Multidivision classification continues to be an issue

By Jack L. Copeland
Assistant Editor
The NCAA News

The long-running debate over multidivision classification continues, despite a series of votes at the 1987 Convention that seemed to reaffirm a commitment to the concept by a large majority of the membership.

However, the debate may have boiled down to being not so much about multidivision classification in general as it is a "football issue."

Even after the defeat of two particular proposals at the convention—one that would have prohibited Divisions I and II schools from fielding programs in Division III and another that would have taken the additional step of preventing Division III schools from "playing up" in Division I or II—feelings remain strong on the question of whether NCAA member institutions should be allowed to compete in more than one division.

As a result, the Administrative Committee has asked for a review of that question, in all of its permutations, by the new Committee on Review and Planning, which was created at the Convention to replace the Long Range Planning Committee.

The committee is expected to be appointed during the April Council meeting and will include as members six former officers of the NCAA and a nationally prominent individual who is a former student-athlete.

When the committee begins work this summer, it will address a number of membership issues, including the continuing movement of institutions into Division I and the recent moves to soften sports-sponsorship requirements for member institutions. But the issue of multidivision classification is likely to gain the early attention of that panel, which will search for ways to accommodate a variety of concerns about the issue.

"It may become more of an issue if we don't find a satisfactory resolution before more institutions go the multidivision-classification route," said Wilford S. Bailey, NCAA president, explaining why the Administrative Committee assigned the problem to the Committee on Review and Planning.

"Because it has been a matter of continuing concern and there have been a number of proposals in recent years, it's an issue that won't go away," he said.

"The committee will look at the problem and identify possible approaches—either to keep multidivision classification, to eliminate it or to find some middle ground."

The Convention's rejection of a North Coast Athletic Conference proposal to eliminate any multidivision classification involving Division III (Proposal 105), along with the defeat of an Ohio Athletic Conference proposal that only sought to close Division III competition to Divisions I and II schools (Proposal 106), are seen by several observers as convincing evidence that a large majority of Association members support multidivision classification.

"I was very pleased with the great show of support among all of the

UTEP president named to post on Commission

Haskell M. Monroe Jr., president of the University of Texas, El Paso, has been appointed to fill a Division I-A vacancy on the NCAA Presidents Commission.

He replaces Jeffrey R. Holland, president of Brigham Young University, who resigned from the Commission. Monroe was appointed by the Western Athletic Conference and will attend his first Commission meeting April 1-2 in Greenbelt, Maryland.

Monroe has been president of UTEP and professor of history at the school since 1980. He is a 1952 history and English graduate of Austin College, from which he received a master's degree in history in 1954. Monroe earned a doctorate in Southern U.S. history from Rice University in 1961.

Following active duty and reserve service with the U.S. Navy, Monroe joined the faculty of Texas A&M University in 1959. He advanced from the rank of instructor to full professor, and he was dean of faculties at Texas A&M from 1974 to 1980. He also served the school as assistant dean of the graduate college (1965 to 1968) and assistant vice-president for academic affairs (1972 to 1974).

Monroe has served on more than two dozen professional and university-related committees. He has been a member of the Western Athletic Conference's Presidents' Council since moving to UTEP in 1980, and he

New Manual being mailed

The 1987-88 NCAA Manual, reflecting all legislative changes approved by the January Convention, is being mailed to the membership this week.

Copies of the Manual are sent each year to the chief executive officer, faculty athletics representative, director of athletics and primary woman administrator of athletics programs at each active member institution. Conference, affiliated and corresponding members also receive copies automatically and without charge.

Additional copies are available for

San Jose's Whitcomb to serve on Council

Charles Whitcomb, faculty athletics representative at San Jose State University, has been appointed to the NCAA Council to fill the unexpired term of John V. Kasser, athletics director at California State University, Long Beach, who resigned to accept a position with the College Football Association.

Whitcomb was appointed by the NCAA Administrative Committee after being designated as the Pacific Coast Athletic Association representative.

He has been faculty athletics representative at the institution since 1983. Whitcomb has served the PCAA as a member of committees on long-range planning, drug education and testing, rules compliance, television, and the California Bowl.

He has served his institution as chair of the athletics board, ombudsman, and as a member of the academic senate and student union board of governors.

A 1971 graduate of San Jose State, he earned a master's degree in recreation from the school in 1973 and a doctorate from the University of Northern Colorado in 1976. He holds the rank of professor and is graduate coordinator in the recreation and leisure studies department.

Whitcomb has addressed national audiences on recreation and minority issues, and several of his articles have appeared in scholarly publications.

Dismissal of LeVant case sought

The NCAA will ask for a dismissal of a suit challenging the Association's drug-testing program for student-athletes that was brought by Simone LeVant, a senior diver at Stanford University who won a court order to compete in the national championships without a mandatory drug test.

Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Peter G. Stone agreed with LeVant that the NCAA's mandatory urine tests were an "obstrusive and unconstitutional invasion of privacy," and he issued a preliminary injunction March 11 to allow her to compete in championships qualifying competition in Arizona without the required urine sample.

LeVant did not qualify for the national championships, and the NCAA will ask that the case be dismissed as being moot, according to George H. Gangwere, Association counsel in Kansas City, Missouri.

Use of 'death penalty' won't change anything

Al Carter

Houston Chronicle

The NCAA, history may be able to show, did SMU the biggest favor of its athletics life. But has the 'death penalty' really helped college athletics? Sadly, no.

Until the NCAA musters the courage to attack the roots of its play-for-pay problems, the problems will not go away. There is one answer. It wouldn't be an absolute cure. It would be a major prevention.

The NCAA must ban off-campus recruiting. By everyone, coaches and boosters. Completely and forever.

The NCAA must end the ritual that has made the procurement of talent a sport within a sport, one with no referees to uphold the rules.

The NCAA must put an end to the system that calls for assistant coaches to camp on recruits' front porches, scurry about like ambulance chasers and, when necessary, to blindside the NCAA's code of conduct.

Those who say the lesson of SMU will sway college athletics to a straighter path were not in Dallas to witness the convergence of pitchmen from nearly every school in the southern United States. The recruiters haven't listened.

But why should they?

What has changed?

Recruiters have been living under their own death penalty for years.

They still have to recruit or they lose their jobs. They will still be dispatched with money in their pockets, the phone numbers of wealthy alumni on their sleeves, an ax perched above their necks and one great truth in mind.

The NCAA can't make you any more unemployed than you will be if you don't sign great players.

Will there be other SMUs?

Almost certainly.

Football play-off: Just a big helping of greed

By Blackie Sherrod

Dallas Morning News

Personally, I wouldn't have risked a farthing against a Ferrari that NCAA folk would ever let a football play-off proposition out of the dungeon, where it has been chained since shortly after the Protestant Reformation.

And yet here it is, reported out of committee with a favorable recommendation. A one-game play-off, after the bowl games, to decide the big overcoat.

Of course, the proposition still is hanging on the clothesline. It must survive a couple more committee inspections; and these tend to stretch out, even as Pildown Man squatted on his haunches and puzzled over the oyster for years before taking his first bite. But at least a play-off milestone has been reached.

As with any new proposal—a tax program, a topless beach, a parimutuel bill—there is an immediate assault by fault-finders, probing for a weakness here, a fault there, a loophole, a blemish. This is our culture; we are all frustrated termites.

The NCAA subcommittee, chaired by DeLoss Dodds of Texas, envisioned a panel of eight selectors to weigh season records and bowl results and choose the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in the land. Of course, this system would cause more arguments than Mrs. Olsen's coffee.

Presumably, these selectors would be athletics directors, and certainly they would be subject to great pressure and second-guessing and bitterness, immeasurably more than NCAA basketball play-off selectors now endure. But that's to be expected. Ne'er rose without thorns, as the poet says.

Too, the bowl people are duty-bound to oppose any play-off plan, for the understandable fear that it would downplay their games, both in eyes of the public and in the pocketbook of the TV networks.

Last year, bowls pushed about $45 million into college coffers, and that in itself constitutes a powerful lobby. College treasurers are loath to let any new proposition harm this golden goose.

The public, however, thirsts for a college championship match. Polls on the question are one-sided. The chance mating of unbeaten Penn State and Miami (Florida) in the last Fiesta Bowl whetted appetites. So the college chaps would love to have a championship game, with all its attendant publicity and spotlight and television monies, and yet keep the abundant bowl loot coming.

Down deep inside, the bowl bloc probably would settle for a one-game proposition, even though it would steal a bit of their neon. But they are leery that a one-game arrangement is only a beginning.

Obviously, Dodds conferred with network officials while his committee investigated play-off structure. When he mentioned possible payoffs of $1.5 million to each of the two participants, plus at least $90,000 to the other members of Division I-A, well, we're talking about $13 million minimum.

One day, if TV popularity holds up, we'll see 128 teams in the postseason basketball tournament. Clip and save.

It could be just a matter of time before TV moguls would want semifinal football games, then quarterfinals. Milk it, brother, while the milking's good.

In the end, of course, greed will destroy civilization; but then, that's somebody else's worry.

NCAA Convention should be held in South Bronx in middle of July

Al McGuire, NBC-TV basketball commentator

The Atlanta Constitution

"The best thing the NCAA can do is have its next general meeting (Convention) in the South Bronx on the seventh floor of a walk-up in the middle of July.

"At most, they should meet every three years. The current setup isn't working. They have all these meetings, all these committees, so they feel they've got to do something when they get together.

"The problem is, they always meet in places where there are lots of bikinis, and the rooms have king-sized beds and 42 towels, and the suntan lotion never runs out.

"I'm telling you, they'd be better off in the South Bronx every three years. The rules are coming too fast and causing too many problems. Right now, the way some things are being done in the NCAA is a mortal sin."

Joab L. Thomas, president

University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa

The Associated Press

"I think there are a large number of people who think that if Bill Curry (new football coach) doesn't do well, my days are very limited.

"My guess is that I would be in jeopardy. I expect I'd be in very serious jeopardy if Bill Curry doesn't have a pretty good record.

"If we go 8-3 next year, there will be a sizable number of people who will demand I resign, because there are quite a few demanding it right now.

"A lot of people don't realize how much criticism was focused on Frank Rose (former Alabama president) at the time Bear Bryant was hired, and coach Bryant had a pretty good record at the time.

"I don't think the threats (demanding that Thomas resign) were serious. I don't wear a flak jacket."

Richard D. Schultz, athletics director

University of Virginia

Rocky Mountain News

"The thing is, when you get down to those last five or six spots (for the Division I Men's Basketball Championship), you're (Division I Men's Basketball Committee) really splitting hairs. You look for anything possible that makes one team better than another team, and it's not easy.

"You can take any number of groups of nine men, lock them in a room, and the teams they'd come up with from one to 54 would be the same. But it's those last nine or 10 that are tough.

"All in all, I think it's as fair a process as it can be; but when you have a set number of spots, there are always going to be questions on why this team got in and why this team didn't."

The Washington Post

Excerpted from an editorial

"Many critics argue that Proposition 48 is particularly unfair to black student-athletes with poor scores (on SATs or ACTs), who won't be recruited.

"Make it equitable: Bar all freshmen from varsity sports and put the emphasis on studies—and study habits.

"Shortening the schedule of college teams would make sense, too. It will take time, leadership and cooperation to bring college sports down to even modestly sensible levels at some of the more sports-crazed institutions.

"But the NCAA can't be expected to do it all. It is, after all, a creature of this warped system—and the creators are in the presidencies and on the boards of trustees of America's campuses."

Thomas Boswell, columnist

The Washington Post

"The growth of women's sports is a phenomenon that has become so much a part of the grain of our experience that we hardly notice when a woman drives a stock car or America suddenly has the best women's basketball or volleyball team in the world.

"We expect a 12-year-old girl or a 20-year-old college woman to have a wide range of adequately funded athletics choices if that's what makes her happy.

"Gains we take for granted, however, are also the ones we sometimes lose."

Scott Ostler, columnist

Los Angeles Times

"Idea of the year award—to the NCAA subcommittee that recommended a one-game national championship football play-off, the week before the Super Bowl.

"After it studies the matter further, the NCAA will decide on a four-team, two-week play-off format, because selecting only two teams would leave too much room for controversy.

"The first round will be played two weeks before the Super Bowl, and the title game on pre-Super Bowl Sunday."

Last year, we were searching for the last teams.

"The second thing is finances. When we expanded from 32 to 40, that increased the travel (expenses). We're still a few years away."

"The SMU circumstances, as well as those in Maryland and Georgia, can begin a turn in the road that must occur. # The great balancing act: athletes keeping up with classwork

By Veronica Fowler
Des Moines Register

It's like walking along a railroad tie, says Max Urlick, standing in the middle of his office, trying with Marcel Marceau-like effort to keep his balance.

On the one side, he says, you have your professors, pulling you this way. He sways to the left.

And on the other, you have your coaches and thousands of fans pulling you that way. He sways to the right.

"If you're not careful, pretty soon you'll fall off the rail," says Urlick, athletics director at Iowa State University.

"I think the schedules are pretty heavy," says Victor Camillo, a University of Iowa math professor. "The amount of time required of athletes definitely interferes with my course."

Ed Blinn, an Iowa State journalism professor, agrees that sports schedules present problems. A track athlete taking one of Blinn's courses handed him a list of all the meets he had to attend, "and it was easily a quarter of the classes," Blinn said. The student failed the course.

Blinn, who has taught other athletes, says an athlete is simply handicapped by the number of events he or she must attend.

The NCAA requires athletes to take at least 12 credit hours each semester. Iowa's rules are even stiffer; a student must take at least 14.

An NCAA committee is addressing the problem of coordinating class time with game time. Mikki Flowers, committee chair and associate athletics director at Old Dominion University, says the number of classes athletes miss because of competition is different at each school, "but we're concerned enough that we're looking at it."

Flowers says the committee is planning legislation requiring each university to have a policy on athletes' absences.

The ISU athletics department compiled a list of the number of class days athletes miss because of competition away from home. Women's tennis players will miss 14 days, volleyball and golf will miss eight, and wrestling will miss seven.

Men's basketball players will miss five class days, not including postseason play. Football players will miss just four days.

Athletics officials stress that a student who is good at managing time and who is committed to studying won't get bad grades because of hectic game schedules.

"It's going to take dedication on the part of those athletes to manage their time," says Fred Mims, assistant athletics director at Iowa. "If you're serious about your studies, you can do it."

Max Urlick

However, Charles McCandless, executive vice-president at ISU, says athletes whose goals are to play professional sports aren't likely to dedicate themselves to academics.

Lois Tiffany, an ISU botany professor, says that while she has seen many athletes who were good students devoted to getting good grades, "I've also seen a lot where I think you're putting it gently to say they're not determined to work around a difficult schedule."

Lorna Peterson, instructor of library use at Iowa State, says it can be difficult even for devoted students. She recalls a basketball player whose schedule was so tight that she had to work with him in the evenings.

"Are athletes here to entertain a crowd or are they here to get an education?" she asks.

Some try, but have to compromise. For instance, former Iowa quarterback Mark Vlasic, who graduated in December, started as an engineering major but found it nearly impossible to play football and make a time commitment to his classes. He switched to business, where there was more flexibility in class time. "It just got to the point where it was too much," he said.

Pharmacy, computer science and engineering, Mims says, are very difficult for athletes to take because of the large time commitments or inflexibility of classes.

If the games were away from home, Fridays were spent preparing. "And if it was a home game," Vlasic said, "you could have up to about 2 in the afternoon for yourself. I don't know how the basketball guys do it."

Iowa State wrestler Mike Halder, who was graduated in December with a 3.000 grade-point average, says it's possible to balance the demands of athletics and academics, "but what happens is that you go to school longer." It took him 5½ years to get his degree.

Thomas Thielen, Iowa State vice-president for student affairs, says the time commitment asked of athletes is tremendous, and he can't think of any other students who are asked to do more. "We ask a lot... and, in many cases, they get hurt," he says.

But athletics department officials say game schedules don't impose unfair time restrictions on athletes.

Some Iowa State and University of Iowa officials send progress reports to professors and ask for notification if an athlete is missing class or not doing well. Iowa also has a rule, Mims says, that an athlete can't miss more than eight days because of competitions.

However, Vlasic said, "Even if you miss one or two days out of the week, there can be a whole lot that you missed."

Claudia Hale, acting chair of the speech department at Iowa State, says that although game schedules sometimes affect class performance, there have been no great difficulties.

If there's a problem with an exam or an assignment, she says, the teacher and an athlete usually work around it. However, missing classes, no matter how willing a teacher and athlete might be, can be a problem. "There's simply no way you can duplicate" the classroom experience, she said.

Some instructors feel so strongly about students being in class that they start docking grades after three unexcused absences.

Some schools try to ease the schedule burden. At Iowa state, athletes have priority over their classmates when registering for classes.

Mims uses an analogy similar to Urlick's: Balancing academics and athletics, he says, is like walking the center line on a highway.

"It's a no-win situation. You've never going to satisfy everyone."

School's accreditation should be on the line, too

Schools that are found guilty of serious athletics violations should also lose their academic accreditation, a study by the Carnegie Foundation proposes.

"It is ironic that one hears that a university has lost its athletics eligibility but never hears that a college has been on accreditation probation or suspended because of unethical behavior in athletics procedures or in its abuse of students," says a report of the study recently published under the title, "College—the Undergraduate Experience in America."

The report was written by Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, and published by Harper & Row.

Boyer writes, "The tragedy is that the cynicism that stems from the abuses in athletics infects the rest of student life, from promoting academic dishonesty to the loss of individual ideals. We find it disturbing that students who admit to cheating often excuse their conduct as being set by example, such as athletics dishonesty. 'Integrity cannot be divided. If high standards of conduct are expected of students, colleges must have impeccable integrity themselves. Otherwise, the lessons of the 'hidden curriculum' will shape the undergraduate experience," Boyer says.

The study by the foundation suggests that presidents of universities and colleges begin to say publicly what they acknowledge privately: that big-time sports are out of control.

The report says that campus leaders can meet with each other and agree to a process of cutting back expenditures for recruitment and training, and they can continue to get involved in NCAA deliberations.

"By reaching agreements within various conferences, we can begin scaling back on the commitment to big-time athletics, without individual schools' jeopardizing their public standing," the report says.

Boards of trustees have critical roles to play, Boyer says. "When a president who wants to fire a coach is told by trustees that his own job is jeopardized if he acts, it seems apparent that the integrity of the institution has been lost."

Scandals may be the exceptions, the report noted, but even on campuses that live by the rules, "we found that sports frequently dominate the schedule. Class time, term papers, research in the library—all of these are sacrificed for practice, for travel and for games."

"On too many campuses, the issue is money, not school spirit. Undergraduate athletes are used as fodder for a competitive machine that pleases the alumni and corporate boosters but violates the integrity of the college and has little, if anything, to do with education."

"In 1929, the Carnegie Foundation prepared a report entitled 'American College Athletics,'" Boyer writes. "It revealed that higher education, almost 60 years ago, was being poisoned by a corrupt and corrupting system."

"The words of this report are as apt today as in 1929. If the situation has changed, it has been for the worse."

"Colleges teach values to students by the standards they set for themselves. But we believe real reform will come only when a wave of moral indignation sweeps the campuses," the report says.

"Travel restrictions will, of course, force officials to be largely regionalized. But that doesn't mean they have to be assigned to one conference. Move them around and keep them from becoming too familiar. Also, make them spend their off days studying their mistakes rather than working full-time jobs elsewhere."

"I think the major reason is the academic requirements at the major institutions. Years ago, there'd be some great players coming out of NAIA schools. But over the years, it became easier (academically) to get into the major colleges, so a lot of kids would end up at major schools who in the past would have gone to NAIA schools."

"But the pendulum might swing back to the NAIA because of the new academic requirements. There are some great athletes who aren't able to predict (because of Proposition 48), so maybe they'll start going back to the small schools."

NCAA legislation adds to problem

To the Editor:

Passage of legislation dealing with recruiting aids and media guides at the 1987 NCAA Convention has only complicated the problems faced by college sports information directors.

A great deal of confusion has existed for some time over the rules and interpretations dealing with sports publications, posters and press releases, and the recently passed legislation does little to solve these problems.

During the 1986 CoSIDA workshop, it was agreed that a committee be assigned the task of reviewing present legislation and conducting a survey to determine what can be done to reduce the volume and costs of recruiting materials permitted under present rules. The NCAA Legislation Liaison Committee's work is even more important now.

We are prepared to work with and through the NCAA Communications Committee in recommending a sane approach in supplying recruiting aids and materials that many in our profession feel have gotten out of hand in recent years.

The rules restricting multicolor media guides and recruiting brochures are a step in the right direction. However, sizable budgets previously set aside for recruiting brochures now will be diverted to publishing lavish four-color, illustrated recruiting inserts in football and basketball game programs each week since these publications are permitted to be mailed to prospective student-athletes.

Consequently, prospective athletes will receive five or six programs throughout the football season with a different recruiting-material insert each week. Just wait until you see what hybrid publications evolve as a result of this new legislation.

Crum proposes changes in selection of teams for basketball tournament

By Hal Bock

Denny Crum thinks there ought to be a better way to pick the field for the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

And, burned by the selection committee that left his defending champion Louisville Cardinals home, Crum offers two alternatives: a computer or a ballroom-sized meeting room.

"Let the software do it," he said. "Feed every score, who you played, where you played them and come up with 64 teams that way. Or, if you want to stay with automatic bids to conference champions, then let the computer pick the 35 at-large teams."

Failing that, Crum thinks every conference in the country ought to have a representative on the selection committee to prevent the suggestion that special interests interfere.

"Right now, it's picked subjectively by nine people with nine special interests. It doesn't give everybody a fair shot. Human biases, prejudices, politics and friendships can be involved, even if it's unconsciously. The committee shouldn't be in that position. I know they work hard with honorable, good intentions. But it shouldn't be that way, not with so much money involved. We need to re-evaluate the whole process and change the rules. My intention is to see that we get it changed."

Here's one of Crum's proposed revisions:

"Every four years, they ought to evaluate how individual conferences have done. If your conference never won a tournament game, you ought to lose any chance for at-large spots. Why let somebody in whose conference is not nearly as good as another one?"

Louisville's Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference has produced Final Four teams in five of the last six years, with two national champions. When Memphis State, a school on probation and ineligible for the tournament, beat Louisville by 23 points for the title, it left Crum's team with an 18-14 record and put the selection committee on the spot.

"The conference made a bad decision letting Memphis play in the tournament," Crum said. "But money wags the tail, not principle. Memphis brings about 5,000 or 6,000 people to the tournament at $40 to $60 a head, and it all goes to the conference office. The conference made a bad decision and the NCAA committee made another bad decision."

"It was a close call," said Richard D. Schultz, the Division I Men's Basketball Committee chair. "We give every team careful consideration. There is a value to strength of schedule and that was to Louisville's credit. The most damaging thing was, according to our numbers and records, they had a lot of big losses."

Louisville lost decisively on the road to Syracuse, Purdue, UCLA and Washington, and at home to Kentucky, beaten by 34 points for the worst defeat in the Crum era. Those one-sided losses and the last game wipeout by Memphis State outweighed the Cardinals' 8-4 finish in the minds of the selection committee.

"It's not a perfect process," said Schultz, athletics director at Virginia. "Any group of nine individuals will have the same 55 to 57 teams. Five or six people will be all over the ballpark after that, using the same information. Integrity is there. People are not allowed to give information on their own teams or their own conferences. The process is as objective as it can be."

That seemed to be directed at Crum's suggestion that the presence on the selection committee of James L. Delany, commissioner of the Ohio Valley Conference, helped the OVC's Middle Tennessee State win a bid, perhaps at Louisville's expense.

"I sympathize with Denny," Schultz continued. "If anybody can come up with a foolproof system, we'd be happy to look at it. I don't think any of us feel the process is set in cement. We try to refine it every year."

Does Schultz like the computer idea? "If you agree on what information to read into it and the values to place on the various information, nobody would argue. The service Denny quotes plugs in differential scores. The NCAA computer does not."

"If somebody comes up with a formula that everybody would be happy with and one that is fair, nobody would argue," Schultz said. "To say, 'Let's come up with a formula,' is easy. To do it is difficult."

John Carroll team overcomes late start, bad luck

A late start this season did not seem to bother John Carroll University's men's basketball team in its quest for a successful campaign.

Despite missing the first week of practice last November to paint a hospital (The NCAA News, November 20) and overcoming a number of injuries and academic problems, the Blue Streaks finished the season with a 15-9 record and a second consecutive Presidents Athletic Conference championship.

Four starters were lost to injuries or academic problems during the first week of January when the team was 4-2. Only two of the injured were able to return to the lineup and only for the last couple of games of the season.

When misfortune struck, coach Tim Baab kept his wits and changed his offense to suit the talents of those who were left. Abandoning the run-and-gun style, the team slowed its pace to a half-court game and utilized the shot clock as much as possible. Only one player finished with double-figure scoring, but the overall effort was good for a 9-3 conference finish and the title.

Off-season conditioning classes

As set forth in O.I.s 304, 305 and 306 (pages 79-80, 1986-87 NCAA Manual), regular physical education classes, with or without credit, that are listed in the institution's catalog and open to all students shall not be construed to be a practice activity. In addition, it is permissible for a member of the athletics staff (including a football coach) to conduct a physical education class for students of the institution, provided attendance of any intercollegiate football players shall be on a voluntary basis, classes are open to any student of the institution, and the class hours and programs have been publicized in appropriate publications and/or on the proper bulletin boards of the institution. Sessions shall be limited to a total of eight hours per week.

In addition, no football equipment may be used, including football shoes; teaching of football fundamentals or techniques shall be prohibited; no instruction in football shall be permitted (this prohibition includes walking through offensive or defensive plays); showing of football movies for instruction shall be prohibited, and blocking dummies, machines, sleds and like equipment shall not be used; contact and combative activities or drills of any kind shall be prohibited; class or activity sessions shall be conducted only in areas in which normal physical education activities or student recreation courses are conducted, and organization of participants in the class or program, as well as any activities conducted therein, based upon player position(s) or offensive or defensive units shall be prohibited.

Practice activities—meetings

The NCAA Administrative Committee has reviewed the application of O.I. 302 (page 79, 1986-87 NCAA Manual), which defines "practice" as any meeting, activity or instruction held at the direction of, or supervised by, any member or members of an institution's coaching staff. The committee agreed that the application of O.I. 302 should be limited to those meetings or activities that have an athletics purpose; i.e., any team meeting in which coaching philosophy, techniques or other sports-related information is discussed would be considered a practice activity under that interpretation, but a meeting conducted solely to discuss such issues as drug education or academic counseling, or the introduction of a new coaching staff member, would not be considered practice.

Practice activities—Bylaw 5-1-(j)

The NCAA Council has confirmed that a student who is ineligible for practice under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j) may not attend or participate in any manner (e.g., as a team manager) in organized athletics practice activities, regardless of whether the student received athletically related financial aid under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(2).

The Council has noted that such a student may participate in academic activities sponsored by the institution's athletics department, including study halls, tutoring and academic counseling. In addition, it has been determined that such an individual may participate in conditioning, physical fitness or weight-lifting activities if those activities are not supervised by any coach, with the exception of the institution's "strength" coach, provided such activities do not involve arrangements that would be defined as "practice" under the provisions of O.I. 302, 303, 304, 305 or 306.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

institution to publish one annual athletics recruiting brochure (one color) per sport.

To restrict what institutions may provide to the media on the grounds of curtailing printing costs is one thing. But to turn around and permit institutions to publish up to 35 recruiting brochures is to defeat the goal of trying to curtail printing and publishing costs in the first place.

It might be a good idea to let those who understand printing and publishing formulate some workable guidelines. The CoSIDA committee will work toward this end.

Minor sports can hold their own

To the Editor:

I was very much interested in Bucky Waters' comments in the February 25 issue of The NCAA News.

As a minor-sport coach (golf), I'm disturbed about how much our sport costs the school.

How about in the long run, though, when minor-sports graduates donate more money to a school than all of a school's players in a professional sport?

If we are accepting alms, how about Bucky? He does three to four games on television from December 1 to March 1. When he is away from Duke, does he refuse his check?

Let's be honest. Minor sports never were meant to make money. We pay professors $30,000 to $40,000 a year to teach maybe 100 students. We don't prorate them on the number of students in class.

Come on, Bucky. There is more to college life than just basketball and football.

Good institutions should be honored

To the Editor:

Using Southern Methodist University as an example, the NCAA has spoken emphatically and rather forcefully, signaling a new posture in the enforcement of rules and a steadfast intolerance for continued abuses in intercollegiate athletics. But what action is being taken about continued academic/educational abuses?

Like it or not, through the adoption of Proposition 48 [Bylaw 5-1-(j)], the NCAA has entered the academic arena and should use some of its mammoth influence to eradicate educational abuses with equal zeal and attention.

The NCAA would be off to an excellent start by developing a system of recognition or reward for institutions that manage miraculously to educate, graduate, win and, above all, accomplish these objectives playing by NCAA rules; hardly a minor feat.

Director of Academic Advising
Montclair State College

(Editor's Note: The NCAA is considering the feasibility of a program to honor member institutions that excel in those categories mentioned by the writer, among others.)

Tournament scoring is above season's average

By James M. VanValkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

This 49th NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship is the first one to use the three-point field goal, so the effects of the much-discussed 21-footer are bound to be a big part of the story.

Most of the teams in the Sweet 16 used the three-pointer more often and with greater accuracy in the tournament than they had in the regular season, but it seldom provided the margin of victory.

Tournament scoring is showing a healthy increase, and scoring would be up even without the three-pointer. Tournament scoring is well above the national figure entering postseason, and tournament three-point accuracy is well above the national figure entering postseason.

More about all that later. First, how about a tip of the hat to the low-seeded underdogs from the maligned, seldom-seen (on television) Division I conferences. A year ago, Kevin Mackey, a street-smart Bostonian, led Cleveland State, an at-large team from the Association of Mid-Continent Universities, to an upset of Indiana and a spot in the Sweet 16 before a 71-70 loss to Navy in the regional semifinals. And Arkansas-Little Rock of the Trans America Athletic Conference upset Notre Dame and took North Carolina State into overtime. Mackey called his team "the off-Broadway guys who have been watching the prime-time guys on television and eating their hearts out."

The dancing Bears

This time, it is homespun Charlie Spoonhour, 46, an Arkansas native and graduate of tiny School of the one-pointer to Auburn. Georgia Southern, fourth-place team and post-season tournament champion in the Trans America, took Syracuse to the final minutes, 79-73. Wyoming, by the way, was third in the Western Athletic Conference, while Louisiana State was sixth in the Southeastern Conference but a close second to Alabama in the postseason tournament.

Only eight of the 16 teams seeded first, second, third or fourth in the four regionals are in the Sweet 16. A year ago, only seven survived the first two rounds. Wyoming, seeded 12th, and Louisiana State, 10th, are the lowest seeds in the Sweet 16 this time.

In all, the underdog in the seeding won 14 times in the first two rounds, same total as last year. It is a big

Billy Donovan, top scorer

(21), with this its seventh consecutive year in the Sweet 16. Indiana and Notre Dame are each making it for the 14th time, and this is Kansas' 13th time. DePaul is making its 11th trip, Syracuse and Wyoming their ninth, Duke its eighth; LSU its seventh; Iowa, Nevada-Las Vegas, Oklahoma and Georgetown their sixth and Alabama its fifth. Sweet 16 leaders who did not make it this time include Kansas State (15), Louisville (15), Villanova (13) Ohio State (12), San Francisco (12), Utah (12), Houston (11) and Marquette (11), plus Kentucky and UCLA, mentioned above.

Indiana leads the current field in championships at four, then North Carolina with two. North Carolina leads in Final Four trips at nine, with Kansas next at seven, then Duke and Indiana five each.

Conference leaders

The Big East Conference, 8-2 in the tournament, and the Southeastern Conference, 7-3, each have three teams in the Sweet 16. Next with two teams each are the 5-2 Big Eight Conference, the 7-4 Big Ten Conference, the 4-4 Atlantic Coast Conference and the independents, 5-1 in tournament play (their best showing in several years). The other two entrants come from the 3-2 Western Athletic Conference and the 2-0 Pacific Coast Athletic Association. These seven conferences and the independents have all the Sweet 16 teams and are 41-18 in the tournament. All others are 7-30.

The three-point story

The thirteen teams in Sweet 16 are shooting higher from three-point range in the tournament than they did for the entire season entering the tournament (all but Nevada-Las Vegas, Duke and DePaul). That is not surprising, since it is an accuracy game and winners usually shoot better. There is more. Eleven teams shot the three-pointer more often in the tournament than they did for the season entering the NCAA tourney. Some of the differences are dramatic, with LSU, North Carolina and Georgetown leading the list.

Not content with using his "freak" defense, LSU coach Dale Brown has adopted the three-point bomb for tournament play. His team is shooting 13.5 three-pointers per game vs. 4.5 per game entering the tournament—a three-fold increase. North Carolina is trying 18.5 per game vs. 13.2 going in and Georgetown 15.5 vs. 11.6.

The percentage increases are dramatic, too, in some cases. Alabama is shooting 72.7 from three-point range in the tournament vs. 43.4 coming in, Wyoming 60 vs. 39.8, Notre Dame 53.3 vs. 33, LSU 51.9 vs. 40.5 before the tournament. North Carolina is shooting 48.6 vs. 44.4, Georgetown 45.2 vs. 36.9, Indiana 56.3 vs. 51, Oklahoma 50 vs. 41.5. Kansas and Syracuse do not use it much, but their accuracy is way up.

Providence and Nevada-Las Vegas ranked 1-2 in most three-pointers made in all of Division I entering the tournament. Both are shooting more of them in the tournament. Providence is now making 10.5 and shooting 44.6, up slightly. Nevada-Las Vegas is making 7.5, as its accuracy has been only 34.1 in the tournament vs. 40.4 for the season. North Carolina at 9.0 and Alabama at 8.0 rank 2-3 in most made in the tournament.

Three-pointers provided the actual winning margin in five tourney games—Austin Peay over Illinois, New Orleans over Brigham Young, Georgetown over Ohio State, Notre Dame over Texas Christian and Kansas State over Georgia. It was a major factor several times. As a group, the Sweet 16 is shooting 47.2 from 21 feet vs. 41.2 entering the tournament and making 5.6 of 11.8 vs. 4.3 of 10.4 going in. The national Division I figures entering the tournament show 38.6 percent accuracy for all games involving at least one Division I team, with 3.46 of 9.00 per team per game. Scoring is up Tournament scoring is averaging 153.4 per game, both teams combined, with 48 games played and 15 to go. A year ago, it was 142.8 at this stage and ended up at 143. Without the three-point shot, the tournament average would still be 144.1. All tournament three-pointers have averaged 4.62 of 11.23 per game per team with 41.2 accuracy—well above the national figures mentioned above. National scoring was at 145.3 going into the tournament—the second straight year tourney scoring has topped national figures.

In the 1970s, tourney scoring consistently topped national scoring, but that was not true in the 1980s, until the advent of the shot clock a year ago, which produced a jump of 15.6 per game over the 127.4 average in the 1985 tournament. This tournament also has produced 48.7 percent accuracy from the field and 71.7 at the line, well above the national figures of 46.6 and 68.6 entering the tournament. It appears the combination of the clock and three-pointer is opening things up. More evidence: There have been six 100-point games by the winning team so far. That is a record, topping the five in 1975 (of course, there were 32 teams in 1975 vs. 64 now). Five of the six 100-point games have been produced by teams in the Sweet 16.

Individual leaders

Eighteen players in the Sweet 16 are averaging at least 20 points per game. Billy Donovan of Providence leads the list at 30 per game, followed by Wyoming's Fennis Dembo at 28.5, Kansas' Danny Manning at 27, Florida's Vernon Maxwell 26, Alabama's Derrick McKey and Notre Dame's David Rivers both 25.5, Alabama's Jim Farmer 24 and three at 22.5—LSU's Darryl Joe, Georgetown's Reggie Williams and Syracuse's Rony Seikaly. Four more are at 22—Syracuse's Sherman Douglas, Iowa's Roy Marble, Indiana's Steve Alford and DePaul's Dallas Comegys. Wyoming's Eric Leckner is at 21, DePaul's Rod Strickland and Indiana's Daryl Thomas both 20.5 and Oklahoma's Tim McCalister 20. North Carolina has no tourney 20-pointers, but four players between 17 and 19—J. R. Reid, Kenny Smith, Jeff Lebo and Joe Wolf. Duke's top tourney scorer is Tommy Amaker at 16.5.

Oklahoma's Harvey Grant is the top rebounder at 12.5, with Indiana's Rick Calloway at 10.5 and Leckner and Armon Gilliam of Nevada-Las Vegas both at 10. Gilliam's teammate Mark Wade leads in assists at 11 per game, with Manning's teammate Cedric Hunter next at 9. In field-goal accuracy, it is Marble 70.8, McKey 69.2, LSU's Joe and Duke's Amaker both 68.4 (minimum 10 made). In three-point shooting (minimum six made), Joe and Farmer lead at 75 percent each, with Alford at 69.2, Donovan and Alabama's Mark Gottfried both 66.7, and McCalister 54.4 (remember, this includes only players on Sweet 16 teams).

13 repeaters in Sweet 16

The Sweet 16 field for this sixth NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship looks quite familiar. Thirteen teams are repeaters from last season's Sweet 16. Four are in the round of 16 for the sixth consecutive year. They are Southern California, a two-time champion (1983 and 1984), Louisiana Tech, the 1982 champion, plus Tennessee and Long Beach

See Tournament, page 12

Basketball notes

Ozarks who led Southwest Missouri State to its first Division I tournament. When the Bears, an at-large selection from the same Mid-Continent, were chosen, he said, "A lot of teams would just be thrilled to be going to the dance. We're fixin' to dance with somebody."

His 13th-seeded team, 28-6, ousted 25-6 Clemson of the Atlantic Coast Conference, 65-60, then took another 25-game winner, Kansas of the Big Eight Conference, down to the wire before losing, 67-63.

That upset of Clemson was just one of six so far in the tournament in which the winner was at least seven places below in the seeding. The biggest of them all involved Austin Peay, fourth-place team and postseason tournament champion of the Ohio Valley Conference, seeded 14th, over third-seeded Illinois, 68-67. Lake Kelly's team then took Providence into overtime before losing, 90-87.

That tied Austin Peay with Cleveland State and Arkansas-Little Rock, the two 14-over-3 cases mentioned above, for the biggest tournament upsets of the 1980s. Another big one was produced by Pete Gillen's Xavier (Ohio) team, third-place team and postseason tournament champion of the Midwestern Collegiate Conference. Seeded 13th in the Midwest regional, Xavier knocked off fourth-seeded Missouri, the Big Eight champion, 70-69, then took Duke down to the closing seconds before losing, 65-60.

The other three involving at least seven places in the seeding were Wyoming (12) over Virginia (5), Wyoming (12) over UCLA (4) and Louisiana State (10) over Temple (2).

There were seven such upsets in the 1986 tournament, six in the 1985, for 19 in the last three years, compared to just 10 for the first five years of the 1980s combined.

The six big ones are just part of the 1987 underdog story. San Diego, regular-season champion of the West Coast Athletic Conference, lost a country and there are a lot of gifted players, outstanding teams and smart coaches out there.

All four No. 1 seeds survive

In spite of the upsets, all four No. 1 seeds reached the Sweet 16. They are 35-1 Nevada-Las Vegas, 31-3 North Carolina, 26-4 Indiana and 28-4 Georgetown. In addition, three No. 2 seeds survived—28-4 Alabama, 29-4 Iowa and 28-6 Syracuse—and one No. 3 seed—28-2 DePaul.

The lowest-ranked survivor is 12th seeded Wyoming, followed by 10th-seeded Louisiana State. LSU reached the Final Four a year ago as an 11th-seeded team (meaning 40 teams were seeded above it). That made LSU the lowest-ranked team in history to reach the Final Four. Wyoming could break that record by reaching the Final Four this time.

In the 1980s, 43 teams seeded below the top 16 have reached the Sweet 16, but only eight of these, or 18.6 percent, reached the Final Four. Two of the eight won the championship—sixth-seeded North Carolina State in 1983 and eighth-seeded Villanova in 1985. Of the 69 Sweet 16 teams in the 1980s seeded in the top 16, a total of 20 reached the Final Four, or 29 percent, and five won the championship.

Two never in Final Four

Two of the current Sweet 16—Alabama and Florida—have never reached the Final Four. In fact, Florida had never been in the tournament before. This is Wyoming's ninth time in the Sweet 16 but first since 1967. Providence is making its fourth trip to the Sweet 16 but first since 1974. All others have been in the Sweet 16 at least once in the 1980s.

Seven are repeaters from 1986—Duke, DePaul, Kansas, LSU, North Carolina, Alabama and Nevada-Las Vegas. Oklahoma and Georgetown last made it in 1985, Indiana and Syracuse in 1984, Iowa in 1983, and Notre Dame in 1981.

This is North Carolina's 16th trip to the Sweet 16, a total outranked only by Kentucky (29) and UCLA

Iowa's Roy Marble has top field-goal percentage

Repeat victories help Arkansas men defend their track title

Arkansas defended individual championships in the same three events it won in 1986 and captured its fourth consecutive team title in the NCAA Men's Division I Indoor Track Championships.

The Razorbacks edged Southwest Conference rival Southern Methodist, 39-31, in the NCAA meet March 13-14 at The Myriad Center in Oklahoma City.

Roddie Haley retained the 500-meter crown he won a year ago, Joe Falcon captured the 3,000-meter title (an event that Arkansas' Paul Donovan won last year) and Arkansas produced a record-setting performance in the 3,200-meter relay to spring the Razorbacks to the team title.

SMU's Lars Nilsen won the shot put event, and the Mustangs captured the 1,600-meter relay. Additionally, Kevin Robinzine finished second in the 500; and Greg West and Roy Hix were fifth and sixth, respectively, in the pole vault.

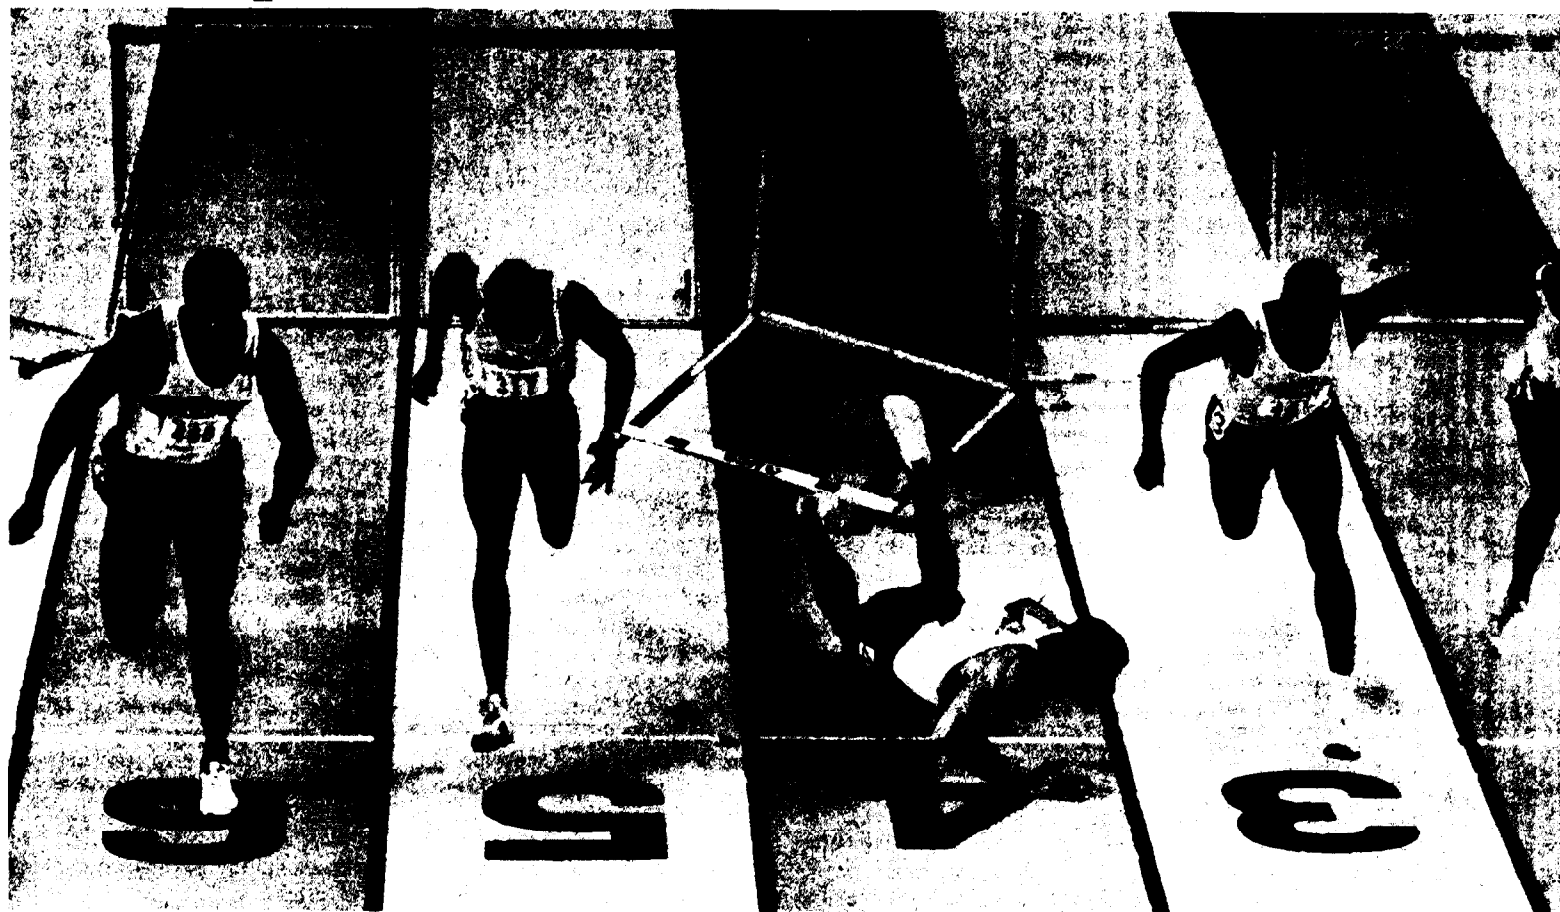

But it wasn't enough for the Mustangs to catch Arkansas, which also finished second in the 1,600-meter relay and sixth in the mile run on Sean O'Neill's performance.

Indiana, McNeese State and Georgetown tied for third in the meet with 16 points.

Louisiana State women run away with team track crown

Louisiana State used two first-place finishes and its overall team depth to outdistance Tennessee, 49-30, and capture the NCAA Division I Women's Indoor Track Championship team title.

The Tigers scored in seven of the 12 events to win their first-ever indoor title in the March 13-14 meet at The Myriad Center in Oklahoma City.

Sheila Echols won the long jump and finished third in the 55-meter hurdles to pace the Tigers individually. LSU also won the 1,600-meter relay and finished second in the 3,200-meter relay.

Tennessee, meet runner-up in 1983 and 1984, won the 55-meter hurdles on Lavonna Martin's performance. Ilrey Oliver, the defending 500-meter champion, finished second; and Alisa Harvey was second in the 1,000. The Lady Volunteers also finished fourth in the 1,600-meter relay.

Also scoring for LSU were Schowanda Williams, fourth in the 500; Kym Carter, third in the high jump; Claire Connor, sixth in the long jump, and Teresa Williford, fourth in the shot put.

Villanova, with a first-place finish in the 3,000 by Vicki Huber, was third in the team standings with 24 points; and Arizona and Texas tied for fourth with 22 points.

St. Augustine men run away with Division II track crown

Even without coach Goerge Williams on hand, St. Augustine's rolled to an easy victory at the Division II Men's Indoor Track Championships March 13-14 in Fargo, North Dakota.

Williams, in Europe with the U.S. national team, missed seeing both his men's and women's teams claim national titles.

"I'm real proud of them," said assistant coach Roy Ector. "We came here to do a job, and we did a job."

The Mighty Falcon men's team scored 74 points to only 38 for runner-up Mount St. Mary's. Southeast Missouri State and Northwest Missouri State tied for third with 26 each.

St. Augustine's got a record-setting performance from senior Tyrone Harrell, who broke the meet record in the 400-meter dash. Teammate Trevor Graham was second.

Also winning for the Mighty Falcons were Derrick Knowles in the 55-meter hurdles and the 1,600-meter relay team.

Twin brothers Charles and Kip Cheruiyot both claimed meet records for Mount St. Mary's. Charles trimmed a full eight seconds off the mark in the 5,000-meter run, while Kip edged his brother to break the record in the 1,500.

Records also fell to Marc McFadden of Lincoln (Missouri) in the shot put and to Kutztown's Michael Cantrel in the pole vault. Stan Oporski of Cal State Los Angeles tied the triple jump mark.

St. Augustine women make it a clean sweep in team titles

It was as if St. Augustine could hardly wait to get started in the Division II Women's Indoor Track Championships March 13-14 at North Dakota State.

The Lady Falcons, champions at the meet's last incarnation in 1985 and favored again this winter, placed four competitors among the top five finishers in the first final event and never trailed. St. Augustine's took 22 points into the second day of competition and finished with 73.

Hampton, with strong sprinting offered the Lady Falcons the strongest challenge and finished with 62 points. New York Tech totaled 35 and Southeast Missouri State 33.

St. Augustine's claimed three titles in the field events. Regina Hawkins won that first event, the long jump, with Ann Hall, Shirley Scipio and Tangela Newsome also finishing strong. Hawkins also finished second to Hall in the triple jump.

Ellorine Morris won the shot put for the Lady Falcons and Kim Scott the 55-meter hurdles.

Hampton's Vivienne Spence broke the meet record in the 400-meter dash in the preliminaries and shattered it again in the finals. Teammate Eldece Clarke captured the 55 meters and the Lady Pirates also won the 1,600-meter relay.

Meet records also fell to Navy's Carol Womack in the 800 meters and to Kentucky State's Hyacinth Robinson in the high jump.

Indians have a 'field day' and win men's track meet

While everyone else went to the track meet, Wisconsin-LaCrosse was having a field day.

The Indians scored all but two of their points in field events to edge St. Lawrence, 44½-43, in the NCAA Division III Men's Indoor Track Championships March 13-14 at the University of Chicago.

The two points that Ketil Hansen scored for fifth place in the 1,500-meter run proved to be decisive for the Indians, who were paced by Terry Strouf's record-setting championship performances in the shot put and 35-pound weight throw and Evan Perkins' repeat win in the triple jump.

St. Lawrence's Tim McCrossen set a new meet record to win the 400-meter dash, and Jukka Tammisuo won the 1,500-meter run. Teammate Jarri Kuiski was third in the 1,500, and St. Lawrence got points from Marty Dumoulin's sixth in the 5,000, Rich Wright's third in the 35-pound weight throw, Chris Dunlay's fourth in the shot and a third in the 1,600 relay.

Wisconsin-LaCrosse scored 18 points in the triple jump. In addition to Perkins' effort, Chris Schumaucher was third and Eric Keller was fifth. Bruce Nelson finished fourth in the pole vault, and Mike Wolf tied for sixth in the high jump.

Frostburg State, the defending champion, finished third with 36 points.

Beacon women repeat as track champions

It was no surprise that Massachusetts-Boston repeated as team champion in the NCAA Division III Women's Indoor Track Championships March 13-14 at the University of Chicago.

The surprise may have been how hard Christopher Newport pushed the defending champion. The Lady Captains from Newport News, Virginia, captured three first-place finishes to chase the Beacons to a 56-52 finish.

The Beacons also had individual championships from Mortunda Durant in the 400-meter dash; Genesis Eddins, the defending champion in the 800, and their 1,600-meter relay team. Team depth made the difference for Boston, which has won all three Division III indoor titles, with the Beacons scoring one more individual than Christopher Newport.

Lisa Dillard set the pace for the Lady Captains. She won both the 55-meter dash and the long jump. The other individual title came from Claudia Stanley in the shot put. Christopher Newport was second in the relay event.

The nearest team to the two leaders was Wisconsin-LaCrosse in third place with 25 points.

Roadrunners cruise to men's swimming victory

Placing three swimmers in the championship finals of the first event, Cal State Bakersfield took an early lead and cruised to an easy victory in the Division II Men's Swimming and Diving Championships March 11-14 at Long Beach, California.

It was the second straight championship for the Roadrunners under coach Pete Accardy.

Cal State Bakersfield totaled 479½ points to Oakland's 246. Cal State Northridge, the all-time leader in Division II swimming titles, was third with 237½.

The Roadrunners compiled their points in quiet fashion, placing at least one competitor in the championship finals in every swimming event. The champions also won all three relays.

The leading scorer for Cal State Bakersfield was junior Bartt Frey, who won the 200-yard freestyle as well as swimming in all three relays. Juniors Todd McMurdo and Sabeni Sudiono turned in a strong showing on the third day, finishing first and second in the 100-yard butterfly.

Sophomore Richard Graves accounted for the Roadrunners' other victory, winning the 200-yard freestyle.

Cal State Northridge's Jeff Kubiak was the meet's top individual performer, breaking his own meet records in both the 200-yard individual medley and the 200-yard breast stroke. The Matador senior, who won three events in 1986, also finished second in the 100 breast stroke at the Belmont Plaza Pool.

Also posting a double victory was George LaNoue of Shippensburg, winner in the 50- and 100-yard freestyles.

Matador women swim past Clarion for title in II

Paced by double victories from three sophomores, Cal State Northridge took the Division II women's swimming title from defending champion Clarion March 11-14 at Long Beach, California.

The Matadors scored 349 points to Clarion's 274. Tampa (260), Northern Michigan (247½) and Army (207) rounded out the top five.

Clarion had won three championships in four years after Cal State Northridge captured the first Division II women's crown in 1982.

Tina Schnare repeated as champion in both the 100- and 200-yard breast strokes, while Stacy Mettam did the same in both backstroke events. Jude Kylander captured the 50- and 100-yard freestyles.

Xiao Xia Chen added the three-meter diving title for Cal State Northridge, which also won the 400-yard medley relay.

But the top individual performance at Long Beach belonged to Florida Atlantic's Laurence Bensimon, who tied the Division II record by winning four events. The Owl junior captured the freestyle events at 200, 500 and 1,650 yards and added a victory in the 200-yard butterfly.

The only other double winner was Kristen Wheeler of UC Davis in the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard butterfly.

Clarion, on the strength of depth in the 50-yard freestyle and Doria Marmalo's victory on the one-meter board, took the lead on the opening day of the meet. But consecutive victories by Mettam, Schnare and Chen on the second day gave the Matadors a lead they would never relinquish.

Kenyon women dominate Division III swimming

Kenyon dominated the field and won a fourth straight Division III women's swimming team title at the 1987 NCAA championships March 12-14 in Canton, Ohio.

The Ladies controlled the final day of competition by winning five of seven events. A total of 11 meet records were set at this year's meet.

Kenyon's total score of 659—second highest in the history of the meet—outdistanced the combined score of the second- and third-place teams.

State.

Four teams are making the Sweet 16 for the fifth time in the six-year history. They are Old Dominion, the 1985 champion; Texas, the defending champion; Mississippi, and Georgia. Old Dominion missed only in 1986, while Texas, Mississippi and Georgia are making it a fifth consecutive season. All but Old Dominion are repeaters from 1986.

Auburn and North Carolina are making it for the fourth time, Ohio State for the third time, and James Madison and Rutgers both for the second time. All but North Carolina State are repeaters.

That leaves three teams making the Sweet 16 for the first time. They are Virginia, Iowa and Southern Illinois. That brings to 37 the total number of Division I teams making the round of 16 in the first six years.

Three teams from the 1986 final four are on hand now—Texas, Ten-

Gamecocks donate to libraries

The athletics department at the University of South Carolina has donated more than $500,000 to the university libraries for the purchase of materials to add to the libraries' collections.

Kenneth E. Toombs, director of university libraries, said that bookplates denoting the gift will be placed in several thousand new volumes "so that present and future generations here at Carolina will be reminded of this generous donation."

The money, totalling $504,000, was earned by the Gamecocks' football program for two appearances on ESPN during the 1986 season.

Toombs said he believes the donation is perhaps the largest single gift the libraries have received in their 185-year history.

nessee and Southern California. And the current field has 14 members of past final-four fields, or 70 percent. Southern California, Louisiana Tech and Tennessee have made three trips each to the final four, Old Dominion and Georgia two each and Texas one. Long Beach State finished second in its regional three times—1983, 1984 and 1985 (missing the final four by one game).

Attendance up

Attendance is up more than 12 percent over last year's tournament at this stage, and a record total is a good possibility. The current total is 56,574 for 24 games, an average of 2,357 per game. At this stage a year ago, the total was 50,485, or 2,103 per game. That means average attendance is running 254 per game above last year's pace, an increase of 12.1 percent.

The record total of 98,569 was set in 1984. That means an average of 4,200 per session for the remaining 10 sessions is needed to break the record. That is within reach, particularly if Texas' defending champions reach the final four, to be held in Austin on their home court. If that happens, the NCAA tournament record should fall. It is 10,064 on March 22, 1986, for the Midwest regional finals (Texas won over Mississippi, 66-63). The largest 1987 crowds so far were at Texas [Texas 86, St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) 56 before 7,345 spectators], at Tennessee (5,998 to see Tennessee 95, Tennessee Tech 59), at Iowa (4,960 came to see Iowa win over New Orleans, 68-46) and at Rutgers (4,034 saw Rutgers 78, Duke 64).

Receipts may hit $1 million

Gross receipts for the 40-team 1987 tournament may reach $1 million for the first time, topping last year's $992,519. That is nearly triple the receipts for the first tournament in 1982, which totaled $360,556.

Attendance for the first tournament in 1982—a 32-team affair—totaled 56,320. That already has been surpassed this year (56,574), with the regionals and final four yet to come.

Absence of drug-testing program helped McLain in avoiding detection

Gary McLain, the sparkplug guard on Villanova's 1985 NCAA Division I championship team, said he used cocaine during the Final Four that year and was high when the Wildcats visited the White House.

McLain detailed his drug dependency and subsequent rehabilitation in a first-person story in the March 16 edition of Sports Illustrated.

He said he was treated for drug abuse at the White Deer Treatment Center in Allenwood, Pennsylvania, last summer after he was fired from his Wall Street job.

In the article, McLain said coach Rollie Massimino confronted him twice about suspected drug use in 1984. The first time, McLain said, Massimino told him, "I hear you're on cocaine, or selling it. If I find out, you're gone."

McLain said he managed to escape detection because players never were given a urinalysis.

McLain, 23, said he used cocaine before several Wildcat games, including the 1985 NCAA semifinal against Memphis State in Lexington, Kentucky.

"I had played well on coke, I had played bad on it," he said in the story, written with Jeffrey Marx of the Lexington Herald-Leader. "It didn't seem to matter. So I did about a quarter gram of blow before the national semifinal in the bathroom of room 135 of the Ramada Inn, about three miles from Rupp Arena."

"In the locker room I was all quiet and subdued," McLain said. "Everybody was saying, 'You all right? You all right?' I said, 'Yeah, I'm with it.' But in the meantime, I'd gotten it in my head that if we lost, it didn't matter. I just wanted the season to be over."

McLain scored nine points and had two assists as Villanova defeated Memphis State 52-45. The Wildcats then upset Georgetown 66-64 to win the national title, with McLain chipping in eight points and two assists.

Recalling the team's visit to the White House, McLain said, "I was standing in the Rose Garden, wired on cocaine."

"President Reagan was welcoming my teammates and me at the White House and giving his little speech about how inspirational our victory was. And the cocaine had me floating in my own private world."

McLain said he had strange thoughts while watching Reagan. "I was standing a couple of feet behind him, looking in his hair, thinking, this guy has more dandruff than your average man. Thinking thoughts like, I could push him in the head, just a little tap, and make news across the world. That's how high I was."

Massimino said McLain's revelations were the "most devastating thing that has happened to me in 30 years of coaching."

"I am crushed," he said. "I really, really am."

Phoenix Suns forward Ed Pinckney, a college teammate and roommate of McLain's, said he was shocked by the story of McLain's drug use.

"I really didn't know he had this problem," Pinckney said in an interview with the Associated Press from Boston. "The things I'm reading about don't sound like the person I knew."

McLain, who admits he smoked marijuana in high school on Long Island, said he wasn't the only basketball player at Villanova who got high.

"...Other guys on the team got high. We just had to watch ourselves... I would buy a nickel bag of pot here and there, a dime bag sometimes. My friends and I would smoke it up. Freshman year, I smoked alone quite a bit, too. It wouldn't be until my sophomore year that some of my teammates would smoke with me," he said.

McLain did not identify those teammates in the story.

Pinckney said he wasn't aware of any drug use by his Villanova teammates.

"We were like brothers," he said. "If that was going on, I would think coach Massimino would have brought it out in the open."

Bill would cut Federal funds if school's athletes are paid

Universities or colleges that knowingly permit illicit payments to athletes to induce them to play sports would lose all their Federal funds under legislation introduced March 17 by Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas.

Coming in the wake of the scandal at Southern Methodist University, the bill would also make it a criminal offense to pay or to authorize such payments to an athlete.

Penalties for violations could include a fine of up to $100,000 and a year in prison.

Bryant said the measure "will remove any doubt in the minds of boosters or college officials that they should immediately terminate any illicit compensation plans for athletes."

"It's time we told the over-the-hill gang of college boosters who live vicariously through the athletes that they pay that the game is over," said Bryant, whose congressional district covers parts of Dallas but not SMU. "And it's time we put an end to the illicit payment practices of the many other colleges and universities that have participated in these dishonest schemes in the past and may still be doing so today."

Bryant said no one believes that SMU, which was penalized by the NCAA, is the only university in the Southwest Athletic Conference or in the nation that has been part of such a scheme. "This new law makes it possible for all universities to eliminate any such ongoing program without apology or delay," he told the Associated Press.

are prepared to appeal the case to the California court of appeals," Gangwere said.

"The ball is in the NCAA's court," said Susan J. Harriman, a lawyer for LeVant. "If they (NCAA) don't appeal, the ruling will stand as a precedent in California. We're ready to go to trial," she told the Associated Press.

chaired that group during 1981 and 1982.

Among more than a dozen professional awards and honors Monroe has received is the Austin College distinguished alumnus award (1978), the Texas A&M Student Senate's outstanding administrator award (1975) and the El Paso Herald-Post's sportsman of the year award (1982).

Monroe has authored more than 20 articles and books on Southern U.S. history and has written a similar number of book reviews on the same subject.

Judge Stone's ruling was based on California's constitution, which has stricter standards protecting the rights of privacy than does the U.S. Constitution.

However, the NCAA continued to test student-athletes at its championships competition despite the ruling in the California court.

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers said, "We believe that the drug-testing program is properly designed to provide clean, equitable competition for student-athletes competing in NCAA championships and to test for those drugs that enhance performance or are potentially harmful to the health and safety of the student-athlete."

NCAA counsel Richard J. Archer told the court that LeVant and other athletes have no constitutional right to compete in NCAA events; and he said that if they choose to compete, they must conform to NCAA guidelines, including the drug-testing program.

purchase, and many institutions order copies for coaches, other staff members, campus athletics committee members and other representatives of athletics interests. The books cost $4 each for member institutions and organizations and $8 each for non-members.

A limited supply of "spiral-bound" Manuals (plastic comb binding) is available; those cost $6 per copy for members and $10 each for non-members.

This year's edition of the Manual contains 430 numbered pages, 19 more than the 1986-87 edition. Of that total, 171 pages are devoted to the constitution and bylaws (up eight from last year) and another 130 to the constitution and bylaws case book (up five). The remainder of the book presents the Association's executive regulations, special rules of order, recommended policies, enforcement procedure, consortium criteria, instructions to NCAA committees and the administrative-structure listing. That portion increased by six pages.

The only significant increase in the constitution and bylaws was in Bylaw 5, where additional space was needed to accommodate Division II's adoption of the Bylaw 5-1-(j) provisions.

NYSP administrators pay tribute to supporters in Congress

Project coordinators from the Eastern region of the National Youth Sports Program gathered in Washington, D.C., recently for activities that included a workshop, a Capitol Hill luncheon and presentation of awards to members of the House Appropriations Subcommittee.

NYSP personnel also visited local representatives to express appreciation for past support of the program, provide information on its goals and solicit continued backing.

The program is managed by the NCAA and funded by the Office of Community Services, Family Support Administration of the Department of Health and Human Services.

NYSP, providing sports instruction and enrichment programs for youth from disadvantaged backgrounds, requires only $109 per student each summer in Federal funding. The remainder of the funding is provided by universities and by private donations. The program is beginning its 19th year.

U.S. Reps. William H. Natcher, D-Kentucky, and C. W. "Bill" Young, R-Florida, of the subcommittee received plaques in recognition of their roles in restoring full funding for NYSP activities for 1987. Natcher serves as chair of the subcommittee.

Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, received his award at his home office in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

A fourth member, Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Massachusetts, will be recognized for his longtime support of NYSP at a future date.

The Eastern region workshop at Arlington, Virginia, reemphasized the program's theme of "shaping values and making lasting impressions." Some 140 project personnel attended, and service awards were presented to those active in NYSP for 10 and 15 years.

NYSP provides quality instruction in a variety of sports activities, and also presents education in substance abuse, nutrition and career opportunities. The program is targeted to serve 10- to 16-year-olds and is administered by the NCAA through two- and four-year institutions.

The NCAA also hosted a luncheon March 6 at the Cannon Office Building on Capitol Hill, with some 70 congressional staff members in attendance. A meal typical of those served by NYSP projects was provided by the University of the District of Columbia.

Multidivision

divisions to keep the status quo," said Robert Ducatte, athletics director at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, a Division III school that sponsors a Division I men's ice hockey team. "It seems to me the vote indicated people like things the way they are."

Another athletics director, Robert Scott of Johns Hopkins, agreed. "I would say that (Proposal 105) met with a strong number in opposition," said Scott, whose Division III school sponsors a Division I men's lacrosse team. "That was reassuring to me; it said there aren't that many people supportive of eliminating multidivision classification."

There were other indications of support as well. For example, another Ohio Athletic Conference proposal that would have prohibited Division II institutions from declaring eligibility for a Division III championship when no such championship exists in Division II was defeated, although a Council-sponsored measure was approved prohibiting Division II members from competing in a Division III championship when sufficient sponsorship exists for a Division II championship in the same sport.

Dennis Collins, executive director of the North Coast Athletic Conference, agreed that his conference and the OAC were "killed" in votes on their proposals at the Convention. "I think, politically, the issue is dead," he said.

"But philosophically, the issue is still there and will continue to be there."

Although the NCAC lost its battle at the Convention, Collins saw signs that the membership, while making clear its unwillingness to eliminate multidivision classification, also is reluctant to let it expand much further. He points to the approval of the Division II Men's and Women's Indoor Track Championships as a case in point, saying that the NCAA preferred paying for the championships over continuing to encourage Division II participation in Division III track.

If anything has changed since before the Convention, he acknowledged, it is that the debate over multidivision classification now will focus squarely on its impact on Division III football.

"The only quarrel anymore is with some of the Division I schools that play football in Division III," Collins said. "Division III schools going up to Division I isn't really a problem. We were getting an indication from some people in Division I before the Convention that they would support an even-handed approach to the problem involving both Divisions I and III, but that didn't ring true when the votes came out."

"I feel the real injury is from those Division I schools that choose to put all their efforts into a Division III program. If they want, they can have a great advantage."

For the Ohio Athletic Conference, the question has been "mostly a football issue" all along, said James W. Lessig, the conference's commissioner. He said that is why the OAC's proposal did not attempt to restrict Division III schools from fielding programs in the upper divisions.

"From the OAC's standpoint, I think this is an issue that will continue to be addressed at future Conventions," said Lessig, adding that the conference may try to "zero in" on the football question in the future.

"It's difficult for a school with 2,000 enrollment and a small stadium to compete against a school of 20,000 to 25,000 enrollment with nice facilities like a weight and training room that are attractive to recruits," he said.

Even boiled down to a football question, however, the problem remains sticky.

Several Division I institutions, claiming they cannot operate a football program in Division I, see multidivision classification as a "salvation," to use a word suggested by Thomas J. Frericks, NCAA secretary-treasurer and athletics director at the University of Dayton. Currently, 16 Division I schools compete in football at the Division III level, in addition to eight Division I schools that compete in the sport at the Division II level.

"We were faced with the same problem as many other I-AAA institutions—we just couldn't afford football anymore, but it had a very important place in our institution's history," Frericks said.

After Dayton placed its football program in Division III in 1977, it soon became one of the most successful schools at that level, winning a national championship in 1980 and finishing second in 1981. Last season, Dayton was the top-ranked team in Division III for much of the season, although the Flyers lost in the first round of the play-offs.

Most observers on both sides of the question acknowledge that Dayton's success in Division III football has sparked most of the recent efforts to end multidivision classification in football. Some suggest that the problem could be solved if schools like Dayton are allowed to continue to field Division III football teams, but are prohibited from participating in the Division III Football Championship.

In fact, Division I schools that have placed football programs in Division III since 1983 already are prohibited from championship participation. An athletics director at a school that has just dropped its football program to Division III, Curtis W. Blake of Drake University, believes that provision is unfair, but he accepts it as a price for keeping his own school's football program alive.

According to Blake, however, ineligibility for championships is enough of a compromise. He takes issue with those who would ban Divisions I and II schools from Division III football altogether.

"Certainly this is an issue that involves Drake, but it also gets down to my personal philosophy as well," he said. "The purpose of the NCAA is to benefit the student-athlete. To tell an institution that if you don't have resources to go Division I across the board, you're not going to have a program, that really concerns me."

Both Blake and Frericks disagree with the argument that their schools enjoy a competitive advantage in Division III.

"Our football program parallels Division III programs; I'd say there are some that have more players, coaches or money than ours," Frericks said. "If there's any rub-off from the fact that basketball or our other programs are Division I, I think they're marginal. They're there, and we can't get away from them, but I think they're marginal."

Blake adds, "There are strictly Division III programs not involved in multidivision classification that have a lot more support than do Division I programs that are just getting started in Division III."

The North Coast Athletic Conference's Collins thinks the only way any group, including the Committee on Review and Planning, will be able to deal with the multidivision-classification issue effectively is to "address where those Divisions I and II members that would be moved out of Division III would go. Otherwise, they're not going to move, because they don't want to spend the money," he said.

"The point was brought up (at the Convention) that we would displace about 1,000 student-athletes from playing football at all (if Proposal 105 passed), and that may be true. That would be unfortunate. But we're being disadvantaged, too."

"I'd like to find some way to take care of those schools some way so they still can play football. I don't know how to do that."

Frericks agrees that it is important to continue looking for solutions to the problem.

"I think we have to find some alternatives for people to offer their program in a fashion that is, (a) affordable, and (b) fits within their institutional philosophy."

"We don't want to be down in Division III and causing all kinds of consternation, but it's a salvation for us.... Given another alternative, we'd be Division I-AA tomorrow, but we have to be in Division III to continue playing football."

Privette, Dickos are repeat academic all-America selections

Amy Privette of Wake Forest University and Penny Dickos of the University of Tampa are repeat first-team honorees in their respective divisions on the 1987 GTE academic all-America women's basketball team as selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

The women's basketball academic all-America team is one of several squads selected by CoSIDA members to honor student-athletes who excel in the classroom as well as in athletics. This is the 35th year of existence for the academic all-America teams.

Privette is Wake Forest's all-time leader in scoring, rebounding, assists and steals. She averaged 16.7 points and 6.9 rebounds this year. Privette and Dickos are both forwards.

Following is a complete list of the 1987 women's academic all-America teams:

UNIVERSITY DIVISION

First team

Guards—Jennifer Walz, Bucknell, 3.800 grade-point average in computer engineering; Jody Beerman, Central Michigan, 3.790 in health fitness. Forwards—Amy Privette, Wake Forest, 3.850 in history; Stephanie Coe, Bowling Green, 3.850 in criminal justice/rehabilitation counseling; Tracey Barnes, Northern Arizona, 4.000 in criminal justice.

Second team

Guards—Stacey Spitko, Bucknell, 3.700 in accounting; Michelle Flamoe, Oregon State, 4.000 in science/mathematics. Forwards—Stacey Jack, Manhattan, 3.800 in chemical engineering; Ann Kirwin, Bucknell, 3.700 in international relations/Spanish; Vicki Link, Penn State, 3.300 in finance.

Third team

Guards—Peggy Ann Fitzsimmons, Richmond, 3.890 in psychology; Wendy Martell, Fresno State, 3.700 in physical education. Forwards—Hilarie Cranmer, Hofstra, 3.610 in biomedical engineering; Kimberly Foley, St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania), 3.900 in business; Amy Welch, Central Michigan, 3.930 in accounting/management information systems; Nancy Melissa, Central Michigan, 3.840 in management information systems; Sherry Poole, Arizona State, 3.470 in environmental resources.

COLLEGE DIVISION

Guards—Shelley Ritz-Buntz, Scranton, 3.870 in physical therapy; Darsi Dee Doyl, Luther, 3.990 in accounting. Forwards—Kim Ingham, Spring Garden, 3.570 in biochemistry; Ann Elizabeth Wenger, Eastern Mennonite, 4.000 in math education; Mary Kate Long, Tennessee-Martin, 4.000 in secondary education/English; Julie Eisenschenk, St. Cloud State, 3.920 in biomedical science.

Administrative Committee minutes

[Note: In their August 1986 meetings, the NCAA Council and Executive Committee approved a procedure in which the minutes of NCAA Administrative Committee meetings and telephone conferences would be printed verbatim in The NCAA News, beginning in 1987. Members of the Administrative Committee are the five elected NCAA officers and the executive director.]

Conference No. 2 January 29, 1987

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Took the following actions regarding NCAA committees:

(1) Dissolved the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Coaches' Outside Income and the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Financial Aid Issues.

(2) Agreed that Patricia D. Bibbs, Grambling State University, should replace Sondra Norrell-Thomas, Howard University, on the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Playing Seasons, with Ms. Norrell-Thomas to serve as a consultant to the committee during the remainder of its assignment.

(3) Appointed William L. Sylvester, Butler University, to the Division II Football Committee replacing Kenneth L. Gardner, Northeast Missouri State University, resigned.

b. Directed the new Committee on Review and Planning to study multidivision classification, multidivision championships eligibility and related membership issues, noted that the new committee earlier had been designated to consider a referral from the Special Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification and agreed that the committee should be authorized to conduct a meeting prior to September 1, 1987, possibly in conjunction with the final meeting of the Long Range Planning Committee.

c. Removed Bethune-Cookman College from "unclassified membership" status in light of the similar relief granted by the Council to Duquesne University and Fairleigh Dickinson University, Teaneck, in the post-convention meeting.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Took the following actions regarding Executive Committee-appointed committees:

(1) Noted that Messrs. Frericks, Witte and Elwell automatically serve on the Special Budget Subcommittee, replacing John R. Davis, Lewis A. Cryer and Asa N. Green.

(2) Noted that Mr. Frericks automatically replaces Mr. Bailey as a member and as chair of the Special Marketing Subcommittee.

(3) Noted that Mr. Frericks automatically replaces Mr. Bailey as a member and as chair of the Special Staff Evaluation Subcommittee and that Connie J. Claussen, University of Nebraska, Omaha, automatically continues, as the senior member of the Executive Committee. President Bailey then appointed Edward E. Bozik, University of Pittsburgh, to continue as the third member of the subcommittee.

(4) Noted that Mr. Witte automatically replaces Mr. Cryer on the Division I Championships Committee.

(5) Noted that Mr. Elwell automatically replaces Mr. Green on the Division II Championships Committee; reappointed Victor A. Buccola, Western Football Conference, as the at-large member of that committee.

(6) Reappointed Robert F. Riedel, Geneseo State University College, as the at-large member of the Division III Championships Committee; appointed Thomas M. Kinder, Bridgewater College (Virginia), to that committee replacing Mary Jean Mulvaney, University of Chicago.

b. Authorized a survey of 1987 Convention delegates to determine their preference regarding alternative Convention formats, with the survey to include a sampling of chief executive officers, faculty athletics representatives, directors of athletics, primary women administrators and conference commissioners.

c. Approved a recommendation by the Division I Men's Basketball Committee that the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, receive 2½ percent of the net receipts for hosting first/second-round competition in the 1986 championship, per Executive Regulation 1-9(e)-(3).

d. # Temple fined $7,500 for interference with Title IX suit

The U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania fined Temple University $7,500 March 2 and imposed additional sanctions for "flagrant and inexcusable" violations of professional standards, court rules, and a court order during preparation of a Title IX suit for trial.

The violations involved communications by Temple's in-house counsel and athletics department staff with female student-athletes that were found to have discouraged plaintiff class members from meeting with their attorneys.

The ruling was issued in Haffer vs. Temple University, a class action alleging unlawful discrimination on the basis of sex in the university's intercollegiate athletics program. The plaintiff class consists of all women students at Temple University who participate, or who are or have been deterred from participating because of sex discrimination, in Temple's intercollegiate athletics program.

First filed in 1980, litigation in the case during the first five years focused on whether Title IX applied to Temple's intercollegiate athletics department. Following the February 1984 decision of the Supreme Court in Grove City College vs. Bell, the district court dismissed all of the plaintiffs' Title IX claims except those relating to Temple's financial aid and athletics scholarship program.

Plaintiffs' Fourteenth Amendment and Pennsylvania Equal Rights Amendment claims also were permitted to go forward. The March 2 decision is not a ruling on the merits of the case. It relates only to conduct of the university's counsel and staff during preparation of the remaining claims for trial.

The ruling came after counsel for plaintiffs began to schedule meetings with women's intercollegiate athletics teams. A key incident leading to the imposition of sanctions was the distribution to female student-athletes of a memorandum from Temple's associate counsel.

Although the memorandum stated that any female student-athlete who wished to meet with the lawyer for the plaintiff class was free to do so, the court found that the memorandum was in several respects false and misleading and was intended to discourage class members from meeting with their counsel.

The court found that the memorandum violated the code of professional responsibility for lawyers, which prohibits communication from a lawyer to a party who is not a client and who is known to be represented by a lawyer.

The court also found that statements made at the direction of Temple's associate counsel by Temple's associate director for women's intercollegiate athletics, a named defendant in the case, to class members regarding the lawsuit while she distributed the memorandum contained misrepresentations and were designed to discourage class members from meeting with class counsel.

Telephone calls by Temple's counsel and remarks by at least two coaches to female student-athletes were cited by the court as additional facts supporting imposition of sanctions.

The court acknowledged that, as a practical matter, defendants and class members necessarily interact daily and must communicate if the university is to serve its student body. It nonetheless concluded that Temple's counsel and staff had acted improperly.

A representative of Temple University has stated that the university is considering an appeal of the ruling, that the decision is incorrect and does not accurately reflect the record, and that Temple believes there is no discrimination against women in its intercollegiate athletics program.

Robinson, Davis win Naismiths

David Robinson of the U.S. Naval Academy and Clarissa Davis of the University of Texas, Austin, are the 1987 Naismith Award winners.

The Naismith Award is given annually to the players of the year for both men's and women's college basketball. The winners are chosen by a nationwide vote of more than 400 people, including men and women coaches, sports editors and writers, and special basketball enthusiasts from each state.

Robinson, a senior center, is the winner of the 19th annual award for men. He currently leads the nation in blocked shots with a 4.6 average. He is fourth, both in scoring and rebounding, averaging 27.5 points and 11.8 rebounds.

In addition to Robinson, the Naismith all-America men's team includes Steve Alford, Indiana University, Bloomington; Kenny Smith, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Danny Manning, University of Kansas, and Reggie Williams, Georgetown University.

Davis, a sophomore forward, is the winner of the fifth annual award for women. She was the most outstanding player in the 1986 NCAA Division I

Clarissa Davis

Women's Basketball Championship. She scored 103 points and had 56 rebounds in five games and was the tournament leader in those categories.

In addition to Davis, the Naismith all-America women's team includes Cindy Brown, California State University, Long Beach; Katrina McClain, University of Georgia; Andrea Lloyd, University of Texas, Austin, and Clemette Haskins, Western Kentucky University.

Both Robinson and Davis will receive their awards at the 19th annual Naismith Awards festivities on April 2 in Atlanta.

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

ALLEN BOHL appointed at Toledo after serving as assistant AD at Ohio State since 1984. ANDREW T. MOORADIAN, former NCAA Council member and former president of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, resigned at New Hampshire after 22 years in the post to take a position with a sports travel firm in Connecticut. Mooradian attended New Hampshire in the 1940s and remained there after graduation, serving for a time as an assistant football coach at the school. He also served terms on the NCAA Football Television Committee and Division I-AA Football Committee. Mooradian's resignation is effective August 1.

ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

EMILY HARSH resigned at Florida International.

COACHES

Baseball—BRIAN GILLOGLY named at Marion. He previously was a graduate assistant coach at Mankato State.

Men's basketball—STEVE TUCKER resigned at Sam Houston State, one year after he was promoted from assistant at the school. JACK AVINA resigned after 17 years at Portland, where his teams compiled a record of 222-243 during his tenure. GEORGE FISHER resigned after three years at Cal Poly-Pomona with a 32-51 record. JAMES DESTEFANO promoted from assistant at Gallaudet, his alma mater. DeStefano joined the school's staff three years ago. JIM WHITESELL selected at Elmhurst after two years as an assistant at Mankato State. BILL DAILEY promoted from assistant at Youngstown State, succeeding MIKE RICE, who was dismissed. Rice's teams compiled a 75-67 record through five seasons, including an 11-17 record this year. TIM RUSSELL released at Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne. KEVIN PORTER dismissed after four years at St. Francis (Pennsylvania), where his teams compiled a 42-68 record. SCOTT THOMPSON selected at Rice after four years as an assistant at Arizona. He also has been on the staff at Iowa.

Men's basketball assistant—JACK FERTIG resigned after seven years on the staff at Tennessee.

Women's basketball—JULIE CALAHAN resigned at Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne, effective April 1. Her teams compiled a 14-39 record during her two-year tenure. JACK LEAMAN stepped down after one season at Massachusetts, where the former men's coach led the women's team to its first winning record (14-12) since 1979-80. He will return to Massachusetts' two-year Stockbridge School of Agriculture and resume duties he previously held there as athletics coordinator and head basketball coach.

Football—DAVE BASSORE selected at Winona State. He has served as defensive coordinator at Sam Houston State since 1982.

Football assistants—GERALD GOODMAN appointed wide receivers coach at Southern Mississippi. He previously has served on the staffs at North Alabama, Louisville and Mississippi State. DONNIE REA named to coach outside linebackers at San Jose State after four seasons in a similar position at Southern California. DOUG MILLER promoted from graduate assistant coach to a full-time position at Southern Illinois, where he will be responsible for inside linebackers. JEFF HANSON selected defensive coordinator at West Texas State after one year in the same post at Southwest Texas State. Former McNeese State head coach JOHN McCANN named offensive coordinator at Southwest Texas State, where he replaces ROSS ROGERS. McCann also will take over offensive line duties from LARRY DONALDSON, who resigned. RON HUDSON, TIM HARKNESS and ROBERT WALLACE appointed to positions at Illinois. Hudson, a former Notre Dame assistant, will coach running backs; Harkness, a former Alabama assistant, will coach receivers, and Wallace will coach defensive backs after one season at Mississippi State. ROD PERRY, a two-time all-pro defensive back with the Los Angeles Rams who also played for the Cleveland Browns, hired to coach defensive backs at Fresno State. He previously has been on the staffs at Columbia and Fresno City College. Perry succeeds GREG GIBSON, who resigned after three years to enter private business. MIKE BARRY named offensive line coach at Colorado. Barry previously served one season at Iowa State after stints with the Portland Breakers and the San Antonio Gunslingers in the United States Football League. JOHN E. FRASER named quarterbacks and receivers coach at Colgate after two seasons in the same positions at Lafayette. He also has been on the staff at Columbia.

Men's ice hockey—LOU REYCROFT resigned at Cornell, where his teams compiled a 74-58-9 record during his five years at the school. His 1985-86 team won the Eastern College Athletic Conference title and qualified for the Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship. CHARLES "LEFTY" SMITH resigned at Notre Dame to become director of the school's new Loftus Indoor Sports Center. Smith took the Irish reins when Notre Dame reinstated ice hockey in 1968 and led his teams to a 307-320-31 record.

Men's lacrosse assistant—JAMES FLANDERS, a former player at Springfield, selected at New England College.

Women's lacrosse assistant—TRACY COYNE appointed at William Smith, succeeding SUSAN BASSETT, who was named aquatics director at Union (New York) after six years as head women's swimming coach and lacrosse assistant at William Smith. Coyne previously was an administrative assistant in the athletics department at Pittsburgh and is a former lacrosse assistant at Sewickley Academy in Pennsylvania.

Men's soccer—ADAM R. GERVIS named at Curry, succeeding JAMES KAUFMAN, who stepped down to devote more time to teaching duties at the school. Gervis formerly coached soccer in the Borough of Westminster in London, England.

Women's soccer—PAMELA TRIPP resigned after three years at Wisconsin-Milwaukee to devote more time to her doctoral studies. Her teams compiled a record of 17-29-4.

Women's softball—ROBERT A. FERRI selected at Curry. He previously coached at Bristol (Rhode Island) High School.

Women's swimming—SUSAN BASSETT stepped down after six years at William Smith, where she also assisted with women's lacrosse, to become aquatics director at Union (New York).

Men's tennis—RANDY MURPHY appointed at Monmouth (Illinois). The former Iowa captain has been tennis pro at the Tri-State Racquet Club in Burlington, Iowa, the past six years.

STAFF

Development director—CLARENCE MABRY, who coached Trinity (Texas) to the Division I Men's Tennis Championships team title in 1972, named director of tennis development at the school.

Facility director—CHARLES "LEFTY" SMITH named director of the new Loftus Indoor Sports Center at Notre Dame after 19 years as men's ice hockey coach at the school.

Sports information assistants—STEVE CONN appointed at Yale. The former South Alabama assistant SID has worked since August 1986 as an advertising account executive for the Business Times. He succeeds AILEEN HICKEY, who resigned. George Mason's FRANK J. KLEHA selected by the Atlanta Falcons to serve as assistant director of public relations.

ASSOCIATIONS

HERBERT G. KLEIN, vice-president and editor-in-chief of the Copley Newspapers and a former Director of Communications in the White House during the Nixon administration, will succeed JAMES C. SCHMIDT as president of the Sea World Holiday Bowl in San Diego for 1987.

DEATHS

WOODY HAYES, retired Ohio State head football coach and one of the most successful coaches in college football history, died March 12 of an apparent heart attack in Columbus, Ohio. He was 74. Hayes' 238 victories as a head coach at Denison (1946-48), Miami (Ohio) (1949-50) and Ohio State (1951-78) ranks fifth among all coaches, and his 1954 and 1968 teams at Ohio State ended their seasons ranked as the No. 1 team in the nation. During Hayes' 28 years at Ohio State, the Buckeyes compiled a 205-61-10 record and won or shared 13 Big Ten Conference championships; eight of his teams appeared in the Rose Bowl.

CORRECTION

Due to an editor's error, the returning statistical leaders box that appeared with the Division I women's softball preview in the March 4 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly identified Jeanne Weinshein, San Diego, as the returning leader in runs batted in. Debbi Oraczewski, Towson State, is the returning leader at 1.37 per game.

SMU may take action against boosters

The Southern Methodist University Board of Governors is considering legal action against people found to have damaged the school by actions that led to the athletics scandal, the Dallas Times Herald has reported.

The list of possible defendants includes Texas Gov. Bill Clements, former chair of the board of governors, who resigned to become governor of Texas in January.

William L. Hutchinson, new chair of the board of governors, told the newspaper in an interview that the possibility of a lawsuit was one of several options being considered to restore credibility to the university and accountability on the board.

The school's football program was suspended for the 1987 season, allowed only a limited schedule of road games for the 1988 season and placed under other sanctions.

The action was taken after the NCAA found that the school had violated recruiting rules while on probation for earlier rules violations.

The latest series of violations included paying student-athletes from a slush fund and providing other benefits not allowed under NCAA rules.

Only a few days after the NCAA handed down its decision, Clements told an Austin news conference that he and other board members agreed in 19

Six to 10 percent increases expected in tuition next fall

Next fall's college bills will jump about six percent to 10 percent at private schools and rise slightly less at public universities, a sampling of colleges shows.

United Press International's sampling shows that the cost of a degree at Yale University will soar to almost $70,000 if the $17,020 term bill next fall, up 6.1 percent, remains steady for four years—unlikely since annual rises have occurred since the 1970s.

If tuition inflation continues, the price of an undergraduate degree for next fall's freshman at Yale could reach $100,000.

Reagan administration cuts in support for higher education are among the reasons tuition increases have outpaced overall inflation, officials said. Other factors include raises for faculty and other workers, repairs to buildings, library and laboratory improvements and additions, and adding computers to keep pace with high-tech developments.

Yale and other higher-priced schools are expected to continue admitting students without regard to financial need despite cuts in government support for financial aid.

Yale President Benno Schmidt Jr.

said freshmen next fall will be guaranteed financial aid during their four undergraduate years.

"This commitment, in view of the cutbacks in government support, is an increasingly onerous one for us," Schmidt said. Yale will spend $13.2 million in financial aid to students next year, a 12 percent rise over this year's amount.

Among other private schools:

• Emory University, an 8.65 percent increase will push tuition to $10,050.

• Duke University will raise tuition 8.9 percent to $13,297, including room and board.

• Stanford University will raise tuition six percent to $16,835, including $4,955 for room and board.

• Brown University expects rises of seven percent in tuition and 6.5 percent for room and board. Total: $16,951.

"The increases are substantial and over the current inflation rate because universities, like other labor-intensive institutions, simply cannot achieve productivity gains or savings compa-table to other sectors of society," a Brown spokesman said.

At the public universities, attended by 80 percent of the nearly 10 million undergraduates in the United States, tuitions will depend on how much state legislatures earmark for the schools—and the trend in 20 states this year has been to cut appropriations for higher education.

When funds are cut, the schools can trim operations as a short-term measure, then raise tuition later.

Tuitions rose 4.3 percent last year and are expected to rise again at the University of Michigan schools. Residents pay about $4,000.

The State University of New York system, with 64 campuses, reported that its $1,050 tuition is not expected to increase. But average room and board for 25 campuses with dorms, $1,650, is slated to rise $115 next year.

Fred Moreno, spokesman for the College Board, said the board's survey of actual tuitions and room and board charges at the nation's 3,000 colleges will not be ready until August. Many schools' tuitions are dependent on legislative action. Early signs indicated increases will be similar to last year's six percent rise.

Scoring of tie-breaker run in softball games is clarified

The national office has received several requests for clarification in scoring the tie-breaker run in women's softball. Following is an interpretation provided by the NCAA Women's Softball Committee:

"At the start of each half-inning under the tie-breaker rule, a mythical pitcher called Team permits the last opposition batter of the previous inning to reach second base. Team then is relieved by the actual pitcher. The runner starting off second base is the responsibility of Team.

"If action by a subsequent batter, such as a fielder's choice, causes the leadoff runner to be put out, the first run scored that half-inning may be charged to Team. If the leadoff runner is put out without action by the batter, such as caught stealing or leaving the base too soon, then no subsequent run can be charged to Team.

"Any run scored after the first run in a tie-breaker half-inning must be charged to an actual pitcher as either earned or unearned. A run charged to Team is neither earned nor unearned because there is no actual person to whom the run is to be charged and technically it is impossible for Team to have an earned-run average because Team always will have zero total innings pitched (never gets an out) and the attempted division by zero in the ERA formula is mathematically impossible.

"In the statistical pitching summary for a game using the tie-breaker rule, Team is listed as a pitcher. The only statistic recorded for Team is total runs allowed, but neither earned nor unearned runs can be recorded. Thus, the total runs allowed by a team may exceed the sum total of earned and unearned runs. Furthermore, the box score will not prove as it normally does, since there is an extra runner left on base, usually, for each inning the rule is in effect."

Notre Dame to construct sports center

Construction is under way on a $6 million sports center in the northeast sector of the Notre Dame campus, the university announced.

The 600-by-200-foot building will be named for its principal benefactor, John R. Loftus, class of 1949, of St. Charles, Illinois. Complementing the 18-year-old Athletic and Convocation Center, it will be used for football, soccer, lacrosse, baseball, field hockey, and track and field as well as for intramurals, recreational sports and physical education classes.

According to Eugene F. Corrigan, director of athletics, the new building, to be completed by midfall, will encompass an astroturf surface encircled by an indoor track. Peripheral space will accommodate a weights and exercise apparatus area, as well as classrooms and conference areas.

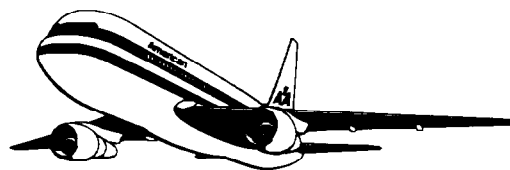

One of the greatest benefits, Corrigan said, is the "massive amount of space the building will make available for athletic practices and participation while reducing congestion at the Athletic and Convocation Center."

Loftus is chief executive officer of JRL Investments, a real estate investment and construction firm. A native of Dixon, Illinois, he earned a Notre Dame monogram in basketball.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations for interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA national office no later than April 10, 1987.

Division I Women's Basketball: Replacement for John V. Kasser, resigned from California State University, Long Beach. Appointee must be from Division I.
