Executive Committee approves record budget

Meeting August 13-14 in Monterey, California, the NCAA Executive Committee approved a record $41-million budget for the 1984-85 fiscal year.

Except for an increase in the income for certain Division I championships, resulting in greater transportation payments to teams participating in those championships, the budget reflected an overall decrease in expenditures compared to a year ago. Full details of the budget will be reported in the August 29 issue of The NCAA News.

Faced with the net loss of approximately $4.2 million in anticipated revenue from the 1984 portion of the 1982-1985 Football Television Plan, which was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court, major adjustments in budget planning for 1984-85 and 1985-86 were set in motion by the Executive Committee.

In its budget balancing action, the Executive Committee terminated reserve allocations, cut developmental grants, voted to limit the Division III Football Championship to eight teams (instead of 16) and concluded it was not in a position to subsidize transportation costs for any new championship.

In championships matters, the Executive Committee approved all recommendations from the Division I Men's Basketball Committee, including a five-year cap on the 64-team field in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

The 64-team field will be in effect through the 1990 championship, which will be held at McNichols Arena in Denver, Colorado, March 31 and April 2. The 1989 tournament was awarded to The Kingdome in Seattle, Washington, April 1 and 3, with the University of Washington as host institution.

Dates and sites for 1986 first- and second-round and regional games were approved as published in the July 18 issue of The NCAA News. The Executive Committee also approved automatic qualification for the same 29 Division I conferences and agreed that through the 1990 season, no more than 30 allied conferences would be granted automatic qualification.

The Executive Committee also approved a realignment of geographic regions in Division I basketball, as reported in the July 18 issue of the News.

In other sports committee recommendations, the Executive Committee approved a recommendation from the Baseball Committee to expand the championship bracket in Division I baseball from 36 to 38 teams.

Following are highlights of other sports committee reports: (A full report of all Executive Committee action will appear in the August 29 issue of the News.)

Division I Women's Basketball—The Executive Committee denied a request to increase the Division I Women's Basketball Championship bracket from 32 to 40 teams. A plan to seed eight teams nationally, rather than four, and to place them in the bracket without geographical or regional restriction was approved.

Division III Women's Basketball—The Executive Committee approved a request to conduct the 1984 Division III Women's Basketball Championship (March 15-16) on the campus of one of the participating teams.

Division I-AA Football—The Executive Committee denied a request from the Division I-AA Football Committee to expand the championship bracket to 16 teams. The 1984 championship will remain at 12 teams. Also denied was a request to increase the squad size from 52 to 55.

Men's Golf—Ohio State University was awarded the 1987 Division I Men's Golf Championships May 27-30, and the University of Tampa will host the 1986 Division II Men's Golf Championships May 20-23. The field for the Division II Men's Golf Championships will remain at 88 participants.

Men's Ice Hockey—The following conferences were approved for automatic qualification for the 1985 Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship—Western Collegiate Hockey Association, Central Collegiate Hockey Association and Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Men's Lacrosse—The Executive Committee approved a request to have a final four at a predetermined site for the Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship, effective 1986. Semifinals will be played on Saturday and the championship game on Monday of Memorial Day weekend. The committee denied a request to increase the Division I championship from

Eligibility Committee statement

Athletes warned about commercial endorsements

In response to concerns about the continued involvement of student-athletes in the promotion of commercial businesses contrary to Constitution 3-1-(e), the NCAA Eligibility Committee has announced that it will not be as lenient in restoring eligibility for future violations.

"In the past academic year, the committee has considered 19 eligibility cases involving 74 student-athletes involved in the promotion of commercial products," Olav B. Kollevoll, chair of the Eligibility Committee, reported. These cases have run the gamut from magazine covers, men-on-campus calendars, modeling, television commercials and newspaper advertisements to personal appearances at commercial businesses and shopping malls.

"In most instances, the committee has felt that the member institutions attempted to inform student-athletes of the prohibition against commercial promotions; however, there is a disturbing number of cases where the student has failed to contact appropriate institutional personnel prior to participation, or misinformed staff members have authorized the promotion," Kollevoll noted.

In past cases, the committee generally has restored a student's eligibility when no compensation has been provided to the student and the involved advertisement or commercial item has been removed immediately from further use or sale.

However, committee members expressed concern that publicity of several cases in which a student's eligibility has been restored without the loss of any opportunities for competition has fostered the erroneous impression that student-athletes can participate in the promotion of commercial products with impunity so long as they are not paid or identified by name.

In response, the Eligibility Committee has determined that, effective with the administration of the 1984-85 student-athlete statement, at which time student-athletes should be informed of the prohibition against involvement in the promotion of a commercial product, any violation of Constitution 3-1-(e) in which the committee concludes the student-athlete knew or should have known of the application of NCAA legislation will result in the student being charged with the loss of competitive opportunities.

Each case will be reviewed individually, based upon the facts of that case, in order to determine whether eligibility should be restored and, if so, after what period of ineligibility.

Committee members are urging member institutions to emphasize this particular rule [Constitution 3-1-(e)] and its interpretations to their student-athletes and athletics department personnel in administering the 1984-85 student-athlete statement so that potential eligibility problems can be averted.

Collegians strike gold in Olympics

NCAA collegians played a major role in the United States winning a record number of medals in the 1984 Summer Olympics by capturing 49 of the 174 U.S. medals.

The 56 NCAA athletes, who competed at member institutions this past year or who currently are enrolled, won 24 gold medals, 17 silver medals and eight bronze medals, either individually or as members of relay teams. This total does not include medal winners from other countries who are enrolled at NCAA member institutions. It does, however, include performances of coaches at NCAA member institutions who competed in men's rifle and women's field hockey.

Heading the list is UCLA gymnast Mitch Gaylord, who won three individual medals and a fourth as a member of the U.S. team that won the gold medal.

Gaylord, the all-around champion at the 1984 Division I Men's Gymnastics Championships, won a silver medal on the vault and bronze medals on the rings and parallel bars.

Gaylord's UCLA teammate Tim Daggett was another member of the six-man U.S. gymnastics team and

Attendance up for women's basketball

Women's college basketball attendance showed strong growth in nearly every sector in 1984, reaching a record national total of 2,870,845, excluding double-headers with men's teams. That is an increase of 368,419, or 14.72 percent, over 1983.

The figures include all 1,147 senior colleges in the country with women's varsity teams (759 are NCAA members).

NCAA Division I increased 159,674, or 13.10 percent; NCAA Division II jumped 90,512, or 25.70 percent, and NCAA Division III climbed 33,404, or 9.88 percent. Non-NCAA teams also increased. NCAA Division I reached a record

Is there life after TV for Division III football?

By Bob Stewart
Canton (Ohio) Repository

Gene Slaughter and Ken Wable are the deans of college football coaches in the Ohio Athletic Conference.

Both are alike in a lot of ways, not the least of which, of course, is their longevity of location in their vocation.

But the two men can show opposite sides, too.

Slaughter stopped off at Ohio State University as an aide on his way to a 24-year coaching stint at Capital University. He is gregarious, flamboyant and outspoken.

Wable, a Massillon native, has run the Mount Union grid program for the past 22 seasons.

He is quiet, somewhat conservative and outspoken.

Both spoke out, but in different directions, at the OAC preseason press meeting last month regarding the recent revisions in the college football TV packages.

Slaughter blasted the new CFA television package.

Wable said he thought it was a fine thing.

"I think the entire situation of changes in TV was based primarily on greed, and I wonder what in the hell ever happened to honesty and integrity in athletics any more," said Slaughter, who pointed to the lack of funds being channeled to the smaller college football programs because of the elimination of the NCAA as the packager of TV programming for all the schools.

"I like what has been said about Division III football, that this is where real college football is being played, with student-athletes. At least we can be honest with ourselves and look each other in the eye," he said.

Slaughter said the new TV policies that evolved from the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision will adversely affect many college athletics programs.

"I kind of think the new TV system puts everything in the proper perspective," countered Wable. "The people want to pay for it."

Wable's Purple Raiders got a taste of TV last season when ABC televised the Mount Union-Heidelberg game on a regional basis from the Alliance stadium.

"That was quite a production, and I'm grateful for the exposure. But we didn't get a lot of money from it. ABC paid $21,000, and we got $7,000. Heidelberg got $7,000, and the other $7,000, I think, went to the conference. So what's $7,000? That won't make or break our program; it won't even pay for meals."

"I still think Division III is where real college athletics exist, and they are in the proper atmosphere. Sure there is the big time, but still, the bottom line is an education; and I think some—and I emphasize some, not all—big schools are losing sight of education in college sports. They are graduating 20 or 30 percent of their athletes, while we (the Division III schools) are graduating three times that," said Slaughter.

"I don't disagree with what we are trying to do in Division III football," said Wable. "I'm a firm believer in the small school. But I also believe if we are going to include athletics as part of our program, it has to be part of our program, including the costs."

"If we keep everything in proper perspective, I don't think the new TV situation will really kill Division III football. It won't hurt at all," Wable said.

Columnary Craft

see the big schools on TV, and the people who pay for it get what they pay for."

Wable recalled a statement made by former Texas coach Darrell Royal when he was still an active coach.

"Royal once said he was not a helluva lot interested in helping Hofstra's athletics program. He was more concerned with Texas' program, and I think that is true."

"If we in Division III say we think college athletics are good and part of a true college education, and we think it's worthwhile, then we should be able to provide it as part of the college life. And I don't think we should ask someone else to

Some athletes are being used

William A. Marshall, athletics director
Franklin and Marshall College

Harrisburg (Pennsylvania) Patriot

"I have been seriously wondering about the current status of college sports. Are these sports now entertainment, big business, educational in nature, or what? The present direction in which college sports are headed gives me big concerns."

"At schools like F&M, Dickinson and Gettysburg, our kids have fun playing ball. But they're students first. That concept is true at many other schools, even some of the big ones. But I know that kids are being used in many places. There's no doubt in my mind about that."

J. Frank Broyles, director of athletics
University of Arkansas, Fayetteville

Houston Chronicle

"The NCAA must find more meaningful measures to control its members. They've just scratched the surface by taking away scholarships. They should go beyond that. If it's a real serious case, say a two-year probation, the school should not be allowed to recruit for a year. No scholarships. No walk-ons. No players for a year. The next year only allow them 10 scholarships. Gradually, a school could work its way back to being a full-fledged member."

"I don't want to be a prophet of doom, but there are people who believe we're approaching an uncontrollable situation. It's gotten too big. When something is this emotional, there are going to be abuses. I don't feel the abuses outweigh the values, but somewhere we're going to have to take a hard look at things."

Opinions Out Loud

Robb Long, football player

Monmouth College (Illinois)

College Football 1984 Press Kit

"To my mind, the football coach is the most underrated figure in the game. I believe the coach is absolutely critical to the success of the team. He has a wide array of responsibilities; the most important of these may be motivation. The football coach is unique in the way he must motivate his players. It takes a high degree of motivation to play football. People with the ability to motivate are rare and need to be recognized more."

"... I do not want to denigrate the radio and TV performances of modern athletes. ... To anyone who can remember 20 or 25 years back, the speaking performances of today's athletes are a welcome change from those long-ago days. More than once, I have found myself commenting, in some surprise, at how well a particular player is coming across."

"There are two reasons:

"One is that despite the numerous examples of college athletes who resist learning anything cultural, the educational level among them as a group is far higher than it was a generation ago."

"The other reason is simple:

"They get a lot more practice than they did in the print-only days, and they are under the constant necessity of being able to answer a question or comment on a situation. And practice may not make perfect, but it helps."

Editorial

Eugene Register-Guard

"... Our concern about the ruling (Supreme Court's ruling that voided the 1982-1985 NCAA Football Television Plan) is that in adhering to established antitrust law, the court may accelerate the already great commercialization of college sports. If that happens, as the Los Angeles Times noted, 'good law could prove to be bad social policy.'"

"We are further worried that the ruling will simply help the 'rich get richer,' with the major football schools able to glut the market with their 'product' while the smaller schools struggle for athletic parity—left with crumbs, both financial and athletic."

"The ruling also raises a red (yellow?) flag on the all-too-apparent emphasis at many schools on treating college athletes as something other than students. Statistical data are abundant showing that far too many student-athletes never graduate and that some, tragically, leave college—with or without a degree—as functional illiterates."

"Undoubtedly, the court's ruling will please many football fans and big-school alumni who now can revel in large doses of the football heavyweights on TV screens every week. Conceivably, local and perhaps even regional telecasts of the lesser college teams can be worked out. But the big money, free of NCAA restraints, will gravitate to the powerhouses. ..."

Richard Segal, clinical psychologist

Harvard University

Chicago Sun-Times

"Students aren't getting proper guidance in the schools. Kids feel they aren't getting what they need to prepare for the academic aspects of college."

"My sense is many young students and athletes feel that schools are not providing them with the kind of academic training and educational preparedness they want and their parents want them to get."

"Because they are standouts at a young age, the schools promote them (from grade to grade) without giving them adequate academic attention. From a young age, they are robotized into believing basketball is a way out of the ghetto. They are not excited about school."

Ed Emory, football coach

East Carolina University

Greensboro Record and News

"You might need to cut the budget, but recruiting is the one item you should never cut. You always should continue to build your recruiting base because talent is the product that you're bringing to the university to sell tickets. It's the lifeline of any athletics program."

Edward S. Steitz, president

Amateur Basketball Association of the USA

The Associated Press

"In 1992, the way the eligibility rulings have gone by the International Olympic Committee in other sports, it's (the Olympic Games) going to be open competition in all sports."

"The whole thing with the IOC is they're so inconsistent, they can't control it. The horses are all out of the barn."

"Let's stop the hypocrisy."

"It's not all bad if you have seven Boston Celtics and five Michael Jordans representing the United States in Olympic basketball competition. If we took the top five or six Celtics and filled it in with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Magic Johnson, who would beat them?"

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q. In what sports are statistics compiled by the NCAA, and do postseason games count in individual and team statistics?

A. Statistics are compiled by the NCAA in football, men's and women's basketball, baseball, and women's softball. In football, postseason bowl or national championship play-off games are not considered part of an institution's regular-season schedule. Consequently, statistics of these games are not included in any team's or player's season or career records, and these statistics do not affect single-game records. The results of postseason football games, however, are included in a coach's career record, the team's all-time won-lost record and team winning streaks. In basketball, all tournament games—holiday, postseason and conference play-offs—are included in the official statistics. One of the reasons that postseason basketball statistics are compiled is the fact that tournament action immediately follows the regular season, whereas, in football, postseason bowl games occur four to five weeks after completion of the regular season.

Despite the graduation of what Nebraska fans dubbed the "$8 million backfield," coach Tom Osborne will have the Cornhuskers bidding for a fourth straight Big Eight Conference title and national honors. Replacing Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier will be senior I-back Jeff Smith. Senior Craig Sundberg is Turner Gill's successor at quarterback, and the Cornhuskers have another talented offensive line. Eight defensive starters return.

Oklahoma again has the best chance of derailing Nebraska. The Sooners' offense, which features running backs Spencer Tillman and Earl Johnson, returns eight starters. Only three regulars return on defense, but coach Barry Switzer has young talent waiting in the wings.

Defending champion Illinois, along with Michigan, Iowa and Ohio State, are the front-runners in the Big Ten Conference. The Fighting Illini have seven offensive starters back from a squad that set school records for points and total offense; however, the defensive front seven have graduated.

Michigan's only weakness is a lack of depth at outside linebacker. Fine receivers, talented running backs and an experienced offensive line should make first-year Wolverine quarterback Jim Harbaugh's job much easier. Iowa returns 20 of its top 22 defensive players. However, the Hawkeyes' offense will need time to jell. Ohio State features a strong offense led by quarterback Mike Tomczak and tailback Keith Byars.

Northern Illinois will be hard pressed to defend its Mid-American Conference title. The Huskies are inexperienced in the offensive line and defensive secondary and at quarterback and fullback. Central Michigan and Bowling Green State are the top MAC contenders. Central Michigan has 46 lettermen (23 offense, 23 defense) from last year's 8-3 team. Bowling Green's offense again will have quarterback Brian McClure, who finished third nationally in total offense, at the helm.

Notre Dame will attempt to improve its 7-5 record in Gerry Faust's fourth year as coach. The Irish return 17 starters (10 offense, seven defense) and feature tailback Allen Pinkett, one of the nation's top running backs.

West

UCLA will rely on a strong passing attack led by Steve Bono, who passed for 399 yards against Brigham Young, using split end Mike Sherrard and flanker Karl Dorrell. The Bruins' schedule also will aid their title defense; five of their seven conference games are at home. Washington has finished first (three times) or second (four times) in the conference for seven straight years and again appears to be a threat. The Huskies have proven running backs in Jacque Robinson and Ron Jackson, each of whom has rushed for more than 1,000 yards. However, the Huskies need to improve their offensive and defensive lines. ### Division I-AA notes

Price does more than drive his car

Arkansas State linebacker Stacy Price has been nicknamed "Car Hop" because he can leap over a car. . . . Marcus Koch, a native of Montreal, Canada, is the third consecutive Canadian to play defensive tackle for Boise State. . . . Boston U. could have the smallest defensive tackle in all divisions in 5-8, 180-pound Brian Jenkins. . . . Brown's Chris Ingerslev probably will have to work some double shifts again this fall. After he finishes kicking for the football team, he will suit up for Brown's soccer team. . . . Bucknell's Mark Wisniewski, a 6-2, 254-pound defensive tackle, stayed in shape this summer by pulling a 3,800-pound automobile 100 yards with a harness he helped design.

Citadel quarterback Robert Hill, who has broken nearly all school passing records, will serve as Second Battalion Commander this year after holding the highest junior position (Regimental Sergeant Major) last year. Hill also carried the American flag to lead the funeral procession of Mark W. Clark, former Citadel president and four-star Army general, in recent services at The Citadel. . . . Colgate has made the Division I-AA play-offs the past two seasons without offering any grants-in-aid. The Red Raiders are 23-10 in games quarterback Steve Calabria has started. . . . Joe Purzycki has turned Delaware State's football program around. Purzycki led the Hornets to records of 2-9 in 1981, 4-7 in 1982 and 7-3-1 last year—only the fifth winning season at the school since 1957.

Harvard's Roger Caron got tired of being the team's ball boy three years ago and decided to do something about it. After a rigorous weight-lifting and conditioning program, the 6-5, 270-pounder earned a berth at offensive tackle and was named honorable mention all-

Players prefer play-offs to polls in Division I-AA

Opinions vary about postseason football play-offs, but players in Division I-AA are strongly in favor of determining a national champion on the field rather than by poll. In an informal poll conducted by the NCAA statistics service concerning the division's play-off system, 53 players approved, four were against and two were neutral.

"It's the only way to determine a true champion in any division," Jeff Gilbert, quarterback of Western Carolina, said. "I would like to see it (the Division I-AA play-off) expand to 16 teams. Last year, we barely got in the 12-team play-offs and we won three games and played in the championship game. It was no great academic strain and everyone will always remember the experience."

The two neutral votes were cast by players from the Ivy League, which prohibits its members from postseason play. Five players were critical of the postseason rule, with one player in approval.

Harvard offensive tackle Roger Caron said, "All other sports teams in the league are eligible for postseason play," adding that he believes the football play-off format is an excellent one.

Pro or con, for 14 weeks starting September 1, most of the 87 teams in the division will be aiming at the trip to Charleston, South Carolina, site of the championship game December 15.

A region-by-region look at the teams that could make the trip:

East

Boston U., cochampion of the Yankee Conference and play-off participant, has another fine team. Senior running back Paul Lewis is the division's top returnee in both career rushing and scoring; and sophomore flanker Bill Brooks, who set a play-off record with 12 catches for 234 yards, already holds the school pass receiving and reception yardage records. However, there is no proven quarterback. Nine starters return to Boston U.'s defensive unit that gave up just 15 points in the last four regular-season games. Boston U. will be tested by New Hampshire, which returns eight starters on both sides of the ball. The Wildcats won their final six games of the season, with Andre Garron rushing for more than 100 yards in each game. Connecticut has shared the Yankee title the past two seasons and should be a challenger again.

Harvard, cowinner of the Ivy League with Pennsylvania, will be hard pressed to win another title. Harvard graduated 29 lettermen, including 16 starters. Pennsylvania coach Jerry Berndt has won back-to-back co-Ivy titles with underdog teams, but the Quakers could take it all this year. Seven of 11 defensive starters return, and the offense also has experience. Brown and Dartmouth also have veteran teams that should make the conference race interesting.

Holy Cross, Colgate and Lehigh are the East's top independents. Holy Cross, a quarterfinalist in the play-offs, has an explosive offense led by tailback Gill Fenerty, who rushed for 337 yards and six touchdowns in one game last year. Colgate, a first-round loser in the play-offs, will have to rely more on a passing game led by quarterback Steve Calabria, following the loss of all-time leading rusher Rich Erenberg. An improved defense could lead the Red Raiders to a third consecutive play-off appearance.

Lehigh should turn in its eighth winning season in nine years under coach John Whitehead. The Engineers are strong in both lines and have a great passing combination in quarterback Marty Horn and split end Rennie Benn. Delaware's schedule will make it tough to rebound from last year's 4-7 season. The quarterback position is unsettled, and the Blue Hens graduated their linebacking unit and half of the secondary. Coach Harold "Tubby" Raymond may be forced to use fullback Dan Reeder, the team's leading rusher, at line-backer.

South

Western Carolina has been picked by the Southern Conference coaches to dethrone Furman and win its first conference championship. The teams finished unbeaten in conference play last year, but Furman captured the title because it played one more game. The teams played to a 17-17 tie in the regular season, but Western Carolina defeated Furman, 14-7, in the semifinals of the I-AA play-off. Western Carolina returns 19 starters (10 offense, nine defense), including quarterback Jeff Gilbert, who passed for 2,993 yards and 21 touchdowns. Receiver Eric Rasheed was on the other end of 12 of Gilbert's scoring tosses and had 1,142 yards in receptions. The Catamounts' only question mark is kicking.

A two-way battle between South Carolina State and Delaware State shapes up in the Mid-Eastern Conference. Despite the loss of 10 starters, cochampion South Carolina State still has a powerful running attack triggered by a massive offensive line. If coach Bill Davis finds capable linebackers, the Bulldogs will be in contention for their 10th conference title in 11 years. Cochampion Delaware State, once a doormat of the conference, should again be a contender for the league title. Nineteen starters return from last year's 7-3-1 team. The areas top independent Florida A&M has depth at nearly every position and a strong running game.

Eastern Kentucky has 15 starters (six on offense, nine on defense) from last year's 7-3-1 team that won its third straight Ohio Valley Conference title. The Colonels, who have made the play-offs five straight years under coach Roy Kidd, will have an exceptional defensive unit and a strong running game. Middle Tennessee State, and Akron and Murray State, the surprise of the conference last year, should contend for an upper-division finish.

After a 2-9 season in 1982, North Texas State tied Northeast Louisiana for the Southland Conference title and advanced to the play-offs last year to finish 8-4. Both teams will rely on strong defensive units and expect to contend for the conference title.

The Southwestern Athletic Conference race will pit defending champion Grambling State's No. 1 nationally ranked defense against the prolific offenses of Jackson State and Mississippi Valley State. Grambling allowed opponents just 206 yards in total offense per game and fewer than nine points a game. Jackson State quarterback John McKenzie and wide receiver Chris Burkett are capable of long gainers. Mississippi Valley's big-play offense is fueled by quarterback Willie Totten, who averaged 295.1 yards in total offense and led the division in passing efficiency. Senior wide receiver Jerry Rice has 3,011 yards in career receptions.

In the new Gulf Star Conference, Northwestern State (Louisiana) and Southwest Texas State, a former Division II power, are considered the top teams.

The NCAA Division I-AA Football Championship will be held at Johnson Hagood Stadium in Charleston, South Carolina. The format tentatively is scheduled for a 12-team play-off; however, the field could be expanded to 16 teams if approved by the NCAA Executive Committee. There were four teams in the play-offs in 1978, 1979 and 1980; eight in 1981, and 12 in 1982 and 1983. If the format stays at 12 teams, first-round games will be November 24, followed by quarterfinals December 1, semifinals December 8 and the championship game December 15. First-round, quarterfinals and semifinals will be played at on-campus sites.

Column No. 17

Division I strength coaches

Under the provisions of Bylaw 7-1 and Case No. 369 (pages 350-351, 1984-85 NCAA Manual), only the specified individuals may participate in any manner in the coaching of the intercollegiate football and basketball teams of a Division I member institution during any game, practice or other organized activity. This legislation would relate to "stretching" or other warm-up exercises or activities conducted by any individual during any practice or game.

In October 1983, the NCAA Administrative Committee affirmed that a Division I member institution's strength coach can be involved in activities related to a football or basketball game or practice and not count against the coaching limitations for those sports only if the strength coach regularly performs the same functions for the institution's other men's and women's intercollegiate teams. The Administrative Committee noted that such situations have been interpreted in this manner for at least the past two years.

Graduate assistant coaches

Under the provisions of Bylaw 7-1-(h), any individual who has received a baccalaureate degree and is enrolled in a Division I institution in at least 50 percent of the institution's minimum regular graduate program of studies may assist in coaching without being subject to the limitations on the number of coaches in football and basketball, provided the individual's remuneration is limited to the value of commonly accepted educational expenses and the individual does not serve as a graduate assistant coach in accordance with the provisions of this legislation at a particular member institution for a period of more than two years. An individual serving in this capacity must be enrolled in a specific graduate degree program. In addition, the member institution is prohibited from arranging additional employment opportunities for such graduate assistant coach.

As set forth under Case Nos. 383 and 384 (page 355, 1984-85 NCAA Manual), to determine the amount of compensation a graduate assistant may receive beginning with the 1984-85 academic year, the definition of "commonly accepted educational expenses" shall be that set forth in Constitution 3-1-(g)-(1) [i.e., tuition and fees, room and board, and required course-related books]. The prohibition against arranging additional employment opportunities for graduate assistant coaches would not relate to summer employment, unless the individual remains enrolled in and is receiving expenses for the institution's graduate program during the summer.

A graduate assistant may not receive actual and necessary expenses from the institution incurred in the performance of the individual's coaching duties (e.g., travel on team trips or to speak at banquets) that would place the individual in excess of commonly accepted educational expenses. However, the graduate assistant may receive those expenses incurred on road trips by the team that the individual coaches, in which case the expenses shall be limited to the same expenses that team members are permitted.

Road-trip eligibility

Under the provisions of Constitution 3-1-(g)-(2)-(iii), a member institution may not pay the expenses incurred by a student-athlete competing in an event that occurs at a time when the student-athlete is not regularly enrolled in a full-time program of studies during the regular academic year or when the student-athlete is not eligible to represent the institution.

Accordingly, a student-athlete who is ineligible to represent the institution in intercollegiate competition (e.g., a transfer student fulfilling a residence requirement) is not permitted to accompany the team to away contests even though the student-athlete is otherwise eligible to practice with the intercollegiate team. This prohibition also would apply to a situation in which an intercollegiate team has an extended trip away from the campus that includes practice sessions between competitions, inasmuch as the reason for the trip is the competition for which the individual is not eligible to participate.

Irish revive varsity ice hockey

The University of Notre Dame's long-time ice hockey coach, Charles "Lefty" Smith, will be back in the business of coaching a varsity team.

Notre Dame is restoring its men's ice hockey program to varsity status after a year at club level in an attempt to cut athletics costs. The Irish will play without Central Collegiate Hockey Association affiliation. The Fighting Irish will play a 38-game schedule, including three tournaments.

'Livelier' softball adopted for play-offs

A new softball will be manufactured for NCAA women's championship play in hopes of increasing the game's offense.

The Women's Softball Committee has selected the Dudley SB121ND as the official championship ball. Committee chair Gayle Blevins of Indiana University, Bloomington, said the ball is a modified version of a current Dudley product and will be manufactured especially for NCAA competition.

The Dudley SB121ND is a "white chrome" ball, as opposed to the "natural" ball used in the NCAA championships the past three years. Blevins said this should provide "a more consistent product in terms of quality and should help the hitters."

She said the new ball will be brighter and more durable. It also

Summer basketball leagues approved

The final five applications for summer basketball leagues have been approved by the NCAA Administrative Committee, acting for the Council.

The approval of four men's leagues and one women's league brings to 294 the final number of leagues approved by the Administrative Committee. Previous lists of approved summer basketball leagues appeared in the April 11, April 25, May 9, May 23, June 13, June 20, July 4 and

July 18 issues of The NCAA News.

Following are the final five leagues approved by the Administrative Committee:

Men's leagues

Connecticut—Connecticut Shoot-Out, New Haven; New Britain Senior Summer Basketball League, New Britain; Ohio—Oberlin Recreation Department Tournament, Oberlin; Pennsylvania—Uniontown Recreation Adult Basketball League, Uniontown.

Women's league

Connecticut—Connecticut Shoot-Out, New Haven.

Injury-surveillance plan termed success, but more data needed

The first year of the NCAA's injury-surveillance system has been termed a success by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

"We are pleased with the quality of data and the cooperation of member institutions," said chair Frederick O. Mueller of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. "The data have given us a better line on what is occurring, but we need two or three years of such data before any major trends can be identified."

The NCAA surveyed seven sports in 1983-84—football, women's volleyball, wrestling, women's gymnastics, baseball, men's lacrosse and women's lacrosse—and will monitor the same sports in 1984-85. The committee hopes to expand the system as staff and funding become available.

Review of the injury program highlighted the July 17-18 committee meeting held in Cottage Grove, Oregon. The committee also:

- Reviewed an annual report of catastrophic injuries and fatalities,

Letter of intent dates announced

Signing dates for the National Letter of Intent program have been announced by the Collegiate Commissioners Association, which administers the program.

A major change in the letter also was announced by Fred Jacoby, commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference and chair of the National Letter of Intent Steering Committee.

In the past, a student-athlete was not required to have arranged for a grant-in-aid from the institution before signing a letter-of-intent.

Now, a prospective student-athlete must have in writing a recommendation for financial aid from the institution before signing the letter-of-intent, Jacoby said.

The complete letter-of-intent signing dates are as follows:

Football—From February 1, 1985, to no later than May 1, 1985; men's basketball—November 14, 1984, through November 21, 1984, or April 10, 1985, to no later than May 15, 1985; all other men's sports—April 10, 1985, to no later than August 1, 1985.

Jacoby said that midyear junior college transfers in football could sign a letter-of-intent from December 12, 1984, to January 15, 1985.

Women's volleyball and field hockey—February 13, 1985, through August 1, 1985; women's basketball—November 14, 1984, through November 21, 1984, or April 10, 1985, to no later than May 15, 1985; all other women's sports—April 4, 1985, to no later than August 1, 1985.

will be livelier than a normal Dudley ball, thanks to a modification requested by the committee.

A subcommittee composed of Blevins; Emma J. McConkie of California State University, Sacramento, and June Walker of Trenton State College worked on the project. Blevins said the subcommittee's aim was to "give the edge back to the hitters while finding a quality product."

The subcommittee believes that the new product will increase the frequency of singles and doubles as well as home runs. A Dudley official estimated that the new ball will travel five feet farther over a 275-foot distance. Distances for NCAA championships are 190 feet to left field and right field and 220 feet to center field.

The new ball will be available September 1 and will include the NCAA logo. Meanwhile, institutions can purchase the existing Dudley version for use in fall competition.

noting that only two of the past year's injuries occurred in women's sports. In addition, catastrophic injuries in pole vaulting dropped from four to none, and no such injuries occurred in the "scoop start" in swimming, a new style that had been a cause of concern.

- Noted with sadness the death of committee member Marcus L. Plant, who died two days prior to the meeting.

- Discussed proposed guidelines for participation by pregnant student-athletes. The committee hopes to formulate a policy by its January meeting.

- Reviewed possible effects of altitude on performance in track and field and skiing at the request of the appropriate sports committees. The committee decided to study proposed track and field research before reaching a conclusion. In skiing, the committee concluded that altitude is not a potential health problem and that any competitive advantage could be minimized by alternating East and West championships sites.

- Considered a policy requiring a minimum number of practices in football. It was agreed that conference action would be more appropriate than a national policy now.

Football records book

NCAA Football, the complete compilation of in-season and postseason individual, team and coaching records, is available from the NCAA publishing department. The $5 publication, which also contains 1984 schedules for all NCAA member institutions, can be ordered from NCAA Publishing, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201. First-class postage is an additional $2.

Part, or all, of 14 members' sports programs unclassified

Fourteen NCAA institutions will have part or all of their athletics programs unclassified for the 1984-85 season as a result of actions taken by the NCAA Classification Committee at its July 10 meeting in San Francisco.

The committee actions mean that a particular sport or the entire athletics program does not qualify for membership in any division.

An institution that is unclassified is ineligible, for a minimum of one year, for NCAA championships in the sport or sports in which it is unclassified. In football, that includes postseason contests.

The following institutions are unclassified in the sports listed for the 1984-85 academic year:

Bemidji State University (Division II, football and men's basketball); Eureka College (Division III, football); Fort Lewis College (Division II, men's basketball); Franklin College (Division II, men's basketball); Illinois Institute of Technology (Division II, men's basketball); Knoxville College (Division III, football); Miles College (Division III, football);

University of Minnesota, Duluth (Division II, men's basketball); University of Minnesota, Morris (Division III, football and men's basketball); Polytechnic Institute of New York (Division III, men's basketball); University of Puget Sound (Division II, football); Southern University, New Orleans (Division III, men's basketball); Southern Oregon State College (Division II, all men's sports).

The committee removed the unclassified status from the following institutions, effective September 1, 1984:

University of Alaska, Anchorage (Division II, all men's sports); Davidson College (Division I-AA, football); Florida International University (Division II, men's basketball); Kentucky State University (Division II, all men's sports); Miles College (Division III, men's basketball); Morris Brown College (Division II, all men's sports); Northern Kentucky University (Division II, all men's sports); Savannah State College (Division II, all men's sports); St. Francis College (Pennsylvania) (Division I, all men's sports); Wichita State University (Division I-A, football).

Volunteers for Youth program: a marriage of energy, enthusiasm

By David P. Seifert
The NCAA News Staff

Some people have said that being a Volunteers for Youth national director is like experiencing "marriage without the fun stuff." It involves delaying a professional career for a year, traveling 30,000 miles and spending hour upon hour with other national directors in a job that many times becomes an all-consuming commitment.

Five recent college graduates are spending August in Kansas City with senior national director Audrey West, preparing for their year as national directors in the NCAA program that pairs college student-athletes with junior high school youths. Despite the many hurdles, none would pass up the opportunity.

"I would have been foolish to turn down this opportunity," said Liz Pardoe, who was a psychology major at Duke University and played club tennis. "It was a chance to pursue an area in which I already had expertise, meet more people and learn to juggle more responsibility. I could not pass up that challenge."

"That we enjoy working with people goes without saying," added Steve Holwerda, a basketball player who majored in commercial economics at

South Dakota State University. "But this gives us a chance to work on a national basis and meet a tremendous number of fine people—it is the chance of a lifetime."

The 1984-85 national directors have completed the first training phases, including a four-week conference tour involving nearly 100 VFY leaders. The group will hit the road September 1 and visit all 55 VFY programs by Christmas. Three additional programs may be added this year.

The NCAA Volunteers for Youth Committee reviewed the program's seven-year history at a recent meeting in Palo Alto, California, and termed it a success.

"We are pleased with the VFY's progress, particularly since it started as a pilot program," said chair Cecil N. Coleman of the Midwestern City Conference. "There were 1,500 matches of student-athletes and young people last year, and we hope that will increase in 1984-85."

Those 1,500 matches produced at least a few success stories like that of John Eaves, a national director for Morehouse College. Eaves, who played college football, worked with one youth for four years. The youth went from being "the classic under-achiever" to "an honor-roll student and a good athlete who hopes to attend college," Eaves proudly recalled.

Nancy Sieben, a biology major at North Dakota State University, had a different kind of success. Sieben, who participated in track, volleyball and basketball, spent three years as a founder and director of NDSU's program.

"Our advisers suggested that student directors devote their time to setting up and maintaining the program," Sieben remembered. "It was a great experience, but sometimes I wonder what it would have been like to work with a young person."

West, whose college experience was like Sieben's, noted that studies place the VFY as the least expensive youth program with one-to-one pairings. The program receives an annual grant from the NCAA but relies heavily on assistance from participating institutions. Institutional help enabled last year's national staff to operate on a daily cost of $12 to $14 per person.

The program also saves the community money, she said.

"A recent story placed the cost of housing one child in a youth detention home at $22,000 per year," she said.

Briefly in the News

"The Bear," a movie about college football's most successful coach, will be shown the first time September 20 in Birmingham, where coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's teams turned in many of his 323 victories and where he is buried. Proceeds from the premier will go toward establishing a Bear Bryant fund for the American Paralysis Association, a research foundation headed by Kent Waldrep, a former running back at Texas Christian University. Waldrep suffered a spinal-cord injury in a 1974 game against the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, that left him paralyzed. . . . The West Coast Athletic Conference has reinstated the WCAC baseball conference, and the league will begin competition next spring. The conference will be composed of teams from the University of San Diego; Loyola Marymount University; Pepperdine University; University of Santa Clara; St. Mary's College (California); University of San Francisco, and the University of Nevada, Reno, an allied member.

Sprinter Sunder Nix of Indiana University, Bloomington, and softball pitcher Lisa Ishikawa of Northwestern University are the 1984 Big Ten Conference-Jesse Owens athletes of the year. . . . Officials at Pennsylvania State University, the University of Pittsburgh and West Virginia University will test their football players for narcotics at the start of practice in August. The tests may be conducted periodically throughout the school year. "This is not a witch hunt," said Pittsburgh coach Scraffino "Foge" Fazio. "We think we're pretty clean. We don't think we have a problem, but we're going to do this when they first come in, and go from there. . . . The University of Colorado has announced that it will test varsity athletes for drug use this fall. The tests are part of a crackdown on drug use after a survey last spring indicated that 95 percent of the student body uses alcohol, 48 percent uses marijuana and 36 percent uses cocaine. . . . Almost 975,000 fans viewed Mississippi State University football, men's basketball, baseball and track teams in 1983-84, marking the highest attendance in school history.

The Eastern Association of Physical Education College Women has scheduled its annual conference October 26-28 at the Quality Inn conference center in Chicopee, Massachusetts. The conference theme: "Is the Future Ours?"

Outdoor track and cross country will be added to the women's program at the University of South Alabama next fall. The school then will have five women's varsity sports. . . . The University of Wisconsin, Whitewater, will add women's cross country and eliminate men's gymnastics. Jeff Miller, men's cross country coach and assistant track coach, will assume the women's cross country coaching responsibilities. The women's program now has nine sports and the men's 10.

Nearly one half of the women student-athletes at James Madison University achieved a B average for the spring semester. Of the 157 athletes, 72 had a grade-point average of 3.000 or higher. Almost one-third of the women have a cumulative GPA of 3.000 or better.

CONFERENCES

TOM TURNER, faculty athletics representative at North Carolina-Charlotte, has been named president of the Sun Belt Conference. Turner, a faculty member since 1966, is chair of the department of accounting and also serves as chair of the institution's athletics committee. A graduate of Furman, Turner is the only member of the original group of conference athletics directors, basketball coaches and faculty representatives who were serving in their present capacities when the conference was founded in 1976. . . . JOHN CANNON, former SID at San Francisco State, has been named publicity director for the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference. He also has worked in television in the San Francisco area.

NOTABLES

BILL OAKLEY, a former staff writer in the Alabama office of university relations, named public relations director of the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Committee Changes

Football Rules Committee—JIM BUTTERFIELD, Ithaca College, appointed to replace Eugene M. Haas, Gettysburg College, effective September 1, 1984. Haas declined reelection. Division I Women's Basketball—JOHN V. KASSER, California State University, Long Beach, instead of University of Houston.

Women's Tennis—JEFF MOORE, University of Texas, Austin, appointed to replace Charlotte Peterson, Memphis State University, resigned. Division II Women's Volleyball—Address change for Tania Torrence: 2407 White Gate Drive No. 2E (instead of No. 1A), Columbia, Missouri 65202; JANE MEIER, Northern Kentucky University, appointed to replace Kathleen J. DeBoer, now at the University of Kentucky, a Division I institution.

Council—Jean Cerra, University of Missouri, Columbia, instead of Cerra-Decker.

Community and Junior College Relations—Replacement to be appointed for John V. Kasser now at California State University, Long Beach, instead of the University of Houston.

1985 Division III Women's Softball Championship from 16 to 20 teams was denied.

Men's Swimming and Diving—Qualifying standards for the 1985 men's swimming and diving championships were approved, and Emory University was selected as the site for the 1985 Division III championships March 21-23.

Women's Swimming and Diving—The Executive Committee also approved qualifying standards for 1985 women's swimming and diving championships but denied a request to increase the number of divers for the 1985 championships from 30 to 32.

Men's Tennis—A request to provide transportation costs for an eighth team member in Division I was denied. In Divisions II and III, the field was retained at 90 participants.

Men's and Women's Track and Field—Pennsylvania State University was approved as the site for the 1984 Division I Men's and Women's Cross Country Championships November 19, and Furman University will host the 1985 events November 18. The Executive Committee also approved East Stroudsburg University of Pennsylvania as host for the 1985 Division II Men's and Women's Cross Country Championships November 16. In indoor track, the Executive Committee approved North Dakota State University as host for the 1985 Division II Men's and Women's Indoor Track Championships and determined the events and qualifying standards for each championship. The 1985 Division III indoor championships will be held at Bates College March 8-9. In outdoor track, the Executive Committee approved a recommendation to replace the 12-placing scoring system with an eight-place scoring system.

In other action, the Executive Committee approved a report from the Special Committee to Review Championship Policies. A separate story will appear in the August 29 issue of The NCAA News.

won a bronze medal for his performance on the pommel horse. Daggett was runner-up to Gaylord in the 1984 NCAA all-around and won individual titles on the pommel horse, rings and parallel bars.

In swimming, six NCAA collegians won three medals each for the United States. Winning three medals each for the U.S. men's team were Pablo Morales of Stanford, Rick Carey of Texas and Mike Heath of Florida. Triple winners for the women were Nancy Hogshead of Duke, Tracy Caulkins of Florida and Mary T. Meagher of California.

Not surprisingly, the men's trio swam for the top three teams at the 1984 NCAA Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships—Florida, Texas and Stanford.

Morales, who won silver medals in the 100-meter butterfly and 200-meter individual medley and a gold in the 400-meter medley relay, won both butterfly events at the 1984 NCAA championships.

Carey, a senior at Texas, won the same events he won at the 1984 NCAA championships—100 back-league play.

Play-off semifinalist Wisconsin-LaCrosse returns 19 starters from last year's 9-3-1 team. The Indians have had 14 consecutive winning seasons under coach Roger Herring and again should be in the running, along with defending champion Wisconsin-Eau Claire. Wisconsin-River Falls and Wisconsin-Whitewater, for the Wisconsin State Conference title.

The Ohio Athletic Conference has a new look with the departure of Wooster, Denison, Ohio Wesleyan, Kenyon and Oberlin to form the North Coast Conference with Case Reserve and Allegheny, former members of the Presidents' Conference. The OAC will switch from a champion Baldwin-Wallace, Muskingum and Wittenberg—are expected to battle for the title.

Case Reserve, which lost only one starter from last year's 8-1 top-10 team, and Denison are favored in the North Coast.

Other top teams, by conference, in the region include: Iowa Intercollegiate—Wartburg and Central (Iowa); Midwest—Lake Forest, Cornell College and Coe; Minnesota Athletic—St. Thomas, St. John's (Minnesota) and Gustavus Adolphus; Nebraska Intercollegiate—Nebraska Wesleyan.

The region's top independents are Dayton and DePauw.

West

Occidental, a first-round play-off loser, is favored to defend its Southern California Conference title; however, Whittier also could be a title challenger.

"If we can prevent a few of these cases, then the grant and the colleges' help have been worth the expense."

Community help like the institutions are providing is a primary reason for Chris Waters' VFY involvement. Waters was a swimmer at Arizona State University and majored in intercultural communication and Spanish.

"I grew up in Tempe and had been involved in many activities where I was given help," he said. "The VFY gives me a chance to give back to the community some of the rewards I have received."

stroke, 200 backstroke and 400 medley relay. He has won six NCAA titles.

Heath helped the U.S. team win the 400 and 800 freestyle relays, and he claimed a silver medal in the 200 freestyle. He helped the Gators win their second consecutive NCAA title last March with victories in the 200 freestyle and 800 freestyle relay.

As she has done in many NCAA championships, Caulkins won the 200 and 400 individual medleys without much opposition. She also swam for the gold-medal winning 400-medley relay team. Caulkins won four individual titles and was part of two winning relay teams at the 1984 NCAA championships, bringing to 16 the number of NCAA titles she has won during the past three years.

Meagher, the 1983 NCAA butterfly champion, won both butterfly events at the Olympics and swam with Caulkins on the winning 400-medley relay team. Hogshead, who helped the 400 freestyle relay team to a gold medal, won the 100 freestyle and finished second in the 200 individual medley.

The other multiple winner in swimming was Arizona's George DiCarlo, who won a gold medal in the 400 freestyle and a silver in the 1,500 freestyle. DiCarlo won the 500 freestyle at the 1984 NCAA championships.

In track and field, Sam Graddy of Tennessee and Antonio McKay of Georgia Tech were multiple medal winners. Graddy finished second to Carl Lewis in the 100 meters and ran a leg on the winning 400 relay team. Graddy won the 100 at the 1984 NCAA championships.

McKay, the 1984 NCAA champion at 400 meters, finished third in Los Angeles in the same event and helped the 1,600-meter relay team to the gold medal.

Although the men's volleyball team (gold medal) and men's water polo team (silver medal) did not have any current NCAA performers, many of the key participants were former NCAA stars, including Karch Kiraly, former UCLA volleyball standout.

All 12 members of the U.S. men's basketball championship team played this past season at NCAA member schools, including Patrick Ewing of champion Georgetown. Five of the 12 members of the women's championship team are NCAA performers.

Following is a list of medal winners by NCAA student-athletes and coaches:

Wrestling, freestyle: 125.5 class (Silver)—Barry Davis, Iowa.

Rich Hilliard joins enforcement staff

Rich Hilliard, a former student-athlete at Boston College, has joined the NCAA enforcement department as an enforcement representative.

Hilliard joins the NCAA from Chicago, where he worked in a law firm while completing law school. He is a graduate of John Marshall Law School. At John Marshall, Hilliard was a student representative to the disciplinary committee and a member of the law student division of the American Arbitration Association.

A dean's list student at Boston College, Hilliard earned his undergraduate degree in political science and speech communications. He played on the junior varsity football team and served as sports director of the student radio station and sports columnist on the student newspaper.
