Questions about travel service answered

The following is a series of answers to the most commonly asked questions regarding Fugazy International Travel, Inc., which provides travel service for the NCAA and its member institutions:

Q. If I know it is very likely that our athletes will qualify for championship competition, when is the earliest I may contact the travel service?

A. Technically, reservations can be entered in the computer 330 days before departure. Early reservations are accepted and encouraged; however, ticketing may not occur until closer to the event.

Q. If I make my reservation early for a championship, when can I expect my ticket?

A. Tickets are mailed no earlier than two weeks before departure. If reservations are made within 1½ weeks of the date of departure, the tickets will be sent via Federal Express to ensure prompt arrival.

Academics, autonomy are items facing NCAA Council

Proposed legislation for the 1985 NCAA Convention—including possible modification of "Proposal No. 48" [Bylaw 5-1-(j)], increased voting autonomy within Division I and limitations on playing seasons in all sports in all divisions—will dominate the fall meeting of the NCAA Council October 15-17 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri.

The Council and the three division steering committees will review all legislation submitted by the date of the meeting, including that being proposed by the NCAA Presidents' Commission. The Council will receive a report on all actions taken at the October 3-4 meeting of the Commission.

The meeting also represents the Council's final opportunity to determine legislation it wishes to sponsor at the 1985 Convention inasmuch as all legislation must be submitted by November 1.

Meeting in conjunction with the Council will be the Special Committee on Women's Interests and the Nominating Committee. Both will meet October 14.

Other items on the Council agenda:

- Appointments to all Council-appointed committees to fill vacancies occurring September 1, 1985. The Council will consider all individuals recommended by NCAA members in response to a call for nominations in the July 18, 1984, issue of The NCAA News.

- Consideration of establishing an ongoing discussion forum for faculty athletics representatives, the only constituent group within the NCAA that does not have its own national organization.

- Reports from the Eligibility Committee, Special Committee on Financial Assistance for Student-Athletes, Governmental Affairs Committee, High School All-Star Games Committee, Football Television Committee and the Special Committee on Women's Interests.

In addition, the Nominating Committee will present its reaction to a recommendation that NCAA elections include more than one candidate for each position and be conducted by mail or secret ballot.

The agenda also includes the customary review of Administrative Committee actions, membership matters and interpretations.

In their separate sessions during the Council meeting, the Divisions I, II and III Steering Committees will review all matters on the Council agenda that directly affect their divisions.

In addition to those items, the ## Commission to report October 10

Actions taken by the NCAA Presidents' Commission in its October 3-4 meeting in Kansas City will be announced in a press conference to be conducted Wednesday (October 10) in Indianapolis.

Commission Chair John W. Ryan, president of Indiana University, Bloomington, will report the Commission's actions and answer questions from the news media attending the press conference, which is scheduled for 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Indianapolis. Both national and Indianapolis area media have been invited to the press conference.

Thirty-four of the 44 Commission members attended the October 3-4 meeting, the second held by the Commission. Its next meeting will be January 13 in conjunction with the 1985 NCAA Convention in Nashville.

A report on the press conference and the Commission's actions will appear in the October 15 issue of The NCAA News.

Bill aimed at nullifying Grove City ruling dies

Civil-rights legislation designed to nullify the February 1984 Grove City decision by the U.S. Supreme Court died in the final days of the 98th Congress when the Senate voted October 2 to table the measure.

The 53 to 45 vote followed a week of intense debate and procedural maneuvering as proponents, led by Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Massachusetts) and Sen. Robert Packwood (R-Oregon), attached the measure to the continuing resolution spending bill in an effort to obtain passage. Sen. Oren Hatch (R-Utah) led the successful effort against passage of the measures by reportedly introducing more than 1,300 amendments.

The dispute over the bill centered on whether, as proponents asserted, it merely would reinstate the law (Title IX) as it existed prior to Grove City or whether, as opponents argued, it would vastly expand Federal jurisdiction. Critics claimed that the wording of the House bill was so vague that it could be interpreted to cover ultimate beneficiaries of Federal aid, such as farmers who receive Federal crop subsidies, and persons who receive proceeds from Federal Social Security or pension checks, such as landlords, retailers and banks.

In June, by a vote of 375 to 32, the House of Representatives passed civil-rights legislation that would have amended Title IX, Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 to apply to any "recipient" of Federal financial assistance rather than to any "program or activity" receiving Federal aid. A parallel bill was cosponsored by 63 of the 100 senators.

In response to claims that the bill would vastly expand Federal

SEC sporting best nonconference record this season

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

The Southeastern Conference, consistently near the top in won-lost rankings against Division I-A nonconference opponents for many years, is back in its familiar No. 1 position so far this season, while the Pacific-10 Conference, the 1982 leader, and the Southwest Conference, the 1981 leader, are making strong comebacks from a down year in 1983.

The SEC has won 23, lost eight and tied two against I-A nonconference opponents for a .727 percentage. A year ago, the SEC finished 36-16-3 for .682, including a 5-2 record in bowls. The Pacific-10 is next at .655 on a 19-10 record; then come the Eastern independents at .596 on 15-10-1 and the Southwest at .583 on 10-7-1. No other conference is above .500, with the Big Ten—finished except for the bowls—exactly .500 on 10-10.

Remember, all games against teams below I-A are deleted, and in some cases this would make a difference in the rankings. The SWC, for instance, is 4-0 against Division I-AA opponents. All the I-A teams combined have won 43, lost 12 against I-AA teams for a .782 winning percentage, which is normal—it is usually above 75 percent.

This system, however, says nothing about the quality of opposition, other than only I-A nonconference opponents are considered. It also can be argued that it simply proves something that does not need proving—that the top teams in one conference will beat the bottom teams in another conference. For it is true there are not many matchups involving top teams—most of those come in the bowls.

SEC a constant

But when a conference finishes at or near the top almost every year, as does the Southeastern, maybe that means something. Also, the SEC's challengers every year seem to be the Pacific-10, the Big Eight (down this year), the Eastern independents and the Southwest.

A year ago, the Big Eight was second at 21-14-1 with the Big Ten next at 13-11. In 1982, the Pacific-10 edged the SEC because of the bowl results. In 1981, the SWC was first with the SEC again second.

The Atlantic Coast Conference ranks sixth so far this season at 8-9; then come the Southern independents at 14-17, other independents (other than Eastern and Southern, that is) 4-5, the Big Eight Conference 12-16, the Western Athletic Conference 8-11, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association 6-12, Mid-American Conference 1-8 and the Missouri Valley Conference's two I-A members 0-7 against outside I-A teams.

This is the traditional week to look at the nonconference rankings, because the bulk of such games already have been played in most conferences. The Big Ten, as mentioned, is finished except for the bowls, while the Big Eight has just one game left—Oklahoma vs.

Baylor became 'beacon of light' for privates

By Al Carter
Houston Chronicle

Ten years ago last month, at an airport in Columbia, Missouri, Grant Teaff sat down on a row of steps and waited for a charter plane to cart him away.

With his confidence worn, his faith shaken and his Baylor football team 0-2 after losing that day to Missouri, Teaff let go of his burden. He sat on the steps and cried.

"We had played so well," Teaff recalls, "but as I sat there, all I could see was 11 losses and two wins for two seasons. Everything looked so bad."

Seven weeks later, according to Southwest Conference scripture, the miracle happened. Baylor beat Texas and the face of Southwest Conference football changed.

But even on the day it happened, Baylor's deliverance was slow to be recognized as anything more than another occasion for Bear fans to count their blessings, none of which, they were being assured by the Texas Longhorns, were football-related.

As Teaff walked in the Baylor Stadium tunnel at half time, his team down to the Horns, 24-7, he saw his quarterback, Neal Jeffrey, with a smile on his face.

Nothing Teaff saw amused him.

He pinned his quarterback to the wall. "What are you smiling about?" he asked.

"Coach, we've got them right where we want them," Jeffrey said. "What do you mean?"

"Coach, we're moving the ball," Jeffrey said. "They've had their half and we're going to have ours. Coach, we're going to win the football game."

They did, of course, with 27 unanswered second-half points that dropped the Horns like a row of

Not only was UT's 16-year mastery of the Bears over, but Baylor fans reveled in the knowledge that the Horns would likely beat Texas A&M at season's end (they did), and the Bears, by winning the rest of their games (they did), would win their first SWC title in 50 years and play in the Cotton Bowl for the first time.

Herbert Reynolds, now the school's president, and Ralph Storm, a trustee and prominent football booster, returned to the press box with two in the 1980s. And for every victory-starved fan at Rice or Texas Christian, or even Georgia Tech or Northwestern or Wake Forest, the Baylor example remains an essence of hope.

"We became," Teaff says, "the beacon of light for all private universities."

That, of course, is just the way Baylor's never-say-die and can't-say-can't coach likes it. The man who wrote the book on how to believe admits that "I Believe" would have been eyes-only reading had his players not turned their coach's faith into field goals and touchdowns. The record shows they did.

"What happened may have been a miracle in the eyes of many people," Teaff says, "but if you really believe something can be accomplished, if you work to see it accomplished, you're not going to be as surprised as some people when it happens."

That's not to make it sound like a load of laundry. Teaff arrived from Angelo State to take over a program that had won three games in three years and was sadly lacking in facilities and funds.

"We couldn't get a respected player in the state to even visit us," Teaff says. "They'd just laugh at us. Sometimes we'd talk to a player and he'd get all fired up for the Bears, but then he had to face that negative image in the community about Baylor. I'd get a phone call the next day and the player would say, 'Coach, I'm sorry, I'm not going to visit.'"

It was that kind of challenge, Teaff says, that made him all the more determined to succeed.

"I came out of a small church-related school and was not a spoiled coach by any sense of the imagination," he says. "But I had experience in the process by which you evaluate talent. If you know how to evaluate talent, you can get by with the facilities and the money you have."

Teaff's first Baylor team won five games, enough to catch the eye, and eventually the signature, of many of the state's best high school players. A 2-9 relapse in 1973 failed to bow the Baylor youngsters, but season-opening losses to Oklahoma and Missouri in 1974 stretched Teaff's faith to the limit. Then the Bears bounced back to beat Oklahoma State at home and Florida State on the road.

Destiny declared Grant Teaff was worth a date.

"If you had to sum up the last 10 years," Teaff says, "you'd have to say we've done it our way. I believed we could do it and do it our way. Through the toughest times, that has sustained me."

Columnary Craft

Goliaths and produced events strange enough to be borrowed from Moses' tablet.

With the outcome a certainty late in the game, Baylor coaches upstairs reported over their headsets a most unusual spectacle on Valley Mills Drive outside the stadium. Hundreds of former disbelievers were jammed bumper-to-bumper trying to get back into the stadium. Their path was blocked by hundreds of distressed UT fans trying to get out.

It was the day gridlock came to Waco. The solution for the repentants was simply to park their autos in the road and hike to the celebration. And how they celebrated.

sleeping bags and kept the scoreboard burning all night. Even unto the dawn, the doubting Thomases drove by to bear witness to the 34-24 score.

A decade later, the "Miracle of the Brazos" stands as a college football milestone.

In an age when private schools had been written off athletically—ceremoniously buried, in fact, on a 1974 cover of one state-wide magazine—the Bears rose from the tomb of a 2-9 season to win the SWC title and reestablish one of the most success-forsaken programs in the nation.

From a manuscript to be published

"Application of properly adopted NCAA rules to an individual (student-athlete, coach, administrator) exists entirely within the member institution and its procedures. Accordingly, while the ultimate authority for the NCAA member institution is the NCAA, which is the entire membership in a one-member, one-vote concept, the ultimate authority for an individual affected in some way by the rules is the member institution."

"By maintaining membership, the member subscribes to effective application of the rules, which includes application to individuals within the member's purview."

Unless you are very gifted, you must squeeze study time into your schedule. And sometimes, you have to take courses not even pertaining to your major just to ease the load and stay eligible. Many spend their summers trying to make up the courses they could have taken except for the time pressure."

"I'd had problems before. I wasn't that much interested in school. I thought I was here just to play football. But I learned last year that there are no good jobs out there unless you have that degree. My friends out there who did not finish college have rinky-dink jobs and they're not happy."

Skip Bayless, columnist

Dallas Times Herald

"I am not kidding or a communist. I may be a crackpot, but more than ever, I believe the NCAA must allow the best school seniors to make their best deal with the school of their choice. What, basically, do you think is going on now?"

"Rid itself of amateur hypocrisy and the NCAA rids itself of taint. These days, lots of casual readers do think of coaches and alums as sort of amateur mafia. Yet if guilty, [Southern Methodist Director of Athletics Bob] Hitch and coach Bobby Collins will not get five to 10. If convicted, they have violated only the NCAA's rules."

Dirk Nelson, football player

"I feel (and I'm sure I'm in the minority) that a student-athlete should prove himself both on the field and in the classroom prior to getting financial aid. I think it is superfluous for a person to receive a scholarship when he may never play a down and/or his academic performance may be subpar. I do not think it is fair to get paid for not doing the work."

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

In your Opinions Out Loud column, a syndicated columnist writes that no school cheats to get someone in school unless he's an athlete. He notes that schools don't cheat to get a debater or a kid for the literary society. He ends by asking, "So why are we cheating in sports?"

Perhaps sports is the only area where anyone worries about cheating. Are you limited to four-year eligibility in the school band? Does the debate team care if you passed 24 hours the preceding year? Has anyone ever been ineligible for the literary society because he accepted a pair of shoes or appeared in a TV commercial?

Does this mean we should tolerate cheating in sports? No.

What it means is that you cannot compare the role of a student-athlete to that of other students. It just doesn't work.

I'm talking about growth in character, maturity, self-respect and pride, the respect of others, responsibility, honesty; and the list continues with those traits that are the building blocks of any 'good' individual. Eddie Robinson, football coach and athletics director
Grambling State University

The Chronicle of Higher Education

"I agree with Mr. Walter Byers that illegal recruiting and other misconduct is widespread and that the NCAA needs help. The NCAA can't do it all. What people are really doing is saying, 'I'll cheat and I'll beat the NCAA.' Many people feel that if they are not caught by the NCAA, then they are not cheating."

TRIM'S ARENA

"WHAT DO I LIKE BETTER ABOUT BASEBALL THAN FOOTBALL? THE RAIN-OUTS!"

SEC

Texas this Saturday in a battle of unbeaten teams.

Keep in mind the rankings do not include games against teams below I-A. The ACC is 5-1 in such games, Big Eight 3-0, PCAA 5-1, Southern independents 7-1 and Eastern independents 5-0 (the SEC played only one I-AA foe and won.)

I-AA picture

The Division I-AA picture is so scrambled by a wide variety of divisional scheduling that it is next to impossible to get an accurate reading, but the figures are food for some thought.

If you included only games against either I-A or I-AA outside opponents, the Yankee Conference leads at 11-6 for .647, the Eastern independents 11-9 for .550, the Southland Conference 11-10 for .524 and all other conferences and independent groups are below the break-even .500 level (because of the division's 12-43 record vs. I-A opponents).

However, if you consider only games against other I-AA teams outside the conference, the Southland leads at 10-2 for .833. Then come the Southern Conference at 6-3, the Southern independents at 8-4-1, Yankee 10-6 and Eastern independents 11-8.

As an example of scheduling variety, Big Sky Conference teams have played just two I-AA foes outside the conference and are 1-1, but they stand 1-7 against I-A and 9-1 against teams below I-AA. The SLC is 1-8 against I-A teams, the Southern independents 0-7, the Southern is 3-8 and the Eastern independents 0-1.

The Division I-AA teams have won 61, lost 18 so far against opponents below I-AA, which more than offsets the 12-43 mark against I-A teams. Against all nonconference opponents, regardless of classification, the Yankee is 13-6, Mid-Continent Conference 11-5 (7-0 against foes below I-AA), Eastern independents 15-9, Big Sky 11-9, Ohio Valley Conference 12-10, Southland 14-11, Southern independents 15-14-1, Southern 12-13, Gulf Star 9-10, Missouri Valley Conference I-AA members 10-13, Southwestern Athletic Conference 6-8-1, Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference 4-9 and Ivy League 3-9.

Another field-goal record

Just when you think the nation's Division I-A field-goal kickers cannot get any more accurate, they get even more accurate. An amazing 74 percent of all attempts were successful last Saturday, breaking the all-time mark of 73.2 percent last November 19. A total of 131 were successful out of 177 attempts in 52 games. That is an average of 2.52 per game (both teams combined), barely below the record-high 2.53 on September 22.

For the year to date, the per-game average is 2.35, well above the record 2.11 set last year; and so far 68.3 percent have been good, well above the record 65.7 accuracy of last year.

Nine perfects in each division

With the season approaching the half-way point, only nine undefeated-untied teams are left in Division I-A and nine in I-AA. In I-A, Cal State Fullerton has six victories; Washington and Brigham Young five each; Kentucky, South Carolina and Oklahoma four each, and Boston College, Southern Methodist and Texas three each. In I-AA, five of the perfects have five victories—Boston U.; Middle Tennessee, Murray State, Tennessee State and Indiana State. Three teams have four—Alcorn State, Mississippi Valley State and Holy Cross—and Pennsylvania has three.

"Mayor of Munchkinville"

At a booster luncheon last Friday in Stockton, California, Cal State Fullerton coach Gene Murphy presented a pair of very, very high-

Mississippi Valley's Jerry Rice leads Division I-AA in receiving, scoring and all-purpose running heeled shoes to Pacific athletics director Carl Miller, who is well under six feet tall. Miller was Murphy's boss at North Dakota. An extra inch of heel was added to the already one-plus-inch heels. The shoes, scrounged out of my closet and at least seven years old and well out of style, were painted—one orange and one black (Pacific's colors) and inscribed: "Carl Miller—The Mayor of Munchkinville." (Mel Franks, Cal State Fullerton SID)

The game was a wild affair, too, with Fullerton winning, 41-31.

Toughest schedule ranking

The toughest schedule faced by any Division I-A team so far this season? The computer says Kansas State. Its four I-A opponents have a 10-2 record for .833 so far against other I-A teams when not playing Kansas State (as a group, in other words, they are 14-2, but this includes 4-0 against Kansas State). The four are Vanderbilt, Texas Christian, Oklahoma and South Carolina. All four were unbeaten when Kansas State played them and two still are unbeaten.

Next are Southern Methodist at .800, Hawaii .778, Baylor .750, Miami (Florida) .731, Alabama .727, Tulane .722, Penn State and Rutgers tied at .714, and Maryland and Oregon State tied for 10th at .706.

How about the remaining schedules? Rutgers' remaining I-A foes are .708, Baylor's are .674 and Alabama's are .625, but most of the others are around the break-even point. Kentucky is playing the toughest future schedule. Its remaining I-A opponents are .722 (18-6-3) at this stage. Then come Vanderbilt at .7174, Georgia .7167, Florida and Rutgers tied at .708, Notre Dame .688, Baylor .674, Boston College .672, West Virginia and Southern California tied at .667, and Tennessee .650.

The leaders in I-AA

In Division I-AA, the toughest schedule so far goes to Dartmouth, whose I-AA foes are 8-1 for .889 against I-A and I-AA opponents when not playing Dartmouth. Boise State is next at 13-3 for .813. Next are Northwestern Louisiana .778, Grambling State .769, Brown .750, Eastern Illinois .722, Tennessee-Chattanooga .700, Nicholls State .692, and Harvard and Mississippi Valley State both .688.

The toughest future schedule goes to Georgia Southern, whose remaining I-AA opponents are 10-3 for .769 so far against I-A and I-AA foes when not playing Georgia Southern. Next are North Texas State .750, William and Mary .679, Holy Cross .643, Rhode Island .636, New Hampshire .630, Jackson State .611, Connecticut .607, and Western Carolina and Florida A&M tied at .588.

Quotes of the week

With California off to a 1-3 start, there was talk last week in Berkeley

Hope senior Greg Heeres ranks among the leaders in passing efficiency in Division III that the city's honeymoon with coach Joe Kapp might be over. Asked about it by Walter Berry of the Associated Press, Kapp replied: "What honeymoon? There was never any honeymoon. Don't you recall all the criticism of hiring a beat-up old Mexican quarterback with a wobbly knee and a pot belly?" (Kapp is a Cal alumnus who guided the Golden Bears to a 7-4 record in 1982 before slipping to 5-5-1 last year.)

"The media absolutely love us," Kapp added with a laugh. "Who cares? Hey, life is trouble. To be alive is to undo your belt and look for trouble. That's what football is all about. I thought San Jose State wanted it more than we did. It stinks. It corrodes the innards. We need to hit harder, be faster, be smarter and be better looking. That's what it takes. It'll be a pleasure to play Arizona State. We enjoy coming down." (Final score: California 19, Arizona State 14.)

East Carolina coach Ed Emory still had a sense of humor even though his team was an unexpected 1-4 going into last Saturday's game at Pittsburgh, which was then an even more unexpected 0-4: "We expected to have to rebuild this season, but we didn't expect urban renewal." (Pittsburgh won, 17-10.) (Bob Gennarelli, East Carolina SID)

Nancy Osborne, a 44-year-old mother of three teenagers, is like any other Nebraska fan. She enjoys going to bowl games—so much so that her husband, Tom, the Cornhusker coach, is a bit envious. "Almost every year we've been here, we've been able to go to a bowl," she told a women's auxiliary meeting in Omaha recently. "Of course, the guys have to work. But it is really fun for the coaches' wives. Tom said that in his next life he wants to come back as a coach's wife. He said that when we were lying on the beach in Miami." (Don Bryant, Nebraska SID)

Cal State Fullerton is off to its best start in its 15-year football history at 6-0, but there are occasional rough spots, says sophomore defensive tackle Ron McLean. After a particularly rugged practice, coach Gene Murphy dumped over the water table because players were not following procedures. The irrepressible McLean summed it up this way: "We've got no stadium, we've got no dorms, we get no water, the coaches hate us, no one respects us. All we got is us." (Mel Franks, Cal State Fullerton SID)

Nebraska-Omaha began the season with 40 juniors or seniors, 32 lettermen and 13 starters from last year's 9-2, 10th-ranked NCAA Division II team, giving the Mavericks a distinct veteran appearance.

When a reporter mentioned this possible edge with so many veteran players, coach Sandy Buda said: "Yeah, we're such a veteran team that we have to have a team doctor along who specializes in varicose veins."

Tennessee coach Johnny Majors after a 24-24 tie with Army, a 20-point underdog: "Thank God those people are on our side if we do get in a crisis. That's the best thing you can say about this game." (Haywood Harris, Tennessee SID)

Told that the Penn State game in East Rutherford, New Jersey, was considered a neutral site, Texas coach Fred Akers replied: "I don't know how neutral it is. I would have preferred Amarillo." (Bill Little, Texas SID)

Washington State coach Jim Walden, after his team edged Ball State by two points: "My players are eternally trying to make me a lot older than I want to be."

Walden on his team's high ranking statistically: "I didn't get into coaching to try to impress people with stats. You can count on the fingers of one hand the people who care about stats compared to the people who care about points and wins."

Stanford coach Jack Elway on Arizona State safety David Fulcher, who had 12 tackles and two pass deflections: "That guy looks a lot bigger in life than he does on film."

Oregon State's Donald Beavers, on returning punts: "I thought that anybody who did it was crazy. The ways dudes fly down the field, you can get your head knocked off. It's wild back there, but now I'm enjoying it." (Jim Muldoon, Pacific-10 SID)

Asked how he was going to stop Rhodes College kicker Jim Hever, who had kicked a Division III record six field goals the previous week against Millsaps, Washington (Missouri) coach Fred Remmy said: "We're scheduled to play it on our refurbished field (Francis Field) for the first time this year, but as of today (two days before the game), they have yet to erect goal posts. I think that is the best solution to stop Hever—not allowing him to kick at anything." As it turned out, Washington won to snap an eight-game losing streak, and St. Louis Globe-Democrat writer Nick Sortal

Mike Prindle of Western Michigan is among Division I-A scoring leaders with 14 field goals

jokingly said: "I hope the students don't tear down the goal posts." (Mike Wolf, Washington, Missouri, SID)

Oklahoma State kicker Larry Roach on his job as placement specialist: "It's a lonely business. Somebody once told me kickers are like spare tires—you never think about them until you need them."

Kansas State defender Mark Newton on his playing time as a freshman: "Maybe 30 seconds...just long enough to get run over." Kansas State coach Jim Dickey before the South Carolina game last Saturday: "Every team we've lost to this year has been undefeated at the time and I'm glad to see South Carolina will hold up its end of the bargain this week."

Kansas coach Mike Gottfried before his team's league opener last Saturday, a 33-14 victory over Iowa State: "We've been picked for last place in the preseason polls and I'd like to prove those predictions erroneous." (Tim Allen, Big Eight Conference SID)

When Scott Stiegler, a sideline reporter for the James Madison radio network, told coach Challace McMillin that Warren Marshall was only eight yards shy of the school rushing mark of 216, it was the team's final possession and Marshall was out of the game, as neither he nor the coach knew about the record. Marshall had taken a pounding and had a slight limp, but when the coach asked him about his condition, Marshall replied: "Coach, I can limp eight yards." On his first play, Marshall scampered 37 yards for a touchdown. (Ken Ries, James Madison SID)

Western Michigan's Mike Prindle had set an all-time, all-divisions record of seven field goals, plus a record 24 kick points. It was determined he had a total of 20 kicks for the day including kickoffs, while starting quarterback Steve Hoffman had thrown only 21 passes. Said coach Jack Harbaugh: "It's the only time I know of that we had to ice the kicker's leg instead of the quarterback's arm." (John Beatty, Western Michigan SID)

Gap narrows, but I-A attendance up

The gap over last year was made narrower last Saturday, but Division I-A attendance remained 3.39 percent above last year at this stage in per-game terms, with 43,915 per game and 82.8 percent capacity. Division I-AA lost a little ground. It is now 2.97 percent behind in per-game average and percent of capacity, which had been running ahead of 1983, dropped slightly behind. The chart:

	Games	Attendance	Average	Percent Capacity
Division I-A season figures to date .....	270	11,857,046	43,915	82.8
Same 105 teams at this stage in 1983 .....	287	12,190,945	42,477	79.6
Division I-AA season figures to date .....	219	2,401,973	10,968	55.0
Same 87 teams at this stage in 1983 .....	217	2,452,993	11,304	55.4

Division II team leaders

Division III tournament should have familiar faces

Division I is not the only place where change is occurring in collegiate men's ice hockey. It is a season of change for non-Division I teams as well. But in their case, the change may just mean more of the same.

The NCAA Division II Men's Ice Hockey Championship has been discontinued after seven years and replaced by a Division III tournament. Last year, championships were held in both divisions.

The change should benefit Division III institutions, because there were 57 ice hockey-playing members in that division last year and only 15 in Division II.

Division III institutions can award financial aid only on a need basis, so a different championship cast normally might be expected. Not so, according to most coaches.

"There should not be much effect in the East," said Rob Riley, coach of Babson's 1984 Division III title team. "It is confusing in the East, because several New England schools compete in the NAIA tournament. But not too many teams should be hurt."

Further complicating the East is the Eastern College Athletic Conference structure. Several institutions that compete in the ECAC's Division II are NCAA Division III members, and vice versa.

"The change probably will make it even more difficult for ECAC Division III members," Riley said. "I expect to see the same faces in a different NCAA tournament."

Babson is expected to be one of those familiar faces, along with 1983 Division II champion Rochester Institute of Technology. Norwich, Plattsburgh State and Union (New York) are other former tournament teams that could return this year.

RIT was favored to win last year's inaugural Division III tournament since most of the key players from the previous Division II title team were back. Union spoiled those plans with a memorable four-overtime upset in semifinal play. Less than 24 hours later, the Dutchmen had to face Babson for the title and were defeated decisively.

An Eastern team that will be hurt by the change is Merrimack. The Warriors will compete in Division I this year in order to continue awarding athletically related financial aid and to continue playing in the ECAC's Division II. Merrimack, winner of the first Division II title, will join three-time Division II champion and archrival Lowell, which moved to Division I a year ago.

In the West, Alaska-Anchorage and Alaska-Fairbanks also preferred the Division I route to eliminating grants-in-aid. Their departure and the relatively minor adjustments faced by Division II teams from Minnesota are likely to mean familiar results in the West, also.

"I do not think the change will make a lot of difference," said Donald E. Roberts, coach at Gustavus Adolphus and subcommittee chair of the NCAA Men's Ice Hockey Committee. "The Division II schools were not giving that much aid, so they still should be able to recruit effectively."

"This should result in a more unified national structure, though," he added. "The continuity of the championship should be enhanced, because it is geared toward the majority, which are institutions philosophically committed to Division III."

Bemidji State, 1984 Division II champion, is expected to be part of that championship continuity. Mankato State and Wisconsin-River Falls are others that might return to postseason play.

Last year was the first time Mankato State had missed postseason play. Coach Don Brose returns from a year's sabbatical in Europe and should restore the Mavericks' glory. The appearance of Wisconsin-River Falls continued a trend started by Bemidji State in 1983. Powerful Western teams that previously had played in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament now are opting for NCAA play.

The Division III semifinals and finals will be held at a campus site March 22-23, 1985. One of the first items of business may be to see whether the philosophical change has been carried onto the ice.

Four returning CCHA goaltenders excel in keeping puck out of net

By Neil Koepke
Ann Arbor News

Last year, the Central Collegiate Hockey Association was blessed with many players who were very talented at putting the puck in the net. This season, the strength of the nine-team league appears to be in players who excel in keeping the puck out of the net.

Most of the CCHA's scoring stars have departed, but a wealth of talent returns in four goaltenders with the lowest goals-against average in the nation in 1983-84.

Michigan State, heavily favored for the CCHA's regular-season title, has two outstanding sophomores in Norm Foster and Bob Essensa. Foster's 2.74 average was the country's best, and Essensa was a shade behind at 2.79.

Ohio State's John Dougan, now a junior, sported a 2.85 average and was No. 3 in the final statistics; Gary Kruzich of Bowling Green State had a 2.87. Kruzich helped the Falcons to a brilliant season, including the first NCAA championship for a CCHA team.

Other solid puck-stoppers include senior Glenn Healy, a major factor in Western Michigan's title hopes, and senior Mark Chiamp, who is being counted on heavily in Michigan's rebuilding program.

Why so many good goalies in one league? The coaches have many theories, including the league's emphasis on defense and the tradition of building from the goal out.

"We've had a lot of emerging programs over the years. And when you're building a team, the first place you look is in the net," says Michigan State coach Ron Mason. "Many times, our coaches have been able to tell a top recruit that he probably can play right away and that he'll play a crucial role."

"Strong goaltending gives you consistency. If your team isn't playing well but your goalie comes up big, you're still in the game," he added.

Bill Wilkinson, the Western Michigan coach who thinks highly of Healy, believes the strength in the net keeps scores down and teams competitive and is great for the league.

"Any time you get the quality goaltenders we have in our league, it makes the games more intense and exciting," he says. "I think the fans like to see scoring opportunities, but they also like to see the big saves."

Says Bowling Green coach Jerry York: "Some of the teams at the bottom of our league have been able to give the others fits because of goaltending. I don't think you have that in football or basketball, where one guy controls it like a goalie. That makes for great competition throughout the league."

Foster, a 5-8, 170-pound Vancouver sophomore, and Essensa, a 6-1, 170-pounder from Toronto, filled the skates of all-America Ron Scott, who gave up his senior year to turn pro. The Spartan rookies sparked most of the season in leading Michigan State to a second-place finish, the CCHA play-off title and a spot in the NCAA championship.

"I've been spoiled with good goaltenders, and I always think it's going to take them a while to develop," says Mason, who also coached pro star Mike Luit at Bowling Green. "I think they exceeded my expectations. But we did score more, too, and that took some pressure off them."

With Finnair, your hockey team will score a European goal!

To compete in Finland, Sweden and Eastern Europe...to challenge teams that grew up on the ice...there's no more exciting experience for a hockey player.

And there's no easier, more affordable way to have this experience than with Finnair. Because Finnair is the SportTour airline to Europe.

We schedule games, arrange accommodations, and plan guided excursions to important cultural and historic attractions. And that's not all, we help you plan fund-raising strategies.

The excitement of the European experience begins the moment you step on board Finnair—the national airline of Finland. Tours usually include two meals daily, all transfers, portage, admission fees, tips and local taxes. With Finnair SportTours, every member of your hockey team will score a goal.

Goal-scoring bridges gap for Dorion, Oates

It is a long way from Kalamazoo, Michigan, to Troy, New York, and there are a lot of differences between Western Michigan University and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. But both schools have outstanding ice hockey players.

Western Michigan (enrollment 18,000), a Central Collegiate Hockey Association contender, features Dan Dorion. Rensselaer (enrollment 4,700) expects Adam Oates to keep its team in the battle for a national championship.

Dorion, whose career includes a 43-game consecutive scoring streak, was the nation's top scorer last year. He scored 91 points, including 41 goals, and earned all-conference and second-team all-America honors. WMU finished 22-18-2 and reached the finals of the CCHA tournament, the first league tournament appearance for the Broncos since 1976-77.

Oates scored 26 goals and 57 assists in 38 games and was more productive than Dorion per game (2.18 points vs. 2.17 points). He set school records for assists and points on a team that finished 32-6 and earned an NCAA tournament bid. Rensselaer expects all-America forwards Oates and John Carter to help it to an even better season in 1984-1985.

Other outstanding Division I players include:

Goalies Liska, Houghton look to possible rematch in championship

Just as an outstanding pitcher can dominate a baseball game, a goal-keeper can dominate an ice hockey game. The 1985 NCAA Division III Men's Ice Hockey Championship could feature a duel of top goalies.

Mark Liska earned all-America honors in leading Bemidji State to the 1984 Division III title. He allowed 2.51 goals per game as the Beavers became the second undefeated team in college men's ice hockey history. Keith Houghton's 2.09 average carried Babson to the 1984 Division III championship, and he won all East and all-New England honors.

This look in the future is even more interesting because Liska and Houghton have met before, in the 1982 Division II semifinals. Bemidji State defeated Babson, 3-1, but lost to Rochester Institute of Technology in the finals.

Other outstanding players in Division III include:

East

Forwards: Hubie McDonough, St. Anselm (36-15-51); Brian Bell, Potsdam State (35-29-64); Chris Johnstone, RIT (30-36-66); Peter D'Armas, Plattsburgh State (30-43-73); Fran Murray, Babson (30-23-53); Mark Moran, Massachusetts-Boston (28-23-51); Peter Barbagallo, Southeastern Massachusetts (19-25-44); Ted Galo, Wesleyan (13-33-46); Steve Tucci, Assumption (30-20-50); Chip Fortier, New Hampshire College (13-42-55); Bob Berno, St. Michael's (23-10-33); Gill Egan, Union (New York) (28-21-49); Mike Hoar, Norwich (27-31-58); John Genet, Oswego State (24-22-46); Bobby Trowell, RIT (26-33-59); Steve Falcone, Amherst (19-26-45); Kyle Pray, Buffalo (25-19-44); Steve Staffieri, Westfield State (19-23-42); Mike Storer, Salem State (12-15-27);

Legislative Assistance

1984 Column No. 23

Basketball evaluation calendar

Under the provisions of Bylaw 1-3, the involvement of institutional staff members or representatives of athletics interests of Divisions I and II member institutions in all off-campus scouting activities designed to evaluate the academic standing and playing ability of prospective student-athletes in basketball shall be restricted to the permissible periods for off-campus, in-person recruiting contacts in that sport and during the period between June 15 and August 1 and the period between the prospective student-athletes initial and final high school or junior college contests.

A prospective student-athlete's initial high school or junior college contest shall be the first such contest that appears on the high school's or junior college's official regular-season basketball schedule as approved by the appropriate state high school or junior college authority. Accordingly, a coach or athletics representative could not evaluate a prospective student-athlete during preseason practice, scrimmage or an exhibition game. [Note: Evaluation activities in connection with the recruitment of prospective student-athletes for an institution's women's intercollegiate team in Division II shall be exempt from the provisions of Bylaw 1-3 until August 1, 1985.]

Expenses for scouting opponents

Under the provisions of Bylaw 7-2, a Division I member institution shall not pay or permit the payment of expenses incurred by its athletics department staff members or representatives, including professional scouting services, to scout its opponents or individuals who represent its opponents in any sport except basketball, football, lacrosse and women's volleyball. In those sports, it shall be permissible for the institution to pay expenses for only one person to scout each opponent on only one occasion. This legislation does not permit a member institution's volunteer coach, undergraduate coach, graduate assistant or part-time coach to scout opponents in the above-mentioned sports and receive any expenses in connection with such scouting activities, inasmuch as Bylaw 7-1 specifically limits the amount and type of expenses that these individuals may receive.

Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(2)—tryout rule exception

Member institutions are reminded of an interpretation, which has been approved by the NCAA Council, of the Association's tryout rule regarding the definition of high school invitational competition. As set forth in the March 21, 1984, issue of The NCAA News, high school events conducted on a member institution's campus are not considered invitational and are considered "regularly scheduled" under the provisions of Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(2) if the opportunity to participate is not limited to specific individual student-athletes or high schools, if all individual prospects or high schools in a specific geographical area are eligible to compete, if the event has been approved prior to the sports season by the appropriate high school association and if the event appears on the high schools' schedules. Furthermore, the institution sponsoring such an event is not permitted to give tangible awards to the participants therein.

Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(2) permits regularly scheduled high school athletics contests to be held on the campus of the member institution, provided the competition is approved by the appropriate state high school authority or conducted by a national sports federation of which the Association is a member.

If an institution has a question that it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Stephen R. Morgan, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.*

Bill

civil-rights jurisdiction, Sens. Kennedy and Packwood offered a substitute amendment in late September intended to address those concerns, which would have defined "recipient" to cover only those entities who were recipients under regulations existing prior to the Grove City decision. Opponents contended that the substitute still greatly expanded Federal jurisdiction.

Sen. Kennedy has announced his intention to fight for passage of the bill in the next Congress.

Questions

travelers will benefit from the special fares obtained for the participants.

Q. When a team is selected on Sunday to an NCAA championship, when should we call for reservations?

A. Immediately. The travel service is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, with experienced staff waiting to take your call.

Q. While I am at the championship or meeting, I have to change my return flight. How do I get a new ticket and what do I do with the original ticket?

A. Just call the travel service. The agent will make the changes and authorize tickets to be picked up at the airline ticket counter, if necessary. All unused tickets MUST be returned immediately to Fugazy.

Q. Our local agency quoted a lower fare than Fugazy. What should I do about it?

A. Call the travel service immediately, so that they can investigate the difference. Deregulation has allowed airlines to experiment freely with fares; therefore, the fare can be affected by reservation date, ticketing date, minimum and maximum stay, and numerous other reasons. The Fugazy travel service guarantees the lowest applicable, available fare or the agency pays the difference.

Q. Can the travel service arrange charters?

A. Yes, these arrangements are made in the same method as that used for individual tickets if the charter meets NCAA financial guidelines. Because it is more difficult to arrange a charter, there sometimes is a delay of a day or two in confirming the arrangements. The travel service will, however, complete the charter arrangements as soon as possible. Fugazy is bonded for public charters for $200,000.

Q. What if I combine NCAA business and personal travel on the same trip?

A. The travel service still can make all arrangements for you. The Association will be billed for its portion of the trip, and you will receive a separate bill for the personal part.

Q. Can the NCAA travel service arrange ground transportation and lodging?

A. Yes, the travel service can provide these special services to NCAA member institutions. There is no requirement to use the travel service for these arrangements, though.

Q. What if circumstances arise that make it necessary to change a ticket or obtain a new ticket during a trip, with the additional ticket being paid for by the coach or participant?

A. Return the unused ticket to Fugazy with a letter explaining the situation and a copy of the new ticket confirming the actual cost. This information will be verified and forwarded to the national office. Payment will be made from the national office at the same time the institution's ground-travel reimbursement is made.

Q. How can I become acquainted with the NCAA travel policies?

A. The NCAA Travel Handbook, which outlines these policies, is published each year and distributed to all athletics directors, committee members, faculty athletics representatives and primary women administrators of athletics programs. Additional copies also are provided to each institution for their coaches and administrative staff. In addition, each championship handbook has information pertaining to these policies.

Q. How can I obtain an exception from the NCAA travel policies?

A. You should contact Richard D. Hunter, NCAA director of finance, at the NCAA national office. All exception requests are considered on a case-by-case basis.

Q. Who should I talk to if I have questions regarding the operation of the travel service?

A. If you have questions about arrangements, you should call Karen LaRose, Ken Luciani or Topper Luciani at Fugazy International Travel. If you have other kinds of questions, you should call Hunter at the NCAA national office.

Integration of women's sports studied

The Council of Ten, the organization of presidents and chancellors of Big Ten Conference universities, has appointed an independent evaluation committee to study the integration of women's athletics into the conference structure.

The committee will be chaired by Virginia Nordby, executive assistant to the president and director of affirmative action at the University of Michigan.

Other committee members are Barbara S. Uehling, chancellor, University of Missouri, Columbia, and two former Big Ten presidents, Willard Boyd of the University of Iowa and Harold Enarson of Ohio State University.

The committee is charged with assessing how well women's athletics has been integrated into the conference, identifying major problems arising from the integration process, recommending solutions to those problems and offering plans for a permanent structure for the representation of women in the conference.

The Council of Ten provided for a four-year review of women's athletics in the conference when it endorsed a report in May 1981 enabling member universities to affiliate their women's programs with the conference if they desired. By October 1981, all conference members had noted their approval.

Academics

steering committees will consider these topics:

- Division I: Planning for the 1985 Division I summer meeting and the Division I-A midyear legislative meeting; possible modifications of Bylaw 5-1-(j), including recommendations in that regard from the Special Committee on Academic Research and the NCAA Presidents' Commission; Division I voting autonomy, centering on a revised version of 1984 Convention Proposal No. 37.

- Division II: Multidivision classification and eligibility for NCAA championships; funding of Division II championships.

- Division III: A suggested student-athlete statement for use by Division III institutions; review of possible Division III academic standards; various championships issues, including funding.

Among the items on the agenda for the separate meeting of the women's interests committee October 14 are a review of recommendations from the Collegiate Council of Women's Athletic Administrators and a discussion of the promotion of women's athletics programs within the NCAA.

Highlights of the Council meeting will be featured in the October 22 issue of the News, and a complete listing of all actions taken will appear in the October 29 issue.

NCAA system has potential for reducing sports injuries

Results from the first two years of the NCAA's injury surveillance system indicate that the program may prove effective in reducing injuries, according to the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

"The first two years indicate promising potential," said chair Frederick O. Mueller of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. "Continued collection and analysis should enable more informed decision-making concerning proposals to modify rules, equipment or coaching techniques in an attempt to reduce injuries in intercollegiate athletics."

The NCAA began collecting football data during the 1982-83 academic year. Last year, the effort was expanded to women's volleyball, wrestling, women's gymnastics, baseball, and men's and women's lacrosse.

Injury and exposure data are submitted weekly by athletics trainers from a cross section of the membership. At least 10 percent of the institutions sponsoring the sport were surveyed in fall sports; a five-percent sample was used for winter and spring sports.

"The intention of the committee is to expand the number of sports until data is being collected on a continuing basis for all NCAA-sponsored men's and women's sports," Mueller said.

Although Mueller cautioned that data from several years is needed before identifying specific trends, the initial work has yielded several findings. These include:

- Wrestling and women's gymnastics appear to be the most dangerous sports of those surveyed so far. The injury rate for each 1,000 athletes exposed was 10.25 in wrestling and 10.23 in women's gymnastics. Football had a 7.24 injury rate. The sur-

Injury and surgical rates for seven sports

Sport	Total Injury Rate	Surgical Injury Rate
Football	7.24	0.48
Women's Volleyball	5.30	0.18
Wrestling	10.25	0.59
Women's Gymnastics	10.23	1.01
Baseball	3.29	0.12
Men's Lacrosse	8.12	0.30
Women's Lacrosse	3.69	0.12

Rates are per 1,000 athletes exposed gical injury rate was twice as high in women's gymnastics (1.01 per 1,000) than in football (0.48).

- There is a higher incidence of football injuries on artificial surfaces than on natural grass. Data from 1982 and 1983 are not similar enough to determine the precise difference in injury rates.

- The knee is the most commonly injured body part, followed closely by the ankle. Sprained ankles are the most common type of injury.

- For most sports, there is a difference in injury rates between practices and games. Football has the highest difference, with nine times more injuries in games than in practices.

- Fewer football injuries occur during the first quarter than during other times of the game; the third quarter has the highest incidence of injuries. The committee believes that coaches could reduce injuries by ensuring more warm-up and stretching time before starting the second half.

- All brands of football helmets are essentially equivalent in their ability to protect the head from concussions. A significant number of injuries are directly attributable to impact from such hard-shell helmets and shoulder pads.

Complete results of 1983-84 data are available from Eric D. Zemper, research coordinator, at the NCAA national office.

Committee Vacancies

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations for interim vacancies on NCAA standing committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancies must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, administrative assistant, in the NCAA national office not later than October 16, 1984.

Division I Women's Basketball Committee: Replacement for Sandra J. McCullough, Northwestern University, resigned. Replacement must be from Division I.

Men's Tennis Committee: Replacement for Hayden Schilling, College of Wooster, resigned. Replacement must be from Division III.

High School All-Star Games Committee: Replacement for August Erfurth, Rice University, upon expiration of his term September 1, 1985. Replacement must be a woman because certification of women's all-star high school games is beginning this year and the bylaws require that two positions on the committee be allocated for women once this certification process begins. Replacement also must be from District I or District 2.

Cable network fails to show games

College Sports Network apparently is in financial trouble and unable to live up to its contract to televise football games for the Gulf Star Conference and others, according to Dave Waples, conference commissioner.

"I would imagine we are out of the college TV business," Waples said.

CSN also was scheduled to telecast the University of Houston vs. Baylor University football game October 7, but the telecast never materialized.

The network is scheduled to telecast 11 women's basketball games for the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference, among its other commitments.

Waples said CSN owes his conference about $30,000 for games it was supposed to telecast but did not. He said that presidents of the conference schools will have to decide whether to sue the network.
