Convention expected to break attendance mark

More than 1,000 persons are expected to attend the NCAA's fifth special Convention Thursday and Friday (June 20-21) at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in New Orleans, Louisiana.

As of June 18, a total of 939 delegates had preregistered for the Convention. Others will register at the Convention itself and, when added to the expected turnout of more than 100 representatives of news media, the total attendance should exceed 1,000, the most ever for a special Convention. The previous high was 972 at the third special Convention.

As of June 18, 409 institutions and 40 conferences or affiliated organizations had filed their delegate-appointment forms with a total of 939 delegates appointed. Those totals included 407 voting institutions and 37 voting conferences.

Included were 252 of the 284 Division I member institutions and 31 of 53 Division I conferences, 89 of 189 Division II institutions and four of 22 Division II conferences, and 66 of 317 Division III institutions and two of 25 Division III conferences.

The delegate count included 213 chief executive officers (presidents or chancellors), as reported elsewhere on this page. In addition, a total of 48 CEOs who will not attend appointed senior administrators (vice-presidents, vice-chancellors, deans) to attend.

Registration for the special Convention begins at 8 a.m. Thursday and continues until 6 p.m. The registration desks also will be open from 8 a.m. to noon Friday, the final day of the Convention.

The Convention opens officially at 2 p.m. Thursday with a general round-table discussion session open to all delegates. Also open to all attending the Convention is the delegates reception from 6:30 to 8 p.m. that evening.

All voting on the 12 proposals before the Convention will be conducted in the Friday business session, which begins at 8 a.m. with opening remarks by John W. Ryan, president of Indiana University, Bloomington, and chair of the NCAA Presidents Commission.

Others playing key roles in the proceedings will be Otis A. Singletary.

213 CEOs preregistered for Convention

A total of 213 chief executive officers of NCAA member institutions are among the 939 delegates who had preregistered as of June 18 to attend the special NCAA Convention June 20-21 in New Orleans.

The 213 presidents and chancellors for the most part appointed themselves as voting or alternate delegates and thus are eligible to cast their institutions' votes on the 12 proposals facing the Convention, as recommended by the Presidents Commission. Only a handful of CEOs appointed themselves as visiting delegates, who are not entitled to speak or vote during Convention sessions.

The CEO preregistration is the highest ever. A total of 174 preregistered for the 1984 Convention in Dallas, when the Presidents Commission was established. At the 1983 Convention in San Diego, when the new Division I initial-eligibility legislation was adopted ("Proposal 48"), 125 chief executives preregistered. The preregistration for the 1985 Convention last January included 131 CEOs.

Included among the presidents and chancellors planning to attend the

New Orleans Convention are 143 from Division I, 45 from Division II and 25 from Division III. Among the 143 Division I chief executives are 61 representing Division I-A, 47 from I-AA and 35 from I-AAA.

Amendment deadline set for June 20 at 1 p.m.

Any amendments to the 12 proposals before the special Convention in New Orleans must be submitted in writing by 1 p.m. Thursday, June 20, as specified in NCAA Constitution 7-3 and Bylaw 11-3.

That deadline also applies to any members desiring to submit a resolution under the provisions of Constitution 6-4. Any such resolution would have to be acceptable under the terms of the call to the Convention; i.e., matters dealing with integrity and economics.

All submissions must be delivered by the 1 p.m. deadline to the NCAA Convention work suite, room 2148 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. Any amendments properly submitted will be duplicated for distribution at the beginning of the business session at 8 a.m. the following day.

Amendments to the proposals in the Official Notice and Program of the special Convention will be ruled out of order if they increase the modification proposed in the circularized amendment or if they deal with some issue that is not treated by the original amendment.

The rule of thumb for acceptability of an amendment to an amendment is that it must fall between the current rule or circumstance and the change proposed in the previously circularized proposal.

The six-sponsor requirement for amendments does not apply to amendments to amendments, which can be submitted by a single sponsor. The six-sponsor requirement does apply to resolutions, however, as does the fact that a resolution must be submitted by the chief executive officers (or their previously designated representatives) of the sponsoring institutions.

All questions regarding the Association's legislative procedures should be directed to Stephen R. Morgan, assistant executive director, or to John H. Leavens, director of legislative services, in the Convention work suite.

Athletes' use of drugs tied to social occasions

Results of a nationwide study of drug use indicate that student-athletes use socially related drugs more frequently with friends than with their teammates and do so on a social and experimental basis.

These findings are part of a study conducted by researchers at Michigan

Friends or relatives are the main source for marijuana/hashish, cocaine, barbiturates/tranquilizers and amphetamines.

State University's College of Human Medicine. The study began in August 1983 at the request of the NCAA Drug Education Committee and Executive Committee.

In its first report issued earlier this year, researchers discovered that alcohol is the drug most widely used by student-athletes (88 percent of those questioned), and the use of anabolic steroids is low (four percent).

Participants from five men's sports (football, basketball, baseball, track and tennis) and five women's sports (swimming, basketball, softball, track and tennis) from 11 NCAA member institutions (six Division I, three Division II and two Division III) were selected on a stratified random-sampling basis.

Researchers asked for information on 14 drugs in two categories (socially related and perceived ergogenic). The socially related drugs were alcohol, caffeine, cocaine, cigarettes, marijuana/hashish, smokeless tobacco and psychedelics. Perceived-ergogenic drugs were amphetamines, anabolic steroids, antiinflammatories, barbit-

Greyhound, NCAA sign agreement

The NCAA and Greyhound Lines have reached a three-year agreement that names Greyhound as the official motor-coach carrier for NCAA championships and provides a rebate plan for all institutional travel and for annual contributions to NCAA sports development and youth programs, such as the National Youth Sports Program and the Volunteers for Youth.

Greyhound will provide the lowest rate available in any market for any institutional travel that deals with NCAA championships or play-offs, any in-season competition and nonathletics travel.

The company will provide a volume discount based on the amount of chartered dollars that

Computer will shorten time to obtain results in voting

The computer-assisted electronic voting procedure to be used for roll-call votes at the special Convention could take a minimum of 13 minutes from the time the ballots are marked until the results are compiled.

A test of the system, which incorporates two IBM PCXTs and four Scan-Tron 1200 scanners, "went very well," according to Louis J. Spry, NCAA controller. "We ran through the system in various ways, looking for the worst-case scenario to try to correct any hitches in the system."

Preprinted ballots will be included in registration packets and presharpened No. 2 pencils will be provided to delegates. Ballots will be personalized with the name of the institution, division and proposal number, and extra ballots will be included in the packet in case more roll-call votes are requested. Voting paddles also will be included in the registration packets for non-roll-call votes.

At the time of the voting, delegates will select the appropriate ballots to be marked "yes," "no" or "abstain." Once the ballots are marked, members of the Voting Committee will collect ballots from their respective sectors

Presidents should get off their soapboxes and act

By Blackie Sherrod
The Dallas Morning News

College presidents are great ones for soapboxes. In fact, if you locked a dozen college presidents and a dozen U.S. senators in a room with just one television camera, somebody would get hurt.

Why, just the other day, the head guy at Florida found access to a dais and declaimed, by golly, we are going to have to clean up college athletics. I fully expected him or one of his peers to take a firm stand also against pellagra, snakebite and the Red menace in South America.

For some reason, it reminded me of a statement once uttered by Mr. Lyndon Baines Johnson from his platform in the White House. The memorable words came during the Watts riots in Los Angeles, the start of a great American heritage.

"Killing, rioting and looting are contrary to the best traditions of this country," said Mr. Johnson. Apparently, Mr. Johnson or his underlings had done considerable research on the subject and could find nowhere in the Constitution where our founding fathers endorsed high-tailing it with somebody else's television set.

Anyway, the Hon. Marshall Criser was here in town for the College Football Association meet and told his audience that "we are going to have to clean up our acts." He said it was about time to get started, by gum. Mr. Criser is a newcomer to the college presidency business, having recently left a law practice to assume command of the listing Gator craft. Therefore, he may be excused for a decided lack of originality. This thought was first expressed, I believe, by Mary Baker Eddy or perhaps it was Pliny the Elder.

However, Mr. Criser is understandably disturbed because his school, for acts performed before his arrival, has been severely flogged by the NCAA disciplinary committee. And just recently, his fellow members of the Southeastern Conference stripped the Gators of the league football championship. This hurt doubly, of course, because it was the first one Florida had ever won.

Columnary Craft

dating back to Ponce De Leon. This was like finally managing a social engagement with Miss Dyan Cannon and discovering she had just won a garlic-tasting contest.

College athletics has been crying out for sanitation for the past, oh, quarter-century. This possibly coincides with the influx of big television bucks into the picture. The bigger the pot, the stronger the temptation to palm an ace. There's nothing wrong with television sports, you understand; it's just that the heavy revenue thereof does magnify problems. We must admit that right now, the need for athletics reform has reached new proportions.

The college folks face four main dangers to their public image. Never mind what is right and wrong philosophically; it is the public image that causes most concern among college administrators. The problems: (1) illegal recruiting and later sustentation of jocks; (2) lack of educational progress of jocks; (3) possibility of tampering with point spreads because of gambling interests, and (4) drugs.

You know that the college public image has been severely tarnished, because the college presidents have finally dealt themselves a hand. For years, the good doctors have smiled benignly and looked the other direction, as a commodore might stand in his wheelhouse and gaze at the beautiful sunset, while below, the crew flails each other cross-eyed with belaying pins.

It always should have been the presidents' problem. Hell, don't ask the coaches themselves to police their ranks. Most of them are too busy trying to survive. The presidents have every authority and every chance. Two years ago, an NCAA committee recommended much, much higher educational requirements for jocks, to go into effect after a 3½-year preparatory period. Immediately the detractors started screaming, as the critics quickly attacked President Reagan's tax-reform proposal. It is highly probable the college presidents will allow those requirements to be watered down considerably by the time they become official.

The NCAA Presidents Commission has recommended much harsher penalties for recruiting violators. A new get-tough policy. Already there is movement to soften that proposition also. The presidents can hold fast or they can bend, back into the old blindfolded pattern. The decision is in their lap and nobody else's. When it comes time to vote on the sterner measures, it will be most intriguing to inspect the individual ballots.

Commission unified on proposals

"Never before has the NCAA convened (special NCAA Convention) at the request of its presidents and never to deal with an agenda proposed by the presidents.

"I think you could sum up our (Presidents Commission) attitude as believing we have few problems in Division III athletics but that the problems in Division I discredit all of higher education.

"The commission was unanimous on these (legislative) proposals. There was no divisional hostility, and we will work to prevent any from developing at the Convention.

"Our role in Division III is that of persuasion. Division III people aren't going to outvote Division I on the Commission; although on the floor, we can outnumber Division I substantially.

"We won't succeed in having everyone (all NCAA CEOs) there, but we will have their surrogates with specific instructions. And this Convention, you could say, is the first product of the Presidents Commission. That's momentous."

"When Georgetown distributed 1,460 new diplomas this spring, Ewing was among the recipients. At age 22, he had earned a degree in fine arts, and he did it in four years at a school that takes academics at least as seriously as it does basketball.

"Schools whose graduation rates among athletes are embarrassingly low ought to take a hard look at Georgetown. And at Ewing. And at Georgetown basketball coach John Thompson. They have proved education and athletics to be compatible.

"Those for whom basketball is merely entertainment should be happy with the new rule instituting a 45-second shot clock. Those for whom it is something more—a game of strategy as well as tactic, of art and guile as well as speed and strength—will be disappointed.

"It's easy to understand the pressure that produced this decision. Televised college basketball is under the same commercial gun as corporate (professional) ball. Much of the audience bores easily. It wants action. It doesn't want to watch a bunch of guys passing the ball around for three minutes, for five minutes or maybe more before trying to make a basket.

Looking Back

This is the fifth special Convention in the NCAA's 79-year history—and all five of the special meetings have occurred in a 12-year period.

It is the first special Convention to be called by the Presidents Commission, which was not in existence until 1984.

It is the first time the Association ever has held a Convention of any kind in the month of June. All other NCAA Conventions through the years have been in January, August or December.

It is the third time the NCAA has held a Convention in New Orleans. The first was the Association's 32nd annual Convention, December 28-30, 1937, at the St. Charles Hotel. The second was the 74th annual Convention, January 7-9, 1980, at the Fairmont Hotel.

(The Association will return to New Orleans quickly, however. The 80th annual Convention is scheduled January 13-15, 1986, at the New Orleans Hilton Riverside and Towers.)

Special Conventions can be called only for special purposes, as set forth in the call of the meeting. This one deals with the issues of integrity and economics in athletics, as specified by the Presidents Commission.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

The NCAA had for years enforced a transfer rule at the Division III level that did not extend immediate eligibility to athletes coming from Division I or II schools. It was there to ensure the ideal of what we all call the student-athlete. It also helped to ensure that the athletes were a reflection of the student body of that institution and not an athletically gifted entity who would have a one-season career dominated by the locker room, not the classroom.

Now, we are closing out the first year under wide-open transfers into Division III programs. It is time to closely evaluate the effects of this new rule and also what type of ramifications can be expected in the future. Is it a beneficial rule or not? Will it help to perpetuate the strong student-athlete type of image Division III has come to reflect? Will it motivate Division III coaches to search out and perhaps entice Division I or II athletes to leave the program of their initial commitment to go to a program where they may be the so-called "big fish in a small pond"?

The evaluation cannot be made on whether we are adding bigger, stronger and faster athletes to our programs, but rather on what is best for Division III. In many ways, we have the last bastion of amateur athletics in conjunction with legitimate scholastic expectations that exists in today's society. To ensure its continuation is well worth all of our time and consideration.

"Statistics are fine, but statistics never tell the whole story (in reference to an NCAA study that shows 26 percent of athletes entering college in 1977 graduated in four years compared with 37 percent of all students). A lot of universities build their reputations based on (college) board scores of their entering freshmen.

"That means they have good students. Some universities take a challenge and provide an opportunity for everyone. When you take that philosophy, naturally your percentage of graduation is not going to be as high.

"Your goal is to have everybody graduate. That's the measuring stick, but it goes a little further than that.

"This is something I believe very strongly: Were it not for basketball, many youngsters would have absolutely no contact with education and would be deprived of that. There are abuses...but the abuses that take place in intercollegiate athletics are far outweighed by the benefits."

Legislative Assistance

1985 Column No. 25

Basketball, football recruiting calendar and summer camps

Football and men's basketball coaches in Division I and Division II and women's basketball coaches in Division I are subject to the restrictions set forth in NCAA Bylaws 1-2-(a)-(4), (5) and (6) and Bylaw 1-3 regarding the contact and evaluation of prospective student-athletes, except during direct involvement in the operation of a summer camp. The interaction during summer sports camps with prospects who are eligible to attend the camps has not been subject to the recruiting calendar for those coaches employed by the camp. However, coaches wishing to attend camps as observers must comply with appropriate contact and evaluation periods. [Note: The provisions of Bylaws 1-2-(a)-(5) and 1-3 apply to women's basketball in Division II beginning August 1, 1985.]

Conference season-end tournaments — basketball

A number of questions have been raised in response to Legislative Assistance Column No. 23, published in the June 5, 1985, issue of The NCAA News, as it relates to conference season-end tournaments in basketball. In this regard, O.I. 309 (page 82, 1985-86 NCAA Manual) states that if a conference conducts a regularly scheduled, season-end, single-elimination tournament (which may include one additional contest to determine third place) among some or all of its members, the game or games played by each team shall count as one of the permissible regular-season contests as specified in Bylaw 3-3-(a)-(1). This being the case, the provisions of Bylaw 3-3-(d), which exempt conference season-end tournaments from counting toward the maximum number of contests or dates of competition, apply to sports other than basketball and football.

Core curriculum report form

The Academic Requirements Committee has recommended the development of a national reporting form for use by high schools to certify core-curriculum courses in administering Bylaw 5-1-(j). The committee endorsed the concept of a national reporting form to reduce the amount of paperwork that might be required of the high school in preparing reports for a number of collegiate institutions and to provide consistent information upon which all Division I institutions could base their certification of a particular student-athlete's eligibility under Bylaw 5-1-(j). The proposed form will be reviewed by the NCAA Council at its August 14-16 meeting.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question that it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Stephen R. Morgan, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

restructuring of the NCAA, and the delegates established Divisions I, II and III at that special meeting. Total attendance was 573, including 407 voting members (376 institutions, 31 conferences). The Convention considered 14 proposals.

August 14-15, 1975

Regency Hyatt House, Chicago, Illinois. This was the Association's so-called "economy Convention," restricted to economic measures in athletics. From this meeting came such regulations as the current grant limitations in football and basketball, reduced limitations in other sports, recruiting restrictions and recruiting periods, limitations on the number of paid visits by prospects, coaching-staff limitations, and elimination of the $15 per month for incidental expenses as part of an athletics grant-in-aid. Total attendance was 821, including 488 voting members (455 institutions, 33 conferences). The Convention faced 181 proposals and did not complete them.

Stouffer's Riverfront Inn, St. Louis, Missouri. This gathering was called to deal with all unconsidered or postponed proposals from the second special Convention five months earlier; no additional proposals were permitted. It was held on the day prior to the 70th annual Convention and at the same site. Few new economy measures were adopted; most of the proposals were defeated, including limitations on season length in all sports. Division III voted to eliminate spring football at this special session, and limitations were adopted on game scouting for all divisions. Total attendance was 972, including 530 voting members (494 institutions, 36 conferences). The delegates dealt with 79 proposals.

December 3-4, 1981

Stouffer's Riverfront Inn, St. Louis, Missouri. The fourth special Convention was limited to matters of the Association's division structure, and the delegates rejected the concept of a Division IV, strengthened the Division I-A football criteria (resulting in the current composition of that subdivision), adopted more demanding Division I basketball criteria and generally stiffened the requirements for Division I membership. Total attendance was 740, including 405 voting members (364 institutions, 41 conferences). The Convention included 28 proposals.

Convention hotel

The Hyatt Regency in New Orleans is the site of the special NCAA Convention June 20-21. The hotel is situated in the downtown area adjacent to the Louisiana Superdome. The hotel is within walking distance of the business and financial district and many of the city's cultural and entertainment attractions.

Special Convention legislation examined in detail

[Editor's Note: Following is a summary of the 12 proposals to be voted upon by delegates to the special Convention in New Orleans. More detailed explanations of the proposals were featured in a five-part series in The NCAA News issues of May 15, 22, and 29 and June 5 and 12. The proposals themselves were mailed to the membership May 6.]

Proposal No. 1

Topic: Self-study of athletics programs.

Source: NCAA Presidents Commission and NCAA Council.

Voting: Constitution 4-2; requires two-thirds majority approval of all divisions. Roll call.

Intent: To require an institution, as a condition and obligation of membership in the NCAA, to conduct a self-study of its intercollegiate athletics programs at least once every five years. The NCAA Council would prescribe the format and content of the self-study, and the results would be available for examination by an authorized representative of the Association.

Effective Date: August 1, 1986.

Considerations: In the Commission survey of chief executive officers across the country, 89 percent favored a self-study requirement, including 87 percent in Division I, 92 percent in Division II and 88 percent in Division III. The Association is negotiating with American Institutes for Research (which conducted the Commission's survey) to develop the self-study materials. Self-study would cover institutional purpose and athletics philosophy, authority of the CEO in personnel and financial affairs, athletics organization and administration, finances, personnel, sports programs, recruiting policies, services for student-athletes, and student-athlete profiles.

Proposal No. 2

Topic: Academic reporting.

Source: NCAA Presidents Commission and NCAA Council.

Voting: Bylaw 5-6; Division I only, majority approval required. Roll call.

Intent: To establish an academic-reporting program requiring each Division I member institution, as a condition for eligibility for NCAA championships, to report annually to the NCAA certain specific information regarding academic matters, including entrance requirements, special admissions, student-athletes' high school grade-point averages and national test scores (football and basketball players only), compliance with continuing eligibility requirements in all sports, and graduation rates.

Effective Date: August 1, 1986.

Considerations: In the CEO survey, 80 percent of Division I-A presidents and 73 percent in Division I as a whole favored an academic-reporting requirement. The information regarding regular and special admissions and regarding graduation rates would be reported for both student-athletes and students in general. The proposal includes a specific graduation-rate definition so all would measure that factor in the same manner. The reporting would include the specified degree program pursued by each student-athlete who graduated. No institution would be identified publicly; all information would be publicized by the Council, but in groupings of similar institutions (public, private; enrollment; location) so anonymity is assured for any given institution. The first reports would be due to the NCAA by October 1, 1986.

Proposal No. 3

Topic: Enforcement.

Source: NCAA Presidents Commission and NCAA Council.

Voting: Several different voting requirements: Constitution 3-2 and 4-6(d), two-thirds majority approval of all divisions; Bylaw 9-5, majority approval of each of the three divisions; amendments to enforcement procedure, majority approval of all divisions voting together. Roll call.

Intent: To establish distinctions between "major" and "secondary" violations of NCAA rules and regulations, to establish specific penalties for each category, to establish additional specific penalties for repeated violations (a second major violation in a five-year period), to authorize specific disciplinary or corrective actions for institutional staff members found to be in violation of NCAA regulations, and to authorize the assistant executive director for enforcement to impose penalties for secondary violations (subject to review by and appeal to the Committee on Infractions) as a means of streamlining the enforcement procedure.

Effective Date: August 1, 1986.

Considerations: In the survey, 79 percent favored classification of penalties by severity, with specified penalties for each level of violation (85 percent favored it in Division I and in Division I-A). 82 percent (85 in Division I) favored applying specific sanctions automatically to institutions found guilty of repeated or serious violations. 86 percent favored suspending, reassigning or dismissing coaches found guilty of serious or repeated violations. A detailed review of the proposed enforcement changes appears on this page.

Proposal No. 4

Topic: Coaches' penalties.

Source: NCAA Presidents Commission and NCAA Council.

Voting: Bylaw 5-6(d)-(3); majority approval by any division wishing to adopt proposal; enforcement procedure amendment, majority approval of all divisions voting together. Roll call.

Intent: To require that any restriction imposed upon an institution's coaching staff member by the Committee on Infractions (or as a result of the show-cause provisions of the enforcement procedure) must be applied to the coach even if he or she is employed by an institution other than the one at which the violations occurred.

Effective Date: Immediately (upon Convention adjournment).

Considerations: The survey indicated that 62 percent of the CEOs (67 percent in Division I-A and 68 percent in Division I) favored a rule that would prohibit an institution from employing any coach found guilty of serious or repeated violations; the Commission noted legal considerations regarding such a prohibition and developed Proposal No. 4 instead. The proposal is designed to stop a coach from escaping penalties by moving to another institution.

Proposal No. 5

Topic: Student-athlete's accountability.

Source: NCAA Presidents Commission and NCAA Council.

Voting: Resolution; majority approval by all divisions voting together. Roll call.

Intent: To direct the NCAA Council to develop legislation for the 1986 annual Convention to ensure that student-athletes are held accountable for serious violations of the rules in which they knowingly participate, and to direct the NCAA Eligibility Committee to restore the eligibility of a student-athlete only when circumstances clearly warrant restoration.

Effective Date: Immediately and as specified in the resolution.

Considerations: Divisions I-A and I presidents favor declaring a student-athlete permanently ineligible if the student is guilty of repeated or serious violations (76 percent in I-A and 73 percent in I as a whole). Similarly, 93 percent in I-A and 90 percent in I believe that rules violations and improper behavior by student-athletes represent a problem in athletics. The proposed Council legislation would be reviewed by the Commission in October.

Proposal No. 6

Topic: Budget control.

Source: NCAA Presidents Commission and NCAA Council.

Voting: Constitution 3-2; two-thirds majority approval of all divisions. Roll call.

Intent: To require that each member institution's annual budget for intercollegiate athletics shall be controlled by the institution and subject to its normal budgeting procedures and that the budget be approved by the chief executive officer or the CEO's designee.

Effective date: Immediately.

Considerations: Survey respondents were not in doubt on this issue: 96 percent said it is a major necessity that the athletics budget be subject to final approval by institutional administrators; the same percentage said the CEO should have ultimate control of the athletics budget. A similar proposal was withdrawn by the Commission in last January's Convention; Proposal Nos. 6 and 7 represent a revision of the January offering. If the CEO designates someone for the budget approval, it must be an institutional administrator from outside the athletics department.

Proposal No. 7

Topic: Annual audit.

Source: NCAA Presidents Commission and NCAA Council.

Voting: Constitution 3-2; two-thirds majority approval of all divisions. Roll call.

Intent: To require that an annual audit of all expenditures for an institution's intercollegiate athletics program be conducted by an individual from outside the institution selected for that purpose by the institution's CEO or the CEO's designee.

Effective date: Immediately.

Considerations: In the survey, 87 percent of the CEOs favored such an audit by institutional or independent auditors, and the figure was 91 percent in Division I-A. The outside individual would have to be a qualified auditor who is not a staff member of the institution. Again, if the CEO designates someone to select the auditor, it must be an institutional administrator from outside the athletics department. The audit would be in addition to any regular financial audit policies and procedures of the institution, and the audit report would be given to the CEO. To be audited would be any funds spent for or in behalf of the athletics program, whether they are from general institutional funds; funds generated by the athletics department, or moneys from outside organizations, agencies or groups of individuals. That includes booster clubs and foundations.

Proposal No. 8

Topic: Playing seasons.

Source: NCAA Presidents Commission and NCAA Council.

Voting: Resolution; majority approval by all divisions voting together. Roll call.

Intent: To state that the membership does not favor an increase in the permissible number of regular-season contests or dates of competition in any sport, specifically including football and basketball; to direct the NCAA Council to prepare legislation for the January 1986 Convention to permit a member institution's basketball team to participate in only one of the competitive opportunities that do not count toward the contest limitation in that sport.

Effective date: Immediately and as specified in the resolution.

Considerations: In the survey, the question posed to the chief executives was whether playing seasons should be limited more than they are now. That elicited a 48 percent favorable

A review of proposed enforcement changes

A proposed revision of NCAA enforcement procedures to be sponsored at the June special Convention by the NCAA Presidents Commission and the NCAA Council would categorize all violations of NCAA regulations as "secondary" or "major," with specific penalties for each category. In addition, there would be a separate, additional set of penalties for repeated major violations.

Following is a summary of the proposed enforcement provisions:

Secondary violations

Definition: The violation provides a limited recruiting or competitive advantage, if any, or the violation was relatively isolated or inadvertent in nature.

The assistant executive director for enforcement would determine whether an alleged violation was secondary or major. If determined to be secondary, the assistant executive director for enforcement would determine if no penalty is warranted or, if appropriate, require that a penalty or penalties be imposed.

All actions by the assistant executive director for enforcement in regard to secondary violations would be reported to the Committee on Infractions and subject to appeal to that committee. In addition, all disciplinary or corrective actions taken by the assistant executive director for enforcement or the Committee on Infractions in cases involving secondary violations would be published in The NCAA News.

Penalties for secondary violations would include one or more of the following:

- Termination of the recruitment of the prospective student-athlete by the institution or, if the prospect enrolls or has enrolled in the institution, permanent ineligibility to represent the institution in intercollegiate competition unless eligibility is restored by the NCAA Eligibility Committee.

- Forfeiture of contests in which an ineligible student-athlete participated.

- Prohibition of the head coach or other staff members in the involved sport from participation in any off-campus recruiting activities for one year.

- An institutional fine for each violation, ranging in total from $500 to $5,000.

- A limited reduction in the number of either initial or total financial aid awards that may be awarded during a specified period in the sport involved, but not more than 20 percent of the maximum number normally permissible in that sport.

- Institutional recertification that its current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

Major violations

Definition: Any violation that is not determined to be secondary, specifically including those that provide an extensive recruiting or competitive advantage. In addition, repeated secondary violations will be identified as major violations.

Violations identified as major would be handled by the Committee on Infractions, as is currently the case, and the committee's actions would continue to be subject to appeal to the Council.

Penalties for major violations could continue to include any of those in Enforcement Procedure 7-(b), pages 211-212 of the 1985-86 Manual; however, the minimum penalty for a major violation would include all of the following:

- A two-year probationary period, including a periodic in-person monitoring system and written institutional reports; and

- Elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits to the institution in the involved sport for one recruiting year; and

- A requirement that all coaching staff members in the sport be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities for one recruiting year; and

- A requirement that all institutional staff members determined knowingly to have engaged in or condoned a major violation be subject to termination of employment, or to suspension without pay for at least one year, or to reassignment of duties within the institution to a position that does not include contact with prospective or enrolled student-athletes or representatives of the institution's athletics interests for at least one year; and

- One year of sanctions precluding postseason competition in the sport; and

- One year of television sanctions in the sport, and

- Institutional recertification that its current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

If the Committee on Infractions determined to vary from those minimum penalties in any way, it would be required to state specific reasons for doing so.

Repeat violations

Definition: An institution would be considered a "repeat" violator if any major violation is found within a five-year period from the starting date of an earlier major penalty, regardless of the sport involved.

Cases of repeat violations would be handled by the Committee on Infractions, subject to appeal to the NCAA Council.

Penalties for a repeat violator would include, at a minimum, all of the following:

- Prohibition of all outside competition in the sport involved in the latest major violation for one or two seasons in that sport, and prohibition of all coaching staff members in that sport from involvement directly or indirectly in any coaching activities at the institution during a two-year period; and

- Elimination of all initial grants-in-aid and all recruiting activities in the sport involved in the latest major violation for a two-year period; and

- A requirement that all institutional staff members serving on the NCAA Presidents Commission, Council, Executive Committee or other committee of the Association resign those positions; all institutional representatives would be ineligible to serve on any NCAA committee for a period of four years; and

- A requirement that the institution relinquish its voting privilege in the Association for a four-year period.

As in major violations, if the Committee on Infractions determined to vary from those minimum penalties in any way, it would be required to state specific reasons for doing so.

Team up with Greyhound[®] and see what kind of sports we really are.

Charter Greyhound, and we'll return up to 10% of your school's billings.

Every time you ride with us — from athletic teams to the band and other college organizations — you're helping to build the total amount of NCAA charter billings on Greyhound. And that adds up to big returns for your school.

With our new game plan, as the total NCAA volume figure grows, the percentage of billings that are returned to you will grow as well. Up to a maximum 10% rate of return that goes directly to the athletic department.

So when you go Greyhound[®], you're getting more than our reputation for safety, service and reliability. You're getting a new way to keep expenses down.

When you're ready to plan your charters for the season, call us at 1-800-USA-NCAA. We'll give you more information and immediate charter quotes. And your Greyhound NCAA sales representative will contact you soon afterwards.

This year, put a good sport on your team. Choose Greyhound charters all season long.

'Must' places to stop during a two-day visit

With just two days in New Orleans, and most of that time spent at the NCAA special Convention, sightseeing opportunities will be at a minimum. However, given the limited amount of time, here's a few places that are recommended and can be squeezed into almost any schedule.

David Wilson, manager of the famous Brennan's restaurant, suggested seeing the entire French Quarter. Within the district that offers numerous boutiques, gift shops, fascinating architecture and a great deal of local history are the French Market and Jackson Square.

The French Market, a shopping area, is adjacent to the Mississippi River, where riverboat trips are available, and the scenery is perfect for pictures. Jackson Square is an art-lover's delight. Populated by artists specializing in virtually every medium, the visitor to New Orleans is sure to find something unique to take home. A streetcar ride through the Garden District could be the perfect way to relax and take in one of the city's older, more picturesque residential areas, framed with stately oak and maple trees.

The Audubon Zoological Gardens, New Orleans' zoo, "has become, in the past seven or eight years, one of the finest in the country," Wilson said.

When you're hungry, New Orleans offers a variety of restaurants and regional food second to none. An area near Lake Pontchartrain is famous for its many seafood offerings, and Bourbon Street offers not only good food, but a chance to tap your feet to some down-home jazz.

If in the short period of time available for sightseeing and taste-testing you find yourself with some extra minutes, Wilson didn't hesitate to suggest "having breakfast or dinner at Brennan's."

Most places are a few minutes from the hotel.

Considerations: The proposal is intended to save institutions unnecessary expense by assuring the rule-making sports committees the time necessary to develop exception provisions in the rules, especially in those instances where a playing rule is more administrative than competition-based in nature... Women's basketball is exempted from the delay at the request of women's basketball interests.

Eligible vote total is 857

A total of 857 votes could be cast on any given issue affecting the entire NCAA membership if every eligible voting member were to attend the special NCAA Convention in New Orleans.

That total is one less than the 858 possible votes last January.

The total includes 784 active member institutions and 73 voting conferences. By division, there are 284 eligible voting institutions and 36 voting conferences in Division I, 187 institutions and 15 conferences in Division II, and 313 institutions and 22 conferences in Division III.

Within the Division I total, there are 105 institutions and nine conferences in Division I-A, 87 institutions and nine conferences in I-AA, and 92 institutions and 18 conferences in I-AAA.

Within the overall voting eligibility, there are certain voting restrictions: All-male institutions and conferences cannot vote on issues relating exclusively to women's athletics, and vice-versa. There are 12 all-male institutions (two in I-AA, two in II, eight in III) and 28 all-female institutions (six in II, 22 in III). Also, there are 17 all-men conferences (two in I-A, three in I-AA, five in I-AAA, one in III, six in III) and 12 all-women conferences (seven in I-AAA, one in II, four in III).

As a result, if an issue related only to women's athletics, the highest possible vote would be 828; if it related only to men's athletics, 817. The only such issue before the special Convention is Proposal No. 11, which is a women's sponsorship requirement for Division I-A. The two all-male conferences in I-A will not be eligible to vote on that proposal.

The highest count never occurs because not all members attend any given Convention, especially special Conventions. But the Division I attendance in New Orleans should be in its usual 90 percent range.

The highest actual counted vote in NCAA Convention history was 641 at the January 1984 annual Convention. It occurred when the proposal to establish a Board of Presidents with veto power over membership-adopted legislation was defeated, 313 in favor and 328 opposed; two-thirds majority approval required. The highest count at last January's Convention was 626 when the proposal to eliminate the conference's voting privilege was defeated, 334 for and 292 against; two-thirds majority approval required.

Rutgers to erect football monument

"When you think of football, you should think of New Jersey, not Ohio," says former Rutgers University, New Brunswick, football player Frank Deiner.

After all, the nation's first intercollegiate football game was played here in 1869, says Deiner, who is behind a movement to build a monument on the school's campus to celebrate that contest.

The 6-4 Scarlet Knights' victory over Princeton University was played on college field, now the parking lot of the state school's gymnasium.

"I get two, three dozen people coming in each year to ask the question: Do you have anything to commemorate that historic event?" said Frederick E. Gruninger, Rutgers' athletics director.

Assemblyman David Schwartz, D-Middlesex, said that he would introduce legislation soon to create a commission to oversee construction of a monument.

Schwartz, accompanied by Rutgers football coach Dick Anderson, announced the project June 13.

Parliamentarian

Alan J. Chapman, professor of engineering at Rice University and a past NCAA president, will serve as parliamentarian for the 14th time at the special Convention. He has served in that role at every annual Convention since 1976 and at special Conventions in 1975, 1976 and 1981.

Committees have key Convention roles

Representatives of several NCAA member institutions serving on the Voting Committee and Credentials Committee will be in New Orleans to oversee certain aspects of the special Convention.

Chaired by Col. John J. Clune, U.S. Air Force Academy, the Voting Committee is responsible for counting votes when called on by the president and for supervising of the new electronic voting procedure.

The committee is composed of at least one member from each district, with the chair appointed at large.

Other members of the committee are John D. Galaris, Salem State College; Richard B. Yoder, West Chester University of Pennsylvania; Lloyd C. Johnson, Bethune-Cookman College; Clarence Underwood, Big Ten Conference; Betty A. Hoff, Luther College; Sadie Allison, Stephen F. Austin State University; Chris Voelz, University of Oregon; Donald G. Combs, Eastern Kentucky University; Leanne Grotke, California State University, Fullerton, and Stanley V.

Col. John J. Clune

Wright, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Teaneck.

The Credentials Committee, chaired by David W. Coffey, Tennessee Technological University, has the authority to examine the credentials of delegates to the special Convention. It can determine the authority of any delegate to vote or represent a member, although that determination is subject to appeal to the Convention.

Other Credentials Committee members are Jane Goss, Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania, and Frank Mach, College of St. Thomas (Minnesota).

Atlantic 10 drops three-point play

The trend in the NCAA is to play basketball without the three-point field goal and the Atlantic 10 Conference plans to follow the trend, Commissioner Charles Theokas says.

The conference voted June 17 to do away with the three-point field goal, the Associated Press reported.

"There seems to be a trend toward not having the three-point play in college basketball," said Theokas. "From what we had learned, only a few conferences were going to petition the NCAA to use the three-point goal this year."

Theokas was the big backer of the three-point goal last year, saying it added excitement to the game and was well-liked by the fans.

However, coaches didn't seem to like it and it did not have much support at this meeting.

"Unless the NCAA instituted the three-point field goal, we could not see our conference going with it," Theokas said.

Postgraduate scholarships awarded to 45 in 'other' sports

Postgraduate scholarships of $2,000 each have been awarded by the NCAA to 45 student-athletes (25 men, 20 women) in sports other than football and basketball.

The Association annually awards 90 postgraduate scholarships to student-athletes who have excelled on the field and in the classroom. In addition to the 45 awards given to student-athletes in "other" sports, 20 awards are presented to men and women who participate in basketball, and 25 scholarships are awarded in football.

Faculty athletics representatives at NCAA member institutions nominate student-athletes for scholarships. Official forms are returned to the NCAA national office, along with a copy of the nominee's transcript. Each institution can nominate two student-athletes.

Selection of the 45 winners was made by the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee, which is chaired by Fred Jacoby, commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference.

The NCAA postgraduate scholarship program has presented scholarships to 1,624 student-athletes, worth $2,304,000, since its creation in 1964. To qualify, a student-athlete must maintain a minimum 3.000 grade-point average on a 4.000 scale (or its equivalent) and perform with distinction in a varsity sport.

Following are the 1984 men's postgraduate scholarship winners in sports other than football and basketball. The women's winners will be published in The NCAA News issue of July 3, by which time they will have been notified of their selection.

Men's Division I

Bengt Baron (swimming, University of California, Berkeley, 3.745 grade-point average in business administration) — He scored more team points in more events than anyone in California swimming history. From 1982 to 1985, Baron was an all-America in 18 events and won NCAA 1985 individual titles as a member of the winning 400-yard and 800-yard freestyle relay teams. As a member of the Swedish Olympic team, Baron won a gold medal in the 100-meter backstroke in 1980 and a bronze medal in the 400-meter freestyle relay in 1984. From April 1981 to January 1985, the senior from Finspang, Sweden, was the world record holder in the 100-meter backstroke (25-meter pool). He earned CoSIDA academic all-America honors in the 1984-85 season. He plans to obtain a master's degree in business, with an emphasis in international business.

Edward Dale Eystone (track and cross country, Brigham Young University, 3.660 in psychology) — Eystone won the 1984 NCAA Division I Cross Country Championship and placed sixth in The Athletics Congress World

Cross Country 1984 Championships. He won NCAA outdoor track championships in the 5,000 and 10,000-meter runs. He is a three-time member of the U.S. Cross Country Team and was a member of the U.S. Olympic Team in 1984. The 24-year-old served a church mission to Spain for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints from 1980 to 1982. Eystone was the 1983, 1984 and 1985 recipient of the Western Athletic Conference scholar-athlete award. Eystone will enter a graduate program in sports psychology at Brigham Young.

John Phillip Giura (wrestling, University of Wisconsin, 3.286 in art history) — A three-time Big Ten Conference runner-up in the 142-pound weight class, he was an NCAA all-America from 1983 through 1985. He participated in the Athletes Against Cancer program and is a member of St. Paul's Catholic Center. He plans to pursue graduate work in art history, possibly working toward a Ph.D.

Lawrence Bruce Hayes (swimming, University of California, Los Angeles, 3.570 in political science) — He earned all-America honors all four years. In 1985, Hayes anchored the UCLA 800-yard freestyle relay team to a third-place NCAA finish. He was a member of the 1984 U.S. Olympic team and won a gold medal in the 800-meter freestyle relay. Selected as a CoSIDA academic all-America in 1983 and 1984, he was a member of the Athletes' Advisory Council and Government Internship Association. He has spoken to many youth groups and toured four cities as a part of the Phillips 66 Tour of Champions. After graduation, he hopes to attend law school.

James Albert Mikus (gymnastics, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, 3.789 in finance) — Mikus earned NCAA all-America honors six times and is sixth all-time in individual all-America rankings. He served as varsity captain and aided Nebraska in claiming five NCAA Division I gymnastics team championships. He was a 1984 U.S. Olympic team alternate. He was named to the dean's list every semester. Mikus plans to obtain an MBA from the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania.

Lawrence Joseph Quinn (lacrosse, Johns Hopkins University, 3.120 in political science) — Quinn was first team all-America as a goalkeeper in both his junior and senior years. He led Johns Hopkins to Division I championships in 1984 and 1985 and was the recipient of the Lt. Raymond J. Enners Award as the most outstanding player in Division I in 1984 and 1985. He will study law at Fordham University.

Divisions II and III

Mark Elliot Beeman (track and cross country, Brandeis University, 3.470 in psychology) — He was a six-time all-America in track and cross country and 1984 NCAA Division III cross country champion and 1985 Division III 1,500 meters indoor champion. He was a member of the programming board, student senate athletics committee, presidential awards committee, athletics department awards committee and The Justice newspaper staff. He graduated magna cum laude and will enter the University of Oregon for graduate work in psychology.

Ettore Carlo Bianchi (fencing, Wayne State University, 4.000 in finance) — He led Wayne State to the NCAA team fencing title all four years of his collegiate career. He won the NCAA epee championship in 1984 and 1985 and was runnerup in 1983. He was named an all-America from 1983 through 1985 and first team CoSIDA academic all-America in 1984. He served as Wayne State fencing captain for four years. Bianchi was president of Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary business society, in 1984-85. He plans to enroll in an MBA program, pursuing a double major in international business and finance.

Randall Paul Cutler (baseball, Hope College, 3.959 in psychology and mathematics) — He earned the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association batting titles in 1983 (.500) and 1984 (.450) and was named all-conference catcher three years in a row (1983-85). He was chosen a CoSIDA academic all-America in 1984 and 1985. He served as copresident of the Psi Chi club, Hope's national honorary in psychology. Cutler also was a member of the Mortar Board and was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa. Cutler will enter the graduate program in clinical psychology at the University of Louisville.

Alan Henry Faust (swimming, Oakland University, 3.250 in systems engineering) — He was an NCAA all-America 12 times and led Oakland to Division II swimming finishes of second in 1981, third in 1982, and second in 1983 and 1984. He was a member of the Executive Board Council of Tau Beta Pi, the national honor society of engineers and the American Society of Mechanical Engineering. He plans to attend Washington University (Missouri) and study systems science and mathematics.

Mark Maurice Manning (wrestling, University of Nebraska, Omaha, 3.184 in physical education/exercise science) — He earned two NCAA Division II individual championships in the 150-pound weight class and was an NCAA all-America three times. He is the all-time winning wrestler at Nebraska-Omaha with 121 victories. Manning was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, a national leadership organization. He plans to pursue a master's degree in exercise physiology.

Marc C. Van Arsdale (lacrosse, Hobart College, 3.810 in history) — This year, he led Hobart to its sixth consecutive NCAA Division III lacrosse title with four goals and five assists. He was Hobart's leading scorer with 68 points. He served as president of Kappa Sigma fraternity, treasurer of the Inter-Fraternity Council and was a member of the athletics advisory board. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and graduated magna cum laude and plans to pursue a graduate degree in curriculum theory at Rochester's Graduate School of Education and Human Development.

At large

James J. Awbrey (track, Auburn University, 3.800 in chemistry) — He came to Auburn as a walk-on athlete but became Southeastern Conference champion in the decathlon in 1984, serving as team captain the past two years. Awbrey was named to the national dean's list and the dean's honor roll for five quarters. He will attend the University of Alabama at Birmingham medical school this summer.

Dave Michael Banks (baseball, Troy State University, 3.880 in mathematics and computer science) — He started four years at first base, setting 17 school records and three Gulf South Conference marks and was chosen all-Gulf South Conference in 1985. He received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award in 1985, the highest honor a male student can receive at Troy State. A member of Beta Upsilon Sigma, a school of business honor society, and Omicron Delta Kappa leadership organization, he will enter Georgia Institute of Technology in the fall to pursue a master's degree in electrical engineering.

Danny Alan Bauer (cross country and track, Simpson College, 3.843 in English and economics) — He holds all school records in cross country and 5,000 meters, winning conference cross country titles and most valuable player honors from 1982 through 1984. Bauer holds conference records in the 5,000, 10,000, indoor two-mile and cross country five-mile, and he won the 1985 NCAA indoor title in the 5,000 meters. He served as president of the Simpson chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and was a member of Sigma Tau Delta, an English honorary society, and Phi Beta Lambda, business honorary. He plans to study American literature at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale.

Mathias Per Gunnar Bostron (swimming, University of Virginia, 3.926 in physics) — Bostron was a member of the Swedish National Team and two-time finalist at the Swedish Olympic Trials. He served as Virginia's team captain and participated in Atlantic Coast Conference finals all four years. Academic honors include CoSIDA academic all-America, 1985 Atlantic Coast Conference scholar-athlete award and 1985 Virginia scholar-athlete award. He was named to Omicron Delta Kappa leadership organization, the premed honor society and dean's list. He worked in the NCAA Volunteers for Youth program and as a volunteer at the University of Virginia Hospital. Bostron will begin medical studies at Johns Hopkins in the fall.

Jens Fredrik Caap (tennis, Mercyhurst College, 3.920 in computer management information systems and international business) — He was named an all-America in 1984 and 1985, served as varsity captain and accumulated a career record of 75-22 in singles and 62-22 in doubles. He was chosen the 1984 Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches' Association Scholar-Athlete of the Year and awarded the 1985 NCAA Arthur Ashe Sportsmanship Award. Caap will pursue an MBA at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, in the fall.

David Charles Herak (tennis, University of Delaware, 3.920 in chemical engineering) — He won the East Coast Conference No. 2 doubles championship in 1983 and was named to the 1985 CoSIDA academic all-America team. Herak has received several awards, including the East Coast Conference Scholar-Athlete award in 1983-84, the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches' Association Scholar-Athlete of the Year award in 1984 and Delaware MVP honors in 1985. He was a member of the Delaware Athletic Governing Board, Tau Beta Pi national engineering honor society, and Phi Kappa Phi, a national honor society. He has been accepted into the Ph.D. program in chemical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Declan Joseph McSheffrey (soccer, University of South Alabama, 3.270 in history) — He is a four-time all-Sun Belt Conference selection, one of only two players to earn this honor. He earned Sun Belt scoring championships in 1981 and 1983, playing midfield/center forward positions, and served as team captain in 1985. McSheffrey is South Alabama's all-time goal scorer with 63 career goals and 157 career points. Academic honors include Lewis B. Curtis Award for outstanding scholarship in history, election to Omicron Delta Kappa leadership organization and Mortar Board. He will study history at South Alabama.

David Wayne Morrison (track and cross country, University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, 3.630 in mathematics) — He earned all-America honors in cross country in 1982 and 1984 and was selected to the Big Ten Conference all-conference team in cross country three years and track and field four years. He holds the varsity record in 10,000 meters (23:34.26) and served as varsity cross country captain in 1983 and 1984 and track captain in 1985. Morrison received the President's Student Leadership and Service Award. He will pursue an MBA this summer.

Robert Randall Playter (gymnastics, Ohio State University, 3.83 in aeronautical engineering) — He was an all-America in 1984 on the horizontal bar, Big Ten Conference horizontal bar champion in 1983-84 and 1984-85 and assisted the Buckeyes in winning the 1985 NCAA gymnastics team title. He finished second in balloting for the Nissen Award, the collegiate gymnastics version of the Heisman Trophy. He was chosen a CoSIDA academic all-America in 1984. He plans to work on a master's degree in aeronautical engineering.

James Joseph Sapienza Jr. (track and cross country, Dartmouth College, 3.410 in English) — He earned all-America honors seven times, including two in cross country, three in indoor track and two in outdoor track. He is one of 12 seniors to hold the Senior Fellowship, selected by the Dartmouth president in recognition of "intellectual ability, independence of character and imaginative curiosity." He was voted to one of two posts as student representative to Dartmouth College Alumni Council and Class of 1985 Executive Committee. He will attend either Indiana University, Bloomington, or the University of Virginia for graduate studies in English.

Richard Alan Schroeder (swimming, University of California, Santa Barbara, 3.520 in economics) — He scored 28 of Cal-Santa Barbara's 30 points at the NCAA championships and was named an all-America in 1984 and 1985. Schroeder participated in the 1984 Olympic Games, finishing fourth in the 200-meter breaststroke. He is a member of Golden Key National Honor Society and was on the dean's list. He plans to study for a master's degree in business economics after graduation in the spring of 1986.

Paul A. Schulz (baseball, Claremont McKenna-Harvey Mudd-Scripps Colleges, 3.873 in economics) — As a third baseman, Schulz was chosen the most valuable player for two years. He batted better than .300 all four collegiate years and produced a .381 batting average his junior and senior years combined. He was named academic all-America in 1984. Schulz served as baseball captain two years and as president of the debate team, earning Distinguished Scholar honors five times. He will be studying at Oxford University as a Rhodes scholar in October.

Patrick James Thomas (swimming, University of California, Los Angeles, 3.780 in kinesiology) — He was named an all-America three times and named to the dean's list, in addition to earning departmental accolades in kinesiology. He was a recipient of the Perry Award, UCLA's outstanding senior scholar-athlete award. Thomas served as the swim team representative on the athletics advisory committee. He worked as an orderly and instrument technician at Good Samaritan Hospital and did research on a muscular biochemical adaptations project. Thomas hopes to begin graduate studies at UCLA medical school in the fall of 1986.

Razorbacks, Tommies pace NCAA winners

The University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, and the College of St. Thomas (Minnesota) led all 1984-85 NCAA national championships contenders with three team titles each. Ten other institutions won two titles each, while — of the 78 national team championships contested — 52 schools claimed at least one crown.

Arkansas became only the second school in NCAA history to win the Division I indoor track, outdoor track and cross country team titles in the same championships year. The Razorbacks never had won a cross country team title and had only one indoor track team championship before this season.

St. Thomas earned Division III team titles in men's and women's cross country and men's indoor track. The Tommies' only other national team championship was the 1982 Division III women's cross country crown.

Division I double winners included the University of California, Los Angeles (women's volleyball and softball), and Old Dominion University (field hockey and women's basketball).

Five Division II schools each won two national championships team trophies, including California State University, Northridge (men's basketball and women's softball).

Other Division II double winners are Jacksonville State University (men's basketball and women's gymnastics), Florida Southern College (baseball, men's golf) and Abilene Christian University (men's and women's outdoor track).

In Division III, two-time team champions are the University of California, San Diego (women's volleyball and women's tennis), Trenton State College (wrestling and women's lacrosse) and Kenyon College (men's and women's swimming).

California State College, Stanislaus, remains the all-time leader in Division III with 10 team titles. The Warriors won the division's men's golf team title this season.

Committee recommends Princeton as host

In its June 10-12 meeting in Carmel, California, the NCAA Women's Fencing Committee selected Princeton University as the host institution for the 1986 Women's Fencing Championships, March 20-22.

The committee requested that a waiver of Executive Regulation I-2-(m) be granted for the 1986 championships. That regulation requires admission to be charged at all NCAA championships, and the host institution has predicted that the cost of charging admission would exceed

Stetson to join Trans America

Stetson University will become the ninth member of the Trans America Athletic Conference July 1, the conference announced June 17.

Stetson, which has 2,100 students, will not be eligible for the TAAC basketball championship until the 1986-87 season but will be eligible for TAAC championships in seven other sports immediately.

"We are pleased that such a class institution as Stetson University is going to be a member of our conference," said Commissioner Louis G. McCullough. "Not only does it have an excellent reputation of academic prestige, it also has a fine athletics program."

anticipated receipts. Princeton also will host the 1986 Men's Fencing Championships.

The committee also set team and individual allocations for the 1986 women's championships: West — two team and four individual; Midwest — three and five; Mid-Atlantic/South — four and seven; Northeast — three and seven, and at large — one individual.

The committee recommended that officials have the option of air transportation to the championships if

Basketball committee stays with 18 qualifiers

Action concerning automatic qualification, financial guarantees by prospective host institutions and possible tournament expansion highlighted the June 13-15 meeting of the NCAA Division III Men's Basketball Committee in Marco Island, Florida.

After reviewing requests for automatic qualification for the championship by 19 conferences, involving a total of 20 berths, the committee voted to recommend maintenance of the format used in 1985. If approved by the NCAA Executive Committee in August, the 17 conferences that received a total of 18 berths in 1985 (the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference received two berths in the 32-term tournament) again will receive berths in 1986.

The committee also voted to recommend that institutions interested in hosting Division III tournament games guarantee 75 percent of the projected net receipts outlined in their proposed budgets.

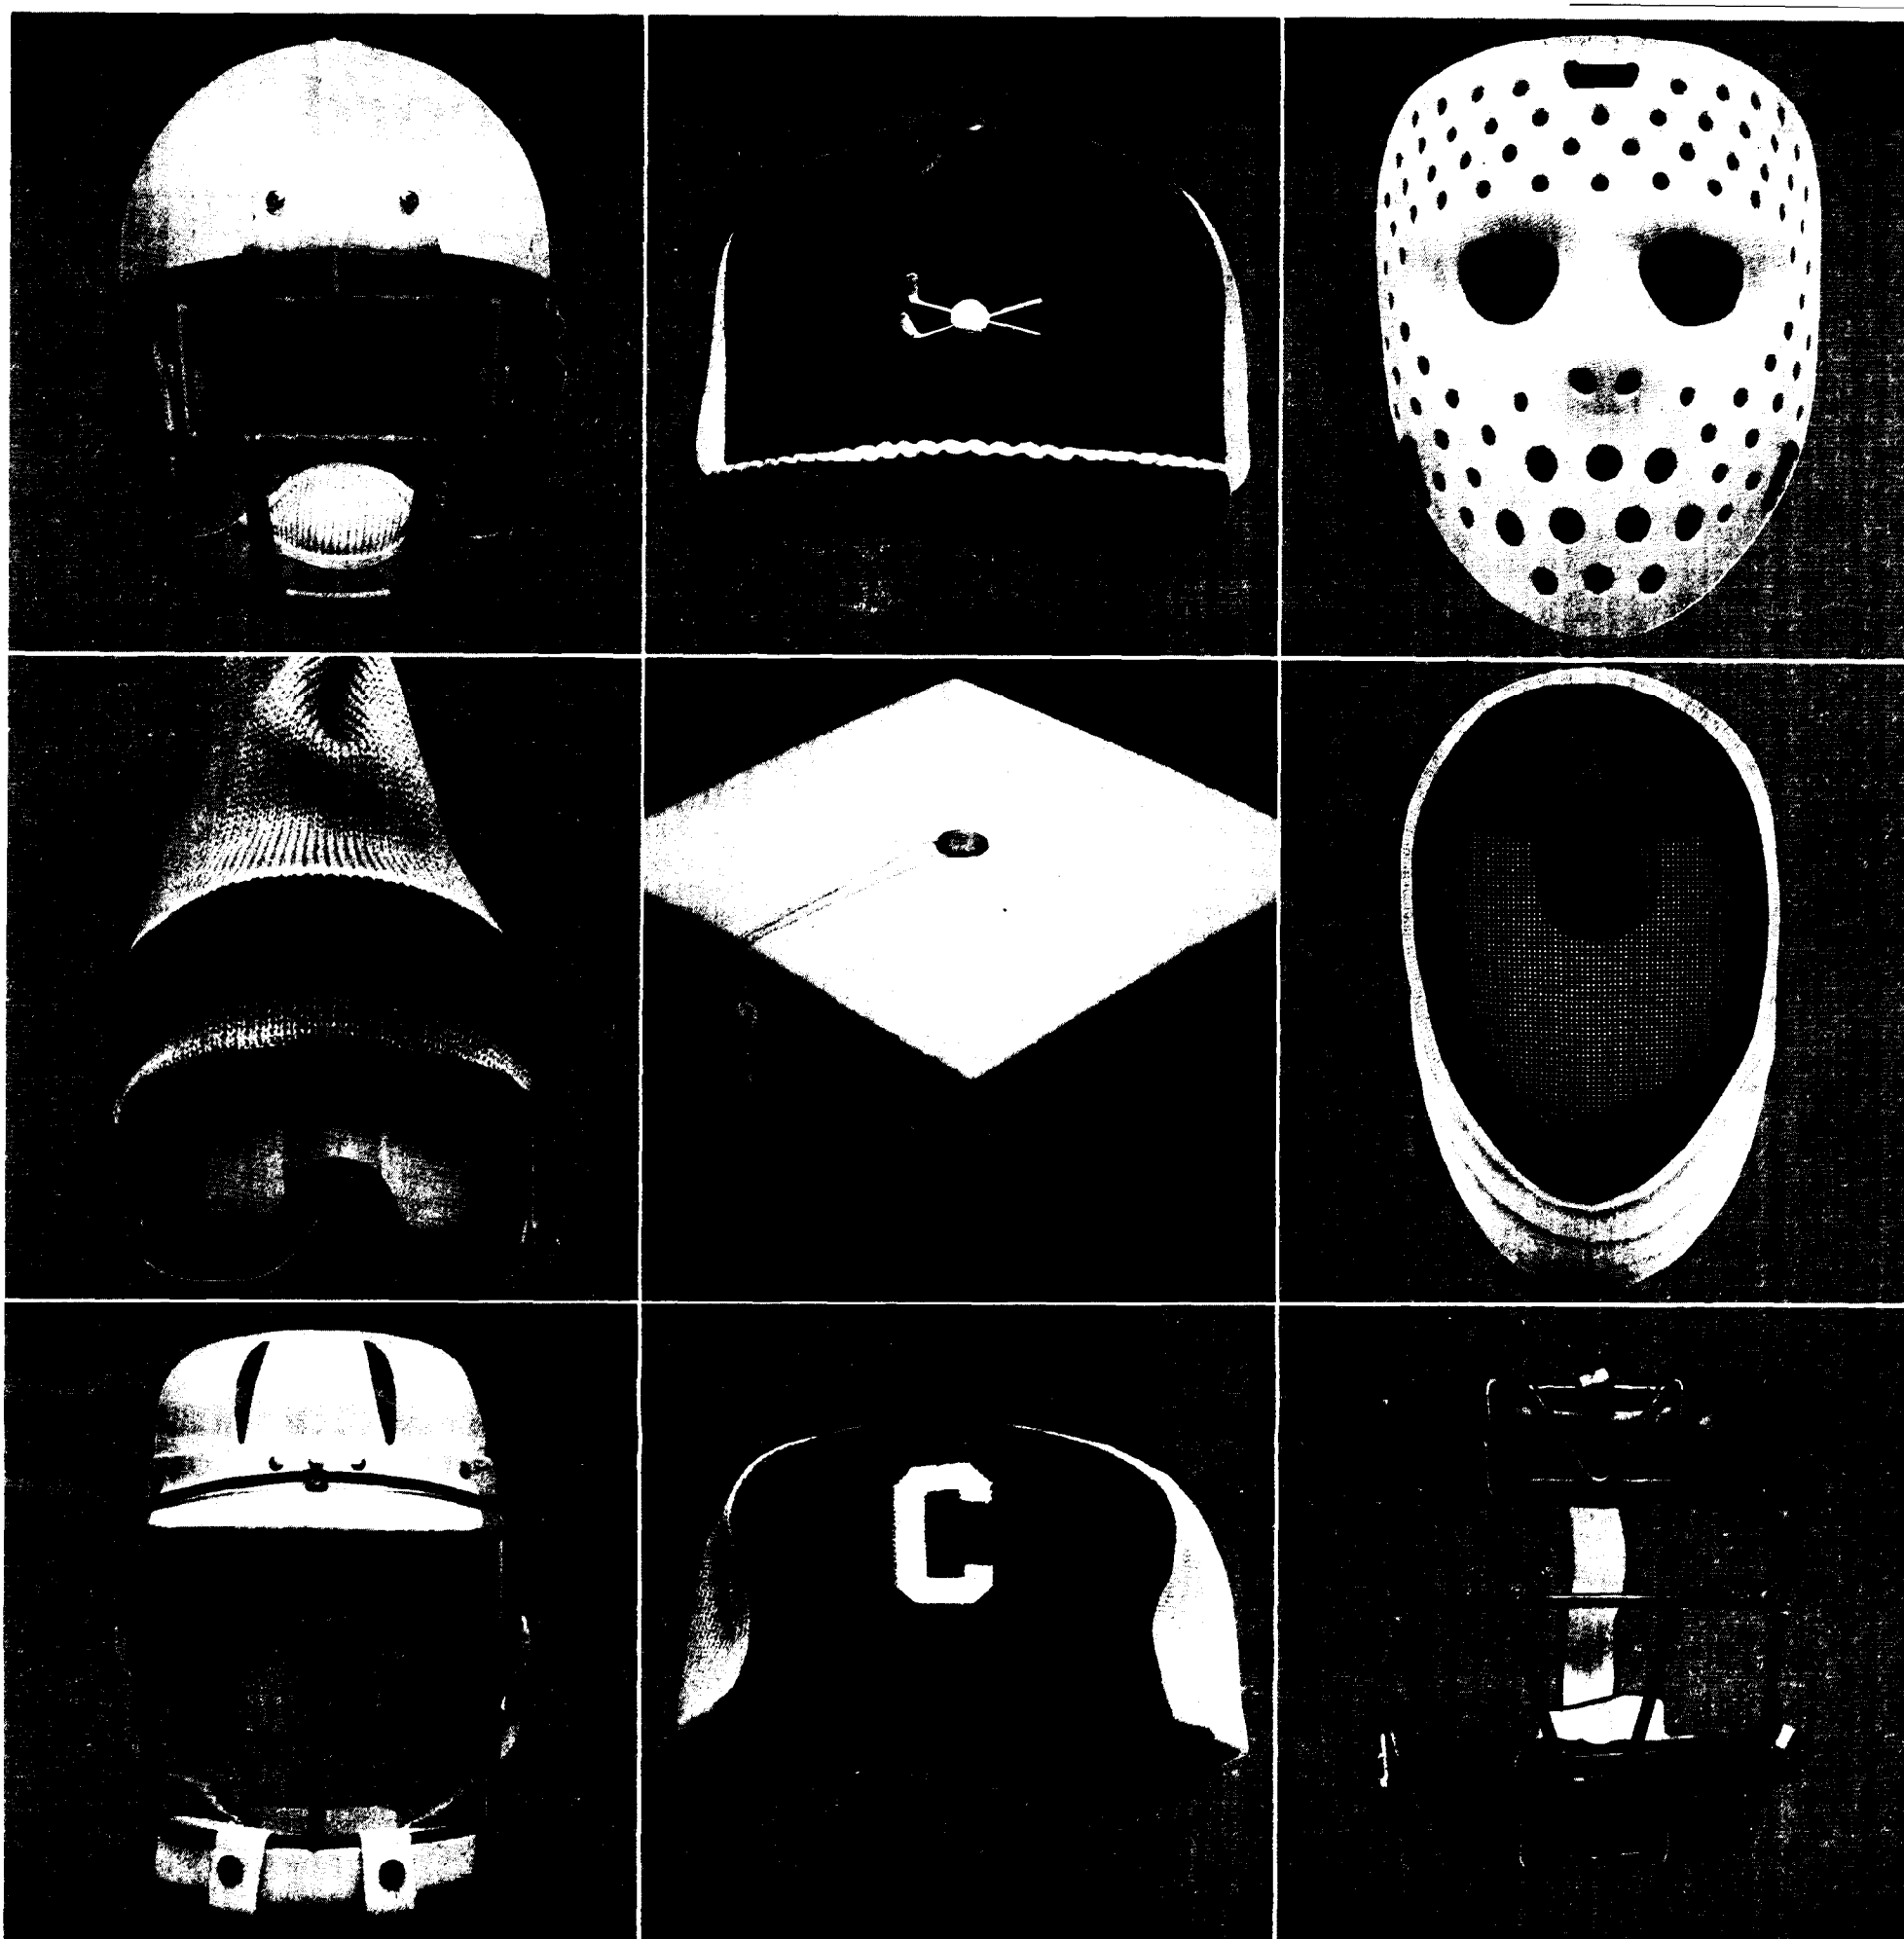

Another recommendation would increase ticket prices 50 cents for all rounds of the tournament.

The committee recommended that Calvin College, Grand Rapids, Michigan, serve as host for the 1986 championship, March 14-15.

The committee also discussed a concept developed by the Midwest regional advisory committee and supported by the National Association of Basketball Coaches that would expand the Division III bracket to 48 teams. Teams playing first-round games would be responsible for all transportation expenses.

In an attempt to develop data on support for the proposal by Division III members, the committee authorized a survey of the membership to be conducted this fall.

The committee will review the proposal and supporting data at its 1986 meeting.

ANNOUNCING THE GTE ACADEMIC ALL-AMERICANS. MORE THAN JUST ATHLETES.

They're carrying on a thirty-three-year-old tradition...

Academic All-Americans, chosen from fine college and university athletes who also have outstanding academic records.

Field set for Preseason NIT

St. John's (New York), which reached the Final Four in the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship in March, heads a 16-team field named June 13 for the first Big Apple National Invitation Preseason Tournament in November.

Officials of the tournament also announced that the 49th annual post-season NIT will be held in 1986.

The preseason tournament will take place at four regional sites November 22 and 24, and the four survivors will come to Madison Square Garden for the semifinals November 29 and the championship December 1.

St. John's, which posted a 31-4 record last season, will play Navy in the first game of a double-header at the Hartford (Connecticut) Civic Center November 22. Auburn (22-12) will play West Virginia (20-9) in the second game.

Graduation rate has improved

University of Wyoming officials say a recent survey indicating that the university's graduation rate for basketball players is one of the worst in the nation is misleading because of recent increases in the number of athletes who obtain degrees.

The survey, published in early June by USA Today, showed that the university's graduation rate for basketball players between 1972 and 1982 was slightly more than 40 percent. But university officials say that graduation rate has improved in recent years and now stands at 56 percent.

Overall, the graduation rate for all student-athletes at the university has surpassed 80 percent in recent years, said Sally Jones, the university's athletics academic counselor.

"The graduation rate has risen steadily," she said.

"Of those student-athletes who have completed their eligibility during the past seven years, 76 percent have graduated, and the rate has shown improvement every year. In addition, grade-point averages for student-athletes have risen correspondingly."

According to Jones, seven out of 10 student-athletes who completed their eligibility between 1978 and 1980 went on to graduate. In 1980-81 that figure improved to 76 percent and in 1981-82 to 78 percent, she said.

Forty-three of 52 (83 percent) university athletes who completed their collegiate careers during the 1982-83 school year graduated, and so far 76 percent of the student-athletes who completed their athletics eligibility in 1983-84 have graduated.

Syracuse will contest ruling for taxes on Carrier Dome

Syracuse University will appeal a judge's ruling that it must pay property taxes on the Carrier Dome. The university claims the dome is an educational institution and nontaxable, but the state supreme court decision cited the use of the facility for rock concerts and other profit-making events. Directors of men's athletics at the 10 Mid-America Conference schools have issued a request to all media outlets in the conference area to discontinue releasing pregame gambling information about contests involving conference teams. The athletics directors signed a statement requesting that newspapers discontinue the publication of odds, point spreads and other such material. A similar request also was directed at area television and radio stations.

Bernie LaReau was honored this month for 25 years of service by the National Athletic Trainers Association. LaReau has been with the University of Texas, San Antonio, athletics program since its inception in 1981. He also has worked in professional football and basketball. Briefly in the News

Altman, a 1978 MIT graduate, will serve as head coach. She has coached women's volleyball at the school for the past two years. With the new sport, MIT will have 34 sports teams—22 for men and 12 for women.

Eight Division III member institutions have organized the Eastern States Athletic Conference. Championships will be conducted in cross country, basketball, soccer and baseball next year. Henry R. "Ted" Taylor, athletics director at Spring Garden College, said the number of championships would be expanded and include all women's sports in the second year of operation. The conference has petitioned the NCAA for Division III recognition. In addition to Spring Garden, members are Allentown College of St. Francis de Sales, Cabrini College, Lincoln University of Pennsylvania, Frostburg State College, Mary Washington College, Salisbury State College and Shenandoah College.

The Radford University women's volleyball team achieved a team grade-point average of 3.150 (4.000 scale) for the spring semester, led by Camille Rutzinski's 3.710. Sixty-one women student-athletes at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, earned grade-point averages of 3.000 or higher (4.000 scale) for the spring semester. Six had GPAs of 4.000 and 30 registered 3.500 or higher. The overall women's department spring average was 2.880. At Temple University, 63 female and 62 male student-athletes achieved grade-point averages of 3.000 or higher (4.000 scale) for the spring semester while maintaining a minimum of 12 semester hours.

SIDs propose to cut off information to media that accept gamblers' ads

A proposal calling for sports information directors to withhold information from newspapers and magazines that run advertisements for gambling services on collegiate sports will be presented at the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) national workshop June 30 in Boston.

Bob McKone, sports information director at Pan American University and chair of the CoSIDA Gambling Awareness Committee, expects a heated debate when the proposal is presented.

"It's a hell of an issue—a conflict between the First Amendment and state statutes against gambling," McKone told the Houston Chronicle.

McKone plans to submit the following proposal: "That SIDs should withhold information from all publications—including Football News and Basketball Weekly—that carry display advertising for gambling services on collegiate sports; furthermore, that we should officially warn such publications of our actions in advance, giving them a 'grace period' to purge their publications of such gambling advertising."

McKone, a newspaperman for 15 years before becoming Pan American SID 16 years ago, said the proposal stems from the recent basketball point-shaving investigation at Tulane.

He said the proposal is directed at big, organized gambling operations that take bets on college games and might attempt to influence amateur players.

"We're not trying to change human nature. We're trying to keep sports as clean as possible," McKone said.

The Gambling Awareness Committee also will submit resolutions for CoSIDA to deplore gambling, pledging not to knowingly give information to gamblers or gambling interests, inviting an FBI agent to speak to sports publicists on gambling and urging that any gambling interference with teams be reported to the proper authorities.

Roger Stanton, publisher of Football News and Basketball Weekly, said he felt singled out by CoSIDA and denied that the services advertised in his papers are gambling services. He said the two publications have done nothing illegal or damaging to the integrity of collegiate sports.

"We could take all advertisements out of our papers and it wouldn't change the gambling picture one bit," Stanton said. "These people could sue me if we refused their advertising. They're all doing what Jimmy the Greek does on television or in his syndicated column."

College World Series establishes new highs

The excitement of seven one-run games at the 1985 College World Series produced records in the number of spectators and viewers on ESPN.

ESPN reports that the 15 telecasts received an average rating of 2.1, compared to 1.9 last year. The seven games that were televised during prime time received a 2.6 rating, which represents 928,000 households. ESPN televised 12 of the 15 games this year on a live basis.

president of the University of Kentucky and chair of the Division I subcommittee of the Presidents Commission, who will chair a special meeting of Division I-A chief executive officers from 8 to 10:30 a.m. Thursday; Wilford S. Bailey, NCAA secretary/treasurer and faculty athletics representative at Auburn University, who will chair the general discussion session Thursday afternoon, and NCAA President John R. Davis, faculty athletics representative at Oregon State University, who will chair the business session Friday.

The special Convention was requested by the Presidents Commission to deal with issues regarding integrity and economics in intercollegiate athletics. In light of the magnitude of most of the proposals to be acted upon at the Convention, many observers have labeled it as one of the most important NCAA gatherings in the Association's 79-year history.

A review of the 12 proposals appears on page 4 of this issue. An up-to-date schedule of all meetings appears on page 6, and other coverage of the special Convention is featured on the first eight pages.

A complete review of Convention actions — including an institution-by-institution listing of each roll-call vote — will appear in the July 3 issue of The NCAA News.

and bring them to Voting Committee Chair Col. John J. Clune, U.S. Air Force Academy. Clune will supervise the feeding of the cards into the scanners.

"We are hoping that at optimum speed, the computers can read 80 cards per minute," Spry said. "Once the cards are fed, the master machine combines the count from the two computers and a printout is prepared."

The printout indicates the number of votes for and against each proposal, the number of abstentions and the number of delegates not voting. The compilation of votes will be prepared and presented to NCAA President John R. Davis, Oregon State University, who will chair the business session at the special Convention.

Summer issues will be published July 3 and 17, August 14 and 28, and September 9.

the eventual champion, received a 3.7 rating and was seen in 1.3 million households by 2.25 million people. The Texas-Miami championship game received a 2.2 rating.

"The ratings for the 1985 College World Series were very satisfying because our regular-season ratings were down a little," said Dave Ogrea, senior program acquisitions specialist. "The series as a whole was up, and the ratings for prime-time games were up 35 to 40 percent."

A total of 125,970 fans filled Rosenblatt Stadium for the May 31-June 11 series, breaking the previous mark of 120,535 in 1981. The top individual-game crowd was 14,134 for the eighth game of the CWS between Miami and Texas. While the ever-increasing crowds help the financial success of the tournament, the record numbers have created a problem — space for people to sit.

Rosenblatt Stadium has a capacity of 15,300, including space for 9,103 in the grandstand area. The demand for tickets, both by participating teams and general fans, has NCAA and CWS officials considering an expansion of the stadium.

"We are nearing the point that the stadium is not large enough," said Jerry A. Miles, NCAA director of men's championships. "For the key nights this year, the box and reserved seats basically were sold out. For the first time this year, I had more than one team complain about its allotment of tickets."

Terry Forsberg, city public events manager in Omaha, said the long-range stadium plan calls for enlarging the grandstand to seat 14,203 and increasing the overall capacity to 19,300.

Although no date for the expansion has been set, Miles and Omaha officials will be meeting later this month to discuss possible expansion of the stadium.

The College World Series has been played in Omaha since 1950 and has drawn 2,269,774 spectators in those 36 years.

be compiled listing how each institution voted on each issue. That printout will be posted at the registration desk, in the press room and in the NCAA work suite.

Spry said a system of checks and balances ensures that every card will be counted. If a delegate loses or misplaces the preprinted ballots, a second set will be hand-printed. Spry said that, in addition to the two PCXTs and four Scan-Tron units scheduled for use, one extra PCXT and two additional scanners will be available as back-ups.

urates/tranquilizers, major pain medications, minor pain medications and vitamins/minerals.

Of the student-athletes who participated in the survey, 69 percent were male and 31 percent were female; 82 percent were Caucasian. In the men's sports, 35 percent of the respondents were football players, 13 percent were baseball players and 12 percent participated in track. Nine percent of those surveyed participated in women's track and seven percent were women swimmers.

The latest data released by the researchers covered six areas — frequency and amount of alcohol and drug use, why student-athletes use alcohol and drugs, where student-athletes obtain alcohol and drugs, when student-athletes begin using drugs, with whom student-athletes use drugs, and reasons student-athletes have stopped using drugs.

Of the 88 percent of student-athletes who used alcohol, the majority used the drug two times a week and had three to five drinks per time. The majority of caffeine users (67 percent) used it three times or less per day.

As to why student-athletes use alcohol and drugs, information was obtained for seven drugs perceived as performance-enhancing. Student-athletes used antiinflammatories and major pain medications mainly for sports-related injuries. Anabolic steroids were used mainly for social or personal reasons, minor pain medications were used both for sports-related and nonsports-related injuries, and vitamins/minerals were taken to prevent illness/injury.

Student-athletes were asked where they obtained nine of the 14 drugs that are not available to the general public. Friends or relatives were the main source for marijuana/hashish, cocaine, psychedelics, barbiturates/tranquilizers and amphetamines. Antiinflammatories were obtained mainly from team physicians, major pain medications were bought mainly from other physicians and anabolic steroids were obtained from a variety of places, including other physicians, teammates or other athletes, friends or relatives, and other sources.

Except for cigarettes and barbiturates/tranquilizers, student-athletes began using drugs in high school. The majority of those who used cigarettes and barbiturates began in junior high school or earlier.

When asked with whom they use alcohol, marijuana/hashish and cocaine, the majority listed friends and teammates as the primary sources. More than two-thirds of those who used the three drugs indicated that they never used the drug alone.

Three main reasons were given by those student-athletes who had stopped using a particular drug or had never used the drug — no need to use the drug, concern for health and a lack of desire to experience the effects. The only differing majority response was with smokeless tobacco (42 percent indicated they stopped because they did not like the drug).

Following is a breakdown of the 14 drugs and the sport (of those 10 surveyed) in which usage was the highest: antiinflammatories (men's tennis), major pain medications (women's softball), alcohol (women's swimming and women's tennis), marijuana/hashish (men's tennis), cocaine (men's tennis), psychedelics (men's tennis), barbiturates/tranquilizers (men's tennis), amphetamines (women's tennis), cigarettes (women's swimming), smokeless tobacco (baseball), caffeine (women's tennis), vitamins/minerals (men's track), minor pain medications (women's softball, women's swimming) and anabolic steroids (football).

Complete results of the study can be obtained by contacting Eric D. Zemper, research coordinator, at the NCAA national office.

The Facts...

DRUG ABUSE is one of American society's most compelling problems. Whether on the job, on the playing field or in the classroom, its effects and consequences can create serious and oft times hazardous situations.

While there is no easy solution to this problem, drug screening programs are proving effective in many ways: productivity is improving, absenteeism is being reduced, safety and security are enhanced, and the programs themselves are serving as deterrents.

Once the decision has been made to establish a drug screening program, careful consideration should be given to the selection of the laboratory which will perform the testing. While some clinical laboratories offer limited drug screening as a part of their testing capabilities, at The American Institute for Drug Detection, the Facts speak for themselves:

Fact: A laboratory dedicated solely to testing for drugs of abuse and steroids

Fact: A professional staff committed to providing results of the highest quality, accuracy and precision

Fact: State-of-the-Art instrumentation and quality control

Fact: Strict confidentiality and documented chain of specimen custody

Fact: Immediate confirmation of positive findings by Gas Chromatography/Mass Spectrometry

Fact: Unparalleled responsiveness with most testing completed within 72 hours of receipt in the laboratory (priority testing services are available)

Fact: Test regimens individually designed to meet your most specific service requirements
