Four-team College World Series format dropped

The four-team, single-elimination College World Series format approved earlier this year for the 1988 Division I Men's Baseball Championship has been dropped in favor of a format featuring an eight-team, two-division

In the new format, winners of eight regional tournaments will be divided into two divisions of four teams for double-elimination play, beginning in 1988 at Omaha. The two teams that survive the divisional play will meet in a single game for the national championship.

The new format retains the 48team field approved earlier this year for the 1988 Division I championship. Eight six-team regionals will be held to determine the teams that will advance to the College World Series.

Approval for the format came from the the Administrative Committee. which accepted a Division I Championships Committee recommendation supporting the change. The NCAA Division I Baseball Subcommittee recommended the proposal.

The championships committee recommended the two-division format because it basically preserves the double-elimination system used for most of the Division I tournament's history, but it also allows the championship game to be scheduled on a predetermined date. The committee believes a major television network can be attracted to televise the championship game with the time and date known in advance—something that could not be determined in an entirely doubleelimination format.

The change in formats comes after an NCAA survey showed that a majority of baseball coaches, athletics directors and conference commissioners strongly prefer a two-division College World Series over other format options.

Fifty-five percent of those responding to the survey favored the twodivision format; 26 percent chose a six-team, double-elimination format, and 16 percent supported the current eight-team, double-elimination for-format that would have gone into effect in Omaha in 1988 gained little support.

A breakdown of the survey results shows that 54 percent of athletics directors, 53 percent of coaches and 79 percent of the conference commissioners responding favor the twodivision format. Of 567 persons who received the questionnaire, 376 responded, including 71 percent of the athletics directors, 61 percent of the See Four-team, page 4

Commission lists seven proposals for roll-call votes at Convention

There will be seven roll-call votes at the 1987 NCAA Convention in January, and a total of 18 amendments will be grouped in a manner that assures their consideration early in the Convention agenda.

Those were decisions reached by the executive committee of the NCAA Presidents Commission in a November 4 telephone conference. The Commission is authorized under the provisions of Constitution 5-4-(d) to designate proposals for roll-call votes and to determine agenda placement for an NCAA Convention

Only two of the seven roll-call votes will involve the entire Convention during the general business session January 9. The other five will be handled a day earlier during the Division I (two proposals) and Division II (three proposals) business sessions.

Roll-call voting will take place on the following proposals:

General

The NCAA Council proposal to move much of the Association's financial aid legislation from the constitution to the bylaws, where each division could act in future Conventions to determine its own restrictions in that regard. The proposal retains an overall aid ceiling (the cost of education at the given institution) in the constitution.

A proposal by the Big Ten Conference to exempt from the NCAA grant limitation all of the Pell Grant for which a student-athlete qualifies, rather than the current $900 exemp-

Division 1

A proposal submitted by member imstitutions to specify that Bylaw 5-1-(j) nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers would have only three years of eligibility after the initial year of enrollment, regardless of the receipt of financial aid in the first year.

An NCAA Council proposal to clarify the procedure for determining graduation rates in the Division I academic-reporting requirement. Division II

Three alternative proposals to establish academic standards for initial eligibility in Division II, including:

 The Presidents Commission's proposal to have Division II adopt Bylaw 5-1-(j) exactly as it currently applies in Division I.

• A Gulf South Conference proposal to adopt the Bylaw 5-1-(j) requirements but with lower test-score requirements and with the use of eligibility indices for the next two

• A Division II Steering Committee proposal to adopt the core-curriculum See Commission, page 4

Convention notice mailing scheduled for November 21

The Office Notice of the 1987 NCAA annual Convention will be mailed Friday, November 21, to the chief executive officer, faculty athletics representative, director of athletics and primary woman administrator of athletics programs at each NCAA active member institution, as well as to conference and affiliated members.

NCAA Constitution 7-2 and Bylaw 13-2 specify that the notice must be mailed by November 22.

Included in the publication will be all 152 proposed amendments to NCAA legislation that were submitted in accordance with the November 1 legislation-submission deadline. A story beginning elsewhere on this page reviews the topics covered by those 152 proposals.

The form on which delegates to the Convention are to be appointed will be inserted in the chief executive officer's copy of the Official Notice. Only the CEO is authorized to appoint the institution's delegates.

Convention delegates to consider 152 amendments

The number of amendments to be faced by delegates to the annual NCAA Convention in January officially is 152, with record numbers of them to be handled in the consent packages and the separate division business sessions.

Of the 152, a total of 43 have been placed in the consent packages, by far the most ever in those groupings. Six will be in a constitution consent package, with 37 in the consent package of bylaws and other types of proposals.

The consent packages have been used at NCAA Conventions for the past 10 years, and the largest previous total of amendments placed in them was 31 at the 1982 Convention.

The consent packages include amendments that are considered to be noncontroversial or "housekeeping" in nature, and they are adopted in each case by a single vote unless delegates remove one or more proposals for separate action.

In addition, 45 of this year's 152 proposals will be acted upon by the separate divisions in their own business sessions January 8, one day before the general business sessions opens. That number exceeds the 27 assigned to the division sessions last year, the first time a division could take final voting actions on proposals pertaining only to that division.

That will leave 64 amendments to be acted upon in the general business session, scheduled all day January 9 and until noon January 10. That compares to 70 facing the general session last year, when the session concluded in one full day.

The breakdown of the proposals to be handled in the division sessions: Division I-A, four; Division I-AA, one; Division I, 251/2; Division II, nine, and Division III, 51/2.

In the Official Notice of the Convention, the 152 proposals will be presented in the following groupings, which also will be their order of See Convention delegates, page 4

Playing seasons to be assessed in survey of membership

A comprehensive study of playing seasons and student-athletes' competitive opportunities in all NCAA-sponsored sports begins this week with the mailing of questionnaires to nearly all member institutions

The study, which is being undertaken by the Special NCAA Council Subcommittee to Review Playing Seasons, has far-reaching legislative implications, especially in light of the NCAA Presidents Commission's increasing focus on cost-management issues in athletics, according to Mikki Flowers, chair of the subcommittee.

"Our plans are to evaluate survey results early next spring, with recommendations forthcoming at next year's annual Convention," Flowers said. "We are certainly aware, however, that the Presidents Commission has identified playing-season limitations among options that may be considered at a special Convention next June, and I would think information from this study would be very useful in framing particular proposals," she Flowers, associate athletics director at Old Dominion University, said faculty athletics representatives are being requested to serve as the subcommittee's primary contacts for the collection of information on member institutions' campuses. Data will be collected on a sport-by-sport basis for teams on the varsity level.

Survey documents, accompanied by an introductory memorandum from Flowers, are to be mailed November 11. Most participating institutions are being asked to supply information in two sports.

The study is intended to generate data in each sport concerning the length of season and number of contests, the amount of practice time set aside for preparation and participation, academic standards established for participation, and class time missed as a result of intercollegiate competition.

A more in-depth telephone survey to be conducted among selected "elite" performers and coaches is intended to elicit information concerning competitive opportunities available to student-athletes (both with and without institutional support) and coaching commitments in a number of sports that the subcommittee has determined merit special attention.

"We believe that by conducting the survey in two parts, we can establish the range of season lengths, numbers of contests and time commitments among a broad cross-section of the membership, and at the same time assess other factors, like outside competitive opportunities and time away from campus, that may come more into play among participants at the highest competitive level," Flowers See Playing, page 4

It's the NCAA membership, not staff, that makes the rules

By John O. Bolvin

It's difficult to pick up any major newspaper or weekly magazine without finding some reference to the NCAA: Proposition 48, drug testing, some college or university slapped with a penalty, or a host of other topics.

The surprising thing is that the writers seem to imply that these rules and interpretations are those of the NCAA-hired staff at Mission, Kan-

This perception, though widespread, is far from the truth.

The NCAA is a voluntary organization of more than 900 colleges and universities. The rules and regulations governing the organization are submitted and voted upon by representatives of these institutions

Each January, institutional representatives to the NCAA meet to consider more than 100 amendments to the constitution and bylaws, which govern the actions of all members. Naturally, not every institution is in agreement with every piece of legislation. When the votes are counted, however, and legislation is enacted, all institutions are expected to live by the votes of the majority.

As in any organization that governs itself through a constitution and set of bylaws, it often is necessary to interpret the intent of each rule for specific situations. Such interpretations are the responsibility of the NCAA committees or Council acting for the body between annual meetings.

These committees and the Council are made up of elected representatives from the member institutions, with the institutional representatives being approved by the institution's chief executive officer and, usually, its athletics committee. The major role of the NCAA staff is to staff each of the committees and to serve as a link between the committees and the member institutions.

What all of this means, then, is that when institutions are found in violation of the rules, it is an NCAA committee (infractions committee), not the staff, that decides the punishment; when drug testing is required, it is a committee that decides how and what to test; when a rule is interpreted, it is interpreted by a committee.

We all recognize that such committees rely heavily on the staff and that the staff can influence the actions of committees by the quality of information provided; but when this happens, it is the committee that must be held accountable, not the staff.

When the procedures and processes of the NCAA break down, which they do, the fault lies with the member institutions and their CEOs. There are institutions that permit a coach or athletics director to act unilaterally for the institution on all matters relating to athletes

There are CEOs who don't care about what happens and don't want to know what is going on. And, of course, there are those institutions concerned only with the amount of revenues generated that literally ignore the rules and regulations. This is not the case with all institutions, and especially responsible institutions.

Pittsburgh has been a strong supporter of the NCAA and has attempted, like many other institutions, to live within the intent as well as the exact statement of the rules. We See It's the, page 3

We believe that if other institutions followed a similar process, there would be many fewer problems in athletics and there would be a stronger NCAA.

The NCAA reflects the views and opinions of those who represent each institution. When those views are truly institutional views, there is much greater agreement among similar institutions as to the function of athletics within higher education. This has been demonstrated many times within the NCAA.

In summary, it is not the staff of the NCAA that is the problem, causes the problems or can solve the problems. It is the member institutions—those who represent them at the annual meetings and on the many committees and those responsible for monitoring the processes within the institution who are responsible for what has and has not happened to intercollegiate athletics.

Reaching a compromise on issues

There has been a great deal of dialogue during the past year concerning two issues: freshman eligibility and extending the student-athletes' eligibility to five

As the assistant director of academic advising at the University of Utah, I work primarily with student-athletes. If we are looking strictly at the academic welfare of the student-athlete, I believe we should compromise between these two proposals. All student-athletes should be given five years of eligibility, but freshmen should not be allowed to participate in athletic contests.

Due to athletics-time constraints, the majority of student-athletes who graduate take more than four years to do so. Five years of eligibility would give every athlete the time needed to complete university degree requirements and would increase the number of athletes who graduate.

Freshman nonparticipation would give the new students an opportunity to adjust to college and still allow the athletes four years for athletics participation. In essence, such a compromise would constitute an academic redshirt year for every student-athlete.

ADs favor ban on coaches, athletes who violate major Association rules

Student-athletes or coaches who are involved in major violations of NCAA rules should be barred from further athletics activities at NCAA member institutions, a new organization of Division I-A athletics directors has stated.

Meeting in Chicago, the athletics directors also went on record as favoring 1987 NCAA Convention legislation to limit recruiting contacts, lengths of competitive and practice seasons, and grants-in-aid in all

The organization said committees would continue studying these proposals, in addition to areas concerning progress by student-athletes toward degrees and size of coaching staffs.

The athletics directors, chaired by Homer C. Rice, athletics director at Georgia Institute of Technology, said they would support a proposal at the Convention to move the financial aid package from the NCAA constitution to the bylaws to facilitate divisional management.

In giving a strong endorsement to Proposition 48 [Bylaw 5-1-(j)], which sets academic standards for initial eligibility at Division I institutions, the group also continued to develop a statement of philosophy.

Student-athletes' welfare and their progress toward degrees were listed as top priorities, and the athletics directors said that leadership should be emphasized over business in directing their athletics programs.

"There should be a commitment to a properly managed athletics program whose mission, procedures and policies are integrated into those of the institution," the athletics directors said in a joint statement.

"I was highly impressed with the strong attendance during an extremely busy time, and the participation was complete and unselfish," Rice said. "As with our first meeting, we ended with a sense of strong commitment toward intercollegiate athletics' solid position in higher education.

"It is evident that the degree of trust and development of communication (among athletics directors of Division I-A programs) is expanding,"

The organization's next meeting is scheduled June 7 in San Diego, but Rice said that a special meeting could be called before then if necessary.

CFA television contracts still undetermined

Representatives of the College Football Association have concluded meetings in Dallas with CBS and ESPN without making progress on new television contracts.

But they did agree to stick together, the Associated Press reported.

"This was the first of what looks like a long series of negotiations," University of Texas, Austin, athletics director DeLoss Dodds, the CFA TV committee chair, said.

Dodds has devoted six months to negotiating $130 million worth of contracts with CBS and ESPN, which were nullified recently when the 10member Southeastern Conference abandoned the CFA television plan to pursue an ABC-WTBS package.

The CFA met twice each with CBS and ESPN in nine hours of negotia-

"Both CBS and ESPN indicated that they want to continue working with us," said CFA Executive Director Charles M. Neinas, who also said negotiations did not reach the stage of mentioning money.

Donn Bernstein, director of college sports for ABC, would not comment on reports that the SEC and ABC had reached agreement on a $25 million contract covering 1987 to 1990.

The main priority now, Dodds said, is to unify the remaining 53 schools for TV solidarity.

"We have many fine teams," he said. "College football needs to be on CBS and it needs to be on ESPN. We're going to meet again, but I don't know where or when."

Those attending the meeting included representatives of the Southwest Athletic Conference, the Western Athletic Conference, the Big Eight Conference, Notre Dame, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Wake Forest and Miami (Florida).

NCAA Basketball records book, the premier basketball publication produced by the Association, is among the new books available from the NCAA in November.

The 1987 edition of the book contains individual and team regulareason records for both men and women, coaching records, all-America listings, results of all 1986 games for both men and women, and the complete schedule for both men and women for 1987. NCAA Basketball is priced at $5.

Also available within the next month will be the National Collegiate Championships records book for the 1985-86 season. Priced at $4 for members and $8 for nonmembers, the publication features detailed summaries of the men's and women's championships of the previous school year. In addition, it offers history and records of all championships.

The Council concluded that this legislation would not relate to stationery, note cards or postcards that are utilized by a member institution to correspond in writing with prospective student-athletes or high school or junior college coaches. The Council's decision was based on the understanding that the regulations in question were not intended to apply to writing materials that are utilized for correspondence purposes. It was noted that any "writing materials" that unfold into recruiting posters or pamphlets, or include detachable appliques or decals, would be considered nonpermissible recruiting aids and would be precluded under this

In a related matter, the Administrative Committee has affirmed that the provision of institutional press releases (e.g., published weekly reports about university activities) to prospective student-athletes or high school or junior college coaches would be precluded by Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3), inasmuch as such materials do not represent personal correspondence and are not included on the list of permissible printed recruited items in this regulation.

Bylaw 5-1-(j) — multidivision/classification

The Administrative Committee has reviewed the requirements of Bylaw 5-1-(i) as they would relate to member institutions with multidivision-classification status that sponsor one sport in Division I. The committee noted that it would be necessary for these institutions to utilize the Student-Athlete Information Form in determining eligibility and to comply with all requirements of Bylaw 5-1-(j) in the administration of the Division I sport. Any member institution with multidivision-classification status that has questions regarding the application of this legislation should contact the legislative services department.

Number of contests

The Council has reviewed a revision of Case No. 262 (page 361, 1986-87 NCAA Manual) that relates to the exemption of contests played in Hawaii, Alaska or Puerto Rico under the sponsorship of a member institution located in those areas. It was noted that this case and other similar official interpretations make reference only to the sports of basketball or football and should be revised to apply the exemption to any intercollegiate athletics game scheduled under such circumstances. The matter has been referred to the NCAA Constitution and Bylaws Committee for further study in conjunction with the preparation of the 1987-88 NCAA Manual.

Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)—banked hours

In order to satisfy the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(i)-(6)-(ii)-(1), a studentathlete must satisfactorily complete, prior to each term in which a season of competition begins, an accumulative total of semester or quarter hours of academic credit that is equivalent to the completion of an average of at least 12 semester or quarter hours during each of the previous academic terms in academic years in which the student-athlete has been enrolled in a term or terms. The Council has reviewed a question in reference to a student-athlete who has specified a designated baccalaureate degree program and wishes to utilize the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)-(ii)-(1). The issue is whether all credit hours achieved prior to, including those that were not applicable to, the designated baccalaureate degree program can be used to satisfy the provisions of this regulation. The Council noted that all credit hours (including those "banked" or earned in excess of the average of 12 per term prior to the designation of a specific baccalaureate degree program) may continue to be used to maintain satisfactory progress under Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)-(ii)-(1) after the baccalaureate degree program has been designated.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Eligibility Rulings

University of Hawaii

The eligibility of two women basketball student-athletes who participated in unsanctioned scrimmages in violation of Constitution 3-9-(b) was restored subsequent to one student-athlete sitting out the first contest and the other student-athlete sitting out the first two contests of the 1986-87 season.

Montana State University

The eligibility of three prospective student-athletes who violated Bylaw 1-9 was restored immediately. The committee determined that the institution acted in a responsible manner, and no unfair recruiting advantage resulted in their actions

State University of New York, Albany

The eligibility of a football student-athlete who appeared for no compensation in a commercial ion of Constitution 3-1-fe was restored immediately. The individual previously had been withheld from one contest.

Horns find no drug problems

Only one Longhorn male athlete has tested positive for drug use since the University of Texas, Austin, started random drug testing shortly after the start of school in September, officials

The unidentified athlete has passed subsequent weekly tests and has remained on the squad, men's athletics director DeLoss Dodds said during a report to the men's athletics council.

'That's startling to me. We've really been pleased with it," Dodds said of the one positive test that surfaced in the more than 400 random tests that have been administered on a continuing basis. Under the plan, only the doctor who is counseling him on the dangers of drug use knows the identity of the athlete. Dodds said that he didn't even know the sport in which the athlete participates, the Associated Press reported.

"The whole thing is built around education," he said. "If we find a positive test, the doctor spends time with that student-athlete on education and counseling, and we continue testing. If there are more positive tests, we get professional counseling."

Dodds also said that the Southwest Athletic Conference had tested 30 football players, 10 athletes in other men's sports and 10 in women's sports for steroid use, but that Texas hasn't yet received a report on the results of the 50 random tests.

Special grouping

The 18 items identified as being of particular presidential interest will appear in a special Presidents Commission grouping for action immediately after the consent packages are disposed of early in the first general business session, which will begin at 8 a.m. January 9.

Such agenda placement is intended to facilitate attendance by chief executive officers at the Convention.

The 18 proposals in the special grouping:

- The proposal to relocate the financial aid legislation in the bylaws and the Pell Grant proposal, both specified for roll-call votes as reported earlier in this article.
- A series of four proposals to modify NCAA enforcement procedures, recommended by the Committee on Infractions and sponsored by the NCAA Council.

- The Council's proposal to tighten the satisfactory-progress requirements in Divisions I and II.
- A package of three major recruiting limitations being proposed by the Council, including elimination of "boosters" from the recruiting process and shortening by approximately 50 percent the permissible recruiting periods in football and basketball. The proposal regarding "boosters" is for Division I only and therefore will be voted upon in the Division I business session a day earlier.
- A resolution from six member institutions calling for the Division I membership to support in principle an end to freshman eligibility in Division I basketball and Division I-A football, with the Presidents Commission directed to submit legislation in that regard for the next Convention. This also will be voted upon in the Division I business session.

- Four Council proposals to require reporting and/or advance approval of certain outside-income arrangements enjoyed by coaches.
- Two proposals to modify the financial-audit requirement that was originally promulgated by the Commission at the June 1985 special Convention. One would eliminate the requirement that the auditor be from outside the institution: the other would exempt from the audit requirement any institution with an athletics budget under $300,000.

The Presidents Commission will meet from 8 a.m. to noon January 7, the day before voting begins at the Convention, to review any other legislative position that it may wish to urer Wilford S. Bailey urge all members to review the opening section of the publication, which explains in detail the delegate-appointment procedures. That section also sets forth other pertinent Convention policies, including the voting procedures.

The Association's 81st annual Convention is scheduled January 6-10, 1987, at the Town and Country Hotel in San Diego. Related meetings run from January 3 through January 11. Also included in the Official Notice are the following:

- Rosters of the six Convention committees, the NCAA Council, NCAA Executive Committee and NCAA Presidents Commission.
- A schedule of all meetings to be held in conjunction with the Convention, updated and corrected since it was mailed to the membership in October.

- Listings of the proposals that will be voted upon in the separate division business sessions January 8. This will be the second Convention to include final voting in the division meetings on legislation pertaining only to a specific division.
- The report of the NCAA Nominating Committee, listing the candidates proposed by the committee to serve as NCAA president, secretarytreasurer, Division I vice-president and Division II vice-president for the next two years, as well as the candidates to fill vacancies on the Council occurring in January 1987. The committee's full report will be announced publicly for the first time in the November 24 issue of The NCAA News.

Flowers emphasized that the survey's sole function is to gather reliable information on current practices at member institutions. "We realize that completion of the survey requires a substantial time commitment on virtually every campus," she said, "but without broad-based input, our recommendations might be viewed as speculative. For this reason, we strongly encourage the memberships's full participation and support."

coaches and 70 percent of the commissioners.

Details of how the two-division College World Series will be set up still must be determined. The NCAA Baseball Committee will review the new format to consider whether there is any merit in shortening the tournament in terms of number of days. The committee also will address such questions as how the eight teams will be assigned to the divisions. The committee's recommendations will be submitted to the Division I Championships Committee for consideration in December.

The recent survey of athletics directors, coaches and conference commissioners included questions about the length of the tournament and the propect of staging tournaments at off-campus sites.

Most of those responding said they do not believe that either the current format or the two-division format is "too long." Some 71 percent of the respondents gave that opinion, including 68 percent of the athletics directors, 74 percent of the coaches and 74 percent of the commissioners.

Responses also indicated that 86 percent support using off-campus facilities when it would be "beneficial to the championship." Among respondents, 89 percent of the athletics directors gave their approval, along with 80 percent of the coaches and 64 percent of the commissioners.

Swimming & Diving Preview

World-class veterans, top-flight recruits buoy Stanford men

By Jack L. Copeland The NCAA News Staff

Featuring a roster laden with world-class swimmers and possibly the best group of recruits in the nation, Stanford appears set once again to outdistance its customary foes—Florida, California and Texas—to win its third consecutive team title in the Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships.

"We have a great blend of young talent and experienced, international veterans," said Stanford coach Skip Kenney, whose Cardinal scored a record 404 points at the 1986 championships. "We lose one of the NCAA's best swimmers ever in John Moffet and one of the most consistent in David Lundberg, but our freshman class should make up the difference."

Even without the freshmen, Stanford looks formidable. Heading the list of returnees is eight-time individual champion Pablo Morales and three-time champion Jeff Kostoff, both seniors.

Morales, the world record-holder in the 100-meter butterfly, is back to defend his 1986 titles in the 100- and 200-yard butterfly and 200-yard individual medley. He also holds the American record in the two butterfly events.

Kostoff holds American records in the 1,650-yard freestyle, where he is the defending Division I champion, and the 400-yard individual medley.

Kenney also welcomes back junior Sean Murphy, who will be seeking his third consecutive title in the 200-yard backstroke, and junior Anthony Mosse, a finalist in both butterfly events the past two years.

The loss of Moffet and Lundberg could hurt Stanford in the breast-stroke events, but Kenney believes he may have the best freshman breast-stroker in the nation in Sam Schwartz.

Another key recruit is Byron Burson, who is expected to score in the individual medleys and sprint freestyles.

Several freshmen will join returnees John Hodge and David Louden to give Kenney perhaps his best group of sprint freestylers. That talent also could strengthen Stanford's freestyle relay squads.

"This should be an exciting year for us," Kenney said. "We have no glaring weaknesses, and we have great depth and our superstars. Our freshman class gives us the best balance we've ever had, and that should show up in the freestyle and freestyle relay events."

Of course, none of Stanford's primary rivals is conceding the title to the Cardinal, least of all Florida.

The Gators return 11 swimmers from the team that finished third at the 1986 championships, and they also boast three outstanding freshmen, prompting coach Randy Reese to say this year's Florida team may have "the most quality" of any he has coached in 11 years at the school.

Florida's only 1986 individual titlist, 500-yard freestyler Matt Cetlinski, has departed, but six all-Americas are back. The only senior in the group is Duffy Dillon, who will swim freestyle, butterfly and individual medley events.

Also returning are junior Paul Wallace, runner-up in the 200-yard individual medley; junior Jason Gorrie, runner-up behind Cetlinski in the 500-yard freestyle; junior Jayme Taylor, a finalist in the 200-yard butterfly and 400-yard individual medley; Jerry Frentsos, a finalist in the 400-yard individual medley, and sophomore backstroker David Fairbanks.

Florida's success in recruiting this year rivals Stanford's. Among the freshmen are national junior team member Troy Dalbey and Paul Robinson, both freestylers, and Sandy Goss, a world-ranked breaststroker and Olympic relay medalist from Canada.

California builds its hopes around top sprint freestyler Matt Biondi and one of the nation's best groups of distance freestylers.

Last season, Biondi became the first swimmer since 1930 to sweep the 50-, 100- and 200-yard freestyles. The senior world record-holder will be aiming to duplicate that accomplishment this year.

In the distance freestyles, the Golden Bears have three scoring threats—returnees John Mykkanen and Jeff Prior and freshman Sean Killion, a gold medalist at the Goodwill Games in the Soviet Union. Mykkanen finished third in the 500-yard freestyle last season.

Prior also is a threat in the 400yard individual medley, where he finished fifth last season. He is one of three returning Bears who as freshmen last season helped California finish second at the championships as a team. The others are Tommy Werner, a finalist in the 100- and 200-yard freestyle, and backstroker Paul Kingsman.

Texas will have to rely heavily on a talented group of recruits to mount a challenge for the title.

The best of the Longhorns' newcomers are Doug Gjertson, specializing in the backstroke and individual medleys; freestyler Jeff Olsen, who won four gold medals at the 1985 National Sports Festival, and breaststroker Hans Dersch.

They complement a corps of returnees headed by sophomore Andy Gill, runner-up in the 200-yard breast-stroke at the 1986 championships and a finalist in the 100-yard breaststroke; junior Spencer Martin, a finalist in the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke; sophomore Brian Cisna, a finalist in the 1,650-yard freestyle, and senior Bill Stapleton, who scored in the 200-yard butterfly and the 200- and 400-yard individual medley.

Other teams shooting for a finish in the top five are UCLA, behind defending 100-yard breaststroke champion Giovanni Minervini and 1986 Bruin most valuable swimmer Craig Oppel; Southern California, which finished seventh last year; Southern Methodist, which finished sixth, and Arizona State, which returns veterans who scored 119 of the team's 120 points last year.

Following is a list of returning 1986 championships finalists, by event, place of finish and time:

50-yard freestyle—1. Matt Biondi, California, 19.22.

100-yard freestyle—1. Matt Biondi, California, 42.03; 5. Tommy Werner, California, 43.78; 8. Chris Oppel, UCLA, 43.88.

200-yard freestyle—1. Matt Biondi, California, 1:33.85; 2. Chris Oppel, UCLA, 1:35.05; 4. Tommy Werner, California, 1:35.74; 6. John Hodge, Stanford, 1:37.23; 7. Thomas Fahrner, Southern California, 1:37.28.

500-yard freestyle — 2. Jason Gorrie, Florida, 4:17.48; 3. Jeff Kostoff, Stanford, 4:18.03; 4. John Mykkanen, California, 4:18.41; 6. Alex Mlawsky, Arizona, 4:19.01; 7. Chris Oppel, UCLA, 4:19.11; 8. Jeff Prior, California, 4:19.43.

1,650-yard freestyle—1. Jeff Kostoff, Stanford, 14:37.87; 4. Jason Gorrie, Florida, 14:56.15; 6. John Mykkanen, California, See World, page 9

Texas women should claim fourth straight swimming title

With most of its victorious team from the 1986 Division I Women's Swimming and Diving Championships back, Texas is the favorite to win a fourth straight team championship this year.

But Stanford and Florida eliminated much of the gap last year that previously existed between the Longhorns and the rest of the pack and should press Texas hard for the title.

In the Longhorns' camp, the seniors have taken up the motto, "One more to make it four!" Texas has the ability to make that slogan a self-fulfilling prophesy under the tutelage of coach Richard Quick and the leadership of four Olympic team members.

Heading a roster nearly intact from last season is senior Betsy Mitchell, the world record-holder in the 200-meter backstroke Mitchell also broke

NCAA records for the 100- and 200yard backstroke to win those events last season and was a finalist in the 100-yard freestyle, although she was

Also back to defend an individual title is senior Patty Sabo in the 400-yard individual medley. Sabo also was third in the 1,650-yard freestyle and fourth in the 500-yard freestyle in 1986.

Texas' other top returnees are junior Tiffany Cohen, runner-up in the 1,650-yard freestyle; senior Tori Trees, a finalist in the 100-yard backstroke and the consolation finals winner in the 200-yard backstroke, and senior Kara McGrath, runner-up in the 200-yard butterfly.

A significant newcomer is Carrie Steinseifer, the Olympic co-gold medalist in the 100-meter freestyle.

Like Texas, Stanford returns nearly all of last year's team, which finished third at the 1986 championships. In addition, the Cardinal boast what coach George Haines calls the school's best freshman class since Stanford's 1983 national-championship team.

Jenna Johnson, winner of this year's Broderick Award as the top woman collegiate swimmer, returns for her sophomore year after winning three events and placing second in a fourth at last season's championships. She will defend titles in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle and 100-yard butterfly and also could capture the 200-yard freestyle.

Also returning is junior Susan Rapp, winner of the 200-yard individual medley. In addition, Rapp was runner-up in the 200-yard breast-stroke and placed fourth in the 400-yard individual medley.

Among other finalists back for the Cardinal are backstrokers Michelle Donahue, Jennifer Pokluda and Jennifer Shannon; freestylers Dana Anderson and Stacy Shupe, and individual medley performer Monica Nielebeck.

Stanford also features possibly the top recruit in the nation, Michelle Griglione. Called the swimmer with "the best potential since Tracy Caulkins" by Haines, Griglione had a second-place finish in the 400-meter individual medley event at the World Swimming Championships in Spain. She also won titles in the individual medleys and the 200-yard butterfly at the U.S. Short Course Nationals. Another freshman is Laura McLean, who represented the United States at the Goodwill Games.

Tori Trees, Texas

nampions once, Roadrunners now out to start a streak managed to break Cal State Northridge's domination of the Division II Men's Swimming and Diving Championships, the real work begins.

In fact, the 1987 championships loom as another fiercely fought battle in what has become a war for supremacy between the two rivals.

Cal State Northridge had won five consecutive Division II team titles before Cal State Bakersfield scored a record 549 points last March to win its first championship. Now, Cal State Bakersfield's task is to start a winning streak of its own.

The Roadrunners are heavily armed. Coach Ernie Maglischo welcomes back junior Bartt Frey, who picked up individual titles in the 100-, 200- and 500-yard freestyle events at the 1986 championships. Frey also helped Cal State Bakersfield to record-setting victories in the three relay

Five other major contributors to the Roadrunner victory also are back, including sophomore Jim Aird, who was a 1986 finalist in the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke and the 200yard individual medley; junior Bob Mertz, a finalist in the 200- and 500yard freestyle; senior Jeff Miller, a finalist in the 200-yard freestyle and 100-yard backstroke, and junior Kennon Heard, a finalist in the 50-yard freestyle.

Also returning is senior John Scurlock, who won the consolation finals in both the 100- and 200-yard butter-

There are a few gaps for the Roadrunners to fill, most notably the one left by Thomas Roth, who graduated after winning both 1986 backstroke events. All told, Cal State Bakersfield lost swimmers responsible for onethird of its championships point to-

Maglischo, however, believes a strong recruiting class led by backstroker Thomas Lovblad can help keep the Roadrunners on top.

Cal State Northridge also has three-

Now that Cal State Bakersfield has time winner Jeff Kubiak, who holds Division II records in the 200-yard breaststroke and the 200- and 400yard individual medley. He won all three of those events in 1986 to lead the Matadors' 438-point performance at the championships.

> The Matadors, however, also have sustained several key losses, including diver Blaire Nogosik, who won the one- and three-meter events to give the squad its other 1986 individual

Still, the squad should be able to put up a stiff fight for the team championship. Returnees include junior John Carpadakis, who finished third in the 500-yard freestyle and was runner-up in the 1,650-yard freestyle; junior Craig Hampton, runnerup in the 100-yard breaststroke and a finalist in the 200-vard breaststroke; senior distance freestyler Scott Warren, and sophomore sprinter Ben Davis.

Matador coach Pete Accardy also expects immediate help from newcomers Sean Parker, a sophomore specializing in the backstroke, and Ted Hallahan and John Morrison, both freshmen slated for the sprint and distance freestyles, respectively.

Two other teams may be able to bridge the gap between the frontrunning California schools and the rest of the Division II pack.

One is Oakland, led by junior Mark VanderMey, the defending individual champion in the 100-yard breaststroke. The 12-time all-America was the United States' top breaststroke performer at the recent Goodwill Games in the Soviet Union, His strong supporting cast features senior Bruce Verburg, runner-up in the 200-yard freestyle and a finalist in the 500-yard freestyle; Mike Koleber, a finalist in the 50-yard freestyle, and senior Steve Larson, a finalist in both backstroke

Meanwhile, Jeff Sidor and Dave Hunter lead a strong cast that should put Tampa into the thick of the team title competition. Sidor is the defending champion in the 1,650-yard freestyle, and Hunter won last year's 200yard butterfly event. Also returning are senior freestylers George Brew, who holds the Division II record for the 100-yard freestyle, and Jeff Fagler; senior Mike Halfast, who scored in the 100- and 200-yard freestyle and the 200-yard individual medley, and senior breaststroker Arni Sigurtsson.

Other Division II contenders include Clarion, where 1985 100-yard freestyle champion Jim Hersh returns after sitting out last season; Wright State, which welcomes Joe Boda back from a year's absence and looks to an outstanding freshman class for a boost; Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, where a large group of freshmen and junior-college transfers joins forces with four key returnees, and Shippensburg, behind defending 50-yard freestyle champion Ed Lanoue.

pertormances critical to larion's chances ewcomers

Clarion's hopes of holding off Tampa and Cal State Northridge at the Division II Women's Swimming and Diving Championships depend heavily on whether a talented but untested group of freshmen can replace five graduates.

Those five departed seniors provided much of the depth that allowed Clarion to win its third NCAA title in five years at the 1986 championships. Among those graduating was A'lisa Woicicki, a major contributor to the Golden Eagles' success in relays as well as one of the top butterfly performers in Division II.

Still, Clarion stands an excellent chance to win at least five events, thanks to returning sprint freestyler Tina Bair and diver Dori Mamalo.

Bair is aiming to capture titles during her senior campaign in the 50-, 100- and 200-yard freestyles, especially now that Angel Myers, last year's freshman phenomenon in the Division Il sprints, has moved with her team to Division I competition. Bair was runner-up last season in all three events.

In addition, junior Mamalo returns to defend her titles in one- and threemeter diving.

Also back are sophomores Teri Messenger and Sandra Crousse, Messenger was a finalist in the 100-yard backstroke last year and Crousse was a finalist in the 200-yard freestyle, in addition to swimming on Clarion's winning 400- and 800-yard freestyle relay teams.

Lack of depth, however, threatens to be a major problem for the Golden Eagles unless the freshmen can develop quickly. The best hopes are Cathy Hansen in the individual medleys and breaststrokes; Christine Jensen in the freestyles and 100-yard backstroke; Kristi Rosenbaum in the sprint freestyles and 200-yard breaststroke, and Shari Harshman in the freestyle.

Meanwhile, Tampa continues to gain ground in its steady march to the top. This year, the Spartans feature four swimmers who were finalists last year in at least two events each, including senior Cindy Jones, who set a Division II record in winning the 200yard butterfly.

Jones also finished fifth in the 100yard butterfly, while junior Laura Atterberry was a finalist in the 50-, 100- and 200-yard freestyle, and junior Gail Thompson and sophomore Karen Pitre were finalists in the 100and 200-yard butterfly. Pitre also won the consolation finals in the 50- and 100-vard freestyles.

The Spartans also expect freshman Jenny Cornwell to be competitive in the distance freestyles.

Tampa also could gain ground on Clarion in the relays, where coach Ed Brennan believes he has excellent

Cal State Northridge also should mount a serious challenge for the title. The Matadors return defending individual champions in four events and three of the four members of its two winning medley relay teams.

Heading the roster for Cal State Northridge are sophomores Tina Schnare and Stacy Mettam. Schnare set Division II records in winning the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke events last year and Mettam won in the 100and 200-yard backstroke. Both also swam on the medley relay teams, along with junior butterfly performer Sandy Barnes.

Also returning is senior breaststroker Heather Laurie. In addition, freshmen Nikki Fukushima, Lisa Dial and Sheryl Mannis are expected to contribute, as is junior Donna Buck-

Close behind the three front-runners are Wright State and North Dakota.

Wright State has most of last year's fourth-place team back, including sophomore Karen Kimpton, who was runner-up in the 200-yard backstroke and a finalist in the 400-yard individual medley.

The young team also features sophomore Annika Borg, who finished second in the 200-yard breaststroke and third in the 100-yard breaststroke, and junior Barb Hojnacki, a finalist in the 100- and 200-yard backstroke. In addition, sophomore freestyler Kim Wilkinson returns.

The Raiders' freshman class includes backstroker Denise Clark. sprint freestyler Mistie Mossor and butterfly performer Vicky Mantanguihan.

North Dakota hopes to move back into the top five, especially now that Furman has moved to Division I. Coach Mike Stromberg's squad lost 20-time all-America Mary Beth Dunlevy and 13-time all-America Janine Owens to graduation, but returns seven other championships qualifiers.

Leading North Dakota are sophomore Michelyn Rudser, a finalist in the 200-yard freestyle, and senior backstroker Barb Lee.

Other top Division II teams include Oakland, which returns 13-time all-America Nancy Schermer in freestyle and all-America Lee Ann O'Neill in diving; Northern Michigan, behind junior diving finalist Missy Baron, and Army, led by senior Clare Hramiec, who finished fourth in the 200vard breaststroke and won the consolation final in the 100-yard breast-

Kenyon swimmers should sustain their routine of success

tine, but here it is anyway—look for Kenyon to extend its record string of consecutive team titles in the Division III Men's Swimming and Diving Championships to eight.

The Lords are heavy favorites to win the crown despite losing all-America freestyler Jim Born, who graduated holding Division III records in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle. But two other defending individual champions and three of the four members of the squad's two record-setting freestyle relay teams return for Kenyon, which also has won 33 consecutive North Coast Athletic Conference ti-

The returning individual champs are junior Dennis Mulvihill in the 200-yard freestyle and senior Craig Hummer in the 400-yard individual medley. Mulvihill also anchored the Lords' 800-yard freestyle relay team to victory at the 1986 championships.

Other top returnees are sophomores David Greenlee and Alan Schmidt, who also were members of both winning relay teams. As heirapparent to Born in the sprints, Greenlee was runner-up last year in the 50yard freestyle and finished fifth in the 100-yard freestyle. Schmidt was a finalist in the 200-vard backstroke and won the consolation final in the 100-yard backstroke.

Also expected to contribute heavily to the Kenyon effort are junior Tom Creech in distance freestyle, sophomore Jeff Perkins in the individual medley, and junior Dave Waltuch in the freestyle and butterfly. In addition, coach Jim Steen will be able to strengthen the breaststroke events with freshmen Tom Magowan and Glenn Hanlin,

The team best equipped to challenge the Lords is UC San Diego. which finished third last season behind returning defending double-champion Bill Kazmierowicz. The fifth-year Triton senior won the 1,650-yard freestyle and 200-yard individual medley events and was edged by Mulvihill in the 200-yard freestyle.

Coach Bill Morgan also welcomes back senior Dave Higdon, who finished third in the 1,650-yard freestyle; sophomore Derron Fredrick, seventh in the 100-yard freestyle, and Jim

The story has become almost rou- Cavataio, seventh in the 200-yard breaststroke.

> The Tritons, however, will be hurt by the loss of two-time diver of the year Jeff Stabile, who won the oneand three-meter events last year. The loss makes it difficult for UC San Diego to gain substantial ground on > Another team on the rise is St. Olaf, where sophomore Kevin Casson returns after preventing a Kenyon sweep of the freestyle events last year with his victory in the 500-yard event.

> Casson, who also was runner-up in the 1,650-yard freestyle and a finalist in the 200-yard freestyle, teams with senior Robert Hauck as defending individual titlists for the Oles. Hauck swept the two backstroke events and was runner-up in the 200-yard individual medlev

> Also returning is William Bloomberg, who finished second in the 100yard breaststroke and fourth in the 200-vard breaststroke, along with junior freestyler Brad Liddiard, sophomore butterfly performer Chris Kvaal and senior backstroker Dave Rydberg.

> The Oles also feature freshman Tim Niznik, a Minnesota state champion, in the 200 individual medley. St. Olaf adds a total of nine freshmen to a roster that saw the departure of only > Denison and Claremont-Mudd-Scripps also look capable of remaining among the top five teams.

> Claremont-Mudd-Scripps anticipates a rebuilding year after losing its three top scorers from last year's second-place team, but the Stags return six swimmers who were finalists at last year's championships.

> The returnees are senior butterfly swimmer David Lewis; junior Todd McKenzie, a finalist in the 200- and 500-yard freestyles and the 200-yard backstroke; junior distance freestyler Don Kuhn; junior diver Derek Eberhardt; junior backstroker Bob Moore, and 200-yard butterfly finalist Eric Ryba, a senior. Five others who scored at the 1986 championships also will be on hand, along with a crop of promising newcomers.

Denison finished fourth last year behind Rod Danielson, who has graduated after winning the 100-yard breaststroke and finishing second in the 200-yard breaststroke. But the Big Red still shows strength in the distance freestyles, breaststrokes and butterfly events.

Another team to watch is Millikin, which cracked the top 10 two years ago and moved up to eighth last season. Coach Tony Young believes his team may have the potential to move into the top five this season.

Seven-time all-America Rodney Miller, the defending champion in the 200-yard breaststroke and a finalist in the 200- and 400-yard individual medley, returns for Millikin. Sophomore Grant Schmidt also should provide some scoring, especially in the butterfly, and a group of freshmen and transfer students gives the squad additional depth.

Johns Hopkins may be able to compensate for the loss of four top swimmers, including two finalists, with the addition of freshmen Rob Montgomery and Chris Hussin and the return of a healthy Mark Postler. Depth, however, will be a problem.

hampionships again could come 'two at a time' for Steen

A coach can collect team championships in a hurry by winning them two at a time.

Because Kenyon's Jim Steen has been doing just that for the past three years, he is about to become the most successful coach in NCAA swimming history in terms of career titles.

Steen's men's team at Kenyon is a good bet to win its eighth straight championship, and his women's team is a strong favorite to win its fourth consecutive title. If both teams succeed, Steen will have 12 team titles to his credit, pushing him past Ohio State coach Mike Peppe for career

This year, the women return most of the team that racked up a record 713 points and won an unprecedented 16 of 20 events at the 1986 Division III Women's Swimming and Diving Championships.

Among the eight returning Ladies who contributed individual titles or helped capture relay titles at the championships are four-time winner Amy Heasley, who swept the butterfly and individual medley events; triple winner Erin Finneran, winner of the 200-yard freestyle and the two backstroke events, and double-winner Patty Abt, who snared the 50- and 100-yard freestyle titles.

In all, 11 all-Americas are back for the Ladies, including another defending individual titlist—sophomore Jeannine Gury in the 200-yard breaststroke. Gury stands as the favorite this year in the 100-yard breaststroke as well, after finishing second to nowgraduated teammate Nadine Neil last year in the event.

Other top swimmers for Kenyon are sophomore Christine Jacob, a finalist in the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyle events and the 100- and 200yard backstroke; junior Barb Misener, runner-up to Heasley in the 100- and 200-yard butterfly, and Beth Welty, a finalist in the 100-yard backstroke.

Behind Kenyon, the Division III women's race is wide open.

Hamline may be able to improve on last year's fourth-place team finish with a corps of swimmers who excelled both individually and in the relays. The crew consists of sprint freestyler and 100-yard breaststroker Mary Kavaney, distance freestyler Heidi Keller, and butterfly performer Jana Rotman.

Pomona-Pitzer believes it can stay in the top five despite losing three four-year all-Americas to graduation and another who decided to leave the team. It is tough to judge whether there is any basis for that optimism, since six of the team's remaining iuniors and one senior are studying abroad during the fall semester, but the Sage Hens will bring several quality performers to the 1987 championships.

Foremost among Pomona-Pitzer's prospects are Lyn Cunliffe, runnerup in the 1986 400-yard individual medley; Karah Coe, a finalist in the 100-yard butterfly; Lynn Kline, a finalist in the 200-yard individual medley, 100-yard butterfly and 100yard breaststroke, and Kristine McQueen, winner of the consolation final in the 200-yard freestyle.

UC San Diego loses three all-Americas - Alison Gilmore, Michelle Brafman and Debbie Smith—from last year's runner-up team, but returns defending double champion Tracy Mulvany and 200-yard backstroke finalist Shannon Delaney. Mulvany, a junior, won the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyle events.

Last year's surprise team, Wooster, very well could improve on its fifthplace finish at the championships. Eight all-Americas return to a team that improved its point total from six to 166 in just one year.

Leading the Scotties is sophomore Sarah Frost, a finalist in the 200- and 400-yard individual medley.

Hope's high-scoring twosome of sophomore Shelly Russell and junior Jennifer Straley also are back. Both were finalists in the 200- and 500-yard freestyle, while Russell was third in the 1,650-yard freestyle and Straley was sixth in the 100-vard freestyle.

With two relay teams that return three of four members each, Hope looks to match, if not improve on, its sixth-place finish.

Other top Division II women's teams include Ithaca, with five returning all-Americas including 100yard breaststroke finalist Nancy Stapp; Williams, led by 100- and 200vard backstroke finalist Joan Horgan: Coe, which returns all but one of its national qualifiers from last season; DePauw, behind Midi Smyth and Nancy Gritter, and Smith, featuring DeeDee Burgess and Susan Lenc-

Fencing Preview

New scoring system will affect top men's fencing teams

By Jack L. Copeland The NCAA News Staff

A major change in the scoring procedure for the 1987 NCAA Men's Fencing Championships will significantly affect several top teams' chances for a national title — in some cases for the better and in others for the worse.

Now, only the highest finisher from each team in each of the three events-foil, epee and sabre-will score for his team. Previously, each representative of a team who qualified for an event contributed to the team score, a setup that placed a premium on quality depth.

Notre Dame showed the best depth last year, as four of its fencers scored 112 of the Irish's total of 151 points and helped the team win its first title since 1978. This year, Notre Dame returns two of those four high scorers; but both specialize in the same event, so only one can contribute to team scoring in that event.

Meanwhile, 1986 runner-up Columbia is back with top-10 finishers in all three events. New York University, Penn State and Pennsylvania return defending individual titlists and show potential for scoring high in other events.

The bottom line is that the team best equipped to adapt to the new scoring system stands the best chance of winning at the championships in

On paper, Columbia looks like it could be that team. The Lions have experienced fencers returning in all three events and could take advantage of the new scoring system to capture the school's first title since 1971.

Junior Bob Cottingham returns after finishing ninth last season and seventh in 1985 in sabre. Cottingham, a member of the U.S. sabre team and a participant in the world championships, compiled a 31-3 record in dual competition last year.

The Lions also bring back last year's ninth-place NCAA finishers in foil and epee. William Mindel will attempt to move up in the foil competition, although the going will be tough because most of last year's top-10 finishers in the event are back. In epee, Columbia's Jon Normile hopes to advance after the graduation of teammate Steve Trevor, who finished second in the event last year.

Newcomer Mark Kent, one of the nation's outstanding high school fencers last year, also could be a challenger in foil, and sophomore Ivan Fernandez-Madrid will be trying to improve on last year's 12th-place finish in the event. Richard Newman gives the Lions another strong hand

Notre Dame certainly will give adaptation a good try in 1987. The Irish have an opportunity to repeat as champions and to do so at home, as they will serve as championships hosts March 16-18.

Leading the Irish will be senior Charles Higgs-Coulthard, who finished third last season in foil and won the event as a freshman in 1984. His 32-5 record last season boosted his career record to 108-13.

Also returning in foil is junior Yehuda Kovacs, who passed Higgs-Coulthard to place second at the championships and compiled a 40-4 mark for the year. Higgs-Coulthard and Kovacs combined in the event to score 58 points for the Irish at the championships.

The problem for Notre Dame in 1987 is that it must replenish the scoring punch it showed last year in epee, while remaining competitive in sabre. The Irish have lost Mike Gostigan and Christian Scherpe, who finished third and fourth last year in epee, respectively. Also gone is Don Johnson, who placed sixth in sabre.

Senior John Haugh may be able to help in epee. He put together a 27-11 record last year for the Irish and finished fourth in Great Lakes Conference competition.

New York University senior Michael Lofton could put his team on the road to the national title while putting his own name in the record book by winning the individual sabre title on the opening day of competition at the championships.

Lofton will shoot for an unprecedented fourth consecutive individual fencing title. He is only the fourth man in history to win three straight titles in NCAA competition. He will be a heavy favorite to do so, after going undefeated in last year's championships.

The Violets also have strength in foil, with junior Terry Boddie and sophomore Jimmy Tan.

Similarly, Penn State could win, if defending foil titlist Adam Feldman can repeat. The Nittany Lions also return top-10 finisher Peter Cox in sabre and should be competitive in Feldman, a senior this year, again must fight off 1986 rivals Kovacs and Higgs-Coulthard from Notre Dame and Kogler from New York University to retain the foil title.

In addition to Feldman and Cox, Penn State returns three fencers who competed in last year's championships—sophomores John Orvos (13th in foil) and Joseph Orvos (23rd in epee) and senior George Poslusny (14th in epee).

At Pennsylvania, sophomore Chris O'Loughlin returns to defend his national title in epee. For the Quakers to improve on a fourth-place team finish last season, however, sophomore Chris Owen needs to improve on his 20thplace showing in sabre. Pennsylvania also looks for a strong showing in foil from senior Tom Cassidy, who participated in the 1985 championships before spending last year in Scotland, or sophomore Mike Schaedle.

Wayne State (Michigan) saw its chances of winning its seventh team title in nine years severely blunted when 1986 sabre runner-up Markus Muller decided to return to his home in Europe. Muller, who was regarded as the chief challenger to Lofton in the event, would have been Wayne State's only returning all-America.

Following are other top teams and individuals to watch this season:

Other top teams: Yale, Harvard, Rutgers, Wisconsin, Illinois, Long Beach State, St. John's (New York), Lafayette, Seton Hall, Navy, Princeton, Ohio State, UC San Diego, Cal State Fullerton, Brandeis, William Paterson, Hunter.

Other top individuals (includes last year's NCAA finish where applicable: Sunil Sabharwal, foil, Ohio State (seventh); Steve Gillette, foil, Illinois (15th); Neil Platt, foil, Princeton (16th); Jerome DeMarque, foil, Yale (17th); Eric Schicker, foil, Illinois (18th); Alex Renk, senior, foil, Wisconsin (21st); James O'Neil, epee, Harvard (sixth); Miles Phillips, epee, Illinois (15th); David Hitchcock, epee, Navy (21st); Tarek Yassir, sabre, Long Beach State (fifth); Arthur Tarnowski, sabre, New York University (seventh).

Pame women warming up tor championships duel lotre

coach, Notre Dame's Yves Auriol coached his team to a perfect dualmatch mark and his top fencer to a national title

He may have been only warming up for this season.

With four starters returning from last year, Auriol's Irish look like the team to beat at the 1987 NCAA Women's Fencing Championships in March at Notre Dame.

The Irish rolled to a 23-0 record during Auriol's inaugural year and placed second to Pennsylvania in team competition at last year's championships. In addition, Notre Dame's Molly Sullivan went 15-0 in individual competition and dethroned Columbia's Caitlin Bilodeaux for the individual title.

Sullivan returns this year as a junior after compiling a 48-3 record last season. Also returning are sophomore Janice Hynes, who recorded a 45-9 record and finished fifth individually last season, and senior Cindy Weeks, who set a Notre Dame record for wins by a fencer in a single season by compiling a 61-11 record.

Traditional Ivy League powers Pennsylvania, Columbia-Barnard and Yale all remain well within striking distance of the Irish.

Pennsylvania beat Notre Dame, 8-6, for the 1986 team title after winning the Ivy League title and compiling a 12-0 season record. This year, Penn bases its hopes for a repeat performance on a mixture of experience and young talent.

Jane Hall is back for Penn after placing third in individual competition as a freshman last year. Also returning is junior Gail Rossman, who finished eighth individually, but a replacement is needed for 1984 individual titlist Mary Jane O'Neill, who graduated after finishing ninth individually in her senior year.

At Columbia-Barnard, Bilodeaux is the only senior on a young but talented squad. Rehind her leader the Lions have hopes of improving on their third-place team finish last year at the championships. Bilodeaux, the reigning U.S. Fencing Association national champion, also will seek to regain the NCAA individual title she surrendered to Sullivan.

Other key fencers for the Lions are sophomores Darlene Pratschler, who placed 16th individually last season, and Wendy Louie. Freshman Amee Mangus, a junior world team member, fills out the squad.

Yale should remain in contention behind seniors Jessica Yu, who finished fifth individually for the Elis last year, and Susan Kemball-Cook, who finished 19th.

Another team that may be set to move to the front of the pack is Temple, which finished fifth as a team at last year's championships. Rachael Hayes returns for her senior year after redshirting last season and should be the Lady Owls' top fencer. In 1985, she finished 15th nationally and compiled a 45-3 record.

Also back for Temple are senior Mindy Wichick, who finished 14th individually at the 1986 championships, and senior Lisa Miller. Lady Owls coach Nikki Franke also welcomes four freshmen to the squad.

Stanford appears to be the best team from the West after compiling a 21-1 record last season and finishing seventh as a team at the championships. Senior Holly Taylor, 60-9 last season and 20th individually at the championships, joins with senior Alyson Yarus to lead the Cardinal.

Wayne State (Michigan) could get back into contention for the title after failing to qualify for NCAA team competition in 1986. Sophomore Dianella Gobbato finished seventh individually at last year's championships and will team with Laura Galassi, who sat out last year after finishing 18th in 1985, to lead the squad. Wayne State also is looking for substantial help from freshmen.

Following are other top teams and

Other top teams: Penn State, Wellesley, Harvard, Ohio State, Wisconsisin, Fairleigh Dickinson-Teaneck, Air Force, Cornell, North Carolina, MIT, Vassar, Hunter.

Florida graduated only three seniors and also signed some highquality recruits, thus ensuring that the Lady Gators also will be in the title hunt.

Defending individual double titlists Tami Bruce and Cindy Ounpuu are back. Bruce won the the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyle events and Ounpuu swept the breaststrokes, setting a NCAA record in the 200-yard event in the process.

Senior Mary Wayte also returns in hopes of regaining the form that carried her to victory in the 100-yard freestyle and the 400-yard individual medley in 1985. She was runner-up to Texas' Sabo in the 400-yard individual medley last season and a disappointing 10th in the 100-yard freestyle, besides finishing third in the 200-yard freestyle and third in the 500-yard freestyle

Florida should remain strong in diving, where junior Debbie Fuller will preside, and should show new strength in the butterfly behind freshman Jill Horstead, one of the world's top-ranked 200-meter butterfly performers. Another promising recruit is distance freestyler Julianne Brossman.

Also contending for a top-five finish at the championships will be California, UCLA, Clemson and Georgia.

California brings back defending 200-yard butterfly champion Mary T. Meagher for her senior season. The squad, however, has lost the services of 200-yard freestyle champion Conny Van Bentum, who returned to her native Holland to attend medical

UCLA has a talented but very young team after losing five swimmers to graduation. Sophomores Kathy Long, Suzette Moran and Jenny Susser are team leaders. Clemson hopes to move up behind juniors Pam Hayden and Molly Kueny in the freestyles, while Georgia senior Kathy Coffin should be a top challenger for individual honors in the spring freestyle.

Single-wing tailback runs, passes his way into records book

NCAA Director of Statistics

Chris Spriggs of Denison University is one of a kind. He is the first player in college football history to rush for more than 4,000 yards and pass for more than 2,000 over a career.

Understandably, 4,000-yard career rushers are rare enough. This is the 50th year of official NCAA statistics, and there have been only 28 rushers above 4,000 yards in Division I and 29 more below Division I. None of them has even come close to 2,000 in passing. Spriggs has 4,080 rushing and 2,672 passing.

Spriggs has done it because he is an excellent runner and passer operating from a one-of-a-kind offense. He is a single-wing tailback. That's right -the single wing, college football's state-of-the-art offense for many years prior to World War II. Denison is the only college team in the country using the single wing.

Opponents find it impossible to mock Denison's offense in practice, because they cannot find a center who can execute the snaps. The center snaps the ball on every play. The quarterback calls the signals but rarely receives the snap - it usually goes to the tailback. For all you younger folks, it would look quite strangewith backs spinning and criss-crossing and the faked handoffs, the ball can be as hard to find as a hockey puck. But some parts of single-wing plays are alive and well today—in other formations.

The Denison coach also is one of a kind. Keith Piper is a Civil War buff who lives in an 1810 house furnished in antiques. Piper, in his 33rd year of coaching the Denison team, loves Denison; the village of Granville, Ohio, where it is situated, and the single wing—so much so that he is writing a book about the formation, researching it all the way back to Glenn "Pop" Warner and Amos Alonzo Stagg, whom Piper considers to be the original influence behind it. Piper has 173 career victories—third in Division III.

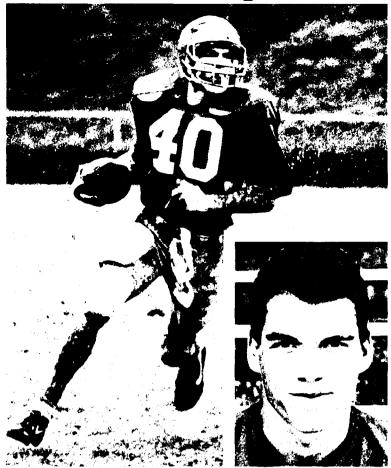

Granville, Ohio, is one of a kind, too, with a quaint post office and library, no motels but two country inns with thick glass windows and fireplaces, no fast-food franchises but a deli that makes big sandwiches good for taking to the games. Denison is a private, liberal-arts school that occupies the hilly half of town. Piper's home is about 200 yards from the football field.

Spriggs came to Denison from the neighboring town of Newark, where he was an option quarterback. While in high school, he had little interest in Denison. "I thought the single wing was something outdated that they used because the coach was writing a book," he says. "I didn't know who was who and what was what."

Denison has lost just five regularseason games in Spriggs' four seasons. A year ago, the team reached the play-offs with a 10-0 record before losing. This fall, with only Spriggs and senior center Darren Slattery returning, Denison lost its opener but now stands 8-1, has clinched the North Coast Athletic Conference championship with one game left and has a strong chance to make the Division III play-offs again.

Spriggs reached the 4,000-yard milestone November 8 with 148 yards on 11 carries, two for touchdowns. He also completed five of seven passes for 68 yards and three TDs as his team beat Buffalo State, 49-6. "Spriggs played only the first half," reported Dennis Collins, North Coast executive director. "He has played games (1923-25). He averaged 103.6 rushing yards per game, plus 100.6 more in all other categories - passing, receiving and runbacks. Tom Harmon of Michigan, the 1940 Heisman Trophy winner, had a 24-game career during which he rushed for 2,110 yards, passed for 1,300 more, had 819 in other categories and scored 237

The only major individual record set in 1937 still on the books is the 246.1 yards per game in all-purpose running, set by a tailback—Colorado's Byron "Whizzer" White, who also passed for 475 that season and

QB comparisons

Now we are in an age of specialization —44-game careers and 10,000 yards passing are the goals. Quarterbacks do all the passing and are judged by their efficiency rating points and their team's won-lost record. Few passers have net plus yardage in rushing. One of the few was Boston College's Doug Flutie, whose Division I-A career-record 11,317 total offense included 738 net rushing. Flutie, the 1984 Heisman winner, holds the passing record at 10,579. Fresno State's Kevin Sweeney now has 10,276 with two games left, but still is under 10,000 in total offense.

Jim McMahon, whose last season at Brigham Young was 1981, holds the I-A career record for passing efficiency at 156.9. Miami's (Florida) Vinny Testaverde, with two games left this season, has an outside shot at McMahon's record with his current 152.9 (including 167.8 this season, giving him a chance at McMahon's all-time-high 176.9 in 1980).

Quarterbacks like Sweeney and Flutie who start four straight years are the exceptions, however. At perennial passing powers like Miami (Florida) and Brigham Young, two years as the starter usually is the case. For instance, at Miami it was Bernie Kosar for two, then Testaverde for two; and with two games left for Testaverde this year, this pair has combined for 11,458 yards passing in 43 games, with 85 TD passes and a 147.5 efficiency rating.

The best four-year figures in history, though, belong to McMahon and Steve Young at BYU-1980 through 1983—with an incredible 15,128 vards passing over 44 games, with 128 touchdown passes and an amazing combined efficiency rating of 161. McMahon passed for 8,126 yards his last two seasons—with 77 TD passes and a 166.2 rating over 1980 and 1981. Young's numbers were 7,002, 51 TD passes and 155.3 over 1982 and Robbie Bosco also had a two-year starting career, 1984 and 1985, at BYU, throwing for 22 more yards than McMahon did his last two years, but in three more games. In fact, entering this season, McMahon, Young and Bosco ranked 1-2-3 in career efficiency.

Current career leaders

Temple's Paul Palmer, who earlier set I-A rushing records for two games and three games, established a fourgame record of 987 with 212 yards November 8. More important, he needs 339 his last two games to become the ninth NCAA collegian in all divisions to reach 5,000 yards in career rushing (he now is at 4,661). Next on the career list are Colorado State's Steve Bartalo at 4,501, Cincinnati's Reggie Taylor 4,138, Miami's (Ohio) George Swarn 4,030, Southern Methodist's Jeff Atkins 3,253, Penn State's D. J. Dozier 3,073 and Michigan State's Lorenzo White 3,033 (White is a junior; all the others are seniors).

Behind Sweeney in passing and total offense is Stanford's John Pave. with 7,260 passing and 7,175 total offense. Next in total offense are Mississippi State's Don Smith at 6,796, San Diego State's Todd Santos 6,384, Oregon's Chris Miller 6,323 and Colorado State's Kelly Stouffer 6,074. Next in passing are Santos 6,896, Stouffer 6,520 and Miller 6,127 (Smith has 1,701 rushing, so is farther down in passing).

Long Beach State's Mark Templeton is third all-time in I-A receiving with 234 catches and has an outside chance at the record of 261 by Howard Twilley, Tulsa, 1963-65.

Washington's Jeff Jaeger needs three field goals his last two games to equal the I-A career mark of 79 set last year by UCLA's John Lee. Both Alabama's Van Tiffin, with 130, and Oklahoma's Tim Lashar, with 129, have broken the all-time mark for consecutive extra points kicked; and the way Oklahoma has been scoring, Lashar may win the race.

In Division I-AA, Eastern Illinois' Sean Payton has joined the select group of career 10,000-yard passers at 10,301 but he is nearly 3,000 yards short of the I-AA record. In total offense, Payton has 9,942 with one game left.

Next in total offense are Nevada-Reno's Eric Beavers at 8,812, Richmond's Bob Bleier 7,560, Montana State's Kelly Bradley 7,541, Georgia Southern's Tracy Ham 6,944 (in three seasons) and Idaho's Scott Linehan 6,919. Next in passing are Beavers 8,410, Bradley 7,957, Bleier 7,592 and Linehan 6,469 (Ham has 2,358 rushing, a I-AA record for quarterbacks, and is well down the passing list).

In rushing, Appalachian State's John Settle leads at 4,278, followed by James Madison's Warren Marshall 3.957. Akron's Mike Clark 3.934. Colgate's Ken Gamble 3,531 and Florida A&M's Tony Barber 3,093.

Coaching-change leaders

Looking at the first-year and newjob coaches in Divisions I-A and I-AA, listed in the September 22 Notes, we find that several are doing very well. Among the first-year coaches, Holy Cross' Mark Duffner is showing the most improvement with 9-0 vs. 4-6-1 last year. Texas Tech under David McWilliams has made an amazing comeback this season. After three losses by an average score of 50-11 to Miami (Florida), Baylor and Texas A&M—Tech has won four straight for a 6-3 record vs. 4-7 last year and is assured of its first winning season in eight years. It also is the first time in 10 years Tech has beaten both Texas and Arkansas the same season, reports SID Joe Hornaday.

In addition, Kent State's Glen Mason is 5-5 vs. 3-8, Southwestern Louisiana's Nelson Stokley 5-4 vs. 4-7, Mississippi State's Rockey Felker 6-3 vs. 5-6 and Pennsylvania, 7-2-1 last year, is 8-0 for the first time in 62 years under first-year coach Ed Zubrow (by first-year, we mean no previous headcoaching experience at the four-year

Among the new-job coaches (meaning previous head-coaching experience at four-year colleges), North Carolina State's Dick Sheridan is 6-2-1 vs. 3-8 last year, and Wyoming's Dennis Erickson is 6-4 vs. 3-8. The 17 colleges with new-job coaches now are .413 vs. .349 last year, while the 23 with first-year coaches are now .471 vs. .479 last year.

Unbeaten for 46 games

Augustana (Illinois), seeking its fourth straight national Division III championship, heads into the playoffs with an unbeaten string of 46 games (one scoreless tie with Elmhurst in the opener this season). That is the eighth longest unbeaten streak in NCAA football history. The all-time leader is Washington, with 63 (four ties included) in 1907-17, then Michigan 56 (one tie) in 1901-05, Morgan State 54 (seven ties) in 1931-38, California 50 (four ties) in 1920-25, Okla-See Single-wing, page 16 only the first half or a little more in most of their wins the last two seasons. He missed one game this season with rib injuries, and Denison barely won, 7-0 (over Wooster)."

History's top tailbacks

Most of the great backs of the pre-1942, single-wing era were tailbacks. Different rules and playing conditions, including the fact that players played both offense and defense, make statistical comparisions difficult, indeed. The passing game had all sorts of restrictions, there were fewer plays in a game, fewer games in a season, and no hash marks—so the ball had to be put in play near the sidelines (thus the play could go only one direction) on many occasions.

For instance, the entire college career of the legendary Harold "Red" Grange of Illinois consisted of 20 scored 122 points in eight games. He led the nation in rushing, scoring, total offense and all-purpose running. White now is a U.S. Supreme Court

Some colleges continued to run the single (and double) wing after World War II. One was Princeton, where the 1951 Heisman winner, Dick Kazmaier, led the nation in total offense (1,827 yards in nine games), averaged 5.8 yards per rush and completed 62.6 percent of his passes in a 9-0 season.

Spriggs' figures are impressive. In 34 career games, he has scored 34 touchdowns and passed for 31 more, with only 13 career interceptions in 412 attempts. He is averaging 120 yards rushing per game, 5.4 yards per rush and nearly 200 yards per game total offense over his career...not bad on any level of football.

Championships Previews

Runners will have to have ability to think on their feet

Competitors who run "smart" and best adapt to unfamiliar terrain and footing stand the best chance of winning at the six NCAA cross country championships this fall.

The three championships sites (men and women run at common sites in each division) all feature almost deceptively gentle-looking hills, but each poses challenges that will require participants to keep thinking ahead from start to finish.

For example, the Division I site in Tucson, Arizona, winds through a number of turns, while the Division II course at Riverside, California, confronts runners with unusually long grades. The Division III course at Fredonia, New York, unlike the other two courses, is all grass, but the changes in elevation are formidable.

Dates for the championships and the host institutions are: Division I. November 24, University of Arizona; Division II, November 22, University of California, Riverside, and Division III, November 22, Fredonia State University College.

Following is a look at the courses and the top men's and women's teams in each division

Division I Men's championships

The Division I Men's and Women's Cross Country Championships will be staged on a new course at Tucson's Granada Hills Country Club, which was christened October 13 in an invitational meet at which Arizona served as host.

"We found the course runs a lot tougher than we originally thought it would," said Arizona men's coach Dave Murray, who will serve as director for the Division I meet. "It definitely will distinguish the middledistance runner who runs cross country from the true cross country runner. It's a true test of cross country ability."

Murray, whose Wildcats appear to be very much in contention for the men's team title, describes the course

Division I cross country

as one of "transitions." While fourfifths of the course is covered with grass, there also is dirt and four 100meter-length sand patches to deal with, as well as numerous turns and generally rolling but challenging hills.

"Contrary to many people's belief, Tucson is not located in flatlands, and we do not have a flat, fast course," Murray said.

After running through rolling terrain the first two miles, participants will tackle the course's most significant hill—a long, uphill grade to a fairway. If that does not pose enough of a problem for the men, they will have to tackle the same hill again on the second half of the 10,000-meter course, at approximately the four-

Then, just as it started, the race ends in rolling terrain.

"This is a thinking-man's course," Murray said. "You have to be thinking all the time; you can't just run flat-

Heat also could be a factor at a locale where the average temperature in November is 72 degrees. The site's 3,000-foot altitude also may pose a problem, although Murray advises that "if you don't let it bother you mentally, it won't bother you physi-

Arkansas, which is seeking to reclaim the title it won in 1984 but surrendered last year to Wisconsin, appears a solid choice to qualify for the championships field and stands as the team to beat at the meet. The Razorbacks are led by Joe Falcon, who placed seventh individually last year at the championships in Milwau-

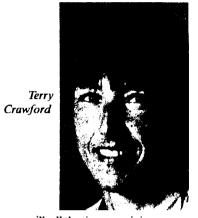

Arizona's Murray, however, believes the Wildcats are very much in the hunt for both individual and team honors. "We have the advantage of running in our hometown, although this isn't truly our home course," he said. "If we're healthy, I think we have an excellent chance.'

Other teams to watch include Wisconsin, Texas, Boston U., and the Big Eight Conference trio of Colorado, Iowa State and Nebraska.

Women's championships Women participating in the Division I championships will traverse basically the first half of the men's

Therefore, the women will encounter half of the obstacles that await the men. Once the women top the long grade that begins just past the twomile mark, they will not face it again, and there are only two patches of sand to deal with instead of four.

Still, the women will need to adapt to changing conditions just as the men will, all the time remaining aware of the potential pitfalls that lie ahead.

If Texas can tame the course, it will be in great shape to dethrone defending two-time champion Wisconsin for the team title. The Longhorns recently traveled to Madison for the Wisconsin Classic and defeated the Badgers, scoring 30 points to runnerup Wisconsin's 85.

But Wisconsin competed that day without its second and third runners, Suzy Favor and Lori Wolter, who were injured. If Favor and Wolter are healthy at Tucson, Wisconsin will be tough to beat, said Texas coach Terry Crawford.

'We're in a position that we can challenge, but we're not in a position to be considered the favorite," Crawford said.

The Texas-Wisconsin rematch also could produce the race's individual champion, with the Longhorns' Liz Natale and Anne Schweitzer (winner at the Wisconsin Classic) and the Badgers' Stephanie Herbst all figuring to be in contention for the title. Crawford, however, plays down that aspect of the contest,

"We have keyed on going into any race and being competitive as a team; individual titles are secondary," she said.

Should either Texas or Wisconsin falter, Brigham Young, Nebraska and Kentucky also are contenders.

Division I regional competition is scheduled for November 15; both men and women will compete at common sites in each region to qualify for the national meet. The host institutions for the regionals are: Regions 1 and 2, Lehigh University; Region 3, Furman University; Region 4, Illinois State University; Region 5, Bradley University; Region 6, University of Texas, Austin; Region 7, University of Utah, and Region 8, California State University, Fresno.

llinois) bloodied but unbowed as play-otts approach Augustana (l

Elmhust and Augustana (Illinois) tied one on September 13, but neither team enjoyed the party too much.

The hangover for Augustana, seeking a fourth consecutive NCAA Division III Football Championship, has been soothed since its 0-0 tie with Elmhurst, with seven consecutive victories and a No. 6 ranking in the latest NCAA poll.

Teams and pairings for the 14th annual championship will be announced by November 16. Four teams each will be selected from four regions, with the first round getting under way November 22, followed by the quarterfinals November 29, the semifinals December 6 and the championship game December 13 in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl at Phenix City,

Augustana, the division's topranked team in total defense (128.8 yards per game through games of November 1), will have plenty of competition for a berth in the North region. No. 1 Dayton, No. 4 Mount Union, No. 13 Hope and No. 17 Denison all harbor hopes for a play-off

Dayton, the 1980 play-off champion, features a high-powered offense that has averaged more than 35 points a game.

Second-ranked Central (Iowa), a play-off participant the past two years, is the front-runner for a berth in the West region. Coach Ron Schipper has another well-balanced team that has averaged more than 40 points a game while holding opponents to fewer than eight points a game. Sophomore Jeff Buseman has blossomed into the Flying Dutchmen's main offensive threat, with 11 touchdowns through seven games. Other teams in contention for a berth include seventhranked Wisconsin-River Falls, ninthranked Buena Vista, 15th-ranked Concordia-Moorhead and 18th-ranked

Ithaca, runner-up to Augustana last year, has a good grip on a berth in the East region. Despite the loss of several key starers from last year's 11-2 team, the third-ranked Bombers had rolled to a 7-0 record at press time. Eighth-ranked Montclair State also is in the running for a berth in the East region. The Indians have one of the division's best passing attacks, led by quarterback Walter Briggs, who had passed for more than 1,800 yards through seven games. Wagner and Union, ranked 11th and 12th respectively, also have play-off aspirations, along with No. 19 Buffalo.

In the South region, Salisbury State is running toward a play-off berth behind Mike Coppa, who had a 134yards-per-game rushing average through six games. The Sea Gulls, quarterfinalists in last year's play-offs and semifinalists in 1983, may have the ingredients to go all the way this year. Through games of October 25, Salisbury State averaged 421.3 yards a game in total offense and 285 yards in rushing offense. Ninth-ranked Susquehanna, No. 14 Centre, No. 16 Emory and Henry, and No. 20 Juniata are the region's other top teams.

ualitying standards established in indoor track and field

Qualifying standards for the 1987 Division I and Division III Men's and Women's Indoor Track Championships have been approved by the NCAA Executive Committee. The Division I common-site event will be held March 13-14 at The Myriad in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. The Division III championships also are scheduled for March 13-14, with the University of Chicago serving as host institution

In Division I, the events will remain the same as in 1986. In Division III,

Girls' high school sports participation up; boys show decline

National Federation News

Due to an increase of 49,237 girls participating in high school athletics, the annual sports participation survey conducted by the National Federation of State High School Associations shows an overall increase for the second consecutive year

The 1985-86 figures indicate that 1,807,121 girls participated in interscholastic athletics (grades 9-12), up from the 1,757,884 figure in 1984-85. Boys' participation figures dropped from 3,354,284 to 3,344,275 (10,009).

The 1985-86 combined total for boys and girls was 5,151,396, an increase of 39,228 over the 1984-85 total of 5,112,168.

Figures were obtained through a survey of the 50 state association offices and the District of Columbia.

Participation in high school athletics programs hit an all-time high of 6,450,482 in 1977-78 and had been on a gradual decline until the 1984-85 increase of 61,223.

Basketball and football remained the most popular boys' sports last

High schools warned about recruiting

Memphis high schools can be banned from statewide sports competition if allegations of athlete recruiting prove true, but chances of such sanctions being imposed are slim, an official indicated.

"What we try to do is let folks work their own problems out," said Bob Baldridge, assistant director of the Tennessee Secondary School Athletic Supt. Willie Herenton of the Memphis schools says he has discovered that coaches and principals under his jurisdiction offer favors and gifts to lure top athletes to their schools.

"Many of our school personnel are oblivious to what their major responsibility is, and that's to educate," Herenton told the Memphis school

Herenton said hundreds of high school athletes in Memphis may have been recruited by the schools they

He declined to name schools involved but said he is putting out the word that the practice must stop, the Associated Press reported.

"I want to make it crystal clear to all our principals and coaches that if we amass conclusive data that (they) have been involved in illegal recruiting, they are going to be fired," he said.

Recruiting of high school students violates policies of the Memphis board of education and of the TSSAA.

Baldridge said school officials found guilty of encouraging students to change schools for the purpose of playing sports can be banned from coaching in Tennessee.

And schools where such recruiting takes place can be banned from statewide sports competition, he said.

But Baldridge said his organization, which is set up to police high school sports, will give the Memphis school system first crack at correcting its own problems.

Bill Todd, director of athletics for the Memphis schools, said recruiting of high school athletes has been going on in the city since the 1970s but has gotten flagrant in recent years.

Todd said coaches at Memphis schools are rarely under pressure to produce winning teams.

"So it has to be an ego thing," he said. "And I feel very strongly for those youngsters who are being used and misused by adults for the adults' own satisfaction."

Todd said enticements used to lure athletes generally are minor, such as free lunches, tickets to sports events or transportation to and from school.

year. In terms of participants, football was first with 953,516 and bsketball was second with 505,130.

Basketball, however, was the leader in terms of number of schools sponsoring the sport with 17,769, followed by football with 14,804.

The top 10 boys' sports in terms of participants remained unchanged from 1984-85. Following football and basketball were outdoor track and field (446,286), baseball (393,905), wrestling (247,653), soccer (196,028), cross country (154,590), tennis (128,820), golf (112,602), and swimming and diving (81,516).

The top 10 sports in terms of number of schools also remained unchanged. Following basketball and football were outdoor track and field (14,466), baseball (14,067), cross country (9,886), golf (9,314), tennis (8,932), wrestling (8,724), soccer (6,097), and swimming and diving (3,878).

Boys'soccer gained the most participants this past season, increasing from 180,281 in 1984-85 to 196,028 last year, a jump of 15,747. Basketball was next with an increase of 11,324 over the previous year. Other sports in the top 10 that added participants were baseball (2,095), wrestling (3,055), tennis (4,353), golf (5,447), and swimming and diving (3,260).

In girls sports, basketball and outdoor track and field retained the top two spots, both in participation and number of schools. A total of 392,881 girls participated in basketball in 1985-86, involving 16,970 schools. Outdoor track had 343,112 participants involving 14,004 schools.

Following basketball and track and field, the top 10 remained unchanged, except girls soccer moved from eighth to seventh with an additional 9,229 participants this year.

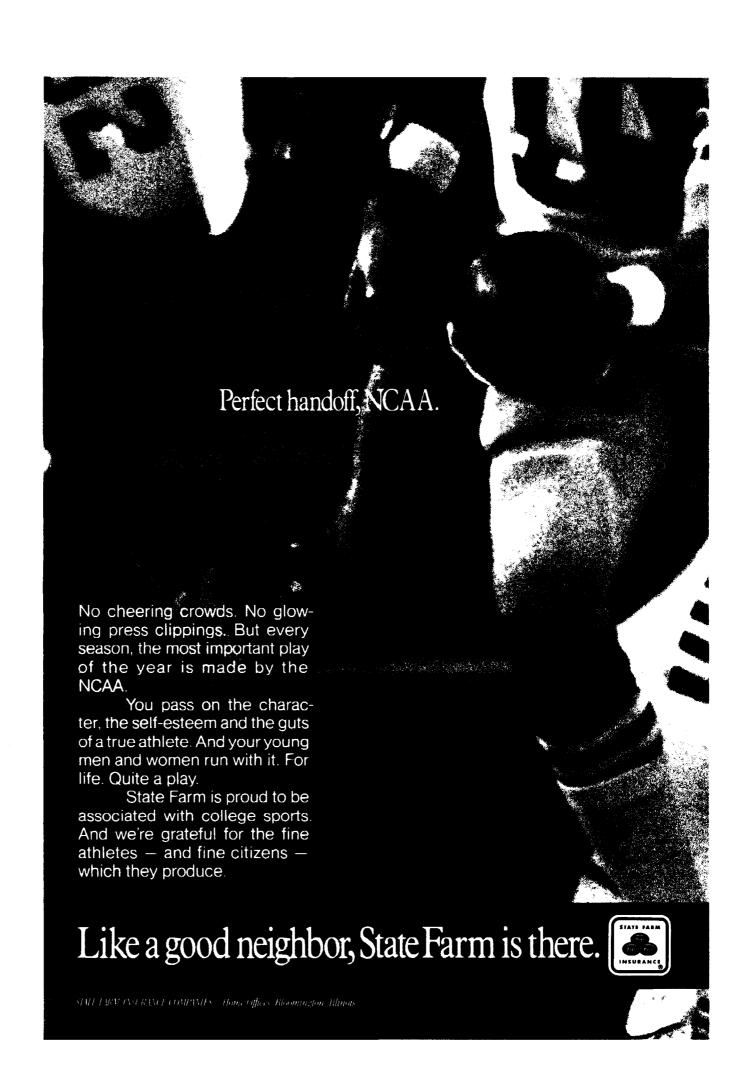

The remainder of the top 10 in participants for 1985-86 were volleyball (343,112), fast-pitch softball (220,459), tennis (119,944), cross country (95,272), soccer (85,173), swimming and diving (83,204), field hockey (48,446), and gymnastics (34,474).

In terms of number of schools, girls golf and soccer moved to seventh and eighth, respectively, and swimming and diving dropped from seventh to

Following basketball and outdoor track and field, the rest of the top 10 is as follows: volleyball (12,351), fastpitch softball (8,945), cross country (8,590), tennis (8,551), golf (3,668), soccer (3,516), swimming and diving (3,509), and gymnastics (2,100).

Volleyball registered the largest increase in participants among girls' sports with 19,774 additional students over the 1984-85 year. Fast-pitch softball was next with 12,282 additional participants, followed by soccer with 9,229. Other girls' sports with increases were basketball (3,651), tennis (2,774), cross country (393), and swimming and diving (5,936). Sports participation survey totals

Coach Bob Reade's teams stand 56-1-1 over the last five seasons, the only defeat coming in the 1982 Division III championship game, 14-0, to West Georgia. Reade's career record is 77-8-1 for .901 (his high school record was 146-21-4 for .865). Quotes of the week

Coach John Cooper after his Arizona State team clinched the school's first Rose Bowl berth by beating California—after Stanford had eliminated UCLA: "I'm going to send (Stanford coach) Jack Elway a bunch of roses. This is the most emotional I've ever been in my life. I'm almost at a loss for words. My mother came here from Tennessee, and it was the first time she's ever seen me coach. I've got to be the luckiest guy in the world right now.'

St. Mary's (California) coach Craig Rundle was talking to an alumni group the day after his team was penalized 23 times for 234 yards. When introduced after dinner, he said: "I got some real bad flashbacks to yesterday's game when everyone finished eating and started throwing Colorado College SID) their napkins on the table." (Rick Sutton, St. Mary's SID)

Georgia Southern's 49-32 victory at Western Kentucky was its seventh road game in nine games this fall. Afterward, coach Erk Russell said: "We've been on that bus so much, they ought to call us America's team." (Mark McClellan, Georgia Southern

Turnarounds

Susquehanna has won 10 in a row and 12 of its last 13 after a disastrous start a year ago. With one game left in the regular season, the team stands 9-0-a dramatic turnaround from last season's 3-7 finish. That surpasses the 1932 team, which went 7-0-1 after a 2-5 record in 1931. (Scott Deitch, Susquehanna SID)

Central Missouri State won its first undisputed Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association football championship since 1926 with a 56-9 victory over Lincoln November 1. The Mules went 5-0 in MIAA play after being picked next-to-last in the preason coaches' poll. The Mules shared MIAA titles in 1956, 1970 and 1983, but the only undisputed title came 60 years ago. (Bill Turnage, Central Missouri State SID)

Colorado College, in coach Jerry Carle's 30th season, defeated Trinity (Texas) November 8, 10-6, for its fifth victory of the season, surpassing the four victories over the past three seasons combined. (Dave Moross,

Banned-drug list mailed to members

A list of more than 3,000 brandname drugs that contain substances banned by the NCAA has been mailed to athletics directors and primary women administrators of athletics programs at member institutions.

The NCAA Banned Drugs Reference List is intended to serve as a guide for team doctors and trainers who prescribe or distribute medications to student-athletes. It was developed by the Special Postseason Drug-Testing Committee as part of its continuing effort to provide information about the NCAA's new drug-testing program to the membership.

The list also describes the eight categories of drugs banned by the Association.

Persons using the list are being advised that it should not be considered complete, because new drugs are introduced daily. Drugs not included on the list should not be considered automatically approved or acceptable under NCAA legislation.

Questions about the list can be addressed to the NCAA assistant director of research and sports sciences at the national office.

Also, additional copies of the list can be obtained for $3 per copy from NCAA Publishing, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66202.

The grand jury, meeting for nearly five hours in a closed session, began drawing up what ultimately will be a wide-ranging report that will include recommendations to the university in the areas of academics and drug prevention, a source close to the investigation said.

The source said the report also will touch on the events leading up to the death of Bias, who starred at Maryland before dying of cocaine intoxication June 19.

NYSP making plans for two regional workshops in early '87

The National Youth Sports Program Committee, meeting October 17-20 in Kansas City, reviewed the work of all 136 projects held in 1986 and began planning for administration of a 1987 program that will have a Federal allocation of $5.86 million.

That figure represents an adjustment from the 1986 funding level of $6.13 million but is in line with post-Gramm-Rudman levels. The government's Health and Human Services Administration, through its Office of Family Support Administration, provides funding for the program, which is administered by the NCAA.

The NYSP Committee also began planning for two regional workshops scheduled early next year in preparation for the 1987 program. The Western region workshop will be in Los Angeles, and the Eastern region workshop will be in Washington, D.C., to take advantage of the proximity to

"We are concentrating on providing opportunities for greater visibility of NYSP to different communities in the country," said NYSP Committee Chair Nadine Felix-Olmsted, University of California, Los Angeles.

In addition to a wide variety of sports activities and instruction in lifetime sports, the participants, primarily urban youths, benefit from the enrichment aspects of NYSP that deal with drug and substance abuse, nutrition and personal health, career opportunities, and higher education

Felix-Olmsted indicated that the 1987 workshops would have a twofold theme. A back-to-basics is the first theme, with a second one concentrating on marketing of NYSP

"We were elated that the Federal funding was continued at the postGramm-Rudman level," Felix-Olmsted stated. "But we recognize the need to educate people about the lasting impression the program has on the lives of the youth served."

During its review of the 1986 projects, the committee awarded letters of commendation to the following institutions for their exemplary efforts: Alcorn State University, American International College, Bronx Community College, University of Detroit, Fort Valley State College, Grambling State University, Lawson State Community College, S.D. Bishop State Junior College and Virginia State University. Felix-Olmsted also indicated that Arizona State University was singled out for its outstanding efforts in its first year of sponsoring a project.

"Arizona State University showed tremendous organization and enthusiasm as a brand-new project and we performance," Felix-Olmsted said.

Institutions interested in sponsoring a 1987 NYSP project should contact

Ruth M. Berkey, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office. Applications for 1987 projects should be received by December 1.

Big Ten to syndicate '87 football

The Big Ten Conference has announced that it will produce its own regionally syndicated football package for the 1987 season. The Big Ten currently is producing its own basketball package and will become the only conference in the country to have total production control for both football and basketball series.

The Big Ten is completing a twoyear contract with the Turner Broadcast System, Inc., (TBS) for a regionally syndicated Saturday afternoon football package and for occasional prime-time Saturday games on the WTBS cable system. In addition, the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences are completing a two-year, joint-venture agreement with CBS-TV for national and split-national games.

Beginning in 1987, the Big Ten will assume full responsibility for production of its own regionally produced package. The conference will establish its own Midwest network of television stations and will secure all corporate sponsorship for the package. A minimum of 11 games will be televised, almost all of which will be afternoon contests. The conference will again produce "The Big Ten Today," a live, 30-minute pregame show that will be broadcast immediately preceding the kickoff of each Saturday's "Game-of-the-Week."

Rasmussen Communications Management, retained by the Big Ten in March to oversee the conference's television matters, will handle all facets of the football series and pregame show. RCM currently has similar responsibilities for the 1986-87, 25-game Big Ten basketball package.

In addition to its own football package in 1987, the Big Ten will enter into a joint venture with the Pac-10 to have a minimum of 14 television exposures in each of the next four years with ABC-TV. Under these two new arrangements, the Big Ten will have fewer games televised next year than this season, yet the conference will be in a position to realize more revenue from its football TV packages than ever before, the conference said in a news release.

arnegie report urges organized protests over athletics abuses

Faculty and students at U.S. colleges and universities have been encouraged to "organize a day of protest" over athletics abuses that undermine academic integrity, and major sports powers are urged to cut their budgets for recruiting and training athletes in a report issued by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

The report recommends the scaling back of athletics programs that are rife with "shocking abuses."

These charges were included in a harsh indictment of the nation's undergraduate colleges, which were termed more successful at handing out degrees than in educating students.

The prestigious Princeton, New Jersey, foundation delivered its blast after spending three years and $1 million on a study of the quality of the 2,000 four-year colleges that enroll more than five million students.

Its research included surveys of thousands of faculty members and students and firsthand inspections of 29 campuses, the Associated Press reported.

The 242-page report written by Carnegie President Ernest L. Boyer echoes some of the same criticisms that U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett has leveled at the nation's campuses.

Boyer said America's higher education system remains "the envy of the world," but "the undergraduate college, the very heart of higher learning, is a troubled institution.

"Driven by careerism and overshadowed by graduate and professional education, many of the nation's colleges and universities are more successful in credentialing than in providing a quality education for their students," concluded the report, titled "College: The Undergraduate Experience in America."

It noted a "disturbing mismatch...between faculty expectations and the academic preparations of entering students.

"Scrambling for students and driven by marketplace demands, many undergraduate colleges have lost their sense of mission," it said.

It challenges colleges to make major changes in the way they run their affairs, including:

• "Demystify the selection process" and stop requiring high school seniors to take multiple-choice entrance

NCAA, SWC to appeal court ruling

The NCAA, joined by the Southwest Athletic Conference, will appeal a ruling by an Austin, Texas, Federal judge that certain information on recruiting violations should be made public, according to George H. Gangwere, counsel for the Association in Kansas City, Missouri.

U.S. District Judge James Nowlin ruled that the NCAA and the SWC must release their files on completed investigations of coaches, alumni and "boosters," and "informers."

The judge said the privacy of students and their families would be protected.

However, Nowlin's 35-page opinion said that he was "sorely tempted to order the release of the names of those students who solicited improper recruitment and especially the names of parents and family members who solicited improper recruitment.

"Those who seek to purposefully profit from a corrupt system are themselves corrupt and their actions are despicable."

Conference Commissioner Fred Jacoby said, "The NCAA will appeal it, and the conference will join the appeal. We receive no (state) tax moneys, no public funds or funds from the legislature," so the state's open-records act should not apply, he said.

- Restrict the growing use of parttime faculty members, who now compose 25 percent of the teachers. It said part-timers "are often insecure and an integrated core of seven broad areas: language, art, cultural heritage, the social web of institutions, nature, work and self-identity.

It also said students' majors should be broadened to require study of such things as the history of and ethical questions about their chosen field. For instance, it said, computer science majors should "be introduced to the history of technology and the social impact of the information revolution."

• Reward good teaching and stop insisting that all college professors devote themselves to research. In a 1984 Carnegie survey, 63 percent of faculty members said their own interests lie toward teaching, not research.

 Establish at every research university a rank of "Distinguished Teaching Professor," just as many now endow posts for top researchers. Colleges should prize good teaching, it said, but "while not all professors are or should be publishing researchers, they, nonetheless, should be first-rate scholars" who stay on top of their fields.

 Ask students to evaluate formally each of their professors. It also called for faculty seminars to improve assessment of students.

The report also said colleges must build bridges to link what students learn in the classroom to life in the dorms.

"Residential living is...one of the least well-guided aspects of the undergraduate experience," it said. College administrators, having abandoned in the 1960s the notion that they were surrogate parents, now have almost abdicated responsibility for students'

"College students today take for granted lifestyles that 20 years ago might have gotten their parents admonished or expelled," it said. "Sexual freedom is just assumed."

Alcohol, not cocaine or marijuana, "is overwhelmingly the drug of choice and the drug of greatest damage." It urged colleges to support drinkingage laws instead of ignoring them. But it said it was not arguing for a "return to the days when young women were locked in (and) lights were out at 11 p.m."
