Stopper

California State University, Bakersfield, pitcher Margaret Harvey took the mound as a reliever in the championship game of the Division II Women's Softball Championship and silenced the bats of Lock Haven University of Pennsylvania, allowing her Roadrunner teammates to rally to a 4-3 victory. The victory was the 30th of the season for Harvey. Cal State Bakersfield won the title in its first appearance in the championship. See story on page 7.

NCAA adds flexibility to rules, consistency to interpretations

By Thomas A. Wilson
Editor-in-Chief
The NCAA News

Some people think the NCAA carves its rules in stone; others, however, might argue that there aren't enough stones.

In response to such criticism, some of it obviously exaggerated but some of it deserved, the NCAA has made some changes.

Improvements have been made in the legislative process to change unwieldy rules, provide more consistency in rules interpretations and, at the same time, insure a more common-sense approach in applying the rules.

"We feel we have done a lot to meet the needs of the membership in terms of rules interpretations and changes," said John R. Gerdy, a legislative services staff member.

"The point is," Gerdy said, "that if the membership decides a certain rule is a bad one, it can more readily be changed. There is a system in place for that."

An enlarged staff has provided much better response time to members' legislative needs.

"Basically, our problems in the past arose from a lack of specialization, in that the enforcement, compliance and legislative services staffs until recently were all under one roof, and everyone was expected to have expertise in all areas," Gerdy said.

With a staff of 17, that was a tall order.

Now, there are 11 full-time legislative services staff members who meet regularly to insure consistency in rules interpretations and to give the membership better and quicker response. There is a 24-hour response-time policy in effect for telephone requests, which number about 160 a day.

"Inconsistent rules interpretations are now an exception," Gerdy said.

A larger staff also has resulted in a better understanding of the legislative process, Gerdy said. "If people have concerns, they can be accommodated," he said.

"The knee-jerk reaction to rules interpretations is gone," Gerdy said.

"Extenuating circumstances are taken into consideration. Previously, if a request was not specifically outlined in the legislation, no permission was given. There is a common-sense approach to those situations now," Gerdy said.

"Inconsistent rules interpretations are now an exception."

It is less likely there will be a future "Steve Alford situation"—in which the Indiana University, Bloomington, basketball player was suspended for a brief period for posing for a calendar in a charity drive—or a situation in which a university is not allowed to fly team members out of state to the funeral of a teammate. Changes in the incidental-expense waiver legislation [Constitution 3-1-(h)-(4)-(vii)] would preclude that situation from occurring again, Gerdy said.

And changes in the "charity rule" [Constitution 3-1-(e)-(4)] would prevent another situation in which a player, like Alford, is suspended from play for charity work.

Now, there is a more deliberate pace and a better overview of the entire legislative process, which adds flexibility to interpretations and makes that legislative process more productive for the membership, Gerdy said.

As part of the effort to make the legislative process more effective, staff liaison to NCAA committees has been greatly increased.

If problems arise with a particular rule, that rule can be placed on the agenda of the appropriate NCAA committee for discussion. That discussion could lead to new legislation being written and presented to the Council for approval. If approval is forthcoming, the legislation is placed on a Convention agenda for a vote by the membership. That process is designed to facilitate change.

While it has expanded its capabilities of handling members' requests, the legislative services staff also has taken the initiative—a proactive approach through a conference contact program to find out what the membership is doing on the campuses.

"We want to know," Gerdy said, "whether a rule is good and how people are interpreting it. For the first time, we are aggressively pursuing input directly from the membership on a regular basis."

With these improvements, steps have been taken to insure uniformity where staff consensus might be lacking.

Reasons for cutting sports differ by division, study shows

When a Division I institution discontinues a varsity sport, it is most likely because of cost. But that is not necessarily the case in Division II and is seldom true in Division III.

A membership study conducted for the NCAA Committee on Review and Planning shows that the reasons institutions give for dropping sports differ considerably from division to division. The results of the study were reviewed in the committee's spring meeting.

A total of 459 member institutions responded to a survey regarding the numbers of sports they have dropped or added in the past three years and their reasons for doing so. Of those responding, 217 institutions had dropped at least one sport during that time period—but 207 had added at least one.

That balance also was reflected in the committee's annual study of sports sponsorship, which showed that the total number of sports sponsored by NCAA member institutions remains about the same—but the men's total is declining slightly while the women's total increases slightly. That study was featured in the May 4 issue of The NCAA News.

Costs were cited as the main reason for dropping a sport in Division I, mentioned nearly three times more often than any other factor. Costs also were mentioned most often in Division II, but barely more often than "lack of student interest." In Division III, cost was not a factor—student interest was the major reason given for discontinuing a sport.

A summary of the survey results, by division and overall:

Division I

Institutions responding: 197. A total of 86 had dropped at least one sport, but 83 had added at least one. Major reasons for dropping a sport (number of institutions citing the reason in parentheses): cost (27), student interest (10), facilities problems (six).

Division II

Institutions responding: 79. A total of 36 had dropped at least one sport, while 29 had added at least one. Reasons for dropping: cost (11), student interest (eight), facilities (four), availability of competition (four), level of high school play in the sport (four), quality or prestige of the sport (three), length of season (two).

Division III

Institutions responding: 183. A total of 95 had dropped at least one sport and exactly the same number had added at least one. Reasons for dropping: student interest (15), availability of competition (six), level of high school play (five).

Totals

Institutions responding: 459. A total of 217 dropped at least one, while 207 added at least one. Major reasons for dropping: cost (38), student interest (33), facilities (10), availability of competition (10), level of high school play (nine).

Final Four Foundation to stay intact

The work of the Final Four Foundation, originally intended to coordinate the celebrations surrounding the 50th anniversary of the basketball tournament, will be extended indefinitely by the NCAA.

"The foundation was originally conceived as a one-year project," said NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz. "But the tremendous interest generated by the dinner, the exhibit and the other commemorative activities surrounding the 50th anniversary have convinced us to sustain the foundation's activities."

Schultz announced that Bob Sprenger will continue as the foundation's executive vice-president.

Sprenger, who has served in that capacity since the foundation's inception in June 1987, is the former managing director of public and community relations for the National Football League's Kansas City Chiefs.

He previously was information director for the Pacific-10 (then Pacific-8) Conference and was a sportswriter at the San Francisco Examiner for eight years.

Schultz said several future Final Four sties already had expressed an interest in displaying the anniversary exhibit that was featured in Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium last month. "We want to share the history of this great event with college basketball fans around the country," he said.

The officers of the foundation are Thomas J. Frericks, vice-president, University of Dayton, president; Edward E. Bozik, director of athletics, University of Pittsburgh, vice-president; Fred A. Schaus, director of athletics, West Virginia University; Frank Windeger, director of athletics, Texas Christian University; Joe McGuff, editor of The Kansas City Star and Times, and Bill Harsh, honorary chair of the Kansas City Final Four Organizing Committee. NCAA Controller Louis J. Spiry is the foundation's treasurer.

ing concerning legislation and interpretations.

Legislation approved by the 1987 Convention provided for an NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee as a check in the system. The committee is chaired by former legislative services staff member Thomas E. Yeager, commissioner of the Colonial Athletic Association.

The committee serves as a clearinghouse for all legislation and interpretations and advises the legislative services staff and the NCAA Council.

Other changes in the process of legislation and rules interpretations are on the agenda. Further discussions of the legislative process are scheduled during the Presidents Commission National Forum in Orlando in June.

"We've come a long way, but we still have a long way to go," Gerdy said. "We're continuing to work to make the system more efficient and understandable."

Forms for NCAA study streamlined

Forms and instructions for the Association's Academic Performance Study are being streamlined for easier use by the membership.

NCAA consultants from member institutions met May 11 in Kansas City to review the forms and processes for the study, which is examining the academic performance of student-athletes from five freshman classes over an eight-year period.

The panel modified the forms and clarified the accompanying instructions to promote consistency in the way registrars submit data for the study.

The group also laid groundwork for using computers in the submission of requested data.

Present were Richard Lewis, registrar, University of Arkansas, Fayetteville; Patrina Long, assistant director of athletics, Columbia University-Barnard College; Lynda Nygren, assistant registrar, University of North Texas; and Barbara Riggs, assistant director of records and registration, University of Maryland, College Park.

Robert E. Stake, University of Illinois, Champaign, represented the NCAA Research Committee at the meeting.

Research forms for 1988-89 will be mailed to member institutions in early July and are to be returned to the national office by mid-December.

More YES clinics planned

Five Youth Education Through Sports (YES) clinics will wrap up a year of sports instruction and citizenship counseling for young people at NCAA championships sites.

Free clinics in golf, softball, lacrosse, track and field, and baseball will provide participants the opportunity to receive expert instruction from top collegiate coaches and information on academic responsibilities and the prevention of substance abuse in presentations specifically geared to the ages of the participants.

Those attending also will receive T-shirts and printed materials regarding enrichment topics and skill development in their sport. Boys and girls are welcome at each clinic.

Mike Holder, who has coached Oklahoma State University to five Division I team titles in men's golf, will headline the golf clinic May 22 at Moorpark College in Moorpark, California. Former U.S. amateur champion Buddy Alexander of the University of Florida will be joined at the clinic by 12 other top coaches. More information can be obtained from Buck Andreason at 805/529-2321.

The softball clinic, May 28 at Twin Creeks Sports Complex in Sunnyvale, California, will feature coaches Susan Craig of the University of New Mexico; Jo Anne Graf of Florida State University; Mary Littlewood of Arizona State University; and Gary Torgeson of California State University, Northridge. For more information, contact Patti Synder at 415/642-9412.

Two clinics will be held May 29 at championships sites.

Dave Urick, who has directed Hobart College to eight straight Division III men's lacrosse titles, will be the featured speaker at the lacrosse clinic that day at Syracuse University. William Scroggs of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and Don Zimmerman of Johns Hopkins University will be among the coaches joining him at Boyne Stadium. More information can be obtained from Barbara Adams at 315/423-3042.

A track and field clinic that day at the University of Oregon will feature that school's head coach,

NACDA to induct 12 into hall of fame

Donald B. Canham, the dean of Big Ten Conference athletics directors, will be one of 11 athletics administrators inducted into the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) Hall of Fame, it was announced by NACDA President Carl R. Miller.

In his 20 years (1968 to 1988) as athletics director at the University of Michigan, Canham is credited many "firsts" and innovative techniques. He is retiring in June.

He brought Michigan's revenues from a modest $3 million in 1968 to the current $14 million this year. Soon after he was named Michigan AD, he launched the first major direct-mail and advertising campaign to sell football and other sports tickets.

Since 1968, Michigan has consistently led the nation in football ticket sales and revenue. He also established a series of University of Michigan fund-raising clubs and organized parking and concessions for additional revenues.

Canham may be most recognized for developing a new area of income for college athletics departments—trademark/logo licensing and the marketing of specialty items (souvenirs imprinted with the university name/mascot).

"We are honored to recognize those administrators who have dedicated so much of their lives for the improvement of college athletics," said Miller, who is director of athletics at the University of the Pacific.

The inductees will be honored during NACDA's 23rd annual convention on Marco Island, Florida. Ceremonies will be held Monday, June 6, during the annual hall of fame luncheon.

Along with Canham, the 10 additional athletics administrators to be enshrined are: Ed Athey, Washington College (Maryland), athletics director for 39 years; Richard Baldwin, Broome (New York) Community College, athletics director for 39 years; Jim Ciszek, University of Lowell, athletics director for 32 years; Patrick Damore, Fredonia State University College, athletics director for 19 years while president of the International Soccer Association of America; George Hobson, Alabama A&M University, 18 years as athletics director; Tish Loveless, Kalamazoo College, whose teams won 24 Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association titles; Thurman McGraw, Colorado State University, athletics director for 10 years and a student-athlete and coach over a 30-year period at the school; Vernon M. Smith, University of Toledo, athletics director for 16 years and former NCAA Council and NACDA Executive Committee member.

Also, Bobby Vaughan, Elizabeth City State University, athletics director and coach for 34 years, and William Vickroy, University of Wisconsin, LaCrosse, athletics director for 39 years.

School cuts four sports but enhances support programs

San Jose State University has announced that it is suspending its track and field program and three other sports to reduce its budget.

Athletics director Randy Hoffman said the school would cease competing in men's cross country, men's wrestling and women's field hockey, along with track and field for the coming season.

The elimination of these four programs reduces San Jose State's intercollegiate sports programs from 18 to 14—seven men's and seven women's sports. Three head coaches, three assistant coaches and 80 student-athletes are directly affected.

School officials said they plan to offer student-athletes in the eliminated programs a choice of receiving an educational grant from the school at the student-athlete's current scholarship level, an opportunity to participate in another intercollegiate sport or assistance in transferring.

The athletics department plans to develop its student-athlete support program, strength and conditioning programs, and compliance procedures with the NCAA and Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

"The elimination of these sports programs will provide the division of intercollegiate athletics some resources; but more importantly, it will provide the positions to adequately staff the support programs for our female and male student-athletes," Hoffman said.

Bowl date changed

The Independence Bowl will be played December 23 this year, a new, later date designed to give its selection committee more time to make an attractive match and to avoid conflicts with examination schedules at the selected schools.

"It also puts us in the position of improving our television ratings because of our leadoff spot with reference to other postseason games," Mike Collier, chair, said.

Bob Aillet, president of the sponsoring Sports Foundation, said the bowl signed a new television contract with Mizlou, extending the tie-up through 1990.

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q What are the changes in the format for this year's College World Series?

A After the eight regional champions are determined, the Division I Baseball Committee will seed the eight finalists. The eight teams then will be placed in two four-team brackets in Omaha. Seed No. 1 will play No. 8 and No. 4 will play No. 5 in one bracket. No. 2 plays No. 7 and No. 3 meets No. 6 in the other first-round matchups. Each of those four-team brackets will play double elimination until a bracket winner is determined. Then, the two bracket winners will meet in a nationally televised one-game national championship at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, June 11. There could be 13, 14 or 15 games played in Omaha over eight or nine days.

Legislative Assistance

1988 Column No. 20

NCAA Constitution 3-8(a)—professional sports organization

The NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee considered a previous NCAA Council-approved interpretation (October 1987) indicating that an institution is permitted to conduct an intrasquad game following a contest between two professional teams, provided the events are promoted independently of each other (e.g., no arrangements are made for reciprocal tickets) and the arena is cleared between contests. The committee noted a situation in which a conference all-star baseball team had the opportunity to participate against a European community amateur team in a contest scheduled to be conducted following a professional baseball contest. The committee concluded that the provisions of Constitution 3-8(a), which indicate that a member institution shall not schedule intercollegiate athletics contests in conjunction with professional sports contests or exhibitions, would preclude such a contest from being conducted unless it is administered in a manner consistent with the Council-approved interpretation cited above.

NCAA Bylaw 1-3—evaluation periods

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee considered a previous Council-approved interpretation (August 1987), which indicated that the provisions of Bylaw 1-3 (evaluation periods) were not intended to preclude a member institution's coaching staff members from attending an international athletics competition, such as the Olympic, Pan American or World University Games. The committee agreed that basketball coaching staff members at member institutions would be permitted to attend the Olympic trials (at which two prospective student-athletes would be in attendance) that occur outside the permissible contact and evaluation periods. Further, the committee agreed that coaching staff members at member institutions who serve on the Olympic basketball coaching staff would be permitted to scout AAU/Soviet exhibition games (which may include prospective student-athletes) scheduled outside the permissible contact and evaluation periods, provided the coaching staff members refrain from contacting any prospective student-athletes for recruiting purposes during that time.

NCAA Bylaw 5-7(a)—membership (sports sponsorship)

The Division I subcommittee of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee considered Bylaw 5-7(a), which indicates that to determine a conference championship for purposes of automatic qualification, at least six of the conference's member institutions shall be classified in Division I in the sport in which Division I automatic qualification is sought; further, for those conferences seeking automatic qualification in the sport of basketball under this legislation, in each of the six sports in which a conference champion is determined, at least six of the conference's member institutions shall sponsor the sport on the varsity intercollegiate level. The subcommittee concluded that it is permissible for a sport to be counted (as one of the six required) if one or more of the six members sponsoring the sport hold restricted membership; however, if automatic qualification is offered in a sport in which a restricted member is declared the conference champion, its automatic qualification (if relevant) shall be withdrawn for that year per Executive Regulation 1-6(b)-(8). Finally, the subcommittee agreed that the six members involved must only sponsor the sport on the varsity intercollegiate level, as opposed to sponsoring each of the six sports in accordance with the minimum requirements of Bylaw 11-4 (i.e., it is not necessary to meet the minimum scheduling criteria for this purpose).

Goaltenders' protection would stay same

Half-shield face mask sought for ice hockey players

The NCAA Men's Ice Hockey Committee voted to recommend to the Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports Committee that all players except goalkeepers be allowed to wear a half-shield face mask.

Under current NCAA rules, players are required to wear face masks that have met the standards established by the HECC-ASTM F513-81 Eye and Face Protective Equipment for Hockey Players Standard. Most players now wear either a full-shield plexiglass face mask or a full-shield cage face mask.

The committee, meeting May 9-12 in Kansas City, also voted to recommend that game officials be required to wear black hockey helmets.

In making several rules changes, the committee revised Rule 4-2-d regarding the coincidental minor penalty to read: "If while a team is short-handed by one penalty, coincidental minor penalties of equal duration are imposed against a player or players of each team, then immediate substitution shall be made for such players. This rule shall apply also if, in addition to the penalties already imposed under this rule, coincidental major, misconduct or game misconduct penalties are assessed."

The committee also revised Rule 4-4-b and Rule 6-16 so that a game misconduct penalty can be applied to a player, coach, manager, trainer or other team personnel.

Other rules changes, deletions and administrative items approved for 1987-88:

- Rule 6-12-a regarding face-offs was revised so that the attacking team's player in the attacking half of the rink shall place his stick within the white area first.

- Rule 6-1-b, pertaining to the abuse of officials, was revised so that after a penalty is called, a misconduct penalty shall be assessed to any player who challenges or disputes the rulings of any referee or fails to go directly and immediately to the penalty bench. If the player persists in such a challenge or dispute, he shall be assessed a game misconduct penalty.

- Rule 2-3-a was revised to stipulate that a team that starts a game with less than two goalkeepers shall be assessed a bench minor penalty.

- The note after Rule 3-1-e and 5-8-d was revised to give the game referee responsibility for providing a metal tape measure (six-foot minimum) for stick-measurement purposes.

- Rule 5-2-a-5 was revised to specify that when a referee becomes aware of any lack of conformity to equipment regulations, it shall be his duty to see that the required equipment is in use and/or the proper penalty is assessed.

- Rule 6-9-a regarding delay of the game was revised to include a goalkeeper "batting" the puck outside the playing area. A minor penalty shall be imposed.

- In the note after 6-9-b, the following sentence was deleted: "A stalled puck between two players at the boards should call for a fast whistle."

- Rule 6-11-c was revised to assess a major penalty for a deliberate attempt to head butt an opponent with the face mask or helmet.

- The second paragraph of Rule 6-17-a was revised to read: "If the puck, after being batted in the air by hand or high stick or propelled by the hand along the ice, is first controlled by an opponent, all players are eligible and play is not stopped. If the puck, after being batted in the air by hand or high stick or propelled by the hand along the ice, is first controlled by a teammate except a sideward or backward bat from the goalkeeper, play must be immediately stopped."

- The note after Rule 6-18-a was deleted.

- Note 1 following Rule 6-23-b, which pertains to bands playing while the game is in progress, was revised so that a bench minor penalty shall be assessed after a warning to the offending band's team.

- Rule 3-3-d was revised so that when a formal complaint is made by the captain of a team concerning the legality of an opponent goaltender's equipment, the referee shall check the equipment immediately. If the equipment is found to be illegal, the penalty will begin immediately. If the equipment is legal, the challenging team will receive a bench minor penalty for delay of game.

- Rule 6-26-e was revised to read: "If a player leaves the penalty bench before his penalty is fully served, the penalty timekeeper shall note the time and signal the official, who will stop play when the team of the penalized player gains possession and control of the puck."

- The note following Rule 6-29-b was revised to specify that an intentional offside is one that is made for the purpose of securing a stoppage of play regardless of the reason.

- Rule 6-42 was revised to stipulate that the 12-minute intermission between periods shall begin when the referee leaves the ice. Also, officials' duties and powers continue during intermissions and until all players have left the ice and entered the dressing room.

- The ruling in Interpretation 6-29-a is an icing play and not an offside situation.

- The note after Rule 2-5-a was added to include the following: "Where play has stopped with the puck in the offending team's defending half of the ice, the face-off shall take place at the point of the stoppage of play."

- The ruling in Interpretation 2-5-a (Situation 1) was revised to read: "Official gives a 'slow whistle' and does not blow the whistle until Team A gains control of the puck and the face-off will take place where the puck was last played."

- Rule 1-9-b was added to permit only players in uniform and five additional team personnel to occupy the bench area. For a violation after a warning by the referee, a bench minor penalty shall be assessed.

- Rule 4-2-d was revised so that when two minor penalties are called on one player at the same time and the opposing team scores a goal on a penalty shot before expiration of the first minor, the remaining time on the first minor is eliminated and the time on the second minor immediately begins.

- Rule 6-12-d, pertaining to face-offs, was revised so that substitutions can be made after a timeout is called.

Coaches defend spring football, but players unmoved

By Mike DeCourcy
Scripps Howard News Service

The field is a deep green, a color that offers its own definition of spring. The air is warm and light. The sense of peace is periodically interrupted by the shouts of young athletes, but more often by coaches' stern instructions.

Spring is the other season for college football. It has been that way for longer than some players care to remember and will stay that way as long as coaches have their say. As much as it seems a contradiction in terms, spring football is an institution.

"As a player, I didn't like spring practice. As a coach, I love it," said Bill Curry, head coach of the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa. "I'm such a strong believer in it. I shudder to think we would not have it. I think it would deprive a lot of guys of an opportunity to improve or to show that they've improved."

"That's the primary reason for spring practice. I don't have to look at Bobby Humphrey to see if he can play. I've got to look at the guy behind him to see if he can play."

Outside the coaching profession, spring practice is not universally popular, and it may not be safe from elimination in the name of academic reform.

Further cuts, from 20 days to none, have been discussed at NCAA Conventions as a possible means of reducing costs and aiding the students' pursuit of education. Or appearing to, which may be nearly as important.

"I have at times asked the question, 'Is spring practice really necessary?'" said University of Pittsburgh athletics director Edward E. Bozik. "Do we really need to take the kids, not out of class, but out of the academic environment, and put them back into practice? I guess my concern is in just allowing them to be full-time students."

NBC sportscaster Jimmy Cefalo played football at Pennsylvania State University. That was 10 years ago. In all that time, he has yet to discover a satisfactory reason why he was required to practice in the spring.

He said spring practice is designed as an activity to keep coaches busy and is done mainly because the team at the next school is practicing and no one wants to fall behind.

"We joked about it. We thought it was the biggest waste of time as players. If the NCAA is concerned about reform, the education of athletes, do away with spring practice. Let them go to class and be students."

in position changes, which can result in a player finding a spot.

"If you didn't have spring football, I don't know whether you could do a good job coaching," says Penn State coach Joe Paterno. "I think you would eliminate the teaching part. You have a chance to evaluate kids, what they do well, how you can make them better. It gives you a chance to look at a kid and see what his best position would be, and I think that's to the good of the kids."

Perhaps the most misunderstood aspect of football is the importance of proper hitting technique. From the stands, it appears the strongest, biggest and fastest win most of the game's small battles. It helps to be powerful, but coaches say that power can be harnessed and increased through more efficient means of blocking and tackling.

"We're teaching the proper techniques of football in the spring," Pitt assistant Sal Sunseri said. "You're doing that now because you

NBA's adding third referee could deplete college ranks

By Keith Drum

College basketball will pay part of the price when the NBA adds a third official in games next season.

The NBA already has contacted several top college referees about joining the league. The NBA will add at least 16 officials to its staff, the majority of which will come from the college game.

"We've got 34, counting Darel Garretson (NBA supervisor of officials), and we want to have 50," said Rod Thorn, the NBA's vice-president for operations.

"We'll get a few through our training program with the CBA, maybe four or five, but the rest will be college officials."

"There are some we've watched this year, some we've known about and talked to before, and some we're getting to know now."

Thorn said the NBA hoped to have at least 10 new officials hired in June. A few of those may have to prove themselves in various summer leagues, but Thorn said top college veterans won't have to go through any type of tryout.

Among those the NBA has contacted are five officials who often work in the Atlantic Coast Conference and Big East Conference. They are Joe Forte, Louis Grillo, Hank Armstrong, Nolan Fine and Dick Paparo. Forte has worked in the past two NCAA Final Fours and is considered among the best college officials.

"It would be a blow to our league to lose any of them," said Frederick E. Barakat, the ACC's supervisor of officials. "But we have lost proven officials before, and we haven't missed a beat."

Henry O. Nichols

Henry O. Nichols, the NCAA's coordinator of officiating, said the loss of several top officials would be felt more in the NCAA tournament than in the regular season.

"I'd be concerned to a point," Nichols said. "I'd hate to lose them. But it's like anything else, there is always a guy waiting who hasn't had the opportunity."

Nichols said the NBA hasn't approached college officials since the league endured an official's strike a few years ago. That invitation was rejected by college officials, who chose not to cross the pro union.

NBA officials are full-time employees who earn anywhere from the high-$30,000s to $100,000, depending upon experience and tenure. The NBA also has a solid benefits and retirement package.

College officials are paid from game to game and earn from $250 to $650, depending upon their experience, conference affiliation and per diem.

A top official, such as Forte, will work between 60 to 80 games and clear an average of at least $300 per game after expenses.

Most college officials have full-time jobs, some of which are more lucrative than what the NBA can offer.

"One of the pluses of college officiating is a guy isn't dependent upon it for a livelihood," said Nichols. "I always thought that made it easier. You're not having to worry how someone will evaluate you."

Drum writes for United Press International.

So-called minor sports are taking their lumps in big way

Chuck McNeil, head men's track coach
Oregon State University
Eugene Register-Guard

"It's a ridiculous move (dropping track because of a budget deficit). I feel the money is there for all the programs."

"They're putting $7 million into the renovation of the football stadium and dropping programs at the same time. To me, that's kind of ridiculous."

"The kids were shocked; and then, they got mad as hell. The first thing we have to do is get information out to the public about our track program."

"We have one of the largest alumni groups other than football, and most (of them) are outraged. We have enough (alumni) in influential places that we'll see what happens."

"Wrestling and baseball went through the same thing, and they got reinstated. I'm too much of a competitor to give up."

Robert Cowan, men's program administrator
United States Gymnastics Federation
Chicago Tribune

"It irritates me that the NCAA isn't as concerned about the Olympic sports as it should be."

"We're trying to serve three groups of people — advertisers, affiliates and viewers. That's who we look to please, not the coach and the recruit. We look for good demographics. That doesn't mean a creative conference can't carve out a niche for itself — it's been done."

can carve out a spot with us, too. We're a national network; we should attempt to give an overview of the college situation."

"I'm not so naive that I don't know people want to be on ESPN. But as far as power — we ask, we don't demand. People say no to us. The Big Ten we got to play (conference basketball games) at 9:30 (p.m.), but we didn't say we won't do the deal if you don't play then."

"But if your goal is to maximize the number of hours people see you nationwide, the best time is 9:30. You have a good Big East lead-in — that delivers an audience. We assumed they'd (Big Ten) say no, but they realized we weren't talking jive."

College Football '88 Preview

"Personally, I would like to see us (Final Four) every so often go back to a smaller arena; but when I'm talking about a smaller arena, I'm talking about something that's 20,000 to 25,000 (seats). And we have some new ones coming along. Tennessee has one. Charlotte is opening one. Carolina has one. So we have some other facilities like this."

"The problem that the committee (Division I Men's Basketball Committee) runs into in many cases is not the arena itself but the ancillary facilities — the hotel accommodations and airline transportation.... And how many communities do you have that have 22,000 hotel rooms within a reasonable distance?"

"So this tournament has grown so dramatically that it's very difficult just to pick out an arena site and say, 'that's a great arena; we are going to have the tournament there.'"

Pac-10 coaches question contracts tied to graduation rate

By Bob Cohn
The Arizona Republic

The moral uplifting of college sports was ostensibly furthered last month when University of Pittsburgh football coach Mike Gottfried signed what was believed to be the first contract of its kind, one that provides a bonus based on the graduation rate of his players.

Seems like a good idea, right?

"I think it's awful, I really do," University of Oregon athletics director Bill Byrne said. "I have yet to see a physics professor or a biology professor get compensation because students in his class graduate."

"That's something I expect (Oregon football coach) Rich Brooks to make happen, and I'll be damned if I'm gonna compensate him extra for it. That's ridiculous."

Byrne and other administrators and coaches were at the Fiesta Frolic, an annual golf outing sponsored by the Sunkist Fiesta Bowl. Some were asked about what might become known as the Gottfried Clause, and Byrne seemed to have a lot of company.

"I think it's part of your job," said University of Arizona football coach Dick Tomey. "I question whether there ought to be compensation."

Said University of Southern California football coach Larry Smith, "To me, that's part of my natural duties. I don't think I should be compensated for a player graduating. I think it's great for Mike and I think it's great incentive, but that's part of football coaching, anyway."

Gottfried chose not to attend the frolic, but his athletics director, Edward E. Bozik, did. Bozik was mainly responsible for the unique contract and said he is aware of the criticism.

But he doesn't buy it.

"We were trying to send a message, a message to the players coming to the university, a message to the head coach and his assistants," Bozik said.

"It's a matter of emphasis that, hey, this is important to us. Important enough to provide a financial incentive. He (Gottfried) is not starting from base-zero. He's starting from an 80 percent graduation rate, which was our graduation rate last year. So what we're saying is, 'Improve on 80 percent, coach.'"

What about the argument that a coach should not receive extra credit for simply doing his job?

Dick Tomey

Larry Smith

"It's a coach's job to win, too," Bozik said. "It's a coach's job to keep his kids out of trouble. If the coaches are doing such a good job, why is the graduation rate 47 percent for all athletes in Division I football?"

Despite the misgivings of others, Bozik said he has heard a lot of support for this idea.

Said Smith, "Are people going to be happy if you graduate 90 or 100 percent of your players and you get an extra $15,000 or $20,000 and your football team is not winning more than half of its games?"

"To me, if you can win 70 percent of your games and get in bowl games and get TV appearances and still work the graduation rate up to 80 percent, that's really what you're striving for."

Tomey said perhaps too much is made of athletes simply graduating, that there is more to education than being handed a diploma.

Byrne said the graduation rate for Oregon athletes is about 76 percent, higher than that of the nonathlete student body.

"I believe in offering a kid a chance to get a college education, and some of them might not be able to make it," Byrne said. "Just like some in the student body might not be able to make it. And I don't think there's anything wrong with having the chance to try, and then failing."

But the message from Bozik seems to be, "Why fail?"

"It's simply this," he said. "Matters of aptitude are matters for the faculty and academic support services to take care of. Matters of attitude are for the coaches to take care of. And my experience is that it's problems of attitude that cause kids to fail or drop out, or not finish."

Bigotry in athletics not easy to define

William Raspberry
Washington Post Writers Group
Excerpted from a column

Are you a bigot if, while claiming to support Title IX prohibitions against sexual discrimination at Federally funded schools, you:

- Think it's OK for a school to have separate athletic teams for males and females?

- Pay male coaches more than you pay female counterparts?

- Spend more money on boys' sports than on girls'?

Does it matter that football, easily the most expensive collegiate sport in terms of equipment, coaching and facilities, is exclusively a male preserve?

It is discrimination to pay the coach of the women's basketball team less than the coach of the men's team is paid? Or to have more assistant coaches for the men? A bigger travel budget? More athletics scholarships?

You'd have to be a gender bigot to argue that it's OK for men's equipment to be maintained in better condition than that used by women.

But what are you if you only believe that it's all right to spend more money on men (while not curtailing athletics opportunity for women) because men's sports are more expensive?

What are you if you believe that a female athlete who is good enough to make the men's team should be disqualified because of her sex?

What are you if you insist that, if a girl can go out for a boys' team, then boys should enjoy the counter-privilege?

What are you, in short, if you believe that, when it comes to athletics, separate-but-equal is a reasonable doctrine?

Bigotry is a lot trickier than it used to be.

Cougars copy 1987 performance

This year's Division II Women's Tennis Championships turned out to be a carbon copy of the 1987 tournament.

Southern Illinois-Edwardsville captured its third consecutive team title, the Cougars' Christina Bokelund and Portia George repeated as doubles champions, and Xenia Anastasiadou of Cal Poly Pomona successfully defended her singles crown during the May 9-15 tournament at Sonoma State University.

Repeating was not easy for Southern Illinois-Edwardsville. The defending champs and Cal Poly San Luis Obispo were tied, 4-4, with one doubles match remaining in the team-championship finals May 11. In that showdown, Southern Illinois-Edwardsville's Michelle Wreen and Sandy Stace defeated Vicki Kanter and Susan Norman to hand coach Bob Meyers another trophy.

Southern Illinois-Edwardsville now has won 10 team titles in Division II men's and women's tennis.

The Cougars defeated UC Davis,

9-0, and Cal Poly Pomona, 5-1, to reach the final round in team play.

In individual competition, Anastasiadou defeated George in the finals for the second straight season. After being forced to a third set in three of her matches last season, the junior won all five of her 1988 matches in straight sets. She joins Southern Illinois-Edwardsville's Elisabeth Calandar (1984 and 1985) in winning a second singles title in Division II.

George took consolation in teaming with Bokelund to capture a second straight doubles crown, defeating Missy Conn and Alison Kincaid of Cal State Northridge in the finals. George and Bokelund have not been forced to a third set in individual doubles play over the past two seasons.

After first-round scare, Eagles cruise to tennis crown

Mary Washington escaped a first-round scare and then cruised through the rest of the tournament to win its first team title at the Division III Women's Tennis Championships. Emory University hosted the May 10-14 championships.

The second-seeded Eagles beat Hope, 5-4, in the opening round, then easily handled Franklin and Marshall before defeating Kenyon to post its first national title in any sport.

Ed Hegmann's team won four singles matches in the finals and swept the doubles to defeat Kenyon, 7-2. Mary Washington had defeated Kenyon, 8-1, in last year's third-place match.

Top-seeded UC San Diego, the defending champion, lost a 5-4 match to Kenyon in the semifinals. Menlo freshman Caroline Bodart captured the singles championship, and Julie Lindberg and Karen Nilsen of Pomona-Pitzer took the doubles title.

Bodart bounced back from a 4-1 deficit in the first set of her final match against 1987 semifinalist Christine Behrens of UC San Diego. She used a blazing forehand to win the set in a tiebreaker and went on to a 7-6, 2-6, 6-3 victory.

Lindberg and Nilsen also had to win a first-set tiebreaker, overcoming Amy Danser and Joli Harvanik of Trenton State to win, 7-6, 6-3.

Roadrunners best Lock Haven for softball title

Cal State Bakersfield and Lock Haven fought to the bitter end for the Division II Women's Softball Championship. The Roadrunners came out on top by virtue of back-to-back, 4-3 victories over a Lock Haven team that had defeated them, 3-2, in 10 innings, earlier in the May 13-15 tournament at Cal State Sacramento.

Things could have been different had Lock Haven capitalized on scoring opportunities in the 13-inning game that produced the first 4-3 verdict. After playing nine scoreless innings, each team scored twice in the 10th and added another in the 11th. Lock Haven's chance to end the game presented itself in the 12th.

Pinch runner Robyn Murchie was on third when catcher Kim Hasson hit a line drive toward the gap in left-center field. After Bakersfield left fielder Anna Martin made the catch, Murchie failed to tag at third before taking off for home. She was unable to return to third and tag up ahead of Martin's throw. Bakersfield won in the 13th on Kari Tallant's RBI single.

In the championship game, Kathy Wambold's two-run homer gave Lock Haven an early lead (2-0); and the Eagles were on top, 3-2, after three innings. The Roadrunners rallied again, however, this time producing a pair of runs on four, fourth-inning singles and hanging on to claim the 1987 title.

Named to the all-tournament team were Terri Reifel, Barb Santa Cruz, Sas Trotter, Janice Heriford and Margaret Harvey, Cal State Bakersfield; Kim Hasson, Lisa Suppan, Vicki DiVittorio, Amie Zimmerman and Sandy Hess, Lock Haven; Lisa Erickson, Beth Onestinghel, Debbie Dickman and Lisa Martin, Cal State Northridge, and Andrea Bambrough, Northeast Missouri State.

Oklahoma State baseball squad seeks extra help

College baseball coaches have bantered for decades about what it takes to win the College World Series — strong starting pitching, a deep mound staff, a strong closer, solid defense, a disciplined hitting team and just plain luck. But a leprechaun?

Ask Gary Ward, coach of the top-ranked Oklahoma State Cowboys, who he wants on his shoulder. "I like this club's chances. It's a very competitive team. I'm just hopeful that the little baseball leprechaun is wearing orange and black on June 11."

June 11 is the date of the College World Series championship game, a game Oklahoma State has played in but lost, twice this decade. But Ward knows it will take quite an effort to derail his team this year, 52-3 through games of May 9.

Best pitching ever

Tim Pugh (12-0, 3.34 earned-run average, 24-3 career record) has been the Cowboys' most consistent pitcher this season; Bryan Gore (7-0, 3.19 ERA, three saves), the most flexible, and Tom Keffury (10-0, 4.84 ERA), who Ward said recruited Oklahoma State, the most pleasantly surprising.

"We do not have many power pitchers but a lot of strike-throwers," said Ward, whose teams have been to the College World Series seven straight years. "Four or five middle-of-the-staff guys have emerged and really picked us up. I think it is the deepest, most balanced staff I have had in a while."

This strength of the Cowboys, however, is offense. With shortstop

Championship Preview

Monty Fariss (.388, 25 home runs, 94 runs batted in) and third baseman Robin Ventura (.397, 23 HRs, 82 RBIs), the Cowboys have two of the nation's most feared hitters. Fariss has hit safely in 47 of 55 games and set career highs in home runs and RBIs. Ventura has played in all 55 games and struck out only 15 times in 186 at bats.

Another No. 1

At Fresno State, Bob Bennett's Bulldogs (51-9) are the only team other than the Cowboys that has been ranked No. 1 this season. With speed, power, outstanding starting pitching and a school-record 32-game winning streak, why not?

First baseman Lance Shebelut, who is hitting .397 with a school-record 29 home runs and 85 RBIs, was named the Pacific Coast Athletic Association's player of the year. Centerfielder Tom Goodwin (.353, 37 RBIs, 57 stolen bases) sets the table for the Bulldogs, with support from Steve Pearce (.388, six HRs, 57 RBIs), Steve Hosey (.378, 12 HRs, 67 RBIs) and Eddie Zosky (.314, seven HRs, 64 RBIs).

The Bulldogs have set school records for runs, hits, doubles, home runs, RBIs and total bases.

Bennett has three very strong starting pitchers in junior John Salles (14-0, 2.65 ERA), sophomore Rich Crane (15-2, 3.01 ERA) and Erik Schullstrom (12-2, 2.07 ERA). Salles, who has hurled 14 complete games and three shutouts, has 142 strikeouts in 159 2/3 innings.

Sun Devils hot

Once again, Jim Brock has Arizona State rolling toward Omaha. Since losing six in a row in early March, the Sun Devils have won 30 of their last 31 games.

The pitching has been solid, led by one of the best in the country, Linty Ingram (15-2, 3.50 ERA). Ingram has thrown 10 complete games and two shutouts while striking out 123 in 144 innings. Other standout pitchers include Gordy Farmer (5-0, 4.73 ERA), Blas Minor (6-1, 2.40 ERA, six saves) and Rusty Kilgo (8-2, 3.09 ERA, three saves).

The Sun Devils attack is led by Steve Willis (.374, six HRs, 53 RBIs), Kevin Higgins (.365, 10 HRs, 56 RBIs) and Dan Rumsey (.323, 14 HRs, 70 RBIs). Run production also is provided by outfielder Ricky Candelari (.321, 15 HRs, 72 RBIs) and catcher Tim Spehr (.316, 15 HRs, 53 RBIs).

Another winner

"Gusball" is once again a hot topic of conversation in Austin, Texas, where longtime Longhorn mentor Cliff Gustafson notched his 1,000th career win this season. Fittingly, Texas (51-8-1) wrapped up its 18th Southwest Athletic Conference title under the coach.

Robin Ventura

The Longhorns sport two starting pitchers who are as good as any in the country. Junior righthander Eric Stone (15-2, 2.37 ERA, three shutouts, three saves) won 13 consecutive starts and recorded a school-record 19 strikeouts against Southwestern Louisiana. Freshman Kirk Dressendorfer (13-2, 2.06 ERA) averaged 9.4 strikeouts a game and fashioned a 1.05 ERA during conference play to lead the league.

Senior designated hitter Mike Patrick leads the club with a .391 average, including three home runs and a team-high 65 runs batted in.

Senior Brian Cisarik (.344, six HRs, 48 RBIs) leads the club in runs scored with 71 and has a .387 career batting average, just behind former Longhorn great Keith Moreland, who holds the record with a .388 mark.

Coach nears end of career

By Tom Mulhern

Russ Tiedemann has planned for this day for a couple of years now. In some ways, maybe even longer.

But that hasn't made it any easier. Every coach realizes that the day will come when he stops coaching. But coming face-to-face with that day is another story.

Tiedemann, Wisconsin-Oshkosh's hugely successful baseball coach, announced in February that this season — his 20th — will be his last.

"I've been thinking about it for a couple years," said Tiedemann. "But thinking about it and acting on it are two different things. Once you make the decision, you know it's final."

Because Tiedemann's decision comes on the heels of some recent health problems — on January 26, he underwent emergency surgery to remove a cancerous kidney — people have assumed the two are related.

Tiedemann, 56, assures everyone they are not.

"A lot of people have called me regarding the surgery and my decision to retire," he said. "A lot of them think because of my health problems, it was a factor in my decision. It wasn't at all."

"I made the decision some time ago. I planned to release it just prior to the start of the season. It just so happens my health problems occurred at the same time."

His legacy will be one of success. The record guarantees it. Through his first 19 seasons as head baseball coach of the Titans, Tiedemann compiled a record of 473-157-2, with 14 Wisconsin State University Conference titles and the NCAA Division III national championship in 1985. Through May 9 of this season, his team was 20-6 and ranked sixth in Division III.

But Tiedemann would like his legacy to include something else. "I think what my players will remember most of all is that I understood and reached people," he said. "I was able to touch them in some way or another to bring out the best

Marietta out to be four-for-1980s

After losing only two players from a team that won 38 games in 1987, the Marietta Pioneers (32-4) are poised to make a run at their fourth Division III baseball title of the 1980s.

Top-ranked in Division III and winners in 27 of (through May 12) 29 games, the Pioneers are one of the top defensive teams in the country.

"We are playing outstanding defense right now (.965 fielding percentage), and that is the most satisfying thing to me," said coach Don Schaly, whose Pioneer squads have amassed an 810-198 record in 25 seasons. "If you play solid defense, you are going to be in most ball games. I am really excited about our ball club."

Senior Jim Anderson (9-0, 2.40 earned-run average) leads a pitching staff loaded with talent and experience. Anderson, who Schaly says "always finds a way to win," has posted two shutouts this season and owns a 24-1 career mark.

.376 batting average

Offensively, the Pioneers own a .376 team batting average, led by junior Jim Sanger (.439, four home runs, 31 runs batted in).

Coach Mike Fox of North Carolina Wesleyan knew that if his Bishops (30-8-1) were to contend for the Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title and a berth in the championship, his young players would have to produce immediately.

The Bishops did more than just produce, as they won the Dixie Conference with an 11-1 mark. Freshman Jim Pittman (7-2, 2.21 ERA) recorded a 1.47 ERA in conference play, and junior Mark Silletti posted a fine season (7-1, 1.89 ERA) after suffering ligament damage in his elbow last year.

Freshman first baseman Doug Flowers leads the team in average (.442), home runs (12) and runs batted in (67).

Wisconsin-Oshkosh coach Russ Tiedemann would like nothing better than to finish his 20th and final season with a bang. The only problem, he says, is that he has been too busy to think about it.

"This has been an exciting season," said Tiedemann, whose career record stands at 493-163-2. "The strength of our ball club is a solid pitching staff that has really matured and our four returning starters."

On the mound, the Titans have five dependable arms that allowed opponents only a .230 batting average and 5.7 hits per contest. Junior Mark Gullickson (5-1, 3.07 ERA) has been "outstanding, a smart pitcher with a good mix of pitches," said Tiedemann.

Tough at plate

At the plate, junior captain Bruce

Schreiber (.380, five HRs, 24 RBIs) leads a talented group of hitters.

At Methodist (33-7), coach Tom Austin saw his squad win 24 of 25 games to start the season, including a school-record 22 straight. The Monarchs, who finished second in the Dixie Conference, stole 186 bases this season, thanks largely to Mike Brewington (41 stolen bases) and Jansen Evans (27). But after stealing 300 bases last season and 384 in 1986, this team is one of his slowest, Austin says.

Evans has been the Monarchs' most consistent hitter (.451, five HRs, 27 RBIs) and has struck out only twice in 175 at bats.

On the mound, Austin will rely on junior Richard Seagrove (9-2, 2.37 ERA), sophomore Rodney Jones (8-1, 2.59 ERA) and sophomore Danny Tester (5-2, 5.58).

Championship profile

Event: Division III baseball.

Field: A maximum of 24 teams will be selected for the 1988 championship.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Montclair State claimed the 1987 crown with a 10th-inning, 13-12 victory over Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Schedule: Regional competition at on-campus sites will be completed by May 29. Eastern Connecticut State University will host the June 2-5 finals, which are set for Muzzy Field in Bristol, Connecticut.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will appear in the June 1 issue of the News. Championship results will be published June 8.

Contenders: Cal State Stanislaus, Ithaca, Marietta, Methodist, North Carolina Wesleyan, Wisconsin-Oshkosh, Wooster.

Championship notes: 1988 marks the first time in the 13-year history of the championship that Marietta College will not host the finals. ... No team west of the Mississippi has won the title since Cal State Stanislaus claimed back-to-back crowns in 1976 and 1977. ... Teams from 81 institutions have appeared in the tournament. ... Eastern Connecticut State, Ithaca and Marietta have been selected every year. ... Through 12 years of competition (1988 marks the 13th tournament), only one no-hit, complete game has been turned in by a pitcher. Glassboro State's Norm Charlesworth did it May 15, 1980, although he did give up a run in his team's 4-1 decision over Johns Hopkins.

Oklahoma State golfers ride trail again

Oklahoma State golf coach Mike Holder has his Cowboys back in the same saddles they rode to last year's NCAA Division I Men's Golf Championships team title.

So he might as well save the quote he used heading into the Big Eight Conference tournament and use it again before the 91st annual NCAA championships.

"It's an honor to be favored," Holder said before the Big Eight tournament. "We feel confident about this team, but we'll have to win it on the course."

Being favored to win is nothing new for Oklahoma State. The Cowboys have won 28 of the last 30 Big Eight titles and five of the last 12 NCAA team titles. They finished second six times over the same 12-year stretch.

Oklahoma State proved it deserved the No. 1 ranking going into last year's championships with a convincing 16-stroke advantage over runner-up Wake Forest. A repeat performance at this year's championships appears to be shaping up.

The Cowboys, ranked No. 1 for most of the spring season, return to the championships with three of last year's top guns—defending titlist Brian Watts, defending Big Eight champion Michael Bradley and veteran E. J. Pfister.

Championships Preview

The trio has led Oklahoma State through an impressive spring season that included victories at the John Burns Intercollegiate and All-American Intercollegiate tournaments and runner-up finishes at the University of Miami (Florida)/Doral Park National Collegiate Invitational and Morris Williams Intercollegiate tourneys.

Oklahoma State displayed its depth at the All-American Intercollegiate, where Bradley and Watts were joined by teammate Kevin Wentworth in a tie for first place.

Although the Cowboys figure to be favored for the 1988 Division I team title, Arizona has a solid team that should make a bid for a No. 1 finish.

The Wildcats were top-ranked after they opened their spring season with an impressive seven-stroke victory over Oklahoma State at the UM/Doral Park Invitational. The Wildcats led from the start in the elite field (eight of the top 10 teams were entered), overcoming cold and windy weather over the final two rounds.

The Wildcats have everyone back from last year's team and at one point this spring produced five individual champions in six tournaments. The Wildcats have a potential titlist in Larry Silveira, who opened the UM/Doral Park Invitational with a tournament-record 66 and finished 4 under par at the 54-hole event with a tournament-record 212.

Arizona State, ranked fourth in the latest Golf Coaches Association of America poll, and defending Atlantic Coast Conference champion Clemson, ranked third, also have teams capable of giving Oklahoma State a run for the team title.

But do not be surprised if the Cowboys are back in their saddles when the sun sets on the 72-hole championships.

Tulsa women golfers band together to reclaim place among elite teams

Her name is McNamara, but she does not lead a band that plays for wakes and weddings and is the finest in the land. Her golfers aren't bad, though.

Dale McNamara leads the Tulsa Golden Hurricane women's golf team. And after failing to make the NCAA National Collegiate Women's Golf Championships field last year for the first time, the coach may have thought about calling up the Irish band leader to play for her team's wake.

However, McNamara has resurrected Tulsa, and it will be out to prove that it is among the finest teams in the land at the seventh annual championships, which will be played on the 6,100-yard University Golf Course at New Mexico State.

Tulsa struggled through one of its worst seasons last year, and talk around the course was that the Golden Hurricane winning tradition had been blown away.

"It was very difficult on the girls, it was very difficult on me and it was

Championships profile

Event: National Collegiate women's golf.

Field: Seventeen teams will compete for the team title. In addition to players on those teams, 17 individuals will be selected at large for the individual competition.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Anne Jones coolly dropped a 15-foot putt on the 72nd hole to give her team, San Jose State, a one-shot victory over Furman and the 1987 title.

Schedule: New Mexico State University hosts the May 25-28 championships.

The NCAA News coverage: Results will appear in the June 1 issue of the News.

Contenders: Arizona State, Georgia, Texas, Tulsa.

Championships notes: Prior to last year, Texas Christian's three-shot (1,193-1,196) advantage over Tulsa in 1983 was the closest margin of victory in the team competition. Although Florida has won two team titles (1985 and 1986), no school can claim more than one individual champion. New Mexico's Caroline Keggi claimed the 1987 individual crown with a sudden-death victory over San Jose State's Jones. Each was 3 under par (289) after 72 holes.

very frustrating," McNamara said about last season. "I kept saying that you have to stick by your guns, stick by your principles, and that somewhere down the line it will pay off."

Tulsa did not have too long of a line to go down. McNamara's patience, combined with outstanding freshman recruits and a few veterans, put Tulsa back in familiar territory.

Ranked second in the latest NCAA team rankings, Tulsa features a well-balanced team that snared the team title at the Patty Sheehan Invitational and finished second to top-ranked Arizona State at the Lady Sun Devil Invitational and to defending champion San Jose State at the Yamaha/USC Collegiate Invitational.

McNamara's daughter, Melissa, leads the talented Golden Hurricane squad, which includes highly regarded freshmen Kelly Robbins and Caryn Louw. All three golfers were ranked among the top 45 in the latest individual rankings. Junior Margaret Kelt and sophomore Blue Kinander, both of whom were ranked 57th, round out McNamara's lineup.

Arizona State edged Tulsa for the top spot in the latest team rankings and could do the same at the championships.

Despite the loss of 1985 titlist Danielle Ammacapane, who tied for sixth at last year's championships, the Lady Sun Devils have emerged as a contender for the team title.

Third-ranked Pearl Sinn leads Arizona State along with fifth-ranked Pamela Wright and 14th-ranked Amy Fruwirth.

Wright led Arizona State to the Lady Sun Devil Invitational title with a first-place tie.

Texas, which also has been top ranked this spring, has the potential to win the school's first team title behind the play of second-ranked Michiko Hattori, who won individual honors at the Yamaha/USC Collegiate Invitational.

Championships profile

Event: Division I men's golf.

Field: Thirty teams will be selected to compete for the 1987 title. A total of 180 participants will be selected for the championships—plus Divisions II and III student-athletes who are eligible to advance.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Oklahoma State claimed the 1987 team championship with a 16-stroke victory over then defending champion Wake Forest.

Schedule: The University of Southern California will host the 1988 championships, which will be held May 25-28 at the North Ranch Country Club in Thousand Oaks, California.

The NCAA News coverage: Results will appear in the June 1 issue of the News.

Contenders: Arizona, Arizona State, Clemson, Oklahoma State.

Championships notes: Yale won the first team title in this event in 1897 and leads the all-time lists with 21 team victories and 13 individual titlists. North Carolina's John Inman set the championships record for lowest 72-hole total by posting a 17-under-par 271 in 1984. That same year, Oklahoma State's Jim Begwin turned in a 9-under-par 63—the lowest 18-hole total in this event's history. No team from California since Stanford (1953) has won the Division I crown. The last individual from a California school to win a championship was Southern California's Ron Commans (1981).

Men's teams, favored women pursue III titles

While a strong favorite has emerged from the women's field for the Division III Men's and Women's Outdoor Track Championships, the men's meet should be another wide-open affair.

Christopher Newport's women, featuring a talented corps of sprinters and jumpers, captured the 1987 outdoor team title and recently added the indoor crown with a record total of points. The Lady Captains will be the squad to beat when the Division III meet begins May 25 at Northfield, Minnesota.

On the men's side, defending champion Frostburg State will be challenged by indoor champion Wisconsin-LaCrosse and a host of other Midwestern contenders.

Men's championships

Frostburg State, even with hurdle standout Maynard Hurd sidelined by injury, overcame the odds to capture the 1987 team title, its second in a row.

This season, the deck is even more stacked against the Bobcats with the graduation of Hurd, 15-time all-America sprinter Joseph Barber and high jump champion Oliver Kyler.

Coach Bob Lewis will counter with Steven Terry, the 1986 100-meter champion who slipped to fourth last season. Triple jumper Ray Toppins, in the top three at last year's outdoor meet and this year's indoor championships, will be seeking his first individual title in that event.

Wisconsin-LaCrosse, indoor champion under two coaches in as many seasons, boasts one of collegiate track's top individual performers in weight specialist Terry Strouf. Winner of seven national titles over the past three seasons, Strouf broke his own indoor meet records in both the shot put and the 35-pound weight throw this year and hopes to complete his junior season by collecting more individual hardware. Teammate Troy Nelson has emerged as Strouf's heir apparent after recording a runner-up finish in the indoor shot put.

Strong support

Also contributing for the Indians will be triple jumper Eric Keller, who hopes to succeed graduated teammate Evan Perkins as outdoor champion; long jumper Brad Hall, and a solid distance corps led by cross country all-Americans Jim Batchelor and Mike Junig.

"Terry Strouf, Troy Nelson and Jim Batchelor will really be the keys for us," said coach Mark Guthrie. "We have to do well in the throws and the steeplechase."

"It's always tough to tell about these meets. It's hard enough just keeping up with the teams in your own region. We feel good about our qualifiers. We're just going to go over and have some fun and see what happens."

St. Lawrence, runner-up indoors, will take a balanced attack to Minnesota. The Saints' leading performer is defending 100-meter champion Tim McCrossen, who also finished second in both the 200 and the 400. Middle-distance man Dean Burns is another vital performer for St. Lawrence.

Record-setter

Leading the Saints' field-event brigade is freshman pole vaulter Alex Grelland, whose 15-11 3/4 effort at Smith in March shattered the Division III indoor record.

North Central, perennial cross country contenders in the division, has strengths in events other than the distances. Half-miler Rich Scopp, long jumper Scott Welti and hurdler Brian Lamm are among the potential scorers for coach Al Carrius' Cardinals, whose efforts in the longer events will be led by seniors Brad Todden and Jay Jackson, top-10 finishers on North Central's national-championship cross country squad last fall.

Lincoln (Pennsylvania), runner-up outdoors last season, tumbled out of the top 10 at this year's indoor meet. Much of the blame can be laid to the graduation of all-America hurdler David Hightower. But the Lions maintain a strong sprint corps headed by 400-meter Cross-state sister Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 1987 cross country champion, will make an impact in the distance events. Cheryl Niederberger, all-America in cross country and indoor and outdoor track, leads a Titan roster that also includes 1,500-meter specialists Tammy Milz and Terri Meyer and triple jump contender Michelle Dziak.

Championships notes: Athletes from 69 institutions scored points in the 1987 men's competition... Athletes from 61 institutions scored points in the 1987 women's competition... Glassboro State holds the men's record for team titles (five) by virtue of consecutive victories from 1980 through 1984... Southern-New Orleans has produced the most men's individual champions (19)... Wisconsin-La Crosse holds the women's marks for most team (two) and individual (10) champions... Christopher Newport's Lisa Dillard won three individual titles during the 1987 women's competition... the most ever by a student-athlete in Division III competition (men's or women's) in one year.

don't have to prepare for a game, make different types of adjustments."

Paterno said the opportunity to use spring practice for teaching permits him to recruit players who may not be viewed as top prospects.

Keith Radecic, starting center of Penn State's 1986 national champions, is an example. He was not a top recruit but worked hard enough to become a top player.

"If he's big and strong or very determined, you take him because you know you can work on his shortcomings," Paterno said. "If you didn't have spring practice, we might be reluctant to take that kid. Recruiting might become more of a rat-race."

West Virginia University coach Don Nehlen said spring is the time when most difficult coaching decisions are made concerning personnel and even the style of play a team will try when games begin.

"If you're not sure you're going to run power football, option football or the pass, then you're in trouble. Because when you get to the fall, you run out of time."

Perhaps what coaches fear most about the elimination of spring practice is the level of play in games the following autumn.

"You're taking 60 practices out of a young man's career, and that's a lot of football practice," said Alabama's Curry.

"The only time I hated it as a player was when I was walking by the frat houses and the music was playing, the sun was out and the girls were sitting on the lawn. Once I got out on the field, I was happy, because I love football. If you don't love football, you shouldn't be playing it at the college level."

Considering his team went 8-4 and he missed several games with injuries, the best thing about linebacker Trey Bauer's senior year at Penn State was spring practice. He didn't go.

Bauer was excused because he was a fifth-year senior. Paterno has adopted this policy to prevent veteran players from "getting stale. I don't want them getting tired of football."

"I was ecstatic," Bauer said. "I think it was great."

Coach acquitted of scalping charge

A former University of North Dakota assistant men's basketball coach has been acquitted of a charge that he tried to scalp tickets for NCAA Final Four.

Don Rockstad was found not guilty in Kansas City, Missouri, municipal court after he was arrested April 1 at a Kansas City hotel after a man, who turned out to be an undercover policeman, said he would pay Rockstad $500 for a ticket.

Rockstad said, "I said something like, 'Oh, that's interesting.' He was then arrested and his ticket for the semifinal confiscated.

Rockstad said it cost about $800 to contest the charge, and he added that he believed his reputation had been damaged by the extensive publicity surrounding the arrest.

Penn State schedules conference on agents

Two of the principal figures in one of the best-known recent cases of a student-athlete's losing eligibility for signing with a sports agent will be speakers at a June conference on "Agents and the College Athlete" at Pennsylvania State University.

Former Ohio State University athletics director Richard M. Bay and former Buckeye wide receiver Cris Carter—who was drafted into the National Football League after losing his eligibility—will be among college football coaches, sports agents, professional sports administrators, and current and former college athletes who will gather June 6-7 to discuss issues pertaining to the conference's topic.

Athletics administrators, coaches and others who deal with the issue of college athletes and agents are being invited to register for the conference.

The program is expected to be

UW-Milwaukee will apply for Division I status

The University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, athletics program will apply for NCAA Division I status during the 1990-91 school year.

The faculty senate approved the move May 10 by a vote of 21-18, said C. Scully Stikes, acting athletics director. The school competed as a Division II member this season.

The school will apply for Division I status by June 1 and participate in a two-year compliance program. During that time, the school's 14 varsity-level sports will increase the number of their Division I opponents.

"I'm very pleased with the move," Stikes said. "I think there were significant numbers of alumni, faculty and students who supported this move. I think this is a unique time on campus when the support came together on this."

Stikes said senate members voting against the move were worried that the school was making the transition too rapidly.

"This morning I woke up the happiest guy in America," men's basketball coach Steve Antrim said. "I'm happy for our school, and I'm happy for all our sports. All the coaches wanted this."

Iowa increases ticket prices for basketball

The University of Iowa has raised the price of men's basketball tickets by $2 so the athletics department can pay the annual utility bill for Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Ann Rhodes, assistant vice-president for finance, said university officials decided basketball ticket receipts should be used to pay the $392,000 bill because "basketball is most closely tied to the use of the facility."

The university wants the athletics department and all other self-supporting units to pay their own bills.

Iowa's Board in Control of Athletics approved the price increase by a 9-2 vote May 10. With the increase, the general public will pay $11 per game during the 1988-89 season, while faculty and staff will pay $9. Student ticket prices were increased by $1, raising the cost to $5 per game.

"of particular interest to members of NCAA-authorized advisory panels at member colleges and universities," said John Bove, the Penn State administrative assistant and recruiting coordinator who helped develop the conference's format. "These are the people in touch with the athletes, and this is an opportunity for them to be exposed to a wide spectrum of opinion on what is a very complex issue."

Further information about the conference can be obtained before the May 27 registration deadline by writing to Kathy Karchner, Conference Coordinator, 410 Keller Conference Center, Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA 16802. The registration fee is $230.

Murray honored

Carolyn Murray stands beside a bust of her late husband, Bill, at the dedication of the Duke University athletics center named in his honor. Nearly 150 former players and friends of Murray contributed $1 million to have the building named for him. Murray was head football coach at Duke from 1951 through 1965. He later served as executive secretary of the American Football Coaches Association.

Earlier dates proposed for Division I men's swim meet

As a result of its May 1-5 meeting at South Lake Tahoe, California, the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee will recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that the Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships be moved up to March 30 through April 1, 1989.

Also, beginning in 1990, the committee recommends that the Division I men's championships be held starting on the fourth Thursday in March, one week following the Division I women's championships.

The addition of the 200-yard freestyle and 200-yard medley relay events will be proposed for the Divisions I and II men's championships. It also will be recommended that these become optional-entry events for the men's and women's championships.

These events were contested in the 1988 Division III men's championships and in all three women's championships. If approved by the Executive Committee, however, a qualifying standard no longer will have to be achieved for these two events in any division.

For qualifying purposes, the swimming committee redefined a bona fide competition as one that must include one of the NCAA complete order-of-events formats, one of the NCAA scoring options and must be included in the institution's won-lost record.

In addition, an event may be contested only once and may include only one preliminary swim, one possible swim-off and one final. Qualifying standards may be achieved in U.S. Swimming-sanctioned (not approved) competition. A copy of the official verification must be submitted with the entry.

Also pertaining to bona fide meets, a swimming official may not be a member of the coaching staff of the competing institutions unless mutually agreed upon by both head coaches.

Recommended dates for the 1990 Division I men's championships are March 22-24 at a site to be determined. It will be recommended that the 1990 women's championships be held March 15-17 at the University of Texas, Austin.

It will be recommended that the 1989 Division II Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving Championships be held March 8-11 at the State University of New York, Buffalo.

No site has been recommended for the 1989 Division III championships.

In other action, the committee voted to propose:

- That the starter and recall starter alternate in the starting of events.

- That the scratch box be open from the start of preliminaries to the start of finals (or during comparable times on the Wednesday preceding the meet).

- That the awards ceremonies at the Division I men's championships be held immediately following each event. At the women's championships, the ceremonies will remain the same as 1988 with the exception that the final relay awards for Thursday and Friday nights will be held at the beginning of the finals competition the next evening.

- In the men's three-day championships format, if the sprint relays are approved, a competitor will be permitted to participate in a maximum of seven events, of which no more than three may be individual. In the four-day championships format, a competitor will be permitted to participate in no more than seven events, of which a maximum of four may be individual.

- That the zone diving meets be held March 11 at the following sites: Zone A—Villanova University; Zone B—University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa; Zone C—University of Wisconsin, Madison; Zone D—University of Nebraska, Lincoln, and Zone E—Arizona State University.

- Another change deals with how much entrants count toward the team total. It will be proposed that an entrant who swims shall be counted as one competitor, an entrant who swims and dives shall be counted as one competitor, and an entrant who only dives shall be counted as one-half a competitor in the total team limit.

- The committee will recommend that two primary order-of-events formats for three-day championships meets be offered, including one based on the 1988 women's championships order with the 200-yard freestyle relay contested after the 100-yard butterfly on Friday. This option will be utilized by Division I women and Division III men and women.

- The other plan, to be used by Division I men (if the sprint relays are approved) is the same as above except that on the first day, the 200-yard freestyle relay will be the first event and the 400-yard medley relay will be the last event. On the second day, the 200-yard medley relay will be the first event and the 800-yard freestyle relay will be the last event.

Two of the major rules proposals include changes in the forward and backstroke starts. The changes will permit the referee to better ascertain that the swimmers are completely motionless before releasing them to the starter.

Several changes were made in the false-start rule, including the requirement of dual confirmation by the starter and referee or by the recall starter and the referee. This change would apply to championships meets only.

Settlement reported in Walters case

An attorney for Norby Walters said May 16 that an agreement had been reached to settle the criminal and civil cases against the New York sports agent for his dealings with former University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, basketball star Derrick McKey.

But state officials refused to concede that a settlement had been worked out between Walters' attorneys, the university's counsel and prosecutors, the Associated Press reported.

"If the case is settled, it's going to be settled in open court," said Larry Childers, a spokesman for Attorney General Don Siegelman. "It will be settled only if they live up to certain representations they've made. If that doesn't happen, the case will be tried."

Jack Drake, a Tuscaloosa attorney who was one of three lawyers representing Walters, said an "agreement in principle" was reached May 9, the day Walters was scheduled to be tried on misdemeanor charges of commercial bribery, deceptive trade practices and tampering with a sports event.

The case earlier was postponed because of the death of the father of a key witness. Drake said both sides used that time to reach an "oral agreement."

"There has been a settlement," he said in a telephone interview. "The details are being implemented; and once they are implemented, there will be an announcement that it has been settled."

But Childers said state prosecutors would not acknowledge any settlement until one is officially accepted by Tuscaloosa County Circuit Judge John Karrh, who declared a mistrial May 13 at the request of both sides to give them a chance to settle the case without going to trial.

The charges stem from Walters' signing of McKey to a contract during the 1986-87 season before the athlete's college eligibility was completed.

Drake described the agreement as "a complete settlement," covering both the misdemeanor charges against Walters and a $3 million lawsuit filed by the university.

The school filed the suit because it was forced to return $250,000 in revenues from the 1987 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship when it was learned that Walters advanced McKey a loan.

Drake declined to release any further details of the purported agreement.

Student develops 'success' course for VCU athletes

A school's desire to help student-athletes find success in life as well as in sports prompted the development of a course that someday may serve as a model for similar efforts nationwide.

Freshmen and transfer student-athletes participating in Virginia Commonwealth University's Success 101 class learn ways to succeed—not only athletically, but academically and personally—while making the oftentimes difficult adjustment to college life.

The course, developed by doctoral student Liza Davis, is one of several programs resulting from efforts by athletics director Richard L. Sander and faculty athletics representative Steven J. Danish, chair of Virginia Commonwealth's psychology department, to provide support services for student-athletes at the school.

Success 101 is notable because Davis is basing her doctoral dissertation on an evaluation of the course. Her research eventually could help other schools design similar programs for student-athletes, based on Davis' findings regarding "what works and what doesn't" in the course.

Evaluation needed

"We really need to work toward identifying what's going to be most beneficial," she said, noting that her early research turned up no previous evaluations of programs for student-athletes.

Using a "life-development-intervention model" developed by sports psychologist Danish and others, Davis designed Success 101 to encourage student-athletes to set goals for themselves. "Athletes in general are fairly good goal-setters by nature," she said. "It is a nice way to be able to get to them... (and) help them generalize that skill to other areas of their lives."

"Goal-setting is basic to motivation," she added. "Every day, when we wake up, we have goals or things that we want to accomplish."

Student-athletes in the course were asked to determine goals they wished to attain in three areas—athletics, academics and in personal life. Going further, class participants listed six steps to follow in obtaining a goal.

Providing examples, Davis said a baseball pitcher wanted to shorten his stride toward the plate, while several participants set academic goals designed to improve their performance in troublesome classes, and one student-athlete set the personal goal of controlling the habit of making too many long-distance telephone calls.

Beyond athletics

"We wanted it to be holistic in the sense that they focus not only on athletics, but academics and their personal lives," she said. "We're trying to get them to see that they're viewed not only as athletes, but as students and as people with their own lives."

"My research is oriented to seeing how they achieve long-term goals over a period of time," Davis explained, adding that preliminary results show "that for the most part, they've been pretty successful."

Success 101 has become an integral part of Virginia Commonwealth's Non-Educational Support Training (NEST) program, which was created by Sander—in consultation with Danish—soon after Sander was named athletics director nearly two years ago.

"I saw there were some things we could do to help the kids have a better chance to succeed," Sander said.

The NEST program is designed to help student-athletes not only while they are competing in athletics on behalf of the school, but to prepare them for life after school. It even touches those who have not yet entered college, thanks to several Virginia Commonwealth student-athletes who occasionally visit with schoolchildren to talk about goal-setting.

Supportive school

"The university is very committed to this program," Sander said. "It has made the commitment and provided the support."

"We hope ultimately to provide a model for other schools to emulate."

Because Success 101 is offered only during the fall semester, Davis has involved herself in other NEST programs. That involvement is in keeping with her role as a graduate assistant working under a cooperative arrangement between the athletics department and the psychology department.

Davis has arranged career-counseling workshops for graduating student-athletes seeking employment and for current student-athletes looking for meaningful summer jobs that will prepare them for future careers.

For student-athletes still trying to decide on career interests, sessions designed to help participants learn more about their personal talents, interests and values were offered.

Through the programs, Davis has had such an impact on Virginia Commonwealth's student-athletes that many seek her out in her gymnasium office for personal counseling. "It's amazing how many go back to Liza with a problem or whatever and deal with it on a one-on-one basis," Sander said.

Davis will leave Virginia Commonwealth in June to begin a clinical internship at the University of Florida; but Success 101 will go on, having taken its place in the NEST array of programs.

"It's been nice to be at a place that's been facilitative to my research," she said.

Virginia athlete organizes blood drive to aid community

A two-day blood drive sponsored by the Captains Council of the University of Virginia athletics department recently collected 236 pints of blood—one more than the goal set for the event. Virginia swimmer John Larson developed the idea and volunteered to chair the project.

"This was an event that involved the entire athletics department," Lawson said. "We felt it was an opportunity to do something for the Charlottesville and university communities."

"Athletes, coaches, administrators and support staff in the athletics department were originally solicited about the drive," Lawson added. "They recruited others, and we also had a number of walk-ins during the two-day drive. We reached our goal, and I'm very pleased about that."

More Report Cards: Three student-athletes with 4.000 grade-point averages (4.000 scale) head the all-academic baseball and men's tennis teams recently announced by the Big Eight Conference. University of Kansas tennis players Larry Pascal (a senior majoring in political science) and Chris Walker (a sophomore in business administration) are the straight-A members of that all-Big Eight team, and Oklahoma State University's Brad Beanblossom (a sophomore premedicine major) made the baseball team with straight As. All eight conference member institutions are represented on one team or the other.

Six Michigan Technological University student-athletes were named to the Western Collegiate Hockey Association all-academic team. Honored were Huskies John Archibald (senior, 3.100 in business administration), Brian Hannon (senior, 3.320 in political science), Randy McKay (senior, 3.630 in business administration), Richard Novak (junior, 4.000 in computer science), Steve Wendorf (junior, 3.330 in business administration) and Scott White (junior 3.020 in business administration).

Among awards handed out during the May 7 President's Recognition Ceremony at Central Connecticut State University were the Medal of Merit Awards, given annually to the school's male and female student-athletes who compile the highest cumulative grade-point averages over four years. "We're averaging between 300 and 400 people a day," said Bob Sinclair, Brockport's director of intramurals. "So far, it's been extremely successful." The new facility will accommodate almost three times as many people as the old weight room—a fact beared out by usage statistics.

During February 1987, 2,200 people used Brockport's old weight room. During February 1988 in the new facility, which opened January 29, 6,355 people worked out.

McKeever, who coached the 1944 team to an 8-2 record, attended Notre Dame and played football from 1930 to 1931; but he transferred to Texas Tech to finish his academic and athletics careers.
