Crowley named to Council

Joseph Crowley, president of the University of Nevada, Reno, has been named to the NCAA Council. He replaces Jack V. Doland, who has retired as president at McNeese State University.

Crowley, 53, was named Nevada-Reno's president in March 1979. He had served as chair of the school's political science department from 1976 to 1978, when he was named acting president.

A native of Oelwein, Iowa, Crowley attended the University of Iowa before and after a three-year stint in the U.S. Air Force.

He earned a bachelor's degree in political science from the school and became a sportswriter for the Fresno (California) Bee while completing a master's degree in social science from Fresno State University.

Crowley joined the political science faculty at Nevada-Reno in 1966 and, a year later, earned a doctorate in political science from the University of Washington.

While on leave from the university, he served as director of institutional studies for the Washington, D.C., based National Commission on Water Quality.

Thomas will represent SEC on Commission

Joab L. Thomas, president of the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, has been selected by the Southeastern Conference as its representative on the NCAA Presidents Commission. Thomas has been president at Alabama since July 1, 1981.

He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees and a doctorate in biology at Harvard University. He was a member of the research and teaching staff of the Arnold Arboretum at Harvard from 1959 to 1961.

From 1961 to 1975, he held positions of assistant, associate and full professor of biology at Alabama. He also served as assistant dean in the college of arts and sciences in 1964-65 and 1969. From 1969 to 1975, he was dean of students and vice-president for student affairs.

From 1976 to 1981, he was chancellor of North Carolina State University.

Next national forum session likely at January Convention

It is likely that the next session in the NCAA Presidents Commission's National Forum will be conducted in conjunction with the NCAA's 82nd annual Convention next January in Nashville.

The Commission's Ad Hoc Committee on the National Forum, chaired by President Bernard F. Sliger of Florida State University, has recommended to the Commission's executive committee that the second Forum session be conducted on the day prior to the voting sessions at the 1988 annual Convention.

That would put the session on the Convention program for Monday, January 11. The tentative schedule would call for the Forum session to run from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from about 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., with the NCAA honors luncheon at midday.

"It appears to be a good schedule, and I expect the Commission will adopt it," Commission Chair John B. Slaughter said this week.

It had been thought earlier that the next session in the 18-month National Forum would be sometime this fall, but Sliger's ad hoc committee did not believe there was adequate time to plan and organize an effective session earlier than January.

Three more

In all, the ad hoc committee recommends three additional national meetings as part of the National Forum. The first was held in conjunction with the Association's special Convention in Dallas in June.

The committee is recommending, in addition to the January 1988 session in Nashville, that another national meeting be conducted in late June 1989 and the final session in conjunction with the annual NCAA Convention in January 1989.

If the site for the 1989 Convention, which is not yet final, is in the West, the June Forum meeting would be at an Eastern location. If the Convention is not in the West, the June meeting should be, according to the committee.

The June meeting would run from 2 to 6 p.m. on the first day, with a reception that night, and from 9 a.m. to noon the next day. The January 1989 session at the annual Convention would be the same one-day format planned for this coming January in Nashville.

Topics

Topics for the January session in Nashville will feature economic considerations in athletics, including various cost and revenue factors, and the concept of revenue sharing or distribution.

Tentatively scheduled as major topics for the June 1989 meeting are the NCAA membership structure and appropriate bases for financial aid to student-athletes.

The January 1989 session then would deal with freshman eligibility and with the results of the various studies, approved at the special Convention last June, dealing with the student-athlete's experience in comparison with that of the nonathlete student.

The ad hoc committee believes this schedule of topics will assure that the results of the intended

Annual budget on agenda for Executive Committee

Each August, the NCAA Executive Committee and Council meet at a common site on consecutive days. This year, those meetings will take place at Point Clear, Alabama. The Executive Committee will meet August 10-11, and the Council will meet August 12-14. Following are previews of those meetings.

Executive Committee

Approval of the NCAA's 1987-88 budget and reports from several general and sports committees highlight the agenda for the Executive Committee's August 10-11 meeting.

Budget projections for the 1987-

88 fiscal year were in final draft stages at press time. Complete details of the budget and a summary of Executive Committee actions will be included in the August 19 and September 2 issues of The NCAA News.

In addition to the general operating budget for the next fiscal year, the committee also will review the 1986-87 fiscal year and year-end projections, as well as allocations of any excess receipts.

Reports from sports committees include nine requests for expansion

Women's athletics committee seeks topics for discussion

Staff members at NCAA member institutions are invited to submit agenda items for the first meeting of the NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics, which is set for August 27-28 in Boston.

Established by the membership at the 1987 Convention, the new group has been charged "to study and make policy recommendations to the Council concerning opportunities for women in athletics at the institutional, conference and national levels, as well as other issues directly affecting women's athletics."

Phyllis Howlett, assistant commissioner of the Big Ten Conference, chairs the committee. Other members of the group include Gary Cunningham, California State University, Fresno; Christopher Dittman, Continental Divide Conference; John A. Reeves, State University of New York, Stony Brook; Linda Hershey-Hopple, Franklin and Marshall College; Jolanda Jones, student-athlete, University of Houston; P. LaVerne Sweat, Hampton University; Jim

NCAA men's basketball attendance up slightly

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

NCAA Division I basketball reached a record high of 21.8 million spectators in 1987, helping national attendance gain back most of its loss in 1986. However, the national total of 31,911,301 still was short of the record high set in 1985.

The national figure includes all 1,270 senior colleges with men's varsity teams—760 of them NCAA members, of which 290 are in Division I.

NCAA Division I increased by 419,720 spectators. There have been only two bigger jumps in Division I in the 1980s—in 1985 (557,993) and in 1983 (578,841). This more than offset losses by the "grass roots" teams, or the 980 teams below NCAA Division I. More about that later. The national increase was 266,515, or less than one percent.

Attendance fell in 1986 for the only time in 11 seasons of official compilations by the NCAA Statistics Service (411,887 nationally and 104,844 in NCAA Division I). The gains this year make the national total second highest in history to the record 32,056,673 in 1985.

Tournament leads the way

The NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship led the way as NCAA Division I reached 21,756,709, breaking the former record of 21,394,261 in 1985. The tournament set an all-time record of 666,919 in total attendance, smashing the record set in 1986 by 159,747, or 31.5 percent. The per-session figure was 19,615, helped by regional games in domed stadiums and the finals in the Louisiana Superdome, with a record 64,959 for each Final Four session. That broke the 16,498 set in 1982, the only other time it was in New Orleans. And home attendance was up 271,834 to a record 20,109,522 (8,282 above 1985).

In contrast, attendance for all teams below Division I was down for the fifth time in six seasons, although the drop of 153,205 was not as large as those in 1986 (307,043), 1985 (185,398) and 1983 (213,654). NCAA Division II showed small increases in both home and tournament attendance, a tiny group (21 teams) of NCAA corresponding members was up and the NAIA tournament jumped 36.3 percent in per-session average, but all other sectors were down, including 2.68 percent in NCAA Division III.

Why the increases?

Why the solid increases in NCAA Division I? We really do not know, but we will take a stab at it. Last year, we blamed the decrease on the uneven economy and noted that colleges in the states that were affected were collectively down. But we do not think the economy is that much different in 1987. Proponents of the three-point shot will credit

CEOs can make nominations for vacancies on Commission

Chief executive officers of NCAA member institutions are invited to nominate individuals to fill vacancies on the NCAA Presidents Commission that will occur in January 1988.

Nominations should be sent to: Presidential Nominating Committee, NCAA, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201. They must be received no later than Monday, September 21.

executive officers automatically will be included on the ballot for the appropriate position, as specified in the NCAA constitution.

Later this year, the nominating committee will send to all chief executive officers in the NCAA membership ballots containing the candidates recommended to fill Commission vacancies. Nominations open for NCAA general committee positions

Staff members at NCAA member institutions are requested to submit nominations for upcoming vacancies on NCAA general committees, which are appointed by the Council.

The vacancies to be filled are for terms beginning September 1, 1988 (or, in the case of the ex officio positions earmarked for Council members, for terms beginning January 1988).

Committee members who are eligible for reelection normally are reelected. The NCAA Council appoints members of general committees according to the provisions of Bylaws 12-1 and 12-3. Vacancies on sports committees will be listed in The NCAA News in October. Sports committee members are elected by the annual Convention upon the recommendation of the Men's Committee on Committees and the Women's Committee on Committees.

Nominations for general committees should be submitted to Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, at the NCAA office, and must be received no later than September 2, 1987.

Nominators are to submit the nominee's name, title, institution, division, district and conference, along with a brief paragraph describing the nominee's qualifications. A separate nomination letter is to be provided for each candidate and it should indicate whether the candidate would serve if appointed. Those nominating candidates should contact their nominees before submitting the nominations to ensure that they could serve if selected.

Color in press guides recommended

The NCAA Communications Committee will recommend to the Association's Council that it sponsor legislation at the 1988 Convention to permit the use of two colors of ink on the inside of press guides.

At the 1987 Convention, the membership voted to limit to one the number of ink colors that could be used in such publications. The move was seen as a way to curtail the escalating costs of producing press guides.

of championships brackets. Those requests follow:

- Division I women's basketball—increase from 40 to 48 teams.
- Division II women's basketball—increase from 24 to 32 teams.
- Division II football—increase from eight to 16 teams, effective in 1988.
- Division I ice hockey—increase from nine to 12.
- Division I men's soccer—increase from 23 to 24.
- Women's softball—increase Division I from 16 to 20, Division II from 12 to 16 and Division III from 16 to 18.
- Division II women's volleyball—increase from 16 to 20 teams.

Also, the Division I men's subcommittee of the Men's and Women's Golf Committee will seek approval of the implementation of regional qualifying matches beginning in 1989. Under the plan, 54-hole play-offs would be held in each of three regions comprising all eight NCAA membership districts. Member institutions would be responsible for all expenses associated with participating in the qualifying matches.

Since the International Amateur Athletic Foundation (IAAF) recently voted to adopt a standard format for—and recognize world records set in—indoor meets, the Division I subcommittee of the NCAA Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee will present a proposal that would replace the 500- and 1,000-meter running events in the Division I indoor championships with 400- and 800-meter races. A 200-meter event also would be added to the program.

Two requests for expanded usage of Association-registered trademarks also will be considered. The Division I Women's Basketball and Women's Softball Committees are seeking permission to continue the use of Final Four and College World Series, respectively, for use in promoting their NCAA championships events. The Association's legal coun-

preview set for TV

The 1987 NCAA football preview show—"The Quest for #1"—will air in 11 of the nation's top 30 television markets between August 15 and September 15.

The show, produced annually by Ron Schwartz of the NCAA Television News Service, has been scheduled for various times by ABC affiliates in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Detroit, Akron, Pittsburgh, New Haven, Phoenix, San Diego and Milwaukee. In addition, it will air on cable in New York City (Madison Square Garden Network) and Chicago (Sportsvision), as well as on ABC affiliates in 14 other markets.

One-half-inch (VHS) copies of the show has been sent to sports information directors of Division I-A institutions and to Division I-A conference offices for use at booster club meetings, civic meetings and other associated activities.

Three-quarter-inch copies of the show will be sent to the same institutions and conferences within the next few weeks. Sports information directors are encouraged to make the tape available to area television stations. In markets where the show has cleared an ABC affiliate, other stations are restricted to video clips of two minutes or less.

sel has recommended that those terms be applied only to men's basketball and baseball, respectively.

Two national-office-staff reports relating to championships administration will be presented for Executive Committee review and possible action. One is in response to the committee's April request for more information concerning the use of a day of rest between competitive rounds of championships events.

Currently, four championships (three of them revenue-producing) utilize rest days between rounds. The report suggests that similar formats could be adopted for another dozen championships (only two of which are revenue producers) at a total maximum cost of $117,692.

The other report prepared by the national office staff recommends that all members of governing sports committees be reimbursed for transportation and receive per diem to attend their sports' championships each year. Total cost of this proposal is estimated at $79,280.

Executive Committee members also will review possible legislative proposals the group could sponsor for the 1988 NCAA Convention. Among the items are changes that would include game officials in the Association's championships drug-testing program.

Revisions to four executive regulations also will be considered, including Executive Regulations 1-2-(c) (final authority on championships appeals), 1-2-(i) (crowd control), 1-4-(a) (responsibility of NCAA Eligibility Committee) and 1-11-(b) (distribution of net receipts from team championships).

Council

Possible legislation for the January Convention is likely to provide the highlights of the Council meeting August 12-14.

Among several dozen items of proposed legislation to be reviewed by the Council are these:

- Recommendations by the Special Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process to establish a four-month recruiting limitation in all sports, as well as a 48-hour quiet period surrounding the National Letter of Intent signing date.

• Deletion of the bowl-game invitation deadlines in Bylaws 2-2-(j) and (k).

• Provisions to permit the granting of "common sense" exceptions in the NCAA's rules and regulations.

• Two approaches to tightening the satisfactory-progress legislation.

• Means of granting exceptions to the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j) under certain specified conditions.

Another Council agenda item is consideration of establishing a president-elect position in the Association's officer and Administrative Committee structures. That topic was postponed in the Council's April meeting.

In addition to the Council's recruiting-process subcommittee, the following Association committees are scheduled to report to the Council: Academic Requirements, Executive, Long Range Planning, Professional Sports Liaison, Recruiting and Research Committees; Committees on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports, Financial Aid and Amateurism, and Review and Planning; Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals; Special Postseason Drug-Testing Committee, and Postseason Football Subcommittee of the Special Events Committee.

Also on the agendas for the Council and the three division steering committees are the customary review of Administrative Committee actions, membership classification requests, new and revised interpretations, reports by the steering committees, and the quarterly governmental affairs report.

Highlights of the Council's actions will be reported in the August 19 issue of the News, and a listing of all voting actions will appear in the September 2 issue.

A rule change would close the door on agent problem

By Dan Foster

The Greenville News and Greenville
Piedmont

Credibility has been taking a brutal beating in this country lately. And before too many people get the idea that lower standards are OK, maybe some drastic action ought to be taken.

An excellent place to start would be with the Chicago grand jury inquiries into the activities of some citizens who call themselves agents. Some earlier reports that sounded too bad to be true have received additional support recently, if the stories tied to former Auburn University star Brent Fullwood are true.

Fullwood was reported to have told an Atlanta Constitution writer in Chicago that agent Lloyd Bloom had threatened to kill the agent Fullwood hired after Fullwood sought to sever his relationships with Bloom and Norby Walters. They're a pair of agents who, by their own admission, persuaded some athletes who still had college eligibility to accept some advance money from them in exchange for retaining Walters and Bloom as their agents when it came time for the players to sign professional contracts.

They're the same agents who claimed they had been awarded the rights to represent Clemson's Kenny Flowers and Terrence Flagler.

The best they try to claim for themselves is that they'd done nothing illegal, "and we're businessmen."

It is an NCAA violation, not a criminal violation, for college athletes to accept money from agents or teams and later play as amateurs in that particular sport.

Just as some people "don't do windows," the two agents don't worry about the morality of some deals. There's no record of them so much as flinching at designing deals they knew would result in the players' cheating or living a lie by playing after they had accepted the agents' money.

Walters has a bad reputation for unsavory dealings.

So many players backed out on Walters after being lured into a deal that the agents started crying foul play. They threatened lawsuits to recover either the agent's rights to represent the players or money in lieu of the suit.

They may have become ensnared in their own traps. If the rules that made some players ineligible may be classified by Bloom as college stuff that wouldn't cause him a lot "Intercollegiate athletics indeed constitutes a complex problem. Despite the thousands of governing rules promulgated by the NCAA and individual conferences (which a Philadelphia lawyer can't interpret), the corrupting influences are hard at work in our institutions of learning. Revelations in 1986 and 1987 have been shocking, to say the least."

"We thought the presidents had finally realized their predicament and were going to assume the rightful authority to govern sports. But, after all, when a university president is paid less than one-third of what a big-time football coach or athletics director can garner from all sources, what do you really expect?"

NFL's help needed in controlling agents

(Ohio State University) all-America wide receiver Cris Carter signed away his college eligibility when he took money from a New York agent in defiance of NCAA rules.

Carter knew the rules and compromised himself and the Ohio State University football program by accepting at least $6,800 in exchange for a commitment to the agent.

His loss to the team is a bitter disappointment to the players, their coach and legions of supporters.

Carter himself faces an uncertain future, one that may involve a choice between finishing his senior year and graduating or playing professional football. Once, he easily could have had both. His personal integrity is injured because he first broke the rules and then repeatedly lied about it.

But Carter had help. And while we can't excuse what he did, neither can we accept the circumstances that continue to make him and other college athletes vulnerable to the unscrupulous, illegal, parasitic conduct of agents.

There are limits to what the universities and the NCAA can do to deal with situations like Carter's. OSU, through its athletics director and coaches, has emphasized time and again to players that they

Putting SATs to the test

The Washington Post

Excerpted from an editorial

The Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), which over the years has been frequently accused of one kind of unfairness or another, now is under attack from critics who say the test is biased against women. Males score better on the average than females in both the verbal and mathematical portions of the test, which is required for admission at many colleges.

Systematic differences in SAT score levels between groups do exist—boys on average outscore girls, whites do better than Blacks, well-off students better than poorer ones—and the differences are cause for concern. But the bias argument is fraught with illogic.... Explaining even in the most hypothetical terms how a test question—a math problem, say—could be "biased" against female test-takers leads to absurdities, such as the suggestion that math word problems on certain subjects—sports, say—are somehow more difficult for females than males. Such arguments threaten to become circular by implying that there in fact is a capability difference between girls and boys—which, if it were true, would make it impossible to argue unfairness from a score difference.

Reformers likewise tend to blame score gaps between racial groups as manifesting some subtle racial bias in the questions themselves.

A far more likely explanation, though, is that the SAT reflects discrepancies in education. In the case of women, differences in who takes the SAT and when—for instance, girls typically take it after fewer years of math courses than boys—may go a long way toward explaining the difference.

Dismissing these possibilities, seeking to change the tests in some unspecified way to mask such gaps not only constitutes shooting the bearer of bad news but would eliminate an essential source of information on the problem.

The reminder that the SAT does reflect factors other than raw ability (preparation, socioeconomic status) is a useful corrective to the temptation to use test scores as absolute cutoff levels for college admission or scholarships.

But it should be remembered that most of the alternatives to SAT scores—such as scores on achievement tests in specific subjects—are even more sensitive to these same outside factors, and admissions tests based upon them may lead to less diversity, not more.

Opinions

It's valuable when the parents, teachers and coaches of talented athletes make certain that they receive all of the academic help they need to obtain what is most important—a useful education at a good college or university.

"Those who have been most vocal in their criticism of test-score placements and Proposition 48 would do better to devote their time and interest to tutoring sessions, test-taking skills and career counseling."

"As standards go, Proposition 48 simply isn't very tough, but it is clearly better than having no standards at all."

Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association

Conference news release

"The MIAA has a long history (dating from 1912), but the addition of the four new members (Missouri Southern State College, Washburn University, Missouri Western State College and Pittsburg State University) puts the icing on the cake."

"For us, it is a major undertaking, and for the schools as well. It is particularly significant because they are four of the top schools in the NAIA."

Viewers—and advertisers—show waning interest in TV sports

Viewers and advertisers continue to show flagging interest in televised sports, according to a recent report in Advertising Age.

However, the networks' resulting reassessment of sports programming appears to be opening some doors for events that are creatively packaged for television, according to the publication.

Ever since the end of a period of growth that saw network sports programming increase 63 percent from 1973 to 1983, according to one source, ratings have been tumbling and taking advertisers' interest in sports along for the ride.

One explanation has to do with the advent of cable television, which has cut the networks' share of viewers from an estimated 92 percent 10 years ago to the low to mid 70s today.

As more sports programming became available to viewers from an increasing number of sources, "things once considered special no longer were, and ratings slipped,"

ABC Sports programming and rights negotiator Bob Iger told Advertising Age.

One result was that the networks found themselves locked into long-term contracts in such sports as professional football and baseball that offered no prospects for profitability.

The popularity of sports programming also has suffered in comparison to entertainment programming, largely because entertainment has shown an ability to draw larger audiences at less cost.

The ratings performance of the championship game of this year's NCAA Final Four is cited by Advertising Age as an example of entertainment's dominance.

In a rare sports vs. entertainment matchup on network television, the second half of Indiana University's closely contested championship victory over Syracuse University attracted considerably fewer viewers than the annual Academy Awards show, according to the A. C. Nielsen Company.

The championship game was seen in 16.2 percent of all homes that have a television and by 24 percent of all people actually watching television at that time, but the Academy Awards program received a 30.6 rating and a 45 percent share of the viewing audience.

A spokesman for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences confirmed that ABC-TV obtained rights to the Academy Awards show for "considerably less" than CBS-TV will pay during each of the next three years for rights to the Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

There remains, of course, considerable interest in televised sports. According to the Simmons Market Research Bureau, 63.2 million adult viewers still frequently watch professional football, while Major-League Baseball, college football, boxing, and college and professional basketball all regularly attract more than 20 percent of viewers.

Networks, however, increasingly are looking for sports programming that promises a profit or, at least, no economic risk.

"You can probably list on two hands the sporting events TV is willing to pay for," Sports Marketing News president Robert Dowling told Advertising Age. "Most of the time, the networks say, 'Come to us with a package and a sponsor we can develop a relationship with, and then we'll see if we can get you on the air.' Most events buy their way onto the air."

Such a philosophy has opened up the possibility that new events can find spots in network schedules, so long as they present no economic risk for the networks. "We're much more open to new ideas," said ABC's Iger, "particularly for corporate-sponsored events" in which sponsors may provide sizable advertising support.

"There are a lot of new opportunities in network programming," said Holly Turner, president of Auchincloss and Turner, the sports marketing arm of the Women's Sports Foundation. The key, she said, is to be innovative and creative in pitching ideas to the networks.

Recently, the foundation enticed ABC-TV to pick up its "Challenge of the Champions" tennis match by signing up Ocean Spray Cranberries as a sponsor. "We brought Ocean Spray to ABC for the first time," Turner said.

"We look to make a marriage between the event, the production, the advertiser (and) the network," she said.

SWC coaches favor giving prospects a recruiting break

Southwest Athletic Conference football coaches say they support information blackouts, quiet periods and any other avenue possible to reduce what one coach described as the "insane" pressure on high school football recruits.

Six of the eight league head coaches, speaking to writers attending the Texas High School Coaches Association convention at a Fort Worth hotel, agreed unanimously with a new league rule that prohibits coaches from giving information on recruits to the media or to professional recruiting services, United Press International reported.

The information blackout, proposed by SWC coaches, was passed by league administrators earlier this year.

The head coaches, the most vocal of whom was Baylor University's Grant Teaff, blamed media-fueled fan interest for what Teaff said has become a "second season" of daily recruiting coverage in January and February.

"I have never seen more frustration, anguish and real anger among student-athletes and parents than I have this year," Teaff said, referring to what he described as the constant stream of calls from reporters to prospects prior to the annual college signing day.

"I think it is inappropriate (to publish nonbinding commitments)," Teaff added. "This has been a monster for the families and the kids."

"I know of one case where a reporter called a player at midnight to ask if he had committed, then called him at 6 a.m. that morning to see if there had been any change."

Texas A&M University's Jackie Sherrill and Rice University's Jerry

Berndt said the information blackout passed by SWC administrators would not eliminate fan and media interest in recruiting but was an effort by coaches to take the high ground in recruiting wars.

"We are trying, with the new rules in the NCAA, to cut back on some of the pressure," Berndt said. "We owe it to the kids to help them. They're 17, 18, 19 years old. It's insane."

Other NCAA efforts to reduce recruiting pressure have included a cutback in the period coaches can evaluate players from five months to two, a 24-hour "quiet period" before the signing date when coaches cannot contact prospects and the elimination of boosters from the recruiting process.

"I think that the fact we're not going to give out lists is a start," said Texas Christian University's Jim Wacker. "It is a step in the right direction."

"I think we've made more progress to clean up our sport in the last two years than in history," Wacker added. "And almost all of the changes have come from coaches. I see a new climate in intercollegiate athletics that we want to clean them up once and for all."

SWC coaches also were united in their concern about a portion of the NCAA's Proposition 48 academic reforms; specifically, the requirement that freshmen post minimum scores on standardized tests to be eligible their first year in college.

"It's a shame that life is based on the ability to take a test," said Texas Tech University's Spike Dykes. "What does a test graded by a bunch of people in Iowa have to do with a kid's life?"

A rule

of concern, "extortion" is a grown-up's word.

It plays in the big courts—not the ones with referees—the ones with judges and juries. They can send people to institutions where they don't have to worry about NCAA rules, but from which people don't always graduate in four years either.

There's no use being naive about it. If youngsters always listened to advice with 2,000 years of reasonably documented history to back it up, prison populations wouldn't be 150 percent of capacity in a lot of places right now.

It's part of our heritage that when our forefathers in Europe gathered to witness public hangings, they frequently discovered their pockets had been picked just about the moment the trap door was sprung.

Teenagers whose biggest concern is how to pay auto liability insurance have been known to grab a six-pack and lay a wheel leaving a convenience store as they pondered possible solutions.

So, do we give up or try something new?

You look at the problems that might be solved, and you try. Naturally, athletes recruited with cheating money in the first place have a tendency to get the wrong idea.

So you shoot for honest coaches and honest programs. Then let's get the NCAA to advertise for agents who want to be on a "recommended list" to submit their credentials, with references.

Let the NCAA distribute its list of the approved agents to every college. Let the college make it part of every athlete's orientation to tell him or her about the list of the good guys.

That much may at least get rid of the extortionists. But that won't solve it all.

It won't solve the problem of a college junior or senior who's married, or about to be married, who's going to be worth a quarter of a million dollars next year, but who's broke right now. In those situations, desperation obscures tradition. Credibility can have a distant ring, if it has any ring at all.

To attack that problem, to avoid the cynical list of lies and misrepresentations that have seemed rampant the past year, there'll have to be rules changes.

The college world seems to face a choice: It can adopt rules that allow legitimate agents to advance the players some specified amount of money when they have no other source of support, or it can keep pretending that a young man who's going to be worth $200,000 in May is going to wash and iron his own shirts in November.

But it hurts to see the places responsible for the advanced educational programs of this country believing that will work.

So with that much doubt, why not give honesty, instead of the Blooms and Walters, a fighting chance?

must avoid any dealings with or commitments to agents or risk the loss of eligibility.

But there seems a patent inequity when college athletes, confronted as they are with enormous pressures on and off the playing field, pay the ultimate price by their involvement with agents.

The NCAA can apply its sanctions to players and coaches, but it is ill-equipped to deal with agents over whom it has no control. Law-enforcement people can target agents to the extent that laws are broken, but they, too, are limited.

If agents are willing to break NCAA rules to achieve an unfair competitive advantage, the National Football League can best deal with them.

If the NFL delayed or denied the opportunity to play professionally to college players who compromise their amateur status in violation of NCAA rules, the parasites who tempt them with easy money would be out of business.

Cris Carter can pursue a supplemental draft with the NFL and attempt to market his skills immediately. OSU football coach Earle Bruce has said he thinks Carter ought to be required to sit out at least a year.

That makes sense. Providing instant gratification for athletes who break the rules and lose their eligibility is dead wrong.

Ultimately, the NFL relies on collegiate athletes for its pool of talent. The integrity of the league and the players and coaches in it must be questioned if they become parties, even by refusing to act, to agents' attempts to turn a dishonest dollar by enticing young athletes into breaking the rules. Such conduct, which disrupts college athletics programs and the careers and educational opportunities of the players, is unacceptable.

The Carter affair is yet another sorry episode that tarnishes the image of intercollegiate athletics. The NCAA can keep unscrupulous agents off the field. The NFL must put them out of business.

many colleges has deteriorated into the coddling of tramp athletes who never progress toward a degree. Judging by the athletics directors' rebuff of the college presidents (at the special NCAA Convention), there's not much chance of change for the better...."

Bob Gretz, sports writer
Kansas City Star

"There is nothing inherently wrong with a college having an athletics program that is successful financially. Schools like Stanford, Virginia and Penn State prove every day that it can be done well and within the rules.

"The presidents (of NCAA member institutions) need to accept that fact. They need to study such programs, instead of looking for cosmetic cures and holding national forums. Find out what those schools are doing right and push for those kinds of standards across the country.

"The future of college athletics is right in front of its nose. The presidents need only open their eyes to see it."

the increases to curiosity about the three-pointer, used on a national basis for the first time in 1987. But teams below Division I also had the three-pointer, and they were down. And Division I had bigger increases in 1985 and 1983 when the three-pointer could be seen only in a few conferences using it as an experiment.

The shot clock was used nationally for the first time in 1986, and no one blamed it for the first national attendance decrease in history. So how can this increase be credited to the three-pointer?

Our best guess is competitive balance in the Division I conference-championship races. A total of 23 conferences (out of 32) were up in per-game average, 23 were up in total attendance, and 20 were up in both per-game and total. This is a strong picture, across the board, with many tight races.

Big Eight, PCAA set records

The Big Eight Conference showed the biggest increase among Division I conferences at 874 per game, a conference record of 10,171 per game, breaking its former mark of 9,864 in 1984. The Big Eight jumped from fifth to third among conferences.

For the second straight season, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association set records for both per-game average (6,317) and total attendance (922,224). Just five years ago, the PCAA averaged only 3,436.

Two other conferences also set records for both per-game average and total attendance—the Colonial Athletic Association (3,994 and 403,391) and the Association of Mid-Century Universities (3,247 and 386,400). The Mid-Century was helped by winning efforts two straight years by its NCAA tournament entrants, both picked as at-large teams.

For the seventh straight season, the Big East Conference broke its record for total attendance, reaching 1,470,802, while its per-game average (9,871) was second to its record set a year earlier. The same was true in the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference and the Sun Belt Conference, both second only to a record 1986. Both the Atlantic Coast Conference and Big Eight had their second-highest totals ever, as did the Big Sky Conference. The Trans America Athletic Conference set a totals record.

Big Ten, SEC again 1-2

The Big Ten Conference led the nation in attendance for the 11th straight season, and the Southeastern Conference ranked No. 2 for the ninth consecutive year in 1987. Both have topped 10,000 per game throughout the last decade. In the same span, the only other conferences to reach five figures in per-game average were the Western Athletic Conference (twice), ACC (twice), Big East (once) and Big Eight (once).

The Big Ten averaged 11,877 in 1987, down just 12 spectators per game, while the SEC averaged 10,405, up six per game. The ACC was fourth behind the Big Eight at 9,991, its third highest on record, with the Big East fifth. There were no new members of the top 10 or the second 10. The biggest gain in the top 20 was by the Colonial, from 19th to 15th. Only six conferences were down in both per-game and total, and most of the declines were small. Division I independents (only 20 teams in 1987) increased as a group by 11 per game.

North Central again No. 1

giate Athletic Conference ranked No. 1 for the seventh straight season in 1987, averaging 2,626 and totaling 393,940, both slight increases.

The Central States Intercollegiate Conference also gained and again finished second at 2,454. The Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association increased 249 per game, highest below Division I, and moved from fourth to third at 2,169 per game. There were no new members of the top 10, but three moved into the top 20—The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association and Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Syracuse smashes records

Syracuse led the country in home attendance a third straight season and set an all-games record that may stand for some time. A record total of 826,182 spectators watched Syracuse all season in 38 games, for a record average of 21,742. Those figures smashed the 1986 records of 641,146 and 20,036 by Syracuse.

Syracuse broke the record before reaching the Final Four. Going to New Orleans, its all-games total was 696,264, and it added another 129,918 in two sessions in the Louisiana Superdome. Its amazing 826,182 can only be broken by a team with huge home-court capacity that plays in domes all the way to the NCAA finals. Only a handful of teams are in that category.

Syracuse's home average of 24,959 was below its other two years on top (26,255 in 1986 and 25,870 in 1985) and its total home attendance of 474,214 was below its record 498,850 at home in 1986. However, Syracuse did break its own national home-court single-game record with 32,602 for the Georgetown game, surpassing the 32,520 for the Villanova game two years earlier.

Kentucky, the annual leader before Syracuse took over, again ranked second at 22,861, while North Carolina jumped to third at 20,149 and Brigham Young moved past Louisville into fourth place. The only new team in the top 10 is Kansas, ninth at 15,340. There are two new members of the second 10. They are Arizona 15th (up from 23rd) and Dayton 20th (up from 21st). By the way, Indiana, second on the all-games chart at 651,520, also broke the former record; and Nevada-Las Vegas (592,429), North Carolina (546,696) and Kentucky (531,268) also topped a half million.

North Carolina's biggest

For the second straight year, North Carolina led the country in total per-game increase. In 1986, the jump was 5,884 to 15,838, as it moved into its new arena in midseason. In 1987, the increase was 4,311, as it played the entire season in the "Dean Dome" (for long-time coach Dean Smith). In all, 16 teams were up at least 1,700 per game in Division I in 1987, compared to 10 in 1986.

Second to North Carolina is Florida State, up 2,997 to 6,812 per game. Then come Boise State, up 2,985 (to 6,679); Florida, 2,720 (to 10,282); Alabama, 2,473 (to 10,907); UCLA, 2,428 (to 10,355); Brigham Young, 2,367 (to 18,939); St. Louis, 2,336 (to 6,133); Baylor, 2,138 (to 4,279); Nevada-Las Vegas, 2,128 (to 18,251); Fordham, 2,113 (to 3,653); Texas Christian, 2,003 (to 6,393); Michigan State, 1,873 (to 9,600); Nebraska, 1,870 (to 11,611); Texas Tech, 1,843 (to 6,462), and Missouri, 1,796 (to 10,090).

On a percentage basis, the leaders in this group are Fordham, up 137.2 percent, Baylor at 99.9, Boise State at 80.8 and Florida State 78.6.

Division III academic golf team named

Seven golfers who played in the 1987 Division III championships—including two repeat selections from 1986—have been named academic all-Americans by the Golf Coaches Association of America. Central College's (Iowa) Bill Spurbeck and Nebraska Wesleyan University's Mike Higgins are the repeat selections from 1986 who played in the 1987 NCAA championships.

Other NCAA qualifiers who were named to the squad include Spurbeck's teammate, Joe Jasper; Eric Asel, MIT; Charley Black, Pomona-Pitzer Colleges; Patrick Rahilly Jr., Westfield State College, and John Walsh, Methodist College.

To be considered for selection to the academic all-America team, a student-athlete must have a 3.000 grade-point average (4.000 scale) or higher for his entire academic career, be at least a junior academically and have a stroke average under 80.0 during the season in which he was nominated.

The complete GCAA Division III academic all-America team:

Eric Asel, senior majoring in biology, MIT, 4.600 GPA (5.000 scale), 76.0-stroke average; Jim Beck, junior biology major, Loras College, 3.460 GPA (4.000 scale), 78.0-stroke average; Charley Black, senior economics major, Pomona-Pitzer, 3.330 GPA, 78.47-stroke average; Bernard Hecceg, senior business management major, Elmira College, 3.650 GPA, 79.0-stroke average.

Continuation of split scores recommended

The NCAA Academic Requirements Committee has recommended that split scores on national entrance examinations still be allowed for prospective student-athletes seeking to meet the requirements of Bylaw 5-1-(j).

Students initially entering Division I institutions during the 1987-88 academic year are allowed to combine scores of SAT and ACT subtests from more than one national testing date to achieve the minimum test-score requirement.

The committee will recommend that the Council extend that interpretation subsequent to the 1987-88 academic year until further research can ascertain its validity. The committee hopes to review further data on the subject at its February meeting.

The committee also recommended a status of "obvious qualifier" to streamline the completion of Form 48-C by institutional admissions officers. A prospective student with the required cumulative grade-point average in the core curriculum and the minimum examination score would not need to have his or her entire Form 48-C completed.

Response by high school counselors to similar action by the committee to simplify the completion of Form 48-H has been positive.

In other business, the Academic Requirements Committee will continue to consider the possibility of utilizing a central agency to coordinate the dissemination of data on the initial-eligibility status of prospective student-athletes. The committee will seek a more detailed proposal for such a clearinghouse before submitting it to the Council.

CORRECTIONS

Due to an editor's error, a headline in the July 22 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly described a ball selected for 1987 soccer championship play as the "official ball" for the tournaments. Although the Adidas Mexico Azteca ball will be used in all tournament games, the NCAA does not have an "official ball" agreement with Adidas.

Due to incorrect information supplied by a member institution, final statistics appearing in the July 22 issue of the News for Division III baseball list the wrong individual as 1987 runs-batted-in champion. John Kiely of Bridgewater State (Massachusetts) should be listed as RBI champion, and individuals ranked below Kiely also should be moved up one place in the rankings.

Due to an editor's error, a front-page story in the July 22 News erroneously reported a Division I Men's Basketball Committee proposal to use a portion of net receipts from the Division I Men's Basketball Championship to pay premiums for catastrophic insurance coverage for student-athletes. The story should have stated that the premium would be paid for all Division I student-athletes for coverage throughout the year, and not just for participants in championships.

North Dakota State leads

In Division II, North Dakota State finished on top at 4,820 per game, replacing St. Cloud State, with Norfolk State nudging Kentucky Wesleyan for second. In Division III, Concordia-Moorhead finished on top at 2,869, edging St. John's (Minnesota), with Calvin, the 1986 leader, third. Fort Hays State led the 510 non-NCAA teams at 3,853, with Washburn second and Huron, the 1986 leader, third.

Bigger field for women's tennis sought

The fields for next spring's NCAA women's tennis championships may be growing.

During the Women's Tennis Committee's July 27-30 meeting in Monterey, California, two division subcommittees voted to recommend to the Executive Committee changes that would boost the number of participants in either team or individual competition.

The Division I subcommittee is seeking to increase the number of teams at next year's championships from 16 to 20. To control costs, participating institutions would be reimbursed for the travel expenses of six of the eight team competitors permitted. There would be a limit of 36 additional players for individual competition, a concept adopted by the Men's Tennis Committee in 1986.

The University of Florida has been recommended as the site of the 1989 and 1990 Division I women's championships. The Division I subcommittee and Executive Committee previously approved the University of California, Los Angeles, as host of the 1988 championships.

Ferrin succeeds Schultz in men's basketball post

In the 50th anniversary year of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship, the Division I Men's Basketball Committee comes under the leadership of a man who enjoyed some golden moments in the 1944 tournament.

C. Arnold Ferrin Jr., who recently stepped down as director of athletics at the University of Utah, succeeds Richard D. Schultz as chair of the committee. Schultz was named NCAA executive director-elect in June.

Ferrin was the most outstanding player in the 1944 tournament as Utah won the championship. He was the only freshman to be so honored until Pervis Ellison of Louisville won the award in 1986.

Ferrin was a four-time basketball all-America, earning consensus selection in 1945 and second-team consensus selection in 1948. He helped the Utes win the National Invitation Tournament in 1947.

Ferrin went on to play three seasons in the National Basketball Association with the Minneapolis Lakers. He played on championship teams in 1949 and 1951.

He became a successful businessman after retiring from professional basketball. He returned to his alma mater in 1969 as director of regional programs for the alumni association. In 1971, Ferrin left the university to become general manager of the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association. He came back to the university in 1974 to work in university relations.

Ferrin was named director of athletics in May 1976. He stepped down from that position July 1, 1987, but will remain at the university as assistant to the vice-president for university relations. He also will serve as the university's representative to the Western Athletic Conference and the High Country Athletic Conference.

WAC signs record TV contract

The Western Athletic Conference and KUTV-TV of Salt Lake City have agreed to a contract in excess of $1 million to televise conference basketball games for each of the next three seasons, WAC Commissioner Joseph L. Kearney and KUTV Vice-President and General Manager Al Seethaler announced.

The agreement calls for KUTV-TV to syndicate the WAC Saturday game of the week for the 1987-88, 1988-89 and 1989-90 conference basketball seasons. In addition, KUTV will have the rights to the WAC basketball tournament for each of those three years.

It is the richest basketball television contract ever for the WAC, and it marks the first time in the league's 25-year history that such an agreement has exceeded $1 million.

"Obviously, we are happy with the agreement," said Kearney. "Our past association with KUTV-TV and Al Seethaler has been mutually beneficial, and we feel it will continue to be so in the future."

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee:

1. Reviewed and affirmed the following committee and legislative services department procedures in regard to member institutions seeking "official" interpretations of NCAA rules. When an interpretive question is posed by a member institution and the legislative services staff has presented its response to the institution, the institution is bound by that interpretation. The institution may request in writing that the interpretation be reviewed by the Legislation and Interpretations Committee. The written request must be processed by the institution's conference or by one of the four individuals (e.g., chief executive officer, director of athletics, faculty athletics representative, primary woman administrator) who are authorized to request such interpretations for the institution. The staff interpretation is binding until the committee review is completed. In urgent cases, the chair of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee may act for the committee or may authorize an immediate telephone conference call of the committee if necessary. Interpretations previously approved by the Council remain binding until revised by the Council, and the committee may take action only to recommend such a revision subject to the Council's approval.

2. Reviewed the committee's recent interpretations regarding the application of Constitution 3-1-(e) and asked the legislative services staff to develop a specific proposal to be reviewed by the Council, which would permit virtually all promotional activities involving student-athletes when such activities concern charitable or educational projects; concluded that the student-athlete's institution should be responsible for monitoring and approving these types of activities.

3. Considered the application of Bylaw 3-3-(j) and agreed that a member institution that participates against a foreign team in the United States is permitted to participate in a foreign tour in basketball in the same academic year (or the summer immediately thereafter); noted that this issue also should be reviewed on a future committee agenda in light of the adoption of 1987 special Convention Proposal No. 2.

4. Reviewed the application of Constitution 3-9-(b)-(4)-(v), which permits student-athletes in the sport of basketball to participate in officially recognized state and national multisport events sanctioned by the Council; referred to a future Legislation and Interpretations Committee agenda the issue regarding the number of student-athletes and coaching staff members who may participate on a basketball team in a recognized state or national multisport event.

5. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3) indicating the permissible printed materials an institution may provide a student-athlete; agreed that Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3) should be amended consistent with previous committee and Council actions to include the following approved items: (1) drug-testing information; (2) summer camp brochures; (3) greeting cards; (4) general correspondence, including cards and letters; (5) newspaper clippings, which may not be assembled in any form of scrapbook; and (6) weight-lifting program information, provided the prospective student-athlete has signed a National Letter of Intent.

6. Discussed the application of Constitution 3-1-(e), Case No. 45 and Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3) and agreed on the following:

a. A member institution is permitted to produce a videotape that depicts institutional activities in general with no special emphasis placed on its athletics programs and distribute this videotape to prospective student-athletes, high school coaches, preparatory school coaches or junior college coaches, provided the videotape is an official academic, admissions or student-services item of the institution that is designed for and made available to all prospective students. Under such circumstances, it is necessary that the videotape be returned after its use by the prospect or coach to the member institution.

b. Confirmed that Case No. 45 permits a member institution to produce a "highlight" videotape of its intercollegiate athletics seasons. The institution may provide this videotape to prospective student-athletes, high school coaches, preparatory school coaches or junior college coaches only in accordance with the institution's normal policy governing the issuance and retrieval of such a "highlight" videotape.

7. (Divisions I and II) Determined that in team sports other than those with separate regulations (i.e., with the exception of football, basketball and soccer), it remains permissible for member institutions to conduct "officially recognized" practice sessions prior to August 15 or the start of the academic year; noted that if the institution's team continues to conduct organized practice sessions on or after August 15, the institution's traditional segment is initiated at that time; confirmed that this portion of the segment would be considered under these circumstances to be within the academic year for purposes of this legislation.

8. (Divisions I and II) Reviewed 1987 special Convention Proposal Nos. 2 and 5 and agreed that the principle expressed in Case No. 258 would permit a member institution under consideration for selection to participate in an NCAA championship to continue to conduct postseason practice sessions on this basis until it is determined by the appropriate committee whether the institution will be selected to participate in championship competition; agreed that this period may extend beyond the 26-week segment for a particular sport.

9. (Divisions I and II) Considered an earlier committee interpretation (reference:

Item No. 6 of the minutes of the committee's June 18, 1987, telephone conference call) indicating that it is permissible for a member institution's basketball coach to attend and observe prospective student-athletes participating in the Pan American Games, inasmuch as the application of Bylaw 1-3 (evaluation period) was not intended to preclude a member institution's coach from attending an international athletics event such as the Olympic or Pan American Games; concluded that this interpretation should not be extended to permit the attendance of such coaches at the United States Sports Festival.

10. (Divisions II and III) Reviewed 1987 special Convention Proposal Nos. 5 and 7 and agreed that in individual sports when certain individual student-athletes are allowed to continue practice beyond the 26-week period in preparation for an NCAA championship, the institution's entire squad in that sport would be permitted to continue such practice activities.

11. (Division I) Reviewed the application of Bylaw 5-1-(j) in regard to the "admissions official's" completion of Form No. 48-C, and concluded that the Academic Requirements Committee should be asked to review a question concerning other individuals within the member institution's athletics department or associated with the athletics department (e.g., faculty athletics representative) who might be authorized to complete Form No. 48-C on behalf of the institution's admissions officer.

Acting for the Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee:

1. Approved the following dates for future Legislation and Interpretations Committee conference calls during 1987: July 23, August 6 and 20, September 3 and 17, October 1 and 21, November 3 and 18, and December 3 and 16.

2. Reviewed an earlier Council-approved interpretation (reference: Item No. 4 of the minutes of the committee's February 5, 1987, conference) and reaffirmed that the provisions of Constitution 3-1-(c) and Case No. 45 preclude an institution from using the pictures of student-athletes to sell non-paper products such as a videotape highlighting the singing or acting abilities of individual student-athletes.

3. Reviewed the principles expressed in Case No. 88 and agreed that an organization (e.g., U.S. Baseball Federation) sponsoring amateur sports competition is permitted under O.I. 2 to provide a per diem to individuals participating in domestic or foreign athletics events; agreed that per diem expenses may be provided under such circumstances and shall conform to the regulations of the recognized amateur governing body applicable to that event.

Conference No. 13 July 9, 1987

4. Reviewed the application of Case Nos. 90 and 91 as they relate to team award or recognition meetings and annual all-sports banquets, and agreed that as outlined in those cases, an institution is limited to providing no more than three banquets per year in a sport; noted that the application of Case No. 90 requires that no awards be presented to student-athletes in the conduct of that recognition banquet; confirmed the committee's previous interpretation precluding the provision of transportation for student-athletes who are provided an "occasional family home meal," noting the distinction between that type of situation and the provision of transportation (which is permissible) for student-athletes to attend the institution's banquets permitted per Case Nos. 90 and 91.

5. Reviewed the application of Case Nos. 208 and 213 and agreed that a member institution's coach may be a participant on a local summer soccer club team with prospective student-athletes, provided all of the prospective student-athletes are legal residents of the area within a 30-mile radius of the institution's main campus; recommended to the Council that Case No. 208 be revised to include the participation of coaching staff members in such activities.

6. Confirmed that the "oversight authority for applicable playing regulations" addressed in Bylaws 12-4-(b), (c) and (d) should be interpreted to indicate that the Executive Committee has final authority regarding rules in these areas; suggested that the Council sponsor a proposal to amend the language of Bylaws 12-4 and 12-5 accordingly.

7. Agreed that the provisions of Constitution 3-1-(h)-(4) identifying benefits incidental to a student-athlete's participation in intercollegiate athletics would not permit a member institution to provide the parents or legal guardians of student-athletes with free admissions and meals in conjunction with the institution's postseason team award or recognition banquet, or the annual all-sports banquet permitted per Case No. 91; referred to the Council a recommendation that Constitution 3-1-(h)-(4) be amended to grant the Council, by a two-thirds majority of its members present and voting, the authority to identify and approve additional incidental benefits.

8. Reviewed the application of Bylaw 3-2-(j) [and other bylaws that specify limitations on number of contests] and agreed that this legislation would permit the varsity or junior varsity intercollegiate teams at a member institution to participate separately in the prescribed number of contests or scrimmages with outside competition.

9. Referred to the Council's recruiting subcommittee the issue of whether a member institution may provide to prospective student-athletes (when they visit an institution's campus for reasons unrelated to recruiting) T-shirts, mugs or any other institutional promotional items that normally are provided to visiting members of the general public.

10. Reviewed the application of Constitution 3-1-(c) and agreed that the legislation was not intended to restrict individuals other than lawyers (e.g., financial consultants, family friends) from giving advice regarding professional contracts; concluded that advice may be secured from any individual under these circumstances concerning a proposed contract, provided the individual in turn does not represent the student-athlete in negotiations for such a contract; recommended to the Council that Constitution 3-1-(c) be amended accordingly.

Legislation

11. (Divisions I and II) Reviewed the application of Bylaw 1-3-(d) and agreed that "parental" exceptions to the evaluation periods should relate to the involvement of a student in cheerleading, band or color-guard activities, inasmuch as such activities would be considered to constitute "participation" per Bylaw 1-3-(d).

12. (Divisions II and III) Reviewed the application of Bylaw 1-9-(f)-(2) and concluded that a Division II or III member institution is permitted to provide a meal to a prospective student-athlete at an off-campus dining facility when all on-campus dining facilities are closed, provided the institution can certify that it is the institution's normal policy to provide such a meal under similar circumstances to all prospective students (including nonathletes) visiting the campus; referred to the Divisions II and III Steering Committees the recommendation that Bylaw 1-9-(f)-(2) be amended accordingly.

13. (Division I) Agreed that the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(d)-(3) [20-age rule] would relate to the participation of an individual in road-racing activities subsequent to the student's 20th birthday and prior to matriculation at a member institution; noted that under such circumstances, the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(d)-(3) would be applicable to the student's eligibility in the sports of cross country and indoor and outdoor track.

14. (Division I) Reviewed a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 14 of the minutes of the committee's April 29, 1987, conference) stipulating that a partial qualifier who attends a junior college less than one academic year and then transfers to a Division I member institution would be permitted to receive aid (but not to practice or compete) while serving the one-year residence requirement as a transfer student; determined that this interpretation should be revised to indicate that a partial qualifier who initially enrolls in a junior college shall be considered a nonqualifier for purposes of Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(9) upon transfer to a Division I institution, thus prohibiting such a transfer student [if the individual has not met the transfer requirements of Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(9)] from receiving aid, as well as from practicing or competing in his or her first year of enrollment in a Division I member institution.

15. (Division I) Considered a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 15-b of the minutes of the committee's June 4, 1987, conference) regarding the application of amended Bylaw 1-2-(b) and agreed that subsequent to the August 1, 1987, effective date of this bylaw: (a) All "institutional athletics department staff members" will be permitted to recruit off campus in their sports, it being understood that they are involved in sports other than football and basketball, and (b) other "institutional staff members" (e.g., faculty members, administrators) may continue to telephone and write prospective student-athletes under this regulation.

16. (Division I) Determined that all Division I member institutions are required to complete the Association's Form No. 48-C for each prospective student-athlete to determine the initial eligibility of the prospect per Bylaw 5-1-(j); agreed that a member institution may develop its own form for this purpose similar to Form No. 48-C; however, the substitute form must contain all relevant information utilized on Form No. 48-C.

Acting for the Council, the Division I subcommittee of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee took the following actions regarding the application of 1987 special Convention Proposal No. 2. [Note: The following actions also were approved in principle by the Divisions II and III subcommittees on July 23, 1987, in reference to 1987 special Convention Proposal Nos. 5 and 7. This approval was based on the understanding that further review may be necessary to resolve distinctions in the application of these interpretations to individual (as distinguished from team) sports.] The subcommittee(s):

1. Agreed that the language of Bylaw 3-1-(b), requiring consecutive weeks in a playing-season segment, does not negate the application of the exception provisions of Bylaw 3-1-(e); therefore, when practice or competition does not occur for a consecutive seven-day period in which a portion of the seven days includes at least one of the institution's published dates for holidays, vacations or final examinations, that week does not count against the playing-season limitation and a new "segment" is not initiated once practice and competition resume; noted that the institution's original weekly starting date for the segment would not be affected by this interpretation.

2. Confirmed that the application of Bylaw 3-1-(c) does not require a nontraditional segment to include competition; however, if such a segment does include competition, the last contest would conclude the nontraditional segment.

3. Agreed that practice for any NCAA championship event is not considered part of the 26-week playing season (as indicated in the principle expressed in Case No. 258); confirmed that practice for other postseason competition (i.e., an invitational tournament scheduled after a conference championship) would count against the 26-week limit; agreed that all institutions, regardless of season records, are permitted to continue to practice until it is determined by the appropriate committee whether the institution will be selected to participate in NCAA championship competition, and affirmed that those institutions that are not selected to participate in the NCAA championship must terminate their traditional segments at that point and are precluded from establishing a nontraditional segment until the completion of the NCAA championship; noted that following the conclusion of the NCAA championship, an institution may resume practice and/or competition during that academic year only if it is initiating its nontraditional segment.

4. Agreed that the "free" day established in Bylaw 3-1-(i) for issuing equipment and taking squad pictures can be utilized when a traditional playing season (e.g., volleyball) commences prior to the start of the academic year; noted that the application of Bylaw 3-1-(i) continues to apply to the sports of football and basketball; agreed that it shall be permissible to administer medical examinations at any time to enrolled student-athletes or to prospective student-athletes who have signed a National Letter of Intent with the involved institution, provided the prospects visit the institution at their own expense for this purpose.

5. Confirmed that a member institution's coaching staff members may continue to be involved with prospective student-athletes under the provisions of Case Nos. 208 and 209; however, they may not be involved in such activities with enrolled student-athletes outside the permissible playing season (practice and competition) during the academic year.

6. Agreed that a member institution's coaching staff members are prohibited from engaging in out-of-season practice activities with enrolled student-athletes during the academic year; noted that this prohibition applies to any member of a coaching staff of the student-athlete's institution; concluded that Proposal No. 2 would not preclude a student-athlete from practicing with his or her coach either as an individual or as a member of an outside team during the summer.

7. Confirmed that Bylaw 3-4-(d) does not preclude a student-athlete from participating in out-of-season practice activities with another member institution's coach, inasmuch as the reference to "an institutional staff member" in Bylaw 3-4-(d) applies only to the coaching staff of the student-athlete's institution; referred to the NCAA Council a recommendation that the limitations established in Case No. 262 be placed on the number of student-athletes from the same institution who may participate (i.e., practice and compete) on an outside team with a coaching staff member from another member institution.

Conference No. 14 July 17, 1987

8. Agreed that the provisions of Bylaw 1-7 (summer-camp legislation) would not be affected by the adoption of Proposal No. 2; noted that there is no limit (in sports other than football, basketball and soccer) on the number of student-athletes in a sport who may participate in an institution's summer camp or in a private summer camp.

9. Concluded that Bylaw 3-4-(e) would permit an institution's strength and conditioning coach to supervise or assist in training sessions with one or more members of an institution's intercollegiate team; confirmed that the involvement in these sessions by student-athletes must be voluntary; reaffirmed that the oversight responsibilities of the strength and conditioning coach should be confined to the supervision of weight-room activities during any period outside the permissible practice season for those sports with out-of-season practice limitations, noting, however, that the provisions of new O.I.s 303 and 304 permit a member institution's strength and conditioning coach (as well as any other coaching staff member) to be involved with enrolled student-athletes in a physical education or physical fitness class during the regular academic year, with the understanding the course satisfies the criteria outlined in the applicable regulation.

10. Agreed that the principles expressed in new O.I.s 303, 304 and 305 are designed to encompass student-athletes and coaching staff members in all sports with out-of-season practice limitations.

11. Agreed that outside the established playing season, Bylaw 3-4-(c) permits individual consultation initiated voluntarily by a single student-athlete with a member institution's coaching staff member, provided the coach and the student-athlete do not engage in actual drills or other physical aspects of practice activities; confirmed that a coaching staff member is not permitted to request to see a particular student-athlete for this purpose.

12. Agreed that Bylaw 3-4-(d) indicates that in the event an institution's facilities are requested by a team composed partly of enrolled student-athletes and partly of individuals otherwise affiliated with the institution, the use of the facility is permissible if consistent with the institution's established policies for the use of such facilities by outside groups generally.

13. Determined that in team sports other than those with separate regulations (i.e., with the exception of football, basketball and soccer), it remains permissible for member institutions to conduct "officially recognized" practice sessions prior to August 15 or the start of the academic year; noted that if the institution's team continues to conduct organized practice sessions on or after August 15, the institution's traditional segment is initiated at that time; confirmed that this portion of the segment would be considered under these circumstances to be within the academic year for purposes of this legislation; agreed that "officially recognized" practice sessions in the summer vacation period are those practice sessions that occur when students report for regular squad practice: (a) that is announced by the institution through a member of its athletics department staff prior to the beginning of any quarter or semester, and (b) that involves the entire athletics team; concluded that an institution may provide expenses for practice activities during the summer period only if "officially recognized" practice sessions are involved in the applicable team sports.

Some programs reclassified

A total of 10 institutions have had either their entire intercollegiate athletics programs or specific sports reclassified, effective September 1, 1987, while the petition of another institution was denied.

Under the provisions of Bylaws 10-3 and 10-4, the petitions were considered by the NCAA staff for the first time since the Classification Committee was abolished.

Most of the institutions were reclassified in Division I. The University of Akron moved from Division I-AA to Division I-A. The California State University, Bakersfield, wrestling program will move from Division II to Division I. Florida International University was moved from Division II to Division I-AAA.

Le Moyne College's baseball program was reclassified from Division II to Division I. Towson State University went from Division I-AAA, with its football program in Division II, to Division I-AA, and Wright State University moved from Division II to Division I-AA. Wright State's petition was approved in 1986, but it was not scheduled to become effective until September 1, 1987.

Armstrong State College moved its program from Division I-AAA to Division II. Drake University added Division III football, Quincy College added Division III football and Queens College moved its women's basketball program from Division I to Division II.

Quincy's reclassification petition also was approved in 1986 to become effective September 1, 1987.

The request of the State University of New York, Buffalo, for Division II classification was denied. The school currently is in Division III, with its baseball program in Division I.

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q How does an institution get involved in the National Youth Sports Program? How many institutions have such a program?

A The National Youth Sports Program (NYSP) currently operates at 135 locations in 42 states. Approximately 50,000 economically disadvantaged youth receive the benefit of participating in sports activities and enrichment sessions at a college or university. Participating institutions provide facilities such as swimming pools, gymnasiums, indoor courts, athletics fields, office and medical space, and the services of a project administrator, at no cost to the Federal grant. NYSP projects are required to seek assistance from outside resources in an effort to enhance the effectiveness of the program. Through a unique partnership combining Federal, state, local and private resources, the NYSP allows institutions to participate more fully in community life and in the solution of community problems. The NCAA will provide, upon written request, an application to sponsor an NYSP project. Please contact Ruth M. Berkey, NYSP National Program Director, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

Legislative Assistance

1987 Column No. 28

Institutional promotional activities

The NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee reviewed an earlier Council-approved interpretation (reference: Item No. 4 of the minutes of the committee's February 5, 1987, conference) and reaffirmed that the provisions of NCAA Constitution 3-1-(e) and NCAA Case No. 45 (page 313, 1987-88 NCAA Manual) preclude an institution from using the pictures of student-athletes to sell nonpaper products such as a videotape highlighting the singing or acting abilities of individual student-athletes.

Junior college transfer—nonqualifier

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee reviewed a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 14 of the minutes of the committee's April 23, 1987, conference) stipulating that a partial qualifier who attends a junior college less than one academic year and then transfers to a Division I member institution would be permitted to receive aid (but not to practice or compete) while serving the one-year residence requirement as a transfer student; determined that this interpretation should be revised to indicate that a partial qualifier who initially enrolls in a junior college shall be considered a nonqualifier for purposes of NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(9) upon transfer to a Division I institution, thus prohibiting such a transfer student [if the individual has not met the transfer requirements of Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(9)] from receiving aid, as well as from practicing or competing during his or her first year of enrollment in a Division I member institution.

Bylaw 1-3—Pan American Games

The Divisions I and II subcommittees of the NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee have indicated that it is permissible for a member institution's basketball coach to attend and observe prospective student-athletes participating in the Pan American Games, inasmuch as the application of Bylaw 1-3 (evaluation period) was not intended to preclude a member institution's coach from attending an international athletics event such as the Olympic or Pan American Games.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Texas has agent-control law

Legislation to regulate sports agents and provide civil penalties of up to $10,000 has become Texas law, the Associated Press reported.

Gov. William P. Clements, who had earlier voiced support for the bill signed the measure into law earlier this month.

The bill, which was passed by the legislature during a special session that ended July 21, would require sports agents working in Texas to register with the secretary of state.

Agents failing to register would be barred from contacting athletes in Texas. Copies of agreements would be filed with the state and with the athletes' schools.

Also under the bill, colleges would be required to set a 30-day period in which agents legally would be allowed to contact athletes in their junior year.

Agents could not sign athletes until their eligibility expired and couldn't offer inducements until an athlete was drafted by a professional team.

Austin sports lawyer and agent Travis Roach, who lobbied for the bill, said the legislation would make agents think twice before approaching athletes who still are eligible for college sports.

"I think it's a real step in the right direction," Roach said.

Only a few states have passed legislation to regulate sports agents.

Play-off sites to be determined

During its August 10-11 meeting (see preview story on page 1), the NCAA Executive Committee will consider and act on recommendations from the Division I Men's Basketball Committee regarding sites for first- and second-round competition in the Division I championship during 1988, 1989 and 1990 and on 1990 regional sites.

Following are those recommendations:

1988: That the University of Utah replace the University of Texas, Austin, as host for sessions March 17 and 19, and that Georgia Institute of Technology serve as host for first- and second-round sessions to be held at The Omni, Atlanta, Georgia.

1989: That the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference host first- and second-round sessions at The Omni (contingent upon the conference being headquartered in Atlanta).

1990: First and second rounds—East at Hartford Civic Center, Hartford, Connecticut (University of Connecticut host), and The Omni, Atlanta, Georgia (host to be determined); Southeast at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tennessee, and the Richmond Coliseum, Richmond, Virginia (Virginia Commonwealth University and the Sun Belt Conference cohosts); Midwest at the University of Texas, Austin, Texas, and the Hoosier Dome, Indianapolis, Indiana (Butler University and the Midwestern Collegiate Conference cohosts); West at the University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona, and Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah.

Regionals—East at the Meadowlands Arena, East Rutherford, New Jersey (Rutgers University, New Brunswick, host); Southeast at the Louisiana Superdome, New Orleans, Louisiana (University of New Orleans and the American South Conference cohosts); Midwest at Reunion Arena, Dallas, Texas (Southwest Athletic Conference host); West at Alameda County Coliseum, Oakland, California (the University of California, Berkeley, and Pacific-10 Conference cohosts).

Ruling affects charter bus service

In light of a rule change by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, NCAA member institutions may find that public bus companies no longer are able to provide the charter bus service they have previously provided.

The Federal agency has issued new rules, which became effective May 13, that prohibit companies receiving UMTA assistance from providing bus or van charter service using UMTA-funded equipment or facilities if there is a private charter operator willing and able to provide the charter service.

Previously, UMTA recipients could provide charter bus service if such service was incidental to and did not interfere with their mass-transit function.

The new UMTA regulations apply to the provision of charter bus and charter van service. A private operator would be considered to be "willing and able" to provide the desired charter service even if the service differs from that offered by the public bus company. The exceptions to the new policy are few in number and limited in scope.

Both the American Bus Association (703/527-7759) and the United Bus Owners of America (800/424-8262) can assist in identifying which of their members provide charter services in specific localities.

These regulations were issued after a six-year rule-making proceeding, and it is possible that they will be amended.

In its report accompanying the 1988 appropriations bill for the Department of Transportation and related agencies, the House Appropriations Committee directed UMTA to initiate a rule-making proceeding on a proposed amendment to its charter bus regulations that would permit nonprofit entities to obtain charter service from publicly funded operators. That directive is not binding on UMTA, and the Senate has not yet passed the 1988 transportation appropriations bill.

Deadline is September 10

Any member institution or conference wishing to submit nominations for positions on the 1988 NCAA Council or for the Division III vice-presidency must do so by September 10.

As reported in the July 22 issue of The NCAA News, the Division III vice-president's spot is the only one of the officer positions available for '88. In addition, there will be 13 Council vacancies to fill, although six are held by individuals who are eligible for reelection to a full term.

Nominations may be sent to John E. Thomas, chancellor of Appalachian State University, or to any member of the Nominating Committee, as listed in the July 22 issue. Copies of nominations also should be sent to Fannie B. Vaughan at the NCAA national office.

Those submitting nominations should consult the listing of positions available in the July 22 issue of the News, as well as the geographical regions set forth in NCAA Constitution 5-5-(c). A form to be used in submitting nominations also appeared in the July 22 issue.

A brief paragraph describing the qualifications of the candidate nominated should accompany the nomination form.

Positions available on the Council include eight in Division I (four eligible for reelection), three in Division II (two eligible for reelection) and two in Division III.

Golf reinstated

Citing the need to remain competitive in Southland Conference championship sports, Northwestern State University (Louisiana) President Robert A. Alost has announced that men's golf will be reinstated, beginning with the 1987 school year.

Association penalizes men's basketball program at LSU

In September 1986, the NCAA Committee on Infractions placed Louisiana State University on probation for a one-year period for violations found in the sport of football.

Subsequently, the men's and women's basketball programs at the university also were investigated and violations related to extra benefits to student-athletes and recruiting were considered by the Committee on Infractions. The committee determined that the men's basketball program should be limited to no more than 13 grants-in-aid (rather than the normal 15) for the 1987-88 academic year and that no new men's basketball recruits would be permitted to sign letters of intent with the university in the spring of 1987. Further, the university severed relations with one outside booster for his involvement in the case.

The violations found in women's basketball were not considered serious, and no sanctions were imposed. The original one-year probationary period was not extended by the committee, and the university's probationary period will expire on schedule September 18, 1987.

The following is a summary of the violations found in men's and women's basketball.

Men's Basketball

Violation of the principles governing institutional control [NCAA Constitution 3-2]—During the fall of 1985, at a time when the entire athletics program was under extreme pressures, the former director of athletics failed to provide the leadership necessary for effective operation within the spirit of cooperation and compliance with NCAA requirements. Specifically, the former director of athletics, by his own admission, was prepared to engage in a violation of the NCAA enforcement procedures by secretly tape-recording interviews with student-athletes that were conducted by an NCAA enforcement representative.

Violation of the principles governing the sale of complimentary tickets, extra benefits to student-athletes and recruiting [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(3) and 3-1-(g)-(5), and Bylaws 1-1-(b)-(1) and 1-9-(j)]—(a) During the fall of the 1983-84 academic year, a representative of the university's athletics interests purchased four sets of complimentary season basketball tickets from a student-athlete for approximately $500; (b) on occasion during the summers of 1981 and 1983, a representative of the university's athletics interests permitted members of the university's men's basketball team to reside at a local apartment complex at no cost to them; (c) during December 1982, a representative of the university's athletics interests lent a student-athlete approximately $100 cash to enable the young man to drive from the university to his home; further, the loan was not repaid; (d) during the fall of the 1982-83 academic year, a student athlete sold two complimentary basketball tickets for approximately four home games to a representative of the university's athletics interests, for at least $150; (e) during the summer and continuing through the fall of 1982, a medical doctor who is a representative of the university's athletics interests provided medical consultation and arranged treatment for the mother of an enrolled student-athlete at no cost; (f) during the 1982-83 and 1983-84 academic years, a representative of the university's athletics interests, entertained several of the university's enrolled and prospective student-athletes in men's basketball for meals at a restaurant in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, at no cost to them; (g) during the summer of 1983, a representative of the university's athletics interests, assisted a prospective student-athlete in the purchase on credit of a 1982 blue Ford Fairmont automobile from an automobile dealership in Baton Rouge, and (h) during October 1984, a representative of the university's athletics interests entertained the brother and sister of a prospective student-athlete at a social event at a resort. Further, films of Louisiana State University basketball and football were shown at this event, and six to eight prospective student-athletes were present at this event.

Women's Basketball

Violations of the provisions governing recruiting [NCAA Bylaw 1-9-(j)]—During the spring of the 1983-84 academic year, on one occasion while recruiting a prospective student-athlete, the women's head basketball coach provided the prospect with local round-trip automobile transportation in the young woman's hometown, and (b) on at least two occasions during the 1983-84 academic year, while recruiting a prospective student-athlete, a representative of the university's athletics interests entertained the young woman for meals in the representative's home; further, on at least one occasion, the young woman's mother and the women's head basketball coach were present during a meal.

Court halts University of Washington drug-testing program

A judge ruled July 23 that the University of Washington's athletics drug-testing program is unconstitutional and issued a temporary restraining order against the NCAA's testing of Washington athletes for drugs.

Kathleen Taylor, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Washington, said the ruling by King County Superior Court Judge George T. Mattson went beyond what the ACLU had sought in striking down the testing program.

"It was a ruling on the constitutionality of the program—that it ain't," she said.

Taylor said Mattson found the UW testing program unconstitutional because it violates the students' right to privacy. Mattson also said that before a search can be considered for an individual, there must be grounds to suspect that person. The UW program had sought annual testing of all athletes.

UW officials "don't have any individual suspicion against the kids; they're just searching them all to find the needle in the haystack," Taylor said.

"We're delighted with the ruling," she told the Associated Press. "The substance of his ruling is not surprising. Traditionally, the courts do not like general searches."

Washington had planned to begin urine tests for approximately 800 athletes August 12.

Mattson issued a summary judgment against the program and brought the NCAA into the case by ordering it not to take any action against the university for not participating in the NCAA drug-testing program, Taylor said. Until the ruling, the Association had not been a party to the UW suit.

Mattson's ruling was only the second drug-testing case in the nation where the NCAA has been involved, Taylor said.

In the earlier case, Simone Le-Vant, Stanford University diving team captain, won an injunction March 11 to permit her to compete in the Division I Women's Swimming and Diving Championships without being tested. The NCAA requires athletes' consent to drug-test at championships events.

The July 22 ruling is significant because, in the Stanford case, the judge ruled to protect an individual, while Mattson ruled against an entire program, Taylor said.

The Washington suit was brought on behalf of Elizabeth O'Halloran, 19, a "Jane Doe." She later was joined by Alan Burch, 21, a Washington rower. They had argued that the tests would infringe upon their privacy and would be an unwarranted search and seizure.

Washington is a member of the Pacific-10 Conference. All other schools in the Pac-10 except Stanford and Washington State University require some form of drug tests, though the programs vary.

Wittenberg facilities to be upgraded

Wittenberg University will spend more than $5 million during the next 10 years to upgrade further its facilities for men's and women's intercollegiate athletics and intramurals, President William A. Kinison announced.

Five years ago, the school opened an $8 million health, physical education and recreation center built with funds from a $20 million capital campaign.

The new project will be known as the "Bill Edwards Drive Plan" after Wittenberg's late, legendary football coach and athletics director.

The football stadium, built in 1929, will undergo extensive renovation, and an all-weather running track and new playing surface for football and other sports will be installed.

At least eight new tennis courts also will be built.

The old field house, built in 1930, will be completely renovated with the addition of a new playing floor, locker rooms and classrooms.

Improvements also are projected for Bill Edwards Field, an 11-acre tract of land located near the Wittenberg campus where intramural sports, men's and women's soccer, and women's softball, lacrosse and field hockey are played.

Eye tests may help detect use of drugs

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is considering eye tests as an alternative means of checking athletes for drugs because of the cost and controversy of random drug testing, officials said July 29.

Assistant trainer Mike Rollo said university consultants are scheduled to meet with Tennessee staff and physicians to demonstrate how a pupilometer test may fit in with the drug-testing program.

Tennessee currently uses urinalysis to test for drug use.

The pupilometer test uses a small flashlight to chart the response of athletes' eyes to light. It can indicate whether drugs such as cocaine, marijuana, PCP and heroin have been used in the past three to four days.

The tests currently are used by the California Highway Patrol and are under review at other universities looking for ways to cut costs in drug-testing programs that annually cost between $50,000 and $100,000, the Associated Press reported.

"We want to see if it's realistic," Rollo said. "Pupilometers won't replace drug testing but we want to see if it has a role." The eye tests could indicate whether a follow-up test is warranted, he said. The eye tests require about 30 seconds to administer.

Rollo said it is unclear whether the pupilometer test would avoid the same legal problems as random drug testing.

"We still face the problem of who to examine. Some criteria have to be established, because if it's random, I don't know if that would meet a constitutional challenge," he said.

Public relations publication mailed

An NCAA Public Relations and Promotions Guidelines booklet recently was sent to directors of athletics, sports information directors, primary women administrators, head football coaches and head basketball coaches of NCAA member institutions.

The booklet contains suggested guidelines for dealing with major problems in the public relations and promotion areas. The suggestions were developed jointly by the NCAA Communications Committee, the American Football Coaches Association, the NCAA Football Rules Committee, the Football Writers Association of America and the National Press Photographers Association.
