Women's basketball statistics are impressive

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Results of the first national statistical trends for Division I women's basketball show a level of shooting skill that will surprise those who have not followed the women's game and will please those who have.

Players on the nation's 267 major-college women's teams, combined, shot 44.01 percent from the field, 65.32 percent from the free-throw line and scored 139.36 points per game (both teams combined, all 7,395 games involving at least one Division I team) during the 1984 season.

It is not possible to make a valid comparison with 1983 because 45 teams did not submit final 1983 figures (and most of them still have not been compiled). However, the 1984 figures will provide a basis of comparison with 1985, when the new, smaller ball will be used for the first time and the Division I lineup will be virtually the same.

That leaves men's basketball as the only means for comparison. Before we get into that, remember that we are talking about two very different games because of the vast differences in height. The average height of players in Division I men's basketball is almost 6-5; very few players in women's basketball are that tall.

The women's game is more of a finesse game. It is played more like the men's game used to be played before the leapers took over with their dunks, blocked shots and in-your-face inside intimidation. With the 30-second clock, the women shoot more often; so, hold-the-ball games never happen.

Statistically, there are few-to-several dunks in every men's game (a high-percentage shot if there ever was one), whereas dunks never happen in a women's game. This helps the men's shooting percentage, but this is balanced by far more blocked shots by the men.

Pure shooting skill

In terms of pure shooting skill from the field, the men and women are not as far apart as might be imagined. Players on the 275 Division I men's teams in 1984 combined to shoot 48.08 percent from the field—a record. That is only 4.07 percentage points higher, or 9.25 percent better, than the 44.01 by the women.

From another angle, the nation's major-college men did not reach the 44 percent level until 1970. The figure climbed from 29.3 percent in 1948—first year of official national trends—to 43.8 percent in 1969. In 1970, it reached 44.2 percent.

At the free-throw line, the men shot 68.9 percent this season (compared to the record 69.7 in 1979). That is only 3.6 percentage points higher, or 5.5 percent better, than the women.

In scoring, the men averaged 136.34 points per game, both teams combined, which is 3.02 points lower than the women (or 2.2 percent worse, if you like more points) and attempted a record-low 111.14 field goals per game—17.21 fewer (or 15.5 percent worse) than the 128.35 attempts per game by the women.

Personal fouls by the women averaged about one per minute—virtually the same as the men have averaged consistently for 37 seasons. Free-throw attempts by the women averaged 40.40 vs. 42.75 by the men and free throws made 26.39 vs. 29.46.

Conference leaders

The Southeastern Conference, which led all women's conference's in won-lost against outside Division

I opponents, also led all conferences in field-goal shooting accuracy at 48.3 percent. The Western Collegiate Athletic Association was second at 47.3 and the Big Eight Conference third at 47.1 percent. The Metro Conference led in free-throw accuracy at 68.6 percent, and the Big Eight was first in scoring offense over the SEC, 76.25 to 76.06. (By comparison, the Atlantic Coast Conference men, first in winning percentage against outsiders, led the men in both field-goal accuracy at 50.6 to 50 for the Big Eight and free-throw accuracy at 71.9 to 71.8 for the Midwestern

As of May 29, 104 individuals had been selected by voting allied conferences; five had accepted invitations to represent independent member institutions, and 58 coaches had been named by the American Football Coaches Association, the National Association of Basketball Coaches and the Women's Basketball Coaches Association.

Also attending will be the members of the Division I Steering Committee, Divisions II and III Vice-Presidents Ade L. Sponberg and Elizabeth A. Kruczek, and the executive directors of the three coaches associations—Charles McClendon, AFCA; Joseph R. Vancisin, NABC, and Betty Jaynes, WBCA.

Each voting allied conference in Division I was invited to select from two to four representatives to attend the meeting, based on the conference's sponsorship of men's programs, women's programs or both. A conference that sponsors both is permitted to send a faculty athletics representative, a director of athletics, a primary woman administrator of athletics programs and the conference's executive officer.

Conferences offering only men's programs do not designate a primary woman administrator, while those involved only with women's programs send the conference executive officer and a primary woman administrator.

Following is a listing of the individuals planning to attend the meeting as of May 29, other than the steering committee members and observers:

Faculty Athletics Representatives

Sports personalities fight drug use

University of Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler and CBS Sports announcer Gary Bender joined 11 student-athletes in Phoenix, Arizona, May 21 for the 10th annual NCAA-Fiesta Bowl banquet to combat drug abuse.

The program is a partnership between the Fiesta Bowl and the NCAA, in which student-athletes tape public-service television announcements to urge the nation's youth to choose sports instead of drugs. The messages will be aired on NCAA football and basketball telecasts in the coming seasons.

Eight football players and three basketball players attended the banquet, which attracted more than 1,200 persons. In addition to the Fiesta Bowl and the NCAA, the Samaritan Medical Foundation was a sponsor of the event.

Football players participating in the event were Doug Flutie, Boston College; Bill Fralic, University of Pittsburgh; Chris Funk, U.S. Air Force Academy; Bo Jackson, Auburn University; Bernie Kosar, University of Miami (Florida); Napoleon McCallum, U.S. Naval Academy; Jack Trudeau, University of Illinois, Champaign, and Luis Zendejas,

Charge of gambling should be more specific

By George McClelland
Virginian-Pilot (Norfolk, Virginia)

Georgetown men's basketball coach John Thompson struck a nerve recently when he suggested that some basketball officials may be betting on games. He could be right, of course. Anything is possible, but why he thought a press conference was the place to articulate such a possibility is beyond us.

Especially since this is a man not addicted to idle chatter. If sportswriters bet on basketball—Thompson, the coach of the national champions, says they do—then it is not out of the question that an official somewhere or other is tempted to wager a bob or two.

Certainly, neither action can be condoned. No official in any field of athletic endeavor should be caught betting on anything. Nor is it enough to excuse a writer on the grounds of lack of intellect or lack of impact. A guy covering a team that costs him money is apt to do a hatchet job to end all hatchet jobs.

What we question is Thompson's wisdom in making such a remark in an open forum.

If he has proof of such activity, let him make it to an appropriate enforcement body.

We had the same complaint a couple of years back when Digger Phelps, the respected coach of basketball at Notre Dame, said that recruits were being given large dollar inducements to sign grants-in-aid.

Basketball, in general, had two problems with that indictment. Phelps made the remark in a season during which the Irish failed to make the NCAA tournament field. And there were no specifics, only a broad statement calculated to give college basketball a shiner.

Thompson, of course, cannot be accused of sour grapes. His team is numero uno. So is he.

But again, there is a vagueness to his remark that hurts a lot of people without helping anyone.

Goodness knows, basketball has every right to be leery of gambling in any form. The point-shaving scandal at Boston College is an alarm bell to be heeded on every side.

But a statement about some basketball officials placing bets can be of no value. The men in striped shirts have it tough enough.

Now if Thompson wanted to declare that, in his opinion, college officials should have their schedules trimmed to three games a week to save on wear and tear and improve performance, that would be one thing. Some of us would buy that.

Or a central booking bureau to handle assignments on a national basis. That, too, is a subject worth addressing.

Unquestionably, though, Thompson must have had a reason for saying what he did. So thought a couple of administrators who reacted by saying maybe we ought to look into it.

No shrinking violet is John Thompson. When he walks the sideline, towel draped over his shoulder, Georgetown players heed his presence. When he talks, basketball America listens.

Our appreciation of Thompson, the coach and educator, is as large as his physical presence. He has proved not one but several points by his good works. In the District of Columbia, he is a natural resource of considerable importance.

In the coming months, eyes may be on Bobby Knight and his Olympians. Ears will stay tuned to Thompson, the winner.

That is why he must weigh every word so carefully. The fact that he invariably does just that is what makes the whole idea scary.

TV tries to cover game's emotions

Rick Sharp, TV sports producer

"College basketball deals with emotion. Professional basketball deals with great personal talent. In college basketball, you deal with three things: the players on the floor, the cheerleaders and the fans. One is no more important than the other because they're tightly knit. The actions of the players on the floor are reflected immediately by the enthusiasm shown by the cheerleaders and the fans, and that's what you have to portray."

Don Davis, athletics director and football coach

"I think our obligation as coaches is to see that our players graduate at the same rate as the rest of the student body. My hope and my goal here is for them to graduate at a greater rate than the regular students.

"I could use all the old coaching cliches about building character. I don't think it (the football program) builds character. It helps point out to kids some things that are necessary if they want to be successful—like learning to discipline themselves, learning to get along with other people, learning to make sacrifices."

USA Today

"... turning college teams into pro teams is no way to end the abuses. Colleges would launch bidding wars for stars. Hardened pro athletes with no interest in education would be hanging around campuses. School spirit, which is the heart of student and alumni support, would die.

"Colleges must return to their real mission: educating all students. Athletes must never be a class apart. They shouldn't get special treatment, live in isolation in separate dorms or be allowed to evade entrance requirements. . . ."

Gene Murdock, chairman, department of history

"I teach students (in a course entitled Sports and American Life) things like how the Industrial Age affected sports equipment—the effect of immigration on sports in general, how sports reflects the historical era.

"Students come into my class thinking that because they know a lot about the (Cincinnati) Reds or another team, they'll pass. They are very surprised when they find out what the course is about."

David J. Ryan Jr., student-athlete
Old Dominion University

Old Dominion University news release

"We (the student-athletes) know the dedication, the time, and the mental and physical energies needed to excel. We have developed relationships, friendships and respect for one another. We have learned to discipline ourselves, to budget our time and resources, and to organize our days so that we may excel both on and off the athletics field.

"So, many of us will be graduating from Old Dominion University, but we will do so not only with our degrees and athletics awards but also with a feeling of satisfaction that we have spent ourselves on a worthy cause and that we have done the job well."

Questions/Answers

Q. What does the term "I-AAA" mean when referring to NCAA member institutions?

A. I-AAA is the new designation for those Division I institutions that do not sponsor football, or do not sponsor it in Division I. The unofficial term was approved by the Division I Steering Committee and the Council in their April meetings at the request of Council members representing such institutions. The term replaces "I-Other," which had been used informally for the past two years.

The Associated Press

"The NCAA is living in the Dark Ages. It's idiotic. They've got so many rules, they don't understand them themselves. They've done everything they can to destroy track and field at the college level by limiting scholarships.

Athletics career counseling panels

The establishment of athletics career counseling panels under NCAA Constitution 3-1-(h)-(4), as amended by the 1984 Convention, is one part of a three-step plan recommended by the NCAA Special Committee on Player Agents to provide student-athletes unbiased and accurate information concerning both the opportunity for a future professional athletics career and the selection of honest and competent representation.

The second part of the plan involves the special committee's recommendation to establish a program whereby individuals interested in serving as player agents for student-athletes who wish to pursue professional athletics careers could be registered with the Association. The NCAA Council approved the implementation of this program in April.

The third part of the plan involves the revision of the pamphlet "A Career in Professional Sports: Guidelines That Make Dollars and Sense" to be mailed to the membership this fall. The pamphlet will include information on the career-counseling panels and the agent registration program.

It is anticipated that the counseling panels will be in a position to assist student-athletes regarding their options in selecting professional sports careers or remaining in school to finish their collegiate eligibility and education. If a student-athlete decides to pursue a professional career, the panel can assist the student-athlete in selecting a competent representative or agent.

The institution's counseling panel also will be permitted to consult with individuals other than those who serve as members of the panel (e.g., former student-athletes, current or former professional athletes, player agents) in order to offer specialized counseling or a unique perspective concerning a student-athlete's choice about a professional athletics career, it being understood that the services rendered by these individuals do not result in any material benefits to the student-athlete.

In light of the recent NCAA Council interpretation regarding the role of attorneys in advising student-athletes about professional sports contracts (Situation 616, published in the interpretations column in the May 9 issue of The NCAA News), a player agent could not be present in a meeting involving members of the counseling panel, a student-athlete and representatives of a professional sports organization without jeopardizing the student-athlete's eligibility. This would be the case regardless of whether the agent's presence was requested by the student-athlete or the counseling panel.

Finally, in accordance with the provisions of Constitution 3-1-(h)-(4), member institutions are required to notify the NCAA national office of the institution's panel membership and any membership changes. The notification should be forwarded to John H. Leavens, assistant director of legislative services.

Division I junior college transfers

The NCAA Council has determined that the provisions of 1984 Convention Proposal Nos. 27 and 28 [which amended Bylaws 5-1-(j)-(8)-(ii) and 5-1-(j)-(9)] apply to those students who initially enroll in a junior college subsequent to August 1, 1984, and require the student-athlete to demonstrate satisfactory progress toward a specific baccalaureate degree to be immediately eligible upon transfer to a Division I institution.

Seasons of competition — Division I 20-year-old rule

The provisions of 1984 Convention Proposal, No. 77 [which amended NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(d)-(3)] eliminate the exceptions for participation in organized competition while in the armed services of the United States, on official church missions or with recognized foreign aid services of the U.S. government from counting as seasons of competition for student-athletes at Division I institutions. The changes apply to all student-athletes first entering an NCAA member institution on or after August 1, 1984, except that an individual's eligibility would not be affected if the institution had a written, binding commitment with the student-athlete or a confirmation of admission executed prior to the Convention's action on this proposal.

Seasons of competition — hardship rule

Under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(d)-(2), a student-athlete may be granted an additional year of eligibility if the student-athlete suffers an incapacitating injury or illness that occurs when the student-athlete has not participated in more than 20 percent of the institution's completed events in the sport, provided the student-athlete satisfies all other requirements of this legislation. As discussed in Case No. 291 (page 325, 1984-85 NCAA Manual), a scrimmage with outside competition is countable under this legislation in calculating both the number of events in which the student-athlete has participated and the number of completed events during that season in the sport.

For example, an institution that conducts competition at various times during the year in a sport (e.g., tennis, golf, baseball, lacrosse, softball, volleyball, soccer) that has a traditional championship season in the spring or fall would include all formal or informal scrimmages, exhibition or practice games and regular-season games against outside competition occurring during the academic year in calculating both the number of events in which the student-athlete has participated and the number of the institution's completed events in the sport.

U.S. baseball team to tour country

Sixteen players have been added to the U.S. baseball team that will tour the country this summer and compete in the baseball demonstrations at the 1984 Summer Olympics July 31-August 7 in Los Angeles.

The United States Baseball Federation, along with U.S. Olympic coach Rod Dedeaux, University of Southern California, made the selections, which increase the roster to 40.

Among the 16 new additions, the following are from NCAA member institutions: Billy Swift, pitcher, University of Maine, Orono; Don August, pitcher, Chapman College; Bobby Witt, pitcher, University of Oklahoma; Brad Brink, pitcher, University of Southern California; Sid Aiken, pitcher, University of Southern California; Scott Bankhead, pitcher, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Dennis Livingston, pitcher, Oklahoma State University; Norm Charlton, pitcher, Rice University; Gary Green, shortstop, Oklahoma State University; Flavio Alfaro, shortstop, San Diego State University; Ken Caminiti, third baseman, San Jose State University; Ben Abner, outfielder, Georgia Southern College; Chris Gwynn, outfielder, San Diego State University, and Bob Caffrey, catcher, California State University, Fullerton.

North team tries to extend string in annual all-star lacrosse game

Players representing 36 NCAA men's lacrosse programs have been selected to participate in the North-South senior all-star lacrosse game, scheduled June 9 at Johns Hopkins University.

Don Leet, head coach at St. Lawrence University and a member of the NCAA Men's Lacrosse Committee, will coach the North squad. Assisting him will be Harry Royle of Hofstra University and Dave Urick, recent winner of an unprecedented fifth straight Division III title as coach of the Hobart College Statesmen.

Coaching the South squad will be Dick Edell, who recently completed his first season at the University of Maryland, College Park. South assistants are Rich O'Leary of the University of Notre Dame and Clarke Frank of the College of William and Mary.

The North will try to extend its winning streak in the annual contest to 10. The North now leads the overall series, 21-19-1.

Following is a complete roster of the seniors who will participate in the game.

North

Attack—George Paletta, Holy Cross College; Gary Martin, Pennsylvania State University; Tom Lion, Penn State; Randy Lundblad, Syracuse University; Kevin Cook, Cornell University; Bill Naslonski, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, and Tim French, St. Lawrence University.

Midfield—Rob Littel, Brown University; James Watts, Massachusetts Maritime Academy; John Wall, University of Pennsylvania; Jim Holihan, Hobart College; Pat O'Hara, Hobart College; Steve Swindell, Bowdoin College; Dave Desko, Syracuse University; Charles Reichel, New York Maritime College; Greg Hall, Cortland State University College; Bob Papenfuss, University of Pennsylvania; Mikko Red Arrow, Hofstra University, and Edward Mechan, Swarthmore College.

Defense—Barry Cain, University of Massachusetts, Amherst; Mike Riccardi, U.S. Military Academy; Charles Santey, St. Lawrence University; Michael Higgins, Cornell University; Louis Trapp, Rutgers; Robert Jahelka, C. W. Post, and Bob Kane, New Hampshire College.

Goalkeepers—George Slabowski, Army, and Chris Anglim, C. W. Post.

South

Attack—Andy John, Denison University; Peter Scott, Johns Hopkins University; Willy Odenthal, Johns Hopkins University; Mark Miller, Towson State University; Brent Voelkel, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Tom Calabrese, U.S. Naval Academy, and Chuck Ruland, College of William and Mary.

Midfield—Corky Andrews, College of William and Mary; Rocco Guglielmo, Roanoke College; Paul Lastayo, Colorado College; Jean Steffen, University of Maryland, College Park; Greg Manley, Loyola College (Maryland); Patrick Lyons, San Diego State University; Mark Gold, University of Maryland, Baltimore County; Chris Guttilla, University of Delaware; Scott Gerham, University of Virginia, and Jim Huelskamp, Salisbury State College.

Defense—Richard Abel, Salisbury State College; Dean Stocksdale, University of Delaware; Dave Weckesser, University of Maryland, Baltimore County; Tim Schurr, Washington and Lee University; Douglas McKenzie, Roanoke College; Randy Cox, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and Neil Duffy, U.S. Naval Academy.

Goalkeepers—J. B. Meyer, University of Virginia; Kevin O'Leary, University of Maryland, College Park and Greg Baker, Washington College (Maryland).

ACC basketball survives decline in TV ratings

Atlantic Coast Conference basketball and its television syndicator, Raycom Sports, seem to be avoiding the problems besetting a number of other conferences that have experienced a drop in ratings and advertising interest.

According to a Cassandra/A.C. Nielsen Company study, ACC basketball ranks as the top sports program in syndication. Overall, of 411 syndicated programs available, the ACC package ranks 13th in households and fourth among men 18 years and older.

Raycom also has announced an advertising agreement with Anheuser-Busch through the 1989-90 season.

TV in the News

Mizlou sues over broadcast rights

Mizlou, an independent television network, has filed suit against NBC and the Florida Citrus Sports Association over broadcast rights for the 1984 Florida Citrus Bowl.

Mizlou has televised the bowl—formerly the Tangerine Bowl—the past 11 years. The bowl signed a contract with NBC last year, even though, according to Mizlou, the independent network had exercised its first right of refusal.

The antitrust suit, totaling $75.4 million, was filed May 23 in U.S. district court in Washington, D.C.

College World Series to be on TV

For the third straight year, ESPN will provide national cable television coverage of the entire College World Series.

The network will carry all 14, and possibly 15, games of the double-elimination tournament June 1-10 in Omaha, Nebraska. Three of the cablecasts will be tape-delayed, and the rest will be carried live.

ESPN's coverage will include double-headers June 1, 2, 3, 6 and 8 and singles games June 4, 5, 7, 9 and possibly 10.

Handling play-by-play will be ESPN's Sam Rosen and Pittsburgh Pirates broadcaster John Sanders. Former major leaguers Jim Kaat and Jim Price and ESPN's Irv Brown, former baseball coach at the University of Colorado, will work as analysts. Tom Hedrick, director of the University of Kansas Sports Network, will provide commentary and interviews.

Following is the ESPN schedule (all times Eastern):

June 1—5 and 8 p.m., both live; 2—5 p.m. (live) and tape-delayed at midnight; 3—5 and 8 p.m., both live; 4—11:15 p.m., tape-delayed; 5—8 p.m., live; 6—5 p.m. (live) and 11:15 p.m. (tape-delayed); 7—8 p.m., live; 8—5 and 8 p.m., both live; 9—8 p.m., live; 10 (if necessary)—8 p.m., live.

Metrosports, Big Ten sign pact

Metrosports and the Big Ten Conference have announced a contingency football television plan, similar to an earlier agreement signed between the syndicator and the Pacific-10 Conference.

The plan calls for live coverage of up to 15 games in each of the next three seasons. The agreement is subject to antitrust action before the U.S. Supreme Court challenging the NCAA's administration of live college football television. It also is subject to any conference agreement with one or more of the three major networks or with others concerning national and regional television.

NBC, Rose Bowl sign contract

NBC will continue to televise the Rose Bowl through 1990 under terms of a contract announced recently.

The network has televised the Rose Bowl since 1952. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

NBA, Turner continue discussions

Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., and the National Basketball Association reportedly are putting the final touches on a two-year cable television agreement worth approximately $20 million.

If signed as reported, the contract represents a significant revenue gain for the NBA. The league has just completed a two-year package with ESPN and the USA Network worth a combined $11 million.

One unnamed industry official involved with the current package told the Associated Press, "Turner is offering a hell of a lot of money. And the type of money he (TBS owner Ted Turner) is offering really doesn't make any sense to us. . . ."

Johns Hopkins claims lacrosse championship

Johns Hopkins raced to a five-goal lead in the first quarter and never looked back in taking the NCAA Division I men's lacrosse title with a 13-10 victory over defending champion Syracuse.

Bluejay seniors savored this victory: It broke a string of three straight championship-game losses, including a one-goal heartbreaker to the Orangemen in the 1983 final.

The loss snapped a Syracuse winning streak of 22 matches that had started during the 1983 regular season. Johns Hopkins had entered the play-offs as the top seed, with Syracuse second.

Brian Wood paced the Bluejays' scoring with three goals, all in the early minutes. Wood's first strike was unassisted, and it came after 3:34 had elapsed. Syracuse's Dave Desko picked up a holding penalty, and Wood converted a feed from Tom Engelke during the man-up situation to give Hopkins a 2-0 lead.

With 9:17 left in the opening period, Wood led a break and scored, making the advantage 3-0. Peter Scott added Hopkins' fourth goal with 3:49 to play, also on a break; and John Tucker converted a pass from Engelke with 29 seconds left.

Scott added another goal with 9:08 to play in the second quarter, making the advantage 6-0.

Syracuse got on the board with two goals before half time. Tom Nelson converted a pass from brother Tim with 4:56 left, and Todd Curry found the Johns Hopkins goal from 30 yards out to make the half-time score 6-2.

Although the Orangemen were to outscore Johns Hopkins 5-2 in the third period, the Syracuse attack took a severe blow late in the first half when Tim Nelson collided with Johns Hopkins' John DeTommaso and left the match with a knee strain.

Without Nelson, Syracuse staged a rally much like its stunning 1983 comeback (when the Orange turned a 12-5 deficit into a 13-12 lead). This time, consecutive goals by Tom Nelson and Desko cut the Hopkins advantage to 6-4.

Steve Mutscheller took a pass from Scott and scored, giving Hopkins another three-goal lead. Syracuse countered with a strike by Emmett Printup. Hopkins came back on a goal by Tucker, but Syracuse cut the margin to 8-7 with consecutive scores from Printup and Desko.

Instead of crumbling, Hopkins roared back, ending the period with goals from Mutscheller, Willy Odenthal and Del Dressel. The Bluejays were up 11-7 with 15 minutes to play.

Syracuse cut the lead on goals by Desko and Printup. With 9:58 left, the score was 11-9 and Syracuse had gotten as close as it would come.

Craig Bubier converted a pass from Chris Schreiber for Hopkins' 12th goal. Syracuse got one from Tom Nelson to make it 12-10, and Engelke iced the match with an extra-man goal with 32 seconds left.

After four straight tries, the Bluejays captured their fifth Division I title and their first since a run of three straight championships from 1978 to 1980. The contest attracted 17,671 fans to the University of Delaware stadium.

"I did not feel comfortable until we were a man up with 1:25 to go," Johns Hopkins' first-year coach Don Zimmerman said.

"We didn't have the breaks," Syracuse head coach Roy Simmons said. "We did a year ago. And it hurt that we lost our quarterback (Tim Nelson)."

Lacrosse committee to recommend 'final four' championship concept

Player safety discussions and the development of a "final four" play-off concept highlighted the NCAA Men's Lacrosse Committee meeting May 24-27 in Newark, Delaware.

Among proposed rules changes designed to increase player safety, the committee voted to require mouthpieces and four-point (two of which will have a high fastening point) chin straps for the 1984-85 season.

Warning labels dealing with the safety aspects of helmets will be affixed to all helmets used in competition, and any player using his head to initiate contact in an offensive manner will be called for a two-minute, nonreleasable penalty.

It will be recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that a "final four" concept be developed for the 1986 Division I championship. The committee also recommended expansion of the play-off field from eight to 12 teams beginning in 1986.

Under the proposed format (including a 12-team field), seeded teams

Nos. 1 through 4 would have first-round byes. First-round games involving seeds Nos. 5 through 12 would take place two Wednesdays prior to the Memorial Day weekend. Pairings for these contests would be based on the location of the teams.

Quarterfinals would be played four days later on the Sunday preceding the Memorial Day weekend. The four winners would advance to the site of the championship, with semifinals played the Saturday of Memorial Day weekend and the championship game on Memorial Day.

The committee reviewed future sites and recommended that the 1986 championship be held at the U.S. Military Academy and that the 1988 championship be held at the Syracuse University Carrier Dome.

It was the sense of the committee that the 1987 championship be held in the middle or southern region of the concentration of Division I participants, and appropriate institutions will be invited to submit proposed budgets for consideration.

The committee recommended the following increases in officials' fees for Divisions I and III play-off games: preliminary/first-round games, $100; semifinal games, $125, and championship games, $150.

The Executive Committee will be asked to approve a request by the committee that it be permitted to meet on a semiannual basis—including once in conjunction with the Division I championship (the current meeting schedule).

Due to the growth in media attention, the committee has asked that a media coordinator be assigned for the Division I championship.

In other rules-related matters, the committee voted to require the installation of a restraining line three to five yards behind the playing field boundary for sideline control.

Rule 1-9 has been altered so that the special substitution area will

Stevens Tech celebrates 100th lacrosse season

The men's lacrosse program at Stevens Institute of Technology celebrated its centennial earlier this month with festivities on the Hoboken, New Jersey, campus.

Ninety former players, including Dudley Allen of the class of 1925, returned for a day of skills contests, old-timers games, and the chance to renew acquaintances and relive seasons past.

The group also saluted the 1984 team, which finished 8-7, and, coincidentally, scored 100 goals.

Among the former stars attending were Stevens Tech all-Americans Hank Berry (1967), Bob Schwab (1960), Ron Marold (1964) and Walt Johansson (1956).

Former coaches John Sim and Irvin P. "Buzz" Seymour, now Stevens Tech athletics director, and current coach Frank Rotunda were honored by the school's student council for their contributions to Stevens Tech lacrosse. Sim, now 91, coached the Ducks from 1927 to 1950. "It was the most wonderful day of my life," he said of the celebration.

Alumni from as far as California, Florida and Maine returned to the campus for the event.

Mustangs stamped to Division II track title

Mark Witherspoon won the 200- and 400-meter dashes and Fred Williams won the 800- and 1,500-meter runs to lead Abilene Christian to its third consecutive title in the NCAA Division II Men's Outdoor Track Championships.

The Wildcats captured eight individual championships and finished second in six other events to score a record 246 points.

The meet was held May 21-26 at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau.

The eight individual titles are the most any team has won in the NCAA outdoor track championships in any division. Ohio State won seven events in 1936 with the help of Jesse Owens.

Angelo State, the runner-up a year ago, finished second again with 129 points. Host Southeast Missouri was third with 121½ points.

Witherspoon was the Wildcats' most prolific scorer. In addition to his two dash victories, he also ran the second leg for the winning 400-meter relay team and anchored the championship 1,600-meter relay team.

Other individual champions for Abilene Christian were Dale Jenkins, who broke his own record in the pole vault, clearing 18-2, and Jose Salazar, who triple jumped 53-4.

A total of eight records were set in the meet, including Jenkins' vault. William Motti, a freshman from Mount St. Mary's, set a new standard in the decathlon at 8,052 points; Lenart Bodell, Angelo State, set the hammer throw record at 206-7; Abilene Christian's 400-meter and 1,600-meter relay times both were records; Angelo State's Tranel Hawkins produced a new mark in the 400-meter hurdles at 49.11; Cal State Hayward's Jim Moran high jumped 7-4¼, and David Stephens, Cal State Northridge, set a record in the javelin at 261-6.

Glassboro State takes fifth consecutive title

Glassboro State won four individual championships in extending its string of team titles in the NCAA Division III Men's Outdoor Track Championships to five May 21-26 at Carleton College in Northfield, Minnesota.

Twins Don and Ron Deckert were winners for the Profs. Don captured the 3,000-meter steeplechase, and Ron won the 5,000. The Profs also won the 1,600-meter relay, and Robert Abdullah tied for the 110-meter hurdles title.

It was a typically close NCAA championship for the Profs, whose biggest victory in the past four years was by 16½ points. Glassboro managed a 14-point edge over Mount Union, 114-100. St. Thomas was third with 98 points.

Glassboro used its talent and depth in the distance and hurdles events in winning the championship. In addition to Deckert, the Profs placed second and sixth in the steeplechase and were seventh in the 110 hurdles, fifth and 10th in the 400 hurdles, seventh in the 100, and fifth in the high jump.

Mount Union's Derrick Rippy duplicated his double victory in the 100 and 200 last year and ran the anchor leg on the fourth-place 1,600-meter relay team.

The Raiders also finished second in the 800, fourth and seventh in the pole vault, eighth in the 400 hurdles, seventh and ninth in the shot put, and ninth in the long jump.

St. Thomas scored with its strength in the distance and field events. Former NCAA cross country champion Nick Manciu won the 10,000. The Tommies were seventh and 10th in the steeplechase; eighth and ninth in the 5,000; second, fifth and eighth in the shot; fourth and sixth in the discus, and third and seventh in the long jump.

Other top-10 team scorers were Pomona-Pitzer, 78; Lincoln (Pa.), 73½; Occidental, 67; Cortland State, 56; Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 51; Brandeis, 49, and Augustana (Ill.), 42½.

Individual champions follow (Note: Complete results, unavailable at press time, will be carried in the June 6 issue of The NCAA News):

include the entire timer's table area, as defined in Rule 1-10. Also, the second whistle noted under Rule 4-22-(b) has been deleted as it applies to face-off situations.

In another change relating to face-offs, the requirements specified in Rule 4-3, stating that "the hands must be at least 18 inches (45.72 cm) apart at the beginning of the draw," has been deleted. Added was language that will require the feet of players involved in a face-off to be behind, but they may be to the left of, their respective sticks.

The committee also voted to include a maximum stick-head length of 16.5 inches to the dimensions listed in Rule 1-16.

The committee noted that a survey will be mailed to coaches in an effort to obtain data on the possibility of adopting United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association (USILA) rules for substituting players.

College teams turn to computers in attempt to get foe's number

It won't call games or give point spreads, but a $600,000 computer-management system committed to Ohio University will put Bobcat sports teams a few steps ahead of the competition.

Bobcat coaches claim the Ohio arrangement with MDS Qantel will permit them more time on the field and in the classroom and require less time in the planning office.

Coaches were exposed to the Sports-Pac system during a recent sports symposium on campus. Ohio became the 21st college in the nation to obtain this computer service when Qantel, a division of Mohawk Data

Sanctions lifted

The Missouri Valley Conference has waived the final year of conference-imposed sanctions on the football program at Wichita State University.

The sanctions, imposed in January 1983 for football recruiting violations, prevented Wichita State from sharing in the conference's football revenue for 1983-84 and 1984-85. The institution now will be allowed to participate in football revenue sharing in 1984-85.

Sciences, signed a five-year agreement with the sports-administration program.

"It will be very effective once we learn and understand it," said Ohio basketball coach Danny Nee. "It is very progressive. Generally, it will benefit us right across the board."

The system, which is used by 35 professional teams, including 15 National Football League teams, will assist in the overall management of the university's athletics program.

Coaches are expected to benefit most from the computer's ability to assist in game analysis and in keeping track of recruiting programs. It also can assist with ticket records, sports medicine, sports information, fundraising and employee control.

One major benefit is expected to come from the ability to break down information obtained from game films.

"It can't call plays and it can't predict results," said Ed Lennon, vice-president of marketing for Qantel. "But it can take data and report graphically what the tendencies of the opponent have been with regard to certain variables such as, with football, field position, down and distance, score, and time remaining.

"We try to give the team a basis for planning before the game. For example, we want the coaches to know what a given team does on third-and-eight from the left hash at its opponent's 30-yard line at the end of the first half of a close game.

"This can be a real time-saver—about eight man-hours per week for each member of the coaching staff. That is more time he has on the field instead of in the office."

The computer will enable coaches to identify effectively high school athletes, track their playing careers and record biographical information.

"Recruiting is really just like sales," Lennon said. "What we're doing here is preparing the recruiter the same way we would prepare a salesman for selling a product."

He said athletes can be rated in some 35 or more categories.

"Then, if a coach is going to Pittsburgh and wants a linebacker, he knows where to find the type of player he wants and—with the biographical information—how to talk to him."
