Lacrosse preview

A repeat performance could be ahead for Todd Curry of Syracuse and Steve Mitchell of Johns Hopkins since their two teams are among the top contenders for the Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship this season. Johns Hopkins defeated Syracuse for the 1985 title. For a preview of the men's and women's seasons, see pages 6-8.

Championships committees set priorities

Committees appointed to determine allocation of resources for NCAA Divisions II and III championships, subject to Executive Committee approval, met in Kansas City, Missouri, February 24-25 to discuss proposals for the allocation of $1.1 million block grants for 1986-87 and establish priorities for their respective championships.

The Division I committee's first meeting is scheduled May 4.

The Division II committee reviewed the final summaries of all its championships and will make the following recommendations to the Executive Committee:

- Guarantee 100 percent transportation expenses for all team championships.
- Guarantee 50 percent transportation expenses for all individual championships.

- Establish a five percent contingency fund and prorate the remaining funds to increase the transportation allocations for the individual championships.

The Division II committee reaffirmed the policy of a championship distributing a per diem from revenue generated by the championship.

The committee also is examining the possibility of guaranteeing transportation for teams in men's and women's tennis and cross country and men's golf.

With total transportation expenses for 1986-87 estimated at $1.6 million, the Division III committee is considering the following formulas for administering its $1.1 million block grant:

- Reimburse only squad members in team sports rather than the entire traveling party; or, if funds are available, reimburse as follows: team championships—squad size plus one non-athlete; individual championships—full teams plus one nonathlete and individual participants.

- Require institutions in team and individual events to pay the first $500 of travel expenses, with the block grant covering remaining expenses. If funds are not available, the $500 would be increased (e.g., to $750 or $1,000).

- Return any receipts remaining after games expenses to the block grant rather than distributing them in the form of per diem.

- Increase from 250 to 400 the mileage restriction for traveling by air.

- Require institutions participating in both indoor and outdoor track championships to declare, once every

Recruiting cleanup is vital, Byers says

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers described the current climate of intercollegiate athletics to approximately 50 of the nation's top sportswriters attending the 10th annual College Football '86 Preview as "a renaissance of the spirit and will to conduct intercollegiate athletics in an honorable fashion."

Byers' comments and subsequent question-and-answer session with the media capped the February 24-25 preview held at the Westin Crown Center Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri. The media spent the first day of the preview, which is sponsored by the NCAA and designed to generate interest in the coming season and intercollegiate athletics, in three panel discussions with nine top coaches who gave their views about their teams and conferences.

"There's nothing wrong with intercollegiate athletics except the recruiting process," Byers said. "The only weakness we have is in the area of recruiting. The next step is to embrace, at least the concept, and much of the detail as well, the Southwest Athletic Conference proposal and remove outsiders, boosters and nonstaff members from the recruiting process."

"I think the vast majority of coaches would like to take control of their own programs. It is absolutely a fact of life that the NCAA, with its 12 investigators, cannot adequately police college athletics by itself. Unless institutions have the desire and will to enforce the rules at the local level, then that process will sorely need the support of the conference commissioners."

Byers added that intercollegiate athletics owed an enduring debt of gratitude to many alumni and boosters for their support and dedication to making their universities the best they could be, but that the only solution to recruiting violations may be to eliminate institutions' athletics representatives from off-campus recruiting.

Coaches selected for this year's preview included Fisher DeBerry, U.S. Air Force Academy; Earle Bruce, Ohio State University; John Cooper, Arizona State University; Bill Curry, Georgia Institute of Technology; Pat Dye, Auburn University; Dick MacPherson, Syracuse University; Bill McCartney, University of Colorado; Eddie Robinson, Grambling State University, and Grant Teaff, Baylor University.

Western Athletic Conference Commissioner Joseph L. Kearney, chair of the NCAA Public Relations and Promotion Committee, served as moderator for the preview. Charles McClen-don, executive director of the American Football Coaches Association, also attended.

Byers said that despite the skepticism about whether member institutions' presidents and chancellors had the authority and influence to lead college athletics to a higher level, the successful record of the NCAA Presidents Commission is an indication that the upper echelon of higher education is becoming more involved in the policy-making of intercollegiate athletics.

"The record of the Commission is undisputably one of great success," Byers said. "I don't believe you can reflect upon the actions of the June special Convention in New Orleans and not accord them (Commission members) that accolade."

"The contest, as I see it, is essentially whether these presidents and chancellors who hold the stewardship for higher education are going to set the policy for college athletics, or whether

Committee recommends special attention to women's interests

Noting concerns regarding diminishing opportunities for women in intercollegiate athletics coaching and administration, the NCAA Long Range Planning Committee will recommend to the NCAA Council that steps be taken to give special attention to women's interests in athletics.

Specifically, the committee voted in its February 20-21 meeting in Miami, Florida, to recommend that the Council:

- Create and appoint an ongoing NCAA committee to consider women's interests, emphasizing the matter of coaching and administrative opportunities, and
- Reaffirm the NCAA's intent to continue to apply the affirmative-action approach regarding appointments of women to NCAA committees that has been in effect since 1981.

"The Long Range Planning Committee recognizes that the Council discontinued its Special Subcommittee on Women's Interests when the 1981-to-1985 'transition' period ended last year," explained William J. Flynn, former NCAA president who chairs the committee. "But we are suggesting a different type of committee, one including both men and women, because the Association may not have reached the level of equity that it originally was seeking."

In other actions at the February meeting, all of which will be recommended to the Council in the latter's April meeting, the Long Range Planning Committee:

- Recommended that the NCAA Research Committee consider authorizing a study of the reasons that member institutions decide to discontinue sports, as suggested by the Women's Gymnastics Committee.

- Recommended that the NCAA Executive Committee authorize funding for a publication for enrolled student-athletes comparable to the existing "NCAA Guide for the College-Bound Student-Athlete," as recommended in recent meetings by the student-athletes serving on the committee.

- Expressed concern regarding the erosion of the principles of amateurism at the national and international levels in athletics and suggested that the Council officially affirm the Association's traditional amateurism principles.

- Voted to resubmit to the Council an earlier recommendation that an institution be required to specify in writing that at the time of the signing of a national, conference or institutional letter-of-intent, the prospective student-athlete appears to be admissible to the institution. The written statement would have to be in evidence at the time of the signing. The Council did not support that recommendation in its August 1985 meeting.

The committee also conducted its annual review of sports sponsorship and participation trends, noting that between 1983-84 and 1984-85, participation by men in NCAA sponsored sports at member institutions increased by 5.8 percent and participation by women jumped 7.4 percent.

Totals for 1984-85 were 197,446 male participants and 89,062 female participants.

The average NCAA member institution sponsored 16.1 sports for men and women, up from 15.9 a year earlier, despite the fact that sponsor-

The emphasis on winning must be redirected

By Donn C. Renwick

Sports at all levels of competition have been a rich topic for criticism since their inception. On television, in the press, in courtrooms, at the bargaining table and in current literature, there abound statements of weakness, corruption, internal dissension and the dire consequences of sports involvement.

Those who are associated with sports (that's more than half the population) need to step back and honestly ask themselves why all this fuss over games? What are we trying to accomplish? What is the purpose of athletic competition?

Current competitive standards that rule professional, collegiate, interscholastic, youth and recreational sports today are producing athletes, coaches and fans who flout long-held virtues—loyalty, sportsmanship and teamwork—with near impunity. The field of sports now is overrun with neurotic behavior, acts of violence, drug abuse, outright bribery, insensitivity, cruelty, cheating and exploitation. Sports pages, no longer concerned with merely reporting game results, read more like the National Enquirer—fights, strikes, threats, racism, boycotts, lockouts, accusations, sexual preference, abuses, violence, greed. These are not isolated problems. The ailments of the sports world abound; they do not go away because we choose to ignore them.

Our competitive spirit is out of control. We have lost perspective on the purpose of sports. We no longer are teaching ethics, camaraderie and sportsmanship. Coaches and athletes are too intent on becoming winners. Fans only want to be associated with winners.

Anything that helps someone become a winner or builds up the hope of winning has been deemed acceptable. So coaches become involved in recruiting abuses, psychological manipulation of players and role conflict—all of which contradict their basic ethical values and educational training.

The fans berate officials, riot (celebrate) in the name of victory or loss and cheer winning rather than appreciate the skills displayed.

The oft-cited statement "winning is the only thing" now has become paramount. The sports world chooses to ignore that Vince Lombardi only intended to emphasize the importance of having a goal and trying hard to achieve it. He didn't mean for those engaged with sports to "crush human values and morality."

We place coaches, management and players under tremendous pressure to produce and to be winners. An unholy amount of attention from fans, the media, men and women on the street, and critics is directed toward these games designed for children. All participants are judged, criticized and adored by a public whose loyalties are as fragile as the last victory. The pressure to destroy, to defeat and to win at all cost has forced undue strain on those associated with sports. The breaking point has been reached. Their values are put aside. In the name of winning, sports have become a spectacle.

Scandal ensues.

Athletes who are losers want to be winners. Looking for that extra edge, they try drugs to get up for the game, to overcome fear and pain or to become better players.

How do we correct this behavior and return sports to what they were meant to be?

It begins with redefining "success" and "winning." Parents, athletes, coaches and athletics administrators must realize that the road to success or winning is a journey rather than a destination. How we get there is important, because along the way we learn teamwork, loyalty, belief in ideas and integrity. Through sports, we educate young men and women to know and realize their capabilities. We teach them to work cooperatively in striving for obtainable goals that are important only for an instant. We should cheer success, praise effort and revel in the enjoyment these games provide.

More importantly, if we are to return competition through sports to its original intent, we should reemphasize that the integrity of individuals, institutions and ideas is paramount. It is up to each of us to protect the other's integrity. We no longer can condone those who use sports and give nothing back.

For coaches, we must curtail the amount of public pressure, insist upon their maintaining the rules, separate the positions of coach and athletics administrator, and punish rule offenders.

Athletes must learn that the purpose of games is to gain an understanding of themselves, their teammates and their opponents. They must know that effort, sportsmanship and loyalty are more important than a victory. They must be academically prepared to be students.

We are at a crossroads in the direction sports will take. Sportsmanship and the ideas the term represent cannot be compromised further. The issue of order, the spirit of the game and the integrity of each of us is at stake.

"The largest majority of officials are not predictable, and that's the way it should be, I think. I feel the players, to a large extent, should decide how tough or how easy the referee is.

"I dislike the referee who takes the emotion and "I think freshmen should be ineligible to play, and then have four years of eligibility. And if we don't graduate them in that time, then we lose a scholarship.

"It would give freshmen a chance to get academically and socially oriented. It's a big jump from high school to college. There's a lot of pressure.

"Putting a gap in there between when they get out of high school and when they play would help. It would take some of the pressure off to have them drop out of sight for a while.

"They'll never do it, because freshmen are tremendously important to too many programs."

"The momentum (to improve the educational system and the requirements for student-athletes) has begun with the various propositions. University presidents cannot be soft now. They have to keep pushing.

"I'm really shocked at the mentality of some coaches today. Would they take such an inactive role if it was their own son?"

Troy LaMar, varsity basketball player

"I've come up short (on money) every year. As a freshman, I was on an academic scholarship, then I had an athletics scholarship for two years; and now, I'm back on the academic—and I still can't make it, car or no car.

"And I'm a frugal person. You don't starve as a scholarship athlete. You just don't live normally. How do you buy a new pair of jeans?

"I often pack my lunch—a peanut butter and jelly sandwich; and at noon, I have it with a glass of water. My apartment is the cheapest the university rents out. The $5 that I budget monthly for clothes never seems to be there; but with loans and savings, I get by.

"Financially, you can't make it on either one (athletics or academic scholarship). But there's less pressure on a guy with an athletics scholarship. You don't have to worry about books . . . and you don't have to stand in line to register (for classes). Things like that. The whole deal of going to school is simpler when you have an athletics scholarship."

Joe Brockhoff, baseball coach
Tulane University

The Associated Press

"There's no friction between professional baseball and college baseball. I think we have a good working relationship. But I think it's obvious that college baseball would be better—as far as the quality of players—if we were able to retain our players for the whole four years, the same as football.

"Also, it would help ensure that players would have a chance to complete school. If he (the player) gets out needing just a few hours to get his degree, he's more likely to come back and finish it than he would be if he needed a whole year."

SAT cutoff should be more flexible

To the Editor:

Consider the following scenarios:

1. The average SAT score for admitted freshmen at University A is 1,050. Clearly, any student (athlete or nonathlete, white or black) with an SAT total of 700 or less would be admitted to University A at great academic risk. Under these circumstances, it seems to me, Bylaw 5-1-(j) makes a great deal of sense.

2. The average SAT score for admitted freshmen at University B is 750. The application of Bylaw 5-1-(j) under these circumstances makes little or no sense. Indeed, it would be patently unfair to consider a student-athlete with an SAT score of 700 to be significantly at risk, academically, at University B.

Why not have a sliding freshman athletics eligibility SAT cutoff keyed to the average SAT score of admitted freshmen at each institution? Further research would be needed to determine the appropriate differential. Undoubtedly, that finally chosen would produce some complaints.

However, I submit that they would pale in comparison to the howls of protest (justifiable, in the context cited) that have been generated by Bylaw 5-1-(j) as it is constituted.

Responsibility is ours, not theirs

To the Editor:

I am pleased at our membership's recent attentiveness to "affairs of the academic." However, it seems that we as an association may be working from the outside in, when we could approach the solution from the other direction more effectively.

We now are requiring a higher level of academic preparation in high school for initial college athletics participation. Thus, the changes we have asked for to date are an outside agency's responsibility, namely the high schools. I have not seen legislation proposed that places academic responsibility squarely on our shoulders by restricting the amount of time a college program can require from a student-athlete once enrolled and on campus.

If a student who is an athlete must participate six to 10 hours each day in taping, practice, conditioning, team meetings, individual workouts, pregame meals, postgame meals, individual meetings, training table, study hall, etc., are we providing realistic opportunities for success in the classroom? I think not.

I don't see this getting any better unless we do something. It seems that athletics programs today, particularly at the Division I level, are intensifying the time requirement under the guise of "winning." Have we lost sight of our reasons for being and think that our product now is the winning instead of the people?

I can just hear some of you now—"She sure isn't talking about our program," or "What is she talking about? Any school can place time limits on its programs if it wants to—that is a choice." Or perhaps, "Nobody, not even the NCAA, is going to tell me what I can do in my program." Those responses illustrate the problem. We are not accepting our own responsibilities.

Let's face facts. The NCAA legislates in a lot of areas that affect our individual institution's athletics operation—from the number of scholarships we can offer, to the number of coaches we can hire, to the entire recruitment process.

The maximum daily athletics-time requirement also could be a commonly legislated area for all members . . . and perhaps it must be if we are to "clean up our act." Is it not time that we reexamine and then legislate rather than place our academic responsibility on someone else? We must work from the inside . . . or expect that our academic credibility will continue to be a national embarrassment.

To get better, play better teams

Top teams invariably have toughest schedules

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

One fact never changes, it seems, in college basketball: A team only becomes strong enough to beat the better teams by playing more games against the better teams. The computer ratings for the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee show every year that the strongest teams have played the tougher schedules.

This season, for instance, of the 50 teams that had faced the toughest schedules through games of February 8, only 13 had losing records. At exactly the same stage of the 1985 season, exactly the same number—13 of the top 50 were losers.

Among the 50 teams on the 1986 toughest-schedule list at that stage were North Carolina, Duke, Kansas, Memphis State, Georgia Tech, Nevada-Las Vegas, St. John's (New York), Oklahoma, Georgetown, Michigan, Syracuse, Louisville, Virginia Tech and North Carolina State.

If that group looks slightly familiar, it should, because all 14 of those teams are top-20 wire-service teams, or were at that stage.

Five more teams on the top-50 toughest-schedule list had won more

Maryland, Louisville on top

A year ago at this stage, Maryland had played the toughest all-games schedule and Louisville the toughest nonconference schedule. The same two teams lead in 1986:

All Games	Nonconference

centages of all your Division I opponents.

A good example is the North Carolina State nonconference schedule. The Wolfpack had played four top-20 teams outside the Atlantic Coast Conference through February 8—Kansas, Nevada-Las Vegas, Kentucky and Louisville. But it had played seven other outside foes with a combined record of 43-81 vs. Division I teams, so its nonconference schedule ranked 95th nationally at that stage.

Six dominate

The same six conferences that led the nation for the first six seasons of the 1980s are doing it again in 1986, and it is uncanny how nearly identical the figures are. As a group, they had won 418, lost 143 for a .745 winning percentage vs. Division I teams outside the conference through February 8. In the first six years of the 1980s (December 18 notes), the same group averaged 423 victories, 145 losses for a .745 percentage.

Only individual conference figures vary—as a group it stays the same. This time, it is the Atlantic Coast .832 (84-17), Big East Conference .768 (73-22), Big Ten Conference .753 (70-23), Big Eight Conference .745 (70-24), Southeastern Conference .694 and Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference .667.

Going into this season, it was the ACC .799, Big East .727, Big Ten .709, SEC .683, Big Eight .632 and Metro .606 for the first six years of the 1980s.

It is not entirely the same song, seventh verse, however, because the top six all are playing nonconference schedules ranked 10th or better (while a year ago, the ACC nonconference schedule ranked 12th and the Big East 21st; that proved no handicap in the NCAA tournament, as they dominated).

Four of the six are ranked higher than their schedule. The exceptions are the Metro, playing the No. 1 nonconference schedule, and the Big Eight, fourth and playing the fourth-ranked schedule.

As an example of the domination of the top six, every one of the top 20 teams on the toughest all-games schedule list came from the top six conferences; and only 13 of the 32 conferences made the list, with the top six holding 39 of the 50 spots.

By contrast, the top six had only 15 spots on the nonconference list, and 22 conferences made the list. The Pacific Coast Athletic Association had six teams playing nonconference schedules ranked in the top 50 to lead the way, while the Metro, Atlantic 10 and Mid-American Conference had four each and the SEC and Pacific-10 Conference three each. Here are all 32 by percentage with the nonconference schedule ranking of each:

Basketball notes

than 70 percent of their games through February 8 but did not make the wire-service top 20—St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania), the Atlantic 10 Conference champion; Purdue; New Mexico State; Virginia, and Alabama-Birmingham.

Seven more teams on that list had won between 65 and 69.9 percent at that point but had not made the polls—Pittsburgh, Illinois, DePaul, Iowa State, Minnesota, Missouri and Iowa (this is through February 8—some are now below 65).

Three wire-service top-20 teams had played schedules just below 50th place—Kentucky, Notre Dame and Indiana, but four more were not close—Bradley, UTEP, Western Kentucky and Alabama. UTEP, however, had played a top-50 nonconference schedule but was dragged down the all-games list because its Western Athletic Conference was 44-50 vs. outside Division I opponents.

Only a handful

The committee also takes a close look at how many games a team played against top-50 opponents and where those games were played. By top-50, we mean teams ranked in the top 50 in the Rating Percentage Index power rankings, not teams playing schedules in the top 50.

In this connection, only a handful of teams had winning records against top-50 ranked teams on foreign and neutral courts combined. They were North Carolina 5-1, Duke 6-2, Michigan 6-3, Kansas 5-3, St. John's 4-1, St. Joseph's 4-1 and Georgia Tech 3-2. Looking even closer, Michigan was 4-3 on the road and 2-0 on neutral courts, Duke 4-2 on the road and 2-0 neutral. North Carolina's record included 3-0 on neutral courts, Kansas' included 3-1 neutral and St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) included 4-0 neutral [even so, it seems that St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) with its 22-5 record, should be a top-20 team].

Kentucky was 7-3 vs. top-50 ranked teams but 1-3 on the road, while Georgetown was 6-3 and 2-3 on the road. Illinois had played the most games vs. top-50 ranked teams at 13, but was 1-4 on the road and 1-1 on neutral courts (and 6-7 overall).

Only six teams had won eight times in all games vs. top-50 ranked teams, home, road and neutral—North Carolina 9-1, Duke 9-2, Michigan 9-3, St. John's 8-2, Kansas 8-3 and Georgia Tech 8-3.

* Tied for that position. # Only independent on list.

An analysis of the lists will show that only three teams played schedules ranked in the top 10, both all games and nonconference—Louisville, Cincinnati and Kansas. Also, 26 teams made both top 50s. And that means 24 teams made the all-games top 50 because they are in a conference with a winning record vs. outside Division I teams; and because at that stage, teams had played more conference games than nonconference.

A word of caution about the nonconference schedule rankings—only games vs. Division I opponents are included. Thus, a team might have played four games against teams below Division I (the maximum allowed); but these are not considered by the computer, except for a small penalty for each non-Division I team played.

This means a wide disparity in the number of nonconference games played. For instance, Louisville had played 16 Division I nonconference foes (winning 11) through February 8, Kansas also 16 (winning 14), but New Mexico State had played only five and St. Bonaventure six (and they ranked second and third on the list).

A definition needed

One problem in ranking schedules is how you define it. Many believe that if you have played four to six top teams, then you have played a tough nonconference schedule. Maybe that is as good a definition as any, but that is not how the computer program does it. It averages the winning per-

Ron Harper, Miami (Ohio) senior, ranks among the Division I leaders in scoring, rebounding and steals

It is worth noting that the Atlantic 10's schedule ranks second, the Pacific-10's third, the Mid-American's sixth and the PCAA's seventh, but except for the PCAA, eighth in winning percentage, where the lowest of the group was the MAC at 19th. Similarly, the Midwestern Collegiate Conference outside schedule ranked 13th, but its winning percentage was only 26th.

SEC, Texas lead women

Not surprisingly, Southeastern Conference women's teams had the best record against nonconference opposition through February 8, while top-ranked Texas leads the teams. The SEC, however, is no better than 12th on the toughest-schedule list compared to No. 1 at the end of last season. Once again, the Atlantic Coast Conference is second and the Atlantic 10 Conference third, but the Big Eight Conference jumped from 12th to fourth and the Big East Conference from 20th to eighth. Defending champion Blue Jays look solid again

Who do you think will play Johns Hopkins for the Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship this season?

Fact is, the Blue Jays have been to the title game nine straight times and return a very solid team. Issues like long-stick limits and the loss of several fine goalies to graduation notwithstanding, attempting to find a championship opponent for Johns Hopkins may be the best way to preview the 1986 regular season.

About the Blue Jays: Coach Don Zimmerman begins his third season with a combined record of 27-1. He must replace Larry Quinn, arguably the best goalie in the game last season, but the rest of the defense and the attack return intact.

Senior Del Dressel was named Division I midfielder of the year for 1985, and teammate John DeTomasso was named Division I defenseman of the year. Appropriately, the two will serve as cocaptains for the 1986 Johns Hopkins team.

All-America selections Craig Bubier and Brian Wood return for their junior seasons on attack and probably will emerge as one of the best one-two scoring combinations in the division this season.

Zimmerman's biggest question mark is in the midfield, where heavy graduation losses were incurred. Rebuilding that portion of the team and developing a replacement for Quinn are top priorities. They also are similar to other difficulties that Johns Hopkins has conquered in a decade of consistent success.

Here is a look at some of the other top Division I teams:

Adelphi—Rebuilding the defense is a major concern for coach Paul Doherty, who lost standout goalie Brian McQuillan. Look for junior Jim Rinere to key the stoppers, while Doherty works with a newcomer in the nets.

Offensively, five the team's top six scorers from 1985 are back. Sophomore Sean Keenan led the way with 22 goals and 10 assists. Joining him in the assault on opponents' goals will be senior Frank Tashman (21 and 17), junior Todd Lawson (19 and three) and senior Bob Quin (10 and three).

Should Doherty find a consistent goalie early, Adelphi could go a long way toward improving on 1985's 8-3 record, which included a first-round play-off loss to Johns Hopkins.

Army—Although the Cadets are known for the fine defensive play fostered by coach Jack Emmer, this team can score. With leading scorers Bob Bethley (31 and 14) and Doug Shaver (28 and eight) back, offense should not be a problem for Army this season.

Other top returnees include midfielders Pat Daly, Bill Schiffer and Don Tillar and defender Dan Williams. Like many other top Division I programs, the Cadets lost a super goalie when Rob Koehler graduated. A steady replacement could key a great year.

Emmer-coached teams always seem to play great defense, and this club should enjoy good offensive output. Look for Army to mount an assault of major proportions this season.

Long Island-C. W. Post—New Pioneer head coach Tom Postel inherits a solid group of veterans from a 1985 team that finished 10-3, was ranked as high as No. 5 during the regular season and advanced to the NCAA play-offs.

John McDonald could emerge as one of the top returning goalies in the nation, and he should have a good defense in front of him. Leadership will come from seniors Thom Germano, Joe Woska, Tony Romano and Jim Bovich and sophomore Tim McIntee. Junior John Campbell (20 and 21) will anchor the offense.

Late-season home dates against Penn State and Army could determine the Pioneers' fate in terms of postseason action.

North Carolina—Tar Heel fans have seen coach Willie Scroggs take six consecutive North Carolina teams to the Division I final four, but the 1982 team was the last to win a semifinal game and play for the championship. Scroggs' 1986 squad could be the next.

Like just about all the other contenders, North Carolina lost a top-notch goalie in Tim Mealey. Look for sophomore Barney Aburn or freshman Pat Olmert to take over in the nets. Also lost to graduation were all-Americans Mac Ford on attack and Steve Martel in the midfield.

Juniors Boyd Harden, Tom Haus and Chris Walker make for a formidable close defense, and Gary Seivold (22 and 16), his brother Joey (24 and 12) and Pat Welsh (18 and 21) will supply scoring punch.

Season-opening confrontations with Pennsylvania and Syracuse should tell Scroggs and the rest of Division I if the Tar Heels have the potential to go all the way.

Pennsylvania—Another play-off-caliber team without a starting goalie. Jim DellaRocca was a three-year starter, and finding his replacement is a top priority for coach Tony Season, who guided the Quakers to a 10-4 record last season.

Experienced personnel highlight the rest of the team. Seniors Bill Schreiner (25 and 22) and Ron Smolokoff (37 and 32), juniors John Shoemaker (24 and four) and Stephen Durante (10 and five), and sophomore Chris Flynn (seven and seven) are the top returnees.

Look for Penn to mount an all-out attack on the Ivy League title, which the Quakers won in 1983 and 1984.

Syracuse—Syracuse and Johns Hopkins have played for the Division I championship every year since 1983, when the two squared off in what some consider the greatest college lacrosse game ever played. A fourth straight rematch could occur this season.

The Orangemen lost Tim Nelson and Brad Kotz, a pair of three-time all-America selections, but coach Roy Simmons Jr. has plenty of talent returning.

Seniors Kevin Sheehan, Jeff Desko and Tom Korrie and juniors Todd Curry, Tom Nelson and Gordie Mapes give Syracuse depth and experience, and the team should be strong again.

It will have to be. The opening week of the season finds Syracuse at Johns Hopkins and North Carolina and returning home to host Army. If three games can make or break a season, those three certainly will do one or the other for the 1986 Orangemen.

Virginia—Coach Jim Adams is one of the few coaches of top-10 teams last season to have his goalie back (junior Peter Sheehan). The Cavaliers also return enough talent to be considered a major threat in Division I this season.

A group of 23 returning lettermen includes seniors Roddy Marino (26 and 20) and Jeff Nicklas (28 and 10), Rich Reda (20 and five), Chris Walker, and Todd Esposito (22 and 11).

Virginia's offense should be productive, the defense should be improved and Adams has the luxury of a returning goalie. A March 29 visit to Charlottesville by Johns Hopkins

New Hampshire trying to regroup for another run at title

International competition may end up costing New Hampshire a chance to repeat as Division I national champion in women's lacrosse this season.

Head coach Marisa Didio, who took the Wildcats to the 1985 title with an 11-3 record, now is an assistant coach with the United States national team. Center Sandy VanderHeyden also has "defected," and the graduation of all-America goalie Robin Balducci has complicated things.

Interim coach Marjorie Anderson has her work cut out for her, but New Hampshire's returning talent should make the team at least a contender for national honors. The Wildcats still should be prowling near the top of the division in 1986.

Junior forward Karen Geromini led the team in scoring a year ago with 40 goals and 17 assists. Senior forward Suzie Haynes added 24 goals and nine assists, and junior Ann Sherer chipped in 18 goals and five assists. Consequently, much of the team's offensive power is back.

Senior defenders Mary Rogers and Heather Reynolds will have to anchor the stopper squad while Anderson searches for a new goalie. The team will get early challenges from Boston University, Maryland and Temple, so women's lacrosse followers soon will be able to judge New Hampshire's chances for a return trip to the Division I finals.

Here is a look at other teams expected to be contenders for national honors:

Maryland—After dropping the season opener to Temple, the Terrapins piled up 15 straight victories before dropping the Division I championship to New Hampshire.

Head coach Suzanne Tyler lost some good players to graduation, but a strong nucleus of talent returns.

Heading the list is senior defender Tracy Stumpf, who has been a standout throughout her career. Juniors Anyisia Fedec (39 goals and 23 assists last season) and Amy Patton (11 and one) will have to lead a rebuilding offense during the early part of the campaign.

Sophomore goalie Kim Chorosiewski saw action in 10 games last season and stopped 34 shots. She should be stable and, combined with Maryland's returning defensive talent, present a formidable challenge to opponents.

Delaware, Temple, Towson State and Virginia provide the opposition for the Terps' first four games, so this team, like New Hampshire, will learn a lot about itself early.

Temple—While this team certainly cannot be classed as a "sleeper," the Owls still may be surprisingly talented this season. After recording the longest winning streak in NCAA women's lacrosse history (17 games), coach Tina Sloan Green welcomes back her entire defensive unit.

At the same time, the trio of Kathleen Barrett (34 and 19), Gail Cummings (40 and eight) and Kim Lambdin (33 and two) will provide a large measure of Temple's offense this season. Monica Mills and Sue Yeager both graduated as all-America players, but the returning group and Sloan's newcomers should make for a tough team.

Look for Temple to be near the top of the national rankings all season, and these Owls could be flying high at play-off time.

Penn State—Susan Scheetz takes over as head coach. Gillian Rattray led the Nittany Lions to the Division I final four last season, and she left Scheetz a group of returning players that should keep Penn State near the top.

The school's all-time scoring leader, Marsha Florio, has graduated, but Scheetz recruited scholastic all-America Tami Worley to help fill the gap.

While Worley is learning the Penn State system, look for senior Maggy Dunphy (52 and 22), senior Beth Thompson (28 and 27) and sophomore Ann Marie Vesco (12 and five) to power the Nittany Lion offense.

Sophomore Cheri McMonagle had

56 saves, with a 6.7 goals-against average, as a newcomer last season. She will get tested early as the Nittany Lions must face good clubs from Virginia and Temple.

Delaware—Coach Janet Smith

Hobart expected to continue as dominant Division III team

Hobart's Statesmen have been more dominating than diplomatic in Division III men's lacrosse in seasons past. Losing a few battles along the way, coach Dave Urick has managed to win the war (capture the NCAA championship) six consecutive times, and his troops must be considered among the favorites as the 1986 regular season gets under way.

Hobart's offense has been a strong point, most recently due to the prowess of Tom Grimaldi and Marc Van Arsdale. With that pair lost to graduation, rebuilding the Statesmen's scoring arsenal is a prime concern to Urick, who can tie John Wooden's NCAA record for most consecutive team championships (seven) with a march to the title this spring.

Chuck Warren returns in goal and is one of the few top shot-stoppers back in Division III. The diminutive senior replaced "all-everything" Guy Van Arsdale two years ago and has frustrated Hobart opponents since. Named all-America last season, Warren had a .606 saves percentage and an 8.8 goals-against average.

Hobart's midfield returns intact, with stalwart all-America Bill Bergan. Junior Devin Arkison will anchor the defense. In Tom Rosa, Urick again will have one of the best face-off men in the game.

Junior Ray Gilliam (23 goals and 20 assists last season) is the top returning attacker. He probably will get some help early from middle Mark Moore (senior, 30 and three) and Bergan (16 and 17, team offensive MVP last season). If Urick can come up with solid replacements for Grimaldi, Van Arsdale and all-America defenseman Dan Whelan, Hobart's reign at the top of the division should continue.

Following is a look at other contenders for national honors this season:

Cortland State—Although the Dragons lost two all-America players (Mike Perkins and Rick Young) to graduation, coach Jerry Casciani is expecting a stronger club than 1985's 10-5 play-off quarterfinalist. Experience and more depth than any Cortland State team in recent memory are the reasons for his optimism.

Seniors Dave Cook (nine and six), John McNerny (22 and 33) and Andy Lux will lead the team. Cook earned first-team all-America recognition last season, while McNerny (the top returning scorer) and Lux were named to the State University of New York Athletic Conference's first team. Junior goalie Bryan Nehring set the school's single-season record for saves (213) a year ago and will be an asset on defense.

Four straight road dates with Division I opponents (Army, Cornell,

Tom Rose, Hobart, in action against RIT

Princeton and Syracuse) to open the season will give the Dragons and their fans a good indication of the team's strengths and weaknesses in preparation for a tough SUNYAC schedule.

Denison—Three returning all-America selections, led by team captain Dave Breschi, give Denison head coach Tommy Thomsen reason for optimism. The Big Red advanced to the Division III play-off semifinals a year ago and seems to have the talent to retain a spot among the division's elite.

Breschi returns to lead a defensive unit that limited 1985 opponents to seven goals for the season. Returning all-America midfielder Jay Dugan (27 and 14) and all-America goalie Bill Hall (214 saves) will join Breschi to form a tough, aggressive defense.

Senior Steve Casselli (37 and 34) will anchor the attack with juniors Doug Bradley and Tim Wall and sophomore Judd Donnelly. Division I contender Penn State and 1985 Division III championship finalist Washington (Maryland) highlight Denison's early season schedule.

Ohio Wesleyan—Six of the Battling Bishops' top seven attackers return from a 1985 team that finished 17-2 and made the school's ninth appearance in the NCAA tournament in the last 11 years.

Sophomore Rob Alvino (44 and 38) and junior Mike James (38 and 29) will provide much of the scoring punch, while coach Mike Pressler works on developing depth in the midfield, which could be the squad's biggest question mark.

Pressler has a pair of very capable goalies in junior Dan O'Neil and senior Bob McDonald. If junior Craig Hall can lead the midfield while Pressler develops some youthful players and if the defense rallies behind senior Tim Hoffman, Ohio Wesleyan could power its way into the Division III championship picture again.

Roanoke—Though not really a sleeper, Roanoke certainly could be a surprise in 1986. Coach John Pirro must find a replacement for all-America goalie Bill Pilat, but the Maroons are solid everywhere else.

Senior Steve Bornick and junior Charlie Walker key the defense, all-conference selection Jim Guthrie will lead the midfield, and senior Dan Ahrensbrak and juniors Nelson Davis and Chris Richardson will provide offense on attack.

Pirro took Roanoke to the 1983 Division III championship game, and his 1986 Maroon club appears to have the potential for a return to the final four.

Rochester Institute of Technology—Coach Bill Glennon used his first season with the Tigers to propel the team to a 14-2 record and the Division III semifinals, where it lost to Hobart, 16-8.

All-America players Bruce Remus, Tom Sill and Shawn McAvoy have graduated, but RIT has a strong and fairly deep group of veterans returning.

Look for offense from seniors Bill Bjorness and John Harrington and junior Ted Diehl. Senior Ed Purcell is the defensive stalwart, and junior Tim Turner and senior Chuck Cincbox provide defensive strength.

Glennon has some holes to fill, but RIT seems to have the players it needs for another successful season.

Springfield—Another play-off team last season, the Chiefs have a solid group of returning players.

Coach Keith Bugbee has produced a 20-9 record in two seasons, and he appears to have the talent to continue those winning ways.

Senior Jack Piatelli (32 and 29) has led Springfield in scoring for two seasons and needs just 23 goals to set a new school career record. Other returning veterans include seniors Pat Shortt and Wayne Gioffre and juniors Geoff Edmonds and Bill Wood.

Washington (Maryland)—Hobart graduate and Sho'men head coach Terry Corcoran lost six veterans, but a pool of 22 returning players and some good newcomers should make this team Hobart's chief competition again in 1986.

Possibly the biggest loss was two-time defenseman of the year Steve Beville, whose aggressive play will be missed. Senior Larry Boehm returns in goal and will have to play well, especially early, for Washington to stay among the division's top teams.

Three of the division's best attackmen return in seniors John Nostrant (24 and eight), Bruce Yancey (27 and 18) and Tom Gaines (22 and six). Senior midfielders Mike Papa (21 and 10) and Rick Cote (seven and nine) also should be important.

Freshman defender Mike Greig could help out immediately, and with a schedule that includes Division I champion Johns Hopkins and a road date with Hobart, the depth and talent of newcomers could play a big role in determining the fortunes of the 1986 Sho'men.

Division III notes

Defense will be the strength at Middlebury, where coach Jim Grube is preparing his team to defend its ECAC New England championship... Westfield State coach Russ Mooney has 17 players back from last year's 10-3 squad... New Salisbury State coach Joe Rotellini is set to return the team to NCAA play-off action after a year's absence.

Another top-15 national ranking is possible at Franklin and Marshall, where only four players graduated... New Swarthmore coach Fran Meagher inherits a team that has won 42 of 53 games in the last four years... First-year Alfred coach Larry Hall will have a quick offense and experienced midfield this season... Rob Pfeiffer is the new coach at Colby, which finished 8-3 last season.

New Stony Brook head coach Bruce Casagrande is preparing his team to defend its 1985 ECAC Metro championship... Mount St. Mary's could break the top 10 this season, but inexperience may hinder the effort... First-year New Hampshire coach Tim Crutchfield must rebuild a team that lost several top players to graduation... Bryan Savage is the new coach at Long Island-Southampton.

New York Maritime is set to defend its 1985 Knickerbocker Conference title... Jim Tressler has taken over as head coach at Ashland... New Potsdam State coach Mike Branski will be out to improve a 1985 record of 9-5 that was the team's best ever... Drew coach Dick Szlasa has his team ready to go after another bid to the ECAC tournament, but a tougher schedule could pose problems.

Trenton State to defend women's crown with veteran team

Trenton State should continue its domination of Division III women's "stick sports" in 1986.

The Lady Lions took the first-ever Division III lacrosse title with a 7-4 decision over Ursinus last May. Shortly thereafter, coach Melissa Magee left for Division I Old Dominion, and Trenton State alumnus Sharon Goldbrenner took over with remarkable ease. Her first stick-wielding squad captured the 1985 Division III field hockey championship last fall.

Many of the players who helped produce the first victory in the Lady Lions' 1985 sweep are back this spring. Leading the attack will be seniors Chris Heddy and Tricia Randall, two of the three outstanding players in last year's lacrosse championship. All-America goalkeeper Lori Jordan, named most outstanding defensive player in the title game, has graduated; finding her replacement may be Goldbrenner's toughest challenge.

Heddy and Randall are listed as attackers, although Randall earned her 1985 championship award for midfield play. This prolific pair accounted for 69 goals and 15 assists last season, when Trenton State averaged more than 10 goals per game.

Junior Peggy Englebert chipped in 11 goals and two assists, and senior defender Charlotte Clarke earned all-America recognition. Also expected to contribute are junior Laura Groppo and senior Sue Stevens; both attackers, they added a total of eight goals and five assists to the Trenton offense last season.

Heddy joins probable starters Margie Flynn and Penny Kempf as regulars who earned championship rings in lacrosse and field hockey a year ago. Their experience and Trenton State's returning firepower make the Lady Lions one of the division's strongest teams.

Following is a look at other potential Division III powerhouses:

Ursinus—Nine of the dozen starters for the 1985 Bears are back, and they certainly could be motivated by a chance to knock Trenton State off the division's throne.

Ursinus was ranked No. 1 in the Division III poll throughout the regular season last year. Coach Betsy Meng Ramsey certainly has some firepower back.

Seniors Devin Murphy and Kelee Whiteley earned first-team all-America honors last season on the basis of outstanding offensive performances. Murphy tallied 57 goals (third highest regular-season total in school history) and 34 assists, and Whiteley chipped in 39 goals and 21 assists.

Also returning for the Bears is junior Beth Bingaman, whose 40 goals and 21 assists helped her earn honorable mention all-America acclaim.

Although Ursinus finished 12-7 overall a year ago, the Bears were 7-1 against Division III teams and must be considered a threat to unseat Trenton State.

Drew—Eight starters return for the defending Middle Atlantic Conference champion, including three-time all-America selection Colleen Hewlett. Coach Maureen Horan must replace Judy Cavalli, the school's all-time leading scorer, but Hewlett and company may be able to make up for the lost offense.

Senior Liz St. John will anchor the defense as goalkeeper, and classmate Robin Aberbach also should provide defensive leadership. Junior Jody Evans and sophomores Sally Gormley, Bonnie Ethridge and Laura McKay are the other key returnees.

Drew marched through the regular season undefeated last year, and a repeat performance will require rapid development of an offense without Cavalli's punch. Should Horan and the Rangers come together quickly, another trip to the Division III play-offs is likely.

Cortland State—The Red Dragons have some holes to fill, but the speed that has characterized coach Pat Rudy's teams should be present again. The biggest losses were Patty Swenk, a two-time all-America selection; attacker Chris Garrett, another all-America honoree, and goalie Lisa Christiansen, who was one of the division's best shot-stoppers.

Rudy has a good nucleus of seniors, and their experience should help ease the transition for players expected to replace the lost starters. Good production on offense returns too, and that could make a difference.

Junior Carol Ranson set the school's single-season scoring record in 1985 with 57 goals and 23 assists. Joining her in the scoring effort will be Karen Leitner, a senior who was injured last season. Leitner scored 36 goals and dished out nine assists in 1984.

Seniors Kathy Brown and Carol Pouliot will anchor the Red Dragon defense. Brown's efforts were rewarded with all-state recognition last season.

If Rudy can find adequate replacements for the regulars who graduated, and if the returning veterans can hold things together early while the newcomers get comfortable, Cortland State once again will be in the hunt for a play-off spot.

Lynchburg—The Lady Hornets are out for a fourth consecutive Old Dominion Athletic Conference title, and they seem to have the talent to take league honors again.

for coach Enza Inturrisi, who also seems to have recruited well. A nice mix of seniors and undergraduates is preparing for a schedule that includes a road date with defending champion Trenton State and a home clash with Division I Duke.

Senior Alicia Galione is the top returning scorer, having tallied 44 goals with 11 assists last season. That performance earned Galione all-South honors. Three other 20-plus goal scorers also return, including senior Kappie Fraher (20, eight assists), junior Alison Daly (28, five) and sophomore Alice McDaniel (25, nine). Junior Martha Reese chipped in 13 goals and seven assists last season and could pick up her scoring pace this season.

However, the biggest plus for the Lady Hornets may be the return of senior goalie Annie Overton, who earned all-America honors last season and certainly is one of the top returning goalkeepers in the division. Overton stopped 288 shots in 20 games a year ago.

Lynchburg seems to have the experience, depth and coaching necessary to improve on last year's advance to the NCAA quarterfinals.

Wheaton (Massachusetts)—Coach John Hill has "a few holes to fill," but Wheaton should be one of New England's strongest teams this season. A quartet of veteran seniors will play important roles in the team's chances for success.

Therese Ross piled up 67 goals and 12 assists last season to earn first-team all-America honors. Janet Kelly had a nifty 6.24 goals-against average in the Wheaton net last season, and Judy Lindsey returns as the general of the club's defense. Alexandra Watkins rounds out the group that Hill will count on for leadership.

A season-opening date with a strong Tufts team will tell Hill a lot about his team's strengths and weaknesses.

Tufts—Although undefeated in the regular season a year ago, the Jumbos have a new coach in Carol Rappoli and some big gaps on defense.

Rappoli must find replacements for all-America stoppers Anne Foulkes and Heather Morris, who graduated. Sophomore Audrey Green stopped 122 shots and fashioned a 6.6 goals-against average last season as a newcomer, and she may have to handle a little more pressure this season while a rebuilt defense settles down.

Offensively, Rappoli has plenty to work with. Junior Cecelia Wilson led the team with 37 goals and 26 assists, and she will be joined by senior Allison Nassau (30, 17), senior Nancy Green (18, 15), senior Lisa Stern (21, 6) and junior Caroline Vosburgh (15, 7).

Division III notes

Gettysburg also is a threat to make waves this season. The trio of Amanda Corroon, Mary Pannettieri and Pam Williams could provide enough offense to propel the Bullets into Middle Atlantic Conference contention.

Ithaca could make some noise in New York. The Bombers will rely on the scoring of senior Rosemary Fitzgerald as they seek a fifth postseason tournament appearance (they have made two appearances each in United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association and Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women tournaments).

Trinity (Connecticut) will shoot for a fourth straight Northeast Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title after outscoring 1985 opponents 204-75. Their chief competition may come from Connecticut College, where coach Peel Hawthorn has compiled a 26-9 record in three seasons... Rochester senior Connie Tritsch already holds school records in goals (51) and points (64).

Slippery Rock sophomore Regina Infinito earned all-conference honors as a newcomer last year and will lead a team loaded with depth and experience... Margaret Tomlinson is the new coach at Wittenberg, and she will have to replace graduates Diane Mitchell and Carol Chan... Senior Madelyn Betzig and junior Sue Murray each scored 63 goals for Oneonta State last season, and coach Brenda Meese will count on their offense to improve on 1985's 6-5 record.

West Chester will gun for a fourth consecutive Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference championship... Five of six top scorers return at William Smith, where the team is set to defend its ECAC Mid-Atlantic championship... East Stroudsburg senior Ann Clifton already owns the school record with 87 goals and will be out to improve on last year's total of 49... St. Michael's goalie Lisa Kendall has compiled a 3.900 (4,000 scale) grade-point average in English. She also stopped 122 opponent shots last season... The tough-schedule award may go to Glassboro State. The Profs play defending Division III champion Trenton State twice, along with Ursinus, Drew, Cortland State and Gettysburg.

New Hampshire

and her Blue Hens last year suffered through the school's first season with fewer than 10 victories since 1980. Look for that downward trend to stop abruptly this season.

Senior Anne Wilkinson, also a field hockey all-America, has amassed 113 career goals and should add to that total significantly in 1986. Juniors Jennifer Coyne and Joanne Ambrogi also will supply offensive power. Beth Manley will lead the defense, but Smith must find a replacement for Missy Meharg, one of the NCAA's best-ever field hockey and lacrosse players, who graduated.

By April 19, the Blue Hens will have played Temple, Penn State, Maryland and Division III power Ursinus, so Smith and company have a tough schedule ahead. On paper, at least, they look ready to accept the challenge.

Massachusetts—Coach Pam Hixson will field a relatively young team but one capable of national recognition by the end of the season.

Top returning players include senior Bunnie Forbes (21 and 15), senior defender Chris Kocoty and sophomore Virginia Armstrong. Newcomers include transfers Lisa Griswold and Pam Stone and freshmen Cathy Fuhrman and Lynn Hartmann.

Northwestern—Ten starters return from a 1985 team that defeated national semifinalist Penn State on the road. Coach Cindy Timchal will count on offensive leadership from Kate Oleykowski (48 and nine) and Wendi Kemp (nine and five).

Six of the top seven scorers from a year ago and the team's top two goalies are back, so the Wildcats should be ready for another top-10 season and the possibility of play-off action in May.

Virginia—The Cavaliers' key loss from 1985 was goalie Sallie Cecil. Finding a replacement is a top priority for coach Jane Miller.

The offense and defense should be solid, with the bulk of the scoring expected to come from senior Lindsay Sheehan (40 and 40) and junior Dawn Wisniewski (34 and five). Junior Elaine Maddox should key the Virginia defense and probably will have to hold things together while a new goalie gains experience.

The addition of Temple, Lehigh and Dartmouth to the Virginia schedule should provide a stern test, since Maryland, Penn State and Delaware also show up before the end of the season.

Division I notes

Harvard and Yale could settle for Ivy League crown. Junior Kelly McBride will lead Harvard, and senior goalie Nada Sellers is Yale's team leader... Coach Lisa Pierce may have the firepower to lead Towson State to an East Coast Conference title. Senior Kim Brooks should emerge as one of the division's best goalies.

Look for Northeastern to improve immensely this season. Second-year coach Joan Broderick will have every player back from 1985's 4-12 squad... James Madison will be seeking a second straight South Atlantic Conference championship, but some holes on defense must be filled.

Longwood senior Sue Groff has been named the team's most valuable player for three consecutive years and already owns school records for career goals (128) and single-season goals (50)... First-year Old Dominion coach Melissa Magee will be out to duplicate the kind of success she enjoyed at Division III power Trenton State, where her 1985 squad won an NCAA championship.

Four teams to battle for 1986 skiing championship

In an event dominated by the same four schools in the last 10 years, the Men's and Women's National Collegiate Skiing Championships will be determined by which of the four skis the most consistently for four days.

From March 5 to March 8, the teams will gather in Burlington, Vermont, to determine the 33rd national champion. As usual, there will be little mystery about the top four teams. Not since Dartmouth won a co-championship in 1976 has any team been able to dislodge either Colorado, Utah, Wyoming or Vermont from the top two spots in the meet.

"I think the top four will be the same," said Vermont coach Chip LaCasse, "but I also think luck will have a lot to do with the meet. There is no clearly dominant team right now."

Vermont was one place-finish away from skiing a perfect meet in the men's portion of NCAA regional competition. Only Miles DeChamp's second-place finish for Dartmouth in the giant slalom kept Vermont out of a sweep in all four men's events.

"That certainly is the best our men's team has ever skied," LaCasse said, "and I don't know if any team has ever skied that well."

The Vermont women's team also won but not by the same one-sided performance. The Catamounts finished only 11 points ahead of Middlebury, which won the women's giant slalom—the only one of the eight events that Vermont did not win.

"Certainly, we are skiing well right now, and Middlebury has made our women's team fight harder than it has in this region in the last few years," LaCasse said.

Vermont also will serve as host for the meet. For whatever it is worth, Vermont won the championship the last time the Catamounts hosted the meet, in 1980. Vermont's championship in 1980, Dartmouth's co-championship with Colorado in 1976 and Dartmouth's championship in 1958 are the three times the title has been won by a team from the East.

Based on the results of regular-season meets, the balance among the big three in the West has continued to grow. Wyoming, the defending national champion, won the first two meets; Utah, which won back-to-back championships in 1983 and 1984, won the next two, and Colorado, the winner of eight consecutive titles from 1972 to 1979, won the West region meet.

"Obviously, there is more balance," said Utah coach Pat Miller, "but the season also has been marked by inconsistent performances. That will be the secret to winning the NCAA meet, staying consistent for four days."

The following is an event-by-event ranking of the top qualifiers for the meet:

East region

Men's giant slalom—1. Dean Keller, Vermont; 2. Tom Foote, Dartmouth; 3. Mark Smith, Vermont; 4. Miles DeChamp, Dartmouth; 5. Bart Tuttle, Vermont; 6. Chauncy Morgan, Dartmouth; 7. Terry Deliquadri, Dartmouth; 8. Bruce Genereaux, Middlebury; 9. R. J. Turner, New Hampshire; 10. Rob MacLeod, Middlebury.

Men's slalom—1. MacLeod, Middlebury; 2. DeChamp, Dartmouth; 3. Smith, Vermont; 4. Keller, Vermont; 5. Tom Buchanan, Vermont; 6. Deliquadri, Dartmouth; 7. Tim Hill, Williams; 8. Tuttle, Vermont; 9. Martin Magoun, Williams; 10. Steve Putnam, Middlebury.

Men's cross country—1. Todd Boonstra, Vermont; Bruce Likly, Vermont; 3. Joe Galanes, Vermont; 4. George Weck, Vermont; 5. Erik Schmidt, Middlebury; 6. Phil Lawson, Middlebury; 7. Arno Laukkanen, St. Lawrence; 8. Jon Underwood, Dartmouth; 9. Eliot Harvey, Dartmouth; 10. Brendan Sullivan, New Hampshire.

Women's giant slalom—1. Ingrid Punderson, Middlebury; 2. Gabriella Hamberg, Vermont; 3. Sigrid Kacenderger, Middlebury; 4. Jana Caldwell, Vermont; 5. Mari Omland, Williams; 6. Eva Pfofi, Dartmouth; 7. Julie Woodworth, Vermont; 8. Kirsti Wilson, Dartmouth; 9. Claudia Stern, Middlebury; 10. Laurie Stern, Middlebury.

Wright State leads early picks in Division II men's basketball

Top-ranked Wright State is one of five teams already assured of a spot in the bracket for the NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Championship, which opens March 6 with regional competition at eight on-campus sites. Quarterfinals will be played March 14 or 15, also at on-campus sites. The Division II men's final four will advance to Springfield, Massachusetts, where semifinals will be played March 21 and the championship March 22.

Wright State boasts a 24-2 record and was awarded a Great Lakes region at-large berth in the 32-team field by the Division II Men's Basketball Committee. Other teams already selected include St. Cloud State (23-3, North Central Conference champion), Tampa (21-5, awarded South region at-large but could win the Sunshine State Conference title), Virginia Union (21-6, Northern division titlist in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association) and Cal State Hayward (22-7, champion of the Northern California Conference).

Three regional sites already have been selected, including St. Cloud State (North Central), Wright State (Great Lakes) and Tampa (South). The complete tournament bracket and list of sites will be completed by the committee no later than March 3. The field will include 17 automatic qualifiers representing 15 conferences (the CIAA and Pennsylvania Conference each will receive two berths).

Since 12 of the 15 automatic-qualifying conferences play season-ending tournaments, some surprises could occur before the Division II championship field is completed. Following are some of the top teams in each region:

New England—American International (13-13), Merrimack (17-8), New Hampshire College (21-5), New Haven (18-8), Sacred Heart (23-4) and St. Anselm (21-6).

East—Cheyney (22-4), Edinboro (18-9), Gannon (22-5), LIU-C.W. Post (22-3), Mercyhurst (19-6) and Millersville (23-4).

South Atlantic—Johnson C. Smith (15-9), Norfolk State (21-4), North Carolina Central (14-11), Mount St. Mary's (23-3) and Winston-Salem State (14-9).

South—Alabama A&M (19-7), Clark (Georgia) (17-9), Eckerd (16-7), Florida International (17-9), Florida Southern (18-8), Jacksonville State (18-7), Tennessee-Martin (18-9) and West Georgia (20-6).

Great Lakes—Kentucky Wesleyan (18-7), Lewis (22-4), Southern Illinois-Edwardsville (20-6) and Southern Indiana (18-8).

North Central—Augustana (South Dakota) 18-8, Ferris State (17-9), Nebraska-Omaha (19-8), Northern Michigan (18-7) and Wayne State (Michigan) (21-7).

South Central—Abilene Christian (20-6), Central Missouri State (16-9), Delta State (20-6), Sam Houston State (24-4) and Southeast Missouri State (21-6).

West—Alaska-Anchorage (20-9), Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo (22-4), Cal State Bakersfield (17-7), Cal State Los Angeles (15-6), Eastern Montana (19-7) and UC Riverside (19-6).

Three top teams head Division II women's field

The top three teams in the current NCAA Division II women's basketball poll already have been selected to participate in the 1986 championship, which will begin with first-round competition March 8 at on-campus sites. Regionals will be held March 11 and quarterfinals March 14 or 15, also at on-campus facilities. The final four will advance to Springfield, Massachusetts, for the semifinals (March 20) and championship (March 22).

Top-ranked Cal Poly-Pomona (West region, 21-3) is one of three teams that have been awarded at-large berths in the 24-team bracket by the NCAA Division II Women's Basketball Committee. The others are No. 2 Florida International (South, 23-1) and No. 5 Mount St. Mary's (South Atlantic, 19-1).

Third-ranked Mankato State (North Central, 23-2) has qualified by winning the North Central Conference championship, and No. 20 Alaska-Anchorage (South Central, 16-6) is in by virtue of taking the Continental Divide Conference title.

Ten additional conference champions will receive automatic entry into the Division II tournament. Team and site selections will be completed the weekend of March 1-2.

Following are some of the teams in each region under consideration (or who could qualify by winning a league championship) for the Division II tournament:

New England—Bentley (13-6), Central Connecticut State (20-1), Quinnipiac (18-2) and St. Anselm (14-6).

East—Colgate (14-8), Pace (17-4), Philadelphia Textile (17-4) and Slippery Rock (16-5).

South Atlantic—Hampton (19-3), St. Augustine's (21-4) and Virginia Union (16-5).

South—Alabama A&M (18-3), Delta State (16-2) and Valdosta State (16-3).

Great Lakes—Bellarmino (17-4),

Grand Valley State (18-6), Lake Superior State (18-4) and Northern Kentucky (18-3).

North Central—North Dakota (12-9), North Dakota State (15-7), St. Cloud State (12-10) and South Dakota (16-10).

South Central—Abilene Christian (16-6), Central Missouri State (18-4) and Southeast Missouri State (19-4).

West—Cal State Northridge (16-4), UC Davis (15-8) and UC Riverside (15-6).

West Conference is fifth. Other top-10 members are repeaters:

	Won	Lost	Pct.	Opp. Rank
Southeastern	107	29	.787	12
Atlantic Coast	69	21	.767	13
Atlantic 10	54	25	.684	9
Big Eight	61	29	.678	2
Pacific West	52	28	.650	6
Big Ten	59	35	.628	1
Metro-Atlantic	53	35	.602	15
Big East	50	36	.581	14
Northern Pacific	48	37	.565	17
Southwest Athletic	50	41	.549	4

As the chart shows, the Big Ten and Big Eight were 1-2 on the toughest-schedule list with the SWC fourth, Pac-West sixth and Atlantic 10 ninth. The Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference (41-49) was third, Pacific Coast Athletic Association (47-46) fifth, Sun Belt Conference (52-45) seventh, Southwestern Athletic Conference (19-39) eighth and Seaboard Conference (26-44) 10th.

Texas played by far the toughest nonconference schedule. Its 10 outside foes had an amazing .777 winning percentage vs. Division I opposition when not playing Texas, but Texas won all 10 games. Old Dominion's second-place rank at .718 is excellent but far behind Texas. ODU's defending national champions had played 16 nonconference games through February 8, winning seven. Other teams with schedules in the top 25 were, in order, Ohio State, Memphis State, Iowa, Rutgers, Middle Tennessee State, Seton Hall, Penn State, Northeastern, Northeast Louisiana, Georgia Southern, Southern California, U.S. International, Kansas, Kansas State, Prairie View A&M, Long Beach State, UCLA, Oklahoma, Tennessee Tech, Cheyney, Miami (Florida), Mercer and Georgia.

Many familiar powers in women's basketball are on the list, but Louisiana Tech, an independent, was 38th. Miami (Florida) and Cheyney are the only independents in the top 25. The all-games toughest-schedule list, as with the men, is dominated by the top conferences. The same axiom applies—the top teams play the toughest schedules.

A unique group

When the list of the nation's most improved Division I men's teams is compiled, Bradley is certain to be very near the top—if not No. 1. A year ago, the Braves finished 17-13. Now, they are 28-1—the country's best record—with a 19-game winning streak—the country's longest winning streak—going into a February 27 home game with Indiana State, to put the finishing touches on their Missouri Valley Conference championship.

That is a one-year improvement of 11½ games, with more to come.

How did it happen? "Anyone can coach this team," coach Dick Versace told Dan Pompei of the Chicago Sun-Times. "It's a unique group of kids driven by their genuine affection for one another."

It all developed last summer on an 18-day trip to Italy. It took a different land for the 13 players—nine from the Chicago area—to discover their interests in common. They went on 14-hour bus rides together. They sang "We Are The World" on an Italian beach with children who don't understand English. They took turns saying grace each evening before dinner. Said Jim Les, senior point guard: "We were put in situations where we had no choice but to be with each other and find out what's behind each person." During a December trip to Hawaii, each player rented a moped and they toured an island together. "It's like something out of 'Little Women,'" Versace said. "This team has less controversy than Gil Thorpe." (Joe Dalfonso, Bradley SID)

A rare two pair

A closer examination of the 2,000-point career scorers in men's Division I basketball (February 19 notes) shows that two teams—Duke and Loyola (California) each has a pair of seniors reaching 2,000 together in their final seasons. They are Johnny Dawkins and Mark Alarie of Duke and Forrest McKenzie and Keith Smith of Loyola.

How unusual is that? Very, very unusual. In fact, just one team in 39 years of official records-keeping has had two seniors reach 2,000 the same season. That team was Lamar, and the two seniors were 6-1 Mike Olliver at 2,518 and 6-8 B. B. Davis at 2,084. Lamar was 25-5 in 1981 and upset Missouri in the NCAA tournament. It was Pat Foster's first year as head coach (Olliver and Davis were recruited by previous coach Billy Tubbs). By the way, Dawkins already has reached 2,000. The others soon will.

A pair of 500s

College basketball's all-time 500-game victory list (and that includes all divisions and all associations, NCAA and NAIA) has two more members.

Stephen F. Austin's Harry Miller won No. 500 on February 17 at Nicholls State, 60-59, for his fourth 20-victory season in five years. Elizabeth City State's Bobby Vaughan reached 500 with a 100-95 overtime victory at Norfolk State February 22. "It's even bigger," said Vaughan, "because Charles Christian (Norfolk coach) and I were roommates back at Virginia State a long time ago." The 500 club now has 44 members.

Quotes of the week

Canisius men's coach Nick Macar-chuk when asked what he can do when his team is struggling against a physically inferior opponent: "Pray a lot. No matter how much I threaten them they play the way they want to play. I'm just there to chaperon." (John Maddock, Canisius SID)

UC Irvine senior Tod Murphy became the school's career scoring leader February 10 at New Mexico State, passing Dave Baker's (1971-75) record 1,601 points. Baker is now the Irvine mayor. Baker told Murphy it was OK to break his record, "But if he was could be the best regular-season game in the division this season.

Division I notes

Maryland coach Dick Edell must prepare a sizable freshman class to help out immediately in the Terrapins' quest to overtake Virginia and North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The three teams shared the league title last season. Bucknell, Delaware and Towson State shared the East Coast Conference title, and each has returning talent capable of leading the way to an outright championship. With nine starters returning, Towson State may be the team to beat in this race.

Yale coach Mike Waldvogel is enjoying the return of the Elis' top two scorers from last season, when the team finished 10-3 (best record at the school since 1966). Navy coach Bryan Matthews could have a goalie fight on his hands. Senior Steve Nims could be pushed hard by sophomore Joe Donnelly. Both will be expected to help the Midshipmen improve on last season's 5-6 record. Eighteen of 23 lettermen return at Cornell, where coach Richie Moran has his sights set on an Ivy League title. The team finished 8-4 last season. Doug Bartlett is the new coach at Virginia Military.

Only three players were lost to graduation at Providence, which will attempt to defend its 1985 Pilgrim League championship. Loyola (Maryland) should improve on last year's 8-5 record. Coach Dave Cottie has 21 lettermen returning. Air Force will attempt to defend its 1985 Rocky Mountain League championship with 24 lettermen returning. Only two lettermen were lost at Holy Cross, which will attempt to defend its 1985 Colonial League championship.

planning on running for mayor, he had better move to another city." (Bob Olson, UC Irvine SID) Marielle Walker, a 6-0 sophomore forward on the Georgia Tech women's basketball team, is a farm girl from Casanova, Virginia. Though she is not adept at all farm chores — she has never milked a cow or baled hay — the barn is one of her favorite places to work. What she works on is her shooting ability. When the barn is not otherwise engaged, it is transformed into an indoor basketball court with a cement floor and enough room to practice shots from the top of the key without hitting the rafters.

"It's helped a lot," Walker explained. "I go out in the barn and turn on the radio and practice shooting." (Mike Finn, Georgia Tech SID)

An inspiration

Illinois Benedictine's Matt Moser, a 6-8 center, fractured his neck three days before the season in a horseback accident. Then a player appeared at practice with a headband reading W.O.F.M., meaning "Win one for Moser." Says coach Tony LaScala: "Moser has been an inspiration to our team. We have played very well with a 6-4 center in his place."

At UC Riverside, players are inspired by Craig Fuller, a 6-8 center who has been advised repeatedly after three knee operations to give up basketball but leads the team in blocked shots while averaging 5.4 points and almost four rebounds in just over 18 minutes per game.

Fuller spends 90 minutes a day, in addition to practice, maintaining strength in his knees, with whirlpool treatments and weight-room work before having his knees braced for practice. For games, his knees are protected by 30 yards of elastic tape covered by lightweight braces. After practices and games, he spends 20 minutes with his knees in ice.

Says teammate and roommate Robert Jimerson: "He's our spiritual leader, our motivator. I don't feel like he's handicapped. He works hard and never complains."

Fuller says he is grateful to coach John Masi for giving him the chance to finish his playing career and education after his last injury in 1983 at Cal State Fullerton.

"School is the challenge now," Fuller says. "Basketball has become easy. When I get in the game, it feels like old times." (Kathy Barton, UC Riverside SID)

Pat of all trades

Gannon sports information director Patrick Gillespie is becoming a "Renaissance man"—someone who has expertise in many different areas. He is responsible for publicity not only for the 13-sport athletics program at Gannon but also for the six-member Mideast Collegiate Conference. Those responsibilities are not out of the ordinary: Gillespie recently began serving as a practice tool for and an ersatz member of the women's basketball team.

The Lady Knights have lost several players this season and have only eight remaining for practices and games, none taller than six feet. Head coach Judy Saurer requested the 6-5 Gillespie's help to prepare her players to face a team with a 6-3 center. He agreed and has been instrumental in helping prepare the Lady Knights' frontline for games.

Legislative Assistance

1986 Column No. 9

Change in tryout rule

At the recent NCAA Convention, Proposal No. 46 was adopted to amend NCAA Bylaws 1-6(b) and (c). As amended, Bylaw 1-6(b) defines a prospective student-athlete, for purposes of the tryout rule only, as any individual who has started classes for the ninth grade or has had a 15th birthday, whichever comes first, and is not enrolled in the member institution at the time of the athletic practice or testing activities. The regulation notes as an exception that during pre-season practice in fall sports or during practice occurring in mid year between terms of the academic calendar, it shall be permissible for a student-athlete who is not enrolled—but who has been accepted for admission to the institution—to engage in such activity, provided said practice is not used to determine whether aid is to be awarded.

The provisions of Bylaw 1-6(c) also have been amended, and the following changes supersede the information provided in the Legislative Assistance column January 29, 1986. These provisions describe six situational exceptions regarding the tryout rule. Bylaw 1-6(c)(1) describes as an exception developmental clinics or competition designed to develop fundamental skills in a sport (rather than to refine the abilities of skilled participants in the sport) and open to the general public (except for restrictions in age or number of participants). Further, such activity must be conducted by and subject to the control of the host NCAA member institution, and the activity is to be approved by the NCAA Council.

New Bylaw 1-6(c)(2) states that participation by a prospective student-athlete in "open" events conducted by or held on the campus of a member institution is permissible, provided the competition is approved by the NCAA Council. Competition shall be considered "open" if the selection of participants is not limited except by number, by geographical area or on the basis of some objective standard of performance. Such an event would be "open" to any qualified participant regardless of age.

New Bylaw 1-6(c)(3) states that regularly scheduled high school athletic contests or matches conducted by a member institution or sponsored jointly with an outside organization, held on the campus of a member institution, will be excepted from the tryout rule, provided the opportunity to participate is not limited to specific prospective student-athletes or high schools and all individual prospects or high schools in a specific geographical area eligible to compete (limited only by number, high school classification or on the basis of some objective standard of performance). The event also must appear on the high schools' schedules and must have been approved prior to the sports season by the appropriate state high school authority, or the event must be conducted by a national sports federation of which this Association is a member. Further, no awards may be presented to the participants (e.g., no trophies, certificates or ribbons). This provision is an amendment to the previous Bylaw 1-6(c)(2) and would apply to competition such as collegiate-sponsored track meets involving relay events for high school students only.

New Bylaw 1-6(c)(4) amends previous Bylaw 1-6(c)(3) by stating the exception that the regular or emergency use of a member institution's facilities by a high school athletics team for its normal practice activities conducted solely by the high school coaches or for regularly scheduled high school contests conducted solely by the participating high schools would be permissible, provided the competition is approved by the appropriate state high school authority and provided by the institution and representatives of its athletes interests are not involved in any way in the invitation or selection of participating schools or individuals. This regulation makes reference to competition sponsored by the high school, rather than a member institution or other outside organization. Bylaw 1-6(c)(5) clarifies Bylaw 1-6(c)(4) by identifying the institution's facilities as those of an NCAA member. Further, previous Bylaw 1-6(c)(5) has been renumbered and will be cited in the 1986-87 Manual as Bylaw 1-6(c)(6).

'Redshirt' and hardship

Although NCAA legislation contains no specific reference to "redshirting," it may be the practice of an institution to withdraw a student-athlete from all competition (both varsity and subvarsity) in a sport during a season.

A student-athlete could be "redshirted" at any point during his or her period of eligibility. The provisions of Bylaw 5-1(d) stipulate that a student-athlete will be eligible for four seasons of intercollegiate competition in a sport. Any participation during a season in an intercollegiate sport, regardless of time, shall be considered as a season of competition in that sport. Further, Case No. 285 (page 336, 1985-86 NCAA Manual) defines "intercollegiate competition" for purposes of determining a student's number of completed seasons of competition. Practicing with an institution's intercollegiate team and being on the team's bench in uniform during games does not count as a season of competition, provided the student-athlete does not participate in any portion of the intercollegiate event.

The provisions of NCAA Bylaw 5-1(d)(2) state that a student-athlete may be granted an additional year of competition by the conference or the institution for reasons of "hardship," which is defined as that incapacity resulting from injury or illness under the following conditions: (a) It occurs in one of the four seasons of intercollegiate competition at any four-year collegiate institution for members of Division I, or at any two-year or four-year collegiate institution for members of Division II or Division III, and (b) The injury or illness occurs when the student-athlete has not participated in more than 20 percent of the institution's completed events in his or her sport, whichever number is greater, provided the injury or illness occurred in the first half of the season and resulted in incapacity to compete for the remainder of the season. Any contest (including a scrimmage) with outside competition is countable under this limitation.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If a member has a question for this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Publicists sought for U.S. teams

The United States Baseball Federation currently is establishing a pool of qualified individuals interested in serving as publicists for USA teams during their national and international tours.

Lengths of assignments vary from one to three months (all during the summer), and a small stipend is available. Baseball knowledge and adaptability to foreign cultures are a must.

Interested individuals should forward a resume and two letters of reference to Jim Cawthorn, Sports Information Director, Indiana-Purdue University, 2101 Coliseum Boulevard East, Fort Wayne, Indiana 46805.

Committee

ship totals declined slightly in Division II as that division's lower sports sponsorship requirement apparently began to take effect.

By division, the sponsorship averages were 17.5 in Division I (10.2 for men, 7.3 for women), 14.1 in Division II (7.8 for men, 6.3 for women) and 15.7 in Division III (8.9 for men, 6.8 for women).

The committee also reviewed sports sponsorship trends for men covering the period from 1979-80 through 1984-85 and for women from 1981-82 through 1984-85. The fastest-growing sports in that period were cross country, soccer and indoor track for men and the same three sports plus softball for women.

Meanwhile, the biggest declines in sponsorship were in wrestling, gymnastics and swimming for men and field hockey and gymnastics for women.

A complete report on the sports participation and sponsorship data will be featured in a March issue of The NCAA News.

Among the other topics discussed by the Long Range Planning Committee were the following:

- Continued development of proposed codes of ethics for coaches, directors of athletics and student-athletes. Former NCAA President J. Neils Thompson, who is concluding his service on the committee this year, will attempt to develop a "code of responsibility" for institutions for consideration in the committee's June meeting.

Championships

three years, which event they want to be reimbursed for (but not both).

The Division III committee will develop definite cost estimates soon and prepare final recommendations for consideration by the Executive Committee.

Both committees reaffirmed the minimum standard requirements for establishing or maintaining championships as outlined in Executive Regulations 1-1(a) and (b).

The Division II committee voted not to exercise the authority provided it by Proposal No. 38 at 1986 convention (amendment gave them authority to continue an event through 1986-87 that was otherwise scheduled to be discontinued after 1985-86 due to insufficient sponsorship). The only event affected was Division II women's gymnastics. It will not be continued through 1986-87.

The committees are seeking comments from the membership on their respective proposals.

Television firm reaches accord with Atlantic 10

National Sports Production/Cine-Vid has reached an agreement with the Atlantic 10 Conference on a five-game wild-card television package for men's basketball that will permit the Denver-based production firm to televise the league's postseason tournament for the second straight year.

Three regular-season games and the conference semifinal contests make up the package, which will be seen in nine states and the District of Columbia. ESPN will broadcast the league championship game March 3.

"This is a project that Charlie Theokas (former Atlantic 10 commissioner and now director of athletics at league-member Temple) and I have been working on since December," said Ron Bertovich, acting conference commissioner. "This package, along with the championship telecast by ESPN, gives the league a great deal of momentum going into the 1986-87 season."

- Use of the "electronic mailbox" for communications between the NCAA national office and the membership.

- The work of the Special NCAA Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification.

- Graduation rates as a measurement of academic standards.

- Identification of trends and other emerging issues in society that may have application to college athletics.

- The Association's relationships with other organizations in higher education.

- A review of the major topics discussed by this committee from 1970 through 1985.

Two rules changes in effect for NCAA softball play-offs

Two rules changes adopted by the Amateur Softball Association for the 1986 season also will be in effect for the 1986 NCAA women's softball championships.

Both changes involve use of the designated hitter. Rule 4-3(d) now stipulates that the DH may be substituted for at any time. Substitutes may include a pinch-runner, pinch-hitter or the defensive player the DH was hitting for. If the player used is the defensive player, she must hit in the same lineup spot as the DH and use of a DH by that team will be terminated for the remainder of the game.

If the designated hitter is replaced by a pinch-hitter or pinch-runner, the substitute must be a player who otherwise has not played in that game. That substitute then becomes the DH for the remainder of the game or until substituted for, or until the starting DH reenters the contest.

Under Rule 4-5, any starting player (including a designated hitter) may be withdrawn and later reenter a game one time, provided that no batting-order change takes place. (Team A's shortstop hits seventh and is replaced. The substitute also will hit seventh. If the original shortstop returns, she will occupy the No. 7 spot in the batting order.)

As outlined above, the only exception to this rule occurs when a defensive player replaces the designated hitter who was batting for her. When this happens, the DH spot is eliminated for the remainder of the game.

These changes have forced alterations to the DH rule that appears as Appendix K in the 1986 National Collegiate Women's Softball Championships handbook. Under Defensive Situations, No. 5 will read: "This player may not bat at any time." Also, item No. 2 has been omitted from the End of Use section.

Questions concerning any of these changes should be directed to Women's Softball Committee member June Taylor at Trenton State College.

Schools plan improvements, additions to athletics facilities

Duquesne University and the University of Houston are planning major improvements in their athletics facilities. Duquesne officials say construction should begin this year on a $10-to-$12 million recreation complex that will include a 6,500-seat basketball arena. Houston regents have pledged $1.5 million toward a $6 million football complex and predicted the building will be faculty member, tennis coach and athletics trainer, who died in 1982. Amy Alcott, one of the top money winners in women's professional golf, has donated $50,000 to endow a golf scholarship at the University of California, Los Angeles. She serves as an assistant coach for the women's golf team at the school.

University of California, Riverside, baseball coach Jack Smitheran has more peace of mind now that there is an electronic scoreboard at Highlander Park. Often, the coach would turn to his bench looking for a relief pitcher or a pinch-hitter only to find that the player had run out to center field between innings to update the scoreboard. "We have had to go out and manually keep the score inning by inning," Smitheran said. "We caused ourselves a lot of difficulties because we had a player out there hanging up numbers when we needed him." The scoreboard was a result of donations by various firms of money and equipment, plus $2,000 from the boosters club and $1,800 from the baseball program.

The Chicago Athletic Association has announced the establishment of the Ray Meyer Award for Excellence in honor of the former head men's basketball coach at DePaul University. Each year, an outstanding senior will be selected from Division I schools in the Midwest for the award, which is based on athletics excellence, scholarship and personal achievement.

Briefly in the News

the first stage of a large-scale campaign to renovate athletics facilities. The regents tentatively approved a proposal to provide the $1.5 million in matching funds if Director of Athletics Thomas J. Ford can obtain $1.5 million in contributions. Michigan State University has opened a $1.9 million indoor tennis facility. The 69,000-square-foot building includes eight courts, bleacher seating for 150 on each court, locker rooms and a pro shop.

The artificial ice facility at Middlebury College has been named for Walter "Duke" Nelson, an alumnus and former coach and athletics director. He was on the Middlebury staff for almost 40 years. A scholarship fund has been established at Hope College in memory of Lawrence J. "Doc" Green, a former

CORRECTIONS

The February 12 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly stated that Western Kentucky was the defending baseball champion in the Sun Belt Conference. Old Dominion won the 1985 title.

In the December 25, 1985 issue of The NCAA News, Fred L. Miller, director of athletics, San Diego State University, was quoted as saying that under an NCAA television plan for football there would be more money generated than currently existed. Miller's intent in the articles published in Athletic Administration was to show that a National Collegiate Championship could ease, if not solve, the fiscal crisis in intercollegiate sports.

Recruiting

a minority of unscrupulous coaches and inflamed, immature boosters and alumni are going to set the policy."

Byers said that there are a number of coaches who are proud of their profession and who do not wish to have it stigmatized by a minority of rules violators. He also said that he supported a proposal submitted but later withdrawn by the Southwest Athletic Conference at last month's Convention that would have limited all recruiting contacts to a school's staff members.

Citing the growing responsibilities of coaches, Byers suggested that the American Football Coaches Association consider developing a management institute, similar to the program developed by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

Byers said that the management institute could teach the expanded responsibilities that go with a head-coaching job at a major university, not only in the public relations area but in the management area of controls, knowing the rules and spotting the rules violations ahead of time.

Byers concluded his remarks by praising the NCAA's adoption of the national drug-testing program.

"I thought that the action at the

Walter Byers

New Orleans Convention in approving a national drug-testing program was the most direct and determined attack upon one of society's and athletics' most serious problem by any domestic sports organization," Byers said. "The colleges have taken the leadership position that the use of drugs is unacceptable.

"I want to emphasize that this program includes testing for anabolic steroids, which generally have been eschewed or not included in the testing of other sports organizations."

Court upholds 'no-pass, no-play' rule

The U.S. Supreme Court has left intact a Texas "no-pass, no-play" law that has sidelined high school athletes and silenced band musicians with failing grades.

The court, citing the lack of a "substantial Federal question," rejected an appeal by students who say the law violates their constitutional rights, the Associated Press reported.

The 1984 law has disqualified temporarily about 15 percent of the varsity football players in Texas' 1,100 school districts. Junior varsity and freshman teams have been hit twice as hard, according to a survey by the Texas High School Coaches Association.

The statute generally penalizes students who score under 70 during a six-week grading period for any course. The student is barred from taking part in any extracurricular activity for six weeks.

Students who challenged the law for the most part were prevented from participating on interscholastic athletic teams. But in their appeal to the Supreme Court, they said the penalty affects the right of free expression because students, for example, could be denied a spot on the school newspaper or in school government.

"The case patently does not involve the media favorite, 'academics vs. athletics,'" lawyers for the students said. "The undisputed evidence has revealed that the law works to deprive all public school children in Texas, falling within its purview, from participation in all extracurricular activities."

The law also is arbitrary and capricious, the appeal said, because it may single out students who flunk one course and get straight "A's" in all other courses. On the other hand, a student with all "D's"—a poor but passing grade—is not prevented from taking part in extracurricular activities.

Texas school officials said there is no evidence the law violates free-speech rights of students wanting to take part in student government or the school newspaper. They said two students were barred from band activities and the rest were disqualified from track, football, basketball and other sports.

New Kemp trial is sought

Georgia Attorney General Michael Bowers asked a Federal judge February 24 for a new trial in the case of Jan Kemp's lawsuit against two University of Georgia officials, charging that the $2.57 million damage award was "shockingly excessive."

In a motion for a new trial, Bowers said that the jury in the case was swayed by weeks of evidence on the preferential treatment given to student-athletes at Georgia and that testimony blurred the main issue in the case—whether Mrs. Kemp was fired in violation of her first amendment rights.

In a brief filed with U.S. District Judge Horace Ward, who presided over the 5½-week trial, the attorney general's office asked for a new trial, a partial new trial on the damages or a "conditional remittitur," in which the judge could order a new trial if Mrs. Kemp's lawyers do not agree to a reduction in the award.

The brief contends that Ward erred by allowing testimony and lawyers' arguments about preferential treatment of student-athletes.

"As a result, the jury rendered an excessive verdict, obviously aimed at

Big East signs cable contract

ESPN and the Big East Conference have signed an exclusive national cable agreement beginning with the 1986-87 season, it was announced by Steven M. Bornstein, ESPN senior vice-president, programming and production, and David R. Gavitt, Big East commissioner.

The agreement calls for ESPN to televise 22 regular-season intraconference games each of the next three seasons, primarily Monday and Wednesday nights.

"Both the Big East and ESPN started together in 1979; over the last seven years, the two have contributed successfully to each other's growth and impact. We are very pleased that ESPN will be providing live national coverage two nights a week of Big East basketball for the next three years," Gavitt said.

ESPN to carry MCC title game

The Midwestern Collegiate Conference and ESPN jointly have announced plans to televise the 1986 MCC basketball championship finals live to a national cable audience Sunday, March 2, at 2 p.m. Eastern time.

The telecast will mark the first time ESPN has televised an MCC championship contest. The game will be blacked out in a 35-mile radius of Indianapolis.

The seventh annual MCC championship is slated for Indianapolis' Market Square Arena February 27, 28 and March 2. The seven-team format is designed for the league's regular-season champion to receive a first-round bye. The tournament champion also will represent the conference in the 1986 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

"The MCC is appreciative of ESPN's interest in showcasing its championship to America's college basketball audience," said Commissioner James W. Shaffer. "We look forward to providing ESPN viewers an exciting look at the competitive quality of MCC basketball."

punishing the University of Georgia for the excesses in the treatment of athletes and not at these individual defendants, who are personally liable to pay the judgment," the brief said.

The brief argued that under the 11th amendment, a verdict against a state cannot be rendered in a Federal court.

Mrs. Kemp sued Virginia Trotter, Georgia's vice-president for academic affairs, and Leroy Ervin, director of the university's developmental studies program, charging that she was demoted and fired for speaking out against preferential academic treatment for student-athletes.

The jury's award to Mrs. Kemp included punitive damages of $1.5 million against Ms. Trotter and $800,000 punitive damages against Ervin. The motion for a new trial called these punitive damages "so excessive as to shock the conscience of the court."

Outdoor track standards

The qualifying standards for the 1986 NCAA Men's and Women's Outdoor Track Championships are listed below.

Qualifying standards for the Division I, Division II and Division III men's and women's championships must be competed in meters, except the 400-meter relay and the 1,600-meter relay, which may be competed in yards.

All field-event performances must be measured, recorded and entered metrically. Only metric performances will be accepted on the official NCAA entry form for field and running events.

In the Division I and Division II championships, a legal numerical wind-gauge reading is required for all manual-time entries in the 100-meter and 200-meter dashes and the 100-meter and 110-meter hurdles. The legal numerical wind reading must be recorded on the entry form. In Division III, a wind-gauge reading is recommended but not required; however, to advance to the Division I championships, a wind-gauge reading is required.
