

Nine top coaches selected for College Football '88 Preview

Nine prominent NCAA coaches and approximately 60 of the nation's top sports writers will gather February 21-23 in Kansas City, Missouri's, Westin Crown Center to participate in the College Football '88 Preview.

Coaches attending the 12th annual NCAA-sponsored preview are

Mike Archer, Louisiana State University; Rich Brooks, University of Oregon; Danny Ford, Clemson University; Pat Jones, Oklahoma State University; Dick MacPherson, Syracuse University; David McWilliams, University of Texas, Austin; George Perles, Michigan State University; Bob Reade, Augustana College (Illinois), and Bob Stull, University of Texas, El Paso.

John D. Swofford, athletics director of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and chair of the NCAA Communications Committee, will serve as moderator of the preview.

Charles McClendon, executive director of the American Football Coaches Association, also will be in attendance.

Three panels of three coaches each will meet with the sportswriters throughout the first day of the preview to discuss pertinent topics. Each coach also will be available for one-on-one interviews. A reception and dinner will cap the day's activities.

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz is scheduled to address the sportswriters on the final day of the preview.

Following are brief biographical sketches of the coaches selected for

Spotlight on Women's Basketball is February 18

Players and coaches from five of the nation's outstanding women's collegiate basketball programs will participate in the sixth annual NCAA Spotlight on Women's Basketball Thursday, February 18, at the Hilton Hotel and Towers in New York City's Rockefeller Center.

The participants will be coach C. Vivian Stringer and Michelle Edwards of the University of Iowa; coach Pat Summitt and Bridgette Gordon of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville; coach Jody Conradt and Beverly Williams of the University of Texas, Austin; coach Theresa Grentz and Sue Wicks of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, and coach Chris Gobrecht and Lisa Oriard of the University of Washington.

Members of the media are invited to interview the coaches and players beginning at 9 a.m. A reception and luncheon follow at 11:30 a.m.

The Spotlight is held each year to promote the sport of women's basketball and the NCAA women's basketball championships. The event, developed by the former NCAA Public Relations and Promotion Committee, was initiated in 1983.

The Spotlight affords members of the media the opportunity to meet with and interview some of the top players and coaches in women's basketball in a setting outside of the competitive arena.

Following is biographical information about this year's participants:

Iowa

Stringer is in her fifth year as head coach at Iowa and took the Hawkeyes to the Midwest regional championship game during the 1987 Division I Women's Basketball Championship. Her team achieved its first No. 1 ranking this season. A graduate of Slippery Rock University of Pennsylvania, Stringer coached at Cheyney University of Pennsylvania prior to going to Iowa.

In 1981-1982, she led Cheyney to the runner-up spot in the NCAA tournament and was named coach of the year. She coached the 1985 World University Games team in Kobe, Japan.

Edwards is a senior guard from Boston. She has earned all-Big Ten Conference honors the past two years. Edwards, who scored over 2,000 points in high school, bettered the 1,000-point mark at Iowa as a junior. She scored 24 points in last year's loss to Louisiana Tech University in the championship game of the Midwest regional.

Tennessee

Summitt coached the Lady Vols

to the NCAA championship last season and earned coach-of-the-year honors. Her team has been among the semifinalists at the NCAA championship four times and at the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women championship four times. A graduate of the University of Tennessee, Martin, Summitt coached the U.S. Women's National Team to the gold medal at the 1984 Olympics.

Gordon is a junior forward from Deland, Florida. She was the leading scorer and rebounder in the NCAA championship last season and earned all-tournament honors.

NCAA, Division I conferences expand contacts

A desire to improve communication between the national office and an important component of the NCAA membership—the conferences—has sparked steady growth and improvement in the Association's 1½-year-old Conference Contact Program.

Now, staff members in the NCAA's legislative services department confer regularly with representatives of all Division I conferences, and are beginning to meet them face-to-face for the first time at the conferences' annual meetings.

"As our staff has expanded, we've expanded the program to where we have contact with all of the Division I conferences, plus a few independents," said Carol A. Powell, a legislative assistant in the national office who served as administrator of the program until last month.

"The idea now is to take it even further and involve legislative services in the conferences' day-to-day functions," added Stephen J. Horton, a legislative assistant who succeeded Powell as administrator. The "next logical step," Horton believes, is an exchange program in which conference representatives visit the national office to acquaint themselves with its operations while NCAA staff members visit conferences," Horton said. "So we thought it would be good to start a program where we could increase the communication."

"Communication is a two-way street, but in the past, maybe it's been more one-way, where we've told the conferences what to do," he how conferences deal with specific problems and to quickly disseminate information that is useful to the conferences.

"We use it to go to the conferences for information—for instance, before trying to issue an interpretation, we may poll the conferences on how they handle an issue," she said.

Offering examples, Powell said the conferences have been asked for their views on such questions as what constitutes "actual and necessary expenses" for prospective student-athletes during recruiting visits, how should a 24-hour contact period be defined, and how much eligibility should be granted to Bylaw 5-1-(j) nonqualifiers or partial qualifiers who transfer to a member institution after one year at a junior college.

The NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee regularly receives information from the conferences through the program, as does the Recruiting Committee.

As for disseminating information, See NCAA, Division I, page 2

ence offices to observe their activities.

The contact program began during the fall of 1986, when legislative services staff members decided something was needed to make their services more accessible to conferences.

"The staff felt there wasn't enough communication with the confer-admitted. "Now we're opening up the lines of communication so that conferences can come back to us and tell us what they think about issues."

Indeed, receiving feedback from the conferences is only one of three benefits of the program, Powell said. The program also gives the national office a means of learning

Firms help NCAA study office needs

Firms specializing in real estate, architectural planning and engineering are helping the NCAA review alternatives to provide additional office space for the national office staff.

A decision whether to move to a new headquarters site or expand near the current site in Mission, Kansas, is among the tasks facing the Association, which currently occupies 50,000 square feet in two NCAA-owned buildings and leases 800 square feet in another building.

Options include finding new space in the Kansas City area or moving to another area, although the latter option is regarded as unlikely.

Retained by the Association to study alternatives are Jones & See Firms, page 2

She scored 111 points for a 22.2 average and grabbed 41 rebounds for an 8.2 average. She already has eclipsed the 1,000-point mark at Tennessee. This past summer, Gordon played in the World University Games in Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

Texas

Conradt has taken her team to the national semifinals the past two seasons. In 1986, the Lady Longhorns went on to win the national championship and posted a 34-0 record. Last season, the team finished in a tie for third place. She has earned coach-of-the-year honors three times. Conradt coached at Sam Houston State University and the University of Texas, Arlington, prior to joining the staff at Texas in 1976. A graduate of Baylor University, Conradt coached the United States to a gold medal at the Pan American Games in 1987.

Williams is a senior guard from Austin, Texas. She averaged 18.5 points in last year's NCAA tournament and had the top field-goal percentage in the tournament, 66.7 percent. She shot over 60 percent from the field the last two seasons. She scored her 1,000th career point at Texas in a game against St. Joseph's University (Pennsylvania) during last year's tournament. She played in the World University Games last summer.

Rutgers

Grentz has taken the Lady Knights to the NCAA East regional finals the past two seasons. The team posted its first 30-victory season a year ago and won its first Atlantic 10 Conference championship. Grentz was named Converse coach of the year last season. She was an all-America at Immaculata College and played on three championship teams. She coached at St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania) for two seasons before coming to Rutgers in 1976.

Wicks is a senior forward from Center Moriches, New York. She is a two-time Kodak all-America and Atlantic 10 Conference player of the year. She averaged 26.7 points and 13 rebounds in three NCAA tournament games last year and has scored over 2,000 points and has over 1,000 rebounds at Rutgers. She played on the United States team that won the gold medal at the 1987 Pan American Games.

Washington

Gobrecht is in her third season at Washington and has taken the Huskies to two NCAA tournaments. She was named Pacific-10 Conference coach of the year last season. A native of Toledo, Ohio, Gobrecht played basketball and volleyball at the University of Southern California. She worked as a Peace Corps volunteer for one year following her graduation from Southern Cal.

Gobrecht then coached at the high school and junior college levels before taking over the program at California State University, Fullerton. She coached there for six years before coming to Washington.

Oriard is a senior forward from Spokane, Washington. She earned second-team all-Pacific-10 basketball and academic honors a year ago when she led the team in scoring and tied for top rebounding honors. In 1985, Oriard set a Northern Pacific Athletic Conference record, hitting 32 of 33 free throws in conference games, for a percentage of 97.

NCAA, Division I

Powell points to an instance in August 1987 when the NCAA Council ruled that nonqualifiers or partial qualifiers who had served a year in residency could participate in pre-season orientation sessions. Because most Division I football programs were about to stage such sessions, the legislative services staff used its conference contacts to quickly inform member institutions of the Council's ruling.

"That's the classic example so far of our using the program to get information out to the conferences," she said.

"The idea (for the program) originated in this office largely (1) to get the word out on interpretations and (2) to be more consistent in interpretations," Powell added. "We're also trying to avoid being so quick to say no to everything. We want to obtain more information before we make a decision."

Powell and Horton agree that the program has been well received by the conferences. "They now feel they're part of the legislative process, whereas they didn't feel that way before," Horton said.

Added Powell, "It gives the conferences an opportunity to express their views somewhere other than at the Convention."

"What many people don't remember," said Horton, "is that conferences are NCAA members, too."

With the means of communication now in place, the emphasis is turning to personalizing the contact between the national office and the conferences.

For the second consecutive year, legislative services will send representatives to a February 23-24 meeting in Kansas City for staff members from conferences affiliated with the Collegiate Commissioners Association and the University Commissioners Association. The Conference Contact Program will be a major topic for discussion at that meeting.

NCAA staff members also will attend upcoming meetings of every Division I conference covered by the contact program and already have attended meetings of the Southeastern Conference and Western Athletic Conference.

The legislative services staff accepted an offer by the Sun Belt Conference to send two of its staff members to Mission and recently served as host to Doug Elgin, assistant commissioner, and John Iamarino, director of public relations. During their 1½-day visit, Elgin and Iamarino met with representatives of every department, learning about everything from compliance and enforcement programs to championships administration to operation of the Association's DialCom computer data base.

It is possible that full-fledged exchanges with other conferences, including visits by NCAA representatives to conference offices, will be announced this spring.

Meanwhile, the legislative services staff is working to maintain the channels already opened with the conferences.

"We try to keep in contact on a regular basis—weekly, if possible—even if we don't have questions for the conferences," Powell said.

"It's a good way for us to make the membership know that the staff is here to help," she added. "That's something we really want to do."

NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)—satisfactory progress (Convention Proposal No. 39)

The NCAA Council considered Proposal No. 39 amending Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)-(ii), which further defines satisfactory progress at Division II institutions as the achievement of a 1.600 grade-point average after the completion of the first season of competition, a 1.800 grade-point average after the completion of the second season of competition and a 2.000 grade-point average after the completion of the third and subsequent seasons of competition, and determined the following:

1. For purposes of Proposal No. 39, "hardship" years would be included in determining the number of seasons of competition in which a student-athlete has participated.

2. "Redshirt" years would not be considered in calculating the number of seasons of competition.

3. Transfer students who have competed at another institution would be required to include those seasons of competition in determining the grade-point standard that would be applicable under this rule.

4. The grade-point average necessary for a multisport participant would be determined on the basis of the number of seasons completed in the sport in which the student-athlete has participated most often. For example, if a student-athlete has competed in softball for three seasons and in volleyball for two seasons, the student-athlete must have an accumulative grade-point average of 2.000 to compete in either softball or volleyball the next year.

5. All course work normally considered by the institution in calculating grade-point averages for its students would be countable in determining the minimum accumulative grade-point average under this rule.

6. Transfer students would have their eligibility under this rule determined on the basis of their accumulative grade-point average as normally calculated by the certifying member institution for such students.

7. Pass/fail courses may not be utilized in determining the minimum grade-point average.

8. Summer-school courses may be utilized in determining whether the student-athlete has achieved the minimum grade-point average. (Note: The Council will review in April a recommendation from the NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee to indicate that summer-school courses shall be utilized in determining whether the student-athlete has achieved the minimum grade-point average.)

9. The accumulative grade-point average necessary to establish eligibility under this rule must be determined on the basis of the student-athlete's record as of the beginning of the academic year or at the beginning of the semester during which the student-athlete's next season of competition will begin.

NCAA Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3)—printed recruiting aids (Convention Proposal No. 117)

The Council considered Proposal No. 117 amending Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3), which permits a Division III member institution to provide to prospective student-athletes any official academic, admissions, athletics and student-services publications published by the institution and any other information of a general nature that it makes available to all students. The Council concluded that restrictions no longer exist (e.g., number of colors of printing) in regard to the athletics press guides, recruiting brochures and institutional questionnaires provided to prospective student-athletes by Division III member institutions. Further, the Council noted that weightlifting program information may be provided to prospective student-athletes once the student-athlete has been accepted for enrollment in a regular full-time program of studies at that institution.

NCAA Constitution 3-3-(c)—Olympic Games waiver (Convention Proposal No. 129)

The Council considered Proposal No. 129 amending Constitution 3-3, which permits the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee to waive the enrollment and satisfactory-progress requirements of Constitution 3-3 for any participant in the Olympic Games who, because of such participation, may lose eligibility for practice and intercollegiate athletics participation in any sport. The Council:

1. Concluded that those student-athletes who receive a waiver of Constitution 3-3 to practice and participate in intercollegiate competition also are permitted to receive institutional financial assistance from the member institution (e.g., room and board), with the understanding that student-athletes receiving this institutional financial assistance are precluded from being employed during the term of its award.

2. Noted that if a student-athlete is permitted to enroll on a part-time basis at the member institution, the institution is permitted to provide the student-athlete with the actual cost of tuition and fees.

3. Agreed that for purposes of Bylaw 4-1-(b) (10-semester or 15-quarter rule), any term or terms in which a student-athlete is granted a waiver of Constitution 3-3 and either competes in intercollegiate competition or receives institutional financial aid is considered a term of residence.

4. Concluded that for those student-athletes who have been admitted to a member institution but who have yet to enroll in a collegiate term or terms prior to receiving the Constitution 3-3 waiver (i.e., an entering freshman), the receipt of institutional financial aid will initiate the start of the student-athlete's five-year eligibility period (and for Divisions II and III, a first term of residence).

5. Reaffirmed that the application of Proposal No. 129 requires that a student-athlete must be eligible for financial aid, practice and competition based upon the rules of the institution and the conference of which the institution is a member.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Information gathered by the firms will be reviewed by the NCAA's Subcommittee to Review Future Office Requirements, which is expected to provide a recommendation to the Executive Committee in May.

Requests for building-site proposals will be mailed around March 1, said Richard D. Hunter, NCAA director of operations. In addition to seeking office space, the proposals probably will solicit space for a visitors center.

It is expected to take at least two years for the Association to obtain a site and construct a new building.

Archer

Success has paralleled Mike Archer's coaching career at every stop, so it came as no surprise in his first season as a head coach in 1987 that he led Louisiana State to a 10-1-1 record and a major bowl invitation.

Although he is the youngest head football coach in Division I-A at 33, Archer did not come to the job without experience. He spent the previous three years as a member of Bill Arnsparger's LSU staff and the last two as its defensive coordinator.

The final assistant coach hired by Arnsparger in December of 1983, Archer had spent the previous eight years as an assistant at Miami (Florida). In 1983, just 14 days before his hiring at LSU, he helped Miami to a 31-30 Orange Bowl win over Nebraska and a subsequent national championship.

LSU was a member of both wire service polls' top 10 each week during the 1987 season and rose as high as fourth in both rankings. The Tigers finished the regular season as the nation's seventh-rated team by both AP and UPI. The Tigers capped Archer's first season with a 30-13 victory over South Carolina in the Gator Bowl.

Brooks

Rich Brooks begins his 12th year as Oregon's head coach in 1988 and as the second-winningest football mentor in the school's history. The Ducks faced one of its most demanding schedules and responded by surfacing in the Associated Press' top-20 poll for the first time since 1970.

The program has made steady progress since Brooks took over for the 1977 season.

Brooks had taken Oregon from consecutive 2-9 seasons to back-to-back records of 6-5 and 6-3-2 in 1979 and 1980, and he was awarded three major football honors—Pac-10 Coach of the Year, American Football Coaches Association District IX Coach of the Year and the Slat's Gill Award as Oregon's sportsman of the year.

Brooks returned to his alma mater in 1965 as defensive end coach under Dee Andros and later coached the defensive linemen. He remained on Andros' staff for five seasons, and the Beavers twice were ranked in the nation's top 10. Brooks rejoined Prothro in 1970 as UCLA's linebacker coach and moved to the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League in 1971 with Prothro. He stayed for two years as special teams and fundamentals coach.

He returned to Oregon State for a year in 1973 as defensive coordinator but returned to the NFL a year later to join Dick Nolan's staff with the San Francisco 49ers as defensive backfield and special teams coach.

After a one-year stint at UCLA again as linebacker coach, he was named head coach at Oregon shortly after the 1976 season.

Ford

Ford and his Clemson Tiger football team have grown up together since he was thrust into the head coaching job in December 1978 at the tender age of 30.

"I was young when I got the job, but that seems like I don't know how long ago," Ford said.

At the age of 33, Ford guided the Tigers to a national championship. He is the youngest coach to win the Associated Press' national title.

Ford is listed as the sixth winningest active coach in the nation, with a 76-25-4 (.743) overall record.

Overall, Ford has had 20 winning regular seasons in his 21-year affiliation with the game; and his teams have won over 74 percent of the time.

Ford has coached the Tigers into five bowl games in his nine years at the helm.

Another in a long line of former Bear Bryant players that has gone on to greatness in coaching, Ford played for Bryant between 1967 and 1969.

He remained at Alabama as a graduate assistant for the 1970 and 1971 seasons. He already had earned his bachelor's degree and earned his master's degree in 1971. Ford became a full-time aide for Bryant in 1972 and 1973.

He then was an assistant coach at Virginia Tech from 1974 through 1976 before coming to Clemson as offensive line coach in 1977. And, just 23 games later, he was named head coach.

Jones

When Pat Jones was hired as Oklahoma State's 19th head football coach in June 1984, the unanimous feeling was that the outgoing young coach would have an immediate positive impact on the Oklahoma State program.

Four years later, it is a documented fact. He is the most successful football coach in OSU history.

After four seasons, his career record is 34-13, which includes a 10-2 mark in 1987. The Cowboys handed West Virginia a 35-33 defeat in the Sun Bowl to match their best season, a 10-2 outing under Jones in his first season.

In 19 years of coaching, the last 13 in successful programs at Arkansas, Southern Methodist, Pittsburgh and Oklahoma State, he has had a hand in coaching several all-America players including Hugh Green, Ricky Jackson, Leslie O'Neal, Thurman Thomas, Mark Moore and Rick Antle.

He coached defensive ends at Pittsburgh in 1978 before moving to Oklahoma State as defensive end coach and defensive coordinator in 1979. He was named UPI national coach of the week after his first head coaching effort, a 45-3 victory over Arizona State in Tempe in 1984.

MacPherson

In his seven years at Syracuse, MacPherson has made believers out of skeptics that have been put on hold since the glory days of the Jim Brown, Ernie Davis, Larry Nance, Floyd Little and Larry Csonka eras. This year's Orangemen had their best record (11-0-1) since 1971.

Despite an injury-plagued 1986 season, MacPherson gave the Syracuse fans a peek at what the future could hold. From 1983 to 1985, the Orangemen had three straight winning seasons, the first time such a streak had been put together since 1968. The 1985 team won seven games and went to the Cherry Bowl. The seven wins were the most for Syracuse since 1967 and the bowl appearance the first since 1979. The 1985 recruiting class was considered the best in over 30 years and the foundation was set for 1987.

Besides beating Penn State, this year's Orangemen defeated Pittsburgh and Maryland. Syracuse featured an offense that rolled up 515 yards and 48 points against Penn State, and a defense that held Virginia Tech to minus one yard rushing. At midseason with the winning intact, MacPherson was constantly quizzed about the Orangemen's right to be in the top 20.

"I don't even get into whether we deserve it or not," he said. "It's what you aspire to and pray for and hope for. Once you're in the top 20, CNN talks about you—and ESPN and the Prudential Scoreboard. Kids see it and remember it; and if you get those kids, that's how you get to be good."

MacPherson, a native of Old Town, Maine, was inducted into the Maine Sports Hall of Fame in 1985 and received an honorary Doctor of Humanities degree from his alma mater, Springfield College, last spring.

McWilliams

When David McWilliams was named head coach of the Texas Longhorns last spring, many called it the start of a new era. But McWilliams and the university are certainly not new to one another.

A native son who captained Texas to its first national championship, McWilliams became the 26th head coach in Longhorn history.

The former Texas assistant coach returns after spending a year as the head football coach at Texas Tech, where he piloted the Red Raiders to a 7-4 record and a berth in the Independence Bowl, earning honors as the Southwest Conference Coach of the Year.

McWilliams was a tri-captain as a center and linebacker on the Longhorns' 1963 national championship team.

McWilliams returned to Texas as an assistant to Darrell Royal in 1970.

He became the Longhorn defensive coordinator in 1982, and served in that capacity until he accepted the head coaching job at Texas Tech following the 1985 season.

Perles

When George Perles took over the Michigan State football program five years ago, he indicated in no uncertain terms that he was not interested in just making the Spartans respectable. He wanted to win the Big Ten Conference and go to the Rose Bowl.

Perles achieved his goals in the 1987 season, which culminated with a Big Ten championship and a Rose Bowl victory over Southern California. The Spartans' league championship was its first since 1978 and the trip to Pasadena was Michigan State's first since 1966.

The 53-year-old Michigan State graduate has reestablished Michigan State's proud tradition. In the four years before Perles' arrival, the Spartans had struggled to only 15 wins in 44 games. Since then, however, Perles has directed the Spartans to four consecutive winning records in regular-season play and has posted an overall mark of 32-24-2 (.569).

Reade

No team has ever dominated NCAA Division III football like Bob Reade's Augustana (Illinois) Vikings without compromising classroom performance. Only one of his players in nine years has failed to graduate, and he still calls that player to encourage him to return for his degree.

Augustana won four consecutive NCAA Division III national championships (1983, 1984, 1985, 1986) and forged a 60-game unbeaten streak under Reade.

With a 91-10-1 record in those nine years, the 55-year-old Reade has a winning percentage (.897) that is the highest in NCAA history, surpassing Knute Rockne's .881 in 13 seasons at Notre Dame.

Q What criteria are used in filling requests for press credentials to the Final Four?

A The Division I Men's Basketball Committee has adopted specific criteria that a media agency must meet to receive credentials for the Final Four. The minimum criteria require a media agency to have a minimum daily circulation of 75,000, or for radio and cable outlets, to have a national network. Credentials also are available for any media agency that covers the home and away games of a team participating in the Final Four on a regular basis and staffs its games with a full-time, salaried employee in all tournament competition preceding the national semifinals.

Proposition 93 could be regarded as a landmark

By James J. Whalen

The Proposition 93 amendment approved by a three-to-one margin at the 82nd annual Convention in Nashville was a milestone for Division III—and perhaps more of a landmark accomplishment for the NCAA than many of us fully appreciate.

For the first time in the relatively short history of Division III, the fundamental issue of the role of athletics in the awarding of student financial aid has been clarified. For the first time, the division of the NCAA whose reason for being is predicated on a truly amateur approach to intercollegiate athletics has made unequivocally clear its policy regarding aid for student-athletes.

In Nashville, it took a relatively short—if chaotic—period of floor debate, the resolve of the group not to table the issue and the adoption of only a single sentence to give us clarity on this crucial matter. But the road to Nashville and to Proposition 93 was a long one.

The founding fathers of Division III had a clear vision for the completely amateur status of their athletes relative to the awarding of scholarships and other aid. That vision was implicit—but not explicit—in the original bylaw covering membership in the division.

Bylaw 11 was clear in stipulating that all aid for student-athletes must be need-based and that all regular college financial aid procedures must be followed. But the bylaw did not directly address the matter of how, or whether, athletic ability could be taken into consideration in awarding student aid. Virtually from the outset of the division, that latter question was raised, discussed and hotly debated.

In 1979, following amendments or revisions in 1975, 1976 and 1978 regarding aid practices, several detailed student-aid amendments were adopted by Division III. Among these were the rules prohibiting set-asides in institutional financial aid budgets for athletics, the involvement of athletics staff in aid packaging and—perhaps most important—the provision requiring that the financial aid packages for student-athletes must be consistent with all others at the institution.

In providing an operational definition of “consistent,” the NCAA Manual further ruled that the practice of taking into account variables “other than need...including athletics...” was consistent with the aid packaging rule, as long as need was not exceeded and as long as there was parity in packages for athletes and nonathletes.

In my opinion, this 1979 amendment, which arose at least partially from an understandable concern that athletes not be discriminated against in institutional aid practice, opened the door to the interpretation that athletic ability could be taken into account and indeed that athletics staff could make recommendations on potential student-athletes to the financial aid office.

I would contend that the 1979 amendment to Article II, Section 3-(a)-(6) allowed for more emphasis on athletics in the aid process than the original Division III Steering Committee intended and perhaps even more than many presidents and athletics directors who supported that amendment intended.

In any event, the 1979 amendment headed us down the path of not whether, but how much, athletics would be considered in awarding aid. Restrictions applied, but the door was open; room had been created for us to go a little further with athletes—as long as we could pass the overall consistency-in-packaging test and did not exceed need.

After my four years as a charter member of the Presidents Commission (since 1983), I can attest firsthand that the debate over student-aid policy and practices has continued unabated.

If anything, the 1979 amendment—in itself a good-faith effort at clarification—added fuel to the controversy by introducing the co-

If you are not watching closely, you may not be able to tell whether you are watching basketball, baseball or a wrestling match.

There is a disturbing trend in sports—both collegiate and professional—to slug it out over any disagreement. The bigger the brawl, the better the crowd seems to like it.

What concerns us about all this is the athlete is a role model to many young people. What sort of message are our kids getting when that role model tries to beat up anyone who frustrates him? What ever happened to the sense of fair play and sportsmanship we used to hear about?

It is time we sent fighting back to the boxing ring. If necessary, stiffer penalties should be imposed for fighting, to include requiring one or both teams to forfeit the game.

Perhaps then we will be able to tell the difference between a basketball game and a boxing match.

Civil-rights loophole needs to be closed

Chicago Tribune
An editorial

The U.S. Senate has voted overwhelmingly to close a loophole in civil-rights legislation that allowed colleges to discriminate while continuing to receive Federal funds. That was not the intent of those who wrote the original law, but its wording failed to stand up to a Supreme Court challenge supported by the Reagan administration. Now, better late than never, that flaw can be corrected.

In a widely publicized case involving Grove City College, the high court held that discrimination on the basis of sex in one college program should not jeopardize Federal aid received by other parts of the institution. The administration interpreted this decision to include discrimination based on age, race and disabilities.

That reasoning may suit the ideological yearnings of some Reagan appointees to carve at civil-rights reforms as an intrusion on local choice, but it defies the intent of the law.

Federal aid to any part of an educational institution cannot help but support all of that institution, just as discrimination in any program taints all of its programs. And if a college insists on discriminating, it should have to forfeit all Federal help.

The Senate's decisive 75 to 14 vote is an encouraging reflection of public sentiment.

Still, the White House is not happy with the bill, and the President may try to block it.

The House would hand him an excuse for a veto if it strikes an amendment protecting colleges that refuse to provide abortions or related services from sex-discrimination charges. The amendment may be troubling to some, but it is not significant enough to be allowed to jeopardize the passage of this important bill.

Steroid addiction largely ignored

“Recent evidence that prolonged steroid use can lead to addiction has had little attention to date.

“A public statement by the coach of a Division I player who tested positive for anabolic steroids...is a good example of the naivete that exists regarding the addictive potential of steroids. He stated that he was relieved that his player tested positive for anabolic steroids and not for another drug like marijuana or cocaine.

“Anecdotal experience with steroid-using athletes demonstrates that, in order to simply maintain the muscular hypertrophy and strength that they have achieved, the athletes must continue to use the steroids.

“Otherwise, they tend to return to their normal weight in spite of continued training. This results in an irresistible desire to continue use and constitutes a high risk for habituation and addiction.

Achievement for 'Bighouse' is not measured in victories

By Tom Foreman Jr.

Clarence "Bighouse" Gaines has won more college basketball games than anyone except Adolph Rupp. But catching the late Kentucky coach is not what keeps Gaines going.

"My objectives in life are to continue coaching; try to make a contribution to these young black kids that I work with," Gaines, 65, said in an interview in his office at Winston-Salem State University.

Gaines, who has coached at the same school for 42 years, had 781 victories going into the weekend, 94 less than Rupp.

He began his career when it was not easy to gain acceptance as a black coach.

"When we first started, (whites) figured we didn't have as much sense as they did or something," he says.

Gaines is the dean of coaches in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, a 14-member unit of predominantly black schools in Virginia and North Carolina. Those schools have worked in the shadow of the Atlantic Coast Conference for years, and Gaines himself has always been second to Wake Forest University, also in Winston-Salem.

The building in which Winston-Salem State plays basketball bears Gaines' name, a tribute to his career, but also a sort of landmark today.

"First of all, you have to be a social worker," he said. "You'll never get the recognition nor the money that goes along with what you see in the newspapers. I would dare say that the average head coach in the CIAA makes under $25,000 a year."

And what might be taken for granted by some of the larger schools in the area is the exception for Gaines and others.

"Go through our conference and you might find, out of 14 schools, that one, maybe two, of the schools are provided courtesy cars by dealers," he said.

Indirectly, that leads Gaines to look at the future for young Blacks, those who may be under his guidance, and those who choose other endeavors.

There have been advances for Blacks in general, black coaches in particular, he said. But Gaines peers into the community, taking a look at the players on his team and where they came from, and he concludes that society must effect more changes.

"You ask yourself sometimes what young Blacks really have to look forward to. I think one of the things is we're going to have to get the separateness out of a lower level so that our kids will learn to battle in society as it really is," he said.

Winning that battle involves education without allowances, he added.

"You don't have a lot of guys as old as I am with the same philosophy—if you didn't get it, you shouldn't be here," he said. "All we need to do is just buckle up. When you have the remedial programs at the college level, take advantage of them."

Further, Gaines said, Blacks must have a chance to see the world beyond their own neighborhoods. He said his team's trip to Springfield, Massachusetts, last fall for a tournament was the first time many of his players had been on an airplane.

"We need to provide them with a greater variety of experiences so that it will leave them hungry and they will be desirous of seeking other experiences," Gaines said, "moving to other parts of the country, looking for different work experiences, to broaden themselves."

Parents and churches have to be involved, and they have to start before children get to grade school.

For athletics, predominantly black schools must find resources to provide those special experiences for their students in the respective programs; otherwise, "there's going to be a disappearing act," meaning those programs will no longer exist.

Gaines doesn't speculate on when he might give up coaching. And even when he does, he would prefer that he not be remembered for what he did in the gym.

"I'd like to be remembered as a person who... was one of the co-founders of a youth baseball league when the whites wouldn't let them play... worked on the board of the YMCA who fought for increased funding and better salaries for those people who helped with the integration of athletics in the state of North Carolina. That's how I want to be remembered," he said. "Not as some bloke who won a bunch of damn ball games. I never bounced a ball."

Big Sky seeking ways to control unruly fans

By Quane Kenyon

Presidents and athletics directors of the Big Sky Conference agree that a technical foul on the crowd which may have influenced the outcome of the game—was appropriate and the correct call in a recent University of Montana-Montana State University Big Sky Conference basketball game at Bozeman.

"The last thing an official wants is to have somebody from the outside affect the outcome of a game," said Commissioner Ronald D. Stephenson.

But that's what happened at Bozeman. During the traditional battle, someone threw a full can of pop onto the playing floor. An official called a technical foul on the home team. And the Bobcats wound up losing the game by a single point, 60-59, to archrival Montana.

"You would have to be pretty emotionally upset to throw a can of pop onto a basketball floor during a game. That's a lethal weapon. It was not a controversial call on the part of the official," said Stephenson. "I don't think the official had any choice at all."

The commissioner said in an interview with the Associated Press that he has been conferring with Big Sky presidents and athletics directors about what to do about a growing trend toward unruly crowds, debris littering the floor during games and incidents such as the pop can at Bozeman.

"We're concerned about it," Stephenson said.

While an official is reluctant to penalize a home team for the antics of its fans or outsiders, basketball rules are clear that control of the crowd is the responsibility of the home team. Control of the crowd is not the responsibility of the officials.

The commissioner said he was able to end the practice of littering the floor with debris such as rolls of toilet paper once the home team scores. That also can bring a technical foul on the home team.

Stephenson said if the officials and the league do not enforce the rules against such incidents, the league could subject itself to huge liability if an athlete is injured because of debris on the floor.

The only Big Sky team that was following that practice stopped it after a caution from the league, he said.

Stephenson said police and security officers have been beefed up at Missoula and Bozeman, where the home basketball crowds have been unruly at times this season.

Athletics directors also have agreed to add extra security when it appears indicated, especially in games matching traditional rivals.

"There is more of an awareness on the parts of the administrators," Stephenson said. "They know they need to take steps to see that these incidents don't occur."

In the end, it may be necessary for school officials to ask for cooperation—and Stephenson said that means the basketball coach.

"There is one person on campus who can ask the crowd to help and that is the head coach, not the athletics director or the president. On occasion, the coach has to do it," he said.

Stephenson said there is nothing wrong with strong crowd support for the home team. There is something wrong when fans go on the floor or throw debris onto the playing surface.

"They need to use judgment as to how far it goes," he said.

New rule in football a liability

By Al Carter
Houston Chronicle

The NCAA rules book defines the extra-point try as a "special interval" in the game, a "bonus" opportunity solely for the benefit of the offensive team. The event is not even marked off on the game clock. The scoring team, as a reward for having made a touchdown, attempts to score "bonus" points—"bonus" meaning without liability.

Now, the NCAA has created a liability.

Henceforth, should the defending team block a kick or intercept a pass or fumble and then return the ball the length of the field, that team gets two points.

How often is that going to happen? About as often as the NCAA exhibits rational behavior. Which is slightly more frequent than never.

But the new rule may affect what you see on the field more often than you think. In fact, the potential for embarrassment—the best indicator of any bad rule—is quite high.

Consider this:

Less than two minutes to play. Your team has just scored a touchdown to go up by nine points. Whether or not you make the extra point, the other team still needs two scoring possessions to win.

That used to be true. But no longer.

If you attempt an extra point, and if the other team blocks the kick and runs it back, your opponent will then need only one scoring possession to win the game. In other words: two points for the runback, six points for a touchdown and two points on a successful conversion run.

That's 10 points. You lose.

How do you avoid this?

Don't kick the extra point. Have your quarterback take the snap, eat the ball and make a travesty out of the whole affair.

Even if the other team comes back to score a TD and add a two-point conversion, you still win.

Letter to the Editor

Let's keep academic reform intact

To the Editor:

During recent years, Divisions I, II and III have made marked progress and improvements in establishing needed academic regulations.

The passing of Proposition 48 a few years ago in Division I will be hailed as a landmark decision.

In 1987, a similar rule was passed by Division II. The passage of this regulation gave credence to the academic integrity within that division.

In January 1988, at the annual Convention, Division II passed Amendment No. 39, a satisfactory-progress rule that requires a progressive minimum grade-point average for student-athletes following each season of competition (1.6 after the first season of competition, 1.8 after the second season and 2.0 after the third).

It seems to me that this action is the most important piece of academic legislation passed since the approval of 5-1-(j) in Division II.

The discouraging segment of the 1988 Convention was the reconsideration and eventual failure of Amendment No. 39 in Division I.

This action or lack of action provides ammunition to the theory that Division I is more concerned with making money than with the academic progress and graduation rates of student-athletes. Hopefully, this lack of commitment to higher academic standards will only be a temporary delay in the approval of academic progress regulations.

It is important that what is being called the "academic reform movement" continue at a steady pace. Collegiate athletics is an important and integral part of most collegiate campuses; therefore, it is important that the highest academic standards be visible to the supporters and critics of collegiate athletics.

Crowd-control penalties backed by Iowa's Davis

University of Iowa head men's basketball coach Tom Davis says he would support penalties against home crowds for throwing objects on the court during college basketball games, but conceded it would be difficult to enforce such a provision.

"I recognize the problem; I don't have any answers," Davis told United Press International. He voiced concerns at the scorer's table about objects being thrown on the court during Iowa's 104-89 victory over Wisconsin at Madison. The game was seen by a national cable television audience.

During a weekly news conference, Davis said he was concerned about possible injury to players on both teams that might be caused by objects on the court, and he thought the situation was a bad precedent in a Big Ten season marked so far by well-mannered spectators.

"My point is that this shouldn't be done during a game, and you don't want objects thrown onto the floor when the game is going on," said Davis.

Davis said he was most concerned when an object flew into the lane while Iowa guard Michael Reaves prepared to shoot a free throw.

"I found it funny that not one of the officials saw it. We all saw it, and I know a lot of people saw it," the Iowa coach said. "If a player runs and hits that, he's done. I mean, he goes down and he tears up a knee; he could get a concussion; he could really get hurt. Those things are dangerous on the court."

If there's no enforceable rule that could curtail the activity, Davis said the situation might be minimized or nundrum that Division III does not give athletics scholarships but does give scholarships that take athletic ability into account. While I doubt very much that member institutions exceeded need, many offered athletes more attractive aid packages with higher grant ratios, broadly interpreting the "consistency" rule.

Many others played strictly by what they considered to be the rules and awarded aid to athletes on precisely the same basis as all other students. The more I studied the matter, the clearer it became to me how unclear the rules were; because they were so subject to interpretation, the regulations were confusing and unenforceable.

Proposition 93 drafted

Nor did I arrive at this conclusion alone. A round-table discussion at the 1987 Convention led to a straw vote in which 70 percent of those present recommended that athletic ability be completely excluded from consideration in awarding financial aid. In response, the Division III Steering Committee drafted Proposition 93 for consideration by the membership.

As one of my last initiatives as chair of the Division III subcommittee of the Commission, with the support of the steering committee, I undertook a survey of Division III presidents, the results of which were published in the January 27 issue of The NCAA News.

In designing the survey, we specifically asked if the presidents felt that athletics should be taken into consideration in aid decisions. Seventy-three percent of the respondents said "no." I presented the preliminary results of the survey at the Division III business meeting the morning of our vote on Proposition 93. And if I had any last-minute misgivings about the confusion in members' minds on interpretation of the financial aid policies, they were completely dispelled by the widely conflicting commentary I heard during the floor debate.

Unequivocal clarity

I voted for Proposition 93 because of the unequivocal clarity it brings to this issue: "... a member institution shall not consider athletic ability as a criterion in the formulation of the financial aid package." There is no room for interpretation here. Proposition 93 plants a flag not only for clarity, but philosophically it returns to our original design for a truly amateur division.

Personally, I believe that the only way we can be a truly amateur division is to keep athletic ability out of the financial aid process—completely and consistently out. Whether we as a division want to do that is another question.

I also have no illusions that with Proposition 93 our work on this issue is finished. By several measures, at least one-third of us disagree with Proposition 93 or what it stands for. I already have heard from a number of colleagues that Proposition 93 is a mistake, that it is not what we want. Some have argued that it is flawed, that the special consideration of athletic ability will simply shift from the financial aid office to the admissions office. Some claim that the amendment will favor institutions with large endowments that are able to offer all students attractive financial aid packages, including athletes.

What is particularly important to me about Proposition 93 is that we now have a clearly defined starting point for the further discussions that will certainly ensue.

We not only have a level field, but we all understand that everyone puts the ball into play on his own 20-yard line. The rules of the game are clear. It is far better to debate the issues from a clearly defined starting point rather than from a point of almost universal uncertainty.

There are those who in good faith believe that Proposition 93 is far too restrictive; they shall be heard. It is possible that structural changes could occur that would accommodate that point of view within the division.

Whatever policy or framework we may eventually adopt, I for one believe that Proposition 93 should be held up, if for nothing else, as a standard for clarity, an unequivocal baseline against which we can measure our programs and be held accountable.

Whalen is president of Ithaca College and immediate past Division III chair of the NCAA Presidents Commission.

Athletics programs contribute funds for financial aid

North Carolina State University and the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, financial aid offices received significant contributions for their general scholarship funds from the respective athletics departments as part of a fund-raising effort initiated during the past football season.

Checks totaling $32,889 were presented to Carl Eycke, North Carolina State's director of financial aid, and Eleanor Morris, director of student aid at North Carolina, by Wolfpack senior associate athletics director Frank Weedon and North Carolina athletics director John D. Swofford during half-time ceremonies at the North Carolina State-North Carolina basketball game in Raleigh January 24.

In light of recent government cutbacks in student loans and scholarship funds, the athletics departments of the Atlantic Coast Conference rivals joined to assist in generating funds for student loans. One dollar from each full-price ticket from the annual Wolfpack-Tar Heel football game will be donated to each school's general scholarship fund. This year's contest, held in North Carolina State's Carter-Finley Stadium, raised a combined $65,778.

"We're very pleased to be able to support the general scholarship fund in this way," said Weedon. "At North Carolina State, these funds will be divided into $1,000 scholarships to be given to qualified students."

Sugar Bowl looking for ways to halt slide in TV ratings

The Sugar Bowl still is the showcase for Southeastern Conference football and still has a New Year's Day date with ABC, but a fifth straight year of weak television ratings raises questions.

The Sugar Bowl finished dead last in the six-bowl New Year's Day field with a rating of 7.9.

One ratings point equals 1 percent of the 88.6 million American homes with at least one television set.

In the game this year, undefeated Syracuse, No. 4, played to a 16-16 tie against 9-1-1 Auburn, SEC champ ranked No. 6.

Jerry Romig, recent past president of the Sugar Bowl, said he was stunned that the game didn't stir more excitement in the viewing public.

"We thought we had a rating," Romig said in an interview with the Associated Press. "We had better teams, we had a better game. We had an Eastern team, which on its own should command some attention (from the Northeast, the most populous section of the country). And more than that, we had an undefeated, untied Eastern team."

"It wasn't a national championship game, but by any other measure, it was at least as attractive as some of the other games on New Year's Day. I thought we'd draw at least a 10. To say I'm disappointed would be an understatement."

The Orange Bowl, matching No. 1 Oklahoma against No. 2 Miami in a head-to-head showdown for the mythical national title, led the bowl ratings derby with a 20.8. But even that was the lowest rating in history for a bowl matching No. 1 against No. 2.

The Rose Bowl had a rating of 16.5, the Cotton 10, the Fiesta 8.7 and the Citrus 8.2.

Ratings were down overall. The ratings for the day, 72.1, were down 16.8 points off last year's 88.9, when five games were played on January 1—a drop of 23 million fewer viewers.

Romig said he wrote a note to Dennis Swanson, president of ABC, telling him that the Sugar Bowl was willing to do anything—consider a time change, perhaps a switch to New Year's Eve—in order to reverse the Sugar's disastrous TV slide.

The Sugar Bowl opposed ABC's suggestion two years ago that the game move from prime time to daytime, although the will of the network ultimately prevailed. "There are others that we also have to consider," Romig said. "Our partners are USF&G (United States Fidelity and Guaranty, the insurance company that sponsors the game) and ABC, and we have to be aware of what's best for them as well as what we think is best for the Sugar Bowl."

Swanson insisted ABC doesn't want to change the current 2:40 p.m. kickoff, and he envisions no drastic changes. "We want higher ratings, of course," Swanson said, "but there is no panic at ABC, no dismay. This is a long-term arrangement, and we're not going to make averted by placing student sections and school bands on the home team's end of the court.

"If you check where problems like that come from, it almost always comes out of that student area, and in this case that was certainly true," Davis added.

Overall, the Iowa coach said fan conduct around the league has been good this season, and he merely wanted to keep it that way.

moves just for the sake of making moves."

There are several factors that may have dragged the Sugar Bowl

"If our partners (ABC) wanted us to look into it (a return to a New Year's Eve game), we'd look into it."

—Jerry Romig, past president of the Sugar Bowl Association ratings down. Romig said one theory was that ABC's first telecast of the day, the Citrus Bowl pairing Clemson and Penn State, was decided early. "It's possible," Romig said, "that a lot of the Eastern market switched channels as Penn State was blown out and never returned."

The Fiesta Bowl, a close, exciting game that wasn't decided until the final minute, was being carried by NBC. By the time the Fiesta ended, the pregame of the Rose Bowl, which Swanson agreed was the toughest football competition of New Year's Day, was beginning.

Even when the Rose doesn't have a pairing attractive to the football aficionado, the Pasadena, California, bowl has a huge built-in audience even when it doesn't have the best game. This year's Michigan State-Southern Cal Rose Bowl was close (20-17) from start to finish.

Swanson also pointed out that on the most crowded New Year's Day in decades, the Sugar Bowl was in the same television "window" as three other games—a first since the mid-1960s when the Sugar, Orange and Cotton traditionally overlapped.

"Unless you have the game of the year, maybe that's too much football at that time," Romig said. Swanson, while acknowledging the difficult position of the Sugar Bowl, said he plans no time change. "We're better off now than we were two years ago," Swanson said.

One Sugar Bowl answer could be a return to a New Year's Eve night game. Four Sugar Bowls were played on December 31 in the early-to-mid-1970s, all with respectable results.

"If our partners (ABC) wanted us to look into it (a return to a New Year's Eve game), we'd look into it," Romig said.

Everyone agrees nothing helps ratings like a national championship game. But the SEC, which furnishes the Sugar Bowl's host team, may not be in position to provide a serious No. 1 contender.

The SEC turns out six or seven quality football teams each season, which practically negates the possibility of an undefeated national championship contender.

"We're in partnership with the Sugar Bowl," said Mark Womack, assistant commissioner of the SEC, "and we want to provide a No. 1 team every year. But we're a pretty competitive league."

Swanson is confident of a turnaround. "All the bowls—Rose, Orange, Sugar—have had their moments. The Sugar will again."

Romig said he's sure of one thing. "We've got to find an answer," he said. "With 7.9 television ratings, the future is not bright."

Old Dominion men, Lamar women most improved

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

This has been a season of much joy for many men's Division I teams around the country, with some big losers of 1987 becoming winners in 1988. Old Dominion under veteran coach Tom Young now leads the most-improved race, with several others close behind.

Old Dominion finished 6-22 a year ago and last in the Sun Belt Conference at 1-13; but the Monarchs now stand 14-7 through games of February 7, and they are very much in the conference title race. All five starters returned, and Young added speed and quickness in the backcourt. Inexperience was the biggest problem last season, Young's second, after a senior team won 23 games in his first year on the job.

It was only the second losing season in 27 years of head coaching for Young, who is 463-271 entering this season. His 1976 Rutgers team reached the Final Four. But Young is most proud of the fact that 92 percent of his players over the years have earned degrees.

Old Dominion's improvement comes out to 11½ games (eight more victories and 15 fewer losses is 23; divide by two). Next at 10 games each are Appalachian State, from 7-21 to 13-7, and St. Bonaventure, from 5-23 to 11-9.

Loyola Marymount, under Paul Westhead, is seeking to become the first team in the 36-year history of the West Coast Athletic Conference to go from last place to the championship in one year. The Lions were 12-16 a year ago and a last-place 4-10 in the WCAC. Now they are 18-3 and 8-0 in WCAC play and leading Division I in scoring.

That is an improvement of 9½ games, and the Lions are on a roll with back-to-back road victories. It is a surge that could carry them to the most-improved crown. Next at nine games is San Diego State under Jim Brandenburg, a 215-game winner, in his first season after moving from Wyoming. The Aztecs are 9-11 after going 5-25 last year.

Once won 99 straight

A season with 23 losses was particularly hard to take at St. Bonaventure. This is a college that had won 99 straight home games—from 1948 to 1961—at its old home court, the Olean (New York) Armory. That is the second longest streak in history to Kentucky's 129 from 1943 to 1955. Since the Reilly Center opened in 1966, the Bonnies have won 85 percent at home. Basketball is virtually the only game in this small town south of Buffalo in western New York. "It was depressing," barber Ray Padio told Erik Brady of USA Today. "We were all in a state of shock." (The school has had four career 2,000-point scorers, tied with Tennessee, behind leaders North Carolina and Duke, at five each.)

Coach Ron DeCarli, who beat lymph cancer a decade ago, is in the second year of a three-year contract. "Every loss last year was like a chemotherapy treatment," he said.

Veteran coach Tom Apke is in his second year at Appalachian State. The former Creighton and Colorado coach got his 200th career victory early this season. Apke's team was picked sixth in the Southern Conference preseason poll but now is a solid first-division team, helped by some talented newcomers.

Westhead, former Los Angeles Lakers head coach, finally has the personnel to play the running, pressing game he loves. "We're a good team," he says. "We can go eight deep without much change in ability." Westhead has a potent blend of

Several close

Several other teams are in the race, or are in position to get there. Oklahoma State, 8-20 last year in Leonard Hamilton's first season, now is 12-8 after sweeping a pair of road games at Nebraska and Iowa State last week. Mississippi State, 7-21 in Richard Williams' first season last year, now is 11-9, matching Oklahoma State's eight-game improvement. Creighton, 9-19 in Tony Barone's second season a year ago, now is up to 13-8.

Villanova, 15-16 last year, is a surprise team in the Big East Conference, partly due to 7-2 Tom Greis, who lost 35 pounds in an off-season conditioning program. Another Big East surprise is Connecticut, 9-19 place tie in the Southwest Athletic Conference at 7-2 and 18-4 in all games, after a 7-9 conference finish last year. Northeast Louisiana is contending for the Southland Conference title after going 3-7 last year. Pepperdine, an 18-game loser in a rare losing year in 1987, has surpassed its WCAC victory total of a year ago and is 14-7.

In another category is another long list of teams that were winners last year but are much improved, particularly in conference play.

For instance, Kansas State, 20-11 and an NCAA team in 1987 though 8-6 in Big Eight Conference play, is off to a 6-0 conference start. Arkansas, only 8-8 in SWC play last year, is tied for the lead with SMU. Vanderbilt has a 7-4 Southeastern Con-ton State 8½ games; 10-7 Furman and 15-1 Wake Forest both eight; 16-1 Stanford 7½; 11-4 Boise State, 11-4 Delaware and 14-3 Indiana State each seven games; 13-3 San Diego State 6½, and five teams were up six games—10-8 Colorado State, 7-5 Cornell, 10-5 George Mason, 9-5 Texas A&M and 10-6 Tulane.

Others have won more than all last year but still had non-winning records, like Coastal Carolina (0-24 to 6-6), Coppin State (1-24 to 6-9) and Cheyney (2-25 to 6-10).

Among the 20 winners up at least six games, three have head-coaching experience at the four-year level but are new on the job. They are UC Santa Barbara's Mark French, Clemson's Jim Davis and North Carolina A&T's Tim Abney (an interim coach last year).

Eight others are in just their second or third year at that school. They are Cincinnati's Laurie Pirtle, Colorado State's Brian Berger, Lamar's Al Barbre, Loyola Marymount's Todd Corman, Sam Houston State's Royce Chadwick, Stanford's Tara Van Derveer, Tulane's Joline Matsunami and Wake Forest's Joe Sanchez.

Stuck on 16

The all-time list of teams that have entered the men's NCAA tournament undefeated is stuck on 16 with the latest and biggest upset wave of the season. And the number of undefeated champions still is seven, with Indiana the last team to do it—back in 1976. And the question remains, will those numbers ever change?

Not one team in the 1980s has entered the NCAA tournament with a perfect record. The last to do that was Indiana State in 1979, and it lost to Michigan State in the championship game.

In fact, once-beaten NCAA tournament entrants are vanishing. There have been only six in the 1980s. Not one came away with the championship, and just one—Nevada-Las Vegas last year—reached the Final Four. DePaul had three, and each lost its first game—in 1980, 1981 and 1982. The others were Alcorn State in 1980, 1-1 in tournament play, and Oregon State in 1981, a first-game loser.

Going back through 1977, only two other teams entered the tournament with one loss (San Francisco and Arkansas, both in 1977), and both lost the first game. That makes just eight once-beaten entrants in the past 11 years and six first-game losers.

Even twice-beaten NCAA tournament entrants no longer are common, with just 13 in the first eight seasons of the 1980s (at least one every year except 1981).

Final Four Quiz:

There have been only seven undefeated NCAA championship teams in the first 49 tournaments. Name the teams and the years. (Hint: UCLA had four of the seven). Answer later.

last year but now up to 11-8.

Maryland, without a victory in the Atlantic Coast Conference last year (0-14 and 9-17 for all games) in Bob Wade's first season after an illustrious high school career, is 12-6 after sweeping road games at Notre Dame and Old Dominion last week.

Long Beach State, a 19-game loser in 1987, is 13-7 in Joe Harrington's first season. The players are the same, but they are playing much harder, as he promised.

After 83 losses the past four seasons, more people want to watch the 49ers, and their last two games will be in Long Beach Arena, rather than their small gym. Harrington has been working the players hard, but they are not complaining.

One of his assistants is Derek Whittenberg, who took the last shot in North Carolina State's dramatic last-second victory over Houston for the 1983 national championship. Harrington, who came from George Mason (112-85 in seven years), said, "We're aggressive in recruiting and workouts but, at the same time, a little laid back, too; a good combination for us."

Some teams are showing even more improvement in conference play than in their all-games record, such as Southern Methodist, Northeast Louisiana and Pepperdine. All the teams mentioned already have won at least as many games as all last season. Others in this category with winning records are Drexel, Delaware, Richmond, Florida A&M, Toledo, Iowa State, Texas Southern, Arizona State and Miami (Florida).

Southern Methodist is in a firstference record after going 7-11 last year. North Carolina-Charlotte is leading in the Sun Belt Conference at 6-1 after 6-8 last year. Utah State, like Long Beach State, has turned things around in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. In the same conference, UC Santa Barbara, once a dormat, now is a big winner with two victories over Nevada-Las Vegas; and tickets have become so hard to get that closed-circuit television became a solution. In the Big Ten Conference, Michigan has gone from a 10-8 league record to a title contender.

In a special situation, too, is Virginia Tech's Frankie Allen, who took over an 18-game loser in his first year as head coach with the university on probation and ineligible for postseason play. Tech's 15-6 record includes victories over Georgetown in December and a 141-135, two-overtime marathon over Southern Mississippi February 6.

Women's leaders

Many women's Division I teams have shown remarkable improvement over last season. Heading the list is Lamar, up 12½ games from 2-24 to 10-7 through games of January 24. Next at 11 games is Tennessee-Chattanooga, from 7-20 to 11-2 at the same stage.

Clemson was up 10½ (7-21 to 10-4) and two were up 10 games—UC Santa Barbara (4-22 to 8-6) and Loyola Marymount (5-23 to 11-9). Fifteen more teams with winning records through January 24 were up at least six games.

Cincinnati, 9-6 at that point, was up 9½ games; 9-4 North Carolina A&T nine games; 11-3 Sam Hous-

This may be the first season since the inaugural tournament in 1939 that every entrant has at least three losses. There was just one three-loss entrant in 1939—Brown at 16-3—and two entrants with four losses (Villanova and Texas, each 19-4). Champion Oregon entered with a 26-5 record that year, playing a true intersectional schedule. [Long Island and Loyola (Illinois) both perfect that year, both lost in the National Invitation Tournament.]

The upset wave in the first week of February left only Temple and Brigham Young in the one-loss category. Coaches say probably 75 Division I teams have the talent to beat anyone on a given night. Gene Bartow, after his Alabama-Birmingham team had beaten BYU, said, "This is the best game a UAB team has ever played."

The Alabama-Birmingham loss retired another lucky suit for BYU coach Ladell Andersen. He had worn the same light grey-brown suit every game during the 17-game streak. His wife, Donna, wants everyone to know that Ladell did have it cleaned after every game. Two years ago, Ladell had a 12-game winning streak and that suit was framed in a display by a local clothier. (Ralph Zobell, Brigham Young associate SID)

Washington University (Missouri) men's basketball coach Mark Edwards recently was honored by the St. Louis Baseball Writers Association with an annual college achievement award. Several Cardinal baseball stars also were honored, and football stars were there along with several other sports celebrities. When his eight-year-old son Todd found out, he repeatedly asked his Dad to get autographs.

Well, Dad did not get any autographs during the prebanquet reception, nor did he get any during the dinner. Finally, prodded by wife Mary during the postdinner reception, he gave in and began looking around the room for a star. In one corner, he noticed several people trying to get an autograph from a rather large man, but one he did not recognize. Edwards decided he'd better get an autograph, because time was running out. The following morning, Todd excitedly asked to see the autographs. His dad handed him the program. Todd, pausing for a second, asked, "Dad, who is King Kong Bundy?" [Mike Wolf, Washington (Missouri) SID]

Some coaches want Proposition 48 nonqualifiers to practice

By Randy Minkoff

Several Big Ten Conference coaches are calling on the NCAA to modify Proposition 48 to allow academically ineligible players the chance to practice with the team.

University of Illinois, Champaign, coach Lou Henson said the Proposition 48 rule is "unfair to underprivileged" students, but he added that part of the situation could be corrected by allowing players to practice.

"It's unfair right now," Henson said. "Proposition 48 is unfair to the underprivileged. We may not admit it, but it is."

Henson said the NCAA and its schools are "hiding" behind a myth that ineligible players are in the classroom rather than practicing.

"They are down in the intramural room practicing for two or three hours a day anyway," Henson said.

Ohio State University coach Gary Williams said the NCAA should allow Proposition 48 players to practice with the varsity in the second semester if they make progress in the classroom.

"They should be allowed to practice in the second quarter or second semester for at least two hours. That would give them a sense of identity," Williams said. "We've got two players who are Proposition 48 (nonqualifiers), and I see them around campus and they look like the loneliest people in the world because they aren't playing with the team."

Williams said allowing the ineligible players to practice would do more to motivate them academically.

The University of Michigan may have felt the effects of Proposition 48 harder than any team in the Big Ten this year. Sophomores Rumeal Robinson and Terry Mills, two of the most hotly recruited players in the country two years ago, are still playing "like freshmen," according to coach Bill Frieder.

"It would have helped a great deal if they could have practiced with us. They weren't involved with basketball in any shape or form," Frieder said. "We should allow them to practice."

At the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, coach Clem Haskins said not practicing last year hurt sophomore guard Melvin Newbern and other players in the league.

"It's affected him, in practice time and being away from it," he said. "I think they should be allowed to work out as long as it doesn't affect them academically. We need to look back at the rule and let them practice."

Haskins said it hurts both inner-city and suburban kids not getting a chance to practice.

"I would also like to see the rule changed to allow them to retain four years of eligibility instead of losing the one year," Haskins added.

Michigan State University coach Jud Heathcote agreed with Haskins to allow four years of eligibility and allow them to practice.

"We haven't taken anyone who is a Proposition 48," Heathcote said. "It has restricted our recruiting efforts, especially with the early signing."

named Curtis? Well, that is just a nickname. Jackson's given name is Cleveland. (Tim Stephens, DePaul SID)

It can be confusing when it comes time to call in the highlights of a Loras men's game to the media. In most cases, when asked the name of Loras' leading scorer, the answer is "Daniel." "No," they reply, "we need his last name." And we say, "That is his last name. His first name is David." Then they ask who else scored in double figures, the answer is Dan Allen (one person) and the same routine takes place. Finally a tired and frustrated reporter, now calm, says, "Sounds like you had a good game. Hey, how's that Hellers kid playing?" After a moment of silence, we ask, "Gary or Kevin?" (Greg Yoko, Loras SID)

Phil Woolpert coached San Francisco, Frank McGuire North Carolina, Bob Knight Indiana and John Wooden the four UCLA teams.*

Reade's real philosophy involves not winning so much as doing your best.

"Too often the scoreboard tells you that you're a loser when you have done all you can with your God-given ability. That's really winning. Football is still a game. We treat it as a game, not life and death."

Reade and his Vikings have won every honor in football—national championships, conference titles, all-America selections, academic all-America selections, postgraduate scholarship winners and coach-of-the-year honors.

Reade has pushed the Vikings to seven straight unbeaten regular-season finishes.

Reade is a 1954 graduate of Cornell (Iowa) College and holds a master's degree in physical education from the University of Iowa.

Stull

UTEP, mired with one of the least successful programs in Division I football, has made a drastic turnaround under coach Bob Stull who, in his second season, led the Miners to a 7-4 finish. It was the first winning season in El Paso since 1970 and the first time the Miners had won as many as seven games since 1967.

When Stull was hired in 1985, the Miners had a record of 15-111 since 1974, but he brought a reputation of rebuilding teams and being able to recruit. During his tenure as an assistant for Don James, first at Kent State and later at Washington, he learned his trade well.

Stull, who served 13 years as an assistant at Washington, has reestablished the Miners' belief that they could win.

Stull served as a head coach for the first time in a two-year (1984-1985) stint at Massachusetts, where he improved the Minutemen from last place in the Yankee Conference to second place.

In three years as an assistant at Kent State, he helped lead the Golden Flashes to a 9-2 record, a Mid-American Conference championship and a berth in the Tangerine Bowl.

He accompanied James to Washington, where he served as offensive coordinator and recruiting coordinator for one of the most successful programs in the Pacific-10 Conference.

New women's soccer play-off will have four-team field

The new Division II Women's Soccer Championship will feature a four-team field when it is staged for the first time in November, according to a recommendation made by the NCAA Women's Soccer Committee during its February 1-4 meeting in Kansas City.

One team will be selected from each of four regions, with teams to be paired for the 1988 championship as follows: New England vs. South and West vs. Northeast. The participating teams will be selected on the first Tuesday in November (November 1 this year) and will compete in semifinal and championship games on the second Saturday and Sunday of the month (November 12-13) at a participating team's campus.

Pairings in future years are: 1989—New England vs. West and Northeast vs. South, and 1990—New England vs. Northeast and West vs. South.

The tournament format is subject to Executive Committee approval.

Members of the soccer committee also reviewed the use of automatic qualification in women's soccer and expressed their support for the concept.

The committee agreed to study the feasibility and desirability of using automatic qualification in all three divisions during the 1989 season. A memorandum will be sent to all conferences prior to upcoming spring meetings to determine how many currently meet, or could meet within two years, the minimum criteria for automatic-qualification eligibility.

Committee members also affirmed that, in addition to meeting the criteria for automatic qualification in Executive Regulation 1-6, a conference can conduct regular-season single or double round-robin play among all conference members. Likewise, conferences of eight or more members can conduct single or double round-robin play among divisions of at least four members, followed by a conference tournament or play-off between divisions to determine a champion.

Combined rules

On the subject of rules, the committee recommended that representatives of the NCAA Men's and Women's Soccer Committees meet to discuss the feasibility and desirability of establishing common NCAA soccer rules. Women's teams currently play under rules of the Federation Internationale de Football Association (FIFA).

Should the committees agree on such issues as whether their philosophies are or may become compatible, legislation could be submitted at the 1989 NCAA Convention to establish a Men's and Women's Soccer Committee that would develop rules for the 1989 season. The Women's Soccer Committee believes that the legislation should provide equal representation for men's and women's soccer and should provide for the division of specific rules in instances where the men and women are unable to agree.

The committee also approved the use of FIFA rules, including existing NCAA championships modifications, for the 1988 season. Members also agreed that changes made by FIFA after August 1 of any year will not be implemented for that season's championships.

In addition, the committee retained its rule requiring that tied games be followed by two complete 15-minute overtime periods in order to be considered in the selection of teams for championships. Institutions seeking a change had cited concerns about injuries, but committee members urged the institutions to deal with those concerns through proper scheduling.

Division III proposals

Responding to coaches' concerns regarding the Division III championship, the committee recommended selecting a minimum of two teams, rather than one, from each of the four Division III regions to participate in the 12-team tournament. The committee believes such a plan will foster intraregional play and parity among the regions and will help alleviate a perceived inequity in the selection process caused by lack of comparative data.

The committee also agreed to develop data for a possible request to the Division III Championships Committee that the Division III bracket be expanded to 16 teams.

Finally, the committee decided to seek legislation at the 1989 Convention that would increase the size of the women's committee to 12 members. The enlarged committee—consisting of six Division I members, three Division II members and three Division III members—would act as one body to determine general policies for women's soccer championships, while division subcommittees would administer the respective division championships.

Dates submitted for championship

The Division III Women's Volleyball Committee, meeting February 2-5 in Kansas City, voted to recommend that the 1988 championship be held November 10-12 (first round/quarterfinals) and November 18-19 (semifinals and finals) on the campuses of participating institutions.

Members also recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that last year's championship format, in which six teams were sent to each of four first-round/quarterfinal sites, be retained for 1988.

Recommendations from the volleyball committee will be forwarded to the Executive Committee for approval at its May 2-3 meeting.

The volleyball committee also recommended the following conferences for automatic qualification to the 1988 championship: College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin, Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference, Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Ohio Athletic Conference, Old Dominion Athletic Conference, Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, and the State University of New York Athletic Conference.

Concerning championship officials' fees, the committee will recommend that the second referee be paid the same amount per match as the first referee and that the alternate referee's fee be increased $5 per match. If approved, the alternate referee will be given the added responsibility of supervising the lines judges.

In addition, the committee will seek Executive Committee approval for an increase in minimum championship ticket prices—from $3 to $4 for adults and from $2 to $3 for students with identification. The committee also proposed a $2 ticket for children under age 12.

This will bring the total number of hall of famers to 165 individuals and four teams enshrined since 1959.

Lovellette, Unseld and Miller were elected in their first nomination year, while McDermott was nominated by the special Veterans' Committee.

Lovellette

Lovellette, who is director of vocational education and the general equivalency degree program at White's Institute, Wabash, Indiana, is a native of Petersburg, Indiana.

The 6-9 Lovellette began his career as an all-state center at Garfield High School, Terre Haute, Indiana, and continued to receive honors through college and the professional ranks. At the University of Kansas, where he played three years for Hall of Fame coach Phog Allen, he was a three-time all-America was the Big Seven Conference scoring champion each season and led the nation in scoring with a 28.4 average. In his senior year (1951-52), as captain, he led the Jayhawks to the NCAA title, was named most outstanding player in the Final Four and was the Helms Foundation player-of-the-year.

He was a member of the 1952 USA team that won the Olympic gold medal in Helsinki.

During his 11 seasons in the National Basketball Association, 1954 to 1964, Lovellette played with the 1954 champion Minneapolis Lakers and the 1963 and 1964 champion Boston Celtics. He played four years with the Lakers, one with Cincinnati, four with St. Louis and wound up his career in 1964 after two seasons with the Celtics. He averaged 17 points in 704 NBA games.

McDermott

McDermott, who died in an automobile accident in 1963, turned professional after his first year at Flushing (New York) High School. He played with many of the nation's top teams, including the Original Celtics, Brooklyn Visitations, Fort Wayne Zollner Pistons and Chicago Gears.

In 1945, as player-coach the New York City native led the Pistons to their second of three consecutive world professional titles. McDermott was voted "the greatest professional basketball player of all time" in 1945. Among those who voted for him were hall-of-famers Dutch Dehnert, George Mikan and Al Cervi. The poll was conducted by the six coaches and managers of the National Basketball League.

The 5-11 set-shooter outpooled Dehnert, Nat Holman, John Beckman and Joe Lapchick, members of the Original Celtics and hall of famers.

McDermott, who was selected to the NBL's all-star team seven straight years, was considered the dominant player in professional basketball from the mid-1930s through the late-1940s. He also was player-coach of the NBL champion Chicago Gears, 1946-47.

Unseld

Unseld, currently coaching the Washington Bullets, is a native of Louisville, Kentucky, and a product of Seneca High School, where he won all-district and regional honors for three years. He graduated in 1964 and enrolled at the University of Louisville.

While playing for coach Peck Hickman, Unseld established himself as a rebounder and offensive threat. He averaged 18.9 rebounds and 20.6 points in 82 collegiate games en route to being named all-

America in 1967 and 1968. The Cardinals with Unseld appeared in three successive postseason tournaments: 1966 NIT and 1967 and 1968 NCAA tournaments.

He was a first-round draft pick of the Baltimore Bullets in 1968 and spent his entire 13-year professional career with the Bullets. Unseld and hall-of-famer Wilt Chamberlain are the only two players to be named the NBA's most valuable player and rookie-of-the-year. Unseld achieved these honors in 1969 when he was named to the NBA first team and played in the all-star game.

Unseld led the Bullets to the 1978 NBA crown and was named MVP in the championship series.

During his career, the 6-11 Unseld appeared in five all-star games and led the NBA in rebounding in 1975. In 984 NBA games, he averaged 13.99 rebounds and scored 10,624 points (10.8 average).

Upon retirement in 1981, he was named vice-president of the Washington Bullets. In this capacity, he makes special appearances for the team and Capital Centre. He also has coordinated the Bullets' Baltimore office; worked as TV color analyst, and is involved in broadcast development, sponsorships and community relations.

He started the current season as an assistant coach and took over as acting head coach in early January.

In 1975, Unseld was the first recipient of the Walter Kennedy Citizenship Award, which is given annually to the NBA player or coach making the greatest civic contribution to his community. He is a past vice-president of the NBA Players Association.

Miller

Miller, the nation's most successful active collegiate coach in Division I, is a native of Chanute, Kansas, where he won 11 letters in high school. At Chanute High, he was captain, all-state and all-conference three years in basketball, all-state in football three years and held the Kansas low-hurdle record.

At the University of Kansas, where he played basketball for hall-of-fame coach Phog Allen, he led the team in scoring two years and was team captain as a senior. He also was the starting Jayhawk quarterback three years.

Following three years in the Air Force in World War II, Miller worked in the Redlands, California, Recreation Department for a year before launching his coaching career in 1948 at East High School in Wichita, Kansas. He won 63 out of 80 games at East.

During his 37 collegiate seasons —

13 at Wichita State, six at Iowa and 19 at Oregon State — Miller has had 32 winning seasons. He was named coach-of-the-year in two successive years, 1981 and 1982; is one of the few mentors to be named twice as conference coach-of-the-year in three separate conferences (Missouri Valley, 1954 and 1964; Big Ten, 1968 and 1970, and Pacific-10, 1975 and 1981); won titles in each conference (Missouri Valley, Wichita State, 1964; Big Ten, Iowa, 1968 and 1970, and Pacific-10, Oregon State, 1980 and 1981), and brought his teams to the NIT five times and the NCAA championship eight times.

Miller is one of only 10 Division I collegiate coaches in history with over 600 victories. He started the current season with 632 victories.

He is also a recipient of the NABC Merit Award and has been elected to both the Kansas State and Wichita State halls of fame.

WHAT QUENCHES A FULL COURT THIRST?

Purdue plans to build indoor practice facility

Plans are under way at Purdue University for the construction of an indoor practice field and weight-training facility.

Purdue will join seven other schools in the Big Ten Conference that have such a facility or are constructing one, said Frederick Ford, university executive vice-president and treasurer.

Construction will not begin until sufficient gifts have been provided for this project, Ford said. Once construction begins, he said, it will take about 14 months to complete the facility.

Located just north of the existing intercollegiate athletics facility, the new structure will provide a year-round practice field adjacent to the natural-turf football practice field.

The building will include an artificial playing surface of regulation size. A covered walkway will connect the new facility with the existing building's locker room. Also included within the facility will be a weight-training room with a floor overhead to allow for future office expansion.

Estimated cost for the structure is $6 million, to be paid from gift funds and athletics department earnings. No state tax dollars will be involved.

NACDA clinic planned for April in Kansas City

The National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics will stage its 22nd annual Midwest Facilities and Fund-Raising Clinic April 3-4 in Kansas City, Missouri.

Indoor and outdoor facilities-construction projects at five institutions—and the fund-raising efforts that made them possible—will be discussed by representatives of the schools and the architectural firms involved in the projects. The clinic will be presented at Kansas City's Adam's Mark Hotel, in conjunction with the NCAA Final Four.

Athletics directors from the featured institutions will be among the panelists. The facilities to be discussed and the participating athletics directors are the San Diego State University football operations center, Fred L. Miller; Saginaw Valley State College gymnasium, Robert T. Becker; West Virginia University football stadium expansion, Fred A. Schaus; Wright State University gymnasium, Michael J. Cusack; and Southeast Missouri State University gymnasium, Marvin Rosen-garten. A session titled "Modern Fieldhouses for the Winning Edge" also is scheduled.

Registration fees are $150 for NACDA members and $250 for others. Lodging will be available at the Adam's Mark Hotel. A limited number of single tickets to the Final Four also are available to clinic registrants on a first-come, first-served basis.

Field hockey cut, but soccer added

The University of Maryland, Baltimore County, will drop field hockey and add women's soccer as a varsity sport, according to Rick R. Hartzell, athletics director.

Eric Hawkes will coach the soccer team, which initially will be a non-scholarship program. Hawkes will continue as an assistant coach of the men's team.

"The building will provide the athletics department with much more than a weather-protected year-round varsity football practice facility," said George S. King Jr., athletics director. "The baseball squad, marching band, cheerleaders and other athletics groups will benefit from this structure."

The new facility, King said, will offer immediate relief to the overcrowded conditions at Lambert Field House, which is being used by numerous groups as well as classes.

The project, King said, also will have a major impact on Purdue's football recruiting effort, putting the university on equal footing with other Big Ten schools.

NYSP increases project budgets

A budget increase of approximately four percent for each National Youth Sports Program project was approved by the NYSP Committee during its meeting January 31-February 3 in Tucson, Arizona.

The increase, which is based on a boost in Federal funding from $5.866 million to $6.139 million, should help satisfy transportation needs and provide hot meals for participants.

Committee members also made plans for the NYSP regional workshop, which is set for March 3-5 at the Twin Bridges Marriott in Washington, D.C.

The workshop, which will emphasize planning for celebration of the program's 20th year, will feature sessions on drug education, lesson plans, motivational and teaching techniques, review of new guidelines and completion of project materials, and the structuring of an aquatics program.

Representatives of projects cited by the committee last October as being very special also will discuss various aspects of the projects during the workshop. The institutions are Arizona State University; the University of Dayton; Floyd Junior College; the University of the District of Columbia; the University of Southern California; Lane College, and Southern University, Baton Rouge. In addition, Southern California and Ohio State University will receive special recognition as institutions that have continued to serve as hosts of NYSP projects since sponsoring pilot projects during the summer of 1968.

Project administrators also will visit congressional representatives to thank them for their support and reinforce NYSP's importance in serving disadvantaged youth.

In other actions, the committee approved a bid from American Sports Underwriters to provide liability and accident-medical insurance for NYSP projects and participants. For the first time, liability-insurance costs will be paid from the overall grant.

Also, the committee again approved USA Today's educational program, Classline Focus, for use in the NYSP enrichment program. It also appointed 10-year NYSP veteran Ernest R. Scott of Detroit, Michigan, to serve as a project evaluator.

Strip into more confidence.

Coaches named

Syracuse University coach Jim Boeheim and University of Nevada, Las Vegas, coach Jerry Tarkanian will direct the teams at the 26th National Association of Basketball Coaches all-America game this spring.

The game, staged during the NABC's convention, will be played March 31 at Municipal Auditorium in Kansas City, Missouri.

NABC Executive Director Joe Vancisin said the game normally features the coaches from the previous year's NCAA Division I championship game; but since Indiana University, Bloomington, coach Bob Knight already had coached in three of the games, Tarkanian was asked to fill in.

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee:

1. Considered 1988 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 16 amending O.I.s 301 and 302, which specifies that "practice activities" are those that involve sports-related information and have an athletics purpose; agreed that O.I.s 301 and 302 would not encompass meetings or discussions between a student-athlete and a member or members of an institution's coaching staff, provided the meeting is initiated by the student-athlete and does not involve a chalk talk, lecture, showing of motion pictures or any physical activities relating to the sport; reaffirmed that O.I. 302 would not encompass meetings held to discuss training-room procedures, team discipline, general meeting schedules, information about housing and meals, and meetings held to discuss off-season conditioning activities.

2. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 17 amending O.I. 303, which specifies that any physical activity composed of or including primarily members of an intercollegiate team, either on a required-attendance basis or where the class utilizes equipment for the sport, constitutes a practice activity; noted that the application of Proposal No. 17 was intended to relate to practice activities conducted under the guise of a physical education class; referred to the NCAA Council the issue of whether new legislation should be developed regarding off-season conditioning programs.

3. (Division I) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 22 amending Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(3), which confirms that a nonqualifier or partial qualifier who is not recruited and does not receive athletically related financial assistance shall be entitled to three seasons of competition; noted that a partial qualifier is treated as a nonqualifier for purposes of Bylaw 5, except that a partial qualifier may receive financial aid during the freshman year based upon institutional and conference regulations; suggested that Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(3) be amended to indicate that nonqualifiers, including partial qualifiers, shall be entitled to three seasons of eligibility per Bylaw 5-1-(d) subsequent to their initial year of residence at the certifying institution.

4. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 31 amending Bylaw 10-6(f), which would have affirmed that Divisions II and III student-athletes may not participate in a Division I championship if their initial full-time collegiate enrollment occurred subsequent to the 1986-87 academic year; agreed that inasmuch as Proposal No. 31 was defeated by the membership, it is necessary that the NCAA Executive Committee review Bylaw 10-6-(f) and Executive Regulation 1-3-(d) in regard to the continued participation of Division II or III student-athletes in Division I championships.

5. (Division II) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 39 amending Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)-(ii), which further defines satisfactory progress at Division II institutions as the achievement of a 1.600 grade-point average after the completion of the first season of competition, a 1.800 grade-point average after the completion of the second season of competition and a 2.000 grade-point average after the completion of the third and subsequent seasons of competition; noted the following previous Council-approved interpretations (January 1988) regarding the implementation of Proposal No. 39:

a. For purposes of Proposal No. 39, "hardship" years would be included in determining the number of seasons of competition in which a student-athlete has participated.

b. "Redshirt" years would not be considered in calculating the number of seasons of competition.

c. Transfer students who have competed at another institution would be required to include those seasons of competition in determining the grade-point standard that would be applicable under this rule.

d. The grade-point average necessary for a multisport participant would be determined on the basis of the number of seasons completed in the sport in which the student-athlete has participated most often. For example, if a student-athlete has competed in softball for three seasons and in volleyball for two seasons, the student-athlete must have an accumulative grade-point average of 2.000 to compete in either softball or volleyball the next

e. All course work normally considered by the institution in calculating grade-point averages for its students would be countable in determining the minimum accumulative grade-point average under this rule.

f. Transfer students would have their eligibility under this rule determined on the basis of their accumulative grade-point averages as normally calculated by the certifying member institution for such students.

g. Pass/fail courses may not be utilized in determining the minimum grade-point average.

h. Summer school courses may be utilized in determining whether the student-athlete has achieved the minimum grade-point average. (Note: The Legislation and Interpretations Committee has asked that the Council amend this interpretation to indicate that summer school courses shall be utilized in determining whether the student-athlete has achieved the minimum grade-point average.)

i. The accumulative grade-point average necessary to establish eligibility under

Conference No. 1
January 14, 1988

this rule must be determined on the basis of the student-athlete's record as of the beginning of the academic year or at the beginning of the semester during which the student-athlete's next season of competition will begin.

6. (Divisions I and II) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 41 amending Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6) [satisfactory-progress rule], which requires that Divisions I and II member institutions certify eligibility under the satisfactory-progress rule during the fall term of each academic year and provides an opportunity for a student-athlete who is ineligible in the fall to become eligible at the beginning of another regular term; concluded that with the adoption of Proposal No. 41, the provisions of Case Nos. 324 through 328 remain applicable to the satisfactory-progress rule.

7. (Divisions I and II) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 45 amending Bylaw 5-1-(j), which authorizes the Council to grant exceptions to Bylaw 5-1-(j) in cases where the student's overall academic record warrants such an exception; noted a previous Council-approved interpretation (January 1988), which indicates that for purposes of Proposal No. 45, an exception to Bylaw 5-1-(j) would not be granted in those instances involving "borderline" students; further, determined that the adoption of Proposal No. 45 would permit the retroactive application of the Bylaw 5-1-(j) exceptions to those students who initially enrolled at a Division I member institution subsequent to August 1, 1986.

8. (Division I) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 49 amending Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(9), which establishes an accumulative minimum grade-point average of 2.000 for the initial eligibility of a junior college transfer student (who is a nonqualifier) for financial aid, practice and regular-season competition; further, considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 50 amending Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(8)-(i), which establishes an accumulative grade-point average of 2.000 for the initial eligibility of a qualifier who is a junior college graduate, consistent with the initial-eligibility standard applied to a qualifier who is not a junior college graduate; noted a previous Council-approved interpretation (January 1988), which indicated that the 2.000 grade-point average established in Proposal Nos. 49 and 50 is based on grades in all courses accepted by the certifying institution in any of its colleges, schools or departments, regardless of the grade earned or the fact that such a grade disqualifies the course from being transferable degree credit; determined that only those students who enroll at a junior college subsequent to August 1, 1988, would be required to meet the minimum accumulative grade-point average established in Proposal Nos. 49 and 50.

9. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 65 amending Constitution 3-1-(h)-(4), which provides a discretionary waiver of the Association's incidental-expense rule under specified conditions; noted that the Council had determined that the Administrative Committee initially would be involved with administering this discretionary waiver.

10. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 66 amending Constitution 3-1-(e), which permits promotional activities involving student-athletes when such activities directly benefit charitable or educational organizations and are monitored by the student-athlete's member institution, and reached the following conclusions:

a. Agreed that a member institution, as well as a charitable or other educational organization, is permitted to sell or distribute items bearing a student-athlete's name or picture, provided the item is a "paper product" (e.g., poster, playing cards, calendar). The member institution is responsible for monitoring and approving the involvement of its student-athletes in such charitable or educational activities.

b. Confirmed the application of a previous Council-approved interpretation (April 1987), which continues to place limitations on the involvement of commercial "cosponsors" in the fund-raising activities of member institutions and charitable or educational organizations, when those activities involve either the attendance, name or picture of enrolled student-athletes.

11. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 80 amending Bylaw 5-2, which establishes a voluntary off-season testing program for anabolic steroids in the sport of football using the drug-testing methods established pursuant to Executive Regulation 1-7; affirmed that participation in the off-season testing program for anabolic steroids in the sport of football is voluntary for NCAA member institutions; noted that once an institution volunteers to participate in the off-season testing program, institutional guidelines would be followed in regard to participation of student-athletes in the testing process.

12. (Division III) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 86 amending Constitution 3-2-(g), which would apply to the legislation governing the reporting of coaches' athletically related income on a division-by-division basis; agreed that inasmuch as Proposal No. 86 was defeated by the Division III membership, contractual agreements between a coach and the Division III institution need not stipulate that the coach annually reports all athletically related income from sources outside the institution.

13. (Division III) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 93 amending Bylaw 11-3-(a)-(6) and Case No. 423, which eliminates the consideration of athletic ability in the formulation of a Division III financial aid package; noted a previous Council-approved interpretation (January 1988), which indicated that the effective date of Proposal No. 93 (September 1, 1988) would preclude its application to those students who are currently seniors in high school or are enrolled in a junior college, and who initially enroll at a Division III institution during the fall term of 1988; referred the following issues regarding the application of Proposal No. 93 to the NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism for review.

a. In what way is the admissions process affected by the adoption of Proposal No. 93?

b. Inasmuch as the defeat of Proposal No. 95 will preclude a member institution from providing leadership and merit awards to student-athletes without the consideration of financial need, the committee is asked to define those leadership and merit awards students are precluded from receiving. Further, the committee is asked to determine whether Division III member institutions are precluded from providing leadership or merit awards to student-athletes who are outstanding in areas other than athletics (e.g., music, art).

c. Is a member institution permitted to adjust a student-athlete's financial aid package based on the student-athlete's participation in intercollegiate athletics (e.g., financial assistance allocated through a work-study program is reallocated as an institutional loan due to a student-athlete's lack of time resulting from athletics participation)?

d. Does a distinction exist between "athletic ability" and "athletics participation" in the formulation of a financial aid package?

14. (Divisions I and II) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 104 amending Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(6), which would establish "dead" periods (i.e., no on- or off-campus contact or evaluation) 48 hours prior to the National Letter of Intent signing dates; determined that the "dead" period established per Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(6) concludes at 8 a.m. on the National Letter of Intent signing date; confirmed that it remains permissible for an institutional staff member to write or telephone prospective student-athletes during such a "dead" period.

15. (Divisions I and II) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 114 amending Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(1)-(iii), which clarifies that the specified contact provisions would apply subsequent to a prospect's signing of the National Letter of Intent; noted a previous Council-approved interpretation (January 1988), which indicates that the provisions of Proposal No. 114 would not preclude contacts between a prospect and an athletics representative or a coaching staff member of a member institution regarding permissible pre-enrollment activities (e.g., discussion of summer employment arrangements that occur subsequent to the prospective student-athlete's signing of the National Letter of Intent); confirmed that the provisions of Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(1)-(ii) [once-a-week contact at the high school] continue to apply after a prospective student-athlete has signed a National Letter of Intent, and, once the contact period ends, a member of an institution's coaching staff is precluded from visiting the high school to contact or evaluate a prospective student-athlete who has signed a National Letter of Intent.

16. Reviewed 1988 Convention Proposal No. 116 amending O.I. 100, which specifies that a prospect becomes a "prospective student-athlete" upon the receipt of a complimentary admission to an institution's athletics contest unless the admission is received in conjunction with a visit to a member institution as a member of a group tour (unrelated to recruiting); agreed that only the prospective student-athlete receiving a complimentary admission on a recruiting visit (as opposed to the friends of the prospective student-athlete who accompany the prospect) is considered a recruited "prospective student-athlete" upon receipt of the complimentary admission.

17. Reviewed 1988 Convention Proposal No. 119 amending Bylaw 1-4, which precludes an athletics department staff member from evaluating or rating a prospective student-athlete for the news media and scouting recruiting services prior to the prospective student-athlete's signed acceptance of the institution's written offer of admission and/or tender of financial assistance; noted a previous Council-approved interpretation (January 1988), which affirms that the provisions of Proposal No. 119 preclude an athletics department staff member from evaluating or rating a prospective student-athlete for an independent publication promoting the institution's athletics program if the prospective student-athlete has not yet signed an acceptance of the institution's written offer of admission; agreed that it remains permissible for a coaching staff member of a member institution to confirm with the news media, scouting service, recruiting service or independent publication that the institution is, in fact, recruiting a particular prospective student-athlete.

18. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 122 amending Bylaw 1-9-(g), which permits any athletics department staff member to provide transportation to a prospective or enrolled student-athlete from the bus or train station or major airport nearest the campus only on the occasion of the prospective student-athlete's expense-paid visit and the student-athlete's initial arrival at the institution to attend classes; confirmed that an athletics department staff member may provide transportation for a prospective student-athlete to return to the bus or train station or airport upon completion of the prospective student-athlete's expense-paid visit.

19. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 127 amending Bylaw 1-6, which revises the Association's tryout rule to confirm existing interpretations related to waivers of the rule and to prohibit a basketball coach's involvement in AAU basketball coaching activities; agreed that the revision of Bylaw 1-6 may permit the elimination of Case Nos. 124 and 208, inasmuch as the information contained in these cases is encompassed within revised Bylaw 1-6.

20. (Division II) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 128 amending Bylaw 1-6, which permits tryouts of prospective student-athletes at Division II member institutions under the limited circumstances set forth in this proposal; noted a previous Council-approved interpretation (January 1988), which indicates that the provisions of Bylaws 1-1-(b) and 1-10 (precollege expense) would not preclude a member institution from providing limited insurance coverage for those prospective student-athletes who participate in such institutional tryouts; confirmed that prospective student-athletes being recruited in the sports of football, ice hockey, lacrosse, soccer and wrestling are precluded from participating in competition in those sports; noted, however, that prospective student-athletes being recruited in the sports of football, ice hockey, lacrosse, soccer and wrestling may participate in other physical activities involving competition (e.g., a football player may participate in basketball competition); reaffirmed that in the sport of football, prospective student-athletes are not permitted to wear helmets or pads as part of the tryout activities.

21. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 129 amending Constitution 3-3, which permits the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee to waive the enrollment and satisfactory-progress requirements of Constitution 3-3 for any participant in the Olympic Games who, because of such participation, may lose eligibility for practice and intercollegiate athletics participation in any sport; reached the following conclusions regarding Proposal No. 129:

a. Concluded that those student-athletes who receive a waiver of Constitution 3-3 to practice and participate in intercollegiate competition also are permitted to receive institutional financial assistance from the member institution (e.g., room and board), with the understanding that student-athletes receiving this institutional financial assistance are precluded from being employed during the term of its award.

b. Noted that if a student-athlete is permitted to enroll on a part-time basis at the member institution, the institution is permitted to provide the student-athlete with the actual cost of tuition and fees.

c. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that for purposes of Bylaw 4-1-(b) (10-semester or 15-quarter rule), any term or terms in which a student-athlete is granted a waiver of Constitution 3-3 and either competes in intercollegiate competition or receives institutional financial aid is considered a term of residence.

d. Concluded that for those student-athletes who have been admitted to a member institution but who have yet to enroll in a collegiate term or terms prior to receiving the Constitution 3-3 waiver (i.e., an entering freshman), the receipt of institutional financial aid will initiate the start of the student-athlete's five-year eligibility period (and for Divisions II and III, a first term of residence).

e. Reaffirmed that the application of Proposal No. 129 requires that a student-athlete must be eligible for financial aid, practice and competition based upon the rules of the institution and the conference of which the institution is a member.

22. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 130 amending Constitution 3-9, which amends the Association's certification of high school all-star games and eligibility provisions relating to such games; affirmed that following completion of high school eligibility in the student's sport and prior to the student's high school graduation, the student is not permitted to participate in more than two all-star football contests or two all-star basketball contests without affecting the student's eligibility for his or her first year of intercollegiate competition; asked the NCAA legislative services department staff to review the application of Case No. 154 in regard to the adoption of Proposal No. 130.

23. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 134 amending Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(8), which would permit the application of Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(8) [dropped-sport waiver] when an institution reclassifies a sport from Division I to Division III; concluded that subsequent to January 14, 1988, the adoption of 1988 Convention Proposal No. 27 results in the reclassification waiver of Proposal No. 134 applying only to the sport of football.

24. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal Nos. 135 and 136 amending Bylaws 5-1-(d)-(2)-(ii) and (iii), which specify that a student-athlete shall qualify for an additional year of competition in a sport under the terms of the "hardship" exception on the basis of an incapacity to compete during the traditional segment of a playing season in that sport (e.g., spring

See Legislation, page 18

Legislation

baseball, fall soccer), provided the incapacitating injury or illness occurred prior to the first half of the traditional segment; noted a previous Council-approved interpretation (January 1988), which provides that Proposal No. 135 would permit a student-athlete to qualify for a hardship waiver if the injury occurred during a nontraditional playing season resulting in the student-athlete's being unable to participate during the traditional segment, provided the individual does not participate in more than the permissible number of contests; agreed that only contests conducted during a traditional playing season may be utilized in determining whether a student-athlete has participated in more than 20 percent of the institution's completed events, or has participated in more than two of the institution's completed events in that sport. For example, in the sport of baseball, a student-athlete participates in 10 contests during the nontraditional fall segment and 10 contests during the traditional segment prior to a season-ending injury occurring. For purposes of the hardship rule, the student-athlete is deemed to have participated in 10 of 60 contests (assuming the institution plays its permissible allotment of 60 contests in the spring) as opposed to 20 of 70 contests. Further, if a student-athlete participates in intercollegiate soccer and an injury occurs during the traditional fall segment prior to the individual's participating in 20 percent of the institution's completed traditional contests, the individual is still permitted to receive a hardship waiver even if he or she subsequently participates during the nontraditional spring segment, with the understanding that the injury or illness that occurred during the traditional segment resulted in the student-athlete's incapacity to participate for the remainder of the traditional segment.

25. (Division III) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 139 amending Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(12) and (13), which combines the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(12) and (13) to permit a student-athlete who transfers to a Division III institution from any four-year institution to compete immediately, provided the established criteria are satisfied; referred to the Council the issue of whether a Division III institution is required to receive a written release [in addition to the release per Bylaw 1-2-(h)] when a student-athlete transfers from one Division III institution to another; concluded that Case No. 320 may be deleted from the NCAA Manual with the adoption of Proposal No. 139.

26. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal Nos. 140, 141, 143, 144 and 155 and reached the following conclusions:

a. (Divisions I and II) Effective August 1, 1988, Division I institutions' playing- and practice-season limitations are limited to a maximum of six months (i.e., 26 weeks) for each team sport (other than football and basketball) as defined in Executive Regulation 1-6-(b)-(3)-(i), thus applying the 26-week restriction to a full year, with the exception of water polo, in which the 26-week restriction continues to apply only to the academic year; concluded that the immediate effective date of Proposal No. 140-B would require that for Division II member institutions, a maximum of six months (i.e., 26 weeks) will apply for each team sport (other than football and basketball) as defined in Executive Regulation 1-6-(b)-(3)-(i), thus applying the 26-week restriction to a full year as opposed to the academic year.

b. (Division I) Confirmed that effective August 1, 1988, a coaching staff member of a Division I institution is precluded from being involved with his or her own student-athletes on any outside team; noted, however, that student-athletes may continue to participate in an institutional summer camp, except as previously restricted in the sports of soccer, football and basketball.

c. (Division I) Confirmed that the current restriction limiting the number of student-athletes from the same member institution who may participate on any outside team without such activities being considered contrary to the restrictions of out-of-season practice established in Situation No. 651 (Practice Limitations—Outside Teams) will continue to apply during the academic year and, subsequent to August 1, 1988, the limitations established will apply to the calendar year. [Note: The limitation of four water polo student-athletes from the same member institution on an outside team applies only to the academic year.]

d. (Divisions I and II) Reaffirmed that the 26-week restriction will not apply to individual sports at Division I and II member institutions.

e. (Divisions II and III) Concluded that a member of an institution's coaching staff is precluded from being involved with his or her own student-athletes on any outside teams; noted, however, that a student-athlete may continue to participate at an institutional summer camp, except as currently restricted in the sports of soccer, football and basketball.

f. (Divisions II and III) The adoption of 1988 Convention Proposal No. 155 by the Divisions II and III membership indicates that the numbers of student-athletes who may participate on an outside team, as established in Situation No. 651 (Practice Limitations—Outside Teams), will not apply to Division II or III member institutions; accordingly, Proposal No. 155 does not place a restriction on the number of student-athletes from the same member institution that may participate on an outside team.

g. (Division III) Agreed that for Division III member institutions, all sports (individual and team sports) have a 21-week limitation except in those sports for which the National Collegiate Championship is the only NCAA championship opportunity. In the excepted sports, an institution's playing season shall be limited to the same length of playing season as Division I institutions; confirmed that the 21-week restriction applies to the calendar year, as opposed to the academic year.

h. Concluded that with the immediate effective date of 1988 Convention Proposal No. 143, an institution is precluded from organizing or financially supporting any practice conducted during the summer unless specifically authorized in the bylaws or through official interpretations.

i. For purposes of an institution's traditional segment, "summer" is defined as the period following the last date of final examinations through August 15 or the first day on which classes are scheduled in the institution's fall term, whichever date occurs first; for purposes of the nontraditional segment, 1988 Convention Proposal No. 144 indicates that "summer" is defined as the period following the last day of final examinations through September 1 or the first day on which classes are scheduled in the institution's fall term, whichever date occurs first.

27. Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 143 amending Bylaw 3-1-(d), which eliminates institutionally organized or financially aided practices during the summer unless specifically authorized in the governing legislation or through official interpretations; concluded that this restriction is limited to only team sports.

28. (Division I) Considered 1988 Convention Proposal No. 150 amending Bylaw 3-3-(k), which eliminates the Bylaw 3-3-(k) limitation applicable to Division I basketball foreign tours and specifies that a Division I institution shall not engage in a foreign tour in the sport of basketball in any academic year (or the summer immediately thereafter) in which it utilizes any of the exceptions contained in Bylaw 3-3-(k); concluded that Proposal No. 150 establishes a separate "once-in-every-four-years" cycle exemption for foreign tours in the sport of Division I basketball.

29. (Division I) Considered a previous Council-approved interpretation (January 1987), which provides that a full-time assistant football coach at a Division I member institution may be replaced as one of the institution's countable coaches on the basis of the coach's wife's serious illness, with the understanding that the replacement opportunity is available only in those cases in which the replaced coach is unable to perform any coaching duties; confirmed that a replaced coach is precluded from performing any coaching duties, including the telephoning of prospective student-athletes.

Deacons' Rives receives national award for project

Chip Rives, the Wake Forest University football player whose Santa's Helper program has been chronicled in this space, is one of Sports Illustrated's eight sportsmen and sportswomen of the year for 1987. He and the other honorees recently met with President Reagan.

"President Reagan told us that what we were doing was typically American, that only here could the private sector show compassion to the needy," Rives said. "For me, what made me feel best was being honored alongside such prominent athletes. I was honored that my efforts would be compared with theirs."

"The other honorees made me feel very special and very welcome," Rives added, "even though I was not a famous athlete." Other honorees included professional golfer Patty Sheehan, Atlanta Braves star Dale Murphy, pro basketball player and Villanova University alumnus Rory Sparrow, hockey player Bob Bourne, football star Reggie Williams, and track athletes Kip Keino and Judi Brown King.

Rives' Santa's Helper program, in only its second year, raised more than $5,000 in the Winston-Salem, North Carolina, area, which was used to buy Christmas toys for distribution to more than 100 needy families.

Having completed his athletics eligibility last fall as a fifth-year senior and starting fullback for Wake Forest, Rives currently is completing his first year as a full-time graduate student in the school's MBA program.

Terre Haute, Indiana, dentist Carl R. McKee has authored a book of trivia on the men's basketball program at Indiana University, Bloomington. "Indiana University Basketball Trivia" had an initial press run of 10,200 copies, which sold out before Christmas—shortly after they arrived in bookstores.

"I'm sure there are people more qualified than I was to write the book," McKee told the Associated Press. "In fact, I wasn't even sure I wanted to tackle the book."

"But as I got more into the research, the more fun I had. It turned out to be a labor of love for me."

Trivia Time: This week's brain teaser comes from McKee's Indiana-hoops trivia compilation—Who was the youngest IU coach to win a national championship? Answer later.

Speaking of trivia, writers for the Richmond (Virginia) News Leader called incidents that forced postponement of a January 14 Sun Belt Conference game between Virginia Commonwealth University and Jacksonville University "a Trivial Pursuit question waiting to happen."

Seems that maintenance workers at the Richmond Coliseum, where the contest was scheduled, applied a special buffing compound around the perimeter of the playing floor to shine it up for TV. Unfortunately, you might say those workers slipped up.

What they put down was a compound intended for use on portable floors going into long-term storage—it's slow-drying, hard to remove, and very, very slippery. By game time, after everything from resin to a special detergent had been applied without success, officials from the two schools agreed that the floor was too dangerous to use.

Chip Rives

Anita Barnhill

"Sure we're embarrassed," said Tim Murphy, general manager of the coliseum. "But this was an honest mistake, and it's a mistake we won't make again."

How Come You Never Hear About These? Department: Here are more academic notes supplied to The NCAA News by member schools:

Student-athletes from Augustana College (South Dakota) made up more than 12 percent of the school's dean's list selections last fall. In all, 56 student-athletes compiled grade-point averages of 3.300 (4.000 scale) or better. Included were a pair of two-sport athletes—Mike Murphy (football and track) and Darla Wienk (basketball and softball).

Briefly in the News

Three student-athletes with perfect (4.000) GPAs topped a group of 65 Northeast Louisiana University athletes who were named to the fall academic honor roll. Thirteen varsity teams were represented by the classroom achievers, including 18 members of the Indian football team.

At Washington and Lee University, 48 student-athletes were named to the fall 1987 academic-athletic honor roll, which was established a year earlier. To qualify, students need at least a 3.500 GPA (4.000 scale) while participating on a varsity team. At least 45 Washington and Lee student-athletes have qualified for selection in every term since the program was established.

Trivia Answer: Indiana coach Branch McCracken was 32 when his 1940 Hoosier team defeated Springfield College (48-24), Duquesne University (39-30) and the University of Kansas (60-42) and won the second National Collegiate Basketball Championship. The eight-team tournament was hosted by Northwestern University and also featured teams from Rice University, the University of Southern California, the University of Colorado and Western Kentucky University.

Now that Anita Barnhill has married, begun raising a family and run her own business, the 30-year-old freshman at St. Andrews Presbyterian College is wearing another uniform—as the starting center on the school's women's basketball team.

"I played summer-league softball with (St. Andrews women's basketball and softball coach) Marcy Maurer, and I started helping her by running the clock at St. Andrews games (during the 1986-87 season)," Barnhill said. At Maurer's urging—and more than 10 years after she'd been a four-time all-conference player at Maxton (North Carolina) High School—Barnhill applied to St. Andrews, was accepted, and has returned to classes and the basketball floor.

"Anita's strongest asset is her intelligence on the floor," said Maurer. "She has the great ability to find the open person and get the ball to her. And she is very strong inside. She works just as hard as anyone else on the team."

"I don't think age is a factor in athletics," Barnhill added. "If you stay in shape, you can remain active and competitive in sports for a long time." And, she probably should have added, on more than one field. After basketball, Barnhill will find a spot waiting on the women's softball team.

University of Oklahoma alumnus Waymon Tisdale, who is active in drug- and alcohol-education programs as a member of the National Basketball Association's Indiana Pacers, was honored February 4 by First Lady Nancy Reagan as part of "Just Say No" night in 11 NBA cities. Mrs. Reagan attended a meeting of "Tisdale's Team," a group of high school students.

"I know what kind of pressure is put on kids to use drugs," Tisdale said. "I have a little daughter, and I don't want her to be faced with these kinds of decisions when she gets older. If even one kid doesn't use drugs (as a result of "Tisdale's Team"), the entire program is a success."

"We have a lot of fun," he said of the program. "It's not about scaring (kids) off drugs. It's about having a good time without drugs. They love to beat me at free throws (those who do get free T-shirts). I owe a lot of T-shirts."

Texas A&M University's board of regents has named Aggie head football coach Jackie Sherrill a full professor of athletics, with tenure.

"There are very few head coaches in the nation with tenure," Sherrill told Houston Chronicle sportswriter Jerry Wizig, "and I am flattered to be held in this regard by Texas A&M." Other coaches with tenure include the University of Nebraska, Lincoln's, Tom Osborne and Pennsylvania State University's Joe Paterno.

Closing Comment: University of Kansas men's basketball coach Larry Brown recently offered a unique insight into the view he gets from the Jayhawk bench:

"The most frustrating thing in the world is to see fear in a kid's face when he steps up to the (foul) line, or when he gets the ball in crucial situations or has to bring it up against pressure. That should be the most exciting time."

Alabama indictment's terminology may be used in Bloom's defense

An attorney for sports agent Lloyd Bloom said he may use an Alabama grand jury's terminology to help Bloom's defense against criminal charges stemming from his dealings with college athletes.

A grand jury in Tuscaloosa County, Alabama, indicted Bloom and Norby Walters, both of World Sports and Entertainment Inc., for their dealings with former University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, basketball player Derrick McKey. The indictment said, among other things, that the agent "did confer or offer to confer a benefit upon an employee without the consent of the...employer."

"I find it extremely interesting that there are references to this employee-employer relationship," said Bloom's attorney, M. L. "Mike" Trope of Los Angeles. "...If it is indeed an employee-employer relationship, it means the state is saying the athlete is receiving compensation; and if he is receiving compensation, he is a professional who has not breached any rules or laws in dealing with an agent."

Trope commented in an interview with The Atlanta Constitution, published February 4.

The attorney said he would subpoena Alabama and NCAA officials to testify for Bloom if necessary.

Alabama athletics director Steve Sloan said he was surprised to see that terminology used in the indictment against Walters and Bloom.

"We definitely do not consider this to be an employee-employer relationship," Sloan said. "I'm really surprised. I don't know why they would use words that would dilute the validity of the indictment. I don't understand their rationale."

NCAA President Wilford S. Bailey, an Auburn University professor, said, "Based on my experience, I certainly would not consider the athletes as employees. There are an awful lot of financial and legal ramifications to such a distinction. I cannot agree with that."

Walters and Bloom were charged with the same three misdemeanor counts returned earlier against former Atlanta sports agent Jim Abernethy for his dealings with former Auburn University football star Kevin Porter.

Coach, school reach a partial settlement

Attorneys for West Texas State University and former football coach Bill Kelly have announced a partial settlement over his dismissal, and said they will seek a state judge's opinion in the matter.

Kelly will be paid his $4,000 monthly salary through January 1990 and will be allowed to teach at the university while seeking employment.

Kelly will no longer serve as the university's head coach, and an interim coach may be appointed, said Kelly's attorney, Jim Bob Brown. Under the settlement, the university may not hire a new coach until the case is resolved by the court and the university's board of regents, the Associated Press reported.

State District Judge David Gleason will be asked to determine whether Kelly's dismissal was proper, attorneys said.

Bruce Grimes, vice-president for external affairs, announced Kelly's dismissal January 29, saying, "major philosophical differences between coach Kelly and the university are such that an effective and compatible working relationship is no longer possible."

Attorneys for both sides asked the court to rule on whether Kelly is entitled to due process as a faculty or nonfaculty member, and whether Kelly may be reassigned while still at the university.
