CEOs urged to attend June special Convention

The officers of the NCAA Presidents Commission are sending letters this week to the chief executive officers of all NCAA member institutions, urging the CEOs to attend the special NCAA Convention June 20-21 in New Orleans and to appoint themselves as their institutions' voting delegates.

Letters to Division I chief executives are signed by Commission Chair John W. Ryan and by Otis A. Singletary, University of Kentucky, chair of the commission's Division I subcommittee. Division II letters are signed by Ryan and Barbara J. Seelye, Keene State College, chair of the Division II subcommittee, while the signatures of Ryan and Kenneth J. Weller, Central College (Iowa), Division III subcommittee chair, appear on letters to Division III presidents.

In a separate mailing, all presidents also will receive a brochure entitled "The Chief Executive Officer and the Special NCAA Convention — Answers to Your Questions." The publication was developed by the NCAA at Ryan's request.

The Commission officers' letter, while asking CEOs to attend as voting delegates, notes that some will not be able to do so. "If you are not able to attend the Convention, the Presidents Commission strongly suggests that you instruct your institution's voting delegate as to the institution's vote on each issue before the Convention," the letter states. The Commission specifically is asking that all chief executives support

Women's tournament to include 40 teams

The NCAA Executive Committee, meeting May 6-7 in Kansas City, Missouri, approved the expansion of the Division I Women's Basketball Championship field from 32 to 40 teams beginning with the 1986 championship.

The Division I Women's Basketball Committee had recommended the field be increased to 48 teams. With the exception of 1983, the tournament field has included 32 teams since its inception in 1982. In 1983, a 36-team field was used on an experimental basis.

The women's basketball championship was one of two tournaments to receive the Executive Committee's approval for an increase in field size. Recommendations to expand the fields for Divisions I and III men's soccer and the National Collegiate Women's Soccer Championship were denied.

The Executive Committee approved expanding the Division III football championship bracket from eight to 16 teams on a trial basis in 1985, with no transportation guarantee for first-round games. A survey of Division III CEOs will be conducted at the end of the trial period.

The Executive Committee also recommended that the NCAA Council sponsor legislation to discontinue the indoor track championships beginning with the 1987-88 season and to disallow counting indoor and outdoor track as separate sports. Indoor and outdoor track would be considered one sport. The Executive Committee will review the proposal and future funding of the championships at its August meeting.

The current status and amount of money spent in underwriting NCAA championships in cross country, indoor track and outdoor track was discussed by the 14-member Executive Committee before making the recommendation. The NCAA spent more than $1.6 million subsidizing championships in the three activities in 1983-84. That dollar figure represents 33.8 percent of the Association's total underwriting of NCAA championships for only 20 percent of the cham-

Administrative Committee approves resolution for compliance program

The NCAA Administrative Committee, acting for the NCAA Council, has approved the text of a special Convention resolution to implement a one-time affidavit program to determine current compliance with specific NCAA legislation by head coaches and student-athletes.

The Council voted in its April 15-17 meeting to offer such a proposal at the special Convention next month. The resolution appears as Proposal No. 9 in the Official Notice and Program of the special Convention, which was mailed May 6 from the NCAA national office.

Specifically, the affidavits would be administered prior to the beginning of the 1985-86 academic year or shortly thereafter. Each member institution would administer the affidavits to all varsity and new recruited student-athletes, as well as to all head coaches, to determine information regarding the financial assistance and athletically related benefits currently being received (or to be received) by the student-athletes. The coaches' affidavit also would seek information on each coach's knowledge of sources of any improper aid.

An institution failing to administer the affidavits would be ineligible for all NCAA championships and post-season football games in 1985-86. An institution that continues to employ in a coaching capacity any head coach who fails to complete and sign the affidavit would be ineligible for championships in that coach's sport.

A student-athlete who fails to complete and sign the affidavit would be ineligible for intercollegiate competition in 1985-86.

The full text of the resolution to be considered at the special Convention follows:

"Whereas, the Presidents Commission's survey of chief executive officers regarding the desired bases for financial aid awards to student-athletes and a review of NCAA studies on the related issues of 'amateur' status in intercollegiate sports reflect overwhelming support within the membership (and specifically Division I and Division I-A) for essentially maintaining the Association's current financial aid and related amateurism rules; and

"Whereas, the chief executive officers of NCAA member institutions have indicated near unanimous concern about the diminishing integrity in the management of intercollegiate athletics and there has been heightened public questioning of the level of compliance with NCAA legislation, particularly as to financial assistance and extra benefits received by student-athletes; and

"Whereas, the NCAA Presidents Commission and the Council believe it to be essential that the member

Division I-A CEOs invited to special meeting in June

The chief executive officers of all 105 Division I-A member institutions have been invited to attend a special meeting during the special NCAA Convention next month in New Orleans.

Otis A. Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky and chair of the Division I subcommittee of the NCAA Presidents Commission, issued the invitation in an April 30 letter to the I-A CEOs. Commission Chair John W. Ryan asked Singletary to call the meeting and to chair it.

"The 12 Division I-A representatives on the NCAA Presidents Commission have agreed to invite all Division I-A chief executives to a discussion meeting at the special NCAA Convention in New Orleans, Louisiana," Singletary's letter explained. The meeting is scheduled from 8 to 10:30 a.m. Thursday, June 20, at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in New Orleans.

"The primary purpose of the meeting is to discuss and provide information regarding the proposals that will be acted upon at the special meeting," Singletary's letter stated. "As time permits, we also can discuss other matters of interest."

Accompanying the invitation were a summary of the eight special Convention proposals being sponsored by the Presidents Commission, a summary of the major results of the survey of CEOs that was conducted for the Presidents Commission and a listing of the 12 Division I-A members of the Commission.

Division I-A chief executives were asked to notify Singletary of their intention to attend the meeting.

The 12 Division I-A representatives on the Presidents Commission, who decided in April to call such a meeting, are:

Duane Acker, Kansas State University (Big Eight Conference); Glen R. Driscoll, University of Toledo

Insurance deadline extended

To give NCAA member institutions more opportunity, the Insurance Committee has extended the deadline for enrollment in the NCAA's lifetime catastrophic injury insurance program from May 15 to August 1.

On the advice of American Sports Underwriters, Inc., administrator of the plan, the Insurance Committee decided to extend the deadline because it is apparent that institutions need additional time.

ASU estimates that about 50 percent of the membership has shown an interest in the program and that extension of the enrollment deadline would increase participation in the program.

The catastrophic injury insurance program, which will go into effect August 1, will provide disability benefits and lifetime medical and rehabilitation benefits to any male or female

Speakers named for NCAA promotion seminar

Leaders in athletics promotion and marketing have been selected as panelists for the NCAA Professional Development Seminar May 31-June 1 at the Westin Hotel in Cincinnati.

John V. Kasser, athletics director at California State University, Long Beach, will be the seminar moderator. Registration begins at 10 a.m. May 31. (See advertisement on page 3 of this issue.)

The seminar is being coproduced by Host Communications of Lexington, Kentucky. Additional funding has been provided by American Airlines, Fugazy International Travel, Greyhound Lines, McDonald's and Valvoline Oil Company.

Topics and speakers are as follows:

Radio networking — Robert Fowler, vice-president, Learfield Communications, Jefferson City, Missouri; Richard Giannini, associate athletics director, University of Florida, and David W. Littleton, general manager, electronic media networks, Host Communications. Promotion opportunities in print, radio and television — Bob Savod, associate athletics director, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Claudia Woody, assistant athletics director, University of Texas, Austin; Donald R. Perkins, director of public information, Wittenberg University, and John Henderson, producer/accounts representative, Hammond Productions, Lexington, Kentucky.

Also, successful sports promotion — Jim White, sports marketing director, University of Iowa; Betty W. Miles, associate athletics director, Drake University, and Mike Palmisano, administrative associate, University of Michigan. Evaluation of the athletics department image — Dick Gabriel, sports manager,

99 percent concern isn't enough, CEO believes

By Bill Millsaps

Richmond Times-Dispatch

In a recent NCAA-sponsored survey of presidents of its member institutions, only 51 percent of Division III school chief executives responded.

The 49 percent who couldn't be bothered might have been a little more interested in responding had they talked with John D. Wilson, former star defensive halfback for Michigan State University's 1952 national champions and president of Washington and Lee University for the past three years.

Wilson has many strong opinions about the role of athletics in college life, and he turned them loose in the survey. "I wrote long things, sometimes in the margins, in addition to the spaces provided for answers on the questionnaire," said Wilson.

The results of the survey indicated that 99 percent of the respondents were "very much or moderately concerned by the current state of integrity in athletics and the possible damage being caused to the public image of higher education."

To Wilson, that's one percent short of what should have been the target figure.

As a former administrator at Michigan State and Virginia Polytechnic Institute (where he was vice president and provost for six years), Wilson has a background in big-time college athletics. What he sees of it now leaves him "very pessimistic." He's glad that many college presidents are expected to attend the special NCAA convention June 20-21 in New Orleans, but he doubts that some of the major reforms that have been recommended are going to become NCAA law.

"It will be a meeting of disparate voices," said Wilson, "all from different perspectives, some from left field, some incredibly naive. I don't know if you can get anything legislated in that zoo."

To Wilson, the major source of current college athletics problems is the huge sums of money being made and spent by top Division I powers.

"More times than not, the universities don't touch that money," he said. "The athletics association at most schools is separately incorporated. It's a closed shop. When the University of Michigan was cutting out its geography department, contracting in the face of the most recent recession, Don Canham [Michigan's athletics director] was sitting on an $11 million surplus."

"What does this money produce? It produces six-figure salaries for certain coaches. It produces trips to Japan for two Atlantic Coast Conference teams to play in Tokyo. What the hell is all that about?"

Wilson is especially concerned about the enormous increases in salaries and benefits for football and basketball coaches at high-profile Division I schools.

"Once you start paying that kind of money," said Wilson,

Columnary Craft

"there's no way out. That kind of money constitutes a brand-new incentive to cheat."

To Wilson, athletics windfall income, such as the $96 million CBS-TV is paying the NCAA for the 1985 through 1987 NCAA Division I basketball tournaments, should be distributed much differently than it is now. "I'm not talking about spreading it around to Division III athletics programs like ours," said Wilson. "I'm talking about putting a lot of that money in escrow and doing things with it like establishing academic scholarships for minority kids."

Wilson knows such a redistribution is not likely to happen soon, but he is hopeful that some national mechanism to monitor athletics finances and athletics department operations will come out of the New Orleans meeting.

"Conditions of life in big-time intercollegiate athletics have dictated disclosure," said Wilson. "The idea of institutional privacy is no longer valid. Division I schools have lost the right to claim confidentiality on these questions [of integrity and finances]. They've got to face the public on this, because the public no longer has confidence in their credibility."

"Disclosure would answer the question: How serious is an institution in keeping its athletics program in perspective with its main purpose, which is the education of young people?"

Wilson disagrees with the establishment of a national admission standard for student-athletes, which he said was similar to "chasing a dandelion puff." He said, however, that every school should publish regularly a list of athletes who have completed their eligibility and graduated. At some schools, that list would be very, very short.

"I think institutional embarrassment is the only motivation left," said Wilson.

Wilson advocates some changes that appear to have no chance of becoming reality. He would outlaw athletics dorms ("they've always been anathema to me," he said), wholesale redshirting ("I wouldn't allow it without a physician's certification") and freshman eligibility ("give a youngster a change to get adjusted to college life before he starts intercollegiate competition").

But Wilson is heartened that the NCAA, at its June meeting, will consider something he said he proposed years ago. "If a school grievously affronts the standards that should govern intercollegiate athletics," said Wilson, "close down the stadium. For two years, the stadium is dark. I was delighted to see this on the agenda. Maybe it would take the penalized school four years to restart the program, but I can't believe that's too serious for those who are repeat violators."

Solving the problems won't be easy, Wilson said, because the big-time college athletics system is firmly in place. "There are," Wilson said, "huge budgets to support, staffs to maintain, large stadiums and coliseums to fill, alumni and fan expectations to fulfill. All that is hard to back away from."

Some people are beginning to reflexively back away from that system . . . because it stinks.

NCAA proposals are on target

The Kansas City Star

An editorial

"The NCAA and its member schools may be nearing a significant crossroad in their relationship. New rules have been formulated to deal with cheating in sports. The regulations are good ones. They're also tough."

"The idea is to increase the punishment to a degree where it deters schools from skulduggery. The ultimate penalty is actual cancellation of a sport for two years."

"The new rules make sense. If a university knows it actually can lose its right to compete on the field, there may not be so much cheating going on off the field. This kind of get-tough policy has long been clamored for, but the NCAA and its members simply haven't moved quickly enough to implement it."

"Will schools go along with having the NCAA wield such a powerful enforcement tool? Suspension of a multimillion-dollar football program won't be taken lightly, by a university or its powerful alumni. Court battles are foreseen. If pursued, they could undermine the ability of the NCAA to police its members. One encouraging sign is that most colleges, despite grumbling, have gone along with harsh NCAA penalties in the past. Trophies have been returned. TV appearances have been eliminated. Revenue has been lost."

Opinions Out Loud

"If NCAA members are squarely behind this policy — and they should be — it could work. New rules won't prevent all cheating, naturally. There are plenty of problems with collegiate athletics these days. This is one more positive effort in trying to control them."

Julius Erving, professional basketball player
Chicago Tribune

"There are a lot of factions working very hard to separate the NCAA from the NBA. We are almost in direct competition for the fans' dollar. On a sadistic note, it (the Tulane University investigation) helps the NBA.

But I look at it as a modern-day sports tragedy."

"It saddens me and brings to the forefront a problem that is always there because one of the pressures of the sport and our society is looking upon gambling as a form of recreation."

"There is competition in college recruiting to bend the rules and go one-up on the next program. This is more than bending the rules. This is attacking the legal system in our country, dealing directly with the criminal element. This is a criminal act."

Willis Reed, former head men's basketball coach
Creighton University

The Associated Press

"If you're going to stay in college basketball and be successful, you'll have to do some things I can't do, I won't do."

"Collegiate basketball has gotten to be a money sport. The incentive to break the rules certainly is there."

Jeffrey H. Fogelson, athletics director
Xavier University (Ohio)

The Cincinnati Enquirer

"We worry about victories and losses and postseason tournaments, but it's more important that the athletes are benefiting and developing and preparing to face the rest of the world."

"If we're not doing that, we're not doing our job. It's the NCAA's responsibility to do that. We are the NCAA. And we're all responsible."

Dale Brown, head men's basketball coach
Louisiana State University

Houston Chronicle

"College athletes are being ripped off by the system. I shouldn't get a salary raise, a television contract, a paneled office and a car — and I know we're in a capitalist system. But it's not reasonable for any of us to think a modern-day athlete can go to school, particularly out of state, and get nothing but his room, board, books and tuition."

Bill Dwyre, sports editor
Los Angeles Times

Referee

"The worst of pressure-cooker times brings out the worst in coaching behavior. Embarrassing moments become the norm. Letters-to-the-editor columns are filled with pleas for sanity from those who abhor these kinds of excesses, or pleas for understanding those who see sports with an almost religious fervor."

"Right in the middle, of course, are the referees, the people whose very existence is defined by the Biblical 'turn the other cheek.'"

"Referees, the lackeys of the game, the mannequins in the movie scenes, somehow are supposed to live through this much like one lives through the appearance of a full moon while sharing a one-room apartment with a crazy aunt."

Letter to the Editor

No basketball before Christmas

To the Editor:

For some time now, I have felt that the basketball season should not begin until after Christmas. First, let us consider two arguments against tradition and commitment to the NCAA tournament contract with network television.

The argument about tradition, I think, would be quickly overcome. At least, it hasn't seemed to upset pro football or pro basketball. In the good old days, basketball started when the football season ended. Now, the pros start playing exhibition games in basketball during the first part of October or even sooner in some cases, and their full season starts in mid-October and ends in June. We now have football in the pro leagues year-round. And our 18 bowl games are played all through December, whereas in the past, there used to be only four bowl games.

Now, 36 teams are on their way to bowl games come December. Finally, in January, the college football season has ended. Schools haven't worried too much about tradition — they just keep playing whenever they want to. I really enjoy football, so if I have time — like millions of other people — I'll watch it.

CBS advised me that April would not be a good month to have the national basketball championships, and our ratings would not be as high that month. Besides, they have the opening of the baseball season and the Masters golf tournament. It seems to me that considering the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship as it now is structured with 64 teams, no athletics event in April would hold more interest. Admittedly, I could be wrong on this, but I don't think so.

Listed below are many arguments for making a change:

1. With games played before Christmas and winning being so vitally important, it carries a great distraction to the true spirit of Christmas for players, fans and, particularly, coaches.

2. Freshmen now are eligible to compete from the time they arrive on campus; right away, they're expected to start training themselves physically and mentally to play the game. And on October 15, they commence practice, competing for a spot on the team. It seems to me that freshmen ought to have more time to adjust to college life, both academically and socially.

3. Since both quarters and semesters end in the middle of December, the final-examination period takes a great deal of study time, with which basketball sometimes interferes. And as the coach tries to prepare for games, many times he does not have a full squad and he has to make many adjustments in favor of the academic pursuits of the student, which is the way it should be.

If we changed the dates, the coach would not have that problem in trying to prepare immediately to win basketball games. Sometimes, trips force students to make all kinds of adjustments to make their final examinations, etc. This could be eliminated.

4. If high schools and junior colleges did not change their season, it would give the coaches on the college level an opportunity and more time to do a more thorough job of evaluating prospects for the coming years — if they were allowed to evaluate without the interruption of their own games.

5. All of us are trying to do our best to promote our particular sport, and some of those December games are very important to all of us at all levels of competition. But basketball in many cases is overshadowed by the bowl games. Consequently, very little attention is paid to basketball until after the first of the year, when we get into league play. Since football and basketball are the breadwinners for college athletics in over 90 percent of the colleges and

Coaches' speaking engagements

Football and men's basketball coaches in Divisions I and II and women's basketball coaches in Division I may speak at high school or junior college awards banquets (or to other groups primarily involving prospective student-athletes) only during the appropriate contact periods for those sports as set forth in Bylaws 1-2(a)-(4), (5) and (6). Furthermore, any face-to-face encounter by a coach with a prospective student-athlete while speaking at an awards banquet would be a countable contact.

As indicated in Case No. 194 (page 311, 1985-86 NCAA Manual), football and basketball coaches in Divisions I and II [Bylaw 1-2(a)-(5) does not apply to women's basketball in Division II until August 1, 1985] also may speak at other types of banquets or meetings (other than a high school or junior college awards banquet) outside the contact periods when: 1—the meeting or banquet is open to the general public; 2—attendance is not limited to only high school or junior college athletes; 3—there is no direct contact between the staff member and any prospect attending the meeting or banquet, and 4—the staff member does not make a recruiting presentation. Any face-to-face encounter by a coach with a prospective student-athlete or his or her parents while speaking at such banquets or meetings outside of a permissible contact period would be a violation of recruiting legislation.

1985 preseason football practice

NCAA Bylaw 3-1(a)-(2) sets forth the three methods of determining when an institution may commence preseason football practice. An institution shall not begin practice before the following dates:

1. The 19th day before its first scheduled intercollegiate game, or
2. The 22nd day before the next to last Saturday in September, or
3. That date that will permit a maximum of 29 "practice opportunities" prior to its first scheduled intercollegiate game. "Practice opportunities" are defined by the provisions of Bylaw 3-1(b).

The information below illustrates by example the application of Bylaws 3-1(d) and 3-1(e) in determining permissible days to issue equipment, have medical examinations and take squad pictures and to establish, in Divisions I-A and I-AA, orientation periods for new students. The membership's adoption of Convention Proposal No. 116, which amends Bylaw 3-1(e), permits Division I-AA institutions to establish an orientation period, similar to that for Division I-A institutions, to commence four days prior to the start of preseason football practice for those students who are entering the institution for their first term. The example uses a Monday as the first permissible day of practice per Bylaw 3-1(a)-(2).

Divisions I-A and I-AA: Monday—freshmen may report for evening meal (no meetings); Tuesday—medicals and issuance of equipment for freshmen, orientation No. 1; Wednesday—orientation No. 2; Thursday—orientation No. 3; Friday—orientation No. 4, varsity may report for evening meal (no meetings); Saturday—freshmen and varsity pictures, medicals, and issuance of equipment for varsity; Sunday—no activities; Monday—first day of practice.

Divisions II and III: Monday—no activities; Tuesday—no activities; Wednesday—no activities; Thursday—no activities; Friday—team may report for evening meal (no meetings); Saturday—freshmen and varsity pictures, medicals, and issuance of equipment for freshmen and varsity; Sunday—no activities; Monday—first day of practice.

Please note that, in the example, on the day that practice is not permitted (i.e., the evening on which the student-athletes may report; the Saturday used for medical exams, issuance of equipment and taking of pictures, and the Sunday before practice may begin), no practice may occur. "Practice" is any meeting, activity or instruction held at the direction of, or supervised by, any member or members of an institution's coaching staff. Engaging in any or all of the following activities on any day constitutes practice: field or floor practice, "chalk talk," lecture, or the discussion or showing of motion pictures.

This expanded service will not increase the premiums of the catastrophic program or any other NCAA-sponsored program.

"The concept of providing personalized service to those institutions that wanted it was thought to be the most effective way to expand our marketing plan for all of our programs," said Charles A. Taff, chair of the Insurance Committee, from the University of Maryland, College Park. "In addition to not increasing the premiums, this marketing plan does not adversely affect the financial soundness of the NCAA programs. It only improves the possibility of greater enrollment and participation by the membership in the NCAA-sponsored insurance programs."

Waves wrap up national crown for Dunphy's going-away party

The Pepperdine Waves claimed the NCAA Men's Volleyball Championship May 4 with a 10-15, 15-10, 15-7, 15-13 victory over Southern California at Pauley Pavilion in Los Angeles. George Mason defeated Ball State 15-12, 15-6, 15-5 in the third-place game.

Pepperdine's victory proved to be a proper send-off for coach Marv Dunphy, who will take a three-year leave of absence to coach the U.S. national and 1988 U.S. Olympic teams. The Waves won the NCAA title in 1978, the year before Dunphy left to pursue a doctorate in physical education. He returned in 1982 and led the Waves to NCAA runner-up finishes in 1983 and 1984.

This year, Pepperdine won three regular-season matches with Southern California. "We knew we'd have a dogfight. All of our matches with them (the Trojans) have been long, hard-fought matches," Dunphy said.

Southern California took a 6-0 lead in the first game and held on to win, 15-10, behind some powerful blocking and 13 errors by the Waves.

"I probably made a coaching error in that first game," Dunphy said. "I tried to throw a new wrinkle at them by flip-flopping my front lines. It didn't work out, but I felt like we had to try something. You can't just pussyfoot around and wait for a good team to lose; you have to try to beat them."

The Waves battled for a 15-10 victory in the second game, and the Trojans got as close as 9-7 in the third game before Pepperdine ran off six straight points.

In the final game, Pepperdine jumped to a 7-1 lead. The Trojans pulled ahead at 10-8, but the Waves again grabbed the lead for good at 12-11. The championship match was watched by 6,378 fans.

Pepperdine's outside hitters Bob Ctvrtlik and Matt Rigg recorded 25 and 21 kills, respectively. Ctvrtlik was named most outstanding player, and Rigg was awarded all-tournament team honors.

Other all-tournament team members were Bill Yardley, Southern California; Rudy Dvorak, Southern California; Chao Ying Zhang, Southern California; Troy Tanner, Pepperdine, and Mike Fitzgerald, Pepperdine.

In May 3 semifinals, Southern California defeated George Mason, 15-4, 15-11, 15-10; and Pepperdine topped Ball State, 15-2, 15-2, 15-7.

California tennis rivalry takes center court

Stanford and Southern California will bring their California rivalry into the national spotlight at the NCAA Division I Women's Tennis Championships May 16-24 in Oklahoma City.

Stanford, winner of NCAA team titles in 1982 and 1984, and Southern California, national champion in 1983, are the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in the country, according to the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association (ITCA) poll. They are expected to be in the 16-team field when championships tournament selections are announced May 9-10.

The Cardinals and the Trojans have met three times this season, and Stanford holds a 2-1 edge. Southern California's 5-4 victory came early in the season, halting Stanford's 40-match winning streak. Stanford then took 5-4 victories over the Trojans in the finals of the Longhorn Invitational and later in Western Collegiate Athletic Association action.

Stanford is 23-1 overall and led by Patty Fendick (27-3), Linda Gates (24-6) and Leigh Anne Eldredge (23-6). Eldredge is No. 5 in the ITCA singles poll, and the Eldredge-Gates doubles team (17-3) is ranked sixth.

The Trojans (30-2) are paced by No. 2-ranked Caroline Kuhlman (17-2), a freshman from Lakeside Park, Kentucky. She recently sprained an ankle but is expected to be ready for NCAA play. At No. 2 singles for the Trojans is fourth-ranked Heliane Steden (17-4). Kuhlman and Mary Norwood lead the doubles contingent at 11-3.

The West region, which consistently has provided the championships with the most representatives, also includes San Diego State (25-6), tied for No. 5 in the country; California (22-9), No. 8; UCLA (14-9), No. 9; U.S. International (35-6), No. 11; Arizona (15-8), No. 13; Arizona State (17-14), No. 14; and Pepperdine (17-13), No. 17.

Jill Smoller of Arizona (15-13), Joni Urban of UCLA (9-3) and Linda Howell of San Diego State (28-6) are Nos. 8, 9 and 10 in the nation, respectively. San Diego State's Howell and Cynthia MacGregor (26-5) are ranked No. 7 in doubles.

In the East region, Harvard (14-3) looks like the sole representative. Standouts for the Crimson include seventh-ranked Elizabeth Evans (8-2), Erika Smith (10-3) and Robin Boss (8-4).

Miami (Florida) and Florida, the nation's No. 4- and No. 5-ranked teams, respectively, are probable contenders from the Southeast region. Miami (Florida) is led by Ronni Reis (29-4) and Ros Riach (29-8), while the Gators feature Jill Heathcrington at the No. 1 position.

Northwestern (21-6) and Indiana (31-2) could represent the Midwest

Bruins are bullish on NCAA titles

UCLA, ranked No. 1 nationally, will attempt to defend its team title in the NCAA Division I Men's Tennis Championships May 18-26 at the University of Georgia.

The Bruins, 15-time national champions, have been ranked No. 1 or No. 2 in the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association (ITCA) poll all year. They probably will be accompanied to the 16-team championships by West Coast neighbors Southern California (ranked No. 2 with Southern Methodist), No. 4 Stanford and No. 5 Pepperdine. UCLA, Southern Cal and Stanford have won 33 out of 39 possible NCAA titles. This year, however, Western supremacy is in doubt.

"There are six teams who really have a very good chance to win," said UCLA coach Glenn Bassett. "The three teams in our conference (UCLA, Southern California and Stanford) are very close, and Pepperdine also is very strong. Southern Methodist beat us earlier in the year, and Georgia (No. 6 nationally) is always strong when playing at home."

Bassett, who coached UCLA to seven of its titles, said his 1985 squad

Johns Hopkins faces sticky job in defending lacrosse title

Defending champion Johns Hopkins must be considered the favorite to win the Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship, which begins May 15 at Brown University.

"I would say our team is very similar to other Hopkins teams," said Blue Jays coach Don Zimmerman. "The guys we really depended on last season, both offensively and defensively, have returned. We were fortunate that last year's stars were underclassmen."

Johns Hopkins has played the other major contenders, beating Virginia and Syracuse and losing to North Carolina. "In the two victories, we played our game as well as we can play it," Zimmerman said. "But in the Carolina game, we did not play very well." Zimmerman said the Blue Jays will employ an aggressive defense, as usual, and a complete, open-field offense, also a trademark of Johns Hopkins championship squads.

Goalkeeper Larry Quinn again has been outstanding for the Blue Jays, as have midfielders Del Dressel and John Krumenacker and attackman Brian Wood. But, the real key to Johns Hopkins' attempt to repeat as titlist may lie with defender John DeTomasso. "John will get the other team's best defender, and he always does a super job," Zimmerman said.

"All we want to do at this point is be sharp and play our best down the stretch."

Syracuse head coach Roy Simmons Jr. makes no bones about his team's approach to the game: "The game of lacrosse is exciting the way we like to play it."

Syracuse runs and guns, maybe better than any team in the history of the college game. The Syracuse score sheet looks like a stock quotation this season. "Of the 30 kids we have on the roster, all 21 of the offensive players have scored, and 10 of them are in double figures," Simmons said. Top attacker Tim Nelson, who injured a knee in last year's championship game, wore a cast through August and spent the fall season in rehabilitation. However, the senior broke the collegiate assists record in his first game this spring, recently adding the all-time total-points mark.

"A lot of people wondered if Tim would ever be the same," Simmons said. "Well, he wears a brace now, but I believe his statistics speak for themselves. He is an incredible athlete." He is joined by some of the game's brightest stars, including his brother Tom and Tom Korrie on attack, Brad Kotz in the midfield, and senior Tom Nims in goal.

Not surprisingly, Syracuse opponents have tried to slow things down, but Simmons has not been very cooperative. "Our enemy has forced us out of our style a little bit," he said, referring to one game in which Syracuse faced nine long sticks on the field at one time.

"It was like playing in a jungle. We turned it around against Army, though. I think our nine sticks made it tougher for them to clear the ball than their nine sticks made it for us to clear. It was an overtime game, but I think we put the crowd to sleep."

North Carolina coach Willie Scroggs said his team woke up early to the fact that they lacked the talent of some other Division I powers.

Uneasy lie the heads that wear women's track crowns...

The dominance of three-time Division II women's outdoor track champion Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo and two-time defending Division III titlist Wisconsin-LaCrosse could be in jeopardy when the 1985 championships begin May 20.

Injuries, transfers and graduation have affected the defending team champions. The Division II championships are scheduled at Cal State Los Angeles, while the Division III competition is scheduled at Denison.

Division II

Injuries to some of the Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo's key athletes could make the Division II Women's Outdoor Track Championships a battle to the finish.

The Mustangs still are considered the favorite, but without distance runners Carole Gleason, defending champion in the 10,000 meters, and Lesley White, 1983 runner-up in the 5,000, teams like Cal State Hayward, Alabama A&M and Abilene Christian could surpass the powerful California squad.

Each year, Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo's margin of victory has decreased. In the first NCAA championships for women in 1982, the Mustangs out-scored runner-up Alabama A&M, 259-114½; in 1983, the Mustangs' 206 points held up to Morgan State's 116, and last year, Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo edged Alabama A&M, 169½-139.

The middle- and long-distance events are the Mustangs' strength. Gladees Prieur leads Cal Poly and has easily qualified in four events: 800 meters (2:09.92), 1,500 meters (4:20.73), 3,000 meters (9:16.12) and 5,000 meters (16:30.1). In addition, Jill Ellingson will run the 800 meters (2:11.77 season best), Lori Lopez will double in the 1,500 (4:24.93) and 3,000 (9:23.00), and Robyn Root will run the 5,000 (17:00.3) and 10,000 (34:38.9).

Patrice Carpenter runs the 100 meters (11.69) and 200 meters (23.7) for Cal Poly-SLO, while teammate Veronica Storvick is the 400 meters standout (54.80).

Defending champion in the 100-meter dash and 200-meter dash, Dannette Young paces a swift Alabama A&M crew. Times of 11.32 in the 100 meters and 23.38 in the 200 meters qualified her for 1985 championships action.

In addition, Serene Mitchell will represent the Bulldogs in the 800 meters (2:11.07) and 1,500 meters (4:18.05), and Fredericka Wright will run the 400 meters (54.17). The Bulldogs' 400-meter relay team has a season best of 45.2, and the 1,600-meter relay team has clocked 3:38.84.

Abilene Christian boasts four defending champions returning in 1985: Sonja Smith, javelin (176-11); Yolanda Henry, high jump (5-10½); Justine Craig, 400-meter hurdles (58:00), and Ann Foster, triple jump (41-7¼).

Top newcomers include Sheila Carrozza in the 1,500 (4:27.21) and 3,000 (9:35.8), Camille Coates in the 100 meters (11.3) and 200 meters (23.73), Marlene Lewis in the discus (160-9), Barbara Fleming in the 800 meters (2:08.77), and Stacy Atkinson in the heptathlon (5,114 points). The relay teams have clocked 46.38 in the 400 meters and 3:39.99 in the 1,600 meters.

For Cal State Hayward, two-time NCAA all-America Chris Manning should be the standout in the 1,500 meters (4:27.7).

Division III

Wisconsin-LaCrosse coach Gary Wilson has been sizing up his team's prospects for the 1985 NCAA Division III Women's Outdoor Track Championships...and he's not too confident of a victory.

Wilson, who led his squad to a 185½-102 victory over Central (Iowa) in the 1984 championships, said he lost 70 of those points to graduation. In addition, 16 other team members have been lost to injury or have transferred.

The Indians have qualified 18 athletes in 11 events. Included are: Donna Oedsma (shot put, 47-0¼), Brenda Filers (high jump, 5-9), Karen Wateski (long jump, 18-3), Deb Schmidt (triple jump, 36-6), Amy Klee, (400-meter hurdles, 64.0), Penny Gerner (400-meter hurdles, 63.61), Kathleen Ireland (800 meters, 2:15.11) and Deanne Jorgenson (5,000 meters, 17:45.2; 10,000 meters, 36:37.64). The 1,600-meter relay team has run a 3:59.4.

The team that holds a strong chance to take it all is 1985 Division III women's indoor track champion Massachusetts-Boston. Sherman Hart's Beacons scored 50 points to Cortland State's 41 to win the first NCAA indoor meet, and he did it with the help of 55-meter hurdles champion Michelle Williams, 400-meter dash winner Mutonda Durant and triple jump champion Ann Brissett.

All three have qualified for the outdoor championships.

In addition, Genesia Eddins will run the 400 meters (55.53) and Darrelle Boyd will enter the 1,500 meters (4:35.03). The 1,600-meter relay team has recorded a 3:45.00 clocking.

Hart said the squad should have a lot of individual winners but will probably finish in the top four or five in the team competition.

St. Thomas (Minnesota), Occidental and Cortland State are three strong contenders for the national title.

...but men's team champions expect to continue reigns

Abilene Christian, Division II men's outdoor track champion since 1982, and Glassboro State, winner of the past five men's team championships in Division III, again are favored to win those crowns this season in competition that begins May 20.

The Division II championships will be conducted at Cal State Los Angeles, and the Division III competition is scheduled at Denison.

Division II

Led by returning national champions in eight events, Abilene Christian should lock up its fourth consecutive national title. Thus far this season, 14 Wildcats have qualified in 17 events.

Mark Witherspoon, defending champion in the 200-meter dash (20.85) and 400-meter dash (45.41), has qualified in the 400 meters with a 47.14 indoors. Bothered by a stress fracture in his lower leg, he recently resumed competition and is expected to qualify in the 200 meters.

Freddie Williams took titles in the 800-meter run (1:47.81) and 1,500-meter run (3:42.65) and has qualified this season in both events (1:47.34, 800 meters; 3:47.5, 1,500 meters).

Other Abilene Christian returning champions include Dale Jenkins, pole vault (18-8); Jose Salazar, triple jump (55-3½); 400-meter relay team (39.46); and 1,600-meter relay team (3:08.68).

Ladrick Trusty, second last year in the 400-meter hurdles, has qualified with a 50.9 as have second-place finishers Doug Jones in the steeplechase (8:53.7) and Greg Johnson in the long jump (26-7½).

Abilene Christian could be pressed by Southeast Missouri State and Cal State Northridge, although Southeast Missouri State coach Joey Haines thinks knocking off the Wildcats could be next to impossible.

"Abilene Christian is going to be too strong for any of us. We've set our goal to be in the top three, and I feel pretty confident we can do that. We have good, well-rounded strength," Haines said.

Nearly 20 athletes from Southeast

Missouri have qualified, including David Jackson (100 meters, 10.28; 200 meters, 20.8); Joe Leuchtmann (10,000 meters, 30:27.9); Earl Whiting (triple jump, 52-2½), and Bobby Ferguson (pole vault, 16-4).

The Indians feature two 1985 indoor national champions in triple jumper Keith Presberry (51-7¼) and Carl Bell in the 800 meters (1:50.9 outdoors).

Cal State Northridge should be strong in the field events with Shawn Denton (javelin, 245-4), Aaron Buckholtz (hammer, 198-4), Rick Weyers (discus, 168-0; hammer, 194-9; shot put, 57-7¼) and Dion Giuliano (pole vault, 17-4). John Wotawa is the Matadors' leading decathlete with a 7,253-point season high.

Other teams expected to fare well are St. Augustine's, Cal State Bakersfield, Cal State Los Angeles and Angelo State, runner-up the past two years.

Division III

Glassboro State, national champion from 1980 to 1984, will meet some formidable competition. Last year's second- and third-place teams, Mount Union and St. Thomas (Minnesota), respectively, are back with strong teams. Occidental and Wisconsin-LaCrosse also are among the contenders.

Glassboro State has qualified in eight events, headed by returning steeplechase champion Don Deckert (9:07.6). Other qualifiers are Willie Lawson (800 meters, 1:52.02; 400 meters, 48.1), Ron Moore (100 meters, 10.6; long jump, 23-2), Jason Mouring (110-meter hurdles, 14.3) and Charlie Short (discus, 158-6).

Mount Union relay teams have glided to a 41.9 clocking in the 400-meter relay and a 3:17.4 in the 1,600-meter relay. Mark Loy, 1985 indoor national champion in the shot put, has a season best of 54-3, while Eric Tremmel, the 1984 national outdoor runner-up in the 800 meters, clocked a 1:51.52.

Sixteen St. Thomas (Minnesota)

team members have qualified, but coach Mark Dienhart is not as optimistic about his team's chances as he once was. He looks at the new scoring system, which awards points for places one through eight instead of the previous one through 12, as detrimental to his team's chances.

Nick Mancui, winner of the 1984 10,000 meters, returns as does Dave Knezovich, the runner-up in the shot put.

Occidental's strength lies mainly in the field events. Doug Porter (javelin, 210-9; national recordholder in the pole vault, 16-2), Kevin Branch (high jump, 6-9½), Tom Sperling (triple jump, 49-2½), defending long jump champion Vance Mueller (23-10½) and Chris Beard (hammer, 159-5) lead the Tigers. Porter also is the two-time defending decathlon champion and has a 6,866-point high this season.

The defending national champion in the shot put, Tom Newberry, is Wisconsin-LaCrosse's top contender (shot put, 59-11½; discus, 172-4).

Texas A&M may challenge California teams in softball

Three California schools — Cal State Fullerton, UCLA and Cal Poly-Pomona — and Texas A&M are the front-runners as play begins May 16-17 in the 1985 Division I Women's Softball Championship.

Eight regionals (two teams in each) will be conducted May 16-17 at on-campus sites, and the eight survivors will advance to the fourth annual Division I championship May 22-26 in Omaha, Nebraska. The eight-team finals will be a double-elimination tournament.

Seven conference winners will receive automatic qualification to the tournament, and the remaining teams will be selected at large.

UCLA (33-4) has won two of the first three NCAA championships, but the Bruins will have plenty of competition in 1985 — mostly from West Coast rivals.

Pitchers Debbie Doom and Tracy Compton still are causing opponents fits, but the Bruins' bats have become silent, due in part to the loss of Tricia Mang, who left school midway through the season. Doom is 16-2 with an 0.26 earned-run average, and Compton also is 16-2 with a 0.06 (one earned run) ERA. Outfielder Mary Ricks (.275) and first baseman Gina Holmstrom (.276) are the leading hitters.

Cal State Fullerton, 47-8 and ranked No. 1 in the latest poll, leads the Western Collegiate Athletic Association and may be the team to beat this year. Prior to a May 10-11 series with UCLA, Fullerton was leading the WCAA with a 10-0 mark, followed by the Bruins and Arizona State at 9-1.

Pitchers Debbie Mygind (24-3, 0.25 ERA) and Susan LeFebvre (20-5, 0.43) are the main reasons that Fullerton is ranked No. 1. Hitting leaders are Joanne Ferrerei (.327), a third baseman, and outfielder Terri Oberg (.322).

"The No. 1 ranking doesn't mean a lot right now," said Fullerton assistant coach Kathy Van Wyk, a former all-America pitcher. "I think we've played better this year because of our consistency. We've been up and down in other years. For the most part, we've done what we had to in tight games; and because the teams are so evenly matched on the West Coast, any break can mean the difference in a game."

Texas A&M (42-8), the 1983 NCAA champion, may have something to say about California's domination of the sport. Pitching again is strong, and the Aggies have received superb performances from three regulars — outfielder Josie Carter (.390), third baseman Cindy Cooper (.341) and shortstop Liz Mizeri, who has hit 16 home runs and batted .383.

Another bonus this year for the Aggies has been the improved performance of Yvette Lopez (15-4, 0.68 ERA) to complement Shawn Andaya (19-3, 0.38, 230 strikeouts in 162 innings).

"This team is much stronger offensively than those of past years," said Texas A&M coach Bob Brock. "We came within one run of winning the title last year, and our team is anxious to get another chance. I think we have an excellent shot of winning the title."

Cal Poly-Pomona (45-14) hopes

Rhonda Wheatley's arm can carry it to the national title. Wheatley has been a one-person pitching staff for coach Carol Spanks, compiling a 41-12 record and an 0.23 earned-run average. First baseman Kandi Burke (.333, 11 home runs, 36 runs batted in) leads the team in most offensive categories.

Besides the WCAA race among UCLA, Cal State Fullerton and Arizona State, other automatic-qualifying conferences and contenders are the Big Eight Conference (Nebraska, 33-8, and Kansas, 37-16); Atlantic 10 Conference (Penn State, 34-14); Big Ten Conference (Northwestern 31-10-1; Indiana, 45-14-1, and Michigan, 13-5 in conference); High Country Athletic Conference (Utah, 38-9; Utah State, 28-15, and New Mexico); Mid-American Athletic Conference (Toledo, 40-19), and Northern Pacific Athletic Conference (Fresno State, 48-11).

Other teams under play-off consideration are South Carolina (34-10-3), Pacific (40-21) and Adelphi.

all eight of the Commission-sponsored proposals.

The letter also asks the chief executive officers to consider several factors contributing to the importance of the special Convention. Following is the text of the letter in that regard:

1. Presidential leadership in intercollegiate athletics. For a decade, the NCAA has attempted to develop appropriate and meaningful forums for presidential involvement in NCAA deliberations and actions. We believe that effort, slow as it may have been, has reached fruition, as reflected by this chronology:

a. Beginning in the mid-1970s, chief executive officers began to attend NCAA Conventions in large numbers; in 1977, they began serving regularly on the NCAA Council and division steering committees.

b. In 1980 and at the annual NCAA Convention in January 1981, presidents and chancellors became involved in the NCAA legislative process in greater numbers than ever before, specifically as it related to proposals for the NCAA to provide services and programs for women's athletics.

c. Current and former university presidents dominated the work of the Select Committee on Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education, an independent commission established by the NCAA in April 1982. It submitted its report regarding solutions to problems in athletics in October 1983.

d. Meanwhile, at the January 1983 NCAA Convention, the efforts of presidents, marshaled largely by the American Council on Education, resulted in the adoption of new academic standards (so-called "Rule 48") for initial eligibility in NCAA Division I.

e. In 1983 and at the annual NCAA Convention in January 1984, presidents and chancellors were involved in record numbers in determining that the NCAA Presidents Commission should be established.

2. The Commission's view of its current initiatives. The Commission has surveyed all chief executive officers in the NCAA membership and is sponsoring eight legislative proposals at this special Convention. All eight of those proposals relate directly to substantial majority findings in the survey, which represented the most complete and definitive expression ever of presidential opinions regarding intercollegiate athletics.

We want to emphasize that these proposals and this special Convention are considered by the Commission to be a beginning — a first step toward dealing with the abuses in college athletics. The eight proposals that the Commission is offering are important, and we believe that they should be adopted as they are presented. If experience shows that adjustments need to be made in them, then they can be amended quite easily in a future Convention. The important goal is to get them adopted and put in place now. We believe presidents should not permit those who would choose to attack these proposals to "nit-pick" them to defeat.

Legitimate questions about the application of the proposals can be resolved if application displays a need for future clarification and adjustment.

3. The importance of the special Convention. We understand that this is viewed by many observers as one of the most important NCAA Conventions in history. From the standpoint of meaningful presidential involvement, there can be no doubt of that importance. The Presidents Commission believes that the nation's presidents and chancellors must make it known clearly that chief executive officers will determine the direction and major policies of college athletics, and that we will not condone failure to comply with those policies. The time to establish that postulate, we believe, is at the special Convention in June.

is well-balanced in singles and doubles. Led by Michael Kures (22-1) and Jeff Klaparda (14-7) in interchanging roles at the No. 1 position, the Bruins are 26-3. The losses have been to Southern Methodist, Southern Cal and Stanford.

Southern Cal (31-3) is led by Ted Witsken (19-8), the No. 4-ranked player in the nation. In doubles, Witsken and Jorge Lozano (14-1) are ranked No. 1 nationally.

Stanford (22-3) is paced by Dan Goldie (28-6), a junior from McLean, Virginia, who is No. 1 in the nation. Jim Grabb (31-4) is ranked No. 3 and Derrick Rostagno (15-8) is No. 10. The No. 3-ranked doubles team of Grabb and John Letts is 19-3.

Pepperdine's Carlos DiLaura region. Stephanie Lightvoet (22-10) of Northwestern and Reka Monoki (31-7) of Indiana are team leaders.

In the Central region, Oklahoma State (31-6), Brigham Young (22-10) and Kansas (14-6) are highest rated. Oklahoma State's Mary Boudreaux (32-13) and Brigham Young's Lesley Hakala (20-13) are standouts.

The Southwest region's representative probably will be either Trinity (Texas), led by No. 3-ranked Gretchen Rush (25-4), or Texas, paced by No. 1-ranked Beverly Bowes (33-8). Trinity's doubles team of Rush and Lisa Sassano (22-4) is ranked No. 2.

The Division I subcommittee will select 64 singles players and 32 doubles teams for the individual championships, which begin May 21. Other probable participants include Maria Lindstrom, Northeast Louisiana; Mary Dineen, Rollins; Wendy Wood, Rice, and Tamaka Takagi, Kentucky.

(16-12) and Dani Leal (23-8) rotate between No. 1 and No. 2 for the Waves, who are 29-5. DiLaura and doubles partner Kelly Jones are ranked No. 4 nationally with a 20-4 record.

Other strong teams in the West are California (22-8), ranked No. 13, and No. 25 UC Irvine (25-11).

Southern Methodist (27-2) is the front-runner in a strong Region 6, led by Richey Reneberg (21-4) and John Ross (17-10). Texas (26-5), Arkansas (22-7) and Texas A&M (21-9) are other possible contenders. The Longhorns' standout is Royce Deppe (31-9), a sophomore from Durban, South Africa. Deppe and Charles Beckman (25-8) are the nation's eighth-ranked doubles team. Texas A&M's top singles player is Grant Connell, ranked seventh.

In Region 3, Georgia leads the balloting with a 31-1 record. Its sole loss is to Pepperdine, 5-4. Mikael Pernfors, ranked second nationally, leads the Bulldogs with a 57-3 record. He was the 1984 NCAA individual champion. No. 2 player George Bezecky is 52-7 and the Allen Miller-Pernfors doubles team is ranked No. 2 in the nation with a 32-5 record.

Louisiana State (16-7), Northeast Louisiana (24-3) and Miami (Florida) are other Region 3 teams with championships potential.

Region 2 features Clemson (23-11), No. 9 in the country, and South Carolina (23-5), No. 14. Region 1 probably will be represented by Harvard (18-6), while Region 4 standouts are Michigan, Minnesota, Indiana, and Illinois.

The Region 5 invitation probably will go to Oklahoma State (21-6), led by Kirk Loomis and Peter Mallett in the No. 1 doubles position. They are 23-10 and ranked No. 14 nationally.

Brigham Young (24-4) leads Region 7. Rob Fought (31-6) is the top player for the Cougars.

pionships opportunities.

The Executive Committee discussed the possibility of providing set amounts of funding to Divisions II and III to be used to conduct their championships and voted to approve the concept of block-grant amounts for Division III championships. A recommendation was made to request the staff to develop projections concerning the effect on Division III under this approach. The findings will be presented to the Administrative Committee.

Also reviewed was a recommendation by the NCAA Council to delay the effective date by one year of NCAA Convention Proposal No. 119, which would amend Bylaw 3-5 and require member institutions to conduct intercollegiate contests under official Association rules in all sports for which the NCAA develops rules.

Currently, with the exception of football and men's basketball, only NCAA championships are required to be conducted under Association rules. The delay in the effective date to August 1, 1986, would not affect football or men's and women's basketball.

The Executive Committee approved a proposal requiring NCAA committees to submit cost estimates for any proposal when expenditures to the Association or a member institution would be $500 or more.

On a recommendation from the Men's and Women's Golf Committees, the Executive Committee approved the NCAA-Japan golf competition with a suggestion that corporate sponsorship or other underwriting of expenses be secured.

The committee also approved a recommendation that the Division I Women's Volleyball Committee be allowed to continue seeding four teams nationally, the exclusion of television rights fees from a host institution's percentage of net receipts, the retention of common-site championships for Division II men's and women's basketball, and the revision of Executive Regulation 5-5(e) concerning the forfeiture of contests.

A complete list of Executive Committee actions will appear in the May 15 issue of The NCAA News.

Johns Hopkins

"As coaches, the staff realized we would have to do more preseason conditioning than we had ever done before, but that fitness has kept us in some tight ball games this season."

Consistent improvement also has been noted, and the Tar Heels may be peaking at just the right time. "I thought we played as well as we could against Virginia," he said.

"Earlier in the year, I had told people that in spite of our success, we still had our best lacrosse ahead of us. I think that has been shown recently. This group is finally starting to mature defensively. Our scoring has been balanced, and we have played a lot of people. We actually have fewer members on our roster than in previous years, but I really believe we have more true players than some teams I have coached."

Senior leadership has been missing at Virginia, although it has not been missed as much as some observers expected. "This is the youngest team we've had since I've been here," said head coach Jim Adams. "We lost 13 or 14 seniors to graduation, and we have used quite a few young players in key positions." The result, however, was an Athletic Coast Conference co-championship with North Carolina and Maryland.

"I guess as a coach, for me, the key was patience," Adams said. "Without the veterans or star players you might expect, we had to emphasize team play. The only way this squad was going to be successful was by team effort."

"We were counting on Roddy Marino and Jeff Nicklas to anchor our attack, and they have. Of course, the play of Chase Monroe, a freshman, has solidified our front line and has been very important."

"On defense, another freshman, Robert Schupler, earned a starting spot and has had a good season," Adams explained. "So, we have been fortunate to have been able to thrust freshmen into key spots on both ends of the field and have them come through for us."

ACC co-champion Maryland is in the thick of the fight for a play-off spot, as is Army. The Terrapins and the Cadets both are capable of going a long way in the tournament, as evidenced by Maryland's share of its league's crown and Army's trip to overtime with Syracuse.

Brown, Penn, Cornell and Yale are four possibilities from what might be the best league in the division — the Ivy. Long Island-C.W. Post also could get in, as could Adelphi, Loyola (Maryland) and Rutgers.

"This season has proven that there are any number of teams that can beat anybody else," said North Carolina's Scroggs.

Smaller basketball has negligible effect on women's scoring

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

The new smaller, livelier women's basketball had no effect on overall shooting accuracy in the final national statistical trends for Division I women, compiled after the 1985 season.

The consensus of players, coaches and observers is that ball-handling and passing skills were helped, outside-shooting range was improved, but closer shots tended to bounce or rim out more often because the new ball is livelier — and those two factors cancelled each other, so that shooting figures virtually were the same for the past two seasons.

Actually, the 1985 figures showed an almost microscopic decline in field-goal accuracy from 44.01 percent in 1984 to 43.92, or 0.09. In percentage terms, that is two-tenths of one percent. Free-throw accuracy went down less than one percent, from 65.32 last year to 64.74 this season.

Scoring dropped about half of one percent, from 139.36 in 1984 to 138.62 this season. That figure is for both teams combined per game, covering 7,587 games involving at least one Division I women's team.

The new ball is about 3.4 percent smaller in circumference and about 9.5 percent lighter; that is, about one inch less than the previous 29½ to 30 inches and about two ounces less than the previous 20 to 22 ounces.

Still a controversy

There still is some disagreement over whether the new smaller ball is good for the game; but there seems little doubt that it is here to stay, now that the National Federation of State High School Associations, representing 46 state girls' programs, voted March 26 to phase in the smaller ball during the next four years.

Most spectators could not tell the new and old balls apart unless they had a close-up view. Players say it definitely is easier to handle, but some worry that it may be perceived as demeaning.

Marianne Stanley, coach of Old Dominion's national champions, says the new ball does not bounce as predictably off the rim and backboard and is harder to catch because players can make harder passes. "I see shooting percentages down and turnovers up," she told USA Today. "I am not convinced it is good for the game."

Proponents counter that players are trying to do more with the ball, leading naturally to more errors. Leon Barmore, Louisiana Tech coach, opposed the smaller ball before the season. Now he has changed his mind. "I was concerned about the credibility of the game," he said, "but it's as entertaining as anything I've seen. I don't think any fans sit there and say, 'they use a small ball' — that it's a sissy game."

Texas coach Jody Conradt counters: "There is no reason we have to qualify anything women do. . . . We were sold a bill of goods." Says Texas forward Cara Priddy: "It is suggesting we're not capable of handling the bigger ball — which isn't true."

Players favorable

Priddy, though, admitted she liked the spin off the backboard. And far more favorable comments than unfavorable have come from the players. "I like it because I can palm it easier," said Georgeann Wells, 6-7 West Virginia player, who is the first woman to dunk the ball in a college game, doing it twice in December. At the same time, she said she does not want to see dunks cheapened or become too commonplace.

"As a player, you notice the difference a lot," said Texas point guard Kamie Ethridge. "You can control the ball better," said Mississippi's Jennifer Gillom.

The most benefit has been for the smaller players. Southern California's 5-2 Rhonda Windham said:

"I'm small, so it fits me. At first, I had trouble handling it; but now, everyone loves it."

Nancy Lieberman, former Old Dominion star and now the highest-paid player in the women's professional league, which uses the small ball, sees nothing wrong with looking for shortcuts to make the game the men and women are not as far apart as some may think. In men's Division I, the 1985 field-goal accuracy figure nationally was 47.88 percent. That is only 3.96 points, or 9.02 percent, better than the 43.92 by the women. From another angle, the nation's Division I men did not reach the current women's figure until easier. "It's not a question of whether we're going to grow up to be 6-7 with a jump shot like Dominique Wilkins," she said. "The small ball is an added advantage to us right now. It is part of our evolution. When you put that ball in the hands of little kids, that's where you'll see the most improvement. They grow up to be big players."

The inevitable comparison

As for the inevitable comparison with the men's figures, remember that in terms of pure shooting skill, 1970. From a 29.3 percent start in 1948 (first year of official NCAA figures), it went to 43.8 in 1969 and 44.2 in 1970.

Men's scoring in 1985 averaged 138.3, or three-tenths of a point less than the women, doubtless because of the 30-second shot clock in women's games. Personal fouls averaged 39.3 for men and 38.1 for women in 1985. The women averaged 14.3 more field-goal shots attempted per game than the men, probably due to the 30-second clock.

There are few to several dunks in every men's game, but that doesn't inflate the percentage because the number of blocked shots largely evens it out.

Southeastern, Big Eight lead women

The Southeastern Conference, the national leader in winning percentage against outside Division I opponents (more about that later), boasts the best overall statistical ranking, with the Big Eight Conference second.

The SEC leads in scoring margin (8.78) and field-goal percentage margin (4.29), is second in scoring and field-goal accuracy and fourth in free-throw accuracy. The Big Eight is a triple leader — scoring (75.85), field-goal shooting (47.21) and free-throwing (68.34).

But the Big Eight is fourth in scoring margin and seventh in field-goal margin, where the SEC ranks 1-1. Defensively, the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference leads in field-goal percentage defense (40.68) and the ECAC Seaboard Conference leads in scoring defense (61.03). However, each has lower or nearly equal figures on offense than on defense, as have eight of the 10 conferences in those two top fives. That would indicate their figures are low mainly because they play each other. The exceptions are the Pacific Coast Athletic Association in field-goal defense and the Atlantic 10 in scoring defense. Each had higher figures on offense than on defense. Here are the leaders:

Scoring offense	Avg.
Big Eight	75.85
Southeastern	75.08
Metro	74.44
Atlantic Coast	72.68
Atlantic 10	72.50

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

JOHN MCCARTHY, who also served as men's basketball coach, resigned at North Carolina Wesleyan to become athletics director of the Norfolk Naval Base in Norfolk, Virginia.

COACHES

Baseball — DENNIS MC MANUS selected as acting head coach at Plymouth State, succeeding JOHN BAGONZI, who resigned.

Men's basketball — TERRY HOLLAND received a 10-year contract at Virginia. Holland has been Virginia's coach for 11 years, during which time his teams have compiled a 231-111 record and have made five NCAA tournament appearances. . . JOHN KUESTER appointed at George Washington. Kuester had a 31-28 record in two seasons at Boston U. . . WILLIS REED resigned at Creighton, effective immediately. Reed had a 52-65 record in four seasons. . . DENNIS GALLAGHER named at Vassar, replacing SAM ADAMS, who was released. Gallagher served as an assistant at Manhattanville for the past four years.

Men's basketball assistants — KEN SMITH appointed at Washington. Smith served as an assistant at Montana State for the past two years. . . BOB THATE selected at UC Irvine, replacing MICHAEL SCARANO, who resigned. Thate has served as an assistant at Loyola Marymount, New Mexico and Pepperdine. . . DAVID HOBBS, an assistant at Virginia Commonwealth for the past six seasons, named at Alabama.

Women's basketball — SHARON DAWELEY appointed at Tufts, where she served the past season on a part-time, interim basis. . . FRANK W. SCHNEIDER, whose teams won 20 or more games in three of his six seasons at Louisiana College, selected at Southeastern Louisiana. . . JERRY McLAUGHLIN named at Siena, succeeding JOE HOGAN, who retired after compiling a 115-55 record in five years. McLaughlin formerly served as an assistant at Temple.

Football — GEORGE WELSH received a 10-year contract at Virginia, where he has compiled a 16-16-2 record in three years. . . HAROLD CROCKER appointed at Iona. A graduate of Central Connecticut State, Crocker served for the past seven years as head coach at New Rochelle (New York) High School, where he had a 42-21-2 record.

Football assistant — CRAIG FOUHY, who served as Montana's assistant offensive line coach in 1982, has rejoined the staff as running backs coach.

Men's ice hockey — TOM BIRMINGHAM, St. Anselm coach for the past six years, resigned.

Men's soccer — RONALD W. McEACHEN selected at Vermont, succeeding Paul Reinhardt. McEachen had a 66-31-9 record at Middlebury in nine years.

Men's and women's swimming — SAM FREAS, president of the College Swimming Coaches of America, Inc., named at Louisiana State. Freas compiled a 58-8 dual-meet record in seven years at Arkansas and coached teams that broke nine American and four world marks. . . BOB GOLDBERG, head diving coach at Penn State, resigned to become director of physical education and assistant professor of physical education at North Carolina State, effective July 1.

Women's swimming BOB GILLET, T.

Jeff Hurd named interim associate commissioner of Missouri Valley Conference

John Kuester appointed head men's basketball coach at George Washington

Arizona State coach for the past four years, released.

Women's volleyball — MICHAEL SAPIENZA appointed at Western Illinois, where he has served as an assistant for the past three years.

STAFF

Strength coach — MARK PAULSEN selected at Long Beach State. Paulsen had served as assistant strength and conditioning coach at South Carolina.

Business manager — PETER L. FIELDS named at Kent State, where he recently served a six-month internship in the business office.

Recruiting coordinator — DICK BAIRD appointed at Washington, where he served as a graduate assistant football coach.

CONFERENCES

KENNETH G. GERMANN, Southern Conference commissioner for the past 11 years, resigned, effective June 1986. Germann, the conference's third commissioner, will begin a one-year term as president of the Collegiate Commissioners Association this June. . . JIM DAVES appointed communications director for the Midwestern City Conference, effective July 1. Daves had been an assistant in the Notre Dame sports information department. . . JEFF HURD, Missouri Valley Conference director of public relations, appointed interim associate commissioner.

NOTABLES

STEVE MILLER, Kansas State track and field coach, selected as head coach of the U.S. team that will compete against West Germany this summer. . . BRUCE FOSSUM, Michigan State's men's golf coach for the past 20 years, elected to the Golf Coaches Association of America's Coaches Hall of Fame. He will be inducted at a May 20 banquet in Grenelefe, Florida, site of the 88th annual NCAA Division I Men's Golf Championships.

DEATHS

ALBERT H. "ALBIE" REISZ, a basketball and football standout at Southeastern Louisiana, died May 1. He was 67. Reisz was the first person enshrined in Southeastern Louisiana's Athletics Hall of Fame. . . FRANK GLIEBER, a National Football League broadcaster for CBS for 22 years and one of the network's top golf and basketball announcers, died May 1. He was 51. . . THOMAS SCHULZE, a former basketball player on Iowa's 1969-70 Big Ten Conference championship team, was found shot to death in his home May 1. He was 36. . . EDWARD M. HAYDON, University of Chicago cross country and track coach, died May 3. He was 73. Haydon was elected to the U. S. Track and Field Hall of Fame in 1975, and he was a coach for the 1968 and 1972 U.S. Olympic teams. He also coached the 1963 and 1979 Pan Am Games teams.

CORRECTION

Due to an editor's error, the May 1 issue of the News incorrectly referred to football teams of Drake University, Indiana State University, Southern Illinois University and West Texas State University as members of Division II. These teams compete in Division I-AA.

Sun Belt led final four

From one angle, the Sun Belt Conference led the country because it had two teams in the final four — champion Old Dominion and Western Kentucky, which tied for third. The SEC, however, had four NCAA entrants with a combined 8-4 record (to 8-1 for the Sun Belt), led the country in won-lost percentage against outside Division I opponents and faced the No. 1 schedule in won-lost terms.

Actually, the SEC trailed the Atlantic Coast Conference by a scant three points at the end of the regular season. In postseason play, however, the SEC was 13-5, as Georgia was the national runner-up, Mississippi went to the regional finals, and the league finished first and second in the eight-team Women's National Invitation Tournament. The ACC, meanwhile, won once in four postseason games. The combined ACC nonconference schedule ranked 11th, the Sun Belt schedule ninth. The Big Ten's was second. Here is how all 30 women's Division I conferences ranked against outside Division I opponents:

Conference	Won	Lost	Pct.	Oppon. Rank
Southeastern	132	44	.750	1
Atlantic Coast	66	24	.733	11
Atlantic 10	106	49	.684	7

As the table shows, only seven conferences had a winning record against top-10 opposition — the SEC, Atlantic 10, Western Collegiate, Sun Belt, Big Ten, Big Eight and Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference. The other three conferences that played top-10 opposition finished under .500 — the Southland Conference (with Northeast Louisiana in the final four), Big East Conference and Southwestern Athletic Conference.

Coaches can report updates on heptathlon and decathlon

Coaches who wish to enter heptathletes or decathletes in the 1985 NCAA Division III Men's and Women's Outdoor Track Championships should be aware of the following procedures recently approved by the Division III track and field subcommittee:

1. Qualifying standards may be met only with the use of the new International Amateur Athletics Federation scoring tables. The old scoring tables may not be used, regardless of when the athlete competed during the 1985 season.

2. Qualifying marks set with fully automatic timing (FAT) or those converted to FAT will be accepted. Manual times shall be rounded to the nearest tenth of a second, then .24 of a second added and the new IAAF table used. Qualifying standards are 6,300 points for the decathlon and 4,100 points for the heptathlon. Earlier published manual qualifying standards should be ignored.

3. All coaches who have submitted entries in the decathlon or heptathlon can call to update performances between 9 and 11 a.m. Central time, Friday, May 17. Coaches with heptathlon entries can call Nancy Schoen at 715/346-3378. Coaches will be contacted between noon and 2 p.m. the same day and will be advised if their athletes have been accepted in the field.

The subcommittee stresses the importance of updating performances in these events. Updated performances will be used to fill fields in both events if fewer than 12 athletes meet the qualifying standard.

Declaration for heptathletes and decathletes will be from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday, May 19, at Denison University, site of the championships. Coaches must make declarations in person. Proof of performance will be required.

Slingshot "87"

and the ADDED MEASURE PADDING

From the inventor of the first single standard goal post comes slingshot "87" complete with one piece uprights that meet the NCAA requirements of 1987 with additional safety features. 3 models: Pro-College "20" and High School "20".

National introduces "added measure" padding "78" and "84" designed for safety at a price to suit your budget. Added measure padding increases the scope of safety at a decreased cost.

universities, it would seem that we should not divide our interests between the two sports. With bowl games not being completed until January 1, we would not have to divide the interests of the news media during the month of December, and both sports could be promoted properly.

6. This is not a big reason, but coaches as well as players could enjoy the fall activities if their practices were delayed, say, until November 15.

I may not live long enough to see this happen. But, I'd surely have a better feeling about Christmas if we could change the basketball season.

Vote for independence

Four major independent schools — the University of Notre Dame, DePaul University, Marquette University and the University of Dayton — will remain independent of any basketball conference for at least two more years.

"We exchanged a lot of ideas, and we're going to continue the round robin for two more years," DePaul athletics director Edward J. Manetta said after the directors met at Notre Dame.

Arizona cuts sports budget, cites loss of NCAA's TV pact

Blaming the Universities of Georgia and Oklahoma for reduced college football television revenues, University of Arizona athletics director Cedric W. Dempsey announced cuts May 1 in nearly all his school's athletics programs, aimed at avoiding a $1.5 million deficit.

Dempsey pointed a finger at lowered television revenues in general and the result of litigation by Georgia and Oklahoma in particular, saying, "Their action is the most devastating action ever taken in intercollegiate athletics."

Administrators of the Universities of Georgia and Oklahoma successfully challenged the NCAA's authority to act as sole bargaining agent for universities in negotiating television contracts.

Dempsey said that as a result of their lawsuit, "I know of no institution that generated as many dollars as before the Supreme Court decision."

He told reporters, "What we are seeing here is what we are seeing across the country. And much of that can be attributed to that selfish action."

Arizona, which will be about $450,000 in the red June 30, the end of the current fiscal year, will reduce by 20 percent the budgets of all programs except football and men's basketball and will lay off five athletics staff members; eliminate its women's synchronized swim team; cut 28 scholarships, and slash operating, travel and administrative budgets by $355,000 in each of the next two years, Dempsey said.

He said that without taking such action, the budget shortfall would grow to $1.2 million by June 30, 1986, and could reach $1.5 million by 1987.

"The instability of football and basketball television monies has dramatically affected our present and future budgets," Dempsey said.

Dempsey said every Pacific-10 Conference school except Arizona State University, which drew near-capacity football crowds, faces some financial problems in its athletics programs, and added, "I think you're going to see a reduction in the number of sports required."

Pac-10 has plan

Pacific-10 Conference basketball coaches want their players to meet with an FBI agent or "other qualified person" before the start of practice next fall to discuss the implications of drugs and gambling and the links between the two, it was reported by The Associated Press.

The coaches have asked the conference administrative committee to make it mandatory for each team to schedule such a meeting, according to Pac-10 Commissioner Thomas C. Hansen.

The conference office is compiling a list of qualified individuals, including FBI agents, the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner reported. Such a move

Pay for athletes

The president of Memphis State University says he sees nothing wrong with paying college athletes a modest salary, say $25 to $50 a month.

"I played football under scholarship many, many years ago. They Carpenter said the NCAA needs to revise its rules governing special privileges for college athletes, and then enforce them.

"A number of their policies are unenforceable; and anytime a policy is unenforceable, it is suspect," he said. "They need to review it, and they need to have stronger penalties."

Carpenter said a coach who consistently breaks league rules should gave us $10 a month that they called laundry money. With inflation, that would be equivalent to $50 today," Thomas G. Carpenter said in a newspaper interview.

Carpenter said the payments would help reduce the temptation for student-athletes to take money or special favors from school boosters, which is prohibited under NCAA rules.

"If you don't have anything, the temptation is enormous," he said. "You have players who don't have anything, and the unfairness is apparent. The NCAA has set up a situation that is untenable."

not be allowed to work at any NCAA school.

He said a college also should be allowed to give an athlete some extra financial help in case of emergencies.

"Suppose a young fellow is here and is 200 to 300 miles from home and his mother has a heart attack. It is illegal for us to give him a plane ticket," he said.

Testing planned

Student-athletes at San Diego State University soon will face mandatory urine tests to reveal drug and alcohol abuse.

Athletics director Mary Alice Hill said the program is designed not to punish drug abusers but "to give them the help they need early in their athletics careers."

Hill said the school's 600 athletes will take a series of urine tests later this spring or in the fall to find out if they are substance abusers.

Students discovered to have an addiction will undergo counseling; and if drugs or alcohol are discovered in their urine after three retests, they could be suspended from participating in intercollegiate athletics, she said.

Tulane withdraws

Tulane University withdrew from the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference May 2, bowing to the wishes of a league that didn't want a member without a basketball program.

Tulane President Eamon Kelly canceled Tulane's basketball program in the wake of allegations of point shaving and NCAA violations. He said he would ask the Metro to waive its rule requiring members to play men's basketball.

The joint committee of the Metro Conference voted 7-0 to ask Tulane to drop out, rather than fight expulsion at the league meetings next month.

"We are dismayed by the vote but will honor the wishes of the membership and withdraw," Kelly said in announcing the resignation effective July 1.

Championships Corner

Qualifying standards for the women's mile relay event for the NCAA Division II Women's Outdoor Track Championships were printed incorrectly in the championships handbook, according to the Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee's Division II subcommittee.

The correct qualifying time in the women's Division II mile relay should be 3:50.80 for fully automatic time and 3:50.5 for manual time.
