Changes in 'Proposal 48' will help, study suggests

Incoming freshman student-athletes apparently will fare better in attaining athletics eligibility at Division I schools under academic standards that were amended by Proposal No. 16 at the recent NCAA Convention than they would had Bylaw 5-1-(j) remained unchanged, NCAA research indicates.

Based on studies of freshmen in 1977 and 1982, the percentage of qualifiers for all high school prospects shows an increase under the amended academic legislation.

Black male student-athletes (in 1977 and in 1982) show a gain of seven to 10 percent, and black female athletes could register a five to 12 percent increase with the amended requirements. White males show an improvement of four to seven percent, and white females show an improvement of two to seven percent.

The NCAA conducted a major research project in 1983-84 in response to concern, particularly from black educators, that the impact of the academic standards adopted by the 1983 Convention would put black students at a disadvantage in qualifying for athletics eligibility at Division I schools.

The NCAA study applied the new criteria (adopted in 1983) to student-

Rules change will put football on 35-yard line for kickoffs

The NCAA Football Rules Committee, responding to the declining number of kickoff returns over the last five years, voted to move the placement of the ball for kickoffs from the 40- to the 35-yard line and added an 11th rule to NCAA Football Rules and Interpretations at its annual meeting January 20-22 in Kansas City, Missouri.

The committee's vote to move the spot of kickoffs to the 35-yard line marked the third consecutive year it has attempted to increase through rules changes the number of kickoff returns, particularly among Division I teams.

At its 1984 meeting, the committee voted in favor of spotting touchbacks on kickoffs that sailed out of the end zone untouched by the receiving team at the 30- rather than the 20-yard line.

However, the 30-yard-touchback provision sparked controversy among coaches, fans and the media because it generally was felt that powerful kickers were penalized too severely. Although kickoff returns increased during the 1984 season, the committee subsequently voted at its 1985 meeting to revert to the 1983 rule after a poll indicated that a majority of members of the American Football Coaches Association (AFCA) preferred touchbacks spotted at the 20-yard line.

"The most visible change will be kicking off from the 35-yard line," Dave Maurer, a Division III representative on the committee and former coach at Wittenberg as well as past president of the AFCA, said. "We need to bring the kickoff return back into play. Kickoff returns will now be a viable part of the game."

Rule 11, previously an adjunct section of the rules book, includes provisions for officials' jurisdictions, duties and mechanics.

"This new rule will allow us to make officials' responsibilities part of the playing rules," David M. Nelson, secretary-rules editor of the committee said. "Now that it no longer is an addendum to the rules, NCAA allied conferences and officiating associations must have their officials conduct themselves according to the official playing rules in terms of mechanics and responsibilities."

Other significant changes approved by the committee included instituting a 10-yard restraining line behind the spot of kickoffs for kicking teams and adopting additional safety measures for passers.

Under the new kickoff provision, members of the kicking team (with the exception of the kicker) will be required to line up no farther than 10 yards behind the spot of the kickoff. The rule is intended to reduce high-speed collisions among players, particularly during onside kickoffs.

Additional protection was given to passers by making it illegal for defensive players to throw them to the ground after the pass is thrown. The rule previously only prohibited defensive players from charging into a passer when it was obvious the ball had been thrown.

In a related safety measure, the committee agreed to emphasize in Rule 11 that officials' mechanics make it imperative that referees be responsible for protecting the passer from unnecessary roughness and verbally warn defensive players not to charge into the passer when it is obvious the ball has been thrown.

"The committee is always concerned about player safety," Baylor coach and Division I representative Grant Teaff said. "The restraining line

'85 championships set 19 attendance records

Paid-attendance records were set in 19 NCAA championships in 1985, and another banner year is expected for 1986.

Fifty-four of the Association's 74 championships for 1985-86 will be contested this spring and early summer, beginning with the Division II and Division III Wrestling Championships February 28 to March 1. The Division II championships will be held at the University of Southern Illinois, Edwardsville, while the Division II championships are at Trenton State College. Last year, the Division III event was one of 27 championships to set new gross-receipts records; the meet at Augustana College (Illinois) grossed $19,745.

The 1986 Division I Wrestling Championships at the University of Iowa are practically sold out with six weeks to go before competition begins March 13-15. New all-time highs in paid attendance (75,000) and gross receipts (over $800,000) are being projected. Currently, the paid-attendance record for the event is 66,307 (1982, Iowa State University), while the gross receipts high is $591,290 (University of Oklahoma and Oklahoma State University, 1983).

Salaries for college athletes? Let's scotch an absurd idea

By Paul Hardin

A long time ago, I presided over a university with a big-time, Division I intercollegiate athletics program. One of the biggest headaches associated with such programs—and one not often mentioned—is that presidents and chancellors either have to leave athletics essentially ungoverned or devote entirely too much time to personal supervision of a very unruly enterprise only marginally related to the educational mission of the college or university. Having chosen the second course, I was almost relieved when some influential trustees suggested that I might like to resume my career as an educator—“er, uh, elsewhere.”

These 11 years at Drew University have been, by contrast to that earlier experience, so thoroughly enjoyable that it is very hard indeed to tempt me away from the educator's role (however ineptly played) and back to the athletics monitoring function. But a kind of facile heresy is making the rounds these days, which cannot go unanswered. Thus, I must invest an hour's time at my word processor.

Dozens of otherwise sensible persons are suggesting that the best way to curb the distressingly prevalent abuse of slipping money under the table to scholarship athletes at the big-time athletics factories is to “remove the hypocrisy” and place these young warriors on salaries. Even Walter Byers, the veteran chief executive officer of the NCAA, has tossed up a trial balloon on the subject; and Dick DeVenzio, who played basketball ferociously and effectively at Duke when I taught law there and held season tickets, has written a whole book advocating salaries, a players' union—the whole shebang.

Gentlemen, subside. I won't take time to catalog all of the apt objections to this plan, but I must say enough to expose its essential absurdities.

First, although operating a professional sports franchise is an honorable way of making a living, it hasn't much to do with advancing the values of the academy. Is the business of a university higher education or sports entertainment? Is alleged hypocrisy to be replaced by clear abandonment of basic purpose?

Second, have DeVenzio and others thought carefully through the legal consequences of their suggestion—particularly the tax consequences of openly competing with nonexempt enterprises? New York University once owned a spaghetti factory. Making spaghetti is at least an honorable activity—maybe sublime—but, as a court held, it isn't related closely enough to higher education to rate tax exemption. Most college and university stadiums occasionally are rented to outside agencies for commercial purposes, and tax assessors are tolerant, as long as such uses may be fairly said to be incidental.

Suppose the university itself drops the scholarship concept and quits pretending that revenues from football and basketball support the educational programs of the institution. Why shouldn't the stadiums lose their exemption from property taxes, and why shouldn't the university pay corporate taxes on net athletics income, just like Wellington Mara, professional sports franchise owner, does?

Third, this bizarre proposal is based on the notion that big-time intercollegiate athletics programs are highly profitable. Only a few show black ink, if rigorous accounting principles are followed.

There now is relative parity among Division I universities because of the limitations on the number and size of athletics scholarships. If we start a salary system, with said salaries determined by “market forces”—with or without collective bargaining, there shortly will be only a handful of

Paul Hardin

Division I teams left. You see, universities are not wealthy owners who write off professional sports franchise losses against other, vast personal income.

Debunkers of sincerely proffered, if misguided, ideas ought to offer alternative suggestions. OK, let's “stay the course” for a while. The presidents of NCAA member institutions have organized themselves to take responsibility for curbing athletics abuses. Even though they obviously cannot address every subject at once, they already have successfully sponsored a fairly sweeping legislative program; and more proposals are on the way. The current rules governing athletics scholarships are imperfect. They probably are too generous to students having no financial need. They are, in some instances, unfair to truly needy student-athletes. In my personal opinion, the Ivy League and Division III schools have been correct all along in basing financial aid on financial need.

But that is another essay for another time. I'm going to “wind down” from this wanton expenditure of energy on athletics by basking momentarily in the glow of Drew's nine Division III all-America designations in the past three years and join those gifted young people and their teammates in something really important—higher education, of which truly amateur competitive sports activity is an exhilarating, wholesome component.

NCAA needs to study economic issues in college athletics

“I'd like to see us (the NCAA) address some economic issues. A number of our institutions have their backs against the wall financially. Program costs are rising while income doesn't keep pace, and a number of institutions are having to eliminate some sports.

“My personal feeling is that we ought to be emphasizing a broad base of participation; and when many institutions are just barely meeting the minimum number of sports required, that indicates to me we're headed for serious trouble.”

they are professional leagues, where athletes get paid by tuition and who knows what else, under the table.

“College sports have totally lost sight of their original purpose. It's a mess and a terrible shame. Now, they're just out to make the big buck and pay for the new chemistry building. They let the kid into college to take advantage of him. Too many coaches, they don't give a poop about their players.

“If a kid isn't a student first, we'll let him play ball and develop his skills. People who think we would raid colleges' best players, that's baloney. But if a kid doesn't have the skills needed to be a student, I'll give him a job in the CBA and pay him a real salary. And I'll be honest with him.”

“At Furman, there is no pressure to win. We win because we want to, not because the booster club wants us to.

“Both basketball and football generate revenue for colleges, but there's one notable difference. Bowl games in football are lucrative only to the participants—and in some cases, members of the same conference. The NCAA collects nothing.

“Is it mere coincidence that the NCAA seems unable to nail any basketball powers, whose presence might enhance TV ratings, with a cheating rap serious enough to warrant expulsion from tournament competition? On the other hand, isn't it interesting that big-time football programs regularly get caught breaking NCAA recruiting rules and subsequently are denied postseason berths?

“It's unlikely that any TV network would commit large expenditures to televise a basketball tournament without Kentucky, Indiana, UCLA, Notre Dame, Louisville, Georgetown and other consistent winners.

“With the NCAA dependent on basketball for income (a study indicates 73 percent of its budget), there arise some questions about whether it will be evenhanded in inflicting penalties.

“If the NCAA is in need of increased revenues, it seems only logical to us that it figure out a way to tap the football spigot before squeezing only more blood from the basketball tournament. It's little wonder that football powers prefer bowl games to any proposals for an NCAA football elimination tournament.”

“Just because a kid has trouble in the classroom doesn't mean he can't learn. To simply say, ‘A kid isn't going to make it academically because he's dumb so he should go pro,’ isn't right. You have to give him the opportunity to learn and figure out some way of teaching him.

“Education is more important than playing ball. Playing doesn't last long. There's so many out there who want to play pro ball and so few that make it. What if a kid falls short? He's in the same place he started.

“He has to learn something besides basketball. If he doesn't, he's not going to be able to deal with life, period.”

Two perfect-record teams left

Unbeaten Division I men's teams are a rarity

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

It has been 10 years since a men's Division I basketball team completed the season with an unbeaten record, including a sweep of the Division I Men's Basketball Championship tournament. Indiana, coached by Bob Knight, was the last, in 1976.

It has been seven years since a Division I team had an unbeaten regular season. Two teams did that in 1979—Indiana State, led by Larry Bird, went all the way to the NCAA championship game before losing to Michigan State and Earvin "Magic" Johnson, to finish 33-1. Alcorn State, coached by Davey Whitney, finished 28-1 that same season after losing by four points at Indiana in the quarter-finals of the National Invitation Tournament (Knight's team went on to win that NIT).

Two perfect-record teams are left in Division I, but their chances of staying unbeaten through the NCAA tournament are somewhere between mighty slim and none.

North Carolina, 21-0 going into a January 29 road game at Virginia, still must play Atlantic Coast Conference road games at Georgia Tech (February 4), North Carolina State (February 23) and Duke (March 2). Interestingly, Dean Smith's team was 21-0 in 1984 before losing at Arkansas (64-65).

Memphis State, 20-0 going into a February 1 road game at potent Virginia Tech, still must play other Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference road games at Florida State (February 22), South Carolina (February 24) and Louisville (March 1), plus make a trip to face rugged Nevada-Las Vegas (February 8) in a nonconference game.

The 12-12 club

In the modern era, which began in 1938 (first season without the center jump after each goal scored), only 12 Division I teams have finished the entire season undefeated. Just 12 more completed the regular season unbeaten but lost in tournament play.

Seven of the 12 full-season perfect teams won the NCAA tournament—San Francisco in 1956 (led by Bill Russell), North Carolina in 1957 (coached by Frank McGuire, defeated Kansas and Wilt Chamberlain in a three-overtime, one-point championship classic), Indiana in 1976 as mentioned, and four UCLA teams coached by John Wooden—1964, 1967, 1972 and 1973 (each had 30 victories; San Francisco won 29, North Carolina and Indiana 32 each).

One of the perfect dozen won the NIT—24-0 Long Island (coached by Clair Bee) in 1939. Four others did not play in either the NCAA tournament or the NIT—Seton Hall in 1940, Army in 1944, Kentucky in 1954 and North Carolina State in 1973 (Seton Hall won 19, Army 15, Kentucky 25 and North Carolina State 27).

(Records are not complete, but there were at least 20 perfect-record teams in the pre-1938 era among teams generally considered major college in that period, using a minimum of 15 victories; only seven of them won as many as 20 games.)

Turning now to the 12 almost-perfect teams (those unbeaten entering postseason play), nine of them lost in the NCAA tournament. Those nine and their streak-ending tourney opponents were Columbia (by Illinois) in 1951, Ohio State (by Cincinnati in an overtime championship game) in 1961, Houston (by UCLA) and St. Bonaventure (by North Carolina) in 1968, Marquette (by Ohio State) and Pennsylvania (by Villanova) in 1971, Indiana (by Kentucky) in 1975, Rutgers (by Michigan) in 1976, and Indiana State by Michigan State in the 1979 title game, as mentioned.

Youngstown State's Danielle Carson is No. 2 in assists with a 9.4 average

Springfield senior Ivan Olivares is among the leaders in Division II rebounding

A freshman, Tennessee-Martin's Mary Long is among Division II rebounding leaders

The other three lost in the NIT. They were Loyola (Illinois), to Long Island in 1939; Seton Hall, also to Long Island, in 1941, and Alcorn State in 1979, as mentioned.

II-III unbeaten history

Undefeated teams are exceedingly rare in Divisions II and III. In Division II, Evansville in 1965 (now a Division I member) is the only team to go unbeaten through the NCAA Division II tournament. That team was coached by Arad McCutchan and led number of football head coaches among its graduates. West Chester University of Pennsylvania may be able to make the same claim for Division I women's head basketball coaches. Seven West Chester graduates are among the Division I ranks. They are Pennsylvania's Lois Ashley ('65), Connecticut's Geno Auriemma ('81), Wichita State's Karen Harden ('76), Cornell's Linda Lerch ('76), Temple's Linda MacDonald ('70), Kansas' Marian Washington ('70) letics for Women national championship tournament, starting with 1972, reveals several familiar names. Immaculata won the AIAW national title in 1972, '73 and '74, finished second in '75 and '76, and placed fourth in 1977. Southern Connecticut State placed third in 1973 and '74 and was fourth in 1975. Wayland Baptist took third place in 1976 and fourth in '79 and '82. West Chester was the runner-up to Immaculata in 1972, and Indiana placed fourth in the 1973 tournament.

Perhaps the most remarkable story belongs to Immaculata and its former head coach, Cathy Rush. Three of her players from the championship years have become extremely successful Division I head coaches—Rutgers' Theresa Shank Grentz ('74), Penn State's Rene Portland ('75) and Old Dominion's Marianne Stanley ('76). These three rank 16th, 11th and first among the winningest active coaches in Division I; they have earned a collective 665 victories to 179 losses. Grentz is in her 12th year of coaching, Portland her 10th and Stanley her ninth.

Out of contact, but in touch

The increased popularity of contact lenses has made the sight of athletes on their hands and knees searching for lost lenses a common one during basketball games. However, during a recent women's tournament held at North Carolina State, the "lost lens" scene took on a new dimension.

North Carolina State was playing Kansas in the tournament final when veteran official June Corteau halted play. Corteau, standing under the basket, had found a stray contact lens, which she carefully retrieved. Inquiries among both benches failed to turn up its owner.

After the game, further questioning determined that the lens belonged to Harold Dean, who had officiated the third-place game between Louisville and Boston College. This discovery raised questions about Dean's effectiveness, although no one had noticed anything while the game was actually in progress. Corteau's vision obviously is perfect. (Doug Herakovich, North Carolina State assistant SID)

Many players would be bitter about missing nearly half of their senior year, but Graham sees only the bright side. "I'm lucky," she said. "I've always worked on shooting with my 'off' hand. I wouldn't be playing now if I hadn't." (Doug Ward, UC Irvine sports information office)

Can anyone top this?

Since Old Dominion's 6-8 center Anne Donovan graduated in 1983, the tallest women's college basketball player has been unofficially acknowledged as Brigham Young's 6-7 junior center Tresa Spaulding. However, assistant SID Diane Jones reports that St. Peter's has a reserve center, Barbara Hartman, who is 6-8. Are there any taller players?

Quotes of the week

The head women's and men's basketball coaches at Thiel College—Margaret "Gie" Rhoads and Robert "Posey" Rhoads—are husband and wife, so life is either agony or ecstasy in the Rhoads' household. The women's team was 5-5 and the men's 5-7 when both teams won a double-header at Washington and Jefferson. After the games, "Gie" commented, "So far this season, our house has been either 'happy-sad' or 'sad-sad.' For the rest of the weekend, it will be 'happy-happy.'" (David Bryan, Thiel, SID)

Southern California men's coach Stan Morrison, after his team turned the ball over 53 times on a two-game trip to Washington and Washington State: "Our basketball team had enough turnovers to put Dolly Madison out of business. We have given new meaning to the slogan, 'We gave at the office'... We put the United Way out of business in the Northwest."

Morrison, after the Trojans beat Arizona, 63-62, when Arizona's Joe Turner missed the second of two free throws with no time left: "When Joe made the first free throw, I became an atheist. But we got God back when he missed the second one." (Nancy Mazmanian, Southern California assistant SID)

Canisius and Niagara have been playing since 1906, so it is not surprising that the mascots sometimes get carried away during a timeout. At their latest meeting, the Eagle (Niagara's mascot) was getting the better of the Golden Griffin, when Canisius forward Lamont Gilbert, returning to the court after the timeout, exclaimed with hands on hips: "Yo, get off the Griff!" (Canisius won, 57-54.) (John Maddock, Canisius SID)

With only eight players on the squad, the Evansville coaching staff often uses student manager Jon Wheeler during practice sessions. After watching Wheeler hit two straight jump shots, then steal a pass against the first team, one observer quipped: "First Jon takes their laundry to the cleaners, then he takes them to the cleaners." (Bob Boxell, Evansville SID) by Jerry Sloan and Larry Humes, both first-team selections on the Associated Press All-America squad. At least 13 other Division II teams, all prior to 1965, finished undefeated but did not play in the NCAA tournament (using a minimum of 15 victories and going back through 1938).

There currently are no undefeated teams in Division II.

Division III, instituted in 1974, has never had a perfect-record team including the tournament. Only one perfect-record team, 18-0 Potsdam State, now remains in III, going into a January 29 road game at Plattsburgh State.

Crime does not pay

After North Carolina's 66-64 escape from Marquette in Milwaukee, a young man in coat and tie jerked a player's bag out of the baggage compartment as the last Tar Heel boarded the bus. Steve Hale and assistant coach Roy Williams led the pursuit. After a couple of blocks, the thief dropped the bag, but Hale kept chasing him and caught him. As the trio headed back toward the arena, Williams was telling the young man how foolish he had been. Finally, the thief asked, "What are you going to do to me?" With a big grin on his face, Hale looked him in the eye and replied, "We're gonna hang ya!" (No charges were filed. The bag belonged to 6-11½ Warren Martin, so the thief would have had trouble finding something he could wear.) (Rick Brewer, North Carolina SID)

A 2.750 squad

Creighton coach Tony Barone credits the team's new academic counselor, Rosemary Gross, for helping the players compile a 2.750 grade-point average (4.000 scale) last semester for the entire squad. Glen and Gary McCracken both made the dean's list. (Joe Mueh, Missouri Valley Conference SID)

Leading alma mater

Miami (Ohio) has dubbed itself the "Cradle of Coaches" because of the and American's Linda Ziemke ('72). Auriemma is in his first year as a head coach; the others all have at least three years' experience, with Washington the veteran among the group. During her 12 years at Kansas, she has produced more than 200 victories.

Another Division II school, Southern Connecticut State, has graduated six Division I head coaches: Joan Bonvicini, Long Beach State ('75); Bill Fiske, West Virginia ('69); Don Perelli, Northwestern ('61); Edwina Qualls, Wisconsin ('69); Sue Rojewicz, San Francisco ('75), and Patty Torza, Marist ('73).

Indiana, Indiana State, Tennessee Tech and an NAIA school, Wayland Baptist, boast four graduates each. Indiana has produced Jorja Hoehn ('74), who won the Division II national championship in 1984 and now is in her first year at her alma mater; Diann Nestel ('78) at Yale, Russ Sarfaty ('76) at Butler and Tara Van Derveer ('75) at Stanford. Indiana State's graduates are Evansville's Bill Barnett ('69), Kentucky's Terry Hall ('66), Texas El-Paso's Janet Wood ('74) and Andrea Myers ('66), coaching at her alma mater. Georgia's Andy Landers ('74), Vermont's Robyn Markey ('82), Morehead State's Loretta Marlow ('78) and Eastern Kentucky's Dianne Murphy ('72) are all Tennessee Tech graduates. The Wayland Baptist graduates are Valerie Goodwin at Southwest Missouri State ('79), Charlotte Mason at Lamar ('68), Marsha Sharp at Texas Tech ('74) and Linda Tucker at Rice ('69).

Ten colleges have three graduates each on the list, 42 have two each and 129 have one each, totaling 187 different alma maters for the 275 head coaches (three did not attend college.)

Those with three are Appalachian State, Alcorn State, Bridgewater State (Massachusetts), Brigham Young, Cortland State, Delaware, Eastern Michigan, Immaculata, Mount St. Mary's and Southern California.

Legislative Assistance

1986 Column No. 5

Tryouts

Bylaw 1-6 of the NCAA Manual states that no member institution, on its campus or elsewhere, shall conduct or have conducted in its behalf any athletics practice session, tryout or test at which one or more prospective student-athletes reveal, demonstrate or display their abilities in any phase of any sport.

The provisions of Bylaw 1-6(c) describe five situational exceptions regarding the tryout rule. The provisions of Bylaw 1-6(c)(2) have been interpreted to include certain high school relays events conducted by member institutions as being exempt from the application of the tryout rule.

In this regard, such an event is considered to be "regularly scheduled" if the opportunity to participate in the event is not limited to specific prospective student-athletes or high schools, if all individual prospects or high schools in a specific geographic area are eligible to compete, if the event has been approved prior to the sports season by the appropriate state high school association and if the event appears on the high schools' schedules. Under such circumstances, the institution sponsoring the event shall be prohibited from giving any tangible awards to the participants therein.

Established awards for financial aid

At the recent NCAA Convention, Proposal No. 27 was adopted to amend Constitution 3-4(a)(4). As amended, the legislation permits an award of financial assistance, through an established and continuing program, to a high school graduate on the basis of the recipient's past performance and overall record as measured by established criteria, of which athletics participation may be a major criterion. Disbursement of this assistance shall be through the member institution and shall be intended for the educational expenses of the recipient in attending the institution that the recipient has selected.

The recipient's choice of institutions shall not be restricted by the donor of the assistance. The awarding individual or organization and the donor of the assistance shall not be a representative of the athletics interests or an athletics booster group of a member institution. The value of this award shall not exceed the Association's definition of commonly accepted educational expenses for the institution at which the recipient is enrolled.

This award now may be granted for an unlimited term; however, if the recipient of this award is recruited, the award is considered "financial aid" per O. I. 600, the recipient is considered a "countable player" per Bylaw 6-3 and the amount is applied to the maximum-awards limitations of Bylaw 6 for the sport in question.

Recruiting—tryouts

Proposal No. 51 was adopted by the Convention to amend Bylaw 1-6 for all divisions. This provision prohibits a member of an institution's coaching staff from participating in any coaching activities involving summer AAU basketball teams regardless of the age of the participating prospective student-athletes.

Effective immediately, a coach from a member institution no longer can be involved in any coaching activities for any summer AAU basketball teams.

Kemp suit testimony

Governor says trial raises questions that need answers

Georgia Gov. Joe Frank Harris said publicity generated by a Federal lawsuit has damaged the University of Georgia's image and has raised questions about the school's treatment of athletes that must be answered.

Vice-President for Academic Affairs Virginia Trotter, a defendant in the suit filed by ex-instructor Jan Kemp, has testified she allowed 11 athletes to enter the regular curriculum despite their failing remedial grades and her own comment in a faculty meeting that, "We're really talking through our hats if we think these students will graduate."

The trial was scheduled to resume January 28 in Atlanta.

Harris said he will be "insisting, certainly, that if there are still unanswered questions (after the trial), that they be answered. The university system as a whole, and the University of Georgia, has too good a record... to let something like this damage our future."

Kemp, who is suing Trotter and developmental studies director LeRoy Ervin, claims she was fired as instructor in the program in 1983 because she protested preferential treatment for athletes in the remedial developmental studies program.

University officials contend Kemp was dismissed because she was insubordinate and refused to do research.

A student group at the Athens campus, called "Students Against Campus Corruption," rallied outside President Fred C. Davison's office and marched past the football stadium January 27.

The crowd, variously estimated at 100 to 300, called for the firing of Trotter and Ervin.

Organizer Bob Ekey, a sophomore history major, said changes also are needed to make sure future academic officials are not pressured to be

"crooked and corrupt."

Emilia Kelly, a senior anthropology and Romance language major from Atlanta, said, "even though I'm not an athlete, I don't want people to laugh at my degree. The students I've talked to aren't very happy about all this."

University spokesman Barry Wood said school officials had been advised by attorneys not to comment until the trial is over. But in answer to a reporter's question, he said athletes are treated differently at Georgia "as they are at every NCAA institution."

Kemp is seeking reinstatement, back pay and damages.

host the National Collegiate Men's and Women's Skiing Championships March 5-8. The only other time Vermont hosted the championships was in 1980, when the Catamounts claimed the national title. They have been national runners-up four of the past five years and appear to be the top contender in the East.

Rifle, the only other sport in which an NCAA National Collegiate Men's and Women's Championship is held, is set for March 14-15 at U.S. Naval Academy. Murray State University, West Virginia University and Tennessee Technological University—the only schools ever to win an NCAA team title in rifle—are the front-runners again for 1986 honors.

Nine other championships will conclude on the March 14-15 weekend, including Division I Men's and Women's Indoor Track Championships, March 14-15, The Myriad, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; Division II Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, March 12-15, Justus Aquatic Center, Orlando, Florida; Division III Men's Basketball Championship, March 14-15, Calvin College; Division III Men's and Women's Indoor Track Championships, March 14-15, St. Paul, Minnesota; Division III Women's Basketball Championship, March 14-15, on-campus site of one of finalists, and Division III Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, March 13-15, C. T. Branin Natatorium, Canton, Ohio.

Separate men's and women's championships are held in fencing, but the two are scheduled consecutively at the same site. The men's championships will be held March 18-19, followed by the women's championships, March 20-21, at Princeton University.

Division II men's and women's basketball also is conducted at the same site. The Springfield Civic Center in Springfield, Massachusetts, will host the event for the seventh consecutive year (fifth for the women) March 20-22.

On the same weekend, University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, hosts the Division I Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, while C. T. Branin Natatorium in Canton, Ohio, will be the site of the Division III Men's Swimming and Diving Championships. Kenyon College, which has claimed the NCAA Division III title for the past six years, is host and favorite. In addition, Division III ice hockey is scheduled on campus of one of the finalists.

Division I ice hockey is one of the NCAA's largest-grossing championships. Last year in Detroit, the event brought in a gross of $816,838 and the most paid attendance (80,069) ever. The 1986 championships will be held March 27-29 at the Providence

Civic Center in Providence, Rhode Island.

Closing out the month of March are the NCAA's most prestigious men's and women's championships—Division I men's and women's basketball. The 1985 Division I Men's Basketball Championship in Lexington, Kentucky, grossed $34,827,813, more than any other championship in the history of the NCAA. However, 1986 receipts are projected to surpass that total. Tickets for the Final Four, March 29 and 31 at Reunion Arena in Dallas, Texas, were sold out in April. First-round action begins March 13.

The women's basketball championship, ending with the final four March 28 and 30 at Kentucky, also could exceed 1985 figures. Last year's paid attendance of 98,569 and gross receipts of $874,775 are the highest ever for a women's championship. First-round action begins March 12.

Closing out the winter championships are the National Collegiate Men's Gymnastics Championships, April 4-5, University of Nebraska, Lincoln; Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships, April 3-5, Indiana University Natatorium, Indianapolis, Indiana; Division II Women's Gymnastics Championships, April 4-5, U.S. Air Force Academy, and the Division I Women's Gymnastics Championships, April 18-19, University of Florida.

Spring sports championships action begins May 2-3 with the National Collegiate Men's Volleyball Championship. Pennsylvania State University will host the 1986 final four, which returns to the East for the first time since Ohio State University hosted it in 1983.

Six division tennis championships will be completed in May. Dates and sites are: Division I men—May 17-25, University of Georgia; Division II men—May 12-18, California State University, Northridge; Division III men—May 12-18, Claremont McKenna-Harvey Mudd-Scripps Colleges; Division I women—May 15-23, University of Texas, Austin; Division II women—May 5-10, Cal State Northridge, and Division III women—May 13-17, Kalamazoo College.

Four golf championships are conducted in May, beginning with the Division II and Division III golf championships, May 20-23, at the University of Tampa and King's College, respectively. The Division I Men's Golf Championships, which date back to 1897, will be held May 28-31 at Wake Forest University, site of the 1979 championship. The women's championships are slated for May 28-31 at Ohio State University.

Three lacrosse championships also will be featured in May: Division I men—May 24-26, University of Delaware (semifinals and finals); Division III men—May 17, on site of one of finalists (finals), and National Collegiate Women's Lacrosse Championship—May 17, University of Maryland, College Park (finals).

The Division I Women's Softball Championship, which set records in paid attendance (20,856) and gross receipts ($82,856) in 1985 at the Seymour Smith Softball Complex in Omaha, Nebraska, returns to the same site May 21-25. The Division II finals are scheduled May 16-18 at the University of Akron, while the Division III champion will be determined May 15-18 at Buena Vista College.

In outdoor track and field, men's and women's division championships are held at the same site, including: Division I men and women—June 4-7, Indianapolis, Indiana; Division II men and women—May 21-24, California State University, Los Angeles, and Division III men and women—May 21-24, University of Wisconsin, La Crosse.

Closing out the spring championships is baseball, which holds tournaments in three divisions. The Division II championship is scheduled for May 23-28 at Patterson Stadium in Montgomery, Alabama, while Division III is slated for May 29 to June 1 at Marietta College. The Division I championship, which grosses over $1 million each year, will be held May 30 to June 8, again at Rosenblatt Municipal Stadium in Omaha, Nebraska.

"LET US HELP!"

Wilde gets call to keep Pepperdine volleyball on top

By Lacy Lee Baker
The NCAA News staff

Fair-skinned Rod Wilde might look out of place among the sun-drenched athletes on Pepperdine's men's volleyball team. But as the new coach, Wilde will have found a home if he is able to keep NCAA championship trophies coming to the Malibu school.

The Waves are the defending national champions. They also won the NCAA title in 1978, when Wilde was a setter on the team. Both Pepperdine titles came under the tutelage of Marv Dunphy, resigned after last season to become head coach of the U.S. national team. Wilde, who was coaching the women's team at Drake, got the call as Dunphy's replacement.

At Pepperdine, he inherits a powerhouse.

Although 1985 NCAA tournament MVP Bob Ctvrtlik and all-America setter Mike Fitzgerald graduated, four starters return, including all-America hitter Matt Rigg, middle blockers Rob Scott and Mark Arnold, and setter Troy Tanner. Volleyball Monthly has named the Waves pre-season national favorites.

"We will use a game plan very similar to last year's, emphasizing the middle a little more," said Wilde, who was the International Volleyball Association Rookie of the Year in 1980. "Offensively, we are a big power team."

Big is the word. With Arnold (6-5, 195) and Scott (6-3, 195) in the middle, Rigg (6-3, 190) and Steve Friedman (6-5, 215) in outside hitting positions, and Tanner (6-3, 190) and Doug Rigg (6-4, 180) at setter spots, Pepperdine can be intimidating. It is no wonder the Waves usually lead the nation in blocking.

With Wilde's background in setting, which led him to the U.S. Olympic team in 1984 before he broke a leg two months before the games, he hopes to influence that aspect of Pepperdine's game. "I demand a lot from my setters. I also will emphasize defense and back-row play."

The Waves already have claimed one tournament in 1986—the Collegiate Men's National Preview in Kansas City. Pepperdine defeated Penn State and then edged UC Santa Barbara, ranked No. 7 in preseason, in a five-game final match.

Pepperdine's toughest competition will come from California Intercollegiate Volleyball Association (CIVA) rivals, seven of which are among the top 10 preseason favorites. No. 2-ranked Southern Cal or No. 3-ranked UCLA could keep the Waves from a second straight title, a feat accomplished only by UCLA in the 16-year history of the tournament.

Other top contenders include:

Southern California

In 1985, the Trojans (28-9) achieved a collegiate men's volleyball rarity—the Trojans cancelled UCLA's appointment in the final four by beating the Bruins at the West regional championship. It marked only the third time in national-tournament history that UCLA had not participated (1973, 1977, 1985).

"We believed we could beat them the last couple of years but never did it," said Southern California coach Bob Yoder. "They beat us early in the season last year by a lot, but then we beat them both times in league matches. At the end of the year, teams were expecting us to lose just because of UCLA's mystique."

"It is hard to dominate the Bruins. They have the best home-court advantage in the league. There haven't been too many times when they have not been favored," Yoder said.

In 1986, the Trojans may have the manpower not only to dominate their cross-town nemesis but also to challenge nearby Pepperdine for the national title, which Southern Cal won in 1977 and 1980. All-America hitter Adam Johnson (6-3) returns, as do senior middle blocker Chao Ying Zhang (from People's Republic of China) and setter Rudy Dvorak.

In addition, Southern California picked up four of Volleyball Monthly's "Fabulous 50 Preps"—Tom Duke, 6-6 middle blocker from Santa Barbara, California; Lawrence Hom, 6-1 hitter from Torrance, California; Chris Martz, 6-3 setter from Hacienda Heights, California, and John Schisler, 5-11 setter from Corona Del Mar, California.

"We had some very valuable seniors who graduated (hitter Bill Yardley and middle blocker Adam Horstman). The toughest problem will be replacing those two," Yoder said. "We will rely on at least one freshman, possibly two, to start. Duke will start in the middle and Martz may play in the position opposite Dvorak. We have the potential to be a better team than last year; but, because of our youth, it might be the second half of the season before we get to that point."

UCLA

UCLA and success in men's collegiate volleyball have become synonymous. The Bruins either have won or finished second in their 13 appearances in the final four, including 11 national championships (1970-71-72-74-75-76-79-81-82-83-84).

Responsible for UCLA's success is head coach Al Scates, now in his 24th year and the winningest collegiate volleyball coach (605-79 since 1963, .884 percent winning percentage).

When Scates says his team can win it all, opponents take note. Many have their pencils out already.

"I think we can win it. I think we will be awfully tough to beat in April and May," Scates said. "Last year, we went into the season with a 38-0 record from the year before, then Reed Sunahara went down (moped accident), and I changed things quite a bit. Consequently, we trained them through the December break. I think we worked them too long and too hard. This year, we are back on our normal pattern and should be very fresh at the end of the season."

The return of all-America middle blocker Sunahara is one reason for Scates' optimism. Although far from 100 percent, the 6-4 senior has made startling progress since the accident 18 months ago. He has undergone several operations (the last in August) and has a steel rod inserted in his left leg. His former 39-inch vertical jump now is 30 inches.

"I thought Sunahara was the best hitter in collegiate volleyball in 1984; when he went down last year, so did our team," Scates said. "I'm really encouraged now. I recently played him against the alumni after he had only been allowed to jump for two weeks, and he was out there putting the ball away for us. Now, we're counting on him to start, and he probably will be one of our leading hitters. The doctors thought he would just be able to walk right now, not play volleyball."

Asbjorn Volstad, a 6-4 1/2 junior all-America hitter, is UCLA's top returnee, along with senior captain setter Andy Klussmann. Top recruits are 6-4 setter Matt Sonnichsen from Spring, Texas, and 6-3 power hitter Mike Stafford, Laguna Beach, California.

"Our strength will be blocking. It is pretty traditional in our program," Scates said. "Klussman is probably one of the best end blockers in the game."

Hawaii

Experience will be the Rainbows' main strength. They are led by returnees Pono Maa (6-3 senior hitter), John Rivarich (6-1 senior setter) and Bill Via (6-4 senior middle blocker). In addition, four freshman athletes are coming off redshirt years: Allen Allen (6-2 outside hitter), Victor Popinga (6-3 middle blocker), Pancho Mauo (6-2 setter) and Michael Among (6-3 setter).

Alan Rosehill, a former assistant coach with Southern California and head coach at Hawaii Pacific, has taken over Hawaii's coaching reins from Dave Shoji, who now handles assistant coaching duties with the men's program, along with his women's head-coaching job.

The Rainbows will have depth in the hitting positions and possess good defensive skills as they try to improve last year's 14-11 record.

Stanford

Stanford already has built a national contender with its women's volleyball program and the men seem to be climbing the ladder faster each year. The Cardinal had its best season in 1985, going 25-10 and gaining a berth in the NCAA West regional for only the second time in school history.

Everyone will be back for 1986 except setter Craig Lauchner, and filling that position will be the Cardinal's first order of business. Sophomore Steve Modory, a junior from Mission Viejo, California, is the likely replacement.

Top returnees for the Cardinal are Jon Root, a 6-5 all-America middle blocker; Chris Braun, a 6-6 all-America hitter who led the team in kills and hitting percentage last year, and Scott Fortune, a 6-6 sophomore middle blocker and captain of this summer's junior national team.

Helping out from the freshman ranks will be Dave Johnson, a 5-11 outside hitter from Torrance, and Kurt Clotfelter, a 6-3 hitter from Mill Valley, California.

George Mason

The Patriots, 27-6 and third in the nation in 1985, are East region pre-season favorites. Four top returnees, assisted by two excellent freshman recruits, make new coach Ron Shayka optimistic.

Returning are Moyo Kasim, 6-6 junior middle blocker; Jon Henwood, 6-4 senior outside hitter; Dale Witmer, 6-1 junior setter, and Mike Schwob, 6-7 sophomore middle blocker.

Uvaldo Acosta, a freshman setter who played on the United States junior national team this summer, and 6-7 middle blocker Hakan Bjorne, a Swedish national-team member, could rank as George Mason's finest recruits ever.

Shayka, an assistant coach for two years with former Patriots coach Wayne Stalick (on sabbatical), will try some new looks. A wide-open style, with a lot of different movement on offense and defense, and the development of role players who specialize in certain skills are two new aspects of his plan.

The Patriots will host UCLA, Southern Cal and Ball State in their tournament February 7-8.

UC Santa Barbara

The Gauchos lost five 1985 starters and likely will weather a rebuilding year in 1986. They still are ranked seventh in the preseason. Coach Ken Preston, in his eighth year at UC Santa Barbara, emphasizes ball-control and a quick offense.

Manning the 5-1 setup will be returnees Jared Huffman (6-3 senior setter), Chris Larson (6-3 junior middle blocker) and Mark Franklin (6-4 outside hitter). David Rottman, a 6-4 sophomore hitter, also will start.

Top freshmen are Scott Drake (6-2 setter), Jose Gandara (6-5 outside hitter) and Lee Nelson (6-8 middle blocker).

Penn State

The Nittany Lions will be George Mason's main rival again in the Eastern league, newly named the Eastern Intercollegiate Volleyball Association (EIVA).

"Last year was a rebuilding year for us and now, all those players are back with greater experience, not only from last season but also from this summer's USVBA (United States Volleyball Association) and National Sports Festival competition," said coach Tom Tait.

Mainstays are setter Javier Gaspar (6-0 sophomore), middle blocker Stew Russell (6-4 senior) and hitter Mike Hogan (6-3 sophomore).

"We also have added two very significant freshman recruits," said Tait. "Chris Chase (6-10 middle blocker) is becoming one of the most dominant net players in the country. He adds a new dimension to our team." Hitter/setter Robert Pierce (6-1) also will be counted on.

Ball State

Front-runner in the Midwest Intercollegiate Volleyball Association again should be the Cardinals, 22-13 and fourth in the nation in 1985.

Ohio State and Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne could challenge Ball State.

on kickoffs and providing additional safety measures for passers are reflections of the committee's concerns."

Although the committee adopted approximately 40 rules changes, the majority of the revisions were editorial in nature or were made to clarify definitions or play situations for officiating purposes. The committee reviewed 107 rules-change proposals.

"We had an excellent meeting," Brigham Young coach and Division I representative LaVell Edwards said. "We had good discussion on many proposals. Changes were not made for the sake of changing but to make the game better, protect the players and provide for more consistency in officiating."

"I am impressed with the whole rules committee process and how we give careful consideration to any changes."

Following is a complete list of rules changes adopted by the committee.

Rule 1-1-7—NCAA members not complying with playing rules that carry no penalty (e.g., improperly marked field, unauthorized persons in the team area, coaches wearing microphones) will be subject to sanctions by the NCAA Infractions Committee.

Rule 1-2-1—Marking area between sideline and coaching line; solid white is recommended.

Rule 1-2-1-b—Short yard-line extensions will be required inside and outside the sidelines and in-bounds lines.

Rule 1-2-4-a—Team areas must extend to the 25-yard lines.

Rule 1-3-1-Exception—Mutual consent for rubber balls deleted.

Rule 1-3-2-j—Marking game balls to indicate which are passing or kicking balls or any marking for whatever purpose is prohibited.

Rule 1-4-5-c—Beginning with the 1990 season, thigh guards must conform to present manufacturers' standards (entire surface must be covered).

Rule 1-4-5-1—Requirements for uniform attachment designating anything except player's numbers, name, school, game or memorial insignia will be included in the points of emphasis to call attention to the prohibition of manufacturers' logos or trademarks.

Rule 1-4-10—The use of coaches' sideline headsets will not be subject to the rules.

Rule 2-2-7-c-3 and 4—Definition of a catch clarified. (3) Loss of the ball simultaneously with returning to the ground is not a catch, interception or recovery. (4) When in doubt, the catch, recovery or interception is not completed.

Rule 2-3-2-b—Intent of the rule clarified. If the blocker first contacts the opposing player's hands, it is a legal above-the-waist block only if the opposing player's hands are above the waist.

Rule 2-10-1—Definition of a fumble clarified. A fumble is any act, other than a pass or legal kick, that results in loss of player possession. The intent of the clarification is to cover play situations where the ball is placed on the ground and possession is not lost by an unsuccessful attempt to hold, hand, pass it backward or kick it.

Rule 2-10-5—Definition for blocking the ball added for rule-enforcement purposes.

Rule 2-14-1—Hurdling of restricted lineman prohibited.

Rule 2-25-9—Exceptions 1 and 2 deleted and replaced with: "When a kick ends in Team B's end zone, the basic enforcement spot is Team B's 20-yard line." The intent of the change is to provide the same enforcement for two-kick situations that end in the end zone.

Rule 2-27-9—Player definition clarified. A player is any one of the participants in the game who is not a substitute or a replaced player and is subject to the rules in bounds and out of bounds.

Rule 3-2-2 and 3-2-2-a—Mutual agreement for shortening game deleted.

Rule 3-2-5-f—Offended team captain given clock option on penalties.

Rule 3-3-2-9—The referee shall declare a timeout after the ball is dead and give the sideline warning immediately to make the warning more effective.

Rule 3-3-5-a—Injured-player timeout clarified.

Rule 3-3-7—Maximum of 90 seconds for television timeouts recommended.

Rule 3-3-7-e—Coaches'/officials' conference timeouts allowed when charged.

Rule 3-4-2-b-3—Penalty added for delay-of-game actions not presently covered (e.g., if a team is not ready to play after an intermission, between periods, after radio or television timeout).

Rule 4-1-2—Inadvertent whistle definition rewritten.

The new definition permits the team in possession at the time of the inadvertent whistle and after a change of possession to take the ball at the dead-ball spot (location of the ball at the time of the inadvertent whistle) or choose to replay the down.

Rule 6-1-1—Spot of kickoffs changed from the 40- to the 35-yard line.

Rule 6-1-1—Members of the kicking team can line up no farther than 10 yards behind the spot of the kickoff.

Rule 6-3-1 and -2—Return to 1985 rule.

6-4-1-a—"... while the ball is in a downward flight" eliminated from the rule.

Rule 6-3-6—A Team A player who voluntarily goes out of bounds during the kick may not return in bounds during the down (same as the free-kick rule).

Rule 7-3-10—Penalty for ineligible downfield changed to no loss of down.

Rule 8-5-1-b-Exception—Change "... in his team's possession or he" to "... in his team's possession or it."

Editorial change eliminates the safety when the player with the exception to the safety fumbles the ball out of the end zone.

Rule 9-1-2—All Team B fouls are automatic first downs.

Rule 9-1-2-o—Revised. No defensive player shall throw the passer to the ground after the ball has been thrown.

Rule 9-2-2-a, -b—Penalty enforced from the most advantageous spot for the offended team.

Rule 9-4-1-c—Loss of down added for illegally batting the ball.

Rule 10-1-7-b—Fouls that occur between the end of the game and the start of the extra period following a tie game are enforced from the 25-yard line.

Rule 10-2-2-c-1, -2—Penalize clipping during a forward-pass play from the previous spot when it occurs behind the neutral zone.

Rule 10-2-2-e-5—Change to: "All fouls beyond the neutral zone except those occurring simultaneously with the snap during scrimmage kick plays other than tries have postscrimmage enforcement."

Change's intent is to have postscrimmage enforcement for all fouls by Team B except those occurring simultaneously with the snap.

Rule 11—"The Officials—Jurisdiction and Duties" added to NCAA Football Rules and Interpretations.

athletes who entered college in 1977 and 1982. Another analysis of data was conducted in December 1985, this time from the perspective of Bylaw 5-1-(j) as amended by the 1986 Convention, according to Ursula R. Walsh, NCAA director of research.

Two conclusions are apparent from the data, Walsh said.

She cited an increase in the percentages of black male qualifiers, and she noted that academic test scores (SAT and ACT) for the group rose considerably from 1977 to 1982.

Walsh said it is her belief that the research conducted by the Association will dispel some of the concern about the effects of the new NCAA academic requirements for eligibility.

Division I schools now are collecting new information in a study that will cover 10 years, Walsh said. She noted that educators have expressed hope that a renewed emphasis on academic preparation (the core curriculum) will obviate concern over test-score performance.

Bylaw 5-1-(j) in its original form required freshman student-athletes entering college in the fall of 1986 to have achieved at least a 2.000 grade-point average (4.000 scale) in a core curriculum of 11 academic subjects and to present a minimum score of 700 on the SAT or 15 on the ACT to be eligible for practice and participation in NCAA Division I athletics in the freshman year.

Bylaw 5-1-(j) as amended by Proposal No. 16 at the 1986 NCAA Convention provides for a phasing-in of these requirements over the next three years.

In 1986-87, freshmen with high school core GPAs of 2.200 or higher can qualify with SAT scores as low as 660 or ACT scores of 13. Freshmen with GPAs of 1.800 will need to score 740 or 17 on the SAT or ACT.

In 1987-88, the minimum qualifying grade-point average in the core will be 1.900; it must be combined with an SAT score of at least 720 or an ACT score of 16. Those with averages of 2.100 or higher can qualify with test scores of 680 or 14.

In 1988-89, the minimum standards will be those originally approved: 700 on the SAT or 15 on the ACT with a 2.000 grade-point average in the core curriculum.

Gophers' basketball season resumes; panel to examine athletics program

It would not be fair to penalize eight people because of accusations against three.

That was University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, President Kenneth H. Keller's reasoning for allowing the Gophers to finish their men's basketball season even though three players have been charged with sexual assault.

"If you look at the very narrowest issue—the issue of the basketball program—we found a program that had 11 players, has three who are in jail, and those three have committed an offense that is as serious as anyone could imagine," Keller said at a news conference announcing the continuation of the season and the appointment of long-time assistant coach Jimmy Williams as interim coach.

"The other eight have been traumatized by that offense," Keller continued. "They appear not to have been involved in it. They appear perhaps at this point less likely than any other group of young people in the country to get themselves into difficulty in the next several weeks."

Keller said he would appoint a task force that will make recommendations on how to clean up the university's athletics in particular, and intercollegiate athletics in general. He said he then would take the suggestions to presidents of other Big Ten Conference schools.

Keller said Williams was chosen to replace Jim Dutcher—who resigned January 25, one day after the rape was alleged to have occurred in Madison, Wisconsin—because "You can't underestimate the value of his being there at a time when we need continuity."

He said that when interest groups pressured him to continue the basketball season, he thought even more seriously of canceling the final 11 games "because I thought they had misfocused the issue." Nevertheless, he said he could not bring himself to penalize the eight remaining players.

"We are not looking for scapegoats," Keller said.

Mitchell Lee, 20, of Carol City, Florida, and Kevin Smith, 21, of Lansing, Michigan, were charged with first-degree sexual assault in Dane County Circuit Court for allegedly attacking an 18-year-old Madison woman. The two also were charged with second-degree sexual assault, as was a third player, George Williams Jr., 19, of Oakland, California.

An 18-year-old student at Madison Area Technical College reported that she had been sexually attacked at the Concourse Hotel, where the Gophers stayed January 23 after defeating the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

SEC cracks down on fighting

The Southeastern Conference has publicly reprimanded eight basketball players involved in incidents leading to a bench-clearing brawl during a Florida-Georgia game in Athens January 15.

No one was suspended, but each player was warned that any subsequent incident of flagrant fouling or fighting could result in temporary or permanent suspension.

Conference Commissioner H. Boyd McWhorter issued a prepared statement on the reprimand, naming four players from each school.

McWhorter said responsibility for the incident must be shared by the players, coaches and officials.

The commissioner said the type of misconduct displayed by the players during the game and the fight has no place in college athletics. He said it was "a source of deep concern and embarrassment" to the conference and the schools "and will not be tolerated nor allowed to go unpunished if it does occur."

Scholarship nominations due February 26

Nominations for postgraduate scholarships for men's and women's basketball players must be mailed by February 26 to the appropriate district selection committee chair, as outlined in the nomination folder that was mailed to all NCAA member institutions this week.

A total of 20 (10 for men and 10 for women) scholarships of $2,000 each will be awarded by the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee, which, since 1964, has been honoring outstanding students from NCAA member institutions who excel academically and athletically.

Eight scholarships (four for men and four for women) will be allocated to Division I student-athletes, and eight (four for men and four for women) will be awarded in Divisions II and III. The remaining four scholarships (two for men and two for women) will be awarded at large.

Faculty athletics representatives are responsible for collecting the completed nomination forms and forwarding them, along with an official transcript of the candidate's academic record, to the appropriate district selection committee chair.

Each institution is asked to limit its nominations to no more than one male student and one female student. Institutional representatives and student-athletes must complete five forms found in the scholarship folder.

The Association annually awards 90 postgraduate scholarships of $2,000 each. In addition to the 20 scholarships for basketball student-athletes, 25 are presented to football participants and 45 (25 for men and 20 for women) to varsity athletes in sports other than football and basketball.

Any additional information can be obtained by contacting Fannie B. Vaughan, administrative assistant, at the NCAA national office.

Graduate school enrollment shows 21 percent increase

Graduate school enrollment in the U.S. increased 21 percent from 1974 to 1984, to 1.8 million, the Census Bureau reported. The bureau also reported that college enrollment in 1984 was 12.3 million, up about 616,000 since 1980 but not significantly higher than the 1981 figure.

There were 13.8 million students enrolled in high school in 1984, 1.2 million fewer than in 1980. The decline seems likely to continue to 1991 and beyond, the bureau said.

Enrollment is increasing in the country's kindergartens and nursery schools as the children of the generation born in the "baby boom" reach school age. The number in nursery school and kindergarten in 1984 was about 500,000 higher than in the 1980 census. Nursery school enrollment was 2,354,000, and enrollment in kindergartens reached 3,484,000.

Elementary school enrollment slipped 360,000 from 1983 to 1984, to 26.8 million.

In another report related to education, a study by Northwestern University said that 1986 college graduates can expect a starting salary about four percent higher, on average, than 1985 graduates received.

The study, released last month, found that job opportunities for students with bachelor's degrees will remain flat, while those for students with master's degrees will increase seven percent.

Education costs are up seven percent

A survey by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities and the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges shows that the cost of attending the nation's four-year public colleges and universities has increased more than seven percent since last year.

The average cost is $4,587 a year for tuition and room and board.

Tuition increased by eight percent for students attending schools in their home state and by 11 percent for out-of-state students.

The average public-college bill still is roughly half of what it costs to spend a year at the typical private four-year college, the survey said.

For out-of-state students in public institutions, the average cost was $5,553. In-state students paid an average of $3,210.

For graduate school, the state campuses charged tuition and fees averaging $1,427 for residents and $3,199 for nonresidents. Law schools raised their tuition by an average of 12 percent, while most other professional schools raised their charges by an average of seven percent.

Doctor files suit over statement by student-athlete

University of Pittsburgh trustee Joseph Haller, M.D., has filed a lawsuit against Villanova University basketball player Doug West, who charged the doctor offered him $10,000 to attend Pitt.

Haller, an oral surgeon, filed the suit earlier this month in Blair County Common Pleas Court. The suit, called a writ of summons, contains no charges but requires that West submit to a deposition in the case. Haller's attorney, Merle Evey, said the suit was in response to allegations West, a freshman, made in an article published October 28 in the Lexington, Kentucky, Herald-Leader. West told the newspaper that Haller offered to pay him $10,000 in November 1984 if he would attend Pitt.

Haller has acknowledged making a phone call in an attempt to persuade West to attend Pitt but said no money offer was made.

Council of presidents proposed by NAIA to enhance academics

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics is in the process of shifting more governing responsibility to a council of college presidents, officials said.

The 500-member small-college organization is governed mainly by the NAIA 10-member national executive committee, made up largely of athletics directors. A proposal announced January 21 would place more of the governing responsibility with a council of school presidents and executive officers.

The executive committee would retain administrative duties but would be responsible to the council under the proposal expected to be approved at the organization's annual convention in Kansas City, Missouri, in March.

The council would include one school president or chief executive officer to be elected by each of the NAIA's 32 districts. It would be responsible for academic standards, financial affairs, and the employment and supervision of the NAIA professional staff.

"Our primary goal is to get the presidents more meaningfully and actively involved in the affairs of the NAIA," said Jefferson Farris, president of the University of Central Arkansas and chairman of the Council of Presidents.

"The presidents can work productively with the athletics people. Not that we don't have good academics, but we have to continue to improve and define what they are," he said.

The recent enactment of stricter eligibility requirements by the National Collegiate Athletic Association will encourage the public to expect standards to be upgraded for all college groups, Farris said.

Leonard Campbell, a council member from Southwestern Oklahoma State University, said the group might consider the need for NAIA enforcement personnel on the national level.

Campbell added, however, that major athletics infractions are rare below the NCAA Division I level and that most of those deal with nonacademic matters, such as recruiting violations.

"Money is what corrupts, and we don't have enough money to corrupt," Campbell said.
