ACLU tests Colorado's drug policy

The American Civil Liberties Union has filed what could become a precedent-setting court challenge to the University of Colorado's random drug-testing program for athletes.

Colorado is violating its athletes' constitutional rights to privacy, freedom from unreasonable searches and seizures, and due process of law, according to the lawsuit filed in Boulder District Court.

"It's an issue of privacy, freedom from unreasonable search and seizure and due process," said Julie Golden, assistant director of the Colorado ACLU. "The implications are large because it's the first action against a university."

The university launched its mandatory drug-testing program in 1984. In August, the university strengthened the program by testing athletes more frequently and increasing the penalties for those who tested positive for drugs.

Age serves tennis player quite well

By Barry Shlachter

Joe Sweeney made the varsity tennis team at Salem State College as a sophomore—after 50 years of practice.

Sweeney, who at 71 is believed to be the oldest college player, didn't have a spectacular fall season. Perhaps it was because he devoted too much time to his full-time studies, or to weekly hockey matches, his swimming, diving, piano practice, sailing, roller skating and wind surfing.

"I've competed and coached in 10 different sports, and tennis is the toughest," Sweeney, in blue sweats and cap in the orange-and-black school colors, said during a recent fast-paced practice session with a 19-year-old teammate whom he finally beat, 6-4. "That's why it's such a good game."

The white-bearded student played in three singles matches for Salem State, losing all of them. But he fared better with doubles, as he and his partner finished the season with a 2-1 record.

Sweeney, a retired cost estimator for a defense contractor, came to Salem State in 1983 to give private instruction to a young protege and

Federal government restores full funding to NYSP for '87

Four weeks of intense lobbying culminated in a special conference between members of the U. S. Senate and the House of Representatives that restored full funding for the National Youth Sports Program.

The special conference overturned a bill proposed by Iowa Democrat Tom Harkin that would have cut $2.5 million from the program, sponsored jointly by the NCAA and the Federal government. The conference reviewed funding appropriations for the Community Services Block Grant and specifically discussed the funding needs for NYSP.

If the proposal had gone through, the NYSP would have received a 40 percent reduction in funding from $6.13 in fiscal-year 1986 to $3.63 million in fiscal-year 1987. Funding was restored at the post-Grumm-Rudman level of $5.86 million.

Representative Silvio Conte of Massachusetts led the discussions that took exception to the amendment, and he was joined by colleagues Bill Young (Florida), Louis Stokes (Ohio) and House Subcommittee Chair on Appropriations William Natcher (Kentucky). They supported Conte and provided key testimony on the effectiveness of the NYSP.

NYSP personnel committed to overturning the proposed amendment provided members of the House and Senate with information regarding their particular projects within the program.

Among the NYSP supporters were John R. Davis, NCAA president; Delores Andy, former NYSP Committee member, University of Pennsylvania; Tom Barnhart, activity director, North Dakota State University; Laurie Dunnet, activity director, Boston College; Warren Giese, NYSP Committee member, University of South Carolina; Hiram Green, project administrator, University of South Florida; Lloyd Johnson, activity director, Bethune-Cookman College; Lance Lamport, NYSP evaluator, St. Petersburg Junior College; James O. Newman, project administrator, California State University, Los Angeles; Mike Orfitelli, activity director, St. Ambrose College; Christ Petrouleas, former chair of the NYSP Committee, Wayne State University (Michigan), and Walter Reed, project administrator, Jackson State University.

The Association provides administrative support for the program, which utilizes the campuses of colleges and universities throughout the nation, and the government provides major funding.

Each summer, thousands of underprivileged youth who take part in the program receive free instruction in lifetime sports activities; free medical screening; a daily meal, and guidance in areas relating to personal hygiene, educational and career alternatives, and alcohol and drug abuse.

First samples of Manual revision available for study at Convention

Samples of revised bylaws currently being developed by the Special NCAA Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification probably will be available for review at the 1987 NCAA Convention, according to Wilford S. Bailey, the Association's secretary-treasurer, who is chairing the group.

"We anticipate having sample bylaws available for perusal," said Bailey, "maybe in the press area at the Convention."

During the NCAA Council's October meeting, Bailey presented a brief report to the group on the work of the special committee, which already has completed drafting of a sample bylaw on eligibility.

"Since copies of the draft were included in Council members' packets, I asked them to review the material and forward any comments to the special committee," explained Bailey. "Since the October Council meeting always is dominated by work on possible legislation for the upcoming Convention, there was relatively little time for discussion or direct feedback. However, the few comments I did receive were positive."

Titled "Awards, benefits and expenses for student-athletes," the revised bylaw shows the reorganized sections of the Manual on these subjects in current language and a parallel draft of revised wording designed to achieve greater understanding and simplification.

Following the Council meeting, the special committee met in Kansas City to work through the first revision of the sample eligibility bylaw. "In addition to review by the legislative services staff and other members of the NCAA national office staff, the special committee is going to identify several people in the membership and ask them to review the material," Bailey said.

"We would like them to read the draft carefully and provide feedback that will help us complete the project."

Personal choice is key to drug-control effort

By Clay Calvert
The Stanford Daily

Stanford has remained unswayed by the mounting number of schools that have adopted mandatory drug-testing programs for student-athletes. Instead, the university has put its trust in the individual student-athlete to be responsible for his or her own actions and has refused to develop such a program.

"We believe that you know the difference between the right thing to do and the wrong thing to do intrinsically," said Ferdinand A. Geiger, director of the athletics department. "We don't want to play cops and robbers."

While the university does not have its own mandatory drug-testing program, Geiger emphasized that the lack of such a program does not mean the university is unconcerned.

"Let me emphasize that we're not soft on drug use," he said.

Despite Stanford's determination to let student-athletes make their own decisions about drug use, the NCAA requires all collegiate athletes to sign a consent form agreeing to conform to and abide by prescribed NCAA regulations.

The NCAA requires athletes on teams that qualify for postseason championships or bowl games to participate willingly in drug testing.

Should the Cardinal football team receive and accept a bowl bid, the 22 regular starting players would be tested, Geiger said. Fourteen other players would be randomly selected to submit to drug tests.

"If we go to a bowl game, you better believe they're going to test us," said Jack Friedenthal, faculty athletics representative.

The purpose of singling out student-athletes for drug tests remains unclear to some at the university.

"It's not clear at all to me what the tests are supposed to do," said James Lyons, dean of student affairs.

Lyons said the policy could be aimed at taking away "an unfair advantage" caused by use of performance-enhancing drugs, embarrassing coaches and players with disclosures of the names of student-athletes found using NCAA-banned drugs, or a general feeling in society that street drugs are evil.

"They (the NCAA) have a solution in search of several problems," Lyons said, calling the NCAA's rule "a fairly serious step, probably unconstitutional and a bad response."

Many NCAA Division I institutions now have mandatory drug testing for student-athletes, and others are planning to implement such programs.

Stanford doesn't appear to be joining the ranks of those universities anytime soon. As Geiger said, the university "has no plans" to begin mandatory drug tests.

Friedenthal agreed with Geiger, stating, "We're not going to drug test mandatorily at this university."

Geiger noted that if student-athletes voluntarily want to be tested for drug use, the university will comply with the students' requests.

Growing up is hard to do

By the Associated Press

Freshman athletes at the University of California, Los Angeles, got an orientation talk recently from some of their big-name predecessors, including Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, whose words could apply to college students anywhere.

"One of the things you're going to do here is grow up," the NBA's all-time scoring leader recently told the new students. "And that's hard."

Abdul-Jabbar, who majored in history at UCLA when he was known as Lew Alcindor, emphasized the importance of reconciling athletics with academics.

"You have to understand that one of the reasons you are here is that you are an elite. You can run faster, throw more strikes, block defensive linemen better and shoot a jump shot better.

"But a lot of us seem to lose sight of the other side of it. You also have to compete in academics," he said. "This is a serious university."

Other past Bruins who addressed the freshmen about college life included gymnast Mitch Gaylord and track star Jackie Joyner.

"Just about every day, you can pick up the paper and read about what happened to a friend or a teammate because of drugs," Joyner said.

"You can sit there and say, 'It's not going to happen to me.' But the one time you take that drink or the one time you take that puff, you could be ruining everything you've worked for.

"The next thing you know, all those 8-, 9- and 10-year old kids who were dreaming of being like you, no longer are," she said. "It all can go down the drain."

The economics aren't there

By Herschel Nissenson
Associated Press football writer

The successful lawsuit by the Universities of Georgia and Oklahoma that killed the NCAA Football Television Plan has had the unwanted effect of reducing payments for TV appearances.

Is the other shoe now about to fall?

Although ABC, CBS and ESPN will continue to televise college football, there may be trouble on the horizon with the announcement that Turner Broadcasting will not renew its contract to show Big Ten, Pac-10 and Atlantic Coast Conference games.

For the past two years, the network has televised games involving teams from those leagues, as well as the Southeastern Conference, on WTBS, the Atlanta superstation, and by syndication to other stations.

Something colleges needed to hear

Joan Beck

"I have never seen a greater interest in money, money, cash, bucks—among anybody. The higher education lobbyists put Harvard Square hawkers to shame."

"It was a somewhat ungrammatical punch that Education Secretary William J. Bennett threw at colleges in general and Harvard University in particular. But it hit hard. It stung. And the colleges had it coming.

"It's time someone spoke out angrily about those relentlessly increasing college costs. Instead of pushing for more tax dollars for higher education and telling parents to get second mortgages to pay tuition bills, more people should be pressuring colleges to tighten up their spending. The total price tag on a year's schooling at some private colleges now is close to $20,000.

"By decade's end, it could cost a family $200,000 to put two undergraduates through four years at a prestigious school, according to an article in the Brookings Review.

"By now, the familiar excuses for such steep hikes—inflation, energy costs, faculty raises, more scholarships for minorities—have worn thin.

"It's been easy for colleges, like hospitals, to be profligate with spending, to assume that education, like medical care, is so valuable that people won't question its costs and that if family resources are inadequate, government money can be tapped, either through student-aid programs or by using public colleges and universities.

"Mr. Bok may rebut Mr. Bennett on the Harvard podium. It is Mr. Bennett, however, who makes sense to parents worrying about having to take on a second mortgage and to legislators looking for ways to cut spending."

"There's a simple cure for what's wrong with major-college football and basketball these days.

"They don't need to be 'decommercialized;' they need to be de-NCAA'd.

"But who will lead the revolt?"

Drug abuse demands our attention

To the Editor:

As a physician who has been intimately involved in the development and implementation of the United States Olympic Committee drug-control program, I can tell you without reservation that the problem of drug use and abuse by athletes is a very major one, and athletes may be far more involved and vulnerable than many other segments of society.

The extreme and unhealthy emphasis on winning—often at any cost—leads to undue pressure on athletes to use performance-enhancing agents in an attempt to gain a competitive edge. Such agents as anabolic steroids and other stimulants are available to many athletes, sometimes with the knowledge of the coaching and medical staffs. This pressure to win also leads athletes to abuse alcohol, marijuana, depressants, etc., in a vain attempt to reduce the tensions.

Like it or not, the athletics population is a unique one and is different from the student body as a whole. They are public celebrities and, as such, serve as role models whether they want to or not. They have to be held to standards often above those of the common crowd—just as professionals are in other areas.

We owe the athlete protection against the physical and ethical dangers these drugs present.

An effective drug program depends on education and rehabilitation; but without testing and punitive arms, the program fails. The only real deterrent is detection and the penalty is imposed.

We must not be naive enough to look at drug control as an invasion of privacy. It is a necessary process if we are to maintain the health and well-being of the athlete and of the sport itself.

Athletics programs are really privileges, and, as with everything else in life, privileges bring responsibilities—providing a drug-free environment and doing what is necessary to insure that is the least we can do.

An NCAA form warrants change

To the Editor:

I have had recent conversation with the legislative services department of the NCAA with regard to the freshman student-athlete eligibility form, which must be completed by high school counselors, and I have been assured that changes are imminent.

I encourage the NCAA member athletics directors to propose or support changes in the current procedure since many counselors will not cooperate; thus, we have had great difficulty in obtaining these completed forms and the involved data.

Counselors also do not appreciate the NCAA legislating a form that may drastically affect their workload, and I certainly understand their attitude.

Hopefully, there is a better and simpler method, which will not produce negative reaction from the local high schools.

I solicit support in subjecting this requirement to change.

The package included a prime-time series of Big-Ten, Pac-10 and ACC games, an early afternoon series of Big Ten games, and a two-year agreement to carry 12 to 14 SEC games a year in 1985 and 1986. The total payoff was in the area of $8 million.

"The problem was with our economics," Rex Lardner, WTBS' director of sports, said. "The economics are just not there in terms of revenue coming back in."

Turner's three packages (SEC, early afternoon Big Ten, prime-time Big Ten-Pac-10) lost between $7 million and $8 million last year. It will be somewhat less this year, especially for the prime-time package, whose ratings are up.

But, says Lardner, "The economics just don't work. It's the law of supply and demand. There are too many games out there. Advertisers have more than 200 college football games on television to choose from."

Lardner said WTBS hopes to renew

Coaches tested

The University of Florida basketball coaching staff joined its players in submitting to a drug test October 23. All intercollegiate athletes at the school are subject to the random drug tests. Basketball coach Norm Sloan said he and his staff also volunteered to take part in the testing program.

"We did this for one reason—it's our way of making a strong, positive statement on the drug situation," Sloan said.

"I happen to be one person who believes it's good," said Sloan. "It's our philosophy here that our coaches and players work together in everything we do. I felt it was something we as coaches should do."

"I'm not interested in a kid who thinks he's more important than everybody else because he's a scholarship athlete. At Grand Valley, I want kids with good character, kids who respect their parents and want an education.

"I'd limit (recruiting) visits to three per athlete. Kids are flying all over the country now just for the trip, even if they have no intention of signing with a school. That's a big waste of time and money.

"I'd restrict head coaches to on-campus recruiting only. No home visits, keep the contacts to the letter. Right now, there are times when coaches are lined up outside a blue-chipper's home at 5 a.m. on signing day, hoping for one last shot. That's crazy.

"It can be frustrating (going up against players he recruited but who were let go because of the school's academic standards). But we aren't going to lower our standards. We recruit good kids, and we offer them a quality education. And we seem to be doing pretty well that way."

Men's Basketball Preview

Three-pointer headlines the new men's basketball season

By Richard M. Campbell
The NCAA News Staff

The biggest story in college basketball is not the quiet, efficient manner in which Louisville cruised to the 1986 Division I men's championship, but rather which teams in 1987 will be helped or hindered by the newly instituted three-point field goal.

The 19-foot, nine-inch shot may allow teams that have an outside shooter to force bigger teams to open up their defense enough to change the outcome of a game. With that in mind, the start of the new season suggests some interesting possibilities.

Louisville coach Denny Crum might beg to differ, but his Cardinals probably will be picked to repeat in 1987 despite losing outstanding seniors Milt Wagner, Billy Thompson and Jeff Hall. The Cards return NCAA tournament most valuable player Pervis Ellison, Herbert Crook at forward and swingman Tony Kimbro.

Other contenders

Kansas coach Larry Brown will have superb junior Danny Manning returning from last year's Final Four jaunt, but the Jayhawks may have trouble keeping the Big Eight title from Oklahoma in 1987. Brown realizes the problems that come from losing three starters — Greg Dreiling, Ron Kellogg and Calvin Thompson — and sixth-man Archie Marshall (knee injury). Manning also has to recover from a knee injury that occurred after the season.

Navy will ride the broad shoulders of 6-11 center David Robinson, possibly college basketball's best player, but the Middies will miss departed coach Paul Evans, who left for Pittsburgh. Evans' assistant, Pete Herrmann, was named to replace him and will try to overcome the loss of his other inside devastator, Vernon Butler, a four-year starter. Still, any team with Robinson will be hard to handle, and Navy should win the Colonial Athletic Association title again.

Notre Dame would have been a good choice to dominate the independents, but the unsettled status of guard David Rivers, who was injured in a car accident last summer, puts the Irish in limbo. With the lightning-quick Rivers, forward David Royal and guard Mark Stevenson, coach Digger Phelps would have had an outstanding threesome. Chances are he will miss graduated starters Ken Barlow and Tim Kempton a lot more if Rivers is unable to recover in time.

What team besides North Carolina could lose the top player taken in the professional draft in 1986 (Brad Daugherty) and still be considered a national contender? The Tar Heels will take the top-rated recruiting class in the nation and mix that with a veteran group led by back-courtiers Kenny Smith and Jeff Lebo. As always, the Atlantic Coast Conference will be as tough as nails, with Georgia Tech (minus Mark Price), North Carolina State (minus Chris Washburn) and Duke (minus just about everyone) expected to give North Carolina coach Dean Smith a run for the title.

In the Big East, still about as difficult a league top-to-bottom as there is, Georgetown seems to hold the edge over Syracuse, Pittsburgh and St. John's (New York). The Hoyas lost David Wingate, Michael Jackson, Ralph Dalton and Horace Broadnax, but senior Reggie Williams will help coach John Thompson whip some new players into shape to meet Georgetown's lofty expectations. Syracuse appears to be devastated on paper after losing Pearl Washington, Rafael Addison and Wendell Alexis to the professional ranks, but coach Jim Boheim will rebuild with center Rony Seikaly and forward Howard Triche. St. John's got good news when 6-11 Italian center Marco Baldi was declared eligible. That came just in time for the Redmen to overcome their apprehension of having to play without Walter Berry, last year's college basketball player of the year, who decided to pass on his final year of eligibility in order to test the professional waters.

New Orleans, host of the 1987 Final Four, is the goal of all of the Division I basketball squads that make the 64-team tournament bracket next March, and the following conference breakdown will give some insight into the flavor that is college basketball.

Atlantic Coast

North Carolina (28-6 overall record, three returning starters) appears to be in better shape than either of its top challengers, North Carolina State (21-13, two) and Georgia Tech (27-7, three). Coach Dean Smith possibly will have the top back court in college basketball with Kenny Smith and Jeff Lebo, while North Carolina State Wolfpack coach Jim Valvano will count on center Charles Shackleford and Bennie Bolton.

Coach Bobby Cremins of Georgia Tech has Tom Hammonds and Bruce Dalrymple returning, while Duke (37-3, one) will try to reach the heights again with Tommy Amaker and Danny Ferry. Another team to watch might be Virginia (19-11, four).

Top players — Horace Grant, senior, forward, Clemson (16.4 ppg, 10.5 rpg); Tommy Amaker, senior, guard, Duke (6.4 ppg); Bruce Dalrymple, senior, guard, Georgia Tech (10.8 ppg); Tom Hammonds, sophomore, forward, Georgia Tech (12.2 ppg, 6.4 rpg); Kenny Smith, senior, guard, North Carolina (12 ppg); Jeff Lebo, sophomore, guard, North Carolina (9.2 ppg); Charles Shackleford, sophomore, forward/center, North Carolina State (10.3 ppg, 6.1 rpg); Mel Kennedy, junior, guard/forward, Virginia (12 ppg); Tyrone Bogues, senior, guard, Wake Forest (11.3 ppg, 8.4 assists ppg).

Atlantic 10

This conference features another probable two-team race between Temple (25-6, four) and St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) (26-6, two). Temple is the favorite, and coach John Chaney has a chance to lift his Owls past the second round of the NCAA play-offs after three successive years at that plateau.

St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) will be tough to overlook in this league, with talented center Rodney Blake and forward Greg Mullee. Duquesne also is talented but is ineligible for the conference title or the play-offs.

Top players — Ron Stevenson, junior, forward, Duquesne (8.8 ppg); Steve Frick, senior, forward/center, George Washington (12.3 ppg, 5.8 rpg); Lorenzo Sutton, junior, guard, Massachusetts (17.8 ppg); Rodney Blake, junior, center, St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) (13.5 ppg); Greg Mullee, senior, forward, St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) (7.4 rpg); Nate Blackwell, senior, guard, Temple (13.1 ppg); Tim Perry, junior, center, Temple (11.6 ppg, 9.5 rpg).

Big East

This league generally is mentioned with the Atlantic Coast Conference as the nation's most competitive, and this year is no exception. Georgetown gets the early nod because of the return of Reggie Williams and the coaching of John Thompson.

Syracuse will mount a challenge behind Rony Seikaly and Howard Triche, and St. John's (New York) will have immediate help from guard Mark Jackson (who set an NCAA season record with 328 assists in 1985-86). The surprise teams could be Villanova (23-14, three), with Harold Jensen and Doug West returning, and Pittsburgh (15-14, three) under new coach Paul Evans.

Top players — Dana Barros, sophomore, guard, Boston College (13.7 ppg); Reggie Wil-

Big Eight

Oklahoma (26-9, three) and Kansas (35-4, two) are expected to go to war for the league championship.

Oklahoma could grab the title, with Darryl Kennedy, Tim McCallister and David Johnson returning for coach Billy Tubbs. Kansas made the Final Four last year but will be hard-pressed to repeat in 1987, even with a healthy Danny Manning back.

Other challenges could come from Missouri (21-14, three), Iowa State (22-11, three) and Oklahoma State (15-13, four).

Top players — Matt Bullard, sophomore, forward, Colorado (12.7 ppg, 6.4 rpg); Jeff Grayer, junior, forward, Iowa State (20.7 ppg); Danny Manning, junior, forward, Kansas (16.7 ppg, 6.3 rpg); Derrick Chievous, junior, forward, Missouri (18.8 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Darryl Kennedy, senior, forward, Oklahoma (21 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Tim McCallister, senior, guard, Oklahoma (18.2 ppg); Bernard Day, senior, forward, Nebraska (13.1 ppg, 6.6 rpg).

Big Sky

Weber State (18-11, three) should be in the driver's seat in this league, with only Nevada-Reno (13-15, two) and Idaho State (15-12, one) expected to put up much of a fight. Montana (21-11, two) must replace three-time conference most valuable player Larry Krystkowiak.

Montana State (14-17, three) could push into the upper echelons, and Northern Arizona (19-10) will be improved.

Top players — Ken Luckett, junior, guard, Idaho (17.7 ppg); Donn Holston, senior, forward, Idaho State (18.7 ppg); Scott Zanon, senior, guard, Montana (12.1 ppg); Kral Ferch, senior, forward, Montana State (16.1 ppg); David Duane, senior, forward, Northern Arizona (11 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Walt Tyler, senior, forward, Weber State (16.3 ppg); Harry Willis, senior, forward, Weber State (6.9 rpg).

Big Ten

This could be Purdue's year. The Boilermakers (22-10, four) have plenty of experience returning with Troy Lewis, Todd Mitchell, Melvin McCants and Doug Lee.

The real test for coach Gene Keady's bunch, however, will be getting by Indiana (21-8, three), Michigan State (23-8, three) and Illinois (22-10, four). Indiana could have the division's most consistent three-point threat with Steve Alford. Look for Ohio State (19-14, four) to improve with new coach Gary Williams, and do not count Iowa (20-12, four) out under new coach Tom Davis.

Top players — Ken Norman, senior, forward, Illinois (16.4 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Steve Alford, senior, guard, Indiana (22.5 ppg); Rick Calloway, sophomore, forward, Indiana (13.9 ppg, 4.9 rpg); Roy Marble, sophomore, forward, Iowa (12.5 ppg); Gerry Wright, senior, forward, Iowa (10.7 ppg, 6.6 rpg); Darryl Johnson, senior, guard, Michigan State (16.6 ppg); Shon Morris, junior, forward, Northwestern (16 ppg, 7.5 rpg); Dennis Hopson, senior, forward, Ohio State (20.9 ppg, 5.8 rpg); Troy Lewis, junior, guard, Purdue (18.4 ppg); Todd Mitchell, junior, forward, Purdue (16.1 ppg, 7.2 rpg).

Colonial

Navy (30-5, three) seems to hold all of the chips, but watch for North Carolina-Wilmington (16-13, four) to give the Midshipmen and new coach Pete Herrmann a run for the championship.

Navy's David Robinson probably is the best all-around big man in college basketball and certainly the best shot-blocker, but he may not be enough. North Carolina-Wilmington's new coach, Robert McPherson, inherits a talented squad featuring forward Brian Rowsom. George Mason (20-12, three) and Richmond (23-7, two) will be in the hunt.

Top players—Frank Ross, senior, guard, American (23.0 ppg); Marchell Henry, senior, forward, East Carolina (15.6 ppg, 5.5 rpg); Kenny Sanders, sophomore, forward, George Mason (17.9 ppg, 7 rpg); David Robinson, senior, center, Navy (22.7 ppg, 13 rpg); Brian Rowsom, senior, forward, North Carolina-Wilmington (20.3 ppg, 9.5 rpg).

East Coast

Drexel (19-12, four) should have little trouble defending its conference title behind the inspired play of Michael Anderson and John Rankin. Bucknell (17-12, five) dropped to third in 1986 but will be a challenger, as will Hofstra (17-13, two).

Top players—Chris Seneca, senior, guard, Bucknell (11 ppg, 6.6 apg); Taurence Chisholm, junior, guard, Delaware (9.3 ppg, 8.5 apg); Michael Anderson, junior, guard, Drexel (18.8 ppg, 7.3 apg); John Rankin, sophomore, forward, Drexel (15 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Leroy Allen, senior, guard, Hofstra (15.1 ppg); Otis Ellis, sophomore, forward, Lafayette (15.6 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Daren Queenan, junior, forward, Lehigh (19.8 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Mike Polaha, junior, guard, Lehigh (15.6 ppg); Marshall Grier, senior, forward, Rider (17.3 ppg, 6.6 rpg).

ECAC Metro

This could be a three-team race, but Marist (19-12, five) really stands out. Loyola (Maryland) (16-12, four) and Wagner (16-13, three) each could mount a challenge, and Wagner has senior guard Terrance Bailey, the top returning scorer in Division I.

Also watch Fairleigh Dickinson (22-8, two), the league champion the past two seasons.

Top players—Jaime Latney, junior, forward, Fairleigh Dickinson (14.1 ppg, 6 rpg); David Gately, senior, guard, Loyola (Maryland) (16.3 ppg); Tom Gormley, senior, guard, Loyola (Maryland) (13.6 ppg); Greg Jones, sophomore, forward, Long Island-Brooklyn (13.7 ppg, 8.5 rpg); Rik Smits, junior, center, Marist (17.7

ECAC North Atlantic

Northeastern (26-5, five) will not have an easy time but should capture its second straight conference title.

Hot on the trail will be Boston University (21-10, four), Canisius (21-8, four) and Siena (21-8, two).

Top players—Drederick Irving, junior, guard, Boston University (18 ppg); Chris Heindl, senior, forward, Canisius (9.2 ppg, 4 rpg); Joe Arlauckas, senior, forward, Niagara (16.8 ppg, 8.7 rpg); Reggie Lewis, senior, forward, Northeastern (23.8 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Andre LeFluer, senior, guard, Northeastern (10.8 ppg); Steve McCoy, sophomore, forward, Siena (12.4 ppg, 8.6 rpg).

Ivy

This should be one of the better conference races, since four teams appear to have a shot at the title. The top guns are Pennsylvania (15-11, five), Princeton (13-13, five), Yale (13-13, five) and Cornell (14-12, three).

Last year's champion, Brown (16-11, two), will have trouble replacing Ivy League player of the year Jim Turner. Dartmouth sophomore Jim Barton led the nation in free-throw shooting (94.2) last year.

Top players—John Bajusz, senior, guard, Cornell (18.4 ppg); Jim Barton, sophomore, forward, Dartmouth (13.6 ppg); Keith Webster, senior, guard, Harvard (11.6 ppg); Perry Bromwell, senior, guard, Pennsylvania (13.5 ppg); Bruce Lefkowitz, senior, center, Pennsylvania (14.2 ppg, 7.8 rpg); Alan Williams, senior, center, Princeton (14.9 ppg, 5.4 rpg); Chris Dudley, senior, center, Yale (16.2 ppg, 9.8 rpg).

Metro

Many observers expect Louisville (32-7, two) to match last year's title march. Coach Denny Crum's crew may not do that, but they are sure to be in the thick of the Metro chase.

Florida State (12-17, four) will provide a quick rebuilding scheme and will be in contention with Southern Mississippi (17-12, five) and Virginia Tech (22-9, one). Memphis State (28-6, two) is battling probation, the loss of the head coach and four starters.

Top players—Roger McClendon, junior, guard, Cincinnati (16.5 ppg); Randy Allen, senior, forward, Florida State (13.7 ppg, 6.2 rpg); Pee Wee Barber, senior, guard, Florida State (16.8 ppg); Pervis Ellison, sophomore, center, Louisville (13.1 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Herbert Crook, junior, forward, Louisville (11.8 ppg); Vincent Askew, junior, forward, Memphis State (10 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Terry Dozier, sophomore, forward, South Carolina (13.8 ppg); Kenny Siler, senior, guard, Southern Mississippi (14.6 ppg).

Metro Atlantic

Defending champion Fairfield (24-7, three) welcomes back three starters but may not be able to hold off St. Peter's (16-12, four) or La Salle (14-14, four).

Iona (14-15, four) also should rebound.

Top players—Kevin Houston, senior, guard, Army (22.2 ppg); Jeff Gromos, senior, center, Fairfield (11 ppg, 5.4 rpg); Richie Simmonds, junior, guard, Iona (12.6 ppg); Tim Legler, junior, guard, La Salle (12.9 ppg); Bret Holmdahl, sophomore, forward, Manhattan (12.6 ppg, 5.6 rpg); Willie Haynes, sophomore, guard, St. Peter's (12.8 ppg).

Mid-American

A two-team race is shaping up between defending champion Miami (Ohio) (24-7, four) and Ohio (22-8, three).

Others to watch are Western Michigan (12-16, three), Central Michigan (11-17, five) and Ball State (21-10, one).

Top players—Dan Majerle, junior, forward, Central Michigan (21.4 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Ervin Leavy, senior, guard, Central Michigan (18.6 ppg); Terry Wearsch, senior, center, Kent State (13.6 ppg, 8.6 rpg); Eric Newsome, senior, guard, Miami (Ohio) (18.1 ppg); Paul Graham, sophomore, forward, Ohio (15.9 ppg); Blake Burnham, senior, forward, Toledo (16.7 ppg, 6.6 rpg); Booker James, senior, forward, Western Michigan (14.7 ppg, 7.9 rpg).

Mid-Eastern

Howard (19-10, four) finally may wrestle the title away from North Carolina A&T (22-8, five), but it will not be easy.

Top players—Earl Lee, senior, forward, Coppin State (14.4 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Terrance Ball, sophomore, forward, Delaware State (10.2 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Robert McIlwaine, senior, forward, Howard (8.3 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Fred Hill, senior, guard, Howard (12.7 ppg); Derek Robinson, senior, forward, Maryland-Eastern Shore (10.4 ppg); George Cale, senior, guard, North Carolina A&T (14.8 ppg); Mack Joyner, senior, forward, South Carolina State (17.7 ppg, 8.4 rpg).

Shon Morris

Midwestern Collegiate

The overall records from last season are not very impressive in this league, and last year's power, Xavier (Ohio) (25-5, one), is rebuilding. Look for St. Louis (18-12, four) to make a run for the title.

The only challenges should come from Oral Roberts (10-18, four), Loyola (Illinois) (13-16, three) and Butler (9-19, five).

Top players—Chad Tucker, senior, forward, Butler (21.8 ppg); Brian Humes, senior, forward, Detroit (14.1 ppg, 4.9 rpg); Curtis Jackson, junior, guard, Evansville (14.9 ppg); Andre Moore, senior, center, Loyola (Illinois) (17.9 ppg, 9.9 rpg); Bernard Jackson, senior, guard, Loyola (Illinois) (16.3 ppg); Akin Akin-Otoko, senior, forward, Oral Roberts (14.1 ppg); Monroe Douglass, sophomore, guard, St. Louis (14.5 ppg); Byron Larkin, junior, guard, Xavier (Ohio) (21.8 ppg).

Missouri Valley

Four teams appear headed for a showdown in this strong basketball league: Tulsa (23-9, four), Bradley (32-3, three), Drake (19-11, three) and Illinois State (15-14, five). Stan Albeck, a former professional coach, is the new Bradley mentor.

Drake is young but talented and could surprise the league leaders, but it still looks like Tulsa will repeat behind its defense.

Top players—Hersey Hawkins, junior, guard, Bradley (18.7 ppg); Kenny Evans, senior, forward, Creighton (15.9 ppg, 8.5 rpg); David Miller, senior, guard, Drake (15.2 ppg); Bart Friedrich, sophomore, center, Drake (7.8 ppg, 3.7 rpg); Derrick Sanders, senior, forward, Illinois State (12.6 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Tracy Moore, junior, guard, Tulsa (16.8 ppg); David Moss, senior, forward, Tulsa (14.7 ppg, 6.4 rpg); Gus Santos, senior, forward, Wichita State (15 ppg).

Ohio Valley

Middle Tennessee State (23-11, two) will battle Akron (22-8, four) for supremacy in this conference. Murray State (17-12, two), Austin Peay (14-14, three) and Tennessee Tech (14-15, three) are other challengers.

Top players—Marcel Boyce, senior, forward, Akron (17.5 ppg); Kerry Hammonds, junior, forward, Middle Tennessee State (12.8 ppg, 7.6 rpg); Bob McCann, senior, center, Morehead State (16.9 ppg, 10.4 rpg); Anthony Avery, sophomore, guard, Tennessee Tech (12.3 ppg).

Pacific-10

Look for Arizona (23-9, three) to emerge as conference champion again, but coach Lute Olson will have to find a way for the Wildcats to do it without all-conference guard Steve Kerr, who will miss the year following knee surgery.

UCLA (15-14, five) has Reggie Miller and freshman sensation Pooh Richardson and should be improved, as will California (19-10, five), third a year ago. Washington (19-12, three) is a dark-horse candidate.

Top Players—Sean Elliott, sophomore, forward, Arizona (15.6 ppg, 5.3 rpg); Kevin Johnson, senior, guard, California (15.6 ppg); Reggie Miller, senior, forward, UCLA (25.9 ppg); Pooh Richardson, sophomore, guard, UCLA (10.6 ppg, 6.2 apg); Jose Ortiz, senior, center, Oregon State (16.4 ppg, 8.6 rpg); Derrick Dowell, senior, forward, Southern California (15.5 ppg, 7.8 rpg); Todd Lichti, sophomore, guard, Stanford (17.2 ppg); Chris Welp, senior, center, Washington (19-12, three).

David Robinson

Pacific Coast

As usual, Nevada-Las Vegas (33-5, three) reigns supreme in this league, and no one on the horizon looks strong enough to knock off the Rebels. Coach Jerry Tarkanian has seniors Fred Banks and Armon Gilliam back to give heartburn to the rest of the conference.

The battle for second place probably will be among San Jose State (16-12, three), Cal State Fullerton (16-16, three) and Fresno State (15-15, two).

Top players—Mike Mitchell, sophomore, forward, Fresno State (10.6 ppg); Kenny Travis, senior, guard, New Mexico State (15.5 ppg); Fred Banks, senior, guard, Nevada-Las Vegas (17.6 ppg); Armon Gilliam, senior, forward, Nevada-Las Vegas (15.7 ppg, 8.5 rpg); Ricky Berry, junior, forward, San Jose State (18.6 ppg).

Southeastern

Last year, Kentucky (32-4, three) probably had first-year coach Eddie Sutton believing that success in the Southeastern Conference comes easily. Reality will set in this season, since the Wildcats must replace consensus all-America Kenny Walker.

Kentucky still will have three starters returning, but the problem will be holding off Alabama (24-9, four), Auburn (22-11, four) and Florida (19-14, five), all of which have talent and experience.

The surprise team in 1986 was Louisiana State (26-12, three), and coach Dale Brown's Tigers should provide enough excitement to make the conference race interesting.

Top players—Derrick McKelley, junior, center, Alabama (13.6 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Terry Coner, senior, guard, Alabama (10.9 ppg, 7.5 apg); Frank Ford, senior, guard/forward, Auburn (11.1 ppg); Vernon Maxwell, junior, guard, Florida (19.6 ppg); Andrew Moten, senior, guard, Florida (16.9 ppg); Winston Bennett, senior, forward, Kentucky (12.7 ppg, 7 rpg); Anthony Wilson, senior, guard, Louisiana State (9.6 ppg); Eric Smith, senior, forward, Mississippi (17.5 ppg); Tony White, senior, guard, Tennessee (22.2 ppg).

Southern

Marshall (19-11, three) and Davidson (20-11, three) appear to be ready to battle defending champion Tennessee-Chattanooga (21-10, three) in this conference.

Western Carolina (14-14, four) also could make some waves, and first-year coach Tom Apke might steer Appalachian State (17-12, two) into contention by the end of the season.

Top players—Greg Dolan, senior, center, Appalachian State (9 ppg, 4.9 rpg); Craig Bardo, senior, guard, Citadel (16.5 ppg); Derek Rucker, junior, guard, Davidson (14 ppg); Skip Henderson, junior, guard, Marshall (18.4 ppg); Rodney Holden, junior, forward, Marshall (8.7 rpg); Lance Fulse, junior, forward, Tennessee-Chattanooga (11.6 ppg); Gay Elmore, senior, forward, Virginia Military (22.8 ppg); Leroy Gasque, junior, forward, Western Carolina (16.3 ppg, 7.5 rpg).

Southland

For the first time in several years, Lamar (18-12, three) is not a solid favorite in this league. Arkansas State (18-11, three), McNeese State (21-11, two) and Louisiana Tech (20-16, three) are on the spot.

New coach Tom Abatemarco should get Lamar back to its accustomed perch atop the league standings

Sacred Heart sizing up a return trip to the winner's circle

Sacred Heart led a charmed life en route to the NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Championship a year ago, but do not count the Pioneers out of title contention again in 1987.

Coach Dave Bike's undersized Pioneers became the first New England school to win a Division II championship and the first New England school since Holy Cross in 1947 to win in any division. Four starters return from that 30-4 club, and the biggest problem will be replacing all-America guard Roger Younger.

The defending champions currently hold the division's longest winning streak at 19. Starters (all under 6-5) Travis Smith, Keith Johnson, Kevin Stevens and Tony Judkins should keep Sacred Heart atop the polls.

Other contenders

Of course, the Pioneers are not alone. Other teams capable of a shot at the championship include New Hampshire College (24-7 overall record, three returning starters), Tampa (23-7, five), Mount St. Mary's (26-4, three), Virginia Union (24-8, four), Gannon (25-6, four), Southern Illinois-Edwardsville (15-15, four, but forfeited eight games because of an ineligible player), Cheyney (29-5, three), Long Island-C.W. Post (24-3, three), Norfolk State (27-5, three), Florida Southern (24-9, three) and Alaska-Anchorage (22-10, four). All of these teams have enough experienced players returning to reach the play-offs and, perhaps, take Sacred Heart's title away.

Southeast Missouri State (23-6, two) lost all-America players Ronny Rankin and Riley Ellis, but coach Ron Schumate's troops are battle-tested and will be tough again in 1987. West Texas State (11-17, one) is dropping down from Division I and could field a contender for coach Gary Moss in its first year in the division.

Among the other teams to watch are Millersville (24-6, three) in the Pennsylvania Conference, Kentucky Wesleyan (22-8, four) in the Great Lakes region, Wright State (28-3, two) in the Great Lakes, Augustana (South Dakota) (19-11, three) in the North Central, Wayne State (Michigan) (24-7, three) in the North Central and UC Riverside (24-7, three) in the West region.

Here is a region-by-region rundown of the top teams and players in Division II this season:

Northeast

There are several outstanding programs in this region, but Sacred Heart again is the team to beat. New Hampshire will be the other team to beat in the New England Collegiate Conference, while New Haven (19-9, three) also will be strong.

In the Northeast-8 Conference, Springfield (20-12, three), St. Anselm (21-9, three) and Merrimack (19-9, one) will be the contenders. Franklin Pierce (24-7, two) also bears watching.

Top players—Derek Dixon, senior, forward, Bentley (19 ppg, 5.6 rpg); Norman Taylor, junior, forward, Bridgeport (18.8 ppg, 11.3

rpg); Gavin Cummings, junior, forward, Lowell (14.6 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Herb Watkins, junior, guard, New Haven (15.8 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Cleveland Woods, senior, center, New Hampshire (19 ppg, 9.5 rpg); Carl Miazga, senior, forward/center, Quinnipiac (15.1 ppg); Keith Johnson, senior, forward, Sacred Heart (15.8 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Travis Smith, senior, guard, Sacred Heart (14.6 ppg); Kevin Stevens, senior, center, Sacred Heart (14.5 ppg); Jim von der Linden, sophomore, center, St. Anselm (9.4 ppg); George Daway, junior, guard, St. Michael's (16.1 ppg); Elzy Tubbs, senior, guard, Springfield (11.8 ppg); Mike Barros, senior, center, Stonehill (16.1 ppg).

East

This region has a number of good teams. Cheyney (29-5, three), Millersville (24-6, three), Gannon (25-6, four) and Long Island-C.W. Post (24-3, three) head the list.

Cheyney and Millersville should fight it out for supremacy in the Pennsylvania Conference. LIU-C.W. Post is two-time champion of the Big Apple Conference. Other teams with possible play-off hopes include Edinboro (18-13, four), Philadelphia Textile (16-14, three) and Mercyhurst (21-7, two). Kutztown (14-12, five) could be the sleeper of the group.

Top players—Rob Schiliro, junior, forward, Adelphi (13.5 ppg, 4.9 rpg); Clarence Green, junior, guard, Cheyney (15.6 ppg); Tom Taylor, senior, forward, Edinboro (14.5 ppg, 8.3 rpg); John Matthews, senior, forward, Gannon (13.2 ppg, 10.2 rpg); Butch Hills, sophomore, guard, Kutztown (13.3 ppg); Kevin Charney, senior, forward, Lock Haven (19 ppg); Junior Price, senior, forward, Lock Haven (15.9 ppg, 6 rpg); Michael Hammond, senior, guard, Long Island-C.W. Post (19.8 ppg); Andre Porter, senior, center, Long Island-Southampton (14 ppg, 6.9 rpg); Brian White, senior, forward, Mansfield (17 ppg, 12.5 rpg); Todd Lee, senior, forward, Mercyhurst (18 ppg, 7.7 rpg); John Fox, senior, center, Millersville (14.5 ppg, 10.4 rpg); Amos Clay, junior, forward, Millersville (12.6 ppg); Morris Brown, senior, forward/center, New York Tech (21.2 ppg, 10.1 rpg); Pete Baldini, senior, guard, Pace (14.6 ppg); Pat Crawford, senior, forward, Pace (14.0 ppg, 8.3 rpg); Norman Roberts, senior, guard, Queens (15.4 ppg); Dave Timko, senior, center, Slippery Rock (13.4 ppg, 5.8 rpg); Mark Caprarola, junior, guard, West Chester (15.2 ppg).

South Atlantic

There should be few surprises in this region, since Mount St. Mary's (26-4, three), Virginia Union (24-8, four) and Norfolk State (26-5, two) return seasoned squads.

Virginia Union is in position to take away Norfolk State's hold on the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association title. Jim Phelan of Mount St. Mary's became only the 13th coach in college basketball history to win 600 games, and he will have forward Paul Edwards returning to help the Mountaineers defend their Mason-Dixon Athletic Conference title.

Other teams with better-than-average chances in the region are Winston-Salem State (15-12, four), Elizabeth City State (17-12, four), Johnson C. Smith (19-10, four) and Pembroke State (17-14, three).

Top players—Lyndon DeBellote, senior, guard, District of Columbia (15.7 ppg); Tim Stanfill, sophomore, forward, District of Columbia (15.4 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Tim McDaniels, senior, forward, Elizabeth City State (20.9 ppg, 9.7 rpg); Vincent Brown, junior, guard, Johnson C. Smith (15.3 ppg); Dante Johnson, senior, forward, Johnson C. Smith (18.3 ppg, 9.4 rpg); Paul Edwards, graduate student, forward, Mount St. Mary's (17.0 ppg); Ralph Talley, senior, guard, Norfolk State (24.0 ppg); Mike Boyer, senior, guard, Randolph-Macon (10.5 ppg); Jamie Waller, senior, forward, Virginia

Union (20.4 ppg, 9.5 rpg); Greg Williams, senior, forward, Virginia Union (18.8 ppg, 8.6 rpg); Alexander Hooper, senior, forward, Winston-Salem State (22.6 ppg).

South

The big names in this region are Florida Southern (24-9, three), Tampa (23-7, five) and North Alabama (18-9, two).

Florida Southern got to the final four last season, but Tampa could be the Sunshine State Conference champion. All five regulars are back, including all-America forward Todd Linder. North Alabama and Valdosta State (15-12, three) should fight it out for the Gulf South Conference prize, with Troy State (14-13) the dark-horse.

Other teams with clout include Alabama A&M (23-9, three), West Georgia (21-8, one), Eckerd (18-9, four) and Paine (19-8, two). Usually reliable Jacksonville State (19-8, one) will be starting from scratch, with no players back from the 1984-85 national championship team.

Top players—Robert Thomas, senior, forward, Alabama A&M (16 ppg); Joel Canfall, senior, guard, Eckerd (17.4 ppg); Jerry Johnson, junior, guard, Florida Southern (9.8 ppg); Jeff Lewis, senior, forward, Morris Brown (20.3 ppg); Tamm Harris, senior, guard, North Alabama (7.4 ppg); Zan Hairston, senior, guard, St. Leo (16 ppg); Jay Vanevenhoven, junior, forward, St. Thomas (Florida) (15 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Calvin Laing, junior, forward, Savannah State (19 ppg); Todd Linder, senior, forward, Tampa (18.3 ppg); Nate Johnson, junior, forward, Tampa (12.1 rpg); Leon Jones, senior, forward, Valdosta State (16.3 ppg); Anthony Barge, senior, forward, West Georgia (17.5 ppg).

Great Lakes

Wright State (28-3, two) should be in the running for its eighth regional tournament berth in nine years but will have to battle Kentucky Wesleyan (22-8, four) and Southern Indiana (19-9, four) in the region.

Lewis (25-6, two), the defending Great Lakes Valley Conference champion, also will be a contender, along with Southern Illinois-Edwardsville (15-15, four), which forfeited eight games in 1986 for using an ineligible player. Other teams to watch include St. Joseph's (Indiana) (18-10, two), Northern Kentucky (15-13, four), Quincy (21-11, three) and Indianapolis (15-12, two).

Top players—Mike Holmes, junior, forward, Bellarmine (14.8 ppg, 11.1 rpg); Greg Cheatham, senior, guard, Kentucky State (18.4 ppg); Sam Smith, senior, forward, Kentucky Wesleyan (16.3 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Shawn Scott, junior, guard, Northern Kentucky (16.9 ppg); Stan Kappers, senior, forward/center, St. Joseph's (Indiana) (16.9 ppg); John Edwards, senior, forward, Southern Illinois-Edwardsville (19.8 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Stephen Jackson, senior, guard, Southern Indiana (18.3 ppg); Julian Hall, senior, forward/center, Southern Indiana (16 ppg, 10.8 rpg); Joe Jackson, junior, guard, Wright State (10.5 ppg).

North Central

Wayne State (Michigan) (24-7, three) probably will battle Ferris State (18-9, four) and Augustana (South Dakota) (19-11, four) for regional superiority.

St. Cloud State (26-4, three) should be strong in the North Central Conference although it lost all-America Kevin Catron. Other teams to watch include Northern Michigan (19-9, three), Denver (17-12, four), Mankato

North Alabama guard Tamm Harris is one of the top returning playmakers in Division II

State (15-16, four), North Dakota State (16-12, three) and Lake Superior State (13-14, four).

Top players—Keith Hasselquist, senior, forward, Augustana (South Dakota) (16.4 ppg, 8.4 rpg); David Lee, junior, guard, Bemidji State (19.8 ppg); Stan Adams, senior, forward, Denver (12.2 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Gerald Woodberry, senior, center, Ferris State (16.5 ppg); Robert Alexander, senior, guard, Ferris State (16.3 ppg); Kevin Duncy, senior, center, Grand Valley State (14 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Mike West, senior, guard, Lake Superior State (14.1 ppg); Rex Wideman, senior, Mankato State (15.8 ppg, 5.6 rpg); Mike Higgins, sophomore, center, Northern Colorado (12.5 ppg, 6.3 rpg); Bill Harris, senior, guard, Northern Michigan (22.8 ppg); Barry Burkhardtmeier, senior, forward, Winona State (12.1 ppg).

South Central

Southeast Missouri State (27-7, two) went all the way to the finals last season, and coach Ron Schumate must rebuild with only one starter. Central Missouri State (17-10, two) should be the top competition for the Indians in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Other teams to watch are Abilene Christian (23-7, one), Delta State (23-8, two), Northwest Missouri State (19-9, three), West Texas State (11-17, one, moved from Division I) and Texas A&I (14-15, two).

Top players—Gerald Glass, sophomore, forward, Delta State (12.5 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Robert Harris, senior, guard, Midwestern State (22.6 ppg); Duane Huddleston, junior, forward, Missouri-Rolla (15.2 ppg); Steve Liford, senior, forward, Northeast Missouri State (18.5 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Glenn Phillips, senior, forward, Northwest Missouri State (21.4 ppg, 5.5 rpg); Randy Smith, senior, forward, Texas A&I (14.9 ppg, 6.3 rpg); Jerry Singletary, senior, guard, West Texas State (12.4 ppg, 4.6 rpg).

West

There are plenty of good teams in this region, but California schools dominate the list of contenders. Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo (23-8, four), UC Riverside (24-7, three), Cal State Bakersfield (20-8, five) and UC Davis (17-11, three) should battle with Alaska-Anchorage (22-10, four) for superiority.

The best of the rest includes Cal State Hayward (24-8, one), Eastern Montana (22-8, two), San Francisco State (15-12, one), Puget Sound (16-14, two) and Cal State Los Angeles (16-8, two).

Top players—Jessie Jackson, senior, guard, Alaska-Anchorage (21.2 ppg); Hansi Gnad, senior, center, Alaska-Anchorage (15.3 ppg, 10.6 rpg); Robert Jimerson, senior, forward, UC Riverside (14.5 ppg, 7.3 rpg); Sean Chambers, senior, forward, Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo (15 ppg, 5.9 rpg); William Alexander, senior, forward, Cal State Dominguez Hills (17.6 ppg); Pat Bolden, junior, guard/forward, Cal State Northridge (12.8 ppg, 5.8 rpg); Cassius Kelleybrew, senior, forward, Cal State Sacramento (11.6 ppg, 7.5 rpg); Ralph Barreras, senior, forward, Eastern New Mexico (14 ppg, 7.8 rpg); Chris Murray, junior, forward, Puget Sound (9.4 ppg, 4.1 rpg); Tony Brown, senior, forward, Seattle Pacific (15.3 ppg, 6.4 rpg); Ritchie McKay, senior, guard, Seattle Pacific (11.2 ppg).

Is Potsdam State good enough for another championship?

All eyes will focus on Potsdam State in 1987 to see whether the unbeaten Bears can continue their magic and defend their 1986 Division III men's basketball championship. With so many good teams returning, a repeat performance of 1986's 32-0 season and the championship is not expected.

Coach Jerry Welsh will have two of his top players back in forward Brendan Mitchell, the only Division III player invited to try out for the U.S. national team last summer, and center Barry Stanton, an all-conference selection.

But the Bears will have their work cut out for them, especially considering the caliber of talented teams in the East region. Among the strong contingent are 1986 regional participants Nazareth (New York) and Alfred, and New York University, which was eliminated in the first round of the 1986 tournament.

LeMoyne-Owen (27-3, three) in the South, no stranger to postseason play and a second-place finisher to Potsdam State in 1986, will have three starters back for coach Jerry Johnson, including center Gregory Williams (15.1 points, 11.1 rebounds).

Nazareth (New York) (23-5 overall record, four returning starters) could be a real threat in 1987, with senior forward Rich Sparks and senior guard/forward Todd Calman returning. First-year coach Mike Daley will have some pressure to get the Golden Flyers past the regional round of the play-offs.

Alfred (25-3, four) coach Ron Frederes will have four regulars back, including senior forward Mike Wing (18.9 points, 10.2 rebounds), and the Saxons will be a legitimate contender for national honors.

New York University (21-6, five) will have the whole starting lineup intact and could have one of the East's top players in senior guard/forward Terry Tarpey (21.6 points).

Other contenders

Other top teams include four-time national titlist North Park (21-7, five), Illinois Wesleyan (19-10, five), two-time champion Scranton (20-9, four), Wittenberg (23-5, five), Salem State (22-6, four), Southeastern Massachusetts (22-7, five) and Jersey City State (24-8, three).

North Park returns the starting five, including top scorer and rebounder Michael Starks (15.6 points, 10.6 rebounds), and coach Bosko Djurickovic could be prepping for another title surge. The Vikings hope to make the NCAA play-offs for the eighth time in 10 years.

Illinois Wesleyan got to the quarterfinals in 1986, and coach Dennis Bridges may have final-four material with all five regulars returning. His top guns are forwards Larry Lessen and Eric Luechtefeld and his son Eric at guard.

Scranton has designs on another championship, and coach Bob Bessoir may match the Royals' 1983 title march with four returning starters. Guard Eric Jacobs and forward John Paul Andrejko, both all-conference players, are back to lead Scranton.

Wittenberg lost only one player from last year's 23-5 outfit, a first-round loser to DePauw, and you can figure that coach Larry Hunter will push the Tigers past that point in 1987. All-America forward Steve Iannarino (18.7 points) and Tom Weller (11.5 points) are the catalysts.

Salem State won the Massachusetts State Conference last season, and second-year coach Dana Skinner will try to lead the Vikings past Southeastern Massachusetts and Clark (Massachusetts) in the region. The Vikings have four starters returning, including all-conference players Davis Fazio and Kevin Poole.

Southeastern Massachusetts will be disappointed if it does not exceed last year's quarterfinal trip in the play-offs, especially since the starting unit returns intact. Guard Kevin Kolek, one of the Northeast's top players, leads the experienced Corsairs.

Jersey City State almost took it to the limit in 1986, finishing fourth in the Division III play-offs, and coach Charles Brown might be able to get there again. The team could ride the broad shoulders of all-conference and NCAA all-tournament guard Johnny Mayers (16.6 points) to another final-four slot.

Other teams given a shot at the title are Clark (Massachusetts) (21-6, four), Calvin (20-6, five), DePauw (26-2, three), Otterbein (28-3, two) and Nebraska Wesleyan (26-5, one).

Here is a region-by-region look at the top teams and players in Division III:

Northeast

The top teams in this region also are legitimate national contenders. Southeastern Massachusetts (22-7, five), Salem State (22-6, four), Clark (Massachusetts) (21-6, four), Western Connecticut State (25-3, two) and St. Joseph's (Maine) (26-4, one) are the best of the group.

Possible surprise teams include Norwich (16-8, three), Worcester Polytechnic (13-10, five), Babson (15-9, three), Westfield State (12-11, four), Eastern Connecticut State (18-9, three) and Southern Maine (20-8, four).

Top players—Pete Boretti, senior, forward, Babson (19.2 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Stanley House, junior, guard, Brandeis (17.1 ppg); John Pappas, senior, guard, Clark (Massachusetts) (14.4 ppg); Mike McElroy, senior, forward, MIT (19.9 ppg, 11.1 rpg); John Humphrey, junior, guard, Middlebury (19.3 ppg); Kelvin Jenkins, senior, forward, Norwich (15.8 ppg, 8.4 rpg); David Chadbourne, senior, guard, St. Joseph's (Maine) (13.4 ppg, 8.4 rpg); David Fazio, senior, guard, Salem State (20.5 ppg); Kevin Poole, sophomore, guard, Salem State (16.3 ppg); Paul Graziano, junior, center, Salve Regina (11.0 ppg, 7.6 rpg); Kevin Kolek, junior, guard, Southeastern Massachusetts (17.4 ppg); Bill Hartley, senior, center, Southern Maine (19.4 ppg); Peter Story, senior, guard, Southern Maine (17.0 ppg); Joe DeRoche, junior, forward, Thomas (19.1 ppg, 9.0 rpg); Andy Misiolek, senior, guard/forward, Western Connecticut State (12.3 ppg); Pat McGuirl, senior, forward, Western New England (16.4 ppg, 9.7 rpg); Russell Thompson, senior, center, Westfield State (16.4 ppg, 15.3 rpg); Brandt Johnson, senior, center, Williams (17.6 ppg, 11.0 rpg); Bill McCullen, senior, guard, Worcester Polytechnic (19.4 ppg).

East

Potsdam State (32-0, two) is the class of what could be the toughest region in Division III men's basketball. Squads like Alfred (25-3, four), Nazareth (New York) (23-5, four), New York University (21-6, five) all are capable of breathing the rarified air of the lofty final four.

Hamilton (20-7, four), Old Westbury State (23-5, three), Hartwick (20-6, three), Ithaca (18-9, four) and Manhattanville (17-8, five) would dominate most regions but have to settle for second division here.

Top players—Adam Ursprung, senior, forward, Albany (New York) (15.0 ppg, 10.0 rpg); Mike Wing, senior, forward, Alfred (18.9 ppg, 10.2 rpg); Brian Andrews, senior, guard, Alfred (13.1 ppg); Mark Jones, junior, guard, Binghamton (14.0 ppg); Mike Schuman, senior, center, Binghamton (11.1 ppg, 11.0 rpg); Wayne James, senior, forward, Buffalo (18.2 ppg); Clev Bradley, junior, guard, Buffalo State (9.6 ppg); Greg Gonzalez, sophomore, guard, CCNY (16.3 ppg); Jeff Parsons, senior, forward, Clarkson (16.8 ppg); John Galletta, junior, forward, Elmira (16.4 ppg); John Cavanaugh, senior, forward, Hamilton (19.4 ppg, 13.1 rpg); Tim McGraw, junior, guard, Hartwick (17.9 ppg); Jon Turner, senior, forward, Hunter (19.9 ppg, 11.8 rpg); Andy Vye, senior, forward, Ithaca (18.0 ppg, 7.6 rpg); Mike Prendergast, senior, guard, Manhattanville (24.0 ppg); Anthony Montague, sophomore, forward, Manhattanville (17.4 ppg); Derrick Shirley, senior, forward/center, Merchant Marine (16.8 ppg, 8.0 rpg); Rich Sparks, junior, forward, Nazareth (New York) (14.3 ppg); John Bowe, senior, guard/forward, New Paltz (24.8 ppg); Michael Cutts, senior, forward, New York Maritime (21.5 ppg); Terry Tarpey, senior, forward/center, New York University (21.6 ppg); Craig Holliday, senior, forward, Old Westbury State (18.5 ppg); Rudy Outlaw, senior, guard/forward, Plattsburgh State (12.0 ppg); Brendan Mitchell, senior, forward, Potsdam State (15.0 ppg); Barry Stanton, senior, center, Potsdam State (11.2 ppg); Jonathan Jones, sophomore, forward, Rochester (17.7 ppg); Marco Golding, sophomore, forward, Rochester Institute of Technology (10.9 ppg).

Mid-Atlantic

Scranton may have the play-off experience and four starters returning, but there are several teams in this region capable of making some noise. Franklin and Marshall (19-10, three), Susquehanna (22-8, one), Cabrini (24-6, three), King's (Pennsylvania) (18-8, four) and Widener (15-12, four) all are definite contenders.

Dark horses are Allegheny (16-10, four), Moravian (18-7, four) and Muhlenberg (20-7, two).

Top players—Jeff Batturs, senior, forward, Albright (15.3 ppg, 8.8 rpg); Brian Stadnik, senior, forward, Allegheny (18.9 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Allen Jones, senior, guard, Cabrini (14.7 ppg); Hart Coleman, junior, center, Carnegie-Mellon (16.9 ppg, 9.9 rpg); Terry Scott, junior, center, Franklin and Marshall (18.4 ppg); Deron Ryan, junior, guard, 16.4 ppg; Ed Moyer, senior, center, King's (Pennsylvania) (17.8 ppg, 12.5 rpg); Matt German, senior, guard, Muhlenberg (18.0 ppg); Eric Jacobs, senior, guard, Scranton (14.0 ppg); John Paul Andrejko, junior, forward, Scranton (13.8 ppg); Bruce Merklinger, senior, center, Susquehanna (14.4 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Dave Bohon, senior, center, Thiel (18.3 ppg, 12.3 rpg); Lou Stevens, junior, forward, Widener (18.4 ppg, 9.6 rpg).

South Atlantic

Even though New Jersey teams continue to control this region, Roanoke (16-14, five) will challenge final-four participant Jersey City State for dominance. Jersey City State has three starters returning, including senior guard Johnny Mayers, but Roanoke counters with all five regulars back.

Other teams in the running in the Garden State wars will be Upsala (20-6, two), Stockton State (17-9, four) and Trenton State (22-7, one). Others in the running from this region include Emory and Henry (17-9, four), Catholic (19-8, three), Christopher Newport (19-11, two), Mary Washington (17-11, four) and Salisbury State (14-12, four). Keep an eye on Washington and Lee (14-13, five). Wesley (18-2, three) will begin NCAA play in the region this year after a successful stint in junior college competition.

Top players—Brent Andrew, senior, center, Averett (13.0 ppg); Rob McCarry, senior, guard, Catholic (20.1 ppg); Carl Haynes, senior, center, Christopher Newport (10.2 ppg, 7.6 rpg); Carl Whetzel, senior, forward, Eastern Mennonite (17.0 ppg); Kevin Brown, senior, forward, Emory and Henry (22.0 ppg); David Hamilton, senior, guard, Gallaudet (22.0 ppg); Larry Perkins, sophomore, forward, Glassboro State (12.4 ppg); Johnny Mayers, senior, guard, Jersey City State (16.6 ppg); Terry Tabb, junior, forward, Lynchburg (12.6 ppg, 7.0 rpg); Buddy Hawley, senior, forward, Mary Washington (22.9 ppg, 12.0 rpg); James Pennix, junior, guard, Roanoke (15.8 ppg, 6.8 rpg); Charles Small, junior, forward, Roanoke (12.0 ppg); Scott Phillips, junior, forward, St. Mary's (Maryland) (15.8 ppg); Ron Pritchett, junior, forward, Salisbury State (22.7 ppg, 9.8 rpg);

Tony Tucker, junior, guard, Shenandoah (16.8 ppg); Phil Hahn, junior, forward/center, Stevens Tech (10.2 ppg, 10.2 rpg); Donald Ellison, senior, forward, Stockton State (19.4 ppg, 9.0 rpg); Scott Aduabato, senior, guard, Upsala (13.3 ppg); Joe Darby, sophomore, guard, Virginia Wesleyan (18.1 ppg).

South

LeMoyne-Owen (27-3, three) is the top team in this region, and the Magicians should be prepared for another title run in 1987. The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference champions could be pressed by Rust (15-12, five), which has all five starters returning.

Others to watch include Dixie Conference champion North Carolina Wesleyan (21-7, three), College Athletic Conference champion Centre (21-7, two), Washington (Missouri) (14-12, five) and Maryville (Tennessee) (14-12, two).

Top players—Kevin Lavin, senior, forward, Centre (19.2 ppg, 9.3 rpg); Russell Anderson, sophomore, forward, Greensboro (14.3 ppg); Gregory Williams, senior, center, LeMoyne-Owen (15.1 ppg, 11.1 rpg); Edgar Johnson, senior, forward, LeMoyne-Owen (11.6 ppg, 9.1 rpg); Steve Jarvis, junior, guard, Maryville (Missouri) (13.3 ppg); Chris Bratcher, sophomore, guard, North Carolina Wesleyan (14.5 ppg); Donnie Spence, junior, forward, Rhodes (16.5 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Milton Collins, senior, guard, Rust (14.1 ppg); Steve Harris, junior, guard, Rust (12.0); Tim Trantham, junior, guard, Sewanee (University of the South) (15.7 ppg); Michael Gray, junior, forward/center, Stillman (13.0 ppg, 7.0 rpg); Kevin Suiter, junior, guard, Washington (Missouri) (15.7 ppg); Derrick Dilworth, sophomore, guard/forward, Webster (15.7 ppg, 6.7 rpg).

Great Lakes

Look for Wittenberg (23-5, five) to advance past the first round of the play-offs this season. All-America Steve Iannarino (18.7 points) leads a group of five returning regulars for the Tigers, but they must get past such formidable foes as Otterbein (28-3, two) and all-America Dick Hempy, and DePauw (26-2, two). Calvin (20-6, five) could well be the surprise team in the nation, with a solid group returning led by Jim Schipper and Kevin Van Duyn.

Other good programs in the region include Hope (15-9, three), Muskingum (15-12, five), Ohio Northern (17-10, two), Heidelberg (15-11, three) and John Carroll (11-13, four).

Top players—Mark Russell, junior, forward/center, Alma (15.2 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Arnold Ware, junior, center, Baldwin-Wallace (12.3 ppg); Jim Schipper, senior, guard, Calvin (12.6 ppg); Kevin Van Duyn, senior, guard, Calvin (11.2 ppg, 4.6 apg); Tony Jones, junior, guard, Case Reserve (15.6 ppg); David Galle, senior, forward, DePauw (15.5 ppg, 7.0 rpg); Tony Brown, senior, guard, Earlham (20.9 ppg); Greg Williams, junior, guard, Earlham (19.6 ppg); Marc Streeter, junior, forward, Heidelberg (13.8 ppg); Rod Swartz, senior, guard, Hiram (28.6 ppg); Craig Huffman, sophomore, guard, John Carroll (19.5 ppg); Steve Tuin, sophomore, forward, Kalamazoo (10.8 ppg, 8.9 rpg); Tommy Wilson, senior, forward, Mount Union (15.7 ppg); Dick Hempy, senior, forward, Otterbein (20.5 ppg, 9.7 rpg); David Urbanek, junior, center, Rose-Hulman (15.6 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Jeff Jakob, senior, forward, Skidmore (18.7 ppg, 6.9 rpg); Chris Whitfield, junior, forward, Wabash (16.5 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Steve Iannarino, senior, forward, Wittenberg (18.7 ppg); Mike O'Brien, senior, center, Wooster (15.0 ppg, 8.8 rpg).

Midwest

Illinois Wesleyan (19-10, five) and North Park (21-7, five) both return all their starters, and both teams mean business in 1987. This region is loaded with other good programs, but these two should challenge for national honors.

Wisconsin-Whitewater (24-4, three), Ripon (19-6, two), Illinois Benedictine (18-8, four), Wisconsin-Stevens Point (22-7, two), Monmouth soon, but probably not this year. Northeast Louisiana, the defending champion, will have to wait until the second semester to get several transfer players eligible.

Top players—Reggie Gordon, senior, forward, Arkansas State (12.5 ppg, 5.9 rpg); Brad Goshien, senior, guard, Arkansas State (12.1 ppg); James Gulley, junior, center, Lamar (12.9 ppg, 5.7 rpg); James Nance, senior, guard, Lamar (12.6 ppg); Robert Godbolt, junior, forward, Louisiana Tech (13.6 ppg); Jerome Baptiste, senior, center, McNeese State (18.4 ppg, 8.6 rpg); Michael Saulsberry, junior, center, Northeast Louisiana (13.9 ppg); Keenan DeBose, senior, forward, North Texas State (14.0 ppg, 6.8 rpg).

Southwest

Five teams are set to tangle for the SWC championship. Defending co-champion Texas Christian (22-9, four) should be the front-runner, but Texas (19-12, three), Arkansas (12-16, four), Southern Methodist (18-11, three) and Texas A&M (20-12, three) are capable of winning. Texas Tech (17-14, two) won the postseason tournament and advanced to the NCAA play-offs last season.

Top players—Greg Anderson, senior, forward, Houston (19.1 ppg, 12.9 rpg); Rickie Winslow, senior, forward, Houston (15.6 ppg); Greg Hines, senior, forward, Rice (16.7 ppg); Patrick Fairs, senior, forward, Texas (14.8 ppg, 5.1 rpg); Winston Crite, senior, forward, Texas A&M (13.3 ppg, 8 rpg); Carl Lott, senior, guard, Texas Christian (15.8 ppg); Carven Holcombe, senior, guard, Texas Christian (12.7 ppg); Sean Gay, sophomore, guard, Texas Tech (10.2 ppg).

Southwestern Athletic

Alcorn State (16-13, three) will be hard-pressed to replace three departed players, including coach Davey Whitney's son, Davey Jr. Somchow the Braves seem to be in contention for the title every year; but this season, watch for Grambling (14-12, four) to jump into the fray.

Top players—Bonner Upshaw, senior, center, Alcorn State (10.3 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Charles Price, sophomore, forward, Grambling (18 ppg, 8.9 rpg); Terrell Wesley, sophomore, forward, Grambling (14.7 ppg); Jeff Hart, senior, forward, Jackson State (20.8 ppg); George Ivory, senior, guard, Mississippi Valley (15.8 ppg).

Sun Belt

Defending champion Old Dominion (23-8, two) lost six veterans to graduation and may be hard-pressed to keep out teams like Western Kentucky (23-8, four), Alabama-Bir-

Mike McElroy

(Illinois) (16-7, four), Aurora (20-6, two) and St. Norbert (15-7, two) all are talented and will battle for the play-offs.

Top players—Brian Mekush, senior, guard, Aurora (12.9 ppg); Ron Meyer, junior, forward, Carthage (15.1 ppg); Scott Nagy, sophomore, center, Concordia (Illinois) (12.7 ppg); Jeff Mefford, senior, forward, Illinois College (15.5 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Keith Bunkenburg, junior, guard, Illinois Benedictine (13.8 ppg); Terrence Whittler, junior, guard, Illinois Benedictine (10.8 ppg); Larry Lessen, junior, forward, Illinois Wesleyan (16.3 ppg); Eric Bridges, senior, guard, Illinois Wesleyan (13.8 ppg); Marc Thomas, senior, forward, Knox (12.0 ppg, 8.2 rpg); Tim Bernero, senior, forward, Lake Forest (16.4 ppg); Louis Wool, junior, forward, Lawrence (10.4 ppg, 6.1 rpg); Scott Fearin, senior, guard, MacMurray (15.4 ppg); Bart Barnes, junior, forward/center, Millikin (18.8 ppg, 8.8 rpg); Harold Fay, junior, forward, Monmouth (Illinois) (13.3 ppg); Mike Bohannon, senior, center, North Central (13.9 ppg); Michael Starks, junior, center, North Park

Ed Moyer

West

This region covers a lot of area, and many good teams dot the landscape. Nebraska Wesleyan, last year's third-place national finisher, welcomes back only one starter, so the competition looks wide open for Pomona-Pitzer (16-12, three), St. John's (Minnesota) (23-5, one), UC San Diego (14-12, three), Augsburg (18-8, three), St.

Mike O'Brien

Thomas (Minnesota) (16-10, two) and Dubuque (21-7, one).

Top players—Joel Engel, senior, guard, Augsburg (14.8 ppg); Eric Harris, sophomore, guard, Bishop (26.4 ppg); Greg Kamansky, senior, guard, UC San Diego (19.1 ppg); Brian Backens, senior, forward, UC San Diego (18.3 ppg); Pat Rangel, junior, guard, Central (Iowa) (14.7 ppg); Todd Thomas, junior, guard, Claremont-Mudd-Scripps (17.5 ppg); Scott Lammers, senior, center, Claremont-Mudd-Scripps (10.0 ppg, 7.8 rpg); Jeff Hrubes, junior, forward, Coe (17.9 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Todd Millon, junior, guard, Dubuque (12.6 ppg); Jay Coatta, senior, guard, Gustavus Adolphus (15.7 ppg); John Lunsford, junior, guard, Lewis and Clark (13.9 ppg); Scott Kauls, senior, center, Luther (17.2 ppg, 9.9 rpg); Gordon Lewis, senior, forward, Pomona-Pitzer (9.2 ppg, 5.4 rpg); Andrew Beyer, senior, center, Redlands (17.0 ppg, 5.5 rpg); Phil Johnson, senior, forward, St. John's (Minnesota) (18.1 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Todd Lind, junior, forward, St. Scholastica (11.8 ppg); Dave Mastin, senior, forward, Whitman (15.8 ppg, 9.0 rpg); Dave Weida, senior, center, Whittier (23.8 ppg, 9.3 rpg).

Lou Stevens

mingham (25-11, two), Jacksonville (21-10, four) and South Alabama (16-16, four).

Alabama-Birmingham has the most tournament experience, but coach Gene Bartow may have too much of a rebuilding job ahead to win the title.

Top players—James Ponder, senior, guard, Alabama-Birmingham (10.9 ppg); Ronnie Murphy, senior, forward, Jacksonville (15 ppg); Frank Smith, junior, guard, Old Dominion (8.5 ppg, 8.1 apg); Michael Milling, senior, forward, North Carolina-Charlotte (19.6 ppg, 7.7 rpg); Jeff Hodge, sophomore, guard, South Alabama (12.2 ppg); Phil Stinnie, junior, forward, Virginia Commonwealth (12.5 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Kannard Johnson, senior, forward, Western Kentucky (12.2 ppg).

Trans America

Arkansas-Little Rock (23-11, two), defending league titlist and upset winner over Notre Dame in the 1986 NCAA play-offs, has some rebuilding to do, but the Trojans might be able to hold off Georgia Southern (15-13, four), Mercer (15-14, four) and Houston Baptist (14-14, four). Stetson (10-18, five) will be eligible for the title this year, and Texas-San Antonio (7-24, three) has new coach Ken Burmeister.

Top players—Gene Vandenlangenberg, senior, guard, Centenary (14.7 ppg); Brian Newton, senior, forward, Georgia Southern (14.7 ppg); Arthur Walton, senior, guard, Houston Baptist (15.4 ppg); Fred Goporo, senior, guard, Houston Baptist (13 ppg, 7.2 apg); Chris Moore, senior, center, Mercer (16.2 ppg, 8.9 rpg); Rembert Martin, junior, guard, Samford (14.9 ppg); Randy Anderson, sophomore, forward, Stetson (13.6 ppg, 9 rpg).

West Coast

Pepperdine (25-5, two) will have a real tussle with San Diego (19-9, three) and Santa Clara (12-16, three) in 1987 after posting its best season ever a year ago.

The Waves will have one of the West's best players in forward Eric White but must rely on junior college transfers in the back court. Gonzaga (15-13, three) also could be competitive. Lynn State is the new head coach at St. Mary's (California).

Top players—Eric White, senior, forward, Pepperdine (15.3 ppg, 6.5 rpg); Paul Robertson, senior, guard, St. Mary's (California) (15.8 ppg); Scott Thompson, senior, center, San Diego (14.4 ppg, 7.3 rpg).

Western Athletic

Wyoming (24-12, four) is the surprise choice in this conference after tying for the title in 1986. Right on the Cowboys' heels will be Texas-El Paso (27-6, three), Brigham Young (18-14, four) and New Mexico (17-14, four).

Utah (20-10, two) cannot be counted out, but coach Lynn Archibald must get some inside help if he is to tie for the title again.

Top players—Jeff Chatman, junior, forward, Brigham Young (17.5 ppg); Bob Capener, senior, guard, Brigham Young (14.9 ppg); Kelvin Scarborough, senior, guard, New Mexico (10.8 ppg); Fennis Dembo, junior, forward, Wyoming (17 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Eric Lockner, junior, center, Wyoming (15.8 ppg).

Following is a look at some of the top teams and players among nonautomatic-qualifying conferences and independent programs:

Big South

Winthrop (20-9, one) and Baptist (21-9, one) look like the top teams in this league, with Armstrong State (15-12, two) expected to provide competition.

Top players—Donald Johnson, senior, forward, Armstrong State (15.4 ppg); Eric Juratic, senior, center, Augusta (13.3 ppg, 8.7 rpg); Ben Hinson, senior, guard, Baptist (19.7 ppg); Clarence Grier, senior, forward, Campbell (14.5 ppg); William Calvin, junior, forward, Coastal Carolina (12.3 ppg, 8.5 rpg).

Gulf Star

Northwestern State (11-16, four), Sam Houston State (27-6, three), Southeastern Louisiana (10-18, two) and Stephen F. Austin State (22-5, three) are the challengers in this conference.

Top players—Victor Willis, senior, guard, Northwestern State (15.6 ppg); George Jones, junior, forward, Northwestern State (12.8 ppg); Doug DeVore, senior, forward, Sam Houston State (10.3 ppg, 5.1 rpg); Eric Fortenberry, sophomore, guard, Southeastern Louisiana (7 ppg); Kevin Hurley, senior, forward, Stephen F. Austin (14.3 ppg, 7.2 rpg).

Mid-Continent

Cleveland State (29-4, four) surprised everyone in 1986 by making the final 16 teams in the NCAA play-offs, and coach Kevin Mackey welcomes back four regulars.

Southwest Missouri State (24-8, three), Illinois-Chicago (13-16, four) and Eastern Illinois (two) are other good programs.

Top players—Clinton Ransey, senior, forward, Cleveland State (14.5 ppg); Ken McFadyen, sophomore, guard, Cleveland State (12.9 ppg); Mike Lett, junior, guard, Illinois-Chicago (11.4 ppg); Winston Garland, senior, guard,

Gay Elmore, Virginia Military

Southwest Missouri State (16.5 ppg); Harry Bell, junior, forward, Valparaiso (13.5 ppg, 6.8 rpg).

Independents

Notre Dame (23-6, three) was right at the top of this group until David Rivers got hurt and left coach Digger Phelps and the Irish in the dark. Now, DePaul (18-13, two), Marquette (19-11, two), Miami (Florida) (14-14, five) and Dayton (17-13, three) get the nod as the top independents.

Top players—Damon Stinson, senior, forward, DePaul (18.8 ppg, 9.3 rpg);

Chicago State (22-6, three) and Southwestern Louisiana (15-13, two).

Top Players—Shawn Bell, junior, forward, Chicago State (14.6 ppg, 6.7 rpg); Ed Young, senior, forward, Dayton (14.2 ppg, 7.2 rpg); Dallas Comegys, senior, forward, DePaul (13.8 ppg, 5.6 rpg); David Boone, senior, forward, Marquette (15.3 ppg, 10.6 rpg); Eric Brown, sophomore, forward, Miami (Florida) (16.4 ppg, 7.4 rpg); Ronnie Grandison, senior, forward, New Orleans (16.6 ppg, 9.7 rpg); David Rivers, junior, guard, Notre Dame (16.7 ppg); Charles Ray, senior, center, Pan American (11.7 ppg, 5.8 rpg); Randal Smith, junior, forward, Southwestern Louisiana (10 ppg, 7.9 rpg); Joe Yezbak, senior, guard, U.S. International (27 ppg).

Slaughter supports recommendations for giving academics the upper hand

University of Maryland, College Park, Chancellor John B. Slaughter says he supports the recommendations of a special university task force to tighten athletics eligibility and make academics a priority over sports.

Calling the recommendations "thoughtful and appropriate," Slaughter said during a news conference that he has referred all of the 60 suggestions to department heads, asking for a timetable for their implementation by the fall of 1987.

The report by the Task Force on Academic Performance of Student-Athletes was submitted about two weeks ago after three months of meetings.

"I don't accept the idea that athletes at the highest level and superior academics are mutually exclusive," Slaughter said. But, he said, "The academic achievement of our athletes is our highest philosophy."

Slaughter, who also is chair of the NCAA Presidents Commission, said he agreed with proposals to reduce the number of academically risky athletes allowed to play.

Slaughter said he plans to meet with coaches to discuss many of the proposals and how they should be

Baseball added to '92 Olympics

America's national pastime has been added to the list of official Olympic sports, with two provisions.

The International Olympic Committee unanimously voted to add baseball to the games of 1992.

In addition to the participation of five other nations, the IOC also insisted that the International Baseball Federation comply with Olympic rules on barring professionals.

The IBF also was ordered to open the game to new countries by allowing Olympic baseball games to be played on soccer fields. A decision on adding women's softball to the 1992 Olympic program was postponed.

Announcing the decision at a news conference, Vitaly Smirnov, Soviet chair of the IOC Program Commission, noted that the Soviet Union recently decided to take up baseball and softball as officially sponsored sports for Soviet athletes.

The decision to include baseball will not apply to the 1988 games scheduled in Seoul, South Korea.

Olympics open to hockey pros

All professional hockey players will be eligible to compete in the 1988 Winter Olympics, the president of the International Ice Hockey Federation has announced.

"There are no restrictions, none whatsoever," Gunther Sabetzki said in a telephone interview with the Associated Press from Dusseldorf, West Germany. "Canada can use Wayne Gretzky if it wants to. It is clear. They can use whomever they want."

Sabetzki was clarifying a decision made by the International Olympic Committee, which ruled that all professional players will be allowed to compete for the first time.

However, it appears unlikely that the National Hockey League would allow any of its top players to participate.

Sabetzki said it is possible that a member federation could bring a proposal to the body's next congress asking that the eligibility issue be redefined. But he said he doubts that will happen now that the IOC has made its ruling.

According to the rules, all players can play," Sabetzki, whose federation sets the rules for the Olympic hockey tournament, said. "And the IOC said that all players are eligible and I have no problem with that."

John B. Slaughter

Donald B. Canham

implemented, the Associated Press reported.

He mentioned several recommendations, including the following:

- Shortening the baseball and basketball seasons so they don't interfere with final exams.

- Creating a better academic support system for student-athletes.

- Increasing faculty representation on the athletics council, which advises the athletics department on academic matters.

- Achieving a better definition of the roles of coaches and athletics officials.

- Reviewing the structure of the athletics department.

Slaughter said the last recommendation will be the subject of a study by consultant Donald B. Canham. Slaughter has invited Canham, athletics director at the University of Michigan, to College Park to study the athletics department. He said that after receiving Canham's report, he will begin a nationwide search for a new athletics director.

"I am convinced that a student-athlete can be effective only if that person is achieving some true academic success," Slaughter said.

Championships Corner

Women's volleyball

The NCAA women's volleyball committees have modified the National Association of Girls and Women in Sport coaching rules to allow all coaches, as designated by the institution and listed on the official roster, to approach the floor and speak with the team during timeouts at the NCAA volleyball championships.

Future championships

Dates and sites for upcoming championships include:

1987 Men's and Women's Skiing Championships — March 4-7, Anchorage, Alaska.

1987 Division III Men's and Women's Outdoor Track Championships — May 20-23, North Central College.

1987 Division I men's and women's zone diving—Zone A, U.S. Naval Academy; Zone B, Louisiana State University; Zone C, University of Illinois, Champaign; Zone D, University of Arkansas, Fayetteville; Zone E, Arizona State University.

Automatic qualification

The following conferences will receive automatic qualification for the diving competition at the 1987 Division I Men's and Women's Swimming Championships: Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, Southeastern Conference, Big Ten Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference, Pacific-10 Conference (men only) and High Country Athletic Conference (women only).

Perfect handoff, NCAA.

No cheering crowds. No glowing press clippings. But every season, the most important play of the year is made by the NCAA.

You pass on the character, the self-esteem and the guts of a true athlete. And your young men and women run with it. For life. Quite a play.

State Farm is proud to be associated with college sports. And we're grateful for the fine athletes — and fine citizens — which they produce.

Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

Summary of NCAA Council actions

Following is a listing of all actions taken by the NCAA Council in its October 13-15, 1986, meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Legislation

The Council voted to sponsor the following legislation at the 1987 Convention (in addition to those proposals acted upon in the April and August Council meetings and listed in the April 30 and September 8, 1986, issues of the News):

An amendment to Bylaw 5-6(e) to authorize the Council to modify the Division I academic-reporting requirements in keeping with established institutional methods for compiling information concerning admissions standards, academic progress and graduation rates.

Affirmed sponsorship of an amendment to delete the provisions of Bylaw 5-1(m)-(14) as they relate to Division I member institutions.

A package of amendments to the constitution and bylaws to permit each membership division to determine the maximum amount of financial assistance that can be received by a student-athlete in that division; further, to provide that no division may adopt a maximum permissible amount of financial assistance that exceeds the cost of attendance that normally is incurred by students enrolled in a comparable program at the institution and to provide that any financial assistance in excess of tuition and fees, room and board, and required course-related books must be based upon the demonstrated financial need of the individual student-athlete.

An amendment to Bylaw 3-3(j) to permit institutions to take advantage of the basketball-schedule exemption opportunities only one time during any four-year period without counting those contests against the maximum contest limitation in the sport, with the understanding that the Administrative Committee will consider necessary adjustments in the proposal to treat concerns expressed by member institutions in Alaska and Hawaii.

An amendment to Bylaw 1-6 to permit limited tryouts for prospective student-athletes at Division II institutions under certain circumstances.

An amendment to Bylaw 1-9(f) to require that complimentary admissions for prospective student-athletes on self-financed visits to Division I member institutions be administered through a pass list.

Amendments to Bylaws 1-2(a)-(4) and 1-3(b) to reduce by approximately 50 percent the recruiting periods (for contact and evaluation) in football in Divisions I and II. (See story in October 20 issue of The NCAA News.)

Amendments to Bylaws 1-2(a)-(5) and 1-3(a) to reduce by approximately 50 percent the recruiting periods (for contact and evaluation) in basketball in Divisions I and II. (See story in October 20 issue of The NCAA News.)

An amendment to Bylaws 1-2(a)-(1)-(i) and (ii) to permit each Division I member institution to visit a basketball prospect's educational institution only once each week for recruiting contact purposes.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1(j) to permit the SAT or ACT score used for establishing initial athletics eligibility in Division I to be achieved no later than the July 1 immediately preceding the individual's first enrollment in a collegiate institution, which eliminates the possibility of taking the test in the fall and becoming eligible at midyear.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1(j)-(6)-(ii) to eliminate the 12-hour averaging option in the Divisions I and II satisfactory-progress rule and to require institutions in those divisions to certify eligibility for all student-athletes under that rule once per year, during the fall term. (See story in October 20 issue of The NCAA News.)

An amendment to Bylaw 2-4(m) to require all certified gymnastics and track and field meets to provide $10,000 death and dismemberment insurance and $25,000 accident-travel insurance for each participant in those events.

An amendment to Bylaw 2-3(h) to require each college all-star football or basketball contest to provide $25,000, rather than $10,000, accident-travel insurance for each participant in those contests.

An amendment to Bylaw 2-3(j) to specify that college all-star football games cannot be played after January 21, rather than January 15.

An amendment to Bylaw 2-4(l) to assure that no certified track and field meet conflicts with the National Collegiate Division I Men's and Women's Outdoor Track Championships.

An amendment to establish a new Recommended Policy 14 to encourage member institutions to review their athletics-related insurance coverage on an annual basis.

An amendment to Bylaws 12-4(a) and 12-4(j) to specify that the secretary-rules editor of the Men's and Women's Rifle Committee may be reelected without restriction and shall be a nonvoting member of the committee, thus increasing the committee from six members to seven.

An amendment to Constitution 5-2(a) to permit appointment of members of the Executive Committee for less than full terms when necessary to adjust the membership of the committee.

An amendment to Bylaw 12-5(a)-(1) to permit sports committees without playing-rules responsibilities to establish championships selection criteria requiring the use of certain regular-season playing rules that conform with those used in NCAA championships.

An amendment to Executive Regulation 1-1(a)-(1) to specify that members of all three divisions shall be counted toward the sponsorship percentage necessary to continue or establish a National Collegiate Championship in a sport, regardless of whether there is a separate division championship in that sport.

An amendment to Bylaw 11-2(b) to permit Division II member institutions to count one Division I/team sport for men and/or one Division I/team sport for women in meeting the Division II sports sponsorship requirements.

Amendments to Bylaws 11-1, 11-2 and 11-3 to make consistent for all divisions the language regarding minimum sports sponsorship requirements and the application of Bylaw 11-4 to those requirements.

Amendments to Bylaws 11-1, 11-2, 11-3 and 11-4 to clarify the effective dates of certain classification requirements.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1(j) to establish a 2,000 grade-point average in an 11-course high school core curriculum as a requirement for initial eligibility in Division II. No test-score requirements are included in this proposal.

An amendment to Bylaw 3-3(c) to exempt from the maximum number of contests in football a conference championship football game conducted under the provisions of O.I. 200.

Amendments to Constitution 3-1(g)-(3) and to the bylaws to remove restrictions on the individuals who can be designated to use a student-athlete's complimentary admissions in Division I and to eliminate Divisions II and III from the pass-list system.

An amendment to Bylaw 3-3(b) to reduce from 11 to 10 the permissible number of football contests (games or scrimmages) per season in Division III football.

An amendment to Bylaw 10-6(c) to preclude Division II member institutions from competing in a Division III championship in a sport for which there is sufficient sponsorship to permit Division II to have its own championship.

An amendment to Constitution 3-4(d)-(3) to permit a student-athlete to receive an established institutional research grant that would be exempted from the financial aid limitation.

An amendment to Bylaw 1-3 to permit a coach in Division I or II to attend a high school, junior college or all-star contest in which the coach's son or daughter is a participant, even if the contest is not during a permissible evaluation period.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1(c) to specify that the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee, rather than the Eligibility Committee, shall have the responsibility to review exceptions to the minimum academic-load requirement.

An amendment to Bylaw 1-9(f) to permit Division III member institutions to provide housing to a prospective student-athlete during a self-financed campus visit, provided such housing generally is available from the institution to all visiting prospective students.

Amendments to Constitution 5-1(g) and 5-2(d) to permit the Administrative Committee to authorize the executive director to act on certain routine requests and recommendations when they are noncontroversial and there is no question of interpretation or application.

An amendment to Bylaw 12-3(a) to require that each Council-appointed standing committee include at least one member of the Council as an ex officio committee member, with the exception of the Committee on Infractions, the National Youth Sports Program Committee, and the proposed Review and Planning Committee.

A package of amendments to restructure the Association's committees. (See story in September 15 issue of The NCAA News.)

An amendment to Constitution 5-2(c) to affirm that the executive director reports to the Executive Committee and is authorized to employ NCAA national office staff.

An amendment to Constitution 3-1(h)-(7) to permit an institution to provide transportation for the parents and/or teammates of a student-athlete who dies or who experiences a life-threatening illness or injury so long as such expenses are reasonable and appropriate.

The Council decided not to sponsor the following proposals:

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1(d)-(3) to eliminate participation during military service for any nation as an exception to the Division I "age" rule. The Council had voted in August to sponsor such an amendment but reversed itself.

An amendment to Constitution 3-4(b)-(3) to permit an institution to pay processing, application and enrollment fees for a student-athlete as a part of the student's financial assistance.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1(d)-(2)-(i) that would permit a student-athlete in a Division I institution to be considered for a "hardship" ruling based on an incapacitating injury or illness while in junior college.

An amendment to Bylaw 1-1(b)-(3) to require that all athletics press guides and recruiting brochures be of a size that would fit a standard No. 10 envelope and would contain no applied color except on the covers. The proposal was referred to the Special Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1(j) to exempt from the test-score requirements those foreign students whose eligibility is determined under the provisions of the "NCAA Guide to International Academic Standards for Athletic Eligibility."

An amendment to O.I. 3 to permit athletes who participate in the English Schoolboy Soccer Association and similar athletics associations to retain eligibility provided they do not receive pay per O.I. 2 and do not compete on a team with professional athletes. This proposal was referred to the proposed new Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism.

An amendment to Bylaw 10-6(f) to prohibit a student-athlete in a Division II or III institution from competing in the Division I championships at any time if the student-athlete would not have been an initial qualifier at a Division I institution.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1(j) to establish successful completion of an 11-course high school core curriculum as a requirement for initial eligibility in Division II, with no test-score or grade-point-average requirements.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-6(e) to require Division II member institutions to provide information regarding academic standards and graduation rates for student-athletes. Instead, the Division II Steering Committee will attempt to obtain such information through the Association's research operations.

An amendment to Bylaw 1-9 to preclude a Division III member institution from financing an official paid visit to its campus for a prospective student-athlete.

[Note: The Council took action on certain additional legislative proposals in other portions of the agenda, as noted later in this summary.]

Appointments

The Council appointed individuals to fill vacancies on certain Council-appointed committees effective September 1, 1987, and chose not to make such appointments in other cases where the committee structure will be affected by Convention action. The appointments are not announced until next spring, when all appointees have had an opportunity to accept or decline.

Vice-Adm. William Lawrence, U.S. Naval Academy, was appointed to the College Athletics Top XII Selection Committee replacing Lindsey Nelson, Knoxville, Tennessee, resigned.

Larry Bock, Juniata College, was appointed to the Division III Women's Volleyball Committee replacing Ellen Gibbs, Elmira College, declined.

The Council authorized the Administrative Committee to appoint a Special Council Subcommittee to Review Academic Standards.

It was agreed that all January 1987 vacancies on the Executive Committee will be announced to the membership in The NCAA News, thus encouraging members to submit nominations to be considered for appointment to those positions.

Membership

The Council elected the following to corresponding membership: Astroturf Industries, Inc.; Daniel Webster College; L. Crane Johnson; College of Notre Dame (Maryland), and Sports Bound Management. It also elected the National Soccer Coaches Association of America to affiliated membership.

The Division III Steering Committee granted a waiver per Constitution 4-2(h)-(2) to Polytechnic Institute of New York and a waiver per Constitution 4-2(h)-(3) to Asbury College.

The Administrative Committee will consider situations involving corporate misuse of NCAA corresponding membership status.

Presidents Commission

The Council authorized the Administrative Committee to appoint a special Council subcommittee to assist the Presidents Commission, on request, in the latter's cost-management project.

Interpretations

All new or revised interpretations approved by the Council will appear in The NCAA News, either in the Interpretations or the Legislative Assistance column. Some appeared in the October 20 issue and others appear elsewhere in this issue.

In addition to those, the Council: Ruled that an institution serving as the site for the state multisport event ("state games") specified in Constitution 3-9(b)-(4)-(v) cannot be involved in any way in the selection or assignment of participants and coaches for that event.

Upheld the Administrative Committee's interpretation of Bylaw 5-1(k)-(1) in a case involving a student-athlete at New Mexico State University.

Agreed to review in future meetings the existing legislative authority for the Council to grant waivers of the Association's eligibility rules and the feasibility of expanding that authority.

Agreed that precedent indicates the Eligibility Committee can extend the provisions of Bylaw 5-3(a) to apply a similar waiver opportunity to student-athletes participating on the U.S. basketball team for the 1988 Olympic Games.

Determined that the Bylaw 5-1(j) nonqualifier and partial qualifier are permitted to use the services of an athletics trainer and the jacuzzi if such use is in conjunction with the permissible weight-training program.

Agreed to review in the January meeting a revision of paragraph (c) of Case No. 332 to extend those provisions to a situation in which the student withdraws from school due to a medically documented injury or illness involving the student's immediate family.

Approved a Division I Steering Committee recommendation that 10 institutions that were disadvantaged by an earlier interpretation regarding recruiting opportunities in women's basketball be given an opportunity, within a two-week period, to contact a prospect in that sport in a state that plays high school women's basketball in the fall.

Committee Reports

Division I Steering: The Council agreed to sponsor an amendment to Bylaw 5-6(e) to modify the Division I academic-reporting requirements by requiring graduation rates for students generally to be based upon the percentage of freshmen enrolled at the institution during a particular academic year who graduated within a five-year period.

Division II Steering: The committee agreed that it is not interested in prohibiting representatives of athletics interests ("boosters") from on-campus, telephone or correspondence contacts with prospective student-athletes in that division.

While supporting legislation to prevent a Division II institution from participating in a Division III championship in a sport in which Division II has sufficient sponsorship to have its own championship (i.e., indoor track), the committee noted that its division had acceded to the Executive Committee's earlier attempt to discontinue the division indoor track championships and now was being "penalized" for so doing. It urged the Executive Committee to consider again an attempt to eliminate all division indoor track championships.

The steering committee will sponsor legislation at the January Convention to permit the membership to sustain or rescind the Executive Committee's decision to eliminate all Divisions II and III advancement [Executive Regulation 1-3-(d)] to Division I championships, effective in 1987-88.

Division III Steering: The steering committee asked that all revisions in executive regulations since the printing of the 1986-87 NCAA Manual be compiled and featured in The NCAA News. (See October 20 issue.)

The committee denied approval of an award of circumstance at Buena Vista College.

The Council will consider in its January meeting a revision of Case No. 418 to emphasize that athletics ability cannot be considered in awarding financial aid in Division III.

The steering committee will sponsor an amendment to Bylaw 11-3(a)-(4)-(i) at the January Convention to assure that students from small high schools are not disadvantaged in qualifying for Academic Honor Awards under that legislation.

The Council will review in January a revision of Case No. 421 to specify that an athletics department staff member cannot be involved in the determination (rather than review) of a financial aid package for a Division III student-athlete.

The steering committee will sponsor legislation at the January Convention to limit the number of contests in baseball and softball in Division III to 40 per year in each sport.

The committee asked the Executive Committee to consider suspending any team-eligibility effect as a result of drug testing for Division III championships for 1986-87.

Professional Sports Liaison: The Council voted not to sponsor legislation to permit a student-athlete in the junior year to apply for and be selected in a professional league's "hardship" draft but experience no effect on eligibility if no money is involved and the student-athlete reaches no agreement to play professionally.

Postseason Drug-Testing: The Council took no action on a suggestion that game officials and coaches be subjected to drug testing, delaying consideration of that topic until recommendations are received from Association legal counsel.

The Council approved a Division I Steering Committee recommendation as follows: Considering the logistical difficulties in providing for postcompetition ("exit") testing at all certified 1986-87 football bowl games, and considering the resultant possibility of unequal application of eligibility rules, the Council suggests that the Executive Committee confer with the Special Postseason Drug-Testing Committee as to the possibility of conducting no such testing (postcompetition) relative to this season's bowl games.

In response to an inquiry from the Division II Steering Committee, it was reported that the drug-testing committee does plan to do some testing at Divisions II and III championships during 1986-87.

In response to an inquiry from the Division

III Steering Committee, the eligibility effects of a positive drug test during this fall's NCAA championships were explained by President John R. Davis as follows: A positive test in precompetition or midcompetition testing results in the student-athlete being ineligible for 90 days, with no effect on the individual's team. A positive postcompetition test in an individual-sport championship results in the student-athlete being ineligible for 90 days, his or her points being stricken from the team's total and the team's place standing being adjusted accordingly; in a team-sport championship, the student-athlete is ineligible for 90 days but the team is not affected inasmuch as the Executive Committee has suspended the application of Executive Regulation 1-4-(f) for the fall championships.

Postseason Football: The Division I Steering Committee sustained the Postseason Football Committee's assessment of a fine to the Orange Bowl for a violation of Bylaw 2-2-(e).

It also approved the committee's recommendation that the Cherry Bowl not be certified for 1986 in light of the bowl's failure to produce a $1 million letter of credit by any of the specified deadlines.

Coaches' Outside Income: The Council voted to sponsor four alternative amendments regarding various reporting and/or control requirements for coaches' outside income related to their coaching positions. (See story in October 20 issue of The NCAA News.)

Recruiting Process: The Council approved in principle the concept of future legislation to establish a four-month recruiting period in each NCAA sport, to be developed after the Special Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process completes a survey of NCAA sports committees.

The Council agreed with the subcommittee's decision not to support a proposal to permit a part-time coach to be involved in scouting and recruiting activities, with additional reimbursement for such coaches.

Deregulation and Rules Simplification: The Council agreed that the NCAA Manual should be explicit in specifying that it is the responsibility of a member institution to report rules violations to the Association.

The Council voted to sponsor legislation at the 1987 Convention to specify in Bylaws 5-1(c)-(1), 5-1(g) and 5-3(c)-(1) that student-athletes shall remain eligible for NCAA championships that begin within 90 days after completion of degree requirements.

The Council revised Case No. 299 to substitute the word "regular" for "uniformed" in the reference to permissible practice activities.

It also voted to sponsor legislation to specify in Bylaws 4-1(b)-(1) and 5-1(j) that the Academic Requirements Committee, rather than the Eligibility Committee, shall approve the academic variations or waivers specified therein.

High School All-Star Games: The Council approved a revision of the committee's Criterion No. 7 for approval of high school all-star games to increase from $15 to $20 the value of a single memento that may be provided to participants.

The Council approved a revision of Case No. 159 to define more clearly the sources of revenue that are prohibited for a contest that does not require committee certification.

Infractions: The Council deferred action on a recommendation that the Committee on Infractions be given authority to alter investigative policies between Conventions, inviting the chair of the committee to appear before the Council in January to discuss the recommendation in specific detail.

The Council agreed to sponsor legislation in January (with the Administrative Committee, or a subcommittee of the Council appointed by the Administrative Committee, to approve the final proposals) to: (1) amend Enforcement Procedure 2-(h) to require the enforcement staff to review the status of a case with the committee after one year if it has not been processed to conclusion, with the committee then to determine if the case should be continued; if so, the institution would be provided status reports at least once in every six-month period thereafter; (2) require the enforcement staff to prepare a summary statement of its case that identifies the individuals upon whom (and the information upon which) it will rely to present the case, with that summary to be provided both to the committee and to the institution prior to the hearing; (3) specify that the committee's findings of violations and proposed penalties be released publicly (with names and other identifying information deleted) once the report has been transmitted to the institution, and (4) authorize the enforcement staff to correct erroneous information that is made public by institutional representatives in cases where the institution announces publicly that it is under investigation.

Van Horn named to subcommittee

University of Houston President Richard L. Van Horn has been appointed to the NCAA Presidents Commission subcommittee to review cost-management issues, replacing the Rev. J. Donald Monan of Boston College, who was unable to serve.

Van Horn has been the Southwest

Athletic Conference representative on the Commission since the summer of 1985. He was appointed to the subcommittee by Commission Chair John B. Slaughter.

The subcommittee's first meeting will be held November 23-24 in Denver.

No major team escaped '36 season without a loss or a tie

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

How long has it been since there were no undefeated, untied teams in major-college football?

The answer is 1936, the year that Lynn "Pappy" Waldorf's Northwestern team was undefeated going into its final game but lost to Notre Dame. As a result, Bernie Bierman's Minnesota team, which lost to Northwestern in the Big Ten Conference race, was voted national champion in the first Associated Press poll in history.

The no-perfect-team season may happen again but probably not this year. The list of perfect-record teams was down to four—Auburn, Miami (Florida), Michigan and Penn State—after October 25 games. Previously unbeaten Nebraska was stunned by Colorado, 20-10, and Alabama lost to Penn State. Penn State and Bowling Green were the only I-A teams to finish with perfect regular-season records last year, but both lost in bowl games.

To be sure, there are ample opportunities for the "fearless four" to lose. Miami faces Florida State November 1 and Pittsburgh November 8. Auburn meets Georgia November 15 and Alabama November 29. Penn State has no picnic, with Maryland November 8, Notre Dame November 15 and Pittsburgh November 22. Michigan has the annual battle with Ohio State November 22 and cannot afford to overlook Hawaii December 6.

One, two, even three of the perfects may yet be tripped up, but it is hard to imagine all four losing.

Five in I-AA

In Division I-AA, there were five undefeated-untied teams—Holy Cross, Nevada-Reno, Nicholls State, Pennsylvania and Tennessee State—after losses by Morehead State, North Carolina A&T, and William and Mary October 25. Nevada-Reno, Nicholls State and Tennessee State each have eight victories with three regular-season games left, while Holy Cross (seven) and Penn (six) each have four to go. Holy Cross, with Boston College November 22, is the only one of the five facing a I-A opponent down the stretch.

Two of the perfects are playing under first-year head coaches (that is, no previous experience as a head coach at the four-year level). They are Mark Duffner at Holy Cross and Ed Zubrow at Pennsylvania.

Most-improved race

San Jose State, North Carolina State and Rutgers lead the race to become the most improved I-A team in the nation for 1986. San Jose State, in Claude Gilbert's third season there, stands 6-2 compared to 2-8-1 in 1985, an improvement of five games (four more victories, six fewer losses is 10, then divide by two). North Carolina State, in Dick Sheridan's first year there after some big years at Furman, is the surprise leader of the Atlantic Coast Conference and stands 5-1-1, up 4½ games over last year's 3-8. Rutgers, now 4-2-1 vs. 2-8-1 last year, is up four games.

Ball State, 6-2, is up 3½ games; Stanford and Southwestern Louisiana, both 5-2, are both up three, and 6-2 Mississippi State, 5-2-1 Mississippi, 5-3 Temple and 5-3 Eastern Michigan are up 2½ games, completing the top 10.

Four more teams have losing records but already have won one more game than all last year—Kansas State, Missouri, Tulane and UTEP. Five more are at .500 or above and already have equalled their 1985 victory total—Indiana, Texas Tech, Toledo, Wake Forest and Wyoming.

Other new-job coaches in the above group besides Sheridan are Wyoming's Dennis Erickson, Kansas State's Stan Parrish and UTEP's Bob Stull. The first-year coaches in the group are Mississippi State's Rocky Felker, Southwestern Louisiana's Nelson Stokley and Texas Tech's David McWilliams.

Cal State Fullerton's Rick Calhoun is among Division I-A rushing leaders

Louisiana State's Wendell Davis leads Division I-A in pass receiving

Nevada-Reno quarterback Eric Beavers is No. 1 in I-AA passing efficiency

Sandy Rogers, Emory and Henry, ranks second in Division III rushing

In Division I-AA, Morehead State, now 6-1 under Bill Baldrige vs. 1-10 last year, already is up seven games to lead the race by a good margin. But two of the perfect-record teams already mentioned, Holy Cross (up 4½) and Nicholls State (up 3½), are in the picture, as is Cornell, 5-1 under Maxie Baughan and up four games over 3-7.

Attendance slightly ahead

Division I-A attendance to date is running slightly ahead of last year even though percentage of capacity so far—79.9 percent—is identical to the 1985 figure at this stage, which means the lead is due to a better schedule through October 25. The per-game average now is 42,672 vs. 42,058 at this point a year ago. In Division I-AA, the reverse is true; that is, percentage of capacity now, 57.3 percent, is almost equal to the 57.4 at this point in 1985, but per-game average now is 11,557 vs. 11,760 at this stage a year ago.

Palmer again

Temple's Paul Palmer, who had set the Division I-A two-game rushing record with consecutive games of 349 October 11 and 239 October 18, established a three-game record of 775 varsity sport (club football is not included in NCAA figures). Ham rushed for another 380 in four I-AA play-off games last year and led the Eagles to the I-AA national crown. With these 1,086 yards, Ham has 3,266 rushing as a college player. The I-A and collegiate record for rushing yards by a quarterback is 3,299 by Tampa's Fred Solomon over four seasons through 1974. Ham, of course, also is a good passer, with 4,100 yards for his regular-season varsity career.

His teammate, junior Tim Foley, has extended his I-AA record of consecutive field goals to 19. Foley is happy with that, but he still wants a shot at a long field goal (his longest this fall is 40; his career best is 54). "Our offense really upsets me sometimes—they keep scoring touchdowns," he says. "I want a long one." His definition of a long one? He has kicked several over 60 yards in simulated game situations and is two-for-three from 72 yards. (Mark McClellan, Georgia Southern SID)

Family affairs

Eight Oberlin College players are from three Ohio families, and six are as an electrician and Andy as a coal miner. But they both wanted a good education and both loved sports, so they jointly decided to come to college this fall.

Coach Lou Wacker was pleasantly surprised that both turned out in excellent physical condition because of their own weight-training programs. Even so, he did not expect either to become a starter. In the first game, Sid, the 29-year-old, went in as a substitute and played so well that he became the regular starter at cornerback, which is impressive because Emory and Henry has one of the most outstanding teams in its history. Sid is 5-10 and 182, Andy 6-1 and 185. "The instincts were there—they just had to be sharpened," Wacker said.

"Any competition between us, in practice or at the books, is just friendly competition to make each other better," Sid told Lise Cutshaw of the Washington County News in Emory, Virginia. "We're pulling for each other. I told Andy what happens, happens. Let's just go out there and play football. We've still got a few good years, even if we're old people." (Patsi Barnes Trollinger, Emory and Henry SID)

The Hernandez family of Keyport, New Jersey, has three sons starting for Montclair State this season—fullback Ed, linebacker Miguel and defensive back John. (Tom High, Montclair State SID)

Delaware sophomore fullback Tim Healy, from Baltimore, certainly has football in his blood. His father Pat played halfback for Notre Dame in the late 1950s. On the first varsity play of his career, Tim ran for a 26-yard touchdown in a 44-10 victory over Rhode Island. A week later, he caught his first varsity pass, and, yes, it too was a TD. (Ben Sherman, Delaware SID)

Pete Giftopoulos, a starting inside linebacker at Penn State, was toughened up by three athletic older brothers, and he remembers fondly the influence they had on his sports career. "Gifto," 6-3 and 233, is from Hamilton, Ontario, and brothers John and Mike played college football at Ottawa University. John also played professional hockey. "I really enjoyed watching my brothers play college ball," he says. "It was a good time... Canadian football is basically the same, except there's motion and the field is wider. I think I'm more mobile because of the Canadian style of play." If Giftopoulos could play his favorite sport, however, Penn State soccer coach Walter Bahr would have one of the game's biggest midfielders on his hands. (Dave Baker, Penn State SID)

Scholar-athletes

Pace captain Rich Middlebrook, with a 3.300 grade-point average (4.000 scale) as a business administration major, is his team's version of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. On the field, Middlebrook provides nightmares for opposing quarterbacks and offensive linemen, with school records for sacks and tackles, making him a prime candidate for CoSIDA academic all-America. Off the field, Middlebrook, nicknamed "Manster" (half man, half monster) by his teammates, is a friend to all who know him. For two years, he has worked as a residence-hall assistant. (John Balkam, Pace SID)

Kansas offensive tackle Pete Popovich has a 3.350 grade-point average in human biology and hopes to enter the university's medical school. He also assists a Lawrence pediatrician when he has time. Popovich spent two years at West Point and welcomed the change from military requirements and the pace at Kansas: "I'll never forget my first day of classes here. I was walking around campus with sweats and T-shirt on, grinning from ear to ear because I didn't have to wear a uniform all the time." (Jeff Cravens, Kansas sports information graduate assistant)

Rose-Hulman has a graduate student in its starting lineup. Gene Harding had a 3.300 grade-point average while earning his degree in electrical engineering and now is going for his master's degree in the same subject. (Joe Hargis, Rose-Hulman SID)

No team in the Big Eight Conference has any player quite so witty as Colorado nose guard Kyle Rappold, reports Doug Tucker of the Associated Press, and that includes Oklahoma with brash Brian Bosworth. He is so good that Colorado has added a "rapline" to its weekly release, for the best Rappold quote of the previous week. The latest one had to do with Colorado switching personnel on defense in certain passing situations. "I come from the land of the mushrooms," said Rappold, barely 6 feet and 245 pounds. "I'm not a good pass rusher at times because I'm too short. But I'm in there when they need meat up front." Rappold, affectionately known as "trash compactor" by his teammates, was asked to describe the nose guard position. He said: "My position is like being a fire hydrant at a dog show."

What effect has coach Mike Gottfried's prohibition against profanity had at Pittsburgh? Says sports information director Jim O'Brien: "It has made for some quiet practices."

Jerry Polakiewicz, 6-4, 260 and a defensive line regular for three years at Canisius, had to miss the 1985 season when an unruly patron at his summer job (bouncer in a local Buffalo establishment) broke his leg. With the leg not healing as it should, he became a student assistant coach this fall. Then he got medical approval to play. On his role as player-coach, Polakiewicz says: "It really gives me a better understanding of the game. I now know where everyone on the field is supposed to be. I'm sure it made me a better player." (John Maddock, Canisius SID) with his 187-yard game against Syracuse October 25. That broke the former mark by one yard—a record that had been held for 15 years by Michigan State's Eric Allen. That brought Palmer's career total to 4,449. He needs 551 his last three games (a 183.7 average compared to his current 177.5) to become the fifth player in I-A history to reach 5,000 yards in career rushing.

DeLines shine

October 25 certainly was a big day for the DeLine brothers. Colorado's Dave DeLine kicked a 57-yard field goal in that shocking upset of Nebraska, while his brother, Steve, booted a 58-yarder in Colorado State's 20-15 victory over Wyoming. Steve had the upper hand in the season opener as his team, now 5-2, defeated Dave's team, 23-7. But the biggest celebration this time was in Boulder, where Colorado had not beaten Nebraska since 1960. The Buffaloes last won back in 1967 at Lincoln.

Ham sets QB record

Even though he is only seven games into his third varsity season, Georgia Southern's Tracy Ham has established a Division I-AA career record for rushing yards by a quarterback at 2,180, breaking the 1,827 by Idaho's Ken Hobart over four seasons, 1980-1983. Even though the Eagles played a full 11 games against four-year colleges in 1983, Ham's 706 rushing yards as a freshman are not included in his career figures because Georgia Southern, resuming its football program, had not yet classified it as a starters. The D'Egidio family of Youngstown has three sons—all starters now. They all played together in high school, but it was not until the 1986 season opener that all started in the same game. The eldest, John D'Egidio Jr., was a second-team all-league tight end last year but now starts at quarterback. Sophomore twins Joe and Mike are scrappy 5-7, 160-pounders. Joe plays defensive back and Mike running back.

The unusual set of relatives are the Kovach boys: brothers Joe, a sophomore and starting linebacker, and Steve, a freshman tight end, and junior Bill, their uncle. Steve has started some games at the same tight end position where Bill would be playing but for a season-ending knee injury. Bill is a transfer from Ohio State.

The Johnson family of Cincinnati contributes sophomore Rich, a starting defensive end, and senior Joe, an all-league punter in 1985 who is sidelined with a back injury this season but plans to return next fall to finish his eligibility. Joe Johnson's best sport is baseball, in which he hit .406 last spring with seven home runs in 64 times at bat, leading Oberlin to its highest victory total in baseball in 41 years. (Steve Pulver, Oberlin SID)

Emory and Henry has a rare brother combination, Sid and Andy Maxwell, who have just started college at the ages of 29 and 25. They are from Richlands, Virginia, and were "afraid" to go away to college after finishing high school. Each worked several years after graduation—Sid

Old favorites, new tournament highlight women's soccer

National Collegiate

North Carolina, ranked No. 1 and boasting a strong 14-0-1 record two weeks before the end of regular-season play, will be seeking its fourth women's soccer championship in the past five years when first-round action begins in the National Collegiate Women's Soccer Championship. First-round games must be completed by November 9 and second-round games by November 16. The semifinals and finals will take place November 22-23 at on-campus sites.

The Tar Heels were ousted from the throne in 1985 by George Mason, 3-0, after three consecutive NCAA crowns. This year, George Mason (11-2-1 overall record) joins California (10-1-1), Colorado College (10-1-1) and Massachusetts (8-2-1) as top candidates to challenge North Carolina in the 12-team, single-elimination tournament (for Divisions I and II). The Women's Soccer Committee will select at least one team from each of the five regions for the championship Sunday, November 2, with the remaining seven teams chosen at large. The tournament field was reduced from 14 to 12 teams this year.

George Mason coach Hank Leung feels the Lady Patriots have profited from a tough schedule.

"This has been our toughest schedule ever," he said. "But that has really helped the freshman players mature in anticipation of the NCAA play-offs."

Anson Dorrance, the North Carolina coach, looks at last year's defeat in the finals as a blessing in disguise.

"Our goal is to be the best we can, and we have always had the goal of winning the national championship. We have always been in a position to win it.

"Last year, George Mason played with greater intensity, so our players know what it takes to win the championship."

In the New England region, Massachusetts is rated fifth in the latest coaches' poll, and the Minutewomen are strong once again. Other teams under consideration for selection to the tournament field are seventh-ranked Brown (7-2-1), Boston College (7-5-1), Harvard (6-1-1), New Hampshire and Vermont.

The Northeast region features fourth-rated George Mason, and the Lady Patriots expect to challenge for another title. Other teams under consideration for a berth from this region include sixth-ranked William and Mary (10-1), Cornell (7-0-1), Connecticut, Rutgers, Hartford, Villanova and Adelphi.

Colorado College (10-1) is the strongest team in the Central region and has only a 3-0 loss to top-ranked North Carolina to mar its record. Other leaders in the region are 11th-ranked Cincinnati (6-2), Wisconsin (8-3), Northern Colorado (6-2) and Metropolitan State.

In the South region, North Carolina is the top gun, but the area has plenty of good programs worthy of selection consideration. North Carolina State (11-3), Central Florida (8-2-1) and a tie with North Carolina, Radford (7-6) and Barry all are legitimate contenders.

Second-ranked California heads a list of highly touted teams in the West region. The Golden Bears have had trouble with area teams Cal State Hayward (9-1 with a victory over California) and Cal State Dominguez Hills (6-0-2 and a tie with California). Others in the running for a possible play-off slot are UC Santa Barbara (7-1-2) and Santa Clara.

Division III

Division III will crown its first women's soccer champion this fall, thanks to the first NCAA Division III Women's Soccer Championship, a 12-team, single-elimination tournament.

First- and second-round games will be conducted November 8-9 on the campuses of participating institutions. The championship will be conducted November 15-16 on the campus of one of the finalists. At least one team will be selected from each of the four regions established by the Women's Soccer Committee, and the remaining eight teams will be selected at large.

Three teams will be paired geographically at each of the four sites, with the top-ranked team in each group receiving a first-round bye.

Cortland State (9-2-2 overall record), loser to eventual Division I champion George Mason in 1985, is the top-ranked team in the Division III coaches' poll and is a top prospect to be selected to the postseason tournament. Other top-ranked teams include Rochester (9-0-1), St. Mary's

Spartans prepare for rough postseason

The 1985 Division III Men's Soccer Championship marked a return to the old guard, as North Carolina-Greensboro captured its third title in four years. The Spartans failed to win the championship in 1984 but returned to form last fall with a 5-0 victory over Washington (Missouri).

Tradition however, does not, assure the Spartans of an easy road to the 1986 title. Several teams are in contention for the 24 berths in the 1986 Division III Men's Soccer Championship. In fact, in this first year of automatic-qualifying berths for the championship bracket, eight conference champions will receive automatic bids, and the other 16 berths will be awarded on an at-large basis. The championship also will return to a final-four bracket for the first time since 1981.

The eight conferences with automatic-qualifying berths include the Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Independent College Athletic Conference, Massachusetts State College Athletic Association, Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New Jersey State Athletic Conference, North Coast Athletic Conference, Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and State University of New York Athletic Conference.

North Carolina-Greensboro is among the top teams under consideration for the championship, but Scranton (15-0 record through October 20) is the top-ranked team in the coaches' poll. The Spartans are fifth. Other top teams include Ohio Wesleyan (12-2), Salem State (12-0-1), St. John's (Minnesota) (11-0), Glassboro State (13-1-2), Kalamazoo (10-1-1) and 1984 titlist Wheaton (Illinois) (13-2).

The selection of teams by the Division III Men's Soccer Committee will be Sunday, November 2, and the first and second rounds at on-campus sites are to be completed by November 9. The third round will be November 16 at on-campus sites, with the South and Midwest-Far West regions receiving byes to the final four. The final four will be November 21-23 at on-campus sites.

Scranton, a two-time overtime loser in the finals in 1980 and 1981, heads the list of at-large candidates. In the New England region, other teams still under consideration for the championship field include Brandeis (9-6-1), Clark (Massachusetts) (8-2-3), Coast Guard (8-2-1) and Plymouth State (7-1-4). Fitchburg State (10-3), North Adams State (10-2-3), Salem State (12-0-1) and Westfield State (11-3) are still in contention for the Massachusetts State College Athletic Association title.

In the New York region, Rochester Institute of Technology (10-0-1) has clinched the title in the Independent College Athletic Conference for the automatic bid. In the State University of New York Athletic Conference, there is a battle between Binghamton (11-2), Cortland State (8-4) and Fredonia State (12-1-2). Others under consideration are Ithaca (10-4), Union (New York) (9-1-1), Rochester (11-2) and Merchant Marine (9-2-1).

In the Pennsylvania-New Jersey region, Kean (10-6-1), Glassboro State (13-1-2) and Trenton State (9-2-3) are ference. Other teams with a chance for a play-off berth are Lynchburg (10-2-2), Johns Hopkins (9-1-1), Bethany (West Virginia) (9-4) and Grove City (6-1-1).

The Great Lakes region features two conferences with automatic-qualifying berths. In the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Kalamazoo (10-1-1), Hope (9-4) and Calvin (8-3-3) are the front-runners. In the North Coast Athletic Conference, Ohio Wesleyan and Wooster (10-2-1) are the top two teams. Other teams from the region under consideration are Wheaton (Illinois), Washington (Missouri) and DePauw (11-1-1).

In the Midwest/Far West region, Claremont-Mudd-Scripps (10-4-1) is the top team in the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, and other teams under consideration include UC San Diego (10-5), St. John's (Minnesota) (11-0), St. Olaf (9-2-1), Wisconsin-Whitewater (10-1-1) and Menlo (9-2-1).

Division III Men's Soccer

in the New Jersey State Athletic Conference race. Scranton tops the list of other possible candidates along with Messiah (11-2), Gettysburg (10-2-1), Moravian (8-1-2), Elizabethtown (6-5-3) and Drew (6-4-2).

In the South region, North Carolina-Greensboro is locked in a struggle with Christopher Newport (13-3) and North Carolina Wesleyan (10-2-2) in the Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Con-

Dominant Trenton State is a championship threat again

For the past five years, Division III field hockey has been dominated by Trenton State, the defending NCAA champion. The most recent poll of the top teams in the division, however, shows the Lions ranked fourth.

Throw in 1984 champion Bloomsburg, third-ranked Bentley, second-ranked Elizabethtown and top-ranked Stacy Stem setting a new school record for career assists with 27."

Elizabethtown, Bloomsburg (12-1-2), Kutztown (8-6) and Messiah (10-3) are programs capable of making a strong run for regional and national honors.

In the Northeast region, Bentley should be a cinch to gain one of the play-off berths and avoid the jinx of not qualifying for the postseason tournament in even years. Salem State (15-2-1) also is under serious scrutiny for a berth, as well as Plymouth State (6-5-1) and Trinity (Connecticut) (11-0).

Trenton State is the top team in the Mid-Atlantic region and should be a final-four candidate. Ithaca (6-5-2) has played a tough schedule but is ranked seventh and should be Trenton State's top competition in this region. Other teams still in the running for play-off consideration are Glassboro State (11-3), Cortland State (7-4), Fairleigh Dickinson-Madison (12-1), Drew (13-3) and William Smith (9-2-1).

The Pennsylvania region has seven of the top 20 teams in the poll, including Elizabethtown (second), Bloomsburg (fifth), Messiah (eighth), Swarthmore (13-2, 11th), Gettysburg (8-4, 13th), Indiana (Pennsylvania) (10-8, 18th) and Kutztown (8-6, 19th). All are under consideration for the play-offs.

Salisbury State is the class of the South region, and the Sea Gulls appear to be a likely final-four combatant. Other teams still in the running for a postseason berth in this region are Frostburg State (11-2) and Lynchburg (9-6-1).

In the Great Lakes region, Wooster (7-5) and Denison (11-4) are the top teams.

Division III Field Hockey

Salisbury State and the list of top challengers for the 1986 Division III championship is complete. The 16-team tournament will get under way on campuses of competing teams November 7. Regional finals will be played the next day, with the final four set November 14-15 on the campus of one of the semifinalists. At least two teams will be selected from each of five regions, with the remaining six teams selected at large.

Salisbury State had won all 12 of its games (through October 23), and Bentley (11-0) and Elizabethtown (17-0-1) also were undefeated. Trenton State (17-2) has maintained its strong position by tackling a challenging schedule.

Coach Karen Weaver of top-ranked Salisbury State believes her squad has put together all the ingredients at the right time.

"I think this season has been a jelling process, with a combination of some seniors who have played together for three or four years and some talented sophomores and juniors," she said. "We have had a real balanced attack, with Robin Adair leading the scoring with 14 goals and

Two Nebraska programs placed on one year of probation

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has announced that probation for a maximum period of one year has been imposed in football and women's softball at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

During the probationary period, the university will conduct a review of its internal procedures for the detection and prevention of violations of the NCAA extra-benefit rule in those sports.

The university's record of its participation in the 1985 NCAA Division I Women's Softball Championship shall be deleted by the NCAA, the team's place in the final standings vacated and the team's trophy shall be returned to the Association as a result of the participation of two ineligible student-athletes in NCAA championship play in 1985.

The NCAA also imposed a one-year ban on postseason play in women's softball but determined that the sanction was satisfied when the university's 1986 team was disqualified from NCAA championship play as a result of the ineligible participation of three players during the 1986 regular season. The women's softball team, therefore, remains eligible for future NCAA championship competition.

No sanctions were imposed regarding postseason play or television appearances in football. The NCAA adopted action taken previously by the university against an assistant academic counselor as a result of her involvement in violations related to football. That action included a six-month probationary period, ineligibility for advancement in the individual's employment duties during the probationary period and ineligibility for any increase in pay prior to July 1, 1987. The violations in football did not involve any member of the football coaching staff.

"This case was limited in nature and did not involve a pattern of serious violations," said Frank J. Remington, chair, Committee on Infractions. "The former women's head softball coach was involved in violations that, although not numerous, did indicate a disregard for the governing legislation. Therefore, the committee believed that action affecting women's softball was warranted, and the committee intends to review the former coach's involvement in the violations directly with that individual in the event he again becomes associated with an NCAA member institution."

"With regard to football," Remington said, "the primary concern of the committee related to the involvement of an assistant academic counselor in events surrounding the lease of an automobile by a student-athlete. The seriousness of that matter was heightened when the assistant academic counselor failed to adequately inform her superiors of these events and when she and the student-athlete provided false information to the NCAA during the investigation of the matter."

"After a review of all violations found, the committee was concerned about the adequacy of the university's internal procedures to detect and prevent NCAA rule violations, and the probationary period is intended to afford the university an opportunity to review its procedures and report any necessary changes for the committee's review. The committee looks forward to receiving the report at such time as new procedures are in place and the institution is satisfied that they are working effectively."

The following is the complete text of the penalties imposed in this case and a summary of the violations.

Penalties to be imposed upon institution

1. The University of Nebraska, Lincoln, shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a maximum period of one year in football and women's softball, effective October 14, 1986, it being understood that should any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions; further, prior to the expiration of the probationary period, the NCAA shall review the athletics policies and practices of the university.

2. The university's intercollegiate women's softball team shall be prohibited from participating in the National Collegiate Division I Women's Softball Championship or in any other postseason competition for a one-year period. [NOTE: Based upon the fact that the women's softball team was disqualified from NCAA championship play in 1986 and based upon the circumstances of the action taken by the NCAA at that time, the committee has determined that the one-year postseason sanction for softball has been satisfied and, therefore, the university remains eligible at this time for future NCAA championships and postseason play. Further, no postseason sanction was imposed in football, and no television-appearance sanction was imposed in either football or women's softball.]

3. In accordance with the provisions of Section 1-4(f) of the NCAA executive regulations and based upon the ineligible participation of two student-athletes in the 1985 National Collegiate Division I Women's Softball Championship, the record of the university's performance in that event shall be deleted, the team's place in the final standings shall be vacated and the team's trophy shall be returned to the Association.

4. During the 1986-87 academic year, the university shall conduct a review of its internal procedures for identifying and preventing possible violations of the NCAA extra-benefit rule in the sports of football and women's softball to ensure that the head coaches in those sports and the individuals to whom the head coaches report are informed of any action that may constitute a violation of NCAA legislation, and the university shall submit a written report of its findings and corrective actions, if any are determined to be appropriate, to the NCAA enforcement staff by June 1, 1987.

5. The committee voted to adopt the remedial actions taken by the university against an assistant academic counselor who was involved in this case, and the committee reserves jurisdiction to ensure that the stated terms are implemented fully. It is the committee's understanding that this staff member has been placed on probation for a six-month period, until February 15, 1987, and that she is ineligible for advancement in her employment duties during this period, and no potential pay increase will be implemented prior to July 1, 1987.

Summary of violations of NCAA legislation

1. Violations of NCAA legislation in the sport of football:

a. An assistant academic counselor at the university furnished a student-athlete an extra benefit in that she assisted the young man in the lease of a 1985 Nissan 300ZX automobile by: (1) contacting two automobile dealerships in his behalf regarding arrangements to lease an automobile; (2) delivering lease-agreement forms to him; (3) advising him concerning information gathered from the automobile dealerships, including that a "cosigner" would be necessary; (4) providing local automobile transportation to him when the initial lease payment was made and when he took possession of the automobile; (5) personally delivering at least one cash payment to the lessor for him, and (6) transporting him to the lessor and to an automobile dealership in order to retrieve the automobile after it was repossessed.

Knowing of these events and that NCAA legislation may be involved, the assistant acaademic counselor failed to adequately inform the appropriate athletics department staff members of these facts. Reporting such information initially could have prevented a violation of NCAA rules, and subsequent reporting should have resulted in action by the university to declare the student-athlete ineligible under the NCAA's extra-benefit regulation. Further, the seriousness of these matters was heightened when both the student-athlete and the assistant academic counselor reported false information to the NCAA on more than one occasion when questioned concerning their involvement in and knowledge of events pertaining to the lease of this automobile by the young man.

In summary, the assistant academic counselor's assistance to the young man constituted an extra benefit, her failure to report full information to appropriate athletics department staff members prevented the university from avoiding a violation or properly applying an NCAA eligibility regulation, and the provision of false information to the NCAA by both individuals during a relevant investigation of the matter constituted violations on their parts of the NCAA's ethical-conduct regulation. [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5), 3-6-(a) and 4-2-(a)—O.I. II]

b. Through an inadvertent administrative error, the university issued improper payments to two student-athletes in January 1986 as reimbursement for commercial airline transportation costs to return to their homes following the 1986 Fiesta Bowl game in Phoenix, Arizona; further, these student-athletes did not qualify to receive such payments under the provisions of NCAA legislation. The young men subsequently repaid these amounts in full to the university after the NCAA enforcement staff reviewed the matter. [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and 3-1-(h)-(I)]

c. During an approximate two-week period in the summer of 1983, two representatives of the university's athletics interests provided a student-athlete the use of a Ford van to travel between his residence and the site of his summer employment. [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5)-(v)]

d. The university previously has acknowledged to the NCAA Eligibility Committee violations of NCAA legislation concerning

NCAA Record

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

BOB BRODHEAD resigned at Louisiana State, effective December 1. He earlier had been suspended with pay, pending a review by the school's athletics council of charges against Brodhead that he violated the state ethics code. The charges were brought against Brodhead by the State Commission on Ethics. Brodhead announced his resignation one day prior to his scheduled meeting with the athletics council to discuss the charges. He is charged with improperly accepting a free vacation trip and payments for a radio show.

ASSISTANT DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

JANET P. JUDGE and ROBERT MALEKOFF named at Harvard. Judge previously managed special events and had responsibilities for the use of the school's athletics facilities as Harvard's assistant director of operations. Malekoff, a former women's soccer coach and director of athletics fund-raising at Princeton, served the past year as national coordinator for the university degree-completion program at the Center for the Study of Sport in Society.

COACHES

Baseball—RON FRANK selected at Wheaton (Illinois).

Baseball assistant—PAT HARRISON appointed at Washington State. He formerly was on the staff at Oral Roberts for 11 years and served from 1973 to 1976 at Southern California, where he was an all-America second baseman in the late 1960s.

Men's basketball—HARRY J. PAPPAS named at Nichols, his alma mater. He previously coached in two amateur leagues in Greece from 1975 to 1985, leading his teams to more than 150 victories. He also has coached at the junior college level, leading Brandywine College in Delaware to a 157-38 record through eight seasons.

Men's basketball assistants—LARRY COX promoted from assistant to associate coach at St. Joseph's (Indiana), where he is beginning his fourth season on the staff. STEVE THONN appointed at Wheaton (Illinois), where he already serves as an assistant football coach. WALTER FULLER named a graduate assistant coach at Drexel, where he helped lead the Dragons to a Division I Men's Basketball Championship berth as a senior player last year. RONALD "DUFFY" BURNS named a graduate assistant coach at Pittsburgh.

Women's basketball assistants—DOUG PORTER appointed at Wheaton (Illinois). TERRI MOHR named at St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania).

Men's and women's cross country assistant—East Stroudsburg's JOE KOCH promoted to head women's track and field coach at the school.

Women's fencing—DENISE O'CONNOR resumed the post she formerly held at Brooklyn. The two-time Olympian fencer is a faculty member at the school.

Football—JOHN McCANN resigned at McNeese State, effective at the end of the season. His teams compiled a 19-11-3 record through his first three years but lost six of its first seven games this season. BUDDY AMENDOLA of Central Connecticut State announced he will step down at the end of the season. Amendola, in his fifth year in the post, was diagnosed as having suffered a heart attack before the season began. He will be reassigned to handle fund-raising duties at the school.

Men's ice hockey assistant—BRUCE CROWDER selected at Maine, succeeding MIKE PIETTE, who resigned to pursue business interests. Crowder played four seasons in the National Hockey League, retiring in 1985 after a year at Pittsburgh. BILL BERGAN and BRUCE MILLER appointed at Geneseo State. Bergan captained the ice hockey team at Hobart, where he also was a two-time all-America in men's lacrosse, and Miller played at Geneseo State.

Women's softball—ROBERTA KUECHLER named at Wheaton (Illinois), where she also will serve as a trainer.

Men's and women's swimming and diving—JIM PERKINS appointed men's and women's coach at Carnegie-Mellon. The former Ithaca men's and women's coach and Cornell men's coach succeeds DONNA MOROSKY, who was named director of health enhancement at Carnegie-Mellon after 11 years as coach. ALLEN BUNN named men's coach at East Stroudsburg, replacing FRANK McGUIRE, who stepped down after three years. Bunn has competed in four U.S. Masters' Swimming Championships. KIM COYNE appointed men's coach at Brooklyn, and ELLEN BEANE and BARRY WEISS named coaches for the school's women's team.

Men's tennis—JACK SWARTZ given additional responsibilities at Wheaton (Illinois), where he is associate athletics director.

Women's track and field—JOE KOCH promoted from assistant men's and women's cross country and track and field coach at East Stroudsburg. Koch, who joined the staff two years ago, succeeds PETE HEESSEN, who resigned to enter private business.

Men's and women's track and field assistant—East Stroudsburg's JOE KOCH promoted to head women's coach at the school.

STAFF

Operations assistant—Harvard's Janet P. Judge appointed assistant athletics director at the school.

Sports information/promotions directors—

Richard Yoder named president-elect of Eastern College Athletic Conference

Tom Kellner appointed Utica's director of sports information, promotion

TOM KELLNER named Utica's first full-time director. He previously worked for the Denver Zephyrs, a private company that operated the Triple A baseball team in Denver and is active in efforts to attract a major-league franchise to the city. He succeeds LARRY PLATT, who served as SID as a student before his recent graduation. JOHN R. HIRE appointed SID at Denison, where he will retain the post of assistant football coach he has held since 1974. He also will continue to assist with men's and women's tennis.

Sports information assistants—SHERILYN FIVEASH selected at Mississippi. She previously was a graduate assistant in sports information at Western Kentucky. JOHN McKENNA appointed at Southern Connecticut State. The recent Springfield graduate also is a sports reporter for the Torrington (Connecticut) Register-Citizen.

Trainers—TONY SALESI named basketball trainer at Pittsburgh. ROBERTA KUECHLER appointed at Wheaton (Illinois), where she also will serve as women's softball coach.

CONFERENCES

RICHARD YODER, athletics director at West Chester, selected as president-elect of the Eastern College Athletic Conference. Yoder, a member of the NCAA Council, will assume the conference presidency next fall.

NOTABLES

SUSAN LEFEBVRE, all-America pitcher for 1986 national champion Cal State Fullerton, named to receive the 1986 Broderick Award for Women's Softball, making her eligible for the Broderick Cup, given annually to the nation's outstanding woman collegiate athlete. Trinity (Texas) tennis players JANA KLEPAC and GRETCHEN RUSH honored by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association as Scholar-Athlete of the Year and Senior College Tennis Player of the Year, respectively. Klepac was a tennis all-America in 1985, and 1983 NCAA doubles champion. Rush was the runner-up in singles and doubles at the 1986 Division I Women's Tennis Championships. CONOR McCULLOUGH of Boston U. and RICHARD INGOLD of Indiana (Pennsylvania) named corecipients of the Eastern College Athletic Conference 1986 Award of Valor, which honors athletes whose courage, motivation and determination serve as an inspiration to others. McCullough has overcome diabetes to become one of the nation's top hammer throwers and Ingold recovered from a life-threatening football injury to break career and single-season passing records as quarterback at Indiana. Collegiate basketball official LOU BONDER selected to receive the Eastern College Athletic Conference 1986 George L. Shiebler Award. The award is presented annually to an Eastern intercollegiate official for "superior long-term dedication to officiating." Bonder, supervisor of basketball officials for the Atlantic 10 Conference, first officiated a basketball game in 1939. HUGH "DUFFY" DAUGHERTY and WILES HALLOCK named to the selections staffs for the annual East-West Shrine Football Classic and Pageant January 10 in Palo Alto, California. Daugherty, the former Michigan State football coach, will be a member of the West selection committee, and Hallock, former executive director of the Pacific-10 Conference, will serve as selection coordinator.

DEATHS

JOHN DELL ISOLA, one of the "Seven Blocks of Granite" who played football at Fordham in the early 1930s, died October 21 in Arlington, Massachusetts. He was 74. Dell Isola was named an all-America center during his senior year, then played for the New York Giants in the National Football League from 1934 to 1940. He served briefly on the coaching staff at Dartmouth before going on to serve several professional teams. JOHN J. "DON" McNAMARA JR., who participated in football, rugby and swimming at Harvard and won a bronze medal for sailing in the 1964 Summer Olympics, died October 18 at age 54. BRYAN SPRABERRY, a senior cross country athlete at Louisiana State, was killed in a fire in his dormitory room October 18. He was 21. Officials said a candle that was burning in Spraberry's room apparently tipped over after he fell asleep.

CORRECTION

In the women's basketball preview in the October 20 issue of The NCAA News, it was incorrectly stated that St. John Fisher College would not be eligible for the Division III championship because of reclassification. The team was ineligible for 1985-86 but will be eligible for the championship this season.

Convention meeting schedule mailed

Composite meeting schedules for the 81st annual NCAA Convention have been mailed to member institutions.

Two significant changes from past Conventions should be noted in the schedule: (1) The meetings do not follow the Monday-Wednesday format of recent years, and (2) an extra day has been added to the Convention to provide more flexibility in scheduling and to accommodate additional conference and related meetings.

Convention business sessions will begin Thursday morning, January 8. The general business session is scheduled to conclude at noon Saturday, January 10.

Included in the composite meeting schedule are functions to be held by the Association, the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, and the National Operating Committee on Standards for Athletic Equipment.

Other groups that have scheduled meetings in San Diego to coincide with the Convention include the American Football Coaches Association (January 9-12), the College Athletic Business Managers Association (January 4-7) and the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics (January 4-6).

NCAA allowed extension to answer lawsuit

An attorney for a group of Bradley University basketball players says the NCAA has two more weeks to answer the players' lawsuit challenging a sanction imposed against the defending Missouri Valley Conference champions.

The players last month asked the U.S. District Court in Peoria to block the NCAA's one-season ban on postseason basketball action for Bradley.

The players, led by junior guard Hersey Hawkins of Chicago, contend the ban threatens their potential value in a National Basketball Association draft. They said it also could deprive them of valuable postseason experience.

The sanctions resulted from Bradley's improper inducements to sign a player five years ago, the NCAA said in imposing the penalties in July.

(Minnesota) (10-3-1), Methodist (8-2), UC San Diego (10-2-3) and Curry (11-2-1).

The New England region is very strong, with several teams currently waiting for the tournament selection call, set for Sunday, November 2. Curry is the top team in the region, but Smith (10-4), Plymouth State (4-4), Mount Holyoke, Brandeis and Clark (Massachusetts) all are under consideration.

In the Northeast region, Cortland State and Rochester dominate as the top two-rated teams in the nation. Others still in the running are ninth-ranked Stony Brook (7-1-1), tenth-ranked St. Lawrence (8-1), Kean (8-2), Ithaca, Buffalo, Geneseo State and Nazareth (New York). Cortland State has as much talent as any Division III team, with two-time all-America midfielder Marie McKeon and all-Americas Cathy Klein and Joan Easton. The Dragons have been in the National Collegiate Women's Soccer Championship field every year since its inception in 1982, and coach Chris Malone feels Cortland State will be in the thick of the Division III title race.

"There are six or seven teams in Division III that are very strong, and I would like to think that we are one of them. I knew that if we could replace our scorers this season, we would be tough to beat."

Methodist tops the list of hopefuls in the South/Mideast region, with eighth-ranked Allegheny (10-4-1), 13th-ranked Kalamazoo (9-2-1) and 17th-ranked Franklin and Marshall (7-4-1) the other teams in the poll under consideration. Other teams from the region still in the running are Denison, Scranton and Kenyon.

In the West region, St. Mary's (Minnesota) and UC San Diego are the top choices, with St. Thomas (Minnesota) (8-2) and Maryville (Missouri) (4-6-1) the other teams still under consideration.

Age

then was hired as the women's team coach. Last year, he decided to get a college education for himself but waited a season before trying out for the team.

It is Sweeney's first attempt at higher education despite his technical employment background. "If you've been doing your job for 50 years," he says, "you're bound to pick up a few things as you go along."

"For someone of his age, he's incredible," said Salem State coach Grant Longley, 45, who needed players after four team members had to quit because of poor grades. Sweeney, studying French and piano, and majoring in physical education so he can eventually return to coaching, is a solid B student.

The coach said Sweeney, of Andover, Massachusetts, has engendered a respect for age "not only in the players but also myself."

"Joe is a student of the game, so he knows what to do, when to do it and why," Longley added. "He's the first one at practice, he's the last to leave. He takes the ball machine up to the courts if there's nobody to hit with."

Sweeney compensates for decreased mobility through deft court coverage, explained Longley. "He has tried narrowing the court to his advantage by moving in and taking a midcourt position to lessen the angles of return."

What is Sweeney's secret to remaining so active so long?

"Don't stop. There's an old saying—if you don't slow down, nobody's going to catch you," Sweeney told Bill Kipouras, sports editor of the Salem Evening News.

Many opposing players seemed shocked when Sweeney was introduced. Only once this season was any patronizing remark made—at the last competition of the season. "Lucky," his opponent yelled when he hit a cross-court winner.

"A little later, I hit the same ball and put it in the same place—and he didn't say 'Lucky' that time," said Sweeney.

Shlachter writes for the Associated Press.

Director of Intercollegiate Athletics

The University of Toledo is accepting applications for the position of Director of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Founded in 1872, the University of Toledo has been a member of the state university system of Ohio since 1967. It has an enrollment of 21,000 undergraduate and graduate students and employs approximately 1,200 full-time and part-time faculty members. The University consists of seven degree-granting colleges (Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, Engineering, Law, Pharmacy and University College) and a Community and Technical College. Its 210-acre main campus is located in a pleasant residential area on the western edge of the City of Toledo.

The University of Toledo competes in Division I-A of the NCAA and is a member of the Mid-American Athletic Conference (MAC). Its intercollegiate athletics program includes 10 men's sports (baseball, basketball, cross-country, football, golf, indoor and outdoor track, swimming, tennis, wrestling) and eight women's sports (basketball, cross-country, field hockey, indoor and outdoor track, softball, tennis, volleyball).

The Director of Intercollegiate Athletics reports to the President of the University. Responsibilities include the planning and management of the intercollegiate athletic program; coordination with intramural athletics; fiscal, personnel and facilities management; public relations and fund-raising. Compensation is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Candidates must have a baccalaureate degree. An advanced degree is preferred, but not required. Candidates should have a demonstrated ability to manage and market intercollegiate sports and an understanding of NCAA policies and practices.

The position will become available on July 1, 1987, and will remain open until filled. Applications should be submitted on or before December 15, 1986. Applicants should submit a letter of application, together with a resume and three letters of recommendation, to:

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS VIRGINIA TECH

Virginia's largest educational institution is seeking a Director of Athletics who will be responsible for the overall administration of its intercollegiate athletic program. Virginia Tech is a major independent in football, and a member of the Metro Conference in other sports. At present, the University sponsors eight men's and five women's varsity sports.

Candidates should have demonstrated leadership in business management, especially in organization and administration areas. The individual selected must be oriented to public relations, adept at fund-raising, with excellent communication skills. He or she must have the ability to relate to and be part of the academic community. Prior experience at a major university with both men's and women's sports, and preferably at the Division I-A level, is desired. A bachelor's degree is necessary, but a graduate degree in business administration or sports administration is strongly preferred.

Salary will be commensurate with experience and qualifications.

Virginia Tech is the Old Dominion's land-grant university. It has an enrollment of over 22,000 students divided among eight colleges. Its research and extension divisions reach out to every corner of Virginia. The University is located on a mountainous plateau in the southwestern part of the state and is easily accessible by commercial airlines and interstate highways. Virginia Tech has a 100-year tradition of athletic success which blends with its national reputation for excellence in academics.

Interested persons should submit a letter of application, current resume outlining experience, and three references to:

Dr. W. R. Van Dresser
Vice President for Administration
Virginia Polytechnic Institute & State University
Blacksburg, VA 24061

Completed applications must be received by November 14, 1986.

Interpretations

Tryout rule — coaches' participation and officiating (Revises Case No. 219)

Situation: An institution's coach wishes to officiate or participate in competition that involves a prospective student-athlete. (395)

Question: Are such activities permitted under Bylaw 1-6 (tryout rule)?

Answer: Yes, provided the competition is regularly scheduled under the authority of an outside sports organization. If the coach wishes to participate in (as distinguished from officiating) the competition, both the coach and the prospective student-athlete must be eligible to enter such competition, and all other provisions of Bylaw 1-6(c)-(6) must be satisfied. [B 1-6(c)-(6)]

Permissible expenses (Revises Case No. 23)

Situation: A magazine or other media enterprise (e.g., newspaper, radio station, television network) wishes to provide transportation expenses to a student-athlete to travel to a particular location (outside a 30-mile radius of the community in which the student-athlete's institution is located) for purposes of taking a photograph, filming or writing a story about the student-athlete. (515)

Question: May the student-athlete accept such expenses?

Answer: No. NCAA legislation would prohibit the receipt of such expenses by the student-athlete, unless the photograph or story is in conjunction with the receipt of an established award at that location. [C 3-1(a)-(3), C 3-1(e)-(1) and C 3-1(g)-(2)]

Payment of expenses — athletically related injury (Revises Case No. 74)

Situation: An institution may provide actual medical expenses for treatment of a student-athlete who has received an athletically related injury while participating at the institution, and such treatment may take place during the summer months while the student-athlete is not actually attending classes. (475)

Question: Is it permissible for the institution to provide transportation and other related costs incurred by a student-athlete in traveling to the location of the medical treatment or to provide actual and necessary living expenses for the student-athlete to be treated at a site on or off the campus?

Answer: Yes, provided appropriate medical documentation is available to support the necessity of the treatment at the location in question. [C 3-1(g)-(5) and C 3-1(h)-(4)]

Promotional activities — prizes (Revises Situation No. 641)

Situation: A prospective or enrolled student-athlete wins a prize by participating (e.g., sinking a half-court basketball shot, being involved in a money scramble) in a member institution's half-time promotional activities. (641)

Question: Would receipt of such a prize jeopardize the individual's eligibility for intercollegiate competition?

Answer: Yes. When such a promotional venture is scheduled in conjunction with intercollegiate competition and a prospective or enrolled student-athlete is selected to participate, the receipt of such a prize would result in an improper inducement or extra benefit for that individual, as well as involving the student-athlete in activities designed to promote the commercial sponsor of the event. [C 3-1(e), C 3-1(g)-(5) and B 1-1(b)]

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations for interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancies must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than November 12, 1986.

Men's and Women's Track and Field: Replacement for Margaret Simmons, Murray State University. Simmons has been appointed secretary-rules editor of the committee, creating a vacancy. Appointee must be a Division I administrator from District 3.

Men's Basketball Rules: Replacement for Bob Knight, Indiana University, Bloomington, who declined. Appointee must be a Division I representative.

complimentary admissions, and the university has taken prompt and appropriate action. The Eligibility Committee invited the Committee on Infractions to review these matters to determine if any further action should be taken. The Committee on Infractions has done so, and commends the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, for the manner by which it handled this situation. [NCAA Constitution 3-1(g)-(3)]

2. Violations of NCAA legislation in the sport of women's softball:

a. During the 1983-84 academic year, two student-athletes were provided round-trip transportation between Lincoln, Nebraska, and several college campuses with the women's softball team, even though the young women were fulfilling a one-year residency requirement under NCAA transfer regulations and were not eligible for competition. [NCAA Constitution 3-1(g)-(5) and 3-1(h)-(1)]

b. In January 1984, the then head softball coach entertained a prospective student-athlete and her parents for a meal at no cost to the family at a restaurant near the young woman's home. [NCAA Bylaws 1-9-(j) and 1-9-(l)]

c. On or about August 22, 1984, a then assistant softball coach provided a prospective student-athlete one-way automobile transportation between the high school and a restaurant where the young woman, her parents and the high school softball coach were entertained by the then head softball coach for a meal at no cost to them. [NCAA Bylaws 1-9-(j), 1-9-(l) and 1-9-(m)]

d. During the fall of 1984, representatives of the university's athletics interests provided a prospective student-athlete round-trip transportation between her home and the site of a softball tournament in which the university was participating and provided the prospect meals and lodging in their camper home during this tournament. [NCAA Bylaws 1-1(b)-(1), 1-2(b) and 1-9-(j)]

e. In May 1984, the then head softball coach provided literature concerning the university's softball program to several prospective student-athletes (who had not completed their junior year of high school) during a meeting with them. [NCAA Bylaw 1-2(a)-(3)]

f. During the 1985-86 softball season, the university failed to properly apply NCAA eligibility rules when a student-athlete was permitted to compete in the sport of softball while ineligible, even though in March 1985, the then head softball coach was aware that the prospective student-athlete had been interviewed regarding her recruitment by the NCAA enforcement staff and that the staff had informed the young woman that the provision of a meal to a prospect's family would be contrary to NCAA legislation and may result in the prospect being declared ineligible. [NCAA Constitution 4-2(a)-(1) II and Bylaws 5-1-(i)]

g. With full knowledge at the time that certain practices of the university's intercollegiate softball program were not in compliance with NCAA legislation, the then head softball coach attested on July 31, 1985, on a statement filed with the chief executive officer of the university that he had reported to the chief executive officer his knowledge of or involvement in any violations of NCAA legislation involving the institution. [NCAA Bylaws 5-6(d) and 5-6(d)-(4)]

He said this revision of eligibility guidelines would include a list of the voting requirements next to each paragraph. "We are not taking it upon ourselves to change voting requirements for any legislation," he explained. "We simply are attempting to revise the Manual, and drafts of our suggested changes will include voting requirements as appropriate."

Bailey said the group will meet in November to work on a draft of a sample bylaw on recruiting, and he indicated a similar review procedure would be used.

"The special committee has a flow going on this work," he said. "We seem to be building momentum."

"Despite the fact that it sometimes feels like we are moving at a snail's pace, this attempt to revise the NCAA Manual is very complex and, consequently, extremely slow. We must maintain a tremendous amount of attention to detail, and I am gratified that members of the committee have maintained their enthusiasm for the project."

In addition to reorganizing and revising wording of the Association's rules and regulations, the special committee is developing charts and other illustrations for inclusion in the Manual. "We have developed a flow chart showing the interrelationships between academic standards, recruitment and financial aid on eligibility for financial aid, practice and competition," Bailey said. "As another example, we also plan to develop a table that will outline the recruiting and evaluation periods in the sports of football and basketball."

Also serving with Bailey on the special committee are Clayton W. Champman, Eastern College Athletic Conference; Prentice Gautt, Big Eight Conference; Donna A. Lopiano, University of Texas, Austin, and David Price, Pacific-10 Conference.

and also includes counseling and therapy for those who are suspended after testing positive for drugs. The tests are for several substances, including cocaine, marijuana and anabolic steroids.

James Joy, director of the Colorado ACLU, said random drug testing has been ruled unconstitutional in many cases, and he is hoping legal precedents will help the ACLU win its lawsuit.

The ACLU says it does not object to drug testing for athletes whose performance or attitude indicates they might be using illegal drugs.

"The bottom line is that these athletes are being made to prove that they are innocent rather than the state being made to prove that they are guilty," Joy told the Associated Press. "That violates the basic concept of American law."

Don Cannalte, the university's vice-president of external affairs, defended the drug-testing program.

"We feel we have a really strong, positive program, one of the best in the nation," he said. "This is not unique to CU. Most universities have some kind of drug test. The NCAA came out with a drug test. I don't think we are doing anything different."

SEC officials agree to drug testing

The Southeastern Conference Basketball Officials Association has joined its football counterparts in approving a drug-testing program for its members.

"I am very pleased the basketball officials of the SEC have stepped forward, shoulder to shoulder with our football officials, in support of clean competition," said Harvey Schiller, SEC commissioner, in a recent release from the league office in Birmingham.

The release said the SEC basketball officials volunteered for the drug-testing program in a meeting at the NCAA-SEC basketball officiating clinic in Atlanta October 11-12. The league's football officials agreed last month to undergo similar testing.

Charles Tanner of Jacksonville, Florida, a landscaping company owner who is president of the association, said he was pleased with the move and felt it was "in the best interest of the officials in the SEC and in the best interest of the great game of basketball."

In August, we toughened the program, but we also feel we made it better."

Cannalte went on to say that it probably was inevitable that the program would be challenged in court. "But I don't think our program is unique. We've had our legal people involved in the program," he said.

Suggested changes in basketball draw fire from coaches, ADs

By Steve Richardson
The Kansas City Star

College basketball practice is under way, but if a group of college presidents had its way, the thumping of basketballs on college campuses might be silent because the season would start a month later.

"I'd go nuts," Kansas coach Larry Brown said. "I think it is a joke. That group making the rules has no idea what is going on."

An ad hoc committee of the American Council on Education has proposed that the college basketball season not start until January, the basketball scholarship total be reduced from 15 to 12 and assistant coaches be cut from two to one. The ACE committee also has several "cost-containment" proposals for football and other sports.

The proposals apparently won't be considered at the NCAA Convention in January, but they could be taken up at a special NCAA Convention next summer if the NCAA Presidents Commission calls the meeting.

One of the most far-reaching proposals as far as the fans are concerned would be a change in the college basketball season, which now starts in late November and runs through early April. Although no specific limits have been set, the season apparently would be shortened by about a month, with the NCAA tournament remaining at its present time.

"The reductions would create less opportunity for revenue," Kansas State coach Lon Kruger said. "I don't think that helps the academic atmosphere. If you are scheduling carefully, if you are doing a good job with academic counseling and if you are putting a priority on academics, then having them on campus one or two more days won't make that much difference."

Breaststroke rule is revised by NCAA committees

In response to changes in international swimming rules, the NCAA's breaststroke rule has been revised by the Men's and Women's Swimming Committees, effective this season.

The revision is in Rule 2-2-2b of the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving Rules, which now is worded as follows:

"The body shall be kept perfectly on the breast, and both shoulders shall be in line with the water surface. All movements of the arms shall be simultaneous and in the same horizontal plane without alternating movement. The hands shall be pushed forward together from the breast on or under the surface of the water and shall be brought back on or under the surface of the water. The hands shall not be brought beyond the hipline (waist), except on the first stroke after the start and each turn. During each stroke cycle, a part of the head shall break the general water level (the surface in a calm state), except that after the start and after each turn, the swimmer may take one arm stroke and one leg kick while wholly submerged. When the hands begin their sideward or downward press, a new stroke shall have been started. A wave passing over the head does not constitute a violation."

The rule is less limiting on when the head may break the water surface than a similar rule recently approved by U.S. Swimming. Under the new NCAA rule, on the second stroke (i.e., the first stroke after the pull-through from the start or the turn), the head must break the surface sometime during the stroke cycle, while under U.S. Swimming rules, the head must break the surface during the propulsive phase of the stroke cycle.

The new NCAA rule is included in the Association's 1987 Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving Rules.

"I think the reduction of coaching staff is ridiculous. On reduction of scholarships, I think they have that down to a good working number. If they want to save money, they should reduce the recruiting period. That's where the money is spent."

The NCAA Council has legislation proposed for the Convention in January to do just that, reducing the basketball recruiting period from nine months to about four months. But the other cost-containment proposals still are on the back burner and are being studied by a committee of the Presidents Commission.

"I think there needs to be more study before someone takes a surgeon's knife to programs that have served college athletics well for a number of years," Kansas athletics director Monte Johnson said. "Whether it's this issue or some of the issues in the past, these kinds of proposals come out of a crisis. I don't think it is in the best interests of college athletics to make changes in programs that have been running well in more cases than the ones that have had abuses.

"It's tough enough to schedule games with students on campus," Johnson said of holiday breaks, which often extend three weeks to a month in December and January. "I thought that was one of the reasons for inter-collegiate athletics. I think it would get to be more of a big business than before, because you would be scheduling just for the people who were there."

Johnson said he thought the coaches were in agreement that college basketball seasons may have gotten a little out of hand with games in Hawaii, Alaska and Japan, along with the preseason National Invitation Tournament, that were exempted from the 28-game regular-season limit before this season. With a push from the Presidents Commission, legislation was passed last January allowing only one such trip each season in Division I.

But Johnson thinks the coaches should be heard on scheduling.

Missouri athletics director Jack Lengyel thinks the final decisions on cost containment should be reached by the Presidents Commission, College Football Association, athletics directors and coaches.

"Those people who are on the front line, the cutting edge," Lengyel said. He offers that money needs to be saved, but "maybe it needs to be semiradical here and over there (in another sport) to balance the costs."

College basketball coaches are putting up a stop sign.

"I think it is a terrible idea," Southwest Missouri State coach Charlie Spoonhour said of the proposed basketball cutbacks.

"The only thing it will do is save money. If coaches want a shorter season, then they can tell their ADs to schedule it that way. Most coaches find that the athletes tend to be more organized during the season and do better academically and socially. Their life is more regimented, and there is more supervision from the coaches during the season than during the off-season."
