Proposals would lower sponsorship minimums

Two proposals from member institutions to reduce the sports sponsorship requirements in Divisions I and II are among 11 membership and classification proposals facing delegates to the 1985 NCAA Convention.

The NCAA Presidents' Commission, which has the authority to determine the sequence of legislative proposals in the Convention agenda, requested that these two proposals, Nos. 43 and 44, be moved ahead of the remainder of the membership and classification proposals.

Proposal No. 43, sponsored by six Division I institutions, seeks to reduce from eight to six the minimum number of sports (for men and for women) required for membership in Division I.

Currently, men's programs must sponsor eight sports and women's programs six, although women's programs must sponsor seven sports by September 1, 1987, and eight sports by September 1, 1988. The proposed legislation would take effect September 1, 1986.

All members of the Lone Star Conference and Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association are sponsoring Proposal No. 44, which would reduce from six to four the minimum number of sports (for men and for women) for membership in Division II, including at least two team sports in each instance.

Under current legislation, Division II women's programs have until September 1, 1988, to reach the six-sport requirement. The proposed changes would take effect September 1, 1985.

These two proposals will be considered after the consent packages, academics and governance; the remainder of the membership and classification proposals will be considered after the financial aid grouping (Proposals 45-60).

Proposal No. 61, sponsored by the NCAA Council, would require member institutions to affiliate both their men's and women's athletics programs with the Association as a condition of active membership.

The proposal, which would go into effect August 1, 1985, would affirm that NCAA membership is on an institutional basis.

Three member institutions—University of Wisconsin, La Crosse; University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, and University of Wisconsin, Parkside—are sponsoring an amendment to Proposal No. 61 (No. 62), which would delay the effective date of No. 61 to August 1, 1988.

Another Council proposal, No. 63, would place a member institution in the "unclassified membership" category if either its men's or women's program fails to meet the appropriate division's sports sponsorship criteria.

All eight members of the Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Association are sponsoring Proposal No. 68, which would prohibit a Division III institution from publicizing the enrollment or "signing" of a prospective student-athlete. It would allow, however, prospective student-athletes' names to be included with those of other students in standard publicity releases by the institution.

Proposal Nos. 65 and 66, sponsored by the Council, deal with multidivision classification.

No. 65, to take effect September 1, 1985, would eliminate the opportunities for a Division I member to classify a women's sport in Division II or III. It also would not allow a Division II member to classify a women's sport in Division III.

Proposal No. 66, which was recommended by the Division II Steering Committee, would permit a Division II member to petition to be classified in Division III in a sport in which there is a Division III championship but no Division II event.

At the recommendation of the NCAA Executive Committee, the Council is sponsoring Proposal No. 64, which would increase the dues for membership in the Association, effective September 1, 1985, by approximately 28.5 percent.

The proposal would increase dues in all membership classifications by the following amounts: Division I active, from $1,400 to $1,800; Division II active, from $700 to $900; Division III active, from $700 to $900; Division I conference, from $700 to $900; Division II conference, from $350 to $450; Division III conference, from $350 to $450; affiliated, from $175 to $225, and corresponding, from $175 to $225.

The remaining membership and classification proposals, Nos. 67 and 69, are sponsored by the Council on the recommendations of the Division III Steering Committee and the Moun-

Blue Raiders move up

Middle Tennessee State tailback Vince Hall, the second leading rusher in Division I-AA, helped the Blue Raiders advance to the quarterfinals of the NCAA play-offs with a 27-10 victory over Eastern Kentucky November 24. Hall is averaging more than 130 yards per game rushing. For other Division I-AA play-off scores, see page 7.

Special meeting scheduled for faculty representatives

A special meeting for faculty athletics representatives at NCAA member institutions has been included in the schedule for the 1985 NCAA Convention in Nashville, Tennessee.

Intended as an initial attempt to establish an ongoing forum for faculty athletics representatives, the meeting will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday, January 13, at the Opryland Hotel, the Convention facility in Nashville.

The new meeting was approved by the Council in October after such a session was recommended by a Council subcommittee of William D. Bradford, M.D., Duke University, chair; Francis W. Bonner, Furman University, and Charles H. Samson, Texas A&M University. All are faculty athletics representatives at their respective institutions.

"The meetings of selected faculty representatives at recent Division I summer meetings seem to underscore the need for us to meet alone for discussion of timely issues," Dr. Bradford said, noting that faculty representatives are the only constituent group in the NCAA without some type of national organization.

"A faculty representatives forum also might serve well for integration of the many new faculty representatives each year, who can benefit from the guidance of more experienced faculty representatives," he said.

A detailed agenda for the meeting is being developed, but one segment of the program already has been determined. Earl M. Ramer, longtime faculty athletics representative at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and NCAA president in 1971 and 1972, has accepted an invitation to speak on the role of the faculty representative.

Ramer is the author of "Athletic Committees and Faculty Representatives," a study he conducted in the late 1970s that was published by the NCAA in 1980. The publication, recently out of print, has been reprinted by the Association.

Also on the agenda will be a discussion of continuing forums for faculty representatives. The complete program for the January 13 meeting will be announced in a December issue of The NCAA News.

Texas Christian still leading race for most improved title

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Texas Christian's Horned Frogs are not going to turn into Cotton Bowl princesses, but coach Jim Wacker's team still leads a three-team race for national most-improved honors in Division I-A over Army and South Carolina.

TCU, celebrating its first winning season since 1971, ended the regular season at 8-3, up six games over 1-8-2 in 1983 (seven more victories and five fewer losses is 12, then divide by two). If Wacker's high-powered veer offense can outscore West Virginia in the Bluebonnet Bowl, TCU would reach 6½ games—a level attained by only 15 other I-A teams in history.

But if TCU loses, Jim Young's 6-3-1 wishbone team at Army, now up five games, could win the title by defeating Navy this week, then beating Michigan State in the first annual Cherry Bowl. If TCU and Army both lose, 10-1 South Carolina, another veer team under Joe Morrison now up five games, could tie TCU for the title at 5½ games by defeating Oklahoma State in the Gator Bowl.

Interestingly, Wacker, Young and Morrison are veteran coaches but each is in his second year at his current college and each is using an option offense. Here are the I-A teams currently up more than three games:

	1983	1984	Up
Texas Christian*	1-8-2	8-3	6

	1983	1984	Games
South Carolina*	5-6	10-1	5
Army*	2-9	6-3-1	5
Louisiana State*	4-7	8-2-1	4½
Rutgers	3-8	7-3	4½
Cal St. Fullerton	7-5	11-1	4
Stanford	1-10	5-6	4
Southern California*	4-6-1	8-3	3½
Purdue*	3-7-1	7-4	3½
Vanderbilt*	2-9	5-5	3½

*Bowl team. #One regular-season game left.

Nevada-Las Vegas, now up three in Harvey Hyde's third season at 10-1, can reach four by winning its regular-season final with Southern Methodist, then beating Toledo in the California Bowl. Georgia Tech (Bill Curry), now up three, can reach 3½ by beating Georgia Saturday. Kent State, in Dick Scesniak's second season, and Minnesota, in Lou Holtz's first year on that job, were both up three games to 4-7. Washington (Don James), now 10-1, can reach three by beating Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl. And Houston (Bill Yeoman) can reach three at 7-4 by beating Rice. More importantly, that would put Houston in the Cotton Bowl, where it could reach 3½ by defeating Boston College.

This is the first South Carolina team ever to win more than eight games. Morrison, whose New Mexico team tied for national most-improved honors in 1982, wears basic black at all times. Now, they are calling his Cinderella feat "black magic." He plays two quarterbacks, sending Mike Hold in for Allen Mitchell "when I have a feeling."

Of the teams on the most-improved list, only two are coached by men in their first year as head coach at the four-year level. Rutgers' Dick Anderson and LSU's Bill Arnsparger. The latter, however, is a long-time veteran and former pro head coach. Stanford's Jack Elway, like Holtz, is a veteran in his first year on his current job. Southern California's Ted Tollner is in his second year in the job and Purdue's Leon Burnett is in his third. Vanderbilt's George MacIntyre is another veteran, like Yeoman. Cal State Fullerton has gone from 3-9 in 1982 to 7-5 last year and 11-1 this fall under Gene Murphy, praised as a miracle worker because he operates on the smallest budget in I-A and has no home stadium, playing a handful of home games at various local sites with few seats.

Heisman award not always given to top athlete

By Furman Bisher
Atlanta Journal

To tell you the truth, the Heisman Trophy has bothered me for several years, it and all the politics. In the first place, it's like trying to pick Miss America in shoulder pads and cleats.

The best college football player in the country may be a guard or a linebacker, but he'd never win the election. He doesn't get the ball unless he recovers a fumble or intercepts a pass. You have to be where the ball is to win the Heisman.

I'm not even positive John Heisman himself would like the idea of the trophy the Downtown Athletic Club named for him. The old coach never got a chance to vote on it. He was dead before the New York club he'd served as athletics director decided to make him immortal.

The old boy would have been the first to say there is no greatest college player in the country. There are several of them, a dozen, two dozen.

If you don't believe it, just start opening the sports department mail about August. The campaign posters and all the campaign slogans start coming in. Joe Theismann wasn't "THIGHSMAN" until the Notre Dame publicity director decided to campaign him for the Heisman. The name was "THEESE-man," back home in New Jersey.

The Heisman has become such a bounty that they will lie, cheat and steal to win it. Coaches give a running back the ball 35 or 40 times to pile up the yardage. Voters are impressed by big yardage, even if it's run off against Texas-El Paso or Appalachian State.

Sports editors assign a writer to start telephoning other sportswriters about November 1 to see who would get their vote for the Heisman. One year, I told a caller I was voting for a center, John Scully from Notre Dame. It was Herschel Walker's freshman season at Georgia. The mail was vicious.

Last year, the Heisman Trophy went to Mike Rozier, a running back from Nebraska. Last month, Rozier admitted he had been playing for dough while he was winning it. An agent was paying him $600 a month, as a sort of retainer until he left school—"graduated" does not deserve to be dragged into such a scene—and became the agent's client.

Rozier also admitted he had signed a contract with Pittsburgh of the United States Football League a few days before he played in the Orange Bowl with Nebraska, representing the championship team of the Big Eight. But for another agent.

He already had the Heisman in hand, then went out and gave a flabby performance against Miami (Florida) until he left the game, presumably injured. Since that time, Rozier has made related; each to his own conclusion.

Rozier probably isn't the first Heisman Trophy winner soiled by improprieties. Suspects have come out of Oklahoma and Southern Cal, and Herschel Walker's associations at Georgia have never quite been made clear. Billy Cannon has done nothing to brighten the name of the award, but that is long since past the date of reparation.

The Downtown Athletic Club says it can't take back a Heisman award now. Too late. You can impeach Miss America, but you can't impeach a Heisman Trophy winner? Come on, DACC. There is no successor yet to Rozier. He's still in office, so to speak. The trophy can at least be removed from possession, or from the trophy case at Nebraska.

Football players have come to worship at the shrine of the Heisman, more to be cherished than a degree. I like what Jim Martin said upon becoming the president of his alma mater, Auburn.

"Which would you rather have, a Heisman Trophy winner or a Rhodes scholar?" he was asked.

"A Rhodes scholar, of course," he said.

I hope he meant it.

Pitt decided to go full blast with a lineman's campaign for the Heisman this year. The Panthers set forth on their most miserable season since Dave Hart coached there. Bill Fralic is lost among the debris.

Oh, the idolatry of the Heisman will go on. And the Outland for linemen, and the late-coming Lombardi. It has become a weapon in recruiting. "Come with us and we'll get you the Heisman, kid," they coo.

I'd be just as happy if they'd put it away, and I speak here as chairman of the Georgia selectors. At least we'd have no further headline to read such as, "The Year the Heisman Went to a Pro."

Columnary Craft

news only as a source of contention between two teams, the Pittsburgh Maulers of the DeBartolo family, which dealt with him illicitly, and the Houston Oilers, who apparently covet him.

Sports Illustrated, through Bill Brubaker, a former Miami newsman, has Rozier on tape telling all. He took the money from the agent as a shameless mercenary. "Nobody ever offered me nothing in my life, so I might as well take it. Guys want to live comfortable. They don't want to live in no shack. They want a nice car."

Of the contract with the Maulers: "It sounded good to me. Three million dollars for three years." The fact that he has never played like the same Mike Rozier since may or may not be

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am writing regarding an article printed October 15, 1984, entitled, "NYSP is success at Eastern Shore." More than 300 youngsters, ages 10-16, participated weekly this summer in the National Youth Sports Program at the University of Maryland, one of the 134 NCAA member institutions sponsoring the program in 1984.

The NCAA and the member institutions involved should be commended. This program gives youngsters the opportunity to be involved in meaningful summer activities. Participants learn how to improve their physical-fitness level and become acquainted with career and educational opportunities. Physical education seems to be a respected part of the overall educational experience. I believe this is where physical education belongs.

Some attitudes need to be progressively changed. Physical educators need to continue to stress the importance of mental and physical health. The development of the mind is the main goal of education; however, in order for an individual to reach his/her full potential, it is crucial that physical education become a main objective.

The NYSP strives to create an environment in which people become more "human" through the development of maximum potential. These types of positive experiences for the participants, staff and universities are necessary. Support for these programs must be supplied in order to build more respect for various physical education programs. The responsibility lies with all involved with physical education and athletics. The trend toward an emphasis on professionalism in physical education must be taken seriously, and educators should be proud of these programs.

Strength training a must in football

Boyd Epley, director
University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Strength Complex
The Wall Street Journal

"Our coaches recruit football players for height, speed and athletic ability, and we supply the weight and strength....

"Football players today are superior to any in the past, and strength training is the reason. In 1970, we had one player who could bench-press 350 pounds; today we have 20. Johnny Rodgers was a great back for us, and in 1972 everybody was amazed that he could run the 40 in 4.6 seconds. Today we have a dozen kids who can do that. The time is past when players can compete at our level at their natural sizes and strengths."

George Vecsey, sportswriter
The New York Times

"The superb athletes who collide with one another on Saturdays are a bargain, even at $20,000 as well as the legal tuition and room and board. They bring in television revenue to the universities. Just as important, they provide an identity for the universities and satisfy the politicians, alumni and boosters who really run the schools.

"Even at the academically superior schools, a winning team allows college presidents and fund-raisers to say, 'See, we must be doing all right.' At best, school officials use football to cajole an extra chair in the philosophy department from some satisfied fan; more likely, they keep the benefactors and taxpayers mollified with winning teams.

"Both sides profit from the aura of education that still vaguely surrounds college sports. Who wants to give that up for an openly professional system that allows salaries to be channeled into trust funds, the way Olympic track and field athletes now do?"

Alan Pinkett, football player
University of Notre Dame

The Washington Post

"I don't like being on a roller coaster, but that's the way it's been around here. We have to try and look for the positives. If the fans want to boo, that's their prerogative. I don't know how much a ticket costs, but they paid for it. We can't control things like that. We want them cheering for us, but we have to earn their cheers."

Ken Wable, head football coach
Mount Union College

Akron Beacon Journal

"The idea of being a teacher-coach appealed to me, because I think that kind of coach relates to his players in a closer way. In Division I-A, I never got to know the players. I was either coaching on the field or off somewhere recruiting. Here, I'm around the campus and I know my players.

"As you grow older, your perceptions change. Your values become more clear. You know what is important."

Donald Schumacher, general manager
National College Football Hall of Fame
The Associated Press

"It's a particularly difficult year for college football. The fabric that really supports all of college athletics has been ripped asunder.

"Lack of money will probably be the catalyst to serious discussion among colleges and universities ... about how to get back to a better revenue situation.

"I haven't read a comment recently that makes me believe we'll continue in the same fashion next year.

"Most people felt the NCAA did a fair job in the past. I'd like to see it take a prominent role in the future."

William Raspberry, columnist
Washington Post Writers Group

"The NCAA will meet in January to decide on yet another set of modifications (Proposal No. 48) to solve the problem (disproportionate effect of No. 48 on black athletes). It's hard to be optimistic that it will come up with anything that will meet the tests of soundness, fairness and practicality."

News release

"You either have it or you don't; enthusiasm is caught, not taught."

Ray Perkins, athletics director and football coach
University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa

The Washington Post

"When I came here, I knew and accepted certain things. I knew that where we are right now was a possibility. My eyes were wide open. And I knew that I'd be compared with coach (Paul) Bryant, and I accept that totally, though I shouldn't be. No one should have to go through that, because no one is him or ever will be him. Still, though, I accepted that fact totally and understood why."

Grete Waitz, marathon runner
USA Today

"Four or five years ago, if I didn't win a race, it was a disaster. But when you get older, you realize the world of running is small compared to other things in life."

Historic turnarounds

TCU is now the 14th team in history to go to a bowl game a year after winning one game or zero games (before TCU, the most recent was Kentucky last year after 0-10-1 in 1982 under Jerry Claiborne). The first team to do it was Stanford in 1940, Rose Bowl winner at 10-1 in Clark Shaughnessy's first year. He took a 1-7-1 team and put in the first modern-T formation in college with Frankie Albert at quarterback. Stanford still shares the record for most improvement at eight games with Purdue, which went from 1-8 in 1942 to 9-0 in 1943 under Elmer Burnham with the help of wartime naval trainees. Here are the 15 teams in history up at least 6½ games:

8 games — Stanford (Clark Shaughnessy) 1940, Purdue (Elmer Burnham) 1943; 7 games — Miami, Florida (Jack Harding) 1945, Texas Tech (DeWitt Weaver) 1953, Indiana (John Pont) 1967, Houston (Bill Yeoman) 1976, Miami, Ohio (Dick Crum) 1977, Florida (Charley Pell) 1980; 6½ games — Rice (Jimmy Kitts) 1934, California (Lynn "Pappy" Waldorf) 1947, Texas A&M (Paul "Bear" Bryant) 1955, Notre Dame (Ara Parseghian) 1964, Dayton (John McVay) 1966, Toledo (Frank Lauterbur) 1967, Wake Forest (John Mackovic) 1979.

Shaughnessy, Harding, Kitts, Waldorf and Parseghian did it in their first year on the job, while Bryant, Pell, McVay and Mackovic were in their second year. Here are the annual most-improved winners in I-A since 1972:

	Games Up
1972 UCLA (Pepper Rodgers).....	5
Pacific (Chester Caddes).....	5
1973 Pittsburgh (Johnny Majors).....	5
Furman (Art Baker).....	5
1974 Baylor (Grant Teaff).....	5½
1975 Arizona State (Frank Kush).....	5
1976 Houston (Bill Yeoman).....	7
1977 Miami (Ohio) (Dick Crum).....	7
1978 Tulsa (John Cooper).....	6
1979 Wake Forest (John Mackovic).....	6½
1980 Florida (Charley Pell).....	7
1981 Clemson (Danny Ford).....	5½
1982 New Mexico (Joe Morrison).....	6
SW Louisiana (Sam Robertson).....	6
1983 Kentucky (Jerry Claiborne).....	5½
Memphis State (Rex Duckery).....	5½

Caddes and Baker each was in his first season as a head coach at the four-year level.

Montana State's record year

Montana State, up eight games in Dave Arnold's second season, has set a Division I-AA record for improvement, regardless of its record in the play-offs. Arnold, a 1967 Drake graduate and offensive line coach at Montana State before becoming head coach, has gone from 1-10 in 1983 to 9-2 this season. That breaks the record of 6½ by Western Kentucky and Jimmy Feix in 1978. Montana State can do no worse than 7½ games and could reach 9½ by sweeping the play-offs. Those up more than three games:

	1983	1984	Games Up
Montana State*	1-10	9-2	8
Yale.....	1-9	6-3	5½
Richmond*	3-8	8-3	5
Delaware.....	4-7	8-3	4
Citadel.....	3-8	7-4	4
Louisiana Tech*	4-7	8-4	3½
Western Illinois.....	3-8	6-4-1	3½

Drake (Chuck Shelton), East Tennessee State (Buddy Sasser), James Madison (Challace McMillin), Northern Iowa (Darrell Mudra) and Youngstown State (Bill Narduzzi) all enjoyed three-game improvement and Alcorn State (Marino Casem) can reach three and more in the play-offs. Here are the previous I-AA most-improved champions:

	Games Up
1978 Western Kentucky (Jimmy Feix).....	6½
1979 Murray State (Mike Gottfried).....	5
1980 Idaho State (Dave Kragthorpe).....	6
1981 Lafayette (Bill Russo).....	5½
1982 Pennsylvania (Jerry Berndt).....	6
1983 So. Illinois (Rey Dempsey).....	5½
North Texas (Corky Nelson).....	5½

The bowl field

The bowl field this year has 21

Vanderbilt's Ricky Anderson leads Division I-A punters with an average of 47.8 yards repeaters from 1983 but still looks a little strange because Alabama, which had gone to 25 straight bowls; Penn State, with a streak of 13, and Pittsburgh, with nine in a row, all are missing. That leaves Nebraska, going to its 16th straight bowl, Ohio State its 13th, Michigan its 10th and Texas its eighth holding the four longest streaks.

Virginia and Nevada-Las Vegas are bowling for the first time ever and so is Army, although strictly speaking, the West Pointers did play a postseason game with Navy (that is, unscheduled before the season) for charity on December 13, 1930 (Army won, 6-0). The 36-team field currently has a combined won-lost percentage of .735 and it can go no higher than .741. The record postwar low is .745 in 1974 for just 22 teams.

Division II career leaders

It was a big season for the Division II senior class of quarterbacks, as four of them crashed the all-time division top 10 in career total offense yardage.

Abilene Christian's Loyal Proffitt finished sixth at 7,337 rushing-passing yards, Franklin's Pat Brennan seventh at 7,316, Delta State's Scott Butler eighth at 7,229 and Kevin Russell of California (Pennsylvania) reached 10th at 7,012.

Proffitt, Brennan and Butler also finished 4-5-10, respectively, in passing yardage on the all-time Division II career chart with 7,824 yards, 7,717 and 6,917. Russell had 6,508 career passing yards. Winona State's Steve Speer was next with 6,632 passing and 6,489 total offense. Proffitt, a 6-3, 198-pound Abilene native, plans to attend law school. Brennan is the total-offense champion this season (324.8 yards per game; complete final Division II rankings will be published in the December 3 issue of The NCAA News).

Butler, 6-3 and 210, brought football back at a school known for its baseball and women's basketball. Russell, a Pittsburgh native, broke many school passing records held by his coach, Jeff Petrucci, since the mid-1960s.

Valparaiso's Dan Bogar reached sixth on the all-time Division II chart in career receptions at 204, good for 2,816 yards and 26 touchdowns. He had at least one reception in 31 straight games to close out his career.

Two players topped 4,000 in career rushing yardage, still an outstanding feat. Millersville's Ricke Stonewall had 4,169 and Livingstone's Joseph "Jo Jo" White 4,075. They are also 1-2 among current players in career scoring — Stonewall 264 points and White 234. Stonewall broke the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference records for rushing yards and touchdowns. The week he became the first PSAC back to reach 4,000 yards, his wife, Vicki, gave birth to an eight-pound, one-ounce baby boy, Richard Stonewall III. White was on the dean's list all but one semester in four years and graduated with honors last spring. He returned as a graduate student.

Next in career rushing among current players are Ashland's Antoine Gaiter at 3,685, East Texas State's Ricky Dirks 3,191 and Clarion's Elton Brown 3,069. In receiving, the next two are Humboldt State's Eddie Pate, 145 catches for 1,798 yards in just 24 career games, and Kutztown's Andre Reed, 142 for 2,002.

South Dakota State tailback Rick Wegher set an NCAA collegiate, or all-divisions, career mark with 107 kickoff returns (for 2,150 yards). Wegher combined with Wyoming's Kevin Lowe for a collegiate single-game rushing record of 533 yards November 10 as he had 231 yards and Lowe 302. The previous record by two opposing players was 495 by Vanderbilt's Frank Mordica (321) and Air Force's Shelby Ball (174) in 1978.

Division III career leaders

Talk about big seasons for seniors. This fall's senior class produced six of the all-time top 10 in career total offense in 12-year-old Division III.

Bishop's David Parker (7,516 rushing-passing yards), Illinois Wesleyan's John Rooney (7,393), Wartburg's Gary Walljasper (6,487), Nebraska Wesleyan's Mark Peterson (6,367), Colorado College's Scott Driggers (6,295) and Trinity's (Connecticut) Joe Shield (6,227) now rank 1-2-5-7-8-10, respectively.

Rooney, however, did it in just 27 career games; so, his career average of 273.8 per game puts him No. 1, while Peterson (227.4), Driggers (224.8) and Shield (200.9) rank 3-4-7. In career passing yardage, it is more of the same, with Walljasper (6,992), Parker (6,934), Driggers (6,709), Shield (6,646), Rooney (6,576) and Keith Bishop of Wheaton (Illinois) (6,408) ranking 2-4-5-6-7-9. And Parker's 69 career touchdown passes ranks second.

In passing efficiency, Hope's Greg Heeres broke the division record by reaching 144.4 points on 347 completions in 630 attempts for 5,120 yards and 53 TDs with only 21 interceptions (minimum of 325 completions). Dan Stewart of Union (New York) set a collegiate record by throwing at least one touchdown pass in 27 straight regular-season games.

Bishop, the season passing champion (complete rankings next week), has 6,101 total offense yards and 6,408 passing. He is listed as a senior but has a year of eligibility left and may return in 1985. Bishop spent his freshman year at Illinois Wesleyan in 1981 but transferred when his father, J. R. Bishop, was named head coach at Wheaton (Illinois).

Rooney finished his career in high fashion, completing 71 of 88 passes with no interceptions for nine TDs in his last three games. Teammate Ed Brady, a senior split end, also finished on a high note after being injured much of the year. His 220 career catches ranks second on the all-time list, while Kenyon's Todd Stoner (197) reached fifth and Sewanee's David Pack and Colorado College's Tim Pytell (173 each) tied for ninth and 10th.

Trenton State's John Aromando tied the record of 39 career TD catches (Stoner had 31), while his career yardage of 3,197 and Stoner's 3,191 rank 2-3 on the all-time list. The season champion, Trinity's (Connecticut) Tim McNamara, had a career average of 7.0 catches per game (in a two-season career), not far from the record 7.2.

Kenyon's Stoner played only two years of high school football because he comes from Australia, where he was a national rugby player. Kenyon quarterback Dragon Pantic is a native of Yugoslavia whose ability to call audible plays at the line of scrimmage was vital to the team's offense.

But he found that as the game wore on, the defense could figure out his audibles, because they were so frequent. So Pantic began to audible in Serbian after teaching the offense enough of the language. Kenyon's high-powered offense became bilingual.

Duquesne's Pedro Bowman led all seniors in career rushing at 3,830 yards — eighth on the all-time list — and in scoring at 278 points — fifth. But a junior — Joe Dudek of Plymouth State — already holds the division scoring record of 324 points with a year to go and ranks sixth in career rushing at 3,955 yards.

Dudek must get 12 touchdowns in

Tom Ehrhardt of Rhode Island is among the total-offense leaders in Division I-AA

1985 to equal Walter Payton's all-time collegiate (all NCAA divisions) record of 66 touchdowns at Jackson State from 1971 through 1974. And he likely will become only the eighth NCAA player to rush for 5,000 career yards.

Lowell's Gary Errico, the season champion, is next among seniors at 3,516 in career rushing, followed by Cortland State's Dave Cook (3,455) and Gettysburg's Ray Condren (3,312). Cook also reached eighth in career scoring at 268 (Aromando had 236).

A 33-0 comeback

Salisbury State overcame a 33-point deficit to upset Randolph-Macon, 34-33, and tie the Division III record earlier this season, reports SID Steve Blake. Noting that Maryland had set a Division I-A record by overcoming a 31-0 lead to beat Miami (Florida), 42-40, he wonders if it is something in the water in the state of Maryland.

Quotes of the week

Unless you have been living in a cave, you know about how Boston College's Doug Flutie, the first 10,000-yard career passer in Division I-A history, hooked up with roommate Gerard Phelan on that incredible 48-yard touchdown pass on the game's final play (the ball actually traveled 64 yards in the air off the arm of the amazing little Flutie, only 5-9¼) to beat Miami (Florida), 47-45. But do you know what Boston College coach Jack Bicknell was thinking at the time? "I was standing there trying to figure out what to say to the guys in the locker room," Bicknell said. "I was planning a speech about not getting discouraged, being proud that they had come so close... Then I watched in amazement as our Hail Mary pass actually worked. With Doug, I should know by now never to lose hope."

Oklahoma linebacker Paul Migliazzo on the goal he has for the Sooners this year: "Ten years from now, I want to be on the highlight film and have people talk about the national championship we won." (Tim Allen, Big Eight Conference SID)

Mercyhurst coach Tony DeMeo to Tim Roof of the Olean Times on his scheduling problems: "Four years ago when we started this program, we wanted to play the top teams in Division III. So, we scheduled teams like Dayton, Gettysburg, Glenville State, Edinboro and Widener. It wasn't hard. Heck, we were everyone's homecoming. We saw more floats than you see in a Thanksgiving parade. However, now we're 8-1 and nobody wants to play us." (Greg Yoko, Mercyhurst SID)

Cal State Northridge radio announcer Gary Carlson in the midst of a 42-3 loss to California-Davis: "What's all this hype about the Aggies being so good? I don't think they're so great. They'd lose at least five or six games in the NFL." (Ron Yukeison, Cal State Northridge SID)

I-A, I-AA attendance still climbing

As projected last week, both Division I-A and Division I-AA are on target to surpass 1983, both in per-game average and total attendance. Both should do it, even after final audits. This generally reflects the number of tickets bought, however, and there is some question whether in-stadium attendance is really up. Historically, there always have been "no-shows" (those who bought tickets but did not come) due to weather or losing records, but this is the first season that successful, top-20 attendance institutions have reported a definite "no-show" problem, often for games with starting times changed for television. Nothing but "eyeball estimates" are available, but they certainly are large enough to raise the question. The chart:

	Games	Attendance	Average	Percent Capacity
I-A season figures, 10 games left.....	595	25,287,953	42,501	80.3
I-A final 1983 audit, same 105 teams....	602	25,381,761	42,162	79.5
I-AA season figures, one game left.....	463	5,076,076	10,963	54.9
I-AA final 1983 audit, same 87 teams....	460	4,952,850	10,767	52.4

Arkansas, Wisconsin win cross country titles

Arkansas overcame a 20-point lead by Wisconsin after three runners and beat the Badgers, 63-141, with its final two finishers to win the NCAA Division I Men's Cross Country Championship November 19 at Pennsylvania State University.

The Razorbacks placed five runners in the top 40 to win their first NCAA cross country championship. Wisconsin, the 1982 champion and runner-up last year, slipped to fourth despite placing three runners in the top 10.

Arizona, the winner of the West region, was second, 10 points behind Arkansas.

"Wisconsin was the team I felt we had to beat," Arkansas coach John McDonnell said. "We knew they had three great runners, but we felt our fourth and fifth runners were better and that was how it turned out."

David Swain lead the attack for Arkansas with his ninth-place team finish and 14th-place individual finish. The other scorers for the Razorbacks were Paul Donovan, 14th; Joseph Falcon, 15th; Espen Borge, 24th, and Gary Taylor, 39th.

"We started the year with a defeat, and then we got hurt," McDonnell said. "Maybe it was better that way. When we got healthy, we stayed healthy. The last three weeks, we really started coming on."

Brigham Young's Ed Eystone was the individual champion with a time of 29:28.8 for 10,000 meters.

With the victory, Arkansas joins only six other teams that have won both the cross country and one other NCAA track championship. Only Villanova, UTEP and Kansas have won cross country, indoor track and outdoor track championships.

Division I Women

Solid performances from Wisconsin's fourth and fifth runners gave the Badgers their first team title in the NCAA Division I Women's Cross Country Championships November 19.

The meet was held in conjunction with the men's championships at Pennsylvania State University.

Cathy Branta, Wisconsin's only senior, captured the individual title with a meet-record time of 16:15.6 on the 5,000-meter course.

After the first three runners, Wisconsin and runner-up Stanford were tied for the team championship. The Badgers' fourth and fifth runners finished 17th and 28th, while Stanford's final scorers finished 34th and 37th, to give Wisconsin a 63-89 victory.

"It went pretty much as we thought it would," said Wisconsin coach Peter Tegen. "Our fourth and fifth runners finished a little farther back than we expected."

"We had great team balance this year. I think we could have run our eighth and ninth runners in the meet and finished about the same."

The other scorers for Wisconsin were Katie Ishmael, fourth; Kelly McKillen, 13th; Birgit Christiansen, 17th, and Stephanie Herbst, 28th.

Regina Jacobs was the top finisher for Stanford. She was second in team scoring and fourth overall. The other Cardinal scorers were Alison Wiley, fifth; Ellen Lyons, 11th; Christine Curtin, 34th, and Ceci Hopp, 37th.

North Carolina State, the defending national champion, was third.

California is six-time champion in 1984 men's water polo event

It took a pair of one-goal victories, and the outcome was in doubt until the final minute, but California retained its title in the 1984 NCAA Men's Water Polo Championship.

California's Bill Schoening scored with 32 seconds to play to break an 8-8 tie in its final-game decision over pretournament favorite Stanford. The Cardinal had a chance to tie the game, but a pass was stolen by California. It had taken a 10-9 semifinal victory over Southern California, after a 10-3 opening-round decision over Loyola (Illinois), for the Golden Bears to reach the title game in the November 24-25 tournament in Long Beach, California.

It was a tougher task for coach

Pete Cutino's team than in 1983, when the favored Golden Bears had three-goal margins in semifinal and final victories. California, which won its sixth national water polo championship, finished 24-4-1. Stanford, which had won 17 of its last 18 games before the title defeat, was 25-5.

Southern Cal (29-7-1), runner-up last year, took third place with a victory over Pepperdine. Pepperdine's Mike Grier was the tournament's most outstanding player.

Joining Grier on the all-tournament team were Alan Gresham and Shaun Cleary of California; Charlie Harris, Mike Spicer and Eric Davison of Southern Cal, and Craig Klass of Stanford. Gresham, Grier, Spicer and Cleary earned all-tournament honors in 1983.

First-round games: Stanford 16, Navy 8; Pepperdine 12, UCLA 11; California 10, Loyola (Illinois) 3; Southern Cal 12, Brown 11.

Consolation semifinals: UCLA 17, Navy 4; Brown 11, Loyola 5.

Championship semifinals: Stanford 11, Pepperdine 6; California 10, Southern Cal 9.

Seventh place: Loyola 10, Navy 7.

Fifth place: UCLA 11, Brown 10.

Third place: Southern Cal 13, Pepperdine 10.

(The final-game box was not available at press time. It will be published in the December 3 issue of the News.)

Pacific coach Terry Liskevych will approach each match of the NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Championship knowing that a loss will end more than the season.

To Liskevych, a loss would be a premature end to a nine-year career at Pacific, where he took an intramural program and built it into a national power.

Liskevych, who had a 263-85 record entering the championship, will resign after this season to coach the U.S. women's Olympic team.

These circumstances should give No. 4-ranked Pacific a big boost when the 28-team championship begins November 29 with first-round matches. Four regional tournaments of four teams each will be played December 6-9 to determine the final four. UCLA will host the final four December 14 and 16. Competition will be single-elimination, best-three-of-five-game matches.

Pacific's top performances were fourth places in 1981 and 1983. Liskevych, who was named coach of the year last year by the Collegiate Volleyball Coaches Association, has perhaps his strongest team since taking over in 1976. The Tigers averaged 15 kills a game en route to a 27-7 record (through November 17).

Pacific will face roadblocks, however. Traditional powers Southern California, UCLA, Stanford and Hawaii are in the field, along with Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, Nebraska, San Jose State, Penn State and San Diego State.

No. 5 Southern California has bounced back from last year's disappointing first-round loss. The Trojans have a strong front line anchored by Tracy Clark, who has averaged four kills a game.

No. 2 UCLA, runner-up last year, and No. 1 Stanford, which placed third, have two of the nation's top players. Liz Masakayan, an outside hitter, leads the UCLA attack, averaging four kills a game. Stanford's Kim Oden, a 6-2 all-America middle blocker, is among the nation's best with a .411 hitting percentage.

Defending champion Hawaii lost the core of last year's team; however, coach Dave Shoji has rebuilt the Rainbow Wahines in a hurry. Hawaii averaged 15 kills a game en route to its No. 6 ranking and 33-8 record.

Nebraska qualified for the third consecutive year by winning its ninth western, Big Ten; Illinois State, Gateway; Colorado State, High Country; South Carolina, Metro; Western Michigan, Mid-American; Eastern Kentucky, Ohio Valley; Tennessee, Southeastern; Lamar, Southland, and Texas, Southwest.

One team was selected from each of the Midwest, South, West and Northwest regions; the rest of the field was selected at large.

Pairings for the 1984 NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Championship:

West regional: Arizona (16-11) at Colorado State (25-7). The winner plays Stanford (17-4), the No. 1 seed. Brigham Young (33-13) at San Diego State (31-13); Pepperdine (24-14) at Southern California (25-6).

Championships Previews straight Big Fight Conference championship. The No. 7 Cornhuskers ranked second in hitting percentage (.319) and tied for ninth in kill average (14.80) and 20th in blocking average (4.84).

In addition to Stanford (Western Collegiate), Penn State (Atlantic 10), San Jose State (Northern Pacific) and Nebraska, teams that qualified by winning their conference championships include Duke, Atlantic Coast; Pittsburgh, Big East; North-

Midwest regional: Penn State (29-5) at Northwestern (27-9). The winner plays Pacific (28-7), the No. 4 seed. Pittsburgh (30-7) at Nebraska (24-3); Illinois State (36-5) at Western Michigan (25-7).

Northwest regional: California-Santa Barbara (20-17) at Fresno State (24-12). The winner plays Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo (33-7), the No. 3 seed. Purdue (25-10) at San Jose State (23-9); Hawaii (33-10) at Oregon (26-11).

South regional: South Carolina (28-7) at Duke (30-8). The winner plays UCLA (29-6), the No. 2 seed. Lamar (24-10) at Texas (30-6); Eastern Kentucky (27-12) at Tennessee (24-10).

Regionals will be conducted December 6-9 on the campus of one of the participating institutions.

Women's volleyball

Portland State tops Division II qualifiers

After having lost only one starter from last year's second-place team in the NCAA Division II Women's Volleyball Championship, the pre-season outlook for Portland State was bright.

The only question was how the Vikings would fare without Marlene Piper, who led Portland State to 10 consecutive national-tournament appearances and a 401-95 record before leaving to coach at California.

Jeff Mazzochi provided an answer. The former California assistant coach leads the top-ranked and No. 1-seeded Vikings into the championship with a 29-3 record. If Portland State is victorious against James Madison and the winner of the Northeastern-New Haven match, Mazzochi will have the home-court advantage in the final four and a good shot at leading the Vikings to their first NCAA title.

The 16-team championship begins November 30 with four regional tournaments of four teams each. The winners will advance to the final four December 7-8. Three conference champions automatically qualified, and one team was selected from each of eight regions. The rest of the field was selected at large.

If Portland State is to be denied, opponents will have to handle two-time all-America attacker Lynda Johnson. The 5-8 junior finished last year's championship with a tournament-record .411 hitting percentage. The Vikings, the top team in the Northwest region, also feature setter/hitter Theresa Huitinga, who joined Johnson on last year's all-tournament team after compiling a .381 hitting percentage.

Defending champion Cal State Northridge, the No. 2 seed, automatically qualified by winning the California Collegiate Athletic Association and as the Southwest region's top team. The Matadors have three of the best outside hitters in the division in Kristy Olson, Heather Hafner and Linda Nelson. Shelli Mosby, who made the transition from a basketball guard to a top-notch setter, keys the Matadors' offense.

No. 3 seed Cal State Sacramento, 29-3 through matches of November 19, qualified for the fourth consecutive year by winning the Northern California Conference. Ferris State, the No. 4 seed from the Great Lakes region, has the best record (47-2) entering the championship.

The other automatic qualifier was North Central Conference champion and No. 11-ranked Nebraska-Omaha.

Other regional berths went to No. 10 New Haven, Northeast; No. 15 James Madison, Atlantic; No. 8 Florida Southern, South; No. 12 Sam Houston State, South Central, and No. 9 North Dakota State, North Central.

The pairings for the 1984 NCAA Division II Women's Volleyball Championship (with records as of November 19 in parentheses): Portland State (29-3) vs. James Madison (37-8) at New Haven; Northeastern (35-7) vs. New Haven (35-4) at New Haven; Florida Southern (27-8) vs. Sam Houston State (44-6) at Florida Southern; Cal State Sacramento (29-3) vs. Northern Colorado (39-9) at Cal Poly-Pomona; California Riverside (18-9) vs. Cal Poly-Pomona (20-8) at Cal Poly-Pomona; North Dakota State (54-12) vs. Nebraska-Omaha (46-14) at North Dakota State; Central Missouri State (34-4) vs. Cal State Northridge (36-8) at North Dakota State.

Flutie, Byars top selections to Camp all-America squad

Boston College's Doug Flutie, the all-time leader in total offense, and Ohio State's Keith Byars, the nation's leading rusher this season, head the 1984 Walter Camp Football Foundation all-America team selected by coaches and sports information directors.

Flutie, who has 10,537 total yards and 9,831 passing yards in four seasons as Boston College's quarterback, was named to the offensive backfield, along with Byars, Florida State's Greg Allen and Texas Christian's Kenneth Davis.

Allen was named to the 1983 Walter Camp Team, Davis, a junior, is the nation's third-leading rusher with 1,470 yards and a 7.7 yards-per-carry average.

Illinois' David Williams, who leads Division I-A receivers this year with 101 catches, is the team's wide receiver, and West Virginia's Rob Bennet is the tight end.

Bill Fralic, a 285-pound lineman from Pittsburgh, was named to the offensive line, along with guards Bill Mayo of Tennessee and Del Wilkes of South Carolina, tackle Lomas Brown of Florida, and center Mark Traynowicz of Nebraska.

Clemson's 330-pound William Perry heads the defensive line, which includes Tony Degrate of Texas, Bruce Smith of Virginia Tech and Ron Holmes of Washington.

Southern California's Jack Del Rio, who stopped opposing rushers behind the line of scrimmage 55 times this season, was joined at linebacker by Iowa's Larry Station and Auburn's Greg Carr.

Boston College's Tony Thurman, who leads Division I-A with 10 interceptions, is joined in the defensive backfield by Jerry Gray of Texas, Jeff Sanchez of Georgia and Rod Brown of Oklahoma State.

Georgia's Kevin Butler (place kicker) and Vanderbilt's Rick Anderson (punter) were named as the team's kicking specialists.

Convention site

The Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tennessee, is the site for the 1985 NCAA Convention January 14-16. In the foreground is the hotel conservatory, which has a glass roof, a two-acre indoor tropical garden and 468 guest rooms. Ballrooms of 20,000 and 30,000 square feet, respectively, are housed in the buildings in the background.

Legislative Assistance

1984 Column No. 30

Publicity for visiting prospects

The provisions of Bylaw 1-4-(a)-(3) prohibit a member institution from publicizing or arranging publicity of the visit of a prospective student-athlete to the institution's campus. As set forth in Case No. 198 (page 300, 1984-85 NCAA Manual), it is not permissible for a member institution to make a general introduction of a visiting prospect at any function or gathering (e.g., the institution's sports awards banquet or an intercollegiate athletics contest) that is attended by representatives of the news media or is open to the general public. In addition, it would not be permissible for a visiting prospect's name or picture to appear on an institution's scoreboard or electronic screen that is viewed by those in attendance at an intercollegiate contest.

Unofficial visits by prospective student-athletes

As set forth in Bylaw 1-8-(f), a prospective student-athlete may visit a member institution's campus at the prospect's own expense as often as the prospect wishes. During each such visit, the institution may not pay any expense or provide any entertainment except a maximum of three complimentary admissions to a campus athletics event for the exclusive use of admitting the prospective student-athlete and those persons accompanying the prospect on the visit.

In addition, a Division II or III member institution may provide a meal in the institution's on-campus student dining facility during such a visit. Payment of any other expenses or providing any entertainment, except as noted above, on such a trip, shall constitute an expense-paid visit. This legislation would not preclude a member institution from providing a prospective student-athlete with a tour of the campus, but the provision of any arrangements or expenses for off-campus tours would constitute entertainment under Bylaw 1-8-(j) and thus result in an expense-paid visit for the prospect.

Constitution 3-1-(e)—commercial businesses

Member institutions are reminded of the NCAA Eligibility Committee's statement that appeared on page 1 of the August 15, 1984, issue of The NCAA News regarding the involvement of student-athletes in the promotion of commercial businesses contrary to Constitution 3-1-(e). Constitution 3-1-(e) prohibits a student-athlete from accepting any remuneration for or permitting the use of his or her name or picture to directly advertise, recommend or promote the sale or use of a commercial product or service of any kind and from receiving remuneration for endorsing a commercial product or service through the student-athlete's use of such product or service. This being the case, student-athletes of member institutions are not permitted to make personal appearances at commercial businesses or shopping malls to promote the institution's athletics program, inasmuch as these appearances have the effect of promoting the businesses or malls by attracting the public to such locations.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question that it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Stephen R. Morgan, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Some Olympic events rescheduled

The Seoul, Korea, Olympic Committee has agreed to accommodate American television viewers by scheduling several final events at the 1988 Summer Olympics in the morning.

The decision was made to offset the possible loss of millions of dollars in television revenue if all finals were conducted at night, which would not coincide with American prime-time hours.

Boxing and basketball finals and about one-third of the track and field finals, swimming, and gymnastics will begin at 9 a.m. Seoul time or 9 p.m. Eastern time.

Finals of events popular in Europe and Africa—fencing, soccer, handball and judo—are scheduled for afternoon or evening broadcast.

Monique Belieux, International Olympic Committee director, estimated the IOC would lose as much as $500 million if the changes were not made. She said American networks still bidding for the television rights would probably pay between $500 and $700 million if the schedule was changed. Failure to reschedule would drop income by $200 million to $300 million.

Field hockey all-Americas selected

Half of the 32 all-America players selected by the College Field Hockey Coaches Association played on teams that advanced to the final four in Divisions I and III in 1984.

Division I champion Old Dominion led all teams with three players; Connecticut, Iowa and Temple, the other final-four participants, each had two players.

Division III champion Bloomsburg, along with Messiah and Trenton State, had two players named. Ithaca, the other Division III semifinalist, had one.

The 1984 all-America teams of the College Field Hockey Coaches Association:

Division I

Willemien Aardenburg, Old Dominion; Megan Donnelly, Massachusetts; Louise Hines, North Carolina; Yvon Hoogeweg, San Jose State; Patsy Huntington, Stanford; Terry Kix, Connecticut; Mary Koboldt, Iowa; Kathleen Kochmansk, Northwestern; Luci Lagrimas, Pacific; Barb Marois, New Hampshire; Monica Mills, Temple; Christy Morgan, Old Dominion; Marcia Pankratz, Iowa; Rose Smith, Connecticut; Elaine Turchi, Temple, and Eveline Veraart, Old Dominion.

Division III

Terry Apperson, Lynchburg; Holly Brennan, Salem State; Linda Burkhardt, Eastern Mennonite; Terry

Galley, Plymouth State; Karen Hertzler, Bloomsburg; Kim Leppo, Messiah; Lisa Noll, Cortland State; Sally Jo Placa, Drew; Paola Prins, Smith; Diane Shields, Bloomsburg; Diane Smith, Trenton State; Stacy Stern, Salisbury State; Patty Swenk, Cortland State; Jennifer Terranova, Messiah; Holly Trumpovicz, Trenton State, and Barbara Wachowiak, Ithaca.

Committee Vacancies

Several amendments that will be considered by the 1985 Convention would create additional committee positions. The possible vacancies are printed in this issue so that the membership can have an opportunity to submit nominations. Deadline for receipt in the NCAA Office of nominations for these positions is December 14, 1984.

I-AA Football—Amendment would increase the committee from four to six. Two additional positions would be created.

Drug Education—Amendment would increase the membership from five to seven. Two additional positions would be created. One should be a Division I director of athletics or head coach; one should be a Division I team physician or head athletics trainer.

Long Range Planning—Amendment would restore committee to its original membership (i.e., 13 instead of 10). Three additional positions would be established.

Public Relations and Promotion—Amendment would increase membership from eight to nine and designate the sports information director of the NCAA president's institution as an ex officio member. Additional member should be a Division I-AA representative in order to meet current bylaw requirements.

Ice Hockey Developmental Funding—Amendment would establish a three-person standing committee consisting of one man, one woman and one unallocated.

Media guides needed

Member institutions and conferences are reminded that the NCAA national office maintains a reference file of media guides in the Association's library. The guides are used for championships information and writing stories for The NCAA News, as well as for administrative purposes.

Guides for all men's and women's winter sports should be sent to the national office to keep the file complete. Please send media guides to: NCAA Library, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

Questions about the library should be directed to Eric D. Zemper, research coordinator.

Professional agents continue to haunt schools

By Bob Greene

Coaches and school administrators say they are virtually powerless to keep undergraduates from signing with professional agents, a growing problem that they contend may be traced to efforts to maintain the traditional amateur status of college sports.

There are estimates that as many as one-third of the top collegians, especially football players, sign contracts with agents before the NCAA-permitted deadline.

But, if that is unacceptable to coaches and the NCAA, they concede their solutions may be insufficient.

Agents, they say, can get to the players if they want, despite efforts to restrict access or register them to ensure they are reputable. And players, they add, are easily lured by money, despite new programs to give them sound advice.

There have been suggestions that athletes be paid up front, perhaps $50 a month or $1,000 a year. But that raises the whole issue of creeping professionalism in college sports, and it's doubtful whether that would be enough to compete with agents paying perhaps twice as much or more.

In the last month, Jerry Robinson and Mike Quick of the Philadelphia Eagles and 1983 Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier have admitted violating NCAA rules by signing with agents during their senior seasons. Rozier's Heisman predecessor, Herschel Walker, left the University of Georgia a year early and signed a multimillion-dollar contract with the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League after compromising his college eligibility by retaining an agent.

Leigh Steinberg, one of the leading agents, says those are hardly isolated examples. He is the author of the one-third estimate, a figure discounted by many as too high.

"The competition level among agents has grown enormously," says Steinberg, who adds that he never has signed an athlete with eligibility remaining. "The creation of the United States Football League means there are more jobs for college football players. And that has drawn new agents into the field. Now, there are more agents than there are football players."

Johnny Majors

"One-third sounds like an awfully large number," said John R. Davis of Oregon State University, who also is secretary-treasurer of the NCAA. "But that's not to infer that we believe there isn't a problem."

Temple University football coach Bruce Arians puts the number at 10 percent "at most."

But Washington State University football coach Jim Walden, for one, is not scoffing at Steinberg's estimate.

"He certainly would have more knowledge on the subject than the coaches would, because he's an agent and he's out there calling guys, trying to sign them up," Walden said. "If they've already signed with somebody else, they would tell him. So, he would know better than I would."

However widespread, coaches say it is unrealistic to expect athletes not to take the money.

After losing Walker, Georgia's Vincent J. Dooley said one of the problems was created by the NCAA itself when it changed its rules several years ago to halt schools from providing spending money and part-time jobs to athletes.

"Some of these fellows have no way of earning any money," Dooley said. "They can't have part-time jobs (during the school year), and if they need to go to school in the summer, they can't work in the summer."

Which is why University of Tennessee, Knoxville, coach Johnny Majors believes the players should be given a monthly stipend.

When he was a player in the mid-1950s, Majors said, players were given $15 monthly allowances and also were allowed to sell tickets for much more than cost.

"Nowadays, the kids don't get anything," he said. "It's not fair, because some of them come from homes where the parents can't afford to send them money."

"We could sell tickets back when I was a player. Now, a kid can't even pick up any tickets. They have to be picked up by the person they leave them for."

George Andrews, a Chicago lawyer and sports agent, also sympathizes with the player's plight, as does Walden.

"If a student is on scholarship, he can't have a job. If he's one of 12 children and his family is poor, there's no legitimate place where he can get funds," Andrews says. "That's why kids get into trouble — with gamblers, taking money from alumni or signing contracts with agents."

Adds Walden: "Right now, all the kid gets are four complimentary tickets a game. I've been saying for a long time that instead of giving him the tickets, we should just give him a little money spread over a nine month period. These kids would use that money just to live on."

Majors suggests giving players "at least $50 a month," an amount that University of Iowa coach Hayden Fry and Pennsylvania State University athletics director James I. Tarman found reasonable.

"I don't think it takes a mathematician to figure out that they're not going to have too many hamburgers or dates during the year," Fry says. "I see nothing wrong with adding a couple of dollars to their scholarship for, say, incidental services."

"If they gave a young man, say, $50 a month for incidental fees, I don't think that would break the bank. Look at how much money we're making at Iowa — six televised appearances already this year."

Andrews, though, says $50 isn't enough. He suggests "$100, or $1,000 a year." And even that may not be enough.

"Generally, the violations don't amount to things like $50 a month or so," says Stephen R. Morgan of the NCAA's legislative services department. "It's usually bigger numbers than that. I don't think anybody is ready to provide big dollars, thousands of dollars."

Rozier was quoted in Sports Illustrated as saying he received $600 a month after signing with an agent.

Steinberg says a more common figure would be $200-$250 a month, maybe $2,000 in all. Sometimes, he says, it might just be a car.

And some athletes, he says, "sign with several agents, take money from them all."

The NCAA, at its Convention last January, approved a resolution urging each school to set up a three-person faculty panel to act as an advisory board, to talk to players on what to look for in an agent, investments and contract law, among other things.

About 25-30 Division I schools have panels in business, and other schools are expected to establish them.

Legislation also was approved setting up an agent-registration program, where agents are asked to fill out lengthy biographical sketches and list all players they have represented and professional teams they have dealt with. The players then can request the information from the NCAA when they are approached by an agent.

However, agents cannot be forced to register, and many coaches say the unscrupulous agent can easily find ways to contact players.

Temple's Arians said he noticed a man in a three-piece suit hanging around his team when the Owls were in Boston.

"Sure enough, when we were going in for the team meal before the Boston College game, the guy jumps out from the shadows and sticks a business card in (defensive back) Anthony Young's pocket. The guy was an agent."

"Last year, we had them calling the hotel at 2 (o'clock) in the morning to talk to kids."

Still, Arians says most agents are honorable.

"There's just been three or four guys that cause the problems," the Temple coach said. "But they don't get any of our kids."

"I think the most important thing is to have good rapport with your players and steer them in the right direction. Maybe when the bad agents see they're not getting any of the top kids, they'll change their ways."

University of Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer agrees that little can be done about unscrupulous agents.

"It's like telling your alumni not to break NCAA regulations. There's no way you can do it," he says. "We talk to our athletes. We try to give them supervision. We have a faculty group to advise our athletes about the problems."

"But, if an agent wants to come in the back door, which is the way they always operate, and go to an athlete without your knowledge, they're going to do it. The athletes, in many cases, if they're offered a lot of money, are going to take it. That's just human nature and we should all recognize it. There's nothing we're ever going to be able to do about it."

Briefly in the News

The U.S. Supreme Court has allowed the United States Olympic Committee to retain exclusive control over the commercial use in this country of the official Olympic symbol—five interlocking rings. Without comment, the court rejected an appeal aimed at permitting a Swiss company from selling graphic designs bearing the symbol in the United States. Dean Smith, head men's basketball coach at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and Bob Knight, head coach at Indiana University, Bloomington, will be rival coaches in the annual Elks/Basketball Hall of Fame Senior All-America Classic April 27 in Indianapolis. Connecticut College has dedicated a $4.1 million athletics center. The facility has 53,430 square feet and includes three courts for basketball, volleyball or tennis; space for 12 badminton courts; four squash and two racquetball courts; a jogging lane; a classroom/meeting room; six team rooms, and two visiting team rooms, lockers and showers.

Bids have been approved for the installation of an artificial-turf football field and running track at the University of North Dakota. The school's Memorial Stadium has had a natural grass surface since it was opened in 1927. Considerable renovation has been undertaken at the stadium, which seats 15,000. Completion of the new improvements is expected by August 1985. The University of Missouri, Columbia, athletics department has received a $100,000 gift from former football letterman Jim Kekeris, who was an all-Big Six Conference selection in the mid 1940s. Kekeris is a St. Louis businessman.

The University of Wisconsin, Whitewater, has added women's cross country and eliminated men's gymnastics. Jeff Miller, men's cross country coach and assistant track coach, also will coach the women's cross country team. The women's program now has nine sports and the men's 10. Wesleyan University has elevated women's volleyball to a varsity sport. The school has 14 sports for men and 12 for women.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK HEAD FOOTBALL COACH

GENERAL DESCRIPTION: In complete charge of the entire football program (Division I-AA), which includes the varsity squad, freshman squad and an informal junior varsity program. Under Ivy League coaching staff limitations, you will have a staff of six (6) full-time assistant and additional part-time assistants. Besides the actual coaching responsibilities, an intensive recruiting effort is expected within the rules and regulations of the NCAA, ECAC and Ivy League. Alumni relations in the areas of recruiting, summer job opportunities, career counseling and fund-raising is also a part of the job responsibility. We are looking for an individual who has an understanding of the Ivy League philosophies and one who is very concerned and involved with his players in non-football related areas.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY DESCRIPTION: Columbia is a member of the Ivy League. Admission to the College is based primarily on academic achievement and financial aid is awarded on the basis of need. The University is located in New York City and has an undergraduate enrollment of 4,000 students. All students must pursue a degree within a four-year period, and their athletic experience must be complete within four years of their initial enrollment (with limited and extenuating exceptions). The Ivy League does not permit freshmen to compete on the varsity level in the sport of football. The League is made up of Columbia, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Harvard, Yale, Brown, Princeton, Dartmouth; all are classified in Division I and Division I-AA in football. The Ivy League does not permit spring football practice, and we are permitted to schedule 10 contests. The football practice fields and stadium are located at Baker Field, which is approximately 1/2 hour from the main campus.

In the fall of 1984 the first phase of the new stadium project was dedicated. This first phase included 11,000 seats along with a modern press box and reception lounge. The second phase will include the visitors' stands, a running track and lighting. In addition, new practice fields are to be developed along with locker rooms.

GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS: Master's or bachelor's degree; successful background in coaching football on the college level as either head or assistant coach; successful experience in the recruitment of student athletes with high academic standards; ability to work within the framework of Ivy League regulations and restrictions. Salary: commensurate with experience; Application date: by December 15, 1984. Appointment date: as soon as possible.

MAIL RESUME AND REFERENCES TO: Mr. Al Paul, Director of Athletics, Columbia University, 436 Physical Fitness Center, New York, New York 10027.

National testing of schools sought

The Council of Chief State School Officers has endorsed a national system of achievement tests and other devices for measuring the quality of elementary and high schools.

"Two or three years from now, the public is going to be asking about results," said Gerald N. Tirozzi, commissioner of education in Connecticut. "If we can't make some comparisons, we will have a difficult time."

Developing a system of national testing was a response to growing public concern about the quality of American education and pressure from governors and political leaders for evidence that school revisions and reforms are effective.

The council also voted to set up its own coordination center to serve as a clearinghouse for information on new means of evaluating education and to develop its own core set of indicators that could be used for state-by-state evaluations.

Advanced-placement program grows

The College Board has announced that its advanced-placement exam program grew at a record pace last year as more high school students signed up for introductory college courses.

A total of 177,406 students took almost 240,000 exams in 13 fields, from English to foreign languages to the sciences to art. In all, 6,273 of the nation's 23,000 high schools now offer such courses, and two-thirds of all colleges and universities accept the exam grades for college credit or advanced placement, the board said.

The program expanded by 446 schools and added 19,433 students in the past year, which was the largest annual increase in advance placement's 29-year history, according to George Hanford, board president.

Minority students took 15 percent of the advanced-placement exams, up from 11 percent in 1979. Women, who 15 years ago took 40 percent of the exams, now take 48 percent, including more than a third of the math and science tests.

Scholarships used as teaching lure

President Reagan recently signed legislation to provide scholarships of up to $5,000 a year for bright high school students who agree to teach for at least two years for each year of scholarship aid. The legislation sets aside $86 million for scholarships through 1989.

Also included in the bill was $10 million for teacher stipends for sabbaticals to prevent good teachers from leaving their posts.

Students in the top 10 percent of their high school classes would be eligible for aid in exchange for teaching. Also, one outstanding teacher in each of the nation's 435 congressional districts would be eligible for a government-paid sabbatical to improve teaching skills.

Bell accepts appointment at Utah

Secretary of Education Terrel H. Bell has announced that he will resign his Cabinet post December 30 to become a professor at the University of Utah.

Asked about earlier Reagan administration plans to dismantle the Education Department, Bell told The New York Times: "I think the department is here to stay, and I don't believe that there's going to be any kind of a major push to eliminate it. The watershed event on that was the Republican National Convention in Dallas and the debate that went on with the platform committee. The decision was made not to include abolishment of the department in the Republican platform."

Beavers break ice hockey mark

Bemidji State University has broken the men's ice hockey collegiate record for consecutive victories.

A 4-3 victory over Gustavus Adolphus November 20 was the Beavers' 35th consecutive victory. That broke a record set by Bemidji State between January 1969 and February 1970. The earlier 34-game streak ended with a 7-4 loss to North Dakota.

Bemidji's last defeat was a 4-2 loss to Rochester Institute of Technology in the 1983 NCAA Division II Men's Ice Hockey Championship finals. Bemidji won the Division II title last year with a two-game, total-goals decision over Merrimack, becoming only the second collegiate team to have an undefeated season. Bob Peters has coached both record-setting teams but missed the RIT loss while on sabbatical.

In regular-season play, Bemidji is unbeaten in its last 39 games, including a 4-4 tie with Mankato State in February 1983.

The Beavers will try to extend the streak December 4 against Wisconsin-Superior.

tain West Athletic Conference, respectively.

Proposal No. 67 would permit the Division III Steering Committee, by a two-thirds vote, to approve exceptions to the application of Division III regulations in a sport in certain specified circumstances.

Proposal No. 69 would establish minimum numbers of contests in field hockey and women's softball and a minimum number of participants in each contest in women's gymnastics in order to count those sports toward meeting the minimum sports sponsorship criteria in Divisions I and II.

The recommended numbers of contests in field hockey are 11 in Division I and 10 in Division II; in women's softball, 27 in Division I and 24 in Division II. The suggested minimum number of participants in each contest in women's gymnastics is five.

Drug testing results good, Dempsey says

Drug testing of student-athletes at the University of Arizona has shown an eight percent use of marijuana and a two percent use of cocaine.

Director of Athletics Cedric W. Dempsey said he was "pleased with the statistics we came out with, with the low incidence of usage. It seems to be no critical problem."

Trainers administered tests to more than 300 student-athletes during physical examinations. Samples were not matched with names or grouped by sports; tests were conducted only for cocaine and marijuana.

Dempsey said the testing was part of a two-part educational program about drug use. Arizona also is offering drug-education seminars.

TV in the News

Motion to change TV ruling denied

A Federal judge last week refused to modify an earlier ruling by his court, after being supported by a U.S. Court of Appeals, allowing CBS to broadcast last Saturday's Southern California-Notre Dame football game.

U.S. District Judge Richard A. Gadbois' decision allowed CBS to televise a game between Southern California and Nebraska September 22. Both Nebraska and Notre Dame are members of the College Football Association, which has a contract with ABC restricting CFA members from appearing on other television networks on Saturday afternoons.

Southern California is a member of the Pacific-10 Conference and a party to a pact with CBS in conjunction with the Big Ten Conference.

ABC did not dispute CBS' right to broadcast the September game but did appeal for the right to protect its property.

Gadbois ruled that the CFA contract provision preventing members from appearing on other networks could not be used as a reason for Notre Dame to withhold its consent to televise the game, and his ruling was supported by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in San Francisco.

ABC returned to Gadbois' court seeking a modification of the injunction that would permit it to compete with CBS for television rights to the Southern California-Notre Dame contest, but Gadbois would not change his decision.

Revenues declining at Iowa schools

Small colleges in Iowa may be typical of the nation's other smaller institutions facing revenue cuts and the possible elimination of some sports programs because of the U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing television networks to compete on the open market for college football games.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, recently conducted a hearing on the effects of the court's decision.

Grassley said he will use the information to persuade the Senate Judiciary Committee, which oversees antitrust cases, to consider the issue.

"We have far more to protect here than TV dollars," said John F. Kurtt, Wartburg College athletics director. "We have thousands and thousands of young men and ladies throughout the country to protect their rights to participate."

Kurtt and Robert A. Bowsby, Northern Iowa athletics director, said the decision ending NCAA control over college football telecasts has had a negative impact on revenues, minor sports and school spirit.

Bowsby said the oversaturation of football games on television is keeping fans away from his school's events. He said average attendance at Northern Iowa dropped from 11,075 to 9,500 despite a 9-2 record in football this season.

At the University of Iowa, Iowa State University and the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, officials testified that revenues had decreased but not to the extent that smaller schools were experiencing.

The schools' representatives said they would consider supporting legislation to allow the NCAA an exemption from antitrust laws so that it could regulate football telecasts and find ways to help smaller schools.

National network and independent cable spokesmen, however, are pleased with the new open market and indicated it could be even less restrictive. They said the viewer is better served by having a wider choice of games.

Home Sports to telecast 33 games

Home Sports Entertainment is offering at least 53 college basketball games, featuring teams from the Southwest Athletic, Southeastern and Western Athletic Conferences.

Southwest Conference games dominate the schedule with at least 31 games in the third season of the network's conference coverage.

Included in the schedule are the University of Houston Kettle Classic, the University of Texas Longhorn Classic and the Western Athletic Conference championship tournament.
