Executive Committee to study proposals on women, minorities

Programs designed to enhance opportunities for women and ethnic minorities will be considered by the Association's Executive Committee during its May 2-3 meeting in Kansas City. In addition, the group will consider recommendations from several general NCAA committees and governing sports committees.

Similar in nature are programs being proposed by the Special Council Subcommittee to Review Minority Opportunities in Intercollegiate Athletics and the NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics. Each is seeking programs to enhance opportunities for their targeted groups that would include establishment of postgraduate scholarships, development of internship programs at the national office, and development and maintenance of "vita banks" at the national office.

After meeting May 1, the Special Committee to Review Future Office Requirements will report to the Executive Committee and is expected to recommend a plan of action regarding future space requirements for the national office.

Also to be reviewed is a report from the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports that requests resources for development of materials dealing with eating disorders.

The group also has requested continuation of the annual injury-surveillance system and expansion of that program to include men's and women's basketball and spring football on the Divisions I-A, I-AA and II levels. The committee also is asking the Executive Committee to modify existing guidelines to permit the submission of new equipment by manufacturers for review and comment only—not for approval.

The Executive Committee will be asked to deal with contradicting recommendations from representatives of the Association's Men's and Women's Basketball Rules Committees regarding the continued publication of common rules.

The men's committee is requesting a return to separate rules publications, while the women's committee is requesting continuation. See Executive Committee, page 2

Council backs separate programs for women, minorities in athletics

The NCAA Council has endorsed separate programs designed to enhance opportunities for ethnic minorities and women in intercollegiate athletics, as recommended by Special Council Subcommittee to Review Minority Opportunities in Intercollegiate Athletics and the NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics, respectively.

Meeting April 18-20 in Washington, D.C., the Council supported both programs, agreed that they should be administered in the national office as a single program, and left determination of financial allocations and other details to the discretion of the NCAA Executive Committee, which will meet May 2-3 in Kansas City, Missouri.

As recommended by the two committees, both programs would include the same ingredients:

- Postgraduate scholarships, valued at $6,000 each, for ethnic minorities and women who are college graduates and who have been accepted into an approved sports-administration program or a related program at an NCAA member institution. Recipients must express an interest in preparing for a career in the administration of intercollegiate athletics.

- Internships at the NCAA national office to provide on-the-job learning experience for ethnic minorities and women who are college graduates and who express an interest in pursuing a sports-administration career at the college level. The internships are intended as one-year programs but may be for longer or shorter periods upon consent of the accrediting institution, the student and the national office.

- A "vita bank," to be established by the national office, that will include participants in the postgraduate-scholarship and internship programs as well as other minorities and women interested in positions in intercollegiate athletics administration, coaching or other areas. The NCAA will contact qualified participants in the vita-bank program and intercollegiate sports organizations or institutions when an opening in the individual's area of interest is available.

It is hoped that all three of the program elements can be operational by this fall. Results of the minority-opportunity committee's survey regarding numbers of minority individuals involved in college athletics will be available by June, and that committee will submit its final report to the Council in August.

Athlete's, nonathlete's Federal aid should be equal, Sen. Pell says

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-Rhode Island, told the NCAA Council April 19 that "an athlete's Federal financial aid package should not differ from that of an equally deserving student who does not play sports."

Pell, chair of the U.S. Senate Education Subcommittee and the father of the Pell Grant program, spoke at a dinner meeting of the Council during its spring meeting in Washington, D.C.

"We must all work together to restore the value of Federal student grant programs," Pell said.

"This can only be accomplished by first restoring the public's commitment to and confidence in our current student aid programs. The NCAA has an important role to play in this process," he said.

Pell applauded the decision by Division I voters in January to permit needy student-athletes to retain up to $1,400 of the Pell Grant for which they qualify, in addition to their athletics grants-in-aid, and to assure that the actual amount received does not exceed that allowed for nonathletes on the same campus.

"While I firmly believe that there should be no difference in the amounts of aid received by athletes and nonathletes, this policy is a step in the right direction and should be adopted nationwide," Pell said.

He also urged the NCAA to "carefully evaluate the education its athletes are receiving. For many student-athletes," he said, "a solid college education will provide an opportunity for lifelong success long after his or her last game is played. A coach who succeeds in graduating an entire team should receive as much recognition as one who has a winning season."

Pell praised the NCAA for helping to remove "many of the barriers to a college education for the youth of our nation. The ability of sports to motivate and discipline talented youth is a great gift to our country." But he decried the fact that Federal financial aid has not kept pace with the cost of a college education.

Congressman Augustus F. Hawkins, D-California, chair of the U.S. House Committee on Education and Labor, addressed the Council at a luncheon meeting April 18.

He called for greater Federal funding for higher education in general.

Many members of the Council spent the afternoon April 20 visiting their own Congressional representatives.

Possible office relocation set for one of four Kansas sites

The possible relocation of the NCAA national office has been narrowed to four sites on College Boulevard in Johnson County, Kansas, approximately eight miles south of the current office location.

The Special NCAA Committee to Review Future Office Requirements, which has been studying space needs for the national office for nearly a year, will meet May 1 in Kansas City, Missouri, prior to submitting its recommendation to the Executive Committee in the latter's May 2-3 meeting, also in Kansas City.

The recommendation will culminate a series of four meetings by the special committee, during which it evaluated more than 70 sites in the metropolitan Kansas City area, as well as half a dozen other cities across the nation.

According to Louis J. Spry, NCAA controller and a member of the special committee, the Association currently is leasing office space after using all available facilities in its two buildings at Nall Avenue and U.S. Highway 56 in Johnson County.

Studies by outside consultants indicate that the Association will

Improvements in education not good enough, Bennett says

Public education has improved slightly in the past five years, but Education Secretary William J. Bennett, in a report released April 25, chastized schools for "not doing well enough fast enough" to raise standards.

Bennett evaluated the state of American education in a report to President Reagan, United Press International reported.

"American education has made some undeniable progress in the last few years," Bennett said in the report. "The precipitous downward slide of previous decades has been arrested, and we have begun the long climb back to reasonable standards."

"But we are certainly not doing well enough, and we are not doing well enough fast enough. We are still at risk," he concluded, referring to the controversial report, "A Nation At Risk."

Reagan asked Bennett in March 1987 to assess the nation's educational progress in the five years since the National Commission on Excellence in Education's report was released in 1982.

That report sparked numerous education reforms, including stiffening of high school graduation requirements, changes in curricular content, and legislation to improve teaching standards and school leadership.

But Bennett said, "The absolute level at which our improvements are taking place is unacceptably low."

"Too many students do not graduate from our high schools, and too many of those who do graduate have been poorly educated. Our students know too little, and their command of essential skills is too slight."

In his assessment, "American Education, Making It Work," Bennett said the results are based on consultations with leaders in education and other fields, written views from hundreds of Americans, and the education department's research staff.

The good news, said the report, is that test data show Blacks and Hispanics are performing better on college entrance examinations such as the Scholastic Aptitude Test and American College Testing Program.

But despite improvements in key skill and subject areas, such as reading and writing, the report said improvements are "disappointingly slow" and at "excessively low levels of achievement."

A separate national study by the department found improvements in the academic program offered and selected by students.

A comparison of transcripts of 15,000 high school graduates in 1987 with those of a comparable group of 1982 graduates found less than two percent of the 1982 sample had completed the academic program suggested in "A Nation at Risk." In 1987, 12.7 percent of graduating students had done so.

When foreign language and computer science classes are omitted from the tally, improvement is more dramatic—from 13.4 percent of 1982 graduates to nearly 30 percent in the 1987 sample.

"A Nation At Risk" had criticized the "cafeteria-style curriculum" that included physical and health education work experience and personal service and development courses.

It suggested a curriculum of English, mathematics, science, social studies, computer science, and, for college-bound students, two years of a foreign language.

Bennett said the means to improve schools were readily available but school reform efforts too frequently were blocked by "the narrow, self-interested exercise of political power" by teacher groups and others with "a vested interest in the educational status quo."

Division II football wants to stay in Alabama

The NCAA Division II Football Committee voted to recommend to the Executive Committee that the 1989 and 1990 championship games remain at the current site.

In addition, the committee will recommend that automatic qualification be implemented beginning in 1990 under new conference-eligibility guidelines, and that a more objective definition be applied to the existing strength-of-schedule criteria used to select teams for the championship.

The committee, meeting April 11-14 in Kansas City, Missouri, voted to extend the agreement with the Muscle Shoals National Championship Committee to conduct the championship game in Florence, Alabama, for two years after next year's championship game. The University of North Alabama would serve as host for the championship.

In conjunction with the automatic-qualification proposal, the committee will propose that the Executive Committee grant approval to use several new guidelines to determine conference eligibility for the privilege. Conference members would be required to schedule at least 75 percent of their games against NCAA Division II, I-AA or I-A opponents, with no members permitted to schedule more than two teams not in those classifications.

In addition, conferences would be required to have a .500 winning percentage against Division II opponents to be considered for automatic qualification.

need substantially more office space in the next 10 to 15 years.

Two of the four sites currently under consideration are existing new buildings, either of which would permit a move this fall, Spry said. The other two sites would require construction, either under an NCAA-ownership plan or a lease arrangement with developers. Occupancy in those circumstances would be at least 15 months away, he said.

Three of the four developers involved have indicated an interest in acquiring the current NCAA office buildings.

NCAA Secretary-Treasurer Thomas J. Frericks, University of Dayton, chairs the special committee. Other members are Merrily Dean Baker, University of Minnesota, Twin Cities; Howard Elwell, Gannon University; Royce N. Flippin Jr., Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, and Spry. The committee was appointed by the Executive Committee in May of 1987.

tion of common rules publications, along with the appointment of a rules subcommittee composed of representatives from both groups.

Advancement to Division I championships by student-athletes from other membership division also will be on the Executive Committee's agenda. The group will be asked to review Executive Regulation 1-3-(d) and Bylaw 10-6-(f) in regard to the elimination of the advancement opportunity for student-athletes who enroll in Divisions II and III institutions after August 1, 1987.

Another recommendation regarding championships would, if approved, require game officials traveling to NCAA championships events to utilize the Association's official travel agency when making flight arrangements.

Recommendations from sports committees also will take up some of the Executive Committee's time.

Baseball—A proposal to develop and implement a two-year pilot program to improve umpiring, which would be similar to programs currently in place for men's and women's basketball officials.

Division I women's basketball—A request to permit the use of the Association's registered "Final Four" in the promotion of the Division I women's tournament.

Women's soccer—Proposals that the initial Division II championship (set for this fall) include a four-team field and that the field for the Division III championship be increased from 12 to 16 teams.

Men's and women's golf—A request for development of a regional-qualifying-tournament system for the Division I men's championships.

Water polo—A request that automatic qualification be granted to three conferences beginning with the 1988 championship. Approval would require a waiver of NCAA Bylaw 1-6-(b)-(2), since two of the conferences (the Eastern Water Polo Association and the Western Water Polo Association) have not been members of the Association for two consecutive years.

Division II women's volleyball—A request to change the finals format from four to eight teams beginning in 1988.

Division III football—A request to replace the weekly top-20 national poll with a weekly series of four regional top-10 polls.

The Executive Committee also will receive a report on the National Collegiate Foundation and reports from the Special Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification, the Ad Hoc Committee to Administer the Conference Grant Program, and the Walter Byers Postgraduate Scholarship Committee. The group also will discuss plans for the 1989 NCAA Convention and consider revisions of executive regulations.

Highlights of actions taken during the May 2-3 meeting will appear in the May 4 issue of The NCAA News, and a complete summary of actions taken will be published in the May 11 issue.

to Stimulate the Membership's Compliance and Enforcement Efforts that the Association conduct a series of compliance forums nationwide and enlist the assistance of experienced athletics administrators in developing more detailed compliance instruments. The recommendation suggests approximately 20 compliance forums during a one-year period, eight in Division I and six each in Divisions II and III.

• Received and responded favorably to a detailed report suggesting major reform in the Association's legislative and interpretative procedures, as well as a refinement of the Council's role in such areas. No formal actions were taken in deference to the pending discussion of these issues at the June 20-21 session of the Presidents Commission National Forum.

• Adopted a policy specifying that the Council will not sponsor a legislative proposal except by at least a two-thirds majority vote of the members of the Council present and voting.

In addition, the Division III Steering Committee affirmed that any individual coaching a sport in that division is not permitted to work for the institution in its financial aid operation, consistent with Case No. 415 as amended at the 1988 NCAA Convention.

Other April Council activities are reported elsewhere in this issue, and a complete summary of all Council voting actions will appear in the May 11 issue of The NCAA News.

Legislative Assistance

1988 Column No. 17

NCAA Constitution 3-4-(b)-(1)—financial aid for summer school

Under the provisions of Constitution 3-4-(b)-(1), financial aid may not be provided to a student-athlete while attending a summer school or summer term unless the student-athlete has been in residence a minimum of one term during the regular academic year at the awarding institution or the student is attending a summer orientation program for which participation is required of both athletes and nonathletes and financial aid is administered on the same basis for all participants in the program.

Financial aid awarded to an eligible student-athlete under Constitution 3-4-(b)-(1) for summer-school attendance is considered a separate award and would not be countable toward the maximum financial aid awards limitations set forth in NCAA Bylaw 6-5. The amount of aid an individual student can receive is limited by Bylaw 6-1-(a) to tuition and fees, room and board, and required course-related books for the summer term. Further, a student-athlete enrolled in less than a minimum full-time program of studies during a summer term would be permitted to receive athletically related financial aid, provided the student qualifies for such aid under institutional policies and has been in residence a minimum of one term during the regular academic year.

Bylaw 6-1-(b)-(1) permits a student-athlete to receive legitimate summer employment earnings without total-dollar restrictions, even if the student-athlete is attending summer school as a recipient of institutional financial assistance.

In addition, financial aid for summer-school expenses may be used only to attend the awarding institution's summer school. As noted in NCAA Case No. 130 (page 350, 1988-89 NCAA Manual), it would not be permissible for the parent institution in which the student-athlete is enrolled to pay the student-athlete's summer-session expenses incurred in attending the institution's branch campus.

Summer orientation programs

Member institutions are reminded of the following interpretations currently in effect in reference to summer orientation programs.

1. In order to provide financial assistance to a student-athlete attending a summer orientation program, a member institution must document that the summer orientation program is required and attendance is mandatory for athletes and nonathletes alike; however, "required attendance" would permit flexibility in applying the standard that a prospective student-athlete's acceptance for the fall term is contingent upon enrollment in the summer orientation program. Exceptions to this standard must be based on bona fide reasons that are documented by the institution.

2. An entering student-athlete may qualify for financial aid in conjunction with participation in a member institution's orientation program only if participation is required of both athletes and nonathletes and financial aid is administered on the same basis for all participants in the program. The standard for selecting the participants must be applied on an objective basis to both athletes and nonathletes.

3. Assuming the appropriate standard for selection of participants is met, financial assistance to attend an institution's summer orientation program may be provided to a Bylaw 5-1-(j) nonqualifier involved in such a program.

4. It is not permissible to provide a student-athlete a cash stipend to compensate for summer employment earnings lost as a result of participation in a mandatory orientation program.

If there are questions regarding these issues or other aspects of the application of NCAA legislation to summer orientation programs, member institutions are encouraged to contact the legislative services department.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Two join national office staff

Edward B. Lupomech and William S. Saum have joined the national office staff as enforcement representatives in the compliance and enforcement department.

Lupomech played football as an undergraduate at Kearney State College. After earning an undergraduate degree from the school, he attended and graduated from the University of Houston law center.

Prior to joining the national office staff, Lupomech worked in the Harris County (Texas) district attorney's office. He is a member of the U.S. Army Reserve.

Saum received a bachelor's degree in education from the University of Dayton and a master's degree in education from Bowling Green State University.

He taught physical education and coached football at Rittman (Ohio) High School and Heidelberg College.

Most recently, he has been assistant

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q What statistics are kept by the NCAA office and what is the qualifying procedure?

A According to NCAA Executive Regulation 5-1-(a), (b) and (d), "A national statistics program shall be maintained for member institutions in the sports of football, men's and women's basketball, baseball, and women's softball; and the NCAA Communications Committee shall determine the program's policies and procedures, subject to the approval of the Executive Committee.

"For a member institution to be eligible for a national statistics championship, either individual or team, it shall have filed reports to the NCAA national office before the midway point in its regular-season schedule and shall have reported weekly thereafter.

"The national per-game rankings shall be based on the number of games an individual actually plays. However, to be ranked, a student-athlete must appear in 75 percent of the team's games. If a player is in the lineup for only one play, the player shall be charged with a game played whether or not the player touches the ball."

Award to promote equal opportunity

Ohio Wesleyan University has created a national award to honor the spirit of Branch Rickey, an alumnus who went on to become the Brooklyn Dodgers general manager and who helped break the color barrier in Major League Baseball.

Rickey, who died in 1965, brought Jackie Robinson up to the Dodgers in 1947.

Rickey was a school trustee for many years.

Ohio Wesleyan will present the first Branch Rickey Award at a Branch Rickey symposium September 29. The event will focus on racism and minorities in sports.

The award will be presented annually to a person who has shown exceptional personal commitment to the cause of equal opportunity for all, spokesman Jennifer Hamelin said.

Tulane reinstates men's basketball

Tulane University reinstated its men's basketball program April 21 after a three-year suspension imposed in the wake of a point-shaving scandal.

William Boatner Reily III, Tulane board of administrators chair, announced the board's approval of the plan to President Eamon M. Kelly, who said he already had received several individual donations of $1 million and more for the program.

Chester S. Gladchuk, athletics director, said he hopes to find a basketball coach by July 1. He said Tulane expected to field a team in 1990, United Press International reported.

It was not immediately known whether Tulane would petition the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference for readmission.

The board also authorized a $25 million fund-raising effort for all intercollegiate athletics at the university.

They voted to create an athletics growth fund to provide a financial base for day-to-day operations of the athletics program and dedicated $3 million of university funds to act as an anchor.

Reily said the actions will "assure a vital and dynamic future" for Tulane athletics in Division I.

"The stand the university has taken historically on matters relating to university athletics ensures the integrity of all different elements of Tulane University's intercollegiate program," Kelly said.

Kelly said among the million-dollar contributors was Avron Fogelman, a coowner of the Kansas

Alabama seeking Bloom's extradition to answer to misdemeanor charges

Alabama state officials say sports agent Lloyd Bloom has had more than enough time to return voluntarily to Alabama, where he faces misdemeanor charges for his dealings with two former University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, basketball players.

Now, they are trying to force him back.

At the request of Attorney General Don Siegelman, Gov. Guy Hunt April 22 signed an extradition warrant for Bloom, who lives in California.

"We will not tolerate continued illegal interference with the student-athletes in Alabama and their scholarship obligations to our colleges and universities," Hunt said. "It is imperative that we protect our athletes and, at the same time, the good name of our schools."

Bloom and his former associate, Norby Walters of New York, have both been charged with violating the state's deceptive-trade practices act, commercial bribery and tampering with a sports contest.

No appearance

Bloom did not show up for his March 16 arraignment in Tuscaloosa, but his California attorney, Mike Trope, said a week later that his client would surrender to authorities because he did "not want a fugitive warrant hanging over his head."

However, Larry Childers, an aide to Siegelman, said April 22 that the sports agent had not kept his word to return to the state voluntarily.

"We did have an agreement, or so we thought," Childers said. "I am told that on a couple of occasions, he had a chance to show and did not. He failed to honor the agreement he had with the state. We had no alternative other than to pursue extradition."

Bloom has refused to comment

Combined fencing championships studied

Members of the separate NCAA Men's Fencing and Women's Fencing Committees will ask coaches this fall for their opinions on whether men's and women's championships in the sport should be combined into a single tournament.

The committees' members met April 14-15 in Kansas City, Missouri, to discuss the feasibility of a combined-championships format. In recent years, the men's and women's championships have been administered separately and on different dates, although they have been staged at common sites.

Several proposals for combined on his legal difficulties, and attempts to reach Trope by telephone were unsuccessful, the Associated Press reported.

Bloom and Walters were indicted February 2 by a Tuscaloosa County grand jury on misdemeanor charges stemming from a contract they signed with Alabama center Derrick McKey during the 1986-87 season, a violation of NCAA rules.

Forfeited season

McKey, the 1986-87 Southeastern Conference player of the year as a junior, had to forfeit his senior season, and the school had to return $250,000 in revenues it received during the 1987 NCAA basketball tournament.

McKey then entered the National Basketball Association draft and now plays for the Seattle SuperSonics.

Siegleman said the grand jury subsequently returned additional indictments against Walters and Bloom on the same charges involving Terry Coner, an all-conference guard at Alabama.

Reclassification petitions due June 1

Petitions for changes in membership classification must be postmarked no later than May 25 and received in the NCAA national office not later than June 1.

The petitions will be reviewed by NCAA staff, which will consider the requests for changes in division membership or multidivision classification as dictated by the provisions of Bylaws 10-3 and 10-4.

Institutions requesting a change must meet the applicable membership criteria of the division to which the transfer is planned as set forth in Bylaw 11.

Also, institutions must have operated in conformity with all other bylaw requirements of the desired division for a two-year period prior to June 1.

Childers said he did not know how long it would take to extradite Bloom to Alabama.

"Every state has its own slightly different way to go about it. Some are responsive, some are not."

In February, a Lee County jury convicted former Atlanta sports agent Jim Abernethy of tampering with a sports contest by signing Auburn University football player Kevin Porter to a contract before his senior season.

Abernethy was sentenced to the maximum of a year in jail and a $2,000 fine. He is appealing the conviction.

If all requirements are met, the member will be transferred to the new division effective September 1, 1988, or the beginning of practice in any sport in that fall term or the first day of classes for the fall term, whichever occurs first.

Institutions choosing to change division membership or multidivision classification must remain in the new division for three years.

Any institution planning a change in membership classification or multidivision classification in a men's or women's sport may obtain a copy of the official petition form by contacting Shirley Whitacre, membership coordinator, at the national office.

contributes points to the school's team score.

Regional team and individual allocations for the new format also were established by the committee. Four teams would be selected from the East, two from the Midwest, one from the West and one at large. Individual berths would be distributed as follows: sabre—East, 25; Midwest, seven, and West, four; foil—East, 25; Midwest, eight, and West, three, and epee—East, 24; Midwest, eight, and West, four.

The committee also tentatively scheduled the 1989 men's championships March 30 through April 1. The site will be determined no later than June. The men's and women's committees again have agreed to hold their championships at a common site.

Members of the men's committee also recommended that a head official be hired to oversee the men's competition.

Women's committee

During the April 14-17 meeting of the women's committee, members tentatively scheduled their championships for April 2-4, 1989.

The women's committee also recommended an expansion of its individual-championship bracket from 24 to 30 competitors. The field would be divided into six pools of five competitors, if the Executive Committee accepts the proposal.

Under the new format, regional individual allocations would be as follows: West, four; Midwest, seven; Mid-Atlantic/South, seven; Northeast, seven, and five at large.

City Royals and a 1962 graduate of Tulane.

Kelly disbanded the men's basketball program April 4, 1985, during the point-shaving scandal that led to the trial of star center John "Hot Rod" Williams and others and the resignation of head coach Ned Fowler.

Athletics director Hindman Wall resigned later.

Williams was acquitted of sports-bribery charges after two trials and is playing for Cleveland in the NBA.

Fowler, an assistant coach at Auburn University, was not implicated in the point-shaving scandal.

Wall, never implicated in the scandal or the NCAA violations, is associate athletics director at Auburn.

Letters to the Editor

A confusing message to our youth

To the Editor:

I'm confused, and I'm sure the young sports fans of America are also. Glued to the television set for every possible minute of the outstanding coverage of the equally outstanding NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship extravaganza, I found the antidrug- and antialcohol-abuse spots by Fennis Dembo and other college stars very refreshing. What an effective way to convey a much-needed message to youngsters who will be tomorrow's athletics stars and our country's leaders.

Then, along comes a commercial with a cute dog and scantily clad coeds singing the praises of an alcoholic beverage that has been allowed to cosponsor the tournament on television. Isn't this a conflict of interest and an outright paradox?

I'm sure there are plenty of nonalcoholic sponsors waiting in the wings and willing to be a part of this great sports event, allowing college athletics to remain "pure."

While the alcoholic sponsors would want you to think these commercials are aimed at adults, don't be fooled. The fun-loving dogs and glitzy girls are designed to disarm the viewer and make these alcoholic messages seem frivolous in nature. It is obvious the industry is attempting to brainwash today's teen-agers and cultivate a whole new generation of alcohol users.

When new contracts are discussed with the television people, is it possible for college leaders to have some input concerning sponsors?

Playing for a tie perhaps is enough

To the Editor:

In reading the article "No academic payoff found in athletics success" in the March 23 issue of The NCAA News, I was particularly interested in what one University of Alabama educator had to say.

John Blackburn, vice-president for educational development at Alabama, concluded, "Winning doesn't help you, but losing hurts you."

That sounds like a strong endorsement for the Crimson Tide football staff to kick for a tie rather than going for two points and a victory when facing that sticky decision with time running out.

Value of all-star games questioned

High school all-star basketball games are not in the best interest of the young player, according to George S. King Jr., athletics director at Purdue University and chair of the NCAA Special Events Committee.

"I think the minuses far outweigh the pluses," King told Barry Temkin of the Chicago Tribune. "I think it's difficult to do the kind of school-work they should be doing during that critical time when they're chasing around the country," King said.

According to columnist Temkin, there are a number of educators who feel the same way. They believe that after a player has spent several months practicing, traveling and playing in games, the last thing he needs is to miss class and study time to play a game in Pittsburgh or Albuquerque.

Larry Hawkins, a former high school basketball coach, told Temkin, "If a kid is a marginal student, especially if it's a player who... made the play-offs, that's a long period of time to be engaged in sports with the distraction to his studies. The guys have played and had a good season. Now, they're taking it further and further. It could be time a guy says, 'Now, it's time to get into the class-work,'" said Hawkins, who is president of the Institute for Athletics and Education and director of the University of Chicago's Office of Special Programs.

Participants in the four national contests typically practice for three days before the game. So a player who competes in two of the games—the maximum under NCAA rules—will likely miss two to six days of school, depending on how many practices are held during the week and on whether a game occurs during the athlete's spring vacation.

Many of those involved with all-star games believe that the games provide an educational experience that more than compensates for lost class time, Temkin said.

"It will probably be the most total educational experience some of the players ever had up to that point," said Hyattsville (Maryland) DeMatha High School coach Morgan Wootten, who is in charge of player selection for the All-American Game.

The Chicago Bulls' Michael Jordan said his 1981 All-American Game "was an experience I'll never forget. It gave me an opportunity to see how good I could be. I had a chance to test the waters to see where my skills stood and a chance to visit a hospital and see some people not as fortunate as myself."

Hawkins said he would like to see all-star games come up with a more formal educational program.

"Field trips are nice," he said, "but there is a balance. What is it students gain? They're eager to go, we know that. But what do the students gain that they wouldn't get at home?"

Marmie's top priorities are class and integrity

Larry Marmie does not hesitate for a moment when asked what he expects of the football team he inherited in January from John Cooper.

"Class and integrity," he says—on the field, in the classroom and in the community.

"I want us to have a classy football team, one that people feel good about when they take the field," Marmie insists, adding that the team also must have integrity, a trait for which he takes personal responsibility.

Marmie, who was defensive coordinator for the Sun Devils before his promotion, believes in leading by example, and he believes that his experience not only as a coach but also as a teacher will help him to recruit and to train the kind of athletes who will fit into the program he envisions.

The development of that program begins in the high schools, Marmie explains, and in the living rooms of the students he and his coaches try to recruit.

"We can visit each youngster's home three times," Marmie notes. "We'll use those visits wisely as football coaches and as ambassadors of ASU."

To do that more effectively, the coach plans to make sure his assistants know as much about the campus as they do about the football program.

"The vast majority of parents really want what's best for their sons," Marmie asserts, so they are interested in ASU's mandatory study halls, class-attendance monitoring, and other resources available for academic and social problems.

Recruits will be told from the start that their goals include both academic degrees and football success.

Once an athlete is in the program, Marmie says, he has to want to graduate to be successful academically, even with all the resources available.

But, he adds, with academics a major part of the recruiting pitch, "I can pick up the phone, call his parents and say, 'Hey, Joey's not doing what we talked about. He's not going to class,' and ask for their help."

Marmie believes Arizona State's academic support for athletes is second to none because of the resources available through the athletics department's academic student services division and because of the requirement that athletes, like other students, fulfill the general studies requirement in their first two years and declare a major by their junior year.

the ratings.

"We were all kind of giddy (with a 7.3 rating—six million households). We haven't been lower than a 5 or higher than a 7.3. A 6.7 or 7 rating is very, very decent."

George Shirk, staff writer
San Francisco Chronicle

"One cannot advance the theory that the college game (basketball) is somehow 'better' than the pro game by using the NCAA tournament as the basis for argument, because it ignores the fact that in December, each Big Ten team, each ACC team, each Pac-10 team and each SEC team loads its schedule with such low-rent shows that they're barely better than watching practice. And there are a lot of these kinds of games. Too many, in fact.

"Moreover, it does not take into account that during the course of a season, there will be, proportionately, more bad college basketball games—blowouts and the like—than in any other sport played in America, bar none.

"In an effort to correct this obvious imbalance, college basketball a couple of years ago saw the light and, with the adoption of the shot clock and the three-point line, began to move in the direction of the pros.

"The reason is that now, even colleges are conceding by their actions, that the pros have the better game."

Overcoming stereotypes is goal of Northern Arizona seminar

By Wylie Smith

"Stereotyped and set apart as lazy, stupid or not having the ability to learn, or not even caring to learn, is what some people have looked upon athletes as being—and some still do," said Lois Stalvey, author and educator who recently conduc-

"I don't want our players to feel different," Marmie says. "Too often, they are looked at as being different because they are in an activity that is high profile."

"But I have told them that I want them to be seen on campus as college students, not as ASU football players. I don't want them to be treated special in the classroom."

To get that message across, Marmie will insist that his assistant coaches take the same attitude. For his own part, "It would not bother me at all to walk into a faculty function and not have anybody know who I was, but just be thought of as a faculty member."

In his early coaching days, that was easy for Marmie. As an assistant coach at Morehead State University and Eastern Kentucky University, he was an assistant professor and taught classes in personal and community health.

Athletes need extra cash with grants

Hayden Fry, head football coach at the University of Iowa, says schools could find the means to pay college athletes, particularly since they have been able to improve funding for women's sports.

"When I came here (Iowa), the women's athletics budget was next to nothing; and now, it's $2.6 or $2.7 million. They found a way to upgrade the budget for them," Fry told Buck Turnbull of The Des Moines Register.

"Even if it's $25 a month, that would help," Fry said. "A lot of our athletes are from poor families, and they just don't have any extra money."

"I don't think it's right for us to make all the money we do in intercollegiate athletics and not compensate the athletes."

"Yes, they get a scholarship, but they earn that. They work around the clock practicing, getting in condition and playing the games."

Fry said that because many athletes use summer school for eligibility purposes and because they can't work during the school year (under NCAA rules), there isn't time for them to earn spending money.

The Hawkeye coach said he thinks spending money should be included in an athlete's grant-in-aid package, then paid out on a monthly basis.

Tom Colonese, assistant athletics director for academics, worked closely with Stalvey in arranging the class and identifying the athletes who most likely would benefit.

"Only four of the 26 athletes in the seminar had relatives who had attended college, and many had parents who were forced to drop out of high school to help support their families," said Stalvey. "Because of this, there could be no real help from home for academic success either in high school or college. As a result, study habits were not developed."

"These athletes come from a cross-section of ethnic backgrounds, and they are not lazy or stupid—they're scared and confused," Stalvey said. "Some days, we even had athletes bring friends; the seminar grew instead of dwindling. We had some lively sessions, permitting the athletes to speak their minds," she said.

"If an athlete gets behind in class and does not have the academic background or the confidence to ask for help, chances are that the athlete will just let things slide beyond the point where they can be helped," Stalvey said.

"After all, they've been told they're lazy and stupid and don't have the ability to learn, and this is an easy way for them to 'live down' to these rocky expectations."

Alabama captures women's gym title

Alabama won the 1988 National Collegiate Women's Gymnastics Championship team title April 22 in Salt Lake City with a score of 190.050, the highest point total ever recorded by a team champion.

Utah, a five-time champion, was runner-up for the second year in a row. The Lady Utes scored 189.500.

"I think the days of dynasty in women's gymnastics are over," Alabama coach Sarah Patterson said. "We all pushed each other in all areas, which helped raise us to greatness. (Friday) was definitely our night, and this year was definitely our year."

"They beat us at our own game," Utah coach Greg Marsden said. "They came in here and performed very well."

In the individual competition, Kelly Garrison-Steves of Oklahoma became the first competitor to win three individual championships in one year. She defended her 1987 all-around title with a score of 38.900 out of a possible 40.000. She also won the balance beam and vault. Her four career titles tie a championship record.

"I came in hoping to do well, and I think my routines on the bars and the beam were two of my best this season," she said.

Kim Hamilton of UCLA won in floor exercise for the second straight year.

Trojans hope No. 1 ranking holds up in volleyball play-offs

If the American Volleyball Coaches Association rankings for men's volleyball are accurate, Southern California should have no trouble claiming the 1988 NCAA championship.

From mid-March through late April, the top four spots on the AVCA poll remained static—the Southern Cal in first, followed by Penn State, Hawaii and UCLA. A title certainly would come as a welcome change for Southern Cal, runners-up the past three years.

Leading the Trojans' front line will be veterans Tom Duke and Chris Martz, with 6-5 freshman Brian Ivie possibly starting as middle hitter. Duke finished second in hitting percentage (.514) in last year's tourney behind Penn State's Chris Chase.

Setting duties will fall into the hands of Mike Lauterman again this year, although 6-3 freshman Dan Greenbaum also may see some action in that position.

Another addition to the 32-2 squad is freshman Jen-Kai Liu, who recently earned most-valuable-player honors in the prestigious Reebok Classic. The Trojans defeated Penn State in the semifinals and UCLA in the final match to win the tournament.

Liu quickly made a name for himself as one of the Western Intercollegiate Volleyball Association's top players. He ranks in the top 10 in several WIVA categories, including fourth with a hitting percentage of .408.

If any team can break the stronghold that West Coast teams have on the sport, Penn State stands the best chance. The Nittany Lions have reached the No. 2 spot once (in 1982) and have finished third three times and fourth once.

Championship Preview

And this year, head coach Tom Tait returns two all-America—6-10 Chris Chase and 6-0 Javier Gaspar. But expect some changes this year, as Tait moved some of the responsibilities of Chase and Gaspar to the rest of the squad.

"We've diversified our attack a bit more and are taking more outside shots instead of all middle shots," Tait said. Sharing these new attack responsibilities are outside hitters Dave Bittner and Robert Pierce and right-side hitter Guillermo Silva.

The senior-dominated team put in a good showing at the Long Beach State Classic despite the absence of Chase, who was injured. The Lions claimed victories over West Coast powers Pepperdine and San Diego State and defeated host Long Beach State, 3-0, in the final.

Chase sat out three weeks due to injury, but Tait said this actually helped the team in two ways. "First of all, the team's confidence was boosted because it won despite the absence of Chris. And Chris has come back hungrier than ever."

Third-year Hawaii coach Alan Rosehill would like nothing better than to bring home the school's second volleyball title this year—an ambitious goal, since the Rainbows have never appeared in the tournament. The women's squad, coached by Dave Shoji, claimed the Division I crown last December.

Junior outside hitter Allen Allen—who has an amazing 45-inch vertical jump—has had an outstanding season but is not the only talented player on the roster. Rosehill explained that "we don't want Allen carrying that much of the load. We have some other very good players."

Four other starters return from the 1987 squad, including 6-4 sophomore Carlos Briceno, 6-5 Todd Harrison and 6-4 Brian Poppinga. Briceno last year used his powerful jump serve to record 14 service aces, tying him for seventh in the conference.

UCLA (28-9) claimed the school's 12th title in 18 years at last year's tournament but suffered the loss of the play-offs' most-outstanding player, Ozzie Volstad, all-America Jeff Williams, and 6-9 Arne Lamberg.

But the good news is that coach Al Scates still has veterans Don Dendinger, Matt Sonnichsen and Trevor Schirman. Sonnichsen ranks just behind Penn State's Gaspar in the setting department, but Sonnichsen at 6-5 also has proven invaluable at the net.

Scates said he is hoping for seven victories this decade, which means the Bruins will have to win both this year and next. But the team usually is at its best under pressure.

Championship profile

Event: National Collegiate men's volleyball.

Field: Four teams will compete for the 1988 championship. One team will be selected from each of three regions, and the fourth squad will be selected at large.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: UCLA took three straight games from Southern California (15-11, 15-2 and 16-14) to claim the 1987 crown.

Schedule: The championship will be held May 6-7 at Allen County Memorial Coliseum, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Indiana University-Purdue University, Fort Wayne, is host.

The NCAA News coverage: Complete results will appear in the May 11 issue of the News.

Contenders: Southern California, UCLA, Penn State, Hawaii.

Championship notes: Only four schools are represented in the 18 championships won to date. They are UCLA (12), Pepperdine (three), Southern Cal (two) and San Diego State (one)... Ohio State and Penn State are the only schools outside of California whose teams have finished as high as second in the tournament. The Buckeyes were runners-up in 1977, the Nittany Lions in 1982... Teams from 14 institutions have participated in the championship... Only five times in 18 tournaments has the championship match been decided by a fifth game.

SIU-Edwardsville in good shape to defend II tennis title

Christina Bokelund and Portia George have grown accustomed to national championships, and Southern Illinois-Edwardsville hopes its junior stars maintain the habit.

As freshmen in 1986, Bokelund and George led the Cougars to their first Division II women's tennis team title. Southern Illinois-Edwardsville repeated last season, and Bokelund and George captured the doubles crown.

The Cougars will defend their title again when the Division II Women's Tennis Championships begin May 9 at Sonoma State. Southern Illinois-Edwardsville, which won its semifinal and final matches at last year's championships by 5-4 margins, has had an easier time of it this season, handily defeating some of its leading challengers.

Senior Michelle Wreen emerged

last fall to defeat both Bokelund and George in tournaments, and the three have rotated among the top three spots on the team this spring.

The Cougars lost Lisa Schuito from their championship team, but senior Jennifer Reuter, who returns along with junior Nicky DeMuro, has emerged as a team leader for coach Bob Meyers' squad.

"Jennifer has become a stabilizing factor in the middle of the lineup," Meyers said. "She's played excellent tennis for us. We also have a freshman, Sandy Stace, who has the ability to play with some of our top players, but she just hasn't put it together yet."

Abilene Christian, last year's runner-up, also returns most of its 1987 squad. Juniors Donna Sykes and Kim Gidley lead the Wildcats. Sykes and Carol Tabor, who has graduated, lost to George and Bokelund in last year's doubles finals.

Cecil Eager is completing his 10th season as coach at Abilene Christian, which has won three consecutive Lone Star Conference championships.

Cal Poly Pomona, which finished third last season, was stung by graduation losses, particularly that of veteran Mary Holycross. However, Holycross remains on the scene as the team's new head coach; and the return of last year's singles champion, Xenia Anastasiadou, gives the UC Davis, fourth last season, is rebuilding around Jennifer Shaevitz, yet another member of Division II's powerful junior class.

Cal State Bakersfield, which suffered a one-sided loss to Abilene Christian in last year's opening round, returns its entire squad and could move up. Senior Mary Beth Huewe and junior Diedre Wilson lead the Roadrunners.

Cal State Northridge, the first Division II women's champion and 1986 runner-up, was not invited to last year's tournament but is likely to bounce back in 1988.

In individual singles, Edna Olivarez of Cal State Los Angeles entered last year's tournament as the division's top-ranked player but lost to George in the semifinals. Olivarez again should be among the top contenders.

Other individuals to watch include sophomore Tanya Soemarno of Ferris State, Linda Cantrell of Florida Atlantic, and Vidya Damodharan and Kathy Kelly of Florida International.

Among doubles competitors, Soemarno and Diane Makonnen, along with Cantrell and Michele Spence, could be among the challengers for the title.

The Lady Mocs won in 1983, 1984 and 1985... Christina Bokelund and Portia George of Southern Illinois-Edwardsville will be defending their doubles title... Bokelund, George, defending singles champion Xenia Anastasiadou of Cal Poly Pomona, Edna Olivarez of Cal State Los Angeles and Donna Sykes of Abilene Christian are members of an outstanding junior class in Division II women's tennis.

Matadors, defending II champs in softball, have gotten better

Good defense and improved hitting may lead top-ranked Cal State Northridge to the school's fifth Division II Women's Softball Championship title. The Matadors, who defeated Florida Southern for the 1987 crown, also won Division II women's softball titles in 1983, 1984 and 1985.

"We've been playing very well defensively, and we're hitting better than we were last year," said Matador coach Gary Torgeson. Cal State Northridge, 45-11 through late April, finished last season ranked first nationally in fielding percentage (.974) and eighth in team batting with a .314 average.

Speed improved

Another improvement Torgeson sees in the 1988 squad is its speed. "This is the fastest team we've had in years. The team is fast around the bases, using a lot of hit-and-run situations and beating out the ball."

Returning statistical leaders are pitchers Debbie Dickman and Delanee Anderson. An all-America selection in her freshman season, Dickman leads the pitching staff with a 16-3 record. Anderson has a 10-4 record. She was selected all-conference most valuable player in 1987.

Bringing talent to the mound as well as at the plate is senior Lisa Martin. Named most valuable player in two tournaments this year, Martin has a 14-2 pitching record.

Leading hitter

Sophomore Lisa Erickson, batting over .400, is the team's leading hitter and is followed closely by Beth Onestinghel. In her final season, Onestinghel is batting .373 and has set a school record with 14 triples in a season.

Florida Southern (44-4) again is anchored by pitching standout Dori Stankewitz, a senior.

Among her achievements, Stankewitz ranked third in 1987 with a 0.45 earned-run average; was fifth in victories (29-3 in 212 $\frac{2}{3}$  innings) and finished second in strikeouts, averaging 9.7 per game.

Stankewitz is 23-2

In 164 innings this year, Stankewitz (0.21) is 23-2 and has 233 strikeouts. Also, she has recorded 17 shutouts and allowed only five earned runs. Stankewitz has combined with senior Rhonda Kaiser and sophomore Jana Schaller for a team ERA of 0.65.

Coach Chris Bellotto hopes Schaller—a true utility player—will step forward to carry the pitching staff in 1989. Schaller leads the team with a .415 batting average and has chalked up 10 doubles, four home runs and 53 runs batted in in 43 games.

Wayne State (Michigan) (26-10) boasts several good players, including junior pitching ace Kelly Hawker. Through 112 innings, she has a 12-5 record and two saves.

Ranked 11th

Hawker ranked 11th in the nation last year with 98 strikeouts in 168 $\frac{2}{3}$  innings and is well on her way to topping that this season. She already has 89 strikeouts and a 0.37 ERA.

Assisting Hawker is senior Cheryl Spiegel, who has 51 strikeouts with a 9-3 record and a 0.94 ERA.

Leading the Tartars with a .397 batting average is sophomore Michaelene Bachleda. She has appeared in all 36 games this season and has 46 hits with 14 runs batted in.

Cal State Bakersfield (37-7-1) already has defeated Cal State

Northridge en route to what may be the Roadrunners' first time in the championships.

Earlier this month, coach Kathy Welter's team split a doubleheader with Northridge. "Our victory over

Championship Preview

Northridge was a big one for us," Welter said.

"But we'll enter the tournament playing just the same as we have been all year," she added. "This is a pretty mature team, and it has been pretty consistent all year long. We'll just try to stay consistent."

Leading the Roadrunners in batting are senior Terri Reifel (.378) and freshman Lora Grant (.367). Reifel ranks second on the team with 24 runs batted in, and Grant has 23.

Senior Sas Trotter, who is batting .340, leads in runs batted in with 32. The shortstop also leads in extra-base hits with three doubles, eight triples and two home runs.

On the mound for the Roadrunners are junior Margaret Harvey and freshman Lisa Drollinger. In 151 innings pitched, Harvey has accumulated a 17-4-1 record and owns a 0.74 ERA. She also has 62 strikeouts this season. Drollinger has a 10-1 record and a 0.94 ERA.

Championship profile

Event: Division II women's softball.

Field: Sixteen teams will compete for the 1988 title. Four conferences have been granted automatic qualification. The remaining 12 teams will be selected at large.

Automatic qualification: California Collegiate Athletic Conference, Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New England Collegiate Athletic Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference.

Defending champion: Cal State Northridge won the 1987 championship with a 4-0 victory over Florida Southern.

Schedule: Regionals will be played at on-campus sites May 7-8. Cal State Sacramento will host the finals May 13-15.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from the regionals will appear in the May 11 issue of the News. Championship results will be published May 18.

Contenders: Cal State Northridge, Cal State Bakersfield, Florida Southern, Wayne State (Michigan).

Championship notes: Cal State Northridge has won four of the six championships contested to date... The Matadors finished second the two seasons (1982 and 1986) they did not win... Teams from 32 institutions have participated in the tournament... # WHAT QUENCHES A FULL COURT THIRST?

THIRST AID FOR THAT DEEP DOWN BODY THIRST.

$200,000 of Final Four receipts will go to Duke women's athletics

Duke University made more than $800,000 by reaching the NCAA Final Four, and officials announced April 20 that one-fourth of that money will go toward a scholarship endowment for women's athletics.

Duke's share of NCAA tournament proceeds in the 1987-88 season came to $926,660. After expenses, the university netted $801,660, according to a prepared statement.

Tom Butters, athletics director, said that $200,000 would go into a recently established endowment for women's athletics scholarships, while the remaining $601,660 would be used in conjunction with private gifts to fund renovations at Cameron

Indoor Stadium.

The women's scholarship endowment was established last fall. The plan calls for the athletics department to contribute its first $200,000 of surplus funds to the endowment fund in each of the next five years, with the goal of endowing 10 scholarships for women athletes.

Current renovations at Cameron include the installation of new downstairs seating, a new scoreboard and sound system, and several cosmetic improvements to the interior of the 48-year-old arena.

The Blue Devils' appearance in the 1986 Final Four netted the school $650,000. Most of those funds were used to install two athletics fields with artificial surfaces for use by varsity, club and intramural sports activities.

Overcoming

an athlete," said Stalvey. "Not too many college students have full-time jobs and take a full load in school, but that's essentially what athletes do. Besides being full-time students, they put in from 35 to 45 hours a week with athletics during the season of competition, and off-season training is about as demanding as the individual wants to make it."

Many athletes receive grants-in-aid that help to compensate for the time involved with athletics. At Northern Arizona, an in-state grant is worth $3,718, while the out-of-state tab is $6,776.

Responses from the athletes in Stalvey's seminar included: (1) not knowing what to expect when they got to college; (2) not feeling comfortable talking about academic problems with peers, professors or coaches; (3) lack of confidence in talking academically, even around peers; (4) getting behind and being afraid to ask professors for help, because most had been looked upon numerous times throughout their lives in academic circles as being stupid and lazy, and (5) most thought they were "alone" with their problem, not realizing that many students were in the same boat with them—many of whom were not athletes.

"I have a new outlook on educators now," said one athlete. "I thought they (faculty) didn't care, but I found out that they do; all I have to do is seek out their help when I don't understand an assignment."

"I now feel that if I get a low score on a test, it's my professor's problem as well as mine," said another athlete. "Perhaps I did not study hard enough and perhaps he did a poor job of explaining the material. It's something we have to work out without embarrassing one another."

"Understanding that I am not alone and that someone cares about me and my progress were two valuable ingredients I got in the seminar that I will always remember," said one athlete.

Stalvey is the author of two books, "The Education of a WASP" and "Getting Ready: The Education of a White Parent in the Inner City Schools."

The material in the books was drawn from personal experience and observation of how poorly the black students were treated when my children were students in the same schools," said Stalvey. "In 1974, my oldest son was the only white student in a school of more than 4,000 Blacks."

For the past five summers, Stalvey has taught a class on racism in Northern Arizona University's sociology department.

"The seminar Lois taught for our athletes was such an overwhelming success that we hope to make this at least an annual event," said Jurich.

"Northern Arizona is working hard to help athletes realize they can be successful in the classroom."

said Jurich. "Dr. Colonesse has been instrumental in our academic success. Last fall semester, more than one-third of our student-athlete population had at least a B grade average for the semester, and almost 50 of them were on the dean's list."

Administrative Committee minutes

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Appointed the following to serve as the Special NCAA Committee on Grants for Undergraduates in Their Sixth Year: Don Aripoli, University of Arizona, chair; Ron Dickerson, Pennsylvania State University; Alan Hauser, Appalachian State University; Elizabeth Kurpius, Indiana University, Bloomington; Jack Lengyel, University of Missouri, Columbia; Lee McElroy, University of Houston, and Molly Purdue, Brooklyn College. [Note: This action was taken by the Administrative Committee April 4.]

b. Reviewed the schedule and agenda for the April meetings of the Council and steering committees, including plans for Congressional visits by members of the Council.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee:

a. Approved a request by the Academic Requirements Committee that it be permitted to meet in June 1988 in Chicago, Illinois, rather than in Kansas City, Missouri, noting that the committee will conduct only one meeting, rather than its authorized two meetings, this year.

b. Affirmed that the Administrative Committee is authorized to approve the executive regulations for the revised NCAA Manual being developed by the Special Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification, noting that some of the regulations previously deleted from that revision (to be included in the championships administration handbooks) now have been restored.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 5-1-(g). Acting for the Council:

a. Approved 50 summer basketball leagues (32 for men and 18 for women) per Constitution 3-9-(b)-(1), as previously listed in The NCAA News.

Fund-raising begins for ODU football

Old Dominion University, which has not had a football team since 1939, has officially launched a season-ticket campaign to raise money for a team it hopes to field in the fall of 1990.

For five years, there have been discussions about establishing a football program at Old Dominion. The purpose of the ticket campaign is to find out if the Hampton Roads community is willing to replace verbal support with financial backing.

While the board of visitors has not given final approval to a football program, athletics officials and football supporters hope a solid response will show the support is there.

"Our board of visitors has given

"Old Dominion would have to generate $800,000 annually"

us some positive encouragement about pursuing a football program with some conditions, and one of those conditions was that we demonstrate community support for the football program," athletics director James Jarrett told United Press International.

"Our feeling is that the best way to demonstrate that support is to have a ticket drive and to let the community show that support by buying tickets," he said.

Akron to begin drug tests

James Dennison, athletics director at the University of Akron, has announced that a comprehensive drug education and testing program will begin immediately for university athletes.

"We've worked hard to develop a program that combines both voluntary and reasonable-suspicion testing provisions with an educational program," Dennison said. "We're confident that this will work well for everyone involved and could even

School-wide tests for drugs sought

The Rev. Jerry Falwell said he wants the school he founded, Liberty University, to institute a drug-testing policy.

Falwell said he will ask the board of directors at Liberty to approve a policy that would begin next fall. The board is scheduled to meet May 2.

Under the proposal, every incoming freshman and returning student would be required to sign a waiver agreeing to submit to random monthly drug testing, United Press International reported.

If students refuse to sign the waiver, they will be dismissed.

"They will have to attend another school," Falwell said.

Students who admit up front to a drug or alcohol problem can avail themselves of a campus counseling and rehabilitation center and remain in school, he said.

Falwell said he does not believe drugs are a major problem at the Baptist school. But he said it would be naive to think there are none on the Lynchburg campus.

He said he told students of his proposal at a chapel assembly April 22, and they reacted with a "giant ovation."

James Jarrett

Old Dominion would have to generate $800,000 annually, not including student fees, through a combination of season-ticket sales, corporate advertising packages and donations.

To drum up support for the program, the school is launching a four-week media blitz costing between $100,000 and $125,000. The advertising campaign started April 24 and ends May 22.

Jarrett predicted that the school would know within six weeks from the campaign's start whether Hampton Roads is interested in Old Dominion football.

The school has been without football since 1939 when it was the Norfolk division of the College of William and Mary.

Old Dominion plans to play Division I-AAA football, a new classification under study by the NCAA that would provide a new option for Division I football by stressing cost containment through smaller coaching staffs, reduced spring practice and less financial aid.

The NCAA's vote for the creation of Division I-AAA football will not come until January at the Association's annual Convention, at the earliest.

Jarrett said he was "pretty sure" the division would be approved.

be a comprehensive model for other athletics departments around the country."

Dennison said athletes will be asked to volunteer for confidential, random testing for substances such as steroids, alcohol and marijuana. However, if reasonable suspicion of drug use exists, testing of any athlete may be done.

Last summer, a university committee unanimously recommended that such a program be implemented. The recommendation came in response to a story in the university's student newspaper, The Buchtelite, which alleged the use of steroids by some athletes. Although the committee announced at the time that it could find no evidence, suspicion of steroid use continues.

The policy of the Akron drug program would include progressive procedures, up to and including suspensions from intercollegiate athletics for athletes who receive positive test results or who fail or refuse to cooperate with the program, or who do not cooperate when confronted with "reasonable suspicion" of drug or alcohol abuse.

The new testing plan includes an appeal procedure.

Wake Forest honors Hooks

Wake Forest University has honored Gene Hooks, athletics director, by naming the school's new on-campus baseball facility the Gene Hooks Stadium.

Hooks has served Wake Forest as an athlete, faculty member, coach and administrator for nearly 40 years. He was an all-America third baseman on Deacon teams in 1949 and 1950 and led the 1949 squad to a second-place finish in the NCAA championship.

McConnell sizes up Olympic hopefuls

By John Mossman

This September, Suzie McConnell would rather be sitting in front of a blackboard instead of standing beside one.

She would prefer that the blackboard display basketball diagrams and strategies instead of math problems and spelling words.

McConnell's future is set. If she makes the U.S. Olympic women's basketball team, she'll delay her teaching career for a once-in-a-lifetime athletics experience. If she doesn't qualify for the team, she'll probably be teaching in an elementary school somewhere in the Pittsburgh area—her home town.

Smallest player

At 5-foot-4, McConnell was the smallest of 50 players at the women's trials in Colorado Springs. But she also happens to be one of the quickest, most intelligent and most competitive.

And she is a rarity among women players: a three-point specialist.

McConnell made the cut to 21 players April 24.

McConnell, who graduates this year from Pennsylvania State University, is the 1988 recipient of the Frances Pomeroy Naismith Award as the nation's top player under 5-6. She also was selected to the Kodak and U.S. Basketball Writers all-America teams, having averaged 20.7 points and 8.9 assists as a senior.

She is a four-time all-Atlantic 10 Conference choice and led the nation in assists as a freshman and sophomore. She achieved a rare double of 1,000-plus career points (1,879) and assists (1,307).

Team captain

She captained the 1986 U.S. Select team that finished second in the Canadian Invitational, then joined the U.S. team that won the gold medal at the 1986 World Championships. Last summer, she led the U.S. Select team to a runner-up finish in the pre-Olympic Invitational in Seoul, South Korea.

All of which, according to McConnell, would pale in comparison to making the Olympic team.

"I don't think there's any greater feeling than to make the Olympic team," she said. "Nothing you've accomplished in the past can compare to it. This is the ultimate international competition, and you're representing your country. It's an honor."

McConnell sparkled during the trials in Colorado Springs, proving to be a creative playmaker at point guard.

"I'm pleased with my defense and with the way I've controlled the offense we've run," she said.

"The only thing I've been disappointed with is my shooting. I had worked so hard on it. I know I can shoot better. I don't know if it was the altitude affecting my legs or what. I haven't been able to hit the three-pointer in scrimmages, and it's frustrating.

Olympic team hopeful Suzie McConnell

"I hope the selection committee knows I'm a better shooter than I've shown so far. Of course, I haven't seen anybody shooting the ball well (in the trials)."

McConnell's competitive nature was perhaps unavoidable. She has seven brothers and sisters, all of whom have played basketball and other sports, and her parents also are athletic.

Unlike two of her brothers, who are coaching at the college level, McConnell prefers the classroom setting to coaching.

"If I don't make the team, I'll do a semester of student teaching and then try to get a job," she says.

"But this (basketball) is what I want to be doing. I would postpone student teaching in a minute. For the past four years, since I saw the '84 Games on television, I've been building toward this. I want it really bad. I don't want my playing career to end just yet."

Mossman writes for the Associated Press.

Committee upholds three-year probation for Cleveland State

The NCAA Division I Steering Committee in an appeal of an infractions case by Cleveland State University has affirmed the NCAA Committee on Infractions' proposed institutional penalties in the case but altered the committee's penalties regarding two institutional employees.

The institutional penalties that became effective April 19, 1988,

Georgia Tech pays tribute to Bobby Dodd

The Georgia state board of regents has unanimously voted to add the name of Bobby Dodd Stadium to Grant Field at Georgia Institute of Technology in honor of former head football coach Bobby Dodd.

The Yellow Jackets' home football stadium now will be known as Bobby Dodd Stadium/Grant Field. The 46,000-seat stadium is scheduled to undergo a total renovation that will increase its seating capacity to more than 50,000.

The stadium was named Hugh Inman Grant Field in 1914 in recog-include a three-year probationary period and a requirement that the men's basketball team be prohibited from participating in postseason play during the 1988-89 and 1989-90 academic years. In addition, the men's basketball team will be prohibited from participating in "live" television appearances during the 1988-89 academic year.

The university also will be limited to 10 official paid visits (rather than the normal 15) for prospective student-athletes during the 1988-89 academic year, and only one coach (rather than three) will be permitted to engage in any off-campus recruiting activities during that academic year, it being understood that neither the head coach nor a specified assistant coach (both were cited for violations of ethical conduct) will be designated to perform such duties.

"Penalties proposed by the Committee on Infractions against an assistant to the director of athletics and a former academic counselor were deleted," said Albert M. Witte, chair, NCAA Division I Steering Committee.

"Instead, the steering committee believed it would be appropriate to place a greater responsibility on the university's president to determine whether disciplinary actions should be taken directly against institutional employees who were involved in the violations. All such actions taken by the president and the reasons therefor shall be reported to the NCAA Committee on Infractions within a 30-day period.

"In addition," Witte said, "the steering committee recommended that the institution seek to reassert institutional control by implementing an adequate program of education regarding compliance procedures to avoid future problems. It is expected that a report of institutional initiatives will be submitted to the Committee on Infractions no later than April 20, 1989."

The violations found in the case by the Committee on Infractions primarily involved improper benefits received by a prospect and a companion from Sudan over a 15-month period spanning portions of 1983 and 1984.

The Committee on Infractions' findings were sustained on appeal with the exception of a portion of one finding. The committee's finding that the assistant to the director of athletics encouraged a potential source of information to mislead the NCAA in its investigation was deleted on appeal.

The university contended in its appeal that it did not consider the two young men from Sudan to be prospective student-athletes and that the numerous benefits received by them were the result of compassion and an obligation for bringing them to the United States.

Neither the Committee on Infractions nor the Division I Steering Committee accepted this assertion, and both groups concluded that the young men were prospective student-athletes; that benefits bestowed upon them were designed to secure the eventual participation of a basketball player, who is 7-feet, 6-inches, and that members of the athletics department staff fabricated a defense in the case.

In accordance with NCAA enforcement procedures, the Committee on Infractions' expanded infractions report, which contains the committee's rationale for its findings and penalties (with names deleted), is available by contacting the NCAA compliance and enforcement department.

The original NCAA infractions report appeared in the December 16, 1987, issue of The NCAA News.

nition of a gift from John W. Grant, a member of the board of trustees and Atlanta merchant.

In gratitude for Grant's gift, which started a building enlargement fund, the board of trustees voted to name the facility in memory of his deceased son. Grant's generosity led to the construction of the original west stands in 1924.

Seven years after that initial construction, Dodd, an all-America quarterback at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, joined the Georgia Tech football staff of William Alexander in 1931, beginning an association that continues today.

Dodd served as an assistant coach to Alexander for 14 years before becoming Georgia Tech's head coach in 1945.

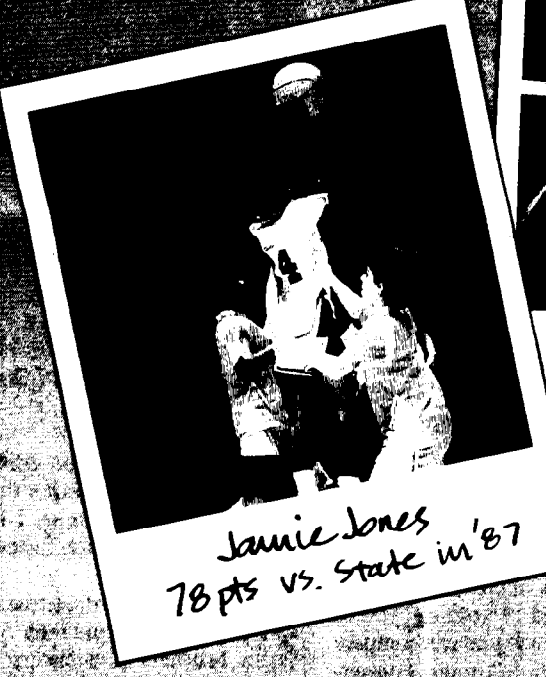

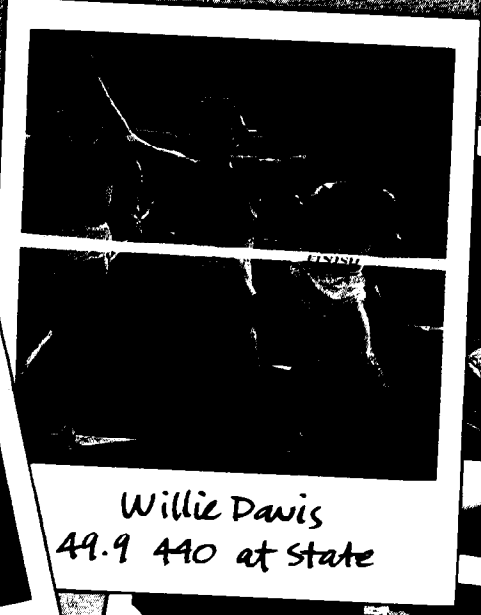

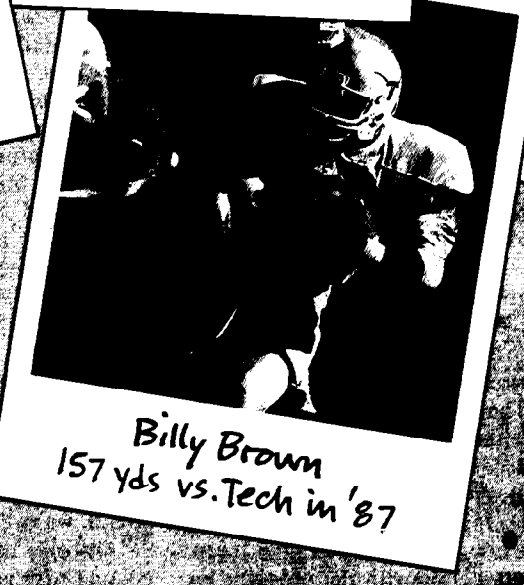

For the next 22 years, Dodd would guide the Rambling Wreck to its most illustrious football era, compiling an overall 165-64-8 record.

Dodd led Georgia Tech to 13 bowl trips during his 22 seasons, posting a 9-4 record, including an eight-game winning streak. His 1952 team, which posted a 12-0 record and is regarded by many observers as Georgia Tech's best ever, was named national champion by International News Service.

Emphasizing academics and integrity in athletics, Dodd's style and field strategy became a major influence on the collegiate game.

After his retirement as head football coach at the end of 1966 season, Dodd, who had been named director of athletics in 1950, continued to serve in that capacity until his retirement from the athletics association in 1976. Dodd still serves Georgia Tech as a consultant to the alumni association, while also making appearances for both the alumni and athletics associations.

Manning, Hawkins dominate Division I statistics

By James M. VanValkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Beyond question, Kansas's Danny Manning and Bradley's Hersey Hawkins dominate the national picture in Division I men's basketball individual statistics for 1988.

Never before has one senior class produced two of the game's all-time top-six career scorers. Hawkins is fourth at 3,008 points, and Manning is sixth at 2,951 (and of the five above him, only Oscar Robertson, Cincinnati 1960, had more rebounds than Manning's 1,187).

Manning and Hawkins could have entered professional basketball as juniors but stayed and enjoyed great senior seasons. Manning is the first player in 14 years to combine a national player-of-the-year award with the NCAA tournament's most-outstanding-player award and a national championship the same year. Hawkins' 36.3 scoring average is the highest in 11 years.

Appropriately, each won three of the six major national player-of-the-years awards. Manning was voted the Wooden, Naismith and Eastman (National Association of Basketball Coaches) awards, while Hawkins was named by the Associated Press, United Press International and the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

The 6-3 Hawkins, who never seriously considered turning pro, preferred to hone his skills in Stan Albeck's second season, a 26-5 success. Hawkins will graduate with a degree in communications. So will Manning, after taking 21 hours this semester. His mother, a Lawrence schoolteacher, and father, a Kansas assistant coach, influenced his decision to stay in school.

The 6-10 Manning influenced the voters with an outstanding NCAA tournament. His 31 points, 18 rebounds and five steals were one of the top championship-game performances in Final Four history, and he had 25 points, 10 rebounds and a semifinal-record six blocked shots against Duke. Hawkins' team lost a first-round heartbreaker to

Rodney Blake, St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania), led Division I in blocked shots

Auburn, but he scored 44. Manning's 328 career points in NCAA tournament play ranks second in history.

Both versatile

Both Hawkins and Manning are versatile, unselfish players and excellent shooters. Over his career, Hawkins shot 53.9 percent from the bounds. They are Lew Alcindor (now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar), UCLA '69; Patrick Ewing, Georgetown '85, and David Robinson, Navy '87.

Holy Cross' Glenn Trost won the Division I three-point field-goal percentage title

Hawkins' 36.3 scoring average is the highest season average since Freeman Williams of Portland State hit 38.8 in 1977. While it is true

Louis Newsome, North Alabama, topped Division II with a 72.2 field-goal percentage (UCLA's Bill Walton won the others), then beat UCLA in the tournament. Walton achieved this combination twice, Alcindor three times and Walt Hazzard once (all UCLA).

Ewing and Chris Mullin of St. John's (New York) divided the player awards three-three in 1985 and Marquette's Butch Lee and North Carolina's Phil Ford did the same in 1978, so Hawkins-Manning was the third such case.

Consensus all-America

Four members of the 1988 consensus all-America team were unanimous first-team choices by all four teams used in the consensus (AP, UPI, USBWA and NABC, mentioned above). They are Hawkins, Manning, Michigan senior Gary Grant and Arizona junior Sean Elliott. The 6-3 Grant is a 2,222-point career scorer, outstanding shooter and defender. The 6-8 Elliott leads all juniors with 1,822 points and is a smooth all-around performer. The fifth member, North Carolina's 6-9 sophomore strongman, J. R. Reid, is a 60.7 percent shooter. Both Elliott and Reid have announced they will not turn pro this year. Reid was chosen to be first team by three of the four selectors;

Cal State Sacramento's Alex Williams hit 5.6 three-pointers per game to lead Division II

Duke junior Danny Ferry by the other.

two second-team votes, compose the consensus second team. They are Syracuse senior Rony Seikaly, Temple freshman Mark Macon, Pittsburgh junior Jerome Lane, Kansas State senior Mitch Richmond and Brigham Young junior Michael Smith.

Other leaders

After Manning and Hawkins, the 1988 senior with the top career figures is Lehigh's 6-5 Daren Queenan, with 2,703 points and 1,013 rebounds—the only player other than Manning to reach the 2,000-1,000 list this season. His point total is 12th all-time.

Seven seniors in all made the 2,500-point list, which now totals 35. The others are Xavier's (Ohio) Byron Larkin 2,696, Missouri's Derrick Chievous 2,580, Marshall's Skip Henderson 2,574 and Iowa State's Jeff Grayer 2,502.

Eleven more reached 2,000 points (Manning had reached this as a junior). They are Florida's Vernon Maxwell 2,450, Butler's Chad Tucker 2,321, Wyoming's Fennis Dembo 2,311, Grant 2,222 as men—field, 80.6 percent at the line, grabbed 818 rebounds and had 400 assists, 76 blocks and 259 steals. Manning in his career shot 59.3 from the field, 74 at the line and had 342 assists, 200 blocked shots and 270 steals to go with his 1,187 rebounds.

Basketball notes

Manning set a national record by playing in 147 games, because he played in 16 NCAA tournament games, winning 13. His career average is 20.1. Hawkins' is 24.1.

Manning's career 59.3 shooting mark has been exceeded by only three others who also had more than 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds. They are Lew Alcindor (now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar), UCLA '69; Patrick Ewing, Georgetown '85, and David Robinson, Navy '87. Hawkins' 36.3 scoring average is the highest season average since Freeman Williams of Portland State hit 38.8 in 1977. While it is true that Hawkins has been helped by the three-point shot his last two years, his season average without these (33.5) still would be the best since 1978, and his career average still would rank seventh. And remember, before 1973, a different free-throw rule provided more free throws for everyone.

The last player before Manning to combine a player-of-the-year award, NCAA tournament most-outstanding-player award and national title the same year was David Thompson of North Carolina State in 1974 [he won one of the four player awards then available

Penn State's McConnell sets Division I career assist record

Penn State's remarkable Susie McConnell (5-4), the top playmaker in Division I women's basketball, is the only player to set all-time career records in 1988. She finished with 1,307 career assists and 10.2 assists per game, both records for the seven seasons of NCAA figures.

McConnell, also a 20.7 scorer this season, made the Kodak all-America team chosen by the Women's Basketball Coaches Association. Others chosen were Rutgers' Sue Wicks, Ohio State's Tracey Hall, Virginia's Donna Holt, Auburn's Vickie Orr, Louisiana Tech's Teresa Weatherspoon, Iowa's Michelle Edwards, Tennessee's Bridgette Gordon, Long Beach State's Penny Toler and Texas' Beverly Williams.

Weatherspoon, Edwards, Orr, Wicks and Gordon were first-team choices on the five-player Naismith team chosen by a panel of writers and coaches.

Weatherspoon, leader of national-champion Louisiana Tech, won the Wade Trophy, named for Virginia Wade, the legendary Delta State coach.

Career leaders

Wicks, eight other seniors and one junior reached 2,000 career points and 1,000 rebounds. The leader in points is Appalachian State's Valorie Whiteside at 2,944—ina Days (2,091 and 1,078) and Stephen F. Austin State's Antoinette Norris (2,062 and 1,360).

The only junior is Mississippi Valley State's Patricia Hoskins, already at 2,218 and 1,222, with a career 26.4 scoring average and 14.5 rebound average (those figures would rank seventh in both categories if maintained). She can reach the 3,000 club.

Days reached 65.1 percent in career field-goal accuracy—fourth all-time. North Carolina-Wilmington's Sharon McDowell reached 13th at 60.9 and Hall 19th at 60.

Connecticut College's Wendy Merk topped Division III rebounders with 16.4 per game.

Five more players surpassed 2,000 career points. They are Miami's (Florida) Maria Rivers 2,358, Grambling's LeChandra LeDay 2,250, Nebraska's Maurice Ivy 2,131, Creighton's Pam Gradoville 2,024 and Gonzaga's Tammy Tibbles 2,011.

A&M last year). Second was Arizona senior Steve Kerr, whose 57.3 broke the record using a minimum of 100 made (53.0 by Indiana's Steve Alford last year). Mississippi Valley State junior Timothy Pollard led the nation in three-pointers made per game at 4.7.

Other top freshmen

Rebound champion Miller obviously was the highest-ranking freshman in the final figures. Indiana's Ray Edwards was third in free-throw accuracy at 90.8 with Louisville's Labradford Smith fifth at 90.5 percent. In three-point accuracy, Edwards had a freshman-record 53.6, good for sixth place. In assists, Siena's Marc Brown (7.7) and North Carolina State's Chris Corchiani (7.3) were 10th and 14th, respectively. Maryland's Brian Williams, shooting 60 percent from the field, was highest in that category at 30th. Temple's Mark Macon, scoring 20.6, was highest in that category at 62nd. Providence's Eric Murdock was sixth in steals at 3.2.

Team champion

There were two team records set in 1988 and one near miss. Temple allowed only 39.2 percent in field-goal accuracy defense, breaking the 39.5 by Georgetown's national champions of 1984. Temple, one of two double champions, also led in won-lost percentage at 32-2 for .941. Princeton, the other double champion, set a record at 8.1 three-pointers made per game and led in three-point accuracy at 49.2 percent.

Loyola Marymount fired the near-record with its 110.3 points per game, just off the record 110.5 by Nevada-Las Vegas in 1976. Next was 35-4 Oklahoma at 102.9 per game, fourth highest in history. This season produced two of the six 100-point-plus scoring teams in NCAA Division I history. Oklahoma set another record of sorts with its 4,012 total points—the first team ever to reach 4,000.

Oklahoma led in scoring margin at 21.9 per game, one point better than Arizona. Georgia Southern, a 24-7 team, won the scoring-defense crown, allowing 55.6 per game, while Notre Dame won the title in rebounding margin at 9.9 and Butler took the crown in free-throw shooting at 79.9 percent, sixth best ever.

Michigan was the nation's most accurate team from the field, shooting 54.6 percent, barely above Arizona's 54.5. Arizona and Oklahoma ranked two-three in won-lost percentage behind Temple. These three were the only teams to win 30 games this season.

Duke, another Final Four team, was sixth in scoring margin at 14.9, ranked among the scoring leaders at 83.8 for 23rd and tied for 13th in won-lost percentage at 28-7 for .800.

Field-goal percentage always has been a major key to victory, and it was for national champion Kansas, as we shall see.

(National trends in Division I for men and women and conference leaders will be in The NCAA News May 4.)

The formula

How was Kansas able to make its surprising run to the NCAA men's championship at 27-11? It was a simple formula, difficult to achieve: a solid, man-to-man defense, combined with an unselfish offense that produced high-percentage shots. The final national rankings show Kansas No. 3 nationally in field-goal percentage defense, allowing 41.2 percent, and 11th offensively, shooting 52.1 percent. That is a spread of 10.9 percentage points. Only Arizona, 54.5 to 42.8 for 11.7, was better in Division I.

In NCAA tournament play, the Jayhawks turned it up a notch. Their 14.4-point spread in six games (53.8 percent vs. 39.4 allowed) was the best by a champion since Michigan State in 1979 (17.4 on 56.6 vs. 39.2) and fifth best in tournament history.

In two Final Four games, the Jayhawks turned it up another notch, to 18.3 percentage points on 57 vs. 38.3 allowed—best since Michigan State's 27.2 (62.1 vs. 34.9) in 1979 and sixth best in tournament history.

The last notch came in the championship game, when the Jayhawks shot 63.6 percent—fourth highest in the 50 title games—and allowed Oklahoma 42.9 in an 83-79 victory. But please note: A majority of the Kansas goals (18 of 35) were from point-blank range.

"I've always believed if you can get kids to sacrifice defensively, they would have a tendency to be unselfish offensively," said Kansas coach Larry Brown. It did not hurt that Manning, the team's superstar, loves to make a good pass. Unselfish offense creates goals from point-blank range, thus a high team percentage—always a Brown trademark, along with defense. "These kids probably played our basic defense better than any I've had,"

Brown said. "So much of our defense is a willingness to go out and do it for 40 minutes."

The record shooting figure in a championship game is 78.6 percent by Villanova in its upset of Georgetown in 1985, followed by Ohio State's 67.4 in 1960, UCLA's 64.5 in 1973, Kansas this year and Michigan State's 60.5 in 1979.

Ohio State's 1960 team achieved the record offensive-defensive shooting spreads, both for the entire tournament at 19.2 (54.5 vs. 35.3 in four games) and for the Final Four at 27.7 points (58.5 percent vs. 30.8). UCLA's teams of 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1973 hold all the other positions above Kansas in both categories.

Single-game highs

Hawkins had the national single-game scoring high at 63 points against Detroit February 22. Only five Division I players ever scored more against a Division I opponent (two doing it twice). Miller, Mack and Pepperdine's Levy Middlebrooks share the rebounding high at 25. Oklahoma's Mookie Blaylock set a Division I record with 13 steals against Centenary December 12. Other highs: 21 assists by Manuel, 12 blocks by Blake and Dartmouth's Walter Palmer, 22 free throws by North Texas State's Ronnie Morgan, and 10 three-pointers by Central Michigan's Tommie Johnson and Southwestern Louisiana's Earl Watkins.

Track team charges reverse discrimination, boycotts season

Members of the Montclair State College men's outdoor track team are boycotting the season and charging that the school practices "reverse discrimination" after Montclair State trustees voted to hire a black coach rather than promote the team's white, part-time coach to a new full-time job.

Fifteen team members, including several who are black, decided to boycott the season after the school decided to hire John Blanton, girls' track coach at an East Orange, New Jersey, high school, rather than promote four-year coach Vic Mizzzone. Among the team members is Amod Field, the defending Division III outdoor champion in the 400-meter hurdles.

"Due to the administration's horrible decision not to rehire our coach, we feel we can no longer represent Montclair State College," Field said in a letter to The NCAA News.

Team members, however, are competing in meets as a club entry, and a school spokesman said the team continues to utilize transportation and other services provided by the college.

More qualified

School officials say Blanton is more qualified for the job because he holds a master's degree in business and has administrative credentials. Team members, however, argue that Blanton has no collegiate coaching experience and allege that the school only began emphasizing its preference for a master's degree to defend the hiring.

Officials of the school denied assertions by Mizzzone and team members that Blanton was hired because he is black.

College trustees voted to hire Blanton during an April 7 meeting that was marked by angry debate between trustees and members of the track team.

According to an account of the meeting in the Newark Star-Ledger, opposition to the hiring was voiced by Field and Joan Schleede, chair of the school's physical education and leisure department. Both were members of the search committee that recommended candidates for the new job.

Schleede said during the meeting that the committee was instructed to rank its candidates in order of preference. Its first choice was Ronald Upperman, a black assistant coach at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, who subsequently turned down an offer from the school.

Schleede said the committee's second choice was Mizzzone, but that the job was offered next to Blanton, who had received no first- or second-place votes from committee members.

"To recommend for hiring a person with no first- or second-place votes from the search committee is absurd," Schleede told trustees.

Ranking irrelevant

Murray L. Cole, the trustee who presided over the meeting, told the Star-Ledger that the board is not bound by the search committee's rankings. "It is the search committee's job to set up a pool and the candidate is chosen from there," he said. "There is no requirement to pick any candidate in order."

Field charged during the meeting that Blanton was hired "to fill a quota" and stated that Blanton was included among the candidates only because the search committee was instructed to submit three names for consideration.

Blanton was recommended for the job by Gregory Lockard, Montclair State athletics director, and Jean Armstrong, vice-president for student affairs.

Several days after the meeting, the charge of "reverse discrimination" was echoed at a press conference called by Joe Clark, the black principal of a Paterson, New Jersey, high school who has received national media attention and praise from the Reagan Administration for his controversial methods of maintaining student discipline. Mizzzone is a business education teacher at Clark's school.

Answers criticism

The continuing criticism prompted Montclair State officials to issue a statement defending Blanton's hiring.

"The college regrets that the situation has become so charged," the statement said. "Montclair has a well-designed search process and affirmative-action program. It was employed in this instance and resulted in a pool of candidates from which the appointing administrators were to make a selection. Based upon the criteria established for the full-time position, (the administrators) selected the individual they considered to be the most highly qualified."

Mizzzone has retained an attorney and told the Star-Ledger that he will take legal action against the school. He remains under contract to coach Montclair State's men's and women's teams until the end of the year. Blanton's appointment is scheduled to begin in September.

Members of the men's track team began their boycott at the New Jersey state championships April 9.

Women athletes top men in academics at Minnesota

The four top University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, teams academically during the winter quarter were all in the women's department, while the men's basketball squad had the lowest average among 19 teams at the school, say university officials.

The basketball team, which lost its academic adviser and two top assistant coaches recently and had been able to recruit only one player for the coming season as of April, finished the winter quarter with a 1.880 academic average on a 4.000 scale.

"That's the equivalent to less than a C average. The men's basketball team also had the largest ratio of incompletes per student," said Minnesota associate athletics director Elayne Donahue, who supervises the academic counseling unit.

In Donahue's records, the 15 men's basketball players accounted for 39 of 214 hours of incomplete work. Football had 91 incomplete hours for 122 players.

"We define academic averages at a specific moment in a time frame," Donahue told the Associated Press. "There's a good chance that when the incompletes become grades, the averages for all teams having incompletes will be improved. However, the Big Ten Conference counts all incompletes as an F until amended. They ask for our grades by a specific date, and that's why we do these charts."

Meanwhile, the women's volleyball team had a 3.310 average, the women's gymnastics team a 3.200, the women's softball squad a 3.100 and the women's cross country team a 3.040.

Of 176 women's department athletes, 48 percent had academic averages of 3.000 or higher, and 20 had a perfect 4.000 score.

In the men's department, which has 378 athletes, 123 of them had a 3.000 average (33 percent), and nine had perfect 4.000 grades.

The men's basketball team was the only Gopher athletic team to not have a student with a B average. The women's gymnastics team has 73 percent of its athletes with B averages; the men's gymnastics team has 71 percent.

"The men's department had more 3.000 averages than it has ever had before," Donahue said. "The women's department is right off the chart. Their academic record is remarkable."

Volleyball coach Stephanie Schleuder said her team's 3.310 GPA "is because we have student-athletes who came here with a purpose. Sometimes, even I can't believe how dedicated they are."

The women's golf team has the top cumulative average—3.110 to volleyball's 3.040. Top average among the men's teams are golf (2.890) and gymnastics (2.880).

Penn State's

The only record came in three-pointers scored per game, 4.2 by Lycoming's Jeff Jones.

In the team rankings, there are two double champions—Rust in field-goal accuracy at 58.8 percent and field-goal percentage defense at 40.2, and Cal State San Bernardino in scoring margin with 20.0 and rebound margin at 16.9.

On the career charts, there are five 2,000-point scorers, led by Ohio Wesleyan's Scott Tedder, whose 2,501 puts him fifth on the all-time chart. The others are Thomas' Joe Deroche 2,218, Widener's Lou Stevens 2,134, Shenandoah's Tony Tucker 2,092 and Southeastern Massachusetts' Kevin Kolek 2,027. Strong ended up at 65.4 percent for his career, placing him fourth all-time in shooting accuracy. Hartwick's Tim McGraw reached third in career free-throw accuracy at 88.8 percent.

Women's Division II leaders

Only two seniors won titles in women's Division II—St. Cloud State's Sarah Howard in free-throw accuracy at 90.2 percent and New York Tech's Jackie Farnan in three-point shooting at 50.9 percent. Stonehill's Mary Naughton took the scoring crown, 25.8 to 25.7, over Valdosta State's Shannon Williams; Tracy Payne of St. Joseph's (Indiana) won in field-goal shooting at 65.8 percent; Livingstone's Jackie Anderson won in rebounding with 14.1, and West Georgia's Lisa Blackmon led in three-pointers made per game with 3.7.

The team rankings are dominated by a pair of 33-1 teams, Hampton and West Texas State, which tied in won-lost percentage and won two titles each outright. Hampton set records in scoring offense at 98.7 and scoring margin at 33.6 (with West Texas second at 25.9), while West Texas led in scoring defense on 53.5 and field-goal percentage offense at 52.4, edging 52.3 by St. Joseph's (Indiana). Both surpassed the former record of 51.8.

On the career charts, Franklin Pierce's Sheila Lindsey moved into fourth in scoring with 2,564 points and ninth in average at 21.2. UC Davis' Staci Stevens reached 10th in field-goal accuracy at 56.5, and scoring champion Howard reached second in free-throw accuracy at 85.5 percent.

Three players reached 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds. They are Lindsey (2,564 and 1,404), Mankato State's Lisa Walters (2,072 and 1,074) and Pace's Jennifer DiMaggio (2,125 and 1,254).

Women's Division III leaders

Only two seniors won individual titles in Division III. They are Pine Manor's Catie Cleary in scoring at 33.7 and Emmanuel's Lesa Dennis in field-goal shooting at 64.1. Juniors won the other four. Wisconsin-Whitewater's Ellen Martinkovic won in free-throw accuracy at 86.4 percent, Connecticut College's Wendy Merk in rebounds at 16.4 per game, UC San Diego's Tracy Ragatz in three-point accuracy at 55.8 percent, and Redlands' Debbie Gertsch won in three-pointers scored per game, 2.73 to 2.68, over North Park's Susan Swanson.

In the team rankings, 31-1 St. John Fisher is a triple champion, in won-lost percentage, scoring margin on a record 34.2 and scoring defense with 46.1. Concordia-Moorhead won two titles—scoring offense at 88.3 and field-goal accuracy on 53.5—and finished second in both won-lost percentage (29-2) and scoring margin (27.9). Centre's 77.0 free-throw percentage set a record.

Rust's Lisa Mason set a career record for field-goal accuracy at 63.0 percent, with St. John Fisher's Linda MacDonald fifth at 58.6. Mason also reached 13th in rebounding at 12.8. Moravian's Linda Atiyeh moved into third in free-throw accuracy at 80.6, with Duquesne's Penny Wehrs reaching fifth at 79.9.

Summer leagues approved

An additional 23 summer basketball leagues have been approved for student-athlete participation, bringing to 72 the total that have been certified by the NCAA Council. A list of other approved summer leagues appeared in the April 13 issue of The NCAA News.

Any questions concerning the application process or the requirements for NCAA approval of summer leagues should be referred to Richard C. Perko, legislative assistant, at the NCAA national office. Following are the 15 men's and eight women's leagues recently approved for participation.

Men's leagues

California—Greater Bay Area Summer Basketball League, Menlo Park. Florida—Wildwood Summer Adult Basketball League, St. Petersburg. Illinois—Viking Summer Basketball League, Chicago. Kansas—Kansas City Metro Summer League, Kansas City. Kentucky—Louisville Pro-Am Summer League, Louisville. Nevada—North Las Vegas Recreational Open Basketball, North Las Vegas. New York—Solvay Geddes Community Youth Center Summer League, Solvay.

Ohio—R.G.E. "Educated and Drug Free" Summer Basketball League, Dayton; Reynoldsburg Summer Basketball League, Reynoldsburg. Pennsylvania—Easton Eddyside Adult Basketball League, Easton; The Summer Youth Basketball League, Erie. Virginia—Vienna Parks and Recreation Summer League, Vienna. West Virginia—City of Huntington Summer League, Hun-

Women's leagues

Hillyard named

A man who has devoted his life to basketball, R. Haskell Hillyard of St. Joseph, Missouri, will be the recipient of the 16th annual John W. Bunn Award presented by the trustees of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame.

The award is named in honor of the late John W. Bunn, one of the founders of the Basketball Hall of Fame. It recognizes an individual for outstanding contributions to basketball and sports in general.

A graduate of Kenyon College, he serves as chair of the board, Hillyard Chemical Co.

Women to change leagues

The University of Northern Colorado's women's athletics program will join the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference in the fall of 1989, the school's athletics director announced April 25.

All of the women's varsity sports will join the NCC except the gymnastics program, which will operate at the NCAA Division II independent level since the NCC does not offer women's gymnastics, said Robert A. Oliver, athletics director.

The UNC women have been members of the Continental Divide Conference since it was organized in 1982. The men's athletics program at the school has been a member of the NCC since 1980.

"The move of our women's sports to the NCC puts UNC's entire athletics program in one conference," Oliver said. "The strength of the NCC in all of its women's sports is very attractive to us, and we feel our women's sports programs will benefit from our association with the NCC."

Athletics representatives from the conference voted 7-3 at its spring meeting to allow the UNC women to join the conference. Seven votes were needed to approve the motion.

Marietta athlete named to Leadership America program

Marietta College student-athlete Mark Miller has been chosen for Leadership America, a program organized by the Dallas-based International Leadership Center that identifies future leaders and provides a continent-crossing summer internship.

Included in Miller's program will be stops at Duke University; a week of classes at the Center for Creative Leadership in Greensboro, North Carolina; a week-long wilderness program offered by Colorado Outward Bound in Leadville, Colorado; two weeks at Southern Methodist University; four weeks of one-on-one training with executives from around the nation, and a wrap-up week in Washington, DC.

According to Stephen Schwartz, director of the Bernard P. McDonough Center for Leadership and Business, 50 students were chosen from approximately 1,000 applicants for the summer program. "The primary criterion for selection is that (candidates) have outstanding potential for leadership," Schwartz said. "The objective (of the program) is to prepare students to accept major leadership responsibilities earlier in their careers and be able to motivate others to assume leadership roles."

According to Rick Patterson, Marietta's assistant director of college relations, Miller is the first football student-athlete ever chosen for the Leadership America program. He is an industrial engineering major and the leading candidate to start at quarterback for the Pioneers next season.

John Simons is not alone.

Last week's column included an item about Simons, the Philadelphia College of Textiles & Science employee who in one year has served as assistant women's basketball coach, equipment manager for women's athletics and head women's softball coach. Now comes the tale of Florida Atlantic University's Scott Scrivner.

An undergraduate, Scrivner enrolled at FAU to pursue a degree and serve as assistant women's volleyball coach under Shannon Reynolds. Not long ago, he heard that the Owl baseball team needed help.

"I heard that the baseball team had a pitching shortage during the fall," said the 24-year-old graduate of Suncoast High School, who also attended Palm Beach Junior College. "In January, I went out to practice and worked out with the team. Coach (Kevin) Cooney watched me throw and asked me to join the team."

As a relief pitcher, Scrivner appeared in nine of the Owls' first 14 games (9.1 innings). He allowed only four hits, struck out seven and did not allow an earned run.

Friends, family and former colleagues of retired University of New Hampshire Director of Athletics Andrew T. Mooradian gathered for a testimonial dinner in his honor April 22

"Books-n-Bats," a set of 24 color baseball cards, has been developed by the University of Oklahoma. Each includes the slogan "You can't swing the bat if you don't hit the books."

They were created by Todd Davis, Oklahoma's assistant director of promotions, and are being distributed to fourth- and fifth-grade students in Norman, Oklahoma, public schools.

"We hope the youngsters get the message through these cards," Davis said. "Academics has to be a priority, no matter which outside activities they choose—chorus, band or athletics."

Trivia Time: Who won the first College World Series? Answer later.

Women's basketball honors have been announced by the Black College Sports Information Directors of America (BCSIDA).

Named players of the year were Hampton University's Jackie Dolberry (college division) and Grambling State University's LeChandra LeDay (university division). Yolanda Maddox of Miles College was named freshman of the year.

Coaches of the year were Hampton's James Sweat (college division) and Tim Abney of North Carolina A&T State University (university division).

Trivia Answer: With an 8-7 victory over Yale University in the championship game, the University of California, Berkeley, won the first College World Series, which was played in 1947 in Kalamazoo, Michigan. The Golden Bears were undefeated in the tournament.

Folks at Mississippi State University turned out in a big way for the Bulldogs' April 16 double-header against Louisiana State University. The official attendance of 14,378 destroyed what had been the all-time record for on-campus attendance at a regular-season baseball game, according to a release from the Mississippi State sports information office. The old mark, 10,619, was set May 13, 1978, at the University of Arizona, when the Wildcats hosted Arizona State University.

More Report Cards: Butler University underclassmen Stephanie Webb (women's basketball) and Kevin Swihart (swimming and diving) were named April 10 as recipients of the school's annual Tewksbury Scholarship Awards. Given in honor of Helen Tewksbury, a long-time Butler staff member and supporter, the awards recognize achievement in scholarship, athletics and leadership. Webb has a perfect 4.000 grade-point average in zoology, and Swihart is a dean's list student majoring in pharmacy.

Four Delta State University student-athletes have been recognized for academic achievements by the Gulf South Conference. Senior men's basketball player Scott Nagy was named academic all-conference after compiling a cumulative 3.810 GPA (4.000 scale) in business management. Named to the league's women's basketball all-academic team were Crystal Hardy (first team, 3.350 in biology), Jo Lynn Davis (second team, 3.200 in speech) and Andrea Martin (second team, 3.160 in computer information systems).

Other members of the Gulf South women's squad, as listed in a Delta State news release, were Mary Kate Long (first team, 4.000 in English) and Lisa Winston-Crabtree (second team, 3.500 in secondary education) of the University of Tennessee, Martin; Machel Petrey (first team, 4.000 in computer science), Pam Hand (first team, 3.320 in communications arts) and Beth Clark (second team, 4.000 in political science) from Valdosta State College; Jan Blair (first team, 3.160 in marketing and management) from the University of North Alabama, and Kim Welch [second team, 2.760 (3.000 scale) in education] from Jacksonville State University.

Sherrill prefers grass field, but gets little support in SWC

By Jack Keever

Texas A&M University head football coach Jackie Sherrill, king of the mountain in Southwest Athletic Conference football, thinks replacing artificial turf with natural grass at Kyle Field would give the Aggies an extra edge.

But other Southwest Athletic Conference schools, except for possibly Southern Methodist University, appear reluctant to follow the lead of a coach whose teams have won three straight conference football championships.

"You look around the country at the toughest places to play—Louisiana State, Clemson, South Carolina, Penn State—and there is an advantage to having grass," Sherrill said. "It's harder to go from turf to grass than from grass to turf."

Artificial turf for football has been common among Southwest Conference schools for nearly 20 years despite complaints that the harder surface causes injuries.

Artificial turf became the rage in the late 1960s and early 1970s as one school after another put down "rugs," which were viewed as more convenient, attractive to high school prospects and, perhaps, safer than grass.

Southwest Conference schools, according to athletics directors, coaches and sports information directors, feel no decisive evidence has been developed on whether grass or synthetic turf is safer. They say the cost—grass vs. turf—balances out after several years, and player preference appears mixed.

Jackie Sherrill

"I have asked the NCAA which one is safer, and they keep coming back and saying, 'Well, one year, grass is; one year, turf is,'" said DeLoss Dodds, athletics director at the University of Texas, Austin.

Rick Rivers, sports information director at the University of Houston, said, "I personally feel you can read the numbers any way you want to."

"Our trainer, who is not the biggest fan of turf, says injuries are the nature of the sport, whether you play on grass, turf or concrete," said Rick Schaeffer, sports information director of the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville.

Skip Cox, assistant athletics director at Baylor University, said development of proper shoes—flat bottoms with steel toe inserts—has dramatically reduced turf injuries.

"We haven't had a severe knee injury in several years," Cox said.

Texas Tech University SID Joe Hornaday recalled that last year when Texas Tech played at Florida

DeLoss Dodds

State, Red Raider tight end Todd Ryden tore up his knee in warmups on grass. "The surface ensures good footing for 11 games," Hornaday said.

"A bad day in the mud would slow down our offense, which is based on speed," Rivers said.

Texas Christian University SID Glen Stone said, "In years past, we've relied a lot on speed, and turf gives you an advantage. If you are totally a power team, you might go the grass route."

He said that in 1984 when TCU played Utah State, "the grass was beautiful, but it did appear a bit long and neutralized our speed."

Dodds said with the Texas Relays, University Interscholastic League events "and all those other things being held at Memorial Stadium, you would be worried to death about grass."

"There's no stadium in America that gets more use than our stadium. We just open our gates," Dodds said. "That field is open from 6 in the morning until probably midnight, and just whoever wants to goes in."

Rice University SID Bill Cousins said practicing on artificial turf at Rice Stadium freed up grass fields for intramurals and club sports.

"There is a limited amount of maintenance; and it provides a nice, even, smooth all-weather workout area and a more efficient use of the facility," Cox said.

Cousins said that when high school players first run on artificial turf in college, it "makes them feel as if they're flying and gives them great self-confidence. They think it's the greatest thing since sliced bread."

After awhile, the novelty wears off, but Rice players haven't complained about the Owls' artificial turf, Cousins said.

Dodds said he thinks Texas players like grass better, and Schaeffer at Arkansas said, "We play on grass once every two years, at Ole Miss, and the players love it. We also have a grass practice field, and the players enjoy that, too."

Sherrill said his own players prefer artificial turf, and the reason is simple: "They don't slip."

Nevertheless, when indoor practice facilities are completed at Texas A&M, probably within five years, and the 1987 carpet has worn thin, Sherrill said he would ask regents to restore grass to Kyle Field.

SMU, which played on artificial turf at Texas Stadium in Irving before its football program received the so-called "death penalty" from the NCAA, also could move to grass.

Assistant SID Paul Ridings said there has been talk of moving SMU games to grass at Ownby Stadium, on the Dallas campus, in 1989. "It's a very sketchy situation," he said.

Dodds said the Texas' men's athletics council had discussed substituting grass for artificial turf when a new surface goes down in 1989, and athletics officials plan to take "a serious look at grass."

"But from my point of view, professionally speaking, I don't think we should go to grass," Dodds said. "I think the ideal situation would be to have two good grass fields to practice on and then keep our stadium."

Cox said Baylor players like turf, and the possibility of returning to grass "is not in our plans."

Schaeffer said Arkansas, with four or five years left on its current turf, will not play on grass at home in the immediate future. "That's not to say we won't eliminate it (turf) at some point in the future," he said.

"As long as we play in the Astro-dome, we'll play on turf," said Rivers of Houston.

Cousins said Rice is limited by geography and Houston's rainy climate to playing on turf. "If it was a perfect world, we'd all play on beautiful green grass fields, but it's not," he said.

TCU's Stone said artificial turf apparently is here to stay—"It's so much a way of life, it's taken for granted."
