Membership approves three new vice-presidents

A conference commissioner, a university president and an athletics director will serve their respective divisions as Association vice-presidents, following their election to office by the 1986 Convention.

Elected to serve as division vice-presidents are Lewis A. Cryer, commissioner of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Division I; Asa N. Green, president of Livingston University, Division II, and Judith M. Sweet, director of athletics at the University of California, San Diego, Division III.

Cryer replaces Arliss L. Roaden, former president of Tennessee Technological University, who is executive director of the Tennessee Higher Education Commission. Cryer will serve the remaining year of Roaden's term.

Green replaces Ade L. Sponberg, director of athletics at North Dakota State University, who served out his two-year term. Green will serve only one year because his Council term ends in January 1987.

Sweet will have a two-year term as Division III vice-president. She replaces Elizabeth A. Kruczek, director of athletics at Fitchburg State College. Her term on the Council ended with the 1986 Convention in New Orleans.

Cryer has been the administrative leader of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association for the past seven years. He is vice-president of the Collegiate Commissioners Association and serves as chair of the NCAA Summer Baseball Committee.

He joined the PCAA from the University of Oregon, where he was associate director of athletics in charge of fund-raising, events management and promotion from 1976 to 1978. He was an assistant director of athletics at the University of the Pacific prior to taking the Oregon post. Cryer is a graduate of California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo.

Green has been president of Livingston since March 1973.

He served as director of development for Birmingham-Southern College for five years (1966-71). In 1971, he was named director of development at Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

He has been a member of the NCAA Division II Steering Committee and served as president of the Gulf South Conference for the 1979-80 academic year. Green received a master's degree in political science at the

Lewis A. Cryer

University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, and an honorary doctor of laws degree from Jacksonville State University.

Green currently serves on the NCAA Long Range Planning Committee.

Asa N. Green

Sweet was one of the first women to direct a combined men's and women's program, assuming the post of athletics director at UC San Diego in 1975.

She served on the staff as assistant athletics director in 1974.

Judith M. Sweet

Sweet, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, has served on the Division III Steering Committee and the Women's Committee on Committees. She holds a master's degree from the University of Arizona.

12 new members elected by Convention to Council terms

Twelve new members were elected to the NCAA Council at the 1986 Convention in New Orleans.

All but three will serve four-year terms. B. J. Skelton, faculty athletics representative at Clemson University, will complete the term (January 1988) of William D. Bradford, M.D., Duke University; G. E. Moran, athletics director at Morehead State University, will complete the term (January 1989) of Arliss L. Roaden, executive director of the Tennessee Higher Education Commission, and Charlotte West, director of women's athletics at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, will complete the term (January 1987) of Mary Alice Hill, former athletics director at San Diego State University.

Other new Division I representatives include Robert R. Snell, faculty athletics representative, Kansas State University; Clayne R. Jensen, faculty athletics representative, Brigham Young University; John P. Reardon Jr., athletics director, Harvard University, and Victor A. Bubas, commissioner, Sun Belt Conference.

New Division II Council members are Sandra T. Shuler, associate athletics director, North Carolina Central University, and Elwood N. Shields, director of athletics, Bentley College.

Division III newcomers to the Council are Mary R. Barrett, associate director of athletics, University of Massachusetts, Boston; William A. Marshall, athletics director, Franklin and Marshall College, and Alvin J. Van Wie, director of athletics, College of Wooster.

Three of the five Council members that were reelected by Convention delegates will serve partial terms. D. J. DiJulia, commissioner, Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, will complete the term (January 1988) of John W. Kaiser, director of athletics, St. John's University (New York); Della Durant, assistant athletics director, Pennsylvania State University, will complete the term (January 1987) of

G. Jean Cerra, formerly at the University of Missouri, Columbia, and Louise Albrecht, associate director of athletics, Southern Connecticut State University, will complete the term (January 1988) of Nancy J. Olson, former director of athletics, Florida International University.

Reelected to serve full Council terms were Cecil W. Ingram, athletics director, Florida State University, and Kathleen M. Wear, assistant athletics director, La Salle University. Both are Division I representatives.

Council members whose terms expired are William H. Baughn, faculty athletics representative, University of Colorado; Richard W. Burns, professor of teacher education, University of Texas, El Paso; Thomas J. Frericks, director of athletics, University of Dayton, and Andrew T. Mooradian, director of men's athletics, University of New Hampshire.

Also Judith M. Brame, director of women's athletics, California State University, Northridge; Bob Moorman, commissioner, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association; Elizabeth A. Kruczek, director of athletics, Fitchburg State College; Robert T. Shields, director of athletics, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Madison, and Elmer W. Yoest, athletics director, Otterbein College.

Following are biographical sketches of the new Council members:

Barrett

Barrett is a graduate of Boston State (now Massachusetts-Boston) and received a master's degree from Boston University. She served as athletics director at Boston State from 1978 to 1981 and has continued on the staff at Massachusetts-Boston for four years.

The first female athletics administrator to hold an elected office with the Eastern College Athletic Conference (with 243 members, the largest conference member of the Association), Barrett currently serves as ECAC president. She also has been vice-president and served on the ECAC executive council.

NCAA service is not new to Barrett. She has served on the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee and the Voting Committee and has chaired the Women's Committee on Committees.

Bubas

After playing guard and graduating from North Carolina State in 1951, Bubas served on the Wolfpack coaching staff until 1959, when he was named head coach at Duke.

In 10 seasons, his Blue Devil teams advanced to the Final Four three times and produced an overall record of 213-67. His .761 winning percentage is 10th on the NCAA all-time list.

Following his retirement from coaching in 1969, Bubas served in various administrative capacities at Duke before being named commis-

Casem, Flippin and Bonner named to terms on Executive Committee

Three new members were appointed to the NCAA Executive Committee by the NCAA Council following the 80th annual Convention in New Orleans.

Marino H. Casem, director of athletics and head football coach at Alcorn State University, and Royce N. Flippin Jr., director of athletics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, were elected to full five-year terms. Francis W. Bonner, faculty athletics representative at Furman University, was elected to complete the term of Fred Jacoby, commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference, who relinquished his Executive Committee position to maintain the proper balance of representation between Divisions I-A and I-AA.

The Executive Committee is responsible for the financial affairs and championships of the Association and is composed of 14 members, including the NCAA president, secretary-treasurer and three division vice-presidents. The other nine positions are filled by the Council.

Casem replaces Walter Reed, director of athletics at Jackson State University, whose term expired at the Convention. Casem recently completed his 22nd season at head football coach at Alcorn State. He is in his 20th year as athletics director. He also serves on the NCAA Football Television Committee and NCAA Football Rules Committee.

His teams have won or shared seven Southwestern Athletic Conference championships, and he has been named National Black College Coach of the Year seven times. Casem is chair of the SWAC Athletic Directors Committee. He is a graduate of Xavier University of Louisiana.

Flippin has been director of athletics at MIT since 1980. He came to the institution after serving as athletics director at Princeton University from 1972 to 1980.

He played varsity football at Princeton, where he was graduated in 1956. He also is a graduate of the Harvard Graduate School of Business. Flippin is a member of the NCAA Wrestling Committee and also serves the Eastern College Athletic Conference in various capacities. In addition, he is president of the Intercollegiate Fencing Association.

Bonner has served the NCAA in a number of capacities, including four years on the NCAA Council. He currently is interim president of Lime-

National Car Rental is sponsor

National Car Rental System, Inc., has been named the official car-rental company for NCAA championships. This exclusive contract with the NCAA identifies National as the only car-rental sponsor among NCAA corporate sponsors.

Joe Sullivan, National's vice-president of car-rental advertising and marketing, said a corporate marketing team has been established to "create joint promotions between the NCAA and corporate marketing team members and aid the NCAA in the development of its various youth programs."

The easy way most often turns out to be unfair

By Hal Bock

The bottom line in the uproar over the NCAA's establishment of minimal academic standards for admitting student-athletes was best expressed by James H. Wharton, chancellor at Louisiana State University, who observed, "We no longer will have students majoring in eligibility."

There is a lot to be said for that. Universities and colleges exist for the purpose of education. That is their function, their raison d'être. Everything else that goes on, athletics included, is strictly peripheral.

So for the NCAA to require that athletes achieve scores (which, by the way, are comfortably below the national average) on standardized tests as a condition of eligibility is hardly an unreasonable request. The member institutions are not exactly demanding Rhodes-Scholar performance here.

Black educators, however, claim different motives in the legislation.

Joseph B. Johnson, president of Grambling State University, saw "a hidden agenda at this Convention, and that was to eliminate the number of black athletes on college campuses."

But why would that be true at a time when athletics programs, many of them largely populated by Blacks, are flourishing?

Johnson added that many major athletics programs had been built "on the backs of poor, black kids. Now, they're saying to them, 'we don't need you anymore. We want you off our campus.'"

But Proposition 48 does not bar anyone from campus. What it does is set standards for freshmen participating in athletics. What is so terrible about that? There is nothing in the legislation that does not allow academically deficient student-athletes to be admitted, improve their grades and then participate in sports later.

What? And miss a year of eligibility? Wouldn't that be terrible?

There was a time not so very long ago when freshmen routinely were not eligible for varsity sports. They survived then. They could survive now.

Johnson and the other black educators claim that standardized entrance examinations, such as the Scholastic Aptitude Test, are products of a white, middle-class society and discriminate against black, ghetto students. George Hanford, president of the College Board that sponsors the SAT, calls that charge particularly troublesome.

"That simply is not true," he said. "The authority for that is a study by the National Academy of Science, which indicated no bias against minorities. However, the use of the test in this circumstance does have a disproportionate effect on minorities because of their educational background."

Then the finger points at high school preparation.

"By and large, greater amounts of educational funds are spent in affluent communities and less in others," Hanford said. "Society produces this. We are trying to overcome this educational deficit. While on the average, black and other minorities score lower, the gap is slowly closing."

It should not, however, fall to NCAA member schools to serve a remedial function while at the same time cashing in on athletics prowess. That's not their job. Education is. Students who are admitted should be qualified academically and whether they can run faster or jump higher than their brethren should not enter into the equation.

In Texas, Gov. Mark White's administration has supported the controversial "no-pass, no-play" rule, which prohibits students who fail any course in any six-week marking period from participating in any extracurricular activities in the next grading period.

Coaches have railed at the legislation. "We want it refined," Eddie Joseph, executive director of the Texas High School Coaches Association, said. "Make the suspension for the time deficient, not for entire marking periods. Don't make it punitive. The way it is now, it does not motivate. It is not encouraging. It is discouraging."

Larry Yawn, director of the education division of the governor's office, says the strongest supporters of the pass-play rule are members of the black and Mexican-American communities. "A system that allows them to slip through does not help them," he said. "It exploits them."

That's something the NCAA finally seems to have acknowledged.

"A lot of great coaches are a pain in the tail. Vince Lombardi was a great coach, but he never should have said, 'Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing.'"

"Inasmuch as half the people playing a game are going to be losers, it's wrong to suggest the game isn't worth playing for its own sake."

"Part of the problem is that there's too much emphasis on national rankings. I'm a football fan, but I'm irritated with newspaper sports sections that pay more attention to a team representing a college 1,500 miles away because it's undefeated than it does to a local college whose team has only won two out of five games."

"There is a feeling among some coaches and athletics directors, as well as university executives and faculty, that the tendency to waive or weaken academic standards for varsity athletes has, over time, contributed to the violation of other rules that govern NCAA athletics. I share that feeling."

"To suggest that Vanderbilt grant exceptions to its admission process for athletes, or for any other candidate, is to suggest that Vanderbilt admit students who fall below the range of those who can reasonably be expected to succeed."

With the Pac-10, you're talking about a real commitment of resources—substantial amounts of time and money—that go for investigations and compliance. No other conference goes as deeply as we do. Some take the more traditional approach and leave the major fact-finding to the NCAA."

"The NCAA has so many other things to look into. Our people want to look into it right away so that action can be taken and the teams are not penalized in three or four years, when people don't remember who was involved and what the case involved. Sometimes, you get a situation where the guilty people aren't even around any more. "This aid is now becoming a factor in the women's program, too. The lure of a college scholarship has been reason enough for thousands of age-group and high school swimmers to get involved and to continue swimming."

"Historically, the collegiate program has provided the competitive edge to U.S. swimming that other countries are unable to duplicate. I feel it would be to everyone's advantage to pull together to save this part of our total program."

"For starters, collegiate swimming needs greater exposure. We need to attract attention to our sport and make it interesting to spectators. We cannot be complacent and keep doing things as we have in the past."

The New York Times

Excerpted from a January 13 editorial

"The rulers of college sports meet in New Orleans today to rearrange the educational fig leaf covering their entertainment industry. The hottest issue at the annual Convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association concerns the use of freshmen in varsity competition."

"Unfortunately, the Convention will not even consider the soundest educational approach: bar freshmen from varsity competition altogether. The first year of college should be for learning to learn, in which the athletes can show themselves and their schools that they belong there. As it is, some youngsters score touchdowns on national television before they attend a single college class."

"Probably more scandals will have to surface before the NCAA chooses between making athletics a proportioned adjunct of education or a semiprofessional farm system for the big leagues. Ideally, the Association would provide for both: a league for athletes who are truly students and another for semiprofessionals who merely wear a school's colors. The competition in each league would be fairer, better balanced, and the example would be one of honesty. For a display of the opposite, follow the sad scrimmage this week in New Orleans."

Printed recruiting aids

At the recent NCAA Convention, portions of Proposal No. 48 were adopted to specify in the bylaws those printed materials that may be distributed to prospective student-athletes by the athletics departments of member institutions. The proposal was divided at the Convention to enable voting delegates to consider separately the various subparagraphs in the proposal, and each division voted to defeat the portion of the proposal that would have permitted the athletics department to distribute one annual schedule poster per sport to prospective student-athletes. In light of the Convention action, the NCAA Council has confirmed that it will not be permissible for a member institution to distribute posters to prospective student-athletes, including posters that unfold from the institution's game programs. Any further questions regarding the distribution of posters will be reviewed by the Administrative Committee, and the membership then will be advised through this column.

Also in reference to Proposal No. 48, it should be noted that each division voted to adopt a subparagraph of that proposal that would permit a member institution to distribute to prospects any official academic, admissions and student-services publications published by the institution and available to all students. Accordingly, the Council has modified the application of Case No. 184 (page 308, 1985-86 NCAA Manual) to include these types of publications among the printed recruiting aids that may be provided by a member institution to a prospective student-athlete or to a high school or junior college coach.

Transfer rule—one-time exception

Each division voted at the recent Convention to adopt Proposal No. 72, which would specify that the Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(14) transfer exception is not available to women's basketball players. This proposal has an immediate effective date. In reviewing the application of this legislation, the Council concluded that although the general application of the proposal is immediate, the new regulation would not apply to student-athletes who were officially accepted for enrollment at the certifying institution prior to January 15, 1986.

Recruiting—advertisements

A member institution requested at the Convention that an interpretation previously published in the May 1, 1985, edition of The NCAA News be reviewed by the membership. This interpretation made reference to the provisions of Case No. 186 (page 309, 1985-86 NCAA Manual), which provides in part that member institutions may not buy or arrange to have space in game programs or other printed materials that are published to provide information concerning the athletics participation or evaluation of prospective student-athletes. The May 1 interpretation further provided that the prohibition specified in Case No. 186 would extend to the placement of advertisements regarding member institutions' summer camps or clinics. It was the portion of the interpretation related to advertisements concerning summer camps that was the source of concern to the member institution that requested the review of the interpretation.

After considering this issue, the Council determined that the May 1 interpretation should be modified to indicate that although the prohibition in Case No. 186 would extend generally to advertisements regarding member institutions' summer camps or clinics, such advertisements would be permissible if placed in a periodical that includes a camp directory in which the size and format of such advertisements placed by any member institution are the same. This interpretation was announced at the general business session.

Seasons of eligibility

The Division I Steering Committee and the Council also reviewed the application of Bylaw 5-1-(d)-(6) to Division I member institutions. They approved a new interpretation specifying that competition as a freshman in 1981-82, regardless of whether it was before or after January 12, 1982, shall not count as a season of eligibility if the total number of events in which the student-athlete participated in that year constituted 20 percent or less of the institution's varsity competition in that sport that year.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question that it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Student-athlete again overlooked by Convention, Weaver believes

By Steve Richardson
The Kansas City Times

Doug Weaver, Michigan State athletics director, shook his head and wondered aloud what a student-athlete may have thought about the 1986 NCAA Convention had he been sitting at the back of the room.

"Our proposal book is full of prohibitions against what they can do, but not what we can do for them," Weaver said. "That's...men and women, and black and white.

"If athletes think about it, it would be hard for them to be at a Division II school and know how many of those schools voted. At least I can go back and look my athletes in the eye and if they ask me, I can say it's a bad rule and we are trying to change it."

What alarmed many of the big-time football schools was the fact the Convention once again denied needy students who are on athletics scholarships their full Pell Grants. Athletes are able to receive up to $900 of the Federal money provided to needy students. But the school is not allowed to give the remainder of the Pell Grant usually about another $800 to $1,000—to the students.

For years, big-time football schools have tried to get this changed, but smaller football schools and Divisions II and III have voted it down. Schools, big and small, keep the money themselves.

"What's new?" said Steve Hatchell, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference commissioner. "It's very simple. It was stated here. A lot of athletics programs finance their program with the Federal money, and it takes advantage of the student-athlete. It flies in the face of all the advantages we are trying to create for the student-athlete financially.

"Year after year it comes up, and the vote is the same. Everybody leaves here. Division I-A types say, 'Yeah, we almost did something for the student-athlete'... Why did Division III vote against it? They can't offer (athletics) aid anyway. These are the same schools that look at Division I-A and say look at how big and greedy their programs are.

"I think if you are the student-athlete—what does he see? I think he would have a question or two."

Lynn Lashbrook, athletics director at Southern Illinois-Edwardsville, a

Douglas W. Weaver

Division II school, said: "I believe they need extra money. But having $900 and the full-ride scholarship is not exactly deprivation. What happened to the summer job and making a budget for the year?"

It seemed the student-athlete was the loser this week, at least on the surface. He will be penalized more but rewarded less, although some of the measures—drug testing and entrance requirements—ultimately are protective devices against some of the abuses in college athletics. Efforts to allow student-athletes aid in summer school before their freshman year failed. And efforts to extend financial aid to undergraduate athletes who might need it more than five years failed.

"If your thesis is, the student-athlete is getting both ways in a negative sense, you are right," Weaver said.

Yet there are differences of opinion in this matter.

"I think the Convention has done great service to the high school student," said Walter Byers, NCAA executive director.

Byers said the drug testing will combat the peer pressure that "the good high school athlete is under to get into drugs." He said the tougher academic standards will crack down on the high schools pushing student-athletes through their halls because some teachers don't want to hurt the athletes' chances of getting a scholarship.

"That's a disservice," Byers said.

As for the Pell Grant problem, Byers said the current money allowed in the package of athletics aid, plus current Pell Grant allowances, is better than 95 percent of the packages available to the nonathlete.

Still, the argument was made on the Convention floor that the NCAA could eliminate some of its well-publicized cheating problems by increasing the Pell Grants.

"By definition, the kids who are on the Pell Grants are needy," said Ronald Brown, University of Texas, Austin, vice-president for student affairs. "Parents can't help him buy a new suit or a new car. His parents can't even buy him a record for his stereo, but he probably doesn't even have a stereo. He would be less susceptible to temptation if he had more flexibility in his budget."

The bottom line is money. Some schools don't want to part with it.

"They have a right to get what is theirs," Deloss Dodds, Texas athletics director, said of the students. "They are the only student on campus who has that restriction... But one of the problems with real life is finances. Everything we do in here, finances are too much of the bottom line."

The big-time football schools in Division I may get their wish to increase the allowance of Pell Grants and decide matters of financial aid limitation on their own at the next Convention.

A proposal that would take financial aid limitation matters from the constitution and place them in the NCAA bylaws could finally pass in 1987 after referral to the NCAA Council and Presidents Commission.

But the idea has been thwarted three straight years. Smaller schools in Division I and Divisions II and III schools have preferred to keep the financial aid limitation legislation in the NCAA constitution, where they can control votes on the matter and keep an eye on the big programs. If the financial aid question moved to the bylaws, the smaller schools would not vote with the big-time college football and basketball schools.

"It becomes a key issue," Weaver said. "It keeps getting referred. We keep moving farther back. Pretty soon it is going to be fourth and 80."

Dame basketball coach Richard "Digger" Phelps). I remember the first time I went out to scout a game for him. It was at Indiana, and I was nervous as hell and put together what I thought was a complete scouting report. When I took it back to Digger, the first thing he asked me was, 'What kind of ball did they use?' I said, 'What do you mean? It was just a regular basketball.'

"Well, he said, 'was it a Spalding, a Wilson or a MacGregor?'" I told him I didn't know, that I didn't think it made much difference. But he told me that it did make a difference, that the seams are a little different and that we should be practicing with the same ball we'd be playing the game with. 'How can we practice with it if we don't know what it is?' he said.

"Then he chewed me out. I mean he just killed me. Then he said, 'Let's go get a beer.' I said, 'Are you kidding? You want to have a beer with me? You just killed me.'"

Howard Hayghe, economist
U.S. Department of Labor

The Chronicle of Higher Education

"The whole attitude toward college students has changed over the last 20 years.

"People now expect them to work while they're in school. And as we've moved to a service economy, part-time jobs are far more available than they were in the 1960s."

Albert Dalmolen, writer and part-time teacher
Elmira, New York

The Chronicle of Higher Education

"The influence of sports throughout our educational system is a serious problem.

"The solution is deceptively simple: Take organized competitive sports out of education.

"I am not suggesting with this proposal that sports are the source of most of the problems in our educational system, or that they introduced dishonesty and corruption into an otherwise pristine realm. On the contrary, our schools and colleges are burdened with enough staggering problems of their own without having to withstand the noisy, distracting intrusion of the sports world and its special problems.

"The fact is that we can have all the sports we want, as athletes and as fans, without relying on our educational institutions. The professional sports industry... has the resources to encourage and develop the sponsorship of 'clubs' and leagues in all sports, for all ages and skill levels, throughout the country.

"All that is lacking now is the incentive, which we can provide simply by removing competitive sports from education and turning them over entirely to those who stand to profit most from their popularity and growth."

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

I just wanted to let you know that I really enjoyed the article on Jimmy Sharpe that appeared in the January 1, 1986, issue of The NCAA News.

I had the privilege of working for coach Sharpe at Virginia Tech for four years. His knowledge of the game, his ability to communicate, and his love for his players and staff truly made him the best coach with whom I've ever been associated.

It's a real shame that he had the personal problems that he had. However, it's even more of a shame now that his personal life is in order that he can't find a head-coaching job at the university level.

Hopefully, some Division I athletics director will have the courage to forget his past and give him the opportunity to be a head coach. I'm sure if they do, they will never regret it!

Division I roll-call voting on Proposal Nos. 14, 15 and 16

The following chart reflects the votes of each Division I active member institutions and each Division I voting conference on the three proposals that were voted upon by roll call during the 80th annual Convention in New Orleans. These represent the official, audited votes, verified through the Association's computerized voting procedure.

Listed at the end of the chart are those Division I voting members that either were not in attendance or did not submit a ballot in any of the three roll-call votes.

This information also will be printed in the Proceedings of the annual Convention, which will be mailed to the membership this spring.

sioner of the Sun Belt Conference in 1976. He is the only commissioner in league history, and he served from 1979 to 1985 as a member of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee, the last year as chair.

Jensen

A 1956 graduate of Utah, Jensen received a doctorate from Indiana in 1963. He also spent two years in the U.S. Marine Corps (1953-55) and coached two all-Marine championship teams in track and field.

A 19-year member of the Brigham Young staff, Jensen has served as faculty athletics representative since 1976. He also chaired the school's Special Events and Athletics Advisory Board for seven years.

He has served as dean of the college of physical education for 12 years and was assistant dean and professor in the school prior to his current appointment. He is the author or coauthor of 16 books currently in print and being used in more than 700 colleges and universities.

Marshall

A native of Wisconsin, Marshall has been athletics director at Franklin and Marshall since 1971. During that time he has served as president of the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association and of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference.

He received undergraduate, graduate and doctoral degrees from the University of Wisconsin, Madison, and played on the Badger baseball squad.

Marshall taught at University of Wisconsin system institutions at Marathon (1961-65), Madison (1965-66) and Waukesha (1966-71), where he also was athletics director before moving to Franklin and Marshall.

Moran

Moran is in his 12th season as athletics director at Morehead State. He also is serving on the Association's Classification Committee.

He made his mark as a college basketball coach before entering administration, compiling an overall record of 274-156 at the junior high, high school and college levels.

A native West Virginian, Moran was head coach at Morris Harvey (now the University of Charleston) from 1957 to 1965 and compiled a 148-74 record. He then spent nine seasons at West Virginia, the last five as head coach, before moving to Morehead State in 1974. He is a 1950 graduate of Morris Harvey, and he received a master's degree from West Virginia in 1957.

Reardon

A 1960 graduate of Harvard, Reardon received a master's degree from Pennsylvania. He joined the Harvard staff in 1965 as assistant director of admissions and financial aid. He also has served as director of admissions and was named athletics director in 1977.

During his tenure, the school's athletics facilities have undergone major renovation, and the department has boasted a 39-sport intercollegiate program that is one of the most complete in the nation.

Reardon has served on the Men's Committee on Committees.

Shields

Al Shields is the only athletics director in Bentley College history. Until his retirement in 1978, he also had been the school's only basketball coach and produced an overall record of 258-106.

After lettering in track, basketball and football in high school, Shields went on to earn an undergraduate degree in English and a master's in psychology from Boston State.

A past member of the ECAC executive council, he currently serves as secretary-treasurer of the New England College Athletic Conference. He also is the only commissioner in the history of the Northeast-8 Conference.

Shuler

Shuler serves as primary woman athletics administrator at North Carolina Central and has served on the NCAA Nominating Committee. She earned undergraduate and graduate degrees from North Carolina Central.

She has served as women's volleyball coach at the school since the sport's inception in 1975. Her teams have challenged for Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association titles, finishing second five times. She is a certified United States Volleyball Association official and has attended workshops and the USVBA Olympic development camp.

She served as North Carolina Central's director of the women's athletic association from 1966 to 1974 and served as coordinator of women's sports from 1974 to 1980. She currently serves as associate athletics director at the school.

Skelton

Skelton is in his 26th year as a member of the Clemson faculty. He graduated from the school with a degree in horticulture in 1957 and went on to receive a master's in the same discipline from Clemson in 1960.

He earned a doctoral degree in plant pathology from Virginia Tech in 1966. Skelton first joined the Clemson staff as assistant professor in 1960. He was named associate professor in 1969 and attained the status of full professor in 1976.

In 1982, he was named assistant vice-president for student affairs and faculty athletics representative. During the 1983-84 academic year, Skelton served as president of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Snell

Snell is head of Kansas State's department of civil engineering and has been faculty athletics representative since 1975. He was the first chair of the university's intercollegiate athletics council.

A native Kansan, Snell is a 1954 Kansas State graduate and received a graduate degree from the university in 1960. He earned a Ph.D. as a Ford Foundation fellow at Purdue in 1963.

He joined the Kansas State engineering faculty in 1957 and, except for his time at Purdue, has been there ever since. He became head of the civil engineering department in 1972.

Van Wie

A member of the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee, Van Wie is a 1952 Wooster graduate and has been on the school's staff since 1960. He currently is professor of physical education, chair of the school of physical education and athletics director for men's sports.

He is the second winningest coach in Wooster history, having compiled 303 victories in 21 seasons. Van Wie is a member of the National Association of Basketball Coaches and the National Association of Physical Education and Higher Education.

He also is the founder of Camp Fighting Scot, now in its 17th year, which is one of the oldest summer sports camps in the state of Ohio. In addition to his undergraduate degree, Van Wie earned a master's degree from Northern Michigan in 1963.

West

West holds degrees from Florida State, North Carolina-Greensboro and Wisconsin. She has served as primary woman athletics administrator at Southern Illinois since 1960.

Having coached five sports at Southern Illinois, she guided the Saluki women's golf team to a national championship in 1969, and her combined record as basketball coach was 158-60, including three Illinois state championships.

She is only the second woman ever to be elected to the executive board of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics. The Grand Rapids, Michigan, native served on the joint NCAA-Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) Committee during the late 1970s.

sonnel of NCAA member colleges and universities. In addition, National will be involved in advertising and promotion of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship Final Four next March and already is involved in an NCAA public-service announcement program on drug awareness.

NCAA drug-awareness public-service announcements feature Bemiss Rolfs, National Car Rental president and chief executive officer, and executives from other corporate marketing team sponsors speaking about drug-awareness programs at their companies. The announcements, which urge the establishment of similar programs in other corporations, will be telecast during NCAA sports events.

National Car Rental is the third largest car-rental company in the world, with more than 3,000 locations in 116 countries and territories. The company is represented by Europcar in Europe, Africa and the Middle East; by Tilden Rent-a-car in Canada, and by its own licensees in Latin America, the Caribbean and the Pacific. A wholly-owned subsidiary of Household International, National has its headquarters in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Play-off change is sought

In an attempt to reduce the amount of class time missed by participants and also to permit completion of the tournament by Thanksgiving, the NCAA Division III Women's Volleyball Committee has voted to recommend revision of the current championship format from three weeks to two. That recommendation has been forwarded to the NCAA Administrative Committee for action during the group's January 30 conference.

If approved, the new championship schedule would be: regionals—Friday through Sunday, November 14-16; finals—Friday and Saturday, November 21-22. The volleyball committee also is recommending that the 1986 and future championships be conducted in the following manner: regionals—six teams competing at each of four regional sites; finals—four teams competing on the campus of one of the semifinalists.

stone College in Gaffney, South Carolina, in addition to his assignments at Furman University, where he is a professor of English.

He recently was elected chair of the NCAA Faculty Athletics Representatives Forum, held in the conjunction with the Convention in New Orleans.

He has served as faculty representative at Furman since 1968. He joined the institution as an associate professor of English in 1949 and later was named dean of the men's college, dean of the university and vice-president. He served as vice-president and provost from 1972 to 1982. Bonner is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and he earned a doctorate at Harvard University.

Maryland grads lead Division I head-coaches list

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

This started out to be a story about the alma maters of men's Division I head coaches and, inevitably, it became a piece about Oklahoma State's Henry P. "Hank" Iba, UCLA's John Wooden, Kansas' F. C. "Phog" Allen and other coaching legends.

Maryland leads the current national list, with six graduates as head coaches in Division I basketball, five of whom played for Bud Millikan, Terps coach from 1951 through 1967.

Next with four each are Oklahoma State, UCLA and Florida State. All four Oklahoma State graduates played for Iba, the "Iron Duke of Stillwater," known simply as "Mr. Iba" to his players. Entering the 1968 season, Iba's four had a total of 72 years of head-coaching experience. All four UCLA graduates played for Wooden, winner of 10 NCAA championships.

And guess where Millikan played? Right, for Iba at Oklahoma State, class of 1942. But that is only part of the Iba story. His son, Moe, is head coach at Nebraska. His nephew, Gene Iba, is head coach at Baylor, and his brother, Clarence (Gene's father), was head coach at Tulsa. Mr. Iba, now in his 80s, watches every Oklahoma State home game. In 1984, he assisted Indiana's Bob Knight in coaching the United States Olympic team. Many roads lead to Stillwater, it seems.

Remember, the four graduates we spoke of are current coaches only, and Division I only. There were others in the past in Division I and below the top level.

Looking at NCAA tournament coaching history, Allen and five of his Kansas pupils have won nearly twice as many tournament games and championships as any other college, but more about that later. Allen, with 771 career victories, and Iba, with 767, rank 2-3 in all-time victories behind the late Adolph Rupp of Kentucky (875), an Allen pupil, and Wooden ranks sixth at 667.

Maryland's gang of six

The six Maryland graduates head-coaching in Division I are Columbia's Wayne Szoke ('63), George Mason's Joe Harrington ('68), Virginia Military's Marty Fletcher ('73), Old Dominion's Tom Young ('58), Towson State's Terry Truax ('68) and Boston College's Gary Williams ('68). All but Fletcher, a pupil of current coach and 500-game winner Charles "Lefty" Driesell, were recruited by and played for Millikan, a 243-game winner who coached Iba's style of strong defense and patient offense. Harrington, Truax and Williams also played for Frank Fellows, who succeeded Millikan.

Harrington, Truax and Williams were teammates of Billy Jones, now in his 12th season as head coach at Maryland-Baltimore County in Division II. At the same time, Young was an assistant at Maryland (after nine head-coaching seasons at Catholic) along with a graduate student, Tom Davis, current Stanford head coach, who earned his Ph.D. at Maryland. Young had 434 career victories and Davis had 260 entering this season.

Young also was cocaptain of Maryland's 1958 Atlantic Coast Conference champions, along with Gene Shue, long-time professional head coach (Shue, Davis and Jones are not counted in this compilation).

Every member of Maryland's gang of six has been successful. Young, of course, is the highest in career victories and was a Final Four participant in 1976 at Rutgers. But he is more proud of the fact that 92 percent of his players have graduated over his 25 years as a college head coach. Szoke was the Ivy League coach of the year and Fletcher the Southern Conference coach of the year in 1985. Fletcher played under Morgan Wootten, long one of the nation's most respected high school coaches, at DeMatha in Hyattsville, Maryland. Fletcher also assisted Wootten, as did Truax, who also assisted Dean Smith at North Carolina, among others, after earning ACC all-academic honors. Harrington, who assisted Driesell for 10 years, ushered George Mason into Division I competition and into a new 10,000-seat campus arena. Williams has been a winner throughout, as a high school coach (state title at Camden, New Jersey), assistant at Lafayette (116-44), and head coach at American and Boston College (135-72 entering this season).

Other leaders

Oklahoma State's four graduates are Jack Hartman of Kansas State, Don Haskins of UTEP, Moe Iba of Nebraska and Eddie Sutton of Kentucky. UCLA's four are Denny Crum of Louisville, Steve Patterson of Arizona State, Larry Farmer of Weber State and Walt Hazzard of UCLA. Florida State's four are Dick Danford of Hardin-Simmons, Hugh Durham of Georgia, Cliff Ellis of Clemson and Tommy Jones of Houston Baptist. Durham also was Florida State head

(53), Ralph Miller ('42) of Oregon State, Dick Harp ('40) of Kansas, Frosty Cox ('30) of Colorado and Allen himself ('06), a pupil of the game's inventor, James Naismith, the first Kansas coach. Smith is 31-16, with one championship; Rupp was 30-18 with four titles, and Allen was 10-3 with one crown.

Next with 46 victories and three titles are the six Ohio State graduates—Taylor, DeVoe, Knight, Weltlich, William "Tippy" Dye and George Wigton. Third with 45 victories and two titles are the five St. John's (New York) graduates—Lou Carnesecca, Al McGuire, Frank McGuire, Frank Mulzoff and Jerry Bush. Then come seven Notre Dame graduates with 39 victories and one title and six Oklahoma State graduates with 36 victories and one crown.

Notre Dame's total of seven graduates who have coached in the NCAA tournament is the top number. They are Gene Sullivan ('53), now at Loyola (Illinois), Ray Meyer ('38) of DePaul, George Ireland ('36) of Loyola (Illinois), Johnny Dee ('46) of Notre

Back to her old form

As a freshman two years ago, George Washington's Kas Allen was ranked 19th nationally in scoring, was named the Atlantic 10 Conference rookie of the year and seemed on her way to a promising collegiate career. She was forced to sit out her sophomore season to recover from back surgery and her basketball career seemed prematurely halted. "I was told about other athletes with similar injuries who weren't able to make a comeback; I knew there were no guarantees in my case either," Allen said. "My attitude was always to take it day by day."

Allen's rehabilitation included six weeks of only lying perfectly flat or standing up straight to avoid putting pressure on the healing disc in her back. During the long hours in bed, though, she literally did not lose sight of her goal. She rigged a basket near her bed and visualized the mechanics of shooting. Eventually, Allen was able to run; she began with very short distances and gradually increased to three miles per day. On a day she says she will never forget, she returned to a real basket and tested not only her back, but her psyche.

Now, a year after the surgery, Allen is the George Washington team captain and is averaging 14 points and 7.5 rebounds per game. She leads her team in scoring, and, as all would agree, in courage and character as well. (Rhea Farberman, George Washington women's SID)

Flourishing in Florida

Florida International women's coach Cindy Russo and her team are in their final year in Division II and are hoping to go out in style. The entire athletics program will move to Division I next year. Russo and company, off to a 13-1 start, are trying to make the move by way of Springfield, Massachusetts—site of the Division II women's championship final.

The Sunblazers have come a long way since Russo first took over the team as a graduate student in 1978. "The first time I was here," she recalled, "there was no full-time (head-coaching) position. We had to beg athletes in other sports to come out for the team."

Russo departed after that 8-14 season to coach at Lamar, where she stayed for two years and posted a 20-11 record each year. However, she wanted to return to Miami and the young program she had helped begin. She again took over as head coach in 1981. The team was 7-13 that year, but the Sunblazers haven't looked back since, winning 83 games the last four years.

The play of senior all-America guard Lynette Richardson has been a major factor in the recent success, but Russo is quick to point out the value of teamwork, on and off the court: "We treat other people the way we want to be treated. Our people care for each other and that's very important in this particular sport. I take great pride in making people feel important. Everything counts if you want to be the best." (Dave Geringer, Florida International SID office)

Danger zone

Thus far, 1986 has been momentous for Texas' top-ranked women's team, with an undefeated record, coach Jody Conradt's 400th career victory and the return of Annette Smith from a knee injury. But for Austin area media, the most important event was Texas' defeat of Baylor, when for the first time anyone could remember, the team used a zone defense instead of its usual full-court, man-to-man press. "We've been working on some zone in practice for the last three years," Conradt explained. "I just felt confident enough in our intensity level to play some 1-3-1 and 2-3 against Baylor. I was pretty pleased."

Conradt was not pleased during a stretch late in the game, though Texas had a comfortable lead. Conradt sent in five substitutes, and they eagerly raced to the other end of the floor to set up in a 1-3-1 zone. Unfortunately, the subs were under the wrong basket, which left the Baylor players all alone and unguarded to put the ball in play. Even the referee was perplexed, and refused to put the ball in play, insisting, "They're not ready!" "We need a bit more work on the zone before we use it in critical situations," Conradt decided later. (Chris Plonsky, Texas women's SID)

Quotes of the week

San Francisco, reviving basketball this season, started 4-0, then dropped nine in a row after starting point guard Rodney Tention shattered his left elbow in a fall on a slam dunk attempt. Said coach Jim Brovelli: "I feel like (boxer) Carmen Basilio after taking so many tough defeats." After the Dons ended the streak, Brovelli said: "You've heard of getting a monkey off your back; well, we just got King Kong off ours." (John LemMon, San Francisco assistant SID)

Illinois State edged Creighton, 35-34, in one of the lowest-scoring games ever with the 45-second clock. Oddly, the winners hit 35 percent from the field, the losers 34, and Illinois State was a one-man team with Derrick Sanders going 11-for-16, the rest of the team 6-for-33. One player put it this way: "It was brick, brick, Sanders, brick, brick." (Tom Lamonica, Illinois State SID) coach from 1967 through 1978. Ellis did not play college basketball. Jones was a squad member under Durham.

Eleven colleges have three graduates each on the list of current Division I head coaches, 38 have two each and 156 have one each—making 209 different alma maters for the 283 head coaches. Those with three are Appalachian State, Boston College, Connecticut, Duke, Fordham, Grambling State, Indiana, Louisiana Tech, North Carolina, Ohio State and St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania).

All three Ohio State graduates—Knight, Tennessee's Don DeVoe and Texas' Bob Weltlich—played under Fred Taylor (himself a 1950 Ohio State graduate), who had four Final Four teams. All three North Carolina graduates on the list—Kansas' Larry Brown, Furman's George Estes and George Washington's John Kuester played under Dean Smith, an Allen pupil at Kansas.

Knight coached three on the list—Duke's Mike Krzyzewski and Cornell's Tom Miller, who played for him at Army, and Evansville's Jim Crews, who played for him at Indiana. Six other current Division I head coaches are former Knight assistants, and six other head coaches below Division I also assisted Knight.

Kansas' gang of six

In NCAA tournament history, Kansas' six graduates have won 84 games and six national championships, with seven second-place teams, a total of 18 in the Final Four and 13 more teams that missed the Final Four by one game (losing the regional title game). They are Rupp ('23), Smith Dame, John Castellani ('52) of Seattle and Earl Brown ('39) of Dartmouth.

Second with six graduates each are Kansas, Ohio State, Oklahoma State, St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) and Utah State. Four have five graduates each—Michigan, Southern California, Wisconsin and St. John's (New York).

Fast starts, turnarounds

Bradley, 18-1 through games of January 20, is off to its best start in more than a quarter of a century, helped by back-to-back last-second "one-in-a-million" plays. In both games, there was one second left when Jim Les threw the ball in from under the far basket to Hersey Hawkins, who took the 70-foot pass, turned and swished a 23-footer as the buzzer sounded. The first goal won the game for coach Dick Versace's team over Drake and the second sent the Dayton game into overtime, with Bradley winning, 79-77.

"A one-in-a-million shot," Les told Bob Pille, Chicago Sun-Times, after the Dayton game, then decided it was not that illogical, since he and Hawkins had done the same thing just two days earlier. "But we're a team of destiny, so I had a little hope." It is Bradley's best start since the 1960 team, which finished 27-2.

Northern Arizona at 13-3 is off to its best start since men's basketball began at the college in 1909, reports sports information director Wylie Smith.

Six Division I teams, including Bradley, 17-13 a year ago, already have won more games than all last season. The others are Fairfield (under

NOTABLES

Meeting January 15-19 in St. Louis, the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America recognized the following coaches and players: MICHAEL BRADY, American, and WARREN LIPKA, South Carolina, players of the year. Brady is a three-time all-America selection and was named Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference player of the year in 1984. Lipka, named the sport's outstanding goalkeeper this season, captained the South Carolina team that advanced to the Division I quarterfinals last fall. Named coaches of the year were PETER MEHLERT, American, Division I; ROBERT RUSSO, Gannon, Division II, MIKE PARKER, North Carolina-Greensboro, Division III, and KALEKENI BANDAS, Massachusetts, women's. Seattle Pacific coach CLIFF McGRATH received the ISAA Honor Award in recognition of his outstanding contributions to the sport. McGrath currently serves as secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Men's Soccer Committee... Iowa quarterback CHUCK LONG named 1985 recipient of the Davey O'Brien Award. Named for a former Texas Christian quarterback who won the 1938 Heisman Trophy, the award was begun in 1977 as a regional honor but was changed to a national award for quarterbacks four years later. Long also won the 1985 Maxwell Trophy and finished second in the balloting for the Heisman Trophy... The Sporting News has named Michigan coach BO SCHEMBECHLER college coach of the year. He guided the Wolverines to a 10-1-1 record, which was capped by a 27-23 victory over Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl... Penn State men's cross country and track coach HARRY GROVES will head the American coaching delegation to the inaugural Goodwill Games between the U.S. and Russia. The five-day track meet will be held July 5-9 in Moscow and will be televised by Turner Broadcasting... GORDON N. OAKS JR., chief executive officer of Monarch Capital Corporation, has been selected to head a committee of volunteers that will attempt to raise the final $1.4 million needed to retire the mortgage on the $11.4 million Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Massachusetts. Also on the committee are LAWRENCE O'BRIEN, president of the hall of fame and former commissioner of the National Basketball Association; PARRY BAXTER, president of Big Yank; RICHARD BOUSHKA, president of Boushka Properties; GRADY LEWIS, senior vice-president of Converse Rubber Co.; VAUGHN RIST, director of employee relations for Spalding Sports Worldwide; STEPHEN S. ROOT, senior vice-president of Springfield's BayBank Valley, and JOSEPH O'BRIEN, executive director of the hall of fame... ED TSCHANNEN, who officiated 22 seasons at the college level, has been named supervisor of officials for the Gateway Conference.

DEATHS

Former Southwest Conference tennis champion JOHN HERNANDEZ died January 18 at age 53. Hernandez attended the University of Texas and won league titles for the Longhorns in 1951 and 1952. He was the state high school champion as a student at San Antonio's Jefferson High School and also a member of the junior Davis Cup team. Hernandez and his son, Steven, won the state father-son doubles title in 1974. He had worked as a teaching pro for the Northeast Independent School District... Notre Dame backfield legend JIM CROWLEY died January 15 in Scranton, Pennsylvania, at age 83. He was the last surviving member of The Four Horsemen, the group of backs immortalized by Grantland Rice after a 1924 victory over Army during what would become the Irish's first national-championship season. After leaving Notre Dame, Crowley went into coaching and was named head coach at Michigan State in 1929. He moved to Fordham four years later and led the Rams to appearances in the Cotton and Sugar Bowls. One of the players on a Fordham defense that was known as the "seven blocks of granite" was Vince Lombardi, who went on to win Super Bowls as coach of the National Football League Green Bay Packers. Crowley took a leave of absence at Fordham in 1942 to enter the service during World War II. Upon his return to the U.S., Crowley became president of the American Football Conference and coach-owner of the Chicago Rockets franchise. Following the demise of the AFC, he worked for an import company and served as industrial commissioner for Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania. He also served on the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission, from which he retired in 1972... PATRICK J. MCGRODER JR., senior executive vice-president of the NFL Buffalo Bills, died January 15 in Scottsdale, Arizona. He was 81. McGroder played high school football in Buffalo and college football at the University of Chattanooga. He had been on the Bills' front-office staff since the team's entry into the old American Football League in 1960.

Baylor basketball goes on probation for recruiting violations

The NCAA Committee on Infractions announced January 21 that Baylor University has been placed on probation for a two-year period for violations of NCAA rules occurring in the conduct of the university's intercollegiate men's basketball program.

The NCAA penalty prohibits the men's basketball team from participating in NCAA championship competition or in any other postseason competition during the 1985-86 academic year.

In addition, only two new recruits in the sport of men's basketball will be permitted to receive initial athletically related financial aid for the 1986-87 academic year, and the university will be limited to a total of 13 basketball grants-in-aid (rather than the normal 15) during both the 1986-

87 and 1987-88 academic years.

Nine current or former basketball team members were involved in the violations found in the case, and the seven who remain on the team were declared ineligible for varying periods of time during the 1985-86 season because of their involvement.

The NCAA's investigation of the case began following public statements by a former member of the team in February 1985 indicating that the then men's head basketball coach had given him a $172 check for personal purposes. Investigation of that matter by the university and the NCAA enforcement staff confirmed the allegation and developed information concerning additional violations involving the basketball coaching staff and other team members.

Frank J. Remington, chair, Committee on Infractions, stated, "The committee initially imposed two years of postseason basketball sanctions and one year of television sanctions in the case. One year of the postseason penalty and the television sanction were suspended, however, due to significant mitigating factors that included self-disclosure of serious violations to the NCAA, early action to disassociate the coaching staff members who were involved in the case from the athletics program and the candid assistance provided in the case by current members of the basketball team.

"The committee was convinced," noted Remington, "that the university demonstrated its commitment to comply with NCAA rules, and the committee believed that the candor of current team members was especially important in uncovering the full scope of the violations. This cooperation also led to substantial relief to the involved student-athletes who provided information that otherwise would have been unavailable in the case and information that could have resulted in permanent ineligibility.

"In assessing the institutional responsibility," Remington noted in closing, "the committee took into consideration the mitigating factors, but also determined that a grant-in-aid restriction should be imposed to limit opportunities for the men's basketball program to benefit from the continued participation of the student-athletes who were involved in this case."

The violations that were found included ethical conduct, extra benefits to enrolled student-athletes, recruiting inducements, excessive recruting contacts, improper automobile and airline transportation, and certification of compliance with NCAA rules.

The following is the complete text of the penalty and a summary of the violations found in the case:

Penalty to be imposed upon institution

1. Baylor University shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of two years, effective December 16, 1985, it being understood that should any portion of the penalty in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalty shall be reconsidered by the NCAA Committee on Infractions.

2. The university's intercollegiate men's basketball team shall end its 1985-86 and 1986-87 basketball seasons with the playing of its last regularly scheduled, in-season contest, and the university shall not be eligible to participate in the National Collegiate Division I Men's Basketball Championship or any other postseason

Clemson, George Mason each place two on soccer all-stars

Clemson University and George Mason University each placed two student-athletes on the National Soccer Coaches Association Division I all-America first team.

Sophomore Bruce Murray and junior Eric Eichmann from Clemson are first-time selections, while George Mason's Michael Reynolds is a repeater on the first team. The senior is joined by freshman Sam Sumo, the only first-year player named to the first team.

Senior forward Thomas Kain of Duke University is the only Division I player to earn four-time all-America status with the announcement of the 1985 team. Hylton Dayes of Wright State was the only other player in any division to earn the honor for the fourth straight time. The Division II team appeared in the January I issue of The NCAA News.

In Division III, Wheaton College (Illinois) was the only school to place more than one player on the first team. Crusaders Chris Hagemann and David Wolf both were named to the squad for the first time.

Following are the first and second teams in Divisions I and III announced by the NSCAA.

Summary

The Division II Steering Committee to complete the unexpired term of Fred Jacoby, Southwest Athletic Conference, who was replaced on the committee in order to comply with the Division I representation requirements. Appointed Marino H. Casem, Alcorn State University, and Royce N. Flippin Jr., Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to that committee replacing Walter Reed, Jackson State University, and Robert F. Riedel, Geneseo State University College, respectively.

Membership
The Division II Steering Committee denied a request, pending receipt of additional information, by the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, for a geographical waiver of the division's scheduling criteria. The committee also voted to elect the Great Northwest Conference to conference membership.

Committee report
The Council voted to receive and endorse a report by the Summer Baseball Committee, including a requirement that summer-league players must be employed an average of at least 28 hours a week during the period of competition, a new schedule of inspections of the seven certified leagues, and a plan to facilitate combined purchases of baseball equipment and insurance.

The Division I Steering Committee announced its decision that the Division I-A and Division I-AA summer legislative meetings will not be scheduled in 1986.

3. During the 1985-86 basketball season, the university's intercollegiate men's basketball team shall not be eligible to appear on any television series or program subject to the administration or control of this Association or any other television program involving "live" coverage.

4. Because of the university's clear commitment to compliance with NCAA legislation as demonstrated by its: (1) ability to develop full information in its investigation prior to NCAA involvement; (2) self-disclosure of serious violations to the NCAA; (3) ability to obtain the cooperation of its enrolled student-athletes in providing candid responses, and (4) actions to disassociate coaching staff members who were involved in the violations from its athletics program, the Committee on Infractions reduced the two-year sanction regarding postseason competition set forth in Paragraph No. 1 to one year (i.e., 1985-86) and suspended the television sanction set forth in Paragraph No. 3.

5. During the 1986-87 academic year, no more than two student-athletes in the sport of men's basketball shall be awarded initial, athletically related financial aid (as set forth in O.I. 600) that has been arranged or awarded by Baylor University; further, during the 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, a total of no more than 13 student-athletes in the sport of men's basketball shall be recipients of athletically related financial aid.

6. In accordance with the "show-cause" provisions of the NCAA enforcement procedures, a representative of the university's athletics interests shall be prohibited from participating in any activities associated with the recruitment of prospective student-athletes during the university's probationary period based upon his involvement in certain violations in this case.

Summary of violations of NCAA legislation

1. Violation of the principles governing ethical conduct [NCAA Constitution 3-6-(a) and 3-6-(a)-(1)-(iii)]—The then men's head basketball coach and a then men's assistant basketball coach acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct inasmuch as they did not, on all occasions, deport themselves in accordance with the generally recognized high standards normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics in that their involvement in and knowledge of certain of the violations set forth in this report demonstrate a knowing and willful effort on their part to operate the university's intercollegiate men's basketball program contrary to NCAA legislation.

2. Violations in the recruitment and subsequent enrollment of student-athlete No. 1 [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaws 1-1-(b)-(1), 1-8-(g) and 1-8-(j)]—(a) During April 1983, the then men's head basketball coach arranged for the young man to receive one-way commercial airline transportation in order to travel home from another collegiate institution in which he had been enrolled [improper transportation]; (b) during May 1983, a then men's assistant basketball coach transported the young man from the university's campus to several automobile dealerships in Waco, Texas, in order to inquire about the purchase of an automobile [improper transportation]; (c) during May 1983, the then men's head basketball coach transported the prospect from the university's campus to an automobile dealership in Waco, Texas, in order for the young man to purchase an automobile [improper transportation]; (d) on numerous occasions during a period beginning in May 1983 and continuing through December 1984, the then men's head basketball coach gave cash (including one check) totaling $1,872 to the young man in order to make monthly payments on an automobile loan [improper inducement and extra benefit]; (e) on three occasions during the summer of 1983, the then men's head basketball coach gave the young man an envelope containing cash (approximately $150 per month) to pay apartment rent [improper inducement], and (f) during a period beginning in the summer of 1984 and continuing through December 1984, the then men's head basketball coach gave $50 to $80 cash per month to the young man for his personal use [extra benefits].

3. Violations in the recruitment and subsequent enrollment of student-athlete No. 2 [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaw 1-8-(g)]—(a) During August 1984, the then men's head basketball coach and a then men's assistant basketball coach arranged for the young man to receive one-way commercial airline transportation in order to travel from his home to the university to enroll [improper transportation]; (b) during December 1984 and March 1985, through the arrangements of the then men's head basketball coach, the young man received round-trip commercial airline transportation on a credit basis between Dallas, Texas, and his home in order to return home for visits; further, the costs of these tickets (approximately $400) was not paid until January 1985 [extra benefit]; (c) during the spring of 1985, through the arrangements of the then men's head basketball coach, the young man received one-way commercial airline transportation on a credit basis from Dallas, Texas, to his home in order to return home for summer vacation; further, the cost of this ticket ($135) was not paid until August 1985 [extra benefit], and (d) on at least two occasions during the fall of 1984, the then men's head basketball coach gave $20 cash to the young man for his personal use [extra benefit].

4. Violations in the recruitment and subsequent enrollment of student-athlete No. 3 [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaws 1-

1-(b)-(1) and 1-8-(g)]—(a) During August 1984, a then men's assistant basketball coach arranged one-way commercial airline transportation at no cost to the young man to travel from his home to Waco, Texas, to enroll; further, upon arriving in Waco, the coach transported the young man by automobile to the university's campus [improper transportation]; (b) during December 1984 and March 1985, the then men's head basketball coach arranged round-trip commercial airline transportation at no cost to the young man to travel between Dallas, Texas, and his home for visits [extra benefit], and (c) during September 1984, the then men's head basketball coach gave cash (i.e., $40 to $60) to the student-athlete for his personal use [extra benefit].

5. Violations in the recruitment and subsequent enrollment of student-athlete No. 4 [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaws 1-1-(b)-(1) and 1-8-(g)]—(a) During August 1984, a then men's assistant basketball coach transported the young man one way by automobile from his hometown to the university's campus in Waco, Texas, to enroll [improper transportation]; (b) during December 1984, a then men's assistant basketball coach transported the young man one way by automobile from Waco, Texas, to his hometown in order to return home for Christmas [extra benefit], and (c) on at least five occasions during the 1984-85 academic year, a then men's assistant basketball coach gave $20 to $30 cash to the student-athlete for his personal use [extra benefit].

6. Violations in the recruitment and subsequent enrollment of student-athlete No. 5 [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(1)]—(a) During the 1983-84 academic year, the young man was contacted in person at his high school on more than three occasions by the then men's head basketball coach and two then men's assistant basketball coaches [excessive recruiting contacts]; (b) during November 1983, the then men's head basketball coach arranged for a then men's assistant basketball coach to give an envelope containing $200 cash to the young man [extra benefit], and (c) on approximately six occasions during the 1983-84 academic year, the then men's head basketball coach gave small amounts of cash ($5 to $10) to the young man for his personal use [extra benefit].

7. Violations in the recruitment and subsequent enrollment of student-athlete No. 6 [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(1)]—(a) During the 1983-84 academic year, the young man was contacted in person at his high school on more than three occasions by the then men's head basketball coach [excessive recruiting contacts], and (b) on at least three occasions during the 1984-85 academic year, the then men's head basketball coach gave small amounts of cash ($10 to $15) to the young man in order to purchase gasoline [extra benefit].

8. Violations in the recruitment and subsequent enrollment of student-athlete No. 7 [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaw 1-

2-(a)-(1)]—(a) During the 1983-84 academic year, the young man was contacted in person at his high school on more than three occasions by a then men's assistant basketball coach [excessive recruiting contacts], and (b) on at least five occasions during the 1984-85 academic year, a then men's assistant basketball coach gave $20 to $30 cash to the young man for his personal use [extra benefit].

9. Violation in the recruitment of student-athlete No. 8 [NCAA Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(1)]—During the 1983-84 academic year, the young man was contacted in person at his high school and his home on more than three occasions at each location by the then men's head basketball coach [excessive recruiting contacts].

10. Violations occurring the enrollment of student-athlete No. 9 [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5)]—(a) During December 1984, the then men's head basketball coach arranged round-trip commercial airline transportation on a credit basis for the young man to travel between Dallas, Texas, and his hometown for a visit [extra benefit], and (b) during the 1984-85 academic year, a representative of the university's athletics interests gave the student-athlete a jewelry box and two or three "baseball" hats at no cost to the young man [extra benefit].

11. Violations involving representatives of the university's athletics interests [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaws 1-1-(b)-(1) and 1-8-(g)]—(a) During August 1984, while recruiting two prospective student-athletes, the then men's head basketball coach arranged for two representatives of the university's athletics interests to transport the young men one way by van at no cost to them from Dallas, Texas, to Waco, Texas, to enroll; further, one of the representatives of the university's athletics interests entertained the young men for a meal during this trip [improper transportation and entertainment], and (b) during December 1984, a representative of the university's athletics interests gave $100 cash to four student-athletes [extra benefits].

12. Additional violations involving the former men's head basketball coach [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaws 5-6-(d) and 5-6-(d)-(4)]—(a) On December 21, 1984, the then men's head basketball coach transported four student-athletes one way by van from Waco, Texas, to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport at no cost to the young men in order for them to travel to their homes for a visit; further, the then men's head basketball coach gave each young man $20 for their personal use [extra benefits], and (b) with full knowledge at the time that certain practices of the university's intercollegiate men's basketball program were not in compliance with NCAA legislation, the then men's head basketball coach attested on July 19, 1984, on a statement filed with the chief executive officer of the university that he had reported his knowledge of and involvement in any violation of NCAA legislation involving the institution when, in fact, he had not reported such information [certification of compliance].
