Repeal of medal ban is sought

The NCAA Recruiting Committee has voted to recommend to the Council that it sponsor legislation at the 1987 NCAA Convention to permit the distribution of awards to prospective student-athletes at competitions sponsored by member institutions. The move came in the wake of criticism of an amendment to Bylaw 1-6 that was adopted at the 1986 Convention.

The amendment, which appears in the 1986-87 NCAA Manual as Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(3), states that no awards may be presented to prospective student-athletes in competitions held on member institutions' campuses. Traditionally, track meets with high school and/or open competition like the Penn and Texas Relays have given awards to winners in those classes.

Another recommendation to go to the Council seeks sponsorship of legislation to exempt the entire amount of Pell Grants from NCAA financial aid limitations. Currently, maximum financial aid limitations under Constitution 3-4-(d)-(2)-(iv) stipulate that Pell Grants may be included as long as the total award does not exceed the cost of tuition, fees, room and board, required course-related books, and $900.

Also to be recommended to the Council is the sponsorship of Convention legislation that would limit off-campus contact with prospective student-athletes by head football and head men's basketball coaches to one per student-athlete.

The committee met May 22-23 in Kansas City, Missouri, and also voted to recommend that the Council sponsor legislation that would eliminate off-campus evaluations and recruiting by football coaches from June 1 through the third week of October annually.

The committee also voted to recommend to the Collegiate Commissioners Association that it extend its national Letter of Intent Program to include junior college men's basketball players.

State-of-the-art computer program will select spectators for Final Four "Round and round she goes ... where she stops, no one knows."

Originally coined by a colorful carnival huckster drawing crowds to the midway's wheel of fortune, that old saying also could describe the process used to determine who gets tickets to the 1987 NCAA Final Four March 28 and 30 at the Superdome in New Orleans.

However, unlike the spiked wooden wheel and its rather limited possibilities, a state-of-the-art computer program will help officials fill as many Final Four ticket orders as possible.

"The demand for Final Four tickets always has exceeded the supply," said Louis J. Spry, the Association's controller, who coordinated the statistical information with United Missouri Bank of Kansas City, Missouri, which served as a clearinghouse for the processing of orders.

More than 41,000 orders, which request more than 143,000 tickets, have been received for the 1987 Final Four. The Superdome has 57,682 seats for the Final Four, of which just over 38,000 are available to the public.

Data Systems International, which is responsible for setting up the first computerized ticket drawing ever held at the NCAA national office, will use an IBM System 36 computer and a program based on a subtractive method to generate the series of random numbers. The code for the pro-

Bill would restore deduction to donors

A bill has been introduced in the U.S. Senate by Sen. David Pryor, Arkansas Democrat, that calls for full tax deductions on contributions to athletics scholarship programs and the revoking of previous IRS rulings to the contrary.

Sen. Pryor submitted the legislation last month, calling for the application of the IRS Code of 1954, allowing full tax exemptions for such donations and the repeal of an IRS ruling modifying the exemption.

In 1984, the IRS issued a ruling that essentially revoked prior IRS determinations that such contributions were tax-deductible. The ruling held that if the donor received the right to purchase season tickets (other than as a member of the general public), there was no gift involved.

Under well-established tax principles, Pryor said, if there is no gift of property to a charity, no charitable contribution results; therefore, no tax deduction is allowed.

The IRS ruling threatened what was estimated at more than $100 million a year in contributions to athletics programs. Because of objections by the NCAA and other organizations and institutions, the IRS withheld the ruling for public hearings.

An administrative hearing was held on the ruling January 7, 1985.

The IRS then issued a revised ruling (The NCAA News, May 7, 1986).

"While a few minor features have changed, the basic thrust of the most recent announcement is that if the athletics scholarship donor is allowed to purchase season tickets in any way other than as a member of the general public, no gift is involved," Pryor said.

"Therefore, the scholarship donation is not tax-deductible under Section 170 of the Internal Revenue Code," Pryor said in a statement accompanying his bill.

The revised ruling by the IRS says the contributors can take a partial deduction if the college can provide a reasonable estimate of the value of the privilege extended to them.

To estimate the value, the IRS says a college can consider such factors as the level of demand for tickets. But the ruling gives no method as to how this demand itself can be valued.

The New York Times said the clarification "leaves the situation just as controversial—and more cloudy than ever."

Pryor said, "I remain very concerned over attempts to define what is or is not tax-deductible when a donation is made to any college or university in the country. Many colleges and universities around the country use these scholarship funds to provide much-needed aid to student-athletes.

"All of us want to do all we can to maintain and strengthen our educational system. It seems to me that this latest ruling runs counter to that effort."

Pryor says his bill is "very simple."

"It repeals Revenue Ruling 86-63 (the IRS revised ruling) and provides that the tax law shall be applied as if it had not been issued."

Pryor is a member of the Senate Finance Committee.

NCAA forums prove helpful, participants say in survey

Almost 500 people attended the NCAA Current Issues Forums, which were held in Atlanta, Chicago and Los Angeles in May. According to John H. Leavens, the Association's director of compliance, the three sessions were well-received.

"Generally, we have received very favorable comments concerning these first Current Issues Forums," Leavens related. "Based on feedback we obtained through evaluation forms that were included in registration packets at our Chicago and Los Angeles sessions, it seems apparent that the NCAA membership wants some type of gathering like this at least on an annual basis."

Attendees spent the first day of the forums taking part in presentations concerning the Association's new compliance department, the drug testing that will take place at NCAA championships events beginning this fall and gambling. "Drug-testing concerns dominated the question-and-answer sessions at all three forums," Leavens said.

According to Ursula R. Walsh, the Association's director of research, forum attendees were briefed on several different aspects of the proposed championships drug-testing plan.

"In Atlanta and Chicago, Dan (Daniel F.) Hanley, who is on the Special NCAA Postseason Drug-Testing Committee, covered the technical and medical aspects of the testing. This was done by special-committee member William D. Bradford in Los Angeles," she explained. "John Black, a member of the NCAA's legal counsel, also was on hand at each forum to provide information on legal aspects of the drug-testing plan."

The Association's general drug-testing philosophy and potential penalties were discussed by NCAA Secretary-Treasurer Wilford S. Bailey in Atlanta and Assistant Executive Director William B. Hunt in Chicago.

Washington's Green pleased with progress of women's sports

By Jim Cour

In the 10 years she has been in charge of women's intercollegiate athletics at the University of Washington, Catherine B. "Kit" Green likes the progress she has seen.

For example, she says there has been a marked attitude change among some of the older male coaches at the school—as well as startling headway for women's intercollegiate athletics.

"There have been some major changes," Green said with a smile. "There were coaches here in the early '70s who are still here now. In the early '70s, they wouldn't let the women be in the same vicinity as their men. Now several of them are involved in coaching women."

Green, 53, was appointed as the first associate athletics director for women's athletics at Washington in 1975. She now is associate director for nonrevenue sports and organization detail at the school.

The attitude of women's collegiate athletes has changed remarkably, too, she says.

"I think we're seeing girls come out of high school programs now expecting to have a strong athletics program at the college level because they're getting better programs at the high school level," she explained.

"And they are recognizing that there are scholarships out here. They're coming into our athletics programs with a different kind of an expectation than they did in the early days—that it isn't necessarily a bunch of fun and games."

Women collegiate athletes work harder than they did a decade ago, because they know they have to,

Green said.

"They're willing to spend the time on conditioning on a year-around basis and not just during the season,"

Catherine B. Green

she said. "There's a real source of commitment to the sport that they chose. That's a whole different picture than it was."

There was a resistance to the entire premise of women's college athletics 10 years ago, Green said.

"If there's still that resistance or resentment now, you don't hear about it," she added. "But it's taken 10 years for some people to appreciate what the women are doing and to become supportive."

Green remembers what it used to be like for aspiring female athletes. She graduated from high school in 1954.

As a young girl, she wanted to play sports. However, the opportunity just wasn't there.

Thirty-two years after her high school graduation, it's an entirely different world for female athletes, she says.

The progress of women in intercollegiate sports is a source of pride, she says.

"I think we've gotten the message across that women's athletics are here to stay and we're not going to go away," she said. "I think a lot of people have come around to accepting that it is right to provide these opportunities for these women, and these women are just as serious as the men who participate."

But women in intercollegiate sports must stay on guard to make sure their gains are not lost, she emphasizes.

"That's one of the reasons I think positions like mine are so important," Green said. "If there are going to be budget cuts, we have to make sure we're not cutting women's programs any more than men's programs."

The possibility of more athlete, less student was intolerable

John Griffin, former head men's basketball coach
Siena College

The Associated Press

"I'd really accomplished all I intended to when I took the job at Siena. I'm very thankful for the opportunity Siena gave me at a very young age. I've had a good taste of it, and I can leave feeling good about myself.

"You have a bad year, maybe two bad years, and then the pressure starts to mount. To move up the ladder in basketball, I would have to accept increased alumni pressure and dealing with a student-athlete who's more of an athlete and less of a student. I just don't have the tolerance for it."

William J. Bennett, U.S. Secretary of Education

The Washington Post

"What we want at the Department of Education is to get drugs out of schools. Right now, no ifs, ands or buts. We strongly support drug-education programs, but almost every school in this country has a drug-education program, and we still are awash in drugs.

"We need to get tough, and we need to get tough as hell."

John Mitchell, former track coach
University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa

The Associated Press

"Alabama has had a spotless record; and because of my mistake (misunderstanding an NCAA rule that cost a female student-athlete her eligibility and the school the possible loss of two track team titles), the track team and the school have been embarrassed (and I therefore resign).

"We thought we were doing things right. I just blew it. The University of Alabama has never been on probation before. Now, I'm the guy who has caused the embarrassment.

"It was my responsibility to know the rules for her. If I could go back and change things, I'd do it. But I can't. So I felt the best thing for me to do was eliminate myself from the situation."

A $6 million appropriation for the 1981 National Youth Sports Program gained final passage in the U.S. Congress June 4, 1981. Final approval came in a House-Senate conference on the fiscal 1981 supplemental appropriation bill, H.R. 3512, after an administration request to eliminate the entire $6 million appropriation. The first Division III Baseball Championship was held June 4-6, 1976, at Marietta College. Cal State Stanislaus won its first of two consecutive titles by downing Ithaca, 13-6, in the final game. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports" and National Collegiate Championships records book)

On June 15, 1966, Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey's arbitration board directed the AAU to take no action (i.e., declaration of ineligibility) against 300 athletes who participated in U.S. Track and Field Federation meets. The board recognized the USTFF as a separate, independent entity and invited it to be represented at the arbitration hearings. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

The first championships ever sponsored by the NCAA—the National Collegiate Track and Field Championships—were held June 17-18, 1921, at the University of Chicago. Excerpted from an editorial

"When it comes to sacrificing academic standards to big-time sports, Tulane is hardly the worst offender. It was properly embarrassed last year by a basketball pay-off and point-shaving scandal and looked seriously at the compromises that energetic recruiting of athletes requires. That effort makes all the more instructive the contortions now decreed for a new set of admission 'standards.'

"The average freshman admitted at Tulane scores about 1,150 on the Scholastic Aptitude Tests. The new minimum for student-athletes is to be 850—except that it will not really be the minimum. The university proposes to allow 'special reviews' for 15 athletes each year who score even lower, provided that no more than five of these score below 700.

"And if that is not enough, the university will create an array of special controls and safeguards in the admission of 'student-athletes' to assure, among other things, that the school does not 'damage future recruiting' by having bright athletic prospects trip over forbidding academic obstacles.

"Tulane, bear in mind, was sufficiently shocked by its scandal to have suspended intercollegiate basketball, a ban that still stands.

"Tulane's new rules make clear again that big-time college sports and academic values tend to be harmonized only at the expense of academic standards, which is to say not at all."

"Competition in the workplace is much the same as it is in sports. In both, there are standards of performance, preparation, training, strategies and teamwork. Until recently, both worlds were dominated by men.

"In the past 15 years, women have become far more involved. In sports, for instance, the number of girls competing at the high school level increased five-fold; and in the professions, according to the U.S. Department of Labor, women now outnumber men.

"What exactly is the relationship among sports, business opportunities and career advancement for women, and how have attitudes changed?

"A recent study by the Women's Sports Foundation suggests that characteristics such as determination, leadership, independence, poise and self-confidence are far more likely to develop in teen-age girls who participate in sports than in those who don't. Ninety-three percent of the women questioned believe that girls who are involved in sports will be better equipped to handle competitive situations later in life.

"In the workplace, team players with just enough independent spirit are the likely winners. And men have been in training to excel since childhood. How, then, can women compete? By learning the rules and adopting their own competitive style.

"There is clearly a relationship between sports and the corporate world. The structure, lingo and concept of team play all are adapted from sports. And girls who hope to compete for career opportunities will benefit from the training that sports provide."

"As a coach, I have always emphasized the importance of a quality education, and this was a chance to support that belief (his gift of $150,000 to help build Penn State's library collection and to provide scholarships for minority students).

"I'm repaying an obligation and a debt that I owe to Penn State."

Norman Birnbach, 1986 graduate

The New York Times

"When I was younger, I thought a diploma was not unlike the Medal of Courage awarded the Cowardly Lion, that a diploma meant that I would be an adult, ready to face all the things my parents did.

"But college has not exactly prepared me for life (it hasn't even prepared me for a real job), but it is a kind of end of the road.

"When I was younger, because I had no idea of what I wanted to do, I thought I could do anything. It took me a long time to realize I can't do everything I'd like to do. (After talking with my adviser, I have finally accepted the fact that the only way I'd get into med school now is as a cadaver.) And while the realizations haven't always been pleasant... they have helped me grow up.

"And when I said college hasn't prepared me for life in the beyond, I may have spoken too soon. I am not the same person I was when I first got to college. The difference, the growth comes from the people I've met and the experiences I've had...."

"This is only the beginning of a real struggle on campus concerning whether we'll go ahead with athletics scholarships (referring to a trustees' vote permitting athletics scholarships as part of a plan to upgrade the sports program to Division I).

"I believe there is a good chance the faculty will decide not to do it. (The faculty senate vote to go ahead with the plan) 'doesn't commit them one way or another to granting aid.

"There are a lot of people in the senate who are undecided and don't want to get pushed into any commitment."

Chuck Easley, former varsity football player
Georgia Institute of Technology

Atlanta Journal

"I came to Tech with the conviction to graduate in four years. To simply delay my degree to come back and play another season was not the thing to do. After all, you can't play forever. I've enjoyed my career. It's something I'll always remember. But now, it's time to move on to something else.

"I really believe in the ideals of the scholarship (he is applying for a 1987 Rhodes scholarship). I don't know how good my chances are. I'll be disappointed if I don't make it. But at least I can take solace in the fact that I was representing Georgia Tech and the state of Georgia.

"I've had a fascination with the Rhodes scholarship since I was in junior high. I was always reading about guys like Pat Haden and Bill Bradley. I admired them in terms of what they accomplished and in terms of being total student-athletes."

Legislative Assistance

1986 Column No. 22

Out-of-season basketball practice

Under the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 3-4(b), postseason practice in basketball shall be prohibited. As set forth in O.I. 302 (page 79, 1986-87 NCAA Manual), "practice" is any meeting, activity or instruction held at the direction of, or supervised by, any member or members of an institution's coaching staff. Further, it would not be permissible for a member of an institution's coaching staff in basketball to observe student-athletes in pickup basketball games prior to October 15, even if such activities are not arranged directly by the institution's coach. These provisions are applicable to both men's and women's basketball programs.

Expenses for summer athletics competition

As set forth in NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(2)-(iii), it is not permissible for a member institution to provide expenses for a student-athlete competing in an event that occurs when the student-athlete is not regularly enrolled in a full-time program of studies during the regular academic year, or not eligible to represent the institution, except that expenses may be paid for a student-athlete to compete only in regularly scheduled intercollegiate events and established national championships occurring between terms and during the summer months, provided the student-athlete is representing his or her institution and was eligible for intercollegiate competition the preceding term, and in international competition approved by the NCAA Council. Further, as indicated in Case No. 7 (page 289, 1986-87 NCAA Manual), it is not permissible for a sponsor, other than an individual upon whom the student is naturally or legally dependent or the nonprofessional organization that is sponsoring the competition in question, to provide expenses for a student to participate in athletics competition.

As set forth in NCAA Constitution 3-1-(h)-(3), it is permissible for a member institution to provide a student-athlete actual and necessary expenses for participation in Olympic, Pan American and World University Games qualifying competition that occurs any time during the calendar year.

Waivers for summer athletics competition

As set forth in NCAA Constitution 3-9-(b)-(4)-(v), a student-athlete participating in officially recognized state and national multisport events must be sure that such events are sanctioned by the NCAA Council prior to participation. Particularly, the "state games" competition that takes place during the summer months and sponsored by the individual states would need to comply with this legislation. Further, the participation of an institution's athletics department staff member in such recognized regional, national or international training programs or competition (i.e., "state games") also must receive approval by the NCAA Council for participation per the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(6).

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations for interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, administrative assistant, in the NCAA national office no later than June 17, 1986.

Women's Softball: Replacement for Emma J. McConkie, California State University, Sacramento, resigned. Appointee must be from Division II.

COMMITTEE CHANGES

Appointments are effective immediately unless otherwise noted.

Presidents Commission: Margaret R. Preska, Mankato State University, appointed to replace Patsy Sampson (Division II).

Executive Committee: Marino H. Casem, director of athletics, Southern University, Baton Rouge, formerly at Alcorn State University. He also is a member of the Football Rules Committee, the Division I Championships Committee, the Special Committee on Measuring Athletics Program Success (MAPS) and the Football Television Committee.

Men's Basketball Rules: Jerry V. Krause, Eastern Washington University, appointed to replace James Dutcher as chair. Bob Knight, Indiana University, Bloomington, appointed to replace Dutcher, resigned.

Division III Women's Basketball: Susan M. Zawacki, Amherst College, appointed to replace Nancy J. Latimore, formerly at Juniata College.

Division I-AA Football: Benny Hollis, Northeast Louisiana University, appointed to replace I. J. Caccia, retiring from Idaho State University, effective July 1, 1986. Bruce A. Corrie, Bucknell University, replaces Caccia as chair of the committee, effective July 1, 1986.

Women's Swimming: Maura P. Costin becomes Maura P. Scalise, effective June 1986.

Postgraduate Scholarship: Daniel R. Mackesey, now at The Artery Organization, Inc., instead of David, Hagner and Harvey.

Professional Sports Liaison: Charlie Theokas, Temple University, formerly of the Atlantic 10 Conference.

Public Relations and Promotion: Debbie Harmison now is Debbie Byrne. Jane Betts, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, appointed to replace Judith M. Sweet, University of California, San Diego, resigned from the committee.

NCAA Representatives to the U.S. Olympic Committee House of Delegates: Col. Harvey Schiller, U.S. Air Force Academy, appointed to replace David L. Maggard, University of California, Berkeley, resigned as a representative.

Eligibility Rulings

Actions of the NCAA Eligibility Committee during the week of May 19:

Oregon State University

A student-athlete received an extension of the five-year period of eligibility under Bylaw 4-1-(a)-(3).

George Mason University

The eligibility of a student-athlete was restored subsequent to being withheld from the university's next six intercollegiate volleyball dates. He had been declared ineligible by the university for participating in six volleyball matches while enrolled in less than a 12-hour minimum program of studies pursuant to Bylaw 5-1-(c).

Prospective Student-Athletes

The eligibility of several prospective student-athletes (male and female) was restored subsequent to being withheld from their first intercollegiate basketball contests. The prospective student-athletes violated Bylaw 3-9-(a) by participating in an unsanctioned all-star basketball contest. The sanctions in the case apply to the prospective student-athletes at any member institutions in which they enroll.

Charlotte West, women's athletics director
Southern Illinois University, Carbondale
The Athletics Advisor

"The story of women's athletics on a college campus today is in many ways like a good news/bad news story. The good news is the phenomenal growth in the participation of women in competitive sport. The bad news is the likewise phenomenal decline in the participation of women in the administration of athletics.

"Concurrent with increases in the number of female participants and events, the number of sports for women, the number and quality of coaches, uniforms and equipment, the amount and number of athletics scholarships, the amount of media coverage, and other areas of athletics have all improved or increased. Such changes are encouraging, and improvement has been truly significant. However, even more than a dozen years after Title IX became Federal law and even with progress toward equality, discriminatory practices in collegiate sport are by far the rule rather than the exception.

"Although the weakening of Title IX legislation is anything but good news, that issue is not the worst of the bad news. The truly bad news involves the decline in the number of women in the administration of athletics...."

"Since the NCAA assumed control of women's sports, leadership opportunities for women have decreased from approximately 1,000 to 500 positions. Representation of women on NCAA committees is approaching 31 percent, but some important NCAA committees...noticeably lack representation by any women directly involved in athletics administration. Factors of this type are viewed as troublesome by women.

"The assumption that women should formulate policy for women's programs and men should formulate policy for men's programs is outdated and has little basis in fact.

"It is unfortunate that women are excluded from the decision-making processes within so many institutions. In order to ensure the most effective and educationally sound experience for all students involved in athletics, leadership should involve a cross-section from the population at large. Role models of each sex and race are important in the healthy development of all persons. The destiny of the female athlete and, similarly, the destiny of the male athlete should be plotted and guided by women as well as men."

"The use of drugs to improve performances in the United States is as high as it is anywhere. It is higher, in my opinion, than in some of the East European countries."

Hall of fame medal to go to Morton

William H. "Air Mail Bill" Morton, retired president of the American Express Company and Dartmouth College football hall of fame, has been named the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame's Gold Medal recipient for 1986.

In making the announcement, Vincent dePaul Draddy, director of the foundation, said, "Bill Morton stands for everything that is good in football. He excelled as a player on the high school and college levels and won all-America acclaim at Dartmouth. He succeeded in business and became one of the nation's top investment bankers. He is admired and respected by all who have known him. He is most deserving of the foundation's coveted award."

Morton, a native of New Rochelle, New York, will be honored at the foundation's 29th annual Hall of Fame Awards Dinner December 9 in New York City.

Also an all-America in hockey, Morton (a quarterback) graduated from Dartmouth in 1932 and received an honorary doctor of law degree from his alma mater in 1982.

The gold medal has been presented to six men who served as President of the United States, captains of business and industry, war heroes, and education and athletics leaders.

Morton becomes the sixth member of the football hall of fame to win the award. Others include Byron (Whizzer) White of Colorado, Amos Alonzo Stagg of Yale, Don Lourie of Princeton, Col. Earl (Red) Blaik of Army and Dartmouth, and Adm. Tom Hamilton of Navy.

"Intercollegiate sports is at a crucial turning point, and we all are dying financially.

"Basketball is going down the tubes financially, and there's turmoil in our (Southwest Athletic Conference) league. We're going to have to be careful that we don't destroy something that has been good to us.

"College administrators are tired of athletics embarrassing the university. Attitudes are going to have to change. We're going to have to be careful or we're going to run the collegiate sports fans off. There are just too much drugs and cheating.

"We have to look for ways to improve our (conference) programs or the press will shut our business down. We're going to see some rocky roads in the next five years."

"I don't know where to pin the blame (for NCAA placing Memphis State University on probation). I just do not know enough about the facts, but I have heard from some of my constituents who have called to say they are not that mad at the NCAA. "There are too many athletes on campus who don't qualify to be there. That will always be a problem until the standards of admission are brought up.

"The image of college football has suffered. The requirements to attend college have been so lax that it has been an embarrassment."

Perez' one-hitter gives Troy State a championship

Senior Mike Perez pitched a one-hitter and designated hitter Glen Willis doubled in two runs in the fourth inning to lead Troy State past Columbus, 5-0, in the title game of the Division II Baseball Championship.

The title is the first ever for the Trojans, who hosted the championship for the second consecutive year at Montgomery, Alabama, May 24-28.

Troy State, 47-15, finished the tournament undefeated, although the Trojans had to rally from a 6-2 deficit late in their opening game against Mankato State to win, 8-6. After scoring two in the top of the eighth inning and four runs in the ninth to beat the Mavericks, Troy State never again trailed an opponent through the remainder of the tournament.

Against Columbus, Perez struck out seven while walking only three to become the third Troy State pitcher to turn in a complete-game victory in the tournament. Also going the distance were Ron Warren in a 7-5 victory over New Haven and Jody Ryan in a 9-1 win over Cal State Sacramento that put the Trojans into the championship game.

Wendell Stephens, Troy State's third baseman, was named the tournament's most valuable player. He had five hits, including two home runs, in 16 at-bats for a .313 average and also doubled once and stole a base.

Other Trojans joining Stephens on the all-tournament team were Perez, Warren, Ryan, Vince Kindred and Warren Arrington. Also named to the team were Hector Lozada and Chip Duncan of Columbus, Bob Crump and Kevin Ohama of Cal State Sacramento, Les Wallin of New Haven, Joe Marchese of Mankato State, and Rodney Erhard of Tampa.

Runner-up Columbus completed its most successful season ever with a 34-23 record. The Cougars recovered from an opening 11-7 loss to New Haven to beat Cal State Sacramento, 6-5, in 11 innings and Mankato State, 14-12, and advance to the championship game.

Marietta bests Ithaca for Division III baseball championship

Marietta beat Ithaca twice in the last two days and came back from a 6-1 deficit against the Bombers in the final game to claim the 1986 Division III Baseball Championship.

The title is the third for the Pioneers, who again hosted the tournament May 29-June 2 in Marietta, Ohio.

Ithaca triumphed in a second-round showdown with the Pioneers after beating defending champion Wisconsin-Oshkosh, the nation's top-ranked Division III team, in the first round. Then, after a win over Montclair State, Ithaca sat back as Marietta fought its way past Methodist and Montclair State to set up the two-game rematch with the Bombers.

Marietta third baseman Mike Brandts was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Softball all-Americans announced

Cal State Fullerton pitcher Susan LeFebvre, who helped the Titans to the 1986 Division I women's softball title, was one of two Titans named to the Division I all-America team by the National Softball Coaches Association.

LeFebvre, 31-6-1 for the season, was 2-0 in the NCAA softball tournament. She was joined by teammate and outfielder Chenita Rogers, whose seven hits led all batters in the tournament.

The only other team with more than one player selected to the all-America list is Indiana. Pitcher Amy Unterbrink and outfielder Karleen Moore were selected. Moore was named to the second team in 1985.

The other pitcher selected to the first team was Louisiana Tech's Stacey Johnson. Other repeat all-America selections were second baseman Alison Stowell, Cal Poly-Pomona, named to the outfield on the second team last year, and Texas A&M third baseman Cindy Cooper, who was second in hitting to Rogers in the NCAA championship with six. The Aggies were runners-up in the tournament.

For the second year in a row, Stephen F. Austin State pitcher Pam Clay was named to the Division II all-America first team. Clay pitched her team to the division championship last month, allowing one run in 38 innings. Also selected for the second time were pitchers Kathy Slaten, Cal

State Northridge, and Debbie Tidy, Sacred Heart, and outfielders Barbara Jordan, Cal State Northridge, and Stella Castro, S. F. Austin State.

The third selection to the first team from S. F. Austin State was catcher Penni Lewis.

Division III champion Eastern Connecticut State, Trenton State and Allegheny each had two players selected to the first team Division III list of all-Americans.

Pitcher Kim Durocher, who was 5-0 in the tournament and led Eastern Connecticut to the title, was joined by teammate Trish Wodatch, outfielder. Trenton State's two selections were third baseman Tracey Warren and utility player Dian Klveg. Allegheny placed second baseman Gia Celvlaro and outfielder Melissa Vogel on the list.

Cowboys' loss to Wake Forest spoils Verplank's win

Scott Verplank did not enjoy the thrill of victory at the 89th annual NCAA Division I Men's Golf Championships.

The Oklahoma State senior ended his brilliant collegiate career with a six-under-par 282 on the 7,079-yard Bermuda Run Country Club course to outdistance runner-up Mike Standly of Houston by four strokes for individual honors. But his team's runner-up finish (by four strokes) to host Wake Forest had Verplank agonizing over the outcome of the tournament.

"Now I guess you'll believe me when I tell you that the team is more important," Verplank told reporters as he wiped tears from his eyes. "I didn't play that great, but no one came out and did to me what Wake Forest did to our team. I didn't know Wake was going so well. They must have gone by us on the back nine."

"Maybe in a week or two I'll feel better about what I did. But right now, it's rather insignificant. I didn't even know I had won until they told me the score."

No one had to tell Wake Forest coach Jesse Haddock the score after his squad shot a 14-over-par 302 to enter the final round 16 strokes behind Oklahoma State, which eventually finished second for the third consecutive year.

Haddock called a team meeting before the final round of the May 28-31 championships that evidently woke Wake Forest up.

"There was no profanity, no vulgarity," Haddock said. "I told them that today is another day; that there were a couple of things that we failed to do, and what we needed to do would take discipline and patience."

Chris Kite fired a final-round 66, and Len Mattiace and Billy Andrade, both of whom tied for 14th place with 290s, each shot 69s to rally the Demon Deacons to the team championship with a final round of 10-under-par 278 and a four-round total of 1,156. Kite led the team over four rounds with a one-over-par 289 to finish 13th. Tim Straub finished at 294 and Barry Fabyan shot 302 to round out the scoring for Wake Forest, winners of the 1974 and 1975 team titles.

"We were a team for a change," Kite said. "A couple of guys had just wanted to be 'me-players,' but we have come together the last two months. We wanted the team to do it."

Oklahoma State, which started the final round eight strokes ahead of the field, finished second after shooting a final-round 298. Oklahoma finished third with a 1,163 total, followed by Brigham Young with 1,167 and defending champion Houston with 1,169.

Verplank got off to a good start in the final round with a 15-foot birdie putt on the first hole, a 20-foot birdie putt on the second and a five-foot birdie putt on the sixth. He missed birdie putts on the seventh, eighth and ninth and finished the front nine with a 33.

Verplank, who won the Professional Golfers Association's Western Open last summer to become the first amateur in 31 years to win a PGA tour event, double-bogeyed the 10th when his ball went out of bounds, then bogeyed the 14th when he three-putted and the ball lipped the cup. He shot into a bunker on the 15th and two-putted for the bogey that left him one over par for the day.

Houston's Mike Standly finished second at 286, followed by five golfers tied for third.

Kite bogeyed the fourth hole after he shot into the rough but recovered with an eight-foot birdie putt on the sixth and a seven-foot birdie putt on the ninth. After birdies on the 10th and 11th holes, Kite scored an eagle on the 13th when he holed a 130-foot shot with a 9-iron. He then parred the 15th with a 12-foot putt, birdied the 17th and parred the 18th with an 18-foot putt.

Wake Forest's victory marked the second time this year that the Demon Deacons rallied past Oklahoma State. Wake Forest made up seven strokes to beat Oklahoma State at last Sep-

"Wake just played a great 18 holes of golf," Oklahoma State coach Mike Holder said. "Any time you can shoot 10 under par on a golf course like this, you deserve to win."

Florida becomes first women's team to defend golf title

Led by medalist Page Dunlap, Florida became the first team to win back-to-back NCAA Women's Golf Championships team titles by defeating Miami (Florida) by eight strokes on Ohio State's Scarlet Course.

Florida, which finished with a 12-over-par 1,180 team total at the May 28-31 championships, displayed its depth with three golfers finishing among the top 12 leaders. Karen Davies, shooting a final-round 76, finished in a five-way tie for seventh with a 296 total. Lisa Nedoba matched the round's lowest score with a 71 for a 297 total and 12th-place finish. Cheryl Morley and Lisa Stanley finished tied for 27th and 34th, respectively.

Miami, which won the team title in 1984, was paced by Jill Briles' and Joy McAvoy's seventh-place finishes. The Hurricanes finished with a 1,188 team total. Southern California finished in third place, 22 strokes off the pace with 1,202.

Louisianians observe Eddie Robinson Day

"I keep kidding the younger coaches that I'll stay in coaching as long as I can keep up with them," said Grambling State University coach Eddie Robinson, the winningest coach in college football history.

Robinson, 67, spoke May 31 at a news conference in Baton Rouge during Eddie Robinson Day, proclaimed in his honor by Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana.

"I would like to coach, to compete, as long as I can," Robinson said.

Robinson has three more years before he reaches mandatory retirement age.

His Grambling State Tigers handed him his 329th career victory last season. The late Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama had 323.

A $50-a-plate dinner capped the special celebration for Robinson, a man who never sought such acclaim.

In his 45 years at Grambling, Robinson has sent over 200 players into professional football.

One was Paul "Tank" Younger, who in 1948 became the first player to enter the National Football League from a predominantly black school.

Another was Willie Davis, who retired from the NFL after finishing his career playing for the Green Bay Packers from 1960 to 1969.

"Players from Grambling might have had such success in the NFL because they only had to make minimum adjustments at NFL training camps," Davis said at the news conference. "These players owe that to Eddie Robinson."

Another one of Robinson's players was James Harris, the first black quarterback in pro football. He started with the Buffalo Bills in 1969.

Robinson himself has often been mentioned as possibly becoming the first black coach in the NFL.

"I firmly feel that if I wanted to coach in the National Football League," he said, "I would have been slapping and hitting on doors until somebody let me in. That's what the young coaches have to do today."

Robinson customarily shuns attention and passes the accolades to his assistants and players.

"This record is everybody's at Grambling," he said last season.

When he took the job as Grambling head coach in 1941, he had no paid assistants, no groundskeepers, no trainers and little equipment.

Robinson also remembers when he had to line his own field and make lunch meat sandwiches for away games because his players couldn't eat in segregated restaurants.

In 1968, Robinson was finally persuaded to take his football show on

That year, Howard Cosell and Jerry Izenberg produced the Grambling documentary "100 Yards to Glory," and all three major television networks began to focus on Grambling football.

North-South all-star lacrosse set June 14

Here are the 56 seniors selected to participate:

South

Johns Hopkins' Del Dressel leads lacrosse all-America

Players from the semifinalist teams in the NCAA Men's Division I Lacrosse Championship claimed 28 spots on the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association Division I all-America team.

Semifinalist Syracuse led the way with eight players, and finalist Virginia placed seven players on the squad. The 1986 champion, North Carolina, and semifinalist Johns Hopkins each had six players named to the team. Maryland and Massachusetts each had four selections and were the only other schools to have more than three players named to the list of 68 choices representing 25 schools.

The selections were made by a committee of the Lacrosse Coaches Association.

Del Dressel of Johns Hopkins became only the third player ever to make the first team four times, joining Doug Turnbull of Johns Hopkins (1922-25) and Frank Urso of Maryland (1973-76).

Other repeaters from last year's first team are Brian Wood of Johns Hopkins, Kevin Sheehan of Syracuse, John DeTommaso of Johns Hopkins and Tom Haus of North Carolina. Players making the move from last year's second team include Roddy Marino of Virginia, Glen Miles of Navy and Todd Curry of Syracuse.

Peter Sheehan of Virginia, Craig Bubier of Johns Hopkins, Wood, Curry and Haus are juniors, and Tom Worstell of Maryland is a sophomore. All of the other first-teamers are seniors.

Dressel and DeTommaso each made all-America for the fourth time. The Atlantic Coast Conference dominated the choices with 18 selections, followed by the Big East (eight), Ivy League (six) and East Coast Atlantic (three).

The all-America team members will be honored at a luncheon in Baltimore June 14.

Here are the complete Division I all-America selections:

Division I

CFA votes to propose ban on boosters in recruiting process

The College Football Association has taken a stern step to ban boosters from recruiting.

Texas Christian University coach Jim Wacker, who was burned by cash-delivering boosters, said it was a big step for collegiate football to "clean up our act."

The CFA voted June 1 to get boosters out of recruiting, limit head coaches to one contact per prospect and cut scholarships from 30 to 25 a year, the Associated Press reported.

The proposals will be submitted

"Since nothing has been set in concrete regarding the drug-testing at championships (e.g., how many athletes will be tested, when tests will take place, etc.), it was difficult for those individuals to answer specific questions," Walsh said. "However, I believe everyone left the forums with a better understanding of what to expect."

Leavens said that feedback indicates those in attendance would have appreciated more opportunities for discussion in divisional settings and more opportunities to review and seek information on specific interpretations of NCAA rules.

"We tended to have more primary athletics administrators in attendance at the forums than we had at NCAA rules seminars, so we assumed these individuals had a basic knowledge of the Manual and attempted to fill in the gaps for them," Leavens explained. "Even though our attendance was roughly the same for the forums as it had been for the rules seminars, we had more member institutions represented this year. Most of those repre-

Junior team to be selected in June

Junior Pan-American and world championships in track and field will be held this summer.

Orlando, Florida, is the site for the July 4-6 Junior Pan-American Championships, and Athens, Greece, will host the first World Junior Championships July 16-20. Between these two meets, the U.S. junior team will meet its counterpart from Romania in that country's capital, Bucharest.

Qualification trials for the U.S. junior team, which will compete in these meets, will be at the U.S. National Junior Championships to be held at Towson State University June 28-29. The top two athletes in most events, plus relay runners, will be selected from this competition. TAC/USA will pay all expenses for athletes making the team and furnish them a U.S. national uniform.

A junior athlete is defined as a woman who does not reach her 19th birthday in the year of competition or a man who does not reach his 20th birthday. This means that this year, women born in 1968 or later and men born in 1967 or later are eligible as juniors. The National Junior Championships have a minimum-age limitation, in addition to the maximum one. Women must have been 14 years old by January of this year, and men must be 14 on the dates of their competition in the junior nationals.

Entry forms, qualification standards and other detailed information may be obtained by contacting Jack Pfeifer, Junior National Championships, P.O. Box 22683, Baltimore, Maryland 21203, phone 301/522-0811 (no collect calls will be accepted).

Bluebonnet set at Rice

The board of directors of the Greater Houston Bowl Association, sponsor of the annual Bluebonnet Bowl football game, has voted to play the game in Rice Stadium again. The 1986 game will be played on the afternoon of December 31. The exact time will be announced later.

next January to the NCAA Convention in San Diego. The Pacific-10 and Big Ten are not members of the CFA.

The full CFA convention adopted a proposal by coaches that will prohibit representatives of athletics interests from all recruiting, including telephone calls and letters, until a prospect signs a grant-in-aid.

Wacker said it was important for the CFA to recognize the fact that alumni are out of control.

"It's the problem we face more than any single thing. We have to keep the alumni out of recruiting," Wacker said.

TCU was recently hit with two years of sanctions from the NCAA because a booster gave players cash. This happened before Wacker became head coach. He turned over all evidence to the NCAA when he discovered what had happened.

Another Southwest Athletic Conference school, Southern Methodist University, was placed on three years' probation last September. Many of the violations against the Mustangs were created by overzealous alumni.

"This is a big step and long overdue," said SMU athletics director Robert L. Hitch.

University of Georgia coach Vincent J. Dooley said he felt the proposal to bounce the boosters would pass in the NCAA Convention.

"The chances are good," Dooley said. "Ninety-seven percent of the alumni have the university at heart.

But there are always a few who can cause problems. Most violations involve boosters. This legislation is in the best interest of intercollegiate athletics."

Charles M. Neinas, executive director of the CFA, said "I'd be entirely surprised if our recruitment package was not passed by the NCAA. We had an NCAA representative who sat with our coaches and saw the widespread endorsement of it."

Dooley also said CFA approval of a proposal that initial scholarships be reduced from 30 to 25 and the overall limit be increased from 95 to 100 "was very significant legislation."

He said the 10th annual CFA convention had become "a landmark meeting" because of the recommendations it approved.

"The limiting of boosters and scholarships is very significant legislation," he said.

Some of the other items approved by the full CFA membership included:

—Support of Proposition 48 [By-law 5-1-(j)], which sets new eligibility standards for freshmen at Division I schools.

—Opposition to a proposal that athletes be allowed five years of eligibility.

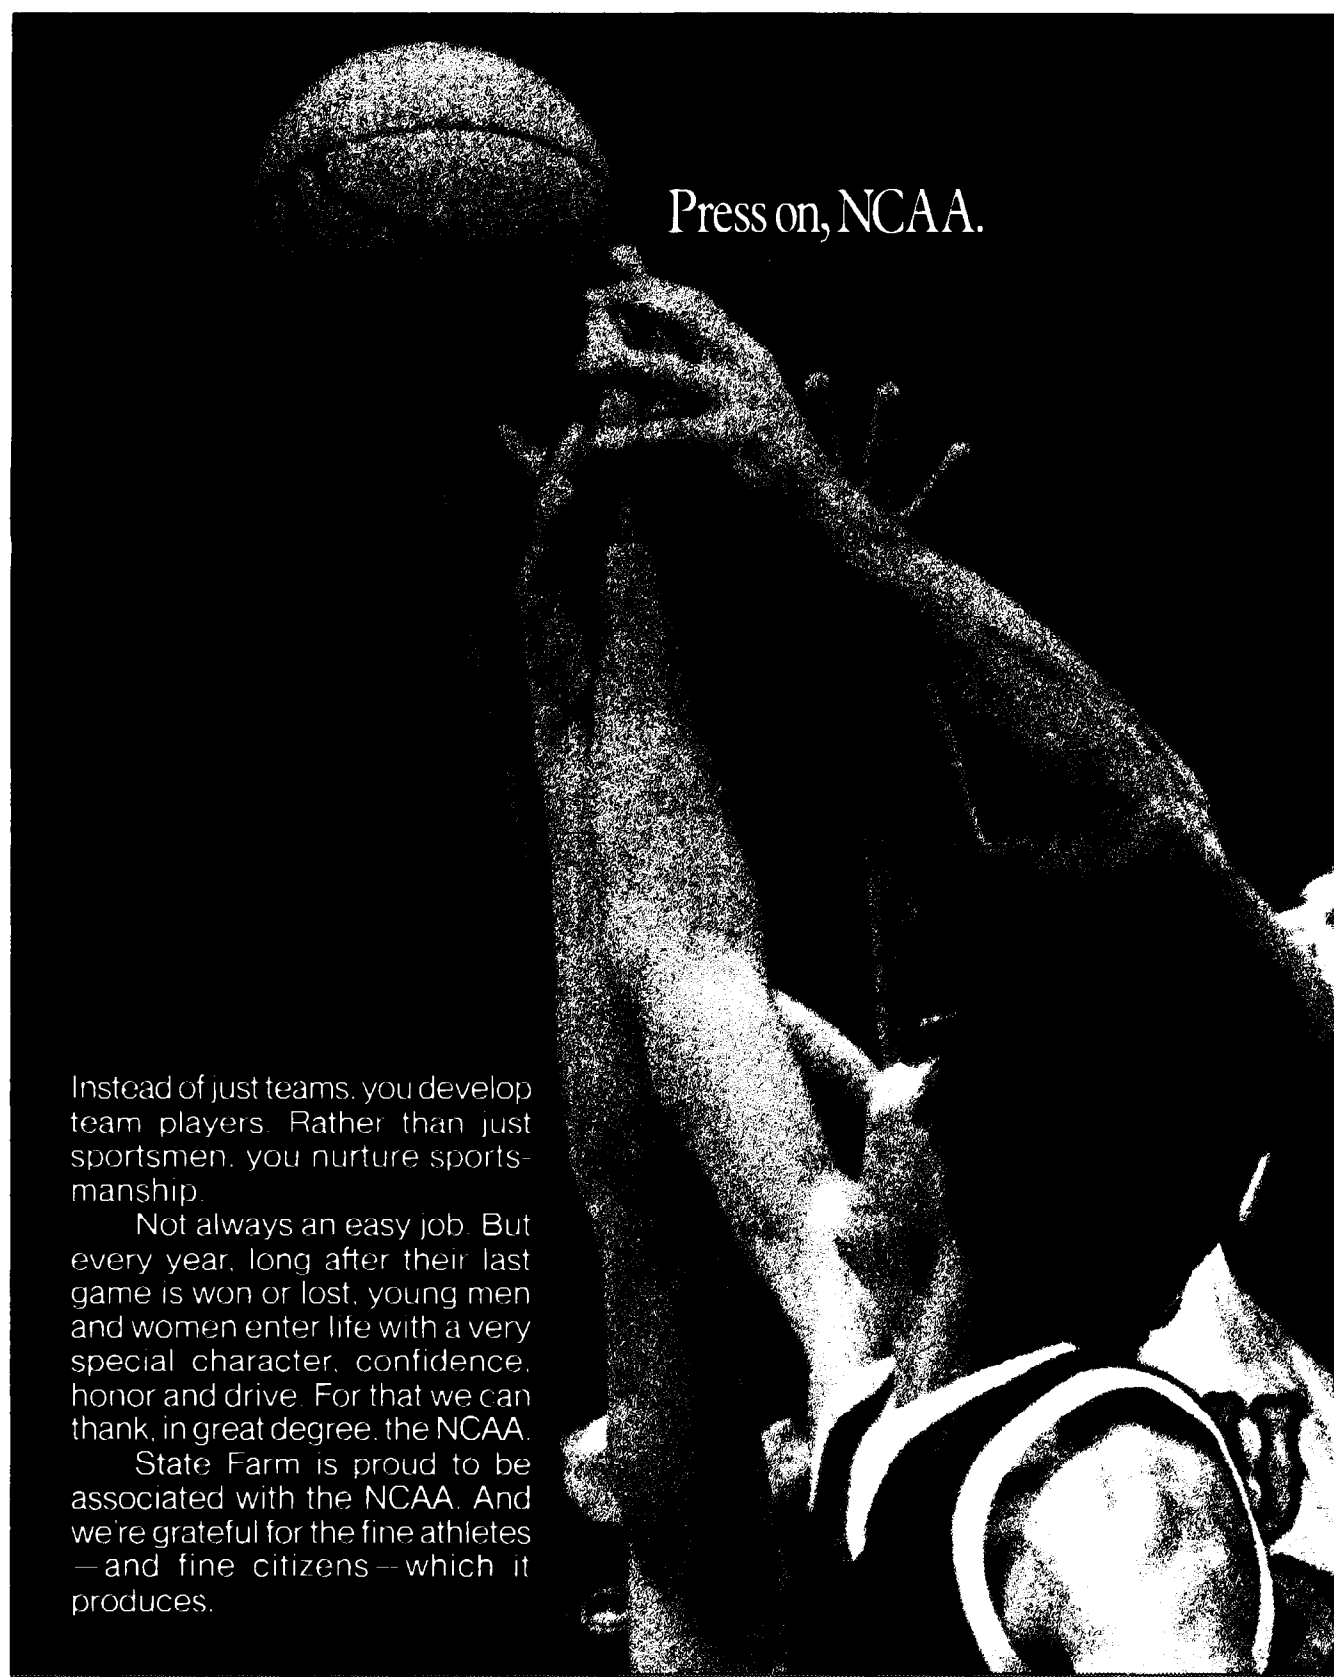

—Support of freshman eligibility.

—Recommendation that three junior varsity football games be allowed each year.

—Approval of the appointment of a committee to evaluate the future of postseason football in the long-range interest of intercollegiate athletics.

—Rejection of a proposal that a spring-training football game against another university be allowed as a fund-raising vehicle.

The CFA ended its convention in Dallas with Martin A. Massengale, chancellor of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, being named the new chair of the CFA board.

Press on, NCAA.

Instead of just teams, you develop team players. Rather than just sportsmen, you nurture sportsmanship.

Not always an easy job. But every year, long after their last game is won or lost, young men and women enter life with a very special character, confidence, honor and drive. For that we can thank, in great degree, the NCAA.

State Farm is proud to be associated with the NCAA. And we're grateful for the fine athletes—and fine citizens—which it produces.

Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

Competitive safeguards committee issues recommended policies

New policy statements regarding eating disorders, mouthguards and the occurrence of menstrual-cycle irregularity among athletes will be recommended by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports, which met May 6-7 in San Francisco.

The committee also discussed ways to handle conflicts of interest that potentially could arise when equipment manufacturers seek out individual members of the panel for consultation.

Drafts of the three new policy statements were reviewed during the meeting by committee members, who also reviewed and made revisions in existing policies that are included in the NCAA Sports Medicine Handbook. Final drafts of the new policies are expected to be ready for presentation to the NCAA Council in August.

The eating-disorders policy suggests ways of helping the "significant number" of student-athletes who are affected by anorexia nervosa and bulimia.

Anorexics typically subject themselves to "semistarvation" because they "perceive themselves as overly fat and therefore more noncompetitive than they otherwise might be," according to the policy draft. Bulimics, on the other hand, typically attempt to relieve what they perceive as tension or depression through "binges" of excessive eating, followed by induced elimination of the food from their bodies.

The prevalence of these disorders is "markedly higher among women than men," according to the policy, which notes that "development of these debilitating conditions commonly occurs in the freshman year when the student-athlete, often living away from home for the first time, is introduced to a variety of new pressures; e.g. making grades, achieving as an athlete, making friends and being accepted."

The policy states, "eating disorders are not easy to treat, for a sense of worth and well-being must be achieved. Behavioral modification should emanate from professional assistance through nutritional, psychological or psychiatric counseling. Coaches and trainers must be alert to the need for professional assistance, including competent medical evaluations."

"The establishment of support groups, access to counseling and a 'hot line' are helpful procedures, for it is important to eliminate the shame the athlete no doubt feels. The athlete must talk candidly about the disorder and gain psychological support through interchange with others whom the athlete respects."

In its mouthguards policy, the committee draws from the work of various researchers to describe what constitutes an ideal mouthguard and offers specific reasons for its use.

"The ideal mouthguard is one that fits between the upper and lower teeth without hampering breathing; does not have to be held in position; can be chewed without deforming or changing shape; has an external attaching point to allow easy removal, and covers all of the upper teeth, except the last two molars of those players over 14 (years old)," the policy states.

Of three types of mouthguards that are available, the policy indicates a preference for "custom-fitted mouthguards made of latex or plastic sheets formed over a cast with a vacuum apparatus," but recognizes their cost may be a "limiting factor" for teams.

Reasons for using the guards are that "basic mouthguard designs aim at reducing potential chipping of the tooth enamel surfaces and reducing fractures of the tooth, root and bone; the mouthguard material protects the lip and cheek tissues from being impacted and lacerated against tooth edges," and they reduce "the number of fractured jaws caused by blows coming from under the jaw" and "the incidence of concussion by partially absorbing energy from blows to the chin."

The policy also urges that coaches, athletes and medical staffs be educated in the mouthguard's protective functions and that rules requiring the guards' use be enforced.

"Too often a player is seen 'wearing' a mouthguard by having it dangle from his face mask or is found to have a small piece of plastic in his mouth that barely covers his two front teeth. This defeats the protective purpose intended for the mouthguard," the policy states. "The evidence seems to indicate that the mouthguard is effective in reducing dental and certain head injuries."

The committee's third proposed policy statement deals with athletic oligoamenorrhea—the term for menstrual cycles that occur at irregular intervals ranging from 39 to 90 days or even longer among women athletes.

The policy describes the condition and the hazards that potentially exist for women who experience oligoamenorreia and advises that women who are affected should be referred to a physician for evaluation—in part to ensure that pregnancy or serious endocrine disorders are first ruled out as causes.

While only five percent of the general population experiences oligoamenorrhea, 20 percent of exercising women and approximately 50 percent of competitive athletic women have been affected by the condition, according to the policy.

A primary concern of researchers is determining whether women who are affected fail to ovulate.

"In many cases, the women are ovulating but not menstruating. In other cases, they are menstruating but not ovulating," the policy notes. "The central issue is whether the ovaries are functioning to produce estrogen."

"It is the relative estrogen loss that may be responsible for the disturbing recent findings of decreased mineral in the vertebrae of young amenorrheic women (those whose menstrual cycles occur at intervals longer than 90 days)."

According to the policy, "the accumulated evidence strongly implicates intensive regular training as the direct cause of exercise-induced amenorrhea. It is not understood how chronic exercise stimulates changes in the menstrual cycle, but it is known that profound changes occur in the circulating levels of the hormones required for normal ovulatory cyclic menses. These changes differ in trained and untrained women."

Two resulting concerns for amenorrheic athletes are effects on the potential for future childbearing and the early onset of spine, hip and wrist fractures resulting from bone mineral loss that commonly are seen in elderly women.

"Additional research needs to be done in the area of amenorrhea-associated bone mineral loss in order to develop specific guidelines and prognoses for the amenorrheic athlete," the policy states.

Meanwhile, a diagnosis of "exercise-induced amenorrhea" should not be made until a physician rules out pregnancy or "other, more serious endocrine disorders," the policy recommends.

In addition to reviewing the Sports Medicine Handbook, the committee agreed to ask the Council to consider actions that would deal with the potential for conflicts of interest involving members of the committee.

The issue was raised by committee member Carl S. Blyth of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, who pointed out that it is not uncommon for equipment manufacturers to seek advice from members of the panel and that members could be asked to serve as consultants for such firms.

After discussion, the committee decided to recommend that the Council consider prohibiting or requiring full disclosure of consultation arrangements.

Two appearances set for planning committee

Two special appearances highlight the agenda for the NCAA Long Range Planning Committee's June 5-6 meeting at the Alameda Plaza Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri.

Representatives of the National Association of Academic Advisers for Athletics and the Collegiate Com-

Caton named president of Southland

Irma Caton, a physical education professor and faculty athletics representative at North Texas State University, has been named to a two-year term as president of the Southland Conference.

She is one of the first women to serve as president of a Division I conference.

"I don't really think being a woman is an issue," she told the Dallas Morning News. "I think it's nice to have a female. We do have women in our conference, and it's nice to also have women in the conference administration."

The conference is composed of North Texas State, Lamar University, Northeast Louisiana University, Louisiana Tech University, McNeese State University and Arkansas State University.

missioners Association will appear before the committee June 5, both at the invitation of the planning committee.

G. Lynn Lashbrook, president of the NAAAA, will discuss that organization's long-range concerns. Formerly athletics academic adviser at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Lashbrook now is director of athletics at Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville.

Carl C. James, commissioner of the Big Eight Conference, will discuss the signing dates employed in the Collegiate Commissioners Association's National Letter of Intent program. The Long Range Planning Committee has expressed concern in past meetings regarding signing dates that can result in institutions' signing prospective student-athletes before it is known if they are admissible to the institutions.

Other major topics on the committee's June agenda:

- Discussion of the long-range impact of television developments on college athletics.

- NCAA relationships with institutional financial aid officers.

- Concerns regarding the concept of automatic qualification for NCAA championships and certain actions of NCAA sports committees in that regard.

Among the other agenda items are continuing consideration of codes of ethics for college athletics, including a possible institutional code of responsibility; additional consideration of opportunities for women in athletics, and the committee's annual review of conference alignments for men's and women's athletics.

Committee Chair William J. Flynn, director of athletics at Boston College and former NCAA president and secretary-treasurer, will preside.

Academies may have game of the week

Summit Sports, a Colorado Springs, Colorado, production company, has reached tentative agreement with the athletics departments of the nation's three major military academies to

ESPN extends pact with CFA to 1990

ESPN and the College Football Association have extended their agreement for four years, calling for the network to telecast CFA games on a national cable basis in prime time through 1990, officials announced June 2.

Under the agreement, ESPN will televise 16 CFA games, mainly on Saturday nights, each season from 1987 through 1990.

This fall will mark the third year of CFA telecasts.

CFA games were ESPN's highest rated series in 1984 and 1985, the network said.

Four members of the committee will be attending their final meeting: Jay Bilas, student-athlete, Duke University; Arthur J. McAfee Jr., director of athletics, Morehouse College; Mary Jean Mulvaney, director of athletics, University of Chicago, and J. Neils Thompson, former faculty athletics representative and former NCAA president, University of Texas, Austin.

televising an academy football game of the week this fall.

Summit Sports is in the process of selling an 11-game schedule of games involving Air Force, Army and Navy to television stations across the country.

Ron DeLorenzo, Summit president, said he has signed contracts with stations in about 30 cities.

"I'd say it's about a 90 percent go at this point, and I'm sure it'll be 100 percent by the end of the month," said DeLorenzo. "We hope to make a formal announcement in New York June 1."

Included in the tentative schedule for Summit's "Freedom Football Network" are five Air Force games—home games against Hawaii, Wyoming, Colorado State and Navy and a road game against Army.

Army is to be featured six times, while Navy is scheduled for five TV games. Alternative games are listed on the tentative schedule three times.

Schedule difficulty causes disbanding of hockey league

Citing scheduling problems and a "feeling of inequity" among its members, the 10-school New York Collegiate Hockey Association has disbanded after nine years of operation.

Athletics directors at eight of nine schools returning a ballot voted to disband, although seven indicated they favor honoring verbal agreements for games next season, said conference President John Spring.

"A number of schools face schedule restrictions or want the flexibility to schedule opponents from outside the conference and in other regions," explained Spring, the director of athletics at Oswego State University College. "We also anticipate some expansion of the State University of New York Athletic Conference in ice hockey and in Eastern College Athletic Conference Division III that will add games to the schedule."

"In addition, there is a feeling of inequity in the NYCHA, in that some schools have not been competitive in the conference and were absorbing a number of losses," he said.

The conference, which was formed in 1977, competed in NCAA Division II for its first six years and in Division III for the past three years. It was represented in the Division II or Division III championship every year except 1979.

Memphis State placed on NCAA probation for two years

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has placed Memphis State University on probation for two years as a result of violations that surfaced primarily through an audit conducted by the State University and Community College System of Tennessee.

The audit indicated that approximately 60 student-athletes received approximately $58,000 in excessive financial assistance over a four-year period at the university.

The NCAA penalty will prohibit the men's basketball team from participating in the 1987 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship or in any other postseason competition during the 1986-87 academic year.

As a result of the ineligible participation of certain basketball team members, the university also will be required to return $676,709 to the Association from the university's participation in the 1985 Division I Men's Basketball Championship and $1,657 from its participation in the 1985 Division I Women's Basketball Championship. Approximately $300,708 also will be withheld by the Association from the university's share of revenue from the 1986 Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

In addition, the men's basketball team records in NCAA championship events from 1982 through 1986 and the women's team records in 1985 shall be deleted; the teams' places in these events shall be vacated, and any team trophies earned by the university will be returned to the Association.

No penalty was imposed in regard to television appearances, and the university's basketball teams remain eligible for such appearances.

Grant-in-aid limitations were imposed in football, and only 25 new recruits will be permitted to receive initial athletically related financial aid for the 1987-88 academic year (rather than the normal 30).

One outside athletics representative who was involved in the case will be disassociated from involvement in the intercollegiate athletics program at the university during the probationary period.

"Numerous student-athletes who received excessive financial assistance were permitted to participate in intercollegiate competition at the university while ineligible," said Frank J. Remington, chair, NCAA Committee on Infractions. "NCAA regulations clearly provide that individuals who receive financial aid in excess of room, board, tuition, fees and course-related books, plus $900 from Pell Grant funds, are ineligible for further competition. The committee was concerned that prior to participating in NCAA championships competition in the spring of 1985 and again in 1986, sufficient information was available to determine the eligibility status of basketball team members. This concern was heightened by the fact that use of Pell Grant funds has been considered often in recent years at NCAA Conventions.

"The committee believes, therefore, that the penalties imposed in this case are fully appropriate, and that they ensure a meaningful consequence for the improper advantage gained by the university through the use of ineligible team members in NCAA championship play."

The violations found in the case involved excessive financial aid, the use of luxury automobiles by a basketball team member and the promise of improper financial assistance to a prospective football player by an outside athletics representative.

The following is a complete text of the penalty imposed upon Memphis State University and a summary of the violations found in the case.

Penalty to be imposed upon institution

1. Memphis State University shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of two years, effective May 28, 1986, it being understood that should any portion of the penalty in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalty shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions.

2. The university's intercollegiate men's basketball team shall end its 1986-87 basketball season with the playing of its last regularly scheduled, in-season contest and shall not be eligible to participate in the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship or any other postseason competition following that season.

3. In accordance with the provisions of NCAA Executive Regulation 1-3(j), the university shall be required to return $676,709 to the NCAA national office from its participation in the 1985 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship (90 percent of its share of net receipts) and $1,657 for its participation in the 1985 NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship (90 percent of its share of net receipts); further, the NCAA shall withhold 90 percent of the university's share of net receipts from its participation in the 1986 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship (estimated to be approximately $300,708); further, the record of the university's performance in the 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985 and 1986 men's and 1985 women's NCAA championships shall be deleted; the teams' places in the final standings shall be vacated, and the team trophies earned in these events by the university shall be returned to the Association.

4. During the 1987-88 academic year, no more than 25 student-athletes in the sport of football shall be awarded initial, athletically related financial aid (as set forth in O.I. 600) that has been arranged or awarded by Memphis

State University.

5. One institutional representative will be precluded from involvement in any activities associated with the university's intercollegiate athletics program during the probationary period.

Summary of violations of NCAA legislation

1. Violations of the provisions governing financial aid, eligibility and institutional control [NCAA Constitution 3-4(d)-(2)-(iv), Bylaw 5-1-(b) and Executive Regulation 1-3(j)]—(a) During the 1980-81, 1981-82, 1982-83 and 1983-84 academic years, numerous student-athletes received Pell Grant funds (a total of approximately $58,000), which, when combined with institutionally administered financial aid for tuition, fees, room and board, and required course-related books, exceeded the permissible limit for such aid under NCAA legislation. Specifically, during the 1980-81 academic year, approximately 26 student-athletes received a total of approximately $12,000 in excess of the permissible limit; during the 1981-82 academic year, approximately 31 student-athletes received a total of approximately $17,000 in excess of the permissible limit; during the 1982-83 academic year, approximately 31 student-athletes received a total of approximately $17,000 in excess of the permissible limit, and during the 1983-84 academic year, approximately 21 student-athletes received a total of approximately $12,000 in excess of the permissible limit, and

(b) the violation set forth above included certain members of the university's intercollegiate men's and women's basketball teams who participated in the 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985 and 1986 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championships and 1985 Division I Women's Basketball Championship who were ineligible at the time of such competition. Specifically, in the sport of men's basketball, four student-athletes were ineligible for the 1982 championship; three student-athletes were ineligible for the 1983, 1984 and 1985 championships; one student-athlete was ineligible for the 1986 championship, and in the sport of women's basketball, two student-athletes were ineligible for the 1985 championship; further, prior to participating in the 1985 and 1986 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship and the 1985 NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship, university officials knew or had reason to know that certain members of these teams were ineligible to participate in NCAA championships competition.

2. Violations of the provisions governing recruiting [NCAA Bylaws 1-1-(b)-, 1-2-(b) and 1-6-(a)]—(a) During a telephone conversation approximately two days prior to the February 1985 National Letter of Intent initial signing date in the sport of football, a representative of the university's athletics interests had a conversation that reasonably could have been understood by a prospective student-athlete to have been an offer of money, an automobile and round-trip transportation for himself and his parents between their home and the university's campus if the young man would enroll at the university; (b) on numerous occasions during the 1983-84, 1984-85 and 1985-86 academic years, the university permitted representatives of its athletics interests to contact prospective student-athletes in person at off-campus sites during the young men's official paid visits to the university's campus; specifically, these contacts occurred during meals at Memphis area restaurants or hotels, although the university was unaware at the time that these off-campus contacts were contrary to NCAA legislation, and (c) during the fall of 1984, in conjunction with the official paid visit of a prospective student-athlete, a vertical-jump test was administered to the young man by an assistant football coach.

3. Violations of the provisions governing extra benefits to a student-athlete [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5)]—(a) On one occasion in November 1984, a representative of the university's athletics interests provided a student-athlete the personal use of his 1984 Corvette at no cost to the young man; further, on two occasions in April 1985, the representative provided the young man with the personal use of a 1985 Lincoln at no cost to the young man; (b) on two occasions during the second semester of the 1984-85 academic year, a representative of the university's athletics interests provided a student-athlete the personal use of his 1983 Jaguar at no cost to the young man.

SLINGSHOT "87"

"If you think SAFETY is expensive, try an INJURY"

The single standard football goal post with safety foremost in mind. Why risk possibility of collision between your players and the goal posts, especially if your current ones have two posts in the ground and are unpadding. It happens every week end. Why should you take a chance.

Two way adjustable sleeve. Improved tightening points and pressure release system for the crossbar at the connecting point to the gooseneck, makes Slingshot "87" a must for all playing fields—PRO, COLLEGE or HIGH SCHOOL.

Big Ten seeks freshman ban in Division I football, basketball

A Big Ten Conference representative will ask the NCAA Presidents Commission later this year to change its rules to make freshmen ineligible for Division I football and men's basketball.

The Big Ten officials, who wrapped up a two-day conference on the Indiana University, Bloomington, campus June 2, agreed to ask for the rule change. Ohio State University President Edward H. Jennings, who represents the conference on the NCAA Commission, will offer the proposal at the Commission's fall meeting.

The presidents also said they would pursue the issue with other conferences if the Division I membership refuses to declare freshmen ineligible in all of the nation's Division I conferences.

Indiana University President John W. Ryan said if the effort fails, the Big Ten will consider unilaterally banning freshmen from playing, the Associated Press reported.

"We'd rather do it at the NCAA level," Ryan said. "Our vote was to try that. But if we don't succeed with that, our view is to still look at it."

The rules change would allow freshman athletes to spend the first year of college without the pressures of big-time college sports.

If the proposal were implemented, freshmen likely would be "redshirted," a move that allows them to sit out from varsity athletics competition as freshmen but compete for four years after that.

Although their meetings were closed, the presidents reported their actions to about 30 trustees and regents from Big Ten schools who were holding their own meeting in another part of Indiana University's Memorial Union. It was the first time Big Ten regents and trustees had gathered to exchange ideas and concerns.

"I think this is a good step," said University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, President Kenneth H. Keller after the presidents announced their decision.

Keller began working for the change after receiving a report last month from a task force he had appointed in February to recommend changes in the university's intercollegiate athletics programs.

In January, three University of Minnesota basketball players were accused of raping a woman following a game in Madison, Wisconsin. The incident soon was followed by reports that the overall graduation rate for male athletes at the university is the lowest in the Big Ten.

John W. Ryan

Edward H. Jennings

The 22-member task force recommended several ways to improve athletics at the university, including shorter recruiting and playing seasons and better screening of high school recruits' academic credentials.

While Keller said the Big Ten presidents agreed by consensus to recommend freshman ineligibility, the proposal is opposed by University of Minnesota athletics director Paul R. Giel and several coaches.

Last week, Giel said student-athletes would go to schools that allow them to play as freshmen if the measure is not adopted nationwide by the NCAA.

The presidents have not yet decided on all of the sports in which freshmen would be banned from competing, Keller said, and have not decided on whether freshmen should be allowed to practice with their teams.

The president also must decide whether the university should provide a fifth year of financial aid for athletes who were redshirted as freshmen but allowed to compete for four years after that, Keller said.

Dedeaux announces retirement

Rod Dedeaux, who has been the head baseball coach at the University of Southern California for 45 years and is the winningest coach in college baseball history, is stepping down from the position, it was announced June 3.

Dedeaux-coached teams at Southern Cal had a 1,332-571-11 record. The Trojans were 26-29 during the recently completed season.

A school spokesman said that Dedeaux, 71, will remain involved with the Southern Cal baseball program.

Southern Cal won 11 national titles under Dedeaux, as well as 28 conference titles. He was named college baseball coach of the year twice by

Rod Dedeaux

The Sporting News and was inducted into the College Baseball Coaches Hall of Fame in 1970.

Dedeaux, the president of Dart Transportation, a trucking company, guided the 1984 United States baseball team to a silver medal in the Olympic Games.

Southern Cal won five straight NCAA Division I baseball titles, from 1970 through 1974. No other team has won more than two straight championships.

Among past and present major-league players who were coached by Dedeaux at Southern Cal are Fred Lynn, Roy Smalley, Dave Kingman, Steve Kemp, Don Buford, Rich Dauer, Tom Seaver, Pete Redfern, Steve Busby, Jim Barr and Bill Lee.
