June special Convention extended by three hours

The schedule for the June 29-30 special Convention in Dallas has been revised to accommodate the introduction of the Presidents Commission's national forum on the proper role of intercollegiate athletics in higher education.

Instead of a 1 p.m. adjournment June 30, the Convention now is scheduled to end at 4 p.m. that day. All voting sessions will be held that day, rather than conducting the division sessions June 29.

The afternoon of June 28 and the morning of June 29 still are being held for meetings of conferences and other affiliated groups. The Convention officially opens with the business session at 1:30 p.m. June 29.

From that point, the schedule differs from the one announced earlier. From 2 to approximately 5 p.m. June 29, the Commission will initiate its national forum with speakers and respondents (to be announced) and a question-and-answer session open to all delegates.

That means that all voting sessions will wait for June 30, and as a result, the amendment-to-amendment deadline will be 1 p.m. June 29 rather than June 28.

The June 30 schedule: 8 to 9:15 a.m., Divisions I-A, I-AA and I-AAA business sessions. 9:30 to noon, Divisions I, II and III business sessions. 1:30 to 4 p.m., general business session. A current listing of all Convention-related meetings will appear in the May 6 issue of the News.

88 percent of Division I schools participate in survey of 5-1-(j)

Approximately 88 percent of 284 Division I institutions responded to a recent survey that asked schools to report the number of partial qualifiers or nonqualifiers under Bylaw 5-1-(j) who matriculated for the current academic year despite their ineligibility to participate in athletics.

Of the 250 schools responding to the survey, 168 (67 percent) reported that, to their knowledge, 599 partial qualifiers had registered on their campuses. In addition, 38 schools (15 percent) said that nonqualifiers were registered.

The survey was conducted by the NCAA Research Committee in response to concerns that a long-term study of Bylaw 5-1-(j) effects recently begun by the Association would be unable to indicate how many student-athletes fail to qualify academically for participation in athletics.

Although the survey was unable to reveal the number of partial qualifiers or nonqualifiers under Bylaw 5-1-(j) who did not matriculate, it does provide considerable information about those who registered at Division I institutions despite their ineligibility for athletics competition during their freshman year.

Partial qualifiers are prospective student-athletes who earned an overall grade-point average of 2.000 or higher in high school and graduated, but did not meet the core-curriculum grade-point average or test-score requirement of Bylaw 5-1-(j). Nonqualifiers are those who did not earn overall grade-point averages of 2.000 in high school and did not meet the core-curriculum grade-point or test-score requirements.

The responding institutions reported that of 599 partial qualifiers matriculated at their campuses, 372 are receiving athletics-related aid while they work to become eligible for athletics competition, while 227

Manual revision committee

At first, they acted on faith alone

By Timothy J. Lilley
Managing Editor, The NCAA News

Call the ongoing effort to revise the NCAA Manual an exercise in faith... at least in the beginning.

"The first several months, we were operating on faith," said NCAA President Wilford S. Bailey, who was about a third of the way into his term as the Association's secretary-treasurer when he was named chair of the Special Council Subcommittee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification in 1985. Appointed with Bailey were Clayton W. Chapman, Eastern College Athletic Conference; Prentice Gautt, Big Eight Conference; Donna A. Lopiano, University of Texas, Austin, and David Price, Pacific-10 Conference. "We were confident (revision of the Manual) could be done," Bailey recalled, "but about six months ago marked the point at which we were absolutely certain we could do it."

As reported in the April 22 issue of The NCAA News, delegates to the 1988 Convention may act on adoption of a revised Manual, although quite a bit of work remains for the special committee. It is beginning the downhill ride on a trip that began — for this committee — with the April 1985 meeting of the NCAA Council.

When it will end is uncertain, but four results appear to be assured: The revised NCAA Manual will be larger, not smaller. There will be little, if any, deregulation. The presentation of the material in the new book will be considerably different than it is now. And the cost will be high.

The beginning

While the current committee project has been under way for two years, the "Manual revision project" actually dates back to 1981, when discussions of how to reorganize, rewrite and otherwise revise the book began in the national office.

Those discussions resulted in attempts in 1982 and 1983 to identify an individual to perform the task, but those attempts were unsuccessful, for various reasons. Finally, the NCAA's general legal counsel developed a reorganization of the constitution and bylaws, completing that effort in 1985.

As reported in the April 25, 1985, issue of the News, the Council's April 15-17 meeting that year included passage by the group of a summary position statement and a recommended program to enhance institutional integrity and compliance with intercollegiate athletics policies and rules. "As an unrelated addendum," the News reported, "the NCAA president will appoint a Council subcommittee to consider possible 'deregulation' or moderation of some NCAA rules in some areas."

About a month later, the May 29 issue of The NCAA News carried the official announcement of the com-

Committees, chairs selected for 1988 NCAA Convention

Appointments to the Nominating Committee and the Men's and Women's Committees on Committees for 1987-88 were made by the NCAA Council in its spring meeting.

Selected to chair the three committees were John E. Thomas, chancellor of Appalachian State University, Nominating Committee; Roy Kramer, Vanderbilt University athletics director, Men's Committee on Committees, and Rosemary Fri, associate athletics director, University of Northern Colorado, Women's Committee on Committees.

Following are the Council's appointments:

Nominating Committee

Division I: Appointed Thomas (Region 2) and Michael T. Johnson, University of Houston (4). Reappointed Edward Leland, Dartmouth College (1); Kathleen Wear-McNally, La Salle University (1); Nelson E. Townsend, Florida A&M University (2); Richard M. Bay, Ohio State University (3); John P. Mahlstede, Iowa State University (3), and Barbara B. Hollman, University of Montana (4).

Division II: Appointed Francis W. Poisson, University of Bridgeport (Region 1). Reappointed Sandra T. Shuler, North Carolina Central University (2); George M. MacDonald, Grand Valley State College (3), and Edwin W. Lawrence, University of Alaska, Fairbanks (4).

Division III: Appointed Maurine T. Horan, Drew University (Region 2), and John Schael, Washington University of Missouri (4). Reappointed Rocco J. Carzo, Tufts University (1), and Milton E. Reece, Greensboro College (3).

Holtz prepared to forgo ballyhoo surrounding recruiting

By Jerry Lindquist

Richmond Times-Dispatch

In case you missed it, the Fighting Irish have landed another blue-ribbon collection of studs. To hear tell, these guys can leap tall buildings with a single bound. Coach Lou Holtz would settle for some crisp blocking and tackling, and maybe winning a few more games than he loses. Holtz's predecessor, Jerry Faust, got picks of the recruiting litter, and you know what happened to Faust.

If Holtz had his druthers, recruits would slip into town, draw their equipment and go to work. They would be faceless and nameless for all the outside world should know—or care. Beating drums and trumpeting their arrival can only mean no good. The best they can do is live up to reputations invariably inflated.

"If it was up to me, we wouldn't tell anybody who they are," Holtz says.

"What happens is: When you have a good recruiting year, everybody wants to put them in the hall of fame. As I'm quick to remind, they're not from Krypton. They're mere mortals. They bleed when you cut them. Let's wait and see how good they are after they get here," Holtz said.

Too much is made of recruiting and its immediate impact. That's the subject of our position paper today, gang.

Clemson provided the information that the Tigers landed one lineman who, based on his credentials, should be a No. 1 draft choice (at least) in four years. Sorry, you won't learn who he is here.

We'll leave that up to the guys who rate athletes and publish lists. The Max Emfingers of this world, the John Hadleys. They create standards by which recruiting classes are measured.

Emfinger takes it seriously. He should. His Houston-based National High School Football Recruiting Service has 10,000 clients for its recruiting service alone. They pay from $10 to $50, depending on the package.

Emfinger and three full-time associates operate a scouting bureau, too. In other words, this is how they put bread on the table, so you won't catch Emfinger making light of an avocation turned vocation seven years ago.

How seriously does Emfinger take it? Stay tuned. You'll learn how Jack Pardee is going to turn the University of Houston football program around quickly with the able assistance of (one guess).

Like Emfinger, Hadley publishes a list of schoolboy sensations. His top 100 appears in The Sporting News, for which he is an associate editor.

Lou Holtz

George Welsh

Bobby Ross

Unlike Emfinger, Hadley sees no great meaning other than as "a topic of conversation."

"All I try to do is put together a comprehensive list... to give our readers some idea who the best high school players are," Hadley says. "I've never made any claims, [but] there is enough national interest that we would be depriving our readers by not doing something."

By doing anything that can increase pressure while potentially leading to false hope obviously is counterproductive. "To me, there's just too much publicity for an unproven player," says University of Virginia coach George Welsh.

"They try not to be affected by it, but some of them are. It's pretty hard to ignore a lot of it."

"They all think they're going to play right away, which is unrealistic. Most of them don't. It's a big step from high school to college, [and] a lot of young kids have a real problem psychologically when they don't make it as freshmen."

Chances are, it would be difficult to find a coach who doesn't think recruiting should be downplayed. All that publicity does more harm than

Navy put its foot down...

Chicago Tribune

An editorial

Newly installed Navy Secretary James Webb issued an order recently that effectively pulls Ensign Napoleon McCallum out of the Los Angeles Raiders' pro football lineup and sends him back to full-time duty as a naval officer.

That is where U.S. Naval Academy graduate McCallum belongs. And the decision by Secretary Webb, himself an Annapolis graduate and highly decorated U.S. Marine Corps veteran of Vietnam, got him off a notably worthy start in his new job.

Recently departed Navy Secretary John Lehman opened the way for McCallum, an all-America running back at Annapolis, to play for the Raiders part-time while fulfilling his five-year naval duty obligation. Mr. Lehman also endorsed an arrangement providing that Navy basketball star David Robinson, a top-rated pro prospect, would have to serve only two years active duty because, being over seven feet tall, he was ineligible for duty as an "unrestricted line officer."

Secretary Webb ruled that the Navy would honor that agreement because Mr. Robinson had accepted it in "good faith." But he ordered that henceforth no "special accommodation" be made for naval officers seeking to play pro sports. And he said that he "does not foresee Ensign McCallum participating in professional athletics without" such special accommodation.

The U.S. military academies are not intended to be farm teams. And to give the young men and women who attend those academies, at considerable expense to the taxpayers, the impression that a five-year duty obligation is something that can be avoided is no way to train young officers in a sense of honor or duty.

No wrong in paying pro prospects

Norby Walters, entertainment agent
World Sports & Entertainment

Chicago Tribune

"I have done nothing wrong, illegal or immoral (in paying advances to college football players who are professional prospects). In fact, I've helped this young man's family and allowed him $10,000, $12,000, $15,000, knowing he'll be worth a million dollars. Why not let the family have the niceties of life, or in some cases, the necessities? I've helped put tires on cars."

"Let the NCAA fold. Give the schools the right to hire kids and put them on salary. All they (schools) are are farm teams for the NFL. Look what the schools do when a kid is in high school. They don't care then whether he's a student. Every school is offering them something. I wasn't even a big fan of sports, and I was aware of what was going on."

"I have beaten them (other sports agents) at their own game. Everybody knows that 75 percent of the top 100 players are signed early. Other agents freak out when they find out Norby Walters beat them at their own game, which is signing up 75 percent of the kids early."

"No difference (between a college football player and an entertainer). A sports star is a rock star. They're all the same. It's absolutely part of the business to give advances. Any agent will give a star an advance if he wants it. There's nothing shady or underhanded about it."

OSU Lantern

"I am proud of the fact I have been here so long (became men's tennis coach in 1972), because at a university of this size, coaches come and go all the time."

"We (the tennis team) have steadily improved through the years."

"My first year here, OSU did not have any scholarships and that was the reason the program was not successful. In order to attract promising athletes to the tennis program, the university must give scholarships toward education."

Johnny Reagan, head baseball coach
Murray State University

Ohio Valley Conference Today

"Of major concern to baseball coaches are the maximum number of contests and season limitations. It is feared that the quality of the game will suffer if the grants are reduced, or maximum number of contests is reduced or the fall season is eliminated."

"The baseball coaches feel so strongly about the possible reductions that we, through our organization, the American Baseball Coaches Association, are planning to combat these proposals."

"Baseball, like other spring sports, did not create the problem, but it appears we will suffer the consequences of the abuses of some of the more visible sports programs and the economic climate. This type of parity college baseball does not need."

Rev. John B. Cullen, Methodist minister
Marshall, Texas

Houston Chronicle

"I am a Methodist and a Southern Methodist University Mustang who still is very proud of his school despite all of the reports that seem to focus on the negative at SMU."

"I recently attended the annual SMU swim team awards banquet. I saw a fine group of young men who had fought to achieve a very respectable finish at the NCAA championships. Their achievements are commendable, but I also witnessed a warmth and fellowship that was very special."

"I heard Christian coaches who cared not only about the finish times, but also about the welfare and future of their athletes. I heard a long list of names of swimmers whose grade-point averages were well above 3.000."

"When all we Methodists tend to see are the dark clouds hovering over our university, I hope everyone will remember there still are educational and athletics achievements that we can be proud of at SMU."

Reginald Wilson, office of minority concerns
American Council on Education

The Associated Press

"I don't think there's been a great deal of leadership on the part of university presidents (in stemming the recent upsurge in racial incidents on college campuses).

"There's no question about it. Not only were colleges slow to react, but I suspect that a number of things are happening on campus that would tend to give students the idea that minority interests are of diminishing value."

McCallum and David Robinson—all-Americans, brilliant students, squeaky clean role models, campus leaders and Blacks.

New Navy Secretary James H. Webb could hardly have taken a more ill-advised step... than knocking down former secretary John Lehman's policies regarding America's two most famous ensign-athletes. Talk about stepping on deck and falling overboard.

The last year has seen voluminous discussion of Lehman's decisions to let McCallum moonlight with the Oakland Raiders and to shorten Robinson's active military duty to two years (with the NBA moonlighting possibility open).

Because McCallum wanted to fulfill his Navy dream so badly that he refused to leave Annapolis after his sophomore year to attend a football factory must have made many teenagers think... that a Navy officer's life might be as worthwhile as a glamorous NFL career. You can't buy that kind of gut-level recruiting.

Robinson grew from six feet, seven inches to 7-1 after enrolling at Annapolis. Lehman did what he'd done in any other similar case—let him out after two years of land duty.

Webb... is jerking around two exemplary young men who deserve better. Throughout their Navy years, at junctures where they could have left the academy at little or no cost, McCallum and Robinson took the risk of accepting the unseen brass at its word. Play ball, be an A-plus midshipman and we'll treat you fairly.

Navy took the recruiting benefits and the football gate receipts and pocketed the $900,000 in NCAA tournament money that was a direct result of Robinson's play.

No midshipmen have ever paid back Navy before graduation—in dollars, not just intangibles—like McCallum and Robinson.

It is to be hoped he'll (Secretary Webb) think better of his initial misstep in office. It's also to be hoped that, while he is putting in all those 24-hour work days in the Navy, he won't spend any of his spare time writing his next money-making novel. That might be moonlighting.

Don't forget the positives

By John Erickson

National President

Fellowship of Christian Athletes

Sports, athletics competition, athletes and coaches have been pretty frequent "whipping boys" in the United States the last few years. Most of the "whipping" has been done by those who have made substantial livings and received abundant rewards because of sports.

No one would venture to say that the sports world has not been guilty of some abuses, misdirections, improprieties and self-indulgence, but we should not overlook the fact that the positives far outweigh the negatives over the course of many years.

Let me cite some of the positives:

- Thousands, if not millions, of Americans have learned tremendous lessons and values from sports.

- Barriers of social, religious, cultural, racial and ethnic differences have been broken down and crossed through sports.

- Athletes and coaches have provided "positive role models" for youth.

- Since World War II, many thousands of American youth have received educational opportunities that would not have been available except through sports and competition.

- Athletes, coaches and sports organizations have assisted worthy causes through their personal commitment of time, talents and financial resources.

- Sports and athletics competition often have been the catalyst for assistance in economic development, providing employment, resources, construction and income for many communities.

These are but a few. Many other tangible and intangible benefits could be cited and should be remembered.

It was President Theodore Roosevelt who said, "... it is not the critic who counts; but the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena...."

Letter to the Editor

Commitment to education needed by all

To the Editor:

It does appear as if most athletes are in "a no-win situation." The article in the March 18 issue, "The great balancing act: athletes keeping up with classwork," does reflect a glimmer of hope.

The first step in correcting a problem is recognizing it, and it clearly appears that administrators are concerned enough that they're looking at it.

There is a problem, and athletes do seem handicapped with balancing the demands of coaches and teachers. The difficulty does not lie in the students' dedication or seriousness about their studies.

The cause of the problems arises with excessive absences because of poor coordination of away meets. Nothing can make up for that in-class experience.

Student-athletes attend college for the main purpose of educating themselves. Those who use it as a steppingstone to the pros are fooling themselves if they believe that education is not necessary. And those who lead them to believe this are responsible for the net outcome. Schooling should be top priority, with athletics adding a change of pace and a new challenge.

It will take a lot of dedication on the part of the athlete to manage his time; however, this dedication also should be forthcoming from the athletics director and coaches.

Schedules and training time should be established to allow academics to be fully accommodated. There will be times when classes must be worked around; this should not become habit, because it is the student who loses out.

Maybe coaches and teachers cannot be completely pleased, but it is the student who must be the one who is satisfied with his education.

All-SWC player's top achievement was in becoming an average student

By Jimmy Burch

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Texas A&M nose guard Sammy O'Brien recorded the biggest victory of his college career during spring break.

He finished reading "Moby Dick."

That may seem a marginal accomplishment for a college junior. But to O'Brien, who suffers from dyslexia, it was a goal he had been seeking since high school.

The book was assigned reading in one of his literature classes, but O'Brien could not read fast enough to finish by the required date. When he saw the book in the A&M library before leaving for a March 11-15 spring break, he took a second chance. This time, O'Brien learned the result of Ahab's confrontation with the great whale.

"Finishing that book was just as good as beating Texas," O'Brien said.

Because of his dyslexic condition, O'Brien does not see letters in the correct sequence when he reads. Dyslexia, a neurological disorder, causes its victims to have difficulty reading, writing, spelling and solving math problems. An estimated 10 million to 20 million Americans suffer from the disorder.

Among those who have been affected by dyslexia are Olympic gold-medalist diver Greg Louganis, scientists Thomas Edison and Albert Einstein, and former President Woodrow Wilson.

good.

"I think we put too much pressure on them. I don't think there's any value to it, myself," says Georgia Tech coach Bobby Ross.

"It's better if they can come in and get adjusted to school and the new routines. Socially, many are on their own for the first time. And the level of intensity in football changes so much. It's better if you don't play it up quite as much. It can lead to things."

One of those things, of course, is alumni bragging rights. Sign a few top 100 players, and old grads are ecstatic. Don't sign any, and the perception is you haven't had a very good year. Worse yet, fail to land some of the so-called blue-chippers in your state or immediate area, and fingers are pointed. Welsh knows all about that.

Virginia was in the running for several of the state's top prospects, only to lose them at the finish line. Of 11 top players targeted by the Cavalier staff in eastern Virginia, 10 got away. Welsh's staff met for more than three hours trying to figure out what went wrong. That partly explains why Welsh is reevaluating his entire program.

"I think, initially, most people don't think we had a good (recruiting) year," Welsh says.

He knows he's going to be asked about it, too, when he hits the Virginia Student Aid Foundation fund-raising trail. "People who support the program deserve to know how I feel... and I'll try to downplay it," Welsh says. "I'll say most of them aren't going to be good enough to play right away, but we wouldn't have recruited them unless we felt they could help us down the road. It still comes down to how they play later on."

"Every place I go, I'm asked, 'Well, what kind of recruiting year did you have?'" Ross says, "and I say, 'I'll answer that two years from now because that's when I'll know.'"

Sure, Ross and Welsh and Holtz and everyone else know fans base results to a large extent on top-100 rankings, but they'll tell you the real danger is taking the lists as gospel; "that you go out and recruit off them,"

Sammy O'Brien

There is no cure and its cause is unknown, although doctors say dyslexia is seven times more prevalent in men than women. Dyslexics often transpose letters when reading or writing. For instance, the words "white dog" could come out "with the god."

"I used to see all words backward," said O'Brien, a two-time all-Southwest Athletic Conference performer and one of four returning defensive starters from last year's 9-3 SWC champions. "But the more you read, the better it gets. And I read all the time: newspapers, magazines, comics."

The only problem now is with longer words. Like the word "university." When I read it, I'll see the 'y' before the 'u.' Things like that."

Until the condition was diagnosed in his ninth-grade year, O'Brien had been tabbed a slow learner. He took reading classes in high school, but he read at an eighth-grade level when he entered college.

Ross says.

"Overall, it's hard to say who's going to make it and who isn't," Holtz says. "If you recruit by who made all-world, you're going to be in big trouble."

Emfinger disagrees. Of course he does. He's got a panel of 31 coaches nationwide telling him who the top prospects are. He has videos. Get this: Emfinger has videos of at least three games of all the high school teams in Texas.

Sure he's made mistakes, Emfinger says, but not many. Yes, publicity has its drawbacks for young players, "but if a kid deserves it, the coach can make sure it doesn't go to his head."

This year, his company rated and ranked 3,400 of the country's top prospects. With the help of additional

'There's no way to know (who) the top 100 (are)'

—George Welsh

computer technology, Emfinger will try to evaluate 10,000 next year. He plans to go into the field, test and measure 2,500 high school players in the Southeast and Southwest, where, Emfinger tells you, "35 percent of the best players usually are."

"I think these people who claim to be experts are full of stuff," Hadley says.

"There's no way to know the top 100," Welsh says. "Why do they do that? To make money?"

Undaunted, Emfinger insists there's a direct correlation between signing players in his top 100 and being ranked, consistently, in the wire services' top 20s. He runs through a list of examples: Oklahoma, Penn State, Miami (Florida)....

Naturally, he rates recruiting classes, too. Notre Dame and Texas A&M set the pace this year, Emfinger reports. Florida was close. Neither Virginia nor Virginia Tech was in his top 50.

"There's no reason why Virginia can't be a national power just like Penn State. It's an academic school.

"We were a little concerned about Sammy when he got here," A&M academic coordinator Don Hunt said. "It's very difficult for dyslexic students to keep up in college unless they're willing to admit the problem and take steps to correct it. And a lot are embarrassed to admit it. They're afraid of being tabbed a 'dumb jock.'"

"Sammy's never been like that. He told us about his situation when we recruited him, and he's worked hard to do something about it."

At Hunt's suggestion, O'Brien has taken reading classes from private tutors since enrolling at A&M. He has raised his comprehension level to that of a college sophomore. Hunt said O'Brien is on schedule to earn his industrial-education degree in 10 semesters, the length of time prescribed for all A&M athletes.

"I'm just about where I should be now, but I have to work hard to stay there," O'Brien said. "You have to read a lot or you go backward a little bit."

"It takes me about twice as long to finish (class reading assignments) as the other people," O'Brien said. "But that's OK. I really like to read."

"I'm not embarrassed about it (being dyslexic). I was lucky I found out. Some people just go through life thinking they can't read. They don't know enough to say, 'This word looks garbled.'"

"They think they're stupid, but they're not."

They ought to get great football players to go there," Emfinger says, "[but] has Virginia ever finished in the top 20 in recruiting? Hell no! Have they ever finished in the top 20 on the field? Hell no!"

Uh, Max, change that last part to hell yes! Virginia's Peach Bowl champions of 1984 were found in the final polls of both AP and UPI.

Now, about Houston and its cast of characters, including former coach Bill Yeoman and Pardee, his recent replacement.

"For 25 years, Yeoman has been down the block from where we are, and he never took one iota of information from us. What happened? He got fired. They had the world's worst recruiting setup ever designed by man. Their recruiting was about as mis-handled and mismanaged as you can get," Emfinger says.

"Jack Pardee's situation is 100 percent different. They're going to be living at my house, probably day and night, most of the recruiting year. And I can promise you right now, they will be competing for the national championship in three years. You can completely restructure your team in three years if you know what you're doing."

Final thought from Emfinger: "You don't win with coaching any more. You win with talent."

"If these recruiting experts were so damn good, an NFL team would have them on their staff," Hadley says.

"If you went on recruiting lists alone, then Jerry Faust would have won the national championship every year," Ross says. "That's probably what got him fired. Everybody expected that."

No, Holtz doesn't see Emfinger's endorsement as a kiss of death. "(His signees) wound up in the top 100 after we decided to recruit them," Holtz says.

Let alumni and fans go overboard about recruiting. Holtz knows that's the way it is. He can tell them to reserve opinion, but "unfortunately, people hear but they don't listen," he says. "It would be good if we could control it; but that isn't going to happen, so I don't get overly concerned."

Legislative Assistance

1987 Column No. 18

Printed recruiting aids

The NCAA Council has reviewed a previous interpretation issued by the NCAA Administrative Committee (see 1986 Column No. 37) regarding the application of Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3) and Case No. 182 (1987-88 NCAA Manual) in reference to printed recruiting aids. The Council affirmed that the provision of institutional press releases (e.g., published weekly reports about university activities) to prospective student-athletes or high school or junior college coaches would be precluded by Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3), inasmuch as such materials do not represent personal correspondence and are not included on the list of permissible printed recruiting items in this regulation.

In a related matter, the Council also discussed the application of this legislation to the provision of newspaper clippings to prospective student-athletes. The Council affirmed the current interpretation that it would be permissible under Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3) to provide newspaper clippings to prospective student-athletes, inasmuch as such newspaper clippings are not printed by or subject to the control of the member institution. It should be noted that the use of newspaper clippings for recruiting purposes would be restricted to the dissemination of the newspaper articles only and could not involve the provision to a prospect of a scrapbook or brochure containing newspaper articles.

Eligibility for financial aid

Acting upon the request of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee, the Council has reviewed the provisions of Constitution 3-4-(b), which stipulate that financial aid may be awarded for any term (semester or quarter) during which a student-athlete is in "regular attendance" as an undergraduate with eligibility remaining per Bylaw 4-1. The Council determined that "regular attendance" as it applies in the constitutional provision would require a student-athlete to be enrolled at least initially in a minimum full-time program of studies during a regular term in order to receive athletically related financial aid.

In addition, the Council reviewed the application of this legislation to enrollment in summer terms. In this regard, the Council concluded that a student-athlete enrolled in less than a minimum full-time program of studies during a summer term would be permitted to receive athletically related financial aid, provided the student qualifies for such aid under institutional policies and has been in residence a minimum of one term during the regular academic year.

Interpretations requests—policy

During its April meeting, the Council confirmed the existing policy that only the chief executive officer, faculty athletics representative, director of athletics and the primary woman administrator of athletics programs at each member institution are authorized to request interpretations from the Association's legislative services department. Please note, however, that this policy would permit the director of athletics and the chief executive officer of a member institution to designate specific individuals (e.g., an admissions or financial aid officer) as substitutes for them to call the national office and request interpretations. Such an appointment or designation must be reported to the national office in writing in order for the designated individual to be properly authorized. The substitution will be permanent (unless the national office subsequently is advised in writing of an authorized change), and each institution (regardless of such substitutions) will remain limited to a total of four individuals authorized to request interpretations from the national office.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Reclassification petitions due June 1

Petitions for changes in membership classification must be received in the NCAA national office no later than June 1, and petitions will be accepted with a postmark no later than May 25.

The petitions no longer will be reviewed by the NCAA Classification Committee, which was abolished by the 1987 Convention. NCAA staff now will consider all petitions for changes in division membership or multidivision classifications as dictated by the provisions of Bylaws 10-3 and 10-4.

Institutions requesting a change must meet the applicable membership criteria of the division to which the transfer is planned as set forth in Bylaw 11.

Also, institutions must have operated in conformity with all other bylaw requirements of the division for a two-year period prior to June 1.

If all requirements are met, the member will be transferred to the new division, effective September 1, 1987, or the beginning of practice in any sport that fall term or the first day of classes for the fall term, whichever occurs first.

Institutions choosing to change division membership or multidivision classification must remain in the new division for three years.

Any institution planning a change in membership classification or multidivision classification in a men's or women's sport may obtain a copy of the official petition form by contacting Shirley Whitacre, membership coordinator, at the national office.

Executive Committee agenda includes national office relocation proposals

Reports from several general and special NCAA committees and recommendations from governing sports committees fill the Executive Committee's schedule for a May 4-5 meeting in Kansas City.

Among agenda items are:

- A report on the search for an executive director-elect;
- An update on the first year of postseason drug testing;
- Requests for approval of recommendations that could lead to relocation (within the Kansas City area) of the national office and the formation of an NCAA Foundation; and
- Requests relating to the bracket sizes of four championships.

NCAA President Wilford S. Bailey will report on progress made in the search for an executive director-elect and on any actions taken by the search committee in its May 1-2 meeting.

Other general reports will include one from the Special NCAA Postseason Drug-Testing Committee that includes the following information and recommendations:

- As of late April, 1,528 postseason drug tests had been completed (of 2,023 administered). Only 2.2 percent of the student-athletes whose tests were complete (33 of 1,528) were ruled ineligible for positive tests. Only two of those positives were street-drug related; the others were steroid-related.

• The committee recommends that a national meeting of college team physicians be held prior to the start of the 1987-88 academic year to provide the doctors with further information on the Association's championships drug-testing program.

• The Executive Committee will be asked to approve a revision in the Association's certification-of-eligibility form that would provide information required for drug testing (e.g., a list of players in order of seasonal playing time in certain sports).

• The group is recommending that the Executive Committee sponsor legislation to permit testing of game officials whose authority can affect the outcome of a championships event (e.g., referee, scorer or timer). Also recommended, based on Executive Committee or Council interest in pursuing the matter, was the development of a legal opinion regarding the testing of coaches.

• The special committee also will officially report its support of the Executive Committee's decision to apply sanctions to teams beginning with fall 1987 championships.

The Executive Committee will receive a report on current and future plans for the national office building(s), which reveals that existing NCAA buildings could reach full occupancy within two years. Notably, this space includes a building that has been open only since November 1982.

The report, which was prepared by the national office staff, suggests that the Executive Committee appoint a subcommittee of its members to review possible alternatives and recommend a final action.

The Special NCAA Council Subcommittee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification also is scheduled to report to the Executive Committee. Among its requests is one that would move Executive Regulation 1-1 (page 180, 1987-88 NCAA Manual) to the bylaws, since it is the only executive regulation that requires membership action and that may not be amended by Executive Committee action.

Based on the results of initial investigations by the national office staff, the Executive Committee also will be asked to undertake a formal feasibility study on the concept of a national collegiate sports foundation. The purpose of The NCAA Foundation would be "to advance the scientific, educational and charitable purposes" of the NCAA, according to sample articles of incorporation that have been prepared for Executive Committee review.

Another nonsport-specific area of

Executive Committee attention during this meeting will be that of oversight responsibility for rules-making committees, which was given the division championships committees by passage of Proposal No. 34 at the 1987 NCAA Convention.

Specifically, the Executive Committee will be asked to define that oversight authority as it applies to a number of issues—including, for example, whether a championships committee can overrule a playing-rule decision by a rules-making committee.

And, as usual, requests from governing sports committees will take up a large chunk of the meeting. Among those recommendations are the following, which relate to championships fields and/or brackets:

• That the field of the Division III Women's Cross Country Championships be expanded from 116 to 136 to permit the addition of two seven-member teams and six individuals.

• That the Division I Men's Soccer Championship bracket be expanded from 23 to 24 teams.

• That the Division II Women's Volleyball Championship be expanded to include 20 teams instead of the current 16.

• That the Division III Football Championship bracket remain at 16 teams.

The Division III Football Committee also has recommended that the Executive Committee eliminate Executive Regulation 1-3-(i) (page 187, 1987-88 NCAA Manual), which deals with automatic qualification for NCAA championships. In making this request, the sports committee indicates its belief that Executive Regulation 1-3-(i) has denied the committee the opportunity to select the best qualified teams for the Division III Football Championship.

A report on actions taken by the Executive Committee will appear in the May 6, 1987, issue of The NCAA News, and a summary of all actions taken at the meeting will be published in the May 13 issue of the paper.

mittee's appointment and charge. The group met for the first time in September 1985, and Bailey's review of its responsibilities, as published in the meeting's minutes, included:

- Revision of the Manual's format;
- Simplification of the Manual's wording; and
- Deregulation of appropriate NCAA legislation.

One of the special committee's first acts was to review the draft of the revised constitution and bylaws that had been prepared by legal counsel. "Although the committee found the work to be of assistance," the minutes reported, "particularly in reference to moving certain provisions of the constitution to the bylaws, it was agreed that it would be preferable for the committee to consider a complete reorganization of the Manual ab initio (from the beginning)."

Members of the committee were assigned specific sections of the Manual for purposes of reorganization. During the group's second meeting, November 20, 1985, concern was expressed "that a primary obstacle in the efforts of the committee to revise the format of the Manual would be different approaches that each committee member would take in modifying the section of the Manual assigned for revision to that committee member," according to the minutes. "In order to assist in integrating the different styles, it was suggested that a management consultant company specializing in the preparation of operating manuals be contracted to assist in coordinating the committee's efforts."

Wilford S. Bailey

Outside help

A Houston-based firm, The Andrus Group, was identified because the organization's president, Ms. Sharon Andrus, had assisted in the preparation of operating manuals for athletics departments at several Division I-A member institutions. It was determined that The Andrus Group (which subsequently was contracted to provide support services to the committee) would redraft the then-current Manual based on an outline that would be developed and supplied by the special committee.

No language would be changed, but according to the minutes of the November 20 meeting, Andrus would "identify everything in the NCAA Manual related to each of the subjects (in the outlines), regardless of the location in the current Manual, in order to group related materials."

"The Andrus Group used computerized optical scanning equipment to integrate the entire Manual into its word-processing system," Bailey recalled. "With the entire Manual in the computer and having been provided outlines for topical arrangement of information, employees moved information in the Manual to its assigned place in the outlines, making sure to identify the source (from the then-current Manual) for the information."

Bailey said committee members recognized that, at least initially, significant duplication of material would take place, and that would be eliminated as the group's work progressed. "However, we wanted to make sure that nothing in the Manual fell through the cracks in the rearrangement process," he noted. Another reason for the identification of moved material was to retain the appropriate voting requirements for Association legislation.

18 meetings

Completion of the rearrangement provided the committee with the left side of a left/right Manual prototype that has been the focus of its efforts over the course of 18 meetings (including one telephone conference). "When we received the rearranged draft of the Manual," Bailey related, "members of the committee took the various files they had been assigned and began rewriting that original material to make it more readable and to include headings and subheadings that would make material much easier to locate for people using the Manual."

Bailey said a major intent of the rewrites was to cover as completely as possible a given subject wherever it occurred and have some cross-referencing provided, where appropriate. "Also, we made a decision very early in our work to convert the Manual to a decimal system for reference," he noted. For example, current O.I. 600 would become 15.02.2.

When committee members finished their work on the revisions, the Manual draft was returned to The Andrus Group, where employees added the right side to the left/right manuscript. "We then were able to review a draft of the Manual that included two parts," Bailey explained. "The left side simply was a reorganization of rules and regulations in existing language, but the right side comprised the reorganization and the rewrite."

He said the special committee has reviewed the work—particularly the right-side manuscript—to assure that rewording has not changed the intent of NCAA legislation in any way, and to assure that, when language was plugged into the original outlines, those outlines provided the kind of logical presentation of information the group intended.

"Certainly, the old adage about it being impossible to write a report by committee is true," Bailey related. "However, we felt it was absolutely necessary for the committee to reach a consensus on the outline and redraft of the Manual."

"In some instances," he continued, "major rearrangements of some outlines were undertaken. For example, the financial aid outline was redone three times before the special committee was satisfied that the flow was logical."

Reviewers

When committee members were satisfied with the results, the group called upon an average of six reviewers, representatives of member institutions with particular knowledge and expertise in a given area (e.g., financial aid, recruiting). After the material was returned from the reviewers, committee members incorporated changes and suggestions made by the reviewers and returned the draft to The Andrus Group, where a "clean" draft was formulated.

Reviews of the redrafted material also have been or will be completed by members of the Association's legislative services department and by other staff members in the national office. The special committee also will make one final review of the manuscript before it is submitted to the Convention for possible adoption.

"Our plan is to submit only the right side of the left/right manuscript to the entire membership for review before the Convention," Bailey said. "However, we will make complete (left/right) copies available to conference offices and have them at the Convention at which the revised Manual will be introduced to the membership for action."

Some surprises

Throughout the process, committee members have experienced some surprises—or at least some things they probably had not thought about or expected when they accepted their appointments. One has been the incorporation of changes in NCAA legislation made by the actions of two annual Conventions—which may be

SEC meetings emphasis rules

Southeastern Conference Commissioner Harvey W. Schiller and three of his associates are conducting on-campus seminars at the 10 league institutions on SEC and NCAA rules, regulations and guidelines.

The campus visits were designed to help educate administrative staffs and coaching staffs on the latest rule interpretations so there would be no misunderstanding or inadvertent violations of NCAA or SEC rules.

"These campus visits are a restatement of the conference's commitment to compliance, and our goal is to work with the institutions to avoid problems rather than have to react to them," stated Schiller in discussing the visits.

complicated, as Bailey pointed out in the April 22, 1987, issue of the News, by additional changes at the June special Convention that has been called by the Association's Presidents Commission.

Another unforeseen circumstance was the dearth of advice provided by the membership. "In my opinion, that has been the most surprising aspect of the special committee's experience," Bailey noted.

And although deregulation is part of the special committee's name, that issue has been left largely untouched throughout the group's labors. "We as a group have become convinced that deregulation should take place after the Manual has been reorganized and reworded," Bailey explained. "Our plan is to submit a revised Manual that essentially will reflect the rules and regulations that are in effect at the time of its completion. In addition, we will introduce a list of areas we believe are prime candidates for further consideration and possible deregulation."

No case book

One significant difference in the proposed new Manual will be the absence of a case book, because the special committee recommends incorporating official interpretations into the text. "All of the official interpretations included in the (current format) Manual's case book at the time of completion will be incorporated in the revised manuscript," said Bailey. "We will not include those interpretations that have been approved and published in The NCAA News but that are not in the Manual, though."

"We have recommended to the Council that a plan be developed with very clear policies and procedures for the incorporation of interpretations into the revised Manual on an ongoing basis. We do not believe that another case book should be developed."

The cost

What price revision? "Given the complexity of the project and the time requirements of the committee, Manual revision has become quite an expensive project—both in dollars and cents and in man-hours," Bailey said. "But we believe that the publication that results from this effort will be well worth all the expenditure."

NCAA Controller Louis J. Spry said the project has cost the Association $143,906 as of April 23.

It also is very likely that the finished product will be physically larger than the current NCAA Manual, which contains 430 pages. "The overlap of information that we believe is necessary will account for some of that," Bailey noted, "but so will the charts that are being developed."

"And the revised Manual will include a greatly expanded index and a glossary of terms used in the Association's legislation. This group's intent was not to revise the NCAA Manual simply to make it smaller. We set out to produce a publication that—as completely as possible—presented all information relating to a specific subject in one place in as readable and usable a form as possible... regardless of the ultimate size of the book."

The decision not to propose any areas of deregulation also prevents any significant reduction in the size of the book.

Bailey admitted to some anxious moments throughout the past two years, as members of the special committee made decisions—without the advice from the membership that they had actively solicited—concerning the presentation of material in a manner they believed to be appropriate. "Certainly, it was gratifying to the entire group to receive comments from the independent reviewers, some of whom called parts of the revised draft they had seen 'a quantum leap forward,'" Bailey related. "Others said they couldn't wait to see the whole new book, and we are continuing to work as hard as possible to make that wait a short one."

Georgia women shine on balance beam, end Utah's reign

Georgia turned in a stellar performance on the balance beam and won the team title at the National Collegiate Women's Gymnastics Championships in Salt Lake City, Utah, April 24-25.

Utah, which saw its string of consecutive titles end at six, finished second, 187.90-187.55. UCLA was third with 187.00.

"We found out we were four-tenths behind after the first two events," Georgia coach Suzanne Yoculan said. "Then we went to the beam. I would never want to follow our beam performance. It was pretty intimidating."

The Bulldogs scored 47.40 on the beam, nearly a point better than Utah's 46.45. Georgia had three of the top four performances in that event. Andrea Thomas scored a 9.7, followed by teammate Julie Klick with a 9.55. Terri Eckert scored a 9.5, as did Utah's Lynne Lederer.

"We struggled on the beam, and that's what put us in the hole," Utah coach Greg Marsden said. "Then we regrouped and did a heck of a job in the last two events."

Kelly Garrison-Steves of Oklahoma won the all-around competition with a score of 38.10 despite a fall on the beam. Yumi Mordre of Washington was second with a 37.85.

"All week long, I've been falling to the left, and I've been saying to myself, 'keep to the right, keep to the right,'" Garrison-Steves said about falling to her right. "And that's what I did too much. But I can't complain for winning. I was surprised I could win with a fall. That's unusual."

Mordre captured individual titles in the vault and balance beam to tie the championships record for individual titles in one year. Four others have duplicated that feat since the championships began in 1982.

UCLA men win gym title at home

Host UCLA won its second team title at the National Collegiate Men's Gymnastics Championships (April 23-25) by defeating Nebraska, 285.30-284.75.

The Bruins won their first title in 1984. Nebraska finished second for the third straight year. Penn State was third at 284.20.

UCLA controlled five of six events. The Bruins scored a 48.45 on the high bar, led by Tony Pineda's 9.80. Pineda scored 9.90 on both the pommel horse and parallel bars. Nebraska's Kevin Davis also scored a 9.90 on the parallel bars.

Junior Tom Schlesinger became Nebraska's fourth all-around champion of the decade with a score of 113.25. He scored 9.80 on both the pommel horse and parallel bars and a 9.90 on the high bar in the optional competition. He had an 8.65 on the high bar in the compulsory competition.

"This is the greatest thing that ever happened to me," Schlesinger said. "It was special for me because my mother, brother, aunt, uncle and cousin all traveled out here to watch me compete."

Schlesinger finished ahead of teammate Davis, who had a score of 112.05. The two tied for the individual title on the parallel bars with scores of 9.75. They tied for fourth in that event a year ago.

Li Xiao Ping of Cal State Fullerton and David Moriel of UCLA were just a shade less than perfect in winning individual titles. Each scored 9.95 in winning the pommel horse and high bar, respectively. Ping is a native of Shanghai, China.

Sophomore Chad Fox of New Mexico won his second straight title in the vault and also took the floor exercise title with a score of 9.90. Paul O'Neill of Houston Baptist recorded the same score en route to the individual title on the rings.

Ex-Longhorn Allert testifies agents paid several teammates

Linebacker Ty Allert of the San Diego Chargers testified before a Texas Senate committee April 27 that when he was on a football scholarship at the University of Texas, Austin, probably eight or 10 of his teammates received money from sports agents while they were in school.

Allert, a middle-round NFL draft choice after his senior year in 1985, testified at a hearing on a bill to regulate sports agents, which was approved by the Economic Development Committee, 10-0. He said he was not speaking about the specific bill but only his experience as a college football player.

"I would say probably eight or 10... quite a few players I'm playing with now (in the pros) were taking money in college," Allert said, in response to a question from Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, the Associated Press reported.

Student-athletes are prohibited by the NCAA from contracting with an agent or accepting inducements before their college eligibility has expired. Now, only the student and school are subject to punishment for violating NCAA rules. The bill would require agents to register with the state, post a bond, file annual reports listing clients and limit contact with students. Violators could be fined $10,000 and sentenced to a year in jail.

Starting in the spring of his junior year, Allert said he would get eight or 10 phone calls a night from sports agents.

"You get in a situation where you have people offering you $1,000 a month, or whatever you want, and it gets so easy to call someone up and say, 'Wire me $1,000 or send me $200; or if you don't have a car, 'I want to get a car,'" Allert said.

Allert testified that it is fairly common for an agent to offer a college athlete money and support him during his junior and senior years in exchange for signing a contract. About half those athletes have bad experiences, Allert said.

Allert said agents often tell college players they are sure to be drafted by an NFL team in the first round, but it doesn't always work out that way.

"I know one case of a guy who coming out of his junior year was said to be one of the first 15 picks, and he came in really out of shape — thought he had it made — and was taking money from an agent on a house, a car, and ended up signing," Allert said. And when he signed, he was already $150,000 in debt and ended up getting cut halfway through the season and still is in debt now."

"We have unscrupulous people that have little or no knowledge of basic contract law and other things who feel like they can get rich quick at the expense of the young man or woman in representing them with a sports contract," said the bill's sponsor, Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria.

His proposal calls for agents to pay a $1,000 fee to register with the secretary of state, and it requires them to post a $500,000 bond. Agents would be required to file annual reports identifying the athletes they represent, the fees received, and all travel and entertainment expenses.

The proposal also would limit the contacts that agents make with college athletes.

Agents who violate the law could be fined $10,000, forced to refund any money received in the transaction and jailed for up to a year.

Armbrister said the bill is needed "to offer some protection to young people."

Men's Committee on Committees

Four new members were appointed to the committee: David R. Hart, Southern Conference (Division I, District 3); Don Landry, Southland Conference (Division I, District 6); William D. McHenry, Washington and Lee University (Division III, at large), and Ralph McFillen, Gulf South Conference (Division II, at large).

Members whose terms continue are Lawrence P. Boyd, Framingham State College (Division III, District 1); Gene A. Carpenter, Millersville University of Pennsylvania (Division II, District 2); James W. Lessig, Mid-American Athletic Conference (Division I, District 4); Noel W. Olson, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (Division II, District 5); Ronald D. Stephenson, Big Sky Conference (Division I, District 7); Charles Whitcomb, San Jose State University (Division I, District 8); Allen F. Ackerman, Elmhurst College (Division III, at large), and Kramer (Division I, at large).

Committee members serve three-year terms. The committee nominates persons to fill vacancies on men's sports committees.

Women's Committee on Committees

New members appointed were Susan Lubking, West Chester University of Pennsylvania (Division II, District 2); Diane Lindstrom, University of Wisconsin, Madison (Division I, District 4); Elizabeth Murphey, University of Georgia (Division I, at large), and Jodie Burton, Claremont McKenna-Harvey Mudd-Scripps Colleges (Division III, at large).

Those whose terms on the committee continue are Mary Lou Thimas, Bridgewater State College of Massachusetts (Division III, District 1); Joyce Sorrell, Troy State University (Division II, District 3); Fri (Division II, District 5); Martha E. Hawthorne, Rice University (Division I, District 6); Margie H. McDonald, High Country Athletic Conference (Division I, District 7); Kay Don, California State University, Long Beach (Division I, District 8); Mary F. Heishman, Bridgewater College of Virginia (Division III, at large), and Judith R. Holland, University of California, Los Angeles (Division I, at large).

The committee nominates candidates to fill vacancies on women's sports committees. Its members are limited to three-year terms.

are attending without receiving such aid.

The majority of partial qualifiers are prospective participants in football and men's basketball. In football, the schools reported 254 partial qualifiers, including 198 who are receiving athletics-related aid. Of 90 partial qualifiers reported in men's basketball, 62 are receiving athletics-related aid.

Most of the partial qualifiers covered by the survey are ineligible for athletics competition on the basis of inadequate test scores. A total of 424 student-athletes met core-curriculum grade-point average requirements but did not meet the test-score requirement. Of that number, 299 are black and 104 are white.

A total of 85 nonqualifiers also were reported registered at the participating Division I institutions. Of that number, 45 are prospective football participants and 18 are prospective men's basketball participants.

Findings from the survey are considered consistent with forecasts derived from a review of data previously obtained for classes that enrolled in 1977 and 1982.

Due to the Division I membership's cooperation in providing a high rate of response to the survey and the relative ease with which the survey was conducted, the Research Committee will consider collecting information again next year about partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers.

Division I institutions' responses to the survey are reported sport-by-sport in the accompanying tables.

David R. Gavitt

Hall of fame honors Gavitt

The commissioner of the Big East Conference and coach of the 1980 U.S. Olympic men's basketball team, David R. Gavitt, will be the recipient of the 15th annual John W. Bunn Award from the board of trustees of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame.

Hall of Fame President Larry O'Brien said the award will be presented at the 20th anniversary Basketball Hall of Fame enshrinement dinner in the Springfield Civic Center Tuesday, May 5.

The prestigious award is named in honor of the late John W. Bunn, one of the founders of the Basketball Hall of Fame. It recognizes an individual for outstanding contributions to basketball in particular and sports in general.

Region realignment is being studied

The NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Committee appointed a subcommittee to study the feasibility of realigning regions for regular-season play in its April meeting at Hilton Head, South Carolina.

In other action, the committee voted to recommend to the Association's Executive Committee that the best-three-of-five-game format (with games played to conclusion) be required (for regular-season competition) for teams to be considered by the committee for selection to the Division I championship beginning in 1988.

The volleyball committee also will request that each first-round host institution guarantee a minimum of $2,000 net receipts.

The University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, has been recommended as the 1988 championship site, with matches to be played December 15 and 17.

The following conferences were recommended for automatic qualification: Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic 10 Conference, Big Eight Conference, Big Ten Conference, Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference, High Country Athletic Conference, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, Mid-American Athletic Conference, Mountain West Conference, Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Pacific-10 Conference, Southeastern Conference, Southland Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference and West Coast Athletic Conference.

DRUGS IN THE LOCKER ROOM...

May 18-19, 1987

King of Prussia, PA

The ATHLETIC TRAP is a program specifically designed for athletic directors, coaches, and members of the collegiate community who are concerned about substance abuse in the locker room, and on the campus. The goal of this program is to provide the technical and resource data needed to make more informed decisions, about drug testing, education and rehabilitation in the collegiate setting.

Temple and Maryland after women's lacrosse play-off first Temple or Maryland has a strong chance of becoming the first school to win a second National Collegiate Championship in women's lacrosse.

This year's six-team field will be selected Sunday, May 3. First-round games will be played May 6, with the semifinals May 9 or 10. The championship game will be at Maryland May 16 as part of a doubleheader with the women's Division III championship game.

Temple, Maryland and Penn State, which has been ranked right behind Temple this season, are the only teams to have participated in the tournament each of the last four years. Temple won the championship in 1984 and finished second the previous year. Maryland took the title last season after second-place finishes in 1984 and 1985. Penn State was the runner-up a year ago.

"This has been a tremendous group to work with," Temple coach Tina Sloan Green said of her team. "The players have a tremendous attitude, and they are hard workers. They listen and do just what you ask them to do."

Three key performers for the Lady Owls are Gail Cummings, Mandee Moore and Chrissy Muller. Cummings is a prolific scorer who draws plenty of attention every time she touches the ball. Moore creates havoc among opposing offenses by checking opponents and intercepting passes. She also can put the ball in the net. Goalie Muller has been a consistent performer despite playing behind a young defense.

Senior Denise Bourasso and junior Kim Lumbdin have hurt opponents who give too much attention to Cummings.

Last spring, Penn State coach Susan Scheetz came within one goal of winning the national championship in her first year as a head coach. The Lady Lions will challenge for the title again. Seniors Chris Vitale and Mary McCarthy lead a strong defense. The offense is well-balanced.

Virginia earned its first trip to the tournament last season and is a strong contender this year. The Cavaliers are another well-balanced team. Senior Dawn Wisniewski has scored over 50 goals this season. Classmate Abby O'Leary and sophomore Lisa Newi are other key offensive players. Senior Elaine Maddox is a top-notch defender but also has scored over 20 goals. Sophomore Tracy Nelson has been a standout in goal.

Northwestern also has been among the nation's top teams in 1987. The offense is paced by senior Kate Oleykowski, who holds school career records for goals, assists and points. She has over 50 goals and more than 70 points this season. Senior Robin Clark has tallied about 40 goals while sophomore Maureen Mullen has given out over 20 assists. Goalie Johanna Kung has stopped almost 60 percent of the shots that she has faced.

"Northwestern uses its personnel as well as any team we have seen," Maryland coach Sue Tyler said.

Maryland is paced by Aynsia Fedec, the outstanding attack in the 1986 championship game. Fedec, like Cummings of Temple, draws special attention from opposing defenses. Junior Kim Chorosiowski has been a standout in goal.

"I am particularly pleased with the defense, and our attack has played very well at times," Tyler said.

William and Mary, Massachusetts, Dartmouth, Lafayette, Harvard, and New Hampshire are other teams with play-off hopes.

"Defense plays a tremendous part in the end," coach Sloan Green said. "You have to hold the other team below its scoring average while your team gets its quota of goals."

Record-chasing Statesmen have become lacrosse underdogs

Hobart will be going for an eighth straight Division III men's lacrosse championship, but the Statesmen may not be the top seed in 1987.

Washington and Lee, which moved from Division I to Division III this year, has been atop the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association poll for most of the season. Ohio Wesleyan has occupied the No. 2 spot largely on the basis on an early-season victory over Hobart on the Statesmen's home field.

"Hobart is still the team to beat," Washington and Lee coach Dennis Daly said. "Part of Hobart's season is to play in the championship. It will be a new experience for us."

The Statesmen have two outstanding individuals at either end of the field. Senior attackman Ray Gilliam is the top scorer with over 40 goals this season. He was the attackman of the year in 1986 and was the top scorer in the Division III tournament last season with 11 goals and four assists. Defenseman Devin Arkison, also a senior, was the defenseman of the year in 1986.

Junior Tom Gravante teams with Gilliam on attack and is another top scorer. He had eight goals and three assists in last year's tournament. Senior midfielder Michael Guy also can find the net.

Coach Dave Urlick has been using a trio of goalies. Senior Al Randolph, junior Dave Maxwell and sophomore Shawn Trell have split playing time this year.

"We are looking at a different picture in Division III, and that is really healthy," coach Urlick said. "I see the tournament as being more wide open in terms of who could win it all."

If Hobart does defend its title, Urlick will set a record with eight championships in a team sport. He currently shares the record with legendary UCLA basketball coach John Wooden.

Washington and Lee likes the transition game, and a big part of that style is controlling face-offs. Sandy Harrison has been a standout in this department with a success rate of nearly 70 percent. He also is the team leader in ground balls.

T. J. Finnerty has been a key performer in the midfield, while goalie John Church has protected the net and anchored a young defense. Attackmen John Ware and Neill Redfern pace the offense. Ware already has scored 60 points this season, and Redfern also is likely to pass that mark.

"It has been a fun year," Daly said. "We will just take it as far as we can."

Ohio Wesleyan has competed in the tournament five times, reaching the semifinals in 1983 and 1986. Senior goalie Dan O'Neill has stopped nearly 70 percent of the shots he has faced. Sophomore Jim Schwartz also has been playing in the net and turning in solid performances. Junior midfielder Charlie Blanchard has stepped to the forefront on offense, scoring about 30 goals. Rob Alvino, Mike James and Toby Boucher are other key performers on offense.

"They played well in every aspect of the game against us," coach Urlick said. "They have that strong combination of team speed and a good goalie."

Rochester Institute of Technology, St. Lawrence and Cortland State are three New York teams that also have frequented the tournament. The Tigers made the semifinals in 1984 and 1985. Cortland State was runner-up to Hobart in 1980 and 1981 and reached the semifinals in 1985 and 1986. St. Lawrence made five straight tournament appearances beginning in 1980 and looks to get back in the fray this season.

Washington College (Maryland) has finished second to Hobart four times in the past five years. Roanoke is another strong team that has been runner-up once and a semifinalist once.

Denison is looking for a fourth straight bid, while Hampden-Sydney would like to make its second tournament appearance. Franklin and Marshall and Guilford could be first-time invitees.

The eight-team field will be selected Sunday, May 3. First-round games are May 6 and semifinals are May 10. The championship is May 16 on the campus of one of the finalists.

Ursinus women could defend '86 title

Ursinus will make a strong bid to defend its title in the 1987 Division III Women's Lacrosse Championship.

Selections for the tournament, which is in its third year, will be made Sunday, May 3. The eight-team field will consist of one team from each of four regions plus four at-large selections.

"I think it is definitely harder coming back as champion," Ursinus coach Betsy Meng Ramsey said. "Everyone wants to knock you down. It is harder to hold on to the title than to be in the fight for it."

Ursinus will not relinquish that title without a fight. Senior Beth Bingham again leads the attack. She had 12 goals and two assists in the 1986 tournament, including four in the Bears' 12-10 victory over Trenton State in the championship game.

Cover point Bobbie Sue Copley and defense wing Jill Johnson are standouts at the other end of the field. Copley was a first-team all-America in 1986, while Johnson was the outstanding defensive player in the championship game.

"My defense has done a great job of forcing weak shots," coach Ramsey said.

Ursinus' midfield play is strong, and the attack, which sports many new faces, has come together well. Teamwork has been another strength.

"Even though we are playing well, we are still young," Ramsey said. "We are working on our consistency, and that is the name of the game in the play-offs."

Trenton State suffered a couple of losses early in the season, including one to Northwestern (a highly ranked Division I team). However, the Lions appear to be hitting their stride just in time for the tournament.

The attack is led by seniors Peggy Engelbert and Laura Groppo. Engelbert tallied her 100th career goal this season and has about 40 on the year. Groppo is the assist leader but also has about 30 goals. Groppo and Engelbert scored nine and seven goals, respectively, in last year's tournament. Freshman Deanna Beuerle has been a welcome addition to the offense. She already has about 20 goals this season.

The defense has come together of late. Junior Penny Kempf leads the team in interceptions, while classmate Sandy Stockl minds the net. Defense wing Nancy Warren and cover point Adria Martus are other top performers at this end of the field.

Trenton State won the initial Division III tournament in 1985, defeating Ursinus, 7-4.

Some of the top teams by region follow:

Northeast—New York teams Cortland State, William Smith, St. Lawrence and Ithaca are in contention. William Smith and Ithaca would be first-time tournament participants. Senior Beth Breen is Cortland State's leading scorer, while William Smith is paced by freshman Heather Dwinell. Drew also will challenge for a bid. Trenton State is in this region.

Pennsylvania—Other strong teams (besides Ursinus) are Haverford, Franklin and Marshall, and Gettysburg. Haverford coach Deborah Gallagher is building a solid program and could take her squad to the tournament for the second straight year. Franklin and Marshall and Gettysburg would be making their first tournament appearances.

South—Lynchburg has been a semifinalist the past two years and is strong again this season. Western Maryland; Johns Hopkins, a familiar name in men's lacrosse; Mary Washington, and Roanoke are looking to compete for the championship for the first time.

West—Denison is challenging for a third straight play-off bid. Kenyon and Wittenberg are other strong teams in this region.

First-round games are May 6, while the semifinals are May 9 or 10. The championship game will be played May 16 at the University of Maryland as part of a doubleheader with the National Collegiate Women's Lacrosse Championship.

Chapman to lead California defense of Division II men's tennis trophy

The first-place team trophy may remain in the state of California for a third straight season after the Division II Men's Tennis Championships May 11-17 at Cal State Northridge.

The first of Northridge's three stints as host of the championships in 1985 marked the end of Southern Illinois-Edwardsville's seven-year dominance in the division. California representatives Chapman and Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo have kept the title within state boundaries since then.

No region ever has sent more than three teams to the tournament in one season, but the West Coast could set a precedent in 1987.

Chapman travels to Northridge as one of the favorites. The Panthers lost the title last spring only after all three doubles matches went to the third set.

Mike Edles' team lost a four-time all-America in Troy Turnbull but returns depth and talent. Junior Paul Wekesa and sophomore Olivier Amerlinck also earned all-America recognition, with Amerlinck reaching the singles quarterfinals in his first season of college play.

Veterans Brad Parker and Paul Charlesworth bolster the Chapman cause.

Hampton has perhaps the best shot among Eastern teams. The Pirates, regular visitors to the Division II semifinals, have one of the top doubles teams in Rozzell Lightfoot and Greg Williams. Both also are in the top 10 in the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association's singles rankings.

Datus Murray, Stephen Martin and Eduardo Afini give coach Robert Screen quality depth.

UC Davis, ranked at the top of the ITCA preseason poll, started slowly after injuries to key performers. But the Mustangs have played well late in the season and may yet make an impact at the championships.

"We have had consistent play from much of our lineup," coach Bob Biggs said. "Now we hope our top players will come around by the time the tournament begins."

Aleco Preovolos, ranked No. 3 as the season began, has suffered a disappointing season after struggling with physical woes. Cort Schultz and Chris Newman are other Mustangs to watch.

Cal State Hayward and defending champion Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo are other teams from the Golden State with legitimate title hopes.

Cal State Hayward has one of the division's top singles players in Mauricio Achondo, who transferred west after Stephen F. Austin State dropped its successful program. Achondo teams with another recent arrival, junior-college graduate Tom Bogar, for a potent doubles team. Sophomore Tom Edwards is another key player for the Pioneers.

Graduation took a heavy toll at Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, which returned only two players from its 1986 championship squad. But coach Hugh Bream added newcomers Jim Ault, Tim Fresenius and Steve Vogt to a lineup led by tournament-tested sophomore Dale Minney and junior Mike Giusto.

Rollins and perennial contender Southern Illinois-Edwardsville join Hampton as teams hoping to take the championship out of California.

Rollins is led by Pat Emmet, one of the top singles players in the division.

Kalamazoo seeks III men's prize

Kalamazoo can reclaim its mantle as the most victorious team in men's Division III tennis with a victory at the 1987 championships, set for May 11-17 at Salisbury State.

George Acker's Hornets won the first Division III title in 1976 and captured it again two years later. Another crown last season tied Kalamazoo with Redlands and Swarthmore in all-time team championships at three each.

Despite the loss of singles champion Tim Corwin, Kalamazoo is again the team to beat. Doubles champions Alex Palladino and Jim Burda are back to provide senior leadership for the Hornets' bid to repeat.

Rick Verheul, Jack Hosner and Dave Borski also return from the championship squad. Hosner and Corwin lost to Palladino and Burda in an all-Kalamazoo doubles final last spring at Claremont-Mudd-Scripps.

Kalamazoo will preface its trip to the championships with an appearance at the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association tournament. The Hornets have won the MIAA title a remarkable 48 straight times.

Kalamazoo's victim in the 1986 team finals, Washington and Lee, will be in the hunt again this season. The arrival of sophomore Robert Haley, a transfer from Army, bolsters the Generals' hopes.

Washington and Lee has four other players with Division III tournament experience. Foremost among them is junior David McLeod, who ranks in the top 20 nationally in singles. Bobby Mathews, Roby Mize and Chris Wiman also are back, and Jack Messerly rounds out the Generals' lineup.

Swarthmore returns a pair of all-Americans in David Sobel and Vivek Varma, as well as another tournament veteran, John Martinez. But it will be the performance of younger players that determines how well the Little Quakers uphold their championship tradition. Swarthmore and coach Michael Mullan have won the title twice in the 1980s.

Whitman, with Chris Gregersen, Division III's best young player, could emerge as a new power this spring. Gregersen reached the 1986 singles final as a freshman and has been ranked at the top of the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association poll this spring. Juniors Dave Olafsson and Jeff Northam and sophomore Robert Carcamo also contribute for the Missionaries, the top Western team in the division.

A strong test lies ahead for Gustavus Adolphus, which has had to rebuild. The Gusties have captured the championship twice (1980 and 1982) and have been in the field every year since the creation of the dual-match format in 1983. Senior Jim Allen and sophomore Roger Gilbertson will lead the 1987 effort.

Emory has steadily assembled the South's best Division III program and should be on hand again in Salisbury. Coach Don Schroer has an experienced squad led by senior Steve Gittleson and junior Jimmy Strauss, both ranked high in the ITCA listings. Veterans Brian Harris and Haig Kazazian also are back.

Washington (Maryland) is also a seasoned team, returning four seniors from last season's tournament squad. Alejandro Hernandez and Enrique Leal are one of the top doubles teams in the division and are joined by senior classmates Claudio Gonzales and Ross Coleman, junior David Marshall, and transfer Rick Phoebeus.

Claremont-Mudd-Scripps also has a powerful doubles combination in junior Frank Hinman and sophomore Paul Scholtz. They teamed to win the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Association crown last year, with Hinman capturing the individual title as well. The Stags will lose no seniors after this season.

Another California team, UC Santa Cruz, has two ranked players in sophomore Chad Andrews and senior Mark Cassell and a talented freshman in Steve Gottlieb. The Sea Lions hope to return to the championships after a two-year absence.

Other tournament possibilities include Rochester, Wisconsin-Stout and Wheaton (Illinois).

Other top individuals include Pat Guerry, Sewanee (University of the South); Jon Burnham, Wheaton (Illinois); Duncan Seay, Washington (Missouri); Joachim Hammer, Rochester; Jon Flagg, Redlands; David Treichel and Tom James, Carleton; Toby Clark and Tom Kollock, Principia; Bill Briggs, Millsaps; Paul Gastonguay, Bates; Sergio Rodriguez, Babson, and Noel Occomy, Brandeis.

Player-turned-coach takes on coastal challengers

Linda Topolsky could not stay away from the Division III Women's Tennis Championships.

Topolsky, Kalamazoo's top player from 1983 through 1986 and three-time most valuable player in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, will be on hand for a fifth tournament, this time as head coach at her alma mater.

Kalamazoo will serve as host of the championships for a third time, May 12-16.

Making such an abrupt transition from active participation to a less strenuous role on the sideline has been easy for Topolsky, who last summer replaced longtime mentor Tish Loveless, who retired.

"I think it has been an advantage to have actually played tennis with most of this team and to know their styles," Topolsky said. "Playing No. 1 was a leadership role anyway, and that made it easier to move into a position of authority."

"I've had to learn the ins and outs of recruiting and the administrative end of coaching, but I've enjoyed working with the girls this season."

While Topolsky notes that tennis in the Midwest region is the strongest it has been in years, both coasts also will produce powerful contenders for the 1987 field. Strong teams return for defending champion Trenton State and runner-up Occidental.

Trenton State lost the services of singles champ Debbie Daniel, who joined the professional ranks after compiling a two-year collegiate record of 85-11.

But coach Brenda Campbell, whose Lions became the first NCAA tennis champion from the Northeast, still has a strong nucleus and hopes her team can be the first to repeat as women's champ in Division III.

Senior Kathy Crowley, who shook off a late-season slump to claim all-America honors last spring, now holds down Daniel's spot in No. 1 singles. Also on hand are juniors Amy Danser and Judy Womelsdorf and promising freshman Tracy Prasa.

Occidental, Division III champion in 1982 and out of the semifinals only once in the tournament's five-year history, has the talent to make another run at the title this season. Sue Hulse was player of the year in the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference as a freshman last spring and is joined in the Tigers' lineup by veterans Kristin Carter and Kiki Roe. Hulse and Carter form one of the division's finest doubles combinations.

Topolsky's Kalamazoo team features a young lineup, led by sophomore Morgan Vis, junior Beth Blachut and a promising freshman class.

Courtney Allen of Principia will travel to Kalamazoo with hopes of regaining the singles championship she lost to Daniel last spring. The Panther senior captured the individual crown in 1984 and 1985 and shared the doubles title in 1984 and 1986.

Cal State Northridge back on track to regain Division II softball title

Cal State Northridge wasted little time this year starting down the road to reclaim the Division II softball title it lost to Stephen F. Austin State in 1986.

The 39-6 Matadors went undefeated from March 11 to April 17, when they suffered a 1-0 loss to Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo. The team is 14-2 in California Collegiate Athletic Association play with six regular-season games and the conference tournament remaining and appears to be set for the Division II Women's Softball Championship May 15-17 at Quincy.

Coach Gary Torgeson's 1987 strategy has been to play a quick game—a lot of sacrifices and stolen bases. Senior center fielder Barbara Jordan's performance is a prime example. The all-America has accounted for 17 of 21 stolen bases for the team and hit .349 in 129 visits to the plate.

Priscilla Rouse is leading the Matadors with her .464 average in 97 at-bats. She is responsible for 21 runs batted in and has scored 23 times in 37 games. Close on her heels is junior left fielder Beth Onestinghel, who is batting .384 in 120 plate appearances.

Pitchers Debbie Dickman and Delanee Anderson have combined to fill the gap left by the graduation of four-time all-America Kathy Slaten. Dickman (13-3) has a 0.72 earned-run average in 107 1/3 innings, while Anderson (11-2) has a 0.51 ERA in 82 1/3 innings. Along with Lisa Martin (7-1, 0.59) and Tracey Fox (7-0, 0.27), they have 129 strikeouts.

Florida Southern, with a 79-1 conference record over the past three years, is looking for its first championship appearance. The Moccasins are 24-0 in the Sunshine State Conference and 42-4 overall.

The pitching staff has a combined earned-run average of 0.70 and has held opponents to only one run per game. Junior pitcher Dori Stankewitz (23-1, 0.39) has recorded 258 strikeouts in 159 2/3 innings, allowing only nine earned runs. She accounts for 14 of the team's 23 shutouts this season.

Coach Chris Bellotto's Moccasins boast a .378 batting average, led by senior all-America Beth Greig (.438) and junior Colleen DeGroot (.407).

Sacred Heart has had an outstanding season behind three-time all-America pitcher Debbie Tidy. The 6-1 senior has allowed only two earned runs and four walks in 132 1/3 innings, giving her a 0.09 earned-run average. Also, she has three no-hitters this season, bringing her career total to 23.

The Lady Pioneers, 24-4 overall, have an 8-0 record in the New England Collegiate Conference with 16 games remaining. Coach Pete DiOrio's strategy has been simple—take one game at a time and win the conference tournament.

The young team is hitting a little over .250, with 21 doubles, eight triples and 16 home runs. DiOrio admits he relies on pitching, but he has gotten outstanding batting performances in crucial situations.

Senior catcher Kim Schmidt is partly responsible for these well-timed

Runner-up Trenton State bids for return to top

Trenton State last won the Division III women's softball title in 1983 and has placed second twice since then. This may be the year that the Lions regain the crown from two-time defending titlist Eastern Connecticut State, which will serve as host of the Division III Women's Softball Championship May 16-19.

Coach June Walker's Trenton State team is 32-3 and looking to win 40 or more games for the fifth year. It is 5-1 in conference play with five regular-season games remaining before the New Jersey Athletic Conference tournament.

The Lions have totaled 247 runs in 1987, while holding opponents to only 54 runs.

Sharing mound duties this season have been junior Donna O'Connell, sophomore Jill Marghella and senior all-America Cindy Woodward. The three account for 32 wins against three losses, with a combined earned-run average of 0.91.

Utility infielder Diane Klueg picked up where she left off in 1986 and has played wherever needed. The sophomore all-America is batting .447 and has 25 runs batted in. Joining her are senior all-America Tracy Warren (.417) and sophomore Pam McCreesh (.429).

Second-place finisher in 1986, Central (Iowa) returns with a lot more experience. The Flying Dutch, 21-6 overall, are 6-2 in the tough Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Coach George Ware believes the hardest part is overcoming the strong competition that stands in the way of reaching regional play; from there on, things should get easier. His team is very aggressive on the bases, stealing 44 times this season, while opponents stole only four times.

Junior pitcher Laurie Suten, named the team's most valuable player in 1986, is 13-3 with a 0.25 earned-run average. She has 44 strikeouts and 23 walks in 112 2/3 innings. Also, she has turned in seven shutouts and one no-hitter.

Suten sees additional duty as designated hitter, where she is batting .319 and leading the team with 20 runs batted in.

Other standouts are sophomore pitcher Brenda Vigness (8-3, 0.35) and senior first baseman Kris Thompson (.373).

Defending champion Eastern Connecticut State is looking for the team's sixth tournament appearance in as many years. The Warriors, 17-8, have compiled a .757 won-lost percentage in championship play under head coach Clyde Washburne. Washburne, who has led his team to a total of three NCAA titles, will retire at the end of this season.

Seven starters return for the Warriors, including all-America Cathy McGillicuddy. The junior is in her first season as a pitcher after being a standout second baseman in 1986. She has a 10-1 record with a 0.70 earned-run average. Christi Mohan, 0.55, has pitched three no-hitters on the way to a 7-5 record.

Other top players include freshman second baseman Denise Lamontagne, .397; junior center fielder Ginny Adler, .354, and junior first baseman Mariann Shumbo.

Administrative Committee minutes

Conference No. 6 April 12, 1987

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Rejected a recommendation by the Men's Committee on Committees that a policy be adopted to specify that persons are not eligible to serve on sports committees if they are affiliated with institutions that elect not to participate in the NCAA championship in the sport involved.

b. Approved a recommendation by the Men's and Women's Committees on Committees that a policy be adopted requiring rotation of the chair of a combined men's and women's sports committee between representatives of men's interests and representatives of women's interests, with a three-year limit on any individual's term as chair.

c. Noted that the Academic Requirements Committee would recommend to the Council that admissions officers and/or registrars be added to the four persons per institution authorized to contact the NCAA legislative services staff for information; agreed to recommend to the Council that the faculty athletics representative should be the eligibility-certifying officer at the institution, and it would not be appropriate to encourage diffusion of that responsibility at the campus level.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

Approved the executive director's earlier action in appointing a special committee to consider NCAA designation of an official football for NCAA football championships, as recommended by Secretary-Treasurer Frericks in his capacity as chair of the Special Marketing Subcommittee, said committee consisting of Mr. Frericks, chair; John D. Marshall Jr., Fayetteville State University (chair of the Division II Football Committee); David M. Nelson, University of Delaware (secretary-rules editor, Football Rules Committee); and Homer C. Rice, Georgia Institute of Technology (chair, Football Rules Committee); received a report from Mr. Frericks on the negotiations and noted that a full report would be made to the Executive Committee in its May 4-5 meeting.

3. Acting for the Council and Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Agreed that the next Administrative Committee conference would be conducted May 3 or 4 in conjunction with the Executive Committee's spring meeting in Kansas City, rather than by telephone April 30 as originally scheduled.

b. Noted that the Executive Committee would discuss in its May meeting a document on the relations between and among NCAA administrative components; agreed to defer until after that meeting a review of the concept of replacing the Administrative Committee with separate subcommittees of the Council and Executive Committee.

4. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 5-1-(g) and 5-2-(d).

a. Acting for the Council:

(1) Approved NCAA certification of extra events as follows:

(a) McDonald's Classic College All-Star Basketball Game, late April (specific date not determined), Elizabeth City, North Carolina, per Bylaw 2-3.

(b) 1987 American Classic Gymnastics Meet, April 10-11, 1987, Boca Raton, Florida, per Bylaw 2-4.

(2) Granted requests for waivers per Constitution 3-9-(b)-(iii) as follows:

(a) To permit a student-athlete from a member institution to participate in international basketball competition as a member of Puerto Rico's national team.

(c) To permit a student-athlete from a member institution to participate in international basketball competition as a member of Britain's national team.

(3) Granted a request for a waiver per Constitution 3-9-(4)-(v) to permit student-athletes from member institutions to participate in basketball competition in the 1987 Utah State Games.

(4) Granted requests for waivers per Constitution 3-9-(c)-(2)-(iii) as follows:

(a) To permit student-athletes from member institutions to participate in U.S. Olympic Festival tryout competition in men's and women's volleyball.

(b) To permit a student-athlete from a member institution to participate in international gymnastics competition as a member of Sweden's national team.

(c) To permit a student-athlete from a member institution to participate in gymnastics competition as a member of the U.S. national team.

(d) To permit a student-athlete from a member institution to participate in golf competition as a member of New Zealand's national team.

(5) Granted requests for waivers of the tryout rule to permit use of facilities per Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(1) as follows:

(a) University of California, San Diego, developmental diving clinic.

(a) Granted waivers per Executive Regulations 1-5-(b) and (c) to permit Grove City College and Morgan State College to be eligible for championships. The institutions failed to submit institutional information forms by the specified deadline and, in an instance involving a previous waiver request, the appropriate for was paid.

(b) Granted approval for the Special Post-season Drug-Testing Committee to conduct a meeting outside the 48 contiguous states in order to permit the committee to meet in June at the National Institute for Scientific Research in Quebec, one of two NCAA-certified drug-testing laboratories.

(b) Harvard University, developmental lacrosse clinic.

(c) Iowa State University, developmental softball clinics.

(d) Mankato State University, developmental basketball clinics.

(e) University of Michigan, developmental field hockey clinic.

(f) Pennsylvania State University, developmental golf clinic.

(g) University of Rhode Island, developmental softball clinic.

(h) U.S. Naval Academy, developmental wrestling competition.

(i) Yale University, developmental track and field clinic.

(6) Granted requests for waivers of the tryout rule to permit use of facilities per Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(5) as follows:

(a) American University, basketball practice activities.

Runner-up

has brought her young Wisconsin-Oshkosh team a long way. The Titans came out of nowhere to rank fourth in the nation with a 19-3 record.

Panske's team heads toward tournament play with a 4-0 record in the Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Junior catcher Jamie Zeigel leads teammates with a .471 average, followed by junior outfielder Gwen Arch at .412. Zeigel, who bats in the middle of the lineup, has 21 runs batted in to her credit.

Pitching duties have been carried out by sophomore Jane Morgan (10-1, 0.63) and junior Kari Miller (9-2, 0.96).

As a team, the Titans have a .304 average and have scored 5.2 runs per game, while allowing opponents to reach base only 1.4 times per game.

Allegheny coach Sheila Lingenfelter will rely on the slugging of Melissa Vogel to carry the Gators back to championship play. The team, 13-7 this year, finished 1986 in fourth place.

Vogel, a senior all-America, has an outstanding .576 average, with 10 doubles, seven triples and two home runs. Also, she is the team leader with 31 runs batted in.

Junior shortstop Nancy Nelson and Gia Celularo, an all-America second baseman, also are having strong seasons. Nelson is batting .448 with 25 runs batted in and Celularo is .439 with 10 runs batted in. Together, they have 19 doubles, two triples and one home run.

Other contributors to the team's overall .365 batting average are junior third baseman Kathy Kuhar, .426, and junior first baseman Suzanne Helfant, .385.

Pitching duties have gone to sophomore Shelly Brown (0.13 ERA) and freshman Teva Eiler (1.57). Brown, whose last game was a no-hitter, has allowed only one earned run in 52 innings, while chalking up 36 strikeouts.

Chapman

Emmet barely missed a trip to the finals last spring, losing a tie-breaker to eventual champion Neil Smith of Stephen F. Austin State. Senior Pat Johnson and promising Robert Green also should help the Tars contend.

Bob Meyers, who directed the Southern Illinois-Edwardsville women to the Division II crown last spring, hopes to return the Cougar men to the top in 1987. Southern Illinois-Edwardsville won seven straight titles under Kent DeMars before the California teams returned to power.

Steve Holmes is part of a superb Cougar sophomore class that includes Marco Winter and Dion Joannau, as well as female counterparts Portia George and Christina Bokelund. Holmes won all-America honors as a freshman and is the No. 1 singles player in the Midwest.

Last year's singles semifinals featured three players from Texas schools. Even with Stephen F. Austin State out of the picture, Texas still claims some of the top individual performers in Division II.

Ken Olivier of East Texas State may be the player to beat in this season's singles competition. Doubles partner David Bushnell gives the Lions another top-30 performer.

Abilene Christian's Neil Berryman reached the doubles finals as a freshman last season and is likely to make an impact again in 1987. Shane Thompson and Mickey Navarro are other standouts on the Wildcat roster.

Other possible tournament entrants include Tennessee-Martin, UC Riverside, Bloomsburg, Cal State Bakersfield, Florida Atlantic, Ferris State and host Cal State Northridge.

Cal State Northridge

hits, as are freshman shortstop Alecia Stephenson and freshman Pam Wallace.

Southeast Missouri State pitchers had an outstanding season, going 118 consecutive innings with no earned runs allowed. The top-seeded Otahkians just completed Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association tournament play after going 10-1 in the conference and finishing 34-5 overall.

Pitcher Tracie Eudaley, has a 0.30 ERA this season, after ranking fifth in 1986 with a 0.33 average. The senior, named all-conference and all-region in 1986, also ranked third nationally in victories. She is joined on the mound this year by Beth Russell (0.80).

Batting standouts include all-conference players Julie Hume, a junior first baseman batting .423; senior left fielder Pat McDonagh (.400), and senior third baseman Connie Simmons, hitting .350. Simmons also earned all-America honors as a junior.

If her team can avoid any more injuries, coach Irene Shea will be looking for Cal State Sacramento's first taste of championship action. The Hornets are 29-16 with 15 regular-season games remaining.

Shortstop Lisa Rieber, leading the team with 28 runs batted in, suffered a knee injury last week that could spell the end of the season for her. If so, freshman third baseman Lorie Avis will fill in at short. Rieber was batting .335 with seven triples and one homer.

Center fielder Stephanie Levine, whose .338 average ranks first among teammates, has 19 runs batted in and has walked 27 times.

Top pitchers for the Hornets are seniors Tracy Latino (0.62) and southpaw Cheryl Adams (0.93). Latino, one of last year's ERA leaders, has allowed 13 earned runs in 147 innings.

Bloomsburg finished third at the 1986 championship and appears to be heading for a fifth tournament appearance. The Huskies, coached by Jan Hutchinson, are 26-6 with six games remaining before tournament play. They currently are tied with Shippensburg, 20-3, for first place in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference.

If any team is going to defeat Bloomsburg, it first must get past Susan Kocher. The senior not only is the team's star pitcher, she also provides backbone as the designated hitter.

Kocher, a second-team all-America in 1986, has a 21-5 record with a 0.42 earned-run average in 150 2/3 innings and is hitting .333 in the middle of the lineup.

Additional strength for the Huskies comes from all-conference Kate Denney and all-America Jean Millen. Junior transfer Kim Vogel is hitting .379 and freshman right fielder Cindy Slocum has a .303 average.

American International, which won one and lost two in its 1985 championship appearance, currently has a 10-2 Northeast-Eight Conference record. The 25-13 Yellow Jackets have eight games remaining before tournament play.

Top players for coach Judy Groff's team include senior pitchers Julia Casey and Jennifer Duffy. The two have combined for a 19-10 record, with Casey posting a 0.81 ERA and Duffy, 1.36.

Other top players include senior right fielder Theresa LaFramboise (.373), senior first baseman Lori Bailey (.361) and junior center fielder Colleen Ferri (.352).

Unanimous picks highlight men's consensus all-Americans

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

For the first time in 13 years and only the third time in modern history, all five members of the consensus all-America men's basketball team were unanimous choices in 1987.

All four teams used in the consensus compilation—the Associated Press, United Press International, U.S. Basketball Writers Association and National Association of Basketball Coaches—had this first team: Navy's David Robinson, Kansas' Danny Manning, Georgetown's Reggie Williams, Indiana's Steve Alford and North Carolina's Kenny Smith.

Five unanimous choices have happened only three other times in modern history—in 1974, 1965 and 1964. More about those players later. (It also happened in 1941, 1935, 1932 and 1931, but our records show only two all-America teams chosen each of those years.)

Making every first team is tougher now than it was in 1974, 1965 and 1964. Why? Simply because the U.S. Basketball Writers chose a 10-man first team each of those years. The USBWA now has a five-man team.

Impressive class of '87

All five consensus all-Americans have impressive numbers in the final 1987 Division I rankings and on the career charts. They highlight the talent in the 1987 senior class as well, since all are seniors except Manning, a junior expected back in 1988.

The 7-1 Robinson, who dominated the player-of-the-year awards, is the first Division I player in history to attain 2,500 points, 1,300 rebounds and shoot above 60 percent over his career. He had 2,669 points (10th on the all-time list), 1,314 rebounds (12th highest since 1973, when rebounds started becoming more scarce due to more accurate shooting), and shot 61.3 percent (22nd on the all-time list).

The other five players who attained 2,500 and 1,300 were Oscar Robertson, whose last season at Cincinnati was 1960; Elvin Hayes (Houston, 1968); Michael Brooks (La Salle, 1980); Dickie Hemric (Wake Forest, 1955), and Elgin Baylor (Seattle, 1958). None of the five shot above 53.8 from the field (but none was as tall as Robinson, either).

From another angle, Robinson is the 51st player to reach 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds (and the only one in 1987). In this group, only two others finished above 60 percent, and each was a 7-footer—UCLA's Lew Alcindor and Georgetown's Patrick Ewing. Alcindor (now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar), scored 2,325 points, grabbed 1,367 rebounds and shot 63.9 in 88 career games over three seasons. Ewing had 2,184 points and 1,315 rebounds while shooting 62 percent in 143 games over four seasons.

Manning can join Robinson, Alcindor and Ewing in 1988. He already is just the eighth player to have 2,000 points entering his senior season since 1976 (the fourth year for the first class of freshmen-eligible players of 1973), with 2,009, and has 845 total rebounds. Both totals lead all juniors. By duplicating his 1987 season in 1988, Manning would end his career with 2,869 points (for seventh, just above Larry Bird), 1,187 rebounds and a 60.4 field-goal percentage.

Williams reached 2,117 career points, and his clutch scoring, rebounding and free-throw shooting led a young Georgetown team all the way to the Southeast regional finals.

Alford led Indiana to the national championship, reaching 2,438 career points, fourth highest among 1987 seniors, and shot 53 percent from three-point range, fifth highest in the country. At the free-throw line, Al-

It was a rare event indeed to see an Army-Navy battle for the national scoring crown. Houston scored the most points in their February 21 game, but Navy won. As it turned out, Ohio State senior Dennis Hopson finished second ahead of Robinson, 29 to 28.2.

Houston amazingly led Army in assists, steals and rebounds, even though he does not have great speed, quickness or jumping ability. He is one of the smartest players in the game. He learned his lessons well from his father, Larry, who played for Joe Lapchick at St. John's (New York) in the 1960s, assisted at Ford-his 406 assists set a single-season record, breaking the 328 by Mark Jackson of St. John's (New York) in 1986.

Both Johnson and Wade surpassed the season per-game assists mark of 9.5 by Hofstra's Rob Weingard, also set last year, as did steals champion Fairley and Wake Forest's amazing little (5-3) Tyrone Bogue.

Other tight races were in rebounds, where Yale senior Chris Dudley was second at 13.3; in free-throwing, where Michigan State senior Darryl Johnson shot 91 percent, and in blocked shots, where Maryland junior Derrick Lewis averaged 4.4. Other second-place finishers were Eastern Kentucky junior Tyrone Howard in field-goal accuracy (67.8 percent—ninth highest ever), Boise State junior Doug Usitalo in steals (3.5), UC Irvine junior Scott Brooks in three-pointers made (4.0) and Stephen F. Austin State's Eric Rhodes in three-point accuracy (54.7 percent).

Multicategory leaders

Seventeen players in 1987 were outstanding from a multicategory viewpoint. Three shot over 60 percent from the field, averaged more than nine rebounds a game and scored above 20 points per game. They were Manning, Nevada-Las Vegas' Armon Gilliam and Clemson's Horace Grant. (See final tables for their figures.)

Nine shot above 50 percent from the field and were above nine rebounds and 20 points. They were Robinson, Jerome Batiste of McNeese State, Brian Rowsom of North Carolina-Wilmington, Otis Ellis of Lafayette, Chris Welp of Washington, Ken Norman of Illinois, Andre Moore of Loyola (Illinois), Lionel Simmons of La Salle and Jeff Gromos of Fairfield.

Five more were above 50 percent from the field, 80 percent in free throws and 20 points (but under nine rebounds). They were Hopson, Derrick Chievous of Missouri, Reggie Miller of UCLA, Michigan State's Johnson and Derek Rucker of Davidson.

As further testimony for the class of '87, only four of those 17 are underclassmen—juniors Manning and Chievous, sophomore Ellis and freshman Simmons. But, as we shall see, there were many outstanding underclassmen on the scene in 1987.

Career leaders, records

Northeastern's Reggie Lewis led a group of 15 seniors who reached 2,000 career points. His 2,708 places him ninth on the all-time list, one above Robinson's 2,669. The figures of unanimous all-Americans Alford and Williams were mentioned earlier. The others are Wagner's Terrance Bailey 2,591 (14th all time), Virginia Military's Gay Elmore 2,422, scoring champion Houston 2,325, Baptist's Ben Hinson 2,295, Oklahoma's Tim McCalister 2,275 and teammate Darryl Kennedy 2,097, Tennessee's Tony White 2,219, Ohio State's Hopson 2,096, UCLA's Miller 2,095, Washington 7-footer Chris Welp 2,073 and Butler's little Fitzgerald, the three-point champion, 2,019.

Fitzgerald was the only one who needed his three-pointers to reach 2,000. He had 158. Scoring champion Houston would have been well above 30 points per game even without his 63 three-pointers.

Five seniors averaged above 20 points over their careers. They are Bailey at 23.6, Lewis 22.2, Elmore 21.4, Robinson 21 and Houston 20.6.

The top career rebounders on a per-game basis among seniors are Loyola's (Illinois) Moore at 10.9, Morehead State's Bob McCann 10.5, Robinson 10.3, Yale's Dudley 9.5 and Marquette's David Boone 9.2. In total rebounds, it is Robinson 1,314, Boone 1,043, Welp 995 and Clemson's Grant 981.

Robinson leads the field-goal shooters at 61.3 percent, as mentioned, and Illinois' Norman at 60.9 became the 35th Division I player to shoot above 60 percent over a career. Grant was next at 59.8, then Gilliam at 58 (minimum 400 career field goals scored).

Alford set a career free-throw record, as mentioned. Next among seniors are Harvard's Keith Webster at 87.1, Houston 86.9, Cornell's John Bajusz 85.6 and Tulsa's David Moss 84.2 (minimum 250 career free throws scored).

In assists, Northeastern's Andre LaFleur set a career record of 894. Next among seniors are the 5-3 Bogue at 781, Kenny Smith 768, St. John's Jackson 738 and Navy's Doug Wojcik 714. (LaFleur broke the 884 by Jim Les, Bradley '86.)

On a per-game basis, Nevada-Las Vegas' Wade (who set a season total mark, as mentioned) set a record, averaging 8.5 per game over what was essentially a two-season career (he played briefly at Oklahoma as a freshman, then a year of junior college basketball). That broke the 7.5 by Les. Next are Baptist's Fairley at 7.6 for his two-season career, Wojcik 7.2, LaFleur 7.0 and Alabama's Terry Coner, 6.64 to 6.56 over Bogue.

Steals and blocks have not been official categories long enough for career records.

Kansas' Manning, as mentioned, leads all juniors in total points at 2,009 and rebounds at 845. Xavier's (Ohio) Byron Larkin is next in points at 1,938, followed by Bradley's Hersey Hawkins 1,883, Missouri's Chievous 1,879, Lehigh's Daren Queenan 1,821, Florida's Vernon Maxwell 1,784, Marshall's Skip Henderson 1,770, Iowa State's Jeff Grayer 1,691 and Wyoming's Fennis Dembo 1,658. Behind Manning in rebounds are Chievous and Dembo at 723 each, Temple's Tim Perry 721, Queenan 712, Alabama's Derrick McKey 643 and Grayer 610.

On a per-game basis, Kansas State's Norris Coleman leads all juniors in both scoring and rebounding but has announced he is turning pro. He edges Larkin in scoring, 21.34 to 21.30, and nudges Queenan in rebounding, 8.19 to 8.18. Others above 20 in scoring are Central Michigan's ford's career 89.8 percent is a Division I record for players with at least 500 free throws scored (he nudges Bob Loyd, Rutgers 1967, 89.765 to 89.752). Alford ranks third using a minimum of 250 scored.

Smith is the only non-2,000-point career scorer on the unanimous five, but consider that he had 768 career assists to go with 1,636 career points. His passes resulted in 1,536 points. That means he either scored or passed for 3,172 points at North Carolina.

Army's double champion

The unanimous five is only part of the story for 1987 seniors. For all their talent and big numbers, the unanimous five won just one individual NCAA statistics title in 1987. That was the blocked-shots crown, won a second straight year by Robinson, even though his 4.5 per game was short of his record 5.9 in 1986.

Army's 5-11 Kevin Houston won two national statistical championships—in scoring at 32.9 points per game (highest since 1978) and free-throw accuracy at 91.2 percent. Houston is the first player in Division I history to win both scoring and free-throwing. He also is Army's first national scoring champion in basketball but not its first free-throw champion—Stew Sherard won it in 1961 at 87.7 percent.

ham and was a high school coach.

Robinson, the son of a career Navy man, is a pleasant, intelligent (SAT: 1,300 upon entering the academy) person with a wide range of interests, including computer science. He has grown six inches since entering the academy, making him unfit for many Navy tasks, so he will serve only two years of active duty before going on to professional riches. Robinson, like Manning, wants to compete in the 1988 Olympics before pro ball.

Other seniors who won national statistical titles are Princeton's 6-6 Alan Williams in field-goal percentage at 70.3 (fourth highest ever), Butler's Darrin Fitzgerald in most three-pointers scored per game at 5.6 (he is only 5-9) and Baptist's Tony Fairley in steals per game at 4.1.

Underclassmen shine, too

The other three titles went to underclassmen. Pittsburgh's Jerome Lane, a 6-6 sophomore, took the rebound crown at 13.5 per game. Prairie View's Reginald Jones, a 6-1 junior, led in three-point accuracy at 57.1 percent.

The closest race of them all was for the assist title. Avery Johnson, a 5-11 junior from Southern-Baton Rouge, won that one, 10.74 to 10.68, over Nevada-Las Vegas senior Mark Wade. But Wade had a consolation prize—were Davis, Brown, McClain, Lloyd and Western Kentucky's Clemette Haskins.

Underclassmen win titles

Spaulding was one of two seniors among five national 1987 statistical champions, and her race with Central Connecticut's Hope Linthicum was super close—28.93 to 28.91.

How close is that? So close that one more point by Hope or one less point by Tresa would have changed the scoring champion. Spaulding also was second in season field-goal accuracy at 64.7 percent. The field-goal champion was North Carolina-Wilmington junior Sharon McDowell at 67.7—third highest in history. Central Florida senior DeAnn Craft won the free-throw accuracy crown at 92.1 percent—third highest ever. The rebounding title went to Mississippi Valley State sophomore Patricia Hoskins, and her per-game average of 17 also ranks as the third highest ever.

We are saving the best for last. The only repeater and only season record-breaker is Penn State's little (5-3) Suzie McConnell, whose 335 assists and 11.8 per game both set records.

Top juniors

Wicks is the most-honored junior with two first-team all-America selections already, as mentioned, but statistically, it is not close—Appalachian State's Valorie Whiteside has the most impressive numbers. She already is in the 2,000-1,000 club with 2,232 points and 1,074 rebounds, and her 25.4-point career average leads the way.

If she duplicates her 1987 figures in 1988, Whiteside will become the ninth 3,000-point scorer in women's history with 3,008 points and 1,385 rebounds.

Wicks now is second among juniors in total points at 1,862. On a per-game basis, the two closest to Whiteside are Queens' Shalonda Young at 21.1 and Duke's Chris Moreland at 20.7. Junior leaders in field-goal accuracy are Georgia Southern's Regina Days 65.9, Southern California's Monica Lamb 61 and South Florida's Wanda Guyton 60.9. Whiteside's 12.2 rebound average is second among juniors to the 12.3 by Maine's Liz Coffin (Whiteside's total is first). In free-throw accuracy, New Mexico State's Judy Phillips leads at 89 percent, with Michigan's Lorea Feldman next at 86.2 (the Division I career record is 87.6).

Team champions

Long Beach State is one of two double team champions. Its second straight scoring title was accomplished with a record 95.8 average, and its 31.4 in scoring margin is the second highest ever. Louisiana Tech is the other double titlist with 55.2 in scoring defense and 13.6 in rebound margin. Texas won one title, 54 percent in field-goal accuracy, and tied Auburn in won-lost percentage at .939 (both were 31-2). Colorado won in free-throw percentage at 75.8, and South Carolina State took its third straight title in field-goal percentage defense at 33.3, second to its record figure (33.0) of 1986.

Single-game highs

Brown's 60 points vs. San Jose State February 16 set a Division I record, as did McConnell's 21 assists vs. West Virginia December 29. The season single-game high in rebounds was 26 by Kathy Ridilla of Duquesne vs. St. Bonaventure January 8.

Additionally, Austin Peay's Shandra Maxwell led freshman scorers at 20.6. And only three players topped 55 percent, 12 rebounds and 20 points in 1987—Hoskins, McClain and East Tennessee State junior Katie Beck.

Men's Division II leaders

Both Clark's (Georgia) Ernest Lee and Tampa's Todd Linder were on special missions this season, and both can say, "Mission accomplished." Lee was trying to become the first player to win three straight national scoring titles in division history. He won at 29.7 and became the first 3,000-point career scorer in 13 years at 3,298. That ranks third in history behind the 4,045 by Travis Grant, Kentucky State 72, and the 3,759 by Bob Hopkins, Grambling State '56. Grant's figure is the all-time, all-divisions NCAA record.

Linder was seeking his third straight national crown in field-goal accuracy scoring defense champion.

Other career leaders included Millersville's John Fox in total rebounds at 1,214 and Ferris State's Gerald Woodberry in rebounds per game at 11.6, plus Northern Michigan's Bill Harris in free-throw percentage (minimum 250 made) at 84.5 percent. Next in scoring were Norfolk State's and got it with a record 75.2 percent, besting the 75 by North Alabama's Maurice Stafford in 1984. Linder also smashed the 16-year-old division career record in field-goal accuracy held by Ed Phillips, Alabama A&M 71, at 68.9. Linder finished at 70.8 percent. No one has won three titles in four years in either category, by the way.

Other season titles went to Northern Colorado's Mike Sanders in free-throw accuracy at 94.3 (third highest in division annals), LIU-Southampton's Andre Porter in rebounds at 13.4, West Texas State's Charles Byrd in three-point accuracy and Northern Michigan's Bill Harris in three-pointers scored per game at 4.3. All are seniors except Byrd, and he edged a senior, Bowie State's Jay Nolan, 56.54 percent to 56.45.

Denver was the only double team champion. Alabama A&M took its third straight title in scoring offense. Denver's 63.6 was highest ever by a

Ralph Tally 2,575, Virginia Union's Jamie Waller 2,295, Linder 2,259, New Hampshire College's Cleveland Woods 2,247 and Southern Indiana's Steve Jackson 2,216.

Men's Division III leaders

Season titles went to Hiram's Rod Swartz in scoring at 29.3, Penn State-Behrend's Randy Gorniak in rebounding at 16.4, Albion's Tim Ervin in field-goal accuracy at 65.5, New Jersey Tech's Chris Miles in free-throw accuracy at 92.1 percent and in three-point accuracy at 63.1 (an all-divisions NCAA high; he is the only double winner in III) and MacMurray's Scott Fearrin in three-pointers scored per game at 3.8. Miles is the only sophomore; all the others are seniors. New Jersey Tech is the only double team champion. Widener set a record of 37.2 percent in field-goal percentage defense.

On the career chart, Swartz led in career average at 25. In points, Otterbein's Dick Hempy (21.8) had 2,439, Emory & Henry's Kevin Brown (23.2) had 2,322, and Swartz 2,252. Hempy also led in field-goal accuracy at 63.8 percent. The free-throw leader (minimum 250 made) was Eric Jacobs of Wilkes at 88.3. In rebounding, it was Gorniak, 13.13 per game to Westfield State's Russell Thompson 13.12, but Thompson's 1,181 led in totals.

Women's Division II leaders

The season championships were won by Bloomsburg sophomore Theresa Lorenzi in scoring at 25.9, Livingstone junior Jackie Anderson in rebounding at 15.04 (to 15.00 for Kim Jones, Savannah State senior), St. Joseph's (Indiana) sophomore Tracy Payne in field-goal accuracy at 64.9 percent (fourth highest in division history) and Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne freshman Teena Merrell in free-throw accuracy at 90.8 percent, a division record. Delta State was a double champion in the team rankings.

On the career charts, Morningside's Amy Wilhelm had 2,332 points, Howard Payne's Melanie Mayer 2,171. Wilhelm's total ranks 10th in division history. In per-game average, Mayer is 10th at 20.48, Wilhelm 11th at 20.46. Valdosta State's Candace Fincher set a division record in field-goal accuracy at 63.8 percent. Southeast Missouri State's Pat Colon reached third at 59.8 and Pittsburgh-Johnstown's Karen Sayers sixth at 57.2. Michigan Tech's Mary Fisher (85.3), St. Cloud State's Sarah Howard (83.6), Valdosta State's Bridgett

Moore (83.5) and Wilhelm (83.4) now rank 2-3-4-5, respectively, in career free-throw accuracy. Colon also had 2,034 points and 1,003 rebounds.

Women's Division III leaders

The season championships were won by Buena Vista senior Jeannie Demers in scoring at 34.3 (a record, besting her 31.1 of last season; this is her third straight title), Bishop senior Melanie Alston in rebounds at 16.7 (she is the third rebound champion from Bishop in the last four years), Rust's Linda Mason in field-goal accuracy at 64.7 (second highest in division history; second-placer Sherry Patterson of William Paterson had 64.1 for fourth on the list), and Berea's Katie Lokits in free-throw accuracy at 86.1—sixth highest. Bishop and St. John Fisher won two team titles each, the latter setting a record in scoring defense at 44.1.

On the career charts, Demers (3,171) and Whittier's Julie Curtis (2,433) now rank 1-2 respectively, on the all-time list in points, with Demers setting another record in per-game average at 30.2. Curtis was fifth at 24.3. Curtis also had 1,040 rebounds, while Allentown's Lynn Butler also made that club with 2,193 and an even 1,000. Patterson reached second at 59.7 percent in field-goal shooting, while Southern Maine's Tammy Anair reached second in free-throwing at 83 percent. Patterson also reached fifth in rebounding at 14.3 per game. Mount Holyoke's Elise Cromack reached fifth in field goals on 56.9.

Interpretations

1987 Column No. 4

Free admission—professional contest (Revises Case No. 30)

Situation: A professional sports organization provides free admission to an individual to attend a professional contest. (80)

Question: Does receipt of the free admission affect the individual's eligibility under the Association's extra-benefit rulings?

Answer: Yes. The receipt of the free admission by a student-athlete would be considered an extra benefit that would jeopardize the individual's eligibility under Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) unless such free admissions are available to the institution's student body in general. [C 3-1-(g)-(5)]

Special-performance award (Revises Case No. 107)

Situation: NCAA legislation prohibits a student-athlete from receiving an individual award in recognition of a specialized performance in a particular contest or event.

Question: In this situation, would it be permissible for a student-athlete to receive a certificate, medal or plaque valued at less than $50 in recognition of such a performance?

Answer: Yes. An organization (such as a business firm or other outside agency) may recognize a student-athlete for outstanding performance in a particular contest in this manner; however, it would not be permissible for such an organization to provide any other tangible item or award to the student-athlete under these circumstances. [C 3-1-(i)-(3)]

Recognition award (Revises Case No. 108)

Situation: A student-athlete returns home during midseason (of the sport in which the student-athlete is involved) to be recognized by a home-town group (not related to the institution) as an outstanding student-athlete. (123)

Question: Is it permissible for this home-town group (other than the institution's athletics booster club) to provide an award to a student-athlete for outstanding accomplishments in intercollegiate athletics?

Answer: Yes. Such an award may be provided on no more than one occasion during an academic year; further, the award shall be in keeping with NCAA awards interpretations [i.e., the total value of all awards received on such an occasion must be counted within the limitations of Constitution 3-1-(i)-(1)-(i)] and shall be approved by the institution (and its conference) in which the student is enrolled. [C 3-1-(i)-(2) and (3)]

Improper transportation expenses (Revises Case No. 229)

Situation: A prospective student-athlete travels via automobile (at the expense of the prospect or a member of the prospect's family) to make an official visit to a member institution's campus. (213)

Question: Is it permissible to reimburse the prospect at the mileage rate utilized by the institution to provide expenses to its own employees involved in institutional business travel?

Answer: Yes. Such reimbursement could be provided, however, only if the prospect (or a member of the prospect's family) actually incurred the expenses for the transportation. Otherwise, reimbursement of the prospect would constitute an extra benefit and an improper inducement. Further, the provisions of Bylaw 1-9-(m)-(1) would preclude a member institution from reimbursing a high school coach for expenses incurred in transporting a prospect to visit the campus. [B 1-9-(i)-(1), B 1-1-(b)-(1), B 1-9-(a) and B 1-9-(m)-(1)]

Foreign competition approval (Revises Case No. 262)

Situation: The foreign-tour provisions of Bylaw 3-6 are applicable to institutions that are represented by more than a specific number of student-athletes on the same outside team in international competition in a sport. (631)

Question: How many student-athletes from the same member institution may participate on the outside team without the tour requiring Council approval and counting as that institution's foreign-tour opportunity in that sport for a four-year period as prescribed by Bylaw 3-6-(b)?

Answer: An outside team that includes more than the following numbers of student-athletes from the same member institution would cause such competition to require Council approval and count as that institution's foreign-tour opportunity in that sport for a four-year period: baseball 4, basketball 2, cross country 2, fencing 4, field hockey 5, football 5, golf 2, gymnastics 2, ice hockey 4, lacrosse 5, rifle 2, skiing 4, soccer 5, softball 4, swimming and diving 5, tennis 2, track and field 7, water polo 4, wrestling 5, volleyball 2.

Summary of NCAA Council actions

Following is a listing of all actions taken by the NCAA Council in its April 13-15, 1987, meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Committee reports

Academic Requirements: The Division I Steering Committee took the following actions regarding the committee's recommendations: [Note: The Division II Steering Committee deferred to the Division I committee on this report and other actions relating to Bylaw 5-1-(j) but noted that Bylaw 5-1-(j) and its various interpretations will apply to Division II members effective August 1, 1988, and the Division II committee will continue to review all such matters in the interim.]

Approved distribution of the revised edition of the Guide to International Academic Standards for Athletic Eligibility but limited that distribution to each member institution's director of athletics, primary woman administrator of athletics programs and admissions officer.

Rejected a recommendation that the Council consider establishing a central agency to certify the eligibility of all student-athletes in Division I [and in Division II when Bylaw 5-1-(j) becomes operative in that division].

Agreed to review legislation in August to allow student-athletes to include courses from all of their years in high school in the calculation of the core-curriculum grade-point average.

Rejected a recommendation that the Council reverse its existing interpretation regarding the use of eighth-grade courses in meeting the Bylaw 5-1-(j) requirements; also rejected the committee's recommendation that the student-athlete be required to produce 11 additional core courses from the ninth grade and beyond even if eighth-grade courses are permitted.

Approved a recommendation that nonrecruited walk-ons may be certified by the institution temporarily and that the member institution must receive verification of the core courses used in certification within 45 days of the first day the student-athletes report for practice. A completed Form 48-H from the high school will serve as the basis for verification.

Denied a recommendation that admissions officers and/or registrars be added to the list of those persons authorized to contact the NCAA legislative services staff to request interpretations and related information; also, rejected a recommendation that those individuals automatically receive The NCAA News, noting that each member institution determines the recipients of the News subscriptions that it receives as an NCAA member.

Approved in principle a recommendation that alternate testing dates be permitted if such dates are substitutes for testing dates canceled due to weather conditions or similar unavoidable circumstances and if they are certified as such by the testing service involved; directed that the Legislation and Interpretations Committee consider this matter and report its decision in The NCAA News.

Decided to take no action on a recommendation that test scores reported by a high school must be on a label from the test manufacturer, rather than simply written on the transcript.

Approved a recommendation that the General Educational Development Test (GED) be used for foreign student-athletes just as it is for U.S. students (e.g., that it substitutes for the diploma requirement, but not for the core-curriculum or test-score provisions).

Approved a recommendation that the test-score requirements be applied to domestic and foreign student-athletes alike, with the understanding that there can be no indexing for foreign student-athletes when the foreign grading system is not translatable to U.S. equivalents.

In related actions (but not in direct response to Academic Requirements Committee recommendations), the Division I committee and the Council:

Asked the Academic Requirements Committee for recommendations regarding the continued use of "split" ACT and SAT scores after this academic year, with those recommendations to be provided prior to the August Council meeting.

Voted to revise Case No. 343 to specify that an individual is not subject to the initial-eligibility standards in Bylaw 5-1-(j) if he or she tests out of the freshman year entirely and is admitted to the institution as a sophomore.

Sustained the current limitations on the use of remedial courses under the satisfactory-progress rule.

Directed the staff to develop legislation, for review in August, that would authorize the granting of exceptions to Bylaw 5-1-(j) provisions under certain, specified criteria.

Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports: The Council approved these recommendations:

That mandatory equipment standards be developed only as they relate to prevention of catastrophic injury.

That before any equipment standard is approved by a sports committee with rule-making responsibility, the standard must be submitted to the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports for its review and approval.

That current mandatory equipment standards, including those adopted without review and approval by this committee, be "grandfathered."

Eligibility: The Council approved two sets of procedures recommended by the Eligibility

Committee, one setting forth the role of the staff eligibility officer (the assistant executive director for compliance and enforcement) and the other specifying the Eligibility Committee's hearing procedures. [Note: These procedures were reported in the February 4, 1987, issue of The NCAA News.]

Eligibility Appeals: The Council subcommittee met with members of the Eligibility Committee and agreed to recommend certain improved procedures to the Council in August. To facilitate the federated appeals process, the committee recommended that two additional Division II representatives and two additional Division III representatives be appointed to the subcommittee. The Council approved that action and subsequently appointed R. Bruce Allison, Colorado School of Mines, and Kent Wyatt, Delta State University, as the Division II additions and George M. Harmon, Millsaps College, and Patricia A. Rogers, State University of New York, Albany, as the Division III additions. The subcommittee reported that subcommittee chair David L. Maggard, University of California, Berkeley, would chair the Division I subunit; Raymond M. Burse, Kentucky State University, Division II, and Lewis S. Salter, Wabash College, Division III.

Long Range Planning: The Council: Referred to the Executive Committee the committee's recommendation regarding the need to define the "oversight" authority regarding playing rules that now is accorded to the division championships committees.

Referred to the Executive Committee the committee's request to have the championships committees review the "dichotomy of championships philosophies" in the Association.

Referred to the new Committee on Review and Planning the committee's suggestion that the College Satellite Network be investigated as a vehicle for conducting nationwide on-campus presentations on NCAA rules and programs.

Asked the Committee on Review and Planning to monitor the trend toward "year-round" secondary-school calendars and the effect of no-pass, no-play requirements in certain locales.

Search: The division steering committees determined that the three division vice-presidents would represent the Council in the interviews of candidates for the position of executive director-elect.

Academic Standards: Noting that the Council subcommittee did not favor elimination of freshman eligibility but supported total ineligibility (no practice, no competition) if freshmen were to be ineligible, the Division I Steering Committee took no action inasmuch as the topic apparently will be part of the Presidents Commission's national dialogue regarding the proper role of intercollegiate athletics in higher education. The Division II Steering Committee supports freshman eligibility in that division.

The Division I committee supported the subcommittee's intention to discuss and eventually recommend minimum grade-point averages for satisfactory progress toward a degree. It was agreed that legislation will be drafted for consideration in August to separate 1987 Convention Proposal No. 46 into distinct segments, one on averaging of credit hours and the other specifying a one-time certification.

In a related action, the Division II Steering Committee asked to review legislation in August that would make all Bylaw 5-1-(j) provisions the same in Division II as they are in Division I.

Cost Containment: The Division II Steering Committee voted that it does not support any reduction in the current Division II financial aid limitations. The Divisions I and III Steering Committees discussed but took no action on the ad hoc committee's report.

Playing Seasons: The Council voted to sponsor all of the legislation regarding playing and practice seasons as proposed by this Council subcommittee, with these changes: In Division III, the total playing and practice seasons would be limited to 21 weeks in each sport, rather than the 26 weeks proposed in Divisions I and II; also, that division intends to restrict its permissible football contests to 11 games or scrimmages a year, with no more than 10 regular-season games, and to establish a limit of 50 contests per year in baseball and 50 in softball, with not more than 40 in the traditional spring season in each case. In Division II, the proposal will not reduce playing dates in that division in tennis, indoor/outdoor track and volleyball during the traditional season (but will propose a reduction from 12 to six in the nontraditional volleyball season dates).

The Council also defeated a motion to treat member institutions in Alaska separately from those in Hawaii or Puerto Rico in the Council subcommittee's proposal to limit noncountable contests in those locations to a once-in-four-years proscription in all sports.

Recruiting Process: It was agreed that the Council would not sponsor a proposed resolution regarding a four-month recruiting limitation in all sports inasmuch as the Presidents Commission will sponsor such a resolution at the June Convention. The Division III Steering Committee reported that it does not wish that division to be included in such a limitation.

The Council will review legislation in August to impose a two-and-two (on and off the prospect's educational institution's campus) limitation for off-campus, in-person contacts with prospective student-athletes in sports other than football and basketball.

Similarly, the Council will review legislation in August to create a 48-hour quiet period surrounding the National Letter of Intent signing date in each sport.

Neither the Council subcommittee nor the division steering committees favored a reduction in the five-visit limitation per Bylaw 1-9-(e).

The Division I Steering Committee asked the recruiting process subcommittee to consider a recommendation by the Council's Ad Hoc Committee on Cost Containment that no more than two coaches in a sport other than football and basketball be permitted to recruit off campus.

Special Events: The Council voted to approve NCAA certification of the same 18 postseason football games that were conducted in 1986-87, as reported in the April 15 and 22 issues of the News.

The Division I Steering Committee asked that NCAA legal counsel determine whether the Postseason Football Subcommittee of the Special Events Committee has the authority to require the declaration of a specific date for a bowl game by a certain time during the year, in the interest of informing the potential competing institutions at the earliest possible time.

Presidents Commission

Chancellor John B. Slaughter, chair of the NCAA Presidents Commission, and his assistant at the University of Maryland, College Park, Ray Gillian, appeared before the Council April 13 to present the Commission's plans for the Association's sixth special Convention, June 29-30 in Dallas. That report was featured in the April 8 and 15 issues of the News.

It was agreed that the Commission's proposed resolution directing the Council to submit legislation at the January 1988 Convention regarding "extra" recruiting opportunities at high school all-star games and institutional and private sports camps and clinics would be modified to specify that such legislation would be submitted if a study by the Special Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process indicates that such action is warranted and feasible.

President Wilford S. Bailey assured Chancellor Slaughter that the Council would assist the Commission in any way possible.

After review by the steering committees, these actions were reported or ensued:

The Division I committee's position regarding several Commission proposals will be reported to the Commission's officers in a telephone conference, and the Council will be asked to be informed as quickly as possible of the Commission's plans regarding speakers, topics, format and other details of its intended national dialogue on the proper role of intercollegiate athletics. The Council asked that it be afforded a meaningful opportunity to offer advice in that regard. The Division I committee's positions generally supported the Commission's proposals except for eliminating coaching positions in Divisions I-A and I-AA football, reducing the overall number of Division I-AA football grants, and eliminating spring football practice in Division I-AA. In addition, a straw vote favored restoration of two grants in men's and women's basketball, if such legislation were admissible.

The Division I committee referred to the Executive Committee the Commission's concern regarding the scheduling and format of the Division I-AA Football Championship.

The Division II committee did not support reductions in grants in Division II sports and did not favor eliminating spring football practice in that division. Both Division II and Division I-AA members of the Council favored a modification of the spring practice period comparable to that being proposed for Division I-A.

The Council affirmed that the Administrative Committee is authorized to act for the Council in its dealings with the Commission.

Enforcement, compliance

The Council approved the certification-of-compliance form for 1987-88, noting marked improvement in the design and content of NCAA forms. Minor editorial revisions were included in the approval, and it was agreed that a separate attachment for Division III financial aid officers would be appended, as in the past.

The Council also approved the student-athlete statement, another form related to certification of student-athlete eligibility, and instructions for completing the squad-list form, all subject to minor editorial changes. It was emphasized that the certification form, involving the athletics director and coach, does not obviate other certification requirements of an institution or a conference and actually represents a verification of eligibility, rather than complete and final certification. It also was agreed that the eligibility verification and the squad-list form must be completed by the first day of competition, rather than practice, each year.

The Council determined that all members of a division steering committee would serve as the division's infractions appeals committee per Enforcement Procedure 5-(b), rather than appointing a subcommittee for that purpose.

Administrative Committee

The Council approved all actions in 1987 Administrative Committee Conference Nos. 1 through 5, emphasizing that a mailing regarding the pending application of Bylaw 5-1-(j) to Division II institutions should be sent to all Division II members at the earliest possible date.

Membership

The Council and steering committees took the following actions regarding membership applications and requests:

Elected the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame to affiliated membership.

Elected the American South Athletic Conference and the Colonial League to Division I conference membership and the Liberty Football Conference to Division III conference membership.

Elected Dowling College to Division II active membership and Goucher College to Division III active membership, both effective September 1, 1987.

Approved continuation of the consortium memberships of Columbia University-Barnard College and Claremont McKenna-Harvey Mudd-Scripps Colleges.

Approved continuation of the designation of one non-NCAA sport per Bylaw 11-4-(b)-(7) at Iona College, Jacksonville University, Marist College, University of Richmond, University of San Diego and Santa Clara University.

Granted a waiver per Bylaw 11-2-(f) to Franklin Pierce College.

Approved continuation of geographical waivers per Bylaw 11-2-(g) for Colorado School of Mines (football and men's basketball) and Winona State University (football).

Concluded that an institution may qualify for a Bylaw 11-2-(g) waiver if it is a member of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics and is in an NAIA district that requires all NAIA members to play each other, with the understanding that the institution must play at least 50 percent of its non-NAIA contests against NCAA Division I or II member institutions.

Approved continuation of waivers of the four-sport criterion for women per Constitution 4-2-(b)-(2) for Massachusetts Maritime Academy and Stevens Institute of Technology (each for two years) and Wentworth Institute of Technology and Washington and Lee University (each for one year).

Interpretations

All new or revised interpretations approved by the Council have appeared or will appear in The NCAA News, which constitutes official circularization per Constitution 6-2.

In addition to those, the Council:

Will review in August a revision of Case No. 46 to permit participation in those circumstances by a person who is not a prospective student-athlete under the tryout-rule criteria.

Sustained the provisions of Case No. 287 but directed the Legislation and Interpretations Committee to review the definition of "collegiate competition" therein.

Asked the Special Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process to review the provisions of Case No. 35 and the possibility of permitting a prospective student-athlete to pay a scouting service to distribute videotape material at no charge to member institutions.

Directed the staff to revise Case No. 51 or to prepare a new case to permit limited commission-sales opportunities for student-athletes, under certain criteria, and to communicate with a company involved in such activity to place those criteria in writing. The revised or new case will be considered in August.

Remanded to the Legislation and Interpretations Committee for further review its recommendations regarding the use of warm-up outfits as travel apparel.

Agreed with the Legislation and Interpretations Committee's position that the provisions of Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3) apply to any institutional press guide or recruiting brochure, whether designed for media, alumni or prospective students. Voted that the insertion in game programs of multicolored inserts that have the effect of recruiting materials also would violate the provisions of Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3).

Sustained the Legislation and Interpretations Committee's position that the provisions of Constitution 2-2-(a) prohibit a member institution from hosting and promoting an athletics contest between two professional teams as a fund-raising activity; directed the committee to continue to review such circumstances and to consider the evolution of corporate-sponsorship programs and other types of fund-raising activities.

Confirmed that the Legislation and Interpretations Committee has the authority to act for the Council in granting waivers per Bylaw 1-6-(b)-(2); supported the committee's position that the intent of the provisions of Bylaw 6-1-(b)-(2)-(v) can be applied to a state-administered grant awarded to children of a disabled veteran.

Appointments

The Council appointed the 1987-88 Nominating Committee and the Men's and Women's Committees on Committees as reported elsewhere in this issue of the News.

Other appointments by the Council or steering committees:

New members of Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports: James R. Andrews, M.D., Troy State University; Kip Corrington, student-athlete, Texas A&M University; and Kathleen M. Wear-McNally, La Salle University, Council representative.

Appointed the new Committee on Review and Planning, as announced in the April 22 issue of the News, and authorized a summer meeting for the committee, in conjunction with the final meeting of the Long Range Planning Committee.

To replace Frank J. Remington as a member of the Committee on Infractions, effective September 1, 1987: John E. Nowak, University of Illinois, Champaign.

To fill a vacancy on the Professional Sports Liaison Committee and serve as Council representative on that committee: Victor A. Bubas, Sun Belt Conference. Also reappointed Andrew J. Baylock, University of Connecticut, and Louis A. Lamoriello, Providence College, to that committee.

To fill two vacancies on the Research Committee: Kirk Cureton, University of Georgia (exercise physiology research), and Marianne M. Jennings, Arizona State University. To chair that committee: John W. Stoepler, University of Toledo.

In matters relating to committee appointments and committee service, the following ensued:

The Council noted that its members hold only 19 of 531 committee positions that otherwise could be held by nonmembers of the Council and agreed that such appointments do not represent a problem.

The Council agreed that policy statements should be drafted to cover these situations: (1) appointment of ad hoc or special committees, establishing a specific charge for each such committee and completion and dissolution dates for each, said policy eventually to be included in the committee instructions in the Manual, and (2) clarification of each committee's responsibilities in cases in which there are overlapping committee functions. The drafts are to be submitted to the Administrative Committee for approval.

The Council agreed to appoint a woman representing Division II to the Eligibility Committee in January 1988, when a Division II Council member completes his term and thus must be replaced on the Eligibility Committee. That action will bring the committee to the minimum requirement of three women among its members.

Legislation

The Council took the following actions on unsuccessful proposals that it sponsored at the 1987 annual Convention:

Agreed to review legislation in August to replace 1987 Proposal No. 46, as recommended by the Academic Requirements Committee (tightening the satisfactory-progress rule).

Declined to resubmit Proposal No. 92 for Division II, noting that the Division II Steering Committee probably will sponsor that proposal to permit limited tryouts in that division.

Agreed not to resubmit Proposal No. 152, to eliminate Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(14).

Noted that the Men's Fencing Committee apparently does meet the Executive Committee criteria regarding maintenance of playing rules; therefore, Proposal No. 39 will not be resubmitted. However, the Council will sponsor legislation to remove the Men's Gymnastics Committee from the rules-making category, at that committee's request.

The Council agreed to sponsor legislation for the 1988 Convention to eliminate the restriction that the terms of not more than two of the nine Executive Committee members elected by the Council must expire in any one year.

It also agreed to sponsor an amendment to Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(5) to permit the Council to waive the contact period limitation in basketball for institutions with established admissions procedures that utilize acceptance dates subsequent to the normal contact deadline.

In response to the provisions of 1987 Convention Proposal No. 143-1, a resolution calling for the possibility of exceptions to any NCAA legislation based on "equitable and common-sense considerations," the Council directed the staff to prepare both draft legislation and a discussion paper regarding that approach for review in the August Council meeting.

The Council voted to oppose a suggestion by a member conference that would prohibit a division from reconsidering in the general business session any of the actions from its division business session, or to delay the end of the general business session and require that such reconsiderations be taken up at the end of the general session. The staff was directed to develop alternative approaches for review in August.

The Council voted to sponsor an amendment to Constitution 5-8 to permit the coexistence of a National Collegiate Championship and a separate division championship in the same sport. It also directed the staff to incorporate necessary amendments to the executive regulations in that regard and to have the Executive Committee and the Council review the proposal in August.

The Division I Steering Committee will review legislation to modify or eliminate Bylaws 2-2-(j) and (k), the bowl-game contact limitations, in August, when the results of a discussion in that regard by the Postseason Football Subcommittee of the Special Events Committee should be available.

The Council and appropriate steering committees will review the following draft legislation in August relating to interpretations considered in the April meeting:

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(3) to include the provisions of 1987 Proposal No. 63.

An amendment to Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(2) to restrict "acceptance of loans" therein to educational loans, affirming an earlier interpretation.

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1-(m), if determined feasible by the staff, to combine the provisions of Bylaws 5-1-(m)-(12) and (13).

An amendment to Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(8) that would make the waiver provision therein available to student-athletes at a member institution that elects to reclassify a Division I sport to Division III. The Division III Steering Committee concluded that there is no current authorization for such a waiver.

See Summary, page 19

Summary

An amendment to Bylaw 1-2(a)-(1)-(ii) to eliminate an apparent contradiction in the provisions of that subparagraph and subparagraph (iii) of that legislation.

An amendment to specify that the research grant permitted under the provisions of 1987 Proposal No. 97 can be exempted under O.I. 600, affirming the existing interpretation.

An amendment to delete Bylaw 5-1(f)-(3).

An amendment to O.I. 302 and possibly other O.I.s to redefine "practice" as those activities that involve sports-related information and have an athletics purpose.

An amendment to Constitution 3-1(h)-(1) to provide an exemption from the 100-mile limitation therein for recognition circumstances involving Federal or state government.

Division I

The Division I Steering Committee reported these additional actions:

Research: The committee approved the following recommendations by the Research Committee:

That researchers wishing to use data from NCAA-conducted research regarding student-athlete academic performance be required to sign an agreement form.

That the steering committee review the results of the committee's survey on Bylaw 5-1(j) partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers prior to its release. That review was conducted, and the data appear on pages 1 and 7 of this issue.

That the steering committee review the results of the committee's academic-performance data prior to distribution of those data to the member institutions involved. That review was conducted.

Academic Reporting: The steering committee reviewed and approved the revised version of the Division I academic-reporting form, adding a column for reporting the student's overall grade-point average.

The committee also reviewed the first annual compilation of data from the mandatory reporting requirement in Bylaw 5-6(e), taking these actions:

Authorized distribution of the report to the membership in printed form.

Included in the report an introduction by the president and secretary-treasurer.

Approved a procedure whereby an institution will be able to request detailed breakdowns of the data in any category, with individual (but anonymous) institutional listings in appropriate categories.

Authorized the staff to generate upon request from a Division I member a more detailed profile of like institutions, provided the anonymity of the respective member institutions is protected.

Agreed that the general distribution of the data to the membership will be by types of institutions, rather than an anonymous, institution-by-institution listing, inasmuch as the volume of the latter approach would diminish seriously the usefulness of the information. [Note: The data will be mailed to the Division I membership and reported in the News in approximately one month, when the report has been completed and printed.]

Compliance and Enforcement: The steering committee authorized the appointment of two new Council subcommittees, one to investigate means of strengthening the roles of athletics directors, faculty athletics representatives and conferences in the compliance and enforcement areas and the other to evaluate current compliance and enforcement programs and procedures and investigate means of strengthening them. The appointments will be made by the Administrative Committee.

Miscellaneous

The Division III Steering Committee emphasized the need to make every effort at NCAA Conventions to allow for expression of both sides of a controversial issue, in light of the increasing use of motions to cease debate.

The Council postponed to the August meeting consideration of the establishment of a president-elect position in the NCAA officer structure.

The Council voted to terminate the Measuring Athletics Program Success project, based on results of field-testing of the questionnaire and an evaluation of the project by outside consultants.

Athletics alliance bans tobacco use

The California State Community College Commission on Athletics voted unanimously April 24 to ban any use of tobacco by a participant during athletics activities.

Stu Van Horn, director of information services for the commission, said the rule, which is effective July 1, is aimed mainly at baseball players who use smokeless tobacco.

"This motion is all part of a major emphasis by the commission to continually inform our community college administrators and student-athletes that the use of any form of substance will not be tolerated," Horn said.

Bogues, Windham to receive hall of fame awards

Two of college basketball's shortest players, who also happen to be long on talent, have been announced as 1987 recipients of the Frances Pomeroy Naismith-Basketball Hall of Fame Awards. Former Wake Forest guard Tyrone "Muggsy" Bogues and former Southern California guard Rhonda Windham will be honored at a May 5 luncheon in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Established in 1969, the men's award is given annually to the outstanding college player under six feet tall. The women's award began in 1984 and recognizes the most outstanding college player under five feet, six inches in height.

In making the announcement, Hall of Fame Executive Director Joe

Tyrone Bogues

O'Brien noted that Bogues, at 5-3, is the shortest player ever to win the award. Notably, the 5-5 Windham is taller than her male counterpart.

Rhonda Windham

Bogues has been among NCAA leaders in assists for the past two seasons (final statistics for 1986-87 appear elsewhere in this issue of The NCAA News). He left Wake Forest as the Atlantic Coast Conference's all-time leader in assists (781). He led the ACC in assists, steals and minutes played for three seasons.

Windham left Southern Cal with the school's career record for assists (735 in 123 games). O'Brien noted that, combined with her 1,040 points, Windham's assists made her directly responsible for 2,510 points scored by the Southern Cal teams she played on.

With a 3.050 grade-point average (4.000 is perfect) in sports information, Windham was nominated for an NCAA postgraduate scholarship. She received a Marks Foundation Scholarship during her final three seasons at Southern Cal.

I-AA schools upset over Commission proposals, Hart says

Division I-AA schools are upset over proposals by the NCAA Presidents Commission that would eliminate spring football practice and reduce the number of scholarships, Southern Conference Commissioner Dave Hart says.

"I've talked with some of the other I-AA conference people, and I think the I-AAs seem to be peeved and offended. At least that's what I am gathering," Hart told the Associated Press.

The proposals by the Presidents Commission would eliminate spring football drills for I-AA teams and cut the number of scholarships from 30 to 25 per year and from 70 to 65 overall. The proposals, set forth April 1-2 by the Commission, are expected to be considered at the NCAA Convention in Dallas June 29-30.

"What I have sensed is the I-AAs nationally...are kind of up in arms about this," he said. "I think the Presidents Commission would have had a better chance if they had done something uniform."

The proposals are designed to cut costs, but Hart said they serve to further widen the gap between I-A and I-AA teams. The commissioner also said I-AA schools feel singled out because similar reductions have not been proposed for Division I-A teams.

The Commission has proposed limiting spring drills for I-A teams to 20 sessions over 30 days with no more than 15 sessions for contact. Now, I-A and I-AA teams are allowed 20 sessions in 36 days, with no restrictions on contact.

The Commission has proposed no changes in the number of grants for I-A teams. At present, I-A teams are allowed 30 scholarships per year with a total of 95, although the yearly number of grants was reduced to 25, effective August 1, 1988, at the NCAA's Convention in January.

"We don't understand the Commission's reasoning," Hart said in a telephone interview from Charleston, where the I-AA league held its annual spring meetings. "We don't understand where it came from—or why. It's a big question mark."

"We understand cost-cutting. But to single out the I-AAs and to say, 'You shouldn't have spring practice and you should be down to 65 scholarships,' we just don't feel its fair."

"I don't think they'd mind having (spring practice) reduced, but they wouldn't want to see it eliminated," Hart said. "But they could probably even live with it being eliminated, if it were eliminated for everybody."

Hart also said he was worried the proposals would make it next to impossible for most I-AA teams to compete with I-A schools.

"When you talk about reducing the I-AAs...and let them (the I-A teams) hold at 95, they were happy with that," he said. "But it just widens the gap."

Hart said he would rather see the total number of grants remain at 70, although he said even that number makes it tough for I-AA teams to compete with I-A squads.

"A lot of the teams in our conference are playing the I-As," he said.

"Now, it seems unfair to ask a coach to do that if they don't have the totals to do that."

"If the I-As want to continue to have their share of I-AAs on their schedules, they ought to want to keep it competitive and an interesting game for them and their fans."

Hart said he isn't sure if the proposals, which will be voted on only by I-AA schools, will pass at the NCAA Convention.

"Everybody must remember the fact that (because) the Presidents Commission recommends this doesn't make it fly," he said. "It still has to be voted on by the membership."

Hart said the proposals are among the main topics being discussed by Southern Conference officials.

"They've been discussed hot and heavy," he said. "Hopefully, we'll come out of here and see how the conference will vote on these issues. I don't know if we'll vote on this, but I think we'll have a pretty good feel on where we stand."

Faculty reps will receive new handbook

A new handbook for faculty athletics representatives is being mailed from NCAA national office.

The guide, designed to aid both new and experienced faculty representatives at NCAA member institutions, is the product of long-term efforts by the Faculty Athletics Representatives Forum and is edited by Francis W. Bonner of Furman University, former chair of the forum.

The publication includes sections on relationships between the FAR and the NCAA, conferences and media, as well as on-campus relationships with administrators, faculty, coaches, student-athletes and others.

Also included are suggestions for dealing with boosters, external investigations and eligibility questions, as well as lists of important tasks and sources of information.

"Because of the increasing complexity of athletics, the FAR's job also has become increasingly demanding—and that job correspondingly has become more important," Bonner writes in the handbook's summary. "It is no longer a job for spare moments and casual attention. The position demands substantial time, broad and detailed knowledge, and rare personal and professional executive skills."

The concept of a faculty athletics representatives' handbook originated in a 1980 recommendation from the Long Range Planning Committee and was begun that fall by a special committee.

The project received new emphasis in 1985 from the newly established Faculty Athletics Representatives Forum, under the leadership of William D. Bradford, Duke University.

The publication is being sent to the faculty athletics representative at each NCAA member institution. Additional copies are $2 each for members ($4 for nonmembers) and may be ordered from NCAA Publishing, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

'Superstation' signs two-year football deal with SEC

Turner Broadcasting System has announced a new two-year deal to televise Southeastern Conference college football games on "superstation" WTBS, seen by cable in much of the United States, and on other broadcast stations.

TBS Sports will broadcast from 10 to 12 SEC games this fall and in 1988.

"The Southeastern Conference plays an exciting brand of college football, and we're delighted to continue our outstanding relationship with them," said TBS Executive Vice-President Robert Wussler.

SEC Commissioner Harvey Schiller said the TBS deal, along with other conference TV commitments, would give "the very best combination of television exposure" for SEC teams.
