Executive Committee approves '85-'86 budget

The NCAA Executive Committee approved a proposed general operating budget of $49,367,000 for the 1985-86 fiscal year.

Meeting August 12-13 in Boston, Massachusetts, the committee approved providing $500,000 out of excess 1984-85 receipts to go to the funded operating reserves and distributing the remainder of the excess receipts to member institutions in the form of per diem for those championships that did not generate sufficient revenue to receive per diem.

The committee also approved the concept of block grant funding and the figures provided in the proposed budget, earmarking $1.1 million each to Divisions II and III.

The National Collegiate Realty Corporation proposed budget of $710,000 also was approved.

Complete details of the budget will be reported in the August 28 issue of The NCAA News.

The committee voted to establish the Program Evaluation Committee as a Special Budget Subcommittee to review the Association's general operating budget prior to submission to the Executive Committee.

The committee approved the Special Committee on National Drug-Testing Policy's concept to divide costs for implementing a national drug-testing program expected to be voted on at the January 1986 Convention between championships and postseason events (as a games expense) and the Association.

In championship matters, the committee approved the expansion of the Division I Baseball Championship field from 38 to 40 teams and approved the Division II Baseball Championship site in Montgomery, Alabama for 1986, 1987 and 1988. The 1986 Division III Baseball Championship site in Marietta, Ohio, also was approved.

Following are highlights of other sports committee reports: (A full report on all Executive Committee action will appear in the August 28 issue of The NCAA News.)

Division I Men's Basketball — The Executive Committee approved the dates and sites for first- and second-round and regional sites for the 1987 tournament and a recommendation that the 1991 Final Four meet in a facility that has a minimum capacity of 30,000.

Division I Women's Basketball — Expanding the championship field from 32 to 40 teams was approved with the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in each of the four regional brackets receiving first-round byes.

Division II Women's Basketball — The Executive Committee voted to retain the common-site championships for men and women in Springfield, Massachusetts, for 1987 and requested the Championship Standards Committee to review the issue and report to the Executive Committee in May 1986.

Division I-AA Football — The Executive Committee denied expanding the championship bracket from 12 to

New legislation affects college sports programs

NCAA member institutions will have new NCAA legislation to apply to the conduct of their intercollegiate athletics programs during the 1985-86 academic year due to the adoption of proposals at the January 1985 Convention and the conclusion of the four-year transition period for member institutions' women's athletics programs.

Between August 1, 1981, and August 1, 1985, an institution's women's program maintained eligibility for NCAA championships through compliance with NCAA rules or with the rules of the recognized state, conference, regional or national organization it applied to its women's program before that time. Member institutions now must apply NCAA rules to both men's and women's programs as a condition and obligation of membership.

Women's programs that chose to certify compliance with NCAA legislation as the four-year transition period progressed were afforded several exemptions to NCAA legislation. However, as of August 1, all women's athletics programs are required to meet the following criteria:

- Constitution 3-9-(a)-(4) and Bylaw 2-3, which set forth the principles governing the eligibility of student-athletes who participate in high school all-star and college all-star basketball contests.

- Bylaws 1-2 and 1-3, which restrict to certain periods the off-campus contact and evaluation of prospective student-athletes in the sport of basketball at Divisions I and II institutions.

- All sections of Bylaw 3, necessitating the observance of specific practice and playing seasons in the sports of basketball and soccer. [Bylaw 3-3-(a), adopted at the January 1985 Convention, imposes additional playing- and practice-season limitations for all men's and women's sports.]

- Bylaw 11, mandating sponsorship during 1985-86 of at least six women's sports for Division I and at least four women's sports for Division II; although the provisions of Bylaw 11 pertaining to scheduling percentages still apply only to men's basketball.

- Executive Regulation 1-6-(b), which requires all conference members in conferences seeking automatic qualification to agree to participate in the appropriate NCAA championship unless the institution or an individual elects not to participate in any sports-season competition in that sport, and an automatic-qualifying conference (1) to have been a conference member of the Association for two consecutive academic years; (2) to have conducted competition in the sport in question for two consecutive years at the time of its application for automatic qualification, and (3) to have at least six members participating in the process that determines the automatic qualifier.

Additional legislation applicable to both men's and women's programs during the 1985-86 academic year was adopted or amended by the January 1985 Convention. Following is a brief summary of selected rule changes effective during the coming academic year. [Special Convention actions were reported in the July 3, 1985, issue of

Division I basketball attendance hits 21.4 million

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

The Big Ten Conference reached an all-time national high of 1.9 million and four other conferences enjoyed record years in both per-game and total attendance in 1985, helping NCAA Division I to a record attendance of 21.4 million. That offset major losses by the "grass-roots" teams and pushed men's national college basketball attendance to another record high of 32,056,673 — an increase of 372,595.

The figures include all 1,266 senior colleges in the United States with men's varsity teams — 753 of them NCAA members.

NCAA Division I (282 teams) attendance increased 557,993 — the second largest increase since 1979. That overcame a loss of 185,398 by the 984 teams below NCAA Division I, the third time this group has declined in the last four years (more about this later). The grass-roots losses came in all sectors — NCAA Divisions II and III, the NAIA-only teams and all other non-NCAA teams. Only the small groups of NCAA corresponding teams showed an increase, a scant one per game, and increases in postseason tournaments and at other neutral sites by teams below Division I made only a small dent.

Big East, Metro lead gainers

The Big Ten's attendance total of 1,911,325 was 34,277 above its 1980 national-record total. Per-game attendance increased by 28 to 12,097 — the third highest to its national-record 12,238 in 1979 and 12,189 in 1980. It was the Big Ten's 10th national attendance crown in 11 years of official compilations (the Atlantic Coast Conference led in 1976, 9,950 per game to the Big Ten's 9,056).

Many conferences contributed to the increase, but the Big East Conference made the biggest jump in total attendance at 194,847, while the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference showed the biggest per-game average gain at 1,068 (to 8,522 seventh highest nationally).

The Big East's total of 1,318,536 ranked third behind the Big Ten and the Southeastern Conference, in second place for the seventh straight season. But the Big East did not quite nudge the Big Eight Conference from third place in per-game average, finishing at 9,839.8 to 9,840.4 for the Big Eight.

The Metro also pushed above one million for the first time, making seven one-million attendance basketball conferences in Division I for the first time ever (Division I-A football long has had seven one-million conferences in attendance). The Metro College athletes getting paid for playing?

It may never happen, certainly not any time soon. But the idea of paying athletes in the money-making sports of football and men's basketball no longer seems so farfetched.

"Other sports are not generating the kind of income that football and basketball do, and it's time we recognized that," says University of Notre Dame basketball coach Richard "Digger" Phelps.

"People are not filling up a stadium of 60,000 to watch a lacrosse game. It's time to give sports what they earn gamblers, drug pushers and ruthless agents.

But opponents say that setting up a player payroll would bankrupt smaller sports programs, such as golf and themselves. That's the way of life in this country. That's competition."

Scandals involving recruiting, drugs and gambling are frequently cited as reasons for overhauling the system. Giving players a monthly stipend, so the argument goes, would make them less vulnerable to advances from tennis, and dry up their scholarships.

The NCAA is one of the opponents, having repeatedly said it does not favor a monthly allowance for players.

"The people who say athletes should be paid and share in the income are flying in the face of the definition of amateur athletics," said

NCAA President John R. Davis of Oregon State University.

"It's not in the philosophy of institutions to hire a bunch of pro athletes to represent them. Institutions are providing a means for an education for those students they recruit and that's all. They are not going beyond that."

At nearly all NCAA Division I schools, athletics departments are expected to be self-sufficient, getting by on gate and television receipts and contributions from alumni.

With few exceptions, only football and men's basketball make money. That revenue, in turn, pays for the baseball team's trip to Arizona and the track team's new warm-up suits.

Most college administrators, including the powerful NCAA Presidents Commission, are committed to continuing this revenue-sharing system and firmly against player payments.

Another group, small but growing, advocates some sort of limited compensation.

"There has to be some spending money. The way it is now invites ways to break the rules," Marshall M. Criser, president of the University of Florida, recently was quoted as saying.

There are others, however, who would like to see the system completely overhauled.

One of them is Nebraska State Senator Ernie Chambers.

Every year since 1981, Chambers has introduced a bill that would make Cornhusker football players employees of the state. This year, for the first time, the bill got out of committee before dying.

"When I first started talking about this, everybody laughed," said Chambers, who has a law degree but prefers working as a barber. "Now it appears that I might have the last and the biggest laugh."

Chambers would institute what he calls "a type of athletics Darwinism."

"That means," he said, "that schools that generate enough revenue to provide compensation for players would do so. Naturally, these would be the largest schools commanding the largest TV markets, where their product is packaged, marketed and sold to the highest bidder."

Chambers doesn't believe that paying football or basketball players would shut down smaller sports programs.

"I told Ernie some of his ideas sound great," said Prentice Gautt, assistant Big Eight Conference commissioner. Gautt also told him, "It would not be fair to single out Nebraska in making football players state employees."

Gautt maintains that any sort of compensation plan would bring hardship to some schools.

"What would eventually happen is you'd have the division between the haves and the have-nots get wider. The have-nots would probably wind up with more club sports," he said.

But he does not believe it would be as drastic as many say.

"Institutions would adapt," he said.

"When something is as important as this, where we're talking about the future of intercollegiate athletics as well as the jobs and livelihood of many individuals, I've got to believe that somebody is going to come up with a way to make some type of adaptation."

"There could be reductions, for example, in recruiting expenses. That's the biggest single expense of any football department," he said.

At three of the past four NCAA Conventions, the Big Eight has proposed monthly stipends for football players of between $15 and $50 per month. Each time, the proposal was nixed.

But Gautt and others believe some sort of change is inevitable in a system where coaches earn six-figure salaries and players are supposed to take virtual vows of poverty.

"If we keep going down the same path we've been going, well, I don't think we can keep on the same path," he said.

Academic mess not fault of athletics

David M. Nelson, athletics director

"The student protests of the late '60s did more to allow athletics programs to use unqualified students than anything else in the history of college sports."

"When the faculties agreed to eliminate core curriculums, class attendance requirements, penalties for dropping courses and required little or no progress toward a degree, it was open season for weak, lazy or disinterested students, including student-athletes."

"Additional help in maintaining athletics eligibility came from the option of pass/fail grades and the inflation of numerical grades. The student-athletes just joined the crowd."

"This academic regression was a recruiter's dream, and nothing in the last 50 years increased the number of unqualified or marginal students eligible for competition as did the student protests. Core curriculums were eliminated, permitting a student to forego a major and proceed to 'find' himself/herself. It became possible for a student to select a program of study without a faculty

"It's much tougher to maintain a program than it is to get up there. It's easier to have a couple of winning seasons when you haven't had them, because you can slip up on people."

"Players have to understand the meaning of winning, and it helps to get your fans to talk about it. Mental attitude is one of the big things in coaching now. Everybody is lifting weights and taking aerobics and flexibility. It's the people who think they're going to win. Mental attitude is the edge in college athletics."

"Black students are dropping out faster than other minorities. I've noticed there is a big difference between the number of black students who come into the university and those who stay."

"There's a tutorial service on campus, but it costs between $8 and $10 an hour. But I would like a center, perhaps involving community members, that offers inexpensive services to students."

"When we made it possible to redshirt freshmen, we created a new problem. We can sign 30 recruits a year and only have 95 on scholarship."

Four times 30 is 120 and natural attrition may account for a reduction of 25 athletes. Now, we have five years and a potential 150 athletes who must be reduced to the 95 limit."

"Let's be realistic. If we would reduce the number of scholarships per year to 25 and increase the total to 110, the numbers would balance out much better than they do now."

adviser's approval. Seventeen- and 18-year-old students were allowed optional class attendance. Dropping courses without penalty, permissive class attendance and the elimination of the NCAA rule prohibiting freshman participation brought a one-semester tryout for athletes to campuses.

"Progressing at a snail's pace toward a degree allowed students to, as the saying goes, 'find themselves.' When open admission was added to provide legitimate opportunities for the educationally deprived, a coach, if given an opportunity to recommend the ideal recruiting and retention program for athletes, couldn't have designed a better one."

"Critics inside and outside the institutions would have us believe that athletes and coaches were responsible for inventing and practicing the innovations brought to higher education. The coaches and athletes only utilized what had been created for all students. Athletes and coaches have the misfortune of a high profile that reflects dramatically what is under way on the campuses of the country."

"There are colleges and universities... with magnificent academic credentials at both the undergraduate and graduate levels that are contributing to the delinquency of their athletes because of the concessions made to students 15 years ago."

"With all the money we (football players) help bring in, I think we should be compensated in some way."

"You know, they say that we are being privileged to a unique learning environment, and I agree with that. But I think there should be other things."

"None of us can have jobs, but a regular student can go get a job. And some of them are on scholarship."

"So, the only money a student-athlete is getting is coming from his parents. And a lot of times, it's not necessarily there."

"Anywhere from $250 to $300 a month. That's sufficient enough to start off with, and that wouldn't hurt schools a bit."

"During the summer, I make money, and I try to balance it out through the school year. But it doesn't last too long. So, I wish they would either let us have jobs or compensate us in some way, letting us have a daily or weekly allowance."

Looking Back

Five years ago

The NCAA Council, meeting August 13-15, 1980, in Denver, ordered the drafting of legislation to establish an NCAA regulation governing satisfactory progress toward a degree. (August 31, 1980, NCAA News)

Ten years ago

The Association's second special Convention, held August 14-15, 1975, in Chicago, adopted legislation to restrict recruiting activities, the number and amount of financial aid awards, the size of football and basketball coaching staffs, and squad sizes in all sports. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

Twenty years ago

The NCAA Executive Committee, meeting August 19-20, 1965, in Washington, D.C., adopted 1965-66 general operating budgets totaling $480,800 ($355,300 for the NCAA national office and $125,500 for the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau). ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

Thirty years ago

The NCAA Executive Committee, meeting August 15-16, 1955, in Chicago, approved the 1955-56 general operating budget of $150,825, noting an expected surplus from the 1954-55 budget of nearly $20,000. (1955-56 NCAA Yearbook)

IRS pressure

Almost two million people who have defaulted on Federally subsidized student loans could have the unpaid balance deducted from their Federal income tax refunds next year, according to William Bennett, education secretary.

The Department of Education and the Internal Revenue Service have joined efforts as part of a government crackdown on those who haven't paid their college debts.

The department damaged the credit ratings of 400,000 defaulters last fall by giving their names to national credit bureaus, according to a Wall Street Journal report.

Since December 1984, the cases of 16,000 have been turned over to the Department of Justice for prosecution. A total of $5 billion in unpaid debts is involved.

The Department of Education began sending notices August 10 to about a million defaulters in the Federally Insured Student Loan and National Direct Student Loan programs. Another one million notices will be sent by the states to defaulters in the Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

Contributions up

The nation's colleges and universities reported an 8.5 percent increase in contributions in the 1983-84 school year, due in large part to corporate support, according to the Council for Financial Aid to Education.

Contributions were $5.6 billion. In 1982-83, contributions were $5.1 billion. Donations by corporations increased 14.3 percent to $1.2 billion, according to the council, whose estimates were based on information from 1,118 colleges and universities.

Alumni contributions were up 5.4 percent to $1.305 billion, and non-alumni gave $1.315 billion, an increase of 10.6 percent. Foundations gave $1 billion, a 6.2 percent increase.

Footing the bill

Families with incomes of less than $15,000 annually get substantial government help to send their children to school but still pay about half the bill, the American Council on Education reports.

The report says a four-year college education costs up to $20,000 at public colleges and can reach more than $30,000 at private institutions.

Another study by the ACE reports that middle-income families receiving Federal student assistance pay at least two-thirds of the college bill. Middle-income families are those with incomes of from $15,000 to $35,000 a year.

Return of top players ensures an exciting season

By Michael V. Earle
The NCAA News Staff

The 1984 college football season had some sizzle and some fizzle as well.

Brigham Young surprised many fans by winning the mythical national championship in Division I-A. Pittsburgh, the No. 1 preseason selection in some polls, sputtered to a 3-7-1 finish; and perennial national powers Penn State, Alabama and Michigan also had disappointing seasons.

Mississippi Valley attracted national attention with its open, no-huddle offense devised by coach Archie "Gunslinger" Cooley and triggered by record-setting quarterback Willie Totten; however, Montana State eventually captured the headlines by bouncing back from a 1-10 season to win the Division I-AA championship. The Bobcats finished 12-2, a division-record improvement of 9½ games.

Troy State was expected to finish near the top in the tough Gulf South Conference, but the Trojans didn't stop there. They proved to be the surprise of the entire division, upsetting defending champion North Dakota State, 18-17, on a last-second field goal to win the Division II national title.

In Division III, Augustana (Illinois) was unstoppable, and the Vikings became the first team to win consecutive national titles. Augustana improved its six-year record under coach Bob Reade to 56-8-0, a winning percentage (.875) unequaled by any active coach in any division.

So what can college football fans expect in 1985? Balance and a flock of top returning statistical leaders in each division will provide another memorable season.

Following is a look at the top teams and players in Divisions I-A, I-AA, II and III:

Division I-A

Atlantic Coast: Virginia served notice last year, with a second-place finish, that it no longer is the conference pushover. The Cavaliers return the nucleus of a strong offensive unit led by 6-5, 296-pound tackle Jim Dombrowski and quarterback Don Majkowski; however, the defense is suspect. With 46 lettermen and 14 starters returning, expect sixth-year Georgia Tech coach Bill Curry to have his best season. Georgia Tech's forte is defense, where nine starters return to a unit that led the ACC in rushing and scoring defense. Defending champion Maryland returns 17 starters, making the Terrapins the early favorite. Maryland's balance will be tested early with games against Penn State, Boston College, West Virginia and Michigan.

Big Eight: For the first time since 1981, Nebraska is not the preseason favorite for the conference title. Oklahoma has the firepower to make winning a national title possible and the conference title probable. Oklahoma returns eight starters from a defensive unit that led the nation in rushing defense, was ranked second in total defense and finished sixth in scoring defense. The Sooners' wishbone attack will be led by Spencer Tillman, the 1983 conference offensive newcomer of the year. Only two offensive and defensive starters return for Nebraska. Oklahoma State has a sound team that could break the grip Oklahoma and Nebraska have held on the conference.

Big Ten: Iowa, Illinois and Ohio State rate as the favorites in what is expected to be the best conference race in years. Defense could be a problem for Iowa and Illinois, but both teams have explosive offenses. Iowa's offensive attack is directed by quarterback Chuck Long, the conference's leading passer, and complemented by running back Ronnie Harmon, who has recovered from a broken leg. Illinois will travel the airways on the Jack Trudeau-to-David Williams connection and has a solid running game led by fullback Thomas Rooks. Ohio State has an untested offensive line and quarterback; however, Keith Byars, the nation's leader in rushing, all-purpose running and scoring, should keep the Buckeyes in contention.

Mid-American: Bowling Green State compiled the best conference

Auburn's Bo Jackson (with ball) carries Tigers' title hopes record, 21-6, in the past three years but won only one conference title. This should be a banner year for the Falcons, mainly because of quarterback Brian McClure, who has passed for 7,606 yards over the past three seasons. McClure has several experienced receivers, four of whom caught 37 or more passes last year. The Falcons' defense returns eight starters. Central Michigan, a team that was hurt by injuries last season but still managed an 8-2-1 record, and defending champion Toledo also should be title contenders.

Pacific Coast: The return of the starting offensive line, depth at running back and quarterback Kevin Sweeney will give Fresno State a good shot at the conference title. Only three quarterbacks threw for more yardage last season than Sweeney, who finished with 3,259 yards. Fresno State will need to shore up its pass defense, which ranked 104th out of 105 teams last fall, allowing an average of 259.4 yards. Nevada-Las Vegas could be a contender if Steve Stallworth adequately replaces quarterback Randall Cunningham. The Rebels' ground game probably is tops in the conference with the tandem of Kirk Jones and Tony Lewis, both capable of 1,000-yard seasons.

Pacific-10: At least six teams appear to be in contention for the title. After a five-year slide, Southern California rebounded last year and won the conference title and knocked off favored Ohio State in the Rose Bowl. The Trojans have an outstanding offensive line to clear the way for tailback Fred Crutcher, but their defense is questionable after losing seven starters. Washington returns only nine starters, but coach Don James has a knack for fielding competitive teams. The past two years, the Huskies had five and 11 returning starters, and James led them to eight- and 11-victory seasons, respectively. UCLA plays only three conference home games, which could hamper its title hopes. Washington State, Arizona State and Arizona also appear to be contenders. As evidence of the overall strength of the conference, three Pac-10 teams were among the nation's top 10 at last season's end, and all three won their bowl games.

Southeastern Conference: Putting points on the scoreboard should be little trouble for conference favorite Auburn, with all-America running back Bo Jackson and halfback Brent Fullwood. However, defense could be a problem. Only six starters return, and Auburn's pass defense is shaky. If Louisiana State's offensive line jells, the Tigers could make a return trip to the Sugar Bowl. Quarterback Jeff Wickersham has thrown for more than 2,000 yards in each of the past two seasons; and then, there are talented running backs Dalton Hilliard and Garry James. The defense returns 16 of its top 22 players. Florida lost seven of 10 interior linemen on both sides of the ball but has talent coming back.

Southwest Conference: Southern Methodist has most of the horses back that finished 10-2 and tied Houston for the conference title. The Mustangs' backfield includes all-conference quarterback Don King, back for his senior season, and tailbacks Reggie Dupard, who rushed for 1,160 yards and scored 16 touchdowns, and Jeff Atkins, who had 717 yards and six touchdowns. An exceptional offensive line, veteran receivers and a strong defense could lead the Mustangs to the national title. Arkansas, with nine returnees on a defensive unit that allowed 12.5 points a game, and Houston, led by quarterback Gerald Landry and tight end Carl Hilton, appear to be Southern Methodist's biggest hurdles to the conference title.

Western Athletic: Brigham Young is the overwhelming favorite to capture the conference title despite returning just nine starters. Coach LaVell Edwards, who has a 118-37-1 record in 13 years, has overcome such problems before en route to nine consecutive WAC titles. The Cougars' first three games will test their 24-game victory streak and chances of becoming the first team to win back-to-back national titles since Alabama in 1978 and 1979. Brigham Young faces Boston College, UCLA and Washington. Hawaii, Air Force and San Diego State are expected to push the Cougars in the conference.

Top independents: Miami (Florida) enters the season with a revamped defense and a talented offense, which lost record-setting quarterback Bernie Kosar, who forfeited his final two years for a professional career. Vinny Testaverde, who many believe will be as effective as Kosar, will operate with a stable of game-breaking running backs and tight end Willie Smith leading the receivers. How quickly the eight returning defensive starters adapt to coach Jimmy Johnson's new 4-3 multiple-scheme defense will be a factor in the Hurricanes' success. Boston College appears to have a capable replacement for quarterback

Doug Flutie in senior Shawn Halloran. The Eagles' running game will be led by tailback Troy Stradford. The Eagles also have plenty of talent among their receivers. Noseguard Mike Ruth, one of the nation's top linemen, anchors the defense. South Carolina's potent veer offense lost all five linemen; however, the backfield returns intact, including co-quarterbacks Mike Hold and Allen Mitchell. The schedule will make it tough to repeat last year's 10-2 record. West Virginia also was hard hit by graduation (eight offensive starters), but coach Don Nehlen has Outland Trophy and Lombardi Award candidate Brian Jozwiak at offensive tackle and a strong defense to build around. Other top independents include Florida State, Army and Notre Dame.

Division I-AA

Big Sky: A preseason prediction is risky business in this well-balanced conference. Montana State, picked to finish last among the eight teams last season, defiantly rolled to the national title. No team has repeated as conference champion since Boise State in 1974 and 1975. Since then, six teams have won the title. Nevada-Reno, which lost the title last year to Montana State in a four-overtime game, has quarterback Eric Beavers, who passed for 2,370 yards and 16 touchdowns, completing 59.7 percent of his passes. Montana State also has a proven quarterback in Kelly Bradley, who threw for a whopping 4,400 yards and 38 touchdowns in coach Dave Arnold's pass-happy offense. But in this league, every team seems to be a contender.

Gulf Star: Northwestern State (Louisiana) shed its image as an explosive offensive team and relied on its defense, which led the nation in scoring defense (9.0), to earn a share of the conference title. The Demons will have another strong defense, featuring all-conference linebacker Earnest Crittenden, that should keep them in contention for the league title. After an 0-3 start, Nicholls State won six of its last eight games to share the conference title. The Colonels' offense is the key to any title hopes.

Ivy League: Defending champion Pennsylvania and co-runner-up Harvard suffered major graduation losses, opening the door for Yale. The Elis, who tied Harvard, have quality and depth at the ball-handling positions and a strong defense against the rush. Brown could be a factor with 12 returnees, notably Keiron Bigby, who switched from defensive back to wide receiver to take advantage of his speed. Bigby intercepted three passes for 216 yards and two touchdowns last season against Yale.

Mid-Continent: Co-champions Northern Iowa and Eastern Illinois should battle again for the crown. Northern Iowa has an experienced team led by an exceptional defensive unit. Eastern Illinois quarterback Sean Payton is one of the division's best and has his favorite target back — wide receiver Roy Banks. The Panthers, however, lack depth in the offensive and defensive lines.

Mid-Eastern: Delaware State continued its remarkable turnaround last year with an 8-2 record and a runner-up finish. In 1980, the Hornets were humiliated by Portland State, 105-0, but steadily have become one of the division's top teams. The division's top runner, Gene Lake, must be replaced and the offensive line is thin, but the Hornets' defense could lead them to a play-off berth. Defending champion Bethune-Cookman's outlook is bright with the return of versatile quarterback Bernard Hawk and receiver Sebastian Brown.

Missouri Valley: The conference, whose members are split into three divisions (I-A, I-AA and II), will cease to be a football league after this season. The favorite for the title once again is five-time defending champion Tulsa (I-A). However, Tulsa must designate at least two nonconference games as league games if it is to be eligible for a sixth straight title; the Golden Hurricane has scheduled only three MVC opponents this year. Runner-up Indiana State (I-AA), which went 9-2 in the regular season before losing in triple overtime in the play-off quarterfinals, is primed to earn a third straight play-off berth. The Sycamores return quarterback Jeff Miller, the conference leader in total offense (1,907 yards) and three experienced wide receivers.

Ohio Valley: For the fifth straight

Eastern Washington's Rick Worman

year, four-time defending champion Eastern Kentucky has been labeled as the team to beat. After first-round exits from the past two play-offs, Eastern Kentucky may have found the key to a third national title in transfer quarterback Mike Whitaker. Middle Tennessee, a play-off semifinalist last year, and Murray State also have title potential.

Southern Conference: In seven seasons under coach Dick Sheridan, Furman has compiled a 35-10-1 league record, captured four undisputed titles and shared in another. In the past eight years, Tennessee-Chattanooga has a 36-11-1 conference record, has won two titles and shared in two more. Unless Western Carolina can break Furman's and Tennessee-Chattanooga's domination, more of the same can be expected this fall.

Southland: The league produced two play-off participants last year — Louisiana Tech and Arkansas State. Both have the tools to make return trips. Louisiana Tech was picked no higher than fourth last year but wound up winning the league title and advancing to the play-off final. The Bulldogs' defense is spearheaded by all-America linebacker Doug "Tank" Landry. Six starters return on offense. Play-off quarterfinalist Arkansas State's only apparent weakness is the offensive line, where two all-conference players graduated.

Southwestern: Defending champion Alcorn State, long known for its stubborn defense, will have an equally impressive offense to aid its title defense. Quarterback Richard Myles was granted an extra year of eligibility and will have the league's newcomer of the year, Milton Barney, as his primary target. Grambling State and Mississippi Valley have the best shots at dethroning Alcorn State.

Yankee: In what could be the division's best balanced league, Boston U., Rhode Island and New Hampshire appear to have the inside track to the title and play-off berths. Rhode Island and Boston U. shared last year's title and reached the play-offs. Both teams have outstanding quarterbacks. Boston U.'s Pat Mancini, who set a school record with 1,751 passing yards, was voted conference rookie of the year, and completed 308 of 536 passes for 3,870 yards and led the Rams to the play-off semifinals. New Hampshire returns eight offensive and defensive starters from last year's 9-2 team.

Top independents: Tennessee State rolled to an 11-0 finish last year but did not compete in the play-offs because of academically ineligible players. The Tigers again have the ingredients for an outstanding offense, and the defense returns six starters. Eastern Washington celebrated its first year in the division with a 7-2-1 record. Another fine season appears to be in store after quarterback Rick Worman had a 2,122-yard and 18 touchdown passing performance last year. Holy Cross has some major holes to fill, including replacing quarterback Peter Muldoon, who led the Crusaders to a 25-7-1 record and a play-off berth in the past three years. Coach Rick Carter does have some exceptional defensive line talent and one of the nation's better running backs in Gill Fenerty. After a two-year absence from the play-offs, Delaware seems primed to make a run for the national title. The Fightin' Blue Hens came on strong last year, winning their last six games behind the play of quarterback Rich Gannon, who ran the wing-T offense to perfection, gaining a school record 520 yards rushing. Nine defensive starters return. If Richmond coach Dal Shealy can rebuild his offensive line, the Spiders could better their 8-4 record and second-round spot in the play-offs. Quarterback Bob Bleier and split end Leland Melvin provide the offensive punch and six defensive starters return. Colgate, Lehigh, Georgia Southern and Bucknell also have fine teams.

Brigham Young to defend its 'title' in Kickoff Classic against Eagles

This 117th season of college football begins August 29 with Brigham Young facing Boston College in the third annual Kickoff Classic in Giants Stadium, East Rutherford, New Jersey. There are 105 Division I-A teams. Brigham Young enters the season with the division's longest current winning streak — 24 games. The 18 1984-85 Division I-A bowl games distributed a record $39 million to the participating teams. The Big Ten set an all-time national record with 67,997 fans per game in 1984. In 1984, Michigan increased its streak of 100,000-plus crowds to 60.

Alabama kicker Van Tiffin has not missed an extra-point try in 63 attempts. Army was the most improved Division I-A team in 1984 with its 8-3-1 record, up six games from its 2-9 finish in 1983. Baylor punter Buzzy Sawyer led the Southwest Athletic Conference with a 44.9-yard average but was mentioned on only one all-conference team. Bowling Green quarterback Brian McClure, who is ranked 15th in NCAA career passing yards with 7,606, is nearing career records for pass attempts, completions and yards passing. UCLA kicker John Lee, who set an all-time, all-division NCAA collegiate record with 29 field goals last season, is a native of Seoul, South Korea.

Central Michigan's defensive starters have a cumulative grade-point average of 3.000 (4.000 scale). Cincinnati running back Reggie Taylor, ranked 23rd among returning rushers, perhaps is the smallest back in Division I-A at 5-7, 170 pounds. Florida State coach Bobby Bowden has three sons and a son-in-law coaching college football. Last season was the first time since 1962 that Georgia Tech defeated Clemson, Alabama and Georgia in the same year. The last time was coach Bill Curry's sophomore year at Georgia Tech. Illinois wide receiver David Williams (1,278 yards) and fullback Thomas Rooks (1,056 yards) represent the first 1,000-yard pass receiving/rushing combination in Big Ten history. Indiana coach Bill Mallory's first 1985 victory will be the 100th in his career. Kansas State will go to "twilight" kickoffs at 4 p.m. for its first four home games. A good chunk of Memphis State's training-table budget probably goes into feeding brothers Dennis and Tim Borcky. Dennis, a two-year letterman at defensive end, is 6-4 and weighs 275 pounds, while "little" brother Tim, an offensive guard, is 6-9 and 312 pounds.

Miami (Ohio) snared one of the nation's top junior college quarterbacks in Terry Morris, who completed 184 of 316 passes for 3,385 yards and 31 touchdowns at Grossmont Junior College last season. Michigan co-captain and two-time all-Big Ten linebacker Mike Mallory and safety Doug Mallory are the sons of Indiana coach Bill Mallory. Michigan's 6-6 record last year marked the first time in 16 years that coach Bo Schembechler's Wolverines did not finish better than .500. Michigan State will hold a reunion for its 1965 national champions at the October 19 homecoming game against Illinois. Missouri ended its reign as the only Big Eight field with natural grass by installing Omniturf this summer.

New Mexico State's Andy Weiler holds the distinction of being the only player in the school's history to be awarded a scholarship solely for kicking. Shaun Shahan, the front-runner for the starting quarterback spot at Oregon State, is ambidextrous. A natural right-hander, Shahan can accurately throw 10- to 20-yard passes lefthanded on rollouts to the left. Although Purdue has had such top-notch quarterbacks as Len Dawson, Bob Griese, Mark Herrmann, Mike Phipps and Gary Danielson, it was Jim Everett who last year became the first to pass for more than 3,000 yards in regular-season play. For the first time in its football history, San Diego State, which previously had concentrated its recruiting efforts on junior college transfers, has reached the scholarship limit of 95.

South Carolina's "Fire Ant" defensive unit averages 227 pounds on the line and 213 pounds at linebacker. Syracuse defensive tackle Tim Green is a Rhodes scholar candidate. Texas A&M offensive lineman Marshall Land is listed at 6-6, 378 pounds. Kicker Jason Staurowsky has gone from being Tulsa's equipment manager to the Golden Hurricane's third all-time leading scorer. Washington State's all-Pacific-10 Conference backfield of quarterback Mark Rypien and running backs Kerry Potter and Rueben Mayes has been dubbed as the "RPM backfield."

Twice denied, Towson State seeks first Division II crown

East region: Towson State, winner of the Lambert Meadowlands Award as the top Division II team in the East the past two years, will be gunning for its third straight play-off berth after being eliminated by the past two national champions. The Tigers, 19-6 over the last two seasons, have one of the best passing attacks in the nation with quarterback Kurt Beathard and wide receiver Sean Murphy. Beathard threw for 2,000 yards and 17 touchdowns, and Murphy caught 61 passes for 1,128 yards. Although only four defensive starters return, coach Phil Albert appears to have several players with some experience ready to fill in.

California (Pennsylvania) could be pressed to repeat as Pennsylvania State Conference champion unless someone fills in for graduated quarterback Kevin Russell, the leading passer in conference history. Brendan Folmar, a talented but "green" junior, may be the one. Folmar will have experienced receivers to help him do the job, with the return of Gary Bero, who has the most catches of any tight end in school history, and wide receiver Dave Leas. The defense, led by linebackers Rick Ley and Frank Vulcano, should be one of the Vulcans' strengths. Edinboro and Indiana (Pennsylvania) should be California's stiffest competition for the conference's Western Division crown. Both teams face unsettled quarterback situations. Edinboro first-year coach Steve Szabo will have to rely on junior Scott Dodds to fill the void left by record-shattering quarterback Blair Hrovat. Dodds does have a large, veteran offensive line in his favor and experienced running backs with Floyd Faulkner and Dave Span. If Indiana quarterback Rich Ingold, who was lost after the fifth game last season with a severe spleen injury, returns to form, the Big Indians should at least equal last season's 7-3 mark. Ingold led the division in passing efficiency and was ranked second in total offense when injured. Indiana has a solid defense. Slippery Rock, fueled by the running of Charles Sanders, the division's top ground gainer last season, could be the conference's Western Division dark horse.

West Chester, runner-up in the Pennsylvania State Conference's Eastern Division, faces a rebuilding year with the loss of 17 starters from last year's 7-3 team, leaving defending champion Bloomsburg and Millersville as the top contenders for the division title. Last season, Bloomsburg had its first winning season since 1978 and made its first appearance in the conference championship game against California. With the return of 20 starters, notably two-time all-America inside linebacker Frank Sheptock, the Huskies should have another banner year under coach George J. Landis. Millersville also will have experience, particularly on defense, where the entire front line and secondary return. Millersville led the conference in fewest yards allowed (91 per game) last season. Millersville's balanced offense is paced by quarterback Gregg Caplan, whose 62.9 completion percentage is a team record.

Southern Connecticut State could be one of the region's top teams behind the play of an exceptional defense. Seven defensive starters return to a unit that finished third overall in the division. The offense lacks experience at the ball-handling positions, but the offensive line is solid.

South region: Troy State faces an uphill climb in its bid to defend its national title. Four starting offensive linemen, as well as some key reserves, graduated. Unless first-year coach Rick Rhoades, who employs a no-huddle wishbone offense, can fill the gaps, Troy State's running attack, which last season averaged more than 245 yards per game, could falter. Rhoades does have quarterback Mike Turk and running back depth to ease the transition. Kicker Ted Clem is back. He kicked an NCAA championship record 50-yard field goal to clinch the national title. The Trojans' defense returns nine starters to a unit that allowed 76 yards rushing per game.

Troy State's Gulf South title defense also could be in jeopardy. Conference co-runners-up Mississippi College and Delta State and fourth-place North Alabama, a 1983 play-off semifinalist, have promising futures if talented quarterbacks can be found.

Midwest region: Defending Missouri Athletic Association champion and play-off participant Northwest Missouri State has one of the region's dominant teams. Practically everyone returns to an offense that averaged 28 points and more than 400 yards per game. The impressive list of returnees includes Mark Thomsen, the starting quarterback until he was injured. Thomsen's recovery from surgery is bad news for opponents. Thomsen's main target will be all-America Steve Hansley, whose 1,123 yards receiving last year ranks second among returnees. Hansley, who had 11 touchdowns catches, is third in career yardage. Thomsen has another big target in tight end Dan Anderson. Running backs Robert Wilson and Mike Thomas should help keep the Bearcats' scoreboard humming. Northwest Missouri also has plenty of talent on defense. All-conference selections Steve Sarvard (linebacker) and Tony Floyd (defensive tackle/end) led the Bearcats in tackles (131) and tackles for losses, respectively.

The Heartland Collegiate Conference could produce some play-off bound teams in defending champion Ashland or Butler, a 1983 play-off participant. Ashland returns 15 starters from last year's 6-3-1 squad and has the potential for what could be dominating line play. Butler has talent at the ball-handling positions, notably quarterback Mike Lee, who passed for 1,200 yards despite missing two games with a shoulder separation.

Tacoma Dome readies for debut as Division I-AA championship site

The eighth annual NCAA Division I-AA championship game will be played for the first time at the Tacoma Dome, Tacoma, Washington... At this writing, the NCAA Executive Committee was considering a request to increase the championship field from 12 to 16 teams... There are 87 teams in Division I-AA... Division I-AA had a record-setting offensive year. Passing yards hit 361.9 per game, up from 334.5, and scoring reached 43.6 points, well above the record 42.1 set in 1983. Total offensive yards (666.9), completion percentage (50), touchdown passes per game (2.42) and yards per total offensive play (4.72) topped the I-AA records for the seven-year-old division... Jackson State led the division in attendance with 29,215 per game... Texas Southern had the largest attendance increase in the division, from 10,712 per game to 18,183, followed by Harvard (up 7,468 to 21,500), Boston U. (7,703 to 10,133), Marshall (6,219 to 15,335) and Pennsylvania (5,220 to 24,141)... Over the past five years, Tennessee State has an .887 winning percentage, followed by Eastern Kentucky (.840) and Furman (.800).

Arkansas State proved that the wishbone does not have to cause turnovers. The Indians led the nation in turnover margin last year... Thirty-one Bucknell players had grade-point averages of 3.000 (on a 4.000 scale) or better last semester... Monogrammed bath towels in Columbia coach Jim Garrett's house would cause a bit of confusion. Garrett has eight children - four boys and four girls - all with the initials J.G. Garrett's oldest son will attend and serve as quarterback coach at Columbia this fall. His second oldest son, John, is Columbia's starting wide receiver. Garrett's next oldest son is transferring to Columbia from Princeton, while his youngest son, an all-state Ohio running back, starts his freshman year at Columbia this fall... Ninety percent of Eastern Washington's team is from Washington... Georgia Southern's offense, quarterbacked by Tracy Ham, has been dubbed "The Hambone." Four years ago, Georgia Southern did not own a football when the school decided to field a team, but the program has flourished under coach Erk Russell. The Eagles are coming off an 8-3 season and will play this year in a new 16,000-seat stadium... Grambling State coach Eddie Robinson needs four victories to surpass the late Paul "Bear" Bryant, whose 323 victories are the most ever by a college coach in any division or association. Grambling State leads the division in consecutive winning seasons with 25... Between compiling an outstanding academic record, serving as the producer of a local rock band and being a leader of the International Cultural Exchange, which was responsible for bringing the Spartak ice hockey teams from Russia to play Vermont last winter, Harvard's Rufus Jones still finds time to play halfback for the Crimson.

Lafayette's Ryan Priest needs 284 yards to become the school's all-time leading career rusher... Maine's Eugene "Buddy" Teevens is the nation's youngest Division I head coach at 28... No one needs to remind Middle Tennessee State coach James "Boots" Donnelly about the tough life in the Ohio Valley Conference. The Blue Raiders have gone 27-8-0 over the past three years (including two victories and one loss in advancing to the Division I-AA semifinals last year) and have not won or shared in the conference title during that time.

Montana has won only one Big Sky Conference game in the past two seasons... After Northeast Louisiana's Teddy Garcia kicked a game-winning 45-yard field goal in the last minute to defeat Louisiana Tech, 12-10, his wife, who was watching the game on television, went into labor and gave birth to the couple's first child the next morning... Pennsylvania coach Jerry Berndt has turned the Quakers' program around. Before Berndt arrived in 1981, Pennsylvania had a 1-18 record for the previous two seasons. In the last three years, Pennsylvania has gone 7-3, 6-3-1 and 8-1, its best three consecutive records since 1946-47-48... First-year Princeton coach Ron Rogerson has installed the wing-T in hopes of developing a strong running game to complement the Tigers' passing attack led by quarterback Doug Butler... South Carolina State coach Bill Davis needs just two victories to become the school's all-time leader... "Facing the Challenge" is an appropriate team slogan for Tennessee Tech. The Golden Eagles, after an 0-11 season, open at Nevada-Las Vegas and have six teams on their schedule that finished in the top 20 of the Division I-AA poll... Tennessee State has the division's longest current winning streak at 12 games... Western Carolina's kicking game should be one of the best in the division. The Catamounts return Steve Kornegay, who led the division in punting with a 43.4-yard average, and Kirk Roach, who finished second in field goals... In 20 years, only four of Yale coach Carmen Cozza's players have not graduated.

Bombers' well-balanced attack aims for sixth play-off berth in 12 years

East region: Probably no team welcomes the new 16-team Division III play-off format as much as Ithaca. After losing its first game of last season, the Bombers reeled off 10 consecutive victories but did not reach the play-offs. The main ingredients from last year's team are back and coach Jim Butterfield is aiming for a sixth play-off berth in 12 years. Ithaca has a well-balanced team featuring quarterback Steve Kass (1,390 yards in total offense) and linebacker Tim Torrey, who leads a defense that allowed just 7.3 points a game last season.

Ithaca was one of a number of teams in the region with play-off potential. Hofstra, Montclair State, Norwich, Western Connecticut and St. John's (New York) all had teams with play-off credentials and again will be in the running for berths.

However, there was no denying that the East region's play-off representatives—Plymouth State and Union (New York)—were justified selections. Union, cowlinner with Ithaca of the Lambert Meadowlands Award as the top Division III team in the East, has built a powerful program under third-year coach Al Bagnoli, who has a 31-9-1 record. Despite the loss of 19 lettermen from last season's semifinalist team, Bagnoli has several reserves who saw plenty of action in lopsided victories and an outstanding group of recruits, including 6-4, 225-pound quarterback Ed O'Day, who was recruited by several major colleges. The Dutchmen defense, which allowed a division-leading low of 4.6 points per game last season, returns six starters.

Plymouth State was the first team from the New England Football Conference to be selected for the play-offs and appears to have the potential for another trip. The Panthers return both lines pretty much intact, including all-conference offensive tackle Dave Watson. But the biggest returnee for third-year coach Jay Cottone, who has a 38-3 record, is all-America halfback Joe Dudek. The 6-1, 190-pound senior has a nose for the end zone. He scored 21 touchdowns last season and enters the year 12 touchdowns short of the all-division career record.

South region: Although some key players graduated, Randolph-Macon and Washington and Jefferson again could represent the region in this year's play-off. However, both teams have rookie quarterbacks. Randolph-Macon will have an experienced offensive line to ease its new quarterback into the job, as well as an experienced group of receivers and what could be the quickest group of running backs ever to play for third-year coach Jim Blackburn.

Defending Presidents' Athletic Conference champion Washington and Jefferson returns many veterans from last year's semifinalist team but will have to rely on untested quarterbacks. One of the wide receiver slots and the offensive and defensive lines also show inexperience.

Other play-off contenders in the region include Carnegie-Mellon, Centre, Hampden-Sydney, Lycoming, Millsaps, Muhlenberg, Gettysburg, Salisbury State and Widener.

North region: Augustana (Illinois) running back Brad "Killer Smurf" Price's nickname might draw a few chuckles from fans, but opponents have found Price's handle fits him as well as he fits into coach Bob Reade's dominating wing-T offense. The 5-5, 155-pound junior, who gained 1,034 yards (5.3 per carry) last year, is just one of the many reasons Augustana could become the first team in the division to win three consecutive national titles. Price is joined by six other offensive returnees, including quarterback Kirk Bednar and four offensive linemen. The offense scored an average of 34.4 points per game and a division-best 338.4 yards rushing per game. If the Vikings' running attack bogs down, Bednar is an effective passer; the junior lefthander completed 38 of 71 attempts for 633 yards and eight touchdowns last year. Only four starters were lost from the Vik-

Division III title game in Alabama

The NCAA Division III Football Championship game will return to Phenix City, Alabama, to climax a new 16-team play-off format (formerly an eight-team field)... Wittenberg leads all divisions for consecutive winning seasons with 30... There are 199 teams in Division III now that Villanova, New York Maritime and Worcester State are members.

Augustana (Illinois) has won 48 of its last 50 games. The team's last regular-season loss was in October 1980. The Vikings have won 24 consecutive games, matching Brigham Young for the longest streak in NCAA football... Canisius' War Memorial Stadium was the site for the movie "The Natural" and is the largest stadium in the division, with a seating capacity of 41,897... There is no denying that Central's (Iowa) Matt Schulte is an all-around athlete. The barefoot, soccer-style kicker is a track all-America and competes on Central's baseball and basketball teams... Centre's Teel Bruner, a CoSIDA academic and Kodak all-America, intercepted 11 passes last year, including five in one game... With Colorado College abandoning the single-wing, that leaves Denison as the only remaining team using the offense on a full-time basis. Denison coach Keith Piper has a 56-30-5 record with the formation in 10 years at Denison.

Cornell College kicker Pete Stachow became the first Midwest Collegiate Conference athlete to win all-conference honorable-mention honors in football and all-conference honors in soccer, sports whose seasons are played in the fall... Dickinson College celebrates its 100th year of football this season... Fitchburg State's first year of varsity football was nothing to celebrate. A tough schedule left the Falcons 0-9-0... Hamilton quarterback Seamus Crotty set a Division III total-offense record for most yards gained in a game with 515 yards against Middlebury last October... Hofstra linebacker Larry Galizia gives the defensive unit some extra power. The 5-11, 225-pounder is an accomplished Golden Gloves boxer

California-Davis shoots for 15th straight conference title

The NCAA Division II Football Championship game will be played at the Palm Bowl in McAllen, Texas, for a fifth consecutive year... There are 115 teams in Division II... Clarion has the most consecutive winning seasons at 21... California-Davis will be going for a record 15th consecutive Northern California Athletic Conference title. The Aggies share the record

Defensively, Butler returns six starters.

Defending Lone Star Conference champion Angelo State will try to recapture the momentum generated in the last five games of last season when the Rams averaged 36.2 points a game and earned a play-off berth. Angelo State's offense is piloted by all-conference quarterback Ned Cox, who threw for 1,802 yards and 12 touchdowns. The Rams also will be aided by an experienced defense. Texas A&I appears to have the best shot at dethroning Angelo State. Coach Ron Harms has had three consecutive exceptional recruiting years and has 17 starters back.

West region: North Dakota State and Cal-Davis once again are in good shape to defend their respective league titles and play for a national title.

With 33 returning lettermen and 17 starters from last year's national runner-up team, North Dakota State is primed to win a fifth consecutive North Central Conference title (the Bison shared last year's title) and make a fifth consecutive play-off trip. North Dakota State has had one of the most consistent winning programs in the division. Over the past 21 years, the Bison have won 16 conference titles, four national titles (NAIA in 1965, 1968 and 1969; NCAA in 1983) and posted a bowl or play-off record of 15-6-0. Over that span, the team has compiled a 180-45-2 record.

First-year coach Earle Solomonson should have little trouble in continuing the school's tradition. The main principles—quarterback Jeff Bentrin and running backs Chad Stark and James Molstre—return to lead an offense that last season led the nation in rushing, scoring and total offense. Bentrin, who runs the Bison veer offense to near-perfection, ran for 1,183 yards and 17 touchdowns and passed for 1,089 yards and 12 touchdowns. Stark added 1,146 yards on the ground and 10 touchdowns while Molstre ran for 869 yards and 11 touchdowns. The Bison defense, which steadily improved over the latter half of last season, returns all but one starter.

Co-North Central Conference champion Nebraska-Omaha might not have the horses to keep up with rival North Dakota State this season. The Mavericks, who lost to North Dakota State in league play and later in the first round of the play-offs, lost some talented players to graduation and will have a team dominated by underclassmen. Offensively, Nebraska-Omaha has two of the division's best receivers in Terry Allen and James Quaites; however, quarterbacks Scott Jamieson, a redshirt junior, and sophomore Rick Majerus are untested. But outstanding team speed and strength, along with depth at the other skill positions, should propel the Mavericks to another promising season.

Despite a cloud of uncertainty at the quarterback position, California-Davis is a good bet to win its 15th consecutive Northern California Conference title and make its fourth consecutive play-off appearance. A major concern of coach Jim Sochor is the status of heralded quarterback Roger Wilkinson, who is coming off shoulder surgery that prevented him from tossing a football for close to six months. Should Wilkinson be unable to play, Sochor has transfer Chris Peterson for consecutive conference titles among all divisions with Oklahoma... When Delta State wide receiver Kyle Finney decides to go hunting, he doesn't have to whistle too loudly for his hunting dogs, which he keeps outside the football dormitory.

Ron Brown has proved that good things come in little packages. The 5-6, 165-pound New Haven nose tackle led the team in sacks with a school-record 12 last year and also had 62 tackles, three forced fumbles, two fumble recoveries and two pass deflections... North Dakota has installed Astroturf in Memorial Stadium... Northeast Missouri State coach Jack Ball will coach against his son, Chris, who is a defensive back for Missouri Western... Coach Tom Keele took advantage of the Denver Gold's decision to hold preseason training camp at Cal State Northridge. Keele attended every practice and meeting of the United States Football League team and decided to install the Gold's run-and-shoot offense to take advantage of the Matadors' talented rushing corp... Portland State has one of the bigger offensive lines in the division with an average of 270 pounds... Cal State Sacramento's left side of the offensive line is being touted as one of the best in any division. Mike Black, who has gained 80 pounds since arriving, is at left guard at 6-5, 295 pounds, with the 6-5, 289-pound Greg Robinson at left tackle... Cal Poly-SLO offensive tackle Eric "E.T." Tautolo is listed at 325 pounds; however, his real weight is undetermined. The scales at Cal Poly-SLO only go to 300 pounds. Efforts to persuade Tautolo to be weighed on a cattle scale have failed.

Slippery Rock sports information director John Carpenter is conducting a "massive media blitz" designed to promote tailback Charles Sanders, the division's top returning rusher, for the Heisman Trophy. Carpenter kicked off the tongue-in-cheek campaign by mailing post cards last December to the media, touting Sanders as "Your First Official Heisman Trophy Candidate for '85." Carpenter featured "Ground Chuck" on the Rockets' media guide, the first time in Slippery Rock's 87-year football history that an individual has been on the cover. Carpenter then mailed a survey to football writers asking them to recommend a novelty item to keep Sanders in the public eye. Included on the gimmick checklist was a life-size (6-2), weighted (230 pounds) cut-out of Sanders for a writer's office or den and a key chain that, when tilted in proper sequence, shows Sanders rushing for a touchdown.

Dayton almost ended Augustana's winning streak, which now stands at 24 games, in the first round of the play-offs. The Flyers have a good chance of making the play-off field again, with 11 starters returning.

Three-time defending Ohio Athletic Conference champion Baldwin-Wallace, a 22-21 loser to Dayton last season, has another powerful team but faces a demanding schedule with road games against Ashland, Wittenberg, Mount Union, Ohio Northern and Dayton.

Other top teams in the region include Case Reserve, Denison, Millikin and Wheaton (Illinois).

West region: National play-off finalist and defending Iowa Athletic Conference champion Central (Iowa) lost several key players from last year's 11-1 team but coach Ron Schipper appears to have capable replacements and outstanding offensive and defensive lines to build around. Buena Vista and Wartburg should challenge Central for the conference title and also contend for a play-off berth.

Occidental, a play-off participant the past two years, has another solid team, paced by running backs Vance Mueller and Jeff Goldstein, perhaps the best pair in the division. Staying injury-free in a thin secondary and

Player prohibited from participating

The NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee has implemented the Association's disqualification provision concerning improper conduct during a national championship event.

The committee, at its recent meeting, voted to prohibit Tim McCalister, a student-athlete on the University of Oklahoma basketball team, from participating in the Sooners' next NCAA tournament game.

McCalister, who is entering his junior year, has acknowledged throwing a cup of water at a game official following Oklahoma's loss to Memphis State in the 1985 Midwest regional final.

"After carefully reviewing the information submitted by this institution and the individual involved, the committee felt that punitive action was necessary in view of the serious nature of this violation," said Victor

A. Bubas, chair of the men's basketball committee. "The committee believes the action clearly constituted a case of misconduct."

NCAA Executive Regulation 1-2-(o) provides the appropriate sports committee the authority to disqualify from future championship competition a student-athlete who is guilty of misconduct during the official dates of a championship.

Rules book on recommended reading list

The NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee encourages coaches and administrators at member institutions to obtain copies of both the 1986 men's rules and interpretations and the 1986 illustrated rules.

"The rules and interpretations really is the official men's basketball rules publication," said the committee's secretary-rules editor, Edward S. Steitz. "However, the illustrated book provides excellent examples of some of the toughest calls in the game, and the committee feels it would be very helpful, especially to players, if institutions obtained several copies.

"I hear that more and more coaches are providing each player on their squads with a copy of the illustrated rules, and I believe that is a superb idea.

"The book is designed to serve as a guide to the major rules of the game and provide illustrations of proper interpretations of those rules."

"It contains detailed information on the rules and an extensive casebook that outlines just about every situation imaginable. The committee strongly urges institutions to educate their players, coaches and fans to all facets of this game. These rules publications are a good step in that direction."

The books are available for $3 each, postage paid ($5 each for first-class postage) from NCAA Publishing, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201. Only prepaid orders are accepted.

FUGAZY International Travel is proud to be the official travel agency for the NCAA. With the addition of this important business, we have added weight with the airlines. This can be used to improve your institution's bottom line by cutting your travel cost.

For NCAA members, FUGAZY absolutely guarantees:

Legislative Assistance

1985 Column No. 29

Complimentary admissions

As a result of the adoption of Proposal No. 85, which became effective August 1, 1985, the practice of providing complimentary tickets to student-athletes under Constitution 3-1-(g)-(3) must be discontinued and replaced with a pass-list admissions system for family members, relatives and fellow students designated by the student-athlete. In other words, "hard tickets" shall no longer be issued by member institutions under this legislation.

Once an individual is admitted to the facility, it would be permissible for the institution to designate a specific reserved-seat location or section for the individual. For example, the institution could provide the stub of a reserved-seat ticket to facilitate the seating of those individuals admitted through the pass list.

Participation for improper expenses

Member institutions are reminded that the provisions of Case No. 10 (page 260, 1985-86 NCAA Manual) prohibit an individual who participates in competition (e.g., tennis, golf, track and field) from receiving expenses based upon the place finish achieved by that individual, regardless of whether such expenses exceed actual and necessary expenses for competition in that event. For example, an athlete who participates in a tennis tournament and places third in the competition could not receive expenses from the sponsor of the tournament based upon the third-place finish.

Printed recruiting aids

Member institutions are reminded that the provisions of Case No. 184 (page 308, 1985-86 NCAA Manual), prohibit a member institution from providing to a prospective student-athlete, high school or junior college coach any tangible recruiting aid other than an annual press guide, an annual recruiting brochure, game programs and wallet-size playing schedules. Information concerning Case No. 184 appeared in the November 19, 1984, and December 12, 1984, Legislative Assistance columns.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services staff as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question that it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Stephen R. Morgan, director of legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations for interim vacancies of NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancies must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, administrative assistant, in the NCAA national office no later than September 4, 1985.

Women's Gymnastics: Replacement for Jean Johnson, University of Illinois, Chicago, resigning from the committee effective August 31. Preferably, the replacement would be a woman from Division I, the Central women's gymnastics region.

Women's Swimming: Replacement for Mary Ellen Olcese, resigned from Springfield College to accept a position at Eastern Michigan University. Appointee must be from Division II.

Men's Lacrosse: Replacement for John Hantz, retiring from Clarkson University. New appointee may be from Divisions I or III.

COMMITTEE CHANGES

Appointments are effective immediately unless otherwise noted.

Field Hockey: Eileen M. Sharp, now at Wilkes College instead of Carleton College; Denise Ditch, Mount St. Mary's College, appointed to replace Margaret A. Peterson, resigned from the University of North Dakota; Mary Ann Hitchens, University of Delaware, appointed to replace Judy T. Baxter, resigned from Lehigh University.

Division I-AA Football: Walter Reed, Jackson State University, appointed to replace Edward L. Teague, The Citadel, resigned from the committee.

Division II Football: Harry L. Forsyth, South Dakota State University, appointed to replace Don Leahy, no longer at a Division II institution.

Men's and Women's Track and Field: Bill McClure, Louisiana State University, appointed as chair.

Long Range Planning: Michele Conlin, University of Iowa, appointed to replace Ellen Ferguson, University of California, Los Angeles, inasmuch as Ferguson no longer is an undergraduate student-athlete.

Postgraduate Scholarship: Margo Harbison, East Texas State University, appointed to replace Masago S. Armstrong, retired from Pomona-Pitzer Colleges.

Nominating Committee: Francis W. Bonner, Furman University, appointed to replace Cecil W. Ingram, Florida State University, because of Ingram's appointment to the NCAA Council.

Presidents Commission: Division I. Appointed to replace Herbert H. Reynolds: Richard L. Van Horn, chancellor, University of Houston, 4800 Calhoun, 212 E. Houston, Texas 77004.

Division II Women's Basketball: Patricia Lamb Kennedy, Long Island University, C.W. Post Campus, appointed to replace Helen Smiley, now at Western Illinois University, a Division I institution.

Wrestling: John Sacchi, Middlesex County College, appointed as the junior college representative, replaces Frank Millard, no longer at State University of New York, Delhi.

Drug Education: Michael C. Hogan, Pennsylvania State University (student-athlete), appointed to replace Matthew Skalla, Wesleyan University, no longer an undergraduate student-athlete.

SPECIAL COMMITTEES

Special NCAA Committee on Measuring Athletics Program Success: Delete Connie Claussen, University of Nebraska, Omaha, declined. Georgene Brock, Mankato State University, was appointed in lieu of Claussen.

Add: Special NCAA Committee on Copyright Royalty Tribunal Proceedings: Wilford S. Bailey, Auburn University, chair; Edward E. Bozik, University of Pittsburgh; Donald B. Canham, University of Michigan; DeLoss Dodds, University of Texas, Austin; Thomas C. Hansen, Pacific-10 Conference; John D. Swofford, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Four percent of students surveyed denied grants-in-aid renewal

Only four percent of 16,000 student-athletes, representing a majority of NCAA member institutions, were denied renewal of their athletics grants-in-aid in 1983-84, according to a study conducted for the Association's Administrative Committee.

The survey involved 31 Division I conferences, and 84 percent of their members responded.

The sports surveyed were men's basketball and football and women's basketball and volleyball. The results cover 16,058 student-athletes who received full or partial grants in these four sports in the 1983-84 academic year. The study also showed that of 15,808 student-athletes at the same institutions in 1982-83, only 3.5 percent were denied renewal of their grants.

About 16 percent of the student-athletes involved in nonrenewal actions received hearings at their respective institutions. The reason for the percentage receiving hearings was attributed to a choice by the student-athlete; and of the hearings that were initiated, in 10 to 12 percent of the cases, the student-athlete chose not to pursue the hearing to its completion. About 75 percent of the hearings resulted in nonrenewal of grants and about 15 percent resulted in either a reduction in aid or full restoration of the grant.

The primary reasons cited for action or nonrenewal of grants were either poor academic performance by the athlete (29 percent), or discontinued participation in athletics (26 percent) in 1983-84. Other reasons included poor athletics performance, disciplinary problems, injuries and transfers to other institutions.

Most participating conferences (85 percent) indicated that there was no difference in policy at their institutions regarding athletics or other types of aid. Of the 15 percent that indicated some differences in policy, the main difference was that those on academic scholarships had to maintain a higher grade-point average and had to reapply each year. The athletics grant is renewed automatically unless the student-athlete is notified otherwise.

Teachers' salaries rise 7.3 percent

The more than two million public school teachers in the United States earn an average annual salary of $23,546, according to the National Education Association.

Schools in Alaska offered the highest salaries and those in Mississippi the lowest, the NEA reported.

Salaries rose 7.3 percent in the past year, and schools this year are spending 7.8 percent more on each of the 39.4 million pupils in public elementary and secondary schools. Schools are spending $3,429 on each student.

Visibility suggested to combat negative image

Results of a poll indicating that the public and media view the NCAA as only an "enforcer" were discussed by the NCAA Public Relations and Promotion Committee July 16-19 in Santa Cruz, California.

Committee members reviewed the results of a questionnaire mailed in May to various NCAA committee members, media representatives, athletics administrators and college sports fans.

The poll suggested more visibility by NCAA officers as a means of combating the negative image and publicizing the NCAA's positive programs.

The committee also discussed the work of many sports information directors. A panel of media representatives from the San Francisco Bay area and a national cable television representative met with the committee for discussion.

The panel agreed that both college sports information directors and those in professional sports were not performing their duties as their predecessors had and that the problem was growing to the extent that writers and commentators view this "nonservice" as tarnishing the image of professional and collegiate athletics.

The most important tool for the sports information office staff is the telephone, the panel said. The panel stated that sports information personnel must serve the media and return phone calls even when there are "tough" calls to make or difficult news to deliver.

In addition, there was discussion on equal access to locker rooms. Also, the committee voted to add recommendations to the annual NCAA public relations mailing to include guidelines for public address announcers and the use of armbands for photographers during NCAA championships events.

Football posters available

Posters illustrating NCAA football blocking and use of the hand and arm rules and The Football Code have been mailed to directors of athletics, football coaches, supervisors of officials and commissioners.

The NCAA Football Rules Committee, which designed the posters, recommends that both posters be displayed in locker rooms or other areas frequented by student-athletes.

The blocking poster uses photographs that depict legal and illegal shoulder, cross body and retreat blocks, as well as holding and blocking personal fouls as defined in 1985 NCAA Football Rules and Interpretations.

This is the first year the rules committee has produced The Football Code posters, which deal with coaching ethics, illegal use of the hand and arm, "beating the ball," illegal shifting, feigning injuries, talking to opponents and officials, and sportsmanship.

The posters measure 19 by 24 1/4 inches, are printed on heavy paper stock and feature four-color artwork. Additional posters can be obtained by contacting the NCAA national office.

Transportation reimbursement recommended

Transportation reimbursement for institutions selected to compete in the 1986 Divisions II and III Women's Tennis Championships is one of the items the NCAA Women's Tennis Committee is recommending this week to the Executive Committee.

The tennis committee also proposes the following sites and dates for those championships: Division II, May 5-10, at California State University, Northridge; Division III, May 13-17, at Kalamazoo College.

The committee shortened the Division III championships by one day because it believes the individual championships can be completed in less time. In addition, the Division III dates have been moved back a week to allow institutions an additional week of regular-season competition, which often is hampered by weather.

Division I championships issues under consideration include an increase in officials fees and the approval of air transportation for the head referee, if necessary. The committee also recommends that prospective host institutions be required to guarantee 75 percent of the projected net receipts on their proposed budgets, effective in 1986-87.

It was decided that the U.S. Tennis Association rules will be used for the 1986 championships.

The Division I subcommittee discussed implementing a percent-of-play format, in which athletes would have to play in one lineup position for a certain percentage of matches for the team to be considered for selection to the championships. Although a formal recommendation was not made, the subcommittee strongly recommends that coaches not move an athlete more than two places up or down in the lineup during the last half of the season.

- Constitution 3-1-(g)-(3)—precludes issuance of "hard tickets" to student-athletes and requires four complimentary admissions per student-athlete to be provided only by a pass list for family members, relatives and fellow students designated by the student-athlete.

- Constitution 3-4-(a)-(4)—permits student-athletes to receive financial assistance from a source outside the member institution based in part upon his or her athletics participation, but only under specific conditions set forth in the legislation.

- Bylaw 1-6-(d)—prohibits high school competition from being conducted in conjunction with a collegiate event in football, basketball, volleyball and gymnastics.

- Bylaw 3-1-(a)-(1)—prohibits on-court basketball practice prior to October 15, but permits the team to be assembled before that date for preseason conditioning activities at a site away from the basketball court.

- Bylaw 3-3-(a)—establishes playing- and practice-season limitations for all men's and women's sports in Divisions I and II.

- Bylaw 3-4-(d)—prohibits post-season soccer practice and permits no more than six student-athletes from the same institution's soccer program to serve as counselors in the same summer camp or participate on the same outside amateur soccer team.

- Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)-(iv)—affirms that a student-athlete must designate a program of studies leading toward a specific baccalaureate degree by the beginning of the third year of enrollment and make satisfactory academic progress in that program, regardless of whether the individual is a transfer student.

joins the Big Ten, SEC, Big Eight, Big East, ACC and Western Athletic Conference in the one-million club (in football, the Pacific-10 Conference and Southwest Athletic Conference are one-million conferences, replacing the Metro and Big East, with the same five above).

10 reach record totals

The others setting records in both total and per-game attendance were the Sun Belt Conference (686,591 and 5,449) and the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference (207,769 and 2,416). These four were the only conferences to set records in per-game average.

However, more games helped 10 Division I conferences set records total attendance. They were the Big Ten, Big East, Metro, Sun Belt, Metro Athletic, Big Eight, Big Sky Conference, Midwestern Collegiate Conference (formerly Midwestern City), Mid-American Conference and Southland Conference (see table for figures).

The Pacific-10, a one-million conference for three seasons (1979, 1980 and 1981), showed the third-largest increase in totals at 91,387 to reach 958,370—its highest total since 1981. In purely percentage terms, the ECAC North Atlantic showed the biggest jumps in both per-game (26.05 percent to 1,863) and total (36.47 percent to 268,237).

Grass roots trend downward

Official national attendance compilations for teams below Division I began with the 1977 season. However, more than 400 teams were estimated that year. We thought the estimates were low, but when more accurate figures were obtained for 1978, they proved to be too high (a similar trend has surfaced this year in women's basketball, as will be detailed in the August 28 issue of The NCAA News). This means 1978 was the first season of reasonably accurate figures below Division I, so our comparisons start with 1979. It would appear from the annual changes that the grass-roots teams have held their own since then:

	Division I Increases	Annual Change Below Div. I
1979.....	976,190	Down 55,377
1980.....	261,828	Up 404,962
1981.....	209,409	Up 33,776
1982.....	222,043	Down 51,212
1983.....	578,841	Down 213,654
1984.....	201,936	Up 11,007
1985.....	557,993	Down 185,398

The actual year-by-year figures, though, show that the teams below Division I have lost 772,837 in total attendance since 1978, while Division I gained 3,725,181. The annual changes would lead you to believe the grass-roots loss was only 55,896, because the "Downs" outnumber the "Ups" by that figure. In reality, 716,941 (nearly 20 percent) of the Division I total increase came from teams moving up to Division I, and these are included in previous-year figures to make a valid comparison. The actual year-by-year figures for both groups:

	Division I Totals	Below Div. I
1978.....	17,669,080	11,435,249
1979.....	18,649,383	11,375,759
1980.....	19,052,743	11,639,189
1981.....	19,355,690	11,579,427
1982.....	19,789,706	11,316,242
1983.....	20,488,437	10,982,698
1984.....	20,715,426	10,968,652
1985.....	21,394,261	10,662,412

Television a factor

As the table shows, the decline is almost one million from a high of 11.6 million in 1980. Undoubtedly, the proliferation of basketball on television with the advent of cable has contributed to this grass-roots decline to some extent.

From another angle, though, one could argue that the overall picture is healthy because some upper grass-roots teams move into Division I and are replaced every year by new varsity programs with tiny attendance figures (the total number of varsity teams has increased by 52 since 1977, now totaling 1,266; Division I has gained 37 since then). This is why per-game average keeps going down below Division I. Indeed, the Division I average in 1985 was below the record set in 1979 (5,258 vs. 5,271) with the proliferation of postseason conference tournaments lessening the importance of the regular season.

North Central leads again

Among conferences below Division I, the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference led in 1985 for the fifth straight year at 2,639 per game, with the Oklahoma Intercollegiate Conference second. The Central States Intercollegiate Conference showed the biggest gains in per-game (470 to 2,209) and total (48,155 to 242,978) attendance and jumped from seventh to third. New to the top 20 are the Big Apple Basketball Conference (it had the largest gains on a purely percentage basis—see table) and the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference.

Syracuse ousts Kentucky

Syracuse, in its giant Carrier Dome, became the national attendance champion in 1985 with a record 25,870 per game (388,049 spectators—also a record), ousting Kentucky, which had eight straight crowns in eight seasons in packed Rupp Arena. Kentucky averaged 22,923 in its ninth year in Rupp, enough to lead the country any other year.

Syracuse had four more 30,000-plus crowds, topped by 32,520 for Villanova—seventh biggest in college history and most ever for a game on campus. Syracuse now has all five campus-crowds records over 32,000. Louisville moved up a notch to third and New Mexico three notches to fourth with Indiana again fifth. Illinois, up seven notches to sixth, and Kansas, up six to 12th, showed big gains, but Nebraska, the only new team in the top 20, jumped 10 notches from 30th. Illinois and DePaul were the new top-10 teams.

Villanova's increase biggest Villanova's national champions, playing some Big East home games in the Spectrum and Palestra in Philadelphia, led Division I in home-game per-game increase with 4,474, to reach 10,218. St. John's (New York), with some home games in Madison Square Garden in New York, was next at 3,744 (to 9,109), with Arizona third (3,627 to 10,924), Syracuse (3,490) fourth and Fresno State, in an expanded arena, fifth at 3,458 (to 10,036).

Fourteen more Division I teams increased at least 1,700 per game in 1985. They were Cincinnati 3,318, Prairie View 2,920 (to 3,069), Colorado State 2,614, Illinois 2,573, Georgetown 2,497 (giving the Big East four of the top 10 increases), St. Peter's 2,482 (to 3,961), Loyola (Illinois) 2,162 (to 6,186), Florida 2,036, Hartford 2,029 (to 3,120), Mississippi State 1,991 (to 6,384), Kansas 1,956, Nevada-Reno 1,810 (to 6,500), Southern Methodist 1,778 (to 6,331) and Southern California 1,777 (to 5,746... see table for other figures). Some were among the nation's most-improved teams in won-lost terms.

In total attendance for all games, Syracuse also moved past Kentucky to No. 1 at 581,347, short of the national-record 633,618 by Kentucky in 1984 (and third behind the 586,250 by Kentucky's 1978 national champions). Kentucky was second and Louisville third, also topping a half million. Top conferences are prominent on the list.

Norfolk State tops Division II

Norfolk State repeated as Division II national attendance champion although falling a bit to 6,116 per game, with North Dakota State and Kentucky Wesleyan again ranking second and third, respectively. Wisconsin-Stevens Point, the 1982 leader, replaced Hope atop Division III at 2,313, with Hope second. The 513 non-NCAA colleges were led by Fort Hays State of Kansas at 4,757, replacing Northern State of South Dakota, which dropped to second.

The Facts...

DRUG ABUSE is one of American society's most compelling problems. Whether on the job, on the playing field or in the classroom, its effects and consequences can create serious and oft times hazardous situations.

While there is no easy solution to this problem, drug screening programs are proving effective in many ways: productivity is improving, absenteeism is being reduced, safety and security are enhanced, and the programs themselves are serving as deterrents.

Once the decision has been made to establish a drug screening program, careful consideration should be given to the selection of the laboratory which will perform the testing. While some clinical laboratories offer limited drug screening as a part of their testing capabilities, at The American Institute for Drug Detection, the Facts speak for themselves:

Fact: A laboratory dedicated solely to testing for drugs of abuse and steroids

Fact: A professional staff committed to providing results of the highest quality, accuracy and precision

Fact: State-of-the-Art instrumentation and quality control

Fact: Strict confidentiality and documented chain of specimen custody

Fact: Immediate confirmation of positive findings by Gas Chromatography/Mass Spectrometry

Fact: Unparalleled responsiveness with most testing completed within 72 hours of receipt in the laboratory (priority testing services are available)

Fact: Test regimens individually designed to meet your most specific service requirements

To discuss (in confidence) your organization's specific plans and how The American Institute for Drug Detection can be of assistance, kindly phone or write:

...TOM KORESCHELL named at Iowa State. He has been an assistant SID at Northwestern and Drake...FRANK M. CICERO chosen at Harvard...GREG IRWIN resigned at Eastern Michigan to accept a position with the American Power Boat Association.

CONFERENCES

JOE MITCH, former assistant commissioner of the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, named to a similar position with the Missouri Valley Conference...BILL BEAGAN, a former National Hockey League referee, named commissioner of the Central Collegiate Hockey Association, replacing JIM RUFHL, who retired...PATRICK R. DAMORF selected the first full-time commissioner of the State University of New York Athletic Conference.

NOTABLES

PAT HECK, a pitcher at Evansville, selected the recipient of the Midwestern Collegiate Conference's Cecil N. Coleman Medal of Honor. The award is presented annually to the league's top senior scholar-athlete based on academic performance, athletic achievement and participation in extracurricular activities...PETE ACCARDY, head swimming coach at Cal State Northridge the past 16 years, named Division II swimming coach of the year by the College Swimming Coaches of America. It was Accardy's fifth award. Northridge diving coach VAN AUSTIN was named Division II men's diving coach of the year by the same organization. The Matadors won their fifth consecutive Division II men's national championship this past season and ninth title in the past 11 years...ELROY L. HIRSCH, Wisconsin athletics director, named to the all-time Los Angeles Rams football team by fans of the Rams voting in a Los Angeles Times poll. During his NFL career with the Rams, Hirsch caught 343 passes for 6,299 yards and 53 touchdowns. He still holds the NFL record of 1,495 passing yards set over a 12-game schedule in 1951.

DEATHS

MARGE MEYER, wife of former DePaul basketball coach Ray, died August 8 at Loyola University Medical Center. She was 72. Known affectionately as "The First Lady of DePaul," Meyer was an outstanding basketball player as a young woman, and played on a Catholic Youth Organization team coached by her future husband. Three of her sons played basketball for DePaul. Her son, Joey, was named head coach at DePaul after his father's retirement...DONALD C. "CHET" GRANT, quarterback for Notre Dame football coach Knute Rockne and holder of the school record for the longest punt return, died July 24. He was 93. A former director of the Sports and Games Collection at the Notre Dame Memorial Library, he played football at Notre Dame before and after World War I. He led the Fighting Irish to a 10-1 record in 1921. In 1916, he returned a punt 95 yards for a touchdown against Case Tech to set the Notre Dame record...ANDY STYNCHULA, who played collegiate football at Penn State and professionally with the Baltimore Colts, died in an automobile accident in the Bahamas August 1. He was 40. Two other men riding in Stynchula's car were not hurt...EDWARD R. SLAUGHTER, former football and golf coach at Virginia, died June 30. He was 82.

CORRECTION

Because of inaccurate information provided The NCAA News, it was incorrectly reported in the July 31 issue that Richard Trump was appointed president of Black Hills State College. Clifford Trump, acting president of Idaho State, was named to the position at Black Hills State.

Cheyney's women's basketball program goes on probation

Cheyney University of Pennsylvania has been placed on probation for one year by the NCAA Committee on Infractions as a result of violations found in the conduct of the university's intercollegiate women's basketball program.

The penalty imposed by the NCAA will require the university to develop and implement educational and monitoring programs for athletics department personnel to ensure compliance with NCAA legislation, and the university must submit a written report concerning these programs to the NCAA.

The Committee on Infractions also adopted action taken by the university to prohibit the head women's basketball coach from engaging in any recruiting activities (on or off campus) for one year, beginning December 15, 1984, based upon his involvement in the case.

The penalty did not affect the university's eligibility for postseason competition or television appearances.

"The violations found in this case," said Frank J. Remington, chair, Committee on Infractions, "were limited primarily to the recruitment of four prospective student-athletes during one weekend. The seriousness of the case was heightened, however, when it became apparent that the head women's basketball coach provided false and misleading information to the NCAA concerning his involvement in and knowledge of the violations.

"The committee determined, therefore," Remington said, "that disciplinary action in reference to the coach's conduct was appropriate to ensure awareness of the proper application of NCAA rules in the future."

The committee found violations involving unethical conduct, the tryout rule, entertainment, publicity, expense-paid visits and certification of compliance.

The following is a complete text of the penalty imposed and the summary of the violations found in this case:

Penalty to be imposed upon institution

1. Cheyney University of Pennsylvania shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of one year, effective July 1, 1985, it being understood that should any portion of the penalty in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalty shall be reconsidered by the NCAA; further, during this period of probation, the NCAA shall review the athletics policies and procedures of the university, which will include periodic visits to the university by NCAA staff members.

2. The institution shall develop and implement educational and monitoring programs for athletics department personnel to ensure compliance with NCAA legislation; further, the university shall submit a written report concerning these programs to the NCAA by September 1, 1985, identifying the measures taken by the institution to ensure compliance with NCAA legislation.

3. The university prohibited its head women's basketball coach from participating in any recruiting activities for a one-year period, effective December 15, 1984, including in-person, off-campus recruiting contacts with prospective student-athletes, their families, friends or coaches; off-campus evaluations of prospective student-athletes, and written or telephonic communications with prospective student-athletes.

Summary of violations of NCAA legislation

1. NCAA Constitution 3-6-(a) [ethical conduct]—The head women's basketball coach acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct inasmuch as he did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics in that he knowingly provided false and misleading information to the NCAA and the university concerning his knowledge of and involvement in a violation of NCAA legislation.

2. NCAA Bylaw 1-6-(a) [tryout]—On October 15, 1983, while on their official paid visits to the university's campus, four prospective student-athletes participated in a basketball workout on the university's campus with members of the university's intercollegiate women's basketball team; further, the head women's basketball coach and a part-time assistant women's basketball coach observed this workout.

3. NCAA Bylaw 1-8-(j) [entertainment]—On October 15, 1983, during the official paid visit to the university's campus of a prospective student-athlete, the university entertained the prospect's brother and sister for a meal at a campus dining facility at no cost to them, and the head women's basketball coach arranged for the brother and sister to attend an intercollegiate football game on the university's campus at no cost to them.

4. NCAA Bylaw 1-4-(a)-(3) [publicity]—On October 15, 1983, during the official paid visits to the university's campus of four prospective student-athletes, a public address announcement was made during half time of a home football game indicating that these young women were in attendance.

5. NCAA Bylaw 1-8-(e) [expense-paid visits]—During the 1983-84 academic year, the university failed to notify numerous prospective student-athletes, a public-address announcement was made during half time of a home game of the university's campus, that they could accept only one expense-paid visit to no more than five individual member institutions.

6. NCAA Bylaw 5-6-(d)-(5) [certification of compliance]—With full knowledge at the time that certain practices of the university's intercollegiate women's basketball program were not in compliance with NCAA legislation, the head women's basketball coach attested on a statement filed with the chief executive officer of the university that he had reported to the chief executive officer his knowledge of and involvement in any violation of NCAA legislation involving the university.

School gets reprimand on eligibility

San Francisco State University has been publicly reprimanded and censured by the NCAA Committee on Infractions for permitting three student-athletes in men's basketball to compete during a portion of the 1983-84 basketball season while academically ineligible.

As a result of the violation, the university also will be required to return $523.80 to the NCAA from earnings the institution received from its participation in the 1984 Division II Men's Basketball Championship.

Further, the university's record of participation in the 1984 championship shall be deleted by the NCAA, the team's place in the final standings shall be vacated and any trophy earned by the university shall be returned to the Association.

The university's future eligibility for postseason competition and television appearances was not affected by the NCAA penalty.

"The athletics administrators of the university became aware of the possible violation in September 1984," said Frank J. Remington, Committee on Infractions chair. "The university conducted an investigation of the matter and determined that during the second semester of the 1983-84 academic year, three student-athletes withdrew from a class and, therefore, were enrolled in less than a minimum, full-time academic load for a portion of the season. The university forfeited five postseason games in which the ineligible athletes participated, and the university implemented a new monitoring program to avoid similar violations in the future."

Remington noted that "the committee determined that the violation was inadvertent, and that the university took appropriate action when the matter was discovered. Considering the nature and circumstances of the case, the committee did not believe additional action by the NCAA was warranted."

The following is the complete text of the penalty and a summary of the violation in this case.

Penalty to be imposed upon institution

1. San Francisco State University shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and admonished to avoid a recurrence of similar violations in the future.

2. Under the provisions of NCAA Executive Regulation 1-3-(j), the university shall be required to return $523.80 to the NCAA executive office from the university's participation in the 1984 Division II Men's Basketball Championship (90 percent of its share of net receipts); further, the record of the university's performance in the 1984 championship shall be deleted, the team's place in the final standings shall be vacated, and any trophy earned in this event by the university shall be returned to the Association.

Summary of the violation of NCAA legislation

1. NCAA Constitution 3-3-(a)-(3) and Bylaws 5-1-(c) and 11-2-(d) [academic ineligibility]—During the second semester of the 1983-84 academic year, the university permitted three student-athletes in the sport of men's basketball to participate in several regular and postseason basketball games, although each young man was enrolled in less than a minimum, full-time program of studies in the university.
