Likins' financial aid proposal to be on Convention agenda

The executive committee of the NCAA Presidents Commission has agreed to forward for action at the 1989 NCAA Convention the financial aid proposal developed by President Peter Likins of Lehigh University.

In its September meeting, the Presidents Commission approved the proposal in concept but authorized the Commission's executive committee to make the final decision regarding Commission sponsorship, as well as the details of the proposal, by the November 1 legislation-submission deadline.

In the interim, the proposal was reviewed by the NCAA Council in its October 10-12 meeting and by the Division I-A Directors Association in its October 18 meeting. The Council recommended that the proposal be developed further for submission at a future Convention, but 75 percent of the Division I-A ADs present and voting supported the proposal, with certain modifications.

The Commission executive committee decided October 24 to have the Commission sponsor the proposal for action in January, citing the support for the proposal by the Commission in September and by the athletics directors in October.

Essentially, the proposal would permit each division—and, in the future, each Division I subdivi-

Drug bill provides NYSP funding, raises penalty for steroid abuse

The 100th Congress has passed a $2.8 billion antidrug bill that authorizes increased funding for National Youth Sports Program drug education and prevention activities and increases the penalties for distributing anabolic steroids without a prescription.

Because of a deadlock between the Senate and the House on drug-testing issues, the final bill did not contain a House-passed provision mandating detailed standards for drug-testing laboratories.

Both the House and Senate versions of the drug bill had provided funding for the NYSP. The House provision, sponsored by House Education and Labor Committee Chair Augustus F. Hawkins, D-California, authorized appropriations of $15 million, $17 million and $20 million for the next three fiscal years for NYSP drug education and prevention activities.

The Senate provision, sponsored by Sen. John Chafee, R-Rhode Island, created a block-grant program to provide funding to states for a variety of community youth activity programs, with a five percent set-aside for "programs of national significance." The NYSP was the sole example of such a program specifically cited. Funding was authorized for five fiscal years, with amounts ranging from $2 million in fiscal year 1989 to $3.66 million in 1993 authorized for programs of national significance.

In negotiations between the two chambers, the House agreed to the Senate language with an amendment expressly authorizing funding

Congress enacts new rules for preferred-seating plans

Included in the technical-corrections tax bill passed by Congress October 21 was a provision authorizing deduction of 80 percent of a charitable contribution to an educational institution, where in return the donor receives the privilege of purchasing preferred seating at institutional athletics events.

The provision, which was actively sought by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, is retroactive to the beginning of 1984.

President Reagan is expected to sign the bill, according to Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, the NCAA's legal counsel in Washington, D.C.

The preferred-seating provision is designed to eliminate confusion created by two revenue rulings, issued in 1984 and 1986 by the Internal Revenue Service, taking the position that donors under pre-

Criticism of Manual prompts NCAA to plan revision project

By Timothy J. Lilley
Managing Editor, The NCAA News

Seven years ago, talk among staff members at the Association's national office began to include discussion of The NCAA Manual.

The quandary was attempting to reflect the dynamics of an organization whose services to its members had begun to explode into myriad new areas in a publication whose design and organization was proving unable to keep up.

At the time, Wilford S. Bailey, faculty athletics representative at Auburn University and a man active and knowledgeable in NCAA affairs, was a regular user of the Manual. In four years, he would begin service as the Association's secretary-treasurer and then its president, and he would be asked to chair a small special committee with an unquestionably large charge.

But that's getting ahead of this story. Bailey the Manual user, like many of his peers at hundreds of member institutions, had identified some general concerns about the publication.

"One of the most frequent (criticisms of the Manual) was difficulty in finding information on a specific regulatory area of NCAA legislation," he explained. "Another was the difficulty in being sure, having found some information on a given rule, that the user had all the regulations about that rule, because regulations sometimes were dispersed among constitution and bylaws and case book, and referenced back and forth.

"A third criticism," he continued, "was the difficulty in understanding the regulation, due in part to what has been characterized by some as excessive legal jargon or very long, complex sentences."

Shortly after assuming his duties as secretary-treasurer, Bailey visited Kansas City in February 1985 with then NCAA President John R. Davis of Oregon State University. Over dinner with then Executive Director Walter Byers, they learned that the national office staff had heard similar complaints about the Manual and that a review of the book had Delegates to the NCAA's 1989 Convention in San Francisco are expected to take action on adoption of a revised Manual—the most major revision of the Association's rules and regulations ever undertaken.

In this six-part series, The NCAA News presents a detailed report on the people and events that, in many ways, have transformed the Association's "bible" into an encyclopedia.

Revision a priority

"Revision of the NCAA Manual had been recognized as a high-priority program area," Bailey offered. "Jack Davis and I had gone to Kansas City to visit with Mr. Byers about (NCAA) program activities, and we talked at dinner about the work on the Manual by the law firm that was, at that time, at work (on the project)."

Initial national-office discussions of Manual revision had led to attempts during 1982 and 1983 to identify an individual to perform the task. For various reasons, those attempts proved fruitless.

Finally, as Bailey said, the Association's general legal counsel was asked to develop a reorganization of the constitution and bylaws. That was completed in 1985.

Several weeks after Davis and Bailey departed Kansas City, during the April 15-17, 1985, meeting of the NCAA Council, that group passed a summary position statement and a recommended program to enhance institutional integrity and compliance with intercollegiate athletics policies and rules.

"As an unrelated addendum," The NCAA News reported (April 25, 1985), "the NCAA president will appoint a Council subcommittee to consider possible 'deregulation' or moderation of some NCAA rules in some areas."

In June, the News carried the official announcement of the appointment and charge of the Special NCAA Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification. In July, the charge to the committee was expanded to include revision of the for "youth sports programs" at the state level, in addition to the national set-aside. According to Congressional staff members, the change is intended to make clear that programs such as the NYSP are eligible for both national and state funding under the new block-grant program.

The final bill expressly appropriates $3 million for NYSP drug-education and prevention activities in fiscal year 1989, which began October 1.

In addition, a maximum of $15 million is appropriated for the community youth activity block-grant program, of which five percent, or $750,000, is available for programs of national significance.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Massachusetts, a longstanding supporter of the NYSP, is the ranking minority member of the House Appropriations Committee and the Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, which has jurisdiction over appropriations for these programs.

Other sections of the omnibus bill increase to felony status the penalty for illegally distributing anabolic steroids and direct the comptroller general to conduct a study on the health consequences and extent of anabolic steroid and human growth hormone use among high school students, college students and adults.

Sen. Joseph Biden Jr., D-Delaware, the sponsor of these provisions in the Senate, cited abuse of anabolic steroids by athletes, and specifically college athletes, in his remarks explaining these provisions immediately prior to Senate passage of the final bill.

The drug bill provides penalties of up to three years' imprisonment and monetary fines for the distribution or possession with the intent to distribute of any anabolic steroid for any use in humans other than the treatment of disease pursuant to the order of a physician.

Where anabolic steroids are distributed to individuals under the age of 18, the maximum period of imprisonment is doubled to six years.

The effect of these provisions it to make it illegal not only to distribute anabolic steroids without a prescription, but also for a physician to prescribe them for any purpose other than for treatment of disease.

The comptroller general is to report to the Congress on the health consequences and extent of legal and illegal use of anabolic steroids by June 1, 1989.

By virtue of a last-minute deadlock between negotiators for the House and the Senate, the final bill contains no provision relating to drug testing. The impasse killed a provision in the House bill that would have created laboratory certification standards for the performance of toxicological urinalysis in private drug-testing programs, including athletics-related programs such as those operated by the NCAA and many member institutions.

As originally contemplated by the House, the certification standards would have been based "to the maximum extent practicable" on the already existing detailed guidelines for Federal workplace drug testing.

Review by NCAA representatives of these guidelines and certain other requirements of the House-passed bill indicated that application of the bill to athletics drug-testing programs would create a large number of problems or ambiguities clearly not considered at the time the House provision was drafted.

NCAA Washington representatives were successful in persuading key House personnel to offer amendments in the final negotiations with the Senate making clear that special recognition would be given to the requirements for drug-testing programs in amateur athletics.

This undertaking was complicated by concerns, expressed by a number of legislators or their staffs, about the present quality of laboratory testing in programs operated by educational institutions.

The certification provision, as proposed by the House to be amended, died as a result of failure of the two bodies to agree on drug-testing issues unrelated to the specific issue of laboratory certification standards.

According to NCAA Washington representatives, however, it is virtually certain that Congressional hearings will be held next year on athletics-related drug-testing and laboratory standards.

Two weeks before passage of the drug bill, Congress passed the Clinical Laboratories Improvement Act, a broad measure requiring certification of virtually all laboratories engaged in examination of materials from the human body for health-assessment purposes.

AMCU games to be on TV

Sportsvision cable network will televise 16 Association of Mid-Continent Universities games and five coaches' shows during the 1988-89 basketball season, conference Commissioner Jerry A. Ippoliti has announced.

The television package is the first of its kind for the AMCU, which enters its seventh season as a Division I conference and its second as an automatic qualifier for the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

Manual.

First meeting

The group met for the first time in September 1985, and the minutes of that gathering included a review of the following charges:

- Revision of the Manual format;
- Simplification of the Manual's wording, and
- Deregulation of appropriate NCAA legislation.

Appointed with Bailey, who was named to chair the special committee, were Clayton W. Chapman, Eastern College Athletic Conference; Prentice Gautt, Big Eight Conference; Donna A. Lopiano, University of Texas, Austin, and David Price, Pacific-10 Conference.

"In retrospect," Bailey said, "I have thought it would have been better to have changed the name (of the special committee) early on in our work. The original charge was deregulation and rules simplification, but it became obvious that we also should have responsibility for revising the Manual transferred to us from the law firm.

"Mr. Byers indicated in the appointment letter that it was hoped we could have the (Manual) revision with our deregulation/rules simplification proposals ready to go to the membership in January 1987.

'We were naive'

"When we first met, I guess we were quite naive, because we really didn't understand what we were going to ultimately unfold. When we started looking at revising the Manual, we came to the conclusion that we had to do major restructuring.

"We literally tore the Manual apart and put it back together in a more logical arrangement," Bailey explained. The Houston-based Andrus Group entered the scene at this point. "We had them (Sharon Andrus and her staff) put the existing Manual on computer," Bailey noted. "They then took every existing paragraph in the Manual and assigned it to what looked like the logical place or places.

In a number of instances, there were duplications—a certain rule could go in eligibility, awards/benefits or recruiting because these are interrelated." All of this took many hours.

"Developing the subject files and then developing, refining and fine-tuning a logical outline for a given subject before putting existing legislation into that took a tremendous amount of time," Bailey offered. "Having done that, we then attempted to develop appropriate rewording for certain areas of legislation to overcome some of the difficulty—real or perceived—in understanding the legislation."

Since its first meeting in September 1985, the group has convened almost monthly to continue the project. In addition, committee members sought advice and opinions from various constituencies within the membership.

Seeking input

"One of the things we did early on was to communicate with something like 30 to 40 NCAA committees and others, inviting suggestions specifically with regard to deregulation and rules simplification," Bailey recalled. "We had a meeting in Kansas City and invited representatives of various coaches associations to attend and offer their suggestions. And we used The NCAA News to solicit input from the membership."

The special committee has reported its progress to the Council at every meeting of the latter group since 1985. "We have spent most of our time over the past three years on revision of the Manual," Bailey added, "and in doing so, I believe we have greatly simplified the book and identified some areas for deregulation.

"Every major decision we made was guided by the principle that we wanted the (new) Manual to be of greatest possible value to the membership and to make it more easy for (the members) to understand."

As an example, Bailey outlined the logic used in reorganizing NCAA eligibility guidelines.

"In the case of eligibility, there is (in the current Manual) a lot of detailed regulation in the constitution. There also is detailed regulation in two different bylaws—Bylaw 4 on individual eligibility and Bylaw 5 on championships eligibility.

"Eligibility for in-season competition is the same as for championships competition," Bailey noted, "but the way the current Manual is constructed, it appears that they are completely different. You have individual eligibility and championships eligibility.

"Then," he continued, "you have to go over to the section on membership criteria to learn that, as a condition of membership, Divisions I, II and III members have to apply the same requirements for in-season eligibility as for championships eligibility...they are, then, one and the same.

Logical construction

"We took all of the regulations from the constitution and bylaws, and the case-book explanations, and put them together," he explained. "I believe that illustrates the logic of the construction of the revised Manual."

As work continued on Manual revision, Bailey said the special committee constantly obtained input from individuals in the membership.

"We have secured the assistance of 90 individuals in reviewing drafts of different articles of the constitution and bylaws," he noted.

"Every article in the revised Manual has been reviewed by from one to three or four people across the country, whom we identified as having particular interest, knowledge or experience in a given area. Plus, we had exhibits at the 1987 and 1988 Conventions. The special committee sought and got feedback from a very broad constituency representation."

Also reviewing the group's work have been members of the national office staff, including Associate Executive Directors Stephen R. Morgan and Ted C. Tow; Assistant Executive Director William B. Hunt; Director of Legislative Services Nancy L. Mitchell, who has served as staff liaison to the special committee, and Stephen A. Mallo-nee, legislative assistant.

NCAA Bylaw 1-2—Contacts with prospects and National Letter of Intent

NCAA Divisions I and II member institutions are reminded that in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(2)-(v), subsequent to the occasion of the National Letter of Intent signing, there shall be no limit on the number of contacts with a prospective student-athlete, the prospect's relatives or legal guardian by the institution with which the prospect has signed; however, such contacts must be consistent with the provisions of Bylaws 1-2-(a)-(2)-(ii), 1-2-(a)-(8), 1-2-(a)-(9), 1-2-(b), 1-2-(c), 1-2-(f) and 1-2-(g).

Further, inasmuch as a student-athlete who has signed a National Letter of Intent is considered a prospect until the student has enrolled in a full-time program of studies at the institution, all in-person contact with the prospect, the prospect's relatives or legal guardian shall be made by those institutional staff members who are allowed to recruit and scout off campus; in-person, off-campus contact by representatives of an institution's athletics interests is prohibited.

The NCAA Council has confirmed for Divisions I-A and I-AA football and Division I basketball only that the provisions of Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(2)-(ii) [once-a-week contact at the high school] continue to apply after a prospective student-athlete has signed a National Letter of Intent; once the contact period ends, a member of an institution's coaching staff is precluded from visiting the high school to contact a prospective student-athlete who has signed a National Letter of Intent. The Council also has confirmed that the provisions of Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(8) [48-hour "dead" period prior to the National Letter of Intent signing dates] permit an institutional staff member to write or telephone prospective student-athletes during such a "dead" period.

NCAA Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(2)-(vi)—Conference or institutional letter-of-intent program

NCAA Divisions I and II member institutions are reminded that in accordance with Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(2)-(vi), no member institution may participate in an institutional or conference athletics letter-of-intent program or issue an institutional or a conference financial aid agreement that involves a signing date in any sport that precedes the initial signing date for that sport in the National Letter of Intent Program.

The Council has affirmed that this legislation would not preclude the inclusion of an institutional or conference financial aid form as an enclosure in a normal mailing of the National Letter of Intent to a prospective student-athlete. Under such circumstances, it is understood that none of the forms enclosed in the normal National Letter of Intent mailing may be signed prior to the initial signing dates stipulated for the sport in the National Letter of Intent Program.

Additionally, NCAA Division I and Division II member institutions should note that the NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee has determined that Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(2)-(vi) would not preclude a member institution from participating in an institutional or a conference athletics letter-of-intent program or issuing an institutional or a conference financial aid agreement during the early signing period in the sport of basketball, regardless of whether the institution subscribes to the National Letter of Intent Program. Once the early signing period is completed, NCAA Divisions I and II member institutions would be precluded from participating in an institutional or a conference athletics letter-of-intent program or issuing an institutional or a conference financial aid agreement in the sport of basketball between the end of the early signing period of the National Letter of Intent (i.e., November 16, 1988) and the beginning of the regular signing period of the National Letter of Intent (i.e., April 12, 1989).

Court denies injunction against NCAA drug-testing program

The Superior Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has denied a request for a preliminary injunction against the NCAA drug-testing program that was sought by a student-athlete at Northeastern University.

David Bally was a junior at Northeastern when the action was filed last year.

The court held that the NCAA consent form required of student-athletes as part of the NCAA drug-testing procedure did not infringe on any rights of Bally. Additionally, the court said the consent form does not subject Bally to a search or seizure or violate his right to privacy.

The court also held that Bally's participation in intercollegiate sports

"is not a right protected by either the U.S. or Massachusetts constitutions."

In November 1986, Bally signed the NCAA consent form for drug testing. In January 1987, he filed an action against Northeastern challenging that institution's drug-testing program. Bally revoked his NCAA consent form May 12, 1987, and Northeastern declared him ineligible for intercollegiate athletics.

A Superior Court judge, however, held Northeastern's drug-testing program unlawful in a November 30, 1987, ruling. The school has appealed that decision.

A motion for a preliminary injunction against the NCAA was filed April 18, 1988.

The court held that "Bally will not suffer irreparable harm if the injunctive relief is denied. Bally waited nearly a year from the time his complaint was entered in the Superior Court until he moved for the preliminary injunction against the NCAA."

Superior Court Judge Charles M. Grabau said, "Bally has not convinced me that by requiring him to sign the consent form, the NCAA has infringed on any rights secured by the Massachusetts Civil Rights Act. The consent form by itself does not subject Bally to a search or seizure or violate his right to privacy.

"Neither is Bally's participation in intercollegiate sports, sponsored by a private university, a right protected or secured under the United States or Massachusetts constitution."

NCAA counsel John J. Kitchin called it a good decision for the NCAA and said he does not know if Bally intends to appeal the decision or seek a full trial.

Volleyball promotion planned

A press conference to promote the NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Championship December 15 and 17 in Minneapolis is scheduled November 2 at the Radisson University Hotel in Minneapolis.

The second annual NCAA Accent on Women's Volleyball press conference will feature coaches and players from the University of California, Los Angeles; University of Hawaii; University of Texas, Arlington; University of Illinois, Champaign, and University of Minnesota, Twin Cities. Those teams are ranked in the top 20 in the most recent NCAA poll. UCLA and Hawaii are ranked first and second.

The media are invited to attend the reception and luncheon from noon to 1:30 p.m. The press conference will follow.

New Orleans arena recommended as site for '91 women's tournament

The NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that the 10,000-seat University of New Orleans Lakefront Arena be the site of the semifinals and final of the 1991 Division I Women's Basketball Championship.

The women's basketball committee met in Tacoma, Washington, October 23-25.

"We are excited about the opportunity to go to New Orleans for the Division I women's championship," Judith R. Holland, chair of the committee and senior associate director of athletics at the University of California, Los Angeles, said. "The university has an experienced staff and terrific facilities. This site provides an outstanding opportunity for women's basketball."

The 1989 semifinals and final will be at the Tacoma Dome, which hosted those rounds last year. In 1990, the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, will host those sessions.

The committee will make recommendations for 1991 regional sites, and possibly for 1992 regional and championship sites, at its July 1989 meeting. A mailing on hosting championships will be sent to member institutions in January. Prior to the mailing, institutions may direct inquiries to Tricia Bork, NCAA assistant executive director for championships, at the national office.

At the 1989 NCAA Convention in San Francisco, the committee will conduct a seminar for individuals interested in staffing first- and second-round games. Details regarding the seminar will be forthcoming.

Also at its meeting, the committee reviewed the financial report of the 1988 championship.

Total paid attendance increased from 104,412 in 1987 to 122,165 in 1988, and ticket sales were up from 722,434 in 1987 to 795,811 last year. Gross receipts increased from $1,183,015 to $1,432,398.

Distributions to competing institutions also increased. In 1988, the distributions were $30,692 for championship semifinal and final participants, $23,018 for regional participants and $7,673 for first- and second-round participants. The distributions in 1987 were $11,376, $8,532 and $2,844, respectively.

In another action, the committee voted to forward any fines collected from noncompliance with attendance requirements for the regional women's basketball officiating clinics to the NCAA Foundation to assist with its scholarship program.

ferred-seating programs would be required to establish the value of the preferred-seating privilege and could deduct only the amount by which the donation exceeded that value.

Because of the difficulty of valuing the privilege and to eliminate valuation controversies, the legislation deems the privilege to buy preferred seats to be worth 20 percent of the amount paid and permits a charitable contribution deduction for the balance.

The statute makes clear that the allocation formula deals only with the privilege of buying preferred seats, not the purchase of the seats themselves. If in addition to the preferred-seating privilege the donor receives the tickets themselves in exchange for his contribution, the amount paid for the tickets must first be subtracted before the 20 percent-to-80 percent allocation is applied to the balance.

Thus, if in exchange for a gift of $500, an alumnus receives two preferred-location seats having a face value of $20 each, he would be entitled to a charitable deduction of $460 ($500 minus $40, or $460).

The provision does not affect the deductibility of charitable contributions to educational institutions other than in the context of preferred-seating programs.

The House report on the technical-corrections bill expresses the intent that institutions operating preferred-seating programs explain the new rules to program donors.

sion—to determine its own financial aid limitation. It would propose three alternative limitations: all aid based on need; "Basic Educational Expenses"—tuition, fees and books based on athletics ability, with all other aid (including room and board) based on need, or full athletics grants-in-aid as are currently permitted.

The 1989 Convention proposal, unless the details are changed before the November 1 deadline, would have Divisions I and II vote on legislation specifying that all athletically related aid would be limited to the "Basic Educational Expenses" alternative, but that up to five sports could be exempted: men's and women's basketball, football, and two other women's sports to be determined by each institution. In the exempted sports, full athletics grants would continue to be permissible.

Division III would vote on language affirming its current aid-based-on-need principle.

Among the changes in the proposal since it was reviewed by the Commission, the Council and the Division I-A Directors Association are these:

- Division I will vote as a whole on the limitation, because it will not be permissible for the Division I subdivisions to act separately until legislation permitting them to do so becomes effective. If adopted at the 1989 Convention, the implementing legislation would allow the Division I subdivisions to create their own limitations beginning at the 1990 Convention.

- The effective date will be 1990, rather than 1989, thus providing the membership another year to refine the legislation, if desired, before it becomes effective. It would be applicable to those students first entering member institutions in the fall term of 1990 and would not affect those already enrolled. In short, it would be phased in over a four-year period.

- The calculation of equivalency grants under the "BEE" system will be simplified.

- Instead of permitting need-based aid up to the cost of attendance at a given institution, the proposal will place a $1,600 cap on such aid. That change is based on a recommendation by the NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism and also was supported by the athletics directors' group.

NCAA to send videotapes on drug education to ADs

Athletics directors at member institutions soon will be receiving the Association's new set of drug-education videotapes.

Production of the videotapes for use by member institutions and conferences resulted from recommendations by the NCAA Drug Education Committee before it was absorbed into the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

The Drug Education Committee expressed a wish to emphasize the importance of education in the Association's overall drug-awareness program and to provide student-athletes with the right information to make decisions on the use of drugs.

The set of four video cassettes, titled "Drugs and the Collegiate Athlete," will be mailed early in November. The tapes address such topics as pressures and stresses on student-athletes, drug categories, effects of drug use on athletics performance, and prevention and intervention. Recommendations for presentation to student-athletes, along with other pertinent information, are included in a printed supplement.

The videotapes were produced by Centron Productions of Lawrence, Kansas, under the supervision of Raymond Tricker and David L. Cook of the University of Kansas. Tricker is the director of drug education at that institution and Cook is its director of sports psychology.

The production is narrated by Jim Nantz of CBS Sports.

The set also will be available for purchase by nonmembers at a cost of $39.95. Interested persons may contact James A. Marchiony, NCAA director of communications, at the national office.

The 21-year-old Anderson is the first collegiate athlete to receive the honor. Previous recipients of the award were former Washington Redskins coach Jack Pardee in 1986 and New York Giants player Karl Nelson in 1987.

Comment

Most I-A coaches reluctant to add 12th game

A sampling of Division I-A coaches by The NCAA News and other news media shows that a decided majority do not favor adding a 12th game to the college football season as has been proposed by their athletics directors.

The Division I-A Directors Association voted in favor of adding a 12th game during its October 17-19 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, with the stipulation that a 12th game not add to the length of the season.

"We already have 14 playing weeks during the football season," said J. Frank Broyles, chair of the directors association and athletics director at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville. "So we don't need to extend the season. Every school has an open date that could accommodate one more game."

Still, despite the need for more revenue in most I-A athletics programs, the coaches say they are against such a proposal because of added pressure on student-athletes, the possibility of additional injuries and the added detractor from academics that another game could entail.

Vincent J. Dooley, athletics director and head football coach at the University of Georgia, said, "I would be against a 12th game because I don't think it's proper to put that additional game pressure on the student-athletes and because we already have a large number of injuries.

"I would much rather explore ways to increase revenue, such as a one-game national championship play-off after the bowl games."

Pennsylvania State University coach Joseph V. Paterno said, flatly, "I'm against it."

"How can we talk about adding another regular-season game and continue to ignore the establishment of a Division I-A championship play-off?"

Paterno said he couldn't see justification for adding another game without authorizing incidental expense money for players, in addition to their grants-in-aid.

"I see it as another attempt to use football players to offset the problems some athletics directors have in supplying revenue for other sports," Paterno said.

Joseph V. Paterno

Other coaches said, like Paterno, they might favor adding a 12th game but only if it proved beneficial for their players in terms of monetary reward.

"I hope if they do this, they take the players into account. We continually ask more and more of the players and give them relatively less in return," said Tom Osborne, head coach at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

"We can certainly use extra dollars, but we know it does make for a longer season," Osborne said.

Bill Curry, athletics director and head coach at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, agreed with Osborne on helping the players.

"These guys are supposed to go to school; they're supposed to be excellent representatives of the university. They're supposed to show no signs of stress. They're supposed to have no social problems. It's unbelievable what we demand of them. I don't like adding more."

"I'll tell you this, if they would take the extra money and put it in the form of a stipend for the players to cover their expenses, then let's play. But if you're not going to give it to the players, then let's don't."

The University of Pittsburgh's Mike Gottfried said, "The only, and I emphasize only, way the addition of a 12th game would be acceptable to me is if all the revenues that result from the game were placed in a fund to benefit the players."

"One specific use of money in such a fund would be to purchase medical insurance to protect players who suffer career-threatening, or career-ending, football-related injuries while in college."

Jimmy Johnson of the University of Miami (Florida) said, "I am not for adding more games to the season. I am not for a 12th game. In fact, I think you'll find most coaches are opposed. You've got to remember that these are college students, not professional football players."

In citing his opposition to an extra game, West Virginia University's Don Nehlen said, "Just go down to our training room and look around. You'll see why."

University of Iowa coach Hayden Fry said, "Frankly, I'm not in favor of a 12th game when it sounds like we're just playing for the almighty dollar. I don't want to play another one just so we can give the money to sport X, Y, or Z."

"A bowl is the 12th game to me. It's a bonus, the reflection of an outstanding season. The young men need to be rewarded. The only way I'd favor a 12th game would be if we played a team like Hawaii that would help us from a recruiting standpoint. We'd want the game to appeal to the young men we're recruiting out of high school."

Jack Bicknell of Boston College also regards bowl games as a reward for the players, adding that a 12th game would make it a 13-game season for those who go on to post-season play.

"I think that is too much strain on the kids," he said. "It seems that we're starting earlier and earlier every season, and there's only so much contact a player can take," Bicknell said.

Hindering the possibility of a I-A play-off was a reason cited by Howard Schnellenberger of the University of Louisville for his opposition

Pell Grant issue causes confusion

To the Editor:

I have followed with considerable interest over the years the issue of maximum aid for student-athletes. Of all the considerations and discussions on this subject, the one that irritates me most is the constant and continuous misrepresentation by almost everyone that we (NCAA) are limiting the amount of Pell Grants that student-athletes may receive. I have read it stated that way incorrectly again in the lead story of the October 17, 1988, issue of The NCAA News.

We are badly misrepresenting this issue when we refer to "limitations on Pell Grants." Students are entitled to every dime of a Pell Grant that they qualify for. We are limiting the amount of grants-in-aid, and it should be discussed, printed and debated that way.

I, for one, have no problems with a student-athlete being allowed assistance up to the amount that the financial aid office computes as "cost of attendance" for that student rather than an arbitrary amount such as a grant plus $900 or a grant plus $1,400.

However, the issue should not be how much, but from what source?

We will not reach common agreement on this issue until we first realize that we are debating not what to do with Pell Grant money. We are debating how much grant-in-aid an athlete should receive based on athletics ability. A Pell Grant does not and should not have anything to do with athletics.

If, at Troy State, we wish to control the amount of aid an athlete receives, we do so by awarding less than tuition, books, room, board and fees and allow the student his or her full Pell Grant. That is required by law.

The problem on this issue is the Division I idea of a full grant, since any part of a grant must count as one in determining equivalencies for football and basketball.

With this thought, any moneys from the grant fund that are remaining due to less than a full grant's being awarded to some athletes (those that qualify for Pell) cannot be awarded to another athlete, because the number is 95 in Division I-A football regardless of whether you give a full or partial grant.

However, in Division II for all sports and Division I for sports other than football and basketball, giving less than a full grant to one athlete means you can give that remaining aid to another athlete as long as the total equivalencies do not exceed the allowable number.

In summary, the issues are as follows:

1. Are we trying to reduce the expenditures from the grants-in-aid fund?
2. Are we trying to increase the amount of money received by a student-athlete?
3. Are we trying to aid more athletes with the same dollars?

Regardless of these issues, remember, we are not limiting Pell Grant moneys. It is an entitlement and must be awarded to the student.

Tort reform needed to save football

Harry E. Figgie Jr., chair
Figgie International (Rawlings Sporting Goods)
The New York Times

"We must develop a national understanding that tort reform is the best way to stop the wild 'sue everybody in sight' philosophy of avaricious trial lawyers across the country...."

"Today, nobody is safe from becoming a defendant in a lawsuit, particularly in competitive sports. And unless something is done to reform the tort laws, the game of football will be gavelled into extinction."

"Lawyers go after equipment manufacturers, school systems, universities, coaches and medical personnel. The results are becoming apparent. School districts are dropping football programs as they struggle to meet their regular budgets without taking on the risks of litigation."

"It is not difficult to envision a domino effect. Colleges could eventually discontinue their football programs because of a declining player pool coming up from the high schools. And without top-notch talent coming up from the Division I colleges, it could be difficult for the National Football League to stay in business."

Barry Wilson, recruiting coordinator
Duke University
The Atlanta Journal & Constitution

"Because of many of today's NCAA regulations, a lot of colleges have to rely on film and videos for much of their recruiting."

"And the scary part of this new restructuring of the rules is the fact we — recruiters — are oftentimes having to make some very expensive decisions sight unseen. Here at Duke, for instance, a football grant-in-aid is worth about $75,000."

"Now with the rules the way they are, by the time we can leave campus to see a kid play in person, his season is over. This means we either have to rely on observing them on video or on seeing them in some other sport — basketball, baseball or track."

Dave Cox, assistant athletics director
Iowa State University
The Des Moines Register

"A drug-screening program isn't the only answer. It's just one method, one way. But we're proud we've taken this step."

"I'm very proud of the fact that our program is not based on fear. We try to look at the whole thing as positive; we want to create a sense of problem awareness and to deter athletes from misusing and abusing drugs."

"This is an epidemic social problem, and I'm proud of the fact that athletes are trying to do something about it. We're making an honest effort to get it under control, to stop as much of it as we can."

"... we never want to shut the door completely on anyone (who tests positive). We want to help, and I feel any screening program developed strictly to play cops and robbers, to catch someone, is wrong."

In-season tests for steroids needed

By Tim May
The Columbus Dispatch
Excerpted from a column

College football's importance in society has been out of whack for a while. But Ohio State's John Cooper knows how we could return everything to square one, at least in the realm of steroids in the sport.

"The week before a game, I pick 15 of your players and you pick 15 of mine, and we test 'em," Cooper said. "Anybody who tests positive can't play... You don't kick 'em off the squad, but that player can't play

With steroid ban, smaller players seen

The banning of anabolic steroids from the National Football League eventually may reduce the average size of the league's players, Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell says.

"Maybe (it will be) like it used to be," Modell said. "We didn't have 300-pounders. We had 250-pounders."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced October 25 that players who test positive for steroid use next year will be subject to the same discipline as cocaine and marijuana users. Second-time offenders are suspended for 30 days and third-time offenders for at least a year.

Steroids can help build muscle and improve an athlete's performance, but they also can have many negative side effects.

"Doctors didn't really realize the impact of it. They used to give it to players," Modell said. "You see those kids...with those big, bulging arms—that wasn't from weightlifting.

"Fortunately, the results are in for half the league, and it shows a six percent usage, which is an astonishing and very comforting thing."

Modell said he was unaware of any use of steroids by Browns players.

"All I know is I have not been told by any of our people that we have a problem on this ball club," Modell said. "And they would have to tell me if it came back, because it's required."

He said he doubted that football players could have masked the use of steroids when they were tested.

"I don't think we're that sophisticated," Modell said. "Steroids only recently have become verboten for the (football) player, and I don't think he has learned how to mask it."

Modell expressed support for random drug testing.

"The only thing that will save us on chemical abuse is unscheduled testing," he told the Associated Press.

as long as he's positive."

Some players would fall through the cracks. Some would test negative because they've learned how to beat the system.

But at least if the NCAA adopted such a policy, it would show it's trying to fight. It already tests select members of teams before bowl games.

Authorize the conferences to do their own testing. If a kid thinks it goes against his individual rights, fine. He doesn't play. Just like you can't have a driver's license if you don't take the test.

With the exception of a doctor's prescription in a rehabilitative setting, there's no excuse for a player having steroid residue in his system.

Yet, it's an ever-rising tide, according to Dr. Robert Murphy, Ohio State's team physician, who once chaired the NCAA's Drug Education Committee.

"I dare say you could go to any high school in the central Ohio area and find at least one player on every (football) team involved with these things," Murphy said. "It's a problem that's only getting bigger."

So step in and do something about it, guys. And let's hear none of this stuff about the costs being prohibitive.

Murphy said a steroid test runs about $125 per sample. That would be a tab—figuring 30 players a week—of $3,750 per game.

It's minimal, if the situation is as serious as people keep saying it is. The cost for seven officials usually runs more than $2,000. Just tack it on that column, under the heading "Urine Umpire."

Then, let the guy throw the flag.

League's ADs seek cutoff in partial-qualifier grants

Athletics directors of the Southwest Athletic Conference have voted to phase out over a four-year period grant-in-aid awards to partial qualifiers under NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j).

The conference ADs hope that the plan will be approved nationwide by the 1989 NCAA Convention in San Francisco.

The Southeastern Conference and the Colonial Athletic Association also have voted to gradually withdraw grants from partial qualifiers and are expected to seek NCAA Convention votes on the proposals.

The Southwest Conference proposal still must be approved by the conference's faculty athletics representatives, who are scheduled to meet in December.

"Everyone wants to strengthen academics," said J. Frank Broyles, athletics director at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville. "I think allowing fewer and fewer (partial qualifiers) over a period of years and then getting to none is the logical way. It will give high school students a chance to get adjusted," Broyles told The Dallas Morning News.

Southwest Conference officials said they still would approve the plan if the NCAA Convention does not adopt it.

All-Americas lead Tar Heels toward soccer title

Four returning all-Americas lead Anson Dorrance's North Carolina team, which will be going for its third consecutive Division I Women's Soccer Championship and its sixth title in the seven-year history of the tournament.

Junior Carla Werden and seniors Lori Henry, Wendy Gebauer and Berthe Hegstad are the returning all-Americas who have helped the Tar Heels achieve a 14-0-2 record this season. Werden, Henry, Gebauer and junior Shannon Higgins also are U.S. national team members, while Hegstad is a member of Norway's national team.

"Our defense this year is strong because of Carla and Lori," Dorrance said. "And we have a new goalkeeper this season in Merridee Proost."

A sophomore, Proost bested veteran Anne Sherow for the netminding job and has allowed only three goals in 14 games for a 0.21 goals-against average.

Meanwhile, North Carolina State's starting lineup consists of four freshmen, and four sophomores, including standouts Linda Hamilton (an all-America sweeper as a freshman) and Lindsay Brecher.

The two sophomores have keyed the Wolfpack's strong defense, which is largely responsible for a 16-1-2 record this season. Coach Larry Gross calls Hamilton "the most dominant defender in the United States. She's the glue that holds the team together."

After playing behind all-America goalie Barbara Wickstrand last season, Brecher has come into her own this year with only four goals allowed in 19 outings. "I remember the first big save I had to make," Brecher commented. "It was a test I had with myself. Was I ready to play at this level?

"When I made the save off an indirect kick, I felt a big sigh of relief. I had gained a lot of confidence," she added, "and I felt my teammates also had gained confidence in me."

Gross added, "There is no gutsier or harder-working athlete on our team. Time and again this season, she has risen to the occasion and gotten the job done."

Other standouts for the Wolfpack include senior midfielder Laura Kerrigan, a three-time all-America; team-leading scorer Charmaine Hooper (13 goals, seven assists), and sophomore Fabienne Gareau (11 goals, seven assists).

Massachusetts (13-1-1) has continued its winning ways under first-year coach Jim Rudy, who last year led his Central Florida team to the semifinals before falling to Massachusetts, 2-1.

A look at this year's leading scorers gives evidence of an emphasis on team scoring. Top scorer Michele Woodside has six goals and five assists; sophomore forward April Kater has seven goals, two assists, and Michelle Powers has added five goals and five assists.

"Our strength is that we're scoring from all over the field," Rudy explained. "We're doing so well this year because we have a team unity; everyone is working together."

Senior goalkeeper Carla DiSantis has allowed eight goals in 14 games and has tallied 10 shutouts. "Believe it or not," Rudy said, "Carla's getting better all the time. She wasn't tested much last year because the whole team was strong defensively. And we have faced some incredibly tough competition this year."

Colorado College's strategy this season has been to play teams that might make it to the championship tournament. And that strategy has worked for head coach Dang Pibulvech.

New Hampshire College ready for a run at men's soccer crown

With only four regular-season games remaining and the Division II Men's Soccer Championship approaching, New Hampshire College appeared ready for a strong postseason charge. The Penmen, under first-year head coach John Rootes, compiled a 17-0 record through October 26.

The team's efforts to that point were led by high scorers Ron Murphy, Jon Guppy and Ike Ofoje. Murphy, a senior all-America, had 16 goals and four assists for the season; Guppy scored 12 times and had three assists, and Ofoje had eight goals and 11 assists.

Senior captain Andy Toth and junior goalkeeper Trevor Holbrook have been defensive standouts. Holbrook allowed only four goals in 17 games for a 0.24 goals-against average.

"The whole team is strong," Rootes commented. "Since the team has real depth and scoring is spread out among the players, we don't really have a weak spot."

"And our five freshman starters have really made a difference. I was pleasantly surprised by their performances," Rootes added.

Missouri-St. Louis (15-2) returned several players from last year's third-place team, including stopper Scott Wibbenmeyer and goalkeeper Jeff Robben.

Wibbenmeyer, a senior all-America, scored six times in 17 games, including three game-winning goals. Robben, another senior on what coach Don Dallas terms "a senior-laden team," had a 0.71 goals-against average and eight shutouts.

Junior Warren Dey was the Rivermen's leading scorer with eight goals and four assists.

In the opinion of Tampa head coach Tom Fitzgerald, his 11-3-2 (through October 26) team has three potential all-America players—Thomas Hogstedt, Scott Leamey and Mika Muhonen.

In his junior year, Muhonen was the team's leading scorer with 11 goals and six assists. Hogstedt, one of the two seniors on the team, has been key to the Spartans' defense in his four years as starter. Leamey, the team's senior goalkeeper, had seven shutouts and allowed 11 goals in 14 games.

Junior transfer Mats Petersson added to the Spartans' scoring attack with seven goals and four assists.

Fitzgerald said, "We've been up and down all year, but we have won some big games. We beat North Carolina-Greensboro, 3-0, and Cal State Chico, 4-1. Our biggest loss came last week to a top-ranked NAIA team."

If Seattle Pacific coach Cliff McCrath had to pick one player his team could not do without this year, chances are it would be senior goalie Jeff Storrs.

"Jeff is like having a force field in front of the goal," McCrath said. "Even if all 10 of our other guys fell down and the opponents went at Jeff 11-on-1, I'd put my money on his making the save. He has to be Hard-charging Barry women set for first Division II soccer play-offs

Barry University's women's soccer team has been charging hard toward a berth in the first NCAA Division II Women's Soccer Championship.

The Buccaneers, 10-2-2 (through October 26) with two regular-season games remaining, have faced three Division II teams and held all three scoreless. Against top-20 ranked Division I teams, Barry has a 2-2-2 record.

Senior Annie Perez, the school's all-time leading scorer (36 career goals, 14 assists), notched six goals in the first 14 games. Leading the Buccaneers in scoring are sophomore Shannon Connor (four goals, five assists) and Carol Ashmore (five goals, three assists).

Cal State Hayward (14-2 through October 26) had won 10 of its last 11 games and was looking to extend a seven-game winning streak with four games remaining. The Pioneers' losses came at the hands of Division I teams Santa Clara and St. Mary's

Championship Preview

(California). One of their biggest victories came against California (2-0).

Leading the Pioneers in scoring is all-America Kim Johnson with 10 goals and three assists. "Kim is one of the better women players I've seen, both technically and tactically," said head coach Colin Lindores. "Not only is she a good scorer, she passes the ball around to give her teammates shooting chances and to make the game more attractive and exciting."

Tending the net for the Pioneers is senior Lisa Austin. She had five shutouts through 15 games and had allowed 10 goals for a 0.67 goals-against average.

This season has been doubly exciting for New Hampshire College coach Peter Tufts. Though he has been on the coaching staff for six years, 1988 marks his first season as head coach. The squad was 12-2-2 (through October 26) under his leadership, with only one regular-

Play-off notes: North Carolina has the best winning percentage in the championship tournament (.944), followed by George Mason (.667), Central Florida (.625) and Massachusetts (.625). Only Connecticut, Massachusetts and North Carolina have appeared in all six years of championship play. North Carolina set a new goals-against-average record by holding opponents scoreless in last year's tournament.

"Our main goal this year was to play everybody who might be in the play-offs," Pibulvech said. "That way, if we make it we'll know what to expect. We've had a tough season, but it has helped us not to take anything for granted."

Facing 13 of the top 20 Division I teams in the nation, the Tigers (13-2) have lost only to North Carolina and North Carolina State. "Our two losses came early in the season when we were still a bit unorganized on the back line," Pibulvech explained.

Top Tiger scorer is junior Kerri Tashiro with 15 goals and five assists. The defense is led by Shelley Separovich, Laura Jones (who is out with an injury) and goalkeeper Janine Szpara. A three-time all-America, Szpara has seven shutouts in 15 games and has allowed 13 goals.

Division I field hockey crown could go to team with most poise

Poise, concentration and confidence may provide the winning edge in the 1988 Division I Field Hockey Championship. At least two coaches who led teams to NCAA titles will tell you that.

About her 1987 Maryland players, who took the NCAA title, coach Suzanne Tyler said, "They believed they always could win." Tyler, now an assistant athletics director at Maryland, no longer coaches field hockey.

Tyler emphasized the psychological as well as the physical in preparing her team for championship play. She selected specific situations and tried to drill her players in the mental approach to those situations, as well as the physical execution. The idea was to help the players maintain their poise as different situations cropped up during the course of the game.

"We did a lot of role playing," she said.

Corners, free hits and penalty strokes all were on Tyler's list. She also had the team work on how it would play when behind in a game. The practice time was well-spent.

Maryland came from behind in two of its three tournament games, including the title contest. In that game, the goal that sent the game into overtime came on a penalty stroke.

"I thought that we had an edge

Championship Preview

(going into the overtime) because we were the underdog," Tyler said. "My team's confidence began to build. They were putting out unbelievably."

Like Maryland in 1987, Iowa took a decision in overtime to win the championship in 1986. The Hawkeyes also finished second in 1984.

"You have to be mentally tough and not let little things throw you off," said Judith Davidson, who coached those Iowa teams. Davidson now is the director of athletics at Central Connecticut State University.

She described mental toughness as the ability to "grit your teeth, make sure you are not making mistakes" and to "deal with whatever comes your way."

Iowa worked on refining its game, staying focused and eliminating distractions. The fact that some of the players on the squad had played in one championship game was a plus.

"If you have been there and had that experience, it gives you a leg up," Davidson said.

Like Maryland, Iowa won two 2-1 decisions en route to its championship. In both games, the Hawkeyes scored first, gave up the tying goal and came back. The Hawkeyes also were not the favorite in the title game.

"If you are the underdog, you have nothing to lose," Davidson said.

The 1986 team was somewhat unusual for a championship squad because of its youth. The chemistry, however, was special.

"The team was very close-knit," Davidson said. "The players were for each other. When one was off, another rose to the occasion."

New faces to key women's volleyball race

"It will be interesting," Illinois Benedictine coach Deb DiMatteo said of the 1988 Division III Women's Volleyball Championship. "A lot of the same faces that have dominated Division III volleyball for the past four years are gone."

Last year's third-place team, Illinois Benedictine lost an all-America middle hitter. And Juniata, 1987's fourth-place team, graduated two all-Americans.

UC San Diego (24-8 through October 26) returns only two starters—5-11 sophomore Becky Palmer and 5-9 junior Diana Klintworth. According to coach Doug Dannevik, the Tritons have only three players from the 1986 and 1987 championship teams. "The rest of the team has no championship experience at all," he added. "When you're young, you have to expect a lot of highs and lows."

The lows hit when all-America candidate Klintworth was out with a sprained ankle. The Tritons compiled a 21-4 record with Klintworth in the lineup and went 3-4 while she was injured. "Diana is solid in every aspect of the game and undoubtedly is our most complete player," Dannevik said.

With the graduation of all-America middle blocker Janet Hughes, Dannevik feels his team is without a dominant player. "This year, we rely on a much more balanced attack."

"I think we are capable of winning another title, but playing without a dominant player makes it easier for the competition to defeat us," he added.

Though Illinois Benedictine (27-2 through October 26) is without an all-America middle hitter for the first time in seven years, it is not without some big guns. Veterans include all-America outside hitter Tracy Beaty and setter Patty Mines, last year's Northern Illinois Intercollegiate Conference player of the year.

"Since 1982, we've had an all-

America middle blocker...this has been our first season without one," said coach DiMatteo. "This year, we will have to present a more balanced attack."

"This is a rebuilding year for us," DiMatteo added. "But with a lot of hard work, some new kids will emerge and take over. This definitely will be the start of a new era here."

Washington (Missouri) (29-2 through October 26) returns five starters, and there are no seniors among those starters. It's not hard to see why head coach Teri Clemens is able to smile so easily.

"No matter what happens, I'm off the hook," she joked. "If we make a mistake, I can say we're young. If we're great, I can say we're experienced."

Leading the pack of veterans is junior Lori Nishikawa, a 5-2 all-America setter who compiled a school-record 1,375 assists last season. "There's no doubt that Lori is the catalyst of our program," said Clemens. "She demonstrates tremendous defensive ability and is developing a keen sense of leadership on the court."

In his 10th season as head coach at Albany (New York), Pat Dwyer has what he feels is his best squad ever. The Great Danes were 27-3 through October 26, with losses to rival Cortland State, Nazareth (New York) and Smith.

Dwyer's team lost four starters from last year, including two all-Americans. But that really has not had a negative effect. "It's strange, because I don't think we have the physical prowess we've had in the past," Dwyer said. "Nobody's really, really outstanding. We're successful this year because of the way the girls work together."

Regular starters this year have included two juniors and three sophomores. Also, senior transfer Darby Ballschmieder sees action as middle hitter.

against Division I players."

Two players who Tufts feels have a shot at all-America this year are senior Nancy Therrien and junior Torrie Fitzpatrick. Therrien has started four years at midfielder, and Fitzpatrick has led the team in scoring the past two seasons, with eight goals and two assists to her credit this season.

"All of the teams in New England have improved, and the competition is really close," he said. "We can just do our best and hope to make it to the tournament."

Though Adelphi had a 6-9-1 record through October 26, coach Tom Lang feels that his Panthers have played better this year than last season. The problem has been the team's strength of schedule.

"We've played nine Division I teams that have been ranked in the top 20, but we've lost seven of those by only one goal," Lang said. "Our level of play has been very competitive, but our strength of schedule has been the main factor in our record."

"We've played better defensively this year, but we have struggled to score goals," he added.

Dina Gentile has been the major scoring force for the Panthers, contributing nine goals and two assists in 16 games during her first year on the team.

Three of the seven championship games, including the last two, have gone into extra periods.

Old Dominion women rich in NCAA play-off tradition

Old Dominion University has a rich tradition in the Division I Field Hockey Championship.

The Lady Monarchs won three consecutive championships, finished second once and third once in the first five years of championship competition.

The 1984 team posted a perfect (23-0-0) record and holds or shares all five of the championship team records. Players from that team still hold three individual records and a share of another.

After a two-year absence from the semifinal round, Old Dominion expects to be a challenger for the title once again. Through October 25, the team had spent five straight weeks atop the NCAA Division I field hockey poll.

The Lady Monarchs had a 17-1 record with three regular-season games remaining. The lone loss was a 3-2 overtime decision to North Carolina, which has been ranked second. Old Dominion defeated the Tar Heels, 4-0, earlier in the year.

The architect of Old Dominion's success is coach Beth Anders. Anders, a member of the 1980 and 1984 U.S. Olympic teams, coached the Lady Monarchs from 1980 to 1984 before leaving to coach the U.S. field hockey team. She returned to Old Dominion last season and reestablished her winning ways.

Through 18 games this year, Anders' career record stood at 127-14-3. Seven players she coached at Old Dominion competed in the Olympics in Seoul (four on the U.S. team and three on the Dutch team).

Senior Jill Fisher has been the team's top scorer. Through 17 games, she had 23 goals and nine assists and was second on the school's all-time scoring list. Freshman Maaik Hilbrand had 17 goals and three assists. She, classmate Marije Jurriens and sophomore Winnifred Sanders are from Holland.

The Lady Monarchs already have faced top competition this season. In addition to the split against North Carolina, Old Dominion has defeated Northwestern, Iowa and Massachusetts.

to a 12th game.

"... It could throw a large wrench into plans for a play-off system," he said. "If we're going to add a 12th game, let's not do so for short-term revenue if it's going to prevent us from developing something much more significant."

George Walsh of the University of Virginia said he thinks the season is long enough. "There's too much burden on basketball and football as it is," he said.

Dick Anderson of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, shares that opinion. "This season is long enough," he said.

At Syracuse University, players responding to an inquiry by The NCAA News said that 11 games were enough for them.

"They like an open date during the season to have a chance to relax, rest up and catch up on their academic work and papers," said coach Dick MacPherson, who also is against adding another game.

"We all should be more concerned with what the players want and what they feel is in their best interests and that of college football. Division I-A football is extremely intense and demanding. We don't need to extend the commitment any longer than over an 11-game regular season," MacPherson said.

Still, Frank T. Windegger, athletics director at Texas Christian University, while admitting that a 12th game probably would not gain approval for the 1989 season, said, "... it will come to pass sooner or later. And I think the play-off will, too. Those sources of revenue are out there, and we have to tap them."

Council Summary

Following is a list of all actions taken by the NCAA Council in its October 10-12, 1988, meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Committee reports

Academic Requirements: The Council: Agreed that official test scores necessary to certify initial eligibility under Bylaw 5-1(j) must be received from testing agencies for freshmen whose initial full-time enrollment occurs after the conclusion of the 1988-89 academic year.

Approved revisions in Forms 48-C and 48-H as recommended.

Approved a revision in the Student-Athlete Statement, effective with the 1989-90 academic year, to include a student-athlete's release of precollege test scores and appropriate related information, such as testing sites.

Bylaw 5-1(j) Exceptions: The Council: Approved the subcommittee's policy concerning waiver applicants who have violated Bylaw 5-6(b) or who otherwise fall under the concurrent jurisdiction of the Eligibility Committee.

Endorsed the subcommittee's policy concerning delegation of authority to approve applications that clearly qualify for a waiver of Bylaw 5-1(j) based upon strong academic credentials and precedent, with certain editorial revisions.

Noted that the subcommittee is developing a number of illustrative cases for publication in The NCAA News to clarify the types of appeals considered by the subcommittee.

Deregulation and Rules Simplification: The Council:

Approved the special committee's recommendation that the revised NCAA Manual, if adopted at the 1989 Convention, be made available to the membership on computer disks, with implementation of that service to be considered in January.

Took these actions regarding legislation proposed by the subcommittee:

Approved Council sponsorship of an amendment to 13.1.4 in the revised Manual to establish a single limitation on the maximum number of recruiting contacts for all Divisions I and II sports.

Referred to the proposed Manual maintenance committee an amendment to prohibit an institution from holding press conferences, receptions, dinners or similar meetings to announce the commitment of a prospect to attend the institution, but to permit other forms of publicity.

Affirmed an earlier decision not to recommend amendment of current financial aid legislation to permit additional financial aid for former student-athletes.

Approved Council sponsorship of an amendment to Bylaw 5-6(c) to eliminate duplicative wording concerning television programs in that legislation.

Infractions: The Council approved the committee's recommendation that the NCAA Enforcement Summary be made available to the membership and the public, after editing and reprinting.

Recruiting Process: The Council:

Supported the subcommittee's recommendation that recruiting calendars not be moved at this time to the administrative regulations in the revised Manual but that this concept be considered after the new Manual has been in use for a year.

Supported the subcommittee's general recommendation that Case No. 186 be revised for consideration in January, to preclude a high school coach from being compensated in any way based on the number of individuals the coach sends to an institution's summer camp.

Dissolved the subcommittee with commendation for its efforts.

Review and Planning: The Council:

Referred to the Administrative Committee for review and possible referral to the Special Committee to Review the Membership Structure the planning committee's recommendations designed to lessen the time commitments of NCAA officers.

Placed on a future Council agenda a statement by the committee concerning erosion of the institutional position in legislative and policy issues; agreed to ask the Presidents Commission to have its proposed Advisory Committee to Review the NCAA Governance Process consider the statement.

Special Events: The Council:

Did not certify the Bluebonnet Bowl for the conclusion of the 1988 season but authorized the Postseason Football Subcommittee of the Special Events Committee to treat any future recertification request by that bowl as a request from an existing bowl, rather than from a new bowl, provided game management complies with the requirements established by the subcommittee and approved by the Council.

Certified the following established college all-star football games: East-West Shrine Football Classic, Hula Bowl, Freedom Bowl All-Star Classic, Blue-Gray All-Star Football Classic, Ricoh Japan Bowl (the last of those contingent upon receipt of additional specific financial information).

Certified the following established college all-star basketball games: National Association of Basketball Coaches All-American Game, Louisiana Association of Basketball Coaches All-Star Game, New Jersey Collegiate Basketball Coaches All-Star Game, Portsmouth Invitational, Southern Shoot-Out, Ta-Wa-Si Athletic Association East/West All-Star Game.

Certified the following new college all-star basketball games: Aloha Classic, Orlando All-Star Classic, Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference All-Star Game, Metropolitan Senior All-Star Game, Pizza Hut Classic.

Agreed to sponsor an amendment to Bylaw 12-3(q) to reduce the size of the Special Events Committee from 13 to 12, eliminating the high school representative inasmuch as the committee's charge no longer relates to high school all-star games.

Financial Aid and Amateurism: The Council considered recommendations regarding financial aid from this committee and from the Presidents Commission, as well as a staff-prepared document on financial aid. The Council:

Voted to urge the Presidents Commission to delay action and to refine further its proposal and the recommendations of the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism, as reported in the October 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Agreed to propose no changes in the legislation regarding student-athletes with eligibility remaining who enter their names in a professional league's draft, pending study of related amateurism issues.

Authorized the Administrative Committee to appoint a special committee to discuss the broad range of issues related to amateurism, including among those the circumstances under which student-athletes could receive expense payments related to training and competition, the establishment of trust funds for student-athletes, eligibility for intercollegiate competition while enrolled in less than a full-time program of studies, and the eligibility effects of absences from institutions due to participation in noncollegiate athletics activities. The committee is to submit a report not later than August 1989.

Authorized an amendment to Constitution 3-1(g)-(1) to specifically exempt governmental grants currently set forth in Bylaws 6-1(b)-(2)-(1), (ii), (iii) and (v) from counting within the limitations imposed by Constitution 3-1(g)-(1) and Bylaw 6-1(a).

Authorized the Administrative Committee to approve legislation that would revise Bylaw 6-1(b) to state that a student-athlete may receive athletically related financial aid that, in combination with Pell Grant assistance, does not exceed the cost of attendance normally incurred by students enrolled in a comparable program at that institution. This action, in effect, reverses the action by the Legislation and Interpretations Committee (Minute No. 3, Telephone Conference No. 12), which was not consistent with an April 1988 Division I Steering Committee interpretation.

Authorized an amendment to Bylaw 7-1(h) to exclude the NCAA postgraduate scholarship and other appropriate graduate and postgraduate scholarships from counting within the limitations of remuneration set forth therein.

Concurred with the committee that supplies should not be included in the listing of commonly accepted educational expenses set forth in Bylaw 6-1(a).

Delayed consideration of a proposal to eliminate the overall grant limits in football and basketball, relying on initial limits only, pending submission of related legislation by the membership for the 1989 Convention.

Recruiting: The Council directed the committee not to consider further whether the criteria outlined in Constitution 3-4(c)-(1) and (2) should be applied to the yearly renewal of financial aid per Constitution 3-4(f).

Legislation

The Council voted to sponsor the following legislation for the 1989 Convention, in addition to those proposals that it had voted in sponsor in its April and August meetings and in addition to proposals included in other portions of this summary:

The proposals would carry 1990 effective dates.

Noted that the Division I Steering Committee had designated Charlotte West, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, and Kathleen M. McNally, La Salle University, to chair the Divisions I-AA and I-AAA business sessions, respectively, at the 1989 Convention.

Bob Cennarelli promoted from assistant director of media relations to interim assistant commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference. He replaces Rick Baker, who accepted a position with the Cotton Bowl as director of marketing and operations. Also, Kathy Lott and Bridget Bauer were named assistant directors of media relations for the conference. Lott has been a SWC media relations intern since February and Bauer is a former member of the sports information staff at Arkansas.

ASSOCIATIONS

Rick Baker named director of marketing and operations for the Cotton Bowl. He previously was assistant commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference.

NOTABLES

Men's coach Jerry Simmons of Louisiana State and women's coach Frank Brennan of Stanford named coaches of the year by Wilson Sporting Goods Co. and the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association. Simmons led his Louisiana State team to second place at last spring's Division I Men's Tennis Championships and Brennan led Stanford to its fifth team title at the Division I Women's Tennis Championships. Ron Fraser, head baseball coach at Miami (Florida), named by the American Baseball Coaches Association to receive its 1989 Lefty Gomez Award. The award is presented annually to an individual who has earned distinction in amateur baseball. In addition to coaching Miami to more than 1,000 victories and two Division I championships, Fraser has earned the reputation of being an effective promoter of college baseball.

DEATHS

Boobie Clark, a Bethune-Cookman running back in the early 1970s who later was a standout with the Cincinnati Bengals, died October 25 in Jacksonville, Florida, from an apparent blood clot in a lung. He was 37. Bill Ellison, a baseball standout during the 1920s at Harvard who also was captain of the 1927 Crimson ice hockey team, died October 15 at age 84. Norman C. Barry, a teammate of George Gipp at Notre Dame who later coached the Chicago Cardinals to the 1925 National Football League championship, died October 13 in Evanston, Illinois. He was 89. Gipp served as best man at Barry's wedding when Barry was a halfback at Notre Dame (1918-20). Barry later was a prominent Chicago politician and held judgeships from the 1950s to the 1970s.

Wally Lemm, a reserve single-wing halfback at Carroll (Wisconsin) before World War II and later a head football coach and athletics director at Carroll before coaching the Houston Oilers and St. Louis Cardinals during the 1960s, died October 8 in Waukesha, Wisconsin, after suffering a heart attack. He was 68. Lemm also was a junior varsity coach at Notre Dame and head coach at Lake Forest and Montana State before coaching the Oilers to the American Football League championship in 1961. Chet Phillips, a longtime gymnastics coach at Navy who also was coach of the 1936 U.S. Olympic gymnastics team, died recently.

Unbeaten, untied teams pared to 21, five in I-A

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

The Halloween goblins arrived two days early October 29 and spooked* four undefeated, untied teams in NCAA football, leaving 21 with perfect records heading into the November stretch run—just five of them in Division I-A.

The UCLA Bruins were left in ruins after leading, 27-6, as Washington State stopped four pass plays in the final minute from near its goal and won, 34-30, scrambling the national championship picture. Notre Dame, Southern California, Arkansas, West Virginia and Wyoming still are perfect.

All three perfects in I-AA—Marshall, Pennsylvania and Western Illinois—made their way past the goblins. But Division II's Bowie State Bulldogs went from a homecoming day celebration to the doghouse when North Carolina Central's Earl "Air" Harvey threw a game-tying (21-21) two-point conversion pass after time had expired. North Dakota State, Pittsburg State and St. Mary's (California) stayed perfect in Division II.

In Division III, the list was cut from 12 to 10 when Carroll (Wisconsin) and Hamline fell to two other undefeated, untied teams (Wabash and Concordia-Moorhead, respectively).

Here are the 21 perfects (out of 523 NCAA varsity teams) in all four divisions with each team's 1987 record and its next opponent, November 5 (Cortland State vs. Ithaca is the only game involving two perfect teams):

Division I-A	*1987 W-L-T	Nov. 5 Opponent
Arkansas (8)	9-4-0	Baylor
Notre Dame (8)	8-4-0	Rice
Southern Cal (7)	8-4-0	California
West Va. (8)	6-6-0	Cincinnati
Wyoming (9)	10-3-0	UTEP
Division I-AA
Marshall (8)	10-5-0	Citadel
Pennsylvania (7)	4-6-0	Lafayette
Western Ill. (9)	7-4-0	Northern Ill.
Division II
North Dak. St. (8)	6-4-0	Nebraska-Omaha
Pittsburg St. (8)	11-1-0	Emporia St.
St. Mary's (Cal.) (9)	8-3-0	Santa Clara
Division III
Central (Iowa) (7)	11-2-0	Dubuque
Concordia-M'head (8)	7-3-0	Gust. Adolphus
Cortland St. (8)	5-4-0	Ithaca
Dickinson (8)	7-3-0	Gettysburg
Ferrum (8)	8-2-1	Wesley
Ithaca (8)	7-3-0	Cortland St.
Monmouth (Ill.) (8)	9-1-0	Knox
Plymouth St. (8)	10-1-0	Maine Maritime
Rhodes (7)	7-1-2	Rose-Hulman
Wabash (7)	8-2-0	Cumberland

* Bowls and play-offs included.

Interestingly, all five perfects in I-A lost in the bowls, leaving all with at least four defeats except Wyoming, which lost three. Pennsylvania, 4-6 a year ago, is the only team in the group of 21 that had a losing record in 1987.

USC's schedule toughest

Southern California, in pure won-lost terms in the NCAA toughest-schedule computer program, is facing the toughest schedule—not only among the five perfect-record teams, but in all of Division I-A. Its past opponents now are 29-16-2 vs. I-A foes when not playing Southern Cal; its four future opponents (California, Arizona State, UCLA and Notre Dame) are 24-7; add it all up and it comes out to 53-23-2 for a .692 percentage (Arizona at .689 is second, Oregon State at .649 third).

Notre Dame's entire schedule is 17th at .585, Wyoming's is 34th at .532, Arkansas' is 63rd at .478 and West Virginia's is 87th at .414. However, West Virginia, Arkansas and Wyoming all face the toughest part of their schedules in November (as does Southern Cal; see above). Wyoming's remaining foes are 16-5 vs. I-A teams when not playing Wyoming (compared to 26-32 so Oklahoma last season is wiped out along with Miami's two bowl losses to Tennessee and Penn State during its 36-game regular-season run that recently was ended by Notre Dame. We took no note of Miami's streak, or of the 70-gamer by Augustana (Illinois), also ended this season.

Why? To be sure, these were outstanding achievements, but great confusion results when the media compare them with real, honest-to-goodness winning streaks. For instance, we heard about Miami's streak being second in history to the record 47-game winning streak by Oklahoma in the 1950s—a totally invalid comparison, since Miami had two defeats in that span. The qualifying phrase "regular season" usually appears in print, but almost never on broadcasts.

Similarly, we heard October 29 that Wyoming has an "18-game winning streak." No qualifying phrase, no mention of that bowl loss to Iowa. It reminds us of the late 1940s, when confusion resulted in reports about California's 33-game streak—three Rose Bowl losses usually not mentioned. The Associated Press ordered its writers to cease mentioning it.

Arizona senior Bret Holley is among Division I-A leaders in punting

Bruce Alexander, Stephen F. Austin State, is No. 5 in I-AA punt returns

West Chester's Bill Hess ranks high in Division II pass receiving at 5.6

Dubuque quarterback Roger Waiatae is fourth in Division III total offense

How many perfect seasons and streaks would Oklahoma and Nebraska have if they just forget those confrontations with each other? Or Ohio State-Michigan, Notre Dame-Southern Cal, Texas-Arkansas—the list goes on and on.

In our book, if a team loses a game, it does not have a winning streak.

A record discovered

Utah's Scott Mitchell set not only a collegiate, or all-divisions, record for total offense vs. Air Force October 15, but a collegiate passing yardage record as well, it was discovered in a review of the play-by-play summary. When the mathematical error was rectified, Mitchell, instead of being one yard short, now holds it with 631 passing yards. His total-offense record moves to 625. It was an understandable error, coming in that wild game won by Air Force, 56-49.

Another record Saturday

The nation's Division I-A teams established two more all-time single-Saturday yardage records October 29—412.9 passing yards per game (both teams combined), breaking the 402.9 set November 7, 1987, and 758.2 total-offense, or rushing-passing, yards per game, breaking the 756.9 set the same day. Scoring October 29 hit 50.9 points per game, second to the record 52.5 set October 15.

For the season to date, total offense (726), passing (376.4) and scoring (48.2) still are above the all-time records and rushing (349.4) remains the highest since 1980. Play efficiency still is the major factor, helped by the blocking rules of 1985 that permit greater use of hands.

Harvey's big day

As mentioned above, North Carolina Central's Earl Harvey spoiled Bowie State's perfect record with a two-point-conversion pass after time expired. His team was down, 21-13, with just 43 seconds to go, but he moved the team 80 yards on four plays, the last a 16-yard TD pass to Reese Hargrove as time expired.

Harvey now has 10,547 yards in career total offense, fifth on the all-time collegiate or all-divisions list, and 10,461 passing yards, seventh on the same list, reports SID Chris Fisher.

Quotes of the week

Iowa coach Hayden Fry says read my lips: "No more medical reports. No more. I've discussed it with the team physician. I'm not giving out any more medical reports. I'd rather talk about the guys who are playing, and who's done what and the contributions and so forth. It's just gotten completely out of hand. If they show up for the game, you know they're there. If they don't show up, either they've gone fishing, or they're hurt or maybe studying."

Coach Dick Crum's Kent team had just spoiled Western Michigan's perfect record, 45-28, and was preparing for Ohio University, coached by Cleve Bryant, a long-time friend. Bryant served as an assistant under Crum at Miami (Ohio) and North Carolina before moving to the NFL's New England Patriots. Asked whether this familiarity could be an advantage for either man, Crum replied: "I don't think so. We coached together for a long time, and he knows pretty much what I think about offense and I know pretty much what he thinks (long pause), I think." (Final score October 22: Ohio 21, Kent 14.) Says Houston starting quarterback David Dacus: "The most popular position on any football team (for spectators) is No. 2 quarterback." (Ted Nance, Houston SID)

Wagner's 4,000-yard tailback, Terry Underwood, asked if he has any regrets about playing Division III football instead of Division I-A, said: "I'm graduating on time with a degree in criminal justice, I made all-America and we were Division III national champions last year. Would anyone regret that?" (Laurie Murnieki, Wagner SID)

Luther quarterback Dave Den Hartog threw an 88-yard touchdown pass to Mike Naslund (the coach's son) in a 21-6 victory over William Penn October 22. Told that it was a school record, coach Bob Naslund replied: "There must be a mistake; we never pass from that deep in our own territory." (Jerry Johnson, Luther SID)

Overheard in the press area after Stony Brook's 70-20 victory over Brooklyn College, ending about 11 p.m. October 14: "I thought the basketball season wasn't supposed superstition: "I started out my career writing our game plan on a folder that was indented a certain way, and we won, so I indented the same way. I used to think it was bad luck to get a haircut—seemed we'd get beat whenever I did. But that way (if he got beat after getting a haircut), I'd at least look good enough to get another job."

Said John Cooper, coach of struggling (3-5) Ohio State: "I still get some nice letters. A guy wrote me that he thought I was doing a good job, the team was getting better and playing better, and we had a good coaching staff. He was proud of us, but he said, 'I'm writing this in crayon because they won't let us have anything sharp in here.'"

Loras coach Bob Bierie, asked about his team's nonconference schedule year after year, compared it to his childhood: "When I was growing up, I was the oldest of five boys, and I found out it wasn't much fun beating up on your little brothers." (Jim Seavey, Loras SID)

Central State (Oklahoma) coach Gary Howard after his team won its first game of 1988 with a 19-11 upset victory over Angelo State, Lone Star Conference coleader at the time: "Men, just give me a few minutes, then we're going to celebrate like hell." (Mike Kirk, Central State (Oklahoma) SID)

How windy was it at the Iowa State-Kansas game October 22? Said 260-pound Kansas center Chip to start until an hour from now." (Pat Murray, Stony Brook SID)

Ever hear of a blocked extra-point kick turning into a successful two-point conversion pass? Long Island-C.W. Post did it October 22, and the victim was St. John's (New York), the same team that scored the nation's first legal defensive two-pointer (as far as we know) under the new rule September 9 (see The NCAA News, September 12).

Please note, this was not scored under the new rule, but one could argue that Ken Cobb of St. John's in blocking the kick was trying to put the new rule into action. Instead, the holder, Tim McIntee, grabbed the blocked football out of the air and fired a pass to tight end Todd Hokunson in the end zone for a 22-21 lead (instead of the 21-all tie his team was going for). Post went on to win, 29-21. McIntee, by the way, is a three-time all-America mid-fielder in lacrosse, which doubtless helped him make the play. "I give Tim a lot of credit," said coach Tom Marshall. "He had the wherewithal to regroup and make a great play." McIntee is one of the country's leaders in interceptions with seven. (Bill Huffman, LIU-C.W. Post SID)

Shippensburg's Jeff Lucas, a junior wide receiver, has only 18 catches but they have gone for five touchdowns (20, 59, 65, 75 and 82 yards) and 489 yards, or 27.2 yards per catch. Can anyone top that? (John Aloisi, Shippensburg SID)

Central (Iowa) assured of 28th straight winning season

Central College (Iowa) football coach Ron Schipper was assured of a 28th consecutive winning season when his team defeated Luther College, 23-17, October 15. Schipper owns the longest active winning-season streak in college football, and he ranks second to St. John's University (Minnesota) coach John Gagliardi in Division III career victories, 251 to 203 (as of the start of this season).

Doug Bruno, new women's basketball coach at DePaul University, opened the 1988-89 season in a unique way. He took his players to Chicago's Misericordia Home North to work as volunteers for the special games planned that day for handicapped kids.

"I want (the players) to truly understand something about their circumstances," Bruno told the Chicago Tribune. According to the Tribune's Odds and Inns column, the Lady Blue Demons then held a practice in the Angel Guardian gym, with proceeds going to the program.

DePaul officials also announced that four Lady Blue Demon regular-season games will be televised by the Sports-Vision cable channel.

One of Division I-A's most successful football programs during the 1980s has that of West Virginia University. The 1988 Mountaineers have even accomplished something that great WVU teams of the past, including those with players like Sam Huff and Bruce Bosley, could not manage.

With a 30-10 victory over East Carolina University October 8, coach Don Nehlen's team became the first West Virginia grid squad since 1904 to win three consecutive road games.

Trivia Time: How did Schipper get victory No. 203? Answer later.

When Colorado State's women's volleyball team hosted High Country Athletic Conference rival Brigham Young, 6,260 fans showed up October 4. That is believed to be the highest regular-season attendance figure for a college match this season.

"It was a tremendous sight," said Colorado State coach Rich Feller. "That beat our old (attendance) record by almost 1,000 people. It's great to see the fans of Fort Collins support us like that."

The October 22 football game between Worcester Polytechnic and Bentley might best be remembered as a contest of contrasts.

This first gridiron meeting between the two schools took place during Worcester Polytechnic's 100th season of intercollegiate football competition. Bentley's 1988 team, on the other hand, is the school's first varsity grid team.

Pokey Allen, head football coach at Portland State University, has accepted a challenge from school newspaper columnist Bill Clunie that is going to cost one of them a paycheck.

Seems that last December, Allen told Oregon's state board of education that Portland State would average 10,000 fans for six home football games this season. After four games, with attendance averaging 8,000, Clunie wrote a column suggesting that Allen put his paycheck where his prediction was.

"If the Vikings average less than 10,000 in attendance (including any postseason games)," Clunie wrote, "I win, and you deposit (a sum equivalent to) one of your paychecks, after taxes, in the (Portland State) English department scholarship fund of my choice. If you win, I'll turn over one of my paychecks to the athletics department scholarship fund of your choice."

Juniata's October 22 football game against Albright included recognition of the school's 1973 team, which played in the first Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl. After a 9-1 regular season, the 1973 Indians upset Bridgeport to advance to the first Stagg Bowl, where they were defeated by Wittenberg, 41-0.

Big Ten Conference officials have announced that a record 541 student-athletes from 24 different sports were named academic all-conference for 1987-88. To qualify, an athlete had to have a B average or higher and be a varsity letter-winner and a starter or important reserve on his or her squad. Freshmen and first-year junior college transfers were not eligible.

Aurora women's tennis player Fran McEachern recently won Northern Illinois Intercollegiate Conference titles at No. 3 singles and (with partner Amy Owen) No. 2 doubles.

Not bad for a 45-year-old mother of five.

"Fran had a great tournament," said Aurora coach Jerry Thomas. "She is so consistent, and that proved to be the undoing of many of her opponents this season."

McEachern is a junior majoring in elementary education.

During a recent game against McNeese State, North Texas quarterback Scott Davis apparently had a little too much on his mind.

"I was trying to make some adjustments at the line of scrimmage," he explained. "I was watching the 30-second clock and lost track of where I was going." Where he ended up was behind the team's left guard instead of its center.

"I did the same thing last year against Stephen F. Austin (State)," Davis added. "The coaches said we should put a big X on the center's behind to help me out."

During the October 15 Wisconsin-Parkside Invitational, cross country runners from North Central College literally ran perfect races.

Despite a 25-team, 318-runner field, North Central grabbed the top six spots to record a perfect team score of 15. The six student-athletes who combined for this rare feat were (in order of finish) Doug Hearn, Brad Todden, Rich Scopp, John Collet, Joel Bowman and Dave Columbus. (Note: Only the top five runners are included in the scoring.)

Wake Forest's October 8 football game was significant, and not just because the Demon Deacons defeated North Carolina. At half time, a check for $306,000 was presented to the Wake Forest athletics department for the improvement of football facilities.

The donation was the result of a fund-raising effort that involved Wake Forest football letter-winners covering more than 50 years of intercollegiate play at the school.

East Carolina University has joined the ranks of colleges around the country that are using bubble gum cards to carry antidrug and alcohol messages to youth.

Nine athletes and basketball coach Mike Steele are featured on cards being distributed free in Pizza Hut restaurants throughout eastern North Carolina. Personal appearances before youth groups and at elementary schools are supplementing the card program.

Trivia Answer: In the last game of the 1987 season, Central (Iowa) defeated St. John's (Minnesota), 13-3, in a game that featured the top two (in terms of all-time victories) coaches in Division III.

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee:

Waivers—transfer eligibility

1. Student-athlete transferring from an institution placed on probation by its conference. Determined that when a member conference imposes sanctions on a member institution that would preclude a team from participating in postseason competition during the remaining seasons of a student-athlete's eligibility, those student-athletes affected could transfer immediately (before the NCAA reviews the infractions case) and still would have the opportunity to request a waiver under the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 5-3-(g) [waiver of the one-year residence requirement] if the NCAA Committee on Infractions subsequently adopts the conference sanctions.

Satisfactory progress

2. Waiving full-time enrollment (Divisions

I and II). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6) and Case No. 325 and confirmed that no authority exists to waive (for reasons of personal psychological stress) the application of Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6) for a partial qualifier who completed two semesters of full-time enrollment during the initial year of residence but did not pass the requisite number of hours to be eligible under the satisfactory-progress rule for the second year of enrollment.

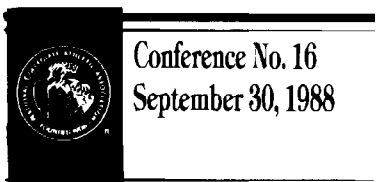

Printed recruiting aids

3. Scheduling fliers (Divisions I and II). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3) and determined that Divisions I and II member institutions would be precluded from providing posters listing the schedule for one of the institution's teams to any prospective student-athlete or high school; however, agreed that a member institution may distribute fliers to anyone for the purpose of advertising specific athletics contests at the member institution.

Printed recruiting aids

4. Videotapes provided to prospective students (Divisions I and II). In accordance with previous Council-approved interpretations (reference: Item Nos. 6-a and 6-b of the minutes of the committee's July 1, 1987, conference and Item 4 of the minutes of the committee's August 20, 1987, conference), confirmed that a member institution is prohibited from providing an athletics videotape to a prospective student-athlete, his or her parents (or legal guardian) or family members, or to his or her high school, preparatory school or junior college coach. Such items may be viewed by prospects et al., but must be retrieved after the viewing.

Recruiting (spouses)

5. Spouse of institutional coaching staff member (Division I). Reviewed a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 4 of the minutes of the committee's March 29, 1988, conference) that a spouse of an institutional coaching staff member is permitted to contact a prospective student-athlete only during the prospect's official or unofficial visit to the member institution; noted that the Council had issued a 1985 interpretation restricting such contacts by the spouse to those that occur when the spouse is accompanying the staff member; recommended that the Council modify its interpretation to permit such contacts during the official visit when the spouse is not in the presence of the staff member.

Junior college transfer

6. Definition of "regular-season competition" (Division III). Agreed that the reference to "regular-season competition" in Bylaw 5-1-(n)-(2) applies to the traditional segment only; recommended that the NCAA Division III Steering Committee and the Special NCAA Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification review the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(n) to determine whether it should be eliminated from the Association's legislation.

Financial aid

7. Coach who serves as director of admissions (Division III). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 11-3-(a)-(6) and Case No. 415 and agreed that a member institution's coach who also serves as the director of admissions is precluded from having any input regarding the recipients of the institution's "presidential scholarships," which are considered academic honor awards in accordance with Bylaw 11-3-(a)-(4)-(i).

effective September 1, 1989. The appointments are not announced until next spring, when all appointees have had an opportunity to accept or decline. In addition, the following appointments were made, effective immediately:

Academic Requirements Committee: Kendrick Walker, California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo; Sarah N. McNabb, Indiana University, Bloomington.

Financial Aid and Amateurism: Lewis Salter, Wabash College.

Infractions: Donna Claxton Deming, Temple University.

Division I Men's Basketball: Chalmers W. Elliott, University of Iowa.

Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals: Jenepher P. Shillingford, Bryn Mawr College.

Special Committee to Review the Membership Structure: Joan Boand, Grand Valley State University, and Sarah E. J. Yates, Florida A&M University, were added to the committee.

Administrative Committee

The Council approved the actions in 1988 Administrative Committee Conference Nos. 11 through 14 and also took these actions:

Referred to the Division II Championships Committee a request by the Division II Steering Committee that the former reconsider its decision to require Division II institutions to declare in advance whether they wish to receive expenses for indoor or for outdoor track.

Approved, effective immediately, the Administrative Committee's suggestion that the term "primary woman administrator" be replaced by "senior woman administrator" in NCAA materials and procedures.

Membership

The Council and the steering committees took the following actions regarding membership applications and requests:

Elected the Division I-A Directors Association and the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators to affiliated membership; elected Northeastern Illinois University to corresponding membership.

Approved requests by Loyola Marymount University, Potsdam State University College and Santa Clara University to designate one non-NCAA sport each per Bylaw 11-4-(b)-(7).

Approved Bylaw 11-2-(h) scheduling waivers for Lenoir-Rhyne College and the University of South Carolina, Spartansburg.

Approved a request by Goucher College for a waiver of the men's sports sponsorship requirements for 1988-89 only, per Constitution 4-2-(h)-(2).

Interpretations

All new or revised interpretations approved by the Council have appeared or will appear in The NCAA News, which constitutes official circularization per Constitution 6-2. In addition, the Council:

Asked the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism to reconsider whether limitations should be placed on member institutions' provision of financial aid to enrolled student-athletes to attend summer sessions, in light of proposed legislation for the 1989 Convention.

Agreed that a proposed interpretation concerning the definition of "actual and necessary expenses" per O.I. 2 should be referred to the new special committee that will consider numerous amateurism issues.

Asked the Legislation and Interpretations Committee to reconsider Minute No. 8 of its Telephone Conference No. 11 inasmuch as skills used in skiing could result in compensation in "snowboarding" competition.

Revised Minute No. 4 of Legislation and Interpretations Committee Telephone Conference No. 14 to state that the proceeds from a professional basketball exhibition contest, including gate receipts and program sales, played on an institution's campus shall be placed in the institution's general fund for use at the institution's discretion.

Authorized the Administrative Committee to act on proposed legislation to combine the indoor and outdoor track seasons in Division III, limiting participation in indoor and outdoor track combined to a 26-week period in that division.

Agreed to refer Minute No. 4 of Legislation and Interpretations Committee Telephone Conference No. 15 to the proposed standing committee to oversee maintenance of the revised Manual.

Voted to uphold the decision of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee in regard to the eligibility of a student-athlete at the University of Toledo, noting that no authority exists under current legislation to set aside the provisions of the Bylaw 5-1-(k)-(1). The Council agreed to consider in a future meeting the possibility and desirability of limiting the application of Bylaw 5-1-(k)-(1) to student-athletes who competed in intercollegiate athletics at the initial four-year institution attended.

Use of team sanctions in drug testing defies easy solution

The idea of applying team-ineligibility sanctions for a positive drug test by a student-athlete has had a complex history since the Association adopted its drug-testing policy in 1986.

A current suspension of sanctions against institutions of student-athletes who test positive for drug use will extend through the 1989-90 academic year, following action by the NCAA Executive Committee at its August meeting. That action was the latest step in the evolution of Association policy on team ineligibility as applied to drug testing.

The Executive Committee, citing the complexity of the issues involved, extended a suspension that has been in effect since August 1987. It also decided to continue its comprehensive evaluation of the issues involved and of the impact of the NCAA drug-testing program on member institutions, conferences and student-athletes.

After the membership approved the drug-testing program at the 1986 Convention, the Executive Committee voted in May 1986 that if a student-athlete in a team championship tested positive, the institution would advance in the tournament only if the ineligible student-athlete had not participated in any tournament competition.

In August 1986, noting opposition to the May action voiced by the majority of governing sports committees, the Executive Committee suspended Executive Regulation 1-4 (f) as it applied to drug testing for the fall championships until testing by member institutions and conferences during the regular season could match the accuracy of NCAA tests.

Assuming that laboratory facilities would provide that capability by or shortly after January 1987, the committee voted that the regulation would become effective at that time.

The Executive Committee acted again in December 1986, suspending institutional financial penalties for a positive test for the period of January through August 1987; the penalties were scheduled for reinstatement effective September 1, 1987.

At the same time, the committee also extended the suspension of team-ineligibility sanctions into 1987 for cases in which a team had not gained a significant advantage through the use of an ineligible student-athlete (i.e., student-athletes who had materially contributed to the team's success).

At the 1987 Convention, the Executive Committee reviewed a proposed resolution for submission of legislation prohibiting team-ineligibility sanctions. The committee presented a statement to the Convention extending the suspension of team-ineligibility sanctions through the 1988 Convention, but reserving the right to continue to apply such sanctions in cases in which the ineligible student-athlete materially contributed to the team's success.

The Executive Committee at the same time also suspended executive regulations regarding the possible forfeiture of automatic-qualification privileges in the case of a positive test.

In May 1987, the Special Post-season Drug-Testing Committee advised the Executive Committee of its support for applying ineligibility sanctions beginning in September 1987 in cases in which the ineligible student-athlete materially contributed to the team's success, but recommended that specific sanctions vary depending upon the point at which the student-athlete tested positive.

The Executive Committee approved the drug-testing committee's recommendation that full sanctions should apply for a positive test prior to the event, and that the team should be allowed to advance in the case of a positive test during a championship.

In August 1987, team-ineligibility sanctions were suspended until at least the 1988 Convention, except in cases in which a student-athlete is declared ineligible prior to an event and is knowingly allowed to participate.

The committee expressed concerns over such factors as institutions' accessibility to adequate testing facilities, rapidly changing technologies in the field and possible inconsistencies in the application of sanctions in drug testing compared with cases of ineligibility for other reasons.

The committee cited many of the same concerns at its most recent meeting, continuing the suspension of team-ineligibility sanctions while continuing to review the pertinent issues.

Other recent actions

The Executive Committee agreed to forward to the Council proposed legislation to extend postseason ineligibility for a positive test to certified all-star football or basketball games, as recommended by the NCAA Special Events Committee.

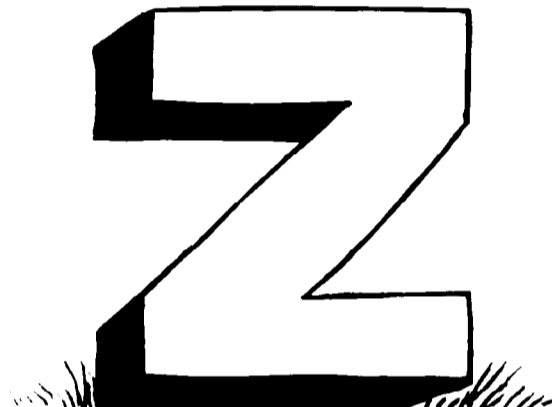

The Executive Committee also voted to reaffirm the intent of a proposed amendment to Constitution 3-9 (g) that would permit the student-athlete drug-testing consent form to be administered separately from the Student-Athlete Statement.

The effect of such legislation, if adopted by the membership at the 1989 Convention, would be that a failure to sign the drug-testing consent form would affect the student-athlete's eligibility for postseason competition only.
