Minority, women's enhancement programs approved

Enhancement of intercollegiate athletics opportunities for ethnic minorities and women will begin this fall at the NCAA national office—while work progresses on a new home for the Association.

Meeting May 2-3 in Kansas City, the Association's Executive Committee approved budgets for the minority and women's enhancement programs and moved to relocate the national office. The group also made permanent the pilot men's and women's basketball-officiating programs that have been in place and took action regarding requests from NCAA governing sports committees.

The Executive Committee approved funding of the opportunity-enhancement programs for the remainder of fiscal year 1987-88. Included in the programs' first full year (1988-89) will be 20 $6,000 postgraduate scholarships—10 each for women and members of ethnic minorities. "Vita banks" for each group will be established and maintained at the national office, and national-office internships (three each for women and ethnic minorities) will be available. Brochures describing the programs and applications will be mailed to member institutions in the near future.

After meeting in Kansas City

May 1, the NCAA Special Committee to Review Future Office Requirements recommended -- and the Executive Committee approved by a unanimous vote—that the national office be relocated to a to-be-constructed building on 11.35 acres at the southeast corner of College Boulevard and Lamar Avenue in Overland Park, Kansas. As part of the plan, the Association's Administrative Committee has been authorized to approve financial details for the transaction. It is anticipated that the new office building will house the national office staff beginning in September 1989. A related story appears on page 12.

The Executive Committee also voted to confirm its support of the concept of a National Collegiate Foundation and will establish a temporary planning committee to

Funds set for athletes who have exhausted aid

Student-athletes who have exhausted their eligibility for athletics-related aid but need to return to school to complete their degrees soon will be able to apply for NCAA grants for that purpose.

Requirements and procedures for the new grant program were recommended by the recently formed Special Committee on Grants for Undergraduates during its April 25 meeting in St. Louis, Missouri.

The program originally was proposed last year by the Division I Men's Basketball Committee as part of its recommendations regarding distribution of receipts from the Division I Men's Basketball Championship and was approved by the NCAA Executive Committee.

The special committee recommended that beginning this fall, student-athletes who need 30 or fewer credit hours to complete their degrees and who matriculated no earlier than September 1983 be eligible for the grants.

Also, the panel recommended that student-athletes be allowed to complete their degrees at institutions other than where they competed.

Quick start sought for program

The recommendations are expected to be considered by the NCAA Administrative Committee, so that the program can begin immediately and applications can be submitted by the end of June.

The grants must be sought by member institutions on behalf of student-athletes. About 60 grants are expected to be awarded nationally for the coming academic year.

Application packages will be sent to athletics directors at member institutions, possibly by the end of May. The package will include forms to be completed by the student-athlete, the athletics director, the school's financial-aid director and the dean or department head responsible for the student-athlete's course of study.

The special committee prefers to award grants to student-athletes who can finish their studies within a year. In selecting recipients, the committee will consider such factors as the nominee's financial status and circumstances that prevented completion of a degree within five years. Applicants also will be required to submit a plan of study, with

Convention committees appointed

The NCAA Nominating Committee and the Men's and Women's Committees on Committees for 1988-89 were appointed by the Council in its spring meeting.

Those committees will develop slates of individuals to fill vacancies in NCAA offices, on the NCAA Council, and on the men's and women's sports committees for action by the membership at the January 1989 Convention. The Nominating Committee is responsible for selecting candidates to serve on the Council and as officers; the committees on committees deal with sports-committee vacancies.

Named to chair the three committees were Kathleen M. McNally, assistant director of athletics at La Salle University, Nominating Committee; Charles Whitcomb, faculty athletics representative and professor of recreation/leisure studies at San Jose State University, Men's Committee on Committees, and Judith R. Holland, senior associate athletics director, University of California, Los Angeles, Women's Committee on Committees.

Following are the Council's appointments:

Nominating Committee

Division I: Appointed Kevin

White, University of Maine, Orono (Region 1); B. J. Skelton, Clemson University (2); Richard L. Sander, Virginia Commonwealth University (2); Bradford E. Kinsman, University of Detroit (3); and Margie H. McDonald, High Country Athletic Conference (4). Reappointed McNally (1); Daniel G. Gibbens, University of Oklahoma (3), and Michael T. Johnson, University of Houston (4).

Division II: Appointed Wilburn A. Campbell, Albany State College of Georgia (Region 2), and Karen L. Miller, California State Poly-

Sports sponsorship remains steady but participation down

Although the total number of sports sponsored by NCAA member institutions in 1986-87 basically did not change from the previous year, participation was down 2.6 percent and squad size declined in most sports.

Those are the primary findings in the annual review of sports sponsorship and participation data, conducted for the last several years by the former NCAA Long Range Planning Committee and now by the Committee on Review and Planning.

The data are taken from institutional information forms submitted by the membership. The committee also reviews high school sponsorship and participation information supplied by the National Federation of State High School Associations.

Total participation at NCAA member institutions in 1986-87 was 281,118, down 2.6 percent from the 288,629 total a year earlier. Women's participation declined for the first time in this decade—from 92,192 in 1985-86 to 91,101, a 1.2 percent drop. The men's total of 190,017 was a 3.3 percent decline from 196,437 a year before, the second straight year that the men's figure has been lower.

The 1986-87 total breaks down to 67.6 percent men and 32.4 percent women.

Meanwhile, the number of sports sponsored by member institutions averaged 15.88, including 8.78 for men and 7.10 for women. A year earlier, the average was 15.85—8.85 for men and 7.00 for women. Essentially, the average number of sports sponsored for men is declining slightly each year, while the average number of women's sports increases slightly each year.

Participation

The average squad size decreased in 16 of the 19 men's sports and 14 of 15 women's sports from 1985-86 to 1986-87.

In total participation figures, the only men's sport to show an increase was football, up 327. Among women's sports, only soccer (up 367), cross country (64) and skiing (32) showed total-participation increases.

In average squad size, football, wrestling and gymnastics showed slight increases for men; for women, only golf reflected an increase, and that was only by one-hundredth of a participant.

The Committee on Review and Planning, noting fluctuations in average squad sizes from year to year, considers only changes of more than one participant in the average to be significant. On that basis, none of the gains was significant, with wrestling, at .85, the only one close to a full participant.

The significant declines in squad size were led by lacrosse (down 4.81 participants per squad), soccer (3.03), skiing (2.89), ice hockey (2.72), rifle (2.59), volleyball (2.47) and baseball (2.14) among the men's sports. For women, the biggest drops were in indoor track (down 1.63 per squad), soccer (1.47) and basketball (1.12).

Among men's sports, the largest number of participants, not surprisingly, continues to be posted in football: 51,087. Next are baseball, 21,055; outdoor track, 19,055; indoor track, 14,466; and soccer, 14,375. Indoor track and soccer reversed positions from a year earlier.

The largest numbers of participants in women's sports are in outdoor track, 11,430; basketball, 10,526; softball, 9,696; volleyball, 9,688; and indoor track, 8,273. Softball and volleyball traded places in this year's list.

Sponsorship

For the membership as a whole, sponsorship of men's sports decreased by 72 teams, while women's increased by 66. The men's total included an increase of 34 teams in Division III but declines of 34 and 72 in Divisions I and II, respectively.

Division II also declined in offering women's sports (by 61 teams), but Division I was up 92 teams and Division III gained 35.

Among the 19 men's sports, six increased in sponsorship, two remained the same and 11 decreased. The gainers were lacrosse (up six); baseball (five); water polo (three); and basketball, football and ice hockey (each up one). The biggest drop in men's sponsorship was in rifle, which lost 19 sponsors, followed by wrestling, 17; golf, 14, and volleyball and indoor track, eight each.

For women, 10 of the 15 sports increased in sponsorship and five declined. The gainers were soccer, up 29; cross country, 22; volleyball, 16; softball, 15; indoor and outdoor track, six each; skiing and tennis, three each; swimming, two, and lacrosse, one. The other five sports lost sponsorship, with gymnastics down 18, field hockey down 12, fencing losing three, and basketball and golf down two each.

Sports

Counting NCAA and non-NCAA sports, the average sponsorship figures for 1986-87 by division were as follows:

• Division I: 9.8 for men and 8.0 for women; total of 17.8. That was a drop from 18.1 a year earlier (10.2 for men and 7.9 for women).

• Division II: 7.3 for men and 6.1 for women; total of 13.4. That also is a decline from a year ago, when the total was 13.8 (7.5 for men, 6.3 for women).

• Division III: 9.1 for men and 7.2 for women; total of 16.3. That is up from 15.9 a year earlier (8.9 for men, 7.0 for women).

Trends

The committee has at its disposal a review of data on men's sports sponsorship from 1979-80 through 1986-87 and on women's sponsorship since 1981-82. That information is based on the percentage of members sponsoring each sport during each year in the respective periods, which offsets changes in the total number of members from year to year.

Using the data, the committee identified these trends in sports sponsorship:

• Since 1979-80, seven men's sports have grown in sponsorship percentage and 12 have declined. The biggest growth sports have been soccer, cross country and lacrosse.

• The men's sports that have declined the most over that period are wrestling (now sponsored by less than 40 percent of the membership; more than 51 percent sponsored the sport in 1979-80), golf, gymnastics and swimming. Wrestling has declined in sponsorship every year since 1979-80.

• Fastest-growing women's sports since 1981-82 have been cross country (now sponsored by more than 80 percent of the membership, after a 53.2 percent listing five years earlier), soccer, softball, indoor track and outdoor track. All women's sports except three have grown in sponsorship percentage during the period.

• The clearly declining women's sports are gymnastics, field hockey and fencing, each of which has declined every year during the period.

Men's Committee on Committees

Four new members were appointed to the committee: Bruce A. Corrie, Northwestern University (Division I, District 4); Ken B. Jones, Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association (Division II, District 5); McKinley Boston Jr., Kean College (Division III, at large), and Gene E. Hooks, Wake Forest University (Division I, at large).

Members whose terms continue are Lawrence P. Boyd, Framingham State College (Division III, District 1); Gene A. Carpenter, Millersville University of Pennsylvania (II,2); Dave Hart, Southern Conference (I, 3); Don Landry, Southland Conference (I, 6); Ronald D. Stephenson, Big Sky Conference (I, 7); Whitcomb (I, 8); William D. McHenry, Washington and Lee University (III, at large), and John Williams, Mississippi College (II, at large).

Women's Committee on Committees

Three new members were appointed, and one member was reappointed for a full term.

The new members are Barbara Hibner, University of Nebraska, Lincoln (Division I, District 5); Fern Gardner, University of Utah (Division I, District 7), and Peggy Martin, Central Missouri State University (Division II, at large). Reappointed was Judith A. Sullivan, Southeastern Massachusetts University (Division III, District 1).

Those whose terms on the committee continue are Susan W. Lubking, West Chester University of Pennsylvania (Division II, District 2); Joyce Sorrell, Troy State University (II, 3); Marnie W. the dean's or department head's affirmation that the plan is reasonable.

Full grants in two installments

The grants will fully cover tuition, room and board, and books.

Each grant will be paid in two installments. The second half of the grant will be provided only after proof of satisfactory progress toward completion of the degree is provided. The committee recommended that recipients be required to post a 2.000 grade-point average and pass 12 credit hours during the first semester after receiving the grant to receive the second half.

Those receiving grants will be required to enroll as full-time students or carry the number of hours in the last semester that are needed to complete the degree.

Completed applications will be submitted to the national office. After an initial screening of applications by the staff, the committee will decide who will receive the grants. Institutions may submit applications for an unlimited number of student-athletes.

Funds withheld due to a recipient's failure to make satisfactory progress toward a degree will be added to funds that will be awarded for the 1989-1990 academic year. No new grants will be awarded in the middle of the academic year.

Legislative Assistance

1988 Column No. 18

NCAA Bylaw 3-1—1988 preseason football practice dates

Bylaw 3-1-(h)-(2) sets forth the three methods of determining when an institution may begin preseason football practice. An institution shall not begin practice prior to the following dates:

1. The 19th day before its first scheduled intercollegiate game, or
2. The 22nd day before the next-to-last Saturday in September, or
3. That date that will permit a maximum of 29 "practice opportunities" prior to its first scheduled intercollegiate game. "Practice opportunities" are defined by the provisions of Bylaw 3-1-(h)-(3).

The information below illustrates by example the application of Bylaws 3-1-(h)-(4), (5) and (6) in determining permissible days to issue equipment; administer medical examinations and take squad pictures, and to establish, in Divisions I-A and I-AA, orientation periods for those student-athletes who are beginning their initial season of eligibility for football practice sessions at the institution.

The following example utilizes Option No. 3 of Bylaw 3-1-(h)-(2) and assumes that the institution's first contest is Saturday, September 10, 1988, and the institution's first day of classes is Wednesday, September 7, 1988.

Divisions I-A and I-AA:

Monday (August 15)—Freshmen, transfer students and other first-time participants may report for evening meal (no meetings).

Tuesday (August 16)—Medical exams (if needed) and issuance of equipment, Orientation No. 1. [See Bylaw 3-1-(g)-(6)-(i)]

Wednesday (August 17)—Orientation No. 2.

Thursday (August 18)—Orientation No. 3.

Friday (August 19)—Orientation No. 4, members of the varsity may report for evening meal (no meetings).

Saturday (August 20)—Medical exams (if needed) and issuance of equipment to varsity team members, "picture day," and first practice opportunity.

Sunday (August 21)—No activities.

Monday (August 22)—Practice resumes.

Divisions II and III:

Friday (August 19)—Team members (including first-time participants) may report for evening meal (no meetings). Saturday (August 20) Medical exams and issuance of equipment, "picture day," and first practice opportunity.

Sunday (August 21)—No activities.

Monday (August 22)—Practice resumes.

"Practice" is any meeting, activity or instruction held at the direction of, or supervised by, any member or members of an institution's coaching staff. Engaging in any or all of the following activities on any day constitutes practice: field or floor practice, "chalk talk," lectures, or the discussion or showing of motion pictures. Practice may be held only on those days designated in Bylaw 3-1-(h)-(2) or (3).

It should be noted that Saturday, August 20, is designated as the first day of practice and "picture day" in the example above; however, an institution may choose to designate a separate date (August 19) per Bylaw 3-1-(k) to issue equipment and take squad pictures. In this instance, a Division I institution's orientation period will begin one day earlier.

In using the 29 "practice opportunities" option, an institution is permitted an additional practice opportunity on the first day of the practice period if the 29th opportunity falls on a separate date from the 28th practice opportunity. In addition, the exclusion of Sundays from the counting of practice opportunities is permitted only in Bylaw 3-1-(h)-(2)-(iii).

This column is intended to assist member institutions in calculating the permissible starting practice date in the sport of football. The date of the first scheduled contest, the start of classes at the institution and the option utilized will alter the starting date; therefore, if questions arise, conference office or the legislative services department should be contracted.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Wrestling committee acts to qualify rule on stalling calls

The NCAA Wrestling Committee continues to be concerned with what it believes to be an overabundance of stalling calls.

In 1987, the committee added to the sport's rules book a position statement urging that stalling be called in the final 15 to 20 seconds of a match only when stalling is "unquestionably" occurring.

The committee went a step further at its April 24-28 meeting in Kansas City by adding the word "unquestionably" to the body of Rule 6-10, which addresses the infraction of stalling over the course of an entire match.

The second paragraph of the section now will state that "When a referee recognizes stalling unquestionably occurring at any time and in any position, he will warn the offender; and thereafter, violations will be penalized when stalling occurs."

In other rules action, the committee voted to:

- Eliminate the use of bicycle shorts and other Bermuda-length garments under the wrestling uniform (Rule 1-10-b).

- Add to the definition of a takedown the specification that "a takedown shall be awarded if the only points of support inbounds are the toes of both feet of the wrestler attempting the takedown" (Rule 2-16).

- Exclude both cautions and warnings from overtime criteria (Rule 4-9).

- Provide for the presence of a trainer or physician in the coaches' restricted area (Rule 4-11-b).

- Stopping of the match and awarding a three-point near fall after the criteria for a near fall have been met and the defensive wrestler yells (Rule 7-4).

- Clarify the official's ability to award points or a fall, or penalize an infraction, occurring near the end of a period, even if the period has ended before he has made the indication of the points, fall or infraction (Rule 8-3).

In actions not related to rules, the committee recommended sites for the 1989 Division II and Division III championships and for the Division I championships for 1990 through 1993.

Next season's Division II tournament would be held at the University of California, Davis, with the Division III meet conducted at John Carroll University.

It will be recommended to the Executive Committee that the 1990 Division I championships be held at the University of Maryland, College Park, a recommendation predicated on a date change that would extend the season by one week.

The 1991 tournament would be held at the University of Iowa, the 1992 meet at The Myriad in Oklahoma City (also the site of the 1989 championships) and the 1993 tournament at Iowa State University.

The Division I subcommittee also recommended the removal of the existing limit of 42 qualifiers from each conference.

The committee also recommended the development of a program for officials modeled on those for basketball, ice hockey and lacrosse.

Claiming a need for more exposure for the sport, the committee will pursue the possibility of developing a highlight and promotional videotape for collegiate wrestling.

Interpretations

1988 Column No. 2

[Note: The following cases have been revised by the NCAA Council. The revisions are in bold-face type.]

Commercial logos on athletics equipment and apparel

(Revises Case No. 42)

Situation: A student-athlete desires to use athletics equipment or wear athletics apparel that bears the trademark or logo of an athletics competition (610).

Question: Is the eligibility of the student-athlete jeopardized?

Answer: No, provided that, in the case of athletics equipment (e.g., shoes, helmets, baseball bats and gloves, hockey and lacrosse sticks, goggles and skis), the item bears only the manufacturer's normal label or trademark as it is used on all such items for sale to the general public and, in the case of the student-athlete's institution's official uniform and all other items of apparel (e.g., warm-ups, socks, head bands, T-shirts, wristbands, visors or hats, swim caps and towels), the clothing (if purchased or acquired subsequent to November 7, 1983) bears only a single manufacturer's or distributor's normal label or trademark not to exceed 1½-inch square in size. [C 3-1-(e)]

Promotional activities—prizes

(Revises Case No. 450)

Situation: A prospective or enrolled student-athlete (or a member of his or her family) wins a prize by participating in a Division I or II member institution's half-time promotional activities. (641)

Question: Would receipt of such a prize jeopardize the individual's eligibility for intercollegiate competition?

Answer: Yes, unless the prize is won through a random drawing in which all members of the general public or student body are eligible to participate, and (in the case of the student-athlete) no athletics ability or participation is involved. Otherwise, the receipt of such a prize would result in an improper inducement or extra benefit for that individual. For purposes of this regulation, the phrase "prospective student-athlete" shall include any individual who is so defined under the provisions of Bylaw 1-6-(c) of the tryout rule. [C 3-1-(g)-(5), B 1-1-(b) and B 4-1-(g)]

Intercollegiate competition

(Revises Case No. 286)

Situation: In determining the number of seasons of eligibility a student-athlete has completed, a member institution must count all seasons in which the student has participated in an intercollegiate sport, regardless of time. (611)

Question: How is "intercollegiate competition" defined for purposes of determining a student's number of completed seasons of competition?

Answer: A student-athlete is considered to have engaged in a season of intercollegiate competition if, during the academic year in question, the student: (1) represents the institution in regularly scheduled, regular-season or postseason competition or in a scrimmage with outside competition; (2) participates in collegiate competition, regardless of the fact that the student's performance is not included in the scoring of the event or is considered an "exhibition"; (3) competes in the uniform of the institution; (4) competes and receives any expenses for the competition, including transportation, meals, room or entry fees, from the institution, or (5) competes and receives any type of equipment or clothing for the competition from the institution. Participation in the events listed in Constitution 3-1-(h)-(3) is exempted from the application of this legislation. [B 5-1-(d)-(1)]

Payment of expenses—illness or injury

(Revises Case No. 74)

Situation: Prior to or after enrollment in a member institution, a student-athlete contracts an illness or incurs an injury not caused during practice for or participation in intercollegiate athletics at the institution. (153)

Question: May the institution pay for any resultant surgical expenses to cure or correct the illness or injury?

Answer: No. Inasmuch as the injury or illness is not the result of intercollegiate competition or practice, the resultant surgical expenses could not be considered benefits incidental to a student's participation in intercollegiate athletics. It would be permissible, however, for the institution to pay the expenses for medication and physical therapy utilized by a student-athlete to enable the individual to participate in intercollegiate athletics. [C 3-1-(g)-(5) and C 3-1-(h)-(4)]

Bloom pleads guilty to misdemeanor charge

Sports agent Lloyd Bloom pleaded guilty May 2 to one misdemeanor charge in an incident involving two University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, basketball players during the 1986-87 season.

Bloom, 29, of Sherman Oaks, California, was booked at Tuscaloosa Metro Jail on six counts and released on $10,000 bond but was allowed to plead guilty to only one count of his charge, said spokeswoman Joy Patterson of the attorney general's office.

Bloom was indicted on two counts each of misdemeanor charges of commercial bribery, deceptive trade practice and tampering with a sports contest. He was sentenced to one year in jail but all but one week was suspended, Patterson said.

"My understanding is he'll serve his sentence at a state trooper's post washing cars or something," she told United Press International.

Bloom also agreed to testify for the prosecution in the upcoming trial of his former associate, Norby Walters, on similar charges.

Walters pleaded not guilty to the charges and is scheduled to be tried in Tuscaloosa May 9.

Bloom had to be extradited to Alabama for failing to make a March 16 arraignment. His lawyer, Mike Trope, said the pair voluntarily traveled to Tuscaloosa to answer the charges.

More summer leagues approved

An additional 20 summer basketball leagues have been approved for student-athlete participation, bringing to 92 the number that have been certified by the NCAA Council Lists of other approved summer leagues appeared in the April 13 and April 27 issues of the News.

Much lost in shuffle of college basketball

By Ken Ross
United Press International
Excerpted from a column

High school athletes are wined and dined into attending a particular university. In the worst cases, they are given cars, stereos, choice living accommodations and alumni cash for their services. At reputable schools, they are at the very least given some very special treatment.

Education? That can be had, too, but it's not the primary concern. Shot-blocking ability? Yes. Books instead of practice? Think again.

There are coaches who boast about graduation rates, but question that.

For coaches, the name of the game is winning. If you don't have the "Ws," you don't stay.

Successful coaches get their players on the floor at dawn to practice and squeeze classes and study time in around the basketball education of their young charges.

A basketball coach makes three or even 30 times what the school president takes in. But people don't pay to see the president. Right?

Big-time college basketball has become an industry, and coaches aspire to the biggest, wealthiest programs like young executives climbing the corporate ladder.

The problem is that much is being lost in the shuffle. Players aren't being educated. Fans are riding emotional roller coasters. High school recruits are showing up at colleges, but the coach who recruited them left months ago.

There is a lot wrong with this picture.

Let's deemphasize recruiting

By Jerry Lindquist
Richmond Times-Dispatch

Despite the importance of recruiting—the lifeline of any athletics program—George Welsh wishes people wouldn't talk about it so much. "It does more harm than good," the University of Virginia football coach says, "...and it's getting worse."

Making high school players appear to be supermen is a mistake, which too often they pay for—dearly—in the end, Welsh says.

"They get so much publicity, they have to be spoiled," Welsh says. "There's enough pressure on kids to come (to college) and perform right away, which is hard for a lot of freshmen, not only the highly publicized ones...and most of them aren't going to play right away, and they aren't going to be as good as everybody thinks they are, and it's hard for them to accept psychologically."

They're used to being successful, or they wouldn't be recruited on the NCAA Division I level, Welsh says. And, when they don't live up to billing, for whatever reason (and there are many), many never recover.

"I'm a strong advocate for not having freshmen eligible, and that's another argument in favor of it," Welsh says. "There could be a decompression period, I think."

Decompression period? "That's from my Navy days," the old salt says.

He can recite chapter and verse of horror stories of youngsters who were recruited with can't-miss credentials and never were heard from again.

"They didn't make it, and I can remember coaches saying they weren't good enough to perform even on a I-AA level," Welsh says. "I don't know what that does to a kid."

The situation was a bit different at the U.S. Naval Academy, where Welsh went to school and later served as head coach for nine years. He landed few players he describes as "superdopers" there, but they didn't have a chance to be victimized by press clippings.

Why? "The military thing," Welsh says. "You suffer so much your plebe (first) year, you're groveling...you can't possibly be affected by the football aspect of it. You're just trying to survive."

At Virginia, newcomers tend to have as much trouble dealing with schoolwork as they do satisfying The Big Buildup. "That has been my experience here," Welsh says. "Other coaches say that's not true, but I find that hard to believe, unless they have a lot of courses in which you don't have to write a paper."

If you're getting the idea Welsh welcomes the opportunity to speak up and put down this trend toward

Mr. Freshman Linebacker copes with 65-to 70-hour week

By Coulborn H. Tyler
Ferrum College

There is a linebacker whom we are after. He is an 18-year-old kid we want badly. We will tell this young person that we will take an active part in shaping his future. If he needs academic assistance, we will provide it. Financial aid, if he qualifies, is available. If he will just come to Old Hogwash College, we'll ride off into the sunset together.

The dean greets the freshmen and says that they must put in two hours of study for every hour in class if they really want to succeed.

The president is next, and he says that if they did not go to college, they would be working 40-hour weeks. He goes further and tells the freshmen that if they don't put in 40 hours a week on their classes, they won't make it.

The powers that be say that one must carry 12 hours per semester to show satisfactory progress toward graduation (which, by the way, is going to be 5.29 years from now). To be eligible for financial aid, our young linebacker must show satisfactory progress, 20 hours for the first year, and so forth.

We now issue a schedule in which Mr. Linebacker is assigned 14 hours. The normal load is 17, but we don't want this young man to go in so deep that he can't succeed. Work-study assignments are issued, and our boy has five hours per week. The range is from four to 15.

Put it all together and Mr. Linebacker has a 65- to 70-hour week of work/study classes, practice, study halls and home games—not counting time spent on the road to away games.

Well, everything seems to be in order. But, are we doing something wrong? Consider that we have a youngster who after one week of two-hour study halls may have matched his entire study output for September of the previous year. How do you tell him it's not enough?

This student is taking 14 hours and has 16 hours of class per week. If the dean was correct, he still has 24 hours of studying to do after study hall Thursday night. If the president was right, the student-athlete has 16 hours remaining.

This is fine, because most 18-year-olds can discipline themselves to do this.

Upon completion of study hall, the student has put in a 14-hour day. Saturdays are devoted to football—pregame preparations, the game, unwinding and returning, if it is not a long trip. Students taking 17 hours of course work, a normal load, and assigned to 10 hours of work-study have even greater problems. But, at their age, they're prepared to handle it.

Students participating in sports that are played in the middle of the week as well as the weekend also have even greater problems. Not only do they miss some classes and study halls, they often do not return to campus until late and have no time to prepare unless they plan ahead. They can do that because

Athletics scholarship not enough

Bill Walsh, head coach

"There's no way the college athlete can legitimately survive on the scholarship.

"There isn't a way, and they expect him to... The aid, as we know it now, is probably about 70 percent of what an athlete needs to subsist in college.

"When you recruit an athlete from Miami, Florida, to Michigan and then tell him you can't help him get back and forth on vacation, I don't know how he's supposed to get back and forth.

"You can't even pick him up at the airport to bring him to the campus. These things are hypocritical. They allow you to recruit him, but then you have no responsibility for him to get back and forth."

Rich Hoffman
columnist
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

"The NCAA wants a college coach to bring in his players, keep them eligible and get them graduated—all in the most pristine manner.

"But, at the same time, the coach knows full well that if he doesn't win, he gets fired. It's be good, but win.

"It's not an impossible situation, but no one can deny that it has the tendency to bring out the worst in a college coach."

David Breneman, president
Kalamazoo College

"Unfortunately, in this intensely competitive world of higher education, I believe that many of the best colleges have become convinced that price is being used as a guide to quality—the time-honored axiom that you get what you pay for.

"What has resulted from this marketing mentality is additional upward pressure on prices, as colleges seek to position themselves relative to competitors on the basis of price and quality."

focusing on recruits and recruiting with a magnifying glass, you're right. Sure, Welsh wants to sign the best players, but he has no idea how good they can or will be.

It's a message Welsh delivers to everyone who asks—and he is asked, over and over—but that seldom proves satisfactory.

There are all kinds of recruiting lists out there, and they become guidelines. You sign x-number of players on a top-100 list, and you're the greatest. Don't sign any, and people ask what's wrong with you.

Recruiting lists, indeed. Don't get Welsh started.

"There is no way in God's name that anybody can name the best 100 players in the country. That's why I object to it so strongly. There's no way for them to know that," Welsh says.

"The best quarterback in the country? The best tight end in the country? The best player? That's even more ridiculous."

like all the rest—subscribes to recruiting-service publications. They aren't required reading in a school's immediate vicinity. You do your own homework there.

"But if you want to recruit in faraway places... you must use these services," Welsh says. "You just don't have enough people to be everywhere."

It's a way of getting a line on a big lineman, for example. Everyone needs good, big linemen. "But we don't use (the services) for evaluation," Welsh says.

Welsh knows alumni, fans and other interested parties out there are evaluating him and his staff all the time.

they are 17, 18 or 19 years old, and they've been doing it for years.

If we are indeed going to shape Mr. Linebacker's future and that of golf, tennis and soccer players—if we are going to take an active interest—then it would appear that several things need close attention:

1. Planning for studies must go far above and beyond study hall.
2. Parameters regarding work-study obligations need to be examined and perhaps reviewed to the extent that more work is done prior to or after the completion of the sports season.
3. The NCAA needs to find time to add to its agenda an opportunity for dialogue on successful study strategies for the student-athletes.

Florida freshmen top list of I tennis newcomers

The 1988 Division I Women's Tennis Championships may be remembered as a tournament of freshmen. The top performers for leading contenders Florida, Stanford, Southern California and host UCLA are all first-year players, and freshmen fill key roles elsewhere on the rosters.

When Stanford won its second straight team title at last year's championships, it broke a five-year pattern that saw the Cardinal alternate with Southern California as champs.

Now Florida would like to upset the status quo further by taking the title away from the Pacific-10 Conference altogether. The Gators are the top-ranked team in the latest poll by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association (ITCA).

Fountain of youth

The Florida program, based in a state where the fountain of youth once was thought to gurggle, is built around freshmen and sophomores. Coach Andy Brandi's prize recruiting catch during the off-season was Halle Cioffi, a success in national juniors play and now the fourth-ranked singles player in the collegiate ranks.

She joins last year's top freshman, Shaun Stafford, who took Stanford's Patty Fendick to three sets in the singles finals. Stafford also holds a place in the ITCA top 10.

Two other freshmen, Holly Danforth and Nicole Arendt, also are in the Gators' lineup, giving Brandi's squad the opportunity to challenge for the title in years to come.

The same applies to Stanford, which after the loss of Fendick has bounced back with new faces of its own. The Cardinal's top newcomer is third-ranked Tami Whitlinger, whose twin sister Teri also holds a spot in the ITCA top 20. A third freshman, Sandra Birch, is close behind.

Veterans return

Among the veterans returning from Stanford's 1987 championship squad, senior Kay Tittle and sophomore Lisa Green provide a measure of stability for coach Frank Brennan's lineup.

In an attempt to regain the crown it won in 1983 and 1985, Southern California also has filled its roster with freshmen and sophomores. Tricia Laux and Stephanie London are the Trojans' key freshmen, with sophomore Lupita Novelo also ranked in the ITCA's top 40 in singles.

If UCLA is to win the team championship at home, it likely will do so with its doubles team. All three of the Bruins' tandems are ranked among the top 12. UCLA also has outstanding freshmen, including Kirstin Drayer and Jessica Emmons, but the Bruins feature proven performers such as Allyson Cooper and Joni Urban.

Other contenders

A fourth Pacific-10 team also could mount a challenge. California's squad is a veteran one by 1988 standards, with senior Jennifer Prah and juniors Alissa Finerman and Sharon Fletcher.

Two of Florida's rivals in the Southeastern Conference also could make an impact. Kentucky boasts the nation's top-ranked doubles

Emmet finds title defense even tougher

By Jim Webster
Winter Park (Florida) Outlook

Winning the NCAA Division II singles championship last year as a fourth-seeded junior may have been easier for Rollins College senior Pat Emmet than defending it this year as the No. 1 seed.

"It's a hard title to defend," said the tall, sandy-haired Emmet from behind a pair of dark sunglasses. "Everyone is out to defeat the No. 1 seed. A lot of times, winning just goes with the draw opening up."

The draw did open up for Emmet, an all-America in 1987, last year at the championships.

The No. 1 seed was knocked out in the semifinals, clearing the way for No. 4 Emmet to face Millersville's Young Min Kwon for the championship. Emmet won that match in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2.

"I might be No. 1 in the nation in Division II, but that doesn't hold a bowl of soup," he said. "You have to make your own opportunities.

"I want to be seen as someone who is a serious tennis player, who works hard," Emmet said. That hard work this year has included more than 50 singles and doubles matches, three hours of practice every day, weightroom work three times a week, and running every day. When not practicing, he's most often either in class or studying.

"When you're an athlete, there

III men tackle Kalamazoo's reign

The rest of the Division III Men's Tennis Championships hopes that Kalamazoo's luck will change in 1988. Washington and Lee has particularly strong feelings on the matter.

For the past two seasons, coach George Acker's Kalamazoo team has defeated Washington and Lee, 6-3, in the team-championship finals.

When the Division III Men's Tennis Championships are held May 15-22 at Washington and Lee, the host Generals, along with Washington (Maryland) and UC Santa Cruz, will be among the contenders most likely to dethrone the Hornets for the team crown.

Meanwhile, the individual drawing the largest share of attention will be Principia senior Toby Clark, who won his second singles championship in 1987.

Top-ranked

Washington (Maryland), which lost to Acker's squad in last year's semifinals and scored a narrow victory over UC Santa Cruz for third place, is the top-ranked team in the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association (ITCA) poll.

The Sho'men are led by sophomore Larry Gewer and freshman Scott Flippin-Read. That pair is the top-ranked doubles combination in Division III, and Gewer is ranked behind only Clark in singles.

Fred Wyman's Sho'men, perennial champions of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference, lost a talented senior class but retain a veteran nucleus.

"Most of our guys have been there before," Wyman said. "That's important in this tournament. The first year, we were just so happy to be there that we weren't really thinking about winning it. Now, I think we have more of the confidence that the great teams have."

Veterans offer hope

Washington and Lee pins its hopes of ending its final-round frustrations on a veteran lineup that includes senior David McLeod and juniors Robert Matthews and Robert Haley.

Matthews and Haley both are ranked in the ITCA's top 10 in singles, and Matthews teams with McLeod to form a team that

Hampton men ready for invasion

Hampton will try to take the team title out of California for the first time in four years when the Division II Men's Tennis Championships begin May 16 at Sonoma State.

Teams from the Golden State have won three straight titles since ending a seven-year streak by Southern Illinois-Edwardsville. California schools have won or shared the team crown 16 times in the 25-year history of the tournament.

But Hampton, runner-up to Chapman last season and ranked close behind the Panthers in the 1988 polls, has a chance to end that streak. The Pirates, who also finished second to Chapman in 1985, have compiled a 26-0 dual-match record this season.

Fresh faces

Hampton features a new look in 1988 with a pair of prized freshmen. Luis Nascimento and Flavio Lima are ranked in the top 10 in singles. Another Pirate standout, Islam Ul-Haq, is only a sophomore but already is a tournament veteran.

"This is the best team we've ever had," said Hampton coach Robert Screen. "We have our best chance to win since 1985. If we can stay healthy and play well over those days, and if we can adjust to the time change in going to California, I feel confident about our chances."

Coming back

Cal Poly San Luis Obispo will be seeking to regain the team title it captured in 1986. The Mustangs feature a proven lineup that includes Division II tournament veterans Mike Giusto and Neal Berryman as well as such talented youngsters as Gary Jones. Giusto and Berryman are among the division's top doubles teams.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Trenton State won the 1987 championship with an 8-7, overtime victory over Ursinus.

Schedule: First-round games will be played at on-campus sites May 11. On-campus sites also will be used for the semifinals, which are scheduled for May 14 or 15. Haverford College will host the championship May 21.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will be published in the May 18 issue of the News, and championship results will appear May 25.

Contenders: Roanoke, Trenton State, Ursinus.

Championship notes: Trenton State has faced Ursinus for the championship the past three years... The defending champs hold a 2-1 edge, having also won the 1985 final... Teams from 13 schools have appeared in the tournament... Lynchburg is the only school other than Trenton State or Ursinus to hold one of the nine team records maintained for the championship.

Foes seek fourth consecutive showdown in III lacrosse

Six teams in this year's eight-team Division III Women's Lacrosse Championship field probably would rather not see history repeat itself. Two others—Trenton State and Ursinus—undoubtedly want to maintain the status quo.

For three straight years, Trenton State and Ursinus have met in the championship game. Trenton State was the victor in 1985 and 1987, and Ursinus won the title in 1986. Both teams have key performers back this season.

Trenton State's Margie Flynn was named the most outstanding player on attack last year, and teammate Penny Kempf earned that honor on defense.

Flynn scored a goal in overtime to give her team the title. Ursinus's Jill Johnson was the most outstanding midfielder a year ago and the most outstanding player on defense in 1986. All three are seniors.

Sophomore standouts

This year, Trenton State's scoring leaders are two sophomores. Through 14 games, Lee Moreau had 52 goals and 15 assists. Deanna Beurle had 44 goals and three assists. Flynn had scored 20 goals and had 15 assists. Senior Lisa Rosener had 19 goals and was the team's assist leader with 17.

Senior goalkeeper Sandy Stockl had a .646 save percentage.

"Our midfielders are doing a lot of work," coach Sharon Goldbrenner said. "That may not show up on the stat sheet, because they are not putting the goals in."

Goldbrenner cited the importance of having the players working together and "on the same physical and mental wave length" during tournament play.

"A team has got to peak at that time," she said. "You have got to go into the tournament and give it everything you have."

Juniors lead way

The junior class has been setting the pace in scoring for Ursinus. Nanci Sarcinello had 32 goals and six assists in 13 games. Suzanne Thomas had scored 31 times and had six assists. Heather Simons had 24 goals and 11 assists. Johnson had contributed 15 goals and seven assists even though she is a defensive player. Another defensive stalwart for Ursinus is Bobbie Sue Copley, also a senior. Sophomore goalkeeper Kim Piersall had a .634 save percentage.

"They are really fast," Goldbrenner said of Ursinus. "Combine that with their skill, and they have a nice lacrosse team."

Roanoke threatens to break up the traditional championship-game pairing. The Maroons had an unblemished record through 14 games.

Senior Denise Abe was the leading scorer with 50 goals and 26 assists. Freshman Leigh Budnitz had 29 goals and 11 assists. Stacey Stude had scored 25 times and had 11 assists. Robin Collinson had 22 goals and 12 assists. Goalkeeper Kiki Chesterton had a .675 save percentage in nine appearances.

Departed tennis champ overshadows teams

When competition begins at the Division III Women's Tennis Championships, the major topic of conversation may be a player of the past.

Courtney Allen of Principia has graduated, leaving a gaping hole in the singles and doubles brackets. From 1984 through last season, Allen captured three singles title and shared three doubles crowns, making her the most successful per-

Pattern, ability give Temple edge

If a recent pattern in the National Collegiate Women's Lacrosse Championship holds, 1988 should be the year of the Lady Owls.

The past two seasons, the title has gone to the team that finished as runner-up the previous year. Last year, Penn State posted a 7-6 victory over Temple in the championship game.

The Lady Owls made the progression from runner-up to champion once before. They finished second to Delaware in 1983, then won the title with a victory over Maryland in 1984.

Temple again has the ability to put points on the board. Senior Gail Cummings, who scored six goals in last year's tournament, has had 86 goals and 30 assists through 15 games.

"She gets better every year," coach Tina Sloan-Green said. "She has become a more complete player."

More power

Temple's firepower is by no means limited to Cummings. Senior Kim Lambdin had 54 goals and 16 assists through 15 games. Denise Bourassa had scored 34 times and had five assists. Mande Moore had 21 goals and 16 assists. Moore was named the most outstanding midfielder at last year's championship.

"It has really been a great team effort," Sloan-Green said about this season's success. "If one player is off, someone else is there to take up the slack."

Penn State, which went from runner-up in 1986 to champion in 1987, would like to break one pattern that has held through the tournament's six-year history. Like Temple, the Lady Lions would like to become the first team to win a second championship. Six different schools have won the championship in as many years.

Junior Tami Worley tied for scoring honors in last year's championship with seven goals and two assists. This year, she is the Lady Lions' top scorer. She had 47 goals and 14 assists through 14 games. Senior Anna Marie Vesco had 30 goals and six assists, and sophomore Mary Ann Foley had scored 25 goals and had eight assists.

Offensive balance

"Now that we are at the end of the season, our strength is more balance (on offense)," coach Sue Scheetz said. "I also am pleased with the way our defense has come together."

Last year, at the end of the season, the Lady Lions were playing with a lot of confidence and a strong belief that they could win the championship.

"They believed so much that they could do it," Scheetz said. "I think we are going to need a positive attitude again."

William and Mary and Lafayette also are teams to be reckoned with. Junior Danielle Gallagher is the Tribe's top scorer with 28 goals and 17 assists in nine games. Freshman Cheryl Boehringer had 24 goals and five assists in 12 games.

For Lafayette, Tracy Wright and Jennie Smith each had scored 45 goals in 15 games. Wright had the same number of assists and Smith had 15.

second leading scorer in the tournament last season.

"We have been relying heavily on the attack this year," coach Dave Urlick said. "We have three seniors who are playing well. They are people we hope we can go to in big games."

"Within the last couple of games, the team has been taking on its own character and its own identity," Urlick said.

Effective defender

Senior Will Schmidt is a defensive midfielder who is usually pitted against the opponent's key offensive performer. Junior goalkeeper Shawn Trell had a .582 save percentage for nine games.

"He has come up big for us in some games where we needed him to do that," Urlick said.

"Hobart's defense does not change," Ohio Wesleyan coach Mike Pressler said. "The names change, but the style of play does not."

Like Hobart, Ohio Wesleyan, last year's runner-up, has some of the outstanding performers in the 1987 tournament back this season. Senior attackman Rob Alvino was one of the top scorers in last year's championship, as were midfielders Toby Boucher and Charlie Blanchard. Junior goalie Jim Schwartz had a .712 save percentage through 11 games.

Proven contender

Ohio Wesleyan defeated Hobart this season, 6-5, in overtime.

"It is difficult to generate scoring opportunities against Ohio Wesleyan," Urlick said. "We had our

Her total of six titles is matched on the men's side only by M. G. Chace of Yale, who won his last crowns in 1895.

With Allen gone, the chase for the team title could regain the limelight at the Division III championships.

UC San Diego will be seeking its third crown in four years when the tournament begins May 10 at Emory. The Tritons are the only squad to have won more than one team championship.

Liz LaPlante's UC San Diego team is led by Christine Behrens, who as a freshman lost only one match in singles or doubles during the Tritons' march to the title last year. Trenton State hopes ranking holds

After holding on to its No. 1 ranking through the entire season, Trenton State enters the seventh Division III Women's Softball Championship with hopes that it also can hold the title it won last year.

Already 30-4 through late April, Trenton State clinched the school's ninth consecutive 30-victory season, with several contests left on the regular-season schedule. Now, the Lions look forward to capturing their third Division III crown.

The Lions are hitting .397 and have scored 271 runs in 34 games. Among the leading team members are junior all-America Diane Klueg (.515), senior Ilene Cohen (.505), junior all-America Pam McCreesh (.500) and sophomore Jill Herman (.495).

After playing wherever needed her first two seasons, Klueg has pretty much settled in at third. "Diane has played every position except pitcher," coach June Walker said. "She does whatever is necessary to help the team. But I think she's happy to have found a home this year."

Pitchers back

Two of the nation's leading pitchers last year again are throwing well. Senior all-America Donna O'Connell (13-3) and junior Jill Marghella (16-1) have combined for a 1.71 earned-run average.

Central (Iowa) (25-7) returns seven starters from last year's fourth-place team, including pitchers Laurie Suttin and Brenda Vigness.

Suttin, a senior all-America, has a 15-2 record. Vigness is 10-5 and has not allowed any earned runs in her last six outings.

Streak greets debut

In his first year at Eastern Connecticut State, head coach Jeff Anderson has led his Warriors to a school-record 22 consecutive victories—the last loss came March 16 at the hands of Division II opponent Wayne State (Michigan).

The Warriors were Division III champions in 1985 and 1986 and finished third last year. That success gives the squad's starting seniors an extra incentive to go after the top spot in 1988. The team currently is 23-4.

Mariann Shumbo, Ginny Adler, Andrea Costa and all-America Cathy McGillicuddy all were a part of the No. 1 teams in their freshman and sophomore years. "Sure there's a little incentive for our seniors," said Anderson. "They've worked chances to score and (Schwartz) shut the door on us."

"We have not played our best lacrosse yet," Pressler said. "It is still ahead of us."

Washington (Maryland) was the runner-up in 1984, 1985 and 1986. Last year, Ohio Wesleyan eliminated the Sho'men in the first round.

"Right now, the best thing we are doing is playing together as a team," coach Terry Corcoran said. "The defense has been outstanding."

Corcoran cited junior Matt Wilson for his excellent play on defense. Senior goalkeeper Mark Mitchum had 179 saves through 13 games. Paul Miller was the top scorer with 30 goals and 37 assists. Paul Deniken had 47 goals, tops on the team, and 17 assists. Sophomore Tim Hormes had 36 goals and 13 assists.

"We are a ball-movement team; we have to execute offensively," Corcoran said. "Defensively, we have to match-up with people and be able to stop them."

in runs batted in with 18. Sophomore second baseman Denise Lamontagne is the team leader with a .491 batting average and 14 runs batted in.

Two all-America pitchers—sophomore Christi Mohan and junior Lynn Rocheleau—have combined for an 18-3 record.

Allegheny (31-2) has several returning all-America players in this year's lineup, including two-time selection Gia Celularo, Shelley Brown and Nancy Nelson. Celularo, a senior second baseman, leads the Gators with a .455 batting average.

Duo leads way

Celularo also has accounted for seven doubles, three triples and 15 runs batted in. "Gia is an excellent leader in the infield," said head coach Sheila Lingenfelter. "And she and Nancy (at shortstop) make an outstanding combination."

"Nancy can come through with hits when necessary," Lingenfelter said of Nelson. The senior is batting .398; has a slugging percentage of .72, and leads the team in extra-base hits with eight doubles, three triples and six home runs.

Most of the pitching duties have fallen to Brown and Teva Eiler, who have a 27-2 record with 11 shutouts between them.

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Sue Chapman named at Worcester State after two years as assistant AD at Worcester Polytechnic, where she also was coordinator of women's athletics for 13 years. Chapman also was head field hockey and women's softball coach at Worcester Polytechnic. Larry Travis resigned at Kansas State to seek other opportunities. He has been AD at the school since 1985.

COACHES

Baseball—Terry Craven resigned after four seasons at Cal State Northridge, effective July 1. His career coaching record at the time of the announcement was 117-96-1. Craven also has been a player and assistant coach at the school.

Men's basketball—John Calipari appointed at Massachusetts after three years as an assistant at Pittsburgh, where he has served on the staff at Kansas. Kermit Davis promoted from assistant at Idaho to replace Tim Floyd, who was named head coach at New Orleans. Davis was Floyd's assistant for two seasons and becomes the youngest head coach in Division I at age 28. He also has been head coach at Southwest Mississippi Junior College. Floyd coached the Vandals to a 35-25 record during his two seasons at Idaho. He previously was an assistant for nine seasons at UTEP. Gary Colson resigned after eight seasons at New Mexico, where his teams compiled a 146-106 record and appeared in five straight National Invitation Tournaments. His last two teams compiled marks of 25-10 and 22-14, respectively. Oregon State's Ralph Miller, who has recorded more victories than any other active coach, announced he will stay in his post for one more season and then retire. His 38-year coaching record of 652-362 includes a 337-178 mark through 19 seasons at Oregon State. Assistant coach Jim Anderson is scheduled to become head coach after Miller's retirement. Al Skinner promoted from assistant at Rhode Island, where he has coached for four years. He also has been on the staff at Marist. Gary Grace selected at Cornell College. He previously was an assistant for two years at Nebraska. Grace replaces Steve Miller, who continues to serve as the school's athletics director and head football coach. Bill Berry given a multiyear contract extension at San Jose State. Ray Amalbert named at Hunter after three years as an assistant at Long Island-C. W. Post. He also served from 1978 to 1984 as head coach at New York City Technical College, where his teams recorded a 199-107 record. Tom Asbury promoted from assistant at Pepperdine, where he has been on the staff since 1979. He also was an assistant at Wyoming from 1976 to 1979.

Men's basketball assistants—Robert Williams and David Campbell appointed at Pepperdine.

Women's basketball—Monica Severson named at Wartburg. She currently is completing a master's degree at South Dakota State, where she was a graduate assistant coach. Linda Makowski resigned at George Washington to complete postgraduate work in education. Her career 192-117 coaching record includes a stint at Dayton, where three of her teams appeared in NCAA postseason play. She was 1987-88 Atlantic 10 Conference coach of the year after leading her last George Washington squad to an 18-10 mark. Caren Choppelas hired at Santa Clara, her alma mater. She served last season as an assistant at San Francisco and also has been on the staff at Santa Clara. Choppelas replaces Ken Thompson, whose contract was not renewed after a 10-year stint at the school. Trudi Lacey named at South Florida after two years at Francis Marion, where her teams recorded a 53-12 mark. She also has been an assistant at North Carolina State, James Madison and Manhattan. Lacey succeeds Anne Strusz, who resigned after five seasons.

Field hockey—Worcester Polytechnic's Sue Chapman appointed athletics director at Worcester State.

Football assistants—John McGregor named wide receivers coach at Ohio. McGregor is former head coach of the Continental Football League's Richmond Ravens and a former Atlanta Falcons assistant. Dave Boller appointed administrative assistant for football at Arizona State, where he has been assistant equipment manager for three years. Gary Spielbuehler hired to coach the defensive line and Kirk Harmon promoted to defensive coordinator at Cal State Fullerton. Spielbuehler previously was an assistant at Glendale (California) Community College. Harmon has been the Titans' inside linebackers coach for three years.

Men's ice hockey assistants—Don Vaughan promoted to the position of top assistant at St. Lawrence, where he has been junior varsity coach for three years. Babson assistant Pierre McGuire was hired to succeed Vaughan as jayvee coach.

Women's softball—Worcester Polytechnic's Sue Chapman named athletics director at Worcester State.

Men's and women's tennis—Tim Sutherland hired to coach the men's and women's teams at Grand Valley State, which will reinstate the programs next year. He was men's coach at Alma from 1980 to 1982. Gemma Mozeak, a former Emmet is from Leesburg, Virginia, a suburb of Washington, D.C., but grew up in New York City and went to Westtown boarding school outside Philadelphia. In high school, he was undefeated in his junior and senior years.

"In the pros and colleges, you have to be able to win points," said the economics major. "In high school, you can wait for someone to lose a point. You have to be able to win matches at this level; you can't wait for the other guy to lose."

Santa Clara named Caren Choppelas for women's basketball

John McGregor appointed to Ohio football staff

No. 1 singles player at St. John's (New York), named women's coach at Hunter. She succeeds Casilda Diaz.

Men's and women's track and field—Ken Gibson resigned at Mississippi, effective June 30. John Blanton named to a new full-time position at Montclair State, effective September 1. Blanton is head track coach at Clifford J. Scott High School in East Orange, New Jersey. He replaces four-year part-time coach Vic Mizzone.

Women's volleyball—Bill Cooperrider selected at Akron, where he was a part-time assistant last season. He also has coached at the high school level, where his teams collected four state titles.

STAFF

Equipment assistant—Dave Boller promoted from assistant equipment manager to administrative assistant for football at Arizona State.

Marketing, sales and promotions director—Gary Sobba named at Wichita State. He has served in marketing-related positions with the Kansas City Royals and Kansas City Chiefs.

Recruiting coordinator—Ronnie Cox selected at Arizona State. The former Tennessee football assistant has worked for a school district in Columbia, South Carolina, since 1985.

Sports information director—Doug Skipper appointed at North Dakota, effective June 1. He has been assistant SID at Wyoming since 1980.

Sports information assistant—Mississippi's Jimmy Wilder named assistant commissioner in charge of media relations for the Southern Conference.

CONFERENCES

Jimmy Wilder appointed assistant commissioner in charge of media relations for the Southern Conference. He previously was assistant sports information director at Mississippi and is a former SID at Citadel, in addition to having served in promotions and marketing posts at Old Dominion, Murray State and Memphis State. Robert M. "Scotty" Whitelaw announced his retirement after 17 years as commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference, effective June 30. He has been on the conference's staff since 1960, and has seen the organization grow in size to 254 member institutions (encompassing more than 25 percent of the NCAA membership). Whitelaw is a former head basketball and baseball coach at MIT and has been a member of several NCAA committees.

Jess Dow Field at Southern Connecticut State University should be under construction by early summer, according to Michael J. Adanti, school president.

The new athletics field will have an artificial playing surface and track.

"The funding for the project is in place in the budget, pending approval of the Connecticut Legislature," Adanti said. The new complex, named for the former athletics director and football coach, will be situated directly behind James W. Moore Field House.

The project's cost is estimated at more than $2 million.

Adanti said he expects the complex to have lights, a facilities-management building and seating for 1,500 in the initial project. Seats for 5,000 and a press box are not expected to be completed until at least 1989.

DEATHS

Ike Gellis, sports editor of the New York Post for 30 years until his retirement in 1978, died April 28 in Nyack, New York, following a long illness. He was 80. Martha Kime Piper, president at Winthrop since 1986, died April 24 in Charlotte, North Carolina, at age 56. Victor Holt Jr., who led Oklahoma to an undefeated season in basketball in 1928 and later became president of Goodyear Tire Company, died of Parkinson's disease April 22 in Palm Beach, Florida. He was 79. Holt also played two years for the Cook Painters, who won Amateur Athletic Union championships, before joining Goodyear and working his way up through the ranks. Emil H. Messikomer, former men's basketball coach and retired dean of undergraduate studies at West Chester, died April 21 at age 77. Messikomer taught and coached at West Chester from 1946 to 1976 and led the Golden Rams' basketball team to a 150-99 record through 13 seasons as head coach. He also was assistant baseball coach from 1946 to 1970. Messikomer also briefly coached basketball and baseball at Ursinus during the mid-1940s.

Q Is it permissible for individuals and teams to videotape their participation in NCAA championships?

A It is permissible to videotape the participation of individuals and athletes in most NCAA championships. However, the videotapes may be used only for coaching, instructional or archival purposes. Individuals and teams wishing to videotape are informed in the championships handbooks of the procedure for obtaining permission. They also may contact the production coordinator at the NCAA national office for more information.

The Association's Special Committee on Basketball Officiating, after reporting "outstanding acceptance" of the two-year pilot program, requested permanent adoption of the program for the men's and women's games. The Executive Committee approved this request and another that the group recommend legislation to the 1989 NCAA Convention to establish a standing committee to oversee the men's and women's officiating programs.

In other basketball action, the Executive Committee voted to continue publication of a common rules book for men's and women's basketball and to create a six-member joint subcommittee of the NCAA Men's and Women's Basketball Rules Committees to expedite the groups' annual duties.

The Executive Committee also affirmed its August 1986 action to eliminate advancement to Division I championships by student-athletes who enrolled in Division II or III institutions subsequent to the 1986-87 academic year. The action was reviewed in light of defeat of 1988 Convention Proposal No. 31, which would have amended NCAA Bylaw 10-6-(f) to incorporate language similar to that added by the Executive Committee to Executive Regulation 1-3-(d) in August 1986.

After reviewing the matter, the group determined that no further action—beyond affirmation of the August 1986 vote—was necessary.

In action related to officials who work NCAA championship events, the Executive Committee voted to require those individuals to utilize the Association's travel service when making flight arrangements.

From governing sports committees came several requests that generated significant action by the Executive Committee. Following are highlights of those requests:

- Division I women's basketball—The Executive Committee, reacting to a request that the Division I Women's Basketball Championship be permitted to use the Association's registered "Final Four" mark, voted to pursue registration of the term "Women's Final Four" for use in promotion of that championship.

- Men's and women's golf—The Executive Committee approved the concept of a regional qualifying system for use in determining participants in the Division I Men's Golf Championships. However, the governing sports committee has been asked to provide additional, detailed information as a basis for determining regional alignment and allocation of berths.

- Men's gymnastics—Development of a regional qualifying system for the championship was remanded to the governing sports committee with a request for more detailed information on the proposal.

- Women's soccer—Approved was a four-team field for the initial Division II Women's Soccer Championship, which will take place this fall. The Executive Committee also approved expansion from 12 to 16 teams of the bracket for the Division III Women's Soccer Championship, effective with the 1988 play-offs.

- Men's and women's tennis—The Executive Committee approved the Grand Champions Tennis Resort, Indian Wells, California, as site for the 1989 Division I Men's Tennis Championships, and the group approved the University of Georgia as site for the 1990 Division I men's championships.

Cal State Northridge to seek Division I status

California State University, Northridge, President James W. Cleary announced April 28 that the university will apply to the NCAA before June 1 to attain Division I status in all sports except football for the school.

A member of the NCAA Division II California Collegiate Athletic Association, the school hopes to become at some point a member of a Division I conference, associate athletics director Judith M. Brame told the Associated Press.

If Cal State Northridge complies with all Division I regulations between June 1 and the fall of 1990, Division I status should be attained, Brame said.

Cal State Northridge has been in existence for 30 years and has performed at a high level in Division II for the past 10 years in both men's and women's sports, Brame said, adding that the school has won more than 30 national championships in 12 different sports since 1969.

The enrollment of the school, situated just outside of Los Angeles in the San Fernando Valley, is approximately 30,000, Brame said.

"Approximately 2½ years ago, the coaching staff concluded that an NCAA division status change was needed," athletics director Robert J. Hiebert said at a news conference. "Today's announcement of Cal State Northridge's declaration to reclassify to NCAA Division I is the most important decision this university has made relative to intercollegiate athletics."

"Because of our successful, broad-based program our large student enrollment and projected student growth, it seems that now is the proper time for this change to take place."

Cleary said he established a special committee on athletics to determine whether a move from Division II to Division I should be made.

"The committee concluded that Division II status no longer meets students' needs because of the difficulty in scheduling teams that will provide sufficiently challenging competition," Cleary said.

"The committee members recommended a move to Division I even though the change requires a commitment from the community for increased funding, as well as additional funds from the university, additional staffing and upgrading of sports facilities."

"Surveys distributed to the community showed overwhelming support for a move to Division I. While the expression of willingness to supply financial support was far less strong, there was sufficient evidence to conclude an increased level of financial support can be expected," Cleary said.

Three-pointer boosts scoring to highest level since '79

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Led by the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, the Big Eight Conference and the Big Ten Conference, national scoring in men's Division I basketball in 1988 was the highest since 1979. Credit goes to the three-point goal.

The figure was 147.8 points per game (both teams combined, all games involving at least one Division I team)—up 2.3 points over last year's 145.5 and highest since 147.9 in 1979. The record is 155.4 set in 1971.

Metro teams averaged 83.4 points offensively, Big Eight teams 81.1 and Big Ten teams 78.5. The national per-team average is 73.9. (Two-team figures are used in national trends because, historically, points scored by non-Division I teams against Division I teams always have been counted in the totals.)

The three-pointer gets the credit for higher scoring because the shooting figures prove that it has opened up the inside game. And the scoring figures show that the three-pointer accounted for less than half of the increase—three-point scoring was up almost one point, but all scoring was up 2.3 points.

Biggest in 25 years

Proof that the inside game was opened up? Simply this—shooting accuracy from two-point range was 48.9 percent nationally in 1988 compared to 47.9 percent in 1987. One point may not sound like much of an increase, but it is the biggest jump in field-goal percentage in 25 years, or since the 1.5 percent increase in 1963—41.7 percent over 40.2 in 1962 (of course, this includes shots from all ranges, so it is not a perfect match).

Shooting from all ranges was 47 percent this year vs. 46.4 last year. From three-point range, it was down a bit to 38.2 percent vs. 38.4 last year probably because more players are shooting them. Many teams confined three-point attempts to one or two players last year. The average game produced exactly seven three-pointers last year in 18.25 attempts; this year it's 7.97 in 20.84 attempts. Free-throw accuracy dropped a bit from 69.1 percent to 68.9. Freethrows and fouls were about the same.

We are not saying Division I basketball has turned into a race-horse game. The increased figures scoring leader at 75.8, with the Metro edging the ACC for second, 74.92 to 74.87; the Southwestern Athletic Conference 74.5; Big East 73.9, and Big Ten 73.2. The SEC was 16th in scoring at 71.1 for the five years.

The Big Ten, by the way, was the field-goal accuracy leader this year at 50.2, with the ACC 49.7 and the ences: North Carolina (Dean Smith) is 23-8, Georgetown (John Thompson) is 22-8, Louisville (Denny Crum) 21-5, Villanova (Rollie Massimino) 17-7, Indiana (Bob Knight) 16-6 and Kansas (Larry Brown) 16-5 (Brown actually is fourth in victories at 19-6; 14-4 at Kansas and 5-2 at UCLA). Duke is next at 14-6, with Mike Krzyzewski 12-5. Kentucky has 13, and five teams have 12 each—Oklahoma, Iowa, Louisiana State, North Carolina State and Houston.

Women's trends

Women used the three-point shot universally for the first time in 1988; and national Division I trends show that both use and accuracy improved in the last half of the season, with the results surprising to those who predicted it would be little used.

In the first half of the season, the average game produced 2.84 three-pointers (both teams combined) in 8.59 attempts for 33.1 percent accuracy. In the last half, it was 3.2 of 9.4 for 34 percent. That made the final figures 3.03 of 9.02 for 33.6 percent.

Thus, the women were only 4.6 percentage points behind the men (38.2) from three-point range in 1988. That should not be a surprise when you consider that the women have been only a little less than four points behind the men in all field-goal shooting since women's national trends were first compiled in 1984.

It is true that the women used the three-pointer only half as much as the men did in their first year of universal use (9.02 vs. 18.25 by the men in 1987). But that still is much more than some forecasters said would happen.

Not opened up

The three-pointer did not open up the inside game this year in women's Division I. National scoring, 138 points per game, would have been 135 without the three-pointer, or three points under the 1987 figure, which also was 138.

Exactly the same thing happened for the men in 1987—that is, scoring would have been down except for the three-pointer. Three-point shooting on many women's teams often was an individual thing this season, much as it was to a lesser extent on many men's teams last year.

We probably will see more women shooting the three-pointer in the years to come, thus making it easier for the inside players to operate. (Although rough inside play is not as big a problem in the women's game—which is more of a finesse game than the men play, with all their dunking and in-your-face leapers). Remember, too, that the women have a 30-second clock, the men a 45-second clock.

Field-goal accuracy from two-point range this season was 44 percent. This will provide a means for comparison in 1989. Accuracy from all ranges was 43.3 percent this year vs. 43.9 last year, but this drop was inevitable with the addition of the three-pointer. Free-throw accuracy was 66.1 percent, down from last year's record 66.3.

SEC a double leader

The Southeastern Conference once again led all conferences in field-goal accuracy, although this time it was close, 46.71 to 46.70 over the High Country Athletic Conference, with the Atlantic Coast Conference third on 46.15.

In scoring, the SEC replaced the Big Eight Conference as the national leader with 75.8 points per game. The ACC was second at 75.4, the Big Eight third on 75.

This should not be a surprise, since the SEC is far in front in NCAA tournament victories during the seven-year history.

In three-point accuracy, the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference was on top with 37.46 percent, edging the Big Eight's 37.42, and the Ivy Group was third on 36.67. The Ohio Valley Conference made the most three-pointers per game at 2.57, while the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference scored 2.45 and the SEC 2.39 for third.

The MEAC tried the most at 7.40 per game, then the OVC 7.28 and the Southwestern Athletic Conference 7.08. The national one-team average was 4.51 attempts.

Basketball trends are not dramatic. After all, without three-pointers, this year's average would have been 139.8. And as recently as 1981, without a clock or three-pointer, it was 140.2.

But it seems the three-pointer has at least started to do what it was designed to do—to open up the inside game. That was not true a year ago, when scoring would have been down without the three-pointer.

Five-year leaders

After the rash of conference experiments with the shot clock and three-pointer in 1983, many said the new rules would favor the more talented teams and conferences. The five-year conference leaders for the period since then seem to confirm that view.

In field-goal accuracy, for instance, the five-year leader is the Atlantic Coast Conference at 50.3 percent; with the Big Eight second on 49.8; the Big Ten third at 49.7; the Southeastern Conference 48.6, and the Big East Conference by a narrow edge, 48.50 to 48.46, over the Metro for fifth place.

These same six conferences occupy the top six places in NCAA tournament victories in the 1980s, so shooting accuracy is the No. 1 key to victory in the modern game. A close second is scoring offense, because the five-year leaders here show that all but the SEC rank in the top six in scoring.

The Big Eight is the five-year

Big Eight at 49.4. The ACC won it in 1984 and 1985, edging the Big Eight both times; then the Big Eight won in 1986 and the ACC in 1987. In scoring, the Metro also led in 1986, while the Big Eight led in 1985, the Missouri Valley in 1984 and the Big Ten in 1987.

Big Eight jumps

The Big Eight took a big jump this year in the 1980s ranking with a 14-4 record in NCAA tournament play. And it was actually 12-2 against outside opponents, since it had both teams in the national finals and Midwest regional finals. It now ranks fifth in victories and fourth in percentage, where the Metro leads at .673, with the ACC .656, Big East .643 and Big Eight .606. Here are the nine conferences that have been to the Final Four at least once in the decade ranked by victories (FF is times in Final Four, R2 is times regional second place, one victory from Final Four):

Conference	W-L	FF	R2
Atlantic Coast	80-42	7	11
Big East	74-41	7	6
Big Ten	56-41	4	3
Southeastern	52-39	4	5
Big Eight	43-28	3	3
Metro	33-16	5	0
Southwest	22-21	3	0
Pacific-10	16-23	2	1
Pacific Coast	11-14	1	0

Among those not in the Final Four, the Atlantic 10 Conference is 16-14, Western Athletic 14-18, Sun Belt 13-23 and Colonial 11-9. Independents are 14-22.

Losing doesn't worry track coach; he gave it up in '79

Losing will come hard to Jim Taylor, head men's track and field coach at Susquehanna University. That is, if one of his teams ever drops another meet.

Taylor, a full-time science teacher at Selinsgrove (Pennsylvania) High School, took over the Susquehanna program in 1979. That first team lost six of its first seven meets—the sixth coming to Gettysburg College, 91-52. No Susquehanna men's track squad has lost a meet since.

Heading into the Middle Atlantic Conference championships in early May, Taylor's charges had won 64 meets in a row, dating back to the eighth contest on the 1979 schedule. During the span have come five NCAA Division III individual titles and five MAC crowns. Crusader track and field athletes have earned all-America honors 21 times.

Taylor is proud of those accomplishments, yet his most enjoyable victories have come off the track—with the professional people his coaching has helped produce.

"I think that's what it's all about—that's what college is for in the first place," he says. "You look at these individuals now, and you'd like to think that somewhere along their lives, you had some kind of positive influence on them. You like to see them draw on something in their athletics experience that made them better professionals in life."

Ernie Meisel has found that to be true. A 1983 Susquehanna graduate with a bachelor's degree in business, Meisel was team captain as a senior and was an NCAA Division III qualifier in the 200-meter dash and a member of the 400-meter relay team that placed sixth at the 1983 Division III championships. Meisel is now financial accounting manager for Keystone Railway Equipment Co. of Camp Hill, Pennsylvania.

"For one thing, Coach Taylor stresses dedication, both to the sport and education. He always stresses studies and other activities in addition to track," Meisel said.

"He always let people out of track activities for other activities that would lead to betterment of their careers. As a matter of fact, he allowed me to miss the MAC championships during my senior year so I could take my (Certified Public Accountant) exam. He didn't mind, even though I was a member of one of his relays and ran a number of events."

Scott Heller was a pole vaulter and a relay-team member on Taylor's first team in 1979 and became one of the captains on his first MAC championship team in 1982. He earned a bachelor's degree in political science and is currently a lawyer with the firm of Giblan, Combs,

Jim Taylor

Cooney and Conway in Morristown, New Jersey. Not only does Heller remain in contact with his former coach, he helps to locate potential track recruits.

"He's been the greatest," said Heller. "I remember while we were going through track how he often stressed that he wanted to make us first-class people as well as first-class runners. It was very important to him that we conducted ourselves in the proper manner at all times. He didn't want to hear of any 'hot dog' comments from the other coaches."

In Taylor's initial year, Heller said that 'hot dog' comments weren't a problem, since the team lost six of its first seven meets. But by the end of the season, the fortunes of Susquehanna track already were beginning to change.

"We ended up winning our last two meets, and that seemed to get things going. But I don't think anyone thought we'd go undefeated the next season," he says. "Coach Taylor went out and was able to bring in good people, but he also got people around him and on the team excited about track. In fact, he brought a lot of walk-ons into the program the next year who hadn't been out the previous year, and we won a lot of our meets because of depth."

That enthusiasm has allowed Taylor to lure some of track's elite students to a Division III program at this comprehensive undergraduate university of 1,450 students in central Pennsylvania.

One of those recruits is senior Mike Spangler of Abbottstown, Pennsylvania. A multiple state champion at South Western High School, Spangler was recruited by most of the top Division I track programs in the country and narrowed his choices to Maryland, Penn State, Villanova and Susquehanna.

Spangler chose Taylor's Crusaders and twice has become Division III national champion in the 200 and 400 as well as a seven-time all-America. Spangler, who hopes to qualify for the Olympic trials this season, is a 3.600 student (4.000 scale) and is active in numerous campus activities. He said that track works the "Taylor way."

"He really does allow you to be flexible between your various activities. When it comes to being on the team, he lets you know when you should be there, but he also knows there are other things."

Spangler hopes to follow in Taylor's footsteps and become a school teacher and track coach after graduation this year. Until then, he'll continue to lead a Susquehanna squad that has earned the respect of many larger schools.

"Jim is an excellent recruiter and motivator. In any given year, he has the kind of team that can beat us," said Paul Kaiser, head coach at Division II member Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania. His squad has won the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference championship three of the past four years and defeated Division I Bucknell in a meet in 1987.

"He (Taylor) has the type of team that is capable of competing with just about anyone," Kaiser added, "and he's the type of guy you like to coach against."

According to Taylor, coaching has little to do with the success. He just shrugs and says the credit should go to the athletes.

"Certainly, I'm proud of all the accomplishments, but it's been a lot of factors."

Council approves position statement on AIDS

The NCAA Council has approved the final draft of a position statement concerning Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) for inclusion as Policy No. 20 in the Association's Sports Medicine Handbook.

The policy statement earlier was approved and forwarded to the Council by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports. The Council approved the final draft in its April 18-20 meeting in Washington, D.C.

Following is the complete draft of the policy statement, "AIDS and Intercollegiate Athletics":

The Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is caused by the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), which infects cells of the immune system and other tissues such as the brain. The virus is transmitted through sexual contact, exposure to infected blood or blood components and perinatally from mother to neonate.

HIV has been isolated from blood, semen, vaginal secretions, saliva, tears, breast milk, cerebrospinal fluid, amniotic fluid and urine. Available evidence, however, has only implicated blood, semen, vaginal secretions and possibly breast milk in the transmission of HIV.

The risk of infection is increased by having multiple sexual partners, homosexual sexual activities among males and sharing of needles among intravenous drug users. The virus can be transmitted heterosexually as well as homosexually. There is no evidence to date to suggest that HIV can be transmitted through casual contact (such as in members of the same household), by aerosols, by mosquitoes or other insect vectors, or through the air.

Recent data have confirmed that three health-care workers have produced positive antibody tests after exposure to HIV-infected blood. Two of the workers were not following recommendations for minimizing the risk of exposure to blood. The third was wearing gloves, but blood contaminated her face and mouth as a result of a splash accident.

The precise risk of transmission during exposure of open wounds or mucous membranes to contaminated blood is not known, but evidence would suggest that it is extremely low. Therefore, while the theoretical possibility of HIV transmission by blood from one athlete to the open wound or mucous membrane of another athlete exists, the probability of this occurring is extremely low.

Because of its chemical composition, the virus is susceptible to certain agents or procedures, including alcohol, bleach, household detergents, ultraviolet light and air drying.

Health-care workers, including doctors and trainers, who care for intercollegiate athletes should employ the universal precautions currently recommended by the Centers for Disease Control in the care of all athletes, since medical history and examination cannot reliably identify patients infected with HIV.

The universal precautions include:

1. Routine use of barrier precautions to prevent skin and mucous-membrane exposure when contact with blood or other body fluids is anticipated. Gloves should be worn for touching blood, bloody fluids, mucous membranes or nonintact skin (e.g., abrasions, dermatitis) of all athletes, for handling items or surfaces soiled with blood or body fluids, and for performing venipuncture. Gloves should be changed after contact with each athlete. Masks and protective eye wear or face shields should be worn during procedures that are likely to generate droplets of blood or other body fluids to prevent exposure of mucous membranes of the mouth, nose and eyes.

2. Hands and other skin surfaces should be washed immediately and thoroughly if contaminated with blood or other body fluids. Hands should be washed immediately after gloves are removed.

"... routine HIV (Human Immunodeficiency Virus) testing of student-athletes is not recommended at this time."

3. Surfaces contaminated with blood should be cleaned with a solution made from a one-to-10 (1:10) dilution of household bleach.

4. Precautions should be taken to prevent injuries caused by needles, scalpels and other sharp instruments or devices. To prevent needlestick injuries, needles should not be recapped, purposely bent or broken by hand, removed from disposable syringes, or otherwise manipulated by hand.

5. Although saliva has not been implicated in HIV transmission, to minimize the need for emergency mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, mouthpieces, resuscitation bags or other ventilation devices should be available for use.

6. Health-care workers who have exudative lesions or weeping dermatitis should refrain from all direct patient care until the condition resolves.

7. Soiled linen should be bagged and washed in hot water with detergent.

Member institutions should ensure that policies exist for the orientation and education of all health-care workers on the prevention of transmission of HIV and the need for routine use of the above universal precautions. Additionally, provision of equipment and supplies necessary to minimize the risk of infection, as well as monitoring of adherence to recommended protective measures, need to be guaranteed.

At the present time no cure exists for AIDS. Therefore, it is imperative that education and prevention be stressed to student-athletes in specific programs designed to address these issues. These should include a candid discussion of the modes of transmission of HIV, awareness of high-risk behaviors and safe sexual practices, and an understanding of the role that latex condoms and the spermicidal agent nonoxynol-9 play in reducing the risk of transmitting HIV.

Special mention of testing for antibodies to HIV needs to be made. Mandatory testing should not be considered as an alternative to a sound educational program that stresses prevention. Realistically, the prevalence of infection is extremely low and the risk of transmission is thought to be low within the environment of athletic activity. Therefore, routine HIV testing of student-athletes is not recommended at this time.

Finally, it is recommended that individual sports committees examine current practices in an effort to minimize the risk of transmission of AIDS and all other blood-borne infectious diseases.

WCHA unanimously adopts rule to set minimum GPAs for players

The Western Collegiate Hockey Association has unanimously adopted a rule requiring hockey players to meet certain accumulative grade-point averages to be eligible to play, the conference announced April 29.

The WCHA board met in Madison, Wisconsin, on several issues, including grades. To be eligible for hockey, student-athletes must have a 1.600 GPA after completing their first season, a 1.800 GPA after their second season, and a 2.000 GPA after third and subsequent seasons.

The grade requirements will take effect next season, United Press International reported.

WCHA faculty representatives and athletics directors also approved, barring unforeseen circumstances, admitting St. Cloud State University into the WCHA as early as the 1990-91 season.

The conference said, however, that is contingent on the school's construction of a new ice arena and support for funding of athletics scholarship. The WCHA also told its members to maximize scheduling opportunities with St. Cloud State in the meantime.

The WCHA said because of the upcoming St. Cloud State membership and other scheduling conflicts, next season will be the last for interleague play with the Hockey East Association schools. In the past, the schools from the two conferences have met and results counted in league standings.

The WCHA also said it will keep its postseason tournament format the same as it was this season.

The first round will be a best-two-out-of-three series, and four winners will advance to a single-game elimination tournament.

Cable deal near for hockey teams

The Eastern College Athletic Conference is nearing completion of an agreement with a Cincinnati-based company to televise 16 league ice hockey games on cable television next season, according to officials.

It is the ECAC's first league-wide television contract since the 1970s.

"It's not going to involve that many appearances," said Colgate University athletics director Frederick H. Dunlap. "It's really more an exposure aspect. It's good for college hockey."

David Campolongo, coordinating producer for Alley Cat Productions Inc., said his company's package will be carried in the market of each of the ECAC's 12 hockey-playing schools.

March 5-6 at the St. Paul, Minnesota, Civic Center.

The WCHA also went on record in support of the following recommendations for changes in the NCAA Division I Ice Hockey Championship: going to a 16-team format instead of a 12-team tourney, having four regional neutral sites for tournament games, adopting a single-game elimination format and conducting the tournament in a two-week time span.

"The league's going to get super exposure," said Campolongo, adding that most of the games would be televised Saturday nights and reach up to 40 outlets.

He said 12 of the 16 regular-season games would be determined in advance, while the remaining four TV contests would be dictated by how the league races shape up, the Associated Press reported.

The company also will negotiate for the rights to televise the ECAC championship tournament in the Boston Garden.

NCAA will move in 1989 to Overland Park, Kansas

The NCAA national office will be relocated during 1989 to a building that will be built in Overland Park, Kansas.

The NCAA Executive Committee approved a recommendation to move the national office to an 11.35-acre site on the southeast corner of College Boulevard and Lamar Avenue in Overland Park. The site, which is approximately six miles south of the current office location, was recommended by the Special Committee to Review Future Office Requirements.

Ground is expected to be broken for the new building this September and the occupancy date is projected to be September 1, 1989.

Financial details of the transaction—including whether the building will be leased, bought or leased with an option to buy—are still pending. The Executive Committee authorized the NCAA Administrative Committee to approve the financial details following further analysis of options by the special committee. Disposition of buildings and property currently owned by the NCAA in Mission, Kansas, also will receive further study.

The new site is owned by the Kansas City development firm of Copaken, White and Blitt. The NCAA has the option of buying the property and developing it or contracting with the development firm for a built-to-suit facility.

"We received nine excellent proposals from seven developers in the Kansas City area," said NCAA President Wilford S. Bailey. "We feel the property we chose best fits our needs, based on current and projected space requirements."

"This property also affords us an opportunity to be involved actively in the interior design of the building."

The new building initially will offer approximately 130,000 usable square feet of office space, which is expected to accommodate the Association's space needs for more than 10 years. The building and property also will accommodate any necessary expansion in the future.

Included in the facility will be space for the development of a visitors center.

Hope College reaps benefits of 48-year friendship

When Hope College freshmen Gordon Brewer and Russ DeVette bumped into each other for the first time on the Holland, Michigan, campus (in 1941), neither could have known that the chance meeting would become a regular occurrence over parts of the next five decades.

Both were student-athletes. Both went to war for their country in the 1940s—DeVette as a U.S. Marine, Brewer in the U.S. Air Force. Both have served as coaches and athletics administrators at their alma mater—for a combined total of 69 years. And now, both retire this month.

Probably no two individuals have left such indelible marks upon an NCAA member institution—at least, not at the same time. And never have two careers meshed quite as well to produce a singular story of achievement and service.

Minister turned coach

DeVette intended to become a minister when he arrived at Hope from Muskegon, Michigan. His athletics participation and that stint with the Marines apparently changed his mind.

DeVette was the first player to be named basketball MVP by the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association. He earned an undergraduate degree, and he began teaching at Hope in 1948 after he finished graduate school at the University of Michigan. After spending another two-year hitch in the service (still a Marine, though) and one year on the staff of the University of Maine, Orono, DeVette returned to Hope for good in 1955.

In all, he spent 25 seasons as head men's basketball coach and compiled a career mark of 322-233. He was named National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) coach of the year in 1956 and was among the most successful coaches ever at the Division III level when he turned the coaching reins over to current coach Glenn Van Wieren in 1977.

From 1954 through 1969, DeVette also was head football coach at Hope, and his teams won two MIAA titles and posted an overall record of 62-64-1. After stepping down as head coach, he remained on the grid staff as defensive coordinator through last fall, when he was on the sidelines for his 323rd—and final—game.

During one five-year span, DeVette also was head baseball coach. Imagine... every school-year afternoon occupied by head-coaching duties. From the gridiron to the hardwood to the diamond, DeVette led Hope's fortunes. For the past seven years, he has coached women's track.

Off the field, DeVette has been just as active. During his first tour as a Hope staff member, he developed the college minor in physical education (1948). He served as department chair and athletics director on a couple of occasions and was elected an original member of the NCAA Division III Men's Basketball Committee. Having served that group from 1975 through 1981, DeVette was committee chair during his last two years of service.

Apparently, he also found a little free time. Enough, in fact, to help his wife, Doris, raise a family of six; to coauthor a 1986 book (Coaching Basketball: The Complete Book from Beginning to Championship Play) with William Venderbilt, a Hope colleague; to complete three terms (12 years) on the Holland city council, and to coach the town's West Ottawa Hustlers, a basketball team composed of adults with learning disabilities.

DeVette also spent time with Brewer—his "professional twin," for lack of a better term.

A three-sport athlete

Brewer played football and baseball and ran track at Hope. He also served in the military during World War II, and he earned a graduate degree from Michigan.

He returned to his alma mater shortly after DeVette, in 1956, and has served as head men's track coach since. His Flying Dutchmen soared to six MIAA titles and finished in the top half of the league all but three seasons. Brewer's Hope teams produced a 107-63 dual-meet record.

From 1960 through 1980, Brewer was Hope's athletics director—the first, according to the school's office of public relations, to form a regular plan for athletics governance at the school. Certainly, he saw many things take shape.

Among them were the continued development and growth of the MIAA, as well as his own program. At one point, Brewer was the administrator for 18 intercollegiate programs. He became heavily involved in the development of women's athletics opportunities on campus, and he was instrumental in the planning and construction of Hope's Down Health and Physical Education Center.

On the academic side, Brewer helped develop the school's curriculum in physical education and recreation.

And like DeVette, he answered the call of service to the NCAA. Brewer has been a member of the Division III Steering Committee and the Association's Postgraduate Scholarship Committee, among others.

Also an aspiring author, Brewer is well into writing "... But How You Played the Game," a history of Hope athletics. He already has completed work leading to the 1930 season.

Brewer and his wife, Lorraine, raised a family of four.

Amazing, isn't it? How a chance meeting almost 50 years ago served as the starting point in a two-man journey that really never strayed far from the Hope campus, while at the same time reaching out to influence Division III athletics at least a little.

Makes you wonder who bumped into whom last fall, when freshmen showed up at NCAA member institutions for the start of another chapter in their lives. While one could argue that the book on Brewer and DeVette has been written, another volume may have been started by a happenstance meeting eight or nine months ago.

Who knows? Just start watching the papers... say, in 2035.

SIU-Carbondale celebrates 75 years of sports competition

May 1 marked the beginning of a 20-month celebration of the 75th anniversary of intercollegiate athletics at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale. Occasions to be recognized include the 75th anniversary of intercollegiate football and basketball programs at SIU, the 50th anniversary of the dedication of the school's McAndrew Stadium, the 25th anniversary of SIU's arena, and the 10th anniversary of the creation of the school's sports hall of fame.

"It's almost unbelievable the number of major anniversaries in SIU's sports history that we will be observing during this 20-month period of time," said Charlotte West, acting director of athletics and a member of the NCAA Council. "We want to give special honor to these happenings and to the people who were responsible for them as well as to recognize everyone who ever played a role in SIU's past successes."

Ferris State University's cheerleading squad recently completed a five-day trip to Japan, where the group participated in a celebration honoring 50 Japanese women who have enrolled in Ferris State's professional golf management program. They are part of the Elleair International College, which was set up by Japan's Daio Paper Company to educate and train students in golf management.

The University of Iowa's board in control of athletics has approved a $1 increase in single-game basketball-ticket prices—women's basketball tickets, that is. Single-game tickets to Iowa's women's games will be $4 next season.

The women averaged about 6,000 fans per game last season (up about 1,500 from the year before), when they finished 29-2. Christine H. B. Grant, Iowa women's athletics director, told United Press International that the women's hoop program generated about $150,000 during 1987-88.

The Chronicle of Higher Education reported in its April 27 issue that former Grambling State University student-athlete Doug Williams and his wife, Lisa, have formed The Doug Williams Foundation. It will offer college scholarships and programs that will encourage education and discourage drug use among youths in the Washington, D.C., area.

Retiring University of Michigan Director of Athletics Donald B. Canham has been honored by the Central Collegiate Hockey Association, whose postseason champions will receive the Don Canham Trophy beginning in 1989.

"Don helped lead the charge... bring clout and prestige to the league," said Leland E. Byrd, athletics director at Western Michigan University and CCHA chair. "By naming the trophy in Don's honor, it is an opportunity to show our appreciation for his many efforts and contributions."

More Report Cards: University of Texas, Austin, women student-athletes produced a combined 2.860 (4.000 scale) grade-point average during the fall semester—the best in school history. More than half of the student-athletes included produced GPAs above 3.500. Five Longhorn ladies tennis player Diana Dopson, volleyball players Katie Salen and Cindy Williamson, diver Kelly Jenkins, and swimmer Allison Dawson have career GPAs of 4.000.

At Loyola College (Maryland), 103 of 298 student-athletes were named to the athletics academic honor roll for the fall semester by earned GPAs of 3.200 (4.000 scale) or above. The cumulative GPA of all student-athletes at the school for the semester was 2.900. Distance runner Wisma Manan, swimmer John Bridgman, basketball player Constance McDonough and swimmer Margaret Plott each earned 4.000s.

Lone Star Conference women's basketball players named to the league's academic all-conference team produced a combined GPA of 3.749 (4.000 scale). Included were three student-athletes with perfect 4.000s—Suzanne Johnson, Abilene Christian University; Lisa Klein, Angelo State University, and Sarah Labash, Eastern New Mexico University.

In the North Central Conference, five women earned third-time selection to a basketball academic all-conference squad that produced a combined GPA of 3.650 (4.000 scale). They are Sarah Howard, St. Cloud State University (3.770); Dana Patsie, North Dakota State University (3.490); Tara Tessier, South Dakota State University (3.910); Gina Vora-chek, University of North Dakota (3.860), and Lisa Walters, Makato State University (3.960). Named for a second time were Laura Anderson, University of Nebraska, Omaha (3.410); Julie Eisencheenk, St. Cloud State (3.780), and Kristi Kremer, North Dakota State (3.910).

Willard K. Tuomi, associate professor of physical education and assistant football and head swimming coach at Carleton College, is believed to be the first American citizen of Finnish descent to return to his "homeland" to coach football.

Tuomi will spend the summer in Finland as coach of the Joensuu Wolves, a team in its third season that is located 300 miles from Helsinki—and only 100 miles from the Russian border. "I think we'll play a 10-game schedule," he told the Carleton news bureau. "From what I understand, there will probably be a lot of travel involved."

"I was talking on the telephone to a quarterback for one of the championship-division teams from Helsinki, and he told me that their longest bus ride was 10 hours—to play a team just above the Arctic Circle."

Trivia Answer: Robert Galbraith, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, won the first NCAA diving title in 1924. It was a one-meter event. Three-meter diving was not contested until 1931.
