Presidential interests to get early Convention consideration

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of six articles covering legislation to be considered at the 81st annual NCAA Convention. This article reviews 18 proposals identified by the executive committee of the NCAA Presidents Commission as being of particular interest to institutional chief executive officers. It also covers the items in the consent packages. In the remaining issues of The NCAA News leading to the January Convention, other topical groupings will be presented in the order in which they will be acted upon at the Convention.)

One of the authorities granted to the NCAA Presidents Commission is the right to establish the sequence of legislative proposals at an NCAA Convention. Since its formation in 1984, the Commission has grouped certain proposals in the Convention agendas to assure that they will be considered early in the business session to facilitate attendance by chief executive officers.

The 1987 annual Convention is no exception. As announced in the November 10 issue of The NCAA News, the Commission's executive committee identified 18 proposals to be placed in a special Presidents Commission grouping, and that grouping will be the first major segment during the general business session beginning at 8 a.m. January 9.

First, however, the Convention delegates will dispose of a total of 43 amendments, presumably in a matter of a few minutes. Those proposals appear in two consent packages, one of constitutional proposals and one containing amendments to the bylaws and other legislative issues.

The consent packages are designed to take fast action on legislation considered to be noncontroversial or "housekeeping" in nature. Any delegate can object to inclusion of a given proposal in the consent packages, and it automatically will be removed from the package for separate action.

This year's consent packages are the largest in the 11 years that the device has been used at NCAA Conventions, largely because of more than 20 proposals to implement the committee restructuring plan that was reported in detail in the September 15, 1986, issue of the News.

First up for Convention action after those packages is the 18-proposal "Presidents Commission Grouping," which contains the Convention matters that the officers of the Commission believe to be of greatest interest to their colleagues at all member institutions.

Roll-call votes

The first two of those 18 will be decided by roll-call votes, as directed by the Commission, and both are constitutional issues requiring approval of two-thirds of the delegates present and voting.

The first (Proposal No. 44) is the NCAA Council's fourth consecutive attempt to relocate the bulk of the Association's financial aid legislation in the bylaws, where each NCAA division could decide in future Conventions what limitations it wishes to place on financial assistance to student-athletes in its division.

That approach came closest to passing at the 1984 annual Convention when it was favored by a 384-195 vote, just six votes short of the required two-thirds majority. After that, it still received a majority (312-289) in the 1985 annual Convention; last year, the proposal was remanded to the Council and the Presidents Commission for additional refinement.

This year's version offers refinements in two areas that supporters of the proposal believe address the concerns expressed in recent Conventions. One is that a constitutional ceiling will remain, and no division would be permitted in the future to grant aid beyond that constitutional cap. The ceiling would be the cost of education for each institution that is normally incurred by students enrolled in a comparable program at the institution. The second is a restriction that any aid permitted by a division in the future that would exceed the current NCAA limitation (tuition and fees, room and board, and required course-related books) would have to be based solely on the demonstrated need of the recipient.

"This is an important consideration in the continuing move toward a 'federated' approach in the Association's affairs," NCAA President John R. Davis said after the Council voted to sponsor the proposal earlier this fall. He noted that it is the only remaining major legislative area in which the three divisions are not permitted to determine their own governing rules.

The other roll-call vote in the presidents' grouping is Proposal No. 45, a Big Ten Conference amendments to exempt from the current NCAA aid limitation the entire amount of a Pell Grant for which a student-athlete qualifies.

Currently, the student-athlete can receive up to $900 of a Pell Grant without that amount counting against

Ads seeking candidates for Byers' post

The NCAA has begun its search for an executive director to replace Walter Byers, who announced last summer his plans to retire.

The Association's search committee has placed advertisements in this issue of The NCAA News and the latest issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education. In addition, letters seeking the names of possible candidates are being mailed to chief executive officers at member institutions and all conference offices.

The deadline for application is January 20, 1987.

Wilford S. Bailey, NCAA secretary-treasurer and chair of the search committee, said the selection process will begin with an assessment of candidates by the search committee, and the top four to six of the most highly qualified prospects' names will be submitted to the Association's Executive Committee so that interviews can be scheduled.

"Somewhere in the recruitment process," Bailey said, "the Executive Committee will arrange to include representatives of the NCAA Council and Presidents Commission and the Association department heads in the interviews with candidates."

Bailey said a date for the appointment of a new executive director is flexible—from late spring to the end of the summer in 1987. However, he said the new executive director would receive on-the-job training from Byers for as long as a year, if necessary.

Student-athlete eligibility guidelines in place for drug-testing program

Procedures by which a student-athlete may lose and eventually regain eligibility in the new NCAA drug-testing program are in place as testing begins at fall sports championships.

The following is a description of how a student-athlete's eligibility may be withdrawn and restored in the process, with emphasis on member institutions' involvement and responsibilities:

Declaration of ineligibility

A student-athlete who tests positive for a substance on the NCAA banned-drugs list immediately will become ineligible for further competition in NCAA championships or certified postseason football games for a minimum of 90 days.

Ineligibility also can result if the student-athlete withdraws consent to be tested. The student-athlete originally granted consent for NCAA testing by signing the Student-Athlete Statement, which is required as a condition of participation in intercollegiate competition.

In addition, the student-athlete's failure to appear at the drug-testing site within the prescribed period of time will result in ineligibility. The student-athlete will be directed to report for testing within one hour of being notified that he or she will be tested or within one hour of the completion of that individual's last event of the day. At the time of notification, the student-athlete will be required to sign a Student-Athlete Notification Card prescribing the time within which he or she must appear at the testing site.

A refusal to provide a urine specimen at the collection site also will result in ineligibility, as will a refusal without justification to sign the Student-Athlete Signature Form at the

NCAA seminar to focus on drug education

Drug education and related topics will be discussed at the NCAA Professional Development Seminar January 4-5 in San Diego.

Sessions to be offered include:

No disputed calls at NCAA officiating clinics

Basketball officiating clinics conducted by the NCAA this year apparently met with overwhelming approval, if a series of interviews conducted by The NCAA News is any indication.

"I thought the clinic I attended (for men's basketball) was refreshing," said Lou Bonder, men's basketball supervisor of officials for the Atlantic 10 Conference. "I believe this program is a needed change from conferences trying to give the same kind of a clinic every year. I think the NCAA should be complimented for taking the lead in an effort to improve officiating nationwide."

The men's clinics were conducted by Henry O. Nichols, the Association's coordinator of basketball officiating, and Edward S. Steitz, athletics director at Springfield College and long-time secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee.

The women's clinics were conducted by Marcy Weston, secretary rules editor of the Women's Basketball Rules Committee, and women's official June Corteau.

"I attended the women's clinic that was held here in Birmingham (Alabama)," said John Guthrie, associate commissioner of the Southeastern Conference. "We had a full house... there were conference representatives from as far away as northern Virginia and Texas. Marcy and June did an exceptional job."

"I think the most important aspect of these clinics, though, is the fact that they mark the first time that everyone in the country is hearing the same thing about the rules and calling games."

That sentiment also was voiced by those who attended one of the men's clinics. "I was impressed with the fact that we now will be hearing the same interpretations (of rules) nationwide," said Johnny Overby, supervisor of men's officials for the Big Eight Conference. "The game is called differently in different parts of the country because rules are interpreted differently. I believe these clinics are a great start toward developing officiating consistency in both the men's and women's games. Also, for the first time ever, all Division I supervisors of officials assembled for a meeting in Kansas City. That should prove extremely valuable."

In addition to in-person presentations, both the men's and women's clinics featured video presentations.

"I took a copy of that tape to every conference school and showed it to the coaching staff and the student-athletes," said Overby. "I also will show the tape to writers and broadcasters who cover our media day."

"I've been in the game for many years," said Bonder, "and I've been a professional educator for 44 years, and that is the best film I've ever seen. I've never seen anything like it in terms of being an educational tool."

"The film shown at the women's clinics was quite useful," said Bob Olsen, a Salem, Oregon, resident and Pacific-10 Conference women's basketball official.

"The tapes provided great opportunities for discussion among the people who attend our clinic. I have high praise for them. The whole

Erfurth waiting for rest of world to catch up with Rice

By Ed Fowler
Houston Chronicle

Augie Erfurth is retiring, he's not quitting. In his Hill Country retreat, Erfurth will continue to wait. One of these days, he remains convinced, the rest of the world of college athletics will catch up with Rice.

The status quo has pummeled him and flayed him, but Erfurth clutches it like a child no one else can understand. His has been a lonely vigil, protector of the faith abandoned by so many, but he damns neither the heretics nor the few fellow believers whom the fates have treated more kindly.

He evinces no bitterness. He is an anachronism but also a visionary, a man who looks to the past and sees a better day in the future.

During Erfurth's tenure as athletics director, Rice's football team won 14 games and lost 63. Add in the four years he served as associate AD and the record is 22-98-1. "I spent some miserable afternoons in Austin and at LSU," he says. "Yeah, I did despair on those days when we were getting beat by 60 or 70 points. I felt really bad."

When he leaves, at the end of this year, the executive AD position he took last year following seven years as athletics director, he will walk off the only major-college campus in Texas that hasn't known the taint of athletics scandal in the '80s.

Erfurth betrays no fear of being judged on his record.

Neither does he hold up Rice's high academic standards and moral code as a shield against scrutiny of the won-lost record. "I think there are some successful programs that have stayed within the rules," he says, "and a higher percentage than people think. I don't think you have to break rules to win."

And yet Rice is stranded in a no-man's land — on the one hand, unwilling to make the concessions in academic standards necessary to acquire the same grade of athlete as its Southwest Athletic Conference rivals; on the other, adamant in its refusal to pull out of the SWC and move to the little kids' sandbox. Perhaps a measure of snobbery is involved, but Rice hasn't built a tradition of academic excellence since 1891 to align itself in any endeavor with lesser institutions.

A charter member of the SWC, holder of six conference football titles, the school cannot incorporate membership in the Lone Star Conference into its self-image.

"Rice football," Erfurth says flatly, "must stay in the Southwest Conference to survive."

The school might defy trends toward eroding standards and illegal recruiting, but it can't deny geography. If it were in the East, it might easily go along with the Ivy Leaguers and drop down a notch in football classification. In the Deep South, it might adopt the Duke approach and emphasize basketball, pull in two top-notch players and, presto, a competitive team. It is, however, situated — and firmly established — in Texas, where a top-drawer school plays top-drawer football or doesn't play at all.

"Football is just such a way of life here," says Erfurth, a San Antonio native who played the game as a Rice undergrad in the '40s but concentrated on track, twice winning conference hurdles titles. He coached the Owls' track team to three top-15 finishes in NCAA meets in the '70s.

But Rice last won a football title in 1957, last had a winning season in 1963. Integration hurt the football record, as did a lowering of NCAA academic standards in the '70s to a C average with no core curriculum. As more and more good athletes became available, Rice could recruit fewer and fewer, percentage-wise, because its requirements weren't relaxed. Each time academic excellence and athletics prowess have come into conflict, the point spread on Rice games has be-

Use of knee braces in football should become mandatory

Terry Donahue, head football coach

"I believe they (knee braces) should be mandatory (for college football players). When it's even across the board, what does it matter (if a knee brace slows a player down)?"

"I'd like to see every player on the field, with the exception maybe of a kicker, wear them. I'd like to see them be like mouthpieces, as required equipment. But I don't think it's going to happen."

Duke University

The Atlanta Journal

"The first thing you see in Proposition 48 from a long-term coaches' perspective is renewed interest in guidance and commitment in the high school level to really work with these guys to see that their academic interest level is higher.

"The second thing you hope happens is that because of the renewed commitment on the high school level, more people will graduate (from college). They're better students. They're better motivated. They'll know more the importance of a college education."

"You have a lot of dreams when you walk on at a place like Oklahoma, but dreaming and having it happen are two different things.

"The records I've set are going to be broken; other kickers will come along. I just hope I've given back to the university what it's given to me."

The Kansas City Star

From an editorial

"The Carnegie report seems to remind America's colleges and universities they are not factories making products or hospitals where noncommunicating technocrats run their tiny kingdoms, but food for the mind and soul.

"At best, higher education transforms. 'Why else provide college for those who otherwise could be trained on the job or in a corporate classroom,' Mr. (Ernest) Boyer (Carnegie Foundation president) asks. 'It can only be because of the conviction that something in the undergraduate experience will lead to a more competent, more concerned, more complete human being.'

"It's a better reason than most for renewal (of the higher education mission)."

"I see myself as a role model (she's the unmarried mother of a 17-month-old daughter). I'm certainly not going around saying everybody should have a baby. But I want people to know that even if you have a baby or you have problems with drugs or whatever, you can come back. You can keep your goals and your outlook on life.

"I was disappointed (after being ruled ineligible) because I knew I could help (the women's basketball) team. But I've made a commitment to stay here.

"I had no signs or hints (of cocaine use by quarterback Roderic Gerald, who played at Ohio State from 1975 to 1978); or I might have been too stupid to recognize them then, and you can quote me.

"Frankly, I had no knowledge of any drug use while Gerald was here. I think all of us — coaches, physicians and trainers — were incredibly naive through the 1970s."

John Arthur, fellow in law and philosophy
Harvard Law School

Letter to the New York Times

"...we number among us people whose conceptions of the good life vary widely, whether having to do with wealth, worship, work or pleasure. Yet, we all try to live under one government, by one set of laws. When the state, through its control of the educational processes, undertakes to 'teach morality,' it is in danger of abandoning the neutrality that is essential if these diverse conceptions of the good life are to be respected.

"Perhaps, as with totalitarian regimes, our secretary of education feels he knows what sort of life it is moral for citizens to lead and would employ the vast machinery of the state to inculcate those values. I do not think, for myself, that such a course is either practical or just.

"One could seek to teach only those values that everybody accepts. But how are we to find such values? It seems to me that it is possible to teach some values that are compatible with our pluralistic society and constitutional system. I am thinking of respect for others, commitment to seek truth and tolerance — the last perhaps the most important and most lacking in the current discussion."

Tony Cherico, varsity football player
University of Arkansas, Fayetteville

Texas-Arkansas Football Bulletin

"I really wish him (Texas Longhorns football coach Fred Akers) the best down there. I really do. Going out with Lesli (Akers' daughter), I've really seen what a coach's family goes through and the things they have to put up with... Here's a coach who has won 75 percent of his games. At any other school, he'd be a hero.

"Believe me, I've learned a lot from it. It hasn't turned me away from coaching at all; in fact, it almost makes me want to become a coach even more. I'm real excited about it."

Bo Schembechler, head football coach
University of Michigan

The Associated Press

"The independents... want a national championship play-off because they don't have a conference championship and they don't have a specific bowl bid. They're only playing for a national championship.

"But it would be a great disadvantage to anyone in the play-offs who's trying to get a legitimate degree.

"Have you ever heard a college president pound the table and say, 'We've got to have a national play-off'?"

"Our goal always will be to win the Big Ten championship. I hate the fact that they belittle conference championships. It's hard to win those things."

system that a recent survey by the Carnegie Foundation describes as woefully lacking in the imparting of values in our society.

"The players are often recruited because they can help win games to fill coliseums to make money for the university, and many times at the conclusion of their college careers are left with nothing but memories and a yawning, uncertain future.

"Whether they are prepared for college or attend class or get a degree or learn anything is often a minor matter to the schools. The schools will deny this, but these are obviously the facts as proved by one revelation after another, year after year, all across the country.

"Regardless of new rules instituted by the universities and the NCAA to raise standards for student-athletes, there will continue to be cheating and dodging of the rules.

"That's because the money is too great. Millions of dollars are earned by these revenue-producing sports and athletes.

"The answer? Knock off the exploitation and hypocrisy, and call these 'revenue-producing' athletes by the deserved name: professionals. Hire them, pay them a fair wage; and if they wish to study at the school, let them. That is, for the proper fees and if they can pass exams like anyone else, legitimately."

George Anderson, head trainer
Los Angeles Raiders

The Associated Press

"The jury is still out (on knee braces). I think preliminary statistics indicate that some form of a preventive knee brace will cut down on injuries and the severity of the injuries that occur.

"But many of the knee injuries we're seeing now are not necessarily from a blow from another athlete. Noncontact injuries are occurring. It's (artificial) turf-related. I don't think a brace will do anything for that."

Georgia will change status of some athletics employees

By Joe Earle
The Atlanta Constitution

In an effort to address concerns raised by the private status of the University of Georgia Athletic Association, interim UGA President Henry King Stanford has announced that athletics director and head football coach Vincent J. Dooley and some of his veteran assistants will become regular university employees.

"We should erase the notion that those persons who work in the intercollegiate athletics program are not subject to university authority and policy," Stanford said in a prepared statement distributed to members of the association's board at their regular quarterly meeting.

Dooley welcomed the change, saying it would "ease some of the concerns people have had about the accountability of the association."

The change in employment status is being submitted to the state board of regents and chancellor of the university system for review, university officials said.

The change directly affects only six to eight of the athletics department's 100 employees, including Dooley, golf coach Dick Copas, equipment manager Howard Beavers and tennis coach Dan Magill, Dooley said.

They are longtime athletics department employees, Dooley said, who were under a different retirement system than university employees because the privately funded system was operating when they were hired.

The change, to be accomplished by July 1, 1987, also will place Dooley and his aides under the regular university retirement system, Dooley said. He was "delighted" to be under the state retirement system.

University officials said the change will not alter the salaries paid to association employees or the association's business operations.

The association will continue to provide the money used to pay athletics department employees, university officials said.

"The athletics association will continue to be the vehicle to operate the business affairs of the intercollegiate athletics program for the university," Stanford said in his three-page statement. "The athletics association will continue to ensure that no state funds are diverted from academic programs to support athletics."

Stanford pointed out that the system of raising money privately and turning it over to the university was similar to that used in other departments, such as the university's research foundation, which operates as a separate corporation to finance research.

"This mechanism is recognized nationally and exists at almost every major state university in the country," Stanford said.

Dooley said the change was a reaction to questions raised about the private corporate status of the athletics association in lawsuits and through the media in recent years.

The association, he said, had been through "one crisis after another," including a lawsuit over its records.

U.S. urged to double the number of college-educated by year 2001

A national commission headed by former Education Secretary Terrel H. Bell has called for an effort to nearly double the number of college-educated adults by the turn of the century.

The commission faulted members of the Reagan administration and others for "unthinkingly abetting an act of national suicide" by trying to cut aid for college students.

Bell's 22-member panel prepared the report for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, which represents 372 four-year campuses that enroll 2.5 million students and award a third of all bachelor's degrees in the country.

It urged states to keep college tuition as low as possible, in part to help recruit more minority students and stop the growth of "an American underclass."

"America has far too many people whose abilities are never awakened," said the panel, the National Commission on the Role and Future of State Colleges and Universities, in its 56-page report, "To Secure the Blessings of Liberty."

The commission included Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas and former Gov. William Winter of Mississippi, as well as a half-dozen college presidents, the heads of both national teachers unions and the chancellor of New York City's schools.

The pungent language echoed "A Nation at Risk," a 1983 critique of schools by the National Commission on Excellence in Education, which Bell appointed. That report warned of a "rising tide of mediocrity" in the schools and likened their condition to "a unilateral act of disarmament." It spurred many states to raise graduation standards and increase education budgets.

The new report said, "With a high school dropout rate ranging from 25 to 50 percent and with almost 10 percent of our total population functionally illiterate, who can deny that we have a massive population of undereducated people?"

"Public officials who propose budget reductions in education at a time when the republic is handicapped by the burden of an undereducated populace are unthinkingly abetting an act of national suicide. Their priorities are wrong."

"Tragically for the American people, the Federal student financial aid program today is on the chopping block in Washington."

The report said the real value of Federal aid has fallen 25 percent since President Reagan took office in 1981.

Bell served in Reagan's cabinet for four of those years and went before Congress to defend Reagan's requests to cut college aid by a third or more. But Bell said in a telephone interview with the Associated Press that he always battled in the administration over those cuts.

Bell's slap at politicians over student aid drew a sharp rejoinder from his successor, Secretary of Education William J. Bennett. "This is the kind of rhetoric that reminds me of the old church: 'How dare you even question the efficiency, cost and anything else of higher education?'" Bennett said in an interview. "There are no closed questions in an open society. This is taxpayer money and we have a right to ask about how it's being spent."

widespread concern about college standards, and it urged all public campuses to have their faculties decide what students' minimum level of academic skills should be by the end of the sophomore year. It set a goal of having 35 percent of adults hold college diplomas by the year 2001. Today, 19 percent of adults over 25 are college graduates. Only nine percent of Blacks and eight percent of Hispanic people are in that category.

Bell, now an education professor at the University of Utah, said, "It ought to be easy to get in, but we ought to make it more meaningful and difficult to get a degree."

The Bell report said state colleges should take the lead in producing the million new public school teachers needed in the next decade and in trying to cut the dropout rate in half. The state campuses are "the working people's colleges," Bell said, but "thousands and thousands of high school graduates don't go on to college."

High school graduates enroll in college in record numbers

The 2.7 million U.S. youths who graduated from high school last year have gone on to college in record numbers, a Labor Department report shows.

But unemployment is high among those who dropped out of school last year or did not continue their education, according to the report by department economist Sharon Cohany.

The report says 58 percent of the Class of '85 is in college. Labor statistics for the past 15 years show the percentage of high school graduates entering college reached a low of 49 percent in 1980. In 1984, 55 percent went on to college.

Of the 1.1 million graduates who did not enter college, the report shows that overall, 64 percent have jobs.

For the 612,000 students who dropped out of high school between October 1984 and October 1985, the report says, 44 percent have jobs. Employment is lowest among 132,000 black dropouts; 30 percent have jobs. Of the 458,000 white dropouts, 47 percent were employed. Among the 106,000 Hispanic dropouts, 38 percent had jobs.

The report says that college employment rates for men and women just out of high school have drawn closer together, with the number of women steadily increasing.

Enrollment among Blacks was put at 42 percent for 1985, up by two percentage points from 1984 but down from a high of 48 percent in 1970.

The report also found that dropouts between the ages of 25 and 64 earn an average of $14,776, while college graduates in the same age range average $27,777.

Canisius plans tests for drugs

Canisius College has approved random testing of its more than 350 student-athletes, trainers, managers and cheerleaders, effective immediately.

The testing will be administered by the sports-medicine staff and will cover all 18 intercollegiate athletics teams and the school's 14-member cheerleading squad. Drug screening will consist of standardized urinalysis on a random basis during the academic year or as determined by the team physician. All analyses will be conducted by an outside agency.

"We plan to test, on the average, 15 to 20 student-athletes per month," said athletics trainer Pete Koehnke.

Perfect-record teams in bowl games something of a rarity

By James M. Van Valkenburg

NCAA Director of Statistics

If Miami (Florida) and Penn State finish unbeaten and untied, then collide in a bowl game, it would be the first matchup of perfect-record teams in 13 years and only the 10th game in bowl history involving two unbeaten, untied major teams.

The last such game came in the Sugar Bowl, December 31, 1973, when Notre Dame nudged Alabama, 24-23, to win the mythical national championship. Ara Parseghian was the winning coach, and Paul "Bear" Bryant came in second.

Two years earlier, after the 1971 season, Bryant and Alabama faced Nebraska in a perfect-record game in the Orange Bowl January 1, 1972, and Bob Devaney's team emerged the national champion with a convincing 38-6 victory for a 13-0 season.

Before that, you must go all the way back to the 1955 season to find a perfect-record match, when Oklahoma defeated Maryland, 20-6, in the Orange Bowl January 2, 1956.

San Jose State most improved

San Jose State, coached by veteran Claude Gilbert and quarterbacked to the Pacific Coast Athletic Association championship by Mike Perez, the national Division I-A total offense leader, has clinched at least a tie for the most improved I-A team for 1986.

The Spartans finished the regular season at 9-2 for a 6½-game improvement over last year's 2-8-1 (seven more victories and six fewer defeats is 13, then divide by two). San Jose State won its last two games with Perez injured and out of action, but there is a chance he might be back for the California Bowl December 13 against the Mid-American Conference champion.

If San Jose State wins the California Bowl, it would end with a seven-game improvement, a figure reached by only eight other teams in major-college football history. The record is eight, set by Stanford in 1940 and tied by Purdue in 1943. Clark Shaughnessy came to Stanford after a 1-7-1 1939 season, put in the first modern T-formation and swept to a 10-0 season in 1940, including a 21-13 Rose Bowl victory over Nebraska January 1, 1941. Purdue went from 1-8 in 1942 to 9-0 in 1943 under Elmer Burnham, with the help of some talented wartime naval trainees. The last team to reach seven-game improvement was Florida in 1980.

North Carolina State is up five games in Dick Sheridan's first year on the job (7-2-1 vs. 3-8) and could reach six games by winning its last regular-season game and a bowl. That would tie for first, should San Jose State lose in the California Bowl.

Two more teams are up four games. Stanford, suddenly tough on defense, is 7-2 vs. 4-7 with two games left. Boston College, 7-3 vs. 4-8, has turned around on the quarterbacking of Shawn Halloran. It closes against undefeated Holy Cross November 22.

Tulane and Rutgers are assured of three-game improvement because each is up 3½ games with one left. Toledo, 7-4 vs. 4-7, has finished up three games; 6-5 Wyoming is up three but needs to win its last game to stay there, and four more teams—Indiana, Mississippi, Texas Tech and Southwestern Louisiana—can reach three by winning their final games. Southern California, San Diego State and Missouri can reach three by sweeping their last two, and Hawaii can do it by winning two of its last three.

San Jose State's 1985 season was like a "train wreck," says Gilbert, "but it allowed us to build some character." He turned things around defensively by moving running back K. C. Clark to defense and by hiring Sam Gruisen as defensive coordinator from the professional ranks. Offensively, he added Perez and running back Kenny Jackson from the junior college ranks. They jelled behind a veteran offensive line, and the team started with a 2-2 split against four Pacific-10 Conference teams.

The season-turner then came in the first PCAA game, against defending champion Fresno State, which had gone unbeaten since 1984. San Jose pulled out an incredible victory, 45-41, with two touchdowns in the last 42 seconds. First, Perez hit Guy Liggins with a touchdown pass; then after an onside kick, he threw a 26-yard TD pass to Lafo Malauulu with 18 seconds to go. Perez threw for 433 yards in that game, and Liggins caught 15 passes for 203 yards. When Perez went down with a shoulder injury, another junior college transfer, Tony Locy, stepped in at quarterback to lead victories in the last two games. "This team has been more consistent than any team I've ever coached," says Gilbert.

North Carolina State suffered through three straight 3-8 seasons before Sheridan arrived determined "to build and create." He had done the same thing at Furman, taking the team from the bottom of the Southern Brown, at Vanderbilt. The Rutgers comeback was highlighted by victories over Boston College and Syracuse. Toledo was led by Kelvin Farmer, the nation's No. 2 rusher. The Wyoming turnaround was led by quarterback Scott Runyan, a good passer and 43-plus punter.

Three-way race in I-AA

The race for the 1986 Division I-AA most-improved title is a three-way affair involving Morehead State, Holy Cross and Cornell—in that order through games of November 15. It will be decided November 22, because Morehead State is out of the Ohio Valley Conference title picture and thus the play-offs, and both Cornell (Ivy Group) and Holy Cross (Colonial Athletic Association) are in conferences with a policy against participation in football play-offs.

Morehead State, 7-3 vs. 1-10 last year, is up 6½ games going into its final game with Eastern Kentucky. Holy Cross, 10-0 vs. 4-6-1, is up six games going into its finale with crosstown rival Boston College, a Division investment banker who earned an undergraduate and a law degree at Cornell, contributed $750,000 to endow the Weiss Coach of Football chair. It is like the university's other 130 endowed chairs. The investment return on the football chair has been about $55,000 a year, part of which pays coach Maxie Baughan's salary ("I like the idea," says Baughan. "After all, we can't support ourselves"). Cornell was 4-6 under Bob Blackman in 1982, then 8-20-1 in Baughan's first three seasons; but before this season, Weiss told Doug Looney of Sports Illustrated, "I know that what we're doing hasn't shown up in the won-lost column, but I'm positive it will." Win or lose against Penn, it certainly has.

The Holy Cross story has received much national publicity, mostly because Gordon Lockbaum has been outstanding on both offense and defense. He has become the most prominent two-way player since Leroy Keyes of Purdue in the late 1960s. To Lockbaum, rest is a four-letter word—he averages about 90 plays per game. On November 15, for instance, he ran for 98 yards, caught passes for 80 more, scored two touchdowns and played brilliantly on defense as Holy Cross won, 31-7, over William and Mary, a once-beaten team entering the game. The suicide death of head coach Rick Carter after last season has served to bring the squad closer together under the leadership of coach Mark Duffner. "We dedicated this season to coach Carter," Lockbaum said. "What we're doing now is a reflection of all the positive things he taught us."

East Tennessee State didn't win a game in Mike Ayers' first year as a head coach but has scrambled back to have a shot at a winning (6-5) season with a victory November 22. The team upset Furman and Tennessee-Chattanooga on its way back. Eastern Illinois is led by a veteran, 10,000-yard quarterback, Sean Payton.

North Carolina A&T has been led by five players from Wilson, North Carolina, labeled the "Wilson Wonders" by the coaching staff. They are running backs Karey Gea and Juan Jackson, wide receiver Anthony Best, defensive back Pat Artis, and linebacker Vernon Davis. The team has clinched at least a share of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference championship with Delaware State, a team A&T defeated, 20-17.

Bentrim vs. Payton

North Dakota State senior quarterback Jeff Bentrim scored three touchdowns in his final regular-season game against North Dakota November 15, giving him 64 career rushing touchdowns, breaking the Division II record of 63 by Walter Payton of Jackson State from 1971 to 1974. Please note, the word "rushing" is important because Payton scored three TDs in other categories and still holds the Division II record for total TDs at 66. Payton also kicked extra points and field goals, and his 464 points remain the division career record.

Just as importantly, Bentrim seems certain to do something no player in Division II history has ever done—that is, win three consecutive national scoring championships.

Palmer vs. 2,000 and 5,000

Temple's Paul Palmer needs 224 yards against Rutgers November 22 to become only the third NCAA collegian in all divisions to rush 2,000 yards in a season. The two so far have been Southern California's Marcus Allen, 2,342 in 1981, and Nebraska's Mike Rozier, 2,148 in 1983 (Allen played 11 games, Rozier 12).

With 194 yards, Palmer can become the ninth NCAA collegian in all divisions to reach 5,000 in career rushing. The man Palmer will be following is blocking back Shelley Poole, 5-9 and wide-body 219 pounds, a Norcross, Georgia, native, who says sincerely, "I've grown to enjoy blocking." Adds Poole, "The entire offense, we look at it as though we're all running the ball, not just Paul... He makes our blocking look good."

Attendance still lags

Attendance continues to lag behind last year in both Division I-A and Division I-AA, although it is closer in I-AA. In I-A, the per-game average of 41,687 with 78.9 percent capacity through November 15 compares to 41,950 and 79.3 for the same 105 teams at this stage in 1985. In I-AA, it is 10,821 vs. 10,892 for the same 86 teams at this point a year ago, with 53.5 percent of capacity both years.

High flyers

Maine's football team has a pair of high flyers. Senior fullback Mike Walsh is a second lieutenant in the army reserve. Following his graduation in January, he will embark on a 16-week officers basic course that will include three weeks of jump school with an airborne unit at Fort Bragg. Walsh trained in previous summers with both the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions. Not to be outdone, strong safety Rob Sterling last summer paid for instructions at a jump school near his home in Silver Spring, Maryland, then made two parachute jumps, explaining, "You gotta do something in the summertime." (Len Harlow, Maine SID)

Football is fun

In Millikin's season-ending 37-14 victory over North Park, head coach Carl Poelker allowed his 15 seniors to play their "fantasy positions." For instance, quarterback John Cardamone played middle linebacker, free safety Marc Daniels played some quarterback and defensive end Eric Anderson had an eight-yard rush. "This has been some group," Poelker said. "They wanted to do this so badly, I couldn't resist. These kids aren't here on scholarship—they play football because it's fun. It was kind of neat to be able to let them fulfill some fantasies." (Jim Bowers, Millikin SID)

Football notes

Conference to six championships and three I-AA play-off berths in eight seasons. "We want to do here what Bill Curry has done at Georgia Tech and do it in the right way, as he has," Sheridan said. He had been contacted by a dozen schools but would not leave Furman until his two sons finished high school. "And I wouldn't have come if my staff didn't want to come," he insists. Six starters are playing new positions this fall after he announced in the spring that each player could try out for whatever position he liked.

This fall, Sheridan adopted "The Wolf Will Survive" as the team's theme song. The team started 3-0-1 by outscoring opponents 78-17 in the fourth quarter. Then, after a lopsided loss to Georgia Tech, his team produced a pair of one-point miracles, 35-34 over North Carolina and 23-22 over South Carolina, plus a remarkable 27-3 crushing of Clemson, now the Atlantic Coast Conference champion. An injury to quarterback Eric Kramer and a 16-20 upset loss to Virginia cost Sheridan's team a title share.

Stanford's Jack Elway, whose San Jose State teams used to knock off bigger Pac-10 opponents, was not surprised when snickers greeted his preseason prediction of a winning record and bowl trip for Stanford. "We've worked to build a solid, physical defense and improve team speed," he said. The offense was there, with quarterback John Paye and fullback Brad Muster, 6-3 and 228. The biggest victory was over UCLA, 28-23.

After a disastrous 1985 season, Mack Brown's Tulane team has surged back to four victories, starting with a victory over his brother, Watson

I-A team. Both Morehead and Holy Cross are underdogs, which means Cornell, up 5½ games (8-1 vs. 3-7), has a chance to tie Morehead for first at six games if it wins and both Morehead and Holy Cross lose. Should Holy Cross tie Boston College, it would end in a three-way tie.

Cornell, however, faces 9-0 Pennsylvania in a showdown for the Ivy championship. Both teams are 6-0 in Ivy play. Cornell's only loss was to Lafayette.

East Tennessee State (5-5 vs. 0-10-1) is up five games with one left. Eastern Illinois (10-1 vs. 6-5) ended the regular season up four games (and by sweeping four play-off games could reach six games, with a mathematical chance to share the most-improved crown).

Three more teams are assured of three-game improvement—7-4 Southern Illinois, its season over, and 9-1 North Carolina A&T and 7-3 Howard, both up 3½ with one game left. Three teams are now up three games but must win their last game to stay there. They are 9-0-1 Tennessee State, 5-4 Montana and 5-4-1 Northwestern State (Louisiana). And two can reach three by winning their last game—8-2 Nicholls State and 7-3 Connecticut.

Morehead State coach Bill Baldrige has turned things around in his third season at his alma mater with the help of Adrian Breen, 6-4 senior quarterback who leads the OVC in total offense, and an improved defense. By the way, Morehead was voted last place in the preseason poll of conference coaches.

There is an interesting story behind the Cornell-Penn Ivy title showdown coming up at Ithaca, New York, November 22. Roger Weiss, a New York

Newcomers have had their way in Division I-AA play-offs

There is a new team in town, so Division I-AA play-off veterans had better be on guard.

In the last three NCAA Division I-AA Football Championships, teams making their first play-off appearance have gone on to win the title.

Southern Illinois started the uprising of the upstarts in 1983. Then Montana State, which had a 1-10 record in 1983, capped the best single-season turnaround in Division I-AA history with a 12-2 record en route to the 1984 title. Last year, it was Georgia Southern, which had reestablished its football program in 1981 after a 47-year hiatus, that rallied to win the title.

To date, there are two teams—Appalachian State and North Carolina A&T—that will make their first play-off appearances. The 16-team play-off begins with first-round games November 29, followed by the quarterfinals December 6, the semifinals December 13 and the championship game December 19 at the Tacoma Dome in Tacoma, Washington.

Seven allied conferences have been granted automatic-qualification privileges. The top two independent teams, as evaluated by the Division I-AA Football Committee, will be awarded berths. The remainder of the play-off field will be selected at large.

Appalachian State automatically qualified for the championship by winning the Southern Conference title; North Carolina A&T qualified automatically by clinching the Mid-Eastern Conference title. Eastern Illinois also joined the play-off field with the Gateway Conference title.

The rest of the field and pairings will be determined by November 23.

Appalachian State and North Carolina A&T took different roads to the play-offs. Appalachian State has one of the division's top running attacks, led by John Settle, who had averaged 170 yards through nine games. The Mountaineers, averaging more than 27 points and 248 rushing yards through nine games, were ranked seventh in the latest NCAA poll.

Thirteenth-ranked North Carolina A&T made the play-offs behind the passing combination of quarterback Alan Hooker and Herbert Harbison. Hooker ranked fourth in the latest passing efficiency ratings with 1,408 yards and 15 touchdowns. Harbison, averaging nearly six receptions a game, was on the receiving end of seven of Hooker's touchdown tosses.

Fourth-ranked Eastern Illinois also made the play-offs through the airways. Quarterback Sean Payton, who totaled 3,102 passing yards and 21 touchdown passes through 10 games, had the Panthers atop the division in passing offense in the latest rankings with a 323.3 per-game average. Payton's favorite receiver has been Calvin Pierce, who had 57 receptions, six touchdowns and 1,053 receiving yards as of November 8.

Top-ranked Nevada-Reno had one more league hurdle to clear—a home game against possible play-off participant Northern Arizona—before claiming the Big Sky Conference automatic berth. The Wolf Pack had rolled to a 10-0 record at press time behind an explosive offense triggered by quarterback Eric Beavers, who was second in passing efficiency with 2,594 yards and 23 touchdown passes in the latest rankings. Nevada-Reno, the division leader in total offense with more than 500 yards a game, also has a potent running attack led by Lucious Floyd, who has averaged nearly 100 yards a game.

Northern Arizona, ranked 18th in the latest poll, had a 7-3 record at press time.

Tenth-ranked Akron and No. 14 Eastern Kentucky were set to battle for the Ohio Valley title and the play-off berth that goes with it at press time. Akron entered the game with a 7-2 record, while Eastern Kentucky, the only team in the division with two national titles, was 6-2-1. Each team has one league game left to play after they meet.

Twelfth-ranked Delaware, 19th-ranked Delaware State and 20th-ranked New Hampshire, all of which had 7-2 records at press time, are the front-runners for the Yankee Conference's automatic berth. Second-ranked Arkansas State was in line at press time for the Southland Conference's automatic berth with a 7-1-1 record and two games left to play. The Indians, play-off participants last year, feature a powerful ball-control offense spearheaded by Rickey Jemison that had pounded out 283.9 rushing yards a game through November 8.

Top independents in contention for a play-off berth include fifth-ranked and defending champion Georgia Southern, No. 8 William and Mary, No. 9 Tennessee State, and Southern Illinois.

Teams under consideration for a at-large play-off berths include No. 10 Jackson State, No. 15 Sam Houston State, No. 17 Nicholls State and Northwestern State (Louisiana).

North Dakota State seeks its third Division II football title

Instead of a charm, the third time could be a first for North Dakota State's football team and its quarterback, Jeff Bentrim.

North Dakota State, ranked No. 1 in the latest NCAA poll, could become the first team to win three NCAA Division II Football Championships, and Bentrim could become the first player to win three Division II scoring titles.

North Dakota State will find out if it has a chance to become a three-time national champion when play-off bids are extended November 23.

One team will be awarded a berth from each of four regions. The rest of the eight-team play-off field will be selected at large without geographical consideration. First-round games will be November 29, followed by the semifinals December 6 and the national-championship game December 13 in Florence, Alabama.

North Dakota State, national champion in 1983 and 1985, will be hard to stop in its march for another title. Through eight games, the Bison averaged 42.5 points a game and led the division in scoring defense with a 6.9 per-game average. North Dakota

State's powerful veer offense had averaged more than 320 yards a game in rushing and nearly 465 yards a game in total offense. The Bison, the top contender for the West region berth, also have one of the division's top kickoff-return specialists in Tyrone Braxton, who had averaged nearly 35 yards a return through games of November 1.

Bentrim's attempt to win a third Division II scoring title hinged on his performance in the Bison's final regular-season game November 15 against North Dakota. The senior led the division through games of November 1 with an average of 15 points a game. He already owns North Dakota State's and the North Central Conference's career scoring records. Bentrim, who has guided the Bison to a 42-4-1 record since taking over as quarterback in the fifth game of the 1983 season, entered the final regular-season game needing three rushing touchdowns to break the Division II record of 63 career rushing touchdowns set by Walter Payton of Jackson State from 1971 to 1974.

UC Davis, a likely at-large selection from the West region, knows all too well about North Dakota State's recent dominance in the division. The No. 2-ranked Aggies have been eliminated by the Bison in the last three play-offs. The Aggies could get even behind strong-armed quarterback Chris Petersen, the division's leader in passing efficiency through seven games. Petersen, who had averaged more than 270 yards a game in total offense, had connected on 69 percent of his passes through games of November 1 and had thrown for 1,765 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Other teams in the running for a berth from the West region include No. 7 Abilene Christian, No. 8 South Dakota, No. 11 Texas A&I, No. 15 Cal State Northridge, No. 17 Eastern New Mexico and No. 19 Cal State Hayward.

Troy State, the 1984 national champion, is the front-runner for the South region berth. The third-ranked Trojans edged North Dakota State with Ted Clem's 50-yard field goal as time ran out to claim the title two years ago. Clem, among the division leaders in field goals, still is kicking and Troy State is still running the ball with authority.

Jeff Bentrim

The Trojans, averaging 456 yards a game in total offense, mainly rely on their running attack, which has accounted for more than 320 yards a game. Other teams in the region under consideration for a berth include fifth-ranked Virginia Union, the division's leader in total defense through games of November 1; 12th-ranked Albany State (Georgia); 16th-ranked Valdosta State, and 18th-ranked Fort Valley State.

Fourth-ranked Central State (Ohio) appears to have a grip on the Midwest region's berth. The Marauders, runner-up in the 1983 play-offs, have one of the division's top running games, fueled by backs Terry Morrow and Alvin Street, who averaged 134.5 and 108.6 yards per game rushing, respectively, through eight games. Tenth-ranked Ashland also is under consideration for a berth.

In the East region, sixth-ranked Millersville has a well-balanced team aiming for its first play-off berth. Through eight games, the Marauders' defensive unit was ranked first in rushing defense, second in scoring defense and third in total defense, while their offense was among the division leaders with a 348.3 per-game average in rushing and more than 420 yards a game in total offense. Ninth-ranked Indiana (Pennsylvania), 13th-ranked Towson State and 14th-ranked West Chester also were in contention for berths.

'Best ever' Stanford water polo team goes after '86 crown

Going into the 1986 season, Stanford water polo coach Dante Dettamanti knew his team would be good. What he didn't know was that the 1986 Cardinal might be better than his 1981 Stanford squad, which many considered to be the best collegiate water polo team in history.

The 1981 Cardinal went undefeated (31-0) en route to its fourth national title, outscoring opponents 411-165. This season, Stanford has totally dominated its opposition, compiling a 32-0 record and chalking up 429 total points to opponents' 169. In the first quarter alone, the Cardinal has outscored opponents, 126-27.

In fact, the Cardinal only has trailed twice in any game and came the closest to losing November 7 against Southern California. The Trojans jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first quarter, but Stanford had tied the score, 7-7, going into the fourth period. By the end of regulation, Stanford had pulled out the victory, 11-9.

"I didn't think this team was like the '81 team, but these guys now are doing things that the '81 team did," said Dettamanti. "They have reached that same level. The quality is similar."

Opposing coaches concur.

UC Irvine coach Ted Newland said Stanford was the best team he had ever seen play, after his team lost to the Cardinal October 14.

California coach Pete Cutino, who led the Bears to a record six NCAA championships, said, "I think this Stanford team has a little more depth than the 1981 team. There seems to be about four or five scorers on this team, whereas the 1981 team had about three."

Erich Fischer leads the Stanford scoring attack with 78 goals, and teammate Craig Klass has 77. Both probably will break the school scoring record of 82, set in 1981 by all-American John Bergeson (31 games). David Imbernino has 53 goals to his credit, and David Oeding has 40. Eight players probably will tally at least 25 goals this season.

Although the Cardinal has one more game in the regular season, November 22 against California, there is little doubt Stanford will be the No. 1 seed in the 1986 championship, November 28-30 at the Belmont Plaza Pool in Long Beach, California. The Cardinal will be going for its sixth NCAA title and second consecutive championship.

Of the eight teams selected for the single-elimination championship tournament, at least four teams will come from the West region, one from the Midwest region and two from the East region. Notification of selection will take place before November 24.

Other West region teams under consideration include No. 2 nationally ranked California (26-5), No. 3 Pepperdine (21-7), No. 4 UCLA (20-7), No. 5 Southern California (15-9), No. 6 UC Irvine (14-10), No. 7 UC Santa Barbara (14-12) and No. 8 Long Beach State.

In the East, Navy won its first Eastern championship since it resumed the sport five years ago. The Midshipmen defeated defending cham-

Pan American ponders athletics status

A vote by the athletics subcommittee of the Pan American University Alumni Association to keep the school in NCAA Division I has been voided, an official said November 14.

The vote came after 38 of 42 speakers spoke in favor of keeping the Broncos' athletics teams in Division I. The subcommittee will meet again November 18 for another vote.

Brown, 5-2, while Bucknell edged Iona, 7-6, in the third-place game. The Eastern title and Navy's 25-6 record, which includes victories over all the top Eastern opponents, makes the Midshipmen tops in the East.

Brown, 23-7, also is a front-runner for an invitation, along with Bucknell and Iona (20-9).

In the Midwest, Loyola (Illinois) and Air Force are under consideration. Loyola (11-6) has made an appearance in 10 of the 17 championships, including the last four. Air Force, last invited to the tourney in 1981, is 7-15 overall and has split with Loyola in regular-season competition.

The question will go to the Pan American board of regents for a final decision. No date has been set for that decision.

A faction of students, faculty and staff members has sought to scale down athletics competition, saying other programs have suffered financially at the expense of sports.

1986 Column No. 38

Provision of passports for foreign tours

The NCAA Council has revised a previous interpretation issued by the NCAA Administrative Committee (see 1984 Column No. 31) regarding the application of Constitution 3-1-(h)-(1) to an institution's purchase of passports for its student-athletes in connection with a foreign tour. The Council has determined that student-athletes may retain ownership of passports purchased for them by member institutions for team travel to foreign countries without violating the provisions of Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and 3-1-(h)-(1). The Council noted that the institution's purchase of these passports was incidental to a student-athlete's participation in intercollegiate athletics.

Football contact period

Under the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(4), Divisions I and II member institutions are reminded that off-campus, in-person contacts with prospective student-athletes shall be permissible in football during the period between December 1 (or the date of the completion of the prospective student-athlete's final high school or junior college contest, if it occurs thereafter) and March 1, except (in Division I) for the period surrounding the registration day for the annual convention of the American Football Coaches Association as set forth in Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(6).

Please note that when a prospective student-athlete's team competes in postseason play, such contact is not permissible with the prospective student-athlete until after that postseason competition is completed or December 1, whichever occurs later.

Entertainment of prospective student-athletes

Under the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 1-9-(j)-(2)-(i), an institution may provide a student host with a maximum of $20 (Division I) or $10 (Divisions II and III) for each day of a prospective student-athlete's official campus visit for the purpose of covering the actual and necessary costs to entertain the prospect. The money provided to a student host is for entertainment purposes only and may not be used for the purchase of souvenirs such as T-shirts or other institutional mementos. Also, each day of the visit is defined as a 24-hour period. Therefore, the maximum entertainment amount for the 48-hour visit would be $40 in Division I and $20 in Divisions II and III.

Interpretations requests—policy

This is to confirm the existing policy that only the chief executive officer, faculty athletics representative, director of athletics and the primary woman administrator of athletics programs at each member institution are authorized to request interpretations from the Association's legislative services department. Please note, however, that this policy would permit the director of athletics and the chief executive officer of a member institution to designate specific individuals as substitutes for them to call the national office and request interpretations. Such an appointment or designation must be reported to the national office in writing in order for the designated individual to be properly authorized. The substitution will be permanent (unless the national office subsequently is advised in writing of an authorized change), and each institution (regardless of such substitutions) will remain limited to a total of four individuals authorized to request interpretations from the national office.

Commission members among top 100

Eleven current and former members of the 44-member NCAA Presidents Commission are among the 100 most effective U.S. college leaders, as selected in a survey of their peers.

They were nominated in a survey of 485 chief executives, higher education officials and scholars who study the college presidency. James L. Fisher, president emeritus of the Council for Advancement and Support of Education, and Martha W. Tack, professor of educational administration at Bowling Green State University, are codirectors of the study.

The top presidents primarily rely on respect rather than popularity, the study showed, and effective presidents work longer hours, make decisions easier and confide less frequently in other presidents than do their counterparts at other institutions.

The effective college president is a "strong, risk-taking loner with a dream," Fisher said.

The list of top presidents is organized by institutional categories established by the Carnegie Commission. The current and former members of the Presidents Commission named are as follows:

Four-year colleges (Research II)—The Rev. William J. Byron, Catholic University of America; John W. Ryan, Indiana University (former Commission chair).

Doctoral-Granting I—The Rev. J. Donald Monan, Boston College.

Doctoral-Granting II—Herbert H. Reynolds, Baylor University (former member).

Comprehensive I—James T. Amsler, Salem State College; James W. Cleary, California State University, Northridge; James J. Whalen, Ithaca College.

Liberal arts I—George A. Drake, Grinnell College; Paul Hardin, Drew University; Kenneth J. Weller, Central College (Iowa).

Liberal arts II—Virginia Lester, Mary Baldwin College (former member).

The study, entitled "The Effective College President," is financed by the Exxon Education Foundation and will be included in a book to be published next year.

conclusion of the testing. In either case, the crew chief at the site will inform the student-athlete in front of witnesses of the implications of the refusal and will note that fact on the Student-Athlete Signature Form.

A student-athlete who perceives irregularities in the testing procedure justifiably may refuse to sign the form, in which case the testing will be repeated. By signing the form, the student-athlete acknowledges there were no irregularities in the process.

Any student-athlete who withdraws consent to be tested, fails to appear within the prescribed time, refuses to provide a specimen or refuses to sign the Student-Athlete Signature Form becomes ineligible under NCAA requirements. The institutional representative and/or student-athlete's coach at the site will be notified.

In the event of a positive drug test, the student-athlete's institution (chief executive officer and athletics director) will be notified of the result. The test result is obtained from a two-part analysis of a portion of the urine sample (known as sample A) obtained at the collection site. After notification, the student-athlete and/or an institutional representative can choose to have another portion of the urine sample (sample B) tested and may be represented at the testing. The test results of sample B are final.

Once a positive test is established, the student-athlete's minimum 90-day period of ineligibility will be declared to have begun at 12:01 a.m. on the day the specimen originally was provided. When a student-athlete is declared ineligible for reasons other than a positive test as reported above, the period of ineligibility will be considered to have begun at 12:01 a.m. on the day that the specimen was to have been provided.

Institution responsibility

Under Constitution 4-2-(a) and Bylaw 5-2-(b), it is the institution's responsibility to declare a student-athlete ineligible for violations of NCAA eligibility rules, including rules pertaining to drug testing.

An institution that knowingly fails to declare a student-athlete ineligible for such violations and allows the student-athlete to continue to participate in the specified postseason competition is subject to penalties under the regular NCAA enforcement procedure.

Appeals

The NCAA Eligibility Committee will hear appeals from an institution stemming from a positive drug test, but only as they pertain to the student-athlete's eligibility after the minimum 90-day ineligibility period.

Restoration of eligibility

As part of the appeal application, the institution must submit negative results for the student-athlete from a drug test employing NCAA-approved testing procedures and conducted by NCAA-approved personnel. Submission of drug-test results is a minimum requirement for restoration of eligibility and the Eligibility Committee may impose other, additional requirements on the institution and student-athlete as a part of restoring eligibility.

Special considerations

Certain substances are given special consideration under the NCAA drug-testing protocol and their use by student-athletes can be cleared through physicians' "letters of request" or "letters of advisement," depending on which is appropriate.

A letter of request from a physician must be submitted to the drug-testing crew chief prior to the championship event. Such a letter is allowed only for student-athletes using or potentially requiring the use of any of three beta-agonists—Terbutaline, Salbutamol and Bitolterol. The request must identify the student-athlete and the drugs, dose and frequency of administration.

A letter of advisement from a physician may be submitted anytime during the drug-testing procedure, up to the time specimens are sealed in the shipping case to be transported to the testing laboratory. These letters specifically are allowed only in cases where a student-athlete has been given a local anesthetic and/or corticosteroids under conditions set forth in the NCAA drug-testing protocol.

Eligibility Rulings

Niagara University

The eligibility of a basketball student-athlete who received benefits in violation of NCAA Constitution 3-1-(a)-O.I. 2 was restored subsequent to the first intercollegiate basketball date of the 1986-87 season countable under Bylaw 3-3. The committee also noted that the student-athlete in question must repay the amount of improper expenses received prior to his participation.

St. John's University (New York)

The eligibility of a basketball student-athlete who was declared ineligible by the institution for making an improper long-distance telephone call in violation of Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) was restored immediately. The student-athlete in question already had repaid the amount of improper benefits received.

University of Oregon

The eligibility of a tennis student-athlete who attended the institution's summer tennis camp in violation of Bylaw 1-7-(b) was restored immediately. The committee noted that this case involved institutional responsibility and that the institution has already acted on this matter.

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

The eligibility of a basketball student-athlete found in violation of Constitution 3-1-(d)-O.I. 3 was restored immediately. The committee noted the student-athlete in question did not know, nor should he have known, that the team that he participated on was considered a professional team, and he did not receive pay per O.I. 2.

Oklahoma State University

The eligibility of a basketball student-athlete found in violation of Constitution 3-1-(d)-O.I. 3 was restored immediately. The committee noted the student-athlete in question did not know, nor should he have known, that the team that he participated on was considered a professional team, and he did not receive pay per O.I. 2.

Dartmouth College

The eligibility of an ice hockey student-athlete found in violation of Constitution 3-1-(d)-O.I. 3 was restored subsequent to the first two contests of the 1986-87 season. The committee noted that in this case, Case No. 38 would apply.

University of Mississippi

The eligibility of football student-athletes found in violation of Bylaws 1-1-(b), 1-2-(b) and 5-1-(i) was restored immediately. The committee determined that the institution did not receive a significant recruiting advantage. The committee also noted that certain student-athletes in question must repay any amount of improper expenses received and that these cases involved institutional responsibility.

Various institutions

The eligibility of basketball student-athletes who participated in outside competition in violation of Constitution 3-9-(b) was restored subsequent to the appropriate number of countable contests of the 1986-87 season.

Top college soccer coaches to participate in NCAA clinic

Several hundred youngsters in the Tacoma, Washington, area will get an opportunity to learn some of the finer points of soccer during a clinic sponsored by the NCAA's Youth Education through Sports program.

The free clinic begins with registration at 1 p.m. December 13 in the Tacoma Dome, just hours before that night's Division I Men's Soccer Championship title game at the same location. The clinic is for boys and girls in grades six through 12.

clinic was exceptionally helpful."

Following are other comments from individuals who attended one of the men's or women's clinics:

Gale Catlett, head men's basketball coach, West Virginia: "Without question, these clinics are the best moves that have been made toward more consistent and improved officiating. In the past, games have been called differently in different parts of the country...you'll see the touch foul called on the West Coast...rougher rebounding is allowed in the Midwest...the game is called more open in the East. I believe these clinics are an important first step in trying to make officiating consistent.

"That (men's) videotape is a good one. I particularly enjoyed the points of emphasis it included. In fact, I would like to see all or parts of that tape aired on network television. I believe it would be a great way to help the public understand the rules and how the game is supposed to be called."

Henry O. Nichols

Olsen: "For women's basketball, I think one of the most important aspects of the clinics was the opportunity for people to come together from different parts of the country. Women's basketball is gaining respect and interest all over the country, and meetings like this are helping those involved in the game develop a family-type atmosphere that had been missing."

Theresa Grentz, head women's basketball coach, Rutgers: "My entire coaching staff attended the (women's) clinic in Philadelphia. Marie Koch (Atlantic 10 supervisor of women's officials) also was there. All of us (coaches, officials and administrators) hearing the same thing should have a very positive effect on officiating this season and in years to come. I'm very glad that the NCAA is stepping in to provide one central base from which we can begin to work on improving officiating."

Norm Stewart, head men's basketball coach, Missouri: "One comment from the Chicago clinic that sticks in my mind is what Hank (Nichols) said about going to a different level in our outlook on the game. I agree with him that we must get coaches and officials on a level where you're talking about doing a good job for the game and the kids who are playing it."

Guthrie: "I attended both men's and women's clinics as a representative of the conference, and I think the films that have been prepared alone will do more to help improve officiating than anything that's been done before. The NCAA deserves commendation for taking a strong stand on the improvement of officiating."

Dave Gavitt, commissioner, Big East Conference: "It is hard for me to be totally objective, since I chaired the special committee on improving officiating, but I believe these clinics

Some of the nation's top collegiate soccer coaches will be on hand to offer instruction during the clinic, which also will feature sessions on such nonathletic concerns as preparing for college and guarding against substance abuse.

Seven coaches who have led teams to NCAA soccer titles are among the 12 coaches who will speak or serve as clinicians at Tacoma. One of the coaches, Cliff McCrath of defending Division II men's champion Seattle Pacific University, hopes to show participants the "fun" side of soccer.

"One of the goals is to further expand appreciation of the game of soccer," he explained. "It's safe to say that most people involved in soccer in the Northwest have a good grip on the game, so clinics here tend to be increasingly less perfunctory and educational at the elementary level and more enriching as to the finer points of the game."

That is why McCrath and the other coaches will concentrate on "fun things" youngsters can do to improve their ballhandling, shooting and goalkeeping. Participants actually will be able to test their soccer skills under the coaches' tutelage.

"We think it will be a happy time," McCrath said.

Other coaches with NCAA championships to their credit who will appear at the clinic are Jerry Yeagley (featured speaker), Indiana University, Bloomington; Anson Dorrance, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Steve Negroesco, University of San Francisco; Sigi Schmid, University of California, Los Angeles; Mike Berticelli of Old Dominion University, formerly of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, and Jay Miller, University of Tampa.

Also on the staff are coaches Mark Berson, University of South Carolina; Bob Gansler, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee; Doug May, Rochester Institute of Technology; Barry Barto, University of Nevada, Las Vegas, and Walt Chyzowych, Wake Forest University.

Another highlight will be a talk on the relationship between athletics and academics by Paul Caligiuri, senior cocaptain for the defending Division I men's champion soccer team at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Only 500 boys and girls will be admitted to the on-field participation sessions with the coaches, so advance registration is encouraged. Further information about registration is available from Dave Maider, The Tacoma Dome, 2727 East D Street, Tacoma, Washington 98421; telephone 206/682-7340.

Registration on the day of the clinic will be at the Lower A entrance of the Tacoma Dome.

Clinic participants also will receive a coupon good for a discount on a general-admission ticket to the Division I Men's Soccer Championship title game at 7:30 p.m. December 13.

made a big start toward doing that.

"Officiating is in the eye of the beholder. And if the beholder can be exposed to the correct calls in a given situation, we will have made great progress. I obtained nine copies of the men's tape and, in addition to making them available to our member schools, I am going to circulate them to the people who will be broadcasting our games this season.

"When this program initially was drawn up, those of us who worked on it were a little concerned with the reaction we'd get from conference supervisors of officials...we wondered whether they'd feel threatened by all this. Actually, their reaction is proving quite the contrary. The support we have received throughout the country has been absolutely encouraging."

his or her maximum permissible aid.

This will be the third consecutive Convention to consider that issue. At the 1985 Convention, the same proposal (submitted that year by the Division I-A Legislative Meeting conducted the previous summer) was soundly defeated, as was an alternative sponsored by the NCAA Council to permit up to $1,400 of the Pell award to be exempt (279 for, 315 against; two-thirds approval required).

At last year's Convention, the same two proposals appeared, both sponsored by groups of member institutions. Both were defeated, although the $1,400-exemption approach apparently received a narrow majority in support.

Council proposals

Next will be four NCAA Council proposals that the Presidents Commission decided in its fall meeting to support in principle.

First among those (No. 46) is the Council's attempt to tighten the satisfactory-progress requirements in Divisions I and II. The proposal eliminates the option that permits a student-athlete to meet the requirements by averaging at least 12 hours of academic credit per term of attendance, instead mandating the satisfactory completion of 24 semester or 36 quarter hours of credit since the preceding fall term at the institution. It thus also eliminates the possibility of accumulating those credits since the student's last season of competition, and it specifies that all satisfactory-progress determinations will be made at the beginning of the fall term.

Next will be the Council's three-part package of recruiting restrictions (Nos. 47, 48 and 49). Again, the Commission determined to support these in principle.

The first eliminates "boosters" from all recruiting activities, whether on or off campus, and includes a prohibition against their contacting prospective student-athletes by telephone or correspondence, as well.

The other two reduce by approximately 50 percent the recruiting periods in football and basketball, as follows:

Football: Contacts limited to the period between December 1 and the Saturday after the initial National Letter of Intent signing date. Evaluation (scouting) limited to the month of November and for two weeks in May (7-21). Those steps represent a reduction of just over four months from the current periods.

Basketball: Contacts limited to the period from September 17 to October 7 and between March 1 and the initial National Letter of Intent spring signing date. Evaluation (scouting) limited to the last three weeks in July, the last three weeks in December and the last three weeks in February. Again, that is a reduction of just over four months from the current periods.

Coaches' compensation

Also included in the Presidents Commission grouping is a series of four Council-sponsored proposals dealing with reporting and/or control of outside compensation received by coaches in conjunction with their institutional duties.

Those four proposals (Nos. 50 through 53) would require coaches to:

- Report annually to the institution's chief executive officer all athletically related income received from sources outside the institution.

- Obtain prior approval from the institution before using the institution's name or logo in the endorsement of commercial products or services for which the coach would receive personal remuneration.

- Obtain prior approval from the chief executive officer before receiving any compensation for having the institution's student-athletes use certain athletics shoes, apparel or equipment.

- Reject any compensation of any kind for agreeing to have the institution's team or individual student-athletes participate in a certain event.

Others

Also listed in the special presidential grouping are the following:

- A resolution submitted by the chief executive officers of six Division I-A institutions asking the Division I membership to support in principle the elimination of freshman eligibility in Division I men's basketball and Division I-A football and directing the Presidents Commission and the Council to prepare legislation in that regard for consideration at the next NCAA Convention. To date, the Commission has agreed to continue to study the issue of freshman eligibility but has taken no final position.

- A series of four Council-sponsored amendments to the enforcement procedure (Nos. 55 through 58), including one that would make infractions reports public once they have been given to the involved institution and another that would authorize the enforcement staff to correct publicly any erroneous information made public by an involved institution.

- A proposal by six members of the Atlantic Coast Conference to specify that the Presidents Commission, in addition to the Council, must approve the employment of the NCAA executive director.

- Two proposals from Division III member institutions to alter the financial-audit requirements, which were proposed by the Commission and adopted by the special Convention in June 1985. One would eliminate the requirement that the audit be conducted by an outside auditor; the other would exclude from the requirements any institution with an annual athletics budget under $300,000.

Summary

Following is a summary of the first 61 proposals in the Official Notice of the NCAA's 81st annual Convention:

Consent packages

No. 1: Affirm that the annual financial audit for a given year must be completed prior to the end of the next fiscal year.

No. 2: Specify that when an institution has separate administrative structures for its men's and women's athletics programs, the director of either may process an eligibility appeal per O.I. 11.

No. 3: Permit appointment of Executive Committee members for less than full terms when necessary to adjust the committee's membership.

No. 4: Clarify that the executive director is administratively responsible to the Executive Committee and is authorized to employ staff.

No. 5: Establish a Legislation and Interpretations Committee, which would replace the Constitution and Bylaws Committee and would remove the Administrative Committee from the interpretative process.

No. 6: Change the mailing date for future Convention Official Notices from November 22 to November 29.

No. 7: Increase from $10,000 to $25,000 the required amount of accident-travel insurance for each participant in a college all-star basketball or football game.

No. 8: Extend from January 15 to January 21 the latest date on which a certified college all-star football game can be played.

No. 9: Require $10,000 death and dismemberment insurance and $25,000 accident-travel insurance for each participant in a certified gymnastics or track and field meet.

No. 10: Ensure that no certified track and field meet conflicts with the National Collegiate Division I Men's and Women's Outdoor Track Championships.

No. 11: Specify that the Academic Requirements Committee, rather than the Eligibility Committee, shall determine the enrollment period under the provisions of the Divisions II and III five-year rule.

No. 12: Specify that the Academic Requirements Committee, rather than the Eligibility Committee, shall review exceptions under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(c).

No. 13: Make the eligibility period in Bylaw 5-1-(c)-(1) consistent with that in Bylaw 5-1-(g).

No. 14: Specify that the Academic Requirements Committee, rather than the Eligibility Committee, shall grant exceptions under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j).

No. 15: Make consistent the language in the Divisions I, II and III classification criteria as it relates to minimum sports sponsorship requirements.

No. 16: Clarify and make consistent the effective dates of classification legislation in Bylaws 11-1, 11-2 and 11-4.

No. 17: Permit Division II members to count one Division I men's team sport and/or one Division I women's team sport in meeting the Division II sports sponsorship requirements.

No. 18: Require that at least one member of each Council-appointed committee (Bylaw 12-3) shall be a member of the Council, except for the Committee on Infractions, the National Youth Sports Program Committee, and the proposed Committee on Review and Planning.

No. 19: Expand the Academic Requirements Committee from six members to 12.

No. 20: Abolish the Classification Committee.

No. 21: Establish a Communications Committee, incorporating the functions of the Public Relations and Promotion Committee and the Football Television Committee, which would be abolished.

No. 22: Abolish the Community and Junior College Relations Committee and invite representatives of the California and national junior college associations to serve as consultants to NCAA committees when appropriate.

No. 23: Expand the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports from 12 members to 15 and assign to it the functions of the Drug Education Committee (and, after the 1986-87 academic year, the functions of the Special Postseason Drug-Testing Committee).

No. 24: Expand the Eligibility Committee from five to 10 members and provide for "federated" (i.e., by division) review of eligibility cases.

No. 25: Establish a Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism.

No. 26: Establish an Honors Committee, incorporating the functions of the College Athletics Top XII Selection Committee and Theodore Roosevelt Award Committee, which would be abolished.

No. 27: Abolish the Insurance Committee.

No. 28: Expand the Professional Sports Liaison Committee from eight to 12 members, incorporating the functions of the Ice Hockey Developmental Funding Committee and Summer Baseball Committee, which would be abolished.

No. 29: Establish a Committee on Review and Planning, incorporating the functions of the Long Range Planning Committee, which would be abolished.

No. 30: Establish a Special-Events Committee, incorporating the functions of the Extra Events Committee, High School All-Star Games Committee and Postseason Football Committee, which would be abolished.

Rochester captures first Division III women's soccer title

The University of Rochester captured the first-ever NCAA Division III Women's Soccer Championship by defeating Plymouth State, 1-0, in Cortland, New York, November 16.

Rochester freshman forward Lisa

Caraccilo broke a scoreless deadlock when she beat Plymouth State freshman goalie Mary St. Germain on a shot from eight yards out. St. Germain, the tournament's outstanding defensive player, had just stopped four point-blank Yellowjacket scoring attempts prior to the Rochester goal, which came with 13:46 left in the game. Another freshman, Rochester's Martha Winter, scored in her team's 2-0 semifinal win over UC San Diego and was named the tournament's outstanding offensive player.

"Physically, Plymouth State was stronger than we were," said Rochester coach Terry Gurnett, whose Yellowjackets snapped Plymouth State's 12-game unbeaten streak.

"They were an extremely well-coached team and had momentum. I was worried about getting behind early, but we didn't. Then for a 10-minute period in the second half, something turned. We were throwing everything we had at them and finally poked one in.

"The game was fitting of a national championship," added Gurnett, whose team finished the year 14-2-2. "The tournament was well-run, and this was a great coming together of four excellent teams. This is what Division III is all about."

Plymouth State, which closed the season at 13-5-1, surprised host Cortland State, 3-2, in the semifinals and handed the 17-4-2 Red Dragons their first loss to a Division III opponent since 1984.

Banachowski wins 500th

Several milestones have been reached during the 1986 women's volleyball season in all three divisions.

In Division I, UCLA coach Andy Banachowski hit the 500-game win mark September 27 when his Bruins beat Texas. Banachowski, in his 17th year at UCLA, currently is 516-123 overall and 27-8 this season. The Bruins should be invited to their fifth consecutive NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Championship in December.

A regular-season dual-match attendance mark was set in Division II November 5 when 2,259 people filled the North Dakota State physical education building to see the North Dakota State-Moorhead State matchup. However, that record was broken three days later when North Dakota State traveled to Nebraska-Omaha. A record 3,004 people viewed Nebraska-Omaha's win over the Bison, 13-15, 15-6, 15-2, 15-7.

Several special promotions with high school and adult volleyball leagues and radio and television advertising were used to bring in the large crowd.

In Division III, Ohio Northern coach Sheila Wallace reached the

Andy Banachowski

400-game win plateau September 27 during the annual Ohio Northern Invitational tournament. Her Lady Polar Bears went on to finish the season 38-9, losing in the finals of the Division III regionals to Calvin in four games. Wallace is now 428-167 overall.

come greater.

Concurrently, the explosive popularity of pro sports was changing the young athlete's perception of college sports. "When colleges recruited, they sold education," Erfurth says, speaking of a day that seems so very long ago. "They told the kid what a degree could do for him. Fifteen, 20 years ago, the pros were offering $6,000 to sign, and we had people turning that down because they could make more going to work for a bank or going into an oil company training program.

"Today, entry into the NFL and the NBA is through college sports and there's very little interest, frankly, in the education offered."

And Rice is deprived of selling points on two counts.

What hope, then, for the Owls?

In Erfurth's vision, it comes in the form of the rest of the world moving back toward the position from which Rice hasn't budged. If this sounds like a Utopian notion that could come only to one who dwells on a leafy campus gazing upon walls of ivy, Erfurth presents evidence that at least the disease is in remission.

Proposition 48, adopted by the NCAA to raise entrance requirements, already is having an effect, he says, and will take firmer hold when it has gone through a full four-year cycle. From higher standards for all schools and a growing awareness of recruiting and drug problems, he feels, a cleansing will come.

"The public is tired of what they've been reading about intercollegiate

147 games scheduled

ESPN has committed itself to televising at least 147 college basketball games and says that more may be added. At least 66 teams from 18 conferences will appear on the cable TV network's telecasts.

For the first time, the regular-season games will be televised live, which means a minimum of 135. Some tournament games will be shown on a delayed-tape telecast.

"In two years we have gone from televising 63 percent of our games live to presenting 100 percent (of regular-season games)" said Steven Bornstein, ESPN's senior vice-president.

athletics. The CEOs are tired of it, too. If we administrators don't clean it up, they'll do it. I would hope we do it ourselves, but we haven't done a very good job so far.

"The question that has to be answered is, what does a university want of its athletics program? Does it want to make money off it and turn out professional athletes, or does it want it to be part of the university and graduate people? I think, in many cases, it has been the former. The athletics departments have gotten so big, the universities have lost control.

"I think the pendulum is coming back, though. With the problems of cheating and drugs, some stadiums that used to be full aren't full anymore, and the university presidents have the heat on them."

Such practical considerations as a diminution of the TV dollars that have flooded pro sports and greater awareness of the need for emphasis on academics at the secondary-school level, as evidenced by Texas' no-pass, no-play rule, also are serving as brakes on hurtful trends, he says.

"It'll never be back to the way it was," Erfurth says, "but it may come back to the point where there's some sanity in it."

Even in the best case, he knows, Rice will never be Texas or A&M or LSU. "It might be far out to say Rice could be a contender every year, but I think we could contend some years, and I think we can be competitive every Saturday."

Whatever comes for his school, Erfurth leaves it with dignity. He can put mirrors in his retirement haven in Kerrville. Whether his vision eventuates or not, we need the idealists, the people who repudiate the standards of gold and glory, to hell with the cost, and hold dear the old values so they can become new again. As Erfurth walks away, anyone who peruses the record and brands him a loser damns himself as a fool.

"When I was coaching," says Erfurth, "I had opportunities to go other places. Even after I went into administration, I had one opportunity. But I like this place. I like what it stands for."

Erfurth currently serves on the NCAA Football Television Committee.

Three-point play just doesn't add up with some coaches

By Trudy Tynan

Lou Carnesecca calls the three-point goal a Mickey Mouse shot.

Denny Crum calls it a step backward.

Stu Starner says it can't hurt to try it.

A shot through the net from 19 feet, nine inches means three points in college basketball this season, one of the most drastic changes in the game since James Naismith invented it in 1891.

"It could put the smaller man back in the game, and that's good," said Edward S. Steitz, secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee and athletics direc-

SEC stays with CFA football pact

The Southeastern Conference has agreed to remain with the College Football Association's TV package rather than forming a TV contract of its own with another network.

The SEC had been considering a four-year, $25 million offer from ABC but decided to remain part of the CFA's television package—a contract with CBS and the ESPN cable network, covering schools from several conferences.

"I feel the CFA plan is consistent with the desire of the member institutions to not adversely affect attendance while stabilizing revenue and providing media exposure on a national basis," said SEC Commissioner Harvey W. Schiller.

Gerald Turner, chancellor of the University of Mississippi and president of the SEC, said that conference members "felt it was not only in the best interest of the league, but also in the best interest of intercollegiate football to remain a part of the larger package."

There are 10 schools in the SEC; all also are members of the CFA, which is composed of 63 schools.

Turner said the conference is continuing to negotiate for a game of the week to be telecast through syndication or cable.

Networks to pay CFA $134 million

All 63 active members of the College Football Association will participate in the agreements negotiated by the organization with CBS and ESPN, Executive Director Charles M. Neinas has announced.

The package, valued at approximately $134 million, covers the period from 1987 through 1990.

CBS will televise college football on 16 exposures each year, primarily on Saturday afternoons. The network also will televise one game in prime time and has scheduled two double-header telecasts late in the season.

ESPN, which has been involved in CFA football for three seasons, will continue to televise 16 games in prime time and has scheduled 12 telecasts for late Saturday afternoon.

Martin A. Massengale, chancellor of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, and chair of the CFA board of directors, expressed satisfaction that all members have approved the CFA TV plan.

"Members of the CFA, by working together, have been able to improve academic standards and recruiting regulations," Massengale said. "Maintaining a unified position in the area of television reinforces a recognition that universities are dependent upon each other for future progress and that institutional relationships are important."

tor at Springfield College.

Steitz said that it also is aimed at reducing rough play under the basket and opening up the zone defenses that have held down scoring over the past several years.

"Teams are going to have to play more defense away from the basket," he said.

Not everyone is thrilled with the change, including Carnesecca, coach at St. John's (New York), and Crum, coach of NCAA champion Louisville.

However, Starner, coach at Montana State, urged his peers to be open-minded: "Try it. You might like it." The Bobcats belong to the Big Sky Conference—one of 15 conferences that experimented with the three-point shot from varying distances during the past five years.

"We've probably gotten more questions about this than any other change we've made excepting the shot clock," Steitz said. "There's still a lot of comment about whether we've chosen the right distance, and we may have to make some adjustments."

Of 744 college coaches surveyed by Steitz at the end of last season, 64 percent said no to the three-pointer.

Crum said he was surprised the committee adopted the rule despite the coaches' opposition.

"It's aimed at cleaning up the play on the inside, but I think it's going to benefit the big man because teams are no longer going to be able to afford to double- and triple-team him underneath," Crum said. "I just don't see the need for it. Why mess with a game that's at its peak?"

They may not like it, but coaches haven't wasted any time figuring out how to deal with it.

"We spent three hours in practice just working on defenses against the three-point shot in the closing minutes of the game," Villanova's Rollie Massimino said.

Starner's team connected on 47.1 percent of its three-pointers last season; overall field-goal shooting nationwide last season was 47.7 percent.

"It was an interesting part of our offense," he said. "The game is not going to change as much as many skeptics fear. You still need to establish your inside play to use your perimeter shooters effectively, and the good teams will have that offensive balance."

"It's a momentum play, like a dunk, that gets the emotions up," he said. "Unquestionably, it extends the defenses four to six feet from the basket; and in rebounding, it gives a little more value to quickness. But the good teams are going to make those adjustments.

"The one thing it could lead to is creation of a three-point specialist who could come into the game when you are down and get things going."

Starner said the average accuracy of the three-point shot was about 39 percent, based on the trial runs in different conferences. To score the same number of points with two-point shots, a team would have to shoot 57 percent from the field. Michigan State led the nation in field-goal shooting percentage last season with 56.1 percent.

Starner said fouls—a three-point shooter gets only two free throws if fouled in the act of shooting—were not a problem "because one of the basic rules of coaching is don't foul the perimeter shooter."

Steitz said the rules committee "considered awarding three foul shots, as is done under the international rules, but decided to go along with the two until we can get some data."

Tynan writes for the Associated Press.
