Commission proposals to face early decision at Convention

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles covering legislation to be considered at the 80th annual NCAA Convention. This article covers the academic proposals and a special grouping of three other amendments endorsed jointly by the Presidents Commission and the NCAA Council, as well as the items in the consent packages. In the remaining issues of the News leading to the Convention, other topical groupings will be presented in the order in which they will be considered at the Convention.)

The first two major groupings of legislation at the 1986 NCAA Convention carry a clear stamp of presidential interest, if the actions of the NCAA Presidents Commission are an indication.

After the customary two consent packages of noncontroversial legislation, which generally are acted upon in a total of two or three minutes, the Convention faces a grouping of five proposals under the heading of "Academics." Three of those have been designated by the Presidents Commission for roll-call votes.

Then comes a special grouping of three other proposals — all sponsored jointly by the Commission and the NCAA Council and placed early in the agenda to facilitate attendance and participation by as many institutional chief executive officers as possible.

Academics

The academics section probably will attract the most attention at the Convention, at least from the news media. Three of the five proposals in that grouping are proposed amendments to NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j), the requirements for initial eligibility in Division I that were adopted in the 1983 Convention and will go into effect next August 1 as written if this Convention does nothing to alter them.

It will have three options for alteration, and each will be voted upon by a roll-call of all Division I voting member institutions and voting conferences.

In fact, all five of the academics proposals relate to Division I only; therefore, they will be voted upon in the full Division I business session the afternoon of January 13. The results will be announced in the general business session early on the morning of January 14, and the Division I voting result will stand if it is not rescinded by the full Convention at that time.

First up for vote in the academics section is an amendment to Bylaw 5-1-(j) that would eliminate from the requirements adopted in 1983 all references to test-score requirements. In short, the requirement for initial eligibility in Division I then would be at least a 2.000 grade-point average in the 11-course core curriculum, and national test scores would not be involved.

That proposal was submitted by the members of the Southwestern Athletic Conference and others — 11 institutions in all. So was the next proposal to be voted upon, an alternative that would strike references in Bylaw 5-1-(j) to any specific test scores but would require the qualifier to have taken either the SAT or the ACT tests "for placement purposes only."

Three new vice-presidents head list of NCAA nominations

Nominees to serve as Divisions I, II and III vice-presidents of the NCAA head the list of nominations being recommended to the membership by the NCAA Nominating Committee.

The committee's slate of candidates for NCAA offices and vacancies on the NCAA Council is being announced this week in The NCAA News and in the Official Notice of the 1986 NCAA Convention, to be mailed to all members Friday, November 22.

Nominated to serve as division vice-presidents are Lewis A. Cryer, commissioner of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Division I; Asa N. Green, president of Livingston University, Division II, and Judith M. Sweet, director of athletics at the University of California, San Diego, Division III.

Cryer is nominated to replace Arliss L. Roaden, former president of Tennessee Technological University, who now is executive director of the Tennessee Higher Education Commission and thus will relinquish his office and his Council position at the end of the January Convention. Cryer will serve only for one year inasmuch as his term on the Council ends in January 1987.

Green will replace Ade L. Sponberg, director of athletics at North Dakota State University, who has served as Division II vice-president for the maximum two years. Green also will serve only one year because his Council term ends in January 1987.

Sweet will have a two-year term as Division III vice-president replacing Elizabeth A. Kruczek, director of athletics at Fitchburg State College, whose term on the Council ends.

Elections of the three division vice-presidents will take place during the Divisions I, II and III business sessions January 13 at the Convention in New Orleans. Their selections then will be ratified by the full Convention prior to the adjournment January 15.

The Nominating Committee's slate of candidates to fill Council vacancies includes several recommended reelections of Council members who have served half a term (two years) or less. Each such individual is eligible to serve a full four-year term. Each division will fill its own vacancies on the Council during the division business sessions January 13.

The committee's nominations for Council positions are as follows, all for four-year terms except where indicated.

Division I

Division I-A conferences: Elect B. J. Skelton, faculty athletics representative, Clemson University (Atlantic Coast Conference) to term ending January 1988. Elect Robert R. Snell, faculty athletics representative, Kansas State University (Big Eight Conference). Elect Clayne R. Jensen, Brigham Young University (Western Athletic Conference).

Division I-A Independent, South: Reelect Cecil W. Ingram, director of athletics, Florida State University.

Division I-AA East region: Elect

More than 175 basketball games scheduled for national TV

CBS, NBC and ESPN will combine to telecast 177 regular-season basketball contests during the 1985-86 season. ESPN begins the new season when UCLA visits North Carolina November 24. CBS will conclude the season with telecasts of the Division I men's and women's championship games, March 30 and 31.

Including regional and split-national broadcasts, CBS will carry 28 regular-season games, NBC will carry 33 regular-season contests, and ESPN will telecast 116 regular-season games (111 live and five on tape delay). In addition to the championship games, CBS also will carry Division I men's championship preview and selection shows and 19 other tournament contests.

Here are the 1985-86 schedules of the networks:

CBS

November: 30—Georgia Tech vs. Michigan (at Springfield, Massachusetts).

December: 7—Kansas at North Carolina State; 14—St. John's (New York) at UCLA; 28—Louisville at Kentucky.

January: Georgetown at St. John's (New York) (national); Notre Dame at DePaul or Southern California at Washington (double-header, split-national); 18—Ohio State at Boston College or Kentucky at Florida (split-national); Syracuse at Louisville or Arizona at Miami (Florida) (double-header, split-national); 19—North Carolina at Marquette; 25—Indiana at Illinois (national); St. John's (New York) at Pittsburgh or Southern California at Arkansas (double-header, split-national).

February: 2—Louisiana State at Georgetown; 8—Memphis State at Nevada-Las Vegas; Notre Dame at Syracuse (double-header); 15—Louisville at DePaul or UCLA at Arizona State (split-national); 22—Alabama-Birmingham at Michigan; Oklahoma at Duke (double-header); 23—Georgetown at Syracuse.

March: 1—Boston College at Villanova; Illinois at Georgia Tech (double-header); 2—Iowa at Indiana; 8—

Indiana at Michigan or UCLA at Oregon (split-national); 9—NCAA Basketball Championship Preview and Selection Show (national); 13—NCAA championship, first round; 14—First round; 15—Second round (triple-header, regional); 16—Second round (triple-header, regional); 20—Regional semifinals (double-header, national or split-national); 21—Regional semifinals (double-header, national or split-national); 22—Regional finals (double-header, national);

In show-biz terms, pros can't match appeal of an old hooper like Bevo

Mickey Herskowitz, columnist
The Houston Post

"With no disrespect to the pros, there are at least two ways the Hessians can't compete with the amateurs.

"They don't have their own campuses, where people can park their Winnebagos overnight; and if they want a mascot, they have to go out and rent one.

"I mean, Texas has a steer, SMU has a real pony, Rice has an owl and Houston has a cougar named Shasta, who once made a car commercial. It's true that TCU has a guy who dresses up as a horned frog, but then a live toad would be a little hard to see on the sideline and might get stepped on by Bevo or somebody—a gruesome thought.

"Notre Dame suits a fellow in a green suit and a green hat—a little tall for a leprechaun, we judged, but you got the idea. The night before the Irish knocked off Army, their coach took them to see the movie, 'Knut Rockne, All-American.' No way the pros can top that. Somehow, you can't picture Hugh Campbell taking the Oilers to the nearest drive-in and buying 50 tickets to 'North Dallas Forty.'"

Bill Curry, head football coach
Georgia Institute of Technology

The Washington Post

"I'm just as cynical as you. What surprised me the most (about college coaches) was the utter ruthlessness where the kids are involved, what some person will do to a young person, with no compunction.

"Look you right in the eye. Lie. That surprised me. Even as callous as I had become, I thought I'd seen it all. I hadn't. Absolute lack of conscience in pushing steroids into 17-year-old bodies, after having induced the guys to come there with clothes and $100 bills slipped under motel room doors while they're on visits to the school.

"Trinkets. Nothin' really. But big to a poverty-stricken 17-year-old. Without a blink of conscience. 'It's okay; everybody does it. It's business.' The shuttling, from one rinky-dink course to the next, so that a kid may go to four bowls but have not one shred of advancement toward a degree."

"As soon as the NCAA accepts college basketball as it is, a commercial venture, we'll all be better off.

"The NCAA must look after the well-being of the athlete. To stop the corruption, well, the only way is to pay the athletes legally—like $100 to $150 a month for expenses. Many players come from the lower part of the economy."

"In short, the question becomes how many sports can we support with dignity? And, if we must downsize our operation by cutting programs, what criteria do we use to make that determination?"

"At the last athletics council meeting when the ad hoc committee was appointed to study this issue, we were reminded again that many students at Ohio State do not believe we should cut sports.

"We were presented a petition to this end with more than 4,000 signatures. I suspect 50,000 others would have signed the document had they crossed the Oval at the right time. Idealistically, I would have signed it myself in the sense that Ohio State should provide for its students as many opportunities for education through competitive varsity athletics as possible. But what we should do idealistically and what we can do realistically often differ—and our department can no more sponsor an unlimited number of sports than the university can offer an unlimited number of academic courses or support countless academic departments.

"It is reassuring and comforting that at least 4,000 students believe we should not cut sports—but it also is disappointing that few of our sports ever draw 4,000 student spectators in an entire season, much less at a single event. I do not mean to be cynical or unfair, but there is not much of a commitment to signing a petition."

Jerry Tarkanian, head men's basketball coach
University of Nevada, Las Vegas

The Chronicle of Higher Education

"The first thing I'd like to see done is to raise entrance requirements for athletes—make it more difficult for kids to play as freshmen.

"A college's entrance requirements should be the same for athletes as for other students. If you're letting a kid in with a 500 on his SAT, and other students have to have 1,000, you know that kid can't compete academically, and there is going to be something shady going on to get him through.

"Oh, there should be special admissions. But in such cases, there should be no playing and no practice for the freshman year. And the kid should take courses in the areas in which he is lacking skills. He would be on full scholarship; and it would count against the total number of scholarships a college is permitted to give, but not count as a year of eligibility.

"It should be a year to make up for what he didn't get in high school. It would give a kid from a disadvantaged background the chance to catch up and not deprive him of a chance to go to a major university.

"The kid should have a chance to compete. It is unfair for him to come into a school where he has no chance to compete with other kids in the classroom."

Sheila Wallace, head women's volleyball coach
Ohio Northern University

Sports information release

"While our student-athletes are here primarily for an education and secondarily to participate in sports, they won't settle for mediocrity in either area.

"These kids are just never satisfied. When they win a conference title, they immediately set their sights on nationals, and they are continually striving to improve themselves academically. I have never had an athlete tell me I work them too hard...they expect the work and they want it."

Ferdinand A. Geiger, director of athletics
Stanford University

USA Today

"We go to great efforts not to separate our athletes from our student body. We don't have separate housing, cafeterias, or academic counseling. It is a step in the wrong direction to use an athletics scholarship as a weapon to subject an athlete to (drug) testing. The companies who make the testing kits—and this is the manufacturer—will tell you they are 97 percent accurate. Even if that's true, I don't believe 97 percent is good enough when you are talking about the embarrassment and trouble a falsely positive test could cause."

Letters to the Editor

Chamberlain's comment disturbs coach

To the Editor:

I cannot believe the comments made by Wilt Chamberlain (October 18 issue of The NCAA News) concerning stipends for scholarship athletes. Mr. Chamberlain suggested a stipend ("standardized and above-board") of $300 to $400 per month. For crying out loud, that is a car payment—an expensive car payment. What is the difference between giving an athlete a car and giving an athlete enough money for a car? If the stipend is designed to cover incidental expenses, let us make sure the expenses are incidental necessities, not incidental amenities.

I realize that the student-athlete has great demands on his or her time, but to receive a stipend above tuition and/or room and board instead of working is a bit excessive—especially to the degree that Mr. Chamberlain suggests. Don't these kids work in the summer? What happens to that money?

Realistically, most students should be able to work at least eight weeks over the summer. If the job pays only minimum wage, the individual will make over $1,000. (I venture to say that most can work more than eight weeks and many at higher than minimum wage.) If an additional $3,000 to $4,000, as suggested by Mr. Chamberlain, is granted as a stipend, a bankroll is developing for an inordinate amount of incidental expenses.

I understand that college work-study programs are not accessible to scholarship athletes. Perhaps they should be. I support that. But... a student can pursue off-campus employment.

As I reflect on the statement by Mr. Chamberlain, I pose this question: How in the world does the Division III athlete do it? He and she do, you know.

CEOs, ADs must serve as watchdogs

To the Editor:

The NCAA and intercollegiate athletics are experiencing troubled times. The image of our nation's leading institutions of higher education is being eroded by cheating scandals in collegiate athletics programs.

In the past few weeks, we have seen examples of alumni payments to athletes, illegal recruiting tactics and the resignation of coaches for violations of NCAA standards.

These clearly are acts of unscrupulous people who seek to sway the competitive edge. These acts cannot be condoned at any level and must be dealt with in a manner that leaves no question about the integrity of our institutions.

Intercollegiate athletics at Chapman College exist to provide an outlet for those students who seek to exhibit their competitive skills. For those who take a more sedentary approach, it is meant to be a form of entertainment and a point of unifying a campus community.

Intercollegiate athletics are designed to conform to standards that are fair and equitable for all. Those seeking to soil the basic purposes must be appropriately disciplined. Let there be no confusion on one basic issue: The watchdog for intercollegiate athletics is not the NCAA, but it is the college presidents and athletics directors who have chosen to align their institutions with these organizations, thereby agreeing to enforce the standards in a framework of fair play.

At Chapman College, we are well aware of our unique responsibility. We gladly accept this obligation and pledge to you, our constituency, the promise that we will not tolerate conduct contrary to the moral and ethical standards by which the intercollegiate programs are to exist.

Walter L. Bowman
Director of athletics
Chapman College

Athletes should be allowed to work

To the Editor:

With all the talk about paying athletes a monthly stipend, I see minimal uproar to the discriminatory practice of not allowing them to work legitimate, documented part-time jobs when school is in regular session.

The objections to this are either they don't have time or it would precipitate illicit payments.

In response to this, first, any illicit payments do not need a job situation to transpire, and this objection does not preclude athletes from working holidays and summers. Second, many athletes do have extra time to work preceding and following their seasons, like from September to October 15 in basketball. A compromise to allow them to work documented jobs during this time would seem fair. Third, disallowing only athletics-scholarship athletes to work documented part-time jobs—like mowing yards or hospital work—while allowing all other types of scholarship recipients to do so smacks of discrimination and un-Americanism and is against all that free enterprise stands for.

Finally, in Star Trek II, Spock said, "The needs of the many outweigh the needs of the few." Well, there are many financially underprivileged athletes who need to work part-time to buy clothes—much less date—who can't because some higher echelon is afraid of illicit payments to a small percentage of blue-chippers. Dear administrators, guess which hard-working group of graduates is withholding millions of dollars in donations from their respective universities because these honest athletes couldn't mow a few yards on a free Saturday during a school session? Be fair. Don't give athletes handouts, just a fair shake.

Only two teams unbeaten, untied in Division I-A

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

One of these years in this era of more competitive balance, Division I-A will finish a season with no perfect-record teams, but it is doubtful it will happen this year.

The undefeated-untied list now has just two teams—Penn State and Bowling Green State, both 10-0. Both close the season on the road November 23 against traditional foes—Penn State at 5-4-1 Pittsburgh and Bowling Green at 2-8 Ohio. One upset is thinkable but two upsets are hard to imagine; so, for the 49th consecutive season, it appears major-college football will have at least one perfect-record team in the regular season (1936 was the last season with none).

In Division I-AA, the only perfect-record team, Middle Tennessee State at 10-0, closes its regular season at home against 1-9 Tennessee Tech, but then come the I-AA playoffs.

Notre Dame schedule toughest

Neither of the perfect-record teams is playing a schedule ranked even close to the top 10. Notre Dame leads that list. Its 1985 foes combined have a .676 won-lost percentage (60-28-3) against I-A teams when not playing Notre Dame. Next come Florida at .670, Alabama .657, Rice .631, Auburn .624, Illinois .618, Michigan .617, Boston College .612, Oklahoma .609 and Minnesota .608.

The Penn State schedule now ranks 46th at .516 (46-43-4) and the Bowling Green schedule ranks 79th at .459 (38-45-2).

The top-10 schedules include six teams from two conferences—the Southeastern Conference and the Big Ten Conference. That is because these two rank 1-2 in won-lost percentage against I-A opponents outside the league—the SEC at .780 (30-7-4) and the Big Ten at .778 (21-6). Next come the Southwest Athletic Conference .636 (14-8), Big Eight Conference .577 (15-11), Pacific-10 Conference .534 (15-13-1) and Eastern independents .500 (18-18-1). All other conferences and groups are under .500.

S.C. State leads in I-AA

South Carolina State, upset winner over Grambling State November 14, leads the Division I-AA toughest-schedule ranking at .670 (meaning its I-A and/or I-AA foes were 37-18-1 vs. I-A and/or I-AA teams when not playing South Carolina State). Lehigh is a distant second at .576; then come Florida A&M .558, Massachusetts .556, Northeastern .551, Boston U. .545, Alabama State .538, Southern-Baton Rouge .527, North Carolina A&T .5263 and Northeast Louisiana .5256. Middle Tennessee's schedule ranks 50th at .465 (33-38-1).

Against combined I-A and I-AA outside opponents, the Southwestern Athletic Conference leads at .643 (9-5 including 1-0 vs. I-A), the Southland Conference is next at .600 (18-12, 4-8 vs. I-A), then the Yankee Conference .583 (17-12-1, 0-1 vs. I-A) and the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference .500 (11-11, 2-3 vs. I-A). All others are under .500.

McCallum sets all-purpose record

Navy's Napoleon McCallum, with the Army game left, already has smashed the Division I-A career record of 6,885 yards in all-purpose running, set by Stanford's little Darrin Nelson in 1977-1978-1980-1981 (he missed 1979 with an injury). McCallum now has 6,896, including 3,962 rushing, 786 receiving, 858 in punt returns and 1,290 in kickoff returns.

McCallum needs only 38 yards against Army December 7 to reach 4,000 in career rushing. Auburn's Bo Jackson (4,161 and a high-ranking 6.72 yards per rush) leads all seniors. Notre Dame's Allen Pinkett, at 3,951 with two games left, should reach 4,000 easily, while Louisiana State's Dalton Hilliard (3,660, three games) also can do it.

McClure needs 199 for 10,000

Bowling Green's Brian McClure

John Diettrich, Ball State, is among the Division I-A scoring leaders

Nevada-Reno's Marty Zendejas ranks second in scoring in Division I-AA

Steve Hansley, Northwest Missouri, is third in receiving in Division II

Mount Union's Scott Woolfranks fourth in Division III passing efficiency needs 199 against Ohio November 23 to become only the second 10,000-yard career passer in I-A (Boston College's Doug Flutie at 10,579 through last season is out of reach). Iowa's Chuck Long is second at 8,942 passing and has 63 career touchdowns passes to McClure's 60.

UCLA's John Lee, with 77 career field goals, needs two against Southern California November 23 to break the record of 78 by Arizona State's Luis Zendejas through last season. Luis' brother Max has 74 for Arizona with one game left. Lee at 85.6 percent also is far ahead of the career accuracy record of 81.9.

Totten's toteboard

Mississippi Valley State's Willie Totten has reached 12,478 passing and 12,767 in total offense, second in NCAA collegiate (all-divisions) history to Neil Lomax, who had 13,220 passing and 13,345 total offense for Portland State from 1977 to 1980. Totten's 138 career touchdown passes

"A simple thing like a game"

North Carolina rallied from a 17-7 deficit to beat Clemson, 21-20, November 9 at Chapel Hill, with the winning points coming with 10 seconds on the clock. The heroics might never have occurred without a talk by former all-conference defensive back Steve Streater to the team the day before. Streater's car flipped over on a wet road as he returned to Chapel Hill after signing a pro contract, and a spinal injury left him paralyzed from the waist down.

"Steve told us about the 1980 Clemson game and the goal-line stand that won it in the closing moments," said defensive tackle Reuben Davis. "Then he talked about adversity and how you can battle back from it, how you should never give up. He's never given up—he still believes some way, somehow, he's going to walk again someday."

William Humes, who scored the winning touchdown, had lost a fumble is the collegiate record, 32 more than Lomax.

Rhode Island's Tom Ehrhardt has 10,325 career passing yards, and Lehigh's Marty Horn is next at 8,857. Horn's favorite target, Rennie Benn, has 231 career catches, No. 2 all-time. The top career rusher in I-AA is Holy Cross' Gill Fenerty at 3,618 with one game left.

Wedding anniversary game

Willie Mason is sports information director at District of Columbia, and his wife, Jean, is SID at Bowie State. When the two teams played November 16 in Washington, D.C., it was their 10th wedding anniversary. If that was not celebration enough, Willie, a recently ordained minister, gave his first Sunday sermon the next day at the Second Baptist Church in Annapolis, Maryland (only six minutes from their home near the campus in Bowie, Maryland).

"Willie used to be sports information director here at Bowie State and we met when I was a part-time student here," said Jean. "He knows and loves the kids here and our house is going to be packed with kids from both sides. It will be a real family gathering. Our older children keep statistics and our 8-year-old is a ball girl. We have been teasing each other all week, saying 'Don't come home if you win.'" (Final score: District of Columbia 21, Bowie State 0.) (Jean Mason, Bowie State SID)

Win gains a tie

Bowdoin president A. LeRoy Greason is a 1946 graduate of Wesleyan; hence, he promised to give his Wesleyan necktie to Bowdoin coach Howard Vandersea if Bowdoin could upset Wesleyan for the first time since 1976. Bowdoin did just that, 13-9, and Greason presented Vandersea with the tie in a festive locker-room celebration. (H. Jay Burns, Bowdoin public relations fellow) at the Clemson two-yard line earlier in the game. As he walked off the field, head down, coach Dick Crum pulled him aside. "He just told me to forget about it," Humes said. So with third down at the one-yard line in the last minute, Humes said, "I asked to have the ball. In the huddle we said 'We're taking the ball to Steve' (who was sitting in his wheelchair behind the back line of the end zone). That's all that was said."

And that is exactly what happened. After Humes crashed in behind tackle Harris Barton, guard Pat Sheehan scooped up the ball and a host of Tar Heel players rushed to Streater. Davis said it best: "If he can have faith, there's no reason why we shouldn't believe in ourselves in a simple thing like a game." (Rick Brewer, North Carolina SID)

Quotes of the week

South Dakota coach Dave Triplett describing the plight of his squad after injuries have forced as many as nine starters to miss games: "Injuries never seem to leave us. There was more health in Europe during the Black Plague than there is on our team." (Mike Mahon, South Dakota SID)

Minnesota coach Lou Holtz before the Michigan game November 16: "When you play Michigan's defense, you wouldn't have a chance if you played 'em at the airport or on a handball court. Holding seven teams without a touchdown in this day and age is unbelievable (one of those seven was Iowa, which beat the Wolverines on a last-second field goal, 12-10, for their only loss; another was Illinois, which tied them, 3-3). I'm going to go home and check Ripley's Believe It or Not. If I'd known how tough it would be in this league, I wouldn't have come here." Final score: Michigan 48, Minnesota 7. (Bob Peterson, Minnesota SID)

St. Peter's, which cancelled its 1984 football season after an opening 72-0 loss to Catholic because of a shortage of players, has fielded a team this fall and stands 3-4, with a squad of only 30 players. But coach Jim Gilrain has not lost his sense of humor. Before a home game against Georgetown, he said: "Everywhere we go, it's homecoming. Our kids think it's natural to have large crowds and parades. Georgetown contacted us and wanted to have their homecoming at our place." At a recent writers luncheon, Gilrain gave a short sermon on the image of his football team and the origin of its nickname, Peacocks. "The peacock represents resurrection and immortality," he said of the resurrection of the St. Peter's program. "We tell our players that, if you go to the zoo, the peacock always is in a special cage by itself. That's because once a peacock is provoked, you have to kill it." (Bill Waldy, St. Peter's SID)

Susquehanna coach William "Rocky" Rees on the smallness of his team: "If the Chicago Bears have the Refrigerator (defensive tackle and sometimes running back William Perry), then we have the ice cube trays." (Scott Deitch, Susquehanna SID)

After completing one of the most dramatic turnarounds in Lawrence's 92-year football history (from 2-6-1 to 7-2), second-year coach Rich Agness said: "To go 7-2 in a season in which no one picked you to do anything is an absolutely great feeling."

And no one had a happier time than running back Greg Curtis, who sold vacuum cleaners door-to-door last summer: "This is great. I just go to school and they send me commission checks as people make their payments." (Rick Peterson, Lawrence SID)

Millikin coach Carl Poelker commenting on quarterback John Cardamone's 67-yard touchdown run in a victory over Carroll (Wisconsin) November 9: "It took John so long to get to the end zone, I'm surprised the officials didn't call a delay-of-game penalty on us." (Jim Bowers, Millikin SID)

Prior to playing heavily favored Portland State, California Lutheran coach Bob Shoup said, "We pose as much of a threat to Portland as Belgium did to the Third Reich." But Shoup's team led much of the game before losing 27-20, as Portland State needed an interception at its two-yard line at the end to win. Said Shoup: "We had the guns, but not the ammunition at the end." (Jim Buchheim, California Lutheran SID)

Arizona now is assured of a fifth straight winning season, the first time that has happened since 1939-1942 and 1945 (no team in the war years of 1943 and 1944). The last time it happened five straight years at Arizona was 1933 through 1937, the "Blue Brigade" teams of coach Tex Oliver. After the 1937 season, a group of boosters presented Oliver with a bonus check of $1,000—big money in those days. What did Tex do? He bought himself a new car and drove off to become the coach at Oregon. (Jim Muldoon, Pacific-10 Conference SID)

Electrical flea-flicker

Western Illinois was leading, 7-3, over Winona State in a parent's day game November 9 at WIU and had just scored on a 58-yard touchdown pass on a flea-flicker play when the rest of the game was cancelled because of an electrical storm. Players said they felt a tingle when lightning hit nearby in the second quarter. Dick Pawlow, Western Illinois baseball coach, said he thought he saw sparks fly off the end of his umbrella. (Larry Heimburger, Western Illinois SID)

Can you top these?

Utah's Erroll Tucker tied a Division I-A single-game record by intercepting two Utah State passes November 9 and returning both for touchdowns (66 and 41 yards). He now has three interception touchdowns for the season—equalling the I-A record. And he now has two punt-return touchdowns and a kickoff-return TD as well, making him the only I-A player ever to have more than one TD in others than one runback TD each. (Bruce Woodbury, Utah SID)

Ever hear of back-to-back runback touchdowns? Slippery Rock junior Troy Keefer, from Hollidaysburg, Pennsylvania, accomplished that rare feat with a 100-yard kickoff return at Shippensburg, then a 64-yard punt return the next time he touched the ball. In spite of his feat, Slippery Rock lost, 34-23. (John Carpenter, Slippery Rock SID)

I-A gains, I-AA loses attendance

Division I-A gained back some attendance ground November 16 but not as much as was hoped for, and it is running out of games to equal the record 1984 figure. Crowds averaged 43,104, but if each team had equalled its previous season average, the average would have been 47,842. There are 61 I-A home games left vs. only 32 at this stage a year ago (mostly due to the calendar, with a later Thanksgiving), but if teams simply draw their average, attendance based on pressbox figures will be down about 100,000 for the year. Then the final audit can bring a reduction of as much as 100,000 more. Division I-AA crowds averaged only 7,218 November 16, and I-AA now is up only nine per game, while I-A is down 396 per game. The chart:

Trenton State claims its third field hockey championship

Trenton State became the first three-time winner of the Division III field hockey championship with a 2-1 victory over Millersville November 17 at Trenton State.

After an early-season storm dumped two inches of snow in New Jersey, the championship game, originally scheduled for November 16 at host Drew University, was postponed a day and moved to the artificial-turf field at Trenton State. The third-place game was played at Drew November 16, but weather-related deterioration of the natural-turf facility forced the championship game move.

The Lions advanced to the championship with a 1-0 upset of top-ranked and defending champion Bloomsburg. Millersville defeated Drew 1-0 in the other semifinal.

The victory over Bloomsburg avenged a 2-1 semifinal loss to the Huskies suffered by the Lions a year ago, the only time a Trenton State team has not advanced to the championship game.

The Lions won the 1981 title (2-0 over Franklin and Marshall), lost 2-1 on penalty strokes to Ithaca in the 1982 championship and captured the 1983 title with a 2-1 victory over the Bombers in a rematch.

Six Trenton State players were named to the 1985 all-tournament team, including Margie Flynn, Sue Gallo and Chris Heddy on offense and Charlotte Heenan (goalie), Cheryl Simonsen and Marie Whalen on defense. Also selected on offense were Kelley Shea of Millersville and Bloomsburg's Carla Shearer. Rounding out the defensive unit were Sally Gormley of Drew, Karen Hertzler of Bloomsburg and Millersville's Chris Telfer.

Two of top four teams upset in Division I field hockey

Two of the top four teams in Division I women's field hockey were upset during the first weekend of tournament action. Iowa, ranked No. 2 in the final regular-season poll, lost to Northwestern (3-2) on penalty strokes after three overtimes in the second round, while No. 4 North Carolina dropped a 3-2 decision to defending champion Old Dominion in the second round.

The Lady Monarchs will host the final four and will face the Wildcats in

Majority of top basketball coaches in favor of giving stipend to players

More than half of 169 men's basketball coaches at NCAA member institutions answering an Association questionnaire said they favor giving student-athletes $50 to $100 a month spending money in addition to grants-in-aid.

Of the Division I coaches polled, 56 of 84 were in favor, according to information published in the Men's College Basketball Press Kit, compiled and edited by James M. Van Valkenburg, NCAA director of statistics.

In Division II, eight coaches were in favor of the proposal to 21 opposed. The Division III breakdown was 23 in favor to 33 opposed. The total response was 87 positive to 82 negative (51.5 percent).

Most of the coaches in favor of giving student-athletes spending money specified that the money should be carefully regulated and that it should be used for well-defined expenses. In lieu of spending money, 13 coaches suggested that student-athletes be allowed to retain all of the Pell Grant allotment they are entitled to on the basis of need.

Coaches on both sides of the question acknowledged that the addition of spending money probably would not stop cheating in intercollegiate athletics.

Several coaches suggested that the money for such a plan should come from television revenue from the NCAA basketball championships.

Coaches opposed to granting spending money said the players still have summers available to earn money and indicated that such income should be enough.

Another suggestion (by 10 coaches) was that players be allowed to work during the school year, as is the situation with nonathletes on academic scholarships.

Several of the coaches indicated that any plan to provide spending money should be limited to Division I institutions.

Broadcast teams selected for bowl games

Broadcast teams have been selected to anchor Lorimar Sports Network's coverage of the Holiday, Freedom and Bluebonnet Bowls.

Veteran play-by-play announcer Tom Hammond and Minnesota head football coach Lou Holtz will anchor the broadcasts for the eighth annual Holiday Bowl, which will be broadcast December 22.

Holtz also will join play-by-play veteran Phil Stone for the December 30 telecast of the Freedom Bowl. Former Brigham Young University all-America quarterback Gifford Nielsen will join Hammond for the December 31 telecast of the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Market coverage for Lorimar's three postseason bowl game telecasts has passed 81 percent of the nation's television households, according to Dave Almstead, vice-president for Lorimar's television services.

A total of 115 markets have cleared the telecasts, including 69 of the top 80 markets and 38 of the top 40. Lorimar Sports is projecting final clearance to be more than 85 percent of U.S. television households by the time the games are broadcast.

Lorimar Sports also recently announced that KCBS-TV, the CBS affiliate in Los Angeles, heads the list of station clearances finalized over the past month for the network's 1986 college basketball telecasts. KCBS has signed on to carry 20 games of the Pacific-10 Conference syndicated package and through Lorimar Sports will serve as the only commercial station outlet in Los Angeles for UCLA and Southern California basketball games, except for those games selected for national broadcast by NBC.

Ex-players hope to bolster program

A group of former athletes at Southeastern Louisiana University, which has said it might have to drop its football program to cut costs, has announced a fund-raising campaign to retain the program.

The former players said they would help raise about $44,000 a year in a drive to attain $440,000 a year in pledges for the next five years.

The S Club, a letterman's organization, is setting a goal of $310,000 over the next five years toward a goal of $2 million, the figure cited by university President J. Larry Crain as necessary to maintain the program. Because of state budget cuts, Crain had announced earlier that the university might have to end its football program at the end of this season.

About 200 former players are expected to participate in the project, according to Grady Morgan, former trainer and executive director of the S Club. A committee of 15 former student-athletes is working with Morgan.

Rams may be on verge of best season ever

Bob Griffin has had some fine seasons during his 14-year coaching career at Rhode Island, but 1983 may go down as his watershed year when he decides to hang up his whistle.

Two years ago, quarterback Tom Ehrhardt transferred from Long Island-C.W. Post, sat out the required one year and subsequently has rewritten Rhode Island's career passing records, three of which his older brother, Bob, a 1971 graduate, established.

While Tom Ehrhardt was watching from the sidelines, wide receiver Dameon Reilly, who did not play high school football, transferred from a community college for his sophomore year at Rhode Island and promptly won rookie-of-the-year honors in the Yankee Conference.

When the pair started in Griffin's backfield in 1984, the Rams' prolific offense carried them to the semifinals of the NCAA Division I-AA Football Championship. And the two have played another major role in leading Rhode Island, ranked No. 10 in the latest NCAA Division I-AA football poll, to another berth this season.

Rhode Island, the only team to make this year's 12-team play-off field at press time, automatically qualified by winning the Yankee Conference title. Other automatic qualifiers will include the champions of the Big Sky, Ohio Valley, Southern, Southland and Southwestern Athletic Conferences. Berths also will be awarded to the division's top two independent teams; the remainder of the field will be selected at large. The top four teams, as seeded by the NCAA Division I-AA Football Committee, will receive first-round byes.

Eight teams will play first-round games November 30, followed by quarterfinals December 7, semifinals

December 14 and the championship December 21 at Tacoma, Washington's Tacoma Dome.

Rhode Island rolled to the Yankee Conference title with an offense that rolled up an average of 438 yards of total offense and more than 31 points a game.

The Rams' potent offense is triggered by Ehrhardt, who through nine games had accounted for 321 yards per game in total offense and ranked among the nation's leaders in passing efficiency with 243 completions in 434 attempts, 2,976 passing yards and 17

Unbeaten Augustana (Illinois) lives up to its nickname

The Augustana (Illinois) Vikings football team is very deserving of its school's nickname. Much like the Scandinavian sea rovers who ravaged the coasts of Europe, Augustana's Vikings have been on a three-year rampage on the NCAA Division III football front that would make their 10th-century counterparts proud.

The two-time defending national champion Vikings clearly are the team to beat in the 13th annual NCAA Division III Football Championship, which begins with first-round games November 23, followed by quarterfinals November 30, semifinals December 7 and the championship game—the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl—December 14 in Phenix City, Alabama.

This year's championship field was increased from eight to 16 teams, with four teams being picked from each of four regions; however, the extra game Augustana will have to play if it reaches the finals may just be another notch in coach Bob Reade's sword. The Vikings had won 33 consecutive games as of November 15, boosting Reade's record to 65-8 as he winds up his seventh season.

Despite a season-ending knee injury to junior quarterback Kirk Bednar in the third game of the season, Augustana's dominant wing-T offense has reeled off an average of 314 rushing yards a game.

Running back Brad "Killer Smurf" Price, 5-5, 170 pounds, had rushed for a team-leading 836 yards as of November 15, and fullback Shane McCormick has not been tackled for a loss all season en route to a per-carry average of 5.1 yards.

The Vikings do not throw the football often, but it usually pays when they do. Of the 20 completions Bednar and sophomore quarterback Greg Wallace have thrown, 17 have been for first downs.

Teams unfortunate enough to be in the North region also will find that Augustana's defense is just as dominant. Through games of November 2, the Vikings led Division III in scoring defense, allowing opponents just 5.3 points per game, as well as total defense with a 156.3 yards-per-game average.

In the West region, No. 2-ranked Central (Iowa), runner-up to Augustana last season, will rely on its stingy defense, which ranks among the division's leaders. Offensively, versatile Matt Schulte had scored five touchdowns and kicked 29 extra points and seven field goals through eight games to rank among the division's leaders.

Third-ranked Union (New York) does not have as much offensive firepower as the teams that rolled to a runner-up championship finish in 1983 and advanced to last year's semifinals, but coach Al Bagnoli's defense could carry the Dutchmen through the East region to the championship. After eight games, Union's defense had given up just eight points a game, while allowing opponents an average of less than 45 yards rushing.

Teams in the South region will need to find a way to stop Carnegie-Mellon, which finished its regular season among the nation's leaders in total offense (434 yards a game) and scoring (33.8), if they have any hopes of making it to Phenix City, where the championship game returns after it was played there from 1973 to 1982.

Following are the pairings for the 1985 NCAA Division III Football Championship:

East: Ithaca (8-1) at Union (New York) (9-0); Western Connecticut (10-1) at Montclair State (9-1).

South: Carnegie-Mellon (8-0) at Salisbury State (9-1); Lycoming (10-0) at Gettysburg (9-0-1).

North: Albion (7-1-1) at Augustana (Illinois) (9-0); Denison (10-0) at Mount Union (10-0).

West: Coe (9-0-1) at Central (Iowa) (9-0); St. John's (Minnesota) (8-1) at Occidental (8-1).

Team up with Greyhound[®] and see what kind of sports we really are.

Charter Greyhound, and we'll return up to 10% of your school's billings.

Every time you ride with us — from athletic teams to the band and other college organizations — you're helping to build the total amount of NCAA charter billings on Greyhound. And that adds up to big returns for your school.

With our new game plan, as the total NCAA volume figure grows, the percentage of billings that are returned to you will grow as well. Up to a maximum 10% rate of return that goes directly to the athletic department.

So when you go Greyhound[®], you're getting more than our reputation for safety, service and reliability. You're getting a new way to keep expenses down.

When you're ready to plan your charters for the season, call us at 1-800-USA-NCAA. We'll give you more information and immediate charter quotes. And your Greyhound NCAA sales representative will contact you soon afterwards.

This year, put a good sport on your team. Choose Greyhound charters all season long.

Parity opens title chase to 8 hopefuls

Parity is the word in collegiate water polo, says Stanford coach Dante Dettamanti. And, as the 1985 NCAA Men's Water Polo Championship approaches, this equality promises to make the tournament a wide-open affair. Competition begins November 29 at the Belmont Plaza Pool in Long Beach, California.

"There is not much difference between the top eight teams in the country," said Dettamanti, who coaches the currently No. 1-ranked Cardinal. "Every year we have had several teams that have been close but this year it goes all the way down to eight teams. Everybody has beaten each other this year."

Of the eight teams selected for the single-elimination championship tournament, at least four teams will come from the West region, one from the Midwest region and two from the East region. Notification of selection will take place before November 24.

Stanford (20-4) has held its No. 1 ranking most of the year and is the favorite to clinch its fifth title in 10 years. The Cardinal narrowly lost the championship game last year, 9-8, to the California Golden Bears.

"We learned a lot last year; it was the first time these guys (current team members) had gone," Dettamanti said. "We are really hungry and really want to win this year."

Leading goal scorers for the Cardinal are Craig Klass (46), Jaime Velez (39) and David Imbernino (36).

UCLA (19-5), UC Irvine (18-6) and Long Beach State (19-8) are other top contenders from the West. California (14-7), the defending national champion and a six-time winner, is in a must-win situation as the regular season ends. The Bears probably will have to beat out UC Santa Barbara (17-9) or Southern California (18-11) for the remaining at-large bid.

In the Midwest, Loyola (Illinois) appears to be the selection with a 18-7 record. Brown (24-8), Bucknell (23-6) and Navy (22-7) are battling for the East region's two spots.

Lemons files defamation suit

Former University of Texas, Austin, men's basketball coach Abe Lemons has filed a defamation lawsuit against the university's athletics director for statements Lemons alleges were made during a summer alumni meeting, the Associated Press reported.

C. Robert Dorsett, attorney for Lemons, filed the suit against DeLoss Dodds in Travis County District Court November 12.

The suit claims that Dodds made "defamatory statements" about Lemons July 31 while addressing a Fort Worth meeting of the University of Texas ex-students association.

According to the suit, Dodds said Lemons was "fired from his position as head basketball coach at the University of Texas because of 'NCAA problems.'"

Lemons was fired March 10, just after the season ended.

The suit contends the "reputation and professional standing of (Lemons) have been greatly harmed as these remarks suggest that (Lemons) was guilty of violations of NCAA regulations and as such is some form of a 'cheater.'"

Dodds said he knew of the suit "a couple of weeks ago" but said he has not seen a copy of Lemons' suit and could not comment on it.

Lemons coached the Longhorns from 1977 to 1982, compiling a 112-63 record. He now is head men's basketball coach at Oklahoma City University.

Saturday games

SNI Sports Network will broadcast nine Missouri Valley Conference games on Saturdays beginning January 4.

The St. Louis-based network will originate the broadcasts to stations in eight Midwest states. Cable systems in St. Louis, Chicago and Phoenix, along with the nationally distributed Commerce Satellite System, also will carry the package.

Following is the schedule of MVC telecasts:

January: 4—Tulsa at West Texas State; 11—Bradley at Drake; 18—Wichita State at Indiana State; 25—Indiana State at Illinois State.

February: 1—Bradley at Tulsa; 8—Tulsa at Drake; 15—Illinois State at Tulsa; 22—Wichita State at Bradley.

March: 1—Creighton at Wichita State.

Unproven quarterback passes test for Aggies

The cloud of uncertainty that hovered above UC Davis football coach Jim Sochor in preseason has turned out to have a storm of touchdown passes in it that might sweep the Cal Aggies to the NCAA Division II Football Championship.

For the first time since 1979, Sochor had an unproven quarterback to run his sophisticated pro-style offense that relies on plenty of passing. When Roger Wilkinson, the heir apparent to all-America Scott Barry, found that off-season shoulder surgery prevented him from passing at peak efficiency and that his athletic skills were best used at running back, Sochor turned to a junior college transfer—Chris Petersen—for only the second time in his 16 years at UC Davis.

Petersen's performance thus far may spur Sochor to scour the junior college ranks more often. After an opening-season loss to Boise State, a Division I-AA team, Petersen has led the Cal Aggies to seven consecutive victories and the No. 1 spot in the latest NCAA Division II poll and has UC Davis poised for its fourth consecutive play-off bid.

The eight-team play-off field will be announced by November 24, with first-round games getting under way the following Saturday (November 30), followed by the semifinals December 7 and the championship December 14 at the Palm Bowl in McAllen, Texas. One team from each of four regions will be selected, with the rest of the field selected on the basis of strength without geographical consideration.

The only hurdles in UC Davis' path for the West region berth were formidable season-ending showdowns against 16th-ranked Cal State Hayward and 13th-ranked Cal State Sacramento, two Northern California Athletic Conference rivals that could prevent the Aggies from posting an all-divisions record of 15 consecutive conference championships.

The way Petersen has been playing, stopping the UC Davis offensive attack—which is ranked second in the division through seven games in scoring offense with a 38 points-per-game average and sixth in total offense with an average of more than 410 yards, will be no small feat. Petersen has led the division in passing efficiency, hitting 113 of 163 attempts for 1,613 yards and 12 touchdowns.

In addition to the three play-off contenders from the NCAC, fourth-ranked Santa Clara and 10th-ranked South Dakota also were in the picture for a play-off invitation.

In the South region, second-ranked Fort Valley State is on target to gain its first play-off berth since suffering a first-round loss in the 1982 tournament, along with North Alabama, a 1983 semifinalist.

North Alabama, long noted for dominant defensive units, continues to live up to its reputation. The Lions were ranked second in total defense through games of November 2, allowing opponents less than 195 yards per game, and scoring defense with an 8.6 per-game average.

Other South region teams with play-off aspirations include ninth-ranked Winston-Salem State, 11th-ranked Mississippi College and 18th-ranked Hampton.

Third-ranked Indiana (Pennsylvania) appears to have the inside track to a bid in the East region thanks to the pass-catch combination of quarterback Rich Ingold and receivers Dave Seidel and Tony Trave. Ingold, ranked among the division leaders in passing efficiency and total offense, had hit the receiving duo for a combined 77 catches and nearly 930 yards touchdown passes.

Reilly has been on the other end of 13 of Ehrhardt's scoring strikes to rank among the division's scoring leaders with a 7.8 per-game average through games of November 9.

When Reilly is covered, Ehrhardt has found tight end Brian Forster open—several times. Forster, who established championship records with 18 catches and 252 net yards receiving in a 23-17 quarterfinal victory over Richmond last year, led the nation as of November 9 in receiving with nearly eight catches per game and 1,048 yards. Forster also had the division's season single-game high in receiving yardage with 327 yards against Brown.

Front-runners for other automatic berths or at-large bids at press time included No. 3 Nevada-Reno and No. 6 Idaho in the Big Sky; No. 1 Middle Tennessee State, No. 7 (tied) Akron and No. 11 Murray State in the Ohio Valley; No. 2 Furman and No. 20 Marshall in the Southern; No. 7 (tied) Arkansas State in the Southland, and No. 4 Grambling, No. 16 Jackson State and Alcorn State and Mississippi Valley, which were tied for 18th, in the Southwestern Athletic.

Higher education to be examined

A new Carnegie Foundation book on the status of undergraduate education in the United States, similar to a report on high schools that helped spur reforms in that area, will be published within a few months.

Ernest L. Boyer, foundation president, dispatched observers to 30 campuses across the country to compile information on whether the nation's colleges and universities have strayed from their missions in teaching undergraduates.

The new book is entitled "College:

for a play-off berth include No. 9 Richmond, No. 12 Georgia Southern, No. 17 Colgate, and Delaware and Eastern Washington, which were tied for 13th.

No. 5 Northern Iowa and No. 15 Delaware State also may find themselves in postseason play by virtue of at-large berths.

The Undergraduate Experience in America."

Two years ago, Boyer's report on high schools played a significant role in the debate on how to restore value to a high school diploma.

Boyer does not expect the new report to generate as much intensity as his earlier book. "The public doesn't feel the same sense of ownership" for colleges and universities, he says. And he believes the problems in higher education are not so entrenched.

HOW TO FLY THROUGH A TOUGH ROAD SCHEDULE.

American Airlines knows that when it comes to road games, the last thing you want to think about is travel arrangements. That's why calling one of our more than 100 Meeting Specialists makes so much sense.

Lawrence running back breaks cancer's tackle

Greg Curtis didn't beat cancer. Like a football thrown to him out of the Lawrence University backfield, it was caught in time.

"Actually, I wasn't that concerned about it," Curtis said. "I didn't really dwell on the fact that there was a big problem. I knew it would take care of itself. I think my parents and my girlfriend at the time were more concerned. We caught it really early."

A senior economics major who makes the dean's list with as much regularity as he carried the football during the Vikings' 7-2 season, Curtis did beat the physical and emotional aftereffects of two operations, one to remove a cancerous testicle, the second for removal of nearby lymph glands.

"I think I'm an optimist," he said. "I have a competitive nature so that if I put my mind to something, I know I can beat it. The other thing is, I love football. I've been playing since I was a runt and I didn't want to give it up. Football is very important to me. It was crucial for me to come back and play."

The lymph surgery in June 1984 followed the first operation by one month. Complications resulted in his stomach filling with lymph fluid, requiring bed rest and periodic draining. He also dropped 30 pounds off his current 5-foot-8, 170-pound frame.

"The time I was the most down was after the second surgery. I filled up with lymph liquid and got real pregnant," he said with a laugh. "It was really frustrating, because I wanted to get back into shape. I just looked ridiculous waddling along. But I had to stay in bed to get the stuff to drain through my body.

"I was pretty weak, but I knew I would climb out of it."

No one questioned his conviction. "I don't think he ever doubted he would come back. But neither did I," said Curtis' father, George. "The only way it wasn't going to happen was if he gave up.

"Can I claim my son made it because of courage or mental attitude? Probably not. He made it because first of all... it was caught in time. He couldn't have done that if he weren't one of the lucky ones."

Luck takes many forms. Crossed fingers can't compare with the emotional support of friends, family and teammates. But Curtis provided the thread that bound together his recuperative efforts from the very moment he realized there was a problem.

"It's important for kids, especially my age, that if they have a problem to go have it checked out, even if it is a personal area to be talked about with the doctor," said Curtis, who discovered the problem while taking a shower.

The months of bed rest paled in comparison to the hours of waiting and watching from the sidelines during the 1984 season when running back Curtis worked out with the team

Charges reinstated

A state appeals court November 13 reinstated charges against former Tulane University basketball star John "Hot Rod" Williams, apparently clearing the way for his case to be tried in district court. A new judge apparently will handle the case.

District Judge Alvin Oser threw out the charges of sports bribery from an alleged point-shaving scandal that led Tulane to drop its intercollegiate men's basketball program.

The judge said prosecutors deliberately kept back information, including a tape of a statement by a former Tulane player, that would have helped Williams' defense.

The 4th Circuit Court of Appeal said that although there was obvious misconduct by the prosecution, it was not sufficient to warrant the throwing out of the charges.

but didn't play. The Vikings finished the season 2-6-1.

"I actually thought I would play that same year," he said.

This year, Lawrence wound up 7-2 and Curtis finished atop the statistics with 576 yards on 190 carries and two touchdowns. He was the team's second-leading receiver with 22 receptions for 170 yards and two touchdowns.

He has one year of eligibility remaining—before heading to graduate school—and plans to use it to make up for the time he lost on the football field.

"None of us is going to make the pros," he said. "But it (football) fits in well with school. We get the right perspective."

That's easy for a guy like Greg Curtis, who never lost his perspective when a lot of others would have just been lost.

Commission

Again, the test score itself then would not be a part of the requirement for eligibility.

The third proposal in order is the joint offering of the Presidents Commission and the Council, establishing an eligibility index in which a slightly higher GPA in the core could offset a slightly lower test score, and vice-versa, for 1986-87 and 1987-88. The rule as adopted in 1983 then would go into full effect for 1988-89. That amendment was reported in detail in the November 4 issue of The NCAA News.

Adoption of any one of those three proposals would make the others moot.

Most observers of the Bylaw 5-1-(j) issue believe there are three current groups within the Division I membership in regard to that rule: one that wants no change in the rule and wants it to go into effect August 1, 1986, as planned; one that supports the concept of a limited eligibility index for a limited period of time, and one that prefers not to have the rule, or at least not to include test-score minimums as a requirement.

The other two academic proposals are not likely to attract nearly as much attention. One is a repeat attempt by the Big Ten Conference to establish minimum grade-point requirements for each step in the satisfactory-progress rule; the other is a Council amendment to clarify the academic-reporting procedure established for Division I institutions by the special Convention in June.

Special grouping

The Presidents Commission is urging its colleagues in the membership to support the three proposals in the special grouping that follows the academic section, although they are not designated for roll-call votes.

These proposals, all cosponsored with the NCAA Council:

- Amendments to the constitution and bylaws to affirm that student-athletes are responsible for their involvement in violations of NCAA regulations. This amendment was directed by the special Convention in June when it adopted a joint Commission-Council resolution in this regard.

- Bylaw amendments to permit a member institution's intercollegiate basketball team to participate in any year in not more than one of the competition opportunities that do not count toward the maximum number of contests. Again, this was the topic of an approved Commission-Council resolution at the June Convention. It is intended to treat the fact that some institutions have used combinations of the exception opportunities to play 35 to 40 basketball games in a season.

The third special-grouping item is a Council-Commission resolution intended to respond to the resolution regarding enforcement procedures that was presented at the special Convention in June, where the delegates voted to refer it to the Council and the Commission.

This resolution encourages the Committee on Infractions to evaluate possible changes in enforcement policies and procedures over the next year, in the interest of efficient and effective processing of "secondary" and "major" infractions cases, assuring continuing due-process protection for all involved.

The resolution commits the Commission and the Council to give further consideration in 1986 to the Association's enforcement and compliance efforts and to determine whether to submit any legislation at the 1987 Convention to enhance those programs.

Summary

Following is a summary of the first 21 proposals in the Official Notice of the NCAA's 80th annual Convention:

Consent packages

No. 1: Exclude division vice-presidents from consideration in the numerical representation requirements for service on the Executive Committee.

No. 2: Change the names of the division meetings at NCAA Conventions to division business sessions in light of the federated voting opportunities now assured in the constitution.

No. 3: Affirm that a Division I-A head football coach cannot be present at an off-campus site for the signing of a National Letter of Intent or acceptance of an athletics grant-in-aid to be provided upon enrollment.

No. 4: Affirm that in all sports other than football, play-offs between or among conference members that tie for a conference championship may take place to determine the conference's automatic entry in an NCAA championship without the play-off contest(s) being counted against the contest limitation in the sport.

No. 5: Exempt from the limitations on contests or dates of competition any competition in championships conducted by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA).

No. 6: Affirm the existing interpretation that a student must complete satisfactorily (i.e., pass) each of the 11 courses in the Bylaw 5-1-(j) core-curriculum requirement, regardless of whether the grade-point average in the core is better than 2.000 and the test-score requirement is met.

No. 7: Clarify that an institution may not award athletically related financial aid during the first academic year in residence to a transfer student from a Division III institution who is otherwise eligible under Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(14).

No. 8: Establish a minimum number of participants (three) in each contest in women's fencing in order to count the sport toward the sports sponsorship criteria in Divisions I and II.

No. 9: Abolish the Governmental Affairs Committee.

No. 10: Increase the membership of the Professional Sports Liaison Committee from six to eight by adding representatives of the American Football Coaches Association and the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

No. 11: Increase the membership of the Research Committee from seven to nine by adding two individuals experienced in academic tests and measurements.

No. 12: Require that at least one member of the Men's Gymnastics Committee be from each of the four men's gymnastics regions, rather than NCAA geographic regions.

No. 13: Affirm that teams in a sport in a division that has a national championship in that sport shall not be counted toward meeting the minimum sponsorship percentage necessary to continue or establish a National Collegiate Championship for which all divisions are eligible in that sport.

Academics

No. 14: Eliminate test-score requirements from Bylaw 5-1-(j). Division I only. Roll-call vote.

No. 15: Eliminate specific test-score from Bylaw 5-1-(j), instead requiring that the student has taken either the SAT or ACT "for placement purposes only." Division I only. Roll-call vote.

No. 16: Establish eligibility indices in Bylaw 5-1-(j) for two years, with the rule as adopted to go into effect August 1, 1988. Division I only. Roll-call vote.

No. 17: Establish qualitative academic progress requirements in the satisfactory-progress rule: a 1.700 for a first season of competition after the freshman year, a 1.850 for a second season after the freshman year, and a 2.000 for a third and fourth season after the freshman year. Division I only.

No. 18: Permit Division I member institutions to conduct their initial review of five-year graduation rates in the academic-reporting requirements on the basis of student enrollment initiated six, rather than five, years preceding the date the report is due. Division I only.

Presidents Commission Grouping

No. 19: Affirm that student-athletes are responsible for their involvement in violations of NCAA regulations and should be restored to eligibility only when circumstances clearly warrant restoration; require the Eligibility Committee to report the basis for restoration of eligibility in cases involving "major" violations.

No. 20: Permit an institution's basketball team to participate in any one year in not more than one of the exception opportunities for competition that do not count toward the season limitation in that sport.

No. 21: Resolution regarding enforcement and compliance, as outlined in this article.

COMPLIANCE REPRESENTATIVE NCAA Compliance and Enforcement Department

Applications are being accepted for an immediate opening in the newly restructured NCAA compliance and enforcement department. The department's compliance section was created after the June 1985 special Convention to provide support services to member institutions' chief executive officers in their renewed commitment to greater NCAA rules compliance.

A compliance representative's primary responsibility includes:

- Assistance to member institutions in identifying and attacking specific problems and developing procedures to prevent rules violations.
- Development of model procedures and guidelines for successful operation of athletics programs.
- Campus visitation on request of a member institution to assist it in analyzing the overall structure and administration of its athletics programs, and its compliance with NCAA legislation.
- Implementation of the forms and processes used by institutions in conducting the required periodic self-studies and annual financial audits.
- Cooperation with member conference officials in assisting their institutions in rules compliance.

This position requires a working knowledge of NCAA regulations and the ability to communicate effectively both orally and in writing. It is necessary that the applicant have recent administrative experience in intercollegiate athletics.

Legislative Assistance

1985 Column No. 41

Conference season-end tournaments

At its recent meeting, the Administrative Committee affirmed that the provisions of Bylaw 3-3-(d), which stipulate that the maximum number of contests or dates of competition in a sport shall exclude competition in one conference season-end tournament, were intended for members of the involved conference and cannot be extended to include a situation in which a nonmember of the conference participates in the conference's season-end tournament. Likewise, in order for a basketball tournament to be considered a conference season-end tournament under the provisions of O.I. 309 (page 82, 1985-86 NCAA Manual), only members of that conference may participate in the tournament.

Use of off-campus facilities for intrasquad practices

Constitution 3-1-(h)-(1) states that a member institution may provide its student-athlete actual and necessary expenses for reasonable trips to practice sites other than those of the institution if the practice site is within the state in which the member institution is situated or a distance not to exceed 100 miles if outside that state. Under the provisions of Case No. 239 (page 323, 1985-86 NCAA Manual) and Bylaw 1-9-(a), a member institution using a high school facility for an intrasquad game or practice may not contribute any funds realized from the event to the high school or its athletics booster club except actual and necessary expenses for rental of the facility.

This restriction on contributions would apply to any funds generated by the events, including, but not limited to, game receipts, concessions, parking or other contributions. This case also would relate to other schools, junior colleges, organizations and sports clubs that involve prospective student-athletes.

College or high-school broadcasts

As set forth under Bylaw 1-4-(c) and Case No. 202 (page 313, 1985-86 NCAA Manual), a member institution shall not permit a prospective student-athlete or high school, college preparatory school or junior college coach to appear on a radio or television program: (1) conducted by the member institution's coach, (2) in which the NCAA institution's coach is participating, or (3) for which a member of the athletics staff of the NCAA institution has been instrumental in arranging the appearance of the prospect or coach or related program material. This prohibition applies to appearances in person or by means of film or videotape. Accordingly, a prospective student-athlete may not be interviewed or otherwise featured in any type of broadcast or telecast involving a member institution.

This legislation also would prohibit a member of the athletics staff of the NCAA member institution from serving as an announcer or commentator for a high school, college preparatory school or junior college contest or from appearing, either in person or by means of audiotape or videotape, on a radio or television broadcast of such contest.

Former player claims many top athletes are paid by agents

Despite the risk of losing their eligibility, well over half of all the nation's top collegiate athletes — while they're still playing — "are being taken care of" by agents, a 1984 All-America defensive lineman with the University of Texas, Austin, says.

"That's why you see so many seniors smiling," Tony DeGrate, the 1984 winner of the Lombardi Award, told the Dallas Morning News.

"A lot of kids are less fortunate, so when they're offered all this illegal stuff, it's their golden opportunity. Of course, they're going to jump on it."

DeGrate added, "I'd say right now from 70 to 80 percent of the players are being taken care of."

The News, in a November 10 story, quoted agent Leigh Steinberg as estimating that 40 percent of seniors who will be taken in the first rounds of the National Football League and National Basketball Association drafts next year already have been signed by agents and are receiving money.

NCAA rules prohibit an agent from signing a college player before the player's eligibility expires.

The NCAA estimates the number of persons who represent college athletes to be close to 2,000. Nearly 1,000 are approved by the NFL Players Association to negotiate contracts.

But NFLPA officials said only 100 of those represent 75 percent of the league's players.

Officials said, most commonly, agents break NCAA rules by signing and paying players before their eligibility expires.

Agent Mike Trope not only didn't deny he breaks that regulation, he freely admitted it.

"I recruit early. Everybody recruits early. If you want to succeed in this

'The NCAA has no right to tell me how I should run my business' — Mike Trope, sports agent business, you have to," the News quoted Trope as saying.

"The NCAA says it's not an issue of morality. My concept of morality is not to hurt anybody, and not to break the laws and statutes of the United States.... The NCAA has no right to tell me how I should run my business," Trope said.

NBA and NFL officials estimated that 75 to 100 agents give the business a bad name, the newspaper said.

"It's like prostitution or the numbers game," said Gil Brandt, Dallas Cowboys vice-president. "If there's money to be made, a lot of people are going to try to get involved."

"A lot of people say a 20-year-old kid should know better, but when he doesn't have a lot of money, like a lot of these kids, he can be highly susceptible."

The University of Oklahoma in the past two months has investigated reports that several prominent current and former football and basketball players received money and other illegal benefits from agents while competing for the Sooners.

Ronald E. Watson, executive assistant athletics director at Tulane University and a former NCAA investigator, said the problem "is a lot more serious than the general public is aware of.... It's of major proportions."

Kentucky adopts strict rules to govern athletes, boosters

The University of Kentucky has adopted rules beyond NCAA requirements to govern contact between athletes and boosters and to monitor players' activities.

"There is no way anyone can say they don't know what the policies of the university are," said Brad Davis, assistant sports information director.

The new rules followed an October 27 story in the Lexington Herald-Leader that quoted former basketball players as saying they received cash from boosters, sold their free season tickets for as much as $1,000 each and received excessive fees for speeches, all of which would violate NCAA rules.

Kentucky athletics director Clifford O. Hagan distributed the new rules to all coaches and other staff members last week, along with a memo dated November 7 that said the regulations were effective immediately.

Also, Hagan sent a letter October 24 to boosters who have contributed money to the athletics association's fund-raising program, warning them against making payments or providing gifts to players. The letter said the university might sever its ties with boosters who violate rules by dropping them from basketball or football ticket lists and prohibit them from attending "other functions."

The new rules require athletes to make written reports of speaking engagements, provide information on summer jobs and register automobiles with the university. Such reports are not required by the NCAA.

The rules also require athletes to give their free seats only to relatives or fellow students and to make sure only those people occupy the designated seats. Head coaches are responsible for ensuring that rule is followed. The NCAA does not require a coach to ascertain who is sitting in players' free seats.

Also not required by the NCAA is a new rule that Kentucky head coaches approve in advance all speeches by players, and that the sports information director keep a record of all speaking engagements.

Boosters will not be allowed in the locker rooms; the basketball players' dormitory, Wildcat Lodge, or a lounge at the football stadium, Wildcat Den. And boosters may not sit on the bench during games without "prior approval of the director of

Status to change

Drake University will drop its football program next year, then scale back from NCAA Division I-AA to Division III, effective in the fall of 1987, President Michael Ferrari announced November 11.

Ferrari said he took the steps because of difficulty in supporting the program at its present level and because of declining enrollment at the private, four-year university.

Ferrari said the decision will not affect Drake's other men's programs in the Missouri Valley Conference or women's programs in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference.

athletics." Former basketball coach Joe B. Hall allowed friends to sit on the bench during some games, and such visits are allowed by the NCAA.

In another area, the Kentucky rules require that when players eat off campus at the university's expense, a coach or trainer must sign a receipt for the meals. In the past, some restaurants have allowed players to sign for meals eaten off campus when the school's dining rooms were closed.
