The University of California, Los Angeles, softball team, after finishing second last year, has won its fourth NCAA Division I Women's Softball Championship, and coach Sharron Backus raises the trophy as team members celebrate in Sunnyvale, California. UCLA defeated California State University, Fresno, 3-0, in the final game after having lost to Fresno State, 2-1, earlier in the day May 29.

U.S. judge backs NCAA in decision

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld the dismissal of a suit aimed at having the NCAA declared an illegal monopoly, ruling that fans of Southern Methodist University have no constitutional guarantee of a football team to cheer for.

"While we give the loyal students and alumni credit for making a college try, we affirm the judgment dismissing their complaint, for we hold that some of the plaintiffs lack standing and the others have failed to make a claim for which relief can be granted to them," Judge Alvin B. Rubin wrote in a 10-page opinion issued June 1 by the 5th Circuit.

The NCAA found SMU guilty of recruiting violations, took note of a history of such problems and shut down SMU's football season for 1987. The NCAA also imposed restrictions on the 1988 season, and the university found it impossible to field a team this year.

David R. McCormack, an attorney and SMU alumnus, filed a class action suit on behalf of SMU as an institution, its graduates and current students, several members of its football team, and several cheerleaders.

U.S. District Court Judge Hugh Gibson, of the Southern District of Texas, dismissed the suit June 18, 1987, and McCormack appealed to the 5th Circuit.

McCormack's suit, among other things, argued that forbidding pay-

Forum attendance likely to top 500

The anticipated attendance of 500 to 600 at the June 20-21 National Forum in Orlando apparently is assured, as the Hyatt Orlando, site of the meeting, informed the NCAA this week that all of its rooms allotted for the Forum are taken.

In fact, with its other guests, the Hyatt is sold out and is searching for other hotel rooms in the area to accommodate additional Forum registrants.

As of May 31, the Hyatt had booked 553 rooms for Forum attendees for the night of Sunday, June 19, and 569 for Monday, June 20. Arrangements have been made for 50 additional rooms at the Holiday Inn Westgate, 1½ miles from the Hyatt, but 20 of those also were reserved as of May 31. A shuttle service will be provided between the Holiday Inn and the Hyatt for two hours each morning and two hours at the end of the sessions each day.

Meanwhile, the number of delegates and media preregistered at the NCAA national office moved past the 400 mark May 31. The difference in the totals reflects the fact that some delegates have reserved and guaranteed their hotel rooms but their Forum registrations have not been received from their chief executive officers.

"Every effort will be made to accommodate late registrants as conveniently as possible," according to

Deadlines established for 5-1-(j) waiver requests

Member institutions seeking academically justified exceptions to the initial-eligibility requirements of Bylaw 5-1-(j) should take note of application deadlines established by the NCAA Council subcommittee that reviews waiver requests.

The NCAA Council Subcommittee on Bylaw 5-1-(j) Exceptions will not consider waiver applications received after the following deadlines:

- October 1 of the student-athlete's second academic year of collegiate enrollment, or

- October 1, 1988, for a student-athlete who first enrolled at a member institution during the 1986-87 academic year, or

- Six months after a nonrecruited student-athlete first reports for practice or competition.

The deadlines were adopted to prevent cases that require the subcommittee to depend on outdated or unavailable information as a basis for ruling on a request, said Daniel T. Dutcher, NCAA legislative assistant who serves as a staff liaison to the subcommittee.

The deadlines are effective immediately and will be included in revised waiver-application forms.

Waivers can be granted by the subcommittee in cases where a member institution provides "objective evidence" that a student's overall academic record warrants such an exception.

Most student-athletes seeking waivers will be affected by the October 1 deadlines, but a deadline was established for nonrecruited student-athletes so the subcommittee could deal with situations involving "walk-ons." For instance, a nonrecruited student-athlete who joins a team as a sophomore after attending a member institution as a freshman may be able to "recapture" a fourth year of eligibility through the waiver-application process.

Even with deadlines in place, the subcommittee urges member institutions to submit waiver requests as soon as possible. Dutcher said the subcommittee wishes to consider an appeal from any student-athlete who may qualify for a Bylaw 5-1-(j) waiver.

News quiz

The following questions relate to information that appeared in May issues of The NCAA News. How many can you answer?

1. How many summer basketball leagues had been approved by the Council for student-athlete participation, through the announcement in the May 25 issue of the News? (a) 119; (b) 138; (c) 146; (d) 159.
2. Who will chair the Nominating Committee for the 1989 Convention? (a) Kathleen M. McNally; (b) Judith R. Holland; (c) Charles Whitcomb; (d) Alan J. Chapman.
3. Of the 1,589 student-athletes who were administered drug tests during fall 1987, how many failed those tests? (a) 20; (b) 160; (c) 375; (d) 419.
4. How many consecutive Division III championships has the Hobart College men's lacrosse team won? (a) 6; (b) 7; (c) 8; (d) 9.
5. Where will the NCAA's new national office building be located? (a) Mission, Kansas; (b) Lenexa, Kansas; (c) Overland Park, Kansas; (d) Kansas City, Missouri.
6. When will the 1988 Independence Bowl be played? (a) December 23; (b) December 24; (c) December 26; (d) December 31.
7. Which member institution recently announced the formation of an advisory committee on athletics? (a) Delta State University; (b) Cleveland State University; (c) Utah State University; (d) Montana State University.
8. Which of the following recently announced plans to reclassify its athletics programs to Division I (football Division I-AA)? (a) Northwest Missouri State University; (b) Central Missouri State University; (c) Southwest Missouri State University; (d) Southeast Missouri State University.
9. What was the per-game scoring average of both teams in Division I men's basketball during 1987-88? (a) 141.1; (b) 144.7; (c) 146.9; (d) 147.8.

Legislative Assistance

1988 Column No. 22

NCAA Constitution 3-4-(f)—financial aid renewal notification

Member institutions are reminded of the provisions of Constitution 3-4-(f) and Case Nos. 144-147 (pages 354-355, 1988-89 NCAA Manual) which state that the renewal of a scholarship or grant-in-aid award shall be made on or before July 1 prior to the academic year it is to be effective. The institution is required to notify each student-athlete who received an award the previous academic year and who is eligible to receive an award and has eligibility remaining under NCAA Bylaw 4-1 or Constitution 3-3-(a)-(3) for the ensuing academic year whether the grant has been renewed or not renewed. If the award or grant-in-aid has not been renewed, the institution also shall inform the student-athlete that if he or she believes the grant has not been renewed for questionable reasons, the student-athlete may request and shall have the opportunity for a hearing before the institutional agency making the financial award. The institution is required to have established reasonable procedures for the prompt hearing of such a request.

NCAA Constitution 3-9-(b)-(4)-(v)—waivers for summer athletics competition

As set forth in Constitution 3-9-(b)-(4)-(v), a student-athlete participating in officially recognized state and national multisport events must be sure that such events are sanctioned by the NCAA Council prior to participation. Particularly, the "state games" competition that takes place during the summer months and sponsored by the individual states would need to comply with this legislation. Further, participation of an institution's athletics department staff member in such recognized regional, national and international training programs or competition (including "state games") also must receive approval from the Council for participation per the provisions of Bylaw 1-6-(c)-(6).

In accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 3-1-(a) (limitations on playing seasons), Bylaw 3-4-(c) (limitations on out-of-season practice) and O.I. 300 (definition of practice), a member institution's coach would not be precluded from performing coaching duties with student-athletes from his or her own institution participating in state games events outside of the 21- or 26-week playing and practice seasons, subject to the restrictions on the number of student-athletes provided in revised Case No. 260.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

to Bernard F. Sliger, president of Florida State University and chair of the Presidents Commission's Ad Hoc Committee on the National Forum.

"The national office staff and the Hyatt Orlando are working together to arrange for additional hotel rooms and ground transportation to and from the Hyatt," he said.

The Hyatt also reported that it has booked 135 rooms for Forum attendees for the night of Saturday, June 18, and 122 for Tuesday, June 21. Those reservations apparently reflect the intention of some Forum delegates to take advantage of the hotel's offer to honor the special Forum room rate for two days before and two days after the Forum to accommodate vacation plans.

The Hyatt is located in the Central Florida area billed as the "Vacation Capital of the World." Walt Disney World and EPCOT Center are two miles from the hotel, and other area attractions include Church Street Station, Sea World, Cypress Gardens, Wet 'n Wild, golf courses and shopping areas.

Not far away are the Kennedy Space Center, Busch Gardens, Boardwalk and Baseball, and the coastal beaches.

New discussion leader named for June Forum

Bob Moorman, commissioner of the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, has been selected to replace Kentucky State University President Raymond M. Burse as a discussion leader at the Presidents Commission National Forum session June 20-21 in Orlando.

Burse was unable to fulfill the assignment due to a schedule conflict involving an obligation out of the country.

The discussion leaders will lead the seven "breakout" sessions that follow each of the three major topics in the June Forum. All delegates at the Forum will be preassigned to one of the seven smaller groups.

Moorman, commissioner of the CIAA since 1976, was a member of the NCAA Council from 1983 through 1985. He also has served on the Division II Men's Basketball Committee, Division II Football Committee, Professional Sports Liaison Committee (which he chaired) and the former Football Television Committee.

He also is a past president of the National Athletic Steering Committee and the College Division Commissioners Association.

Moorman participated in football and track at Hampton Institute

Bob Moorman

(now Hampton University) and at the University of Maryland, College Park, before serving in the U.S. Army for 20 years, retiring as a major in 1966.

He was head football coach at Wiley College for two years and a professional football talent scout for seven years before becoming CIAA commissioner.

ments to football players amounted to price fixing and that suspending the SMU season amounted to a group boycott of SMU by other NCAA members.

"In addition, all of the plaintiffs assert that the NCAA has repeatedly imposed penalties on the college football program of SMU in unequal fashion and without due process of law, thereby damaging 'the image of the university as an academic institution,' endangering (its) existence... as an academic institution and causing it to lose revenue from donors," Rubin wrote.

Many of the arguments in the suit could best be advanced by SMU as an institution, and the school is perfectly able to defend itself if it chooses to do so, the 5th Circuit said, dismissing any claims on behalf of the school.

Neither McCormack nor the cheerleaders could show they were injured in business or property, the court said.

"The cheerleaders assert only the loss of the opportunity to lead cheers, which clearly does not qualify as an injury to business or property," Rubin wrote.

"The only injuries McCormack alleges are the devaluation of his degree, the loss of the opportunity to see football games, and the damage to his contact and association with current and prospective student-athletes derived from his membership in the Mustang Club, 'an athletics fund-raising organization,'" Rubin wrote.

Even if football players can be considered employees of a university, "employees generally are not 'proper plaintiffs' to sue for injuries their employer suffers as the target of antitrust violations, because injuries to the employee are indirect," the 5th Circuit said.

The 5th Circuit noted that the U.S. Supreme Court, when it ruled against an NCAA monopoly on television rights, made a specific point of exempting NCAA eligibility rules from its decision, the Associated Press reported.

"Because the eligibility rules do not violate the antitrust laws, enforcement of them through suspensions and other restrictions does not constitute an illegal group boycott," Rubin wrote.

Southern will require referees to undergo physical exams

Athletics directors in the Southern Conference voted during their recent annual meeting to conduct physical examinations for the league's football and basketball officials, beginning later this year.

Conference officials cited the possibility of legal liability and concerns about the fitness of referees as reasons for the decision.

The conference will subject football officials to a two-day physical that will be scheduled prior to the 1988 season in conjunction with a sports-medicine seminar. The physicals will be administered by team physicians and trainers and will include a cardiogram, stress test, blood pressure test and flexibility evaluation.

"It is just going to be a general physical," Southern Conference Commissioner Dave Hart told the Associated Press. "We've checked with our legal people, and we're told we're better off—as far as the liability factor—in doing this than not doing it."

"If you don't take precautions and a guy goes down, they're going to ask what precautions did you take to prevent this."

Hart acknowledged the examinations could cost a few officials their jobs if they are found physically unfit. "This could eliminate some of them," he said. "But if they've got some problems, we're probably doing them a favor."

The athletics directors also voted to ask league President Charles E. Clark, faculty athletics representative at East Tennessee State University, to select a committee to respond to schools that have indicated an interest in joining the league.

Hart said the league, which will consist of eight teams after Davidson College officially withdraws August 1, is not interested in expanding. The conference, however, does not want to be "caught short" if another school suddenly decides to drop out, he said.

"As far as expansion, there are schools and institutions that are making overtures," Hart said. "The athletics directors felt a committee should be put together to respond to these schools."

Big Sky

The Big Sky Conference put the finishing touches on its merger with the women's Mountain West Athletic Conference and changed the format of its postseason men's basketball tournament during its recent meeting in Boise, Idaho.

All nine Big Sky member schools will field teams in men's and women's sports during the 1988-89 year and will compete for three new all-sports trophies, in accordance with plans approved during the meeting of league presidents, faculty athletics representatives and athletics directors. Trophies will be awarded for men's competition and women's competition, as well as for the best combined showing.

"We look forward to working with the women administrators, coaches and student-athletes," said Ronald D. Stephenson, Big Sky Conference commissioner. "The merger is the result of several years of hard work and compromise on the part of many people in both conferences."

Joining the Big Sky office staff in July will be Mountain West Commissioner Sharon M. Holmberg, who will serve as Big Sky cocommissioner, and staff assistant Dale Kile.

Men and women will compete in six required championship sports. Men will compete in football, and women will compete in volleyball, while both will participate in championships in cross country, basketball, indoor track, tennis and outdoor track.

The conference also changed the representatives and athletics directors voted during their recent spring meeting to select the University of North Carolina, Charlotte, as host for the event for the first time since 1980.

Earlier, officials of the Atlantic Coast Conference announced that the Charlotte Coliseum will be the site of that league's 1990 and 1991 men's basketball tournaments.

The Sun Belt Conference also voted to hold its 1989 women's basketball tournament at Western Kentucky University.

Atlantic 10

The Atlantic 10 Conference announced an expanded television package for the 1988-89 men's basketball season during its recent spring meeting in North Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

The conference will add a package of weeknight games to the Sunday "game of the week" it already offers. Creative Sports Marketing of Charlotte, North Carolina, will continue to represent the conference in its television and marketing efforts and will syndicate the televised games, said Ron Bertovich, Atlantic 10 commissioner.

"We are very proud of the progress we have made in the area of television," Bertovich said. "Creative Sports Marketing has done an excellent job representing us, and we look forward to the upcoming season."

League teams also are scheduled for appearances on the national television networks, and ESPN once again will televise the conference's championship game.

Conference officials also announced dates and sites for 11 of 12 1988-89 championships. However, the league's athletics directors decided to wait until later this summer to make a decision on the postseason men's basketball tournament.

Holleran at the front in war against drug abuse

By Bill Tanton
Baltimore Evening Sun

Tom Holleran, a 34-year-old, ruggedly handsome Fairfield, Connecticut, man, is one of those rare persons who leaves an indelible imprint wherever he goes.

As part of an NCAA-sponsored program, he spent a couple of days at Loyola College (Maryland), talking with that school's athletes about drugs.

"I'm not a drug counselor," explained Holleran. "I'm an interventionist. I know how to spot a kid who's having a problem with drugs or alcohol. I get him to the help he needs."

Tom Holleran

Don't colleges and universities have in-house drug-counseling services that could do the same thing? Of course, many of them do, but Tom Holleran understands the mentality of the drug abuser.

He knows that a well-known athlete on any campus is reluctant to walk into the drug clinic; he recognized by the secretaries and any other students who might happen to be there, and, in a sense, go public with a problem that is torturing him privately.

Holleran's service is confidential. And the youngsters he deals with respect him for one very good reason:

He has been there.

"I'm in the CIA—Catholic Irish Alcoholics," he was saying in the office of Thomas M. Brennan, Loyola's athletics director.

Considering the life he led until he was 27, Holleran is lucky to be alive.

"I was drunk for 10 years," he said flatly. "I had a $50-a-day cocaine habit. I snorted so much coke, I had to have two operations on my nose. In the bars, a lot of guys hurt their fists on my face."

Holleran said his wife didn't know it was possible to have carryout pizza brought home hot. By the time Tom got his home, it was ice cold.

"I'd buy the pizza and then spend an hour in a bar," he said. "When Domino's Pizza came along, that cut into my drinking time. I'd go out to walk the dog, and I'd be gone four hours."

The marriage lasted four months. "She was a smart little Irish girl—too smart to put up with that," Tom said. "She used to whack me on my knees with a frying pan when I'd come home drunk. To this day, I can't eat grilled cheese."

After Holleran straightened out, she took him back; and now they have two children, ages six and four. Since 1982, Tom has been doing drug consultation, mostly with college athletes.

"I have a contract with Iona College in New Rochelle, New York, and with Hartford University," he said. "Loyola College was the first

College officials criticized for ignoring underage drinking

By Justin Supon

"Head-turning" by college and university officials is a major factor in underage drinking by students on and off campus, members of a special Pennsylvania House committee said May 25.

The criticism of higher education leaders came at a news conference in Harrisburg to release a report containing the panel's findings and recommendations after a year-long investigation into drinking by underage college students.

"We feel that colleges have been derelict in their duties" to help enforce drinking laws, said Rep. Nicholas Colafella, D-Beaver, and chair of the Select Committee to Investigate Alcohol Abuse in Pennsylvania Institutions of Higher Education.

"We feel there has been a lot of head-turning," said Rep. Harold Mowery Jr., R-Cumberland. "College administrators in the past have not really taken a stand against college drinking."

Responding to the criticism, Gary Young, president of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities, said the committee's assessment was inaccurate.

"I do know that testimony presented to the committee documented the strenuous effort by colleges and universities to see that the laws of the commonwealth relating to alcoholic consumption are obeyed," Young said.

"There's nothing we're turning our backs on at all. But no one is omnipotent. No one can control things that occur off campus," Young said. "The problem's origins and impacts extend far beyond the campus."

The report recommends that a task force of health and education officials develop stricter and clearer alcohol policies for adoption by higher education institutions. Adoption of the policies would be required for accreditation.

The guidelines would establish penalties for violators, clarify the role of campus police in situations involving drug and alcohol, provide for mandatory courses on "responsible alcohol use" for freshman students, and require preventive and remedial counseling programs for problem drinkers.

Others recommendations include:

- Consolidating efforts by local police, tavern owners, alcohol distributors and higher education officials in college towns to crack down on off-campus drinking.

- Consideration by the legislature of increases in funds for local law enforcement officials now hard-pressed by limited staffs to enforce drinking laws.

- Clarifying what authority, if any, colleges have over fraternities and their activities.

- Banning advertisements in state publications for false identification cards and tightly monitoring alcohol-related advertisements in campus newspapers.

- Permitting campus officials to notify parents of a student's underage drinking violations.

- Notifying higher education institutions that they must have drug-prevention programs by 1990 or face losing Federal student aid.

About five in 10 women's athletics teams are coached by men

By Mike Recht

When Louisiana Tech University won its second NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship in April, the players faced another imposing task—the traditional ride on the shoulders for their coach.

Although Leon Barmore is smaller than some of his players, lifting him was no easy job, and his ride was brief. It may be a trend.

Collegiate women probably face more heavy celebrating in the future as more and more male coaches get into their game. Coaching probably is one of the few occupations in recent years in which females drastically have lost ground.

According to a study by two Brooklyn College teachers that was updated and released last winter, women coached 79.4 percent of women's collegiate basketball teams in 1977-78; that figure has dropped every year since, to 58.5 percent last season.

The study, by Vivian Acosta and Linda Jean Carpenter, showed that 90 percent of all women's athletics teams in college were coached by females in 1972; that figure now is 48.3 percent.

The number of coaching jobs for women's teams in all sports nationwide increased by 52 since 1987, but women did not get any of the positions, the study showed. They actually lost seven existing jobs.

Barmore coached high school boys for 10 years before joining Louisiana Tech. He was the first man to coach a women's basketball team to the NCAA title, but two of the four coaches in the 1988 Division I women's semifinals were men.

"The game (women's basketball) is getting more exposure," Barmore said. "Jobs are more valuable, the money is better."

The top coaches for women's teams make salaries comparable to the average for coaches of men's teams, he said. The big difference, he said, is women's coaches are not in demand to do shoe commercials and their own radio and television shows.

Oddly, the 1972 Title IX anti-discrimination law, which forced Federally funded schools to provide equal opportunity to female and male athletes, helped make coaching women more lucrative and prestigious.

At the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, a women's basketball power, the sports budget for women's athletics in 1972-73 was $20,000; this year, it approached $1.5 million.

Tennessee women's coach Pat Head Summitt was hired out of college in 1974 at age 22 to coach and teach, something no major men's program ever would consider. Now, she only coaches, and she is the assistant women's athletics director in one of the few Division I programs left in the country that separates men's and women's athletics.

The study showed that 90 percent of women's programs in 1972—most of them were separate from the men's programs—were administered by a woman; in 1988, the figure was 16 percent.

"When I first started out, we had physical education teachers coaching," Barmore said. "Those times are gone."

But some of the better men who coach women have been doing it for years, he said, and he doesn't think men who recently entered the field have taken jobs from good women coaches. "If they (women coaches) are not very good, they ought to worry," he said.

The study said a lack of qualified females is one reason for the low number of women coaches and administrators.

"We've grown so fast, there aren't enough experienced people to get the positions," said Nancy Rowe, women's basketball coach at Plymouth State College. "Maybe we'll see the number increase as more graduates get into the field."

More schools are encouraging women to enter coaching and sports administration programs. Colorado's Department of Education, for example, conducts leadership conferences, clinics and training sessions for women who want to be sports leaders.

The study said the "old boys' club" network—the tendency for male athletics directors to hire male coaches because they know more men in the field—is another major reason for the dwindling role of women leaders in women's athletics.

Other reasons cited included subconscious discrimination, women's unwillingness to coach and teach—a dual role expected less from men—and the unwillingness of women to travel and recruit.

"In the Division I market, you have to be able to relocate," said Cathy Sanborn, basketball coach at the University of New Hampshire.

The increased emphasis on winning has placed more importance on recruiting, which takes coaches away from home. Coaching also means night games and being away from home on weekends. These are difficult demands on women with families who still have responsibilities at home.

Acosta and Carpenter asked more than 300 male and female administrators of women's collegiate athletics programs if it was important that the number of female coaches had dramatically declined, and the majority said yes.

"I believe women need that female role model, whether as an assistant or head coach," Sanborn said.

Having a woman coach "lets young women see competent and confident women in positions of authority and power and decision-making," Acosta said. "If they don't see them, they almost feel they don't have a chance."

school to request me through the NCAA."

Said Brennan, the AD who brought Holleran to Loyola:

"The NCAA makes so much money through things like its basketball championship tournament—we're talking millions of dollars—that it looks for productive ways to spend the money besides just giving it to the participating schools and their conferences.

"We were given $1,500 for a speaker honorarium. We think this can do a tremendous amount of good."

Holleran came to Loyola for a day in February to indoctrinate the athletes. When that session was over, something happened that had never happened to him before.

An athlete came up to him and announced, "I want to get involved in this."

Holleran was flabbergasted.

"Hey, kids usually listen to what I say and they nod, and they take my card with my hotline number; or sometimes, they don't even listen. But this young man felt compelled to come forth and help me battle this problem."

The athlete was Mike Morrison, a junior all-conference basketball player, said by some to be the best player Loyola has had in a decade.

What prompted Morrison to volunteer?

"When my friend Leonard died," Morrison explained softly, "that got my attention. I could relate to Tom. I felt he was sincere."

Morrison's friend Leonard was Len Bias, the University of Maryland, College Park, basketball star who died of cocaine abuse 22 months ago.

Morrison had been a freshman at Northwestern High School in Hyattsville when Bias was a senior there. The two often played ball on the playground and socialized afterward, going out in a crowd for burgers and fries.

Morrison says Bias was "completely clean" when he traveled with him. He believes Bias was clean—period—until that fateful night of the coke party in the Maryland dorm.

Holleran doubts that.

"What happened to Bias was, he got some great coke," Holleran theorized. "The coke you get on the street is 10 percent pure—tops. The people who supplied him knew he was going in the NBA and was going to have a lot of money and access to other NBA players, so they got him some stuff that was maybe 28 to 40 percent. If your system is used to the weaker stuff, heavy ingestion of the 40 percent coke can kill you."

Kids, no matter how streetwise, have a hard time fooling Holleran. He learned their tricks long ago.

"A kid'll tell me he smokes a little pot," Tom said, "and I'll ask him if he uses coke. He might say no, he doesn't, and I'll look up his nose and ask him, 'Then why is there no hair growing up your nose?' The kid knows I'm on to him. But I'm not a cop. I'm there to get him to the help he needs."

Holleran has organized something called the Drug Education Athletic League to help not only college athletes but those in junior colleges and high schools. The honorary chairman is Greg Gumbel, sportscaster brother of NBC-TV's Bryant Gumbel.

"To have a terrific young man like Mike Morrison go to a high school," said Holleran, "and tell the athletes, 'Hey, look at me. I'm clean. I don't do drugs and I'm happy.' That will have a dramatic impact on kids. It can make them think they can stay clean and be a Division I player like him."

Holleran says the public needs to understand that drugs are not just an inner-city problem.

"We need to address the guy in the Peugeot who's going to law school," he said. "Drugs are everywhere, in every element of society."

Holleran's six-year-old daughter sent a poster with her father to Loyola. It said:

"Dear Loyola—Please listen to my daddy. Drugs hurt my family. We don't want them to hurt yours."

"That kid of mine," said Holleran, "she's seen kids in our house who have ended up in jail. She's seen kids who have died. Last year, my five associates and I sent 52 people away for treatment."

As much as Holleran loathes now what he once was, he feels good about the work he is doing today.

"I love my work," he said. "It's my life. When I see we've helped a kid, geez, I can't tell you how good that makes me feel."

And if one of the Loyola athletes he met should call his hotline number some night and say he needs help?

"I'll be down here the next morning," said Holleran.

Q How do concerns and suggestions from the membership actually become legislative proposals to annual or special NCAA Conventions?

A One way is for Convention proposals to be sponsored by six active member institutions per NCAA Constitution 7-1(b) and Bylaw 13-1(b). All other proposals are sponsored either by the NCAA Presidents Commission or the Council, usually after having been developed through the NCAA committee structure. When a single member institution contacts the NCAA legislative services department regarding a legislative proposal, the legislative services staff may identify the NCAA committee that is best suited to review the issue. For example, recruiting concerns would be reviewed by the NCAA Recruiting Committee. After review, the Recruiting Committee may make a recommendation to refer the issue to another committee for interpretation (e.g., the Legislation and Interpretations Committee) or to the NCAA Council for additional consideration. If any NCAA committee recommends that legislation be drafted, the legislative services staff is responsible for drafting the legislation. The draft of the proposed legislation then is reviewed by the sponsoring committee as well as by the NCAA Council. If the Council approves the proposed legislation, it will appear in the Convention Program as Council-sponsored legislation, with the involved committee cited in the information concerning the source of the proposal.

Medalist leads mom's Tulsa team to second crown in women's golf

Melissa McNamara captured individual honors with a 9-under-par 287 and led Tulsa to its second NCAA National Collegiate Women's Golf Championships team title at the May 25-28 tournament, which was hosted by New Mexico State.

McNamara, whose mother, Dale, coaches the Golden Hurricane, finished ahead of Duke's Jean Bartholomew and Evelyn Orley by two and three strokes, respectively, over the par-74, 6,277-yard University Golf Course.

Tulsa shot 1,175 in the team tournament to outdistance runners-up Georgia and Arizona State by seven strokes. The Golden Hurricane, led by McNamara's 4-under-par 70, set a course record in the final round with a 10-under-par 286.

"It's a rare moment to have your team play so great and have your daughter earn such an achievement," Dale McNamara said.

Tulsa's team play was aided by strong performances from junior Blue Kinnander, who tied for 20th place, and freshmen Kelly Robbins and Caryn Louw, who tied for 35th place.

McNamara, Tulsa's second individual champion in the seven-year history of the championships, attributed her victory to some sage advice from her mother/coach.

"Coach told us to play shot by shot," she said. "I've been told that since I was 10 years old. Maybe now I'm old enough to practice that."

Tulsa also won the team title in the first championships, conducted in 1982, and joined Florida as the only two-time team champions.

Georgia, ranked fourth entering the tournament, and pretournament favorite Arizona State tied for second with a 2-under-par team total of 1,182.

Florida finished nine strokes off the pace in fourth place at even par. Duke, despite a second-place finish by Bartholomew and a third-place finish by Orley, rounded out the top five team finishers.

Texas' Michiko Hattori carded the championships' lowest round with a 68 on the final day of the tournament.

Oklahoma State golfer wins, but UCLA takes team title

Oklahoma State tasted the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat at the 91st annual NCAA Division I Men's Golf Championships, hosted May 25-28 by Southern California.

The Cowboys, winners of the team title in five of the last 12 championships, fell three strokes short of defending their 1987 title but walked away with their third consecutive individual title thanks to E. J. Pfister's 3-under-par 68 over the par-71, 6,817-yard North Ranch Country Club golf course.

UCLA rallied on the final day of the tournament behind Brandt Jobe's 69 to win its first team title. The Bruins entered the final round in sixth place, 13 strokes behind Florida, which led after 54 holes. But UCLA charged to the top with a 3-over-par 287 in the final round to finish the tournament with a 40-over-par team total of 1,176.

Oklahoma and UTEP, which was forced to play almost the entire tournament with four golfers due to a shoulder injury to Kevin Gai early in the first round, tied Oklahoma State for second place with 1,179 team totals. UTEP had the final round's lowest score with a 2-under-par 282.

Florida finished fifth at 1,180, followed by Arizona (1,183), Georgia Tech (1,184), Georgia and South Carolina (1,186), and Arizona State (1,188).

Pfister shot rounds of 70-76-70-68 to become Oklahoma State's third straight titlist. Brian Watts, who finished in a tie for 57th, and Scott Verplank, who won the 1986 title, preceded Pfister to the individual title.

Temple's Kevin Kaminski provided one of the highlights of the tournament by scoring a hole-in-one on the 180-yard seventh hole. Kaminski used an 8-iron for his second career ace. His first was in the Atlantic 10 Conference tournament last fall.

Stanford men move indoors to claim tennis honors

Stanford moved out of the rain and into its ninth men's tennis team title, defeating Louisiana State in an indoor final.

Heavy rain at Georgia forced the teams indoors, where Dick Gould's Cardinal won four singles matches, then won a doubles contest to wrap up the 5-2 victory and clinch Stanford's seventh team crown in the last 12 seasons.

The Division I Men's Tennis Championships were held May 20-28.

"We played exceptionally well and have been real lucky this year to be healthy," said Gould, whose squad was not invited to the team tournament last season. "I have never been more proud of our guys."

The Cardinal bounced back this year with a team dominated by freshmen and sophomores. Freshman David Wheaton and sophomore Jeff Tarango, Stanford's top players, won their singles matches against Louisiana State and later teamed for the deciding doubles victory. Freshmen Martin Blackman and Glenn Solomon and sophomore Jeff Cathrall also played key roles for the Cardinal, with senior Patrick McEnroe providing leadership.

Counting Stanford's earlier victory in Division I women's competition, the school now has captured 14 tennis team crowns, matching Southern California's men's and women's total.

If Stanford dominated team play, Pacific-10 Conference rival UCLA made a bid for similar command of individual competition. The Bruins claimed three of four berths in the singles and doubles finals. In doubles, Patrick Galbraith and Brian Garrow defeated UCLA teammates Robert Bierens and Buff Farrow, 6-3, 6-2, for the school's 19th all-time individual title.

Pepperdine's Robby Weiss spoiled dreams of an individual sweep, however, defeating Garrow, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, in the singles final. It was the first singles crown for Pepperdine, which won doubles crowns in 1984 and

'Air-Gait,' record crowd push Syracuse to title

History—some made, some repeated—highlighted the Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship, won by host Syracuse May 30. The Orangemen defeated cross-state rival Cornell, 13-8, and picked up the school's second Division I lacrosse title in six years.

History was made a couple of ways during the semifinal and championship games. "Air-Gait" was one—actually two.

Twice during Syracuse's 11-10 semifinal victory over Pennsylvania, Orangemen Gary Gait took off from behind the Quaker goal and stuffed shots past goalie John Kanaras. "He made shots that have never been made before," Syracuse coach Roy Simmons Jr. said after the game. "I love imagination in my players. I give them that license."

The first "Air-Gait" established a new major-college record for goals in a season (66). Gait went on to eclipse the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association all-time mark (including nonvarsity competition) by finishing the year with 70. His 14 goals in the Division I tournament set a championship record.

History was repeated in the stands, where crowds established new NCAA championship and all-time attendance marks. More than 20,200 turned out for the Memorial Day final, eclipsing the tournament-record 17,253 who were on hand for the 1984 Syracuse-Johns Hopkins final at Delaware and the 19,850 who witnessed Hopkins' regular-season contest against Maryland in 1987.

Cornell goalie Paul Schimoler made a little history of his own with 85 saves in four games, a tournament record. And Syracuse became only the fifth team in the championship's 18-year history to win a second Division I title. The others are Johns Hopkins, North Carolina, Maryland and Cornell.

The Big Red outscored Virginia 6-2 in the second quarter of their semifinal match and took an 8-5 lead into half time. The Cavaliers never got within striking distance again, and Cornell breezed to a 17-6 triumph.

The nightcap, featuring Syracuse and Pennsylvania, spotlighted one of the seemingly patented scoring explosions that have characterized Simmons' squads. After ripping off five straight goals in the third quarter, the Orangemen watched a seemingly comfortable lead evaporate. Penn was ahead, 10-9, with a little more than 10 minutes to play. John Zulberti evened the score at the 12:01 mark, and teammate Paul Gait (Gary's brother) beat Kanaras with three seconds left to preserve Syracuse's perfect record and send the Orangemen into an all-upstate-New York final.

To clinch the title, Simmons' crew again pulled out all the scoring stops—this time, in the first half. Six unanswered goals in the second quarter proved to be the difference.

Cornell actually outscored Syracuse, 8-7, over the other three periods.

UCLA bounces back in final to claim fourth championship

Things did not go the way UCLA coach Sharron Backus predicted. But in the end, she was glad her forecast fell through.

Entering the final day of the Division I Women's Softball Championship, Backus said, "Historically, the winner of the first game on Sunday wins the championship, so we are looking to take that first one."

But Fresno State defeated UCLA, 2-1, in that game, forcing UCLA to come back with a 3-0 victory over Fresno State to claim the title.

The win earned UCLA its fourth championship in the seven-year history of the tournament. This year's action, held May 25-29 at Twin Creeks Sports Complex in Sunnyvale, California, was hosted by California.

The championship game was scoreless until the fourth inning, when the Bruins' Stacy Sunny and Lorraine Maynez scored on Janice Parks' double to the center field fence.

The only other run of the game came in the seventh inning, after Monica Tourville, pinch hitting for Bea Chiaravanont, lined a single into center field. After reentering the game to run for Tourville, Chiaravanont advanced to second on a sacrifice by Kerry Dienelt and reached third on a sacrifice bunt by Lisa Hankerd. Shanna Flynn brought the run home with a single to right field.

Named to the all-tournament team were Sunny, catcher; Dienelt, first base; Missy Phillips, UCLA, second base; Julie Standerling, Arizona, third base; Heidi Lievens, Arizona, shortstop; Flynn, Marge Ogradowicz of Nebraska and Rae Ann Pifferini, Fresno State, outfield; Gena Strang and Karin Richter of Fresno State, at-large, and

Wisconsin-LaCrosse men complete Division III indoor-outdoor sweep

Wisconsin-LaCrosse, led by individual standout Terry Strouf, has taken its track and field success out into the sunshine.

The Indians, Division III men's indoor champions for the past two seasons, captured their first outdoor team championship May 25-28 at Northfield, Minnesota. Lincoln (Pennsylvania) was runner-up for the third straight season.

Strouf won the shot put and the discus throw, raising his total of individual titles in indoor and outdoor competition to eight.

Keith Dryden also captured an individual title for Wisconsin-LaCrosse, winning the high jump.

The leading performer at the meet, however, was Simpson's Kip Janvrin, who became the first man to win three individual titles in a season in Division III. Janvrin won the decathlon for the third straight year and added championships in the pole vault and the 400-meter hurdles.

The only meet record was set by Frostburg State's Raymond Toppins, who sailed 15.67 meters (51-5) in the triple jump.

Mark Spangler of Susquehanna won his third straight title in the 400 meters. Also repeating were Steven Terry of Frostburg State in the 100 meters and Lincoln's 1,600-meter relay team.

Christopher Newport women take second consecutive outdoor title

Christopher Newport maintained its dominance in Division III women's track by winning the NCAA outdoor team title with the highest point total since a new scoring system went into effect in 1985.

The Lady Captains have won two straight outdoor meets, in addition to this year's indoor championship.

The Division III Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships were held May 25-28 at Northfield, Minnesota.

Coach Vince Brown's Lady Captains, who outdistanced runner-up Massachusetts-Boston by 29 points, were led by Sandy Shelton and Sheila Trice. Shelton won the long jump, finished third in the 400 meters and ran a leg on Christopher Newport's winning 400-meter relay team. Trice also was part of the relay victory, in addition to winning in the 100 meters and placing second in the long jump.

Meg White of Smith was the only double winner, taking individual crowns in the 5,000 and 10,000 meters.

Genesis Eddins of Massachusetts-Boston was another individual standout, breaking her own meet record in the 400 meters and anchoring the Beacons' record-breaking 1,600-meter relay team.

Carol Ross and Melanie Herrera of Augsburg also set meet records in the 400-meter hurdles and the shot put, respectively.

Late single lifts Florida Southern

Fernando Arguelles singled home the winning run in the bottom of the 12th inning to give Florida Southern a 5-4 victory over Cal State Sacramento May 31 in the title game of the Division II Baseball Championship, played in Montgomery, Alabama.

It was the seventh Division II baseball championship for the Moccasins and their third of the 1980s.

"After the year I had, I knew the Lord was with me tonight," said Arguelles, who hit .281 his senior year for the lowest season average of his collegiate career.

Arguelles was the only starter left from the Moccasins' last championship team, in 1985.

"I wanted this one not just for myself," said Arguelles. "I wanted it more for the guys who had never been here."

Florida Southern opened with two runs in the first inning off Cal State Sacramento ace Erik Bennett, who had topped Jacksonville State, 3-0, in his first tournament start. Chris Leach, who was voted the most outstanding player of the tournament, led off with a single and scored on Chris Allen's double. Allen advanced and scored on two wild pitches by Bennett.

After Bennett allowed a single and a walk to start the second, Mike Frame came out of the bullpen for the Hornets. He would have escaped the jam, but a two-out throwing error by third baseman Steve Hansen permitted an unearned run.

Cal State Sacramento roughed up Moccasin starter Brock Witmyer in the third inning. Guillermo Roses doubled, Brian Hewitt walked and Mike Ripplinger hit a 350-foot drive over the wall in left.

However, when the ball bounced off the scoreboard and back onto the field, Hewitt held up and was passed by Ripplinger, who was called out. Two runs did score, though, as the Hornets cut the Florida Southern lead to 3-2.

Cal State Sacramento knocked Witmyer out of the game in the third inning when Hansen singled home Mike Brackins, who had doubled off the center field wall.

Florida Southern went ahead 4-3 in the sixth inning, when Bob LeFebre scored from third on a wild pitch by Frame.

The Hornets fought back once again. Lorenzo Lesky led off the seventh inning with a double, went to third on a fielder's choice and scored on Tim Taber's ground ball to second base.

LeFebre led off the 12th inning with a walk and advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt by Chasey. Then Arguelles, who hit only .200 in the tournament, drilled an 0-1 pitch in front of right fielder Quinn Gregory, whose throw was too late to nip LeFebre sliding head first across home plate.

"This is one of the greatest college baseball games I've ever been involved in," said Moccasin coach Chuck Anderson.

Joining Leach on the all-tournament team were four Moccasin teammates: second baseman Billy Miller, third baseman Allen, left fielder LeFebre and pitcher James Hurst. Cal State Sacramento landed four players on the team: first baseman Brackins, right fielder Mark Gieseke, catcher Taber and pitcher Bennett. Shortstop Tyler Smith and designated hitter Scott Pickands of Lewis also were named to the squad.

Complete results from the Division II Baseball Championship will be published in the June 8 issue of The NCAA News.

Delaware to allow freshmen to compete in varsity football

The University of Delaware board of trustees has approved a recommendation to allow freshmen to be eligible for varsity football this coming season.

At the same time, the board is requiring that an "academic safety net for freshmen" be developed to insure progress toward graduation. The board also reaffirmed the practice of allowing football to be funded at the NCAA grant-in-aid equivalency maximum of 70 for Division I-AA.

Delaware has not allowed freshmen to compete on the varsity level despite a 1972 NCAA Convention vote allowing such action. The existing freshman football program and schedule will be discontinued.

Athletics director Edgar N. Johnson said the school's ban on freshmen in varsity football was adopted when the program was a Division II independent. Now, Delaware competes in the Yankee Conference, and it is believed the recent board of trustees action will make the program more competitive.

"We feel that as members of a conference, we should conduct our football program in full compliance with the conference's rules of operation. As the other eight members of the league do allow freshman participation at a varsity level, we feel it is appropriate to do so at Delaware," Johnson said.

The recommendations for an "academic safety net" call for the development of group tutorial sessions, mandated academic-support classes for students determined to be at academic risk and individual tutorials where necessary. The academic progress of freshman student-athletes will be monitored and reported to the athletics governing board and eventually to the trustees.

The school appointed Janice N. Jordan as athletics student-services coordinator last October in laying the groundwork for the freshman academic program. Her responsibilities also include providing academetic and counseling assistance to the school's approximately 700 student-athletes.

Peach payoff up

The record $1.6 million payoff for the 1987 Peach Bowl, with $800,000 apiece going to the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and Indiana University, Bloomington, has raised Atlanta's collegiate post-season football highlight to eighth position, Peach Bowl Chair Ira Hefter has announced.

When the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce assumed management of the Peach Bowl in mid-1986, the previous pay-out ranking was 16th among the 18 NCAA postseason bowl games played each year.

The 1987 Peach Bowl was the second consecutive sellout for the 20-year-old event and was the earliest sellout ever. Game-day attendance of 58,737 was the highest for the bowl.

NCAA ends Tennessee probation, denies South Carolina bid

The NCAA has terminated the probationary period imposed upon the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, in October 1986 for violations in football.

In other action, the Association's Committee on Infractions declined to rescind the second year of a two-year probation against the University of South Carolina men's basketball program.

In October 1987, the NCAA announced that the one-year penalty period for Tennessee would be extended until published reports of possible additional violations and allegations of a possible cover-up in the university's 1986 investigation were reviewed by the NCAA.

The NCAA's inquiries primarily focused on the charge that the university misled the NCAA or provided false information to the NCAA in 1986 and on a charge that certain football coaching staff members were involved directly in serious violations.

The NCAA was successful in identifying the unnamed source for the published charges of a cover-up, but the individual declined to make similar statements to the NCAA, even on a confidential basis. The remaining allegations were unsustainable, outside the NCAA's four-year statute of limitations, considered previously in the NCAA's 1986 infractions case or consistent with the nature of the original violations found by the NCAA.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions therefore voted that the university's probationary period be terminated immediately and that the university be restored to full rights and privileges of NCAA membership.

The South Carolina decision does not affect postseason play. The Gamecocks are scheduled to come off probation before the 1988-89 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

The school was placed on probation in March 1987 for violations that occurred during former coach Bill Foster's tenure.

The request to rescind was rejected because a compliance program proposed by school officials was not fully implemented.

Then athletics director Robert K. Marcum told the NCAA that South Carolina would create a full-time compliance officer and job-monitoring program. He also proposed that coaches name individuals who receive complimentary season tickets, that the school inform car dealers of NCAA rules on car use, and that the school hold individual and group counseling on NCAA rules for players and coaches.

Marcum was released by school President James B. Holderman earlier this year over problems in the drug testing of athletes.

Dick Bestwick, current athletics director, said, "Since it's my understanding that sanctions have never been lifted, we're at least doing something right."

"We're doing everything in our power to meet NCAA rules. I see no problem," Bestwick said.

The NCAA committee said the refusal was not meant to condemn the school.

"It was intended to be positive. Even though they remain on probation, the committee believes they're headed in the right direction," the report said.

The committee said that, while applauding efforts to move in a correct direction, it simply wants to watch the direction of the program.

Texas official recommends grand jury probe at SMU

The Texas attorney general said May 25 that he has recommended a grand jury investigation of possible criminal wrongdoing in the Southern Methodist University pay-for-play football situation.

Jim Mattox's office delivered a criminal complaint to the office of Dallas County District Attorney John Vance May 24 outlining the attorney general's investigation into possible criminal activity in the SMU case.

Mattox said in Austin that he and his investigators "believe that there has been a violation" and want the grand jury to investigate payments to former SMU football players and athletics department officials, United Press International reported.

Ted Steinke, head of the district attorney's organized-crime division, said he was studying the report to determine whether the case should go to a grand jury.

Mattox's office in December began to investigate the football program at SMU, which resulted in a two-year suspension of the Mustangs' football program and the most severe penalties handed down by the NCAA.

The attorney general last year said he was looking into the possibility that $10,000 in university funds might have been stolen or misappropriated.

Mattox's investigation began after a critical report was issued by a committee of United Methodist Church bishops on SMU, which involved a booster-operated slush fund for players.

Payments were continued with the knowledge of SMU officials, including Texas Gov. William P. Clements.

The bishops also disclosed that SMU spent more than $860,000 to pay off the contracts of athletics director Bob Hitch, football coach Bobby Collins and assistant athletics director Henry Lee Parker, all of whom resigned when the NCAA rules violations became public.

Rawlings will stop making helmets

The Rawlings Sporting Goods Co. announced May 25 that it will no longer manufacture, sell or distribute competitive football helmets.

The company, which has been making football equipment for more than 80 years, said it will produce only noncompetitive replica helmets for retail sale and will not accept new orders for competitive helmets after June 1.

In a statement, the company said it has spent more than $1 million since 1977 in efforts to improve helmet safety, as well as incurring incremental insurance costs totalling nearly $7 million. It said it can no longer financially justify making competitive helmets.

Rawlings' departure leaves only two companies still making competitive football helmets.

Leon Bennett, SMU's vice-president for legal affairs, said in a statement that SMU officials have not reviewed the information forwarded to the district attorney's office but pledged support for the investigation.

Teacher unions pose no threat to school reform, study says

Teacher unions have not been a major obstacle to school reform, according to a study commissioned by the Education Department that contradicts frequent charges made by Education Secretary William Bennett.

A Rand Corp. study said rank-and-file teachers do not want their unions to forsake such "traditional bread-and-butter items" as class size and the length of the school day in negotiating new contracts.

But it said they generally are willing to accommodate efforts to make teachers more professional and to improve the quality of their instruction, such as career ladders and other forms of performance-based pay, as long as they are not at the expense of the bread-and-butter improvements, the Associated Press reported.

"If past experience is any indicator, rank-and-file teachers will not support such trade-offs," according to the study, "Teacher Unions and Educational Reform," which was funded by the Department of Education's Office for Educational Research and Improvement.

Bennett has charged repeatedly that obstructionist unions are the major obstacle to improving America's schools. Last month, in his own report, "American Education: Making It Work," Bennett said "sound education reforms are threatened by the determined opposition they elicit" from those who claim that fixing the schools "will first require a fortune in new funding."

"Almost without fail, wherever a worthwhile school proposal or legislative initiative is under consideration, those with a vested interest in the educational status quo will use political muscle to block reform," Bennett said.

Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the National Education Association teachers union, said, "It (the Rand study) supports what we've been saying, that we're working to try to improve schools. In order to have quality education, we must have well-paid teachers.... We don't apologize for the bread and butter."

The Rand researchers did not mention Bennett by name, but said, "Despite charges to the contrary, teacher unions have not been a major obstacle to educational reform."

Instead, they have tried to accommodate demands for reform, and local organizations lacked the resources to oppose reform policies," the study said.

It said the unions' "accommodation and acceptance was critical" to smooth implementation of school reforms. "If teacher unions had wanted to block reform policies, zona, California, Florida, Georgia, Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

In none of the six states "were teacher organizations a major obstacle to the enactment of reform legislation," it said. "The organizations had limited influence, particularly in the face of strong countervailing pressure from key politicians and members of the business community."

"In most of the states, the teacher organizations made a conscious decision to mute their opposition and to accommodate the policies espoused by others. They did not want to be viewed as intransigent or 'antireform.'"

In Florida and Pennsylvania, the National Education Association and American Federation of Teachers affiliates took divergent positions on some issues. But there also were differences within the same union across state lines.

"For example, the NEA affiliate in Arizona accepted the principle of peer evaluation, while the California affiliate rejected it," the report said.

"Instead, they have tried to accommodate demands for reform, even in those instances where a specific reform initiative has run counter to their organizational interests or has been at odds with the professional judgment of their members."

"even in those instances where a specific reform initiative has run counter to their organizational interests or has been at odds with the professional judgment of their members."

"In some cases, accommodation occurred by default because state they could probably have done so quite successfully in many local districts."

The researchers at Rand, a think-tank in Santa Monica, California, analyzed 151 teacher contracts reached from 1970 to 1985 and studied the reforms enacted in Ari-

SUNY system to establish athletics boards

The State University of New York Board of Trustees passed a resolution May 24 requiring 29 state-operated campuses to set up panels that will help shape athletics budgets and the scope of sports programs.

The board also voted to allow campuses to charge a separate fee every semester of not more than $30 per full-time student to fund intercollegiate athletics, United Press International reported.

The trustees also approved a "master plan" setting priorities for the state university system through 1992.

The plan will be sent to Gov.

Mario Cuomo and the state board of regents for review, officials said.

The trustees' approval of the optional athletics fee would give campuses greater flexibility to fund intercollegiate sports, officials said.

Sports at SUNY schools are financed by student activity fees, which also fund other extracurricular programs. If a campus adopted the new fee, the student activity fee no longer would be used to pay for intercollegiate sports.

J. Norman Hostetter, SUNY associate vice-chancellor for student affairs, said the new board of athletics control will operate under guidelines approved May 24 by the state university trustees.

The new athletics boards are meant to streamline decision-making about intercollegiate sports by bringing student, athletics department and administration representatives together on one panel, Hostetter said.

He said the boards will assure that campuses are in compliance with NCAA rules and will work to provide recommendations to campus presidents on such matters as sports budgets, the number of teams and the scope of athletics programs.

Binghamton

STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

DIRECTOR OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND ATHLETICS

The State University of New York at Binghamton invites nominations and applications for the position of Director of Physical Education and Athletics. This is a senior administrative position, with a calendar-year (12-month) obligation. The Director is a member of the Council of Deans and reports to the Vice President for Academic Affairs & Provost. Salary will be competitive based on qualifications and experience.

The Director provides creative leadership in instructional programs, both credit-bearing and non-credit-bearing; intercollegiate athletics; intramural sports; and recreational programs. The Director must plan and manage the budget; develop new budgetary resources; supervise, coordinate and evaluate activities of personnel; uphold standards and regulations of athletics governing associations; and work with the local community. The position requires extensive knowledge of the range of policy issues involved with the management of an intercollegiate athletics program at a selective university which emphasizes academic excellence. Personal and professional collegiality and an attitude which places athletics in an academic context are of paramount importance. The University is committed to equal opportunity for student-athletes.

Qualifications:

Qualified candidates should have an advanced degree (Master's or Doctorate) from an accredited college or university, and preferably a minimum of five years of successful and relevant experience in a college or university administrative position. This experience will reflect the ability to balance the needs of instructional programs, intercollegiate athletics, and intramurals and recreation, along with the interests of campus and off-campus constituencies.

The University:

SUNY-Binghamton is one of the four University Centers of the State University of New York, with an enrollment of over 12,000 students. The Department, consisting of 16 FTE faculty, 5 FTE administrative and support staff, and several adjunct faculty and coaches, offers credit-bearing courses in fulfillment of undergraduate physical education requirements, non-credit courses, intercollegiate athletics programs at Division III levels in ten men's sports and nine women's sports, intramural programs in which several thousand students participate annually, and recreational programs for the University and the community.

Applications:

Completed applications should include a curriculum vitae; the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of at least three references; and a letter describing pertinent administrative experience and professional goals.

Nominations and applications should be sent to:

Professor Larry Wells, Chair
Search Committee, Director of Physical Education and Athletics
c/o Office of Academic Affairs
SUNY-Binghamton
Binghamton, NY 13901

The search will continue until a suitable candidate is found; however, the Search Committee will begin screening application materials July 15, 1988. The appointment date is negotiable.

SUNY-Binghamton is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

Golf coaches to honor top coach with Williams award

The Golf Coaches Association of America has named its annual award to the nation's outstanding college coach in honor of former University of Houston coach Dave Williams.

"Dave Williams has meant more to the development of college golf than any other coach in the country," said Doug Gordin, golf coach at Georgia Southern College and president of the coaches' group. "When we were thinking of naming this award after someone, only one name came to mind—Dave Williams."

Williams, who retired in 1987 after leading the Cougars to 16 NCAA team titles, called the decision "one of the greatest honors anyone can bestow on another... having an award named after you by your peers. This is the greatest honor I could have."

Novian L. Whitsitt has been named recipient of the second annual Pacific-10 Conference Administrative Fellowship. Executive Director Thomas C. Hansen announced May 19. The administrative fellowship was instituted by the Pac-10 in 1987 to recruit annually a qualified minority candidate with an interest in a career in intercollegiate athletics administration.

Whitsitt, 22, recently graduated from Stanford University with a degree in international relations. He compiled a 3.420 grade-point average (4.000 scale) and spent two quarters studying in France. A guard on the Cardinal basketball team, Whitsitt earned four varsity letters and captained the team as a senior.

He will spend a year in the league office and receive training in conference management, administration of sports programs and championships, business and finance, compliance and eligibility, and public relations and promotions.

Davidson College men's basketball coach Bobby Hussey saw two familiar faces when he was wheeled into the operating room at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte, North Carolina, recently for surgery. Hussey had bone spurs removed from his neck by Dr. Frederick Finger, and arthroscopic surgery on a knee was performed by Dr. Glenn Perry.

Finger played basketball for Hussey at Kings Mountain High School in the early 1970s, and Perry is one of Davidson's team doctors.

Two Pan American University men's tennis players have distinguished themselves off the court.

Antonio Fink recently captured "best in show" honors at the university's student art exhibit for a work in gold, bronze, ceramics and photography.

Teammate Udo Graf, a physics major who skipped his senior season to concentrate on classes, has been accepted for a doctoral program in nuclear physics at Texas A&M University. "Anyone who thinks of college athletes as stereotypes ought to meet Udo Graf," said Bruce Erickson, Pan American's director of public information.

Two athletics directors at Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference schools go way back. Dick Bestwick, AD at the University of South Carolina, grew up in Grove City, Pennsylvania. As a youngster, he baby-sat a neighbor's toddler—David Braine, now AD at Virginia Polytechnic University.

Carl Krein, athletics trainer at Central Connecticut State University, has been chosen by the National Athletic Trainers Association (NATA) to receive its highest honor, the Sayers "Bud" Miller Distinguished Athletic Training Educator Award. He will receive the award June 12 in Baltimore, during the NATA's annual meeting and clinical symposium.

Krein has been at Central Connecticut State since 1966. Currently a full professor, he teaches in the department of physical education and health fitness studies. He is credited with the development and management of the academic and clinical aspects of the school's athletics training curriculum.

University of North Carolina, Wilmington, swimming coach Dave Allen left May 23 for a five-week visit to Turkey. He is part of the U.S. Information Service's Sports America program, a State Department venture aimed at promoting harmony with other countries through athletics competition.

Allen, who will give clinics and seminars on various aspects of competitive swimming, has been at North Carolina-Wilmington for 10 years.

Trivia Time: What is the NCAA all-divisions record for most innings pitched in a postseason softball tournament? Answer later.

So many of the terms associated with golf and baseball are similar, University of Maine, Farmington, student-athlete Jon Ladd probably gets confused from time to time. At least one would expect that, considering that Ladd is the school's top performer in both of those spring sports.

His drives off the tee helped the junior produce a 76.5-stroke average, good enough to lead the team. He teed off at the plate too, driving in 22 runs with 34 hits in 74 at-bats (.459 average), including six home runs.

Joining Ladd in this golf-baseball spring were sophomore Mike Ridley and senior Bob Myers, both pretty good pitchers in either sport. Ridley went 4-0 with a 4.56 earned-run average, and he produced an 82.6-stroke average on the links. Myers had a 79.4-stroke average and carried a good swing to baseball, where the hurler got a hit in his only at-bat of the season.

Kenneth A. Free, commissioner of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, will be "roasted" by friends June 11 in Greensboro, North Carolina. Currently a member of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee, Free became the MEAC's first full-time commissioner in 1978.

More Truth in Reporting: From Jim McKone, Pan American University sports information director, comes the following item in his Bronc Diary:

"Was it worth it to write the Bronc Diary for 240 straight days, seven a week for eight months? The answer is no. The Bronc Diary was done as a labor of love, to give Pan American University sports more recognition.

"As every newspaperman knows, (you) write 100 stories and nobody remembers. Write one word that offends someone, no matter how insignificant, and everyone remembers."

McKone went on to thank the sports staff at the Valley Morning Star in Harlingen, Texas, which used the Bronc Diary daily for eight months.

Johns Hopkins University's baseball team left May 28 for a series of exhibition games and clinics in the Soviet Union. The Blue Jays are the first American team to play the national pastime in Moscow.

Boston University has announced that ESPN has been named winner of the 1988 Murray Kramer/Scarlet Quill Award, which was given during the university's hall of fame banquet May 21.

Named for the school's first sports information director, the award annually honors a sportswriter, columnist, cartoonist or organization for outstanding coverage of intercollegiate athletics.

More Report Cards: Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference Commissioner Don J. DiJulia has announced that 265 of member institutions' 273 senior student-athletes—97 percent—will graduate this spring. "Our schools are properly focused, balancing the scales of academics and athletics," DiJulia said, "and that is reflected in the fact that 97 percent of our fine student-athletes will graduate on time this spring."

Eight members of the Drake University women's track team and four women's softball players were named to the Gateway Conference Academic Honor Roll for earning a 3.200 (4.000 scale) grade-point average during fall 1987. Named were: track—Susan Benz, Kellie Cole, Joan De-Jaeghere, Sheil Haugh, Alicia Mundahl, Adrienne Pannier, Sherry Pinkley and Karla Zylstra; softball—Ellen Bauman, Bonnie Dellinger, Pam Pickett and Laura Zmrhal.

Among award winners at Farfield University's annual athletics awards banquet, held this year May 7, was Michele Menzo. The four-year starter for the women's softball team received the 1988 senior scholar-athlete award by maintaining a 3.580 GPA—highest among the school's senior student-athletes.

At Bentley College, distance runner Teresa Kittridge was named recipient of the 1987-88 Edward J. Powers Scholar-Athlete Award. She maintained a 3.180 GPA as a finance major.

Ohio Northern University's women's softball team had a good year with bats and books. The team won 19 of 30 games, and the cumulative GPA of the starting lineup was 3.390. Infielder and math major Corinne Schaeffer led the way with a 4.000.

The top students on each of the 15 varsity teams at the University of Illinois, Chicago, were honored recently during the school's second annual academic awards luncheon. Among the honorees were men's soccer player/accounting major Bill Kriedler and men's tennis player/teaching-of-sciences major Guillermo Lupi, each of whom posted perfect 5.000 GPAs for 1987-88.

Among outstanding student-athletes honored recently at Wartburg College were Kris Kuper and Art Sathoff. Kuper, who maintained a 3.852 GPA (4.000 scale) in biology, played women's volleyball and softball. She won the Voecks Award, named in honor of a former chair of the college's board of regents. Sathoff, a basketball player, posted a 3.860 GPA in English. He received the Chellevold Award, named after the late John Chellevold, who served Wartburg for nearly 40 years as dean of faculty and chair of the math department.

South Dakota State University distance runner Christy Young, with a 4.000 GPA in commercial economics, heads the list of at-large all-academic selections announced May 22 by the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. The cumulative GPA of the 14 student-athletes named was 3.549.

Andrea Bonny, a diver at the University of Notre Dame, and Tom Mick, a member of the Irish men's track team, have been named recipients of the university's Byron Kanaley Award. It is given annually to the top male and female monogram athletes considered by the faculty board in control of athletics to be the most exemplary as students and leaders. Bonny and Mick are Rhodes Scholar candidates. She will graduate with a degree in microbiology, and he will earn a degree in preprofessional studies and plans to enroll in medical school this fall.

Eastern Illinois University's women's volleyball team set school records last fall with a .758 winning percentage (25-8) and four tournament championships. The 12 members of the team also combined for a 3.380 GPA, and the 10 returning scholarship players combined for a 3.320 GPA this spring.

Mid-American Conference members honored 18 student-athletes recently by naming them conference scholar-athletes. Among the highest GPAs in the group were those belonging to Ball State University football player Ron Duncan (3.960 in chemistry/premedicine), Central Michigan University women's volleyball player Carol Mensinger (3.940 in accounting), Western Michigan University women's volleyball player Lynda McClean (3.930 in premedicine) and University of Toledo cross country runner Joel Johnston (3.910 in geology). The cumulative GPA of the group was 3.666.

More Report Cards: Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference officials have announced that 368 student-athletes from member schools have been named to the Gateway Academic Honor Roll for the fall 1987 semester. Among them, 50 posted perfect 4.000 grade-point averages. Also honored were 94 student-athletes named winners of the Presidents' All-Academic Award for maintaining career GPAs above 3.500. In addition, eight seniors won Presidents' Academic Excellence Awards for maintaining cumulative GPAs above 3.800. They are Sheri Rahm (track) and Cindy Ries (softball), Illinois State University; Lorna Eyink (track) and Barbara Malone (track), Indiana State University; Lori Rea (swimming), Southern Illinois University, Carbondale; Julie Warren (volleyball), Southwest Missouri State University; Teri Wiser (track), Western Illinois University and Shannah Biggin (softball), Wichita State University.

Iowa State University's academic recognition banquet took place May 9. It honored 97 student-athletes who achieved 3.000 GPAs (or higher) during at least one of the past two semesters at the school. Sixty-seven of the honorees earned 3.000s during both of those semesters.

Loyola College (Maryland) men's soccer student-athletes apparently get as big a kick out of class work as they do on-the-field competition. Senior John Karpovich and juniors Jeff Nattans and Billy Wilson were named to the athletics academic honor roll for fall 1987 with GPAs of 3.600, 3.900 and 3.500, respectively.

Columbia University's Varsity C Club has named seniors Mike Girouard and Kari Fraser outstanding male and female scholar-athletes. Girouard and Fraser posted GPAs of 4.065 and 4.009, respectively—on a 4.000 scale. "They maintained A averages," explained Bill Steinman, Columbia sports information director. "Although our grading system is based on the traditional 4.000 scale, students who earn an A in a course receive 4.250 quality points. So it is possible—and quite an honor—to exceed 4.000." Steinman recalled a former member of the men's crew team who had his GPA "spoiled" by an A. "He had all A's, but he got one A. He finished with a 4.240."

Trivia Answer: Texas A&M University's Shawn Andaya got a complete-game victory May 24, 1984, when the Aggies defeated Cal Poly Pomona, 1-0. And to do it, she pitched 25 innings—the most by any pitcher ever in NCAA postseason softball play.
