More study proposed on 'Rule 48'

The NCAA Council and the NCAA Presidents' Commission will cosponsor a resolution at the 1985 NCAA Convention to conduct a cooperative study of possible modifications in NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j) ["Proposal No. 48"], with a specific proposal to be presented to the NCAA Convention in 1986 and announced to the membership not later than October 15, 1985.

That resolution was proposed by a majority of the Division I members of the Presidents' Commission who participated in a mail poll in that regard prior to the November 1 deadline for submitting legislation. The NCAA Administrative Committee, meeting by telephone conference November 1, agreed to cosponsor the resolution, as authorized by the Council in its October 15-17 meeting.

That development means there will be no proposal before the 1985 Convention to modify Bylaw 5-1-(j). Representatives of the American Council on Education and the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education earlier had favored such a resolution.

The NCAA Administrative Committee agreed that the Council would discuss in its pre-convention meeting in January how the "cooperative study" specified in the resolution should be pursued.

In other developments relating to legislation for the 1985 Convention, the executive committee of the Presidents' Commission met Sunday (November 4) in Chicago and decided not to designate any proposals for roll-call votes at this year's Convention.

"We are not yielding the right to designate roll calls that was accorded to the Commission," explained Otis A. Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky and interim chair of the Commission. "But we want to exercise that right very cautiously and carefully, and only on matters of importance to chief executive officers."

"We considered the need for a roll call on several issues, including the 'Proposal 48' matter, Division I autonomy and sports sponsorship criteria, but modification of '48' has been delayed and other topics of interest apparently are not particularly controversial or otherwise do not warrant a roll-call vote at this time," he said. He identified Bylaw 5-1-(j) ["Proposal No. 48"] as the most likely issue for such designation until it was determined that no

Legislative proposals total 145

Delegates to the 1985 NCAA Convention will consider 145 legislative proposals when they convene January 14-16 at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tennessee.

The number is down from the 162 that appeared in the 1984 Convention Program in Dallas; however, all of those proposals were not considered because of lack of time.

Last year's 162 proposals were the most since 1977, when 175 proposals were considered. The 1977 total was preceded by a record 225 proposals in 1976.

After 161 proposals were considered in 1978, the numbers decreased to 132 in 1979 and 103 in 1980 before beginning an upward trend in 1981 that continued until this year.

In 1981, 121 proposals were considered, followed by 122 in 1982, 132 in 1983 and 162 last year.

As last year, the category with the most proposals is playing and practice seasons (25), followed by 21 proposals in the consent packages (five routine

Seminar planned

After a successful first professional development seminar earlier this year, the NCAA again is organizing a seminar for athletics officials at member institutions to be held January 11-12, 1985, at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tennessee.

Topics include computerizing the athletics department, athletics and school trademarks, corporate sponsorships, time management, and tax regulations pertinent to athletics.

A registration form for the seminar is on page 16 of this issue.

Court clarifies its football TV ruling

The NCAA Football Television Committee decided in a telephone conference November 1 not to pursue the development of a future NCAA television plan for football unless requested to do so by Association members, according to John D. Swoford, committee chair.

In the meantime, committee members will assess the interest level among member institutions in their respective geographic areas regarding NCAA involvement in televised football.

The committee also reviewed the football television-related resolutions that were adopted by the Division I membership at the special television meeting in Chicago July 10 and concluded that proposals should be presented to the 1985 Convention restricting telecasts on Friday evenings when the high schools play, requiring consent of the opponent for a telecast, and providing a four percent NCAA assessment on rights fees generated by national telecasts and cablecasts in 1984. The Administrative Committee has concurred with the Football Television Committee's decisions (see related story at top of this page).

Federal District Judge Juan C. Burciaga last week clarified his September 1982 decision on the 1982-1985 NCAA Football Television Plan, that the Association could participate in the football-television market.

He had been requested by the NCAA to define any future role it might take in televising football after the U.S. Supreme Court voided the 1982-1985 Football Television Plan June 27 on an appeal by the Association from the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver. The appeals court had upheld Burciaga's findings of violations of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

In its motion to modify Burciaga's injunction, the NCAA contended that it might have been construed as prohibiting the Association from barring televised games on Friday nights, from imposing television sanctions on member institutions for non-television-related violations of Association rules and from televising its own championships, and that the original decision might have been interpreted as barring the NCAA from having any role in televised college football.

George H. Gangwere, Association counsel in Kansas City, Missouri, said the primary reason for asking Burciaga to modify his injunction was because "we wanted to be sure the Association could have television sanctions and control over its championships on television, that the NCAA was free to compete in the marketplace just like anyone else, and that the Association should not be foreclosed from having a football television plan if members want it."

"It is pretty clear," Gangwere said, "that any future television plan has to be voluntary." He added that the extent of regulation remains an open question and other pending litigation will have an effect on the matter.

"It is my view that combinations to reduce output of games in order to raise prices will face legal difficulties," Gangwere said.

There are pending suits in Federal courts filed by the Association of Independent Television Stations, Inc., which maintain that restrictions the College Football Association and the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences put on their members

For accuracy, soccer-style kickers fill the bill to a 'T'

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Thanks to the amazing accuracy of all those soccer-style field-goal kickers, national scoring in Division I-A football may set another record this season. The average now is 44.3 points per game (both teams combined) vs. the record 44.2 last season.

Successful field goals now average 2.32 per game vs. the record 2.11 last season. This means another 0.63 points per game solely because of field goals. Without the extra field goals, scoring would be down. The reason is greater accuracy—68.6 percent have been good this season vs.

the record 65.7 percent last season.

And the reason for the greater accuracy is that soccer-stylers have taken over the picture—there are only 10 straight-ahead kickers at the 105 I-A colleges. In 1975, soccer-stylers were only 37.6 percent of the major-college total. And the soccer-stylers always have been more accurate, the margin over the straight-heads increasing with the distance of the kick.

What to do?

"With field goals on the rise at the expense of touchdowns, still dipping, I think the NCAA (Football Rules Committee) ought to take a look at this growing imbalance," writes Arnie Burdick, former Syracuse writer and long-time editor of the Read-Easy Football Rules, now living in Hilton Head, South Carolina. "Solution: Wouldn't one way of correcting the situation be to return the goal posts to their former dimensions, prior to the 1959 season? That was the year the rules makers stretched the width from 18 feet, six inches to 23 feet, 4 inches, in order to encourage field-goal kicking, which, at that time had become almost extinct. They accomplished their purpose, but now the pendulum has swung too far the other way."

Of course, some will argue that nothing needs to be done, that the kickers bring more scoring, which makes things more interesting, and that it might not work in favor of more touchdowns. After all, the goal posts are closer together in pro ball and that does not discourage field-goal kicking. Another move might be to eliminate kicking tees (but that again has not discouraged the kicking in pro ball).

The kickoff-runback problem

Roughly two of 11 kickoffs were not returned in 1970, while last season, 13 years later, about five of every 11 kickoffs were not returned. Determined to make kickoffs more a part of the game as in the past, the NCAA Football Rules Committee decided that kickoffs going over the end zone on the fly would be put on the 30-yard line this season.

Has it worked? Well, so far this season, a little less than 63 percent of all kickoffs have been returned. Last season, just under 55 percent were returned. Kickoffs placed on the 30 have averaged about one every two games, and kickoffs placed on

Rice comes long way in four years of college

By W. H. Stickney Jr.
Houston Chronicle

When Jerry Rice first entered Mississippi Valley State University, he hardly resembled the wide receiver who later would inhabit a "World" unto himself.

Rice was a rail-thin kid from Starkville, Mississippi. He was barely six feet tall. "And I was terribly slow, something like about a 4.9 or a 5.0 in the 40-yard dash," he says. "I didn't even know how to run."

That was four years ago, before he began working with weights. Before he began receiving tutelage in the art of running and catching passes.

Now, the man who since his sophomore season has been nicknamed "World," is the premier collegiate receiver in the land. He is the top pass catcher in both Division I-AA and Division I-A of the NCAA.

Rice

"I haven't seen all the receivers in the country yet," says Tony Razzano, director of scouting for the San Francisco 49ers, "but if there's anyone out there who's better, he's got to be a really good one."

"He's got talent," says Mike Holovak, director of player personnel for the Houston Oilers. "He does it. You can't deny that. He's got the size, he's got the hands, the speed, the moves. An outstanding fellow like that could catch very few passes for you, but he'd still be important to your team."

"If they double-team him, that leaves other receivers open."

Joe Woolly is director of scouting for the New Orleans Saints. He's been casting a watchful eye toward Itta Bena, Mississippi, and Rice for the past three years. His assessments are no less glowing.

"When he walks by you or he's around you, he has that presence about him, you know he's going to be a good player," Woolly said. "He's a good player but he's not cocky."

"He's potentially one of the great ones. You don't ever hear the ball hit his hands. It's like it hits a piece of cotton. And I'll say this, he's in shape. You have to be, to be running all the routes he does."

"I think he's an excellent pro prospect," says Gil Brandt, director of player development for the Dallas Cowboys.

"He's been a productive player ever since his freshman year. And defensive backs fits. The pro scouts would never have considered him a potential first-round pick the way they do now.

Rice's freshman season at Valley was filled with moments of self-doubt.

"It was really frustrating," he remembers. "The guys on the team weren't together. We weren't used to the offensive system. I couldn't read defenses like I wanted to. But I knew

Rice has completed 5-of-5 passes this season for 95 yards and three touchdowns. It's just another wrinkle to the offense of coach Archie "Gunslinger" Cooley, one which has been blasted by some opponents this year, but one which usually disposes of the enemy easily.

"We do some things that other people haven't done," says Cooley. "We step off the bus throwing the ball. We're not going to beat you with our running game."

"And we don't like to use a huddle. That way it keeps the other coaches a little off-balance."

First-year coach Lionel Taylor of Texas Southern agrees. "What that does is it takes away from the coaches along the sidelines trying to decide what to do," he says.

"I don't know if it's so much added pressure that their offense puts on you so much as it is added time of preparation."

"It's time-consuming trying to get the recognition you need to play against them. But I think it's great for football."

So, too, is Rice, who will be showing his stuff next year to the world as a professional. And this time, he shouldn't have to undergo the culture shock he endured entering college.

Columnary Craft

this year, he's been absolutely unbelievable. There's nobody able to stop him."

The secondary from Tennessee State wouldn't argue with Brandt. Rice last year snared 24 passes against the Tigers' secondary, a record in Division I-AA of the NCAA.

It is one of six division marks the 6-3, 200-pound Rice holds. But not so long ago, he was a "normal" ballplayer. He didn't possess the 4.45 speed or the guile to give in time I would begin to fit in. The older guys were really helpful.

"And now I'm able to recognize defenses and know what a defensive back is trying to do to me."

Pity the poor defenders. Through seven games this year, Rice has caught 86 passes for 1,373 yards and 21 touchdowns. For his career, Rice has snared 284 for 4,384 yards and 44 touchdowns. No wonder pro scouts and a media horde follow his every move.

Ironically, Rice probably could move in and take over the quarterback duties of Willie "Satellite" Totten, the junior all-America candidate who has helped send Rice into orbit the past three years. The Devils no doubt wouldn't miss a heartbeat.

Player-agent problem continues

Tom Osborne, head football coach
University of Nebraska, Lincoln

The Associated Press

"I really don't know if there's anything you can do (about college football players signing with or accepting money from player agents before the player's college eligibility is over).

"We've got a course here that we're going to present to the athletes that involves 10 or 12 sessions starting in November that has to do with selection of an agent for several years all of a sudden start coming 'round. We're glad to see them, and then we find out later that they're representing an agent trying to get an early commitment from players.

"There are so many ways these people operate, about the only thing you can do is trust in the integrity and common sense of your players."

Earle Bruce, head football coach
Ohio State University

The 5th Down

"Nobody's been smart enough so far to figure out how to have a play-off system. I don't know how you do that. If there is a way to have a play-off system, I guess that would be great for all of us—if you didn't eliminate the bowl games.

"Being a member of the Big Ten, I'd be tremendously interested in preserving the Rose Bowl, naturally, because it's so good for the Big Ten Conference. I would be concerned about that.

"A play-off that takes young men out of classes or during finals or extends the season any length of time would be wrong, in my opinion, because, first of all, I'm interested in graduation, not to extend the season into 15 games or whatever it might take to have a national championship."

Janine La Bastille, sports official Referee magazine

"The time being, a female referee or umpire really comes in handy in preventing a fight in a boys' game. A woman can get right between them because they know their mothers would never forgive them if they ever hit her.

"There are benefits to being a female official or having one on the crew. Many times, the players are on 'Sunday best' behavior, a least until the shock of your presence wears off. It's not unusual to hear a player mutter to himself after making a bad play and turn around, red-faced, to apologize, even though you didn't hear it; or a catcher say that if he knew you were going to work the plate, he would have showered before the game."

Opinions Out Loud

and investments and such. We've talked to our players repeatedly about NCAA rules, about what it can do to their eligibility.

"It just appears there's a certain percentage of athletes, if you give them an opportunity to have a little extra money, they're going to take it."

"They (agents) hang around in the shadows. They somehow get their (players') phone numbers. Many times, they operate through former players. We've had that happen, where former players we hadn't seen

The Official Notice of the 1980 NCAA Convention contained only 103 proposed amendments, the smallest number since 1972 and well under the record 225 proposals at the 1976 NCAA Convention. (November 15, 1979, NCAA News)

The first Division III Men's Soccer Championship was held November 30, 1974, at Wheaton College (Illinois). Brockport State, led by Nelson Cupello's six goals (still tied for the all-time Division III record), defeated Binghamton, Trenton State, Westfield State and Swarthmore for the title. Twenty years ago

The NCAA Council, meeting November 1-4, 1964, in New York City, appointed the Nominating Committee for the 1965 NCAA Convention. Included were five individuals who in later years were elected to serve as NCAA officers—Earl M. Ramer, University of Tennessee, Knoxville (president, 1971-1972); Alan J. Chapman, Rice University (president, 1973-1974); Harry M. Cross, University of Washington (president, 1969-1970); Richard P. Koenig, Valparaiso University (secretary-treasurer, 1973-1974), and Samuel E. Barnes, Howard University (secretary-treasurer, 1971-1972). (November-December 1964 NCAA News)

Oklahoma A&M College (now Oklahoma State University) won the 16th annual National Collegiate Cross Country Championships, held November 22, 1954, at Michigan State University, by what was then the biggest margin in the meet's history—58 points ahead of Syracuse University. the 20 have been five times more frequent than those on the 30. The average kickoff return? That has been right at 19 yards per return for years and years. So maybe the rule has worked, but certainly not to a dramatic extent.

Meanwhile, critics complain, with some justification, that the rule penalizes excellence on the part of the kicker. Certainly, the booming kick-offs by soccer-stylers have caused the runback problem. Kicking off from the 35 might not even help much — you might have to make it the 30.

Zendejas, Butler have a chance

As an example of how far the kickers have come, consider that both Arizona State's Luis Zendejas (341 career points) and Georgia's Kevin Butler (337) both have a good chance to break the all-time Division I-A career scoring record of 356 by Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett from 1973 through 1976. Each has three games left. The scoring record formerly was the private preserve of the great running backs, but no longer.

Flutie surpasses 10,000 yards

With four games left in Doug Flutie's career, he soared past the 10,000-yard career mark in total offense, smashing by 280 yards the former Division I-A record of 9,723 by Brigham Young's Jim McMahon, whose final season was 1981. The Boston College senior now has 10,003 rushing-passing yards, and 11,000 yards is well within reach. That would take a 249.3-yard average, and his season average is almost 80 yards beyond that. Flutie also has 9,384 yards passing and seems certain to break the I-A record of 9,614 by Ben Bennett of Duke (1980-1983).

Quotes of the week

Cal State Fullerton coach Gene Murphy, when asked who is the best running back in America: "I don't know, coaches don't get to see too many games other than their own or opponents'... except on road trips or late at night on cable. If ESPN had been around 18 years ago, I wouldn't have any children."

Murphy during a photo session with Long Beach State coach Mike Sheppard and the "Victory Bell," the trophy that goes to the winner of the Fullerton-Long Beach game every year: "Oops, if we win it, does that mean we have to pay for the new engraving? We can't afford it." (Mel Franks, Cal State Fullerton SID)

West Texas State Coach Don Davis after his team had snapped an 18-game winless streak with a 14-10 victory over Abilene Christian: "The psychological hill we had to get over was a big climb. In any sport, the mental part is equally as important as the physical part. If you don't believe you can accomplish good things before the start of the contest, the other team sure isn't going to give you any encouragement." (During the winless streak, West Texas lost six times after leading in the fourth quarter and three other times in the last three minutes.)

Davis after his team made it two straight, 24-17, at Southern Illinois in a steady downpour: "I don't know if there were worse conditions today in the United States, but if there were, the only people watching were duck hunters." (The rain totaled three to four inches.) "I told the kids they better bring their iron britches and miner's lamps to practice Monday, because we are going to work on our kick coverage until we get it right." (Southern Illinois had a 92-yard kickoff-return touchdown.) (John Askins, West Texas State SID)

Washington State tied an NCAA record for largest point deficit overcome to win when it rallied from 28 points down to beat Stanford, 49-42 (and the Cougars did it in less time, as they trailed 14-42 with 5:38 left in the third quarter, while Oregon State trailed 0-28 with 9:30 left in Southern California offensive tackle Ken Ruettgers, after he was whistled for being illegally downfield on a pass play: "I ran about 12 or 13 yards. If I'd known I'd run that far, I would have run an out pattern." Ruettgers on Trojan quarterback Tim Green: "He's a survivor... If I was walking into a street fight against 30 lions, he would be the first one I'd take with me."

Washington linebacker Reggie Rogers on his team being ranked No. 1: "Now we have these big targets on our chests and everyone has a rifle pointed at us." Rogers on the Husky defense: "We're like piranhas swimming after the meat. We swarm to the ball. It belongs to us."

Washington State running back Ruben Mayes on his NCAA-record 357 yards rushing against Oregon: "My running coach told me to always die hard, like Walter Payton does."

Bud Withers of the Eugene Register-Guard on Mayes' big day: "That number 36 (Mayes' number) wasn't a jersey, it was a license number." (Jim Muldoon, Pacific-10 Conference SID)

Kansas receiver Tom Quick lived in Lawrence for one year, the year (1964) that Kansas last beat Oklahoma in Lawrence, and he was in the sixth grade. Said Quick: "I was in the sixth grade and listened to it on the radio. When we were on the sidelines for the final few minutes, I wondered how many sixth graders were listening on the radio."

Missouri defensive coordinator Mark Heydorff, asked how things could be worse, said: "I guess you could go home and your wife and kids have moved out, your home is burned down and your dog bites you. It's sick."

Kansas State kicker Steve Willis after a lopsided loss in Lincoln: "I knew we were in trouble when our team bus got a speeding ticket on the way to Lincoln." Kansas State coach Jim Dickey: "Nebraska looks like a landslide coming off a mountain." (Tim Allen, Big Eight Conference SID)

Georgia Southern kicking coach and scout Pat Spurgeon has his doctorate in English and has been a professor of English for 18 years. Spurgeon, who played football at Emory & Henry, volunteered to help coach Erk Russell when he started the program from scratch in 1982. Spurgeon scouts opponents and prepares detailed reports for the players and the staff. Says Russell: "His reports are very extensive and very, very good. Heck, even if they weren't, I'd still like to just sit there and listen to him read them. He makes them sound good." (Mark McClellan,

When asked about the large size of his Mercyhurst team, coach Tony DeMeo responded: "I don't know how big we are, but Mick Stepnoski (6-4, 280) was born on May 11... and May 12. And our training table is pretty big; they (the team) have great hand-to-mouth coordination. They don't wear numbers — they wear license plates." (Greg Yoko, Mercyhurst SID)

Anything can happen when South Dakota and South Dakota State meet, but the latest matchup October 27 might have been the topper in this series, which dates back to 1889 — third oldest in NCAA Division II history. South Dakota prevailed, 45-42, as the teams combined for 885 yards total offense. Said winning coach Dave Triplett, in his sixth year: "I kept waiting for the Fat Lady to sing, but I couldn't find her. I don't think I've ever been in a game like that stretching back to my high school or college playing days (Iowa) or previous coaching jobs (Iowa State)." (Mike Mahon, South Dakota SID)

Milestones

Plymouth State's Joe Dudek is only a junior, and he already holds the Division II career record for touchdowns. Dudek reached 49 with three against Bridgewater State (Massachusetts) October 27. The previous mark of 48 was set over four seasons by Joe Thompson of Augustana (Illinois), whose last year was 1976. Dudek also rushed for 201 yards against Bridgewater, giving him 3,676 through eight games this season. With more than a season to go, Dudek has an excellent chance to break the Division III career record of 4,631 by Rich Kowalski of Hobart over four seasons ending with 1975 and could become only the seventh 5,000-yard career rusher in NCAA history in all divisions. (John Garner Jr., Plymouth State SID)

It could have been Saturday afternoon at the races in Cortland, New York, when three football thoroughbreds raced to career milestones as Canisius beat Cortland State, 26-15. In the show position was 5-6 Mike Panepinto for the win-

In place position was his teammate, Mike Leavell, a 225-pound fullback who resembled a plowhorse as he churned 137 yards on soggy Chugger Davis Field to move his career total past 2,000 yards. And the winner was Cortland's Dave Cook, with 39 carries and 212 yards. Cook galloped past the 3,000-yard mark on his 17th carry and finished the day with 3,107 career yards rushing. Jersey City State's victory over William Paterson gave the Gothics their first winning football season in 11 years — an added accomplishment when you consider that all of the team's games are on the road this season. (Richard Stahlberger, Jersey City SID)

Beloit junior safety David Blanchette's mother flew in from Hawaii on business and got to see her son play college football for the first time when the team defeated St. Norbert, 15-13. Blanchette took advantage of the opportunity to get his first touchdown ever on a 45-yard interception return. Buc's coach Ed DeGeorge said "I may tear up her return ticket." It was also Beloit's seventh victory — most in a season since 1955. (Jim Bredeson, Beloit statistician)

DePauw increased its home-game winning streak to 23 with a victory in its final home game, as 17 seniors ended their careers with a 19-0 record at home. (Joe Owens, DePauw SID)

It was a hectic week for Millersville's Ricke Stonewall. As he closed in on the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference records for career rushing yards (3,958) and touchdowns (41), Stonewall was besieged for media interviews prior to the important game with West Chester. To add to that, his wife, Vicki, gave birth to a baby boy, Richard T. Stonewall III. Juggling a football in one hand and a baby bottle in the other, Stonewall handled things calmly. He broke Joe Iacone's 22-year-old league rushing mark in the first quarter, scored twice, became the first PSAC back to surpass 4,000

A bad night

Illinois State coach Bob Otolski was not ready to call it a red-letter night after his team squandered leads of 21-0 and 24-6 only to lose, 28-24, to Central Florida, but his bad night was not even over when it was over, so to speak. Trying to get to the press box to do his postgame radio show, Otolski became trapped in the Orlando Stadium elevator. After getting out of the elevator, he tried the stairs. He got close, only to be trapped behind a locked gate. He never reached the press box for his show. (Rick Nolan, Illinois State assistant SID)

Many years later

In the late 1960s, Shelton, Connecticut, High School was coached by John "Duffy" Doherty, and in the same league as Cheshire High, which had a player named Paul Pasqualoni. Now Doherty coaches Curry in Milton, Massachusetts, and Pasqualoni coaches Western Connecticut State. Doherty's team was 6-0 entering the game with 6-1 Western, but Pasqualoni's team recorded a New England Conference-record 564 yards total offense in a 32-14 victory. Quite a pair

The Soza brothers in Texas A&I football have a lot in common, including their academic accomplishments. Both Chris, a senior quarterback, and Robert, a sophomore linebacker, are nominees for academic all-America honors. (Fred Nuesch, Texas A&I SID)

Quite a birthday

It was a very happy 20th birthday for Western Maryland defensive back Mike Chavez. In a 15-12 victory over Lebanon Valley, Mike set up the first touchdown with a 29-yard punt return and scored the winning TD on a 74-yard pass interception with 2:05 left in the game. It was his seventh interception in as many games, and the yardage gave Western Maryland a Division III record for team interception return yards in a season at 362, breaking the 352 it set last season in 11 games. (J. Douglas, Western Maryland assistant SID)

Second eviction

Canisius plays, or hopes to play, all of its home games in spacious War Memorial Stadium (capacity 41,897 — largest in Division III). Last year, the Griffs were forced out of their home when Robert Redford decided to film "The Natural" in the 46-year-old facility. With one home game left this season, Canisius is being evicted again. Baseball is again the culprit. The newly-formed AAA Bisons are under orders from the American Association to renovate and sod the old ball park. The Canisius-Buffalo State game this Saturday will be moved across town. (John Maddock, Canisius SID)

Attendance gains in I-A, I-AA

Attendance in Division I-A gained back part of the ground it lost a week ago and is solidly ahead of 1983, with the average now at 43,061 per game, or 864 above the 1983 pace. A week ago, it was only 238 ahead vs. 1,318 a week earlier. But with 13 fewer games so far, the possibility exists that these are mostly lower-attendance teams. In I-AA, the per-game average now is just 20 behind a year ago, compared to 229 behind a week ago. Both divisions are up in percentage of capacity. The chart:

	Games	Attendance	Average	Percent Capacity
Division I-A season figures to date	476	20,496,809	43,061	81.6
Same 105 teams at this stage in 1983	489	20,634,221	42,197	80.1
Division I-AA season figures to date	384	4,242,437	11,048	54.7
Same 87 teams at this stage in 1983	384	4,250,064	11,068	54.0

Northwestern's Jennifer Averill

UNC-Greensboro coach is familiar with winning soccer tournaments

Mike Parker hopes to continue a tradition and start one of his own when North Carolina-Greensboro defends its title in the 1984 NCAA Division III Men's Soccer Championship.

Parker, in his first year as the Spartans' head coach, is no stranger to championships. In eight years at Lock Haven, the native of Yorkshire, England, built a 111-27-7 record that included 1977 and 1978 Division III national titles and a Division II crown in 1980.

Parker inherited the program from Mike Berticelli, who led the Spartans to national championships in 1982 and 1983.

If the Spartans repeat, they will become the first team to win three consecutive Division III titles, and Parker would pick up his third Division III championship trophy and fourth overall. The Spartans are 10-1 in three national-tournament appearances.

The Division III championship begins with first-round games November 9-11. The championship game will be played December 1 or 2 at the site of one of the finalists.

It will not be an easy ride for the Spartans, whose only losses (13-2-2 record as of October 30) are to Virginia, third-ranked in Division I, and Tampa, top-ranked in Division II.

"There's no one secret to winning the national championship, but I know what it takes," Parker said. "It takes good players, good coaching, desire, and above all, it takes a little bit of luck."

Luck can be helped by skill, and Parker can rely on all-America midfielder/forward Ed Radwanski for a part of that skill. Radwanski, the team's leading scorer in 1983, scored one goal and assisted on the winning play in the Spartans' 3-2 victory over Claremont-Mudd-Scripps in last season's championship game. Steve Harrison is the leading scorer this year with 14 goals, three fewer than have been scored against North Carolina-Greensboro all season.

"No matter whom we play against, even Virginia, nobody takes us lightly," Parker said. "We're capable of winning at any level, but teams are always ready to play us. Many teams come in here and we're the toughest team of the year for them. We've faced that all year. It's something I was used to at Lock Haven because we had the same problem."

"It's a nice problem."

He did not bring any Lock Haven players to North Carolina-Greensboro, although the Spartans' starting lineup has seven new faces.

"I thought there might be an adjustment for me and definitely thought there would be for the players adjusting to a new coach, particularly because it had been successful. 'It worked the old way. Why shouldn't we use the old way?' But it didn't happen. The transition was extremely smooth."

Parker expects Bethany (West Virginia) (9-3-1) and Emory (15-1-1) to be strong in the South region and Kean (14-1-1) and Wheaton (Illinois)

Old Dominion ranked No. 1 in Division I field hockey

Perennial play-off teams with new faces will dominate the NCAA Division I Field Hockey Championship, which begins November 10 with first-round games at on-campus sites. Second-round games will be played November 11, and the semifinals and final will be held November 17-18 at Springfield College in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Young stars have emerged this season, most notably goalkeepers. Five of the top 10 teams in the final NCAA Division I poll have used freshman goalies this season.

Old Dominion, as usual, must be considered the favorite. Undeclared and ranked No. 1 in the final poll, the Lady Monarchs have the best NCAA tournament record (7-1) and will be aiming for their third straight trip to the finals.

Freshman goalie Shelly Behrens has 10 shutouts and has allowed only seven goals. Old Dominion's defense has allowed only 46 shots on goal (Behrens has 39 saves).

Offensively, veterans Christy Morgan and Eveline Veraart have played well. Both seniors, Morgan has scored 21 times and handed out 23 assists; Veraart has 18 goals and two assists.

Old Dominion also relies on junior Cheryl Van Kuren (four goals, 25 assists) and freshman Willemien Aardenburg, whose 25 goals are tops on the squad.

In the Northeast, top-10 teams New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut all are contenders. Connecticut's Huskies will be looking for their third straight trip to the championship game. Freshman Terry Fuchs leads the team with 15 goals.

Other offensive leaders are Rose Smith (five goals, 11 assists), Wendy Hug (11 goals, two assists) and Grace Hagan (six goals, four assists). Veteran goalie Terry Kix has stopped 94 shots and recorded nine shutouts this season.

New Hampshire is ranked fourth in the final poll. The Wildcats have one of those outstanding freshman goalkeepers in Michele Flannell, who has 73 saves and nine shutouts.

Senior Barb Marois (15 goals, six assists), junior Patty Heap (two goals, 14 assists), and sophomores Karen Geromini (10 goals, one assist) and Pauline Collins (eight goals, four assists) have supplied the offense.

Massachusetts' Pam Moryl has been one of the best college field hockey players during the past four years; this will be her last chance for a title. Moryl has scored seven times and contributed four assists as the Minutewomen have returned to the top 10.

Temple, Penn State and Rutgers are the top contenders in the Atlantic/Mid-Atlantic region. Temple, behind 25 goals and six assists from senior Monica Mills, finished third in the final Division I poll.

The top freshman at Penn State is Tracey Neave, who has scored 14 goals and added one assist. Junior Alix Huges has 11 goals and seven assists. Sophomore goalie Michele Monahan has 172 saves with nine shutouts.

Rutgers has a veteran club, with leadership and scoring punch coming from seniors Liz McGuire (12 goals, seven assists) and Lisa LaValle (12 goals, two assists), and junior Mary Beth Dwyer (eight goals, one assist). Senior goalie Liz Ferrara has 10 shutouts and 132 saves.

North Carolina is another team with play-off potential. The Tar Heels' scoring leader is freshman Judith Jonckheer (19 goals, two assists).

Big Ten squads Iowa and Northwestern have had excellent seasons. The Wildcats of Northwestern finished second in the final Division I poll; the Hawkeyes finished eighth.

Northwestern is led by sophomore Jennifer Averill (five goals, 23 assists), junior Amy Kekeisen (14 goals), senior Kerin Jones (seven goals, 14 assists) and junior Wendi Kemp (nine goals, five assists).

Iowa has been led by junior Marcia Pankratz (20 goals, three assists).

San Jose State, Maryland, Ursinus, Lock Haven and Lehigh are other teams with championship hopes.

Here are the pairings for the 1984 Division I Field Hockey Championship:

North Carolina vs. Virginia at Old Dominion; winner plays Old Dominion.

Connecticut vs. Massachusetts at Connecticut; winner plays New Hampshire.

Rutgers vs. Penn State at Temple; winner plays Temple.

Iowa vs. San Jose State at Northwestern; winner plays Northwestern.

Semifinals and finals November 17-18 at Springfield, Massachusetts.

Georgetown's not taking anything for granted

By Timothy J. Lilley
The NCAA News Staff

Because of the level of competition in the various conferences, this could be a year that eventual NCAA champions do not win their respective league titles.

Take Georgetown, for instance. The Hoyas defeated Houston last April for the Division I championship, and coach John Thompson has Patrick Ewing and three other starters back. Obviously a favorite to go a long way in the Division I men's basketball play-offs, Georgetown first must get through an extremely tough Big East Conference.

"The national title is too big a thing to talk about in October, November and December," Thompson said recently. "We have to get away from that trap of talking about repeating. We will take it step by step. Number one, I want to organize the personality of the team. Two, we want to win the Big East tournament. Then, we will take it from there."

Thompson said that even with four starters back, this will be a new Hoya team.

"The team that won the national championship is no longer at Georgetown," Thompson said. "A new team has to be developed with a new personality, and we all are eager to get started to see what direction this team will take."

Ewing must be considered the brightest star in the constellation of returning talent nationally, although Keith Lee of Memphis State, Chris Mullin of St. John's (New York) and Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma are other "franchise" players.

While North Carolina, Oklahoma, Washington and Memphis State wage wars in their own conferences, a different, albeit equally intense, kind of attention will be focused on a Catholic school in Chicago. "The Coach" (Ray Meyer) has retired at DePaul, and his son, Joey, has assumed control. The Blue Demons should have a fine season, with Tyrone Corbin and Dallas Comegys leading the way, but the coaching transition will make headlines this season.

Newcomers will make their presence felt in Division I, and the most heralded of the group may be Kansas freshman Danny Manning. Certainly, if Manning plays as well as his credentials suggest, the Jayhawks could become a contender in the Big Eight.

A top 20? That will be hard to pick all year. Georgetown, Memphis State, North Carolina, North Carolina State, DePaul, Arkansas, Washington, Indiana and Oklahoma are possible top 10 teams.

David Wingate, Georgetown

The best of the rest is harder to identify. Kentucky has lost the "twin towers" (Sam Bowie and Melvin Turpin); Akeem Olajuwon still plays in Houston, but for the Rockets of the National Basketball Association, not the 1984 Division I finalist Cougars.

Here is a conference-by-conference rundown of the top teams and players in the division, along with independents:

Association of Mid-Continent Universities: A two-team race is likely between Illinois-Chicago (22-7 in 1983-84, three starters returning) and Northern Iowa (18-10, three). A first-place finish last season earned interim coach Willie Little the permanent coaching job at Illinois-Chicago, and his team is prepared to defend that title.

Top players: Clinton Ransey, sophomore, forward, Cleveland State (13.4 points per game in 1983-84); Jon Collins, junior, forward, Eastern Illinois (18.3 ppg); Ivan Daniels, senior, forward, Illinois-Chicago (15.4 ppg); Randy Kraayenbrink, junior, guard, Northern Iowa (18.5 ppg); Randy Stange, senior, guard, Southwest Missouri State (10.4 ppg); Richard Sims, sophomore, guard, Wisconsin-Green Bay (16.8 ppg).

Atlantic Coast: Several teams certainly will not win the conference; but only because they belong to other leagues. The ACC again will be a dogfight, so here is a preview of all the teams: Clemson (14-14, four), Duke (24-10, five), Georgia Tech (18-11, five), Maryland (24-8, three), North Carolina (28-3, two), North Carolina State (19-14, five), Virginia (21-12, two) and Wake Forest (23-9, three). Based on returning talent, ACC fans probably will be treated to a four-way battle between the Tar Heels of North Carolina, the Wolfpack of North Carolina State, the Duke Blue Devils and Georgia Tech. Count on the rest of the league for upsets.

Top players: Vince Hamilton, senior, guard, Clemson (14.2 ppg); Johnny Dawkins, junior, guard, Duke (19.4 ppg); Mark Price, junior, guard, Georgia Tech (15.6 ppg); Len Bias, junior, forward, Maryland (15.2 ppg); Adrian Branch, senior, guard/forward, Maryland (13.0 ppg); Brad Daugherty, junior, center, North Carolina (10.5 ppg); Lorenzo Charles, senior, forward, North Carolina State (18.0 ppg); Jim Miller, senior, forward, Virginia (10.8 ppg); Kenny Green, junior, forward, Wake Forest (17.8 ppg).

Atlantic 10: George Washington's Colonials (17-12, five) may have the firepower to win the Atlantic 10 title. Coach Gerry Gimelstob has the league's premier power player—senior center Mike Brown (19.6 ppg, 12.1 rebounds per game in 1983-84). Temple (26-5, two) is rebuilding, but the Owls will be competitive. St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) (20-9, two) also should be tough again. Rutgers (15-13) has five starters back, and coach Tom Young will try to help the Scarlet Knights move up the league ladder. If West Virginia coach Gale Catlett can solve the problem at center, the Mountaineers (20-12, three) could win a third straight Atlantic 10 tournament and gain an NCAA play-off berth.

Top players: Emmett Sellers, junior, guard, Duquesne (17.9 ppg); Horace Neysmith, senior, forward, Massachusetts (13.2 ppg); John Battle, senior, guard, Rutgers (21.0 ppg); Barry Mungar, junior, forward, St. Bonaventure (14.3 ppg); Bob Lojewski, senior, forward, St. Joseph's (15.4 ppg); Maurice Martin, junior, guard/forward, St. Joseph's (15.6 ppg); Granger Hall, senior, forward, Temple (16.9 ppg, 7.1 rebounds per game); Lester Rowe, senior, forward, West Virginia (15.6 ppg, 6.9 rpg).

Big East: Defending Division I champion Georgetown (34-3, four) lost only Michael Graham, who is taking a year off to regain his academic standing. The Hoyas should win the league, but St. John's (New York) (18-12, four), Syracuse (23-9, three) and Villanova (19-13, four) also will be strong. The Big East likely will have more than one top-20 team by season's end. Georgetown will be tough to stop, however.

Top players: Michael Adams, senior, guard, Boston College (17.3 ppg); Earl Kelley, junior, guard, Connecticut (14.4 ppg); Patrick Ewing, senior, center, Georgetown (16.4 ppg, 10.0 rpg); Chris Mullin, senior, forward/guard, St. John's (New York) (22.9 ppg); Rafael Addison, junior, forward/guard, Syracuse (17.7 ppg, 6.0 rpg); Dwayne Washington, sophomore, guard, Syracuse (14.4 ppg); Ed Pinckney, senior, forward/center, Villanova (15.4 ppg, 7.9 rpg).

Big Eight: Sooners and Jayhawks are the nicknames of the conference favorites. Oklahoma's Sooners (29-5, three) have Wayman Tisdale, one of nation's top players. In Lawrence, Kansas, Larry Brown has the Kansas Jayhawks (22-10, three) ready to improve on a second-place regular-season finish. The front line is the Jayhawks' strength with freshman Danny Manning and veterans Greg Drciling and Calvin Thompson.

Top players: Alex Stivrins, senior, forward, Colorado (12.1 ppg, 9.2 rpg); Barry Stevens, senior, forward, Iowa State (22.2 ppg); Calvin Thompson, junior, forward, Kansas (11.3 ppg); Eddie Elder, senior, forward, Kansas State (13.1 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Malcolm Thomas, senior, forward, Missouri (16.4 ppg, 9.0 rpg); Dave Hoppen, junior, center, Nebraska (19.9 ppg, 6.9 rpg); Wayman Tisdale, junior, forward/center, Oklahoma (27.0 ppg, 9.7 rpg); Tim McCalister, sophomore, guard, Oklahoma (16.1 ppg); Joe Atkinson, junior, forward, Oklahoma State (18.0 ppg, 7.6 rpg).

Big Ten: Indiana coach Bob Knight, back from a victory in the Summer Olympics, has five starters returning, and he recruited "Mr. Basketball" from both Illinois and Indiana. His Hoosiers (22-9) should be favored to win the league title. Illinois (26-5, four) will not be far behind. The Illini tied Purdue for the Big Ten crown a year ago. Gene Keady has the Purdue Boilermakers (22-7, two) ready to heat things up again. Like the other major Division I conferences, the race probably will be decided on the last weekend of the season.

Top players: Efreem Winters, junior, forward, Illinois (14.7 ppg); Steve Alford, sophomore, guard, Indiana (15.5 ppg); Uwe Blab, senior, center, Indiana (11.8 ppg, 6.1 rpg); Greg Stokes, senior, center, Iowa (14.9 ppg, 6.9 rpg); Roy Tarpley, junior, center, Michigan (12.5 ppg, 8.1 rpg); Sam Vincent, senior, guard, Michigan State (15.6 ppg); Tommy Davis, senior, guard, Minnesota (16.0 ppg); Steve Reid, senior, guard, Purdue (12.3 ppg).

Big Sky: A three-team race probably will develop among Montana (23-7, two), Nevada-Reno (17-14, four) and Weber State (23-8, three). Despite a .500 record in the regular season, coach Sonny Allen led Nevada-Reno to the Big Sky tournament championship. With four starters back, a repeat performance is not out of the question.

Top players: Larry Krystowiak, junior, forward, Montana (18.0 ppg, 10.5 rpg); Jeff Epperly, senior, guard, Montana State (11.9 ppg); Curtis High, senior, guard, Nevada-Reno (13.3 ppg); Randy Worster, senior, forward, Weber State (12.1 ppg).

East Coast: Several teams will be challengers this season. Among them are Bucknell (24-5, two), Drexel (17-12, three) and Rider (20-11, two). Despite a 12-17 record last season, Lafayette, with four veterans back, could be tough by season's end.

Top players: Jaye Andrews, senior, guard, Bucknell (15.3 ppg); Oscar Jones, junior, guard, Delaware (13.6 ppg); Myles McPartland, senior, center, Hofstra (11.0 ppg, 8.3 rpg); Stan Morse, senior, guard, Lafayette (12.0 ppg); Mike Polaha, sophomore, guard, Lehigh (11.9 ppg); Derrick Lamar, senior, forward, Rider (12.9 ppg); Steffan Bunsavage, junior, forward, Towson State (12.4 ppg).

ECAC North Atlantic: Boston University (16-13, four), Canisius (19-11, four) and Northeastern (27-5, three) should make this race interesting. Northeastern was 14-0 in the league last season and probably will win again, but Boston U. and Canisius will make a fight of it.

Top players: Mike Alexander, junior, forward, Boston University (15.1 ppg); Ray Hall, senior, guard, Canisius (19.6 ppg, 6.3 rpg); Ulysses Garcia, junior, guard, Hartford (17.0 ppg); Leon Blalock, junior, guard/forward, Niagara (10.9 ppg); Reggie Lewis, sophomore, forward, Northeastern (17.8 ppg, 6.2 rpg); Eric Banks, junior, forward, Siena (16.5 ppg); Doug Poetzsch, senior, forward, Siena (13.4 ppg, 8.0 rpg).

ECAC Metro: Long Island should see Georgetown, page 11

26 conferences will be experimenting with shot clocks

Some fans argue that a shot clock is long overdue in college basketball; others disagree emphatically. This season, 26 conferences will provide more data for the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee by using a 45-second clock (see list).

Three conferences—the Atlantic 10, Big Sky and Pacific Coast Athletic Association—also will add three-point plays to their shot-clock experiments. Finally, Eastern Washington will experiment with a target rim/backboard configuration during the regular season. Eastern Washington coach Jerry V. Krause is a member of the rules committee.

The major rules change involves the addition of a 28-foot coaching box, which will extend from the end line to the midcourt line (also known as the time line). The following statement is included as Rule 10-10-b in 1985 NCAA Men's Basketball Rules and Interpretations:

"A coach, squad member or team attendant may only leave the confines of the coaching-box area if it is for the sole and distinct purpose of seeking information from the scorer or timer during a timeout or intermission or to request a timeout for a correctable error by the officials as stipulated in 2-10."

Another rules change that could affect strategy is the addition of a team timeout in games involving commercial media. Each squad now has four timeouts, plus any TV timeouts, per contest.

Points of emphasis this season deal mainly with charging fouls, although traveling and hanging on to the rim also have been included. The principle of verticality explains the rights of a defensive player, with his position established, relative to the potential for drawing a charge.

Under the rules, defensive players have established legal position when they have two feet on the floor and are facing their opponents. A defender legally may raise his hands from that position and may jump vertically from that position to occupy space within that vertical plane.

The offensive player may not "clear out" or break the plane of the defensive man to cause contact; that is an offensive foul. If contact takes place before the ball has been released, it is a player-control foul and the ball becomes dead.

Under traveling, the committee noted that an offensive player must release the ball to start a dribble before the pivot foot may leave the floor; if that is not the case, traveling should be called. Also, the committee noted the need for officials to look for illegal foot movement by inside players making a move to the basket or attempting to pass.

Even with the advent of collapsible rims, the committee noted that any grasping of the rim is a technical foul and it must be called.

Here is a list of the experiments that will be conducted by conferences during the 1984-85 men's basketball season, by division.

Division I
Shot clock: Atlantic Coast, Big East, Big Eight, Big Ten, ECAC South, East Coast, Metro, Mid-American, Midwestern City, Missouri Valley, ECAC North Atlantic, Southeastern, Southwest, Sun Belt, Western Athletic and West Coast Athletic.

Shot clock and three-point play: Atlantic Ten, Big Sky, Pacific Coast Athletic.

Target rim/backboard experimentation: Eastern Washington University.

Division II
Shot clock: Central Intercollegiate Athletic, Great Lakes Athletic and Lone Star.

Division III
Shot clock: Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic, Southland and State University of New York Athletic.

MIAA competition, not play-offs, gains Mules' attention

Lynn Nance agrees with John Thompson about not getting the cart before the horse. As head coach of Division II national champion Central Missouri State, Nance first must guide his team through a very competitive Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association schedule before he begins thinking about defending the NCAA title.

"It is amazing to me that no one ever won a national championship out of the MIAA before we did last season," said Nance, who guided the Mules to a 29-3 record.

"All of the teams are highly competitive, and that situation will be the same again this season. Northwest Missouri State will be tough again. Its team was picked to finish last a year ago but finished fourth. Northeast has everybody back and has added three good players.

"Missouri-Rolla again will be excellent. Southeast Missouri State lost some key people, but they should be competitive."

When asked about his own team, Nance listed more than an obvious void in the back court as his main concern.

"Our most obvious hole is at point guard, where we lost Brian Pesko. Early on, there will be some adjustments to make as our team gets used to a new player at that position. However, I don't believe that is the biggest thing we have to worry about.

"After any team wins a national championship, people will play you much differently the next year. How you handle that, and how the players react, are things that nobody really knows until the time comes. You can talk about confidence all you want in practice, but you have to have something on the line to see how people react."

Seniors Ron Nunnally, Rudy Horton and Tyrone Lee will lead the Mules.

"The championship focuses a lot more attention on your league, so things will be even hotter in the MIAA this season. Add to that the fact that coaches, like players, are very competitive. The guys I coach against this season all will have extra incentive to beat Central Missouri State," Nance said.

Will that kind of intense competition be a help or a hindrance? "We don't feel that anyone we play or any place we play will be any tougher than anything we see in our own conference," Nance said. "Our only Division II loss last season came at Northwest in overtime. We won 11 games in our division that were decided by five points or less. That will give you an idea of how our regular season could go."

One could argue that the MIAA winner will have the inside track on the Division II championship. That may not be the case. Certainly, any one of the teams mentioned by Nance could be final-four material.

At the same time, so could the Pennsylvania Conference schools; and Virginia Union, Kentucky Wesleyan, North Alabama, Tampa, Cal State Bakersfield and many others also could make return trips to the play-offs.

Here is a region-by-region rundown of the top teams and players in Division II:

New England

Top teams: American International (23-8 last season, three starters returning) and Assumption (18-11, three) are the teams to beat in the Northeast-8 Conference. New Hampshire College (18-11, five) may make a run in the New England Collegiate Conference, where defending champion Sacred Heart (26-7, four) looks like the team to beat.

Top players: Mario Elic, senior, forward, American International (18.9 points per game last season, 8.6 rebounds per game); Kevin Nolan, senior, forward, Assumption (16.3 ppg, 12.1 rpg); Scott Schoonmaker, junior, forward, Assumption (12.5 ppg); Mark Butigian, senior, forward, Bridgeport (18.6 ppg); Andy Corey, senior, forward, Lowell (14.3 ppg, 8.3 rpg); Carmen Giampetruzzi, junior, guard, New Hampshire College (21.1 ppg); Joe Bradley, sophomore, forward, New Hampshire College (15.6 ppg); Greg Spicer, junior, guard, New Haven (15.3 ppg).

Also, Cameron Drew, junior, center, New Haven (15.4 ppg, 9.9 rpg); Peter Gray, junior, forward, Quinnipiac (16.3 ppg); Keith Mason, junior, forward, Quinnipiac (15.2 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Roger Younger, junior, guard, Sacred Heart (19.9 ppg); Keith Johnson, junior, forward, Sacred Heart (17.7 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Jamie Cosgrove, sophomore, guard, St. Anselm (10.1 ppg); Michael Prim, junior, forward, Southern Connecticut State (15.9 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Ivan Olivares, junior, forward, Springfield (17.4

ppg, 8.8 rpg); George Leonard, junior, forward, Stonehill (15.8 ppg, 9.9 rpg).

East

Top teams: In the Pennsylvania Conference, a three-team battle seems to be brewing. Bloomsburg (19-11, four) had a good recruiting year, and Mansfield (26-6, three) also will be strong. Millersville (17-11, four) has added several talented newcomers to complement its returning veterans. In the Mid-east Collegiate Conference, Philadelphia Textile (21-8, three) and Le Moyne (20-8, three) will battle it out.

Top players: Shane Planutis, junior, forward, Bloomsburg (12.1 ppg); Mike Wilson, senior, guard/forward, California (Pennsylvania) (17.1 ppg, 9.5 rpg); Ronald Barnett, junior, forward, Cheyney (14.3 ppg, 9.0 rpg); Keith Smith, junior, guard, Cheyney (15.5 ppg); Harold Warner, senior, guard, Gannon (20.2 ppg);

Chris Venning, junior, guard, Le Moyne (12.5 ppg); Gerara Conyers, senior, center, Mansfield (11.5 ppg, 6.4 rpg); Robert Davis, junior, guard, Mercy (24.2 ppg); James Harrison, junior, forward, Mercy (14.4 ppg, 13.5 rpg).

Also, John Fox, sophomore, forward, Millersville (15.4 ppg, 11.4 rpg); Darren Keith, junior, forward, Philadelphia Textile (17.4 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Andy Jones, senior, guard, Philadelphia Textile (16.3 ppg); Mike Gresik, senior, forward, Pittsburgh-Johnstown (16.5 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Norman Roberts, sophomore, guard, Queens (19.0 ppg); Parrish Petry, senior, guard, Shippensburg (14.6 ppg); Kevin Williams, junior, forward/center, Slippery Rock (13.5 ppg, 10.9 rpg); Stan Benton, senior, guard, Southampton (18.0 ppg, 9.0 rpg).

South Atlantic

Top teams: Virginia Union played for the Division II championship last season, and all five starters return from that 27-6 team. The other team to watch here will be Pembroke State. Coach Billy Lee's team (26-7, three) won the Carolinas Conference championship last year.

Top players: John White, senior, forward, Bowie State (15.4 ppg, 9.5 rpg); Cedric Miller, senior, center, Hampton Institute (11.0 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Dan Napolitano, senior, forward, Maryland-Baltimore County (15.1 ppg); Breck Robinson, junior, forward, Maryland-Baltimore County (12.7 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Ricky Melvin, senior, forward, Pembroke State (14.4 ppg); Darryl Martin, senior, guard, Pembroke State (12.1 ppg); Charles Oakley, senior, center, Virginia Union (21.7 ppg, 13.1 rpg).

South

Top teams: In the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Alabama A&M (21-8, three) should battle Clark (Georgia) (17-12, three) for the regular-season title. Many good teams return to the Gulf South Conference race, but Jacksonville State (23-8, five) appears to have the upper hand. Top challengers are North Alabama (27-7, two), Tennessee-Martin (19-10, four) and West Georgia (26-4, one). Sunshine State Conference representative Tampa (20-11, four) will be strong, as will independent Columbus (22-7, four).

Top players: Leafus Thomas, senior, forward, Alabama A&M (19.1 ppg, 8.8 rpg); Calvin Staten, senior, guard, Alabama A&M (18.1 ppg); Ernest Lee, sophomore, guard, Clark (21.6 ppg); Tim Thomas, junior, forward, Columbus (15.8 ppg); Chubby Jackson, senior, center, Columbus (14.8 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Carl Brown, junior, guard, Delta State (17.5 ppg); George Blake, senior, forward, Eckerd (16.9 ppg, 7.6 rpg); Patrick McDonald, junior, forward, Florida International (16.0 ppg, 9.0 rpg); Dave Shepherd, sophomore, forward, Florida Tech (12.5 ppg); Willie Kelly, sophomore, guard, Fort Valley State (15.6 ppg); Allen Melvin, senior, guard, Jacksonville State (15.5 ppg); Keith McKeller, junior, center, Jacksonville State (11.9 ppg, 9.7 rpg); Robert Harris, sophomore, guard, North Alabama (12.5 ppg).

Also, Scott Kinney, junior, forward, Rollins (18.8 ppg); Scott Thatcher, senior, forward, St.

Leo (14.0 ppg); Al Miller, senior, forward, Tampa (10.3 ppg); Jerry Davis, senior, forward, Tennessee-Martin (18.5 ppg, 8.0 rpg in 1982-83—returning from injury); Sam Cherry, senior, forward, Tennessee-Martin (15.0 ppg, 8.7 rpg); Joe Johnson, sophomore, guard, Tuskegee Institute (17.0 ppg); Marlon Jones, junior, guard, Valdosta State (18.3 ppg); Tom Criswell, junior, guard, West Georgia (12.7 ppg).

Great Lakes

Top teams: Both the Great Lakes Valley and the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Conferences will have good races this season. In the former, watch for Kentucky Wesleyan (28-3, one) to be challenged by Bellarmine (21-9, two) and Lewis (22-8, three). Indiana-Purdue at Fort Wayne (18-10, four) may be a sleeper. In the Great Lakes Intercollegiate, the teams to watch are Hillsdale (23-9, three) and Wayne State (Michigan) (20-9, three). Hillsdale coach Rod Halstad is beaming about another good recruiting year, so the Chargers may be able to take the league crown this season. Two more teams to watch are Transylvania (21-9, three) and Wright State (19-9, two).

Top players: Mike Thomas, senior, forward, Ferris State (12.9 ppg, 8.3 rpg); Randy Parlon, junior, guard, Grand Valley State (15.9 ppg); Bill Granberry, senior, center/forward, Hillsdale (14.1 ppg, 9.5 rpg); Jeff Fullove, junior, guard/forward, Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne (18.5 ppg); Fred Bowles, senior, guard, Kentucky State (18.1 ppg); Ray Harper, senior, guard, Kentucky Wesleyan (11.7 ppg); Tom Niego, junior, forward, Lewis (11.9 ppg); Dan Fleming, senior, guard, Northern Kentucky (14.2 ppg); Ralph Mecklenberg, senior, forward/center, Quincy (14.5 ppg); Dan Farley, senior, center, Saginaw Valley State (12.5 ppg, 7.6 rpg); Mark Oates, senior, forward, Saginaw Valley State (15.0 ppg); Greg Martin, St. Joseph's (Indiana) (16.3 ppg, 10.3 rpg); Curtis Moore, senior, guard, Wayne State (Michigan) (15.8 ppg); Mark Vest, junior, forward, Wright State (18.2 ppg).

North Central

Top teams: The Northern Intercollegiate Conference should belong to Minnesota-Duluth (25-5, two). The North Central Conference race is much harder to call. Morningside (22-9, one), Nebraska-Omaha (23-7, three), North Dakota (17-11, five) and North Dakota State (19-9, four) all are capable of winning the league. In experience, North Dakota has the edge. Denver (28-4, three) and Regis (Colorado) (20-8, four) are independents that should have good seasons.

Top players: Bobby Johnson, Bemidji State (17.6 ppg); George Wayne, senior, center, Colorado Mines (19.3 ppg, 9.2 rpg); Dave Gilreath, senior, guard, Mankato State (14.7 ppg); Kevin Wilson, junior, center/forward, North Dakota (14.0 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Chuck Knostman, senior, forward, Northern Colorado (19.2 ppg); Craig Schumacher, senior, guard, Western State (Colorado) (19.3 ppg); Greg Korringa, sophomore, center, Western State (17.3 ppg, 6.7 rpg).

South Central

Top teams: No wonder Central Missouri State won the men's and women's Division II national championships last season—both teams play in the toughest conference in this region. If both survive the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association schedule this season, both easily could return to Springfield and the final four. The Mules of coach Lynn Nance (29-3, three) again will battle Northwest Missouri State (24-7, three) for the league title. Not surprisingly, Northwest was the only Division II team able to beat Central, and it needed overtime to do it. Another team to watch in the region, from the Gulf Star Conference, is Stephen F. Austin State (20-9, two).

Top players: James Wright, senior, forward, Abilene Christian (15.4 ppg, 5.9 rpg); Ron Nunnally, senior, guard, Central Missouri State (23.0 ppg); Curtis Gibson, senior, forward, Missouri-Rolla (17.3 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Joe Hurst, junior, forward, Northwest Missouri State (14.5 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Greg Gordon, senior, forward, Northeast Missouri State (14.7 ppg); Clar Burton, senior, forward/center, Northeast Missouri State (12.9 ppg, 6.3 rpg); Doug George, senior, forward, Stephen F. Austin State (11.0 ppg); James Gross, senior, center, Texas A&I (11.4 ppg, 5.5 rpg).

Warhawks have the manpower to defend Division III title

Like his counterparts in Divisions I and II, Wisconsin-Whitewater coach Dave Vander Meulen must prepare his squad for a rugged conference schedule before worrying about defending its NCAA championship.

"Two years ago, we made it to the final four after finishing second in our league, two or three games out. Last year, we won the Division III national championship after finishing in a tie for the league title, and we had to win two double-overtime games to get the tie," Vander Meulen said.

All three defending national champions could repeat; yet, all three will have difficulty winning their respective conferences. The Warhawks return three starters and have a better nucleus to build on than last year, when Vander Meulen had to replace five of his top eight players.

"I believe we will have another good team this season," Vander Meulen said. "How good? I don't know. I think we will need to have a little luck along with it (talent) to return to the final four, but I think we can do it."

Is the Wisconsin State University Conference going to be easier?

"Oh, I expect the same type of thing as we had the past couple of seasons. We could make it to the final four without winning our league," Vander Meulen said.

That kind of pressure, tight games almost every time out, has to be an advantage as Vander Meulen prepares his team for possible postseason action.

"How much that type of pressure in the regular season helps a team is pure conjecture; certainly, it doesn't hurt. I believe the more important experience comes from playing double weekend games; you play these guys Friday and those guys Saturday. That experience really helps in the tournament, which is very similar," Vander Meulen said.

Although one of the Warhawks' returning starters is all-America candidate Mark Linde, Vander Meulen says the effect of 1984 graduation may cause more changes this season than losing five of the top eight players two seasons ago.

He expects less offense from his team.

"We lost our starting guards, and one of them was a 2,000-point career scorer. We have some good guards back, but I think the changes are going to provide some different looks from the team this season.

"I believe we will not be as explosive ... those guards had the ability to take over a tight game and make things happen. We will look elsewhere for that type of thing; there will be less one-on-one from our back court. I also believe we could be a better defensive ball club, and we should be a little stronger.

"Mark Linde is 6-8, 240 pounds; he is a good one to build around."

Junior Duane Byrd, who has played at forward, will move to the back court with senior Stacy Bland. This will enable Linde and senior Jim Wilson to play on the front line at the same time. Wilson averaged almost 10 rebounds a game last season despite splitting time with Linde.

Challengers to Wisconsin-Whitewater's crown include Scranton, Nebraska Wesleyan, Castleton State, Norwich, North Carolina Wesleyan, North Central and DePauw.

Here is a region-by-region rundown of the top teams and players in Division III:

Northeast

Top teams: Castleton State (26-2 last season, four starters back) was undefeated in the Mayflower Conference and should win it again. A good group of veterans and some promising recruits bode well for Connecticut College (21-6, two). Maine-Farmington (20-7, four) also appears strong, as does Massachusetts-Boston (17-10, two), Norwich (21-4, one), Rhode Island College (17-9, four), St. Joseph's (Maine) (24-5, four), Thomas (15-9, three), Trinity (Connecticut) (24-2, two), Wesleyan (15-9, four), Westfield State (15-9, four) and Worcester Tech (14-9, three).

Top players: Mike Cagle, junior, guard, Anna Maria (18.5 points per game last season); Paul Cellucci, senior, guard, Brandeis (23.7 ppg); Bryan DeLoatch, senior, forward, Castleton State (19.1 ppg, 8.2 rebounds per game); Bill Bredthauer, senior, guard/forward, Clark (Massachusetts) (12.0 ppg); Chester Brewster, junior, forward, Emerson (22.0 ppg, 8.9 rpg); Marty Raynor, junior, center, Fitchburg State (14.8 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Adam St. John, senior, guard, Maine Maritime (24.7 ppg).

Also, Tom Cronin, sophomore, center/forward, North Adams State (19.2 ppg); Mark Ferdinando, senior, forward, Roger Williams (20.5 ppg); Jeff Creech, junior, guard, St. Joseph's (Maine) (22.2 ppg); David Ancietti, senior, center, Thomas (18.0 ppg); John Madden, senior, guard/forward, Thomas (15.2 ppg, 8.3 rpg); Ken Abern, junior, forward, Trinity (Connecticut) (17.7 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Greg Davis, junior, forward, Tufts (20.4 ppg); Greg Porydzy, senior, forward, Wesleyan (17.4 ppg); Brian Duren, junior, forward, Westfield State (20.3 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Tim Walsh, junior, guard, Williams (18.2 ppg); Orville Bailey, senior, guard, Worcester Tech (20.7 ppg).

East

Top teams: Buffalo State (23-5, three) is one of several good teams in this region. Others include Hamilton (19-7, four), Hartwick (18-5, four), Nazareth (New York) (22-6, two), New York U. (17-9, five), Potsdam State (22-7, two) and Staten Island (25-4, four). NYU and Staten Island will battle for recognition in the Big Apple; Buffalo State and Hartwick are the top upstate entries.

Top players: Jessie Wineglass, senior, forward, Alfred (16.7 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Vince Brown, senior, center, Buffalo (16.8 ppg, 7.6 rpg); John Groover, senior, center, Buffalo State (15.0 ppg, 9.7 rpg); Mike Stokes, senior, forward, Cortland State (24.1 ppg); Trenton Tate, senior, guard, Elmira (21.0 ppg); Chris Hughey, junior, forward, Fredonia State (18.3 ppg, 10.1 rpg); Gary Rubasch, senior, guard, Geneseo State (22.8 ppg); Larry Kollath, senior, forward, Hamilton (14.4 ppg, 12.9 rpg); Mark Genovese, senior, guard, Hobart (19.5 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Bob McNamee, senior, forward, Merchant Marine (22.5 ppg, 8.4 rpg); Steve Tsevdos, junior, forward/guard, New York Tech (14.5 ppg); John Bowe, sophomore, forward, New Paltz State (18.0 ppg); Rick Whitney, senior, forward, Potsdam State (10.5 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Joe Augustinc, senior, forward, Rochester (18.1 ppg); Ron Chase, junior, guard, Staten Island (15.1 ppg); Jerry Rickrode, senior, guard, Skidmore (17.1 ppg); Vincent Lewis, junior, guard, York (New York) (19.9 ppg).

Middle Atlantic

Top teams: Allegheny (15-7, five) should excel in the Presidents' Conference this season. Lycoming (15-9, four) also will be tough, but the cream of the crop may be Scranton (23-6, two). Coach Bill Bessoir has added two junior college all-Americans who should offset Scranton's graduation losses. Susquehanna (21-7, two) and Widener (18-9, three) are other top teams.

Top players: John Luciano, senior, forward, Allentown (16.5 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Steve Swope, sophomore, forward/center, Elizabethtown (13.3 ppg, 8.6 rpg); Bert Krieger, junior, center, Lebanon Valley (19.6 ppg, 8.8 rpg); Ed Langer, junior, forward, Lycoming (16.3 ppg); Mike Arner, senior, forward, Moravian (12.5 ppg); Bill Bessoir, senior, guard, Scranton (19.4 ppg, 6.1 rpg); Victor Harp, senior, forward, Thiel (17.7 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Wayne Johnson, senior, center, York (Pennsylvania) (20.8 ppg, 10.0 rpg).

South Atlantic

Top teams: Several teams have the talent to look forward realistically to NCAA tournament action. One of the best is Bridgewater (Virginia) (16-9, three), a squad that will be pushed in the Old Dominion Conference by Roanoke (27-2, two). Farther north, Salisbury State (19-8, four) will be strong, as will Stockton State (18-10, four), Washington (Maryland) (19-4, four) and William Paterson (22-6, three).

Top players: John Winkler, junior, forward, Catholic (20.2 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Russ Stephan, junior, guard, Drew (16.2 ppg); Leonard Dow, junior, forward, Eastern Mennonite (21.9 ppg, 9.7 rpg); Kevin Brown, sophomore, forward, Emory and Henry (21.0 ppg); Reggie Thomas, senior, guard, Roanoke (13.6 ppg); Reginald Owens, senior, forward/center, Rutgers-Camden (18.1 ppg, 7.5 rpg); Scott Smith, senior, guard, Salisbury State (14.6 ppg); Dan Bronstein, junior, guard, Stevens Tech (17.5 ppg); Jay Phillips, senior, forward, Stockton State (14.7 ppg); Bob Fornhoff, senior, center/forward, Washington (Maryland) (14.1 ppg).

Great Lakes

Top teams: Many of the region's top teams are members of the Ohio Athletic Conference. Among the teams to watch are Berea (23-5, three), Capital (23-6, three), DePauw (25-5, three), Heidelberg (24-7, three), Hope (22-2, three), Otterbein (19-8, five); St. John's (Minnesota) (20-8, one) and Wittenberg (18-9, three).

Top players: Bruce Arensmeier, junior, center, Albion (12.5 ppg, 8.3 rpg); Tom Owsley, senior, guard, Berea (20.2 ppg); Kyle Vander Brug, senior, guard, Calvin (18.3 ppg); Darrin Blackford, junior, forward, Capital (15.3 ppg, 6.1 rpg); Rod Swartz, sophomore, guard, Hiram (20.5 ppg); Rusty Swartz, senior, guard, Hiram (18.6 ppg); Chip Henry, senior, forward, Hope (17.0 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Herb Cunningham, junior, guard, John Carroll (18.3 ppg); Chris Russell, senior, guard, Kenyon (22.5 ppg); Mark Oberholtzer, senior, forward, Ohio Wesleyan (17.8 ppg, 10.5 rpg); Dan Penn, senior, forward, Olivet (16.8 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Dick Hempy, sophomore, forward, Otterbein (17.8 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Mike McKinney, junior, forward, Otterbein (16.9 ppg); Tom Reader, junior, guard, Ripon (18.2 ppg); Tim Casey, senior, forward, Wittenberg (14.9 ppg).

Midwest

Top teams: Conference races in Illinois and Wisconsin should decide this region's play-off representatives. The Midwest's best are Aurora (20-7, one), Beloit (16-8, three), Blackburn (20-9, four), George Williams (20-7, one), North Central (18-10, three), North Park (18-8, four), St. Norbert (21-4, three), Wisconsin-Stevens Point (28-4, three) and Wisconsin-Whitewater (27-4, three).

Top players: Mike Clinton, junior, forward, Beloit (16.3 ppg, 7.5 rpg); Ike Dodd, senior, forward, Blackburn (19.1 ppg, 11.9 rpg); Tom Demith, senior, forward, Carthage (19.9 ppg, 11.0 rpg); Keith Libert, junior, center, Chicago (16.3 ppg, 8.0 rpg); Scott Wright, senior, center, Elmhurst (13.6 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Alonzo Echols, senior, guard, Eureka (16.2 ppg); Quentin Davis, senior, guard, Illinois Benedictine (19.0 ppg); Justyne Monegain, senior, forward, North Park (22.3 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Terry Porter, senior, guard/forward, Wisconsin-Stevens Point (18.8 ppg); Mark Linde, senior, center, Wisconsin-Whitewater (16.8 ppg).

South

Top teams: The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic and Dixie Athletic is the team to beat. Trying to do just that will be Alaska-Anchorage (15-13, three) and Eastern Montana (16-14, two). In the California Collegiate Athletic Association, California-Riverside (22-6, two), Cal State Bakersfield (21-8, three) and Chapman (22-6, three) are the front-runners. Cal State Chico (25-10, one) won the Northern California Conference a year ago and could do Conferences should provide most of the regular-season fireworks, although other teams definitely will be heard from. Centre (18-9, four) should win the the College Athletic Conference again this season. Le-Moyne-Owen (24-5, two) will be one of the best in the Southern Intercollegiate, and North Carolina Wesleyan (21-8, four) should repeat as titlist in the Dixie.

Top players: Tom Cowens, senior, forward, Centre (12.8 ppg); Marcus Keith, senior, forward, Greensboro (12.0 ppg); Cedric Williams, senior, forward, LeMoyne-Owen (14.0 ppg, 8.5 rpg); Joe Monrow, senior, guard/forward, North Carolina-Greensboro (18.6 ppg); Terry Wright, senior, forward, North Carolina Wesleyan (10.2 ppg); Daniel Wright, junior, forward, North Carolina Wesleyan (12.4 ppg); Jack Martine, junior, forward, North Carolina Wesleyan (11.6 ppg); Scott Patterson, senior, forward, Rhodes (24.8 ppg, 7.5 rpg); Johnny Jones, senior, guard, Rust (16.0 ppg); Albert Wells, senior, forward, Rust (11.0 rpg); Chris Whittington, senior, guard, St. Andrews (18.0 ppg); Jim Startz, senior, forward, Sewanee (University of the South) (17.7 ppg, 7.8 rpg).

West

Top teams: Good teams abound in this region, from Texas to Minnesota to the Pacific Coast. Augsburg (19-7, four) will be tough again in the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. Bishop (23-3, three) owns the longest current winning streak in the division (10) and will be strong. Claremont-Mudd-Scripps (17-10, two) may be the best Division III team in California this season. Luther (20-7, three) and Nebraska Wesleyan (23-5, five) will be the top threats in the Great Plains.

Top players: Brian Ammann, senior, guard, Augsburg (25.8 ppg); Billy Wright, senior, forward, Bishop (21.8 ppg, 11.2 rpg); Bob Possehl, senior, guard, Coe (15.7 ppg); Tim Lundquist, junior, center, Dubuque (20.8 ppg, 8.4 rpg); Jim Niemyer, senior, center, Grinnell (17.5 ppg, 9.5 rpg); Roger Stippel, senior, forward, Hamline (16.6 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Dana Janssen, junior, center, Nebraska Wesleyan (19.1 ppg, 10.9 rpg); Mark Graham, senior, guard, Nebraska Wesleyan (15.9 ppg); Bob Ike, senior, center, Occidental (14.8 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Willie Green, senior, guard, St. Mary's (Minnesota) (16.6 ppg); Mike Miller, sophomore, center, St. Mary's (Minnesota) (14.5 ppg, 9.6 rpg); Don Rogers, senior, forward, Trinity (Texas) (18.7 ppg, 9.2 rpg); Greg Atkins, senior, forward, Upper Iowa (16.8 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Steve Bloom, senior, forward, Whittier (12.5 ppg, 7.5 rpg).

Top players: Eddie Brown, senior, forward, Cal Poly-Pomona (14.5 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Kevin Burrell, senior, center, Cal State Dominguez Hills (14.5 ppg, 9.9 rpg); Tony Brown, junior, center, Cal State Los Angeles (13.1 ppg, 11.1 rpg); Jeff Andrade, senior, guard, Eastern Montana (19.6 ppg); Steve Meredith, senior, forward, Humboldt State (15.0 ppg); Eugene Tillman, senior, forward, New Mexico Highlands (14.7 ppg, 10.7 rpg); Joe Whitney, junior, forward, Puget Sound (12.6 ppg); Shawn Daniels, senior, guard/forward, Southern Utah State (18.5 ppg, 8.1 rpg).

Mark Vest, Wright State

be the strong entry here. Following on the heels of Riley Clarida, who was one of the top NCAA rebounders for four years, is Carey Scurry.

Top players: Larry Hampton, senior, guard, Fairleigh Dickinson-Teaneck (13.7 ppg); Carey Scurry, senior, forward/center, Long Island (18.6 ppg, 13.5 rpg); Jeff Hamilton, St. Francis (Pennsylvania) (17.7 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Greg Clay, senior, guard, Wagner (15.8 ppg).

ECAC South: Another three-team battle should evolve among Richmond (22-10, four), Navy (24-8, two) and William and Mary (14-14, four).

Top players: Frank Ross, sophomore, guard, American (11.1 ppg); Carlos Yates, senior, forward, George Mason (22.1 ppg); Ricky Wilson, junior, guard, George Mason (15.6 ppg); Vernon Butler, junior, forward, Navy (14.7 ppg); John Newman, junior, forward, Richmond (21.9 ppg); Keith Cieplicki, senior, guard, William and Mary (15.3 ppg).

Ivy: Cornell (16-10, four), Harvard (15-11, four) and Princeton (18-10, three) should be the contenders in the Ivy League. A noteworthy addition to the Princeton roster is John Thompson III, son of Georgetown head coach John Thompson.

Top players: Stark Langs, senior, forward, Brown (11.2 ppg); Ken Bantum, senior, center, Cornell (14.2 ppg, 7.0 rpg); Joe Carrabino, senior, forward, Harvard (22.0 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Karl Racine, senior, guard, Pennsylvania (14.2 ppg); Chris Kelly, senior, forward, Yale (14.6 ppg, 6.3 rpg).

Metro: This may be the season that Dana Kirk overcomes Denny Crum, i.e., Memphis State beats Louisville for the Metro title. The Tigers of Memphis State (26-7, four) are led by senior Keith Lee. The Cardinals (24-11, three) will rely heavily on Milt Wagner and Billy Thompson. Also, do not count out Florida State and Virginia Tech. The Seminoles (20-11, three) and the Hokies (22-13, four) may surprise favorites.

Top players: Alton Lee Gipson, senior, center, Florida State (20.2 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Milt Wagner, senior, guard, Louisville (16.6 ppg); Keith Lee, senior, forward, Memphis State (18.4 ppg, 10.8 rpg); James Williams, senior, forward, Southern Mississippi (14.9 ppg); John Williams, senior, center, Tulane (19.4 ppg); Perry Young, senior, forward, Virginia Tech (18.3 ppg, 6.7 rpg).

Metro Atlantic: The regular-season battle should be between Iona (23-8, three) and La Salle (20-11, five). The Iona Gaels won the league tournament last season after tying with La Salle and St. Peter's (23-6, two) for regular-season honors.

Top players: Randy Cozzens, senior, guard, Army (14.9 ppg); Steve Samuels, senior, forward, Fordham (14.6 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Tony George, junior, guard, Fairfield (16.5 ppg); Rory Grimes, senior, guard, Iona (11.3 ppg); Ralph Lewis, senior, forward, La Salle (20.6 ppg, 9.1 rpg); Shelton Gibbs, senior, forward, St. Peter's (17.0 ppg).

Mid-American: Although Miami (Ohio) (24-6, one) won the league a year ago, there is some rebuilding to be done. Ohio (20-8, four) and Toledo (18-11, four) have more experienced players and seem to have an edge. Bowling Green State (18-10, two) should be challenger, too.

Top players: Derek Boldon, senior, center, Central Michigan (14.2 ppg, 6.0 rpg); Larry Robbins, senior, guard/forward, Kent State (17.3 ppg); Ron Harper, junior, forward, Miami (Ohio) (16.3 ppg, 7.6 rpg); Vic Alexander, senior, forward/center, Ohio (12.9 ppg); Ken Epperson, senior, forward, Toledo (20.4 ppg, 9.4 rpg); Booker James, sophomore, forward/guard, Western Michigan (14.3 ppg).

Mid-Eastern: North Carolina A&T (22-7, two) again should be favored to win the conference, but Howard (15-14, three) may provide tough competition.

Top players: Ronnie Weston, senior, guard, Bethune-Cookman (13.9 ppg); Jesse Jackson, sophomore, forward, Morgan State (19.2 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Eric Boyd, senior, guard, North Carolina A&T (15.0 ppg); Jimmy Brown, senior, guard, North Carolina A&T (14.9 ppg).

Midwestern City: Loyola (Illinois) (20-9, three) counts among its returnees senior forward Alfredrick Hughes (27.6 ppg), so the Ramblers may be tough to stop. Oral Roberts (21-10, four) also will be strong, and Xavier (22-11, one) may be a challenger if coach Bob Staak can pull his young team together.

Top players: Keith Gray, senior, guard, Detroit (17.0 ppg); Richie Johnson, senior, forward, Evansville (15.0 ppg, 8.4 rpg); Carl Golston, junior, guard, Loyola (Illinois) (19.7 ppg); Mark Acres, senior, center/forward, Oral Roberts (20.8 ppg); Sam Potter, senior, forward, Oral Roberts (18.1 ppg); Luther Burden, senior, guard, St. Louis (13.2 ppg).

Missouri Valley: At least three teams should be battling for the title at tournament time—Illinois State (23-8, three), Tulsa (27-4, three) and Wichita State (16-12, four). Do not count out Willis Reed's Creighton team (17-14, four).

Top players: Voise Winters, senior, forward, Bradley (15.4 ppg); Vernon Moore, senior, guard, Creighton (15.0 ppg); Benoit Benjamin, junior, center, Creighton (14.9 ppg, 9.8 rpg); Melvin Mathis, junior, forward/center, Drake (19.1 ppg, 8.6 rpg); Riekie Johnson, senior, forward, Illinois State (14.0 ppg); John Sherman, junior, guard/forward, Indiana State (21.8 ppg); Steve Harris, senior, guard, Tulsa (21.1 ppg); Xavier McDaniel, senior, forward, Wichita State (20.6 ppg, 13.1 rpg); Aubrey Sherrod, senior, guard, Wichita State (15.3 ppg).

Ohio Valley: This is a tough race to call. Morehead State (26-5) won the league last year, but no starters return. The teams with the most returning talent and experience are Eastern Kentucky (11-16, five), Tennessee Tech (18-10, four) and Youngstown State (18-11, four). The Golden Eagles of Tennessee Tech are the early favorites. Murray State (15-13, three) also could be in the heat of the battle.

Top players: Antonio Parris, sophomore, guard, Eastern Kentucky (18.8 ppg); Russell Smith, senior, center, Middle Tennessee State (12.0 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Craig Talley, senior, guard, Murray State (11.7 ppg); Stephen Kite, junior, forward, Tennessee Tech (18.0 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Ray Robinson, senior, forward/center, Youngstown State (12.4 ppg).

Pacific-10: On paper, Washington should win the conference race. Unfortunately for the Huskies, possibly, the league title will be decided on the court. Washington (24-7, four) will be challenged by Oregon State (22-7, three) Oregon (16-13, three) and possibly Walt Hazzard's UCLA Bruins (17-11, one).

Top players: Pete Williams, senior, center, (14.5 ppg, 9.9 rpg); Steve Beck, sophomore, guard, Arizona State (10.9 ppg); Blair Rasmussen, senior, center, Oregon (16.6 ppg); A. C. Green, senior, forward, Oregon State (17.8 ppg, 8.7 rpg); Wayne Carlander, senior, forward, Southern California (14.6 ppg); Detlef Schrempf, senior, forward, Washington (16.8 ppg, 7.4 rpg).

Pacific Coast: Boyd Grant and Jerry Tarkanian will battle again. Grant's Fresno State team (25-8, two) will use a methodical offensive attack, while Tarkanian's Runnin' Rebels at Nevada-Las Vegas (29-6, three) will run at every opportunity. Nevada-Las Vegas won the regular-season title last year, and Fresno State upset the Rebels in the league tournament.

Top players: Tod Murphy, junior, forward, UC Irvine (14.4 ppg); Scott Fisher, junior, forward, California-Santa Barbara (15.0 ppg); Scott Barnes, senior, center, Fresno State (10.7 ppg); Gary Davis, senior, guard, Cal State Fullerton (11.2 ppg); Richie Davis, senior, center/forward, Nevada-Las Vegas (12.7 ppg); Ed Catchings, senior, forward, Nevada-Las Vegas (12.3 ppg); Andre Patterson, senior, forward/center, New Mexico State (12.2 ppg, 8.1 rpg); Greg Grant, junior, forward, Utah State (17.9 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Vince Washington, senior, guard, Utah State (14.8 ppg).

Southeastern: Now that Kentucky's twin towers have departed, the front line must be rebuilt. The Wildcats (29-5) will be led by junior forward Kenny Walker and part-time starter Roger Harden. Coach Joe B. Hall's squad will challenge Auburn (20-11, three), Louisiana State (18-11, four) and Tennessee (21-14, three) for the league title.

Top players: Buck Johnson, junior, forward, Alabama (17.0 ppg); Bobby Lee Hurt, senior, center, Alabama (15.6 ppg, 9.1 rpg); Chuck Person, junior, forward, Auburn (19.1 ppg, 8.0 rpg); Eugene McDowell, senior, center, Florida (12.4 ppg, 8.7 rpg); Kenny Walker, junior, forward, Kentucky (12.4 ppg); Jerry Reynolds, junior, forward, Louisiana State (14.2 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Eric Laird, senior, guard, Mississippi (17.3 ppg).

Southern: The Thundering Herd of Marshall (25-6, four) must be picked to repeat as Southern Conference champions. Arguments will come from Tennessee-Chattanooga (24-7, two) and Western Carolina (15-13, two), however. Marshall coach Rick Huckabay should enjoy continued success in only his second year.

Top players: Glenn Clyburn, senior, guard/forward, Appalachian State (12.8 ppg); Regan Truesdale, senior, guard, Citadel (22.0 ppg, 8.1 rpg); James Tandy, junior, guard, East Tennessee State (16.2 ppg); Shawn Reid, sophomore, guard, Furman (12.2 ppg); Don Turney, senior, forward, Marshall (10.8 ppg); Gerald Wilkins, senior, guard, Tennessee-Chattanooga (17.3 ppg); Gay Elmore, junior, forward, Virginia Military (18.4 ppg); Quinton Lytle, senior, guard, Western Carolina (20.8 ppg).

Southland: Because of a wealth of experienced players, Louisiana Tech (26-7, four) looks like the team to beat. Trying to do just that will be Lamar (26-5, one), Northeast Louisiana (17-12, one) and possibly McNeese State (16-15, five).

Top players: Jerry Everett, senior, guard, Lamar (13.5 ppg); Karl Malone, junior, forward, Louisiana Tech (18.7 ppg, 8.7 rpg); Joe Dumars, senior, guard, McNeese State (26.4 ppg); Jerome Batisse, sophomore, forward, McNeese State (13.2 ppg).

Southwest: Joe Kleine and Jon Koncak are the conference's top pivot men, and they will be instrumental in helping their respective teams, Arkansas (25-7, two) and Southern Methodist (25-8, five), battle for the conference title. Of course, Houston (32-5, three) should not be counted out, even without Akeem Olajuwon.

Top players: Joe Kleine, senior, center, Arkansas (18.2 ppg, 9.2 rpg); Alvin Franklin, junior, guard, Houston (12.4 ppg); Jon Koncak, senior, center, Southern Methodist (15.5 ppg, 11.5 rpg); Larry Davis, senior, forward, Southern Methodist (14.9 ppg); Carlton Cooper, senior, forward, Texas (17.2 ppg); Todd Holloway, sophomore, guard, Texas A&M (12.0 ppg); Dennis Nutt, senior, guard, Texas Christian (17.5 ppg); Bubba Jennings, senior, guard, Texas Tech (13.8 ppg).

Sun Belt: Virginia Commonwealth (23-7) has everybody back and could repeat as conference champion; however, the Rams will need to get by Alabama-Birmingham (23-11, three), Old Dominion (19-12, five) and South Alabama (22-8, four).

Top players: Steve Mitchell, junior, guard, Alabama-Birmingham (13.5 ppg); Ronnie Murphy, sophomore, guard, Jacksonville (17.9 ppg); Otis Smith, junior, forward, Jacksonville (16.2 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Mark Davis, senior, guard/forward, Old Dominion (14.2 ppg); Keith Thomas, junior, guard, Old Dominion (13.8 ppg); Terry Catledge, senior, forward, South Alabama (19.9 ppg, 11.1 rpg); Charley Bradley, senior, forward, South Florida (22.3 ppg); Kannard Johnson, sophomore, forward/center, Western Kentucky (12.8 ppg).

Trans America: The top two teams from last season—Houston Baptist (24-7, two) and Samford (22-8, three)—should fight it out again. Samford seems to have more scoring punch.

Top players: Byron Strickland, senior, guard, Hardin-Simmons (12.9 ppg); Anicet Lavodrama, senior, center, Houston Baptist (12.6 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Matt England, senior, guard, Houston Baptist (12.2 ppg); Sam Mitchell, senior, forward, Mercer (21.5 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Craig Beard, senior, guard, Samford (21.5 ppg).

Western Athletic: Brigham Young (20-11, two) should contend for the WAC title, but Texas-El Paso (27-4, four) probably will be the champion when the buzzer sounds in 1985. New Mexico (24-11, one) also might make some waves in the WAC.

Top players: Maurice McDonald, junior, forward, Air Force (13.1 ppg); Rich Strong, junior, forward, Colorado State (13.3 ppg); Anthony Watson, junior, guard, San Diego State (10.5 ppg); Lester Goodwin, senior, guard, UTEP (10.5 ppg); Kelvin Upshaw, junior, guard, Utah (14.6 ppg).

West Coast: A three-team race should evolve among St. Mary's (California) (12-16, four), San Diego (18-10, four) and Santa Clara (22-10, four). San Diego, the defending champion, may have an edge, but the other two squads have the potential to unseat the Toreros.

Top players: Bryce McPhee, senior, guard/forward, Gonzaga (18.2 ppg); Darran Jenkins, senior, forward, Portland (11.1 ppg); Paul Pickett, senior, guard, St. Mary's (California) (13.1 ppg); Anthony Reuss, senior, forward, San Diego (11.0 ppg, 6.0 rpg); Harold Keeling, senior, guard, Santa Clara (18.3 ppg); Nick Vanos, senior, center, Santa Clara (17.0 ppg, 9.9 rpg).

Others: Dayton (21-11, three); DePaul (27-3, four); Notre Dame (21-12, four), where the Fighting Irish's first victory in 1984 will mark No. 1,200 all-time for the school in men's basketball; Stetson (19-9, two), and Texas-San Antonio (20-8, three), led by a chip off the old block of "ice," Derrick Gervin, younger brother of George.

Top players: Joe Williams, senior, forward, Alabama State (14.6 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Mike Feency, senior, guard, Alabama State (11.9 ppg); Ben Hinson, sophomore, guard, Baptist (15.0 ppg); Charles Perry, senior, guard, Chicago State (16.1 ppg); Sedric Toney, senior, guard, Dayton (11.6 ppg); Tyrone Corbin, senior, forward, DePaul (14.1 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Tony Chrisman, senior, center, Eastern Washington (17.7 ppg); John Harris, senior, forward/center, New Orleans (18.6 ppg, 8.7 rpg); George Almones, junior, guard, Southwestern Louisiana (16.9 ppg); Jose Crips, senior, center, Tennessee State (11.2 ppg, 10.8 rpg); Derrick Gervin, junior, forward, Texas-San Antonio (23.2 ppg, 8.8 rpg).

Legislative Assistance

1984 Column No. 27

Council interpretations

Member institutions are reminded of the recent NCAA Council interpretations that appeared in the Interpretations column on page 16 of the October 29, 1984, issue of The NCAA News. Please note the following:

Complimentary tickets

1. The Council revised Case No. 57 (page 260, 1984-85 NCAA Manual) to allow complimentary tickets for a postseason football game to be mailed to the recipient or accepted in person by the designated recipient either 10 days prior to the postseason football game or at the end of the traditional fall season per O.I. 307, whichever occurs first.

Printed recruiting aids

2. The Council revised Case No. 182 (page 295, 1984-85 NCAA Manual) to provide that only an annual press guide, an annual recruiting brochure, game programs and wallet-size playing schedules may be provided to prospective student-athletes or to high school or junior college coaches. Accordingly, effective with the October 29, 1984, publication of this case revision, providing other printed materials, such as calendars, pictures or posters, or monthly recruiting publications, to prospects or high school or junior college coaches would be not permissible.

Coaches' outside income

3. The Council approved Situation No. 623 regarding institutional staff members' involvement in promotional activities. This interpretation bars a staff member of a member institution's athletics department from receiving compensation from an individual or commercial business outside the institution for employment or assistance in the production, distribution or sale of items (e.g., calendars, pictures, posters, advertisements, cards) on which the names or pictures of student-athletes appear. The Council noted that the use of the names or pictures of student-athletes on promotional items is limited by Case No. 42 (page 256, 1984-85 NCAA Manual) to institutionally controlled activities involving the sale of official institutional publications and the sale of team or individual pictures by the institution. The Council's interpretation would apply even if the promotional items are provided without charge to the public by an outside individual or commercial business that produces or purchases the items through the assistance of the institution's staff member. For example, an athletics department staff member could not sell posters bearing the pictures of student-athletes to commercial businesses for free distribution.

Improper inducements — benefits for coaches

Member institutions are reminded of the provisions of Bylaws 1-1(b), 1-1(b)-(1) and 1-1(b)-(3), and Case Nos. 185-186 (pages 296-297, 1984-85 NCAA Manual) that prohibit a member institution from making an arrangement involving a material benefit for a high school or junior college coach (e.g., the provision of a gift such as a tangible item bearing the institution's insignia, the offer to pay a portion of his personal expenses or an arrangement to provide transportation for the coach). The arrangement of such a benefit for a high school or junior college coach would be considered an improper inducement to encourage the eventual enrollment of prospective student-athletes from the high school or junior college with which the coach is associated.

This legislation would not preclude legitimate compensation received by graduate teaching assistants enrolled in bona fide postgraduate programs conducted by member institutions, or, in Division I, the part-time coaching employment of a high school or junior college coach who remains associated with the high school or junior college in a coaching capacity in a different sport.

In Divisions II and III, Bylaw 1-1(b)-(3) permits the employment of a high school or junior college coach as a member of the coaching staff of a member institution. As set forth in Situation No. 621 published

Postgraduate scholarship program celebrates 20th year in 1984-85

By Michael V. Earle
The NCAA News Staff

With a history of increased stipends and number of grants, the NCAA postgraduate scholarship awards program for student-athletes celebrates its 20th anniversary this year.

Since the postgraduate awards program was begun in 1964, the NCAA has presented scholarships worth $2,124,000 to 1,534 student-athletes.

"The postgraduate scholarship program recognizes student-athletes for their academic achievements and leadership," said Fred Jacoby, chair of the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee. "Too often, they get recognition only because of their athletic prowess.

"The scholarships provide an incentive and motivate student-athletes to perform academically and give them an opportunity to continue their education so they may enter fields that can have more lasting benefits than a career in professional sports."

Thirty-two grants originally were awarded. The number increased to 50 in 1965, 70 in 1967, 80 in 1968 and to the current total of 90 in 1981. The grants increased from $1,000 to $1,500 in 1975 and to $2,000 in 1979.

Initially, 22 football and 10 basketball student-athletes were eligible for the scholarships. In 1965 and 1967, additional scholarships were awarded to participants in other sports in which the NCAA conducted national championships. Beginning in 1968, 33 scholarships were granted to football student-athletes, 15 to basketball participants and 32 to participants in other sports.

Currently, 25 football participants, 20 basketball players (10 men, 10 women) and 45 other varsity student-athletes (25 men, 20 women) who compete in sports other than football or basketball in which the NCAA conducts national-championship competition are eligible for the scholarships.

Proportionate numbers of scholarships in each category are allocated for Divisions I, II and III, with remaining at-large scholarships selected without division restriction.

Each award is paid directly to the university or professional school of the recipient's choice. The funds then may be distributed at the discretion of the university so long as they are used to pay expenses of the student-athlete's postgraduate education. The expenses include tuition, fees, room, board, required course-related supplies and books, plus a monthly stipend for incidental expenses.

Institutional representatives nominate qualified student-athletes who have been outstanding athletically and have achieved at least a 3.000 grade-point average on a 4.000 scale or its equivalent. A student-athlete must be nominated in this manner to be considered for the awards.

District selection committees screen the applications, and the winners are selected by the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee. The nominee's athletic achievement is weighed equally with academic achievement.

The scholarships have been used for a variety of graduate study areas. At least 50 different majors have been declared by the winners, with medicine, law, business administration, engineering, physics and mathematics the top choices.

Of the 431 member institutions that have had postgraduate scholarship winners, the University of Southern California leads with 29. The U.S. Air Force Academy is second with 25 winners, followed by the University of Notre Dame with 24, Stanford University with 23, and Brigham Young University and Dartmouth College with 20.

Other top institutions include the University of California, Los Angeles, and Yale University, 19; Pennsylvania State University, 18; University of Texas, Austin, 17; Ohio State University, Princeton University and University of the South, 16, and the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, the U.S. Military Academy and the University of Washington, 15.

NCAA-Japan golf competition set

The top six undergraduate male golfers from the 1984 NCAA Division I Men's Golf Championships and the top three female golfers from the 1984 NCAA Women's Golf Championships will represent the Association December 12-14 in the annual NCAA-Japan golf competition in Tokyo, Japan.

NCAA teams have won eight of the previous 10 matches, losing only in 1976. This will be the eighth time the exchange has been held in Japan. The 1978 and 1983 competitions were held at Pebble Beach in California.

Arizona State University coach

George W. Boutell, chair of the Men's Golf Committee, will lead the men's contingent, which includes NCAA runner-up Steve Elkington, University of Houston; Mike Swartz, University of Arkansas, Fayetteville; Davis Love, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Woody Austin, University of Miami (Florida); Jim Begwin, University of Oklahoma, and Sam Randolph, University of Southern California. Randolph also participated in last year's competition.

Lela Cannon, coach of defending NCAA women's champion Miami (Florida), will lead the women's team, which consists of Cindy Schreyer, University of Georgia; Martha Foyer, Southern Methodist University, and Michele Bertecotti, Miami (Florida). Schreyer won last year's individual title by defeating Foyer and Bertecotti in a three-hole play-off.

The top six male and top three female undergraduates in the respective Japanese collegiate championships will represent Japan.

The NCAA contingent will depart from Los Angeles for Tokyo December 8. After practice rounds December 10 and 11, competition will begin December 12 at the Narashino Country Club.

Academics is a key recruiting tool at Randolph-Macon

By Steven M. Carr
The NCAA News Staff

Randolph-Macon College, an institution with an enrollment of about 900, prides itself on the athletics and academic achievements of its student-athletes.

Like so many small institutions limited by budgets and the availability of athletics grants-in-aid, Randolph-Macon applies the "total-student" approach in attracting student-athletes.

"Athletics... helps us retain and graduate students," said Ladell Payne, Randolph-Macon president. "They are a value to the individual and a value to the institution. What we are proudest of here is that we are able to have a solid athletics program in conjunction with our academic program."

Statistics bear out Payne's contentions. In 1983, Randolph-Macon teams participated in 210 contests in 12 men's and women's sports, winning 143 times — a 69 percent success rate and that success resulted in five coach-of-the-year awards. A survey conducted 18 months ago indicated that over a 10-year period, 91 percent of the institution's basketball players who made it past their freshman year graduated. Of that 91 percent, 65 percent either had a graduate degree or were enrolled in a graduate program. In 1977, when the Yellow Jackets finished second in the NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Championship, seven players were on the dean's list.

"Our people graduate in four years," said coach Hal Nunnally. "I've had the job for nine years, and I've only had one player who was with me starting his junior year who didn't graduate in four years. I feel very strongly that there simply is no reason why success in athletics and graduation on time should be mutually exclusive."

Randolph-Macon, primarily a Division II program with the exception of football and women's lacrosse, which play a Division III schedule, offers six grants-in-aid for men's athletics — 4½ for basketball and 1½ for soccer — and three women's basketball grants. Nine sports recruit and compete without similar aid.

Of a total operating budget for 1984-85 of $9,721,750, only $409,650 was tagged for athletics — 4.2 percent. And yet, in a school with a student population of less than 1,000, the football program has attracted as many as 90 players. The Yellow Jackets were ranked seventh in the October 30 Division III poll.

During the 1983-84 soccer season, the Yellow Jackets won the Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Association Central Division and state men's championships, the Old Dominion Athletic Conference (ODAC) women's regular-season and tournament soccer championships, ODAC regular-season baseball and women's lacrosse titles, and the Mason-Dixon Athletic Conference regular-season and tournament men's basketball crowns.

"The fact that we have a modest number of grants-in-aid does not change, in my mind, the relative importance of athletics in academics," Payne said. "Our coaches can't sell grants-in-aid, not substantial ones anyway. What they have to sell is a strong academic program and a strong competitive program."

"Athletics are of great value to a small college in helping to establish a sense of identity," he said. "More than that, it gives us something collaterally related to athletics — something they (the students) can be involved with that teaches them discipline, cooperation, tests them and, at the same time, builds a core of friends that supports them."

Coaches sell the institution as a package.

"We have an excellent academic institution and we feel our athletics program is comparable," said Theodore S. Keller, athletics director.

"I think if you were to ask a lot of basketball coaches on my level, it would be really difficult for them to articulate specifically what they look for in a young man," Nunnally said. "First of all, we want to know about their transcripts. If they can't do the work here, there's no reason to look any further. What I'm constantly trying to find is either the over-achiever — the young man who has some limits on his talent but has figured out a way to compensate for those limits — or the young man who has not played in high school programs where he was developed to his fullest.

"We will have a lot of players that a lot of programs overlooked. But when they get to their junior years, those other schools ask themselves why they didn't recruit those players."

"One thing we're very conscious of is that if you try to go for really good people — people who have character in the old-fashioned meaning of the word and talent second — you're much better off in a situation of our kind."

Nunnally must be doing something right. The Yellow Jackets were 26-5 last season and have been ranked in the top 10 the past five years.

"One thing we've tried to do is establish that young men can be not just student-athletes, but scholar-athletes in the truest sense of the word," Nunnally said.

This does not mean that Randolph-Macon has never had a student or athlete flunk, drop out or struggle. It also does not indicate that every student and athlete earns straight As in the classroom.

"I'm not telling you that nobody flunks out," Keller said. "I have people flunk out and transfer out. I think one of the things that people mention is that if a student spends so much time with a sport, he or she won't get as good a grade as other people. But that's not true here. The athletes do just as well as the average student body, even though they spend a lot of time in preparation. I think the significant factor there is that we do make room for the studying. Study habits are important for our athletes."

Faculty perceptions of the athletics program vary, according to Payne, but appear to be primarily positive.

"Undoubtedly, there are some who feel that athletics is not a part of the academic experience," Payne said. "But I don't know of anyone who would not say that the athletics program here is a first-rate program for this type of institution and that it is a benefit for the college."

Senior running back Greg Amick,

Theodore Keller

Hal Nunnally

who was recruited on a very limited basis out of high school, expresses no regrets at his decision to attend Randolph-Macon.

"The coaching staff here knows how to maximize a player's talents," said Amick, a French major. "Secondly, when looking at a Division III program and looking at the athletes, you're looking at people who really love the game, who are out there to improve themselves and get the most out of the sport."

From an academic standpoint, Amick said his grades were higher during the football season "because my routine was more structured. I knew when I had to be at practice and what free time I had. My grades stayed higher during football than during any other semester."

Women's athletics coordinator Carroll Lehay has been contacted by interested students looking for the opportunity to mix athletics and academics.

"We get a lot of people who contact us. Because of the academic standards, we get a lot of ladies who are interested in the academic challenge but who would like to continue athletics," said Lehay, who coaches lacrosse and basketball. "They want to become successful academically and as a student-athlete, and I think that's attractive to them."

"I feel that where our program is today — and that is a relatively young and building program just like all of our women's sports — the student has potential and can definitely succeed here. They have the time to develop on their own, and I get to put a little of that development in. I feel I have a chance to mold them into something they have the potential to become, and that puts less pressure on the student and the coach."

in the Interpretations column of the September 10, 1984, issue of The NCAA News, the high school or junior college coach employed by a Division II or III institution under the provisions of Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3) must perform actual, on-the-field coaching duties; may be involved in recruiting only to the extent of such involvement by the institution's other on-the-field coaches, and must be under contract or other binding agreement for a period of not less than one academic year; however, the member institution is permitted to confine its compensation to such a coach to a shorter period of time, such as a sports season.

Committee studies changes in rules on professionalism

Representatives of the National Basketball Association, United States Football League and National Hockey League discussed possible revisions of the Association's rules relating to professional sports with the NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee October 29-31 in Kansas City, Missouri.

All three groups, recognizing the growing problem of unethical player agents, asked the committee to direct the NCAA Special Committee on Player Agents to explore the possibility of assisting student-athletes with negotiating professional contracts and allowing them to negotiate with a professional organization without jeopardizing their collegiate eligibility.

The representatives also recommended a student-athlete not be considered a professional until he signs a contract.

National Basketball Association representatives recommended revision of Case No. 18 to allow student-athletes who have agreed to be placed on the draft list of a professional league to withdraw before the actual draft and remain eligible for intercollegiate athletics.

USFL representatives sought support from the NCAA to discourage undergraduates from entering its professional draft. The committee noted the representatives' concern; however, it reiterated the Association's current position of encouraging student-athletes to pursue a degree but allowing them to forsake their eligibility to pursue a professional career.

Concern about considering individuals who participate in the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League as professionals prompted NHL representatives to recommend that the NCAA Council review and clarify under what circumstances those student-athletes would jeopardize their college eligibility.

In other action, the committee endorsed a recommendation that a member of the American Football Coaches Association and a member of the National Association of Basketball Coaches become members of the committee to assure participation from those associations.

Delegate forms to be mailed November 21

Forms used to appoint official delegates to the annual NCAA Convention will be mailed to chief executive officers at all NCAA member institutions November 21.

Faculty athletics representatives and directors of athletics will not receive the forms because only CEOs are authorized to make delegate appointments.

The delegate-appointment form will be inserted in the chief executive's copy of the Official Notice of the Convention.

Other delegate-appointment procedures:

- When no appointment form is received from the chief executive, no other institutional representative is permitted to complete the form at the time of Convention registration. In such cases, the institution's representatives will be registered as visitors until written authorization is received from the chief executive officer.

- Once the form has been signed and submitted by the chief executive officer, no one may be added as a voting or alternate delegate without a letter or telegram from the chief executive.

- Once the voting and alternate delegates have been appointed properly, they may transfer voting rights among themselves as the institution desires. No badges will be changed among voters and their alternates at the Convention.

- Conferences without voting privileges, affiliated members and corresponding members may appoint one delegate each. That delegate may speak on the Convention floor but will not have voting privileges.

- NCAA members and nonmembers are permitted to register as many visiting delegates as they wish. Visitors are considered observers and may neither address the Convention nor vote.

Convention schedules set

Composite meeting schedules and hotel reservation forms for the 1985 NCAA Convention have been mailed to all active, conference, affiliated and corresponding members.

The mailing was sent to each active member's chief executive officer, director of athletics, faculty athletics representative and primary woman administrator of athletics programs.

The composite meeting schedule contains a day-to-day listing of all meetings for the 79th annual Convention, which will be held January 14-16 in Nashville, Tennessee. Dates and times of meetings of numerous conferences and affiliated organizations held in conjunction with the Convention also are included in the meeting schedule.

The hotel reservation form should be completed and returned to the Housing Bureau, Nashville Chamber of Commerce.

Once the Opryland Hotel is full, delegates will be housed at the Holiday Inn Briley Parkway or the Marriott Hotel.

in network contracts constitute restraint of trade and are anticompetitive.

Following is the ruling by Judge Burciaga. Some passages as to legal references have been deleted.

MEMORANDUM OPINION

This Court previously has dealt with the issue of the legality of the controls exercised by the National Collegiate Athletic Association ["NCAA"] over the televising of college football games. Board of Regents v. National Collegiate Athletic Association. Having made its findings of fact and conclusions of law, the Court entered its declaratory judgment and permanent injunction decreeing:

(1) The right to telecast college football games is the property of the institutions participating in the games, and that right may be sold or assigned by those institutions to any entity at their discretion;

(2) The contracts for the televising of college football for the 1982-1983 seasons between National Collegiate Athletic Association and American Broadcasting Companies, Columbia Broadcast System and Turner Broadcast System violate the Sherman Antitrust Act... and are therefore void and of no effect;

(3) National Collegiate Athletic Association, its officers, agents and employees, shall be and hereby are enjoined from enforcing or attempting to enforce the provisions of the contracts above described and from making any other contract of similar kind or nature in the future;

(4) National Collegiate Athletic Association, its officers, agents and employees, shall be and hereby are enjoined from prohibiting member institutions from selling or assigning their rights to telecast the college football games in which they participate and from requiring as a condition of membership that those institutions grant to National Collegiate Athletic Association the power to control those institutions' rights to telecast college football games;

The Court further declared that it would retain jurisdiction over this matter for the purpose of monitoring compliance with the Court's order and for purposes of modifying the relief granted and granting further relief should circumstances so require. On appeal, the defendant argued, and plaintiffs agreed, that the injunction is lacking in specificity and is overly broad. The matter was remanded to permit this Court to consider its injunction in light of the views expressed in the majority opinion of the United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit. Board of Regents v. National Collegiate Athletic Association. Following the remand, the defendant filed a motion to modify the judgment and filed a brief in support of the motion with the attached affidavit of David E. Cawood, the assistant executive director-communications of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, attesting to NCAA activities following the United States Supreme Court's affirmation of this court's decision. National Collegiate Athletic Association v. Board of Regents of the University of Oklahoma. Plaintiffs filed a response to defendant's motion and in their brief also made reference to the activities of defendant following the affirmation of this court by both the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals and by the United States Supreme Court. On September 28, 1984, defendant withdrew its original motion to modify the judgment filed July 3, 1984, and made an amended motion to modify the judgment...

Oral arguments were heard by the Court October 11, 1984, and the matter is now before the Court for a decision.

As stated by the Court at the hearing October 11, 1984, in its initial opinion, the Court acknowledged that the injunction as issued could well lead to circumstances that could not at that time be foreseen. It is for this precise reason that the Court retained continuing jurisdiction in this matter. And it was surely not the Court's intention to have its injunction intrude into areas or activities that were not presented in the original litigation.

For example, there was nothing in the record to warrant the Court's prohibiting the NCAA from imposing television sanctions on schools that violate regulations unrelated to the television plan. Nor was it the Court's intention to preclude the NCAA from prohibiting games on Friday nights. The Court echoes the observation of the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals that neither of these effects is warranted by the violations found in the original cause of action.

At the hearing on defendant's motion October 11, 1984, the Court informed the parties that, in its view, it was inappropriate to consider additional evidence in complying with the mandate of the Court of Appeals; that, therefore, the Court would not consider additional evidence sought to be presented by both parties regarding what has occurred since the Court entered declaratory judgment and permanent injunction September 15, 1982. And, although the Court will adhere to this original pronouncement, the Court deems it appropriate to make some additional observations regarding these activities since it affords the Court an insight to what may be future conduct of the NCAA.

The Court is concerned by the lengths to which the NCAA has apparently gone in its zeal to impress upon its membership that somehow the NCAA prevailed in this action. Indeed, in reviewing defendant's counsel's explanation to the NCAA membership of the effect of the appellate court decisions, this Court wondered whether the membership was being given a report of a case different from the one this Court heard.

The Court makes this observation because it is consistent with the concern it expressed in its original memorandum opinion. There, the Court expressed its reservations regarding the insistence of the NCAA that it would cease all illegal conduct and that it would voluntarily abandon its antitrust activities. The Court also declared that it needed to act because the Court had little faith that the NCAA could be expected to conform its conduct to the law in the absence of an order.

The course of conduct which the NCAA apparently still seems intent on pursuing bears witness to the seaminess of those reservations. It also now appears from the material submitted by defendant in support of its original motion that efforts were undertaken which, at least at first blush, would suggest a persistence on the part of the NCAA to restrict output and stifle competition.

Again, I cannot recount all the subtle ways that the NCAA may still pursue in attempts to restrict output of football television and otherwise seek to reimpose the very activity this Court, as well as the appellate courts, have found to be illegal. I say this in order to forcefully impress upon the parties that the Court found illegal conduct on the part of the NCAA; that this same or similar conduct, however veiled, will not be condoned by this Court.

This having been said, the Court will now address the defendant's amended motion to modify the Court's judgment.

While I can understand the concern of the NCAA in the reference to its having violated the Sherman Antitrust Act, that remains the law of the case, notwithstanding the appellate courts' having refrained from reviewing the Court's conclusions of law relative to the violations.

It is clear to me, and it should be clear to everyone, that the NCAA is enjoined from similar activities which were found to be illegal by this Court, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court... The judgment states that the right to telecast football games is the property of the institution and that that right may be sold or assigned by those institutions to any entity at their discretion. Indeed, if there is any institution that wishes to assign this important property right to any entity, including the NCAA, it is that institution's right to do so under whatever terms it deems appropriate. But under no circumstances may such an assignment be brought about by the coercive measures which have previously been detailed by this Court. And the Court should add something further. The Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals made the observation that while the NCAA could not lawfully maintain exclusive control of football rights, the question of how far the rights could be commonly regulated remained open. This is as it should be. Moreover, there was no evidence before this Court regarding a "voluntary" relinquishment of football television rights by the member institutions to the NCAA.

To again repeat a word which this Court used throughout the original opinion, the NCAA previously had "commandeered" the property rights of the institutions. And this Court is not prepared today on the present record, to fashion a scheme under which the Court would impose upon any institution the obligation to share its property rights with any entity and particularly the NCAA. Again, what the Court is attempting to do is to prohibit illegal activity by the NCAA within the broad context of the original Memorandum Opinion issued in this matter.

The Court will partially grant defendant's motion to add a new paragraph. This paragraph will read as follows:

(7) Nothing herein contained shall be construed as prohibiting the National Collegiate Athletic Association, its officers, agents and employees, from

(a) Restricting televising of its members' football games on Friday evenings.

(b) Imposing sanctions—restricting televising of a member's football games for violation of nontelevising rules and regulations.

(c) Arranging for selling or participating in the sale of the television rights of its own championship games in which its member institutions participate.

The Court finds it essential to insure that the judgment does not intrude into areas not contemplated, nor into areas upon which the Court did not receive evidence. It should also be noted that the parties have already stipulated to the entry of an order allowing the participation of the NCAA in the sale of its own television rights for its own championship games.

It appears from the opinion of the Court of Appeals that the NCAA made some argument regarding arrangements "such as a membership-wide contract with opt-out and pass-over payments provisions." These terms are totally foreign to this Court. I also might add, no evidence on such arrangements was presented to this Court. It would therefore be improper for this Court to amend its injunction to pass on some type of activity about which this Court has no knowledge and upon which no evidence was presented.

The Court has already expressed its hope that an open and competitive market will find its permanent place in the field of college football. But the Court cannot divine what arrangements will achieve these desirable ends. It must be left to the experts and, indeed, to the institutions themselves, to determine what will ultimately serve their best interests and, most importantly, the interests of the viewers of college football television.

In closing, I believe that the Court has complied with the mandate of the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals. But so that I will not be misunderstood, I am confined in amending the permanent injunction by the evidence originally presented to the Court. It would serve no purpose to repeat the egregious conduct that the Court found to exist. And by my permanent injunction, I did not seek to prohibit NCAA from openly and competitively participating in the college television market. What the Court does prohibit is the illegal activity pursued by the NCAA and the illegal manner in which it pursued its own interests.

I will express another hope. I sincerely hope that the NCAA, through its officers and officials and good counsel, accurately perceive what the Court already has said in a lengthy opinion. For I am left with the clear impression that at least up to the hearing October 11, 1984, it was the intent of the NCAA to test this Court's resolve. The Court has stated what it hopes to achieve in this litigation. It will be accomplished by voluntary compliance or otherwise. I assume the defendant is well aware of the resources available to this Court to achieve its stated purpose should the defendant seek to avoid compliance with this Court's injunction.

modifications of that legislation would be proposed this year.

The Commission's executive committee identified eight proposals to be placed in the Convention agenda for the Tuesday business session, January 15, in accordance with the provisions of Constitution 5-4(d)-(5), to facilitate consideration by CEOs in attendance at the Convention. Those items—which should be completed by midafternoon on that date—are:

- The Council-Commission resolution calling for additional study of possible modifications of Bylaw 5-1-(j).

- The Council's proposal for an annual academic reporting procedure.

- The American Council on Education's amendment authorizing the NCAA to conduct on-campus audits of institutional academic records.

- The Division I autonomy proposal.

- The Commission's legislation to require that athletics revenues and expenditures be controlled by the institution and audited in the same manner as other institutional accounts.

- A proposal to reduce the Division I sports sponsorship criterion from eight sports for men and eight for women to six for each.

- A proposal to reduce the Division II sports sponsorship criterion from six sports for men and six for women to four for each.

- The proposal to move the Association's definition of commonly accepted educational expenses from the constitution to the bylaws.

The executive committee will ask the Commission in its pre-Convention meeting January 13 if it is interested in supporting the Council's academic reporting procedure, the ACE's academic audit legislation, and a proposal submitted by four members of the Ohio Valley Conference and two other member institutions to require a member institution to conduct an internal audit of its compliance with the Association's financial aid and academics regulations.

In other legislative actions taken by the NCAA Administrative Committee in its November 1 telephone conference, the committee agreed to sponsor the following amendments in the name of the NCAA Council:

- An expanded version of the legislation that would move the definition of commonly accepted educational expenses from the constitution to the bylaws, which was approved earlier by the Council. The expanded amendment also would move to the bylaws the limitations on the total amount of aid in combination with funds from other sources that a student-athlete may receive (e.g., Pell Grants).

- An amendment to Bylaw 8 to establish in that legislation the three television principles approved by Divisions I-A and I-AA members at the special television meeting held July 10, 1984: that there shall be no televising of collegiate football games on Friday nights, that no institution may make arrangements for live or delayed televising of any game without the prior consent of its opponent and that the gross rights fee paid for each 1984 national telecast or cablecast shall be subject to a four percent assessment to be paid to the NCAA by the host institution (see July 18, 1984, issue of The NCAA News).

That amendment also will revise the language in Bylaw 8 to conform to court decisions regarding the Association's role in football television.

- An amendment to Constitution 3-1-(h)-(4) to permit member institutions to pay drug-rehabilitation expenses for student-athletes.

- An amendment to Bylaw 12-3-(h) to expand the Drug Education Committee from five to seven members and to require that at least one member of the committee be a Division I director of athletics or active head coach and at least one be a Division I team physician or head athletics trainer.
