We've built something of a mystique about our pressure defense and fast break. We'll continue with that philosophy."

If Scranton cannot fit the new pieces together, it will find the going tough, beginning in its own Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference. Widener, which dropped a 74-69 triple-overtime decision to Scranton in last year's NCAA Middle Atlantic regional, is waiting in the wings along with Moravian and Susquehanna.

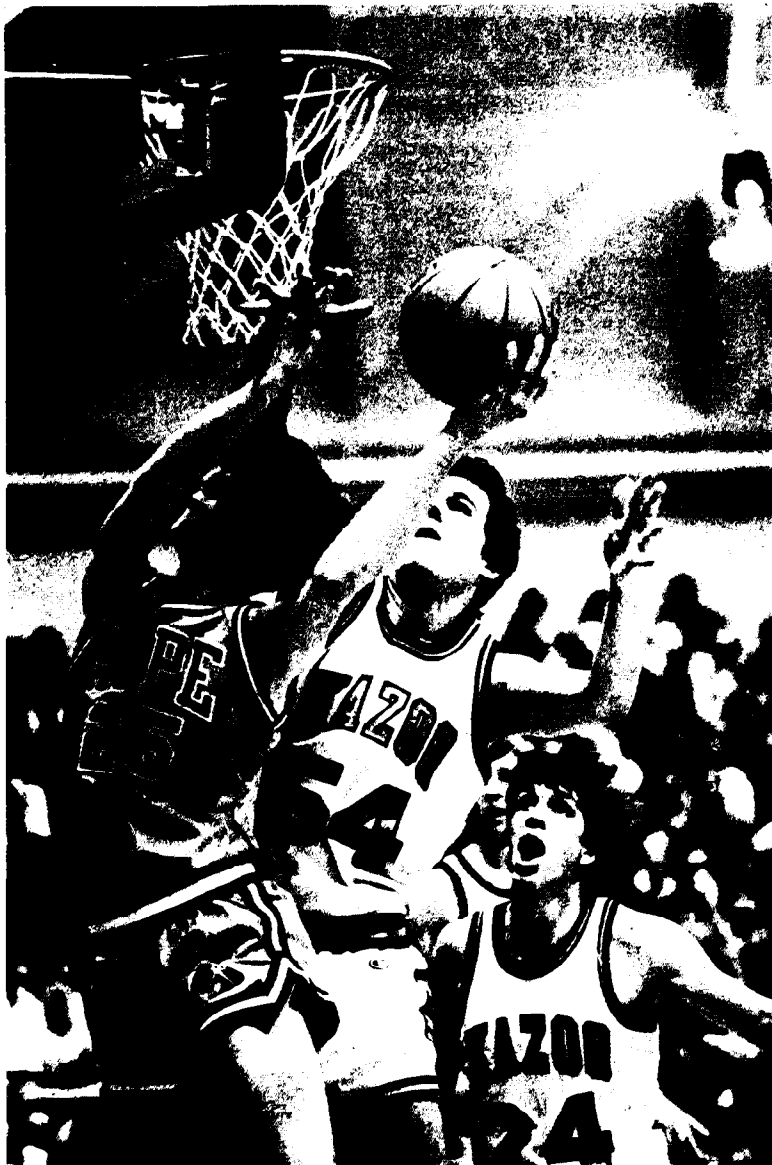

Last year's final-four opponents—Roanoke, Wisconsin-Whitewater and Wittenberg—also would like another crack at the Royals, although all three were hurt by graduation. Clark (Massachusetts), Potsdam State, Buffalo State and Hope are others that have solid final-four aspirations.

The 1983 NCAA Division III Men's Basketball Championship will be decided March 16-17 at Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Michigan. The 32-team field will be reduced to four through regional play March 2-3 and quarterfinals March 10. Champions of the following conferences will receive automatic berths: College Athletic Conference, College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin, Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Independent College Athletic Conference, Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference, Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Middle Atlantic States Conference (two berths), Midwest Collegiate Athletic Conference, New Jersey State Athletic Conference, Ohio Athletic Conference, Old Dominion Athletic Conference, Presidents' Athletic Conference, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and the State University of New York Athletic Conference.

Following is a region-by-region look at the top teams and individuals in 1983-84 NCAA Division III men's basketball:

Northeast

Top teams—Bridgewater State (21-6 record in 1982-83, two starters returning) has a new coaching staff and is rebuilding, which could pave the way for last year's second-place team, Framingham State (17-8, four), in the Massachusetts State College Conference. Clark (Massachusetts) (23-4, three) and Massachusetts-Boston (19-9, three), both NCAA tournament participants last year, appear strong again. Other top teams in the region include Trinity (Connecticut) (22-3, three), Husson (22-7, two), Colby (18-2, two), New England College (17-8, five), Rhode Island College (18-8, four) and Norwich (14-6, three).

Todd Schuiling (25) of Hope College

Top players—Jim Bates, senior, guard, Trinity (13.1 points per game in 1982-83); Paul Burnell, senior, forward, Southern Maine (15.5 ppg, 7.5 rebounds per game); Mike Cagle, sophomore, guard-forward, Anna Maria (17.5 ppg); Mike Chapman, senior, forward, Rhode Island College (17.9 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Gregg Fiddes, junior, guard, Worcester Tech (16.6 ppg); Jon Ford, senior, center, Norwich (11.1 rpg); Tom Groth, senior, forward, Babson (16.5 ppg, 9.0 rpg); Ken Hall, senior, forward-guard, Massachusetts-Boston (20.5 ppg); Tim Hallice, senior, center, New England College (17.2 ppg, 10.0 rpg); Rob Hill, senior, forward, Fitchburg State (20.0 ppg); Darrell Jenkins, senior, forward, Norwich (17.2 ppg); Steve Lawton, senior, center, Roger Williams (17.9 ppg, 9.4 rpg); Kevin Moran, junior, center, Curry (17.9 ppg, 11.9 rpg); Art Pidioriano, senior, guard, Williams (19.4 ppg); Donnie Roberts, senior, guard, Husson (17.6 ppg); Adam St. John, junior, guard, Maine Maritime (20.7 ppg); Harland Storey, junior, forward-center, Colby (20.2 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Dan Trant, senior, guard, Clark (18.1 ppg); Mark Van Valkenburg, senior, center, Framingham State (23.5 ppg, 11.0 rpg).

East

Top teams—Cochampions Ithaca (19-8, two) and Rochester Institute of Technology (15-11, two) again look like the class of the Independent College Conference. Potsdam State (24-6, two), winner of five straight NCAA East regionals, will face another stiff challenge from Buffalo State (18-5, four) in the SUNYAC. NCAA tournament at-large entries Union (New York) (21-5, three) and Hartwick (17-9, four) return experienced lineups, but Hartwick must replace graduated all-America Tim O'Brien. Nazareth (20-6, three), Staten Island (21-8, four) and Rochester (15-11, five) bear watching, as does Hamilton (23-3), despite the loss of four starters.

Top players—George Black, senior, forward, Hunter (19.5 ppg); Greg Blue, junior, forward, Rochester (15.9 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Ron Chase, sophomore, guard, Staten Island (15.9 ppg); Ken D'Orazio, junior, center, Union (14.0 ppg, 9.3 rpg); LeRoy Gettys, senior, forward, Buffalo State (17.3 ppg); Chris Hughey, sophomore, forward, Fredonia State (15.6 ppg, 8.6 rpg); Lawrence Maroney, senior, guard, Nazareth (16.5 ppg); Roger Miller, senior, guard, Baruch (24.7 ppg); Jerry O'Grady, senior, guard, Hartwick (15.5 ppg); Mike Pocyntyluk, senior, forward-center, Oneonta State (14.0 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Mark Ward, senior, forward, Manhattanville (18.0 ppg, 8.5 rpg); James Wilson, junior, forward, John Jay (20.3 ppg); Leroy Witherspoon, senior, guard, Potsdam State (13.7 ppg); Joe Wood, senior, guard, Union (19.1 ppg); Leonard Wright, junior, guard, Albany (New York) (11.0 ppg); Ron Zielinski, senior, forward, Ithaca (14.5 ppg).

Middle Atlantic

Top teams—Look for defending Division III champion Scranton (29-3, three) to be challenged in the Middle Atlantic Conference by Moravian (19-4, four), Widener (21-8, four) and Susquehanna (18-8, four). Grove City (21-4, three) is the area's top independent, and Washington and Jefferson (11-11, four) could be a sleeper in the Presidents' Conference.

Top players—Mike Arner, junior, forward, Moravian (12.7 ppg); Mickey Banas, senior, center, Scranton (13.2 ppg); Bill Bessoir, junior, guard-forward, Scranton (17.5 ppg); Ken Chwatek, senior, forward, Muhlenberg (13.7 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Pete Deutsch, senior, forward, Franklin and Marshall (16.6 ppg, 6.6 rpg); Vic Harp, junior, forward, Thiel (20.8 ppg, 11.2 rpg); Wayne Johnson, junior, center, York (Pennsylvania) (19.3 ppg, 10.7 rpg); Jeff Jones, senior, forward, Scranton (15.0 ppg, 11.8 rpg); Leon Jones, senior, guard-forward, Widener (17.2 ppg); Jay Nichols, senior, guard, Delaware Valley (20.6 ppg); Mark Rucinski, junior, center, Juniata (15.1 ppg, 10.5 rpg); Rick Shaeffer, senior, forward-center, Wilkes (16.5 ppg).

South Atlantic

Top teams—The New Jersey State Conference race could be a repeat of last year's three-way tie among William Paterson (19-9, two), Glassboro State (15-10, three) and Jersey City State (18-9, four). With runner-up Hampden-Sydney (19-8) losing all its starters, defending champion and NCAA third-place finisher Roanoke (31-2, three) looks secure in the Old Dominion Conference. Upsala (19-7, three) can entertain thoughts of another NCAA at-large bid if it survives on the road. The Vikings will play just four home games.

Top players—Doug Black, senior, guard-forward, Bethany (West Virginia) (16.3 ppg); Carl Braggs, sophomore, center, Jersey City State (16.7 ppg, 10.3 rpg); Jeff Bryant, senior, center, Lynchburg (16.2 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Wilbur Cole, senior, center, Rutgers-Newark (29.1 ppg, 11.4 rpg); Ed Cowell, junior, forward, Virginia Wesleyan (18.9 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Leonard Dow, sophomore, forward, Eastern Mennonite (19.7 ppg, 10.2 rpg); Bob Fornoff, junior, center-forward, Washington (Maryland) (12.5 ppg, 8.1 rpg); Frank Gilmore, senior, center, Mary Washington (14.2 ppg, 11.2 rpg); John Lee Graves, senior, forward, Washington and Lee (15.2 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Rich King, senior, guard, Glassboro State (19.5 ppg); Roosevelt Peoples, senior, forward, Upsala (20.0 ppg, 9.2 rpg); Eddie Rutledge, sophomore, guard, Frostburg State (18.3 ppg); Dale Sinkbeil, junior, forward, Drew (14.4 ppg); Scott Smith, junior, guard, Salisbury State (14.9 ppg); Reggie Thomas, junior, guard, Roanoke (16.3 ppg); Mark Washington, senior, forward, Trenton State (14.5 ppg, 6.5 rpg).

South

Top teams—Centre (16-11, three) is aiming for a repeat as College Athletic Conference champion, but Southwestern (Tennessee) (16-7, four) will be tough. North Carolina Wesleyan (21-9, four) may be able to overtake St. Andrews (26-4, four), which lost all-America Will Petersen, in the Dixie Conference. LeMoyne-Owen (24-6, three) lost three all-conference players but may have enough to hold off Rust (24-6, two) in the Southern Intercollegiate. Oglethorpe (16-10, three) and Maryville (Missouri) (16-10, five) should field solid teams.

Top players—Fred Amos, junior, forward, Washington (Missouri) (21.2 ppg, 6.8 rpg); William Bolden, senior, guard, Miles (17.6 ppg); Tom Cowens, junior, forward, Centre (12.0 ppg); James Green, senior, guard-forward, Methodist (17.1 ppg); Marchell Henry, sophomore, forward, St. Andrews (12.8 ppg, 9.6 rpg); Tony Kinder, senior, forward, Maryville (Missouri) (16.2 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Scott Patterson, junior, forward, Southwestern (19.2 ppg, 7.5 rpg); William Perry, senior, forward-center, Lane (13.7 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Jim Startz, junior, forward, University of the South (15.3 ppg, 8.7 rpg); Donald Stewart, junior, forward, Methodist (20.1 ppg, 8.5 rpg); Billy Waits, sophomore, forward, Millsaps (18.0 ppg, 11.7 rpg); Albert Wells, junior, forward, Rust (11.0 ppg, 10.5 rpg); Terry Wright, junior, forward, North Carolina Wesleyan (13.4 ppg).

Great Lakes

Top teams—Hope (19-4, five) will be tough to dislodge from the top of the MIAA, but Albion (15-7, two), Calvin (11-10, three) and Olivet (15-7, three) may mount challenges. NCAA runner-up Wittenberg (26-6, two) and fellow NCAA tourney participants Capital (22-7, two) and Muskingum (19-9, three) were stung by graduation. That could open up the OAC race for teams like Ohio Northern (18-8, three) and Ohio Wesleyan (14-13, four). John Carroll's (17-7, three) chances of repeating in the Presidents' Conference may hinge on how well the Blue Streaks replace all-America John Colombo. Wabash (12-12, five), the 1982 NCAA champion; Rose-Hulman (14-13, five) from the College Athletic Conference, and independent DelPauw (18-7, three) are three more top teams in the region.

Top players—Mike Carswell, senior, center, John Carroll (10.4 ppg, 9.2 rpg); Tim Casey, junior, guard-forward, Wittenberg (13.0 ppg); Rob Ewing, senior, guard, Rose-Hulman (16.8 ppg); Dave Hathaway, senior, forward, DePauw (11.7 ppg); Jeff Heerd, senior, center, Hope (17.0 ppg); Chip Henry, junior, forward, Hope (16.8 ppg, 9.1 rpg); Michael Mack, junior, forward, Adrian (21.8 ppg); Eric Morrison, senior, forward, Capital (13.1 ppg); Randy Morrison, senior, guard, Olivet (20.5 ppg); Merlin Nice, senior, forward, Wabash (18.4 ppg, 10.5 rpg); Mark Oberholtzer, junior, center, Ohio Wesleyan (15.0 ppg, 8.6 rpg); Chris Russell, junior, guard, Kenyon (17.8 ppg); Bob Scelza, junior, forward-center, Baldwin-Wallace (15.9 ppg, 8.7 rpg); Todd Schuiling, senior, guard, Hope (13.0 ppg); Dean Stanley, senior, center, Rose-Hulman (16.8 ppg); Kyle Vander Brug, junior, guard, Calvin (14.6 ppg); Ray Van Tilfin, senior, guard, Alma (17.8 ppg, 7.4 rpg).

Midwest

Top teams—The College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin boasts a number of NCAA-tournament possibilities, even though last year's two entries, Millikin (21-7, two) and Augustana (Illinois) (18-10, two), were hit hard by graduation. Ready to step in are Illinois Wesleyan (17-11, three), North Park (17-9, three) and North Central (16-10, five), which had its first winning season since 1966. Beloit (18-7, three) appears to have a good shot at repeating in the Midwest Conference but will be tested by Monmouth (Illinois) (17-5, three). Of the NCAA schools in Wisconsin, Wisconsin-Whitewater (25-6, two), fourth in the Division III tournament last year, and Wisconsin-Milwaukee (18-6, three) are the most highly rated. Aurora (22-6, three), the defending champion in the Northern Illinois Conference, is another tournament possibility.

Top players—Blaise Bugajski, senior, forward, Illinois Wesleyan (20.5 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Shawn Cannon, senior, forward, Illinois College (15.2 ppg, 8.3 rpg); Mark Ehler, senior, forward, Wisconsin-Platteville (23.5 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Greg Havlin, senior, forward, Illinois College (16.6 ppg); Ken Kelly, junior, guard, Lake Forest (15.0 ppg); Keith Libert, junior, center, Chicago (18.9 ppg, 9.9 rpg); Mark Linde, junior, center, Wisconsin-Whitewater (15.2 ppg, 8.4 rpg); Mark McCormack, sophomore, forward, Elmhurst (13.6 ppg); Mike McFadden, senior, forward, North Central (17.0 ppg, 9.2 rpg); Andre McKoy, senior, guard, Wisconsin-Whitewater (19.6 ppg); Tom Meiron, senior, forward, Monmouth (15.5 ppg, 8.0 rpg); Justyne Monegain, junior, forward, North Park (16.5 ppg); Terry Porter, junior, guard, Wisconsin-Stevens Point (11.4 ppg, 5.2 assists per game); Tom Snapp, senior, forward, Beloit (12.7 ppg); Eddie Taylor, senior, guard, Millikin (15.5 ppg); Joe Weber, senior, center, Aurora (21.1 ppg, 13.5 rpg); John Williams, senior, forward, Wisconsin-River Falls (15.1 ppg, 8.2 rpg).

West

Top teams—The states of Iowa and Minnesota have been shifted into this region, meaning the winner of the Iowa Intercollegiate Conference will play in this NCAA regional. The top team should be William Penn (19-7, three) or Wartburg (21-5, two). The Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference does not receive an automatic bid but should feature a tight race among Augsburg (18-8, three), Concordia (18-9, two) and St. John's (18-12, three). Cal State Stanislaus (16-13, two) and Sonoma State (16-12, two) look like the top two teams in California again. Bishop (18-8, two) must replace the division's leading scorer, Shannon Lilly.

Top players—Brian Ammann, junior, forward, Augsburg (22.1 ppg); Greg Atkins, junior, forward, Upper Iowa (19.1 ppg, 8.5 rpg); Robin Davis, senior, guard, Dubuque (22.6 ppg); Dana Janssen, sophomore, center, Nebraska Wesleyan (15.8 ppg, 10.0 rpg); Ronnie Lindsey, senior, forward, Simpson (12.2 ppg); Kevin Lowary, senior, guard, Central (Iowa) (15.1 ppg); Willie McKennie, senior, center, Luther (21.5 ppg, 10.4 rpg); Don Rogers, junior, forward, Trinity (Texas) (16.5 ppg, 7.8 rpg); Gary Stewart, senior, forward, La Verne (17.3 ppg, 11.4 rpg); Mark Wandmacher, senior, center, Carleton (19.1 ppg); John Wiehoff, senior, forward, St. John's (15.8 ppg, 5.7 rpg); Ronnie Williams, junior, guard, William Penn (13.2 ppg); Dion Wolter, senior, center, Bethel (13.4 ppg, 7.8 rpg).

NCAA play. Brown (9-17, four), Harvard (12-14, four) and Yale (12-14, four) could be teams to keep an eye on.

Top players Paul Anderson, senior, center, Dartmouth (18.2 ppg, 6.3 rpg); Ken Bantum, junior, center, Cornell (14.5 ppg, 6.0 rpg); Bob Ferry, junior, guard, Harvard (14.7 ppg); Butch Graves, senior, guard, Yale (23.3 ppg, 6.4 rpg); John Smyth, sophomore, guard, Princeton (11.0 ppg); Mike Waitkus, sophomore, guard, Brown (14.0 ppg).

Metro Atlantic: Iona (22-9, five) returns 11 letter winners and looks like a good possibility to retain its title. Should the Gaels falter, St. Peter's (22-5, four) and Fordham (19-11, three) could step in. League newcomers La Salle (18-14, four) and Holy Cross (17-13, four) are likely to make it a five-way race.

Top players Tommy Best, senior, forward, St. Peter's (15.3 ppg, 6.6 rpg); Steve Black, junior, guard, La Salle (20.1 ppg); Steve Buritt, senior, guard, Iona (23.2 ppg); Tim Cain, junior, forward, Manhattan (17.7 ppg, 5.6 rpg); Randy Cozzens, junior, guard, Army (16.7 ppg); Shelton Gibbs, junior, forward, St. Peter's (19.0 ppg); Ralph Lewis, junior, forward, La Salle (13.1 ppg); Jim Runcie, junior, guard, Holy Cross (13.8 ppg); Gary Springer, senior, forward, Iona (13.3 ppg, 8.4 rpg).

Metro: Memphis State (23-8, five) is favored to overtake last year's winner Louisville (32-4, three). Complicating matters will be Virginia Tech (23-11, five), Tulane (19-12, two) and the league's newest addition, South Carolina (22-9, three).

Top players Bobby Beccher, sophomore, center, Virginia Tech (12.7 ppg, 6.1 rpg); Dell Curry, sophomore, guard, Virginia Tech (14.5 ppg); Jimmy Foster, senior, forward-center, South Carolina (17.3 ppg, 8.9 rpg); Lancaster Gordon, senior, guard, Louisville (13.7 ppg); Curtis Green, senior, guard, Southern Mississippi (16.7 ppg); Phillip Haynes, senior, guard, Memphis State (13.6 ppg); Keith Lee, junior, forward, Memphis State (18.7 ppg, 10.8 rpg); Bobby Parks, senior, forward, Memphis State (15.7 ppg); Milt Wagner, junior, guard, Louisville (14.4 ppg); John Williams, junior, center, Tulane (12.4 ppg, 5.4 rpg).

Mid-American: Regular-season champion Bowling Green State (21-9, four) and postseason-tourney winner Ohio (23-9, four) have veteran squads. Toledo (17-12, four) does, too, and Northern Illinois (11-16, four) could be the league's surprise team.

Top players John Devereaux, senior, center, Ohio (14.2 ppg, 9.8 rpg); Tim Dillon, senior, forward-center, Northern Illinois (18.9 ppg, 7.5 rpg); Cordell Eley, junior, guard, Western Michigan (18.1 ppg); Ken Epperson, junior, forward, Toledo (18.1 ppg, 8.1 rpg); Ron Harper, sophomore, forward, Miami (Ohio) (12.8 ppg, 7.0 rpg); Colin Irish, senior, forward, Bowling Green State (14.9 ppg); David Jenkins, senior, forward, Bowling Green State (18.7 ppg).

Mid-Continent: This is the only Division I conference that does not have automatic-qualification status for the 1984 NCAA championship. Defending champion Western Illinois (20-11, three) could be in for a stiff challenge from Illinois-Chicago (16-12, five), if the Flames can shrug off a disruptive off-season.

Top players Anthony Boggs, senior, guard, Southwest Missouri State (11.8 ppg); Tom Brown, junior, guard, Wisconsin-Green Bay (12.6 ppg); Kevin Duckworth, sophomore, center, Eastern Illinois (9.6 ppg, 6.0 rpg); Todd Hutcheson, senior, forward, Western Illinois (9.9 ppg, 6.0 rpg); Randy Kraayenbrink, sophomore, guard, Northern Iowa (12.4 ppg); John Meyne, senior, guard-forward, Valparaiso (18.9 ppg, 5.5 rpg); Dave Youdath, senior, center, Cleveland State (16.6 ppg, 8.3 rpg).

Mid-Eastern: Another race between Howard (19-9, three) and North Carolina A&T (23-8, three) could be in store. Howard won the regular-season battle last year; A&T won the postseason tourney.

Top players Joe Binion, senior, forward, North Carolina A&T (19.9 ppg, 11.1 rpg); Eric Boyd, junior, guard, North Carolina A&T (15.3 ppg); Larry Broner, senior, forward, Florida A&M (11.9 ppg, 8.1 rpg); Franklin Giles, senior, center, South Carolina State (15.9 ppg, 12.8 rpg); Marvin Haynes, senior, guard-forward, South Carolina State (19.6 ppg); Danny Sapp, junior, guard, Delaware State (16.9 ppg); Kevin Scott, senior, forward, Howard (12.0 ppg); Michael Toomer, senior, center, Florida A&M (11.9 ppg, 9.9 rpg).

Midwestern City: Loyola (Illinois) (19-10, three) has the guns, particularly forward Alfredrick Hughes, to repeat. However, Xavier (22-8, four), which knocked off the Ramblers in the conference tournament and went on to NCAA play, will not make things easy. Evansville, with four starters on hand, could turn around last season's disappointing 13-16 record.

Top players Mark Acres, junior, forward-center, Oral Roberts (18.8 ppg, 9.6 rpg); Andre Battle, junior, guard, Loyola (11.8 ppg); Luther Burden, junior, guard, St. Louis (15.5 ppg); Doug Chappell, senior, forward, Detroit (17.6 ppg, 8.1 rpg); Alfredrick Hughes, junior, forward, Loyola (25.7 ppg, 8.8 rpg); Jeff Jenkins, senior, forward, Xavier (10.6 ppg); Richie Johnson, junior, forward, Evansville (injured in 1982-83); Tim McRoberts, senior, forward, Butler (13.1 ppg).

Missouri Valley: Wichita State (25-3, three) is now eligible for post-season play and appears capable of defending its conference championship. Illinois State (24-7, four), the conference tourney winner, has a question mark at center. Tulsa (19-12, three) should be the other contender.

Top players Benoit Benjamin, sophomore, center, Creighton (14.9 ppg, 9.6 rpg); Hank Cornley, senior, forward, Illinois State (11.8 ppg, 6.1 rpg); Steve Harris, junior, guard, Tulsa (18.5 ppg); Xavier McDaniell, junior, forward, Wichita State (18.8 ppg, 14.4 rpg); Ricky Ross, senior, forward, Tulsa (18.5 ppg); Aubrey Sherrad, junior, guard, Wichita State (15.3 ppg); John Sherman Williams, sophomore, forward, Indiana State (18.6 ppg); Voise Winters, junior, forward, Bradley (15.4 ppg, 6.3 rpg).

Ohio Valley: Tournery winner Morehead State (19-11, four) assumes the favorite's role, while defending regular-season champion Murray State (21-8, two) rebuilds. Akron (14-15, four), Tennessee Tech (16-12, four) and Youngstown State (15-12, four) will bear watching.

Top players Earl Harrison, senior, forward, Morehead State (13.6 ppg, 9.0 rpg); Joe Jakubick, senior, guard, Akron (26.7 ppg); Stephen Kite, sophomore, forward, Tennessee Tech (12.9 ppg, 6.6 rpg); Lenny Manning, senior, forward, Austin Peay State (16.5 ppg); Guy Minnifield, senior, guard, Morehead State (15.8 ppg); Lamont Steels, senior, guard, Murray State (16.9 ppg); Ricky Tunstall, senior, center, Youngstown State (11.1 ppg, 6.7 rpg, 5.1 blocked shots per game).

Pacific Coast: This league received two NCAA bids last year—Nevada-Las Vegas (28-3, four) and Utah State (20-9, four) and Fresno State (25-10, three) won the NIT title. Toss in California-Irvine (16-12, five) and Cal State Fullerton (21-8, four), and it is easy to see why the PCAA could be in for its best season ever.

Top players Ron Anderson, senior, forward, Fresno State (16.3 ppg, 5.8 rpg); Steve Colter, senior, guard, New Mexico State (16.2 ppg); Joedy Gardner, senior, guard, Long Beach State (15.7 ppg); Greg Grant, sophomore, forward, Utah State (14.7 ppg, 9.1 rpg); Ben McDonald, senior, forward, California-Irvine (15.2 ppg, 7.6 rpg); Danny Tarkenton, senior, guard, Nevada-Las Vegas (7.1 ppg, 9.2 assists per game); Bernard Thompson, senior, forward, Fresno State (16.2 ppg, 5.9 rpg); George Turner, senior, guard, California-Irvine (15.6 ppg); Leon Wood, senior, guard, Cal State Fullerton (18.1 ppg, 11.0 assists per game).

Pacific-10: Oregon State (20-11, three) and UCLA (23-6, three) have dominated this league in recent years and again look like the Pac-10's strongest teams. Washington State (22-7, three) made it a three-way race last year but suffered key graduation losses, as did Arizona State (19-14, two). Southern California (17-11, four), Stanford (14-14, five), California (14-14, three) and Washington (16-15, three) are waiting in the wings.

Top players Wayne Carlander, junior, forward, Southern California (13.1 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Kenny Fields, senior, forward, UCLA (18.0 ppg, 6.6 rpg); A. C. Green, junior, forward, Oregon State (14.0 ppg, 7.6 rpg); Ralph Jackson, senior, guard, UCLA (8.1 ppg, 5.1 assists per game); Keith Jones, senior, guard, Stanford (19.8 ppg); Michael Pitts, senior, center, California (14.4 ppg, 6.1 rpg); Blair Rasmussen, junior, center, Oregon (14.8 ppg); John Revelli, senior, center, Stanford (19.1 ppg); Detlef Schrempf, junior, forward-guard-center, Washington (10.6 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Charlie Sutton, senior, forward, Oregon State (18.8 ppg).

Southeastern: There is no shortage of contenders here, starting with defending champion Kentucky (23-8, three) and NCAA semifinalist Georgia (24-10, three). Then, there is Louisiana State (19-13, four), Auburn (15-13, three), Vanderbilt (19-14, three) and maybe even Florida (13-18, five). Tennessee (20-12, four), Alabama (20-12, two) and Mississippi (19-12, three) each had at least one major loss to graduation or the pros.

Top players James Banks, senior, forward, Georgia (14.0 ppg, 5.4 rpg); Charles Barkley, junior, center, Auburn (14.4 ppg, 9.5 rpg); Sam Bowie, senior, forward-center, Kentucky (injured in 1981-82 and 1982-83); Michael Brooks, senior, guard, Tennessee (14.1 ppg); Phil Cox, junior, guard, Vanderbilt (14.5 ppg); Vern Fleming, senior, guard, Georgia (16.9 ppg); Bobby Lee Hurt, junior, center, Alabama (15.3 ppg, 8.9 rpg); Jim Master, senior, guard, Kentucky (12.5 ppg); Eugene McDowell, junior, center, Florida (16.5 ppg); Leonard Mitchell, senior, center-forward, Louisiana State (14.7 ppg, 9.1 rpg); Derrick Taylor, sophomore, guard, Louisiana State (ineligible in 1982-83); Melvin Turpin, senior, center, Kentucky (15.1 ppg, 6.3 rpg); Kenny Walker, sophomore, forward, Kentucky (7.3 ppg, 4.9 rpg); Ronnie Williams, senior, forward, Florida (18.6 ppg, 8.8 rpg).

Southern: Look for Tennessee-Chattanooga (26-4, four) to win its fourth straight conference championship. Marshall (20-8, three) and Western Carolina (17-12, four) may be able to challenge. The cupboard looks pretty bare at East Tennessee State (22-9, none).

Top players Sam Henry, senior, Marshall (5.8 assists per game); David Lawrence, senior, forward, Appalachian State (15.3 ppg); Quinton Lytle, junior, guard, Western Carolina (12.5 ppg); George Singleton, senior, forward-center, Furman (16.1 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Stanford Strickland, senior, forward, Tennessee-Chattanooga (5.5 rpg); Willie White, senior, guard, Tennessee-Chattanooga (18.4 ppg); Gerald Wilkins, junior, guard-forward, Tennessee-Chattanooga (12.6 ppg); Kenny Wilson, senior, forward, Davidson (17.4 ppg, 5.4 rpg).

Southland: Lamar (23-8, four) should be strong enough to defend its title, but Louisiana Tech (19-9, five) and McNeese State (16-13, five) could develop into formidable foes.

Top players Joe Dumas, junior, guard, McNeese State (19.6 ppg); Jay Hansen, senior, guard, Arkansas State (13.0 ppg); John Horrocks, senior, center, North Texas State (10.1 ppg, 8.5 rpg); Danny Johnson, senior, guard, Texas-Arlington (16.1 ppg); Karl Malone, sophomore, center, Louisiana Tech (20.9 ppg, 10.3 rpg); Terry Martin, senior, forward, Northeast Louisiana (15.1 ppg, 8.1 rpg); Kenneth Perkins, senior, forward, Lamar (11.8 ppg); Tom Sewell, senior, guard, Lamar (18.6 ppg).

Southwest: National runner-up Houston (31-3, three) lost forwards Clyde Drexler and Larry Micheaux to the pros; still, the Cougars are hardly devoid of talent and neither is Arkansas (26-4, three) or 1983 surprise Southern Methodist (19-11, four). Another surprise team last season, Texas Christian (23-11, one), is rebuilding.

Top players Larry Davis, junior, forward, Southern Methodist (14.5 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Bubba Jennings, junior, guard, Texas Tech (16.0 ppg); Joe Kleine, junior, center, Arkansas (13.3 ppg).

Foreign players making their marks

Widespread attention on the influx of foreign players into American collegiate basketball was first focused on Houston's dominating Nigerian center, Akeem Abdul Olajuwon. However, Olajuwon was not the first or only foreign player to make a mark at the Division I level.

Here is a look at some of the other foreign athletes (excluding Canadians) who are currently on Division I rosters: Martin Clark (Great Britain), senior, forward, Boston College; Uwe Blab (West Germany), junior, center, Indiana; Detlef Schrempf (West Germany), junior, guard-forward-center, Washington; Eyal Yaffe (Israel), sophomore, guard, Canisius; Ousmane-Ba (Senegal), sophomore, center, Howard; Zarko Durisic (Yugoslavia), senior, center, Wichita State; Ivan Verberck (Belgium), sophomore, center, Long Beach State; Timo Saarelainen (Finland), sophomore, forward, Brigham Young.

Also, Yvon Joseph (Haiti), junior, center, Georgia Tech; Rodney Darck (Zimbabwe), freshman, center, Connecticut; Akila Butros Shokai (Sudan), freshman, center, Fairleigh Dickinson-Teaneck; Anicet Lavodrama (Central African Republic), junior, center, Houston Baptist. . . . The trend has even been picked up in 7.3 ppg); Jon Koncak, junior, center, Southern Methodist (14.6 ppg, 9.4 rpg); Butch Moore, sophomore, guard, Southern Methodist (9.1 ppg, 6.4 assists per game); Akeem Olajuwon, junior, center, Houston (13.9 ppg, 11.4 rpg); Alvin Robertson, senior, guard, Arkansas (14.2 ppg); Bill Wendlandt, senior, forward, Texas (15.3 ppg); Michael Young, senior, forward, Houston (17.3 ppg).

Southwestern: Tournament winner Alcorn State (22-10, four) and regular-season co-champion Alabama State (22-6, four) are the favorites. Last year's other co-champion, Texas Southern (22-7), lost all its starters.

Top players Eddie Archie, junior, guard, Alcorn State (11.7 ppg, 7.2 assists per game); Melvin Armstrong, senior, forward, Alabama State (15.0 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Aaron Brandon, junior, forward, Alcorn State (15.9 ppg); Tommy Collier, junior, center, Alcorn State (12.1 ppg, 8.5 rpg); Lewis Jackson, senior, forward, Alabama State (23.9 ppg, 6.6 rpg); Napoleon Johnson, senior, center, Grambling State (19.0 ppg, 9.4 rpg); Roosevelt Pritchett, senior, forward, Mississippi Valley State (12.8 ppg).

Sun Belt: Virginia Commonwealth (24-7, four) looks well prepared for its title defense and another NCAA bid. Old Dominion (19-10, three) tied the Rams for the conference title last year but must replace center Mark West. South Florida (22-10, three), Alabama-Birmingham (19-14, two) and South Alabama (16-12, four) appear capable of throwing the league race wide open.

Top players Charlie Bradley, junior, forward, South Florida (26.7 ppg, 6.6 rpg); Terry Catledge, junior, forward, South Alabama (19.7 ppg, 9.9 rpg); Calvin Duncan, junior, guard, Virginia Commonwealth (17.4 ppg); Lucien Foster, senior, guard, Alabama-Birmingham (11.1 ppg); Michael Gerren, senior, guard-forward, South Alabama (20.1 ppg); Jim Grandholm, senior, center, South Florida (13.0 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Melvin Johnson, senior, forward, North Carolina-Charlotte (16.3 ppg); Charlie Smith, junior, guard, Old Dominion (12.1 ppg); Otis Smith, sophomore, forward, Jacksonville (14.3 ppg, 8.7 rpg).

Trans America: Regular-season winner Arkansas-Little Rock (23-6, three) will be looking for an NCAA bid this season after losing to Georgia Southern (18-12, one) in the final of the 1983 conference tournament. Houston Baptist (20-9, four) and Centenary (16-13, three) could be the Trojans' major obstacles.

Top players Eric Hightower, senior, guard, Georgia Southern (15.4 ppg); Larry Hollins, senior, guard, Houston Baptist (11.3 ppg); Chavello Holmes, junior, forward, Georgia State (18.3 ppg, 5.7 rpg); Willie Jackson, senior, forward, Centenary (24.0 ppg, 9.1 rpg); Anicet Lavodrama, junior, center, Houston Baptist (10.6 ppg, 6.0 rpg); Sam Mitchell, junior, forward, Mercer (16.5 ppg, 5.9 rpg); Mike Rivers, senior, forward, Arkansas-Little Rock (13.7 ppg); Cedric Robinson, sophomore, forward-center, Nicholls State (15.4 ppg, 6.0 rpg).

West Coast: Santa Clara (21-7, three) could be a major threat to Pepperdine's (20-9, two) title defense. Gonzaga (13-14, five) and St. Mary's (California) (14-12, four) have the experience to be factors.

Top players Victor Anger, senior, forward, Pepperdine (10.4 ppg, 7.8 rpg); Dennis Black, senior, forward, Portland (11.1 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Harold Keeling, junior, guard, Santa Clara (14.9 ppg); Forrest McKenzie, junior, forward, Loyola Marymount (20.0 ppg, 7.0 rpg); Bryce McPhee, senior, forward, Gonzaga (16.6 ppg); Paul Pickett, junior, guard, St. Mary's (13.6 ppg); John Stockton, senior, guard, Gonzaga (13.9 ppg); Mike Whitmarsh, senior, forward, San Diego (15.3 ppg, 5.3 rpg).

Western Athletic: Last year, Utah (18-14, three), UTEP (19-10, four) and Brigham Young (15-14, four) finished in a three-way deadlock for first, but only Utah received an NCAA bid. With a postseason tournament to be held for the first time this season, the WAC will be hoping for additional NCAA entries. Along with last year's top three, Hawaii (17-11, three) and San Diego State (18-10, three) can entertain legitimate NCAA aspirations.

Top players Brett Applegate, senior, forward, Brigham Young (12.3 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Michael Cage, senior, forward, San Diego State (19.5 ppg, 12.6 rpg); Devin Durant, senior, forward, Brigham Young (22.8 ppg); Luster Goodwin, junior, guard, UTEP (12.3 ppg); Tony Martin, senior, center, Wyoming (13.0 ppg); Fred Reynolds, senior, forward, UTEP (injured in 1982-83); Angelo Robinson, senior, guard, Utah (10.0 ppg); Phil Smith, senior, guard, New Mexico (12.9 ppg).

Independents: Marquette (19-10, three) and Southwestern Louisiana (22-7, three) were the only independents to receive NCAA bids last year. DePaul (21-12, four) was runner-up in the 1983 NIT and will launch an all-out effort in coach Ray Meyer's last year. Notre Dame (19-10, three) and Dayton (18-10, three) are looking for 20-victory seasons. Almost everyone ignored Stetson (19-9, four) last season, but that may not be so easy this season. New Orleans had the best won-lost record (23-7) among Division I independents in 1982-83, but just one Privateer starter returns.

Top players Dion Brown, senior, forward, Southwestern Louisiana (15.3 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Roosevelt Chapman, senior, forward, Dayton (23.0 ppg, 9.6 rpg); Tyrone Corbin, junior, forward, DePaul (10.6 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Dwayne Johnson, junior, forward, Marquette (12.3 ppg); Tim Kempton, sophomore, forward-center, Notre Dame (10.6 ppg, 5.9 rpg); Michael Reddick, senior, center, Stetson (11.5 ppg, 7.0 rpg); Graylin Warner, senior, forward, Southwestern Louisiana (16.6 ppg, 5.2 rpg).

Divisions II and III. Nigerian Yommi Sangodeyi, Sam Houston State, is one of the top centers in Division II, and Division III Worcester State will have three Irishmen on the roster.

All-in-the-family department: William and Mary replaced head coach Bruce Parkhill, who took the head post at Penn State, with his brother, Barry. . . . Oral Roberts head coach Dick Acres should not have any problems getting the attention of his star forwards—sons, Mark and Jeff. . . . And, Division III North Carolina Wesleyan boasts an all-brother starting front court Terry, Tony and Daniel Wright.

Consistency awards go to North Carolina, which has finished first or second in the Atlantic Coast Conference for 17 straight years and has made nine consecutive trips to the NCAA tournament, the longest streak. . . . St. John's (New York) has not done too badly in the postseason tournament business either. The Redmen have made a record 38 appearances. . . . How about UCLA? The Bruins won or shared 18 of the last 22 Pacific-10 Conference titles. . . . Augustana (Illinois) coach Jim Borcharding has had 15 straight winning seasons at the school. . . . And, of course, there is Louisville, which has had 39 straight winning seasons. . . . Finally, Lamar is working on a string of 68 straight home-court victories.

* * *

You might not see the following on any all-America teams, but it sure will be hard to forget their names: Thelander Tillman, junior, forward, Southeastern Louisiana; Goliath Yeggins, senior, forward, West Texas State; Anicet Lavodrama, junior, center, Houston Baptist; Crosetti Speight, senior, guard, Hawaii; Napoleon Lightning, junior, guard, St. Francis (Pennsylvania). How about a sixth man? OK, try Blaise Bugajski, senior, forward, Illinois Wesleyan.

South Carolina head coach Bill Foster last year became the first coach to win 20 or more games at four Division I schools. He turned the trick earlier at Rutgers, Utah and Duke. . . . Traveling does not appear to have affected Arizona State's Bob Weinbauer, either. In six years as a head coach, his teams have made six postseason tournament appearances—four NCAA and one NIT at Pennsylvania and an NIT bid last year at Arizona State.

Championships Previews

Division I Field Hockey

Connecticut was the team to beat in September, when the Division I field hockey season got under way. The Huskies still were unbeaten as of November 1 and are favored to win the 1983 NCAA Division I Field Hockey Championship. First-round games will be played at campus sites November 12-13, with the semifinals and championship game set for Franklin Field at the University of Pennsylvania November 18 and 20.

Connecticut goalkeeper Terry Kix has been a key factor in the Huskies' season (15-0-1). Only a junior, Kix has allowed just three goals in 16 games and has 13 shutouts. Only Dartmouth, New Hampshire and Penn State have been able to find the net against Kix.

After a 1-0 defeat of rival power Old Dominion, Kix recorded 20 saves in a 1-0 exhibition victory over the U.S. Olympic team. The 1984 Olympians out-shot Connecticut, 28-3, in that contest.

Connecticut, which scored 48 goals to its opponents three, was the unanimous No. 1 team in the final NCAA Division I poll. Juniors Wendy Hug (14 goals, two assists) and Rose Smith (eight goals, nine assists) have led the offensive attack.

Senior Laurie Decker, considered among the best players in the collegiate ranks, has added six goals and eight assists.

The last loss for Connecticut was to Old Dominion in the 1982 championship game. The Lady Monarchs will try to defend that title and avenge their only regular-season loss, 1-0 to Connecticut.

Christy Morgan, an all-tournament selection last year, has led Old Dominion in scoring with 17 goals and nine assists. Junior Eveline Veraart has scored 14 goals and two assists, and Ingrid Wolf has added 10 goals and 11 assists.

Lady Monarch goalie Lynn Case has nine shutouts through 14 games, allowing only four goals.

Big Ten Conference rivals Iowa and Northwestern also are likely to make the play-offs again. Led by senior Ellen Egan's 34 goals, the Hawkeyes have fashioned an 18-1-2 record. Losing only to top-ranked Connecticut, Iowa tied Southwest Missouri State and Penn State. Sophomore goaltender Joan Behrends has 10 shutouts and has allowed less than a goal per game during the last half of the season.

Northwestern's 17-3 mark earned the team an eighth-place ranking in the final Division I poll.

New England may be the dominant region. In addition to the powerful Huskies, New Hampshire (13-3-1) and Massachusetts (13-2-1) were ranked in the top five in the final poll.

New Hampshire's ranking is a reflection on the Wildcats' ability to handle rival Connecticut. The two schools played to a 1-1 tie.

Other teams with play-off aspirations include Temple (12-3-1), Penn State (12-2-5), North Carolina (11-2-3), Delaware (12-5), Lehigh (14-3-1), San Jose State (13-2) and California (10-5-1).

Division II Men's Cross Country

Most of the preseason predictions for Division II men's cross country held true through regional competition, with St. Cloud State and Cal Poly-Pomona emerging as the favorites in the 1983 NCAA Division II Men's Cross Country Championships to be held November 12 at the University of Wisconsin, Parkside, in Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Eight of the top 10 returning place-finishers also qualified for the championships, including six of last year's top 10. Leading the group is Slippery Rock's Robert Petrini, No. 2 last year.

St. Cloud State easily won the Central regional with its two all-Americans—Scott Ergen and Kurt Threinen, who finished first and second.

The Huskies were fifth last year, but additional transfers and redshirts have given the squad a boost this season.

Cal Poly-Pomona did not qualify for the NCAA meet last year because of injuries, but the Broncos stayed healthy this year and scored 27 points in the West, the lowest mark in any regional.

Coach Jim Sackett was concerned before the season started about how his fourth and fifth runners would stay with Matt Blaty, Tony Reyes and Gary Borbon—the three veterans.

Blaty, Reyes and Borbon finished first, second and fifth, respectively, and David Loud and Jeff Williams, finished ninth and 10th.

In addition to Petrini, Threinen and Ergen—three of the top 10 returning finishers from last year—California's (Pennsylvania) Brian Ferrari (No. 4 last year), Indiana State-Evansville's Todd Reller (No. 6), South Dakota State's Dan Carlson (No. 8) and Stuart Lund (No. 27), and Edinboro's Steve Repko (No. 19) also qualified for the national meet.

The following is a list of regional team and individual qualifiers:

East

Lowell (61)—Dave Dunham, 32:01.4, 4th; Scott Rafferty, 32:20.9; 10th; Dave Quintal, 32:25.5, 12th; Dennis Siminaitis, 32:44.4, 15th; Tony Gilbert, 33:08.6, 29th; Rich Dawe, 33:38.3; 53rd; Joe Regan, 34:16.6, 85th.

Indiana (Pennsylvania) (64) Nicholas Yutko, 32:18.4; 8th; Mark Schreckengast, 32:30.2; 13th; Steven Coldecamp, 32:37.9, 14th; James Sullivan, 32:49.4, 19th; Jame Hardt, 32:50.3, 20th; Jeffrey Coleman, 33:41.7, 56th; Paul Kline, 33:52.2, 63rd.

Edinboro (126) Jeff Troyer, 32:46.5, 16th; Mike Hulme, 32:47.7, 18th; Steve Stahl, 32:59.5, 23rd; Tom Browksi, 33:16.2; 33rd; William Maloney, 33:31.7, 47th; Tim Dunthorne, 33:55.9, 66th; Steve Repko, 34:46.1, 104th.

Division II Women's Cross Country

The Matadors of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo used only 22 points to win the West regional and establish themselves as the favorites for the NCAA Division II Women's Cross Country Championships November 12 at the University of Wisconsin, Parkside, in Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Only 31 seconds separated the first and seventh runners for Cal Poly-SLO, with the top five finishing second, third, fourth, sixth and seventh. Amy Harper, the defending individual champion, paced the Matadors.

Three other West regional teams—California-Davis, Cal State Hayward and Seattle Pacific—will be challengers for the top spots in the national meet. Davis and Hayward tied for second in the regional with 93 points, and Seattle Pacific was selected at large.

Davis is led by Patti Gray, who finished three seconds ahead of Harper in the regional; Hayward has Kathy Koudela, who was ninth in the national meet last year.

Air Force, the Central region winner, is another contender for the No. 2 spot. The Falcons scored 54 points to defeat strong teams from North Dakota State and South Dakota State.

Among the individual performers who qualified for the national championships are nine of the top 10 returning place-finishers from last year. The missing one is South Dakota State's Nancy Gieske, who was injured before the season started.

Gieske's absence probably is the reason the Jackrabbits failed to qualify. However, teammates Audrey Stavrum and Kristin Asp, the Nos. 5 and 6 finishers last year, did qualify as individuals.

The other top returning individuals include Alane Keefer and Debbie Gresens, Ashland; Marilyn Nichols, Cal Poly-SLO, and Christine Ridenour, Southeast Missouri State.

The following is a list of the regional team and individual qualifiers:

Top teams—Defending Missouri Intercollegiate champion Southeast Missouri State (25-6, three) again will be pressured by Northwest Missouri State (17-11, four) and Central Missouri State (23-7, four). The Lone Star Conference does not receive an automatic NCAA berth but should produce at least two teams of play-off caliber in Sam Houston State (20-10, four) and Stephen F. Austin State (21-10, three).

Top players Bruce Allen, sophomore, forward, Sam Houston State (15.6 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Mark Campbell, senior, guard, Northeast Missouri State (12.4 ppg); Billy Christie, senior, guard, Southwest Texas State (13.3 ppg); Victor Coleman, senior, forward-guard, Northwest Missouri State (19.1 ppg, 6.3 rpg); Jewell Crawford, senior, forward, Southeast Missouri State (15.1 ppg); Curtis Gibson, junior, forward, Missouri-Rolla (20.5 ppg, 7.8 rpg); Reggie Harris, junior, guard, Sam Houston State (17.4 ppg); Tyrone Lee, junior, forward, Central Missouri State (8.7 rpg); Ron Nunnally, junior, guard, Central Missouri State (19.8 ppg); Yommi Sangodeyi, junior, center, Sam Houston State (15.5 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Carlos Smith, senior, guard, Missouri-St. Louis (16.4 ppg); Johnny Taylor, senior, center, Stephen F. Austin State (15.2 ppg, 7.5 rpg); Anthony Venson, senior, guard, Southeast Missouri State (14.0 ppg).

Top teams—Both California conferences look like two-team races. In the CCAA, Cal State Bakersfield (25-5, three) and Chapman (21-8, two) were co-champions last year. Both received NCAA bids, and Cal State Bakersfield advanced to the semifinals. In the NCAC, defending champion San Francisco State (21-9, two) again will be challenged by Humboldt State (18-12, two). Puget Sound (20-10, four) may be the best in the Great Northwest Conference, which does not receive an NCAA automatic bid.

Top players Tim Bell, senior, center, California-Riverside (10.9 ppg, 9.4 rpg); Ken Buntin, senior, forward, Central Washington (14.5 ppg); Henry Felix, senior, guard, Humboldt State (8.6 ppg); Barry Green, senior, guard, Eastern Montana (10.7 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Cliff Higgins, senior, forward, Cal State Northridge (17.3 ppg, 9.0 rpg); David James, senior, guard-forward, Cal State Hayward (11.4 ppg); Homer Kelly, senior, forward, Chapman (14.1 ppg); Jeff Martin, junior, guard, Alaska-Anchorage (17.9 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Dantic Miller, senior, forward, Alaska-Fairbanks (14.6 ppg); Nigel Wallace, senior, guard-forward, Chapman (14.6 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Jerry Williams, senior, guard, Puget Sound (13.9 ppg).

Florida International coach Karl Kremser is not looking any further than making it through the South regional, at least not right now.

During the 11-year history of the NCAA Division II Men's Soccer Championship, the South has produced six titlists, including FIU, which won last year's crown with a 2-1 home-field triumph over Southern Connecticut State.

"We are going to have to get out of this region before we can think about defending our title," Kremser said. "It's always tough to play a team twice (which is a definite possibility, since FIU may face conference foe Tampa in regional play). I've always felt like this is the toughest region."

But, the Sunblazers have the credentials not only to escape their region but also to become the first school in division history to win back-to-back championships. Despite the loss of five starters from last year's squad, Kremser has molded an outstanding unit. FIU's only losses, as of November 1, had been to Division I powers California and Alabama A&M. The Sunblazers tied conference rival Central Florida in the midst of a 14-game unbeaten streak that followed the opening loss to California.

The Sunblazers' quick start is something of a rarity. Until two years ago, FIU had been a two-year (juniors and seniors) institution, meaning Kremser faced a rebuilding job almost every season.

"We always had a big turnover," he said. "Historically, we had been poor starters, but this year we broke from the gate."

Freshman walk-on forward Munga Eketedi (13 goals-4 assists-30 points) has been a big surprise. Senior Hermann-Josef Engels (12-8-32) at forward and senior midfielder Ben Collins have turned in all-America-caliber seasons.

Tampa, the 1982 national champion and a 3-1 loser to FIU earlier in the season, is likely to be FIU's big hurdle in the South. The Northeast has one of its most balanced fields of prospects ever, with Southern Connecticut State, which has been in the final four each of the past five seasons, a slight favorite. Oakland in the Midwest and Seattle Pacific in the Midwest-Far West are other regional favorites.

"Once you're in the select 10 (the Division II field), it's anybody's ball game," Kremser said. "A lucky bounce of the ball or a little extra effort can mean a national championship."

First-round games are to be completed by November 13, and second-round play is to be finished by November 20. The semifinals will be played a week later, followed by the final December 3 or 4 at the home field of one of the finalists.

Here is a look at teams selected for the Division II championship:

Northeast—Keene State (14-2-3) vs. New Haven (15-3-1). The winner will play Southern Connecticut State (13-1-1).

Midwest—Oakland (17-2) vs. winner of Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference match between East Stroudsburg (12-5-1) and Lock Haven (13-2-1).

South—Florida International (15-2-1) vs. Central Florida (10-3-3); Davis and Elkins (8-3-4) vs. Tampa (14-2).

Midwest-Far West—California-Davis (11-6-2) vs. Cal State Hayward (13-3-2). The winner will play Seattle Pacific (13-3-1).

Spartans favored for Division III soccer title

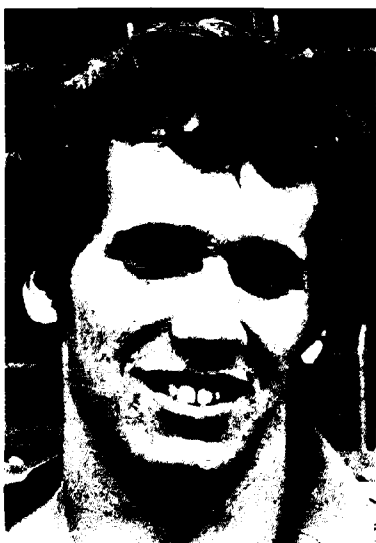

Top-ranked North Carolina-Greensboro, the defending NCAA champion, will be a solid favorite when the 1983 Division III Men's Soccer Championship begins first-round play November 9.

The Spartans will be hoping to repeat last year's title, which was won with a 2-1 home victory over Bethany (West Virginia). And, if numbers and experience are any indication, UNC-Greensboro's hopes may be realized.

Head coach Mike Berticelli lost just one starter from last year's squad—striker Lewis Johnstone, who was named the tournament's most outstanding offensive player. The returning starters and a strong bench have accounted for a 19-1-1 record this fall.

Four keys for the Spartans have been Ed Radwanski, junior, midfielder (15 goals-18 assists-48 points); Mike Sweeney, junior, forward (20-3-43); George Dyer, junior, back, and Tom Borer, sophomore, goalkeeper (0.35 goals-against average, 14 shutouts). Berticelli starts just three seniors, and his young squad has responded well in its role as defending national champion.

"One of our biggest motivating factors has been trying not to look at ourselves as a defending national champion," Berticelli said. "That was something we won; we have it, and no one can take it away from us. Now, we are trying to go out and win a new championship."

Berticelli's psychology obviously has worked, as the Spartans started the season 16-0 before a tie with Wake Forest and a loss to North Carolina, both Division I schools.

Among the teams ready to challenge UNC-G are the three teams that trail the Spartans in the most recent Division III poll—Plymouth State, Wheaton (Illinois) and Kean. Plymouth State almost sent North Carolina-Greensboro packing last year, losing a 2-1, double-overtime decision to the Spartans in the third round.

Elsewhere, Babson may be a match for Plymouth State in New England, while Cortland State could be the class of the New York region. Messiah may rate a slight edge in Pennsylvania-Maryland, and Denison and Hope should be the top teams in the Great Lakes. Colorado College could cause problems for Wheaton in the Far West-Midwest.

The championship game is scheduled for December 3 or 4. For the second straight year, the championship will be played at the site of one of the two finalists.

Here is a look at the teams selected for the 24-team field:

New England—Brandeis (12-4-2) at Plymouth State (14-1-3), November 11; Clark (Massachusetts) (14-0-2) at Babson (13-1-2), November 11. Second-round game to be played November 13 at a site to be determined.

New York—RIT (13-4-0) at Cortland State (12-3-1), November 9; Buffalo State (12-2-2) at Union (New York) (10-2-2), November 9. Second-round game to be played November 12 at a site to be determined.

South-New Jersey—Glassboro State (12-6-1) at North Carolina-Greensboro (19-1-1), November 12; Drew (10-6-4) at Kean (14-3-1), November 12. Second-round game to be played November 19 at a site to be determined.

Great Lakes—Mount Union (12-2-1) at Hope (12-3-2), November 9; Ohio Wesleyan (14-4-1) at Denison (16-3-1), November 9. Second-round game to be played November 12 at a site to be determined.

Pennsylvania-Maryland—Scranton (12-6-1) at Messiah (15-5-1), November 11; Elizabethtown (11-5-5) vs. Frostburg State (9-5-2) at Messiah, November 11. Second-round game to be played November 12 at Messiah.

Far West-Midwest—Colorado College (14-4-3) at Wheaton (Illinois) (13-2-4), November 12; UC-San Diego (12-2-4) at Claremont-M-S (14-3-2), November 12. Second-round game to be played November 19 at a site to be determined.

Student-athlete insurance plan expected to be ready by '84-85

An insurance program covering catastrophically injured student-athletes is not yet a reality for NCAA member institutions, but Association officials say that the program still is expected to be ready for the 1984-85 academic year.

The NCAA's plan, as reported in the October 3 issue of The NCAA News, currently is being reviewed by the Kansas Department of Insurance. Authorization to market the program may be forthcoming by the end of the year.

"Things are not moving as rapidly as we first envisioned," said NCAA Director of Finance Richard D. Hunter, staff liaison to the Insurance Committee.

Hunter, who has been working with committee chair Grant Osborn of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, added that "we do not foresee any major problems with the plan. The committee expects to offer the insurance for purchase, effective with the 1984-85 academic year."

The insurance, which would provide medical coverage on an excess basis to student-athletes who suffer disabling injuries, as well as providing additional liability protection for member institutions, would be administered through Doug Ruedlinger, Incorporated, a company based in Topeka, Kansas.

Ruedlinger, whose company offers similar insurance to 48 state high school associations, recently was called to testify at a hearing in Iowa concerning questions that state's commissioner of insurance had about the Iowa high school program. The concerns included clarification of the company that is underwriting the coverage.

John Black, who attended the hearing as the NCAA's legal counsel, said that "the NCAA is monitoring the developments relating to the high school program because of its similarities to the program proposed to the NCAA."

"The Insurance Committee has examined the proposed policy thoroughly," Black added. "Some of the questions that arose in the Iowa hearing already have been dealt with as they relate to the proposed NCAA policy; others will be answered before any program is offered to NCAA members."

Information about the progress of the catastrophic insurance program will be provided to member institutions through The NCAA News over the next several months. Additional methods of communication also are being developed.

Persons with questions should contact Hunter at the national office.

Briefly in the News

Washington State University literally is getting aid by the bushel for its athletics grant-in-aid fund. Bill Moos, Cougar Club director, has started a "bushels for Butch" program, named in honor of the school's mascot, to encourage donations from area farmers. The club accepts pledges of grain during the spring and early summer, "then we play the market," Moos says. The pledge program, which has about 9,000 bushels of grain pledged from eastern Washington, plans to expand statewide next year. Women's outdoor track and softball have been added to the athletics program at Baptist College, giving the institution a total of five women's sports. Wheaton College (Illinois) football coach J. R. Bishop learned his lessons well as an undergraduate player under Stewart "Red" Faught at Franklin College. Bishop's team leads Division III in passing offense and, not to be outdone by his former student, Faught's Grizzlies lead Division II in the same category (NCAA statistics as of October 22).

Grand Valley State College has been selected as the site for the final selection of a 1984 U.S. Olympic wrestling team. Jim Scott, the school's wrestling coach, said the U.S. team will stay on the campus for about two weeks for workouts and medical tests after it is selected.

Andy Palmer, coach of the women's track team at Brandeis University, won the first Bostonfest Marathon October 30. Palmer, who is working on a master's degree at Springfield College, qualified for the U.S. Olympic trials next May in Buffalo, New York. Last year, the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, men's cross country team won the Southeastern Conference title and placed 13th in the NCAA championships, while team members maintained a 2.750 grade-point average. Hoping that academic and athletic success go hand-in-hand, the team is carrying a 3.020 GPA this year and planning on a higher national ranking. One Volunteer runner, Ken Barbee, who has a 3.840 GPA in biomedical engineering, says, "We've come too close the past two years not to win it all."

St. John's University (Minnesota) soccer goaltender Terry Leidecker has broken the record for shutouts in a college career with 44, according to records compiled by the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America. The old record of 43 was held by Pete Simonini, who played at Plymouth State College in the late 1970s. Leidecker is an all-America senior from St. Louis Park, Minnesota. Carol Fritz, women's volleyball coach at Western Maryland College, notched her 300th coaching victory last month to give herself a 305-61 record for 16 years. Her teams have won five Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference championships and made two trips to the NCAA Division III championship.

Championship sites set for women's basketball

The NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee has announced that the University of Texas, Austin, and the University of Kentucky will host the 1985 and 1986 NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championships, respectively.

The 1985 national semifinals and final will be held March 29 and 31 in the Frank Erwin Special Events Center at Texas. Kentucky's Adolph Rupp Arena will be the site for the 1986 final four, March 28 and 30. The 1984 championship final four will be held at Pauley Pavilion in Los Angeles March 29 and 31 with the University of California, Los Angeles, serving as host.

The committee also announced the 1985 Midcast regional had been awarded to Western Kentucky University. The committee earlier had selected Old Dominion University (East), Northeast Louisiana University (Midwest) and UCLA (West) as sites for the other 1985 regionals, to be played between March 21 and 24.

The committee's recommendations must be approved by the NCAA Executive Committee.

In other business, the committee affirmed an earlier policy for conference automatic qualification. Conferences must conduct either single round-robin play and a postseason tournament or double round-robin play to be eligible for automatic qualification.

Wake Forest reprimanded, censured for infractions

Wake Forest University has been publicly reprimanded and censured by the NCAA's Committee on Infractions for violations that occurred in the university's recruitment of two prospective student-athletes in men's basketball.

The penalty does not include sanctions and will not affect the university's eligibility for postseason basketball competition or television appearances.

The case involved recruiting violations that were discovered during general interviews conducted by the NCAA enforcement staff with two highly recruited prospects during the 1982-83 academic year. One of the young men eventually enrolled at the university.

"The Committee on Infractions did not believe that the violations in this case represented an intentional effort by basketball coaching staff members to circumvent NCAA recruiting legislation," said Charles Alan Wright, chair of the NCAA Committee on Infractions at the time the case was processed. "Even so," Wright continued, "the committee believed a public announcement of the case was appropriate to indicate that additional effort is expected from institutional staff members to maintain compliance with NCAA recruiting requirements."

NCAA library seeks media guides

Media guides from member institutions for all men's and women's winter sports are needed for the NCAA library. The guides are used by the national office staff for championships information and in writing stories for The NCAA News, as well as for administrative purposes.

Sports information directors are requested to send media guides to: NCAA Library, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

Delegate forms for Convention will be mailed

Forms used to appoint official delegates to the annual NCAA Convention will be mailed to chief executive officers at all NCAA member institutions November 22.

Faculty athletic representatives and directors of athletics will not receive the forms because only CEOs are authorized to make delegate appointments.

The delegate-appointment forms will be accompanied by the chief executive's copy of the Official Notice of the Convention.

Other delegate-appointment procedures:

- When no appointment form is received from the chief executive, no other institutional representative is permitted to complete the form at the time of Convention registration. In such cases, the institution's representatives will be registered as visitors until written authorization is received from the chief executive officer.

- Once the form has been signed and submitted by the chief executive officer, no one may be added as a voting or alternate delegate without a letter or telegram from the chief executive.

- Once the voting and alternate delegates have been appointed properly, they may transfer voting rights among themselves as the institution desires. No badges will be changed among voters and their alternates at the Convention.

- Allied conferences without voting privileges, associate members and affiliated members may appoint one delegate each. That delegate may speak on the Convention floor but will not have voting privileges.

- NCAA members and nonmembers are permitted to register as many visiting delegates as they wish. Visitors are considered observers and may neither address the Convention nor vote.

The 78th annual Convention will be held January 9-11 at Loews Anatole in Dallas.

Reminder issued about certification of meets

The NCAA Extra Events Committee reminds directors of athletics at member institutions that participation in noncollegiate competition in gymnastics and track and field must occur in meets that have been certified by the committee.

Bylaw 2-4 explains the restrictions that apply to all outside domestic competition during the calendar year. The regulation applies to all men's programs and to those institutions that have adopted NCAA rules for their women's programs.

It is the responsibility of coaches to be aware of this legislation and to check in advance with the meet management to make certain that an event has received NCAA certification. Student-athletes could lose their eligibility by participating in noncertified outside competition.

New certifications appear periodically in The NCAA News. These meets must be sanctioned by the NCAA Extra Events Committee, not merely by a national governing body in the sport.

Meets that do not involve a large number of competitors and are local in nature may not require certification, if they are classified as "nonincome." Nonincome status may be declared based on several factors, including the purpose of the events, the entry fee or admission charges and the overall financial operation.

Coaches need to check with the NCAA to determine whether the competition has been classified as nonincome, prior to allowing a student-athlete to participate.

Several gymnastics meets have been certified to date. The dates of these events appeared in the October 31 issue of The NCAA News.

No indoor or outdoor track and field meets have been certified.

Officiating film available

"Third Team on the Court," a 28-minute program featuring the basic mechanics and proper techniques for two- and three-man basketball officiating crews, is available through the NCAA Library of Films.

The program recently was completed by the NCAA in cooperation with the Collegiate Commissioners Association. Three of the nation's outstanding NCAA men's collegiate basketball officials worked with a CCA advisory committee at Springfield College to produce the program.

J. Dallas Shirley, assistant to the commissioner of the Southern Conference, served as consultant for the program and was assisted on the committee by Dotson Lewis, Southwest Athletic Conference; John Overby, Missouri Valley/Big Eight Conferences, and Norvall Neve, Atlantic Coast Conference. Edward S. Steitz, director of athletics at Springfield College and secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee, also helped in the production of the program. The Springfield College men's basketball team and coaching staff staged the "game action" for the program.

"This program is an important tool for every basketball official interested in the proper techniques of officiating," Shirley said. "It is an outstanding teaching program for the beginning official as well as for the seasoned veteran wanting to brush up on the proper mechanics of two- and three-man officiating. We encourage all conferences and officiating agencies to obtain this program."

Three formats are available—VHS video cassette, 3/4-inch video cassette and 16mm film. All formats rent for $50 on a weekly basis. The VHS format sells for $75, 3/4-inch for $125 and the 16mm film for $195. Orders may be placed through the NCAA Library of Films, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201. Only prepaid orders by check or money order will be accepted.

College-high school contests

(Revision of Case No. 234)

At its special meeting on November 1, the NCAA Council reviewed its recent revision of Case No. 234, which was published in the October 17 issue of The NCAA News. Members of the Council, as well as the national office staff, have received numerous requests for relief from the revised case in order to permit member institutions to honor commitments that had been made prior to publication of the revised case for high school games to be conducted in conjunction with college games. In response to these concerns, the Council voted to begin applying the newly revised case at the start of the 1984-85 academic year. Accordingly, during the 1983-84 academic year, member institutions may honor commitments for high school contests to be conducted in conjunction with the institutions' contests in accordance with Case No. 234 as published on page 293 of the 1983-84 NCAA Manual.

Situation: A student-athlete desires to utilize athletic equipment or wear athletic apparel that bears the trademark or logo of an athletic equipment or apparel manufacturer in athletic competition. (610)

Question: Is the eligibility of the student-athlete jeopardized?

Answer: No, provided that, in the case of athletic equipment (e.g., shoes, helmets, baseball bats and gloves, hockey and lacrosse sticks, and skis), the item bears only the manufacturer's normal label or trademark as it is used on all such items for sale to the general public and, in the case of the student-athlete's institution's official uniform (including warm ups), the clothing (if purchased or acquired subsequent to November 7, 1983) bears only a single manufacturer's normal label or trademark not to exceed a 1½-inch square in size. All other items of apparel (e.g., socks, head bands, T-shirts, wrist bands, visors or hats, swim caps and towels) may not include any visible commercial identification. [C 3-1-(e)]

Junior college graduation

Situation: A student-athlete completes attendance at a junior college with a trade, vocational or technical certificate or degree. (612)

Question: Does such a certificate or degree satisfy the graduation requirement for a student-athlete desiring to be immediately eligible upon transfer from the junior college to a member institution?

Answer: No. In order to satisfy the requirement of graduation from a junior college, the student-athlete must receive an associate or equivalent degree in an academic, rather than a vocational or technical, curriculum. [B 5-1-(j)-(8), (9) and (10) and 5-1-(k)-(1)]

Graduate assistant coaches

Situation: The provisions of Bylaw 7-1-(h) set forth the requirements that must be met by individuals serving as graduate assistant coaches in intercollegiate football and basketball programs at Division I member institutions. (603)

Question: What criteria govern the provision of compensation to individuals serving as graduate assistant coaches under this legislation?

Answer: For purposes of this legislation, beginning with the 1984-85 academic year, the definition of "commonly accepted educational expenses" shall be that set forth in Constitution 3-1-(g)-(1). The prohibition against arranging additional employment opportunities for graduate assistant coaches would not relate to summer employment, unless the individual remains enrolled in the institution's graduate program during the summer. [B 7-1-(h)]

The Council expressed the view that the ACE plan was seriously flawed and would represent a radical departure from the federated approach used to determine division concerns in recent years, inasmuch as it would take a two-thirds vote of the entire Convention to reverse an action of the presidents' board that dealt only with one division.

"The ACE's proposal clearly questions the integrity of the democratic legislative process that has been the basis of NCAA existence for nearly 80 years," Roaden told news media representatives November 1. "The individuals most closely associated with the everyday problems of college athletics—faculty representatives, directors of athletics, primary women administrators and coaches—would be placed in an adversarial position between those who authorize them as institutional delegates to consider legislation at the NCAA Convention and the ACE presidents' board."

"The one-vote-per-institution concept would become an inferior process to a small body of chief executive officers empowered to overrule majority representation," Roaden said. "We believe the NCAA Council's proposal is a much more effective approach that can offer great benefits to intercollegiate athletics and higher education."

Roaden also said that he thought the NCAA membership would reject the ACE plan. "I am persuaded that logic will prevail," he said. "I think that, up to this point, the only option before the public has been the ACE proposal, which was distributed in draft form several weeks ago."

"I believe that when both options are known, responsible people are not going to buy a plan whereby a few chief executive officers take over the operations of the NCAA and all policy-making, procedure-making decisions in college athletics. It has no good rationale behind it, and I think our plan does. Our plan just makes greater sense. We have been accustomed to voting on the Convention floor, with each institution having a voice and vote. I think that's a pretty sacred ingredient of American democracy, and I'd hate to see that taken away," Roaden said.

In other governance matters at the November 1 meeting, the Council voted to sponsor legislation to permit greater legislative autonomy for Division I-A members and for the remainder of Division I in the divided bylaws (except for the championships matters in Bylaws 5-6 and 5-7), and create a "games atmosphere."

"In reality, it will be a 'sports festival' at UCLA rather than six individual championships on one campus," Holland said.

A logo has been designed, which Holland says, "will be placed on every item we design in connection with the six NCAA championships." A theme song, written by Henry Mancini, will be used in conjunction with the events.

Holland sees the events as being able to draw on the excitement surrounding the Olympics as well as generating support from within the community, campus and athletics department.

"We believe we have the potential to sell out both basketball and gymnastics in Pauley Pavilion and draw the largest crowd UCLA has ever had when it has hosted volleyball," said Holland. "Tennis is unknown, but we plan to do the best that has been done up to now. Realistically, we see more than 100,000 people attending the six championships, which will be a great tribute to the importance and excitement of NCAA sports."

Following are brief biographies of the six student-athletes who will be at the press conference and who could figure prominently in the events held next spring at UCLA:

Cecilia Fernandez, junior, University of Southern California (women's tennis). Was a quarterfinalist in the 1982 NCAA Division I Women's Tennis Championships and helped lead the Trojans to the 1983 team title while playing No. 3 singles. Won the gold medal in women's singles at last summer's World University Games.

Mitch Gaylord, senior, UCLA (men's gymnastics). First in all-around at the 1983 United States Gymnastics Federation championships; also at the 1982 National Sports Festival. An all-America who has competed in numerous international competitions.

Ricci Luyties, senior, UCLA (men's volleyball). Considered the premier setter in college volleyball and also led the Bruins in kills per match (12.8). Helped lead UCLA to the 1983 NCAA title and was named the tournament's most outstanding player.

Megan McCuniff-Marsden, senior, Utah

(women's gymnastics). An all-America each of the last three years. Won NCAA all-around title last spring; also placed second on the uneven bars and sixth in floor exercise and vaulting. Has been a key member of Utah's back-to-back NCAA championship teams.

Cheryl Miller, sophomore, Southern California (women's basketball). A consensus all-America as a freshman last year when she led the Trojans to their first NCAA title. Averaged 20.4 points per game, 9.7 rebounds per game and 3.5 assists per game. Member of the 1983 U.S. Pan American Games gold-medal-winning team.

Leon Wood, senior, California State University, Fullerton (men's basketball). Perhaps the best point guard in the nation, Wood averaged 11 assists per game last season along with 18.1 points per game. An all-conference selection last year and a likely all-America in 1983-84. Played on the U.S. team that captured the Pan Am Games gold medal this summer.

the Convention. These forms will accompany the mailing of the Official Notice November 22.

Excluding 23 proposals in the consent packages (19 routine amendments to the bylaws and other legislation and four to the constitution), the next largest number of proposals after playing and practice seasons is 17 found in the financial aid section. Next in line is recruiting with 15 proposals.

Other groupings include governance (14), championships (14), eligibility (14), academics (11), amateurism (nine), general (nine), personnel limitations (seven), and membership and classification (five).

A group-by-group review of the proposed legislation for the 1984 Convention will appear in all remaining issues of The NCAA News leading up to the Convention. The first report of proposed legislation will appear in the November 14 issue.

In addition to those decisions, the Council took the following actions in its November 1 meeting:

Governance

Approved recommendations by all three division steering committees regarding an educational program to inform the NCAA membership of the governance proposals being sponsored by the Council; directed the Special Committee on Governance Review, expanded by President Toner as needed, to serve as a task force to carry out such a program; authorized a letter from the Council to the chief executive officer of each active member institution as a special report on the key governance issues. [Note: The letter is printed in its entirety elsewhere on page 3.]

Other legislation

Voted to add the Men's Ice Hockey and Men's Lacrosse Committees to the previously approved amendment specifying that secretary-rules editors who can be reelected without restriction would be nonvoting members of their sports committees and would be replaced as voting members of the committees.

Tentatively approved Council sponsorship of legislation recommended by the Special Committee on Player Agents to permit a student-athlete to borrow money to purchase insurance against a disabling injury, with the understanding that the Administrative Committee would make the final decision regarding submission of that proposal after conferring with legal counsel.

Agreed to modify a proposal it agreed earlier to sponsor to prohibit any in-person, off-campus football recruiting by a member of a Division I institution's coaching staff from 12:01 a.m. on the day of registration for the annual American Football Coaches Association Convention until 12:01 a.m. on the day after adjournment of that Convention, as recommended by the AFCA. It also noted that both the AFCA and the Women's Basketball Coaches Association want such prohibitions in their sports to apply to contacts both on and off campus.

Noted that the Division I Steering Committee did not desire to change the date on which the first basketball contest can be played in that division.

Noted that the Division I committee had declined to sponsor an amendment to Executive Regulation 1-6-(b)-(2)-(i), which would enable a Division I conference with fewer than eight members and that currently has automatic qualification in men's basketball to expand its membership without loss of the automatic-qualification privilege.

Withdrew its previously approved proposal to discontinue the eight-district structure of the Association in favor of four regions within each of the three divisions; agreed to study the Division I regions further in 1984.

Interpretation

Changed the effective date of revised Case No. 234 [October 17 issue of The NCAA News] from immediate to August 1, 1984; directed that the case be run again in the News.
