Tougher enforcement rules a must, Florida's Criser says

Despite his school's recently having experienced severe NCAA penalties in football, University of Florida President Marshall M. Criser says that the only salvation for college athletics is for the NCAA membership to adopt stricter new enforcement rules to discipline major violators.

"The country is looking to us collectively at this time to reaffirm the fact that we are academic institutions that conduct athletics programs, not vice versa. In the long run, that's the only salvation for intercollegiate athletics," Criser said. He was among panelists discussing athletics issues at the annual College Football Association meeting in Dallas May 31-June 1.

Strong CEO positions reflected in resolutions

[Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles explaining the legislation to be considered at the special NCAA Convention June 20-21 in New Orleans.]

The NCAA Presidents Commission believes that student-athletes who are knowingly involved in rules violations should be held accountable for their actions and that there should be no extension of the playing season in any sport, and the Commission is offering two resolutions at the special Convention to express those positions.

Proposal Nos. 5 and 8, both in the form of resolutions cosponsored by the NCAA Council, not only set forth the presidents' views regarding those two matters, but also direct the NCAA Council to prepare appropriate legislation to be presented to the membership at the annual NCAA Convention next January.

Both will be voted upon by roll call and will require a majority vote of all delegates present and voting.

In the Commission-sponsored survey of all chief executives in the NCAA membership, 89 percent thought that rules violations and improper behavior by student-athletes were a serious or moderate problem. In Division I, that response was 90 percent, and it rose to 93 percent in Division I-A.

In addition, 67 percent favored declaring a student-athlete permanently ineligible if the student is found guilty of repeated or serious violations. The response again was higher in the major programs — 73 percent favoring such an action among Division I CEOs and 76 percent in Division I-A.

The response regarding the length of playing seasons was not as pronounced. Nearly half of the Division I chief executives (48 percent) believed that playing and practice seasons should be limited more than they are now (43 percent of all respondents favored that). As a result, the Commission resolution calls for no further expansion of sport seasons, rather than calling for limitations beyond those adopted at the January 1985 Convention.

Student-athletes

Proposal No. 5 proposes two steps: First, the Eligibility Committee would be directed to restore the eligibility of student-athletes involved in violations only when circumstances clearly warrant restoration. The committee's current policy is not to restore a student-athlete's eligibility if he or she has been improperly recruited and if that violation results in a recruiting advantage for the institution or a substantial material benefit for the prospect.

Second, the NCAA Council would be directed to develop legislation for the annual Convention to ensure that student-athletes are held accountable for serious violations of the rules in College athletics programs, particularly the major operations, will feel a "definite impact" on ticket sales if Congress enacts a tax-reform proposal to eliminate the write-offs of ticket purchases by businesses and corporations, according to Robert Smith, president of the College Athletic Business Managers Association.

Tax reform proposal seen as threat to ticket revenues

Smith, who is athletics business manager at the University of Oklahoma, said that some major programs' ticket purchases by businesses and corporations probably amount to 35 to 40 percent of their total ticket sales.

"Those programs that have to do a lot of promoting for ticket sales would be particularly affected if the proposal is enacted," Smith said.

Smith referred to those programs located in industrial areas, where the inclination is to turn to businesses and corporations for ticket sales.

Concurring with Smith is Steven A. Green, athletics business manager at Boston University and immediate past president of the business managers association.

"It's a serious threat," Green said, "particularly to the bigger programs."

Green said it probably would be another month before many schools feel the impact of the pending legislation. That's when returns on ticket-renewal applications start coming back to athletics business offices.

"I'm sure some businessmen, if they are open about it, would say right out that they aren't renewing

Sports equality is one thing, but funding is another

By Blaine Newnham

The Seattle Times/Seattle Post-Intelligencer

To say this is a troubled time in college athletics is to say that Lebanon and Ethiopia are troubled. The women's volleyball coach at Washington State, who last week had his budget cut by $45,000 for next year and his sport cut altogether the year after that, is right.

"Intercollegiate athletics," he said, "is nothing more than show business."

Which brings us first to the 10th anniversary of Title IX, Federal legislation that told us women deserve an equal opportunity on the sporting fields of our universities.

Ten years ago, as a nation and a society, we were more concerned with making things fair. Today, we are more concerned with making things count, as in money. The bodies are beginning to pile up.

The University of Idaho recently dropped women's swimming; so did the University of Montana. WSU cut women's volleyball and men's wrestling, starting in 1986. The University of Arizona cut loose five athletics department positions and the sport of synchronized swimming.

Scholarships for women increased from 10,000 to 370,000 nationally during the first 10 years of Title IX.

Everywhere, outstanding young women athletes are getting grants-in-aid for college. And behind them is an even younger, hungrier group of athletes with its sights set on being high-scoring forwards, not high-stepping cheerleaders.

But these dreams of equality, like all dreams, have to be funded. In this case, the Federal government was unwilling to put its money where its mouth was. It never funded Title IX, just demanded it be followed.

During the late 1970s and early 1980s, athletics department budgets grew grandly with the development of women's athletics. Fortunately, at the same time, athletics revenues grew grandly with million-dollar television contracts.

Moreover, men's basketball suddenly had the potential to make big money as appearance payoffs in the NCAA tournament jumped over $200,000.

Between 1981 and 1982, the Pacific-10 Conference saw its football television revenue increase by $5 million.

It was the best of times for women in athletics, and perhaps for the men, too. But, as in the decline and fall of any empire, greed takes over. The Universities of Oklahoma and Georgia didn't want to share the pie with San Jose State and South Dakota State—didn't want to help fund women's volleyball teams at Washington and Wisconsin.

And they took the all-American approach of taking it to court. When the Supreme Court deregulated the college football TV package last summer, you could hear the real athletes all around the country cry out.

Washington State is in financial trouble because it no longer gets the same television revenue it did under the old NCAA

"The solutions offered," said Jim Coleman, the WSU women's volleyball coach, "are rhetorical garbage. No one offered to take a salary cut. No one had a salary cut for failing to provide the funds this department needs."

Coleman was asked where he was when he heard about the loss of his program.

"I was pedaling across campus on my two-wheel courtesy car when I ran into Dick Young (the WSU athletic director)," said Coleman. "He told me."

Coleman is smarting from the inequities in college athletics. He rides a bicycle when the football staff drives automobiles donated by boosters.

The volleyball team, with a budget of $125,000, gets cut when the football team has a budget in excess of $2 million.

But it's show biz.

"Look who our athletics director reports to," said Coleman. "He reports to a vice-president in charge of university relations."

Coleman remembered a better time in colleges when football teams played on grass, and when the life and death of a sport didn't depend on television revenue.

We're a long way from that now. Athletics department budgets grew too rapidly. Every sport wanted to give grants-in-aid. Every sport wanted to recruit, compete and be known nationally.

Which was OK until the TV goose got shot in the rear by the Supreme Court. WSU technically has suspended volleyball operation in 1986, not eliminated it. There is some farfetched hope the football team might go undefeated next year, get on TV a half-dozen times, go to the Rose Bowl, and save wrestling and volleyball.

Coleman might not like Jim Walden's courtesy car, but he has to know that Walden carries the pressure of not only his own survival but that of an athletics department as well. And we wonder why volleyball coaches lose their jobs and football and basketball coaches cheat?

Columnary Craft

package. Moreover, it lost more than $100,000 last year in money it had budgeted when the Metro Sports network defaulted on its contract with the school.

Last fall, special sports networks sprang up all over the country. There were more games on television, but the bottom line was that there was less money being made, both in TV contracts and tickets sold at the stadium.

Two years ago, WSU earned $800,000 from TV rights. Next year's budget calls for $500,000 less, although even the line-item of $300,000 for TV is highly suspect because the Cougars are budgeting for an appearance they don't know they'll get.

WSU has been facing a $750,000 deficit. Among other things, it operates a men's track team on $180,000 a year, a women's track team on $165,000, a women's volleyball team on $125,000 and a men's wrestling team on $95,000.

It had to cut somewhere.

Coaches in favor of rules proposals

Vincent J. Dooley, athletics director
University of Georgia

USA Today

"I feel that 90 percent of our football coaches are committed to live by the rules, and I would think 90 percent of our coaches would be in favor of these measures (new NCAA enforcement proposals), which could include dropping a sport for a certain period of time.

"I also think these measures will have an effect in controlling alumni and athletics representatives who have been difficult to control in some cases. They would know their actions could put the football team out of business for a period of time."

M.R. Montgomery, columnist

Boston Globe

"The perennial bloom of the antitesting movement occurred last month, just in time to comfort the large number of scholars, and the parents of such scholars, who did not get admitted to the college of their choice.

"The bulk of standardized testing in this country is performed by the Educational Testing Service, and, like any near-monopoly, it is a target of choice for critics. If

Clarence Underwood, assistant commissioner
The Big Ten Conference

The Des Moines Register

"There currently are five Big Ten universities that do drug testing on their athletes in one form or another. I think one of the steps (the Big Ten Conference on Alcohol and Drug Abuse) is exploring is if there should be a conference policy relative to drug testing, and if so, which sports should be tested.

"The current times dictate that we'd better get on with it. We're not proud about all this, but we're humble enough to assess the facts and realize this is a very important area we need to explore and then make some guidelines."

John R. Davis, NCAA president
Oregon State University

The Chronicle of Higher Education

"(The decline of integrity) is nothing that happened very suddenly. I get the feeling that what happened probably is tied more to the rewards for winning. Television rights brought more money to institutions. And some coaches were able to get contracts with clothing or shoe companies if they were well-known. All of those rewards started to add up to the point where some coaches felt that winning was their objective at any cost."

Fred Sible, assistant director
Michigan High School Athletic Association

Referee

"Many of them (referees who quit) are athletes who thought they would like to stay close to sports, so they register and then get some games through an association or an acquaintance.

"Then, they realize exactly how tough it is to officiate and decide that they can probably make more money bagging groceries than running up and down the court for a couple of hours."

Bill Johnson, Olympic gold medalist
U.S. ski team

The Associated Press

"There are no amateurs at the top levels of any of the Olympic sports. I would say the top 20 in every sport get money of some kind.

"It's hypocrisy the way the associations and federations compete. To talk about amateurs at the Olympics is a joke."

Johnny Orr, head men's basketball coach
Iowa State University

The Des Moines Sunday Register

"I don't think that until you penalize the kid, they'll (cheaters) stop. You will have to penalize the kid as well as the coaches involved (in rules infractions). I don't run into cheating like everyone says they do. If I knew

Additional standards unnecessary

To the Editor:

Universities and colleges must have standards for admissions, retention and graduation to receive as well as maintain good status in academic accrediting agencies in America. Therefore, why is it necessary to have additional or double academic standards for students who wish to participate in intercollegiate athletics?

What really needs to be assessed is the extent to which universities and colleges have adequate academic support services available for all of their students, which include student-athletes.

Recently, Richard Ross, dean of the Johns Hopkins school of medicine, announced that MCAT results will soon become optional. He stated that there is a "complete lack of data demonstrating that MCAT scores correlate with performance in the clinical sciences or future success in medical careers."

It also is true that high schools in America have diverse emphasis. For example, some are vocationally, technically or commercially oriented. Therefore, discussion related to having completed 12 core courses is relative depending on the type of high school curriculum that a student was exposed to.

The only sensible part about Proposal No. 48 at this time is the part that recommends that students have a cumulative C average in high school if they wish to participate in intercollegiate athletics as freshmen.

When Bill Bradford and the executive committee of faculty athletics representatives meet in June, rather than placing emphasis on "raising academic standards," perhaps they should focus on determining the extent to which universities and colleges are prepared to meet the diverse academic needs of their students, which include student-athletes.

Pay coaches, professors the same

To the Editor:

Here is a suggestion to combat the dishonesty in and overemphasis on college sports: Require colleges to pay other professors the same salary as coaches.

If a football coach is paid $500,000 per year, then heads of science, math and English departments also would receive $500,000 per year.

we still had 350 automobile manufacturers, one suspects the Ralph Nader industry wouldn't exist.

"The trouble with criticizing the testing industry is that you have considerable trouble coming up with an alternative. Not, it should be understood, a single alternative method of choosing students, or passing students into some profession. There is, insofar as anyone knows, no college or graduate school in the United States that uses standardized tests as the single, or even the most important, criterion for admission.

"Applicants with rather low test scores are admitted because they have good grades or evident motivation to succeed, or already have succeeded at academic work in spite of a natural inability to confine wisdom to one of four choices."

Eva Auchincloss, executive director
Women's Sports Foundation

Athletic Business

"An incredible change has taken place. Although I don't believe you can say we've made it all the way to equality, there's been tremendous progress since Title IX was passed, primarily because schools felt they had to provide equal programming.

"Before Title IX, there virtually were no athletics scholarships for women. Today, there are some 500 colleges offering scholarships to women. That's an incredible statistic, and that's why we're fighting so hard to hang on to Title IX. It's been the only stick in town—the only club we've had to ensure progress."

Looking Back

Five years ago

Terry Francona of the University of Arizona was named the outstanding player of the College World Series as the Wildcats came out of the losers' bracket to win five straight games and the team title May 30 to June 6, 1980, at Omaha, Nebraska. Hawaii was the runner-up. (July 15, 1980, NCAA News)

Ten years ago

Donald B. Canham, director of athletics at the University of Michigan, testified June 26, 1975, before the Commission on the Review of the National Policy Towards Gambling. He argued against any liberalization of the gambling laws affecting sports at any level. (July 15, 1975, NCAA News)

Twenty years ago

The University of California, Los Angeles, won its eighth NCAA tennis championship (its seventh under Coach J. D. Morgan) June 14-19, 1965, at UCLA. Arthur Ashe won the singles crown and Ashe and Ian Crookenden won in doubles. (National Collegiate Championships records book)

Fifty years ago

Ohio State University's Jesse Owens won an unprecedented four events (100 and 200 dashes, 220 low hurdles and broad jump, the last with a record 26-1 3/8) at the 14th annual National Collegiate Outdoor Track Championships June 21-22, 1935, at the University of California, Berkeley. [Note: He repeated the feat a year later and still is the only athlete to do it.] The University of Southern California won the meet and that started nine consecutive NCAA championships for the Trojans. which they knowingly participate. That legislation would be made available to the Commission for its review in its October meeting.

The resolution notes that while institutional staff members and representatives of the institution's athletics interests are the primary factors in violations, "prospective and enrolled student-athletes are not without blame in the violations."

Season limits

Proposal No. 8 also has two primary points:

It would place the Association's membership on record as not favoring an increase in the permissible number of regular-season contests or dates of competition in any sport, and it specifically includes football and basketball.

It also would treat the growing number of institutions playing 35 to 40 basketball games in a season (well over the Division I limit of 28) by using several of the types of contests that are not counted toward that limit.

Specifically, the resolution would direct the NCAA Council to prepare legislation for the January Convention that would permit a member institution's basketball team to participate in only one of the noncountable opportunities — including a foreign tour — in any one year.

For example, the proposed legislation would provide that if an institution has a foreign basketball tour in a given year, it could not also play in a noncountable game in Hawaii or Alaska, or against a club prior to the start of the season, or in the Tip-Off Classic or the Preseason NIT, or against a foreign team in the United States. It could use only one of those opportunities in a year.

The Commission's resolution cites increasing institutional costs and increasing time demands on student-athletes as factors in its belief that playing seasons should not expand.

[Next in the series: A review of the other four proposals before the special Convention — Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, all sponsored by the NCAA Council.]

Hayes recovering

Still hospitalized from a stroke suffered 11 days ago, former Ohio State University football coach Woody Hayes already is making plans to be the grand marshal in a Fourth of July parade.

"I'm going to do it. It's just riding in the car for two hours," Hayes, 72, said from his bed at University Hospitals this week.

"I'll probably be here awhile yet, and I'll be home most of the summer," he told the Columbus Citizen-Journal.

Hayes suffered a mild stroke May 22 in Canada.

Razorbacks complete cycle with title; Conley gets 'double'

Paced by Mike Conley's double victory in the jumps, Arkansas captured the 64th annual NCAA Division I Men's Outdoor Track and Field Championships in Austin, Texas, and became only the second school in NCAA history to win the NCAA indoor, outdoor and cross-country titles in the same year.

UTEP did it three consecutive times (1979-1982). Only two other schools, Kansas and Villanova, have won the three meets, but not in the same year.

"A coach just hopes to win three national championships in a lifetime," said coach John McDonnell. "To win three in one year is, well, phenomenal. It was not a cheap win. Points were hard to come by."

Arkansas scored 61 points, followed by Washington State, 46; Baylor, 37; Iowa State, 35, and Brigham Young, 28.

"After the first day (of qualifying), I had a sinking feeling," said McDonnell. "All that could go wrong did."

"I met with the team and told the guys we were still in the chase. We never have given in and we weren't about to do it now. We came back. That's our trademark."

By the evening of the final day, Arkansas led by 24 points, largely due to Conley's winning long jump of 27-2, equaling his meet record, and his second-place finish in the 200-meter dash.

Conley also won the triple jump with a wind-aided leap of 58-1 1/4, the third best jump ever under any conditions. Razorback Roddie Haley contributed to the cause with a victory in the 400-meter dash (44.70).

Five other meet records were either tied or broken: Danny Harris, Iowa State, 48.42 in the 400-meter hurdles; Baylor (Darnel Chase, Derwin Graham, Johnny Thomas, Willie Caldwell), 3:00.84 in the 1,600-meter relay; Thomas Eriksson, Lamar, tied the meet record in the high jump, 7-7 1/4; Joe Dial, Oklahoma State 18-6, in the pole vault and Tore Gustafsson, Washington State, 246-10 in the hammer.

Oregon women capture first outdoor track championship

Oregon's distance runners paved the way for the Ducks' first NCAA Division I Women's Outdoor Track Championships team title May 27-June 1 in Austin, Texas.

Led by Claudette Groenendaal, Oregon's distance team racked up 41 of the Ducks' 52 points. Florida State and Louisiana State tied for second with 46 points each, and Arizona and UCLA tied for fourth, each with 45 points.

Groenendaal, at 5-9 and 128 pounds, set a meet record in winning the 800 meters in 2:01.20. She finished second in the 1,500 meters, behind a meet-record-breaking performance by Cathy Branta of Wisconsin

Several other records were broken, including a world best by Wendy Brown, a 19-year-old freshman from Southern California, in the triple jump. She hit 44-6 1/4 in qualifying for the triple jump finals. Since the International Athletic Federation does not recognize the event, there can be no world record.

"I was very surprised," Brown said. "I knew I'd do well but nothing like this. I was just trying to be safe. I wasn't worried about hitting the board right. I was just trying to qualify."

Brown finished fourth in the triple jump (42-11).

Latanya Sheffield of San Diego State set an American record in the 400-meter hurdles with a 54.64, eclipsing the 54.93 mark set by Judi Browning in the 1984 U.S. Olympic Trials.

In the high jump, Katrena Johnson of Arizona established a meet mark with 6-4 1/4, breaking the old record of 6-1 1/2 by Disa Gisladdottir of Alabama.

Carol Lewis of Houston set a meet record in the long jump, 22-1, surpassing her own 21-11 set in 1983.

Incaviglia, five others at CWS earn all-America honors

Oklahoma State outfielder Pete Incaviglia, who set all-time collegiate records with 47 home runs and 140 runs batted in this season, is one of six College World Series participants named to the 1985 Division I all-America team selected by the American Baseball Coaches Association.

Other CWS participants named to the first team were second baseman Bill Bates and pitcher Greg Swindell of Texas, pitcher Jeff Bantley and first baseman Will Clark of Mississippi State, and pitcher Mike Cook of South Carolina.

In addition to Incaviglia and Bates, others who were named to the first team for the second consecutive year were catcher B. J. Surhoff of North Carolina and shortstop Barry Larkin of Michigan.

In Division III, 1985 runner-up Marietta led all teams with four selections to the first team — designated hitter Jon Finke, first baseman John Hefner, shortstop Monte Duncan and pitcher Jim Katschke. Pitcher Bob Stocker was the lone representative from Division III champion Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Following are the Divisions I and III 1985 all-America teams:

North-South lacrosse game scheduled at Johns Hopkins

The 43rd North-South senior all-star lacrosse game will be played June 8 at Johns Hopkins University's Homewood Field. The South broke a nine-game losing streak with an 11-8 victory a year ago, but the North still holds a 21-20-1 series advantage.

Players representing 40 institutions have been selected through the efforts of a committee chaired by Richie Moran, head men's lacrosse coach at Cornell.

Coaching the North squad will be Tony Seaman of Pennsylvania, Jim Noyes of Swarthmore and Paul Rose of Colgate. The South teams' coaches are Navy's Bryan Matthews, Dave Cottle of Loyola (Maryland), and Hank Janczyk of Salisbury State.

Here are the 56 seniors selected to participate:

North

Attack — Tom Grimaldi, Hobart; Jon Kayser, New England College; Tim Nelson, Syracuse; Mike Perkins, Cortland State; Steve Poirier, Springfield, and Marc Van Arsdale, Hobart.

Midfield — Brian Byrnes, New Hampshire; Pat Drennan, Stevens Tech; Ken Entenmann, Cornell; Chris Giretti, Brown; Rob Hawley, Harvard; Steve Heffernan, Brown; Brad Kotz, Syracuse; Ken Lenskold, Yale; P.J. O'Sullivan, Army; Leo Paytas, Pennsylvania; Bill Schoonmaker, Penn State; Jamie Smith, Cornell, and David Sweeney, Adelphi.

Defense — Andy Carroll, Colgate; Bob Gilmartin, Army; Hans Hurdle, Swarthmore; Tony Resch, Yale; Tom Sill, Rochester Institute of Technology; Kurt Smith, Babson, and Bart Wiley, Middlebury.

Goal — Jim DellaRocca, Pennsylvania, and John Naslonski, Rutgers.

Wisconsin-Oshkosh wins its first Division III baseball title

All Wisconsin-Oshkosh needed was a second chance. The Titans survived a first-round loss to William Paterson, came back through the loser's bracket and conquered their next four opponents to win the 1985 Division III Baseball Championship June 2 in Marietta, Ohio.

Led by Terry Jorgensen, the tournament's most valuable player, Wisconsin-Oshkosh started the final day of the tournament by defeating Ithaca, 11-4, and then turned back tournament host Marietta, 11-6, in the championship game.

Jorgensen had six hits in 10 at bats in the two games and drove in six runs to pace the Titans and claim MVP honors. Jorgensen had one of three Oshkosh home runs in the Ithaca victory, along with Bob Barnetzk and Rusty Kryzanowski.

Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 37-3, hit 15 home runs in its five tournament games to claim its first Division III title. After losing to William Paterson, 9-4, to begin the tournament, Oshkosh scored 38 runs in defeating Redlands, Montclair State, Ithaca and Marietta.

Pitcher Brian Wesley received credit for the victory over Marietta after relieving starter Fred Kirchenwitz in the first inning. Kryzanowski and Barnetzk hit their second home runs of the day, and Rusty Tiedemann also homered.

Marietta, runner-up for the second straight year, finished the season with a 47-11-1 record. The Pioneers, national champions in 1981 and 1983, defeated Montclair State, 17-9; lost to Ithaca, 10-7; beat William Paterson, 5-4, and outlasted Ithaca, 14-10 in 11 innings, to advance to the championship game.

Special events set for hall of fame

Performances by pop music stars and national live broadcasts will highlight three weeks of festivities planned to herald the opening of the new Basketball Hall of Fame in the city where the sport was invented in 1891, Mayor Richard E. Neal said in Springfield, Massachusetts.

A ball, parade, five concerts and the hall's dedication ceremony are among more than 15 major events scheduled from June 14 to July 2, Neal said.

"It is an ambitious schedule, one that should appeal both to people enthusiastic about sports and to those people who are less enthusiastic but who want to see the new basketball hall of fame," Neal told a news conference at City Hall.

The $11.4 million hall is scheduled to be dedicated June 30, with enshrinement ceremonies set July 1.

The new hall replaces a facility built in the 1960s on the campus of Springfield College, where James Naismith invented the game, using peach baskets.

Featured singers include the Pointer Sisters June 22 at the Civic Center and James Brown June 29 at Symphony Hall.

Willard Scott, the weather forecaster for NBC's "Today Show," is scheduled to do live broadcasts June 28 from Springfield for the program.

The hall of fame ball is scheduled June 28 at the Springfield Marriott, with the Glenn Miller orchestra.

The new hall of fame's dedication at Riverfront Park will be at 2 P.M. June 30. More than 5,000 people, including political and sports dignitaries from around the country, are expected to attend. President Ronald Reagan and Vice-President George Bush have been invited.

A parade, featuring the U.S. Air Force and Marine Corps bands, will precede the ceremony.

The hall of fall will enshrine its 1985 inductees July 1: The late Senda Berenson Abbott as contributor; the late Harold Anderson as coach; Marv Harshman, coach; Al Cervi, player; Nate Thurmond, player; Bertha Teague, coach, and Margaret Wade, coach.

Abbott, Wade and Teague will hold the distinction of being the first women enshrined.

One major event that will coincide with the shrine's opening is the "friendly taste of Springfield" June 27-June 30 in Court Square. It features 25 restaurants and attracted an estimated 100,000 people to the area last year.

Wheatley earns all-America spot for second straight year

Pitchers Rhonda Wheatley of Cal Poly-Pomona and Lisa Ishikawa of Northwestern were selected to the 1985 Division I all-America team for the second year by the National Softball Coaches Association.

Wheatley led all Division I pitchers with a 46-14 regular-season record and helped her team qualify for the Division I Women's Softball Championship. Wheatley had 309 strikeouts and an 0.22 earned-run average.

Ishikawa, whose Northwestern team also qualified for the NCAA championship, had another outstanding season with a 23-5 record, 272 strikeouts and an 0.39 ERA.

Debbie Mygind, who won three games for Cal State Fullerton in this year's championship, was the other Division I pitcher named to the first team. Included among Mygind's three championship victories was a 2-0 victory over UCLA's Debbie Doom. Mygind had a 26-3 regular-season record.

In addition to Mygind, Cal State Fullerton placed two other players on the first team — third baseman Joann Ferrieri and utility player Terri Oberg. Texas A&M was the only other team with more than one player on the first team. Outfielder Denise Carter, named for the second straight year, and second baseman Judy Trussell were the A&M selections.

Kathy Slaten, who last month led Cal State Northridge to its third consecutive Division II Women's Softball Championship, led the Division II all-America squad. Slaten finished the season with a 41-11 record, including a 3-1 record in the NCAA championship that included 52 strikeouts in 36 innings. Other Northridge players named to the first team were third baseman Michey McNaney and outfielder Barbara Jordan.

Stephen F. Austin State's Pam Clay and Sacred Heart's Debbie Tidy were the other Division II pitchers.

violators should be very, very severe. Coaches want to see the game regain the integrity it so justly deserves."

The CFA Coaches' Committee recommended giving players $600 a year for incidental expenses and funding the allowance by making players pay for their complimentary tickets. The $600 stipend would be distributed over a 10-month period. Players would not be given their four complimentary tickets to each game, as currently is permitted, but would be allowed to purchase those tickets at about half-price, with the cost of the tickets deducted from their monthly allowance.

Committee suggests eliminating one match

The NCAA Men's Tennis Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that the third place match in the Division I team championship be eliminated.

The third place match has been played since 1977, when the present team single-elimination tournament format began.

The committee studied the Division I regional alignment and will recommend that it be restructured into seven regions, instead of eight. Arizona would move to the old Region 8, which would be renamed Region 7. New Mexico and the current Region 7 states would join Region 5, while the remaining regions would be unaffected. The committee will continue to examine the regional alignment next season.

The committee voted to return to Athens, Georgia, for the 1987 and 1988 Division I championships. The 1986 championships, May 17-25, already are under contract with the Athens Tennis Association.

Divisions II and III committee representatives will recommend that the overall field limit of 90 competitors be lifted and that the NCAA fund transportation expenses for the eight teams selected to the team championship in each division.

Tournament sites for 1986 were selected; subject to receiving an approved budget and Executive Committee approval, Cal State Northridge again will host the Division II championships and Claremont-Mudd-Scripps will host the Division III tournament. Both championships are scheduled May 12-18.

Other items that will be recommended include:

- Allowing fall results to be considered for the individual championships (singles and doubles) selection process.

- Enforcing a system of fines for late submission of season records and/or eligibility/entry forms. Season records must be sent to the appropriate regional advisory committee and other regional chairs by the dates published in the handbook or the institution would be subject to a $200 fine (per team) and a $100 fine per individual. The same fines would be instituted for eligibility/entry forms, with a maximum $500 fine for both late filings. In addition, the team or individual could be kept from competing.

- Increasing officials fees for Divisions I and II, from $2,500 to $3,000 in Division I and from $2,000 to $2,400 in Division II.

The committee also discussed the relationship between the NCAA and the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association (ITCA) and noted that the ITCA rankings would continue to be used as selection guidelines only. The committee reaffirmed the use of United States Tennis Association rules during the NCAA championships.

In addition, the committee met with a representative of the NCAA legislative services department to review recent legislation concerning playing-date limitations and proposed legislation on grants-in-aid. Schools with questions concerning these matters can write the legislative services department at the national office.

YOUR SPORTS TRAINING TEAM JUST GOT A WINNER.

Now you've got a book as big as the field itself, the medical care and training of career, amateur and recreational athletes from the sunrise to the high priced

Encouraged by the National Athletic Trainers Association, we developed this all-inclusive, professional book to deal with every aspect of prevention, care and reconditioning to help stem the tide of the estimated two million athletes who are injured annually.

At your fingertips you'll have more than 600 pages detailing the latest advances in 51 comprehensive chapters, including conditioning, prevention, musculoskeletal injury management, emergency care, special medical considerations, rehabilitation and an extensive section on the knee. Then, to clarify terms, a complete glossary has been provided.

Naturally, you'd want a book this broad to be amply illustrated, so we've added over 450 drawings, charts, x-rays, photos and diagrams to aid understanding.

A book this thorough requires a team approach. So, better than 50 contributors — orthopaedic surgeons, other physicians, athletic trainers and allied experts — combined to assure the kind of accuracy and timeliness you can count on.

Chances are this single up-to-date volume by 50 contributors could replace a collection of other books and still deliver the knowledge. Adding this winner to your sports training team is as easy as completing and mailing the coupon below. Or calling 1-800/725-5199 (in Illinois 1-800/972-5855) and using your charge card to order. Of course, your satisfaction is guaranteed.

1985 Column No. 23

Conference season-end tournaments—Bylaw 3-3-(d)

NCAA Bylaw 3-3-(d) provides that a conference season-end tournament shall not count toward the maximum number of contests or dates of competition in a sport.

At its recent meeting, the NCAA Administrative Committee affirmed that for a tournament to qualify as a "season-end" tournament under the provisions of Bylaw 3-3-(d), it must be conducted at the conclusion of all regular-season matches for the participating institutions. In addition, the Administrative Committee determined to apply the interpretation set forth in the last sentence of O.I. 309 (page 82, 1985-86 NCAA Manual) to all sports. This allows institutions that tie for a conference championship to participate in a single-elimination play-off to determine the conference's automatic entry into an NCAA tournament without the game or games being counted as a regular-season contest or postseason tournament.

Compensation for graduate assistant coaches

At its recent meeting, the Administrative Committee affirmed that the maximum amount of financial assistance that may be received by a graduate assistant coach in accordance with Bylaw 7-1-(h) and Case No. 387 (page 368, 1985-86 NCAA Manual) is limited to the value of commonly accepted educational expenses for that graduate assistant coach (i.e., tuition and fees, room and board, and required course-related books) based on his resident status. Accordingly, graduate assistant who is a resident (for purposes of determining the rate of tuition) of the state in which the institution is located is limited to the value of commonly accepted educational expenses based on in-state tuition. Likewise, a graduate assistant who is a nonresident of the state in which the institution is located and who is required to pay out-of-state tuition would be permitted to receive the value of commonly accepted educational expenses based on the out-of-state tuition figure.

Sports sponsorship criteria

At its recent meeting, the Administrative Committee approved the NCAA Men's and Women's Rifle Committee's recommendation that member institutions should be permitted to count an all-women rifle team as one of the sports for meeting the Division I and Division II minimum requirements for women's sports sponsorship, provided the team meets the minimum requirements set forth in Bylaw 11-4 and provided that only one rifle team may represent the institution in the NCAA Men's and Women's Rifle Championships.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question that it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Stephen R. Morgan, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations for interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, administrative assistant, in the national office no later than June 18, 1985.

Grand Valley State proves it's more than a survivor in Division II sports

The roof nearly caved in on Grand Valley State College athletics a few years ago. The Lakers may have been slowed, but they never stopped winning.

Grand Valley State commemorated its 25th anniversary this spring and only its 20th season for athletics on the Allendale campus.

Despite several major setbacks, including water damage that led to the field house being condemned in 1978 and budget cuts that eliminated some sports in 1980, Grand Valley State no longer is the new kid on the block. The Lakers have been winning, and doing it with consistency. After 20 years of competition, the Division II school has an athletics record that many older schools might envy.

Take football, for example. The Lakers have fielded teams for only 14 seasons and were one of five teams nationwide to begin varsity programs during the early 1970's. Grand Valley State's football record is 75-58-1, a winning percentage of .558. That includes three seasons without a victory.

The school's athletic teams have an overall winning percentage of .583 in varsity competition since the first golf match in 1965. The women currently are winning at a .632 clip, with an 852-496-2 mark; in men's sports, the Lakers have posted a 943-785-4 (.546) record. Grand Valley State has dominated the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference since its inception in 1973, winning stadium, playing fields and a field house — worth well in excess of $30 million. George M. MacDonald is the current athletics director.

From a pick-up softball game in 1967 with students from Grand 48 ranked second among all-time NCAA Division II coaches. She joined the faculty in 1966 and organized the women's program, with the exception of swimming. Boand once coached softball, volleyball and basketball. Since the seasons have overlapped, she coaches only volleyball.

The men's program has struggled but still is successful. Men's teams have won 18 conference championships and boast a winning percentage of .638 in conference play.

Wrestling, coached by Jim Scott since its inception in 1969, is the winningest sport on campus. Laker teams have a record of 115-54-2, followed by men's basketball (.586).

Sixty-seven student-athletes have won all-America honors at the school since 1972.

The blend of academics and athletics does have its appeal.

Chuck Spieser, a fullback from Union Lake, said he always thought he would follow his father to a bigger school. "But, I came to Grand Valley State and saw the good atmosphere. We're not a major school or anything, but we can take pride in the fact that we've established ourselves as something to be reckoned with."

Joan Boand

Rapids Junior College, the women's program, under the direction of Joan Boand, has flourished. Grand Valley State's winning percentage of .632 includes 18 conference championships.

Of the six sports for women, volleyball and softball have enjoyed the most success. These teams have a victory record of almost 70 percent, and each team has won five conference championships.

because they might not get a tax break," Green said.

Professional sports teams already have expressed concern about the tax-reform proposals because corporation ticket purchases run as high as 50 to 60 percent of the total sales for some pro sports, reports indicate.

Another recent governmental action that caused concern in the college athletics community was an Internal Revenue Service ruling that would disallow write-offs of contributions to athletics programs when a "benefit" to the contributor is derived from the contribution.

Following a public hearing earlier this year, the ruling was withdrawn temporarily.

36 titles. And the Lakers boast a combined won-lost record of 579-290 in conference sports.

However, academics still comes first at the institution of 7,200 students.

During his years as president of Grand Valley State (1962-68), James H. Zumberge, now president of the University of Southern California, held that athletics should not overwhelm the college. He believed they should be one small part of a well-rounded educational experience and one sport should not dominate the others. President Zumberge explored the idea of the school's competing only in Olympic-type sports.

In the spring of 1964, crew became the first sport. Golf was added in 1965, soon followed by basketball. But basketball played a junior-varsity schedule at Allendale High School.

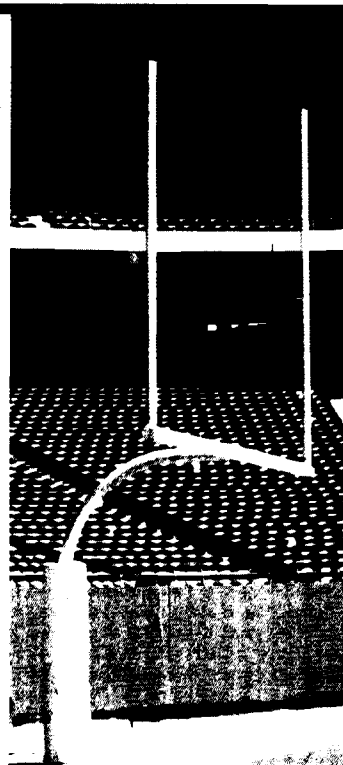

With the appointment of Arend D. Lubbers as president in 1968, the philosophy toward athletics changed. President Lubbers believed in the importance of athletics in college life; more importantly, he believed that if a college is going to have an athletics program, it would require the support of the administration to make it successful. His endorsement was not limited to men's sports. He lifted the barriers for women and gave them the necessary tools to compete, long before Title IX.

Physical-education facilities were almost nonexistent during the first years of the school. Under Charles Irwin, the first athletics director, physical education and athletics were housed in a converted farmhouse.

Now, the institution has an athletics complex — including a football

Foge Fazio golf contributed $100,000 to leukemia fund

The seventh annual Foge Fazio Leukemia Open raised a record $100,000 for the benefit of the Leukemia Society of Western Pennsylvania May 20. Many past and present University of Pittsburgh football players and Fazio, head football coach at the university, participated. Fazio was chair for the event, which in the past seven years has raised more than $370,000 for the leukemia society. Six NCAA Division I institutions have organized the New South Women's Conference, which will offer competition in cross country, volleyball, basketball, fast-pitch softball and tennis during 1985-86. The conference office will be at Georgia State University, where Rankin Cooter, assistant athletics director at Georgia State, will serve as commissioner. Herb Reinhard of Florida A&M University will be the information director. Other conference schools include Georgia Southern College, Central Florida University, Mercer University and Stetson University.

Bruce Smith of Virginia Polytechnic Institute has presented his school with a $50,000 endowment for a football scholarship in his name. The Outland Trophy winner was the No. 1 draft choice of the Buffalo Bills in the National Football League draft this year. Because the NCAA and the city of Charleston, South Carolina, could not reach an agreement on an extension of the original two-year contract, the NCAA Division I-AA Football Championship will not return to Johnson Hagood Stadium at The Citadel this year. Another site for the championship game will be announced.

A new track will be installed at Seth Grove Stadium at Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania this summer at a cost of $275,000. Much of the funding for the project was derived from proceeds from the school's athletics camps and conference programs over the past several years. In addition to several other improvements, the track will be expanded from six to eight lanes. After 34 consecutive seasons of intercollegiate competition, the University of Akron will suspend its swimming program for two years, beginning next winter. Athletics director David H. Adams said the school hopes to have a new natatorium by 1987-88 and then resume the swimming program.

Athletes in Action is organizing a national women's volleyball team to conduct camps and clinics this summer and play exhibition matches in the fall. The team will be based in Irvine, California. Interested players can contact coach Gary Coffey at 714/669-1720 or by writing Athletes in Action, 4790 Irvine Boulevard, No. 105-325, Irvine, California 92714.

STAFF

Special assistant to the director of athletics — ARCHIE GRIFFIN, the only collegiate football player to win the Heisman Trophy twice, selected at his alma mater, Ohio State. Griffin, Ohio State's acting assistant director of employment the past year, will assist with fundraising and public relations.

Sports information director — JOHN ASKINS, West Texas State SID for the past two years, resigned to join the public relations and college coach of the year. A 1953 graduate of Santa Clara, Malley was inducted into the university's hall of fame in 1983. JAMES H. STEWART, former Southern Methodist athletics director, died May 29. He was 81. Stewart, who served as Southern Methodist's athletics director from 1935 to 1945, was the Southwest Athletic Conference's first full-time executive director. A 1924 graduate of Southern Methodist, Stewart served as secretary-treasurer and director general of the Cotton Bowl from 1941 to 1950 and as a member of the NCAA Executive Committee from 1947 to 1950. He was appointed executive vice-president and general manager of the State Fair of Texas in 1950, a position he held until 1965. ANDY MACDONALD, assistant coach for the National Football League's Minnesota Vikings, died May 24. He was 55. MacDonald was named a Little All-America quarterback at Central Michigan in 1951.

CORRECTIONS

The NCAA News incorrectly reported in the May 15 issue that KURT PATBERG, Central Michigan assistant director of athletics, served as coordinator of sports information and promotion at Indiana (Pennsylvania). Patberg served at Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne.

In the same issue, it should have been reported that the NCAA Executive Committee directed that the 1987 Division III Men's Swimming and Diving Championships move to a 1:16 ratio.

Raycom expands

Raycom Sports has acquired the college football and basketball properties of Katz Sports. An agreement between Katz and Raycom gives Raycom rights to the Kickoff Classic, Liberty Bowl, University of Miami (Florida) football, Pacific Coast Athletic Association basketball and Big Eight Conference basketball.

Rick Ray, Raycom president said, "The acquisition of the new properties fits into our company's growth plans and will give us national products to offer our clients and stations. We look forward to working with Katz during the transition period."

Raycom said the new acquisitions make it the largest college sports syndicator in the country.

Raycom is headquartered in Charlotte, North Carolina, with offices in New York, Dallas, and Los Angeles. Specific terms of the agreement were not released.

Huskies expand

The Washington University Huskies plan to expand Husky Stadium by 13,700 seats for the 1987 season at a cost of $12.6 million. The project involves the construction of an upper deck on the north (at left in photo) side of the stadium, matching one on the south, to bring seating capacity to 72,200. Officials estimate the expansion will boost gate revenues by $700,000 a year. Included in the project is a special section with separate food service.

Pac-10 asks media to stop using betting lines on contests

The Pacific-10 Conference has issued a request that betting lines on college sports contests involving Pac-10 teams no longer be published or broadcast in the conference's geographic area.

"The Pacific-10 Conference feels that publication of any information on intercollegiate athletic contests that assists those involved in illegal gambling activities has no place in the sports sections of our newspapers, nor should such information be broadcast," said Pac-10 President Chapin Clark of the University of Oregon.

The statement on gambling information was issued May 30 after the spring meeting of the Pac-10 Council, composed of athletics representatives and athletics directors.

Clark noted that the Atlantic Coast Conference took similar action recently. The Pac-10 Council, according to Clark, devoted considerable time at its meeting to discussion of recent alleged point shaving in college basketball games.

Illegal gambling activities "threaten the existence of our college sports programs," Clark said.

Officials cut to two

The Southern Conference will return to two-man crews to officiate its basketball games next year, league officials announced May 30.

The league had used three-man crews the past two years but decided at its annual meeting of athletics directors in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, it would return to the two-man crews, the Associated Press reported.

A revised pay scale for officials was also approved by athletics directors, but details were not announced. "Our league is willing to be a pioneer in attempting to take radical steps to improve the status of basketball officiating in the Southern Conference as well as the entire country," said J. Dallas Shirley, supervisor of officials and assistant to the conference commissioner.

"To that end, the officials committee of the conference inaugurated a vigorous rating program two years ago that now is beginning to bear fruit," Shirley said. "In addition, the recruitment of new officials is being pursued on a more intense level."

Several of the league's nine members decided to use two-man crews last year in nonconference home games, while the league's 72-game round-robin schedule and the conference tournament were handled by three-man crews.

Gators lose title

The presidents of the Southeastern Conference voted 6-4 May 30 to strip the University of Florida of its first-ever Southeastern Conference football title.

The action came during the closing business session of the league's annual spring meeting and brought an angry reaction from Florida President Marshall M. Criser, whose school chased the prize for more than 50 years.

USFL vows fight

The United States Football League May 30 said it was expanding its $1.32 million antitrust suit against the rival National Football League and that it expected the case to go to trial next February. "We're about to put down the sling-shot and pick up the bazooka," Commissioner Harry Usher said at a news conference. "We will detail the anticompetitive tactics of the NFL and the overt acts to subjugate the USFL just as it has subjugated every other new league."

Usher said that the USFL owners are united behind the suit and have allocated resources for it. "We will see it through," he said. Since the original suit was filed last October, Usher said the league had gone through an extensive period of investigation, spending much time exchanging documents in court. The league also has engaged new counsel, Harry Myerson, to represent it in court.

The suit names 27 NFL clubs but excludes the Los Angeles Raiders. "We made the judgment that Al Davis and the L.A. Raiders had been victims in the past of the very violations in this lawsuit," Myerson said. "It would be inappropriate to include them as defendants."

Legislature acts

The Nebraska Legislature May 31 adopted a resolution "strongly disapproving" of a male-athlete-only training table and study hall at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha sponsored the resolution, adopted on a 27-1 vote. The resolution called on the university to end the policy immediately.

The Hewitt Center for student-athletes opened March 1 and was financed partly with private donations and partly with some $400,000 from the 1984 Kickoff Classic, a nationally televised football game between Nebraska and Pennsylvania State University.

The center, which has a kitchen and study hall, including a bank of personal computers, is open to male athletes only because of space limitations, university athletics officials have said.

"This is gender-based discrimination . . ." Chambers said. "Why bar women from the facility when it is open to any potential recruit and his family?"

Chambers said Nebraska women athletes have demonstrated excellence with national rankings in softball, track and volleyball and deserve more than "poor quality, greasy fare available in dormitory dining halls."

"The athletics programs are a microcosm of the university community . . . reflect the values of the university," Chambers said.

Cardinals sign pact

The University of Louisville Athletic Association has signed an agreement with WDRB-TV, an independent station in Louisville, for the rights to its local basketball and football telecasts, associated coaches shows, and a general athletics department program for the 1985-86 season.

The contract is for one year, and it may be renewed for one additional two-year term.

WDRB will televise live a minimum of six away basketball games and all away football games. The station also will telecast on a delayed basis home football and basketball games that are not telecast live in the Louisville market.

Media plan set

Northern Illinois University and Innovative Sports of Chicago have announced that they have entered into a long-term radio and television agreement.

Robert J. Brigham, special assistant to the president for intercollegiate athletics at Northern Illinois, said that Innovative Sports will own the rights to produce and syndicate the school's intercollegiate athletics events on television and radio in the Chicago market and the entire Midwest.

Innovative Sports also represents Northwestern University in the Chicago area.

business session of the league's annual spring meeting and brought an angry reaction from Florida President Marshall M. Criser, whose school chased the prize for more than 50 years.

Criser called the decision to vacate the 1984 title "the latest of a series of extraordinary and unprecedented actions taken by the conference in this infractions proceeding."

Florida won the crown on the field in November after compiling a 5-0-1 record in the SEC. The team was barred from representing the conference in the Sugar Bowl, however, because of impending NCAA probation.

The NCAA placed the Gators on three years' probation, with one year off for good behavior, in January. The SEC's Executive Committee ruled April 3 that Florida had suffered enough and said it would be allowed to keep the championship.

The May 30 action overturned the executive committee's decision.

Suit dismissed

A suit filed by the widow of Memphis State University Coach Rex Dockery seeking to collect salary for the remaining two years of her husband's contract has been dismissed.

Mrs. Dockery filed the lawsuit in Chancery Court in December seeking payment for the remaining two years of her husband's five-year contract as the Tiger football coach.

Dockery had a $50,000-a-year contract with Memphis State, and Coca-Cola Co. had agreed to pay him $40,000 a year for his television and radio commentary on Tiger football games, the suit said.

Dockery and three others were killed in an airplane crash near Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, Dec. 12, 1983.

In dismissing the suit, Davidson County Chancellor C. Allen High
