Brigham Young tops Division I-A as decade's most successful program

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

The winningest NCAA college football team of the 1980s?

In Division I-A, the answer is Brigham Young, with a winning percentage of .857 (bowls included) the first six seasons of the decade. In Division I-AA, the leader is Tennessee State at .821; while in Division II, it is North Dakota State at .822 (play-off games included in each case).

The leader of all of NCAA football comes from Division III—Augustana (Illinois) with an incredible 63-5 (including 37 straight) for a .926 percentage, all under coach Bob Reade. Augustana has won three straight Division III national championships, with 10 play-off games in the streak of 37 wins (10 short of the all-time, all-divisions NCAA record of 47 by Oklahoma in 1953-57).

Reade's teams stand 48-1 over the past four seasons and 57-2 over the past five. The only defeats in that span came in play-off competition—14-0 to West Georgia in the 1982 Division III championship game and 19-7 to Dayton in the first round in 1981. Augustana's last regular-season loss came way back in 1980 when the team finished 6-3 in Reade's second season as head coach. His 1979 team also was 6-3. The regular-season win streak entering the 1986 season is 49 games.

Is there extra pressure this year to break Oklahoma's collegiate all-time record streak? "I would say there is no more pressure this year than any other year," Reade replied. "After all, we already have the Division III record."

Reade is using the same winning formula at Augustana that he did at Geneseo High School, where he was 146-21-4 with three Illinois Class 3A championships. He uses the wing-T offense and has two team rules: Obey the law and be a gentleman. One more rule has been established by this father of 11 children: Sunday is a family day—no staff meetings. "Football is not my God," Reade says, but winning is important, because: "You can have the greatest ideals in the world, but people won't believe you unless you're a success."

Top 20 percent

Using 65 percent as a cutoff point usually produces a top-20 percentage in winning, and the decade of the 1980s is no exception. A total of 107 NCAA football teams have won at least 65 percent of their games in the decade—28 teams in Division I-A, 16 teams in Division I-AA, 20 in Division II and 43 in Division III. That is roughly 20 percent of the little more than 500 varsity teams in NCAA

Senate subcommittee moves to cut $2.5 million from NYSP

A bill recently approved by the U.S. Senate Appropriations Committee could force elimination of 40 percent of the National Youth Sports Program if enacted, according to information provided The NCAA News by Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, the Association's Washington, D.C., legal counsel.

The bill, which began in the U.S. House of Representatives as H.R. 5233, sets up fiscal-year 1987 appropriations for the Federal departments of labor and health and human services. Cuts that include the stripping of $2.5 million from the NYSP were proposed by Iowa Democrat Tom Harkin during the Senate appropriations committee review of the measure.

"This reduction would devastate the NYSP," said Christ Petrouleas, outgoing chair of the Association's NYSP Committee. "All our sites already are operating on minimum budgets."

"If the proposed cut goes through, the only possible choice would be to eliminate 40 percent of the NYSP projects. This would have a terrible effect because of the lost opportunities for so many children."

NYSP is a joint effort of the NCAA and the Federal government. The Association provides administrative support for the program, which utilizes the campuses of colleges and universities throughout the nation, and the government provides major funding.

Each summer, thousands of underprivileged youth who take part in the program receive instruction in lifetime sports activities, free medical screening, a daily meal, and guidance in areas relating to personal hygiene, educational and career alternatives, and alcohol and drug abuse.

Since the original measure already has been passed by the House of Representatives, changes like the cuts proposed by the Senate subcommittee would, if approved by the full Senate, force the measure into a conference committee. There, members of both houses would work out a compromise measure for approval in both chambers.

NCAA legal counsel pointed out that an alternative method of continuing funding of NYSP would involve passage of a "continuing resolution." However, such a resolution would restrict NYSP funding to the level adopted by the Senate subcommittee. Representatives of Squire, Sanders and Dempsey also pointed out that full funding for the program could be restored at the conference-committee level.

They recommended that representatives of NCAA member institutions interested in maintaining the full, $6.13 million appropriation for fiscal-year 1987 contact their local representatives and members of the House and Senate appropriations committees.

Telephone calls, mailgrams or telegrams—followed by letters—are recommended. The office of every member of Congress can be reached through the switchboard of the U.S. Capitol at 202/224-3121.

Letters to congressmen should be directed to the U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515. Correspondence to senators should be mailed to the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Washington counsel believe the final level of NYSP funding could be determined within two weeks. They suggest that attempts to contact elected officials be made as soon as possible for that reason.

Following is a listing of the key members of the House and Senate

Council subcommittee will consider appeal

The NCAA Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals is scheduled to hear an appeal from the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, September 9 on a decision made by the Association's Eligibility Committee that will require 60 of the school's football student-athletes to miss at least one game.

On August 29, Nebraska declared 77 football student-athletes ineligible for the 1986 season for violations of NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(3) relating to the use of complimentary tickets to the university's football games. In doing so, the institution acknowledged that the rule was applicable in the case of these 77 players.

On September 3, the university appealed to the Eligibility Committee, which is empowered to restore eligibility to student-athletes in certain cases. The committee restored the eligibility of 17 student-athletes, finding that although they had supplied inaccurate information, the tickets had been used by people who were allowed to do so under NCAA rules.

The Eligibility Committee then reduced the period of ineligibility of the other 60 student-athletes.

It ruled that 53 of them would be required to miss one game because they had provided false information regarding between one and 10 tickets. The remaining seven, the committee ruled, would have to miss two games because they had supplied false information regarding more than 10 tickets.

In addition, the committee gave Nebraska the option of spreading the penalty over several games, instead of declaring dozens of players ineligible for the same contest.

The precedent for the one-game suspension was set this year when the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, declared a student-athlete ineligible for the 1986 season for providing similar false information. The Eligibility Committee subsequently restored that student-athlete's eligibility for all 1986 games except the season opener, since the number of tickets involved was less than 10.

Tennessee ultimately declared 10 players ineligible for that September 6 game with New Mexico for violations of Constitution 3-1-(g)-(3), which stipulates that passes provided to student-athletes may be utilized only by immediate family members or fellow students.

The unusual number of student-athletes affected in the Nebraska case, coupled with the timing of the decision, prompted the Council subcommittee to grant a postponement of the penalty until it could hear an appeal. "We believe the uniqueness of this case merits delaying the implementation (of penalties)," said David L. Maggard, athletics director at the University of California, Berkeley, and chair of the subcommittee.

"It would be unfair to any student-athlete declared ineligible by the university to sit out the September 6 contest with Florida state (won by the Cornhuskers, 34-17), should the sub-

A red flag in sports: middle-aged kids waving pennants

By Frank Dolson
The Philadelphia Inquirer

The trouble with college undergraduates is that they frequently grow up to become college alumni.

The trouble with alumni—at least a disturbingly large number of them—is that they suffer from acute cases of arrested development when it comes to sports events involving their alma mater.

Please understand, there's nothing wrong with being an alumnus. Every college freshman should aspire to become one. What's wrong is the way so many of them act, apparently spurred on by the need to have bragging rights at the office or the club or the barbershop in the days following the big game.

A college degree is not a license to revert to childhood; it just seems that way sometimes. I've actually seen a grown man, a captain of industry—an Ivy Leaguer, no less—standing outside a locker room, sobbing uncontrollably because his beloved alma mater had just lost a football game it was supposed to win.

If he and all the others like him could only see themselves in a mirror, they surely would recoil in horror and sell their season tickets—or, at the very least, break the mirror.

The fact that such blind loyalty to dear old Whatever U. often evolves into a form of lunacy might be humorous, except for one thing: These childlike creatures in their 40s and 50s and beyond have done more to corrupt intercollegiate athletics than any other group. Yes, even more than the coaches.

Alumni are great to have around for fund-raising drives and reunions and the like. If they want to show their loyalty and devotion by buying tickets to football games or basketball games or any games, and by cheering at the right times and standing for the playing of the school song, terrific.

The problem comes when they try to "help" by buying athletes as well as tickets.

For years—decades, really—those concerned with the raging corruption of intercollegiate athletics have looked for ways to restore some reasonable semblance of honesty and integrity to the games our undergraduates play on the field and the old grads play in their hearts. The best way, it should be painfully clear by now, would be to remove alumni from the recruiting process. No contact. No involvement. Nothing.

That once-extreme view has gained popularity in recent years; already there are rules in effect that make it illegal for alums to wine and dine recruits off campus. Now a move is afoot to get them out of recruiting altogether.

That's not easy to do. Nor is it entirely fair. There are a lot of well-intentioned old grads out there who perform a valuable service by talking to high school kids and giving them the benefit of their expertise in various fields without also providing under-the-table inducements.

But the corruption level of college athletics has reached the point that top priority must be given to stopping the crooks. Besides, fairness never has been much of a consideration in the formulation of NCAA rules. They are written to keep the cheaters from cheating; more often than not, they merely make things tougher for the honest, law-abiding programs, while the crooks ignore the new rules, just as they did the old.

It might be impossible to find a school at any level that doesn't have alumni who are perfectly willing—even eager—to break the rules to "help."

"I think it would be great (legislation banning alumni)," said former Lafayette College and University of Pennsylvania football coach Harry Gamble, now vice-president/general manager of the Philadelphia Eagles.

"People blame coaches and presidents," he said, "but alumni are the main culprits. Some of those guys are so overzealous. They cut corners. They do things to suit themselves. I'm not just talking about giving kids cars and large amounts of money; a lot of it is more subtle than that—giving them loans, slipping them a few bucks here and there, that kind of stuff."

"They're children, some of these alumni, adult children in their thinking. I don't understand that. I never have. I'm glad I'm rid of all that. I love the players in college football. I love the game. But I'm glad I don't have to deal with those people anymore."

The time may be approaching when nobody will have to deal with "those people" anymore. For the sake of the sensible, mature, trustworthy alumni in America, let's hope so. The middle-aged kids with the college pennants hanging on the wall are giving us all a bad name.

A proposal to combat drug abuse

To the Editor:

In recent months, the use of drugs and drug testing among college athletes has caused the colleges and universities of this nation to rethink their purposes and mission in society. But the drug problem extends far beyond the doors of colleges and universities to virtually all segments of our society.

I strongly support the leadership role that has been thrust upon the member institutions of the NCAA in recent years. As an element of such leadership, I propose that all NCAA football teams stop practice on the morning that schools open and that groups of football players be sent to every public and private school in the surrounding areas to challenge every elementary and secondary student of our nation to say "no" to the use of cocaine and other illegal drugs.

The logistics for such a program would be simple, but the payoff would be tremendous. College football players are inevitably some of the most powerful role models for younger boys and girls. A forthright and public commitment to a drug-free society by college football players would have a highly positive effect on the boys and girls in the elementary and secondary schools.

Addressing academic-athletics issues

To the Editor:

The University of Georgia Athletic Association Mission Statement, in development since June 1985, was released August 23 to the public and media.

For several months, unprecedented public scrutiny has been sharply focused on the relationship between college athletics and academics. Consensus opinion has called for a reevaluation of the standards by which student-athletes are allowed continued enrollment at universities nationwide.

The University of Georgia, of course, has been a key figure in the ongoing debate, primarily due to the Jan Kemp trial. Hundreds of commentaries by reporters and columnists throughout the United States have been written and broadcast about the state of intercollegiate athletics in general, and about Georgia in particular.

Regardless of how the academic-athletics relationship has been frequently characterized, it is obvious changes are necessary, and imminent. And because the contemporary academic and athletics environment constantly evolves, it is our intention at the University of Georgia to continually retrain our sights to help meet the increasing demands placed on the university and its students.

The Mission Statement is one in a series of developments reflecting the strengthened commitment by the University of Georgia Athletic Association to lead nationwide reform in college athletics. Numerous Georgia officials participated in a series of interviews and candid discussions about the bond between athletics and academics. The visions and values that emerged from these sessions became the framework for the Mission Statement.

The Mission Statement clearly defines association goals and the organization's role as a meaningful contributor to the university and its student-athletes. Inherent in the program outline are the following:

- Renewed commitment toward personal development, integrity, teamwork, excellence and leadership in the academic and athletics environment;
- Continued national leadership in development of academic standards and in legislative efforts to improve the quality of intercollegiate athletics;
- Emphasized personal development for student-athletes that provides full-time academic counseling, along with an expanded athletics association role in student life;
- Increased commitment by athletic association personnel to all university, SEC and NCAA rules and regulations, as well as NCAA academic standards;
- Closer professional ties between the university's academic and athletics

A realistic view: Academics as training for postseason play

By Dennis O'Brien
President, University of Rochester

For someone who read a lot of Aristotle in order to get a Ph.D. in philosophy, I have spent an unusual amount of time in the last five years helping to create athletics conferences. First, it was the Colonial League in football; and then, for the past two years, the University Athletic Association, which includes the University of Chicago, University of Rochester, Washington (Missouri), Case Western Reserve, Carnegie Mellon, Johns Hopkins, Emory and New York Universities.

At times, I am bemused by this mixture of metaphysics and muscle. But, of course, if the Greeks did not invent sport—play is a human universal—they at least raised it to a level of sacred ritual and patriotic fervor. Aristotle might appreciate my athletics interests after all.

One need not reach for classical precedent to justify athletics in an American educational context. American institutions of higher learning have from the very beginning differentiated themselves from their European forebears by their exceptionally broad interest in the development of students beyond sheer classroom learning.

Athletics excitement may be no stranger to the collegiate scene than the religious revivalism of the colonial and federal periods. Early college faculty viewed revival in the same fashion as coaches point toward the big game.

Athletics moved to the fore in the latter part of the 19th century. One of my most distinguished predecessors (a former president at both Bucknell University and the University of Rochester) was an ardent promoter of athletics—particularly the two-wheel safety bicycle, which was to the 1880s what jogging is to the 1980s.

But if the roots of athletics interests in contemporary American universities can be found in classical religion and Puritan character building, its present state may appear quite the reverse: more commercial than classical, more character-destructive than developmental.

If intercollegiate athletics is big money (over or under the table), point shaving, drugs and a host of well-publicized scandals—the answer would be a categorical no. But as our philosophical and religious ancestors would testify, sport is a high activity, not one of humanity's meaner pursuits. To fit athletics into higher education, we may have to resurrect how sport can be high-minded.

Character first. Anyone who has sat through the number of athletics banquets that I have in my last 20 years in university administration knows that coaches repeatedly emphasize the character-building quality of sport. Courage, cooperation, and "training virtues" such as prudent use of time and moderation all are claimed for participants.

I am prepared to believe that these are genuine effects. How can it be, then, that star athletes succumb to the drug or dollar fix?

My simple view is that the eclipse of the student-athlete—that is, one who is both an athlete and a student—has destroyed sport's genuine virtues. As the ancients noted, courage is not applauded in rogues. Moral wisdom perfects the virtues of team playing and of training—otherwise, one has only well-disciplined conspirators. Perhaps, if athletics were fully religious, as it was for the Greeks, athletes' detachment from ordinary life would be ennobling. But for Americans, sport can be separate without being sacred. Not a hyperreality, just hype.

College athletics comes to be viewed as detached from the ordinary life of study, which the average student engineer, accountant or English major undergoes in preparing for the world.

But if athletics virtues are separated from the real world of career or study, then their application becomes wayward and uncertain—athletes gain not the courage to perform noble deeds but merely the guts to get a fix.

Mr. and Ms. Ordinary Student exist in the lifetime worlds of career. Their everyday lives are nourished by the common wisdom of many academic studies and converge with the variety of human talents and aspirations that characterize an average undergraduate populace. It is for this reason that the athletics conferences with which I have been associated are fundamentally committed to the student-athlete. This commitment is not a gesture of empty piety; it is not even a balancing act of body and mind or some other worthy dichotomy.

The idea of student-athlete, if properly understood, is the culmination and salvation of college sports. Those mundane curricular subjects are actually training for postseason play.

We want our young people to live beyond their collegiate athletics trophies. Otherwise, Len Bias died at the right time.

community, and

• Established goal of excellence in academic incentive programs for student-athletes.

Also implicit in the Mission Statement is continued national leadership by the university in development of a drug-information and testing program for student-athletes.

The University of Georgia last January took the initiative of closing the loophole in Proposition 48 by stating that no student-athlete would be admitted without the new NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j). This is in contrast to the prevalent national position of still admitting nonqualifiers even though they would be ineligible as freshmen.

Criticism of coaches unwarranted

To the Editor:

After 40 years as an educator, administrator and head coach at the intercollegiate level, I am continually dismayed at the amount of criticism directed at college coaches. The general picture being painted seems to be one in which nearly all coaches operate under a questionable code of ethics, attitudes and morals. This has not been the case during my career. I can honestly say that at least 95 percent of the college coaches I have known have abided by the rules and been a positive influence on their players.

I'd like to point out just a few of the factors that I believe make the coach/student-athlete relationship such a special and valuable one. The vast majority of coaches:

- Are a student-athlete's friend for life;
- Want their student-athletes to make their grades and graduate more than anyone else;
- Work hard to build a strong moral foundation and character in their student-athletes;
- Are more interested in their student-athletes' parents, brothers and sisters, husbands or wives, and children than anyone else in the university;
- Are committed to doing everything they can to help their students find good jobs upon leaving college and even later in life, and
- Consider watching a student-athlete develop as a total person and successful graduate the most satisfying aspect of their job.

When you travel, eat and practice together; live and die in competition together; rejoice in victory and cry in defeat together, you build memories that last a lifetime. This is the real story of most college coaches.

Coaches should undergo drug tests

To the Editor:

Drug testing on the collegiate level has become quite an issue over the past year.

As both the sports information director and head baseball coach, I can appreciate the value of such a program in that it would help those with a chemical/alcohol dependency when their backs are against the wall and they've been told to clean up their acts, or they can no longer compete.

The highest endorsement that I can give the program is that we as coaches and administrators should be the first to take the test and set the example for our athletes.

When they are on our squads, we are their role models, and they should be able to look to us for help if they need it.

I'm all for the drug-testing programs nationwide, not only on the collegiate and professional levels, but also on the scholastic level.

Many of the concerns expressed by Leonard J. Levy in his letter in the August 13, 1986, issue of The NCAA News would be addressed with the adoption of Proposition 68 (allowing five years of athletics eligibility) as proposed by the Big Sky Conference at the 1986 NCAA Convention.

Whether it is the cancer research center, the visual arts center, this facility or the agricultural engineering building, they're important. The Kansas City Times

Excerpted from an editorial

"The first returns are in from the enforcers of the NCAA's new rule aimed at keeping dummies off the playing field. The results are disturbing—and promising.

"So far, some of the top high school football and basketball players in the nation have failed to make the grade.

"But in handing out the strict punishment, the NCAA also is showing it has some guts. This can be a promising start if it reinforces in the minds of high school athletes they have to get serious about the other part of school—studying.

"Indications are that could occur soon. Many of the would-be athletes will have a difficult time in passing simple college courses. They need time to study, not to play more games.

"For too long, the emphasis on the student-athlete has tilted toward the latter. That is being reversed but will take time. Tougher academic standards must be enforced. And the lesson can be learned: If you can't make the grade, you can't play the game."

"The [Football Rules] Committee believes that football, like all games involving personal contact of players, must be dependent for its quality and continuance upon the spirit in which the game is played. Improvement in this spirit is measured by the degree to which unnecessary roughness and unfair play are eliminated. This elimination cannot be effected by rule makers, but it can be accomplished by a strict enforcement of the rules and by the drastic punishment of habitual offenders by the institutions which they represent."—Preamble to the 1906 Official Football Rules. Pacific to battle a wave of contenders in Division I race

By Lacy Lee Baker
The NCAA News Staff

Pacific coach John Dunning has a lot of things on his mind these days.

Besides preparing to serve as host of the 1986 Division I Women's Volleyball Championship final four, Dunning is in search of a formula that will give his Pacific Tigers their second consecutive NCAA title.

"The obvious question is, 'What do you do to try to repeat?'" said Dunning, now in his second season at Pacific. "The toughest thing is getting there (to the final four)."

Getting there in 1986 could be tougher than ever, considering that there are legitimate national contenders throughout the country. This could be the year that a non-West team breaks into the final four—especially since there will be no seeding of the top four teams in the 1986 tournament.

Instead, teams will be assigned to tournament sites and seeded within their respective regions, although a team may be moved outside its region to balance the bracket numerically, or if proximity to an opponent outside its region would result in a comparable matchup and an economic savings to the tournament. Therefore, if 14 teams from the powerful West and Northwest regions are selected (as they were in 1985), some probably will be moved to other regional brackets.

But right now, Dunning is thinking mostly of the competition in his own back yard—the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

"Our conference is unbelievable this year. The best team might be Hawaii, and both San Diego State and UC Santa Barbara will be good. And then there's San Jose State, which joined the conference this year," Dunning said.

In addition, the Tigers will meet up with 1985 runner-up Stanford and quarterfinalist Texas in the regular season before hosting Southern California (third in 1985), UCLA (fourth) and Nebraska (a final-eight team) in the prestigious Wendy's Classic.

On paper, Pacific's chances for another championship look questionable. But they did last year, too, considering the fact that Dunning had just made the move to the college level after coaching high school volleyball for several years. In addition, there was an entirely new lineup—five starters from the previous year had graduated.

This season, Dunning will have to replace graduated all-Americans Theresa Boyle and Julie Maginot.

"We have several people changing positions this year and, of course, we will have some new faces in the lineup," Dunning said. "But our basic approach will be the same. We will emphasize blocking and serving. Last year, we had 100 more service aces than our opponents but we also had 100 more errors. That is something we plan to work on."

The key returnee for the Tigers is sophomore Elaina Oden, an all-America middle blocker. The 6-1 Oden is playing with the U.S. national team and will be two weeks late joining the Tigers for workouts. However, Dunning has been pleased with practice so far this season.

"We are way ahead of where we were last year," Dunning said. "Last year a lot of players like Teri McGrath (junior outside hitter) and Liz Hert (setter) were not seasoned players. I feel really good about where we are now," Dunning said.

Regional summaries, which include the preseason front-runners in all 15 of the conferences that will receive automatic qualification to the NCAA tournament, follow.

Mideast

Atlantic 10 Conference—1984 and 1985 league champion Penn State will be looking to a strong recruiting class to replace graduate Marcy Leap, who led the team in blocks, kills and hitting efficiency. Setter Ellen Hensler and hitter Vida Kernich provide the experience for the young squad. Rhode Island, coming off its best season ever (26-8), lost five starters but still could challenge, along with West Virginia.

Big East Conference—Providence, which knocked off defending champion Pittsburgh for league honors in 1985, returns all but two letter winner. Setter Karen Ferreira, MVP in the Big East tournament, and hitter Sandi Reda, Big East freshman of the year, lead the Lady Friars. Pittsburgh, paced by Big East player of the year Sue Hoover (5-8, senior, middle blocker), returns five starters and should have a strong shot at regaining the league title.

Big Eight Conference—Nebraska, the second-place finisher in the Mideast regional in 1985, is young but shows experience in middle blocker Karen Dahlgren and setter Tisha Delaney. Oklahoma, second-place conference finisher in 1985, seems more experienced and could challenge, along with Iowa State, which returns four starters.

Big Ten Conference—All-America Marianne Smith and two other starters have graduated from 1985 league champion Purdue but the Boilermakers are still contenders. They will be tested by second-place finisher Illinois, which burst out to a 30-0 start last season and finished 39-3 after losing to Southern Cal in the Mideast regional. Purdue lost to Nebraska in the same regional. Kaepa National Volleyball Coach of the Year Mike Hebert is in his third year with an Illini squad that features Mary Egger at middle blocker and Disa Johnson at setter. Minnesota could arouse some concern with such returning players as middle blocker Andrea Gonzalez and a strong recruiting class.

Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference—Illinois State will be trying for its fifth consecutive conference championship and improvement on an impressive 31-9 overall record. The Redbirds are talented but very young. Northern Iowa, last season's conference third-place finisher, returns five starters, including all-conference hitter Lisa Meeker.

Mid-American Athletic Conference—Western Michigan will be trying for its fifth consecutive league title and hopes to continue its league winning streak that dates back to 1982. Four starters return from a 25-6 team, including second-team all-America Sarah Powers (6-1, senior, middle blocker). The Broncos lost to Illinois, 3-1, in the first round of the 1985 championship.

Central Michigan has been on Western Michigan's heels for the last four years, posting a 24-8 record last season. Setter Shannon Voss leads the Chippewas. Miami (Ohio) is another threat after going 15-3 in the conference last season and 28-5 overall.

Others—La Salle and Fairfield (Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference), DePaul (North Star), Hofstra and Drexel (East Coast), Pennsylvania (Ivy League), and Northern Illinois

Detra Brown

(independent) are other top regional contenders.

South

Atlantic Coast Conference—Duke appears likely to capture its third consecutive ACC title, led by middle blocker Linda Kraft and setter Susan Wilson. The Blue Devils were 24-8 last season, losing to Texas in the first round of the NCAA tournament. North Carolina and North Carolina State also should contend. The Tar Heels were 30-14 last season, while the Wolfpack was 5-2 in the conference and finished third.

Southeastern Conference—Georgia represented the SEC in last year's NCAA championship, after winning the SEC postseason tournament. All-SEC hitter Shelly Gross and all-SEC setter Jenny McDowell lead the Bulldogs. Louisiana State, which tied Georgia in the regular-season conference schedule, returns five starters from last season, including all-SEC selections Detra Brown and Wendy Stammer.

Southland Conference—The winner of the Southland Conference will receive automatic qualification for the first time this year. The 1985 winner, Texas-Arlington, received an at-large bid to the tournament last season, losing to Texas A&M in five games in the first round. The Lady Mavs should be strong again in 1986, with the core of the team returning. Southland player of the year Katie Weismiller (setter) and all-Southland selections Ana de Oliveira (hitter) and Shari Parks (middle blocker) return. Second-place finisher Lamar also returns a seasoned lineup, paced by outside attacker Trisha Beissel.

Southwest Athletic Conference—Defending champion Texas lost only one starter from last season's 26-6 squad. Southwest Conference player of the year Diane Watson will play her senior season and should close out her career as the all-time kill, total attempts and digs leader at Texas. Second-place Texas A&M returns four starters, including all-conference middle blocker Margaret Spence. Third-place finisher Houston has a new coach—Bill Walton, who coached Elmhurst to two Division III national championships.

Others—Although the Metro Conference lost its automatic qualification to the tournament, its winner still can receive an at-large bid. Defending Metro champion Florida State lost several key starters and will be challenged by Louisville and South Carolina.

Other top regional teams include William and Mary, winner of the Colonial Athletic Association; Virginia Commonwealth, winner of the Sun Belt Conference; Stetson, and

Vikings' title hopes rest with newcomers, tough schedule

Portland State will try to take advantage of some new recruits and a beefed-up schedule in its bid for an unprecedented third consecutive NCAA Division II Women's Volleyball Championship.

The Vikings lost three all-Americas to graduation, but head coach Jeff Mozzochi is pleased with his new recruits.

"We had our best recruiting year ever and I think we have the best group of athletes we have ever had," third-year coach Mozzochi said. "Their volleyball skills aren't equal to their athletic ability at this time, but they should improve by midseason."

Mozzochi will rely on NCAA all-region selection Therese Mariolle at hitter and setter Andy Thompson. Freshmen Kari Kockler and Jennifer Norlin could help out immediately, either at middle blocker or hitter.

The Vikings, 36-5 last season and 32-4 against Division I schools, will play in five premier tournaments in the 1986 regular season. In addition, they will host Division I second-place finisher Stanford in the home opener.

Other schools that should do well on the national level are Cal State Northridge, Cal State Sacramento (championship host), Nebraska-Omaha and Mississippi University for Women.

Regional summaries, which include the preseason front-runners in the four conferences that will receive automatic qualification to the NCAA tournament, follow.

Northeast

New Haven, 1985 winner of the New England College Conference and a regional finalist, appears to be the top team in the Northeast. The Chargers were 34-8 last season and return setters Sandra Lautz and Ann Marie Bahantka and middle blocker Denise Richard. Lowell was second in the NECC and earned a 25-11 overall record. The Chiefs will be led by first-team all-conference selection Susan McDonald.

Northeast-8 Conference front-runners Bentley (first) and American International (third) are other strong regional representatives. Bentley returns all starters from a 24-5 team, including conference player of the year Virginia Lee (senior spiker). American International should improve on its 19-15 showing with the addition of top-caliber recruits.

Army appears to be the strongest independent in the region as it tries to improve on last season's 23-10 record.

Atlantic

Several top schools, including 1985 tournament qualifier James Madison, have moved to Division I. Their departure should make it easier for Navy and East Stroudsburg, the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference champion, to claim regional honors.

Navy hopes to improve on a 37-11 season. Five starters return, including setter Kimberly Feltault. East Stroudsburg was 28-5 last season and also returns five starters. Coach Bob Sweeney thinks this could be his strongest team in 10 years with the Warriors. All-conference middle blockers Jeanne Martin and Gina Uher pace the squad.

Other top regional teams appear to be Mercyhurst and Maryland-Baltimore County.

South

Sunshine State Conference—With an automatic bid to the 1986 tournament on the line, Sunshine State competition should be at its best. Traditional conference powers Tampa and Florida Southern should vie for the honors.

Tampa, 9-1 in the 1985 conference race, went 41-7 overall and lost to Mississippi University for Women in five games in the NCAA tournament. Hitter Susan Wolmesjo, an honorable-mention all America, leads the Spartans, along with middle blocker Donna Schroeder.

Patty Theis, Ferris State

Florida Southern lost three all-conference players but signed several top-caliber recruits. Middle blocker Michelle Kurtgis should lead the Lady Mocs as they try to improve on a 26-12 overall record.

Others—Independents Mississippi University for Women and Florida International will be looking for their second straight tournament bids.

Mississippi University for Women advanced to a 1985 regional final before losing to Sam Houston State in five games. All starters from the 44-3 squad return, making the Blues one of the most experienced teams in the country.

Florida International returns several key starters, including senior middle blocker Sue Anderson, who led the team in blocks (73). The Sunblazers were 24-13 in 1985. Gulf South Conference champion North Alabama (36-14) appears strong again, but will be challenged by runner-up Jacksonville State.

South Central

Continental Divide Conference—Regis (Colorado) represented its conference at the 1985 NCAA championship, losing to eventual champion Portland State in the regionals. The Rangers return all six starters from a 23-10 squad, paced by all-conference selections Denene Jacovetta (senior hitter), Linda DiPentino (junior middle blocker) and Barb Moscoso (senior setter). Air Force and Northern Colorado could challenge Regis, since both schools return the majority of their starters.

Others—Central Missouri State, winner of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, should be strong again in 1986. The Jennies have won four straight MIAA titles and made three straight NCAA appearances. Although three starters were lost, all-conference selections Shari Behlmann, Susan Dixon and Emily Appelbaum (second team) form a solid nucleus. Northwest Missouri State and Southeast Missouri State both return most of their starting lineups and should contend for the title.

Sam Houston State, fourth in the nation in both 1984 and 1985, has moved to Division I.

Great Lakes

Ferris State, four-time winner of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Association, should be strong again in 1986. The Spartans have won four straight GLIAC titles and made three straight NCAA appearances. Although three starters were lost, all-conference selections Shari Behlmann, Susan Dixon and Emily Appelbaum (second team) form a solid nucleus. Northwest Missouri State and Southeast Missouri State both return most of their starting lineups and should contend for the title.

See Vikings, page 6

Division III hopefuls include defending champ Elmhurst

Elmhurst, winner of the 1983 and 1985 Division III Women's Volleyball Championships, will have a legitimate shot at winning this year's trophy. However, traditional West Coast power UC San Diego seems to be back in winning form, which could bring the Tritons their third title.

Meanwhile, La Verne (second in 1985), Juniata (third) and Wisconsin-LaCrosse (fourth) also look strong and could knock off the favorites.

Regional summaries, which include the preseason favorites in the nine conferences that will receive automatic qualification to the NCAA tournament, follow.

South

Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference—North Carolina-Greensboro appears to be the front-runners in the Dixie title race. The Lady Spartans return five of six starters. St. Andrews and Christopher Newport also are strong contenders.

Others—Western Maryland, the top team in the region last season, looks strong again in 1986. The Green Terrors lost just one starter from last year's 42-7 squad, which reached the quarterfinals of the NCAA tournament. All-Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference selections Karen Miles and Linda Bawiec, both hitters, lead the squad.

Glassboro State, another 1985 NCAA qualifier, will be looking to win its third consecutive New Jersey Athletic Conference title. The Profs earned their first NCAA berth last season but lost to Western Maryland in the first round.

Top Old Dominion Athletic Conference teams Eastern Mennonite and Bridgewater (Virginia) and Galaudet, winner of the Chesapeake Women's Athletic Conference, are other region possibilities. All return most of their lineups.

West

Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference—La Verne, the 1985 league champion, will have to replace all-America outside hitter Shauna Hinrichs if the Leopards hope to improve on their 1985 national second-place finish. All-conference selections Michele Galagar (senior setter) and Karen Lotton (senior middle blocker) should lead La Verne.

Second-place finisher Claremont-Mudd-Scripps has almost everyone back from its 24-9 team. The Athenas earned their first NCAA tournament bid last season but lost in the first round to La Verne. Occidental also could challenge for league honors.

Others—UC San Diego probably will return to regional supremacy after a down year in 1985. Although the Tritons were invited to the NCAA tournament last season, they lost in the first round to region nemesis La Verne. The Tritons return a strong nucleus of experienced players, including middle blocker Monica Bradley.

Colorado College, another 1985 NCAA tournament representative from the region, looks strong again. With a stronger schedule, the Tigers might have trouble duplicating their impressive 1985 record of 40-10.

Midwest

Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association—The key to 1985 conference winner Calvin's success in 1986 probably will be the development of its younger players, although six seniors return. The Knights were undefeated in conference play last season and went 38-5 overall, losing to eventual champion Elmhurst in the NCAA championship. Adrian, 32-9 last season, is optimistic about its conference chances even though several starters were lost to graduation.

Ohio Athletic Conference—Ohio Northern, 1985 conference winner, should show poise again, while Baldwin-Wallace and Muskingum try to edge closer to conference honors.

College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin—Elmhurst will be looking for its third national championship and is the favorite in this new conference. The Blue Jays lost two all-Americas in Sue Birdsey and Shelli Swaim but the remaining personnel are capable of claiming national honors. Elmhurst will miss former coach Bill Walton, who became head coach at Houston. In his five years with the Blue Jays, Walton compiled a 210-55 record, including a 40-9 showing in 1985.

Millikin, another 1985 championship participant, should be a conference standout, along with Carthage (20-17 in 1985).

Others—Illinois Benedictine, an NCAA championship participant since the tournament began in 1981, will be powerful again. The Eagles lost Collegiate Volleyball Coaches Association Player of the Year Sheri Petrich, but some outstanding freshmen will help fill the gap. All-America middle blocker Anne Westerkamp also returns.

Central

Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference—The race for this automatic qualification should be fierce, as two-time MIAC champion Gustavus Adolphus tries to hold off Carleton, Augsburg and Macalester. Gustavus Adolphus, which lost in the first round of the 1985 championship to Wisconsin-LaCrosse, returns two all-Americas in middle blocker Linn Erickson and hitter Val Flom.

Others—Wisconsin-LaCrosse, winner of the Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, could improve on its 1985 fourth-place national finish. The Indians lost only two players to graduation. Challenging Wisconsin-LaCrosse in the conference will be Wisconsin-Oshkosh, which is trying to earn its first championship bid.

Several teams from the Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Conference have a shot at claiming an at-large championship berth, including last year's winner William Penn, Luther and Dubuque.

East

Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference—Conference winner Juniata compiled a record of 40-8 in 1985 and finished third nationally. The Indians return all starters, including all-America setter Beth Hoppel. Conference foe Western Maryland, a member of the South region, has the potential to challenge.

Presidents Athletic Conference—Grove City accumulated an impressive 41-1 record last season, losing in the national championship to Juniata. Four starters return from the squad and coach Susan Roberts, Division III coach of the year, is optimistic about the season. Carnegie-Mellon could pull an upset in the conference.

Northeast

State University of New York Athletic Conference—Cortland State is gearing up for another conference title and a trip to the NCAA championship. The Red Dragons, 43-8 last season, must replace middle hitter Sue Rinde. They will rely heavily on Patty Renner at setter and Shannon Hughes at a hitter position.

Buffalo returns all starters from a 43-12 team that placed second to Cortland State at the SUNYAC championship tournament, while Albany (New York) also should be in contention.

Others—Ithaca could be a dark-horse contender for national honors. The Bombers return a strong nucleus from a 1985 team that went 36-11 and competed in its third straight NCAA tournament. Rochester, led by hitter Renee Schmitt, and Manhattanville and Hunter appear to be regional leaders.

Water Polo Preview

Maturity has fostered championship results at Stanford

By Lacy Lee Baker
The NCAA News Staff

Stanford water polo coach Dante Dettamanti watched his 1983 team struggle through a losing season.

The agony of defeat was tempered, however, because Dettamanti had a pretty good idea of what future years would bring.

The six freshmen on that Stanford squad learned their lessons well. After failing to make the NCAA playoffs in 1983, the Cardinal finished second in 1984. Last year, Stanford won the NCAA championship—its fifth national title in the last ten years.

"There is nothing our seniors would like better than to win back-to-back national championships," said Dettamanti, starting his 10th year at the Stanford helm. "And, we should be much stronger this season."

That's saying something. Stanford last season had a 25-4 overall record and a 6-0 Pacific-10 mark en route to the national title. All four of its losses were by one goal, three of them in overtime.

"We graduated four seniors from last year's team, but we have such great depth that we will be able to replace them. We have improved both defensively and offensively, and the experience of playing together for another year will make us a better team," Dettamanti said.

"Most of the top teams in the nation lost key personnel from last year, except us. Last year, the top ten teams were all fairly equal. This year, they will not be as strong, but we will be even stronger."

The Cardinal returns nine of its top 11 scorers and both goalies from last year's club. Four of the top returnees earned all-America honors last season.

athletic Conference, has appeared in the NCAA championship the last four years, losing to New Haven in the 1985 regionals. With second-team all-America Patty Theis back at the middle blocker position, the Bulldogs hope to improve on last year's 33-10 showing. Conference runner-up Grand Valley State, Wayne State (Michigan) and Michigan Tech also appear to be challengers.

Other top region contenders are Northern Kentucky, winner of the Great Lakes Valley Conference, and independents Quincy and Wright State.

North Central

North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference—Nebraska-Omaha lost just one full-time starter off a squad that went 42-7 and finished third in the nation. The Lady Mavs Dettamanti is counting on leadership from Pac-10 player-of-the-year and two-time all-America Craig Klass, three-time all-America David Imbernimo, and all-Americas Todd Kemp and Gregg Gamble.

Dettamanti said Klass and Imbernimo could represent the best one-two offensive combination in the country. Klass led the Cardinal with 59 goals, and Imbernimo scored 44 goals last season.

Dettamanti has his choice of two outstanding goalies—Kemp and Obi Greenman. Kemp earned a starting job midway through his freshman year and went on to earn second-team all-America honors and win a spot on the NCAA all-tournament team.

"I think our defense is where we've shown the most improvement," Dettamanti said. "Todd and Obi have both improved tremendously."

Besides winning five national titles in the last decade, the Cardinal finished second twice and third twice. Last year's national championship at Belmont Plaza Pool in Long Beach, California, probably was the hardest to win.

Stanford fell behind UC Irvine by four goals in the third quarter and had to score four goals in the last two minutes of regulation to send the game into overtime.

"The championship game probably was the most exciting I've ever been connected with," Dettamanti said. "It had everything."

"We played California in the championship game in 1978 and won in sudden death, but I think this game was more exciting."

Dettamanti expects his team to make the finals in 1986. He only hopes it will be easier to take home a sixth national championship.

Western contenders

California—The Bears failed to reach the NCAA tournament for the first time since 1976 last year, but they should improve on their 14-9 record. Jeff Brush is a standout goalie, and three seniors provide leadership. A large, talented 1985 freshman class should make an impact, since many key players may be redshirted.

Long Beach State—The 49ers should contend in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association and could be one of the top five teams in the nation. Senior Doug Bolicek, who scored 37 goals last season, and senior goalie Brian Flint return from a team that went 23-10 overall and 9-3 in conference play last season.

Pepperdine—The Waves return the top six scorers and all three goalkeepers from last year's 18-17 team. Six of the 1985 losses were by one goal.

should repeat as conference champions, counting on all-conference hitter Allie Nuzum and setter Angie Oswald.

North Dakota State, which finished second in the conference postseason tourney, features nine returnees, including three-time all-conference hitter Gretchen Hammond.

Southwest

California Collegiate Athletic Association—For the second straight year, conference champion Cal State Northridge finished second in the nation. With four starters and 12 of the top 14 players returning, the Lady Matadors should claim another league title and have another shot at the national one. Karen Lontka, an honorable mention all-America, returns for her senior year at middle blocker.

David Imbernimo

Terry Schroeder, captain of the U.S. Olympic water polo team, will begin his first year as head coach at his alma mater.

Southern California—The Trojans are a question mark this season because coach John Williams plans to redshirt his top three returning players to build for the future. Top returnees from last year's 19-13 team include goalie Kevin Stringer and driver Giacomo Rossi.

UC Irvine—Coach Ted Newland has decided to redshirt four top players, including first-team all-America Mark Maizel, from last year's 23-8 team that finished second nationally. Sophomore Julian Harvey and 1985 redshirts Chris Duplanty and Mike Halphide should be among the top players.

UC Santa Barbara—Coach Pete Snyder lost four of the top five scorers from last year's 21-11-6 team. Senior forward Antonio Iniguez, who scored 42 goals and had 33 assists, leads the returnees. Iniguez was a second-team all-America.

UCLA—The Bruins lost six seniors from the team that went 24-6 and finished third nationally last year. Top returnees include first-team all-America driver Fernando Carsalade and goalie Chuck Brown.

Others—Claremont-Mudd-Scripps returns all its players from a team that won the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference last season. The Stags have gone 40-0 in conference play over the last four years. Third-place SCIAC team Occidental has five starters returning and could challenge for conference honors.

Independent Cal State Los Angeles lost the top three scorers from an 18-9 team. Another independent, UC San Diego, returns all but two starters from a 19-15 team.

Other contenders

Air Force—The Falcons are regrouping after a disappointing 9-15 season. Coach Jeff Heidemous hopes to rebuild around senior Don Hancock and juniors Cy Whinnery and Joe Roh.

Brown—Coach Ed Reed must find a goal keeper but returns excellent field players in Rich Russey, Ken Rivers, and Nick Matarangas. The Bruins were 25-10 last season.

Bucknell—Coach Dick Russell is looking for a team comparable to the one that won the 1985 Mid-Atlantic league championship and placed seventh in the NCAA tournament. Honorable mention all-America Jeff Hilk has graduated, but all of the other top scorers have returned.

Iona—With the entire 1985 team returning and a good recruiting class, the Gaels hope to improve on last year's 23-11 record. Coach Rob Calgi thinks his team could be tops in the East and among the top 10 nationally.

Loyolla (Illinois)—Coach Ralph

Erickson loses all-America Dan O'Connell but has several experienced players returning. Sophomore driver Mark Radville was a 1986 Junior Olympic team member. Loyola, one of the few national powers from the Midwest, had an 18-10 record last season.

Navy—Coach Mike Schofield has two of the top goaltenders in the East in Doug Keller and Ed Schofield. The Midshipmen must replace graduates Lawrence Kough and David Kaye, who combined for 90 goals last season. Navy was 22-7 overall and 11-2 in the Mid-Atlantic Conference.

Richmond—The Spiders lost only two seniors from a 1985 team that finished 30-4-1 and led the nation in victories. Top returnees include center Mario Ciceric (87 goals, 59 assists) and driver David Kastan 82 goals, 36 assists.

Notes

• The 1985 Water Polo Championship was the most financially successful ever. The championship made enough money to return a total of $6,045 to participating teams. The attendance of 3,400 was a record.

• Five new teams have joined the NCAA water polo ranks this season. They are Boston College, Chaminade, Dominican (California), Mary Washington and St. Peter's.

• The NCAA has become an organizational member of U.S. Water Polo, Inc.

UC Riverside, 24-9 in 1985, returns a quality lineup and also adds Sheryl Benson, a 1983 honorable mention all-America who returns from a shoulder injury.

Northwest

Portland State, two-time defending national champion, graduated three all-Americas but had its best recruiting year ever. The Vikings will try to improve on last year's 36-5 record.

Cal State Sacramento, host of this year's championship final four, returns six from a 28-8 team to complement several top recruits. Coach Debbi Colberg will depend on new sophomore setter Chris Seifert for leadership.

Other strong regional teams are members of the Northern California Athletic Conference—Sonoma State (first in 1985) and Cal State Chico (runner-up).

The upper-crust teams have at least one thing in common: About 60 percent had the same head coach throughout the first six seasons of the decade—63 teams in all, with 17 in Division I-A, 11 in Division I-AA, nine in Division II and 26 in Division III. Most of the other 44 had the same coach for at least four of the six seasons.

Three are over .800

The top three Division I-A teams are above .800 for the 1980s, and all are led by veteran coaches who have been at the same college for many years. They are BYU, as mentioned, at .857 under LaVell Edwards (14 years as head coach), Nebraska at .838 under Tom Osborne (13 years) and Georgia at .819 under Vince Dooley (22 years).

Remarkably, BYU has averaged 11 victories per season in the 1980s (66-11), and Nebraska (62-12) has averaged 10.3 wins. Those above .650 for the 1980s:

Fourteen others on the list have had the same coach throughout the 1980s and often much longer. They

Kevin Sweeney, Fresno State quarterback, is rated second in passing efficiency in Division I-A

Temple's Paul Palmer is the top all-purpose runner in Division I-A with 268 yards

Brian Shulman of Auburn leads Division I-A punters with five punts for a 49.8-yard average

Wisconsin's Nate Odomes is tied for first place in interceptions in Division I-A

McNeese State's Tony Citizen leads Division I-AA in rushing, scoring and all-purpose running are Penn State's Joe Paterno (20 seasons), Michigan's Bo Schembechler (17), Oklahoma's Barry Switzer (13), Washington's Don James (11), UCLA's Terry Donahue (10), Florida State's Bobby Bowden (10), Texas' Fred Akers (9), North Carolina's Dick Crum (8), Central Michigan's Herb Deromedi (8), Virginia Tech's Bill Dooley (8), Iowa's Hayden Fry (7), Ohio State's Earle Bruce (7), Clemson's Danny Ford (7, plus a bowl game previous to his first fall), and West Virginia's Don Nehlen (6).

Washington and James comprise the only team-and-coach combination with five bowl victories in the 1980s. Paterno, Bruce and Donahue have four bowl wins each at their colleges, and Alabama has won four bowl games in the 1980s under two coaches—Ray Perkins and the late Paul "Bear" Bryant.

James, Bruce, Osborne and Schembechler and their teams are the only ones to play in a bowl every season in the 1980s (the last two each stand 3-3).

Alabama and Southern California are the only teams on the list with a 3-3 split in coaching tenure during the 1980s; all others had the same coach for at least four seasons. For instance, Pat Dye has guided Auburn the last five years, Bobby Ross has led Maryland the last four, Bobby Collins Southern Methodist the last four, John Cooper Tulsa the first five, Lou Holtz Arkansas the first four and Howard Schnellenberger Miami the first four.

Every Division I-A conference has at least one member on the list except the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, where Fresno State just missed at .645. On top at four teams each are the Pacific-10 Conference and Southeastern Conference, which just missed a fifth with Tennessee at .648. There are seven independents—three each in the East and South plus Tulsa, a former Missouri Valley Conference member (the Valley has no football now).

I-AA leaders

Tennessee State leads Division I-AA at .821, but this rises to .844 with the subtraction of its now vacated 1-2 record in the play-offs. Furman is next at .800, all under Dick Sheridan, now coach at North Carolina State. Those above .650 for the 1980s:

The I-AA list includes some long-time coaching veterans, headed by the winningest college coach of all time—Grambling State's Eddie Robinson (329 wins in 43 seasons). Then come Eastern Kentucky's Roy Kidd (22 seasons there), Delaware's Harold "Tubby" Raymond (20), Harvard's Joe Restic (15), Jackson State's W. C. Gorden (10), Nevada-Reno's Chris Ault (10) and two with seven—Eastern Washington's Dick Zornes and Middle Tennessee's James "Boots" Donnelly (Sheridan had been at Furman eight years). Erskine Russell has been at Georgia Southern all four seasons since it revived football, the last two with varsity status.

John Merritt, eighth on the all-time list at 232, coached Tennessee State the first four seasons of the 1980s before his death. Kidd's teams were national runners-up in 1980 (to Boise State) and 1981 (to Idaho State) before defeating Raymond's Delaware team in the 1982 championship game. Eastern Illinois was second in the 1980 Division II play-off and Southwest Texas State won the II crowns in 1981 and 1982 before those two teams moved up to I-AA.

Division II leaders

North Dakota State, coached the first five years of the 1980s by Don Morton (now at Tulsa) and now by Earle Solomonson, leads all Division II teams at .822 for the six seasons, with North Alabama and Wayne Grubb (.814) and UC Davis and Jim Sochor (.813) close behind. Minnesota-Duluth's Jim Malosky has been there 28 seasons, Sochor 16 at UC Davis and three more 14 years each. John Williams at Mississippi College, Charles Finley at Missouri-Rolla and Phil Albert at Towson State. Grubb has nine years at North Alabama, Sandy Buda eight at Nebraska-Omaha.

Division III leaders

Augustana dominates the play-off picture in Division III, but it has not been easy, with two one-point wins, two four-pointers and three others by a touchdown. There are plenty of outstanding teams, with eight of them above .800 for the 1980s in addition to the defending champions, who will be trying to become the first team in football history to win four straight national championships. The play-off field now is 16 teams, so more top teams will get a chance to win the crown.

Dayton won the 1980 Division III national championship, then lost to Widener in the 1981 title game. Those above .650 for the 1980s:

Staff pay raises approved

The NCAA Executive Committee has approved salary increases for the national office staff averaging 6.0 percent for the 1986-87 fiscal year, according to Wilford S. Bailey, NCAA secretary-treasurer.

The Executive Committee is responsible for implementation of the Association's staff evaluation and compensation policies. The Staff Evaluation Subcommittee of the Executive Committee annually reviews staff operations, employee benefits and staff salaries. It considers annually information on salary increase patterns in intercollegiate athletics, as well as in higher education generally and other fields in the employment marketplace.

The division has many veteran coaches, headed by John Gagliardi of St. John's (Minnesota), whose 239 wins (in 37 seasons) rank No. 5 in college football history. Then come two with 27 years each, all at the same institution—Cornell's (Iowa) Jerry Clark and Amherst's Jim Ostendarp. Central's (Iowa) Ron Schipper has 25 years in the bank; Mount Union's Ken Wable, who retired after the 1985 season, 24, and Harper Davis of Millsaps 22.

Nine more teams on the list have coaches who have at least 13 years on the job, headed by two with 19 years each—Trinity's (Connecticut) Don Miller and Ithaca's Jim Butterfield, who reached the championship game twice in the 1980s after winning the national title in 1979. Among three at 17 years is Widener's Bill Manlove, whose team won the national championship in 1981 and 1977.

Quotes of the week

After his defense shut out his offense in a 2½-hour preseason scrimmage, Florida State coach Bobby Bowden met the press on the field, saying, "Let's go stand by the offense. I wouldn't want any of you guys to get hurt." (Dan Pearson, Florida State assistant SID)

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz when told his team was not ranked in the top 20 by a publication: "I don't mind being the underdog—I just don't like the reasons why."

Brigham Young coach LaVell Edwards: "People say I'm not a happy man. I am. It's just that sometimes I forget to tell my face."

It will be the Battle of the Brothers when Tulane, coached by Mack Brown, faces Vanderbilt, coached by Watson Brown, September 20. "That's if I show up," said Mack, who does not look forward to it. "But when you're coming off a 1-10 season, you'd like to win any game."

mittee then are presented to the full Executive Committee, which considers them in executive session and makes the final decision.

Bailey reported that the committee, in accordance with established policy, used the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers (CPI-U) for the Kansas City area as a basis for cost-of-living adjustments. For the new fiscal year, that adjustment was only seven-tenths of one percent (0.7). Merit increases thus averaged 5.3 percent. Minor changes in the Pension Trust Plan and term life insurance coverage also were authorized.

The 6.0 increase was 1.4 percent less than a year ago and 2.4 percent under the 1984-85 average increase.

In addition to those, the Council:

Clarified that use of the guidelines in the external-audit requirement, while they are designed to conform to industry standards, is not mandatory.

Approved a procedure whereby multiple uses of an institution's facilities for competition involving prospective student-athletes when the usage is by a community agency that has an agreement with the institution in that regard can be approved with a single waiver request, rather than on an event-by-event basis.

Agreed that the nonmember institutions referenced in Bylaws 11-2-(g) and 11-3-(g) must be four-year, degree-granting collegiate institutions.

Sustained a 1979 interpretation regarding member institutions' contests with professional teams with the understanding that the contractual procedures involved in such a contest must be consistent with those used by the institution for its home and away collegiate contests.

Ruled that contests in a postseason conference tournament are countable toward the season limitation in the sport in an instance in which a conference conducts such a tournament but designates its regular-season champion as the automatic qualifier for the NCAA championship.

Confirmed the existing interpretation that a student-athlete's eligibility under Bylaw 5-1-(d)-(3) in the sport of track and field would be affected for purposes of indoor track, outdoor track and cross country if the student participates in organized competition in any of those three forms during the time period specified in the regulation; agreed to consider in the fall meeting whether to include road-racing in that interpretation, consistent with Case No. 5.

Affirmed that Bylaw 3-5 does not apply to competition by NCAA student-athletes in traditional, nonexclusively intercollegiate events inasmuch as NCAA member institutions are not "conducting" the events; similarly, Bylaw 3-5 applies to competition involving an NCAA member institution participating against an NAIA institution only if the contest is being conducted at the home site of the NCAA institution.

Decided that the Administrative Committee would handle any necessary immediate actions regarding the application of Constitution 3-4-(b)-(1) and Case No. 268 to summer financial aid, with the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Financial Aid Issues to review the issue in general.

Agreed that Constitution 3-6-(b) requires institutional staff members to follow their institutions' procedures regarding drug usage, regardless of what those procedures are from institution to institution; referred the issue to the Drug Education Committee and the Special Postseason Drug-Testing Committee for review.

Affirmed the current criteria for exceptions to the two-year limitation on graduate-assistant coach tenure per Bylaw 7-1-(b).

Affirmed the current interpretation precluding posters for summer camps.

Directed the staff to prepare a revision of O.I. 100 or some other means to prevent the practice of treating as walk-ons individuals who have been recruited indirectly through a high school coach and not counting them under the provisions of Bylaw 6-4-(b).

Voted that Constitution 3-1-(i)-(2) would permit the receipt of a "senior award" with a value of $200.

Directed the staff to prepare an interpretation or to revise Case No. 251 to affirm that "off-court" or "off-ice" activities in basketball and ice hockey cannot begin prior to the first day of classes of the academic year, and that some uniform date be developed as the earliest possible date for such activities.

Ruled that a student-athlete is not permitted to retain a prize won during a promotional activity sponsored by an organization outside the student-athlete's institution but conducted in the institution's athletics facilities.

Asked the Recruiting Committee to review the provisions of Case No. 207, with the understanding that the case remains in effect in the interim.

Directed the staff to prepare an interpretation or legislation for review in the fall meeting that would permit members of an institution's coaching staff to attend games involving their sons or daughters when such contests occur outside the prescribed recruiting periods.

Membership

The Council and division steering committees took the following actions regarding membership applications and requests:

Elected Apprentice School, Newport News, Virginia, and the Meadowlands Sports Complex, East Rutherford, New Jersey, to corresponding membership.

Elected the Middle Eastern College Association Women's Basketball Conference to conference membership.

Agreed that the provisions of Case No. 411 should be extended to apply to the minimum-contest requirements of Bylaw 11-4-(b); granted a waiver to Loyola Marymount University on that basis.

Granted waivers to Butler University and Robert Morris College based on the principle expressed in Case No. 411.

Denied appeals by Duquesne University and Fairleigh Dickinson University, Teaneck, of the Classification Committee's actions to place those institutions in "unclassified membership" status.

Approved an application for reelection to active membership by Southampton Campus of Long Island University.

Denied a request for a geographical waiver per Bylaw 11-2-(g) by Dickinson State College; granted such requests by the University of Puget Sound (for one year only) and Southwest Baptist College.

Approved applications for active membership (all Division III) by Dominican College of San Rafael, California; Loras College, Dubuque, Iowa; Menlo College, Atherton, California; College of Our Lady of Elms, Chicopee, Massachusetts; Thomas College, Waterville, Maine; Wells College, Aurora, New York; Wesley College, Dover, Delaware; and the University of Wisconsin. Eau Claire.

Elected the Little East Conference to conference membership.

Granted a waiver per Constitution 4-2-(h)-(2) for one year to Wentworth Institute of Technology; deferred action on a similar request by Polytechnic Institute of New York pending receipt of additional information.

Denied a request by Asbury College for a waiver per Constitution 4-2-(h)-(3).

Granted a geographical waiver per Bylaw 11-3-(g) to Miles College.

Legislation

The Council voted to sponsor the following legislation at the 1987 Convention:

An amendment to Bylaw 12 to establish the existing Divisions I, II and III Championships Committees as standing committees of the Association, rather than special committees, with those committees to have oversight authority over certain actions by sports committees with rules-making responsibilities.

An amendment to Bylaw 12-4-(g) to require an additional Division I member on the Men's Gymnastics Committee.

An amendment to delete Bylaw 12-3-(y), thus abolishing the Football Television Committee.

An amendment to Bylaw 12-3 to establish a Committee on Women's Athletics as a standing committee.

An amendment to O.I. 11 to specify that when a member institution has separate administrative structures for its men's and women's athletics programs, the individual serving as director for either program may process an eligibility appeal under the prescribed procedure.

Amendments to Constitution 7-2 and Bylaw 13-2 to provide an additional week after the deadline for receipt of proposed legislation before the Official Notice of an annual Convention must be mailed to the membership.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-6-(c) that would authorize the Council, for a six-month period in 1987, to modify the Division I academic-reporting requirements in keeping with established institutional methods for compiling information concerning admissions standards, academic progress and graduation rates.

An amendment to Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(3) to make the awards provisions of Bylaws 1-6-(c)-(2) and (3) consistent by deleting the prohibition against awards in subparagraph (3).

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1-(d)-(3) to delete the final sentence, thus eliminating all exceptions for military service in the Division I "age rule."

An amendment to O.I. 501 to confirm the current interpretation that no summer term is completely indistinguishable from an institution's terms during the regular academic year; therefore, a summer term may not be used to satisfy a term of residence.

An amendment to delete Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(14) for Division I only.

An amendment to Bylaw 3-3-(c) to exempt from the maximum number of contests in football a conference championship football game permitted under the provisions of O.I. 200.

An amendment to Bylaw 2-2-(g) to require member institutions participating in postseason football bowl games to be accountable for their allotment of game tickets, except that a maximum of 1,000 tickets could be returned to the sponsoring organization at least 10 days prior to the game.

The Council voted not to sponsor the following proposals:

A Big Sky Conference proposal (No. 68 at the 1986 Convention) to allow student-athletes five, rather than four, years of athletics participation.

Proposal No. 91 from the 1986 Convention, a package of season-limitation adjustments, instead referring that proposal to the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Playing Seasons.

The Council will consider in October additional legislation, including the following proposals:

An amendment to Bylaw 11-2-(b) to specify that the provisions therein apply equally to men's and women's sports in Division II.

An amendment to Bylaw 1-3 to specify that an institution can visit a high school only one time per week during the prescribed evaluation periods.

An amendment to Bylaw 12-4 to specify that the division championships committees have overview responsibility in regard to actions of sports committees with rules-making responsibilities when those actions involve rules that have a financial impact on member institutions, that affect the safety of participants or that affect the "status of the sport."

An amendment to Bylaw 10-6-(c) to deal with Division III concerns regarding Division II institutions' declaring eligibility for the Division III championship in a sport in which there is no Division II championship.

[Note: The Council also took action on certain additional legislative proposals in the reports of various NCAA committees, as noted in subsequent portions of this summary.]

Appointments

The Division I Steering Committee appointed Carl R. Miller, University of the Pacific, to the District 8 position on the Postseason Football Committee replacing Jack Lengyel, no longer at a District 8 institution.

The Division II Steering Committee affirmed the appointment of Raymond M. Burse, Kentucky State University, to the Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals replacing Bob Moorman, no longer a member of the Council.

The Division III Steering Committee appointed Ellen Gibbs, Elmira College, to the Division III Women's Volleyball Committee replacing Elizabeth Dimmick, State University of New York, Buffalo, resigned from committee.

Committee Reports

Deregulation and Rules Simplification: The Council took these actions:

Endorsed in principle the special committee's draft revision of Article 2 of the NCAA constitution.

Endorsed the concept of incorporating the Constitution and Bylaws Case Book into the constitution and bylaws themselves and agreed to so inform the membership.

Voted to sponsor at the 1987 Convention an amendment to Bylaw 5-1-(c) to specify that determinations regarding credit-hour requirements for eligibility would be made by the Academic Requirements Committee, rather than the Eligibility Committee.

Academic Requirements: The Division I Steering Committee took a series of actions regarding interpretations of and procedures relating to Bylaw 5-1-(j). A number of those appeared in the Legislative Assistance column in the August 27, 1986, issue of The NCAA News, and others will appear in future issues of the News.

The Divisions I and II Steering Committees approved a recommendation that remedial courses in the satisfactory-progress legislation shall be limited to 12 semester or 18 quarter hours and to the first year of enrollment; further, they shall be awarded whatever credit is displayed on the transcript.

The two committees also agreed that all student-athletes, single- or multi-sport, shall be certified on a year-to-year, rather than term-to-term, basis. In that regard, the Council will review legislation in October to specify that certification is on an annual basis in all sports and that the satisfactory-progress rule requires successful completion of 24 semester (36 quarter) hours in the immediately preceding academic year. The Council verified that it is permissible under this legislation for a student-athlete to become eligible at midyear and remain eligible for the remainder of that academic year.

The Divisions I and II committees also approved a recommendation that the inclusion of junior college records in determining eligibility under the satisfactory-progress rule for a student-athlete who attends a member institution, transfers to a junior college and subsequently returns to the same member institution shall be at the discretion of the member institution.

The Division I committee approved, with some editorial revisions, revised forms for certification of student-athlete eligibility under Bylaw 5-1-(j), one form for the member institution's certifying officer and another for secondary schools.

Foreign Student Records: The Council approved updating of the NCAA Guide to International Academic Standards for Athletics Eligibility to include new nations and to reflect certain Bylaw 5-1-(j) applications.

The Division I Steering Committee rejected the special committee's recommendation that foreign student-athletes be exempted from the Bylaw 5-1-(j) test-score requirement if they qualify by meeting the standards set forth in the NCAA's international academic standards guide. It asked the special committee to submit other alternatives.

Postseason Football: The Division I Steering Committee rejected an appeal by the Holiday Bowl in regard to one-half of the fine that it was assessed per Bylaw 2-2-(p). The Orange Bowl reportedly was considering a similar appeal. Otherwise, the Council voted to approve all of the fines assessed by the committee and to accept the committee's report on recertification of the Cherry and Freedom Bowls.

Recruiting: The Council had acted earlier to sponsor legislation to permit distribution of reasonable awards to prospective student-athletes under the provisions of Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(3), which the Recruiting Committee also recommended.

The committee favored no change in the rules governing recruiting contacts by boosters. [Later in the meeting, the Council voted to sponsor legislation to eliminate boosters from the recruiting process.]

The committee recommended exemption of the entire Pell Grant from the Association's aid limitation. The Council took no action, noting that this issue is in the hands of the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Financial Aid Issues.

The committee recommended to the Council and the Collegiate Commissioners Association that transfer students be permitted to sign a second letter of intent. The Council referred the recommendation to the CCA.

The Council rejected the committee's recommendation that women's basketball teams be permitted to practice for 20 days on their campuses during the off season (but during the academic year).

Also rejected was the committee's recommendation that both men's and women's basketball teams be permitted two informal scrimmages, exempt from counting toward the maximum-contest limitation. A separate recommendation permitting this for men's teams only also was rejected.

The Council will review legislation in the fall meeting that would permit an institution to provide processing, application and enrollment fees for student-athletes as part of the full athletics grant-in-aid, as recommended by the Recruiting Committee.

The Council did not support a proposal that head football coaches be permitted to have one off-campus contact with each prospective student-athlete.

The Division I Steering Committee did not support a suggestion that students not be allowed to sign a National Letter of Intent until they have satisfied all of the requirements under Bylaw 5-1-(j).

Proposals submitted by the National Association of Basketball Coaches and the Women's Basketball Coaches Association will be referred to the appropriate NCAA committees for consideration.

Coaches' Outside Income: The Special Council Subcommittee to Review Coaches' Outside Income requested authorization to conduct a survey of Division I members regarding four alternative proposals for reporting and/or control of coaches' outside income (that related to their positions as coaches). That authorization was granted, and the survey results will be reported in the fall meeting.

Playing Seasons: The Council will review legislation in the fall meeting that would (1) count toward the season limitation in basketball all games in Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, except that an institution could exclude them from counting once in every four-year period, and (2) count toward the limitation all games played in the Preseason National Invitation Tournament, with the same once-in-four-years exemption opportunity. In addition, it was decided not to sponsor an amendment to Bylaw 3-3-(j) to eliminate the exception in that legislation for a contest against a foreign team in the United States.

Recruiting Process: The Council voted to sponsor an amendment to preclude a member institution's boosters (i.e., representatives of its athletics interests) from involvement in on- or off-campus participation in the recruiting process, including a prohibition against correspondence or telephone contacts with prospective student-athletes, as recommended by the Special Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process. It will be sponsored for Division I only. Case No. 199 will remain in effect.

The Council approved the special subcommittee's recommended questionnaire to NCAA sports committees to obtain appropriate data regarding logical limitations on recruiting and evaluation periods in sports other than football and basketball.

The Council supported in concept and will review legislation in October to reduce the recruiting and evaluation periods in football and basketball by at least 50 percent, as reported in the August 27, 1986, issue of The NCAA News.

The Council will sponsor (for Division I only) the subcommittee's recommended legislation to apply to basketball (and, in the future, all other sports) the new contact rule (currently applicable only to Divisions I-A and I-AA football) that permits one visit per week to the prospect's high school and three additional off-campus, in-person contacts at other sites.

The subcommittee supported a Pacific-10 Conference suggestion that legislation be proposed to limit an institution's recruiting brochure and/or media guide to a size that would fit in a No. 10 envelope, with only black ink to be permitted inside the covers (i.e., no multi-color printing other than the cover). The Council voted to sponsor the proposal.

The Division I Steering Committee did not support a recommendation that legislation be developed to require a member institution to maintain in its files documentation describing, on a day-to-day basis, the recruiting activities of each of its coaching staff members. The Division II Steering Committee will review the concept in the fall meeting.

The subcommittee recommended legislation to stipulate that Bylaw 1-9-(f) would permit a prospective student-athlete to attend campus athletics events only through the regular admissions process, rather than receiving complimentary tickets; the Council voted to sponsor such a proposal.

The Council voted to revise Case No. 68 to prohibit all "host family" or "student-athlete sponsor" arrangements.

Eligibility: The Council had dealt earlier with an interpretation of Constitution 3-1-(e) regarding the use of a student-athlete's name or picture in a calendar sponsored by an on-campus organization.

The Council agreed with the committee's clarification of Constitution 3-1-(a) and O.I. 2, also consistent with the principles in Case No. 85, that an outside amateur sports team or organization may provide a student-athlete's transportation from the event site to the student-athlete's home only if the athlete departs from the event site within 48 hours from completion of the competition.

The Council referred to the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Financial Aid Issues the Eligibility Committee's opinion that the provisions of Constitution 3-1-(a)-(3) and Case No. 51 are inconsistent.

The Council will review additional information in a future meeting regarding the committee's position that Constitution 3-4-(b)-(1) should permit a student-athlete attending a summer orientation program to receive a stipend as part of a financial aid package, provided the aid is administered on the same basis to all participants in the program. In the meantime, such a stipend is not permissible.

Also referred to the financial aid subcommittee were several issues relating to amateurism and international athletes, except that the staff was directed to bring to the fall meeting an interpretation or amendment to deal with the fact that youth teams in some sports in some countries are sponsored by professional teams, which would make the participants ineligible under Constitution 3-1-(d)-O.I. 3.

The Eligibility Committee recommended that an NCAA staff member be available during the deliberations of the Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals for consultation relating to case precedent and consistent application of eligibility sanctions. The Council agreed, with the provision that if the staff member is invited into the meeting, institutional representatives also would be invited to join the meeting.

Other recommendations by the committee will appear in the Legislative Assistance column in a future issue of the News.

Eligibility Appeals: The Council subcommittee modified an earlier Eligibility Committee decision in regard to six student-athletes at Temple University, restoring their eligibility totally in light of the facts that none of the aid was athletically related and that the institution had reduced its own grants-in-aid in each involved sport.

The subcommittee sustained the Eligibility Committee regarding the loss of one year plus four games in the next year of eligibility for a men's basketball player at St. John's University (New York).

Executive: The Council voted to sponsor an amendment to Constitution 5-2-(a)-(2) to provide flexibility in the length of terms on the Executive Committee.

It also voted to amend Bylaw 12-5 to provide sports committees without rules-making responsibilities the authority to establish selection criteria that would include in-season use of modifications of playing rules of other organizations under which NCAA championships are conducted.

The Council will review in October legislation that would require Divisions II and III student-athletes who compete in a Division I championship to meet the Bylaw 5-1-(j) provisions or not be eligible for the Division I championships at any point in their careers.

All other actions of the Executive Committee were reported in the August 27, 1986, issue of The NCAA News.

Extra Events: The Council approved the following all-star basketball games: Aloha Classic, Elks/Basketball Hall of Fame, Louisiana Coaches, NABC All-America, New England Hall of Fame, New Jersey Coaches, Portsmouth Invitational and Ta-Wa-Si Athletic Association. It also approved five all-star football games: Blue-Gray, East-West Shrine, Freedom Bowl, Hula Bowl, Rikon Japan Bowl.

As recommended by the committee, the Council voted to consider legislation in the fall meeting to (1) increase from $10,000 to $25,000 the minimum accident-travel insurance required of certified college all-star basketball and football games, and to require $10,000 death and dismemberment insurance and $25,000 accident-travel insurance for certified gymnastics and track meets.

It also will review legislation to allow college all-star football games to be played as late as the third weekend in January, rather than the current January 15 deadline.

The Council will review legislation to preclude certification of any outdoor track and field meet that conflicts with the National Collegiate Division I Men's and Women's Outdoor Track Championships.

The Extra Events Committee recommended, and the Council agreed, that the membership should be reminded of the need to prohibit student-athletes from participating in noncertified all-star games, regardless of the fact that they may have exhausted their eligibility.

Insurance: The Council deferred action on a proposal to expand the Insurance Committee, noting that consideration would be given in the fall meeting to abolishing that committee and

Mountaineer fans go for 'TD CDs'

West Virginia University's football fans are hoping that by the end of the season, they will be laughing all the way to the bank.

The First National Bank of Morgantown, West Virginia, is offering certificates of deposit with an interest rate tied to the performance of the WVU football team. The rate goes up with each victory and down with each loss, but the "TD (touchdown) CDs" never fall below a six percent return.

"I've had one lawyer say it was a form of gambling, but there is no gamble to it," Joel Hannah, the bank's vice-president of marketing, told the Associated Press.

The interest rate heading into the Mountaineers' season opener with Northern Illinois was six percent. It will increase one-tenth of one percent for each West Virginia win.

Each loss will chop one-tenth of a percentage point off the interest rate, but the return never will drop below 6 percent, Hannah said. Interest is not compounded, meaning any interest earned in one week is held in a "pool" separate from the original investment.

At the end of the season, investors will see the interest rate jump a quarter of a percentage point if the Mountaineers accept a bowl bid and another quarter of a point with a bowl victory. Thus, if WVU goes 11-0 in the regular season and wins a bowl game, CD holders will receive a 7.6 percent rate of return on the certificates until the February maturity date.

Bylaw 5-1-(j) said to affect 483 recruits

Information recently gathered by an Associated Press telephone survey indicates that 483 freshmen recruited in football and basketball will be ineligible under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j) that took effect August 1.

The wire service also found:

- Almost half of the 286 NCAA Division I-A schools lost recruits for basketball, football or both.

- Hit hardest were small, predominantly black schools, such as Bethune-Cookman College and Alabama State University, which lost almost their entire football recruiting classes.

- The University of Oklahoma lost the most recruits among major schools, with 11 ineligible freshmen.

- Ivy League members—Brown,

Penn, Cornell, Columbia, Princeton, Yale, Dartmouth and Harvard—lost no one.

- About 20 percent of the ineligible players come from four major conferences—the Southeastern (35), the Southwest (30), the Big Eight (24) and the Big Ten (22).

"I don't think the number is alarming when you spread it across 286 schools," said John R. Davis, NCAA president and faculty athletics representative at Oregon State University. "I thought more athletes would be ineligible."

"A school recruits between 30 and 35 athletes in football and basketball," he said. "Multiply that by the 286 Division I schools and that's 8,500 kids—less really, because not all schools are in both sports. To find 400 or so ineligible, that's 5 percent. On average, that's very positive."

Black athletes appear to be bearing the brunt of the new rule's impact.

Bethune-Cookman, a small black school that plays in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, recruited 12 freshman football players and lost all of them. Morgan State University, in the same conference, lost 13 players. Alabama State of the Southwestern Athletic Conference lost 19 of 25 recruits.

A recent Dallas Times Herald examination of 105 football programs in Division I-A reported that of 206 freshmen who failed to meet the new standards, 175 were black.

Many college athletes work hard at being good students

Holly Nuber, a student-athlete at Stephen F. Austin State University, wrote a letter to the editor of the Houston Chronicle last month to counter "the constant accusations that all college athletes get special treatment in the classroom."

She urged readers not to judge all universities by the misdeeds of a handful. "I have earned my grades through hard work and effort, not because I am an athlete," she wrote.

"Next time you think all athletes are 'given' grades, think again. The majority of us work as hard for our grades as we do for our sports," Nuber said.

A number of student-athletes have been honored for their academic performances during the past year.

Other academic achievements by student-athletes have been published in earlier issues this summer or last spring. Here are additional records, in no particular order, from various NCAA member school and conferences:

Atlantic Coast Conference—Academic excellence was achieved by 533 student-athletes for the 1985-86 school year. A grade-point average of at least 3.000 is required, in addition to participation in at least one sport. Twenty-six of those cited were named for the fourth year, 57 made it for a third time and 129 repeated from last year.

Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference—A total of 428 student-athletes were named to the conference's third annual commissioner's list for the 1985-86 academic year. A GPA of at least 3.000 is required. Seventeen of those named had 4.000 GPAs.

George Washington University—Of all women student-athletes, 47 percent (of 109 total) earned a GPA of 3.000 or higher for the past semester. The seniors (19 total) had a graduation rate of 95 percent this year.

Northeast Louisiana University—Of 77 student-athletes named to the spring academic honor roll, seven had 4.000 GPAs.

Southeastern Conference—The academic all-SEC honor roll for 1986 includes 220 names of men and women student-athletes who achieved at least a 3.000 GPA, won a school letter and completed 24 semester or 36 quarter hours toward a bachelor's degree.

Northern Arizona University—For their efforts in academics and athletics, 13 men and women were honored. A 3.000 GPA is one requirement. Over the past eight years, 116 students have been honored, and all have graduated or are continuing their studies.

Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference—For a third time in the four-year history of the conference, more than 100 student-athletes have been named to the conference presidents' all-academic list. A student must maintain an accumulative 3.800 GPA for the all-academic award. Those who achieve between 3.500 and 3.800 are given honorable mention. Of the 119 honored, 34 were cited for top honors.

Pacific Coast Athletic Association—Eighteen student-athletes were selected for the first PCAA scholar-athlete of the year awards. Outstanding achievement in academics, athletics and community involvement are the criteria. A cumulative GPA of 3.100 or higher is held by all recipients.

University of Nevada, Las Vegas—The university honored 61 student-athletes who excelled academically in 1985-86. A 3.000 GPA is required for recognition.

Hunter College—The school recently honored 54 student-athletes for attaining GPAs of 3.000 or higher. The women's tennis team was cited for a combined 3.100 GPA.

University of Georgia—Fifty-two women and 57 men student-athletes posted GPAs of 3.000 or higher for the spring quarter. Six women and five men earned 4.000 GPAs. The women's group represents 55 percent of the total number of women student-athletes at the school.

Southland Conference—Ninety-three student-athletes were honored for academic achievement during the past year. A 3.000 GPA is a minimum. Four students achieved 4.000 GPAs and nine reached 3.800 or higher.

Illinois State University—Of the school's 387 student-athletes, 111 attained a 3.000 or higher GPA for the spring semester. Seven students had GPAs of 4.000. The spring semester GPA for all student-athletes was 2.520.

Colorado State University—Sixty-four women student-athletes earned GPAs of 3.000 or higher for the spring semester. Seven had 4.000 GPAs. The cumulative GPA for all women's sports was 2.830, with all teams averaging above 2.500.

Missouri Valley Conference—A total of 238 student-athletes have been named to the conference commissioner's list for earning GPAs of 3.000 or higher during the 1985-86 academic year. Five of the students earned 4.000 GPAs.

Additional academic achievements of student-athletes will be published in future issues of the News.

Science majors dominate GTE selections

Student-athletes with majors in the sciences dominated the eight GTE academic all-America teams selected during 1985-86 in halloting by members of the College Sports Information Directors of America.

More than 270 of the 455 student-athletes selected to the various teams majored in science-related areas. Business majors claimed 122 selections, and 81 majored in liberal arts, 37 in social sciences and 30 in education (the total exceeded 455 due to multi-majors).

Four institutions—Brown University; Illinois Wesleyan University; the University of Nebraska, Lincoln; and the University of Oregon—each placed five individuals on teams to lead all colleges and universities. Sixteen schools had four selections each, and another 34 claimed three selections.

The combined grade-point average of the 195 female selections was 3.740. The 260 males combined for a 3.620 GPA. The at-large teams boasted the highest GPAs—the women at 3.790 and the men at 3.780.

Other "team GPAs" included women's softball, 3.760; women's volleyball, 3.720; women's basketball, 3.680; baseball, 3.590; football, 3.590, and men's basketball, 3.500.

The Big Ten paced all major conferences with 25 academic all-Americans, followed by the Pac-10 (22), the Big Eight (13), the Atlantic 10 (12), the Ivy (11), the Southeastern (10), the Atlantic Coast (9), the Big East (8) and the Southwest (6).

Pennsylvanians dominated the state-by-state breakdown of selections, as the Keystone State claimed 40 natives among the honorees. Other states with more than 20 individuals on the teams were Ohio (40), New York (31), California (29) and Illinois (29).

Three student-athletes were named to two different teams—including Buena Vista's Jeannie Demers, who maintained a perfect 4.000 average while excelling in basketball and softball. Joining her as two-sport honorees were Illinois Wesleyan's Steve Bridges (football and baseball) and Julie Chen of MIT [softball and women's at-large (field hockey)]. Additionally, Scott Thomas of St. Anselm's was named to the men's at-large team in two sports—skiing and soccer.

The academic all-America program begins its 35th year with the 1986-87 fall sports season.

Arizona State goes it alone with its new eligibility policy

By Bob Eger
The Arizona Republic

Arizona State University apparently is the only Pacific-10 Conference school that won't allow its football players to practice while their eligibility is being cleared.

NCAA regulations give schools a two-week grace period before the start of classes during which athletes may practice even if there is some question of their eligibility.

"To my knowledge, nobody else (except ASU) in our conference is doing that," said Pac-10 public relations director Jim Muldoon. "I would be shocked if anybody else was taking that approach."

The no-practice directive from the university's new faculty athletics rep-committee ultimately uphold the appeal and restore the eligibility of each individual who is affected."

Maggard told the Associated Press that the subcommittee, which is the final appellate body on all eligibility issues, will base its decision on the strength of any new information presented.

"The appeals committee is not a rubber-stamp committee," Maggard said. "It looks for new evidence... something the Eligibility Committee did not see."

The case reportedly involved the provision of false information on individuals who utilized tickets to Nebraska games during the 1985 season. "This is not the first case where people with complimentary tickets have been acted upon," said Olav B. Kollevoll, athletics director at Lafayette College and chair of the NCAA Eligibility Committee.

"It's true that there's never been a case that involved so many players," he told the Associated Press. "The violations were there. That is what we saw."

representative, Marianne Jennings, has ASU athletics officials squirming, although they are doing their best to maintain a positive public posture.

"I respect our faculty representative and I respect her concern about placing academics above athletics," said ASU athletics director Charles S. Harris.

Harris said he can understand why ASU is the only Pac-10 school taking such a tough stance.

"I don't think there is another school in the conference that has had the well-documented academic problems we have had," Harris said.

ASU football coach John Cooper said he expressed his displeasure with the ruling during a conversation with Jennings.

"I told her I felt like the Pac-10 and NCAA rules are the ones we ought to abide by—not ones of our own," Cooper said.

Jennings said she does not feel ASU is swimming against the tide.

"I'd prefer to consider it flying above the trees," she said. "I don't consider it unusual for ASU to have standards that are higher than the Pac-10 and the NCAA.

"We also require a plan of study for freshman athletes. The NCAA does not require it until the junior year."

Jennings, on the faculty of the college of business at ASU since 1977, was named faculty athletics representative earlier this year.

As a member of the Arizona Corporation Commission, Jennings has listened to rate requests by the state's utilities.

Only time will tell if that experience was more trying than dealing with ASU athletics.

One incoming freshman football player, walk-on wide receiver Sean Grady of Los Angeles, was denied the opportunity to practice with the other freshmen despite seemingly impeccable academic credentials.

Grady told The Arizona Republic he had a 3.960 high school grade-point average and scored 1,190 on the SAT, exceeding the minimum standards set by the NCAA.

In Grady's case, verification of his high school core subjects had not been received from his high school.

The eligibility question is particularly difficult for walk-ons because the documentation needed to satisfy NCAA standards usually has not been obtained during the spring and many high schools are closed for the summer.

"I feel better about our situation than I did a week ago in regard to our incoming freshmen," Harris said. "We had about a dozen cases hanging then, but it's down to just a couple."

It was expected that several returning varsity players might have to petition for readmission to the university if their summer-school grades qualify them to petition.

Opinions sought on proposals dealing with outside income

Questionnaires seeking advice from Division I administrators and coaches on possible legislative proposals for the 1987 NCAA Convention have been mailed by the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Coaches' Outside Income.

Included in the questionnaire are four proposals dealing with outside income received by head football and head men's basketball coaches at member institutions.

After reviewing reactions to each of the proposals, the subcommittee will determine whether to recommend that the Council sponsor any or all of them at the 1987 Convention.

Copies of the material were mailed to chief executive officers, directors of athletics, head football and head men's basketball coaches at all Division I member institution.

The forms should be completed and returned to R. Dale Smith at the national office no later than September 19.

Those who believe they should have received a copy of the form but have not should contact Smith.

Interpretations

Institutional promotional activities (Revises Case No. 44)

Situation: A student-athlete generally may not permit the use of the student-athlete's name or picture to directly advertise, recommend or promote the sale or use of a commercial product or service. (575)

Question: Is the use of the student-athlete's name or picture by a member institution or an officially recognized entity thereof (e.g., fraternity, sorority or student government organization) to support its charitable or educational activities or to support activities considered incidental to the student-athlete's participation in intercollegiate athletics competition permissible under this legislation?

Answer: Yes, it being understood that such activities have the written approval of the institution's director of athletics and are restricted to the use of a student-athlete's name or picture in institutional publications (e.g., game programs) or the sale of team or individual pictures, posters or calendars. No commercial company or service may be associated (other than through the reproduction of the sponsoring company's regular trademark or logo on the item) with the sale of the picture or poster under such circumstances, and any other use of the student-athlete's name or picture by the institution or other entity to promote the sale or use of a commercial product would be prohibited. [C 3-1-(e)]

Eligibility—improper awards (Revises Case No. 100)

Situation: A student-athlete enrolled in an NCAA member institution receives an award that is not permitted under NCAA awards legislation. (378)

Question: Does receipt of such an award jeopardize the student-athlete's eligibility for participation in intercollegiate athletics or only for participation in the sport for which the student-athlete receives the improper award?

Answer: The provisions of Constitution 3-1-(i) normally are applicable to a student-athlete's eligibility only in the sport for which the student-athlete receives the improper award; however, if the student-athlete receives an improper award for competition that involves the use of overall athletic skills (e.g., "superstars" competition); such an award would jeopardize the individual's eligibility for all intercollegiate competition. [C 3-1-(i)]

Unitemized expenses

(Combines and revises Case Nos. 87 and 92)

Situation: A member institution's intercollegiate team is to play in an NCAA championship event or certified postseason football contest, or the institution or its conference wishes to sponsor a foreign tour in a particular sport. (643)

Question: May the institution provide cash to cover unitemized incidental expenses incurred by student-athletes through off-campus travel and practice scheduled in conjunction with these events?

Answer: Yes. An institution may provide $10 per day to each member of the squad during the following specified time periods: (1) for championship events, during a period limited to the maximum number of days of per diem allowed for the involved championship; (2) for postseason football contests, during a period not to exceed 10 days, and (3) for foreign tours, during a period that may include each day of the tour up to a maximum number of 21 days. [C 3-1-(h)-(1)]

GED scores (Revises Case No. 345)

Situation: A prospective student-athlete does not graduate from high school but subsequently completes the General Education Development (GED) test and obtains a state high school equivalency diploma. (226)

Question: By what means may the prospect establish eligibility for practice, participation and athletically related financial aid under the provisions of Bylaw 5-6-(b)?

Answer: Prior to initial enrollment as a full-time, regularly matriculated student in a collegiate institution, the prospective student-athlete must present a state high school equivalency diploma and a minimum average score of 45 on the five-part GED test in order to meet the high school graduation requirement of this legislation. Only scores from a GED test taken by the student-athlete after one calendar year has elapsed from the date the student's high school class (i.e., the last class of which the student was a member while enrolled in high school) normally graduates shall be utilized. The GED test may be used in this manner for high school graduation and to establish eligibility as a partial qualifier per Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(2), but it may not be substituted for the core-curriculum or national test-score requirements under this legislation. [B 5-1-(j) and 5-6-(b)]

Association staff changes noted

Three personnel changes have taken place at the NCAA national office.

David A. Didion has been named assistant director of enforcement, replacing Michael S. Glazier, who recently left the Association to enter private law practice.

Didion is a 1973 graduate of Ohio State University. He served the NCAA as an enforcement representative from 1978 to 1985 and recently rejoined the staff of the compliance and enforcement department in a similar capacity after serving as an administrative assistant on the football staffs at the University of Kansas and the University of Pittsburgh.

Betsy G. Stephenson has been promoted to administrative assistant in the championships department. She is a 1983 graduate of the University of Kansas and has served as secretary to Assistant Executive Director Thomas W. Jernstedt since March 1984.

Donna L. Wells has joined the Association's business department as an accountant.

A graduate of Walsh College, Wells has an extensive background in accounting, including the operation of her own accounting business.

Donnie Duncan hired as Oklahoma AD

Donnie Duncan, a former University of Oklahoma assistant coach who has been executive director of the Gator Bowl, was selected September 2 as the Sooners' new athletics director.

Duncan, 46, and Oklahoma associate athletics director Leon Cross, 47, were the finalists for the post.

Duncan reportedly had the support of Oklahoma head football coach Barry Switzer, on whose staff he served from 1973-78.

Duncan was head coach at Iowa State for four years. He also served as executive director of the Sun Bowl and was hired by the Gator Bowl in May.

List being readied

A list of banned substances applicable to the NCAA drug-testing program will be made available to the membership after the September 22 meeting of the Special NCAA Post-season Drug-Testing Committee.

Pacific

Eastern Kentucky, winner of the Ohio Valley Conference. Southwest Texas State appears to be the front-runner in the Gulf Star Conference, while Furman could challenge in the Southern Conference. Arkansas-Little Rock, which recently switched from the NAIA to the NCAA, has five starters returning off a team that finished fifth in the NAIA championships.

Northwest and West

High Country Athletic Conference—Conference champion Colorado State has been on an upward climb ever since coach Rich Feller joined the staff in 1983. This year should be no different, although two four-year starters (Sherri Danielson and Lori McMillan) have graduated off last season's 26-9 squad. Brigham Young, always a threat, may be the most experienced team in the conference. Four starters return from a 34-10 team that made it to the finals of the West regional before losing to Stanford in four games. Second-team all-America Sari Virtanen is back at middle blocker, but the key to the Cougars' success is new starting setter Marliisa Salmi, who replaces three-year starter Tami Hamilton.

Mountain West Athletic Conference—In its first year of automatic qualification, the Mountain West race will be fiercer than ever. Portland State, two-time Division II national champion (1984-85) and four-time Mountain West champion, is out of the league this year, leaving the race wide open. Montana, second in 1985 and 22-15 overall, has good experience but will have to train a freshman for a middle blocker role. The Lady Grizzlies' biggest worry should be third-place finisher Idaho State. Although the Bengals were 15-23 overall last season, all six starters return to join several key recruits.

Pacific Coast Athletic Association—Pacific, the PCAA tournament champion and NCAA national champion in 1985, will be strong again, although the Tigers lost two all-Americans from its 36-3 squad. Conference runner-up Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo lost four starters off a 31-8 team, opening the door for Hawaii, which tied UC Santa Barbara for third place in the conference. The Wahines, 28-13 last season, have a solid veteran lineup headlined by second-team all-America Tita Ahuna.

With setter Liz Towne and outside hitters Charlotte Mitchel and Shari Rodgers, UC Santa Barbara also should be a contender, along with San Diego State, fifth in the conference last season. The Aztecs have four starters returning and should improve on their 25-20 record.

Newcomer San Jose State, NorPac champion, lost only one starter in all-America setter Teri DeBusk. With second-team all-America Lisa Ice and all-NorPac Christa Cook at hitter positions and all-NorPac Barbara Higgins at middle blocker, the Spartans should be a strong addition to the PCAA.

Pacific-10 Conference—Even though it is in its first season of women's conference play, the Pac-10 will receive automatic qualification to the 1986 tournament. At least two final-four competitors from each of the last five years will compete in the league this season.

Five of the institutions competed in the Pac-West last season, with Stanford taking top honors and finishing second in the nation. The Cardinal again should be strong, although it will be without the services of all-America Kim Oden, now graduated. Los Angeles rivals Southern California and UCLA both will be rebuilding after 26-9 and 29-8 years, respectively. Both schools lost four starters, including all-Americans Tracy Clark and Kim Ruddins at Southern California and Liz Masakayan and Michelle Boyette at UCLA. Arizona State could challenge, equipped with five returning starters.

West Coast Athletic Conference—The WCAC will receive automatic qualification to the 1986 tournament, and Pepperdine looks like the preseason favorite to capture the berth. The Waves had no trouble winning last year's title, going 12-0 with the help of WCAC most valuable player Julie Evans (junior hitter). Santa Clara, third last season, could challenge. The Broncos will be led by all-conference selection Siobhan Saunders at hitter.

Executive Regulations

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Executive Committee has adopted executive regulations consistent with the provisions of Constitution 6-3. Executive regulations may be amended at any annual or special Convention by a majority vote of the delegates present and voting in accordance with the procedures set forth in Bylaws 13-1, 13-2 and 13-3. Publication in this column of executive regulations adopted or revised by the Executive Committee constitutes official notice to the membership.

Regulation 1-18-(e), page 197, was revised as follows:

(e) The games committee of a particular NCAA championship may permit single television stations or television and/or cable networks to broadcast action footage of the championship on a live or delayed basis on their regular television news programs. Unless otherwise approved by the NCAA, these broadcasts shall not exceed two minutes of action footage of the championship unless broadcast rights have been secured from the NCAA by payment of a rights fee. Such a "news" program shall be a regularly scheduled program devoted exclusively to general news and/or sports news. Sports entertainment programs do not qualify under the provision. The NCAA executive director shall be authorized to interpret and apply these provisions as necessary.

Regulation 1-19-(a)-(1), page 198, was revised as follows:

(1) Advertising of malt beverages, beer and wine may be used in game programs. Such advertisements, however, shall not comprise more than 14 percent of the space in the program devoted to advertising or not more than 90 seconds per hour of any telecast or broadcast (either a single 60-second commercial and one 30-second commercial or three 30-second commercials).

Regulation 1-20-(a), page 199, was revised as follows:

(1) No championship activity or promotion may be sponsored by liquor, tobacco, beer or wine companies or professional sports organizations or teams at any time.

(2) Commercial identification at the site of an NCAA championship is limited to the following:

(i) Advertising in the game program or on ticket backs, either purchased or on a trade-out basis, as authorized by the NCAA. All game-program advertising shall meet the provisions of NCAA Executive Regulation 1-19. No advertisement on ticket backs shall be for a competitive product of an approved NCAA corporate sponsor. Any trade-out agreements, advertising or otherwise, must be approved in advance by the NCAA executive director. [Paragraphs (ii), (iii) and (iv) unchanged.]

(3) The following corporate commercial identification may be permitted in conjunction with off-site activities:

(i) Placement of a banner or table tent(s) in an entertainment room.

Regulations 1-20-(b)-(1) and (2), page 200, was revised as follows:

(1) All advertising copy and promotional activities by corporate sponsors utilizing the NCAA's names or registered marks (e.g., National Collegiate Athletic Association, NCAA the Final Four) must have prior approval of the NCAA. Only the NCAA may authorize the use of its name or registered marks by a corporate sponsor.

(2) Mementos approved in advance by the NCAA may be distributed by the host institution or sponsoring agency in conjunction with a championship to participants, coaches, media and officials; but approved NCAA corporate sponsors and official licensees shall be given the first opportunity to provide such mementos.

Legislative Assistance

1986 Column No. 30

Drug-education program

The NCAA Administrative Committee has reviewed a proposal to utilize student-athletes to make educational presentations to students at elementary and secondary schools regarding the need to avoid the use of illegal drugs. The committee supported the proposal and agreed that student-athletes could participate, subject to the following provisions: (1) The involvement of student-athletes from member institutions is solely for the purpose of making presentations regarding drug abuse and not related in any way to recruiting activities; (2) any financial assistance provided by member institutions to student-athletes involved in these activities would be limited to the actual and necessary expenses incurred by the student-athlete, and (3) a member institution may provide expenses for such activities only if they take place within a 30-mile radius of the institution's main campus.

Complimentary admissions—pass list

The provisions of Case No. 60 (page 303, 1986-87 NCAA Manual) relate to individuals who may be designated to receive a student-athlete's complimentary admissions (i.e., family members, relatives and fellow students). During its August meeting, the Council considered the definition of "fellow students" and determined that such individuals may be students at the student-athlete's own institution or any other four-year collegiate institution. In reviewing this matter, the Administrative Committee noted during its August 28 conference that if such admissions are designated for a fellow student, the individual so designated must be properly identified with an appropriate student identification card in order to utilize the admission. In addition, the Administrative Committee noted that a student-athlete may not designate as a "fellow student" any individuals who are students from educational institutions other than four-year collegiate institutions (e.g., junior colleges or secondary schools).

Celebrity sports activities

The provisions of Bylaw 3-3(k)-(3) relate to the participation of individual student-athletes in local celebrity sports activities conducted for the purpose of raising funds for charitable organizations. Such activities are excluded from the computation of individual- and team-contest limitations as long as no more than two student-athletes from any one sport are involved, and provided that student-athletes do not miss classes as a result of their participation. The Administrative Committee has reviewed this legislation and determined that in order for the celebrity sports activities to be considered "local," they must take place within a 30-mile radius of the institution's main campus; further, the involvement of student-athletes in such activities is permissible only with approval of the institution's director of athletics.

Game balls

The Administrative Committee has determined that Case No. 44, as revised by the Council in its August meeting and published in this edition of The NCAA News, would permit a member institution to provide without charge game balls autographed by the institution's squad members to individuals or groups on the basis that these items would not be utilized for resale or auction. The committee noted, however, that the revised interpretation would preclude involvement of the institution in the sale of such game balls in order to develop funds for the athletics department or in the provision of such game balls to a charitable organization for resale or auction.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question that it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Eligibility Rulings

Colorado College

The eligibility of an ice hockey student-athlete was restored immediately. The young man received expenses from the Canadian Olympic Committee for participation on the Canadian Olympic team. The committee determined that the expenses received were reasonable and necessary and were related to practice or competition.

University of North Dakota

The eligibility of an ice hockey student-athlete was restored immediately. The young man received expenses from the Canadian Olympic Committee for participation on the Canadian Olympic team. The committee determined that the expenses received were reasonable and necessary and were related to practice or competition.

University of Illinois, Champaign

The eligibility of several football student-athletes who received payments in violation of Constitution 3-1(f) while employed in a summer-job program administered by the university was restored pursuant to repayment of improper money received. The committee determined that this matter involved the issue of institutional responsibility.

Memphis State to reward good grades

Student-athletes at Memphis State University have been given a warning: Cut class and you don't play.

"There is going to be more emphasis on the student in student-athlete," Charles Cavagnaro, the university's athletics director, said September 4.

Athletes must earn at least a C average in two subjects each semester to remain eligible for sports, he said.

Athletes who fail to earn a C average will be required to attend special study sessions. An athlete who takes unexcused cuts from classes will be barred from practice sessions, Cavagnaro said. If an athlete has seven unexcused absences from class, he will be suspended from sports participation.

"We are going to be getting daily reports on each one of our 300 student-athletes," Cavagnaro said. "The coaches will know the next morning if one of their athletes skipped class."

"If you rank your aggravations, that doesn't rank up there very high because we're doing what we ought to be doing," Cavagnaro said.

"I've met with every single player at school—scholarship, walk-ons, everyone. Based on the question I've heard, I think the reception has been positive."

"I haven't heard any objections," he said. "I tell them it is tougher on them than on anyone else at Memphis State because they are special. They are athletes, and they have an obligation."

December 1 application deadline

Summer high school all-star games must be certified

Organizations that wish to certify their summertime high school all-star football or basketball games must return application forms by December 1.

The NCAA High School All-Star Games Committee will consider all applications received by that date. Those received after December 1 may not be considered for another year.

The committee, which consists of both college and high school representatives, acts in place of those state high school athletics associations that have declined to accept jurisdiction for certifying high school all-star games. The committee's charge is included in NCAA Constitution 3-9(a).

Individuals who participate in all-star football and basketball games should note that all interstate contests, both school-year and summertime, must be certified by the NCAA High School All-Star Games Committee. Intrastate games played after graduation need not receive NCAA certification. Participating individuals also should remember that all games played after graduation do not count toward the two-game limitation mentioned in NCAA Constitution 3-9(a)-(3).

Following are all criteria that apply to high school all-star football and basketball games:

1. Participation in the game shall be restricted to individuals who have completed their high school eligibility in the sport and have not yet enrolled in and attended classes during a regular term at a collegiate institution.

2. Players participating in the game shall live within the state in which the game is played; or, if the game is interstate in nature, then the participating players shall live within the states involved. The selection of a participant shall not be contingent upon a cash contribution to the organization sponsoring the game or the purchase of game-program space or advertising.

3. The game shall be sponsored and administered solely by an organization established and operating in the community or state in which the game is played.

4. The game shall have an established charitable or educational purpose; the financial records of the game shall reflect an accomplishment of that purpose, and all net receipts from the game shall be utilized for such purpose. Net receipts shall be gross receipts less expenses directly connected with the administration and conduct of the event.

Gross receipts shall include all revenues derived from the game including sale of tickets (less taxes), concessions, programs, radio rights, television rights, movie rights and any other income derived from the operation of the game, including amounts donated by individuals or organizations for general or specific purposes. No complimentary tickets shall be allowed. Not more than 60 percent of the game's gross receipts can be consumed by expenses directly connected with the administration and conduct of the event.

Expenses directly connected with the administration and conduct of the event shall include promotion and publicity, tickets, general game and team expenses, administrative expenses, and any other expenses necessary for the conduct of the game, including amounts paid by individuals or organizations for specific purposes (e.g., transportation, banquet, awards, staff).

5. Following the game, the sponsoring organization shall provide to the NCAA by the required deadline: (a) a complete financial record of the game; (b) confirmation of a physician's presence at the game, availability during all practice sessions and medical examinations of all participants prior to the competition, and (c) proof of payment (cancelled check or certified statement from charitable or educational organization) of all net proceeds (including any delayed amounts) to the charitable or educational organization.

6. Expenses of participants shall be limited to actual transportation, board and room costs. Payment shall be made directly by the sponsoring agency to the vendor, except that in those instances where it is more convenient to use cash to reimburse the participant for his transportation costs, this may be done, provided a receipt is secured.

7. If awards are made to the players participating in the game, they shall be in keeping with the requirements established by the high school athletics association of the state in which the game is played. In no instance may the total cost of the award exceed $15, nor may a merchandise award be presented. It shall not be permissible to provide awards or prizes to participants in recognition of their outstanding game performance. Only one award to each participant is permissible; therefore, presentation of additional gifts or mementos is prohibited.

8. The sponsoring organization shall provide for adequate medical care and expense for each participant in the event of accident or injury from the time the player leaves home for practice and/or participation in the game until the player returns home; this protection shall be in the form of travel accident and medical insurance, which at least shall cover a claim of $10,000 for death and dismemberment and $25,000 for medical treatment resulting from an accident incurred by the participant in traveling to or from the game, or practicing for or playing in the game.

9. Each participant in a football game conducted more than two weeks after the participant's last high school contest shall have had at least nine days of organized practice prior to the day of the game, of which the first three days shall be limited to noncontact conditioning drills in which no football gear or protective equipment other than headgear and shoes shall be worn. Each participant in a football game conducted within two weeks of the participant's last high school football game shall have had at least four days of organized practice prior to the day of the game, of which none need be noncontact conditioning drills.

Each participant in a basketball game shall have had at least three days of organized practice prior to the day of the game if played during the school year and at least five days of organized practice prior to the day of the game if played following graduation.

Each participant shall have been pronounced physically fit to participate as a result of a current medical examination made and certified in writing by the family physician; further, the physician at the game site shall certify that no player was permitted to take part in workouts or game competition unless so certified by a qualified medical doctor.

10. A qualified medical doctor must be present during the playing of the game and available during all practice sessions. In addition, the management must provide for each scheduled practice, as well as for the game, (a) the presence of a person qualified and delegated to render emergency care to a stricken athlete, such as a competent athletics trainer, and (b) planned access to a medical facility for prompt medical services. All parties should have a thorough understanding of these procedures.

The presence of a qualified medical doctor during the game and the doctor's availability during practice sessions shall be certified in writing by the game management at the time it submits its final report to the High School All-Star Games Committee.

11. Head and assistant coaches of the teams shall be selected from the states represented by participants in the game.

12. Payment of expenses shall be limited to players and coaches actually participating in the game.

Sea World signs on as Holiday Bowl sponsor

Holiday Bowl President James C. Schmidt announced August 28 the signing of a multiyear agreement with Sea World Enterprises, Inc., as the major sponsor of the game, which will be called the Sea World Holiday Bowl.

"This is a logical partnership between two San Diego entities dedicated to promoting tourism in San Diego," Schmidt said. "Sea World has been committed to enhancing the game by supporting team events and purchasing tickets. We are grateful for this opportunity to expand the relationship."

"We always have felt the bowl was an important part of the local community and presented a positive national image for San Diego, much the same as Sea World. This is not a short-term relationship...we are in this for the long haul with a commitment to growth," said Jan Schultz, president of Sea World of California.

In a related development, the remaining two years of the Holiday Bowl's television contract with Lorimar Sports have been assigned to KUTV of Salt Lake City, which has created the Holiday Bowl Television Network.

"We will fulfill all terms of the contract, including rights fees and guarantee of making the game available to at least 80 percent of the U.S. television households," said KUTV general manager Al Seethaler.

The Sea World Holiday Bowl will be played at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium Tuesday, December 30—the first post-Christmas date in the history of the game.

Nothing undermines academic emphasis at Colorado school

By Dick Conner
Rocky Mountain News

The football coach was walking down a hallway when one of his freshmen came up.

"Coach, my last class doesn't let out until 4. Can I get it changed?"

"No, no. We all have that problem," Marv Kay told the young man. "Just get over as soon as you can."

When the NCAA speaks of student-athletes, it must be speaking of Colorado School of Mines.

Up in Golden, Colorado, where the Orediggers have their football program lined up against the outside shoulder of the Rockies, they also have it lined up precisely in place when it comes to priorities.

We all have read the horror stories emanating from all parts of the nation this summer.

Colorado loses three prized recruits for this season; Oklahoma lost 10.

Kay can't remember the last prospect he lost to low ACT numbers. The new NCAA requirement is a minimum 15. Mines' average is 26.2, the average for incoming football players 25.8. One had a 31, and 25 (of 55) scored 26 or better.

They judge a recruit as much or more by his grade-point average than his time in the 40. When it comes to student-athletes, Mines emphasizes the left-hand side of the hyphen—the student side—while doing everything it can to make the right-hand side competitive within one of the toughest academic frameworks in the nation.

It's a healthy mix intercollegiate athletics should be forced to munch daily.

Marv Kay

Kay is starting his 18th year at the school. He has never won a championship. He has had just three winning seasons; in fact, the last one seven years ago. Fritz Brennecke, his predecessor who began in 1947, and for whom Kay played, posted only four winners in 21 seasons.

But W's are not the be-all and, especially, the end-all by which Mines coaches are measured.

Since World War II, Mines has had just seven winning seasons. It also has had just two coaches.

Kay's 1986 starters include eight engineering majors, three in petroleum engineering, three in chemical engineering, three metallurgy engineering prospects, two in mathematics, one in geology and two sophomores still undecided.

The cumulative grade-point average is 2.71, or B-minus. The GPA for everyone at the world-renowned mining school is 2.60, and the footballers carry an average of 16.5 semester hours.

When somebody noted there is no P.E. degree, a pet depository for athletes at more muscle-conscious institutions, an administrator scoffed.

"Yes, there is: Petroleum Engineering."

When the Orediggers began their 97th season against Hastings College September 6, Kay watched with the same hope that marks the start of every season.

"We're always competitive. We'll win our three to four to five games a year. What we're looking for is that seven or eight. (Pause) Or nine," he adds, laughing.

"It seems to keep eluding us. We compete with the best teams in the league (Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference).

"I have never had administrative pressure to win eight and go to a bowl. All the way through, I have had administrative support."

There is no training table, no athletics dorm, no special academic watchdog to force the student-athlete to the left-hand side of that hyphen.

There are 105 prospects out for Mines football this season, the most in Kay's tenure. He's not worried how many he can keep eligible.

"I was concerned we had enough equipment. Three years ago the total squad was about 60, and last year 70 to 75."

They found enough shoulder pads and helmets to go around in a total operating budget of $32,800, and Kay won't cut anybody. "There are maybe 15 of that 105 who might not be able to play for us. But rather than cut, I feel just participating is good for them at this type of institution."

Like the service academies, the athletics work day is a short one. "Our football day is from 4, when classes let out, until 7, when the cafeteria closes. We have to use that period to get taped, over to the field, practice, back, shower and over in time to eat. So we don't have the extra meeting times."

He requires two hours of in-season weight training in the new weight

Sun Devils get golf course

After 10 years of planning, the Sun Angel Foundation announced September 2 that construction will begin next year for a golf course at Arizona State University.

Officials of the Sun Angels—the school's main athletics booster group—said it will be an 18-hole championship course on a 156-acre tract near campus on land between Scottsdale and Hayden Roads in Tempe.

World-renowned course designer Pete Dye, who has been retained to room and another two hours of film study. Somehow, players have to sandwich that into a schedule that routinely goes to midnight and later.

"They might go eat, study, then come over and lift for a while, then go back and study some more. When we travel, they'll get back on the bus, sleep for an hour, then the lights come on and the books come out and they get ready for the next week."

Dedication is a word that comes quickly to mind for this program. "There's not a spare, unused moment in their day," says Kay, who understands. He got a degree in mining engineering himself and, until a few years ago, spent summers working as a consultant.

"I suppose like every coach I once dreamed of going to the Rose Bowl. But they don't judge me here on how many bowls I go to."

"We'll keep pursuing that pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. We're going to get it one of these days."

construct the 7,000-yard course, said he envisions "an English-type course that's totally different from those normally found in the desert."

Building costs have not been determined, but construction is scheduled to begin in early 1987 and take a year to complete, the Associated Press reported.

Sun Angel officials said they have $1 million in funds already for the project and plan to raise more through various fund-raising activities.

several others. The Council approved a statement entitled Considerations for Insurance Coverages, which will be published in a future issue of the News and annually in the future.

The Council voted to sponsor at the 1987 Convention a recommended policy encouraging appropriate insurance coverage by member institutions.

Long Range Planning: The Council approved a recommendation that a draft of an institutional code of responsibility in athletics and a proposed code of ethics for student-athletes be submitted to the Presidents Commission for review and possible endorsement, with the Council to consider the matter in its fall meeting.

The Council also approved a recommendation that the proposed Committee on Women's Athletics, if approved by the 1987 Convention, consider a suggestion from a Division I institution that the scholarship offerings by sex and sport at each member institution be studied as a means of assessing opportunities provided to women student-athletes.

It approved a committee recommendation that a presentation by the president of the National Association of Academic Advisers for Athletics be shared with the Academic Requirements Committee.

Postseason Drug-Testing: The Council approved a recommended interpretation of Bylaw I-1(b)-(3) that would permit an institution to distribute to prospective student-athletes the list of NCAA-banned drugs, the NCAA drug-testing policy and any institutional drug statement.

The Council affirmed, as had the Executive Committee, the special committee's position that member institutions conducting drug testing during the period specified in Bylaw 5-2 need not report their results to the NCAA inasmuch as the NCAA drug-testing legislation was adopted to apply only to NCAA championships and postseason football contests.

The Council approved the following time constraints in the drug-testing program: (a) If a student-athlete refuses to provide a urine specimen, ineligibility will commence at 12:01 a.m. the day after the specimen was to have been provided; (2) in the case of a positive result on the test of Specimen B, ineligibility will begin at 12:01 a.m. on the day after Specimen B was tested and found positive, and (3) if a student-athlete, or his or her institution, elects not to have Specimen B tested, ineligibility will begin at 12:01 a.m. the day after the NCAA is so notified.

Division I Steering: The committee named the following to chair the various Division I business sessions at the 1987 Convention: Division I, Lewis A. Cryer, Pacific Coast Athletic Association; Division I-A, Wilford S. Bailey, Auburn University; Division I-AA, Jack V. Doland, McNeese State University; Division I-AAA, Don J. DiJulia, Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference.

Division II Steering: The staff was asked to develop legislation regarding the tryout rule for review in October. In addition, the steering committee will review in October a possible core-curriculum requirement for initial eligibility in Division II, as well as a simple process of academic reporting in that division.

Division III Steering: The steering committee will recommend to the Division III Championships Committee that excess receipts in 1985-86 be applied to the division's block grant for the next two years.

It also will discuss in the fall meeting means of developing greater consistency in understanding of the various aspects of Division III financial aid restrictions.

The committee will review in the fall meeting legislation to reduce the football contest limitation in that division from 11 to 10 and to treat concerns regarding official campus visits in Division III.

Others: The Council also received reports from the Administrative, Classification and Research Committees; the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Financial Aid Issues, and the Special Measuring Athletics Program Success Committee.

Miscellaneous

The Council considered a detailed report entitled "Comprehensive Reevaluation of NCAA Programs, Services and Management Procedures for the Purpose of Achieving Increased Efficiency in the NCAA Organizational and Administrative Structure." It voted to review legislation in the fall meeting to implement a committee restructuring plan contained in that report, which would eliminate over a period of time all special committees; require that each Council-appointed committee include a member of the Council; establish three new committees (an unnamed committee of former NCAA officers, a Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism, and a Legislation and Interpretations Committee); combine, merge or restructure numerous other committees, including the men's and women's committees in

CORRECTIONS

Due to an editor's error, the preview of the Division II men's soccer season that appeared in the August 27, 1986, issue of The NCAA News reflected inaccurate regional alignments. The following regional alignment has been approved for use during 1986: Northeast—the New England states, New Jersey and New York; Central—Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin; South—Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia, and West—all remaining states.

Due to an editor's error, the Executive Committee summary that appeared in the August 27, 1986, issue of The NCAA News inaccurately reported the list of conferences to receive automatic qualification into the 1987 Division III Men's Basketball Championship. The winner of the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference will advance to postseason action in the West region, not the South as was reported. Left off the list of automatic qualifiers were the Midwest Collegiate Athletic Conference (Midwest region) and the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (South region).

Due to an editor's error, the NCAA Record in the August 27 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly stated that Bob Entzion was named assistant athletics director at South Dakota. Entzion, who has been an assistant football coach at South Dakota the past four seasons, was named assistant AD at North Dakota.

Due to incorrect information provided to the NCAA Statistics Service, the August 13, 1986, issue of The NCAA News omitted two South Florida women's softball players from a list of Division earned-run-average leaders. Debbie Morash, a senior, should have been ranked fifth with a 0.28 ERA and Laurie Romero, a sophomore, should have been ranked sixth with a 0.33 ERA. Also, South Florida should have been ranked in a tie with Cal State Fullerton for first place in team earned-run average. The team's ERA was 0.28.
