Commission announces four speakers for forum

Chancellor Ira Michael Heyman of the University of California, Berkeley, and President Frank E. Horton of the University of Oklahoma have been announced by the NCAA Presidents Commission as primary speakers for the special NCAA Convention session that will initiate the Commission's national forum on the proper role of college athletics within higher education.

Heyman and Horton will begin the program at 2 p.m. June 29 at Loews Anatole Hotel in Dallas. Each will have approximately 30 minutes to present his views of college athletics as it is conducted today.

They will be followed by President Anthony F. Ceddia, Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania, and President Richard Warch of Lawrence University, who will address the issue from the Division II and Division III perspectives, respectively. Each will speak for not more than 15 minutes.

After the remarks by the four major speakers, six persons will respond to those remarks. The six respondents—specifically invited by the Commission—will include a director of athletics, a faculty athletics representative, a woman athletics administrator, a major-sport coach and two additional chief executive officers. They will be introduced in next week's issue of The NCAA News, after all have accepted the invitations.

Each respondent will be limited to five minutes, after which the Convention delegates will be given an hour or more to ask questions of any of the speakers.

The 18-month national forum will proceed after the special Convention with a series of national meetings on key questions in intercollegiate athletics and a number of in-depth studies of the effects of intercollegiate athletics participation on both the student-athlete and the sponsoring institution.

The Commission is urging its colleagues at all NCAA member institutions to attend the special Convention next month, both to vote on the specific legislation presented by the Commission, the NCAA Council and others and to participate in the launching of the national forum.

"We believe the national forum will give all of us a very real opportunity to address the questions that never seem to get answered regarding college athletics and, we hope, to reach consensus regarding its proper role in higher education," the Commission said in a newsletter sent to all presidents and chancellors May 20. "We sincerely hope you will want to be a part of that by attending the special Convention in June."

Final Four foundation established

A 50th Anniversary Final Four Foundation has been established by the NCAA Executive Committee to coordinate a gala celebration of the golden anniversary of one of America's premiere sporting events.

The foundation was formed to coordinate activities and events that will be planned in conjunction with the 1988 Final Four, set for April 2-4 in Kemper Arena in Kansas City, Missouri.

The organization's efforts will be supervised by Bob Sprenger, who comes to the foundation as its executive vice-president after serving as managing director of public and community relations for the National Football League's Kansas City Chiefs. Sprenger will work closely with the Division I Men's Basketball Committee and the Kansas City organizing committee and serve as liaison between the committees and outside groups participating in the celebration of 50 years of Division I Men's Basketball Championships.

"In the next month, we'll develop a master plan for activities surrounding the event," Sprenger said, noting that a number of ideas for the celebration already have been proposed by various individuals and groups. "We're going to take the NCAA and the local organizing committee and mesh things together... to make this a gala occasion."

"Kansas City has hosted more Final Fours than any other city, and that gives us a great jumping-off point," Sprenger added. This will be the 10th time the championship has been held in Kansas City; the previous nine were staged in Municipal Auditorium. Kansas City last served as host of the

Committee studies ways to control player-agents

The Professional Sports Liaison Committee is laying the groundwork for what it hopes will be definitive solutions to the ongoing problem of the unscrupulous player-agent.

Meeting in Colorado Springs, Colorado, May 10-13 with representatives of the National Football League, National Hockey League, National Basketball Players Association and The Athletics Congress, the committee agreed to study various proposals for student-athlete/player-agent legislation over the summer and make a recommendation to the NCAA Council in August.

"The problem with the relationship between the student-athlete and the player-agent is a difficult one to tackle," said chair Carl C. James, commissioner of the Big Eight Conference. "Right now, there is a lot of negative publicity surrounding the issue. Our committee is going to need the input of a lot of groups and consultation with various coaches groups.

"It's going to take a lot of study and a thorough commitment by everyone to come up with legislation that is fair for all of the NCAA member institutions. I think everyone would like to see some sort of career-counseling program implemented to a certain degree. The question, though, is whether it would be fair for the majority," James said.

The committee plans to monitor legislative initiatives that are in the developmental stages in both Michigan and Texas dealing directly with the practices of player-agents. It also will keep an eye on the Chicago grand-jury deliberations involving New York-based player-agent Norby

Tickets sought by 93,000

More than 93,000 orders, which requested more than 325,000 tickets, were received for the 1988 Division I Men's Basketball Championship next April at Kemper Arena in Kansas City, Missouri.

A computerized drawing that uses a random-number-generating program developed by Data Systems International of Kansas City, Missouri, determines the applications that will be processed. United Missouri Band of Kansas City, Missouri, serves as a clearinghouse for the processing of the applications.

Applications came from all 50 states and the District of Columbia. In addition, 192 applications came from foreign countries. Canadians supplied 178 of those applications. Japan, Italy and England also were represented.

Kansans placed 20 percent of the orders, with 18,630 applications requesting 65,294 tickets. That ticket figure is more than the record number of 64,959 fans who attended the 1987 Final Four in New Orleans. Missouri was second with 11,398 applications for 40,392 tickets. Iowa was third with 5,432 orders, and Texas was fourth with 5,276.

The host city of Kansas City, Missouri, generated 3,253 applications, more than any other city. Overland Park, Kansas, was second with 2,617 orders.

In all, 93,186 orders for 326,425 tickets were received, more than twice the 41,487 requests for 143,464 tickets received last year. The average request was for 3.5 tickets. The actual breakdown is 955 requests for one ticket, 21,138 requests for two tickets, 1,178 requests for three tickets and 69,915 requests for four tickets. All tickets for the 1988 Final Four are $50.

Black coaches question openness in hiring

By Paul Franklin
Eastern Basketball

Discounting nearly 20 predominantly black schools, approximately 10 percent of the head basketball coaches at the Division I level are black.

The 10 percent figure closely reflects the percentage of the black population in this country. According to the latest U.S. Census Bureau figures, Blacks compose 12 percent of this country's overall population.

With the number of black athletes competing in Division I basketball substantially higher than those figures, some people feel black representation on the coaching level is far too low.

According to statistics released by The Sporting News, more than 70 percent of the players in the National Basketball Association are black.

In a sport dominated by Blacks, and with so many former players presumably qualified for coaching positions, the issue of opportunity continues to be debated.

Some coaches—and administrators—feel opportunities are out there for aspiring young coaches, as well as more experienced head coaches looking to move up the ladder. Others aren't as optimistic.

While there was but one black head coach in the sport just 16 years ago, this past season began with 29. Of those, four will already not return to their former positions.

Georgetown University's John Thompson, the only black coach to win an NCAA championship, refuses to be interviewed. He feels there is no reason to focus on the issue of hiring Blacks. He emphasizes that he is a good coach, not a good black coach.

"That only brings attention to an issue that should not be an issue," he said through a school

"John doesn't want to be looked at as a crusader or the Martin Luther King of basketball," Boston University's Mike Jarvis says. "But whether he likes it or not, he has a big responsibility that goes far beyond the game itself. He makes statements not only for sport, but also for society."

According to NCAA statistics, 280 schools play Division I basketball.

By contrast, of the 105 Division I-A college football programs, three are led by black coaches.

"Things seem to be progressing," Rutgers' Craig Littlepage says of opportunities for Blacks, "although the progress is slow. More and more coaches are being evaluated by their qualifications, and that has to be viewed as a plus."

Not everyone is as convinced. "I would love to say that if you are black and you are good, it doesn't matter," Jarvis told The Boston Globe last year. "But that's just not true. It probably won't be true for a long time, if ever."

The opportunities for head coaches are certainly there. After last season, there were 68 head-coaching vacancies on the Division I level.

While the numbers cannot be disputed, Temple University's John Chaney feels the numbers can be deceiving.

"Obviously, there are opportu-

Don't worry, coach, those academic wimps on the run

By Durwood McAlister
The Atlanta Journal and Constitution

Everything's going to be OK, coach. You can relax now. Our friends on the (Georgia) board of education took care of those idiotic proposals from that bunch of ninnies in the legislature. We may not be out of the woods yet, but we've got them moving in the right direction.

Can you imagine those guys? They weren't satisfied with eliminating spring football practice. They wanted to force even the ninth and 10th graders to put academics ahead of important things like football and basketball.

They obviously don't understand how important those first two years in high school are in the development of a good athlete.

Fortunately, our friends on the board of education took the trouble to talk to a few coaches and got their priorities straight. For a while there, it looked like they were serious about that "no-pass, no-play" silliness.

No need to fret now though, coach. The state board's ad hoc committee got rid of just about all the things we were worried about, and it looks like our high school athletics programs are safe.

You'll be glad to hear that they restored spring practice for varsity football—15 days of it. I know you would like more; but if you'll get your kids to devote themselves totally to football and nothing else for 15 days, it should give you a good shot at separating the winners from the losers.

Oh, yes. They did eliminate the spring game, and that's a shame; but we'll keep working. Maybe we can get the full board to restore it this summer. A few phone calls from your local booster club wouldn't hurt.

I'm sure you agree that our best lick was getting the committee to go along with a grace period to allow ninth-graders to earn their credits toward graduation. Since they won't be prohibited from extracurricular activities until the end of their 10th-grade year, you can work with them at the most critical time.

Joe Sears, one of the board members, really helped us on that one. "In

Tendency to talk about negatives makes the job tougher for an AD

Jim White, athletics director

"College athletics has lost some of its innocence because of what has happened. There is that tendency to talk about the negatives and not enough about the positives. And that makes our job tougher.

"We want their (alumni) support, and we need it. But we have to communicate to them that the program emanates from the athletics director."

"We see many black assistant and head coaches in football and basketball in the major- and small-college ranks. But how many black head coaches do we have in college baseball? How many black assistant coaches in college baseball?"

"How many black umpires do we have working the college games? One, two, three? Personally, I know of one competent black umpire who worked many USC (University of Southern California) and UCLA games over the years who is not working four-year college games this year, although I do see him working high school and junior college games. So he hasn't retired.

"It is a racist rule (Proposition 48) that was instituted by racist people intent on denying black kids an education.

"I don't think we need a championship (football) tournament. Football is very demanding physically, and I don't see how guys can maintain their academics and play two or three more games.

"I do not favor a national (I-A football) play-off at the present time, nor do I foresee one in the near future, if at all.

"Most of the play-off proposals involved a limited number of schools, such as the two top-rated teams after the bowl games are played, or possibly the winners of the six New Year's Day games.

"Such proposals are unfair. I believe that a play-off system must involve the champions from the various conferences, plus at-large spots for some of the runners-up in the larger conferences and for major independent teams.

"Faculty and administrators might think that such an extensive play-off would take too much time from the classroom. I also believe that it would encounter great resistance from the bowl committees. I know that I would be strongly opposed to offending the people who have been so loyal to major-college football through the years.

"Finally, under the present bowl system, we wind up with many winners. Under a play-off system, there would be just one winner—fair only if enough teams were involved. Under such circumstances, I cannot support a play-off system."

"It is true that there is no single proposal in this (June) Convention that will change the course of athletics in our colleges and universities. The cumulative effect of the legislative package, however, is meaningful.

"It is my opinion that a (I-A football) championship play-off is an inevitability. It would provide the proper way to determine the national champion and would be highly successful with the coaches, players and fans.

"The play-off would not displace the bowls, nor should it. The bowls are important to collegiate football and would not be diminished in any way. It is possible to devise a play-off format by using the current bowl setup. However, even if this cannot be worked out and a separate system is needed, I am still confident that the bowls would survive.

"I am also confident that if a separate play-off system were needed, additional national sponsors could easily be obtained and the stadiums sold out. But my preference, of course, would be the use of the bowls for the play-off plan.

"I also do not believe that a play-off plan would put any additional pressure on the student-athletes. They were accustomed to dividing their time between academics and athletics and would be excited about the prospect of deciding the national championship on the playing field."

Sheldon Hackney, president

The Washington Post

"As (Secretary of Education William J.) Bennett says, those who manage our institutions of higher learning must be held accountable for how they manage the taxpayer's dollars. But as a rule, our colleges and universities are not mismanaged or uncaring when it comes to the need for efficiency; the competition among them, alone, stops this from happening.

"...the Reagan administration would have us believe that now is the time to reduce student aid because, in the secretary's words, 'Federal outlays for student aid are up 57 percent since 1980.'

"What he doesn't say is that this increase is the result of bipartisan decisions made by Congress—not the White House. And what he also doesn't say is that the administration's current proposals would reverse the Federal government's historic role of giving financially needy students access to an education for which they academically qualify.

"Schools that now admit students on their academic ability would have to admit them not just on merit but on their ability to meet tuition costs. Instead of offering an educational opportunity to our best and brightest, we'd be offering it only to our most affluent. That wouldn't be fair. And it wouldn't be sound national policy...."

All American Bowl seeks television deal, sponsor

An official of the All American Bowl said May 20 that the college football game is seeking a corporate sponsor and a television network.

Jim Simmons, executive director, said that Turner Broadcasting Co., which had a four-year contract to televise the game, did not pick up its option to renew the agreement.

"The game will be on television," he said. "You can bet on that. You can't have a game if it isn't on TV."

Simmons said bowl officials have been seeking a corporate sponsor since the December 31 game between Florida State and Indiana.

"If we get a corporate sponsor, we go to network TV and say, 'Here's the proposal.' If it's the right mix for us and the networks, then they try to find the time best suited for the game."

The bowl is certified with the won't be a problem with the NCAA. If we came up with, say, a toy manufacturer as a sponsor, then we obviously would want to play before Christmas."

He said the relationship with Turner Broadcasting was good for the bowl.

"But Turner is cutting back on football programming, and Ted Turner is reportedly selling 49 percent of his stock to a bunch of cable companies," Simmons told the Associated Press. "What the cable people have basically said is they do not want competing syndication programming in their area."

"The cable companies do not want Turner coming in with cable as well as syndication programming, and an independent network doing a bowl pretty well has to syndicate it to commercial stations. So we're not as attractive to TBS as we once were."

"It's not that we weren't a good property; we just didn't fit into the total mix."

Simmons said that if a corporate sponsor is not found this year, the bowl will continue its efforts in that direction.

"For television," he said, "we probably would go with an independent like Raycom or Jefferson Pilot. Naturally, we'd rather tie down a network deal, but we're not concerned about the game not being on TV."

Rex Lardner, executive vice-president of TBS Sports, said one reason for not renewing the All American Bowl agreement "is that we have lost money on college football over the last several years."

He said TBS will have only a Southeastern Conference package this fall.

"This way, we have a better chance of breaking even," Lardner said.

NCAA for December 31, the playing date during the agreement with Turner.

"We do not have a set date," Simmons said. "When we submitted our recertified material to the NCAA, we used December 31; and as of right now, we're still committed to that date."

"However, if we come up with a sponsor who needs that changed, it

Bowl seeks top-five status

A year after the Peach Bowl escaped extinction and buoyed by the success of last year's game, the bowl's officials have unveiled a strategy designed to carry the game to top-five status by 1991.

The 20th Peach Bowl will be played Saturday, January 2, the day after college football's traditional big four bowls. The planned payoff to each team is $800,000, a one-third increase over the $600,000 that officially was presented May 21 to last year's teams, Virginia Tech and North Carolina State.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, which operates the game, approved a new plan for the game's future May 21, aimed at increasing the game's per-team payoff.

"I really believe we will make this bowl into one of the top bowls in the country," said Peach Bowl chair Ira Hetter.

To help defray the higher costs of the next Peach Bowl, tickets are going up $5, to an average price of $26, officials announced.

The decision to play January 2, a workday, was a difficult one, said Executive Director Lee Ayers.

This winter's Peach Bowl again will be televised nationally by the syndicated Mizlou sports network from Atlanta Fulton-County Stadium.

MIAA claims oldest women's league

America's oldest women's collegiate athletic conference is the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, according to a 100th anniversary history of the league, scheduled for publication next fall. It is based on new findings in research conducted by Thomas A. Myers, one of the book's authors.

Myers admits that there may be challenges to the MIAA claim. "There is no comprehensive history of women's intercollegiate sports, and we welcome counter-claims to our title as the nation's oldest women's conference. To date, there has been none."

In continuous operation since its founding in 1888, the MIAA has, for many years, laid claim to the distinction of being America's oldest collegiate athletics conference. The league will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 1987-88, highlighted by a banquet in November in the state's capital, Lansing, and by publication of the league's history, "Celebrating a Century of the Student-Athlete."

Women first competed in the MIAA in May 1896, when women's tennis was included in the league's annual field-day events. Albion, Hillsdale and Olivet Colleges are known to have had women's tennis in this first competition.

The first MIAA women's tennis championship was held in the same year as the earliest known intercollegiate women's contest in the country and was the first to take place under the auspices of an organized athletics conference. [Also in 1896, two women's basketball games were played, one between the University of California, Berkeley, and Stanford University and the other between the University of Washington and Ellensburg Normal School.] The MIAA women's tennis championships continued annually until 1925, when nearly all intercollegiate competitions for women in the U.S. ceased for about 20 years.

According to Myers, the real basis for the MIAA claim comes not from the 1896 tennis tournament, but from the 1941 founding of the women's MIAA, a separate conference for players to do as well as they can. That's his thesis on life."

Boher, now athletics director at the Penn State campus in Schuylkill, Pennsylvania, says Paterno's pious image was developed by the media and the university. "Paterno says he objects. But I doubt he objects that much. He's human."

Paterno has been a crusader, championing reforms to correct problems ranging from uneducated "student-athletes" to recruiting scandals.

He has plenty to say on a variety of topics:

- Drug testing: "I'm for drug testing, even though we're violating some of the rights (against self-incrimination) that we are all entitled to. But if I'm going to be consistent with doing what I think is best for young people, I should know if they're horsing around with any kind of drug."

- Paying players: "I think part of their scholarship should be some spending money, $50 to $60 a month. If the NCAA is going to prohibit them from holding a job during the school year, let's give them some money so they can be part of the mainstream—so they can buy a new shirt, a cup of coffee."

- Boosters: "You've got to control them. I tell them, 'I want your money, but I don't want your two cents. Keep your nose out of this program.... If I find out you're horsing around, you won't get a ticket into the stadium.'"

- NCAA rules: "Rewrite the rule book. Let's define a student-athlete; let's say what we want in recruiting. The rule book was written 40 years ago. A lot of them don't make any sense. There are so many little rules that no one knows them all."

"I know if somebody came up here and went right through our program with a fine-tooth comb, they are going to probably find something that's not right. I was going to throw a party for seniors and their fathers. But I couldn't. It would have been extra benefits."

- Women's sports: "When Title IX first came in (in 1972, pressuring schools to provide equal sports opportunities for women), I was a little leery. I wondered, 'Was this just some sort of fad?'"

"When I became (Penn State) athletics director (1980 to 1982), I realized how much the women want to play. I supported them."

"One woman coach whom I hired came in and said, 'I'm entitled to this under Title IX. Unless I get it, I'm going to bring up some action.'

"I said, 'Do me a favor. Go back outside. Forget you ever heard of Title IX. Then come back in and tell me what you need. She went outside, came back and said, 'This is what I need.' I said, 'You're going to get it. Not because of Title IX... but because you deserve it, your kids deserve it.'"

- State of college sports: "We've gone through a very tough 12, 15, 18 years. We had academic scandals on the West Coast. We had kids not going to class. The integrity of institutions was literally bruised."

"But then all of a sudden we did some soul searching. We raised academic standards, university presidents said 'enough is enough.' We've made great strides."

"I'd have given us a D 15 years ago and probably a C-minus seven years ago. Now, we're probably up to a B or a B-minus. If the Presidents Commission stays active (in reforms), we can get up to an A."

Agents

agents offering players loans ranging from $1,000 to $50,000 if they agree to hire that agent to represent them after their college careers are over.

"Even someone as strong as Bo Schembechler hasn't been able to crack all the players on the team and get them to listen," Seyferth said.

Agents convicted of trying to lure athletes to sign pro contracts would be subject to fines totalling three times the inducement, or $100,000, whichever is greater. University officials or boosters convicted of trying to offer a high school athlete a financial reward for attending their college would be subject to the same punishment.

Students who accepted payments, loans or anything else of value from either a sports agent or a university representative would be subject to civil fines of up to $1,000 or an amount equal to what they accepted, whichever is greater.

The two bills are sponsored by Rep. Joseph Palamara, D-Wyandotte and a former all-America second baseman at Michigan State University.

Palamara said the legislation's intent is to "halt the buying of athletes."

But sports attorney Robert Goodenow of Southfield cautioned the House committee to study the issue very carefully before it wades into the complex world of college and professional athletics.

Goodenow, who represents several National Hockey League players, reminded the panel that rules vary from sport to sport and that professional baseball and hockey teams own the rights to a number of college athletes before their NCAA careers even begin.

"Each of the major sports is handled in different ways," Goodenow said. "If I may be so abrupt, I think we've got a shotgun aimed and we need a more rifled approach."

At least one committee member, Rep. Thomas Power, said he couldn't see why the legislature would waste its time on legislation designed to protect adults "from their right to use their skills for whatever they want to."

"These (athletes) are adults, they're not 14-year-olds," said Power, R-Traverse City. "I think the NCAA and the Big Ten are doing fine and there's no reason for the state government to get involved."

Seyferth argued that in many ways, student-athletes are "not adults."

"We're talking about people 18 to 22 years old who have not lived in any kind of real world at all," Seyferth said.

He said media attention, pampering and special treatment they receive throughout high school and college often leave them vulnerable to unscrupulous sports agents.

Along with the two main bills, House Judiciary Chair Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, offered a pair of bills requiring sports agents to be licensed and bringing them under the supervision of the department of licensing and regulation.

Bullard postponed a committee vote on the bills to give members a chance to offer amendments, but he said he was confident the bill would pass the House by summer break in July.

Myers, the author of "Pioneers in Women's Athletics" in the league's centennial history book, is an administrator at Kalamazoo College.

Legislative Assistance

1987 Column No. 22

Bylaw 5-1-(j)—Form No. 48-C

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee has considered the manner in which Council-approved forms (developed through the Academic Requirements Committee) are to be utilized to certify the eligibility of prospective student-athletes under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j). The Legislation and Interpretations Committee concluded that as a general rule, Division I member institutions would be required to secure a copy of Form No. 48-H (Academic Courses) and complete Form No. 48-C [Information for Certification of NCAA Freshman Athletics Eligibility Compliance with Bylaw 5-1-(j)] for each prospective student-athlete who will first enroll in a Division I member institution beginning with the 1987-88 academic year. The committee agreed, however, that this policy would relate to prospects whose eligibility has not yet been certified and would not require those member institutions that already have certified a prospect's eligibility through the previously used Bylaw 5-1-(j) Student-Athlete Information Form to complete the new form for the same prospect.

Satisfactory-progress rule—remedial courses

The provisions of Case No. 324 include criteria related to the use of remedial, tutorial or noncredit courses by a student-athlete to satisfy minimum academic progress requirements. In this regard, a Council revision of Case No. 324 was published in the October 20, 1986, edition of The NCAA News to stipulate that for those student-athletes who first enrolled in the certifying institution beginning with the 1986-87 academic year, such courses must be completed during the first year of enrollment and be limited to a total of no more than 12 semester (18 quarter) hours. The Legislation and Interpretations Committee has determined that a limited exception to these restrictions in Case No. 324 may be made if the certifying member institution conducted during the 1986-87 academic year a mandatory full-year remedial-studies program that was initiated prior to the Council's October 20, 1986, interpretation. The committee agreed that this limited exception would permit student-athletes involved in such programs to utilize no more than 24 semester or 36 quarter hours of remedial credit during the 1986-87 academic year to meet the satisfactory-progress rule.

Constitution 3-2-(g)—athletically related income

The provisions of Constitution 3-2-(g), as amended at the 1987 annual Convention, stipulate in part that contractual agreements between a coach and an institution shall include the stipulation that the coach annually shall report all athletically related income from sources outside the institution (including, but not limited to, income, annuities, sports camps, housing benefits, complimentary-ticket sales, television and radio programs, and endorsement or consultation contracts with athletics shoe, apparel or equipment manufacturers) through the director of athletics to the institution's chief executive officer. The Legislation and Interpretations Committee has reviewed the application of this regulation and made the following determinations:

- All members of the institution's coaching staff, including part-time coaches, would be subject to the requirements of Constitution 3-2-(g) if the coaching staff member has a contractual agreement with the member institution.
- For purposes of fulfilling this requirement in 1987, only athletically related outside income realized since January 10, 1987, must be reported by the coaching staff member.
- As noted in the committee's minutes published in the April 15, 1987, edition of The NCAA News, a member institution's coach is required per Constitution 3-2-(g) to report athletically related benefits (e.g., preferential housing arrangements, country club memberships), as well as direct income that is athletically related, from sources outside the institution, inasmuch as such athletically related benefits are equivalent to income.
- All reports of athletically related outside income (for the period beginning January 10, 1987) must be made to the institution's director of athletics prior to the beginning of the 1987-88 academic year. Subsequent reports must be made on an annual basis prior to the beginning of each successive academic year and must include information concerning athletically related outside income for the previous 12 months.
- All current contracts between member institutions and their coaching staff members must include a written stipulation concerning the requirements of Constitution 3-2-(g); i.e., a member institution may not wait to implement this provision until an existing contract is renewed. This confirms a previous ruling by the Council.
- The annual income report required under this legislation need not be in written form when presented to the director of athletics and to the institution's chief executive officer.
- For purposes of this legislation, a "contract" is considered to include the written form of communication utilized by the institution to advise coaching staff members of the conditions and terms of their employment, including letters of appointment.

If there are questions regarding these issues or other aspects of the application of Constitution 3-2-(g) to the reporting of athletically related outside income, member institutions are encouraged to contact the legislative services department.

Three free sports clinics for youths offered by NCAA program in spring

Brooks Johnson and his track and field colleagues are coming back for more.

The Stanford University coach, who directed the U.S. women to success at the 1984 Olympic Games, is one of nine top collegiate coaches appearing at the Youth Education through Sports (YES) track and field clinic for a second straight year.

The YES program, through which the NCAA presents free clinics for youngsters ages 10 to 18, also is offering clinics this spring in lacrosse and golf. The clinics, held in conjunction with Division I championships, include enrichment sessions on academics and substance abuse as well as expert sports instruction and demonstrations.

The three spring clinics will bring to 2,500 the number of boys and girls attending YES clinics during the 1986-87 academic year.

Georgetown University men's basketball coach John Thompson and 1988 U.S. Olympic swimming coach Richard Quick of the University of Texas, Austin, have been among the featured speakers.

"I think everybody involved is happy to be able to give something back," said Johnson, who will be the featured speaker at the track and field clinic May 31 at Bernie Moore Track Stadium, Louisiana State University. "I was delighted to be asked back to the clinic. We were all that age once, and most of us also coached at that level. With all the headlines about big-time sports, the grass-roots level gets overlooked. I appreciate the opportunity to go back and teach the younger people."

Terry Crawford of the University of Texas, Austin, the 1988 U.S. Olympic women's coach, and John McDonnell of perennial NCAA champion University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, are among the other coaches making a return visit to the YES clinic. A total of 13 leading track experts are scheduled to join Johnson for the program at Baton Rouge.

The YES lacrosse clinic, held May 24 at the Rutgers Stadium Complex in Piscataway, New Jersey, featured the coaches of three of the teams in the men's Division I championship semifinals. Willie Scroggs, coach of three-time national champion University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, was the featured speaker.

Still ahead is the YES golf clinic June 7 at the Ohio State University Golf Courses in Columbus. Buckeye coach Jim Brown will be joined by 10 other prominent experts, including Mike Holder, whose Oklahoma State University teams have captured four NCAA titles.

A packet of written materials containing tips on individual skills and substance-abuse prevention is distributed to all youngsters at the clinics.

The YES program is underwritten by NCAA corporate sponsors. Additional equipment for specific clinics is provided by NCAA licensees.

Big Sky council backs proposals to decrease costs

The Big Sky Conference Presidents Council has supported two proposals aimed at containing the cost of collegiate athletics but left final action up to national officials.

The council also set a format for the league's first nine-team postseason basketball tournament at the close of the league's annual spring meeting May 20 in Boise.

Under pressure to curb what some consider growth of spending on college sports that is out of line with academic budgets, the presidents approved a measure asking the NCAA to reduce the number of football grants-in-aid allowed each school, the Associated Press reported.

The council wants equivalent cuts in NCAA Divisions I-A, I-AA and II.

The council also went on record in support of reducing the length of spring football practice in all divisions to 20 sessions, including 15 with contact, during 30 calendar days.

In basketball, the council approved a tournament format that will accommodate the coming season's addition of Eastern Washington University to the conference.

In other action, the council:

- Elected Idaho State University President Richard Bowen as its chair for the coming year. Boise State University President John Keiser was elected vice-chair.

- Named Carol Westmoreland, faculty athletics representative at Weber State College, chair of the Big Sky's faculty athletics representatives council.

- Named Chris Ault, athletics director at the University of Nevada, Reno, chair of the league's athletics directors council.

Big Ten adopts statement on affirmative action

The Big Ten Conference has adopted a statement on affirmative action to enhance its policy of equal opportunity and nondiscrimination in filling conference positions.

"Employment opportunities with the conference shall be made available on the basis of merit, without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age or handicap," the statement reads.

The statement continues, "Special efforts will be made to reach qualified minority and female candidates for available Big Ten Conference office positions, and administrative positions in particular."

The conference will make known all job openings to organizations that represent or serve the interests of minorities and women, and specialized publications serving those interests will carry advertisements concerning the available positions, the Big Ten said.

and to the people at Maryland who are working hard to do the right thing for the program."

Slaughter concurs.

"His being black was not a consideration," Slaughter, who is also black, says. "He just happens to be a good coach who is black."

"Good coaches, black or white, are people who understand their players and are successful," Slaughter says. "Color is not essential."

Syracuse University coach Jim Boeheim agrees.

"If you have to be black to relate to black people," he says, "this world is in serious trouble."

Many people, black and white, feel school administrators are pressured by prejudiced alumni who threaten to hold back contributions should a Black be hired to coach "his" team. According to some coaches, such practices are more prevalent in the Southeast and Midwest.

Is the future of college sports so bleak? Is the future of black student-athletes so hopeless? Are there any answers. Are black coaches the answer?

When does black and white turn gray?

"It's nothing more complex than time," Littlepage says. "As more and more individuals have an opportunity, and they turn those into success stories, then they will breed opportunities for others."

Will Robinson, former coach at Illinois State and now employed by the Detroit Pistons in the NBA, isn't so sure the hourglass will ever go still.

"In any society," he says, "there will be power struggles. In this country, first it was the Irish who were repressed, then the Italians. Then the Blacks. And now, the Hispanics. People have to come and just take their shots."

"If you're Jewish," Robinson says, "you can change your name. You can go underground. We can't quit being black."

"We started out as slaves," he says, "and some people will never let us forget it."

Strength coach faces charge of dealing in illegal steroids

A University of Miami (Florida) football strength coach has been implicated in a nationwide ring trafficking in illegal body-building steroids, but school officials doubt any of their players are involved with the drug.

Coach Pat Jacobs was among 34 people indicted in San Diego May 21 for allegedly manufacturing, smuggling and distributing 70 percent of the steroids illegally sold in the United States.

"We're stunned," Miami athletics director Sam Jankovich said.

"But I would be even more surprised to learn any of our student-athletes are involved. I'm not ruling out that possibility, but we've tested, and we don't have a major problem with steroids."

Jacobs was the only person in the indictment directly tied to college athletics, authorities said. He has been suspended from the athletics department pending the outcome of his case.

Customs agents arrested Jacobs May 21 at his Miami apartment after seizing boxes of liquid and tablet steroids, hypodermic needles, and a stack of cash marked "profits," authorities told the Associated Press.

"These are steroids manufactured for use by veterinarians on animals to put more meat on them," said Customs spokesman Patrick O'Brien, adding the drugs were made at two laboratories in Tijuana, Mexico, and stamped with phony labels listing legitimate U.S. manufacturers.

Police pried open the back of Jacobs' television set and found a green university notebook that apparently lists customers' names, O'Brien said. He said university officials were cooperating in tracking down the names.

"He was a small-time guy who got caught in the wrong place at the wrong time," O'Brien said. "We have no reason to believe at this time that Jacobs was passing the drugs on to athletes."

Jacobs was freed on a personal bond of $100,000 by a Federal magistrate in Miami, and a removal hearing was set for June 8 on the San Diego warrant.

Jankovich said Miami and the NCAA tested the school's football players for steroids 96 times in the last year, and Jankovich said "fewer than two" tested positive.

Georgia men win second team tennis crown in three years

Two teams not expected to be in the finals staged a repeat of their 1985 showdown when Georgia defeated UCLA, 5-1, to win the Division I Men's Tennis Championships team title.

The Bulldogs, annual hosts of the tournament, took their second team crown in three years. UCLA, all-time leader in NCAA tennis crowns, lost to Georgia by the same score in the 1985 final at Henry Field Stadium in Athens.

The Bruins' Dan Nahirney had won the first set at No. 1 singles when he apparently suffered torn knee ligaments and had to retire. The Bulldogs then won four other singles matches.

"Winning this championship is a different type feeling from the title in 1985," said Georgia coach Dan Magill. "We thought we could win it in '85, but this year I had hoped we would just have a good enough team to be seeded in the tournament."

The fourth-seeded Bulldogs had to knock off top seed Southern California to get to the championship round.

The Bulldogs and Trojans split the singles matches and the first two doubles pairings in the semifinals before Georgia's Trey Carter and P. J. Middleton eked out the victory.

Upstart Tennessee was the other semifinalist, knocking off second-seeded Long Beach State before bowing to sixth-seeded UCLA, 5-2.

"We didn't have a particularly good year this year," said Bruin coach Glenn Bassett, expressing surprise at reaching the finals. "But once we got here, we played really well together. I'm very, very proud of this team. Georgia was just too tough and played real well."

The individual singles competition was marked by upsets—none of the six top seeds reached the quarterfinal round. Seventh seed Andrew Burrow of Miami (Florida) defeated Michigan's Dan Goldberg, 2-6, 6-1, 6-2, in the final.

Southern California's Rick Leach and Scott Melville won tie breakers in both the quarterfinals and the semifinals to take the doubles title. Leach and Melville defeated unseeded Julian Barham and Darien Yates of UC Irvine, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, in the final.

Stanford women take second straight team championship

Stanford finally has broken the pattern in Division I women's tennis.

The Cardinal, after trading titles with Southern California since the championships began in 1982, became the first team to win two in a row with its victory May 14-21 at UCLA. Frank Brennan's team knocked off the Trojans, 9-0, in the first round and went on to notch consecutive 5-1 victories over UCLA, Florida and Georgia.

Stanford previously had won national crowns in 1982, 1984 and 1986.

Stanford senior Patty Fendick won a second straight singles crown as well, defeating Shaun Stafford of Florida, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, in the final. She is the first player to twice win that title.

The singles championship was the fourth won by a Cardinal player in six seasons of competition.

Stafford, a freshman, toppled second-seeded Beverly Bowes of Texas in the quarterfinals after losing the first set.

Stanford was denied a third championship at the tournament when Diane Donnelly and Katrina Adams of Northwestern defeated Fendick and senior teammate Stephanie Savides, 6-2, 6-4, in the doubles final. Donnelly and Adams disposed of defending champions Ronni Reis and Lise Gregory of Miami (Florida) in the semifinals.

Bubier goal gives Johns Hopkins lacrosse crown

Craig Bubier's goal with 1:51 left in the game gave Johns Hopkins its seventh NCAA Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship, 11-10 over Cornell at Rutgers May 25.

"Our kids were determined to give it their best shot, and that's all we can ask as coaches," Johns Hopkins coach Don Zimmerman said. "For me, it culminates my happiest and most satisfying coaching year. I've never coached a group of kids that meant more to me and would do whatever it took for us to win the national championship."

The Blue Jays held a 7-4 advantage at the half and went up 9-5 on two third-period goals by Bubier. Cornell scored four straight and knotted the score at nine on a goal by John Wurzbarger with two minutes left in the period. Tim Goldstein had assists on all four of the Big Red's goals.

John Ciccarone put Johns Hopkins up by one early in the fourth period. Tim Mulligan got the tying goal for Cornell with 6:58 left. The deadlock lasted for about five minutes until Bubier tallied the game-winner, his fourth goal of the day.

"We are delighted at the comeback we made," Cornell coach Richie Mo-

Texas A&M earns softball title

Texas A&M defeated UCLA, 1-0 and 4-1, to claim its first Division I softball championship since 1983. The Lady Aggies, under the leadership of Central region coach of the year Bob Brock, were runners-up in 1984 and 1986.

Defending champion Cal State Fullerton was handed losses by Texas A&M and UCLA in the double-elimination tournament held May 20-24 at the Seymour Smith Softball Complex in Omaha, Nebraska.

Senior pitcher Shawn Andaya had a perfect outing in game 14, the first in three years and only the third in the history of the championship. The Lady Aggies scored the only run of the game in the sixth inning when a left-center double by Carrie Heightley scored Judy Trussell.

Andaya continued her outstanding performance by allowing only two hits and one run in the final game of the series.

In her first year as a Lady Aggie, Julie Smith went three for four in the last game and tied a Division I record with nine hits in the series.

Coaches call for site change

Some rival coaches are charging that the University of Georgia has an unfair home-court advantage in the NCAA Division I Men's Tennis Championships.

Georgia won the 1987 team championship, its second title in three years. The Bulldogs, who have hosted the annual tournament since 1977, guarantee the NCAA $75,000 a year from the tournament.

Southern Cal coach Dick Leach, whose team lost to Georgia in the semifinal round May 18, said he will "work very hard" to move the tournament when Georgia's contract runs out next year.

"It's one of the most unfair things in college," he said. "It has to be changed."

He and others, including Glenn Bassett of UCLA, John Hammill of Miami (Florida) and Pepperdine's Alan Fox, say familiar courts and friendly fans give the Bulldogs too much advantage.

"Cheering and going nuts when (the opponent) double-faults is not

Frostburg State loses Hurd but wins track championship

Frostburg State overcame the injury of all-America hurdler Maynard Hurd and held on to win a second consecutive Division III Men's Outdoor Track Championships team title May 20-23 at North Central College.

Hurd, the two-time champion in the 110-meter hurdles, was injured during qualification for the 400-meter relay and was unable to compete in the hurdles. The Bobcats, however, were able to capture three individual titles and place second in three other events to hold off Lincoln (Pennsylvania), 66-56.

Joe Barber, winner of 15 all-America honors for Frostburg State, won the 200 meters with a 21.70 clocking. Oliver Kyler won the high jump [2.08, (6-9¼)], and the 400-meter relay squad was also victorious (41.03).

Doug Alston of Pomona-Pitzer set a championships record when he triple jumped 15.45 (50-8¼), besting a mark that had stood since 1980.

Leonard leads Tampa golfers to Division II title

Tampa, led by individual champion Jeff Leonard, overcame a six-stroke deficit in the final round of the 25th annual NCAA Division II Men's Golf Championships to win its first team title over host Columbus by five strokes.

Leonard shot rounds of 67-69-76-68 to win medalist honors over the demanding par-72, 6,840-yard Bull Creek Golf Course to outdistance Troy State's Mike Wright by nine strokes. Leonard, Tampa's first individual champion, finished in a six-way tie for 16th at last year's championships, while Wright finished in a three-way tie for 41st.

Tampa entered the final round trailing Cal State Northridge by six strokes and leading Columbus by eight strokes. However, Cal State Northridge shot a final-round 306, its worst round of the tournament, to fall out of contention. Columbus shot the tournament's best round over the last 18 holes with a 287, but the Cougars, bidding for their third team title, could only shave Tampa's lead by three strokes.

Leonard carded the championships' best round with his first-day total of 67 and reflected the consistent team play of Tampa, which shot rounds of 294-293-298-290. Jeff Schroeder, who tied for 21st with rounds of 72-77-77-72, and Ernie Alonso and John Finster, both of whom tied for 41st with four-day totals of 304, were Tampa's other top finishers.

Warriors beat UC San Diego again

Cal State Stanislaus, outdistancing runner-up UC San Diego for the third straight year, placed five golfers among the top 26 finishers en route to its fourth consecutive NCAA Division III Men's Golf Championships team title.

The Warriors, winners of 10 team titles in the 13-year history of the championships, took control of the tournament after the second round and coasted to a 14-stroke advantage over UC San Diego.

Glen Andrade led Cal State Stanislaus with a third-place finish at the May 19-22 championships hosted by Ohio Wesleyan, shooting rounds of 76-72-74-73 for a 295 total. Teammate Pat Lay finished six strokes behind Andrade with rounds of 79-75-71-76 to tie for seventh place. Joe McCormick (304), Troy Williams (306) and Dick Freier (308) rounded out the scoring for the Warriors, who have won all 10 team titles under coach Jim Hanny.

UC San Diego's Pat Weishan, who tied for second at last year's championships, became the school's first individual champion by firing rounds of 73-69-73-74 to finish with a one-over par 289.

After two rounds of play in the 72-hole tournament, it appeared that Cal State Stanislaus' lock on the team title was in jeopardy. UC San Diego tied the Warriors at 606 before losing nine strokes to the Warriors in the third round and not making up any ground in the final round, losing five more strokes to finish at 1,214.

Texas A&M heads a list of strong men's track contenders

The Texas A&M Aggies, looking for their first outdoor team title in school history and the fourth in five years for the Southwest Athletic Conference, will be slight favorites for the NCAA Division I men's track and field team title when action in the 66th outdoor championships begins June 3 at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge.

The Aggies, though, will be pressed heavily by Pacific-10 Conference stalwart UCLA and SWC rivals Texas, Arkansas and Southern Methodist. Host Louisiana State also should battle for a spot among the top five finishers.

"I think everybody feels that Texas A&M is the team to beat right now, with UCLA, Texas, Arkansas and maybe SMU not far behind," said UCLA coach Bob Larsen. "Texas A&M really has quality people. They have excellent sprints and Randy Barnes in the shot and discus. Plus, they have multiple scorers in a couple of events, which is a must at the national championships."

The quality people Larsen speaks so highly of start in the 100 meters, where three sophomores—Stanley Kerr (10.0), Floyd Heard (10.12) and Greg Lewis (10.28)—all should contend for points.

Heard, the defending champion in the 200 meters, shocked the track and field fraternity this season with a blazing 19.95 in that event to set a new collegiate record. Also lending support in the 200 meters will be Kerr (20.47) and sophomore Lawrence Felton (20.51).

Sophomore Matt Dunn, who turned in the third-fastest 800-meter time last season and holds three indoor school records, has clocked a 1:47.19 this season.

In the hurdles, Felton has qualified in the highs with a 13.70. Junior Craig Calk, who assistant coach Ted Nelson said is "really making a big splash and coming on strong," set a Southwest Conference meet record this season with a 49.05 clocking in the 400-meter hurdles.

Senior Ian James, who finished eighth last season in the long jump, has notched a 26-7½ leap outdoors this season and looks to score points.

The big man in the Aggies' weight events is sophomore Randy Barnes. After suffering strained ligaments around one of his knuckles, Barnes has come back with (68-8½ and 203-11 in the shot and discus, respectively.

"Having Randy Barnes back in the shot and discus has been a big boost to our team," said Nelson. "He's 100 percent health-wise but not 100 percent technique-wise. He's had some big throws that's he fouled on, both in practice and in meets. But he's not far off."

Look for the Texas A&M relay teams to score also, as the 400 quartet has run a 39.09 and the 1,600 team has crossed the tape at 3:05.60.

At UCLA, Larsen probably has more balance and depth than anyone in the country, especially in the sprints and hurdles.

The Bruins are led by junior all-America Kevin Young, who placed second in the 400-meter hurdles last season and turned in a 49.33 this season. Young also will compete in the 110 hurdles (13.84), as will senior Steve Kerho (13.69w) and Raymond Young (13.74w). (w: wind-aided.)

UCLA is extremely solid in the sprints with sophomore Henry Thomas leading the way. Thomas had to sit out of last year's championships because of foot and hamstring problems but came back to set a school record with a 10.18 100 this season. He also has qualified in the 200 meters (20.37) and 400 meters (45.66). Sophomore Mike Marsh has made the mark in both the 100 (10.26) and 200

(20.52), while sophomore Danny Everett will compete for honors in the 200 (20.55) and 400 meters (44.88). In the distances, look for Mark Junkermann possibly to score points in the steeplechase (8:42.7) and 5,000 meters (13:52.35).

The Bruins have quite a tandem in the shot and discus, as senior Jim Banich and freshman Brian Blutreich are capable of scoring. Banich, sixth in the shot at last year's championships, has claimed season-best marks of 63-10¼ and 191-1. Blutreich, a redshirt last season, has qualified with efforts of 63-5½ and 190-9. Senior all-America Jim Connolly returns in the javelin (243-9) as well as the decathlon (7,710), where he finished fourth last season.

In the 400-meter relay, the Bruins have clocked a 39.50, while the 1,600-meter relay squad of junior Anthony Washington, Young, Thomas and Everett is the favorite after posting a 3:01.09.

Texas' Longhorns are fresh off their second consecutive SWC title and return three NCAA champions from a year ago. Junior James Lott, the defending champion in the high jump, has cleared 7-7, tops in the country this season. Sophomore Eric Metcalf looks to be the favorite once again in the long jump as he defends his title after posting a 26-5¼, also the best jump in the country this season. And Dag Wennlund, a junior from Mariestad, Sweden, is favored to defend his javelin title from a year ago. This outdoor season, he has thrown a collegiate-best 271-1.

In the hurdles, sophomore Winthrop Graham has turned in the third-best time of 1987 with a 48.81. Also, watch for sophomore Harry Green in the 10,000 meters (28:33.7) and freshman Sean Kelly in the 800.

Even without support in the field events, Arkansas has plenty of talent in the distance and middle-distance events and should score a lot of points.

Junior John Register has qualified in the long jump with a 25-11, but the Razorbacks will rely heavily on their runners at the meet. Leading the way for the Hogs will be junior Roddie Haley, runner-up in last year's 400-meter run and the favorite to take home the top prize this year after posting a 45.39. Haley is coming off

Crimson Tide women ready to make a run for track title

Alabama's Crimson Tide, runner-up to Texas last year, appears to be the front-runner going into the Division I Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships June 3-6 at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge.

Other contenders are 1987 women's indoor champion Louisiana State, Southern California, Texas Southern, Tennessee and UCLA.

Leading the Crimson Tide will be senior Lillie Leatherwood King, the defending champion in the 400 meters (51.17). King has qualified in the 200 meters (22.38) and also will handle the third leg of the 1,600-meter relay for the favored squad (3:31.0).

Sophomore Pauline Davis, another outstanding sprinter, set a Southeastern Conference meet record this outdoor season with a 11.19 in the 100 meters. The Nassau, Bahamas, native also will run the 200 (22.49) and in both relays. Junior Evelyn Adiru, a former cross-country champion, has qualified in the 800 (2:03.22), 1,500 (4:18.84) and 3,000 (9:19.29). Junior Heidi Olafsdottir, a native of Iceland, recently won the SEC 3,000 meters with a 9:15.51 and also has qualified in the 1,500 (4:14.94).

Joining the already impressive 3,000-meter lineup are junior Jeni Nielsen (9:22.06) and sophomore Susan Crawford (9:22.88).

Sophomore Flora Hyacinth, one of the most talented athletes in the country, has scored 34½ points in each of the last two SEC outdoor championships. Hyacinth will run the 100-meter hurdles (13.33), 400-meter hurdles (57.84) and a leg in both relays, as well as participate in the long jump (21-6¼) and triple jump (a world-best 45-1).

Louisiana State coach Loren Seagrave, who has coached 59 all-Americans in the past three years, has another talent-laden squad this year.

Senior Sheila Echols, the indoor champion in the long jump with a leap of 21-6, has posted a 21-11¼ outdoors this season. Echols also will run the 100 meters (11.28) at the championships. Junior Schowonda Williams owns a season-best 56.25 in the 400-meter hurdles and looks like the favorite. She also has qualified in the high hurdles with a 13.17 clocking and in the 400 meters (52.70). Senior Camille Cato has made the field in the 800 meters (2:02.73), along with senior Kathi Harris (2:04.70) and Sylvia Brydson (2:04.90).

In the field events, senior Kym Carter has cleared the high-jump bar at 6-0½ and also will compete in the heptathlon after notching a season-best 5,545 points. Junior Claire Connor, sixth in the long jump at this year's indoor championships, has leaped 20-10¼. In the shot put, senior Ieresa Williford has qualified and owns an indoor mark of 54-6. Senior Laverne Eve has bolted onto the javelin scene with a toss of 204-9, the third-best collegiate mark in history. Junior Cheryl Wilson, the NCAA heptathlon record-holder in the 100-meter hurdles, has qualified with a 5,444-point effort.

Both of the Tigers' relay squads look to rack up points, as the 400-meter team has been timed at 44.42 and the 1,600-meter team has a season-best 3:34.35.

At Southern Cal, coach Fred LaPlante has a crew of excellent jumpers. In the long jump, juniors Wendy Brown (21-0½) and Yvette Bates (21-0) have surpassed the qualifying mark. The triple jump, though, is where the Trojans plan to make the biggest splash, as both Brown (44-11¼) and Bates (44-0½) look for a 1-2 finish.

In the 100 meters, senior Myra Mayberry has run 11.41, while senior Gervaise McCraw should be in the hunt in the 200 meters (23.07). In the 400-meter hurdles, sophomore Leslie Maxie has qualified with a 56.70. The Trojans' relay teams both have qualified with 44.53 and 3:34.48 marks.

After a third-place finish at last year's outdoor championships, Texas Southern is ready to challenge for the team title again. Coach Dave Bethany has five athletes capable of scoring a lot of points.

Leading the way for the Lady Tigers is senior Maria Usifo in the 100-meter hurdles (13.47) and 400-meter hurdles (56.76). Usifo finished third in the former last year and came away with an individual title in the latter. Junior Melody Smith has an excellent chance to score points in the long jump after a season-best 21-5¼. In the 100 and 200 meters, sophomore Mary Onyali has qualified with times of 11.31 and 23.07, respectively. The 400-meter relay team also should provide support after a 44.43 clocking.

Tennessee's Lady Vols have two of the top athletes in the country in senior Alisa Harvey and junior LaVonna Martin. Harvey, the defending champion in the 1,500 meters (4:15.45), also is one of the top qualifiers in the 800 (2:02.51) and 3,000 meters (9:12.19). Martin has turned in a 23.24 200 meters and had the fastest collegiate 100-meter hurdle time in the country last year (12.95).

At UCLA, coach Bob Kersee once again will rely on the multievent versatility of Gail Devers. The talented junior has qualified in the 100 meters (11.15), 200 meters (22.71), 100-meter hurdles (13.28), long jump (21-10) and the anchor leg of both relays. Senior Polly Plumer will compete in the 3,000 (9:14.54), while senior Toni Lutjens has qualified with a season-best mark of 181-2 in the discus. Senior Gayle Kellon made the mark and looks to score in the 400-meter hurdles after posting a 57.63 in UCLA's victory at the Pacific-10 Conference championships.

Other top contenders include:

Final Four

tournament in 1964.

NCAA officials envision the foundation as a means of making the 50th anniversary of the Final Four "something special." In that regard, the foundation will rely heavily on Sprenger's 15 years of experience as the Chiefs' public relations director, as well as his previous experience in collegiate athletics as information director for what was then the Pacific-8 Conference. Sprenger also has been a sportswriter for the San Francisco Chronicle.

Officers also have been named for the foundation. They are Thomas J. Frericks, vice-president and director of athletics at the University of Dayton and NCAA secretary-treasurer, who will serve as president; Edward E. Bozik, director of athletics at the University of Pittsburgh, vice-president; Division I Men's Basketball Committee members Fred A. Schaus, director of athletics at West Virginia University, and Frank Windegger, director of athletics at Texas Christian University, and Kansas Citians Joe McGuff, editor of the Kansas City Star and Times, and Bill Harsh, honorary chairman of the Kansas City organizing committee. Louis J. Spry, NCAA controller, will serve as treasurer of the foundation.

Bob Sprenger

urer of the foundation.

The foundation will have its headquarters at the NCAA national office. Its operations will begin June 1 and will continue through the 1988 Final Four, although there is a possibility that the organization may continue to exist after the event.

At its meeting in early May, the Executive Committee authorized funding for a feasibility study on the establishment of a permanent NCAA foundation, which may promote the scientific, educational and charitable purposes of the Association. Working toward that goal, the Executive Committee may consider using the Final Four foundation as a starting point for the development of that organization.

Aztecs get donation of $500,000

San Diego State University athletics director Fred Miller has announced the signing of an agreement with Dennis and Joan Wise of La Jolla that would provide $500,000 in funding toward the construction of a $1,250,000 hall of fame/office complex for the Aztec athletics department.

The Wise family is donating the money in cash and securities as a matching contribution to an SDSU capital campaign designed to raise the remaining $750,000 needed to complete the structure. The donation is the largest contribution ever by an individual to the Aztec athletics program.

The Aztec hall of fame/office complex is the second facet of Miller's master facility plan. Last December, the athletics department announced funding had been secured for the $2.5 million, 26,000-square-foot Aztec athletics center, with all materials and labor donated by the San Diego Associated General Contractors and Local Trades Council. That structure is designed to house a 10,000-square-foot weight-training facility, sports-medicine facilities, equipment room, football coaches' offices and football team meeting rooms.

his third consecutive SWC 400-meter title.

In the 800 meters, Lorenzo Brown has qualified with a 1:46.95, while Matt Dunn has finished in 1:47.19. The 1,500 is a real Razorback logjam, as senior Doug Consiglio (3:39.66), Gary Taylor (3:39.88), sophomore Joe Falcon (3:40.81) and Matt Taylor (3:41.67) all have made the mark. Falcon has a good chance to score in the 5,000 (13:45.91), while senior Ian Cherry looks for similar results in the 10,000 (28:43).

Defending team champion Southern Methodist returns 11 of 15 athletes from its 1986 squad, including the entire mile-relay quartet. Sophomore Roy Martin will handle the 100-meter (10.25) and 200-meter (20.45) sprints for the Mustangs, while junior Kevin Robinzine tries to improve on his third-place finish last season in the 400 meters (45.04). Senior Vernon Samuels looks to score in the triple jump, where he has a season-best of 53-8 1/4.

In the decathlon, junior Sten Ekberg, a native of Nykoping, Sweden, has a season-best of 7,896 points. Ekberg finished second last year with 7,990. Both relays should make their marks at the championships, especially the 1,600-relay team with a 3:01.18.

At Louisiana State, junior Robin van Helden will challenge Freddie Williams of Division II Abilene Christian in the 800 meters. Williams won the 800 at the Division II championships with a 1:47.92, while van Helden has clocked a 1:47.31 this season. Senior all-America Eric Reid is one of the favorites in the 110-meter hurdles (13.38w), while senior Sheldon Blackburger (7.964 points) and junior Mike Olander (7.894 points) will challenge George Mason's Rob Muzzio in the decathlon.

Committee

Walters, who allegedly has violated NCAA rules prohibiting an athlete from being represented by an agent until his or her eligibility is finished.

During the committee's meeting, a variety of topics were discussed with representatives of professional sports.

NFL

In its meeting with representatives of the National Football League, the committee reviewed new NFL policies relating to playing rules, including policies on roughing the passer, blocking of linemen and utilization of the instant replay.

The committee also discussed several videotapes that the NFL has produced for the purpose of drug education. The NFL indicated that it would be willing to make such tapes available to intercollegiate athletics conferences. This year, the videotapes will emphasize steroids.

Other items of discussion with the NFL included draft regulations, tryouts, drug testing, agent registration, visitation programs and NFL charities.

NHL

In a meeting with representatives from the National Hockey League, the NHL expressed its desire to use developmental funding to study the causes and prevention of injuries. The league also favors using such funds for the establishment of officiating clinics to develop hockey officials at all levels of competition.

The committee, however, has requested that the NCAA Council appoint a subcommittee to establish definitive criteria for the approval of all developmental-funding proposals. It is the committee's belief that such a subcommittee should have at least one representative from the current Professional Sports Liaison Committee in order to ensure continuity between the two committees.

Carl C. James

Baseball

In keeping with legislation passed during the 1987 Convention, the Summer Baseball Committee was absorbed into the Professional Sports Liaison Committee, which will continue the functions of the former committee.

The issue was raised as to whether athletes drafted by a professional baseball league should be able to negotiate with a professional team. It was emphasized that under the Association's current legislation, such negotiations would render the student-athlete ineligible in the sport of baseball. Representatives of Major League Baseball pointed out that, in their view, negotiation with a professional team is the same as negotiation between a prospective student-athlete and a member institution for the purpose of attaining a scholarship.

The matter was referred to the American Baseball Coaches Association to ascertain whether it would favor amending current NCAA legislation to allow student-athletes to negotiate with a professional baseball team.

Basketball

The committee discussed the merits of University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, basketball coach Dean Smith's proposal to permit student-athletes to submit their names for the National Basketball Association player draft and subsequently choose whether to enter the draft or to retain eligibility for intercollegiate athletics. The matter was referred to the National Basketball Coaches Association for its advice.

Charles Grantham, executive vice-president of the National Basketball Players Association, reported that the NBPA has worked closely with the National Football League Players Association in developing a player-agent registration program. It was recommended that the NCAA begin educating its student-athletes at the freshman level about agreements with agents. The committee was told that education should continue at least annually until student-athletes have exhausted their eligibility for intercollegiate athletics.

The NCAA also was encouraged to utilize the NBPA as a resource in determining the value of prospective NBA draftees. Grantham also offered to permit the Association to utilize information collected by the NBPA relating to the average value an NBA draftee would receive depending upon his place in the draft. In another action, the committee recommended that the NCAA staff review the possibility of producing a film for the purpose of educating student-athletes about signing with agents. The film would be sponsored jointly by the NCAA, the NFLPA, the NBPA and Merrill Lynch Corporation. It is hoped that by working with the various player associations, current professional athletes could be utilized in the film to help educate student-athletes about selecting an agent and making decisions about professional athletics careers based upon realistic expectations.

"The professional groups could not have been better," said James. "They were more than willing to sit down and discuss mutual problems between amateur and professional sports. With a lot of hard work, we hope we will be able to solve these problems."

Walters thumbs his nose at NCAA rules

Sports agent Norby Walters says he didn't give money to college athletes, he made them loans.

"They all signed promissory notes for their money," Walters the target of a Chicago grand jury probe, told the Associated Press.

"A kid can take a loan. No agent gives kids money for free. Now, if that kid decides he does not want to pay the loan back, then the agent can sue that kid, which is exactly what I'm doing in six cases. In some others, we are reaching settlements. This has nothing to do with the Internal Revenue Service," Walters said.

"The Federal government has no business sticking its nose in my business," said Walters by telephone from a California hotel.

He emphasized his disdain for NCAA rules. Even if the NCAA let players have agents, which it doesn't, Walters said it would make no difference. "I'm not playing by their rules, one way or the other."

Walters said he is continuing his pursuit of college athletes as clients. He said the Federal investigation "has made it tough for me, very tough, but I am being vigilant."

He called the grand jury investigation "totally off base."

"I am not guilty of these so-called alleged possible charges. I have broken no laws. I will be proven innocent, and it is ridiculous that I have to go through this," he said.

The grand jury is looking into possible charges that include extortion, wire fraud, mail fraud, and violations of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, Atlanta newspapers said, quoting unnamed sources.

Approximately 60 athletes from 28 colleges across the nation have been or will be subpoenaed by the grand jury, the newspaper reported.

Some of the athletes have been threatened by U.S. attorneys with the possibility of one-year imprisonment on fraud and tax-evasion charges, according to the athletes' attorneys.

Attorneys told the newspapers that Federal attorneys in Chicago have told some athletes they committed fraud when they accepted money from Walters or Lloyd Bloom, an associate.

The fraud was alleged because the athletes knowingly broke the terms of their grants-in-aid, and the tax evasion was alleged because the athletes did not report money supposedly received from Walters as income, the attorneys said.

In the Atlanta newspaper interview, Walters strenuously defended himself and Bloom against allegations they have threatened athletes.

Student-athletes are recognized for academic achievements

Steve Colwell, a fullback for the University of Tennessee, Chattanooga, was named the outstanding student in the engineering department. Colwell also has been named the student-athlete of the year by Sigma Chi social fraternity. He is a civil engineering major with a 3.300 grade-point average.

Other academic achievements by student-athletes at their respective institutions:

Sixty-five (52 percent) of George Washington University's 126 women student-athletes earned grade-point averages of 3.000 or higher during the fall semester and were named to the dean's list. The overall GPA for all women student-athletes was 2.970, the highest in athletics department history.

Student-athletes at Ball State University had a higher grade-point average than the total student body for the winter quarter. Of the 153 women student-athletes, the average GPA was 2.941 as compared to 2.798 for all women at the school. Men student-athletes had an average 2.674 GPA compared to 2.624 for all men.

At Hunter College, 58 student-athletes were recognized for GPAs in excess of 3.000. Nineteen of those students had GPAs above 3.500 (on a 4.000 scale), and four had 4.000.

At Arizona State University, 189 student-athletes from the spring and fall of 1986 had cumulative GPAs of 3.000 or higher. Seven had perfect grades. This achievement is attributed largely to the student services office within the athletics department. In its first year of operation, 39 students were honored for similar achievements, and 113 were cited the second year.

Sixty-seven University of Georgia members of men's athletics teams earned GPAs of 3.000 or higher for the winter quarter. Fourteen of those cited had GPAs of 3.600 or above.

The U.S. Air Force Academy has honored 70 student-athletes who achieved GPAs of 3.000 or higher for the past two semesters.

Thirty-four student-athletes have received all-academic honors from the Association of Mid-Continent Universities for GPAs of 3.000 or above. This is the first year for conference academic awards.

The Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference awarded 74 student-athletes the commissioner's academic achievement award.

Brandeis joins athletics group

Brandeis University has been elected to membership in the University Athletic Association, according to Richard M. Cyert, president of the UAA and president of one of its members, Carnegie-Mellon University.

The University Athletic Association was organized last summer and, in addition to Brandeis, includes Carnegie-Mellon University, Case Western Reserve University, University of Chicago, Emory University, Johns Hopkins University, New York University, University of Rochester and Washington University (Missouri).

All members of the UAA require that their student-athletes meet the same standards as all other students for admission and in academic performance, and criteria for financial aid apply equally to all students. None of the UAA members offers athletics scholarships.

Jeff Cohen, Brandeis director of athletics, said the school will continue to compete against many current rivals, but there will be substantial revision in schedules, particularly in basketball and soccer where the UAA will sponsor round-robin competition.

"By giving us a chance to compete against schools like us on a national basis, membership in the UAA is perhaps the most important thing that has ever happened in the history of athletics at Brandeis," said Cohen.

Steve Colwell

ments certificate for cumulative GPAs of 3.000 or higher for 1986. Howard University had the largest representation with 34.

Bowling Green State University honored 33 student-athletes for compiling GPAs of 3.500 or higher (4.000 scale). Another 93 of the school's student-athletes have GPAs between 3.000 and 3.490.

At Utah State University, the 17 members of the women's track team had a combined GPA of 3.090.

The women's cross country team (19 members) at Mankato State University had an average GPA of 3.070 for the winter quarter. The women's basketball and track and field teams also averaged above 3.000 for the quarter. Of 489 student-athletes at the school, 159 had averages of 3.000 or higher.

At Northern Illinois University, 19 members of men's athletics teams were honored for 1986 cumulative GPAs of 3.000 or better.

More than 90 percent of Duke University's senior athletes during the 1986-87 academic year have graduated. Of the 89 student-athletes considered seniors on various sports rosters for the past year, 77 received their degrees in spring exercises. Another four already had graduated and have now completed one year of graduate work. Of the eight seniors who have not graduated, all are scheduled to do so during the next academic year, including four by the end of this summer.

The Big East Conference has named Villanova University's Harold Jensen as the conference basketball scholar-athlete award winner. A finance major, he had been on the dean's list each semester before graduating this month.

The Mid-American Athletic Conference has named 19 student-athletes as scholar-athlete award winners. Of the 19, 11 have GPAs of 3.400 or higher.

The Pacific Coast Athletic Association has awarded 20 scholar-athlete-of-the-year awards, 10 each for men and women. All have cumulative GPAs of 3.000 or above. In addition to outstanding achievement in athletics and academics, candidates are selected on the basis of their community involvement.

The Southeastern Conference has named University of Mississippi football safety Jeff Noblin and Julie Estin, a gymnast at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, as its scholar-athletes of the year.

Noblin, a Rhodes scholar candidate, has a 3.680 cumulative GPA and plans to pursue graduate work in medicine. Estin, a three-time all-America, compiled a cumulative 3.920 GPA in premedicine. The awards include $5,000 scholarships for graduate work.

The Gulf Star Conference has named Southwest Texas State University tennis player Richard Robert as the male scholar-athlete of the year and Nicholls State University's Monica Mire as the female scholar-athlete of the year.

Mire plays basketball and softball and had a 3.610 GPA in computer science. Robert had a 4.000 GPA in business.

Olympics taking on professional look as tennis ranks open up

The blanket of amateurism that once fit snugly over Olympic eligibility is giving way to a patchwork quilt, promising to bring athletes with million-dollar incomes into the games.

The 92nd session of the International Olympic Committee has cleared the way for millionaire tennis players to compete for medals at Seoul, South Korea, in 1988. Other eligibility battles loom, especially in the world's most popular team sport, soccer.

Relaxation of rules has brought more top performers, more interest, more prestige and more money to the Olympic movement. It also has left out some of the world's greatest athletes in sports like basketball. And it has Olympic officials scratching their heads as they try to explain the system and figure out what comes next.

While IOC members agree that the pristine days of Avery Brundage are receding into history, they warn there are no plans for an open Olympics.

The old days of strict amateurism "are over," said Willie Daume, the West German who heads the IOC's eligibility commission.

"The world has changed."

U.S. Olympic Committee President Robert Helmick, however, said: "We're not going to have an open games. That would be like a county fair, where everybody comes down and shows what they can do. We'll have drug testing, we'll have control...."

The Olympics are riding a crest of popularity. Despite superpower boycotts of the last two summer games, more cities than ever want to host the Olympics. IOC Vice-President Dick Pound of Canada has announced that more than $100 million has been sports now can draw up their own eligibility rules, which must be approved by the IOC. The final decision on an athlete's eligibility rests with that person's national Olympic committee, although the IOC retains the right of review.

Tennis was the final sport to have its eligibility rules updated for 1988, since it will be new to the Olympics as a medal sport. Tennis was an exhibition sport in 1984 at Los Angeles.

Philippe Chatrier, president of the International Tennis Federation, wanted the best players in his sport to compete. To do that, he had to make Boris Becker, Martina Navratilova, Ivan Lendl and other stars eligible. The IOC finally agreed to such a plan, providing that tennis players don't make money during the games.

While providing independence, allowing individual federations to write rules also creates problems. For example, the National Basketball Association is not a member of the International Basketball Federation for the games, so Magic Johnson and Larry Bird never will play for gold.

The National Hockey League is a member of the International Ice Hockey Federation, and its players are eligible for the winter games. As a matter of practicality, however, such players as Wayne Gretzky and Mario Lemieux are out because the winter games fall in the middle of the NHL season.

Even the tennis plan provides for exclusion. Chatrier required that to be eligible for the games, players must compete in the two team events the federation sponsors, the men's Davis Cup and the women's Federation Cup.

That means that Lendl, the world's top player, probably will be ineligible for Seoul because he refuses to play in the Davis Cup for his native Czechoslovakia and is not yet an American citizen eligible to play for the United States.

The eligibility plan for tennis is an experiment, to be reviewed after Seoul to see if pros will remain in the Olympic tournament. In the meantime, a battle is brewing on another, even bigger event.

While soccer is the world's most popular team sport, its Olympic eligibility rules contain a hodgepodge of nationality, age and experience restrictions that keep many of the best players out.

The Seoul soccer tournament will be limited to professionals under 23 years old. If they come from Europe or Latin America, they can play only if they never competed in the World Cup, the tournament that grips most of the globe with soccer fever every four years.

At face value, the limits make little sense, but their practical impact is quite evident. "It's to protect the World Cup," Daume said.

For the 1992 Games in Barcelona, Samaranch would like to see soccer opened to all players outside of the 24 teams in the World Cup finals. This still would exclude stars such as Argentina's Diego Maradona and England's Gary Lineker, unless their teams suffered an uncharacteristic collapse.

Joao Havelange, head of the International Soccer Federation, wants to keep soccer eligibility the way it is. Havelange is a powerful figure in sports, but Samaranch also is known to get his way.

"We can only do this step by step," Daume said.

Still, a decade after his death, the influence of former IOC President (Avery) Brundage is felt. He epitomized the strict amateur days.

raised in worldwide marketing programs. The lure of Olympic gold grows, while the various Olympic sports are becoming more professionalized.

Helmick, who also is president of the International Swimming Federation, has been at the forefront of the eligibility evolution. He said eligibility in each sport must be evaluated individually.

"Each sport has developed differently, and each sport has found its own solution to support its athletes—some by ignoring it, some through hypocrisy, some through absolute enforcement that made the sport available only to the wealthy," he said.

Because of the differing ways in which sports have handled the question of professionalism, the IOC has tried to give a good deal of independence in determining eligibility to two primary groups: the federations that govern international sports, and the national Olympic committees, the Associated Press reported.

Still, a decade after his death, the influence of former IOC President Brundage is felt. He epitomized the strict amateur days.

Brundage, a millionaire from Chicago, liked to describe professional athletes as "a troop of trained seals." Those who competed for pay never would be Olympians, he said, and the merest sign of commercialization was banned.

When Brundage retired after the 1972 Munich Olympics, things started to loosen up. His successor, Lord Killanin, wanted to bring more athletes into the games, and payments were allowed to cover training expenses.

Since Juan Antonio Samaranch succeeded Killanin as president in 1980, the change has speeded up.

CORRECTION

Due to an editor's error, a headline over a story on the Division III Women's Tennis Championships in the May 20 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly named the winner of the team championship. UC San Diego is the 1987 Division III women's team champion.

An item published in the Comment section of the May 13 issue of The NCAA News contained an inaccurate quote attributed to Richard D. Schultz, athletics director at Virginia. According to a clarification published in the Richmond Times-Dispatch (from which the News reprinted Schultz's comments), the quote should have read: "I can guarantee you that (legislation to restore the two grants-in-aid recently cut from men's basketball) will be back in January, but I obviously can't guarantee it will be passed."

In view of the major role that participation in sports play in the daily lives of Americans, we offer a one-day symposium for high school and college level sports trainers and coaches. Because of the real potential for any youngster to sustain a severe and even life threatening injury, it is essential for educators and supervisors of young athletes to know that correct initial or immediate treatment is available at the scene well before traditional care can be initiated.

Commission and currently chair of its Division I subcommittee, Heyman also chaired the group's Ad Hoc Committee on Institutional Responsibility, which recommended that the Commission call the June special Convention and suggested most of the 16 pieces of Commission-sponsored legislation for that gathering. The ad hoc committee also introduced the concept of the ongoing national forum.

Heyman has been chancellor at Berkeley since 1980 and served as vice-chancellor for six years before that. He joined the faculty at Berkeley as a law professor in 1959 after serving as chief law clerk for Chief Justice Earl Warren of the U.S. Supreme Court.

He also has been a visiting law professor at the Yale and Stanford Law Schools and is a member of the bar in California and New York. He is a New York City native.

Heyman earned a bachelor's degree in government at Dartmouth College and his law degree from Yale Law School, where he was editor of the Yale Law Journal.

Before becoming chancellor at Wisconsin-Milwaukee, he was director of the Institute of Urban and Regional Research at the University of Iowa and then dean of Iowa's advanced-studies program.

President Ceddia

Ceddia has served as president of Shippensburg University, a member of the Division II Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, since 1981.

For 10 years prior to becoming president at Shippensburg, he served in a number of capacities at North Adams State College, including stints as executive vice-president and acting president. He also has been a member of the faculty at Salem State College.

insurance. "If an agent stole money, which has happened in the past, the player would have a limited source of recovery," he said.

Also, the legislation would set a cap on sports agents' fees of 10 percent of the athlete's salary.

Dial said he plans to alter the legislation to increase the penalty for violating the proposed legislation. Currently, it would make agents who break NCAA rules or fail to register with the commission subject to a $2,000 fine or one year in jail.

"I don't think that's stiff enough," Davis said.

Richard Woods, a Mobile lawyer who represents Bo Jackson and Cornelius Bennett, thinks the legislation is a good idea. But unless someone in the state attorney general's office is committed to enforcing the rules, he says it will not work.

"I think the legislation is a piece of the puzzle, but the fine has to be significant," Woods said.

Woods believes one way of deterring problems would be to require the agents to post a $500,000 bond.

"That might keep some of the unsavory types out."

Woods says the state legislation is the only route "because there is not much chance. Congress would get involved. This is not something that would probably get their attention like Irangate."

Fraley, a former quarterback at Alabama, said the legislation is a start.

"I don't think the legislation is the only way to address the problem," Fraley said. "It's a way to give politicians publicity. The legislation really doesn't have the enforcement mechanism."

"Now, I think it's a good idea to do something because the NCAA isn't doing anything. They make a kid ineligible, but that only serves to help people like Norby Walters, who then gets what he wants."

"This is like the radical flap in baseball a few weeks ago. The Dodgers fire Al Campanis, and the commissioner and everyone else talks about how to clean up the problem. But then the issue dies down and everybody forgets about it."

"If something isn't done soon, college athletics is going to find itself in one big mess."

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Conference No. 8 May 7, 1987

Acting for the Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee:

1. Determined that the application of Bylaw 1-4(a) would not preclude an institutional publication (i.e., a regular institutional publication that describes all the institution's activities generally, or a regular institutional publication that relates solely to the institution's intercollegiate athletics program) from including a list of names and articles regarding those prospective student-athletes who have accepted written offers of admission as students and/or written tenders of financial assistance to attend the institution in a particular sport.

2. Reviewed the application of O.I. 304 and concluded that a member institution's head football coach is permitted to teach an advanced-level football course offered by the physical education department during the regular academic year or summer term, with the understanding that the course is open to all students enrolled at the institution and listed in the institution's catalog; agreed that student-athletes attending a physical education class (per O.I. 304) or a physical fitness class (per O.I. 305) during a summer term must be enrolled in additional courses as bona fide summer school students during that term; recommended to the Council that this legislation be amended to include this requirement.

3. Reviewed the application of Bylaw 1-10 and determined that an institution is permitted to provide athletics equipment to bona fide youth organizations (e.g., the YMCA, a boy scout troop, a summer recreation league) that may consist of some prospective student-athletes, provided the issuance of equipment is in accordance with the institution's regular policy regarding the discarding of equipment; agreed that only those organizations within a 30-mile radius of the campus may be provided such equipment by the institution; further, that Bylaw 1-10 would prohibit an institution from providing such athletics equipment to a high school; reaffirmed that a member institution or representative of an institution's athletics interests is prohibited from providing financial assistance directly to an individual prospect of any age; directed the staff to develop a case that addresses these principles for Council review in August.

4. Reconsidered an earlier interpretation (reference: Item No. 11 of the minutes of the committee's February 19, 1987, conference), which permits a sponsor of a summer sports camp (other than those associated with member institutions) to provide prospective student-athletes with actual and necessary expenses to attend the sports camp, provided the camp conducts organized competition in that sport for its participants, and reaffirmed that Bylaws 1-1(b) and 1-7(d) preclude sponsors of an institutional camp from providing such expenses to prospective student-athletes; further, agreed that a member institution's camp is prohibited from giving free or reduced admission privileges to a high school or junior college athletics award winner as an award for outstanding participation in previous sessions of the institution's summer camp; requested that further consideration be given this issue by the Special NCAA Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process.

5. Reviewed an earlier committee decision (reference: Item No. 4 of the minutes of the committee's February 5, 1987, conference) indicating that the application of Constitution 3-1(e) permits a charitable organization to use the attendance, name or picture of an enrolled student-athlete to promote generally its fund-raising activities at the location of a commercial establishment, provided the commercial establishment is not a cosponsor of the event and the student-athlete does not promote the sale of a commercial product in conjunction with the fund-raising activities; agreed that this principle should be extended to encompass the fund-raising activities of a member institution or other educational organizations; noted, however, that Bylaw 1-10 would prohibit the involvement of a member institution's student-athletes in fund-raising activities for a high school, preparatory school or junior college.

6. Considered the provisions of Case No. 306 and Bylaw 5-1(l)-(1) and determined that a student is considered a transfer student if the institution's registrar or admissions officer certifies that the student was officially registered and enrolled at the institution on the opening day of classes in any quarter or semester in a minimum full-time academic load, and that the student was physically present on campus on the opening day of classes, even if the student does not actually attend a class; requested that the Council revise Case No. 306 accordingly.

7. Agreed that an extra benefit would result if a member institution permitted members of its intercollegiate athletics team to retain "frequent-flyer" points earned during team trips; noted that the member institution would be required to retain all benefits and privileges derived under such circumstances from the "frequent-flyer" program.

8. Took the following actions regarding 1987 Convention Proposal No. 88:

a. Agreed that the use of "screening" is not prohibited by the one-color-of-printing restriction. ("Screening" is defined as a shading of the one-color printing by blocking out some of the ink to keep it from reaching the page, resulting in a lightening or darkening of the print.)

b. Determined that "reverse" printing is not prohibited by the one-color-of-printing restriction. ("Reverse" printing means that the one color of ink being used is printed everywhere within the page except in certain areas such as the space normally used for the letters of the words on the page, giving the words a white effect, but the white color that is seen is simply the color of the paper and does not constitute a second color of printing.)

c. Concluded that the restriction on one color of printing inside the covers applies to one color of printing per media guide or recruiting brochure, and not one color of printing per page.

d. Reaffirmed an earlier decision (reference: Item No. 9 of the minutes of the committee's February 5, 1987, conference) stipulating that there is no restriction on the color of pages that may appear in such items, but concluded that individual pages cannot be multicolored.

e. Referred to the legislative services conference-contact program further review of the issue of whether conference media guides or brochures would be subject to the provisions of Proposal No. 88.

9. (Division I) Agreed that the current application of Bylaw 6-5(c) [midyear grant] and Case No. 372 should continue to be limited to the sport of football and not extended to other head-count sports.

10. (Division I) Reviewed a recommendation from the Academic Requirements Committee that member institutions should be required to secure a copy of Form No. 48-H (Academic Courses) and complete Form No. 48-C [Information for Certification of NCAA Freshman Athletics Eligibility Compliance with Bylaw 5-1(j)] for each prospective student-athlete who will first enroll in a Division I member institution beginning with the 1987-88 academic year; agreed that this policy would relate to prospects whose eligibility has not yet been certified, but would not require those member institutions that already have certified a prospect's eligibility through the previously used Bylaw 5-1(j) Student-Athlete Information Form to complete the new form for the same prospect.

11. (Division I) Considered the provisions of Case No. 395 as they apply to a graduate assistant coach and determined that a member institution is permitted to arrange summer employment for a graduate assistant that would result in additional compensation from the department of athletics, consistent with current legislation that permits student-athletes to receive legitimate summer employment from the department of athletics; asked the Council to review Case No. 395 to determine if it should be revised in this regard.

12. (Division I) Reviewed Case No. 382, indicating that if an individual performs responsibilities on a department-wide basis (e.g., a recruiting coordinator who coordinates recruiting for all intercollegiate sports conducted by the institution or an academic counselor who counsels student-athletes in all sports, rather than solely football or basketball), the individual shall be excluded from the limitations of the number of coaches in football and basketball; agreed that an individual who performs such duties on a department-wide basis is not permitted to serve as an on-field coach or instructor and is limited to off-field activities, it being understood the individual is performing duties in all sports; referred the possible development of criteria by which "department-wide responsibilities" can be defined to the Special NCAA Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process.

13. (Division I) Reached the following conclusions regarding the application of Case No. 192:

a. Determined that a high school or junior college all-star banquet is deemed to be equivalent to a high school or junior college awards banquet for purposes of Case No. 192.

b. Concluded that the contact periods in the coach's sport would apply to a football or basketball coaching staff member who is asked to speak at a high school or junior college all-sports banquet; however, a member of the football or basketball coaching staff is not bound by the contact periods when asked to speak to the high school student body in general, inasmuch as only those functions that have an athletics purpose (e.g., sports banquets, sports recognition nights) are governed by the provisions of Case No. 192.

c. Determined that administrative personnel (e.g., the director of athletics) or enrolled student-athletes would not be restricted by the provisions of Case No. 192, regardless of the type of banquet involved, provided the administrative personnel or student-athletes have no direct contact with a prospective student-athlete and do not make a recruiting presentation in conjunction with their appearance at the meeting or banquet.

d. Referred to the Special NCAA Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process the recommendation that Case No. 192 be revised to eliminate the reference to high school or junior college awards banquet, thus applying the principles outlined in Case No. 192 to all meetings or banquets conducted outside the contact period.

14. (Division I) Reviewed the application of Bylaw 11-1(g) in regard to the Division I-A classification of an institution penalized with the loss of an intercollegiate football season and concurred with the enforcement staff's recommendation that the institution should not be recorded as being in noncompliance with Division I-A football criteria under these circumstances, provided the institution satisfies all other criteria related to Division I classification that were not affected by the NCAA Committee on Infractions' actions; agreed that the determination of satisfaction of the football criteria should be based on those seasons that the institution participates in an unrestricted schedule.

15. (Divisions I and II) Granted a member conference's request that a member institution be provided a limited exception to the restrictions of Case No. 324 if the institution conducted during the 1986-87 academic year a mandatory full-year remedial-studies program that was initiated prior to the Council's October 1986 interpretation set forth in that case; agreed that this limited exception would permit student-athletes involved in such programs to utilize no more than 24 semester or 36 quarter hours of remedial credit to meet the satisfactory-progress rule. [NOTE: This action was taken under authorization given by the NCAA Administrative Committee to permit the Divisions I and II subcommittees to act for the Council in reviewing information that originally was intended for consideration, but was not presented, during the Council's April 1987 meeting.]

Washington drug program challenged

The American Civil Liberties Union of Washington filed suit May 22 against the University of Washington, charging that the school's plan to require drug testing of student-athletes is unconstitutional.

The King County Superior Court suit was filed on behalf of a Washington athlete who has asked to remain anonymous because she fears retaliation by her coaches, said Kathleen Taylor, ACLU executive director.

Under the policy announced November 3, about 800 students in 19 intercollegiate sports would have to undergo drug testing in their annual medical examinations, starting this fall.

The suit contends that mandatory drug testing violates the students' Fourth Amendment protection against unreasonable searches as well as their privacy rights protected in the state constitution, Taylor said.

The ACLU had threatened the suit, then backed off in what Taylor said was the mistaken belief that the university was changing its policy.

But Ernest Morris, university vice-president for student affairs, maintains the policy is unchanged, so the ACLU decided to proceed with the suit, Taylor said.

A hearing on the suit's "Jane Doe" status was scheduled June 8.

Taylor said she hopes for a court ruling before the fall term of classes begins.

Central State (Ohio) will rejoin NAIA

After 38 years in the NCAA, Central State University (Ohio) trustees voted May 21 to rejoin the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics because of economic and academic considerations.

The school, which was a dual member until 1983, will apply to rejoin the NAIA beginning next season, spokesman Ed Chamness said.

"They're looking at the NAIA toward being more economical competition. We'd be playing schools more our size," Chamness said.

Academics also were an important factor in going back to the NAIA, Chamness said. Central State, whose students predominantly are Blacks, specializes in accepting students with lower grades.

Husky Stadium expected to be ready for opener

University of Washington athletics director Milo R. Lude says he expects Husky Stadium, the site of a major construction accident February 25, to be ready for the school's 1987 football opener against Stanford September 5.

"The contractors have told us they'll be finished by August 23, and that's soon enough," he said. "Our plans are to open the season there against Stanford, and I see no reason at this point to think we'll do otherwise."

Husky Stadium is having 13,500 seats added to its north grandstand. The addition will bring the stadium's capacity to 72,500.

The grandstand addition collapsed after two of the eight sections were put in place.

The addition is part of a $29 million improvement of athletics department facilities. The grandstand expansion was expected to cost $13 million.

Despite Lude's optimism, tickets for Washington's early games will include seat numbers for Husky Stadium and the Kingdome, the school's alternate site, the Associated Press said.

Limit on coaches' summer-camp attendance sought

The NCAA Recruiting Committee has taken action that could lead to a major change in the business of summer football and basketball camps.

Meeting May 20-21 in San Francisco, the group voted to recommend that the Association's Council sponsor legislation to the 1988 Convention that would limit football and basketball coaches' participation in summer camps to only those camps held on the campuses of the coaches' schools.

With no restrictions currently in place, some football and basketball coaches appear at several camps throughout the summer months. Should the Council agree to sponsor an amendment to NCAA legislation, the membership would be asked to vote on this camp-appearance limitation.

The Recruiting Committee also voted to request Council sponsorship of legislation that would eliminate recruiting brochures from the list of publications that may be provided prospective student-athletes. Currently, institutions may provide annual press guides, recruiting brochures, programs from the institution's home contests, wallet-sized schedule cards, posters (Division III only) and official institutional academic, admissions and student-services material.

Basketball coaching staffs also were a subject of committee review. The group voted to request Council sponsorship of an amendment that would limit coaching staffs to four individuals but permit filling of those positions by any combination of employment classes (i.e., full-time, part-time, volunteer or graduate assistant).

For the second straight year, the group acted to request Council sponsorship of an amendment that would limit a head football coach to one off-campus visit to each prospective student-athlete being recruited by the school. This request was turned down in 1986 by the Council.

The Recruiting Committee also reviewed a letter that had been directed to the national office by Fred Jacoby, commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference.

The group unanimously endorsed Jacoby's request that NCAA staff members develop, prepare and distribute a video on the recruiting process, which would be targeted primarily for prospective student-athletes. The committee requested that staff members study the feasibility of producing such a video and prepare information for review by committee members at a later date.
