Women's officials will meet during NACDA convention

A national meeting of women's athletics administrators will be held June 8-9 in Las Vegas in conjunction with the annual convention of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

The meeting, entitled "Women's Athletics: Traditions and Transitions," will consist of topics including "How to Succeed in Athletics," which will focus on the management styles and strategies of administrators, and "Hurdles, Goodbyes and Hurrahs," in which panelists will share experiences that have influenced their careers.

Sunday's session, entitled "Something for Everyone," will consist of presentations of championships issues, legislative review and proposals (including the June special NCAA Convention), and a review of the NCAA structure, followed by an open forum.

Moderators are Judith M. Sweet, director of athletics, University of California, San Diego, and Kathleen M. Wear, assistant director of athletics, La Salle University.

The national meeting is being conducted by NACDA in conjunction with the NCAA Special Committee on Women's Interests. Sweet said the

Faculty representatives seek continuation of national forum

An executive committee of faculty athletics representatives will meet during the June special NCAA Convention in New Orleans to continue efforts toward organizing a national forum for faculty athletics representatives at NCAA member institutions.

The committee, headed by William D. Bradford, M.D., faculty athletics representative at Duke University, also will set an agenda for the next national meeting of faculty representatives, scheduled during the 1986 NCAA Convention in New Orleans.

Bradford cited the critical role that faculty athletics representatives will play in any effort to strengthen rules enforcement and raise academic standards. He said he expects the faculty representatives forum to be closely attuned to the work of the Presidents Commission.

Other officers in the organization are John A. Hogan, Colorado School of Mines, vice-president, and Francis W. Bonner, Furman University, secretary.

Bradford said he expects the meeting at next year's Convention to attract 200 to 250 faculty representatives.

About 175 attended the initial meeting at the 1985 Convention in Nashville, where the executive committee was named with Bradford as president to continue efforts toward establishing a permanent forum for faculty representatives.

Bradford believes that a yearly forum also might serve well for integration of new faculty representatives each year, who could benefit from the guidance of more experienced representatives.

In developing an agenda for the 1986 meeting, Bradford hopes to arrange for a chief executive officer from a member institution to speak to the group and for an in-depth discussion of institutional integrity. He said that nothing specific had been planned, however.

"The faculty athletics representative has to work both sides of the street in his or her contacts with the CEO and the athletics department," Bradford said, "and it would serve the best interests of all parties to have representatives who are fully informed on all key issues in intercollegiate athletics." Bradford noted that faculty athletics representatives are the only constituent group in the NCAA without some type of national organization.

Following the January meeting, Bradford said, "The faculty reps feel they need more information about rules and regulations of the NCAA."

Committee plans additional guidelines for starting drug-education programs

Athletics administrators at NCAA member institutions soon will have access to a more specific set of guidelines for implementing drug-education programs at their respective institutions.

The NCAA Drug Education Committee is developing an expanded version of earlier recommendations that will contain more specific suggestions for starting drug-abuse programs, according to Carl S. Blyth, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, committee chair.

In making the announcement, the committee also issued a statement to member institutions about recent increases in the use of certain categories of drugs among student-athletes. The complete statement follows:

"The NCAA Drug Education Committee wishes to emphasize to NCAA member institutions its concern regarding indications of increasing use of certain categories of drugs by student-athletes. While recently completed research tends to confirm that the proportion of student-athletes using most categories of drugs, such as alcohol, marijuana or cocaine, is not any greater and in many cases may be less than nonathletes, such levels still are not acceptable.

"In addition, there are indications from several credible sources that in recent years there have been increasing levels of usage by student-athletes of certain drugs such as smokeless tobacco and anabolic steroids. The committee notes the growing volume of research literature indicating the harmful long-term effects on the health of individuals utilizing these drugs and reminds student-athletes, coaches and administrators that, in the case of anabolic steroids, use of such drugs in an attempt to enhance athletic performance is unacceptable in that it is contrary to the ethics and purpose of sport and constitutes a form of cheating in competition. Use of such drugs by student-athletes or athletics department staff should not be tolerated at any member institution.

"Athletics administrators at NCAA member institutions again are requested to review the recommendations regarding implementation of drug-education programs for student-athletes and staff that were developed previously by this committee.

"The NCAA Drug Education Committee has just completed a new edition of a drug-education booklet and is in the process of expanding the recommendations regarding drug-education programs to include more

Self-study, academic reporting kick off Convention proposals

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles explaining the legislation to be considered at the special NCAA Convention June 20-21 in New Orleans.)

Proposals calling for all NCAA member institutions to conduct periodic self-studies of their athletics programs and for Division I members to comply with a required academic-reporting program will be the first two pieces of legislation voted upon by delegates to the Association's fifth special Convention next month.

Both were developed by the NCAA Presidents Commission and now are cosponsored by the NCAA Council. Both will be voted upon by roll call.

As is the case with all eight proposals offered by the Presidents Commission, the self-study and academic-reporting amendments reflect substantial majority opinions of chief executive officers participating in the survey recently conducted for the Commission by the American Institutes for Research.

The concept of periodic institutional self-studies was the most popular survey option for addressing integrity problems, with 89 percent favoring such a program. Only three percent did not favor it; the remaining nine percent were unsure. The responses differed little by division: 87 percent favored it in Division I, 92 percent in Division II and 88 percent in Division III.

Requiring an academic-reporting program was favored in all divisions and subdivisions but overwhelmingly so by Division I-A institutions. Responding in favor were 80 percent in I-A (only nine percent not in favor) and 73 percent in all of Division I.

Proposal No. 1 before the special Convention would amend Constitution 4-2, requiring a two-thirds majority vote by all delegates present and voting. It would require each NCAA member institution, as a condition and obligation of membership, to conduct a self-study of its athletics programs at least once every five years.

The NCAA Council would be responsible for prescribing the format and content of the self-study. The NCAA Administrative Committee has authorized initial negotiations with the American Institutes for

Classroom is toughest place for transition game

Philadelphia Daily News

Marty Eggleston said the toughest part of his ordeal has been learning to deal with the stares and accompanying whispers.

"That really troubles me," Eggleston said softly the other day. "I'll be walking down a hallway or something, and I'll notice people looking at me out of the corner of their eyes, talking about me. Only they don't know I can hear them. And they'll say things like, 'He's not going to 'Nova after all. I guess he must not be too bright.'"

"And that's when I start thinking about all the people I've hurt, all the ones I've let down. If this had affected me and nobody else, maybe the pain wouldn't be so bad. I don't know. But people have to realize I have feelings too. Before jumping on my case, they should at least try to understand."

Last November, the powerfully built 6-11 center from Coatesville High School became the first area recruit in a decade to sign a national letter of intent to play basketball at Villanova. But now, five months later, Marty's worst fears have become reality. Since he will be unable to project the necessary 2.000 grade-point average to accept an NCAA Division I grant-in-aid, it is doubtful that his plans, which remain very much in the air, will include the Wildcat program.

"When I signed, I knew it would be tough, but I really thought I could do it," Eggleston said. "I found out that it's hard to make the transition from being a nothing [in the classroom] to a something. It's hitting me real hard, but it's definitely nobody's fault but my own. I'm just trying to keep everything in the right perspective, but it's like someone socked me right between the eyes."

"I've talked with Coach Mass [Rollie Massimino], and he seemed obviously upset. Hey, he has every right to be. He's going to sit down with me and discuss other alternatives. I'm going to try and work it out."

Those options include Division II and Division III programs, NAIA schools, or going to junior college for a year or two in hopes of getting his grades high enough to qualify for a Division I grant. It also has been speculated that Eggleston might enroll at Villanova as a freshman walk-on and try to eventually earn that scholarship the hard way. But coach Ross Kershey has been a very busy man of late.

"It's like we've started the recruiting process all over again," he said. "And it's been hectic. It's a tragedy, but it's important now that they try to pick up the pieces, see what happens and get on with their lives. Honestly, Division II ball is full of Division I players who just didn't have the grades for this reason or that. The big thing for them to remember is that while it may be very disappointing, all is not lost."

"Neither is doing badly [in school] at the moment, but it's almost impossible for them to overcome the legacy of what happened back in ninth and 10th grades. To pull up to where they needed to be, they had to get all As and Bs instead of just Cs and Ds. Being average wasn't enough."

"When your priorities undergo a change like that, it's a definite jolt. Now, there's no choice involved. Wherever they end up, they'll at least know from day one exactly what work needs to be done."

It's an advantage that Eggleston, an articulate, sensitive athlete, didn't have when entering high school.

"Back then I was just 'Big Marty,'" Eggleston recalled. "I mean, I was 6-5 in ninth grade, an oddity, so it didn't take long for me to become more or less a center of attention. It follows that my concentration wasn't where it should have been most of the time."

"I wasn't thinking about the future. How was I to know that I'd have a chance to be part of an NCAA championship program? I never thought like that. And by the time I did, it was almost too late. Reality had taken over. And believe me, catch-up is a hard game to play."

But far from impossible.

"I can only look upon this as a learning experience," Eggleston said. "I only hope it helps make me a better person, that I can grow from it. Who knows? If I'd just managed to slip by (with a 2.000), then maybe I would've tried to get away with the same thing at 'Nova and wound up paying for it later."

"If anything, this should give me more incentive to do things the right way in college. It's been a painful lesson, though."

Columnary Craft

without some type of financial aid, that seems to be a remote possibility.

"The problem is [tuition] money," Eggleston said. "My family's income bracket is sort of in the middle, so we're not eligible for any help; yet, the expense is beyond our means. I suppose that's what they mean when they say life's not fair sometimes."

Sadly, Eggleston's teammate, 6-4 swingman Jody McMillan, who signed last November with Providence, finds himself in the same predicament. So instead of enjoying his recent retirement, former Red Raider

Wires dangling, rats prowling in world of fun and games

By Kevin Horrigan

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

In a previous life, before the Journalism Fairy came along and turned the occupant of this corner of belles-lettres into a sportswriter, I once had the occasion to talk to a minor politician who had invested his hard-won graft in a piece of real property, to wit, a four-flat.

There were, I recall, some serious questions about how the place had passed code. Bare wires dangled from ceilings. The plumbing didn't work. Staircases were missing steps.

Small children played in the delightful company of large rats.

The politician-slumlord had a ready explanation, once he was found. "I was going to fix the place up," he said, "when it got really bad."

What goes 'round, comes 'round. Now in this life, I read that the NCAA is getting ready for a special convention in June to deal with questions of integrity in college sports. Bare wires are dangling from the ceilings in the fun and games world and large rats are prowling everywhere. The NCAA has waited until things got really bad and now proposes to fix things up.

It is the stated hope of the NCAA's Presidents Commission that the June special Convention will pass eight recommendations aimed at putting the horse back before the cart. Among the proposals are stiff budget monitoring, including annual outside audits of athletics department budgets; yearly reports of how student-athletes are doing in school, and new distinctions for major and minor violations of NCAA rules.

One proposed new punishment is to kick offending schools right out of the NCAA for a year or two, which may be a bit extreme. Another is to impose punishment on individual coaches and make the sanctions follow them when they change jobs, which seems only fair.

Assuming that the Convention is well attended, and further assuming that the proposals are adopted and enforced, the New Orleans meeting could go a long way to rehabbing the slum that so much of college sports has become. The Tulane scandal will offer a handy reference point.

They had it all at Tulane — indictments of basketball players for point-shaving, eager-beaver boosters providing cash for the coach to hand out to players, Mickey Mouse courses for players, a star player admitted to school even though he apparently came close to goose-egging his Scholastic Aptitude Test.

With the exception of the point-shaving, and with adjustments in the amounts of cash and other inducements handed to athletes, you can find this kind of stuff at all too many NCAA schools. You and I can be blamed for this, because we watch and cheer Ol' Siwash regardless of whether they're on the straight and narrow or not. But that's not our concern, is it?

The coaches and athletics directors can be blamed, because it couldn't happen without their help, or at least their acquiescence. But they get fired if they don't win, and choosing between cheating and eating isn't much of a choice. The boosters and the eager alumni can be blamed, because they demand a "quality program," by which they mean a winning program. But some of them have gotten used to cheating in other forms of endeavor.

That leaves the blame on the door of the college presidents, which is probably where it belongs — the buck stops here and all that. As a group, though, they have been content to let dry rot set in. There are a couple of reasons for that, and both of them have to do with money.

Basketball and especially football generate too much money for a college president to ignore — money, and the finding thereof, is what a college president's job is all about. The money, from gate and broadcast sources, becomes a self-perpetuating need.

The other major source of money is alumni and boosters. Many alums who support college sports also support other programs; a president antagonizes them only at his own peril.

This chronic shortage of money is one reason why the Presidents Committee didn't endorse one of the most sensible proposals for dealing with scandals — paying college athletes a living allowance. A kid who can't hold a job because of NCAA rules still needs some pocket money. He'll get it from one source or another, and the NCAA would be well-advised he gets it from legal sources. But the presidents, who can't pay their faculties the salaries they deserve, don't even want to think about paying athletes.

They'd better start thinking about it. When a university hires an ex-FBI agent, as Memphis State just did, to snoop around its own athletes, it's a sign that matters have reached a critical stage indeed. Nothing less than the reputation of American higher education is at stake.

Letter to the Editor

Editor's Note: The following letter was written in response to a letter by Dick DeVenzo — publisher of Student-Athlete$, a newsletter that is distributed nationwide to major college basketball and football players — who criticized NCAA rules as being unjust and advocated paying student-athletes.

Dear Sir:

As one who's been in athletics for 41 years, of which 28 years were as a coach, and now in my 21st year as an athletics director (at three major institutions — Baylor University, Florida State University and the University of New Mexico), I don't believe that you really take into consideration all aspects of college athletics in your desire to see that athletes should get a larger part of the revenue generated by the revenue-producing sports. In the 10 years I was athletics director at Baylor, from 1959 through 1968, basketball never came close to breaking even financially. The same was true in my seven years as athletics director at Florida State University.

Florida State, as you may recall, went to the NCAA basketball tournament in 1971-72 and played UCLA in the finals. In two other years, 1978-79 and 1979-80, Florida State participated in the NCAA tournament. In none of these years did Florida State break even financially as far as its basketball program was concerned. At the University of New Mexico, our program ranks in the top five in the nation in terms of revenue generated in basketball. However, we have a total of 24 sports, including men's and women's. The only other sport with any opportunity at all to produce revenue is football.

There are 22 sports that produce no substantive revenue. While we've made money every year in basketball, our overall athletics budget has been at a deficit for four of the five years that I've been athletics director here.

I would like you to give thought to the following questions:

1. Should the university programs that lose money in basketball provide the same benefits and pay for basketball players as those university programs that make a profit?

2. Should athletes who may be exceptional in such nonrevenue sports as swimming, soccer, track and field, tennis, and golf receive the same benefits as a basketball player in a program that produces substantive revenue?

3. Do you advocate benefits to players based on the amount of money a team may produce?

4. If the above is true, would you continue to classify college basketball as an amateur sport if financial benefits to players are based strictly on revenue produced by the team that particular year?

5. Would you recommend the same benefits for a player who is recruited and offered financial aid but whose ability never enables him to get beyond a third-stringer?

6. Do you attach any value to the fact that a student-athlete receives an opportunity to prepare himself for his future with a college education?

7. Is there any value to the fact that American college athletes receive the best coaching in the world?

Bowl may move

The site of the Bluebonnet Bowl, played in the Houston Astrodome since 1968, may be changed to Rice University.

Jack Busiek, president of the Greater Houston Bowl Association, said the bowl's directors have voted to move to Rice Stadium.

Busiek said there is a strong possibility that the 1985 game will be played at Rice.

8. Is there any value for the very few who have superior ability for the opportunity to develop their talents to the degree that they may be compensated as professional athletes after finishing college?

9. Do you attach any value or significance to the opportunities a student-athlete has in his experience of participating in athletics at a high level, the travel, the people he has an opportunity to meet, the camaraderie of association with his teammates and being part of the team, and the valuable lessons and lifetime values he can receive from his participation in athletics?

Less than 10 percent of colleges and universities in the nation make a significant profit. If you take away state funds and university funds that are given to an athletics program, less than 40 percent make a profit of any kind. Yes, there are big dollars involved; but there are big expenses too, when you try to provide opportunities for many sports rather than just the ones that have an opportunity to produce revenue.

You quote Dale Brown, who has one of the programs that probably produce more revenue than expenses. You mention coaches making $250,000 a year. How many coaches do you think make $250,000 a year in college?

The coaches you quote are all in the upper five percent of the nation's colleges and universities in Division I athletics in revenue-producing, such as Johnny Majors, Hayden Fry and Dale Brown. For every school like Tennessee, Iowa and LSU, there are 15 to 20 others that are struggling to keep the program alive. When you advocate paying large sums of money to the athletes, you're really advocating professional athletics in the colleges and universities in the nation.

Needs of students can dictate sports funding, Toner claims

The increasing amount of money being channeled into collegiate athletics programs is a barometer of interest patterns rather than an indication of skewed educational priorities, former NCAA President John L. Toner says.

Speaking on the topic "Ethics in Sports" at a sports-medicine conference at the University of Connecticut, Toner said most college athletics programs respond to the needs of students.

"It is arguable that the millions of dollars that intercollegiate sports require might be questioned," Toner conceded.

But Toner added that a particular institution's philosophy regarding athletics and education should be the determining factor as to whether large budgets can be justified. He used as an example a comparatively large athletics program of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Toner said MIT's philosophy of encouraging as many students as possible to become involved in athletics and placing little value on winning or losing is dictated by students.

Toner, the athletics director at Connecticut, noted that many colleges and universities dropped football from their athletics programs during the 1950s because of a lack of interest, only to revive the sport when its popularity boomed in the '60s.

"If mass participation is the bottom line, then I think spending large amounts can be favorably argued," said Toner.

But Toner also said a favorable argument could be made by "limited-participation institutions," such as those in Midwestern states that have no major professional franchises.

Without mentioning specific universities, Toner said the demand for large-scale sports programs at such schools can go beyond student demand to filling a need for an entire state, the Associated Press reported.

Summary of Executive Committee actions

Following is a listing of all actions taken by the NCAA Executive Committee at its May 6-7 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Financial

The Executive Committee took the following actions on financial affairs and related matters:

Appointed the following to the National Collegiate Realty Corporation: Wilford S. Bailey, Auburn University, president (ex officio); Connie Claussen, University of Nebraska, Omaha, vice-president; Robert F. Riedel, Geneseo State University College, vice-president; Walter Byers, NCAA, secretary (ex officio); Louis J. Spry, NCAA, treasurer (ex officio).

Approved a proposal requiring NCAA committees to submit cost estimates for any proposal when expenditures to the Association or a member institution would be $500 or more.

Championships

Division I Women's Basketball: The Executive Committee approved a request to expand the Division I Women's Basketball Championship field from 32 to 40 teams. The original request sought to expand the field to 48 teams, but the Executive Committee felt that expansion was warranted only to 40 teams at this point. The increase becomes effective with the 1986 championship.

Division II Women's Basketball: The Executive Committee approved a recommendation to continue common-site championships for Division II men's and women's basketball.

Division III Football: The Executive Committee approved the expansion of the Division III Football Championship bracket from eight to 16 teams, with no transportation guarantee for first-round games, on a trial basis in 1985. A survey of Division III CEOs will be conducted at the conclusion of the trial period. Expenses incurred by first-round participants would be defrayed by distributing the gross receipts from each game to the team as follows: (1) Game expenses, including championship awards, would be paid first; (2) transportation expense for the visiting team would then be paid. If funds are available after providing the above-mentioned expenses, the remaining receipts would be distributed to the other teams as follows: (1) Unpaid transportation expenses for visiting teams in other first-round games; (2) remaining receipts will be included in the championship's total gross receipts.

Phenix Municipal Stadium in Phenix City, Alabama, was approved as the site for the 1985-1987 Division III Football Championships, to be conducted the second Saturday in December with a 16-team bracket. The Phenix City Jaycees will serve as sponsoring agency.

The Executive Committee approved a joint recommendation by the Divisions II and III Football Committees to fine institutions that fail to submit a financial report for a play-off contest within 60 days following conclusion of the competition. The fine may be up to 10 percent of the gross net receipts. Due to extenuating circumstances, an institution may receive an extension of the 60-day deadline if such a request is submitted to either the Division II or Division III Football Committee prior to the 60-day limit.

The Executive Committee also approved joint recommendations for up to 11 additional sideline passes to be provided for support personnel such as team physicians, trainers, equipment managers, etc., in addition to the 57 participant passes provided to competing teams.

Prospective host institutions for Divisions II and III play-off contests will be required to guarantee 75 percent of the projected net revenue on the proposed budget submitted prior to the competition.

Men's and Women's Golf: Continuation of the NCAA Japan golf competition was approved. The 1985 international exchange will be conducted in Tokyo during the fall, on dates to be determined later. The Executive Committee suggested that corporate or other underwriting of expenses be secured.

Men's Gymnastics: The following were denied by the Executive Committee: (1) That the date of the championships be moved to the third weekend in April, beginning in 1987 (in years when Easter falls on the third weekend, it was recommended the championships be conducted on the fourth weekend); (2) that compulsory competition be returned to the championships format; (3) that a Division II or Division III institution be assured of one individual representative in each event at the championships.

The following were approved: (1) That the NCAA Council sponsor legislation at the 1986 Convention permitting, within the limitations of the current division representation requirement, the selection of one committee member from each of the four men's gymnastics regions, with the other two committee positions for at-large representatives; (2) that the selection of teams be based on average score (highest five scores with minimum three away meets). Teams with averages within .50 points of a qualifying team may challenge the selection. If a challenge is lodged, the committee will review the challenge based on head-to-head competition, late-season performance and the strength of schedule of the teams; (3) that, beginning in 1987, institutions wishing to serve as hosts for the National Collegiate Men's Gymnastics Championships guarantee 75 percent of the projected revenues listed on the proposed budget.

A recommendation that the chair of the Men's Gymnastics Committee be allowed to make an in-person presentation before the Executive Committee to defend the number of participants in the championships was referred to the Championships Standards Committee for review.

Women's Gymnastics: Qualification for the Division II championships will continue to be based on four regular-season meet scores rather than five (with at least one home and one away meet counting).

The Executive Committee denied a recommendation that three scientific technical collaborators be assigned to the Division I Women's Gymnastics Championships to record the difficulty and risk components of each routine in order to ensure that the appropriate values are awarded by the scoring judges.

Men's Soccer: The Executive Committee voted to permit an exception to the policy on officials' transportation to allow reimbursement of air transportation expenses for officials assigned to the Divisions I, II and III championship games when qualified officials are not available at the site. Officials assigned to earlier rounds of competition would be reimbursed for mileage via ground transportation only, unless it could be demonstrated that air transportation was cheaper. The Executive Committee also approved a recommendation that host institutions for Division I play-off games be required to guarantee 75 percent of their estimated net receipts on proposed budgets.

A regional-alignment approval moved the state of Kentucky from the South Atlantic to the Great Lakes region.

The 1985 Division III championship final will be played December 7 or 8 to avoid playing during Thanksgiving weekend. A change in alignment was approved for four institutions in Pennsylvania. Moving from Pennsylvania-New Jersey to the South region are Carnegie-Mellon University, Grove City College, and Washington and Jefferson College. Moving from Pennsylvania-New Jersey to the Great Lakes region is Allegheny College.

The Executive Committee approved the concept of moving the date of the soccer committee's annual meeting from mid-December to early February for the 1986 meeting. The committee chair will be allowed to attend the Division I championship game, which has been the customary meeting time and place. The Men's Soccer Committee was given approval to form a six-man rules subcommittee to meet one day prior to the annual meeting.

The Executive Committee denied the following: using head-to-head competition as a major championship selection criterion; increasing the Division I championship field from 23 to 24 teams, and expanding the Division III championship field from 24 to 28 teams.

Women's Soccer: The third-place game at the National Collegiate Women's Soccer Championship was eliminated.

The Executive Committee denied increasing the bracket for the 1985 championship from 14 to 16 teams.

Men's Swimming and Diving: The Division I championships dates will be the first Thursday through Saturday in April, effective with the 1986 championship. The dates previously had been the last Thursday through Saturday in March.

The Executive Committee also approved continuing "filling the field" in all divisions following a one-year experiment and approved the qualifying standards for the 1986 championships recommended by the Men's Swimming and Diving Committee for Divisions I and III. The Executive Committee directed the Men's Swimming and Diving Committee to move to a 1:16 ratio in Division I for 1987 and a 1:9 ratio for 1986 in Division II. If that ratio cannot be created, a specific number of participants will be mandated for 1987 and a 1:16 ratio for Division III for 1986.

Women's Swimming and Diving: The Executive Committee approved the Natatorium, Indianapolis, Indiana, as the site for the 1987 Division I championships, with Indiana University as the host institution.

Qualifying standards were approved for the 1986 Divisions I and III championships. The Executive Committee directed the Women's Swimming and Diving Committee to move to a 1:16 ratio in Division I for 1987 and a 1:9 ratio for 1986 in Division II. If that ratio cannot be created, a specific number of participants will be mandated for 1987 and a 1:16 ratio for Division III for 1986.

Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving: Justus Aquatic Center, Orlando, Florida, was approved as the site for the 1986 Division II championships, with Rollins College serving as the host institution for the March 12-15 event.

The Executive Committee approved air transportation when necessary for two of the five officials assigned to the championships.

The following were approved as Division I diving zone sites for 1986: Zone A (Districts 1 & 2) — Pennsylvania State University; Zone B (District 3) — Clemson University; Zone C (District 4) — Ohio State University; Zone D (Districts 5 & 6) — Southern Illinois University, Carbondale; Zone E (Districts 7 & 8) — University of New Mexico.

Division III Men's Track and Field: The following regional sites were approved for 1985 qualifying meets scheduled November 16: New England — Southeastern Massachusetts University; New York — State University of New York, Stony Brook; Midwest — Allentown College of St. Francis de Sales; South/Southeast — Emory University; Great Lakes — College of Wooster; Midwest — Augustana College (Illinois); Central — Wartburg College; West — California State College, Stanislaus.

The 1985 NCAA Division III Men's and Women's Cross Country Championships will be conducted November 23 at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia.

The Executive Committee denied expanding the maximum field sizes for the NCAA Division III Men's and Women's Indoor Track Championships to 138 women and 158 men.

Division I Women's Volleyball: The three officials for the final match of the national championship will be permitted to fly to the site if necessary. The Executive Committee granted permission to fly officials from the closest geographical region if officials cannot be secured from the local area for preliminary rounds of competition.

The following officials' fee increases were approved: first referee — $75 for the first rounds and regionals, $100 for the semifinal and third-place matches, $125 for the championship; second referee — $50 for the first rounds and regionals, $60 for the semifinal and third-place matches, $75 for the championship; line judges — $15 for the first rounds and regionals, $35 for the semifinal, third-place and championship matches; alternate officials — $35 for all rounds.

The following 13 conferences were granted automatic qualification for the 1985 championship: Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic 10 Conference, Big East Conference, Big Eight Conference, Big Ten Conference, Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference, High Country Athletic Conference, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, Mid-American Athletic Conference, Northern Pacific Athletic Conference, Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Southeastern Conference and Southwest Athletic Conference.

The University of the Pacific will serve as the host institution for the 1986 National Collegiate Division I Women's Volleyball Championship December 19 and 21.

The Executive Committee approved a recommendation that the Division I Women's Volleyball Committee be allowed to continue seeding four teams nationally for 1985 only.

Division II Women's Volleyball: Approved automatic qualification for the Continental Divide Conference for the 1985 championship.

Denied seeding two teams nationally in the championship bracket.

Division III Women's Volleyball: Approved conducting the 1985 championship on the campus of one of the four participating teams December 13-14, rather than at a predetermined site.

Approved a recommendation that institutions serving as hosts for first-round, second-round and finals competition be required to guarantee the championships a minimum of 75 percent of the total estimated receipts.

Denied a recommendation to pay officials at the 1985 championships $45 for the first round, $50 for the second round and $60 for the finals.

Approved a request that to be considered for automatic qualification, each institution must compete in no fewer than six contests against conference opponents, with the understanding that the current qualification criteria would be waived if competition is conducted in a more stringent manner than in the listed criteria.

Approved automatic qualification for the following conferences for the 1985 Division III Women's Volleyball Championship: Chicago Metro Women's Conference, Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference, Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Ohio Athletic Conference, Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and State University of New York Athletic Conference.

Convention

The Executive Committee approved the following Convention dates and sites: 1986 — Hilton Riverside and Towers, New Orleans, Louisiana, January 13-15; 1987 — Town and Country Hotel, San Diego, California, January 7-9.

The Executive Committee approved the projected 1986 Convention schedule.

Executive Regulations

The Executive Committee approved the revision of Executive Regulation 5-5-(e), effective immediately.

The regulation reads "(e) There is no forfeit of a contest until the referee or other appropriate contest official has assumed jurisdiction of the contest in accordance with the applicable playing rules. When a team does not appear (e.g., due to weather conditions, accidents or breakdown of vehicles, illness or catastrophic causes), a forfeit is not recorded. An institution shall not, for statistical purposes, declare a forfeit for nonfulfillment of a contract. Such instances shall be considered as 'no contest'."

Miscellaneous

The Executive Committee recommended that the NCAA Council sponsor legislation to discontinue the indoor track championships beginning with the 1987-88 season and to disallow counting indoor track and outdoor track as separate sports. Indoor and outdoor track would be considered one sport. The Executive Committee will review the proposal and future funding of the championships at its August meeting.

The Executive Committee approved that, effective with the 1985-86 academic year, television rights fees for all rounds of NCAA competition be excluded from the host institutions' share of the net receipts. One exception to this policy would be the College World Series, which splits on an even basis both expenses and receipts with the city of Omaha's Sporting Board.

Legislative Assistance

1985 Column No. 20

Permissible transportation expenses

As championships are being conducted for various spring sports, member institutions are reminded of the NCAA Council's interpretation appearing in the Interpretations column of The NCAA News, January 30, 1985, concerning permissible transportation expenses for championship events. In this regard, please note that a member institution that enters a team or individual in an NCAA championship event during one of the vacation periods listed on the institution's official calendar or after the institution's regular academic year may provide the following transportation expenses for a student-athlete to attend the event: (1) from the student-athlete's home or the campus directly to the site of the event or the event practice site, and (2) from the event site to the campus following the event.

If a student-athlete arranges his or her own transportation from the event or otherwise decides not to travel back to the campus with the team, an institution may provide to the student-athlete the cash equivalent of the transportation costs described in (2), provided that the amount does not exceed the actual costs of the transportation the institution planned to provide if the student had returned with the team and the student leaves the event site within 48 hours after the conclusion of the event. In this regard, the NCAA Council determined that an institution is permitted to provide the student-athlete with the costs set forth in the preceding sentence and to allow the student to make his or her own travel arrangements without accounting to the institution for the difference between the actual costs (if equal to or less than the institution had planned to spend) of that travel and the amount the institution had planned to spend.

Further, the institution may pay the transportation costs for the student directly from a site other than the student's home or the institution's campus to the event or the event practice site, provided the student receives only the actual costs of the transportation and that amount does not exceed the greater of the costs of transportation from the student-athlete's home or the institution's campus to the event practice site; finally, the student who receives such costs shall travel directly to the event or event practice site and shall not arrive more than 48 hours prior to the time the institution's team is scheduled to assemble at that site.

Football and basketball volunteer coaches

The membership's adoption of Convention Proposal No. 73, which amends Bylaw 7-1-(c)-(1) and is effective August 1, 1985, will permit a volunteer coach in the sports of football and basketball in Division I to receive expenses directly related to his or her coaching duties (limited to training-table meals, transportation to and from room and board at away games, and a maximum of four complimentary tickets). No other compensation or remuneration of any sort from the institution's department of athletics is permitted, and the volunteer coach is not permitted to recruit or scout off campus.

The Facts...

DRUG ABUSE is one of American society's most compelling problems. Whether on the job, on the playing field or in the classroom, its effects and consequences can create serious and oft times hazardous situations.

While there is no easy solution to this problem, drug screening programs are proving effective in many ways: productivity is improving; absenteeism is being reduced; safety and security are enhanced, and the programs themselves are serving as deterrents.

Once the decision has been made to establish a drug screening program, careful consideration should be given to the selection of the laboratory which will perform the testing. While some clinical laboratories offer limited drug screening as a part of their testing capabilities, at The American Institute for Drug Detection, the Facts speak for themselves:

Fact: A laboratory dedicated solely to testing for drugs of abuse and steroids

Fact: A professional staff committed to providing results of the highest quality, accuracy and precision

Fact: State-of-the-Art instrumentation and quality control

Fact: Strict confidentiality and documented chain of specimen custody

Fact: Immediate confirmation of positive findings by Gas Chromatography/Mass Spectrometry

Fact: Unparalleled responsiveness with most testing completed within 72 hours of receipt in the laboratory (priority testing services are available)

Fact: Test regimens individually designed to meet your most specific service requirements

UC San Diego knocks off Davidson for Division III net championship

UC San Diego scored an 8-1 victory over defending champion Davidson for the 1985 NCAA Division III Women's Tennis Championships team title at Haverford College. It was the Tritons' first title, after losing to Davidson, 15-14, in the 1984 flighted-format tournament.

In individual singles competition, No. 1 seed Courtney Allen of Principia successfully defended her title with a 6-4, 6-1 victory over No. 2 seed Kristen Carter of Occidental. In doubles, Allen and partner Suzy Verheul (No. 1 seed) lost in the finals to No. 2 seed Jessica Vernon and Nadine Akimoto of UC San Diego, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

The Tritons whipped first round opponent Trenton State, 5-1. However, UC San Diego got a scare in the semifinals, just edging Principia, 5-4. Principia had no trouble disposing of Franklin and Marshall, 7-2, for third place.

Allen's toughest competition en route to her singles championship came from two Tritons — No. 2 player Glenna Moses and No. 1 Vernon. Moses played the Principia sophomore to a 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 score in the first round, while Vernon came close in the semifinals, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1. In the second round, Allen easily defeated Karen Ruehl of Colorado College, 6-1, 6-0.

Vernon and Akimoto had a rocky road to the top doubles spot. After an easy first-round match over Wendy Kaufman and Kathy Crowley of Trenton State, 6-4, 6-3, competition went down to the wire in the quarterfinals. The San Diego pair edged Beth Blachut and Linda Topolsky of Kalamazoo, 6-1, 2-6, 7-6 (7-3); and then in the semifinals, they slipped by teammates Lisa Gilbert and Moses, 6-4, 0-6, 6-1.

Championships Previews

Two of a kind would be unbeatable pair for Razorbacks' track team

Arkansas, winner of the Division I Men's Indoor Track Championships team title the past two years, is the favorite for outdoor team honors May 27-June 1 at the University of Texas, Austin.

In the meet's 63-year history, Arkansas never has finished higher than third, although four Razorbacks have won individual championships.

Led by Mike Conley in the jumps, the Razorbacks' depth is expected to be unapproachable. Iowa State, Washington State, and Oregon, last year's champion, have a shot at the title if the Razorbacks falter.

Conley, a double champion at the NCAA indoor championships and The Athletics Congress indoor meet, should double again. The 6-1 senior has 1985 outdoor bests of 26-7 in the long jump and 56-4½ in the triple jump. Other Razorback long jumpers who have qualified are Mike Davis (26-5) and Joey Wells (25-9½).

Freshman sprinter Roddie Haley, named most outstanding athlete at the Penn Relays for performances in the 400-meter, 800-meter and distance-medley relays, will lead the Razorbacks in the 400-meter dash. His best this season is 45.47.

Other top Arkansas performers are Wallace Spearmon in the 100 meters (10.31) and 200 meters (20.40), Fred Cleary in the 110-meter high hurdles (13.72), David Swain in the 5,000 meters (13:54.43), Bill Jasinski in the high jump (7-5), Mark Klee in the pole vault (17-5), and Marty Kobza in the shot put (63-1½) and discus (196-9).

Paul Donovan, with a best of 3:44.40 in the 1,500 and 1:49.74 in the 800, is expected to qualify. He won the NCAA 1,500 meters in 3:43.38.

Arkansas also should score with its 400 (39.00) and 800 relay teams.

Iowa State, predicted to finish high in the championships, features three Olympians: Danny Harris, silver medalist in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles; Sunday Uti, bronze medalist on the Nigerian 1,600-meter Olympic relay team, and Moses Kiyai, a Kenyan long jumper.

However, Uti pulled a hamstring recently and is questionable. In addition, Cyclones' high jumper Brian Tietjens, 1985 indoor champion, broke bones in both his feet early this season. He went several weeks without practice and is just now competing.

"We'll be lucky to have 10 people to qualify," said Iowa State coach Bill Bergan. "We're counting on a lot fewer guys to score our points."

"I believe Arkansas and Washington State are very definitely head and shoulders above everyone else."

Harris' 48.69 is one of the fastest times in the world this year in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles. Kiyai has a 26-11 long-jump mark this season, while Uti has run a 44.6 leg on the 1,600-meter relay.

Other Cyclone standouts include Yobes Ondicki in the 10,000 meters (28:40.71), Leroy Dixon in the 400 meters (45.96) and Raf Wyns in the 5,000 meters (13:47.02).

Washington State also has had injuries. The main casualty was Julius Korir, 1984 Olympic gold medalist in the steeplechase. He incurred lower-leg and ankle injuries.

However, the Cougars still plan to score in the steeplechase. Richard Tuwei (8:31.61), Peter Koech (8:34.08) and Nathan Morris (8:36.79) are contenders.

In other events, Gabriel Tiacoh has a 45.5 in the 400 meters; Koech has a 13:24.3 in the 5,000, and Lee Gordon, runner-up in the 1984 championships in the 100 meters, has a 10.36.

The field events probably will be pivotal for the Cougars. Tore Gustafsson's 247-8 in the hammer makes him the No. 2 all-time collegian. In the javelin, four Cougars have qualified: Jan Johansson (272-0), Randy Mendenhall (262-1), Mark Babich (252-7) and James Miller (250-3). In the shot, Dimitrios Koutsoukis, third indoors, has a 65-10¼.

In addition to Oregon, top contenders are Brigham Young, Houston, Southern Methodist, Wisconsin, Baylor, Tennessee and Texas.

Numbers add up to success for Diplomats' 'Coach I'

Outdoor track and field is a numbers game for Franklin and Marshall coach Bill Iannicelli.

And the figures add up to success for the man who has been head coach since 1955. His involvement with the team began as a student-athlete in the mid-1940s.

The Diplomats recently completed a seventh straight undefeated regular season, stretching their winning streak to 78 meets under Iannicelli's direction.

"We have a lot of talent at this school; all schools do," said Iannicelli, who is known to his athletes as "Coach I." "The secret is numbers. If you get the kids to come out, particularly the ones with talent, they'll lead the way for the rest. You have a lot of kids who are average runners, but they come out and work hard and do a job."

Having the numbers on his side provides Iannicelli more than just a mathematical advantage.

"We have 17 events to fill. If you have a limited squad, you're going to give up a lot of points," he said. "In the last 10 years, we've been fortunate to get large numbers out. That's the secret."

Winner of the 1981 Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference championship, Iannicelli goes to great lengths to attract the kind of student-athlete who will fit into his track and cross country programs as well as the academic structure of Franklin and Marshall.

He contacts high school track coaches in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York seeking recommendations. Then, he contacts interested student-athletes by letter. Those responding, fill the team roster.

"You talk about academics first because that's why they're coming here," Iannicelli said. "We don't give scholarships. We are a Division III school."

Iannicelli has developed a system of recruiting and coaching that he obviously can count on.

Bruins set sights on third track title

With multitalented Jackie Joyner in form, UCLA is expected to win the 1985 NCAA Division I Women's Outdoor Track Championships May 27-June 1 at the University of Texas-Austin.

The Bruins captured the title in the first two years of the championships, 1982 and 1983, as Joyner scored points in the heptathlon, long jump, 100-meter hurdles and on both relay squads in 1983. She won the 1982 and 1983 heptathlon titles and took off the 1984 season to prepare for the Olympics.

This year, Joyner, the 1983 Broderick track and field award winner, has qualified for the heptathlon (6,275 points), 100-meter hurdles (13.19), 400-meter hurdles (57.27), high jump (6-0), long jump (22-11), triple jump (39-2¼) and as a possible member of both Bruin relay teams (400-meter relay, 44.13; 1,600-meter relay 3:37.04). It is undetermined which events she actually will participate in at the championships.

Other Bruin standouts include Angela Bailey and Gail Devers in the 100 (11.39, 11.19, respectively) and 200 meters (23.50, 23.40, respectively), Devers in the 100-meter hurdles (13.18), Polly Plumer in the 1,500 meters (4:19.05) and Tony Lutjens in the discus (180-1).

Oregon, the fourth-place finisher in 1984, could edge the Bruins, especially with strong performances by distance runners Claudette Groenendaal in the 800 meters (2:03.66) and 1,500 meters (4:14.80); Leann Warren in the 800 meters (2:04.38) and 1,500 meters (4:15.83) and Kathy Hayes in the 5,000 meters (15:23.03) and 10,000 meters (33:45.60). Brenda Bushnell also has qualified in the 3,000 meters (9:22.58).

In field events, Quenna Beasley in the shot put (52-4) and discus (180-1) and Sally Harmon in the javelin (182-5) leads the Ducks.

The 1984 national champion Florida State Lady Seminoles also look strong again with eight athletes having qualified. The Lady Seminoles took the 1985 NCAA indoor crown.

Florida State standouts are Michelle Finn, 100 meters (11.34) and 200 meters (22.9); Chris McKay, 400-meter hurdles (58.86); Nancy Rettie, 800 meters (2:08.33); Esmeralda Garcia, long jump (20-6½) and triple jump (41-7¼); Cheryl Coker, javelin (167-0); the 400-meter relay team (44.47), and 1,600-meter relay team (3:36.47).

Arizona is another contender, featuring what probably is the best field-event team in the nation. In the high jump, three individuals have made the qualifying-height — Katrena Johnson (6-2¼), Camille Harding (6-1) and Maryse Ewanje-Epee (6-4¼). Ewanje-Epee was fourth at the 1984 Olympic Games representing France, and she has been the French national champion three times. She also will be competing in the heptathlon at the 1985 championships (5,599 points).

Lorraine Costanzo (55-1½) and Carla Garrett (52-4½) have qualified in the shot put. Costanzo is the 1985 U.S. powerlifting champion and has set world records in the squat and deadlift. She was the runner-up in the shot put at the 1985 NCAA indoor championships.

Garrett also has qualified in the discus (174-11), and Martha Hart is the Wildcats' javelin representative (186-9).

Cal State Los Angeles, Tennessee, Texas Southern, Southern California, San Diego State and Houston are likely team-title contenders.

Division II baseball championship up for grabs

A new Division II baseball champion will be crowned in 1985 as defending titlist Cal State Northridge was eliminated in its conference tournament by Cal Poly-Pomona.

This year's 20-team tournament field, as selected by the NCAA Baseball Committee, is highlighted by three of the top four finishers from the 1984 championship.

The tournament format calls for a best-three-out-of-five series to be played in the South and West regions, while a double-elimination format will be used in the Midwest, Central, South Atlantic and Northeast regions. The six regional winners will advance to the Division II College World Series May 25-29 at Patterson Stadium at Troy State in Montgomery, Alabama.

Cal Poly-Pomona, winner of the 1983 championship, rebounded from an 8-18-1 start to put together a streak in which the Broncos won 23 of 29 games. However, all of the early 18 losses came against Division I teams. They enter the tournament with a 32-24 overall record this season and a 22-6 record in national-tournament action.

Coach John Scolinos, in his 24th year at Pomona, boasts top hitters in second baseman John Love (.403, 9 home runs, 37 runs batted in before the conference tournament), shortstop Tom Scaletta (.352) and first baseman Tom Weeks (.342, 7, 45). Mike Munoz (.13-6, 3.17 ERA before the conference tournament) heads the pitching staff.

Cal Poly-Pomona will be joined in the West region tournament by Cal State Sacramento (38-23).

Also qualifying for the 1985 event were 1984 top-five finishers Florida Southern (47-10), Troy State (40-13) and New Haven (23-4). Other teams returning from last year's tournament are Shippensburg (33-12), North Alabama (46-9-1), Lewis (43-22) and Sam Houston State (33-19).

For Cal State Northridge, it will be only the second time this decade the team has not been in the tournament field. New Haven has qualified a team for every Division II baseball tournament since 1976, while Florida Southern teams have not missed a tournament since 1969, compiling a .726 (.77-29) winning percentage.

Florida Southern, a five-time Division II champion, will open South region action against Florida Atlantic (42-12) in Lakeland, Florida.

Florida Southern coach Chuck Anderson watched the Moccasins score 624 runs against 1985 opposition, which managed just 251. The Moccasins set school records for hits, runs and runs batted in behind offensive leaders Mike Workman (.416, 8 home runs, 62 RBI), Bobby Green (.404, 12, 82) and Hector Villanueva (.399, 6, 41). Top pitchers are Dave McCorkle (15-0, 2.32 ERA) and Terry Gilmore (11-0, 2.59).

"I think schools from Florida and California are very close," Anderson said. "In championship play, it comes down to execution and pitching. We got outpitched in last year's championship. I think we have a better club this year; but we're in a tough region, facing a team that has beaten us twice this season."

Florida Atlantic defeated Florida Southern, 16-11 and 11-4. Leading the offense for the Owls are first baseman Chuck Douthit (.373, 9, 52), catcher-designated hitter Doug Goring (.357, 12, 69), outfielder Jeff Forney (.352, 46 stolen bases) and shortstop Chris Ebert (.352). John Thompson (9-1, 3.27 ERA) is Florida Atlantic's top pitcher.

The Northeast region plays at New Haven and matches Pace (28-6) and the host team and LIU-C.W. Post (28-9) against Le Moyne (24-10). New Haven compiled a .324 team batting average with a 2.91 team ERA. Top individuals are shortstop Wayne Rogalski (.422) and pitchers Mark Hatje (8-1, 1.95) and Brian Stone (7-1, 2.69).

In the Central region, to be played at Delta State, North Alabama and Troy State compiled two of the best records in the region and will meet in the tournament series. Grand Valley State (28-15) and Delta State (36-18-1) battle in the other first-round game.

North Alabama, led by outfielder Cedric Landrum (.413, 68 stolen bases), set a team record with 253 stolen bases. Troy State placed three players on the all-Gulf South Conference team, including first baseman Dave Banks (.351, 14, 56).

In the South Atlantic region, Valdosta State (42-18) takes on West Chester (22-23), while Shippensburg (33-12) plays East Stroudsburg (25-16). Games will be played at West Chester.

Midwest region games match Mankato State (27-18) against Lewis (43-22) and Sam Houston State against SIU-Edwardsville (33-13-1).

Cusano could be ticket to trip to title

When Miami (Florida) tees it up in the fourth annual NCAA Women's Golf Championships, Donna Cusano will be walking softly and carrying a big stick for the defending team champion.

Cusano, a second team all-America who finished in a six-way tie for 21st at last year's championships, sat out most of the fall season recovering from foot surgery and has struggled to regain her form. If the Lady Hurricanes are to become the first team to win back-to-back NCAA titles, they will need the depth a good showing by Cusano would help provide.

Michele Berteotti, who lost last year's championships individual title in a three-way play-off, has filled the gap in Miami's lineup left by the graduation of two-time all-America Penny Hammel. Berteotti has a 74-stroke average and has placed high in recent tournaments.

Freshman sensation Tracy Kerdyk has made a major contribution to Miami's success, as has Gina Hull, who finished 17th at last year's championships and shot a course-record 66 in a recent tournament. Transfer Jill Briles also has played solidly in the No. 5 spot, but Cusano is the key that could lock up another team title for Miami.

If Cusano and her teammates do not repeat as team champions at the May 22-25 championships at the New Seabury on Cape Code Golf Course in New Seabury, Massachusetts, either Florida, Tulsa, San Jose State or Arizona State could take the title.

Florida, the No. 1-ranked team in the latest NCAA computer rankings, and Tulsa both have veteran teams. Florida's Deb Richard, who tied for 13th at last year's championships, has had an outstanding spring season, while tournament-tested Jody Rosenthal leads Tulsa.

San Jose State probably will improve on last year's 17th-place finish. Dana Lofland and Libby Wilson, both of whom sport 74-stroke averages, have boosted San Jose State's chances.

Arizona State also has a one-two punch with Heather Farr and Danielle Ammacapane, who are capable of carrying the Sun Devils to a top-five finish. Farr placed fourth at last year's championships, while Ammacapane tied for 21st.

Other contenders for the individual title include Sherri Steinhaver, Texas; Kristi Arrington and Theresa Schreck, New Mexico; Laurette Maritz, U.S. International; Lisa Stanley and Page Dunlap, Florida; Kathleen McCarthy, Stanford; Kay Cockerill, UCLA; Martha Foyer, Southern Methodist, and defending individual champion Cindy Schreyer, Georgia.

Despite top billing, Houston remains cautious

Everyone agrees that defending champion Houston deserves its No. 1 ranking. Naturally, the Cougars are favored to win a 16th team title in 30 years under coach Dave Williams at the 88th annual NCAA Division I Men's Golf Championships.

The Cougars were a unanimous No. 1 selection in the latest Florida Golfweek coaches poll and have been top-ranked since the start of the fall season. But Williams is not making any rash predictions.

"It's gratifying to know the coaches think enough of us to rank us No. 1," Williams said. "But the fairways don't know we're No. 1. The greens don't know we're No. 1."

"We have a good chance of repeating, but winning a national championship is so hard. There's always some smart-aleck team in there that can win it. It's not like basketball, where you can throw a defense on them. We'll have to play our very best for four days to win."

If the Cougars play any better than they have, the rest of the field may as well mail in their scores. Houston won all five of the fall tournaments it entered, against most of the nation's top teams. The Cougars' most impressive fall victory was a 16-shot triumph over a top-notch field at the Grenelefe Golf Resort in Grenelefe, Florida, site of this year's May 22-25 championships.

Houston continued to turn in impressive performances this spring. At the Border Olympics, Houston waltzed to a 16-shot victory over runner-up Arkansas.

Steve Elkington, last year's championships runner-up; David Tentis, and Billy Ray Brown, the 1982 individual champion, compose the heart of Houston's team, and they have plenty of championships experience to their credit.

Brown can become the first two-time champion since 1977, and Houston can become the first team in 10 years to win back-to-back titles. The way Houston's season has progressed, neither feat would be a surprise.

Wake Forest was the last team to win consecutive team titles, and the Demon Deacons could turn out to be one of those "smart-aleck" teams Williams frets about. Wake Forest has good depth, as demonstrated at the Guilford Invitational, where four of five Demon Deacons finished in the top 10 en route to the team title. Wake Forest also has two contenders for the individual title, Chris Kite and Mark Thaxton.

UCLA, paced by Duffy Waldorf, also could vie for a top-five finish, along with Oklahoma State, North Carolina, Florida, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Brigham Young.

Contenders for individual honors include Scott Verplank, Oklahoma State; Mike Swartz, Arkansas; Todd Hamilton, Grant Waite and Jim Begwin, Oklahoma; Jorge Coghlan, Texas A&M; Bill McDonald, Georgia Tech; Davis Love and Jack Nicklaus II, North Carolina; Clark Burroughs, Ohio State; Sam Randolph, Southern California, and Scott Dunlap and David Jackson, Florida.

Cecil Coleman named Corbett Award winner

Cecil N. Coleman, former University of Illinois, Champaign, athletics director and Midwestern City Conference commissioner, has been selected as the 1985 James J. Corbett Award winner.

The award, sponsored annually by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA), is presented in memory of Corbett, NACDA's first president, and is given to an athletics administrator who typified Corbett's devotion to intercollegiate athletics.

Coleman will receive the award June 11 at an honors and awards luncheon held in conjunction with NACDA's 20th annual convention in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Coleman, NACDA president during 1972-73, currently serves as risk manager at Illinois, where he served as athletics director from 1972 to 1979. Coleman also has served as athletics director at California State University, Fresno, and Wichita State University.

As Midwestern City Conference commissioner, Coleman helped solidify the conference and earn the league automatic bids to the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball and Baseball Championships.

During his 34-year association with intercollegiate athletics, Coleman has served on numerous NCAA committees and currently is chair of NACDA's Finance and Management Committee.

Cecil N. Coleman

Coleman earned his undergraduate, graduate and doctoral degrees from Arizona State University. He was inducted into the NACDA Hall of Fame in 1983.

16-team play-off sought

The NCAA Division I-AA Football Committee has voted to resubmit to the Executive Committee its recommendation that the championship play-off field be expanded from 12 to 16 teams.

The Executive Committee denied the committee's expansion request last year.

Under the committee's proposed play-off plan, each team would play first-round games against a team from its region, although the committee would seed the top four teams. The top four seeds would draw first-round byes under the current 12-team format.

The committee, citing that first-round games generally are well-attended, contends that the additional income generated from larger crowds should offset travel costs. The 16-team play-off would not extend the championships competition. The elimination of the byes would erase a concern of the committee and the Division I-AA football coaches association.

Other recommendations the committee will submit for Executive Committee approval include:

- That institutions guarantee 75 percent of projected net receipts in projected budgets for first-round, quarterfinal and semifinal games.

- Realigning Northern Iowa University and Southwest Missouri State University from the West to the Central region and Southeastern Louisiana University, Northwestern State University (Louisiana) and Nicholls State University from the South to the West region.

- Assessing a $100 rights fee for use of any play-off film footage on coaches' shows. Rights fees for additional use of film footage would be negotiable.

- Blacking out play-off game telecasts within 120 miles of the site.

Postseason play studied by Big Ten

The Big Ten Conference again is looking into the possibility of launching a postseason basketball tournament after coaches voted in favor of the play-offs if the current 18-game league schedule is trimmed.

Conference spokesman Jeff Elliott said that it is at least the third time that a study of the tourney had been undertaken and that any decision on the matter would be made by the athletics directors of the schools.

The athletics directors plan to meet in Chicago in late July.

The Big Ten is one of the few major conferences that doesn't hold a postseason tournament to decide its automatic qualifier for the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship. The others are the Pacific-10 Conference and the Ivy League.

If the experiences of other conferences serve as a gauge, a postseason tournament should be a big money-maker for the Big Ten, in terms of both gate receipts and television revenue.

In April, Big Ten basketball coaches voted 8-1 to support a tournament if the conference schedule is cut to 14 games, Michigan State University coach Jud Heathcote recently told the Des Moines Register. The vote was 6-3 if the schedule is cut to 16 games, according to Heathcote.

"This is discussed among the coaches' group about every year," said Elliott. "It was an informal vote to look into the possibility of a tournament."

"This isn't the first year we looked into this. We've looked into it a couple of times and it was voted down. This is a fact-finding mission," Elliott said.

Heathcote didn't say who cast the dissenting vote against a tournament if there was a 14-game conference schedule. He said Indiana University, Bloomington, coach Bob Knight didn't take part in the voting.

University of Iowa athletics director Chalmers W. Elliott said he hasn't talked to Hawkeye coach George Raveling about a tournament, but added, "I'd just as soon stay with the 18-game conference schedule and not have a postseason tournament."

University of Illinois coach Lou Henson said he wouldn't be surprised if the Big Ten had a postseason tournament in 1987.

Watson resigns

Ronald E. Watson, an NCAA enforcement representative since January 1984, resigned from the staff effective May 12 to join the Tulane University athletics department.

Watson will serve as an administrative assistant to Tulane Director of Athletics Mack Brown.

Watson joined the NCAA staff after serving as the football program coordinator and an administrative assistant at Iowa State University.

Two rules changes are approved by Wrestling Committee

The NCAA Wrestling Committee, in its annual meeting April 29-May 2, revised technical-fall and choice-of-position rules and adopted championships recommendations to submit for Executive Committee consideration.

Under the committee's new provision for technical falls (Rule 2-6), the match will not be terminated until points are awarded. If a wrestler has a 13-point advantage and has his opponent in a near-fall, the match was declared a technical fall and all action was stopped.

The committee's change in the choice-of-position rule (4-5) conceivably would allow a wrestler never to start a period in the down position. Under the rule change, if no fall occurs in the first period, the wrestler with his choice of starting position may select the up, down or neutral position to start the second period, or he may defer his decision to the third period.

In another major rules change, the committee added a provision to Rule 4-9 (correction of error). The committee ruled that no talking or badgering of officials during the match by coaches or team members shall be allowed. Failure to abide by the rule shall be considered as questioning the official's judgment and penalized as in Rule 8-4-c.

Coaches may request one timeout for discussion with an official; however, the coaches will be assessed a verbal warning that will be recorded but not penalized.

The committee eliminated common-stalling tactics from Rule 6-8 and adopted provisions for edge-of-the-mat stalling. According to the new rule, when a wrestler(s) is/are near the edge of the mat, the official shall call out "edge," and the wrestler(s) must make an attempt to move back toward the middle of the mat or be called for an edge violation. Blocking movement to the center of the mat also is a violation. Edge violations are treated as stalling violations. If a takedown is in progress near the edge of the mat, action will be allowed to continue.

An additional section will be added to Rule 6-15 to cover incorrect starting-position provisions. A wrestler can be penalized for assuming an incorrect starting position if he does so to gain a distinct advantage over an opponent, repeatedly assumes an incorrect starting position for the referee's obvious disregard for the referee's instruction or rules. Other incorrect starting positions shall be corrected by the referee with verbal communication.

Other rules changes include:

- Moving Rules 7-1, 7-2 and 7-4 to Rule 6 and renaming it Infractions, Penalties and Warnings. Rule 7 now will contain only injuries and default provisions.

- Rule 8-1-h — Referees will be allowed to instruct wrestlers verbally. Referees previously could only verbally warn or penalize wrestlers.

- Rule 4-18 — Losers to quarterfinalists, rather than semifinalists, will be eligible for wrestle backs.

- Rule 4-11-i — Contestants who fail to wear their official school uniform will not be allowed to participate in the awards ceremony.

- Rule 6-6 — Chicken wings and bar arms were eliminated from potentially dangerous holds.

- Rule 1-1 — Six-minute matches

Former AD testifies before grand jury

Billy J. "Spook" Murphy, a former athletics director at Memphis State University, testified May 13 before a Federal grand jury looking into allegations of sports betting.

Murphy, a special assistant to Memphis State's president, refused to comment on his testimony or on why he was subpoenaed by the grand jury.

The jury began its investigation in March following FBI raids on suspected bookmakers in the Memphis area.

No gambling charges have been filed, and Murphy is the only Memphis State official called to testify before the jury.

Bcn Hale, a retired FBI agent hired to shield Memphis State athletes from gamblers and dope dealers, accompanied Murphy to the Federal courthouse.

An optional weigh-in from 7 to 7:30 a.m. on the Friday and Saturday of championships competition was approved, as was a recommendation that specific scales be used for weigh-ins.

116 summer basketball leagues approved

The NCAA Administrative Committee, acting for the Council, has approved 116 summer basketball leagues for 1985.

Under the provisions of NCAA Constitution 3-9-(b)-(1), a male or female student-athlete with intercollegiate basketball eligibility remaining may participate between June 15 and August 31 on a team in a basketball league approved by the NCAA Council.

Each student-athlete must obtain written permission from his or her institution's director of athletics (or the AD's official representative) to participate in an approved league. This written permission must specify the particular league in which the student-athlete is authorized to participate.

A student-athlete who fails to obtain proper written permission or participates in an unapproved league will jeopardize eligibility for intercollegiate basketball competition under Constitution 3-9-(b).

The student-athletes affected by this legislation are those with intercollegiate eligibility remaining in basketball who have been candidates for an NCAA institution's intercollegiate basketball team or who were recruited by a member institution in part for their basketball ability and subsequently enrolled at the institution.

Once this legislation becomes applicable to a student-athlete, it remains applicable until the individual's intercollegiate basketball eligibility is exhausted.

Any questions concerning the application process or the requirements for NCAA approval of summer basketball leagues should be referred to Jamie McCloskey, legislative assistant, NCAA national office.

Following is a list of all summer basketball leagues that have been approved to date (additional leagues will appear in future issues of The NCAA News as approval is received):

Tennessee State placed on probation for one-year period

Tennessee State University has been placed on probation for a one-year period by the NCAA Committee on Infractions for violations of NCAA eligibility rules occurring primarily in the university's intercollegiate football program.

The violations that were considered by the NCAA were discovered during an institutional audit conducted by the State University and Community College System of Tennessee.

As part of the NCAA penalty, the university will be required to return $80,052.80 to the NCAA from earnings received from participation in the 1981 and 1982 Division I-AA Football Championships. Also, the university's record of participation in those championship events shall be deleted, the team's place in the final standings shall be vacated and any team awards earned in those events shall be returned to the Association.

The university remains eligible to participate in postseason competition in the future but will be subject to periodic monitoring visits by the NCAA enforcement staff.

"The Committee on Infractions initially voted to impose sanctions that would prohibit the university's football team from participating in postseason competition for one season," said Frank J. Remington, chair, NCAA Committee on Infractions, "but the committee concluded that it would be appropriate to suspend that sanction based upon action taken by the university in the fall of 1984 to declare certain football team members ineligible prior to the selection of teams for the 1984 NCAA Division I-AA Football Championship, an action that caused the team to be eliminated from consideration to participate in the championship.

"The state audit of the university's athletics program," Remington noted, "revealed violations of NCAA academic requirements regarding high school grade-point averages, satisfactory academic progress, transfer students and minimum full-time academic loads. The university has indicated that the individuals responsible for the violations have been replaced, and the university also will be required to demonstrate during periodic visits to the university by the NCAA staff that it has taken meaningful, corrective actions to ensure compliance with all NCAA academic requirements."

In addition to the violations found in football, relatively isolated violations also were found in baseball, men's and women's basketball, men's swimming, and men's track and field.

The following is a complete text of the penalty imposed upon Tennessee State University and a summary of the violations in this case.

Penalty to be imposed upon institution

1. Tennessee State University shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of one year effective February 7, 1985, it being understood that

Dudley cited for efforts

Ambrose F. "Bud" Dudley, founder and executive director of the Liberty Bowl, has been named 1985 recipient of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame's award for outstanding contributions to amateur football. The award will be presented December 26 at the Liberty Bowl awards luncheon in Memphis.

Dudley is the eighth winner of the award, which began with the 1974 presentation to Lathrop Leishman, longtime chair of the Tournament of Roses.

A graduate of the University of Notre Dame, Dudley served as national president of his alma mater's alumni association. He was a varsity football and baseball player for the Irish and served as his class president.

He is a former director of athletics at Villanova University.

should any portion of the penalty in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalty shall be reconsidered by the NCAA; further, during this period of probation, the NCAA shall review the athletics policies and procedures of the university, which will include periodic visits to the university by NCAA staff members.

2. The university shall be required to return $80,052.80 to the NCAA executive office from its participation in the 1981 and 1982 National Collegiate Division I-AA Football Championships (90 percent of its share of net receipts); further, the record of the university's performance in the 1981 and 1982 National Collegiate Division I-AA Football Championships shall be deleted, the team's place in the final standings shall be vacated and any team trophy earned in these events by the university shall be returned to the Association.

3. The university's intercollegiate football team shall be precluded from participation in any postseason football competition for a one-year period. [Note: In recognition of the university's action to declare numerous student-athletes ineligible prior to the selection of teams for the 1984 National Collegiate Division I-AA Football Championship, which resulted in the institution's team not being selected in 1984, the committee has determined that the one-year postseason sanction in this case shall be suspended and the university's intercollegiate football team, therefore, remains eligible for postseason competition following the 1985 season.]

4. The Committee on Infractions imposed the sanctions described above based upon the university's representations that the following appropriate actions have been taken by the university upon notice of the violations cited in this report: a. Certain university administrative and athletics department staff members have been replaced, including the former director of athletics and those individuals responsible for eligibility certification and financial aid awards. b. The university has taken meaningful corrective actions to ensure compliance with NCAA academic requirements regarding high school grade-point averages, satisfactory progress, transfer students and minimum full-time academic loads. c. The university has applied the appropriate eligibility provisions to the involved student-athletes.

Summary of violations of NCAA legislation

1. NCAA Bylaws 5-1-(j) and 5-6-(b) [eligibility] - (a) During a period beginning with the 1980-81 academic year and continuing through the 1983-84 academic year, the university awarded financial aid in the sport of football to numerous entering freshman student-athletes whose high school grade-point averages were below 2.000; (b) during a period including the 1979-80 and 1980-81 academic years, the university awarded financial aid in the sport of men's swimming to two entering freshman student-athletes whose high school grade-point averages were below 2.000, and (c) during the 1980-81 academic year, the university permitted an entering freshman student-athlete to practice and participate in regular-season competition in the sport of baseball, even though his high-school grade-point average was below 2.000.

2. NCAA Constitution 3-3-(a)-(3) and Bylaw 5-1-(c)-(1) [sound academic standards and eligibility] - During a period beginning in the fall of the 1979-80 academic year and continuing through at least the spring of the 1982-83 academic year, the university permitted numerous student-athletes to participate in regular-season or postseason competition in baseball, men's and women's basketball, football, men's swimming, and men's track, even though they were not registered at the time in a full-time program of studies at the university.

3. NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)-(ii) [academic progress] - During the 1982 football season, a student-athlete participated in regular-season and postseason football competition, even though he had earned a total of only 23 semester hours of academic credit (rather than 24) during the 1981-82 academic year and the summer of 1982.

4. NCAA Bylaw 4-1-(a) [seasons of eligibility] - During the 1982-83 academic year, a student-athlete participated in regular-season baseball competition, even though more than five calendar years had elapsed since his initial registration as a full-time student at a collegiate institution.

5. NCAA Bylaws 5-1-(j) and 5-6-(b) [financial aid] - During the 1980-81 academic year, the university awarded financial aid to a student-athlete who did not satisfy the NCAA's junior college transfer requirements.

6. NCAA Executive Regulation 1-3-(j) [institutional eligibility] - During the 1981 National Collegiate Division I-AA Football Championship, the university had reason to know and should have known that four student-athletes participated while ineligible for postseason competition; further, during the 1982 National Collegiate Division I-AA Football Championship, the university had reason to know and should have known that one student-athlete participated while ineligible for postseason competition.

Big Ten, Lorimar Sports sign basketball contract

The Big Ten Conference has signed a three-year agreement with Lorimar Sports Network to broadcast a minimum of 23 conference basketball games in each of the next three seasons, officials said May 12.

The agreement calls for 10 Saturday afternoon games, 10 Sunday afternoon contests and three prime-time specials to be televised on a regionally syndicated basis beginning in January 1986. The conference also has assigned rights for national network broadcasts to the Dallas-based Lorimar Sports for additional games televised by any of the three national networks.

"We are extremely pleased to have entered into this agreement," said Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke. "Lorimar is recognized as one of the most successful syndicated basketball packagers in the business today, and we're delighted to be associated with them.

"The popularity of Big Ten basketball has never been greater, and the television exposure that Lorimar Sports will provide fans throughout the Midwest and other parts of the country will enhance this image," he said.

Lorimar Sports Network is a wholly owned subsidiary of Lorimar Production. Lorimar Sports Network syndicates Southeastern Conference basketball, Western Athletic Conference basketball and exclusive worldwide television rights to the Bluebonnet Bowl and Freedom Bowl postseason football classics.

ACC basketball under five-year pact

ESPN and Raycom Sports/Jefferson Pilot Teleproductions have reached a five-year agreement that calls for ESPN to televise 27 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball games — 20 regular-season and all seven postseason tournament contests — beginning with the 1985-86 season. The announcement was made by Steven M. Bornstein, ESPN vice-president of programming, and Rick Ray, president of Raycom.

The agreement, which runs through the 1989-90 season, also provides for an escalating number each season of "ESPN exclusive" games — contests to be seen exclusively on ESPN. Raycom/Jefferson will continue to syndicate 38 games (31 regular-season and seven ACC tournament games) to local stations in the ACC region. With the addition of the ESPN exclusive games, viewers in the region will have the opportunity to see more ACC basketball than ever before.

Bornstein said, "We look forward to continuing our relationship with Raycom/Jefferson Pilot and to providing more games than ever before to ACC fans, in addition to showcasing one of the nation's top conferences." In addition to the ESPN exclusive contests, the remaining games of the ESPN/ACC schedule will be chosen from the Raycom/Jefferson syndicated package. As in the past, ESPN will take a split feed from Raycom/Jefferson, black out its cable affiliates in the ACC region while local broadcast stations carry the games and show the games to the rest of the nation.

Scheduling details are not complete, but the majority of ESPN's 20 regular-season games will be seen in weeknight prime-time periods. The agreement does not allow for pay cable.

ABC plans 1988 Olympics coverage

ABC says it plans to provide 97 hours of television, most of it live and in prime time, for the 1988 Winter Olympic Games in Calgary — 34 more hours than were telecast during last year's winter games from Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

Jim Spence, senior vice-president of ABC Sports, said in a release that the network, which paid $309 million for the rights to the Calgary Olympics, will telecast 53 prime-time hours. ABC paid $91.5 million for the Sarajevo games and was troubled by tape-delayed events and snowstorms.

For the first time, ABC noted, "The winter games will extend over three weekends, one more than in the past and the games in Calgary will be three days longer than previous winter Olympics.

"Also, for the first time in Olympics history, the speed skating events will be conducted indoors," the network release said, "and, as is the case for the figure-skating and hockey competitions, most of it will occur during evening hours." Calgary is in the Mountain Time Zone, two hours behind the Eastern Time Zone.

Jim McKay, ABC's longtime Olympics host, said Calgary, "will be like Los Angeles," a comparison to the 1984 Summer Olympic Games, "because most of it will be live. We'll have live ski racing in the afternoons in the East. In contrast, in Sarajevo, we were up to 4 and 5 a.m. It was awful."

Self-study

Research to develop the self-study materials.

Among the subjects to be covered in the self-study would be institutional purpose and athletics philosophy, the authority of the chief executive officer in personnel and financial affairs, athletics organization and administration, finances, personnel, sports programs, recruiting policies, services for student-athletes, and student-athlete profiles.

While the Commission is not proposing the use of visitation teams or any type of formal accreditation program, the report of the institution's self-study and all supporting documentation would have to be kept available for examination upon request by any authorized representative of the NCAA.

The self-study requirement would become effective August 1, 1986, providing time for the development of the necessary forms and other materials.

Academic reporting

Proposal No. 2, for vote by Division I only, would amend Bylaw 5-6 and require approval by only a simple majority of Division I voters present and voting. It would require each Division I member institution, as a condition for eligibility for NCAA championships, to report annually to the NCAA certain specific informa-

Finks counsels Irish on options in turning pro

"Don't jeopardize your eligibility, your good name or the efforts of your teammates by signing with an agent before the NCAA rules permit." That was the warning of Jim Finks, former general manager of the Minnesota Vikings and executive vice-president of the Chicago Bears, when he recently spoke to a group of student-athletes at the University of Notre Dame.

Finks, who most recently served as president of the Chicago Cubs, said he felt the NCAA was on the right track in helping institutions develop counseling panels. "It's a marvelous idea and I only hope a number of schools will take advantage of the opportunity to help their young athletes sort through all the options available to them when considering a professional career in sports," he said.

Finks noted that it was a mistake to "panic by rushing out to sign with an agent without knowing precisely what type of services are being offered."

The appearance by Finks was arranged by Notre Dame's player-agent counseling panel, which was set up a year ago under NCAA guidelines.

"Jim Finks has spent 35 years in pro sports and he is ideally suited to educating student-athletes on the advantages as well as the pitfalls of a career in pro sports," said Eugene F. Corrigan, Irish athletics director. "We had Jim speak to our seniors last winter, and we thought he had some very sound advice and interesting observations on agency, contracts, professional sports and life after sports. We arranged to have him return to speak to a larger group of our student-athletes so they could benefit from his experience as a player, coach and executive," Corrigan added.

tion regarding academic matters.

The institution's CEO would provide the following information each year on a form to be approved by the NCAA Council, with an October 1 deadline for receipt of the form in the national office:

- The institution's regular, published entrance requirements for admission of regularly matriculated, degree-seeking students, including any authority for special admissions; the total number of entering recruited student-athletes and the number of those accepted as special admissions; the total number of entering students and the number of those accepted as special admissions. This information would be based on data from the preceding academic year in light of the October 1 submission deadline.

- In football and men's basketball, for each entering recruited student-athlete (listed individually but anonymously), the student's specific high-school grade-point average used to meet the "qualifier" definition of Bylaw 5-1-(j); the student's score on the SAT or ACT test; whether the student was a regular or a special admittee, and the specific school, college or department to which the student is admitted.

- The total number of recruited student-athletes in each sport who competed during the preceding academic year and the number (in each sport) who (1) graduated, or (2) left the institution in good academic standing, having met the satisfactory-progress requirements for eligibility if the student had returned for the current year, or (3) returned to the institution and met the satisfactory-progress requirements.

- The graduation rate for the institution's recruited student-athletes in each sport, plus the graduation rate for students generally for the entering freshman class that began attendance five years prior to the current fall term (i.e., the term that includes the October 1 submission deadline).

The graduation rate would be based on the number of students who entered the member institution with no previous college attendance and graduated within five years. Transfers are to be included as part of the class that had completed a number of terms equal to that completed by the transfer when he or she entered the certifying institution. Students who left the institution while in good academic standing (and having met the satisfactory-progress requirements for eligibility had they returned) would not be included in the computation.

Four seminar-workshops set for 120 directors of VFY

More than 120 student directors are expected to attend four seminars/workshops conducted by the NCAA Volunteers for Youth program this summer.

The conferences are held in different parts of the country and will allow student directors at the 58 participating colleges and universities to share ideas for operating a successful VFY program.

Seminars/workshops will be held May 31-June 2 in Santa Barbara, California; June 14-16 in Atlanta, Georgia; June 21-23 in South Bend, Indiana, and June 28-30 in Easton, Pennsylvania.

Group dynamics will be the overall focus of the seminars/workshops. Student directors will be able to attend minisessions covering a variety of topics, including volunteer recruitment, goal-setting, communication skills, fund-raising, publicity, youth and volunteer issues, and running an effective meeting.

"We have seen a direct correlation between attendance of student direc-

- The specific baccalaureate degree programs pursued by the student-athletes who graduated and the number who obtained a degree in each of those programs.

The legislation specifies that the NCAA Council will compile the reported information, with the institutions indicated individually but anonymously, and distribute the compilation annually to all Division I institutions. The individual institution would not be identified in any way; distributions of data would be presented by type of institution (e.g., public or private, by enrollment, by geographic region).

Failure to file the form properly by the specified deadline would not constitute an infraction. The only result would be that the institution would not be eligible to enter any team or individual in an NCAA championship during that academic year.

The academic-reporting requirement would become effective August 1, 1986, with the first such reports due from Division I members not later than October 1, 1986.

ADs disagree on methods of protecting athletics integrity

Action should be taken to protect the integrity of intercollegiate athletics, athletics directors of the University of North Carolina System say, but they disagree how tough the action should be.

North Carolina State athletics director Willis R. Casey told the UNC Board of Governors special committee on intercollegiate athletics May 10 that he supported a minimum scholastic aptitude test score of 800 for Atlantic Coast Conference schools.

He suggested that students who did not meet that minimum score should not be allowed to participate in intercollegiate athletics during their first year but could participate in their final three years if they pass a certain number of hours.

"I think we need it and we need it in the worst way," Casey said.

Casey said North Carolina State has not set higher academic standards "for the same reason no one else does. We want to win and that's the name of the game."

But athletics representatives of two schools said they did not support the portion of the NCAA Proposal No. 48 that calls for a minimum SAT score of 700.

Appalachian State University's Jim Garner called the proposed rule "discriminatory and unfair."

"Some people test well and some people don't," he said.

Garner said he did support the core curriculum in the proposition.

Winston-Salem State University basketball coach Clarence "Bighouse" Gaines said Division II schools have their own special set of problems.

"We are the schools that end up getting the best of the rest. Having a minimum 700 SAT score could hurt all black institutions, both athletically and academically," Gaines said.

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, athletics director John D. Swofford said he supported freshman ineligibility in football and basketball in Division I-A schools because of the "tremendous exposure" athletes at those schools receive.

But Garner said problems in college sports did not come from blanket freshman participation. He said the problem comes when academically unqualified freshmen are allowed to play.

It's "discriminatory to single out the student-athlete as a freshman," he said.

Garner also suggested that the committee set up athletics academic advisors that would be supervised by someone other than the athletics departments and that drug and alcohol awareness programs be set up at each school.

Casey called Division I-A sports "a showboat for the gamblers. We're made to order for them."

Unless the UNC System does something to protect admittance requirements and to look out for potential drug and gambling crises, Casey predicted that UNC officials would look back in a few years and wonder why they had not.

North Carolina Central University Chancellor Leroy T. Walker said the committee "offers at least the hope that there is a ray of light at the end of the tunnel, which, in the case of collegiate athletics, has grown longer and darker through the years."

Program a success

After testing Louisiana State University's 300 athletes an average of almost 12 times each over the past year, athletics director Robert Brodhead believes his school's drug-screening program is doing what he hoped it would.

He said 3,500 tests have been administered since the fall of last year — regular monthly checks, plus unannounced spot checks — with every athlete screened repeatedly, men and women.

"The encouraging thing about it is that the number of youngsters testing positive is absolutely low," Brodhead told the Associated Press. "It is serving as a deterrent, and that's what we wanted it to do."

"We bought our own equipment," Brodhead said. "We have, now, about $90,000 invested in our equipment."

"Very shortly, we will be able to test for steroids. Right now, we can

The schools contracted with Pace Management of Houston to promote the annual event and its related activities until the state made them stop.

The game was played in November, but the figures weren't available to the board until its meeting last month in Shreveport.

The figures were made public May 10.

The schools each got a total of $201,227 from the game and $14,742 right to know the details of the financing of the school's athletics programs — exactly how all that money is spent and where it goes."

Judge James Barrow scheduled a June 25 hearing on the suit.

Drawing the line

Peter Ueberroth, speaking to alumni at his alma mater, San Jose State University, defended his fight against drugs in professional baseball, saying, "Somebody somewhere has to draw the line."

Ueberroth, who earlier announced a plan for mandatory drug testing for all professional baseball personnel except major league players, spoke at an awards dinner at the school May 10.

"Somebody somewhere has to say, 'Enough is enough,'" Ueberroth went on to say in defending his plan. "So baseball is saying it. It may not be very popular, but we're saying it anyway."

Ueberroth said there were three reasons for the drug plan: the health of baseball personnel, the integrity of the game and baseball's responsibility "to show the fans of America that we are worthy of their support."

League proposed

If you've ever wanted to own part of a football team, David F. Dixon wants to give you a chance. All you have to do is buy a ticket to a game in his proposed new league.

Dixon, no longer associated with the United States Football League he founded, proposed May 10 a fan-owned, 12-team league that could start playing as soon as next January.

With a "stock-stub" attached to each ticket, fans would become owners with the power, eventually, to elect a board of directors of each club. Ownership, he said, will increase fans' rooting interest.

"This super enthusiasm will soon spread throughout a community. Everyone will want a piece of the rock," he said in the prepared text of a speech to Harvard Business School students.

Dixon said his plan is "revolutionary" because the league would be a single corporation with 12 wholly owned subsidiaries. Television and gate receipts would provide most of the revenue, he said.

He proposed paying players from gross gate receipts and having almost the same budget for each team. Clubs would be based in major markets, cities with domed stadiums and the Sun Belt, said Dixon, a New Orleans art dealer who sold his USFL franchise rights to the Houston Gamblers' ownership.

Club abolished

Memphis State University is abolishing one athletics booster club and tightening controls on two others, the school announced May 7.

The Golden Tiger Club, composed of supporters who donate at least $1,000 to the athletics program, will be phased out. Contributions from the other two organizations will be made through the university.

Thomas G. Carpenter, university president, said the end of the Golden Tigers was related to the legal problems of former advertising executive William B. Tanner, who organized the club. Tanner recently was sentenced to four years in prison for fraud.

test for any street drug, plus alcohol. By football season, we will be able to test steroids."

He said the only incident of multiple positive results came on reporting day for the football team last fall — the first time the tests were conducted.

"Three or four — but the three or four were among the walk-ons, who hadn't been notified we were going to have drug tests," Brodhead said. "We had no returning athlete test positive."

"Once in a while during the year, we had some positive tests, but you have to understand that the machine is so sophisticated that if you are in a car with marijuana smokers, you're going to test positive."

Game pays off

Grambling State University and Southern University, Baton Rouge — traditional cross-state rivals — netted almost $216,000 each from the season-ending football game at the Louisiana Superdome, officials say.

It's the fifth straight time since the schools began promoting the Bayou Classic themselves that they've earned more than $150,000 apiece from it and the third straight time that their take was over $200,000 apiece.
