64-team limit requested for basketball play-offs

A minimum five-year cap on a 64-team bracket, with no more than 30 automatically qualifying conferences, was among the recommendations adopted last week by the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

The committee met July 8-12 in Colorado Springs, Colorado, and its recommendations will be considered by the Executive Committee, which meets in August.

Expansion to a 64-team bracket for the 1985 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship already has been approved by the Executive Committee. A total of 53 teams participated in the 1984 championship, including champions of 29 automatic-qualifying conferences. The same 29 conferences have been recommended for automatic qualification next year.

If the cap is approved by the Executive Committee, the 64-team field would remain a maximum through the 1989 tournament. One additional automatic qualifier would be permitted.

In other committee action, Seattle, Washington, was recommended as the site for the 1989 Final Four April 1 and 3 and Denver, Colorado, will serve as host for the 1990 national semifinals and championship March 31 and April 2. Seattle hosted this year's Final Four, while Denver has never been a championship site.

"They both were outstanding," said David R. Gavitt, committee chair. "Both answered all the specifics and there was a lot of enthusiasm. We just felt there was no reason to choose between them and make one come back and do this all over again."

The committee also made several adjustments in its regional alignments, designed to improve regional representation and equalize the number of institutions in each region.

The Southwest Athletic and Southland Conferences will be added to the West region next year. Both had been in the Midwest, which added the Big Ten and Mid-American Athletic Conferences. The Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic and Trans America Athletic Conferences will be shifted to the Southeast region, and the Southwestern Athletic Conference will move to the Midwest region. The Southeast, formerly designated the Mideast, also picked up the Mid-Eastern Athletic and Southern Conferences from the East.

The moves will give the regions the following number of institutions; West, 65 (previously 46); Southeast, 65 (previously 67); Midwest, 63 (previously 64), and East, 78 (previously 94).

Sites for 1986 first- and second-round and regional play were announced by the committee as follows: East—first and second rounds at Greensboro, North Carolina (March 13 and 15), and Syracuse, New York (March 14 and 16); regional at East Rutherford, New Jersey (March 21 and 23). Southeast—first and second rounds at Baton Rouge, Louisiana (March 13 and 15), and Charlotte, North Carolina (March 14 and 16); regional at Atlanta, Georgia (March 20 and 22). Midwest—first and second rounds at Dayton, Ohio (March 13 and 15), and Minneapolis, Minnesota (March 14 and 16); regional at Kansas City, Missouri (March 21 and 23). West—first and second rounds at Ogden, Utah (March 13 and 15), and Tucson, Arizona (March 14 and 16); regional at Houston, Texas (March 20 and 22).

The committee also reviewed the financial report on the 1984 championship and recommended a new financial distribution for 1985. Under the proposed distribution system, 60 percent of the net receipts would continue to be distributed to the participating institutions (40 percent to the NCAA). Distribution units, however, would be based on a five-tier system rather than the current three-tier approach.

Projected 1985 distributions under the new system are $147,600 for the 32 first-round losers (two units), $295,200 for the 16 second-round losers (three units), $442,700 for the eight regional semifinal losers (five units), $590,300 for four regional final losers (six units) and $737,900 for Final Four teams (eight units).

Distributions from the 1984 championship were $162,158 (two units) for first- and second-round losers, $486,472 for regional semifinal and final losers, and $648,630 for Final Four participants.

Other committee recommendations included a per diem increase from $70 to $100 and an increase in the size of the official party from 22 to 30. In recommending the increased per diem, the committee cited the more frequent use of big-city sites for championship play and the corresponding increase in expenses.

The committee also voted to support funding for the development of a video presentation that would complement the booklet "A Career in Professional Sports: Guidelines That Make Dollars and Sense." The videotape would include information on professional athletics careers and the selection of honest and competent player-agent representation. The concept for the tape was developed by the NCAA Special Committee on Player Agents.

40-team play-off sought by women

A plan to expand the Division I Women's Basketball Championship field to 40 teams and a site-selection policy for first-round games were approved by the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee at its July 8-12 meeting in Colorado Springs.

Both recommendations will be submitted to the Executive Committee, which will meet August 13-14 in Monterey, California.

The addition of eight teams to the championship bracket would allow a berth next year for all 25 Division I conferences that applied for automatic qualification in the 1985 championship. Seventeen conferences received automatic berths in 1984.

The committee, chaired by Nora Lynn Finch, North Carolina State University, discussed format changes that would be necessitated by a 40-team field. However, the committee will not recommend a specific format until the Executive Committee acts on the expansion request and until 1984 tournament financial reports are examined more closely.

One of the proposed formats for a 40-team field next year would include eight first-round games to be played March 13-14 (midweek), followed by 16 second-round games March 15-17 (week-end). Both rounds would be played at an on-campus site of one of the participating schools. Four four-team regionals then would be played the following weekend at predetermined sites.

Another possibility would be to play 16 first-round games at on-campus sites and then go to four eight-team regionals at predetermined sites.

Another possibility would be to play 16 first-round games at on-campus sites and then go to four eight-team regionals at predetermined sites. Under this format, the top two seeds in each region would receive first-round byes.

Site-selection criteria for first-round games would be clarified, with the following considered: quality and availability of the facility, submission of a proposed budget guaranteeing a minimum of $5,000 in ticket sales, and geographic location. If these factors are comparable, or nearly so, the site will be awarded to the higher-seeded team.

The committee agreed to delay

College football TV in disarray as groups scramble for contracts

College football television was in disarray this week as individual colleges, athletics conferences and loosely organized groupings of colleges proceeded to negotiate for 1984 television rights with individual stations, regional syndicators and national networks in what was described as a buyer's market.

In the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's June 27 decision striking down the 1982-1985 NCAA Football Television Plan and the Association's contracts with ABC, CBS and ESPN, any hope of unified action among the Division I-A football-playing members of the NCAA quickly dissipated when the plaintiffs in the original lawsuit, the Universities of Georgia and Oklahoma, and their lawyer refused to join with the NCAA in agreeing upon a modification of the trial court's outstanding injunction, even though the injunction clearly had been modified significantly by the rulings of the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court.

The plaintiffs' attorney, Clyde Muchmore of Oklahoma City, declared that it was the intention of his clients to ask the trial court to "fence out" the NCAA organizational structure from further college football television activities for violations of the antitrust laws. He refused to alter that position in a meeting with NCAA President John L. Toner in Chicago June 29 during the Division I-A midyear legislative meeting, and that remained the plaintiffs' posture at the special Division I football television meeting July 10 in Chicago.

When asked that date what position he had taken with the trial court concerning a modified injunction, Muchmore told USA Today, "We took the strong position that the NCAA should not be allowed to have any TV plan, because they were judged guilty of using the power of the NCAA to monopolize."

The only plan presented to the July 10 meeting was a national television program recommended by the NCAA Football Television Committee. Opponents argued that the pending injunction of Federal Judge Juan C. Burciaga could not be modified in time to permit an NCAA plan to operate for 1984 and urged support for a College Football Association plan, which Muchmore and the plaintiffs apparently believed would meet the trial court's ultimate injunctive decision or at least could operate in 1984 before being outlawed by subsequent court decision.

Bryan Gregory, legal counsel for the Big Ten Conference, disagreed, stating that the plan of the CFA was not legal at the present time under the outstanding injunction. Attorneys for the Atlantic Coast Conference and the Pacific-10 Conference and some institutional attorneys reportedly sided with this view.

The special Division I football television meeting, in a roll-call vote July 10, defeated the proposed NCAA plan, 66 to 44, with one abstention. What appears to be a widely accepted assessment of that vote came from the current president of the CFA, Otis A. Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky.

Singletary, the third CFA president (and the third from the Southeastern Conference, following Fred C. Davison of the University of Georgia and Joab L. Thomas of the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa) told the Associated Press:

"Don't misread the vote. It's not anti-NCAA. What it shows is that there was uncertainty and pressure because the NCAA would have had to go back to court to get it approved and the opening game is only six weeks off."

The CFA, reportedly with support from an estimated 60 members, was proceeding this week to market its plan; and the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences, in a joint effort approved by the chief executive officers of the two conferences, also were in negotiation with the national networks this week. Both CBS and ABC indicated interest in putting together national packages, whereas NBC, due to extensive fall baseball commitments, said it would be interested in some games but not in a season-long package.

Meanwhile, the Southeastern Conference, considered to be in a strong position to act independently, was in discussions with Turner Broadcasting

Athletics flourish without academic compromise

By Frank Bilovsky
Rochester (New York) Democrat and Chronicle

The only thing left for the Nazareth College (New York) people to do is tell the story.

Punch it into a computer terminal, transform it to type and put it between hard covers. Slap a fancy price on it, and let the colleges that really care buy it.

A title? How about Building a Successful College Men's Athletics Program from Scratch. Or: From Nowhere to NCAA Contention Without Compromising Your Academic Principles: A Seven-Season Plan.

They have done it beautifully on the quiet campus on East Avenue in Pittsford. Little more than a decade ago, the only men on Nazareth's campus were employees. Eight years ago, when Robert Kidera was named the school's president, there were male students, but no male athletics programs. Kidera vowed to build an athletics program without ruining the academic reputation of the institution. He has succeeded admirably.

The program, especially basketball, is thriving. It is getting the school's name in the newspapers and on television in the most positive ways. And it is making its dents in the local community.

"When we go out recruiting," basketball coach Bill Nelson said, "we find that people are aware of what Nazareth's all about. The philosophy of the past is opening up doors for us today."

"All I heard before the season was, 'Isn't it going to be tough, being the third coach in three years?' And during the season, 'You're doing a fine job, being the third coach in three years.'"

"Well, to be honest about it, I found it to be an advantage, not a disadvantage, because of the people who were here before me. Joe Gigliotti and John Beilein had done their jobs so well that I didn't have to come in here and teach the players how to play unselfish basketball and how to win. They already knew that."

"Like I always said, the only way to have a good program is if the support comes from the top man. And President Kidera has been that from the start."

There may have been some uneasiness recently when the athletics department learned that the top man beginning July 1 would be a woman. Nazareth has the image of a small women's college, and 78 percent of its students are female.

No need to worry. Rose Marie Beston, the president-elect, was a director reported to her. And she knew the value that athletics has in a college.

"It's something that brings the whole college community together," she said. "And it's part of the educational process. We want to expand men's enrollment on campus, and we think athletics is one means to that end. I know the college needs a spring sport, and we're taking a hard look at lacrosse. We're making a spring sport a priority, but our long-range desire is development, not expansion."

All of which sounded fine to Nazareth athletics director Bill Carey, who moved over from Rochester Institute of Technology 3½ years ago.

"We're pleased with the direction the program has taken," he said. "We think NCAA Division III is where we belong. When they started the basketball program, they went NAIA (National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics) to give

"It's up to the official to make the call, no matter how tough. That's his job. It's better to have two officials dropping a flag on a play than to have just one person looking at a flat picture on a monitor. I have faith in the officials. Why not, we've got six (sometimes seven) officials to cover the field. There's no reason to 'miss' a play. It's their call."

"The television issue is a significant one, of course. But I would hope this forum (College Football Association) would not lose sight of the fact that, although television is important and something we have to solve eventually, it's more easily solved than some of the other problems we have out there."

"How to flush out the agents—how to prevent some unsuspecting individuals to be led to believe they are ready to play professional football—we must solve these things, too."

"When the Supreme Court decided in favor of a few greedy schools (the only reason given was that they could now make more money with their television rights), it put an even more awesome burden of responsibility on those university administrators. Because the rules limit the number of scholarships and the number of coaches, Oklahoma and Georgia already earn much more with their football team than can possibly be spent to support a team."

"The purpose of the NCAA membership always has been to allow the sport a chance to earn as much as it could as long as it didn't interfere with the more significant goal of educating the athletes. While the distribution of television money by the NCAA was not perfect, it was a source of revenue that enabled the membership to do a great many things to enforce recruiting legislation. It expanded the number of schools that could compete for some of those revenues and

"Winning is secondary. No school wants an athletics director without this kind of credibility (abiding by the rules)."

"I will not tolerate any coach who does not go by the NCAA rules. I have always been very clear about that."

"Education is always going to be a problem for schools with a major athletics program. Higher standards mean fewer students to recruit."

"A giant step would be national legislation. It ought to be a requirement. Schools with lower academic standards have an unfair advantage in athletics. The NCAA has already moved in the right direction by requiring all athletes to make progress toward a degree."

"The often-sorry relationship between academics and college athletics has left schools with smirched images and made the student-athlete an endangered species. The integrity of too many universities has been openly questioned and regarded skeptically, and college presidents have been rightly criticized for not controlling their sports programs. The public chastisements they've received have finally motivated those presidents to take action."

"I can see reasons for reviewing a play but they don't justify usage. Take situations where a shot clock or game clock is superimposed on the screen, then it would be a bit easier to see if the shot was attempted before time expired. A replay could even be helpful on who committed the foul and who the shooter would be, but we can't force schools to install this equipment. There are 700-plus NCAA schools that play basketball. Those schools that couldn't afford the equipment would be accused of not having a first-class program."

And the Golden Flyers basketball program has had no trouble getting along. Nazareth advanced to the quarterfinals of the 1984 NCAA Division III Men's Basketball Championship before losing to NCAA runner-up Clark University (Massachusetts).

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

Larry Stewart's Los Angeles Times article June 28, which listed a typical college football Saturday with the demise of the NCAA program, didn't go even halfway. Here's my conjecture:

The three commercial broadcast networks (ABC, CBS and NBC) will each have a game or two each Saturday. PBS, appropriately, will carry an Ivy League game. Channel 5 will have UCLA, channel 9 will get USC, channel 11 will carry Oklahoma and channel 13 will air Nebraska. Other local stations may pick up national, regional or local games.

And then, there's cable. ESPN will have a team or two, as will USA. WGN will have Notre Dame and/or Michigan. WOR gets Penn State and/or Pittsburgh. WPIX airs Boston College and/or Syracuse. WTBS chooses Georgia and/or Alabama. KTVT offers Houston and/or Texas. CBN will have a Christian school like TCU and/or SMU. BET will have Grambling State. Galavision will air Mexico City University. The Disney Channel will show Cal State Disneyland. Plus the regional sports networks will have games.

Everybody will have a rating of about two or less, and the gold the CFA looks for at the end of the rainbow won't be there.

CEOs hold key to developing sports' role in education

The Interassociation Presidents' Committee for Collegiate Athletics has issued a statement concerning the role of intercollegiate athletics in higher education and the concomitant responsibility of each institution's chief executive officer to open lines of communication with athletics officials in order to affect the educational outcome of athletics.

The IPCCA intends to provide a forum for the discussion of and examination of issues in intercollegiate athletics.

The most recent statement of the group is presented in full as follows: "Athletics have been accepted as a significant part of the American educational scene for more than a century, yet questions often are raised concerning the relevance of athletics to education.

"The present public debate about the proper relationship between athletics and academics is hardly a new phenomenon, and it has had some specific salutary effects. First, it has generated the enactment of a variety of needed reforms. Recent targets of the reform effort have included excesses in recruitment practices, lack of satisfactory academic progress and eligibility standards, and unauthorized financial support for athletes. Second, and perhaps more importantly, it has given educators an opportunity to rethink and then to reinforce the reasons why collegiate athletics have been and continue to be an integral part of American higher education.

"The presidents who are members of the Interassociation Presidents' Committee for Collegiate Athletics (IPCCA) are committed to the development of athletics as a valid part of the educational enterprise and, because of this commitment, seek to focus attention on the role of athletics as education.

"Athletics as education can be understood as a set of key contributions to the individual, to the institution and to society at large. Among these contributions are the development of discipline and teamwork and the self-confidence of individuals who participate in athletics, the improvement and sustenance of institutional reputations and morale, and the heightening of visibility that demonstrably aids in recruitment of students and financial contributions.

"Varsity athletics provide a stimulus to the development of broad-based physical education and intramural athletics programs that contribute to the physical well-being of students. College athletics also have a public-service role in satisfying the need or desire for spectator sports expressed

An important question that must be addressed directly is the role of the highly recruited athlete as a student, in contrast to his or her role as a paid employee by the general public in the stadiums and gymnasiums of colleges and universities across the nation.

"Recent studies of the sociological, psychological and cultural roles of sports make clear their importance to our society. James Michener, for example, emphasizes in his recent book "Sports in America" that sports are a major determinant of our national character and cultural heritage.

"In considering the role of athletics as education, it is useful to observe similarities between competitive collegiate athletics and other extracurricular programs such as dance, debate and music. While there are differences in such areas as gate receipts, administrative overhead and costs of scholarship support, an essential purpose of each activity is the same: providing the opportunity for all members of the college community to enlarge their sociocultural horizons.

"For every problem in athletics, there is a counterpart problem, albeit a less publicized one, in the performing arts, including academic admissions criteria not directly related to the skill of the student-athlete/artist being recruited; the interference of practice/rehearsals with classes, and the overindulgence of star performers. In examining athletics as education, an understanding of these parallels is important, because success in ameliorating problems in one of these areas might suggest ways of solving problems in athletics.

"The extent to which the public, boards of trustees and legislators will accept any rationale for athletics as education will depend upon the willingness of colleges and universities to increase the emphasis on the educational aspects of athletics. Colleges should review entrance requirements for athletes as compared to the general student population to be certain that there is little disparity, if one at all, between athletes and other students.

"In addition, institutions should undertake the establishment of special academic tutoring programs for athletes who would need this type of assistance. If the role of colleges is to develop trained minds to serve society in a variety of ways, it is imperative that they make every effort to assist athletes in obtaining a first-class education.

"In underscoring the integral relationship between athletics and education, the IPCCA desires to counter the negative perceptions about athletics that have tended to dominate much of the recent discussion.

"An important question that must be addressed directly is the role of the highly recruited scholarship athlete as a student, in contrast to his or her role as a paid employee. Regulations governing collegiate athletics and interpretation of those regulations by courts of law hold that the 'student-athlete' is precisely that—a student first—and that just compensation for benefits accruing to the institution from his or her services is an opportunity to receive an education.

"It holds, therefore, that colleges must not compromise the educational benefits to be received by those participating on athletics teams. Colleges must scrutinize recruitment procedures, financial aid commitments, program selection, progress toward a degree, and the quantity and quality of educational and career counseling and extracurricular activities that correspond with athletics—team trips, championship tournaments and post-season games.

The Interassociation Presidents'

Committee on Collegiate Athletics, working with the Presidents' Commission of the NCAA, the Presidents' Advisory Committee of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, and the Presidents' Study Committees of the National Junior College Athletic Association, will assist presidents in understanding crucial issues that must be addressed. The IPCCA will provide a forum for examination of such issues as length of seasons, television revenues, standards for academic progress for student-athletes and other concerns that might affect the academic integrity of institutions sponsoring collegiate athletics programs.

... educators should not allow the potential financial rewards (of athletics) to cloud their visions of the purpose of education in contemporary society . . .

How American colleges and their presidents respond to these issues at this juncture will determine the future of athletics as education. It would be tragic if the proverbial 'athletics money-changers' were to discredit athletics to such an extent that college athletics became just another auxiliary enterprise, with the athletes as employees.

"There is, however, a clear complementary role for athletics in colleges and universities if the educational issues discussed above are properly addressed.

"Although the financial considerations surrounding college athletics are important, and truly staggering at some large institutions, educators should not allow the potential financial rewards to cloud their visions of the purpose of education in contemporary society and the role that athletics have to play in helping their institutions to achieve those purposes.

"Presidents are urged to assume responsibility for athletics as they do other aspects of education. Each president should be certain that the athletics program on his or her campus is conducted in accord with the highest ethical and professional standards. The IPCCA believes that presidents must spend more time in communicating with those who are involved with athletics, including trustees, alumni and athletics directors, about the educational outcomes of athletics. The result should be programs that bring pride to the college as an educational institution. Our society demands no less."

On locker-room bias against women

It's time to throw in the towel, figuratively speaking

by Jay Searcy

The Philadelphia Inquirer

What if you, Joe Paterno, were told you couldn't coach? Somebody just stopped you at the locker-room door one day and said, "I'm sorry, but you can't coach football. You can coach volleyball. Or soccer, or swimming. But no curly-haired Italians can coach football."

Never mind that you spent years preparing for your career. Never mind that you have the talent for it. You just can't, so never mind why.

Silly, isn't it? The Blacks thought so, too, when they experienced that kind of discrimination a few years back. You remember those days: Sorry, no Blacks allowed on our all-white college teams? We look back on those dark days now and wonder how we could have been so unfair, so insensitive. Just look around you now. Black athletes everywhere. We would never let that kind of discrimination happen again, right?

I'm not just talking to you, coach Paterno. I'm talking to coaches and athletics directors and club owners and general managers in all of sports. But I single you out because I feel I know you. I know your reputation. You are a fair man. You play by the rules, and you are outspoken about those who don't. You teach fairness and opportunity and hard work. Be the best that you can be. This is America. Land of the free. This is where race and creed and sex don't matter. Equal opportunity.

Am I wrong? Isn't that what you're teaching?

I've heard you speak, coach. I've heard you address your athletes. You preach high achievement. Motivation. You want your people to be aggressive, to be dedicated to goals. There always will be somebody trying to stand in the way, you tell them; but if they're right and know they're right, go for it. Not just on the football field. You're talking life. That's one of the things I've always admired about you, coach. You look beyond the games. You teach your people to adjust to life's ever-changing situations. Where would Joe Paterno be today if he hadn't accepted change?

And that brings me to the point of all this. There has been quite a change in the press box in recent years. Look up there, coach. What do you see?

Yeah, right. Black sportswriters. But keep looking.

Yeah, right. Women sportswriters.

They are everywhere, coach. Hundreds of them. Hardly a paper of any size in this country is without at least one. At first, there were only a handful. They were a novelty, remember? And when they tried to get into locker rooms for postgame interviews, we all laughed and said,

"Yeah, we know the real reason they want in there. Naked athletes. Har, har, har."

Yeah. Well, today we know better. Those women sportswriters have no more desire to see a sweaty, naked athlete than I do. They have assignments like the rest of us, and they have the same deadlines.

Some locker rooms have opened up to accredited women in all parts of the country, and it is no big deal. Some coaches bought robes for their athletes; some set up interview rooms for all reporters. And some simply told their players to keep their pants on and behave themselves for a few minutes after the game until the reporters have a chance to talk to a few of them. It works.

But that isn't happening everywhere. Some accredited women are being forced to remain outside locker rooms while their male counterparts go in. Some coaches allow athletes to go outside to talk to the women, and they think that's equal treatment. And so the woman sportswriter tries to interview the player in a hallway while his mother hugs him and his daddy pats him on the back and the fans surround him for autographs.

When I first heard these stories, I thought there was some mistake. Remember the Supreme Court decision about that? The Sports Illustrated case, remember? Ludtke vs. Kuhn, the New York Yankees locker-room issue? Equal access.

But then I was listening to a group of sportswriters recently and they said, no, not everybody is obeying the law of the land. Sarajane told me about it first. Then Susan. Then Mary. And Rachel. And Betty and Ricki and Phyllis and Claire. . . .

Their careers mean a lot to them, coach, just as yours does. They have been given the right to equal access by the highest court in the land. They have been given the opportunity you so often talk about. They are looking for the fairness you preach. They are being the best that they can be—aggressive, dedicated, motivated. You know, don't let anybody stand in your way when you're right and you know you're right?

A lot of coaches probably think the equal-access issue isn't important; that the women, if ignored, will eventually go away. Or maybe some coaches are afraid to do anything about it, the way coaches were once afraid to recruit black athletes. But whatever the reason, it has been six years now since the Supreme Court decision. It's time. Won't you please address this problem before another school year begins, all of you?

It'll only take a minute. A simple memo to your athletics departments will do it. "No more discrimination."

Hundreds of women sportswriters will thank you. And the thousands of future women sportswriters.

Schools face shortage of teachers

Public schools face a shortage of 260,000 teachers by 1991 if nothing is done to reverse the trend, the national Parent-Teachers Association has announced.

There will be a shortage of 4,000 teachers by next fall, according to William Stevenson, chairman of the PTA Commission on Education.

The shortage could grow to 25,000 by the fall of 1985 and to 260,000 by 1991, Stevenson said, adding that a PTA study to be published this summer forecasts the shortage.

Stevenson said merit pay for teachers would be one method of reversing the trend.

Supreme Court upholds draft law

The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld a Federal law that makes college men who fail to register for the draft ineligible for Federal scholarship aid.

The ruling overturned a Federal court decision in Minnesota that held the law to be unconstitutional.

Officials and students from several institutions had argued that the 1982 law discriminates against poorer students and turns the colleges into policemen for the Selective Service System.

Government to combat drug abuse

The Federal government plans to combat drug abuse with a $5 million program aimed at high school sports participants.

The plan is to reach all students through the athletes. "Athletes are among the most respected individuals on our campuses," said William French Smith, U.S. attorney general, who announced the program at the National High School Coaches Association annual convention in Lexington, Kentucky. Smith said the athletes can help cut the demands in our society for illicit drugs.

Coaches will be asked to set up drug-prevention programs, and kits will be mailed to every high school in the country.

The program is designed to reach 48,000 coaches and 5.5 million student-athletes in 20,000 high schools. "We expect its influence to reach into the junior high and elementary schools," Smith said.

Tests should be given to teachers

About 95 percent of the respondents in a nationwide telephone survey said public school teachers should be required to pass competency tests on the subjects they teach.

Eighty-five percent said teachers should have to pass such exams periodically to keep their jobs.

The poll was conducted by the Associated Press and Media General, a communications group.

The poll also revealed that 83 percent of the 1,243 respondents said all students should be required to pass standardized tests before they can graduate from high school.

On the question of teacher pay, 72 percent supported a merit-pay system, with bonuses for better teachers; 22 percent said they do not support merit pay, and six percent said they were not sure.

Increase sought in student loans

The nation's graduate schools are asking that the Reagan administration raise the ceiling on Federally guaranteed student loans to $8,000 a year from $5,000.

Among the groups making the plea were the Association of American Law Schools, the Association of American Medical Colleges, the American Association of Dental Schools and the Council of Graduate Schools.

The associations also requested a cumulative loan limit of $37,000.

Tuition is rising at a rate of 14 percent at some schools and students will be priced out of the market for law, medical, dental, veterinary and other graduate degrees without opportunities to borrow some money, the associations said in a petition to Education Secretary Terrel H. Bell.

Texas' Sims starts scholarship

Kenneth Sims, winner of the Lombardi Trophy in 1981 as college football's outstanding lineman, has established an endowed presidential scholarship for women's athletics at the University of Texas, Austin, where he was an all-America for the Longhorns as a defensive tackle.

His goal for the endowment is $100,000. Sims said he hopes to have a major portion of the endowment committed soon.

"This is just my way of expressing thanks to the University of Texas for all it's done for me," Sims said. "I've had a chance to attend many athletic events here during my off-season and have been extremely impressed with the progress of all Texas sports teams—including the women's teams."

Donna A. Lopiano, director of women's athletics, describes Sims' gift as "the most unique endowment of its kind in the nation for women's athletics."

Institutions name chief executives

A number of NCAA institutions have named chief executive officers recently.

They are Daniel G. Aldrich, chancellor of the University of California, Irvine, also named acting chancellor of the University of California, Riverside; George S. Ansell, dean of engineering at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, named president of Colorado School of Mines; David W. Benson, vice-president and provost of California State University, Northridge, named president of Sonoma State University; Joel L. Cunningham, professor of mathematics and computer science at Susquehanna University, named acting president; Thomas F. Everhart, dean of the college of engineering at Cornell University, named president of the University of Illinois, Champaign.

Also, C. Robert Kemble, president of Lamar University, named chancellor of the university's system; Robert C. Maxson, senior vice-president for academic affairs for the University of Houston, named president of the University of Nevada, Las Vegas; Kenneth G. Powell, vice-president and dean of Centenary College, named acting president; Ed D. Roach, dean of business at Southwest Texas State University, named president of West Texas State University, and Gary A. Sojka, dean of the college of arts and sciences at Indiana University, Bloomington, named president of Bucknell University.

Academic all-Americas selected by sports information directors

Five student-athletes with perfect grade-point averages were among the selections to the 1984 men's and women's university division academic all-America at-large teams selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

The at-large teams are composed of student-athletes who participate in sports other than football, men's basketball, women's basketball, baseball, women's softball and women's volleyball. CoSIDA has separate academic all-America teams for those six groups.

Swimmer Charlie Johnson of Stanford, tennis player Robbie Bach of North Carolina and track athlete John Helmick of Texas had 4,000 GPAs on the men's university division first team. Those with 4,000 marks on the women's first team were gymnast Ellen Mayer of Cornell and field hockey and track athlete Sharon Leidy of Southern Illinois.

Repeat performers on the men's university division first team were Johnson and swimmer Michael Brown of Michigan State. Florida swimmer Tracy Caulkins received the most votes for the women's first team for the second consecutive year. Others named for the second straight year were Oregon's Kathy Hayes (track) and Mayer.

Illinois Wesleyan's J. C. Anderson (track) and Andrew Renshaw, a swimmer from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, received the most votes for the men's college division first team. Marquette track star Laurie Hottinger topped the women's college division first team.

Nominees for the teams must have maintained a grade-point average of 3.200 or better and have excelled in their particular sports.

Following are the university and college division academic all-America teams selected by CoSIDA:

MEN'S UNIVERSITY DIVISION

First team

Michael Brown, Michigan State, swimming, 3.990 grade-point average in human medicine; Adam Abele, Purdue, tennis, 5.730 (6,000 scale) in management; Robbie Bach, North Carolina, tennis, 4,000 in economics; Nik Blevins, Stanford, fencing, 3.900 in biology; Timothy DeValve, Connecticut, cross country/track and field, 3.930 in mechanical engineering; Francis Dodo, Washington State, track and field, 3.950 in economics; Tim Hack, Bowling Green State, ice hockey, 3.970 in accounting; John Helmick, Texas, track and field, 4,000 in finance; Charlie Johnson, Stanford, swimming, 4,000 in physics; George Paletta, Holy Cross, lacrosse, 3.900 in biology and premed.

Second team

Fred Allan, Brigham Young, wrestling, 3.960 in chemical engineering; Nathan Breazeale, Texas, swimming, 3.970 in premed; Rick Carey, Texas, swimming, 3.200 in aerospace engineering; Ed Eystone, Brigham Young, cross country/track and field, 3.630 in psychology; Lawrence Hayes, UCLA, swimming, 3.350 in political science; Dave Johnson, West Virginia, rifle, 3.890 in business and finance; Doug Kieso, Northern Illinois, gymnastics, 3.670 in accounting; Steven Smith, Colgate, ice hockey, 3.500 in mathematics and economics.

Third team

Mathias Bostrom, Virginia, swimming, 3.988 in physics; Tom Calabrese, Navy, lacrosse, 3.340 in mechanical engineering; Tom Essman, Drake, tennis, 4,000 in premedicine; Vince Hughes, Montana, wrestling, 4,000 in computer science and economics; Dave Mirth, Ohio, cross country, 3.920 in mechanical engineering; John Hielstein, West Virginia, tennis, 3.827 in international relations/political science; Mike Orn, Arizona State, swimming, 3.430 in computer systems engineering; Stephen Raab, Cornell, gymnastics, 3.750 in mechanical engineering; John Shannon, Virginia Military, track and field, 3.841 in chemistry; Kirk Triplett, Nevada-Reno, golf, 3.850 in civil engineering.

MEN'S COLLEGE DIVISION

First team

J. C. Anderson, Illinois Wesleyan, track and field, 4,000 in biology and premed; Ettore Bianchi, Wayne State (Michigan), fencing, 4,000 in finance; James Drougas, Case Reserve, tennis, 3,900 in chemistry and history; Eric Poullain, Tufts, track and field, 3,650 in electrical engineering and computer science; Andrew Renshaw, MIT, swimming, 5,000 (5,000 scale) in biology and nutrition; Jeff Rights, Case Reserve, soccer, 3,940 in computer engineering; Alan Shaffer, Mount Vernon Nazarene, soccer, 4,000 in business administration; Kenneth Shull, MIT, wrestling, 4,800 (5,000 scale) in electrical engineering; Duane Snavely, Elizabethtown, soccer, 4,000 in mathematics; Tim Valliere,

Nominations for general committees sought

Administrators at NCAA member institutions are requested to submit nominations for upcoming vacancies on NCAA general committees.

The vacancies to be filled are for terms beginning September 1, 1985. Committee members who are eligible for reelection normally are reelected. The NCAA Council appoints general committee members according to the provisions of Bylaws 12-1 and 12-3 of the NCAA Manual.

Nominations should be submitted to Fannie B. Vaughan, administrative assistant at the NCAA, by August 15. In submitting nominations, individuals should note the eligibility requirements (e.g., division, district, men, women) set forth in Bylaws 12-1 and 12-3.

A list of all general committee vacancies follows. A complete listing of all committees may be found in the 1983-84 NCAA Directory. Committee changes that have occurred since publication of the Directory have been printed in the Record section of The NCAA News.

Academic Testing and Requirements—Two expirations. Eligible for reappointment: Joan S. Girgus, Princeton University (I); Christine W. Hoyles, Western Michigan University (I).

Legislative Assistance

Column No. 15

Summer basketball

Under the provisions of Constitution 3-9-(b), a student-athlete shall not participate in organized basketball competition except while representing his or her institution in intercollegiate competition and except as permitted under the exception provisions specified in Constitution 3-9-(b). As set forth in Case Nos. 154 and 155 (pages 287-288, 1984-85 NCAA Manual), Constitution 3-9-(b) applies to a student-athlete because the student-athlete either was a candidate for an institution's team or was recruited by a member institution in part for basketball ability and subsequently enrolled in the institution. Once Constitution 3-9-(b) is applicable to a student-athlete, it remains applicable until the student-athlete's intercollegiate basketball eligibility has been exhausted.

Member institutions are reminded that Constitution 3-9-(b) applies to both men's and women's intercollegiate basketball programs, and accordingly, a member of an institution's intercollegiate basketball team may participate only in an approved summer league, or in other competition approved under the exception provisions of this legislation. Furthermore, under Constitution 3-9-(b)-(1), a student-athlete must receive written permission from the institution's director of athletics (or the director's official representative) for such participation. Such permission shall specify the particular league in which the student-athlete is authorized to participate. A transfer student may obtain the written permission specified in Constitution 3-9-(b)-(1) from the member institution to which the student-athlete is transferring (rather than the previous institution) if the student-athlete officially has been accepted for enrollment in the new institution and if the previous institution certifies that the student-athlete has withdrawn and does not intend to return to that institution for the next term. Under such circumstances, the student-athlete would be countable on the summer league roster as a representative of the second member institution. A student-athlete who participates in basketball competition contrary to Constitution 3-9-(b) must be declared ineligible for further basketball competition at an NCAA member institution. However, the institution may appeal for restoration of the student-athlete's eligibility.

Division I 2.000 determination

Pursuant to NCAA Bylaw 5-6-(b)-(2), if a high school indicates in writing that it will not provide a student-athlete's grade-point average or convert it to the 4.000 scale, a Division I member institution may submit the individual's high school transcript to the NCAA Academic Testing and Requirements Committee for certification or conversion. If a student reports for practice or competition before a high school grade-point average has been certified, the student may practice (but not compete) for a maximum of two weeks. After this two-week period, the student shall have an established minimum high school grade-point average of 2.000 to continue practicing or to compete.

Accordingly, Division I institutions that will need certification performed by the committee are encouraged to submit a student's high school transcript to the Association's national office as soon as possible to avoid potential delay in evaluation caused by the volume of transcripts submitted just prior to the opening of competition. Cases setting forth interpretations of the 2.000 rule appear as Case Nos. 331-344 in the 1984-85 NCAA Manual.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services staff as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question that it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Stephen R. Morgan, director of legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

1985 wrestling tickets available

Tickets are selling at a brisk pace for all six sessions of the 1985 NCAA Division I Wrestling Championships, which will be held March 14-16 at the Myriad Convention Center in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

All $10 and $8 six-session tickets and all $50 tickets for the March 16 consolation and championship finals have been sold; however, $7 and $6 six-session tickets are available.

Orders for six-session tickets have been accepted since March 1. Tickets will be mailed beginning August 31. Applications for six-session tickets are filled before orders for individual sessions. Orders for individual-session tickets, if available, will be filled after January 31, 1985.

The 1983 championships were held in Oklahoma City, the first off-campus site, and a record 9,349 six-session tickets were sold.

Order forms for remaining six-session tickets can be obtained by contacting Fullerton Ticket Agency, Civic Center Music Hall, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma 73102.

Spectators can use a lodging placement service established by the NCAA for hotel accommodations. Those interested should contact Housing Bureau, 1985 NCAA Division I Wrestling, One Santa Fe Plaza, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma 73102.

The NCAA Wrestling Committee has established a housing bureau for qualifying participants and their coaches as well as the media for the Division I championships.

Rooms at the Sheraton Century, which is adjacent to the Myriad and accessible via an underground tunnel, will be allocated to each institution according to the number of student-athletes who have qualified.

Qualifiers and coaches will be provided accommodations only if they return the proper housing forms by the established deadline. Housing forms will be sent from the NCAA national office to all member institutions sponsoring wrestling.

Teams using the housing bureau also will be provided ground transportation from the Will Rogers Airport to the Sheraton Century upon their arrival.

Lodging arrangements for the media have been established at the Skirvin Plaza Hotel. Media housing forms or information can be obtained by contacting Alfred B. White at the NCAA national office.

Six institutions reclassified to Division I

The University of Central Florida and Morgan State University were reclassified to Division I by the NCAA Classification Committee at its July 10 meeting in San Francisco.

Both institutions will continue to conduct their football programs in Division II. The actions are effective September 1, 1984.

Eastern Washington University, which moved its program (except football) from Division II to Division I last fall, will move its football program to Division I-AA.

The committee also approved the petition of Georgia Southern College to place its football program in Division I-AA. The institution resumed football competition in 1981 but had not had a varsity intercollegiate program since 1941.

Four other Division II institutions will have their programs reclassified to Division I effective September 1, 1984. The four nonfootball-playing schools (I-AAA) are Augusta College, Chicago State University, University of Hartford and Radford University. Radford will continue to conduct its women's volleyball program in Division II.

City College of New York's petition to move its men's soccer program from Division I to Division III was approved. The action placed all CCNY sports in Division III effective September 1, 1984.

Samford University, a Division I institution with no football, added the sport, and the Classification Committee approved the institution's petition to conduct the sport in Division III effective September 1, 1984.

The committee approved the following petitions for multidivision classification in a women's sport:

Ashland College (Division III women's tennis from Division II).

Library of Films previews '84 college football season

"College Football '84 The Elusive Goal," an overview of the coming season, has been distributed to sports information directors at NCAA Division I institutions and is available through the NCAA Library of Films.

The annual NCAA production opens with a feature on the conclusion of last season's Orange Bowl between Nebraska and Miami (Florida). Miami won the mythical national championship when it halted the Cornhuskers' two-point conversion attempt in the final minute. Also featured in the 23-minute production is a segment on Navy running back Napoleon McCallum, the nation's top returning rusher.

Action highlights and interviews with several of the nation's top coaches also are included, and key conference races and leading independents are examined.

"Basically, what we are showing is that the level of excellence in college football goes very deep now," said Ronald Schwartz, NCAA director of television news service.

For the second straight year, the show has been distributed on a three-quarter-inch video cassette. NCAA Productions first produced the show in 1977; since then, it has been well received at booster club meetings and summer camps and by local television stations.

TV in the News

Nabisco may buy into network

Cookies and cable could be a new combination in sports television, according to Advertising Age.

The magazine reported in its July 5 issue that ABC Video Enterprises, which this spring bought ESPN from Texaco, Inc., is prepared to sell as much as 30 percent of the cable sports network to Nabisco Brands. Officials at ABC Video and Nabisco declined comment.

As part of the deal, according to the magazine's sources, Ohlmeier Communications will play a management role in ESPN's operation. Ohlmeier Communications, which is half-owned by Nabisco, is run by Don Ohlmeier, former executive producer of NBC Sports, and John Martin, former No. 2 man at ABC Sports.

The offer reportedly is one of several that ABC Video is considering. Other interested parties include Gillette Company, Stroh Brewery, Coca-Cola Company and Viacom Broadcasting.

MetroSports, TCS announce merger

MetroSports and TCS, a Pittsburgh-based production company, have announced a merger, which would create the nation's largest independent television sports rights-production company.

MetroSports, based in Rockville, Maryland, is one of the country's leading sports syndicators. The new company holds television rights to Pacific-10 Conference football and basketball; Big Ten Conference football and basketball; Big East Conference basketball; Pennsylvania State University football and basketball; University of Maryland, College Park, and University of Notre Dame sports, and the Aloha, Freedom and Hula Bowls. The company also holds radio rights to Philadelphia Eagles and Washington Redskins football and Baltimore Orioles baseball.

The newly formed company will be based in New Kensington, Pennsylvania. Leonard L. Klompus, president and founder of MetroSports, will be president and Nelson L. Goldberg, TCS president, will serve as chairman of the board.

USFL looking at syndication plan

Faced with declining television ratings and a possible move to a fall schedule, the United States Football League is exploring syndication possibilities.

Major advertisers have been approached by the league's research firm to see if they would support a syndicated package if the USFL moves to a fall schedule in 1986 and does not land a network contract.

The USFL's regular-season ratings on ABC this season were 5.6 percent, four-tenths of a point below last year's rating and well below the projected 7.0 rating.

The overnight rating for the USFL championship game between Philadelphia and Arizona was 10.4.

Wolverines sign broadcast pact

The University of Michigan and Pro Am Sports Systems have signed an agreement to telecast 20 Wolverine athletics events during 1984-85.

Broadcast under the agreement will be six men's basketball games, six men's ice hockey games and four other varsity men's or women's events. No rights fees were announced.

choosing future regional sites, pending the receipt of additional budget proposals. Austin, Texas (University of Texas, Austin, host), will be the site of the 1985 final four, and Lexington, Kentucky (University of Kentucky host), was recommended as the 1986 final-four site.

The committee agreed to discontinue using a predetermined rotation on national semifinal pairings. Semifinal pairings will be announced when the bracket is set, but the old regional rotation will be dropped.

Specific dates were set for 1985 regionals as follows: East (Old Dominion University)—March 21 and 23; Midwest (Western Kentucky University)—March 22 and 24; Midwest (Northeast Louisiana University)—March 22 and 24; West (University of California, Los Angeles)—March 21 and 23.

In other business, the committee met with representatives of CBS Sports to discuss plans for coverage of the 1985, 1986 and 1987 championships and with representatives of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association to discuss a request for a grant and concerns expressed by coaches during the Division I summer meeting.

The committee also developed a comprehensive policy regarding tickets and seating allocations for all tournament sessions, which will be outlined in the 1985 championship handbook. The committee also noted that its recommendation to seed eight teams nationally was deferred by the Executive Committee in May and would be considered at the August meeting.

The committee's fall meeting was scheduled for October 29-November 1 in Austin.

Rifle championships sites sought

Discussion of future championships and modification of the championships qualifying procedure highlighted the July 13-15 meeting of the NCAA Men's and Women's Rifle Committee in Snowmass, Colorado.

The committee is in the process of soliciting bids from institutions that want to host the 1985 and 1986 championships. Later this year, questionnaires will be mailed to all NCAA member institutions sponsoring rifle to determine their potential capability as host for the championships.

In other business, the committee modified the qualifying procedures for the championships. The individuals named as team qualifiers on an institution's entry form must compete in the championships.

Changes due to illness, injury or extenuating circumstances may be made up to 48 hours prior to the start of the championships; all requested changes will be subject to the approval of the committee.

If an individual has qualified for both team and individual championships competition and is scratched from one event, he or she also will be scratched from the other event.

Bat rule modified by committee; interference rule is clarified

College baseball players who have lost home runs because of using too much pine tar or not having an identification mark at the 18-inch point on their bats will cheer a recent NCAA Baseball Committee decision.

Modification of the illegal bat rule and clarification of interference by a runner were major rules decisions at the committee's July 9-12 meeting in South Lake Tahoe, California.

Batters will not be declared out for using a bat with no identification mark 18 inches from the handle or with a foreign substance extending past the 18-inch mark. Instead, the bat will be removed from the game and the player warned; a second offense will bring ejection. Using an altered bat, however, still is illegal and will result in an out.

The sometimes controversial sliding rule (Rule 8-4-d-A.R.) retained its emphasis on safety for players. Interference will be called "if the runner makes contact with or forces the fielder to alter his pattern of play by running or sliding at him or sliding into him in a deliberate or unsportsmanlike manner to disrupt the fielder's attempt to complete the play." Runners must be "moving directly along the line between the two bases" for contact with a fielder to be legal.

The committee also added a note that players should "slide into the base as if they were being forced out on a sacrifice bunt or the third out of the inning."

"We hope this is clearer for both players and umpires," said Secretary-Rules Editor Donald K. Edwards of the University of California, Riverside. "This rule protects fielders from unsportsmanlike acts while permitting contact in a specified manner."

The umpires' pregame duties are being expanded to include mention of the bat regulations, as well as the sliding rule, and the requirement that all helmets be certified by the National Operating Committee on Standards for Athletic Equipment (NOCSAE).

In other matters, the committee developed a proposal for season limitations, should such legislation be enacted.

"We are not in favor of any limits," said Chair Richard E. Bergquist of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. "If limits are set, though, the committee proposes 25 games during the fall season and 65 games

Nicholson founded sports program

The family of Verle L. "Nick" Nicholson has suggested that memorials can be made to local kidney foundations or the National Kidney Foundation in Washington, D.C., following his death last month.

Nicholson, who headed the information office of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports since July 1962, died in Bethesda, Maryland, after an extended illness.

He developed the National Youth Sports Program, which is administered by the NCAA, and was a member of that NCAA committee at the time of his death.

A graduate of Kansas State University, Nicholson was a sports editor and a managing editor on daily newspapers in Kansas and Oklahoma before becoming associate editor for a magazine and book publisher. He wrote more than 60 magazine articles, booklets and film scripts and was the writer for the Bud Wilkinson Show on syndicated radio.

Nicholson also was director of the Presidential Physical Fitness Award Program and the Presidential Sports Award Program.

in the spring, applicable to all divisions.

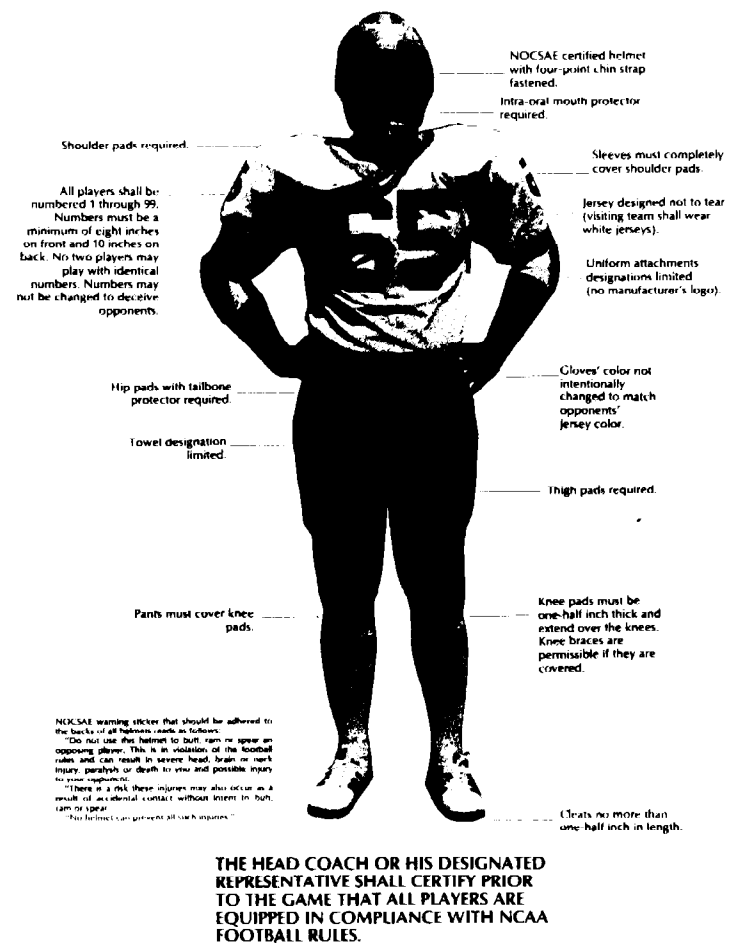

"Philosophically, the committee believes such limits are the responsibility of institutions," he added.

Automatic qualification for the Division I championship was recommended for the champions of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, West Coast Athletic Conference, Big East Conference and two sections of the Eastern College Athletic Conference. The changes represent a realignment of several teams and do not increase the number of automatic qualifiers.

The committee also endorsed a proposal first submitted in 1983 that the Division I championship be increased from 36 to 38 teams. The recommendation is based on the continuing financial success of the tournament and the number of qualified teams available.

1984 NCAA Football Equipment Standards LEGAL UNIFORM

Football posters mailed

Posters illustrating NCAA equipment and blocking rules have been mailed to directors of athletics, football coaches, athletics trainers, equipment managers, supervisors of officials and commissioners.

The NCAA Football Rules Committee, which designed the posters, recommends that coaches display both posters in locker rooms or other areas used by student-athletes.

The football equipment poster illustrates mandatory equipment, illegal equipment and a legal uniform as defined in 1984 NCAA Football Rules and Interpretations.

graphs that depict legal and illegal shoulder blocks, cross body and retreat blocks, and holding and blocking personal fouls.

The posters, which measure 19 by 24 3/4 inches each, are printed on heavy paper stock and feature four-color photographs. The posters also include the rules from 1984 NCAA Football Rules and Interpretations as they apply to equipment and blocking and use of the arm and hand.

Additional posters can be obtained by contacting the NCAA national office.

11 basketball leagues approved

An additional 11 summer basketball leagues have been approved by the NCAA Administrative Committee, acting for the Council, bringing to 289 the number of leagues approved this year.

Previous lists of approved leagues appeared in the April 11, April 25, May 9, May 23, June 13, June 20 and July 4 issues of The NCAA News.

Following are the latest summer basketball leagues approved by the Administrative Committee:

Houston named site for festival

Houston will be the site of the 1986 National Sports Festival. The decision was announced last month by the U.S. Olympic Committee's executive board. A decision on the 1987 site was deferred until October because Indianapolis, one of the candidates, is seeking the Pan American Games. Ecuador had been awarded the 1987 Pan Am Games but is expected to withdraw for financial reasons.

The 1985 festival previously had been awarded to Baton Rouge, Louisiana. The festival has been held in every non-Olympic year since 1978.

System for cable rights. TBS, headquartered in Atlanta, has the heaviest concentration of its cable homes in the SEC area.

"This is what the plaintiffs originally asked for from the courts," said NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers, "the right to handle college football rights the same as college basketball. The economic miscalculations that were behind this reasoning are enormous. Virtually unlimited production for the same number of buyers and essentially the same number of viewers can mean only one thing, lower prices. Regardless of who claims to have what package, the networks finally will determine the configuration of games. The networks and other major buyers now have enormous power and the colleges have minimal leverage as sellers."

CBS, through its president, Neal H. Pilson, clearly indicated a desire to put together a national package, and reports indicated that he hoped to deal with the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences to form a nucleus, add key games from such Eastern powers as Pittsburgh, Syracuse, Boston College and the service academies, and encourage other CFA members to join the CBS presentations. When told by a CFA spokesman that CFA games would not be made available separately but only as a part of the CFA package, Pilson responded that such action would constitute a "boycott" and would be faced with immediate legal challenge.

Many of the delegates at the July 10 meeting were increasingly conscious of the depressed market for college football. Several expressed the hope that, whereas national rights would be substantially less, the colleges might make up the 1984 financial losses from increased regional television.

The terms of the voided 1984 NCAA football plan provided for national rights fees of an estimated $1.5 million for a national game and more than $700,000 for regional games on ABC and CBS and more than $360,000 for ESPN cablecasts. The total rights involved came to approximately $73.6 million. In 1985, under the NCAA contracts, the total rights would have been $78 million.

In May and June, Charles M. Neinas, CFA executive director, predicted that the CFA package would achieve $50 million in 1984 rights

Former NCAA President Marcus Plant, 72, dies

Marcus L. Plant, president of the NCAA in 1967 and 1968, died July 15 in his Ann Arbor, Michigan, home at the age of 72.

Plant, a member of the University of Michigan law faculty since 1946, was teaching one course at the university as professor emeritus of law.

Faculty athletics representative at Michigan from 1955 to 1979, Plant was very active in NCAA affairs. Prior to his term as president, he was vice-president for District 4 (1963-1967) and served on the NCAA Council (1963-1966). After his two years as president, Plant served on the NCAA Executive Committee from 1969 to 1973.

Plant also served as chair of the Constitution and Bylaws Committee (1973-1977) and Eligibility Committee (1968) and was the NCAA Convention parliamentarian from 1963 to 1967 and again in 1970, 1971 and 1973. He was a member of the Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports Committee at the time of his death.

"Mark Plant provided exemplary service to intercollegiate athletics for three decades," NCAA President John L. Toner said, "and it is typical of his dedication that he was active in NCAA committee work until his death."

"He was a warm person, incisive and had a brilliant mind. He was immensely helpful to the Association during his years as president, as a member of the Council and Executive Committee, and as the Association's parliamentarian. He contributed a great deal to making people into better human beings."

A Wisconsin native, Plant received a bachelor's degree in 1932 from Lawrence University (then Lawrence College) in Appleton, Wisconsin. He earned a master's from Lawrence in 1934 and a juris doctorate degree in 1938 from Michigan. He joined the Michigan law faculty in 1946 after seven years in private practice in Milwaukee and two years in New York.

He is survived by his wife, Geraldine; three daughters; one son, and two grandchildren.

NCAA television plans were beneficial

In comments during a press conference after the July 10 special television meeting and in a subsequent interview, NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers said:

"It is difficult to comprehend the 'hate-NCAA' attitude by some members when it comes to a discussion of college football television principles and plans.

"The past record of NCAA television committees' plans as approved by the membership have been highly beneficial to major college football.

and that there would be $250,000 passover payments to all members of the CFA that were not telecast or cablecast under the CFA plan. Those figures were repeated at the Division I-A meeting in Chicago June 28-29, despite contradiction by representatives of the television industry and by members of the NCAA Football Television Committee. A much more conservative tone was evident at the July 10 special television meeting although CFA officials ridiculed a suggested price of $25 million for the CFA package.

An NBC official did predict a 50 percent drop in national rights. Another network executive said the rights for the best games would not drop that much; the fees for the average games might be more depressed.

After the NCAA's proposed TV plan was defeated by the Division I-A members in the July 10 special meeting, the Divisions I-A and I-AA members—including a majority vote of Division I-A—adopted three binding principles for the 1984 football season:

1. There shall be no televising of collegiate football games on Friday nights, and any afternoon football televising on that day of the week must be completed by 7 p.m. local time in each location in which the program is received.

2. No member institution shall be obligated to televise any of its games, at home or away. No member institution may make any arrangements for live or delayed televising of any game without the prior consent of its

The 1982-1985 arrangements were particularly desirable.

"It also is difficult to follow the arguments of the University of Oklahoma and its attorney that somehow the NCAA administration in Mission, Kansas, represents hardened antitrust violators and should be 'fenced out' because of these alleged antitrust crimes. The facts are that past NCAA committees formulated plans and submitted them to the membership for vote. Taking the past five times the membership voted on football television plans, the average rate of opponent institution.

3. The gross rights fee paid for each 1984 national telecast or cablecast shall be subject to an assessment of four percent to be paid to the NCAA by the home institution. The assessment will be used to fund the costs of the NCAA postgraduate scholarship program and football-related NCAA services. A "national telecast" is defined as a football game televised or cablecast simultaneously to at least 20 million homes in at least 30 states, or televised or cablecast to 50 percent of U.S. television homes as reported by the 1984 Edition/No. 52 of Television and Cable Factbook and all updates to that publication issued prior to August 1, 1984.

There were myriad comments from college athletics and educational leaders across the country. Among them were these:

"The overwhelming majority of Division I-A NCAA members would prefer a 1984 plan and future plans, in my judgment, that would parallel to a marked degree the NCAA plan that was struck down by the courts."—John D. Swofford, athletics director at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and chair of the NCAA Football Television Committee.

"The idea that the regional syndicators are going to jump at the opportunity and make up the losses is clearly erroneous. They were badly stung by overly stimulated buying in basketball and they are much more cautious than a couple of years ago."—Donald B. Canham, athletics director, University of Michigan.

Roll-call vote on amended TV plan

Following is the vote of Division I-A members on the national football television plan, as amended and submitted to them July 10 in Chicago (a "yes" vote was a vote for the plan):

approval was in excess of 90 percent and the overwhelming majority of Division I-A member institutions approved the plans during those votes.

"More importantly, the plans were not in violation of antitrust laws during all of those years. It only has been in the past five years or so that the Federal judiciary has been applying a more stringent 'rule of reason' analysis to the operations of not-for-profit service and professional organizations, and most recently to educational associations."

"The networks are telling us when to do it and how to do it. There are about 25 to 30 major teams across the country that will receive tremendous exposure, but eventually it will hurt them at the gate if it's not controlled. People are concerned about this all over the country. When you lose people in the stands, you lose the excitement and you lose gate receipts. And when you do that, you lose your ability to raise funds and market your product to a live audience."—John V. Kasser, new athletics director at California State University, Long Beach, and immediate past AD at the University of Houston.

"There are going to be more games on TV, and overall the public will be better served."—J. Frank Broyles, director of athletics, University of Arkansas, Fayetteville.

"It's a very significant and financially injurious decision for the members of our conference."—James E. Delany, commissioner, Ohio Valley Conference.

"We spent considerable time attempting to develop a coalition. We are disappointed that in the judgment of legal counsel for our conferences, the coalition plan did not satisfy the requirements of the recent court decisions. We have great pride in the attractiveness of the football in our two conferences and will negotiate jointly for the sale of 1984 television rights."—President John W. Ryan, Indiana University, Bloomington, and Chancellor Ira M. Bleymann, University of California, Berkeley.

"We're continuing discussions with TBS, and we expect some word by Friday on what type of arrangement the Southeastern Conference will be able to work out with TBS. It depends on what comes out of discussions between TBS and the CFA. Since we are limited by any CFA arrangement, it would be premature to seek an agreement with TBS beforehand. So, we won't know what the SEC will have in the way of a TV contract until the CFA program takes shape."—Charley Scott, director of athletics, Mississippi State University and chair of the SEC television committee.

"I think the public's interests in and demand for college football on television is still high. I don't have the concerns about a glut that others have expressed. If you look at the number of exception telecasts and cablecasts that were shown last year under the NCAA plan, it's evident that there was a lot of college football on television. Not all of it was on network TV, but the interest was there on other levels."—Carl C. James, commissioner of the Big Eight Conference.
