Witte, Sweet nominated for top NCAA offices

Albert M. Witte, professor of law at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, has been selected by the NCAA Nominating Committee as its candidate to serve as president of the Association in 1989 and 1990, and Judith M. Sweet, director of athletics at the University of California, San Diego, is the committee's nominee to serve as secretary-treasurer.

Also nominated to serve as officers for the next two years are B. J. Skelton, dean of admissions and registration at Clemson University, Division I vice-president, and Jerry M. Hughes, director of athletics at Central Missouri State University, Division II vice-president.

The Nominating Committee this week announced its slate of candidates for vacancies among NCAA officers and on the NCAA Council. Each year, the committee's choices appear in the Official Notice of the NCAA Convention and in The NCAA News. The Official Notice is being mailed to the membership this week.

education department at College of Wooster, continues his term as Division III vice-president for another year.

Witte, the Division I vice-president for 1987 and 1988, was nominated to replace Wilford S. Bailey, Auburn University, at the conclusion of the 1989 Convention in San Francisco. Sweet, who served as Division III vice-president in 1986 and 1987, would replace Thomas J. Frericks, University of Dayton, as secretary-treasurer.

They will represent the first individuals to serve as division vice-presidents and then move to the Association's highest elective offices since the vice-president positions were created in 1983.

Witte, who serves as faculty athletics representative at Arkansas, would be the first Southwest Athletic Conference representative to serve as the Association's president since J. Neils Thompson of the University of Texas, Austin, was elected 12 years ago.

Meanwhile, Sweet would be the first woman ever to serve as the Association's secretary-treasurer. See Witte, Sweet, page 3

Kathleen Sullivan to emcee luncheon

Kathleen Sullivan

Kathleen Sullivan, the coanchor of "CBS This Morning," will be the master of ceremonies for the 24th annual NCAA honors luncheon.

The luncheon is held in conjunction with the NCAA Convention, which will be January 8-12 in San Francisco. The College Athletics Top XII and the Theodore Roosevelt Award recipient will be recognized at the luncheon, set for noon Monday, January 9, in the Grand Ballroom of the San Francisco Hilton.

Sullivan joined CBS News in November 1987 to begin work on "CBS This Morning." This year, she covered the Republican and Democratic National Conventions, the Iowa caucuses, the New Hampshire primary, and summit meetings between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Washington and Moscow.

Sullivan came to CBS News from ABC News, where she had worked since 1982. From 1982 to 1986, she was coanchor of "World News This Morning" and the news segments for "Good Morning America." She also had filled in as cohost of the latter show. She played a key role in the development of "World News This Morning," "The Health Show" and "World News Saturday."

In 1984, she became the first woman to anchor American television coverage of the Olympics during

Legislative grouping has interest of CEOs

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of six articles detailing the legislation to be considered at the 1989 annual Convention. This article reviews the proposals in the special grouping identified by the NCAA Presidents Commission.)

Four proposals dealing with financial aid, four that would amend the Bylaw 5-1-(j) legislation and two alternatives to change the Association's legislative calendar make up the special legislative grouping identified by the Presidents Commission as being of particular interest to presidents and chancellors at the 1989 NCAA Convention.

Of the 10 proposals, only four will be voted upon in the general business session Wednesday morning, January 11. Of the other six, four will be handled in the Division I business session and two in the Division III business session, both Tuesday, January 10.

Eight of the 10 are specified by the Commission for roll-call votes. The only two that will not have an on-the-record vote are the legislative-calendar alternatives.

The Commission's grouping in the general business session will be voted upon after the consent packages are dealt with early in the morning January 11, and after a new feature at this year's Convention—a "window of reconsideration." That will be the only opportunity in the general session to reconsider an action taken in one of the division business sessions the preceding day.

Financial aid

The lead item in the grouping is the restructuring of the Association's financial aid legislation, developed by Commission member Peter Likins, president of Lehigh University. It is the only proposal sponsored by the Commission itself for this year's

Revised Manual's adoption depends upon two resolutions

By Timothy J. Lilley
Managing Editor, The NCAA News

With two votes, delegates to the 1989 NCAA Convention in San Francisco can take a monumental step in helping to improve the membership's understanding of NCAA rules and regulations. Approval of two resolutions will constitute adoption of the revised NCAA Manual and give the Council authority to change any language in the new publication that, upon review and use by the membership, appears contrary to the intent of the legislation.

"These resolutions already have been endorsed by the Council," said Wilford S. Bailey, NCAA president and chair of the Special Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification.

"One resolution, by vote of the membership, adopts the revised Manual and authorizes the translation of amendments approved in January into the format and wording of the revised Manual." (Note: With a few exceptions to be noted later, all legislative proposals submitted for action at the 1989 Convention will be based on the current Manual, since that publication remains the official source of NCAA legislation until the revised Manual is adopted on the Convention floor.)

"That (Convention action) will mean that the proposed Manual revision distributed to the membership in November becomes effective at the adjournment of the Convention," Bailey added. "The 1989-90 Manual, including all legislative changes made at the Convention, will be published and distributed to the membership as quickly as possible.

"The companion resolution recognizes that, in spite of the efforts of the committee, our reviewers and the national office staff, there may be some revised wording in the new Manual that is perceived by the membership to reflect inaccurately the meaning of current legislation. If passed," Bailey explained, "this resolution will authorize the Council to change wording as necessary to

Delegates to the NCAA's 1989 Convention in San Francisco are expected to take action on adoption of a revised Manual—the most major revision of the Association's rules and regulations ever undertaken.

In this six-part series, The NCAA News presents a detailed report on the people and events that, in many ways, have transformed the Association's "bible" into an encyclopedia.

This week: Membership approval.

Executive Committee to consider boost in championship honorariums

In addition to reviewing proposed legislation for the 1989 NCAA Convention that affects areas of its responsibilities, the Association's Executive Committee also is expected to take action on several championships matters when it meets in Kansas City December 5.

Among the major issues to be considered by the group are:

- A recommendation that, if approved, would increase significantly the amount of honorariums paid to institutions that host NCAA championships competition.
- A proposal to implement a regional qualifying system for use in determining the field for the National Collegiate Men's Gymnastics Championships.

Championships honorariums have not been adjusted since 1981-82. The proposed increases would take effect with the 1989-90 championships season. The honorarium for regional competition would increase to $500 (from $200) and for final competition to $1,500 (from $750).

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q Is it permissible to conduct NCAA championships competition on Sunday?

A NCAA championships competition may be scheduled or conducted on Sunday, provided the governing sports committee has received prior approval of the Executive Committee.

If an emergency develops that causes postponement of an NCAA championship, or if the competitive situation dictates a more expeditious completion of the meet or tournament, Sunday competition may be permitted, provided the competing institutions are agreeable and advance approval is obtained from the NCAA Administrative Committee.

If a participating institution has a policy against Sunday competition and has indicated such, the tournament schedule shall be adjusted to accommodate that institution, and such adjustment will not require its team or an individual competitor to compete prior to the time originally scheduled.

Whenever NCAA competition is conducted on Sunday, it may not begin prior to noon, local time.

Permissible transportation expenses

NCAA member institutions are reminded of NCAA Council-approved interpretations regarding the application of NCAA Case No. 87, which indicate that an institution may pay the transportation costs of a student-athlete when the member institution enters a team or individual in an NCAA championship event or a special event (e.g., postseason football game or holiday basketball tournament) during one of the vacation periods listed on the institution's official calendar or after the institution's regular academic year:

1. From the student-athlete's home or the campus directly to the site of the event or the event practice site, and
2. From the event site to the campus following the event.

If the student-athlete arranges his or her own transportation from the event site, an institution may provide the student-athlete the cash equivalent of the transportation costs described in No. 2, provided the amount does not exceed the actual cost of the transportation the institution planned to provide if the student-athlete had not made his or her own arrangements. The Council agreed that the institution may make the expense payments described in No. 2 even if the institution, rather than the student-athlete, arranges the transportation for the student-athlete, noting that the student-athlete's fare may not exceed tourist (or comparable) class and the student-athlete must leave the event site within 48 hours after the conclusion of the event.

Bowl game and championship tickets

NCAA member institutions are reminded that if chosen to participate in a postseason football game or an NCAA championship, either on its campus or within 30 miles of the institution's main campus, it may not provide prospective student-athletes on their official expense-paid visits with admissions to the bowl game or championship, inasmuch as this would constitute excessive entertainment under the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 1-9-(j)-(3) and could provide a member institution with a significant recruiting advantage over other institutions. In accordance with Bylaw 1-9-(j)-(2)-(i), institutional funds for entertaining prospective student-athletes may not be utilized to purchase these admissions.

Additionally, the provisions of Bylaw 1-9-(j)-(3) would prohibit the institution from providing such admissions to a prospect making a self-financed visit to the institution's campus. Further, the provisions of Bylaw 1-1-(b) would prohibit the institution from making special arrangements to have admissions for these events available for purchase by any prospective student-athlete.

Case No. 89—unitemized expenses

NCAA member institutions are reminded of a Council-approved interpretation regarding the application of Constitution 3-1-(h)-(1), which requires that all student-athletes (whether countable or exempted under NCAA financial aid limitations) receive identical meal allowances on intercollegiate athletics trips. Further, the Council has confirmed that as a maximum limit student-athletes may be allotted a per diem no greater than the equivalent of that amount provided by the institution to institutional staff members on similar trips. Finally, the Council agreed that these principles would apply to the per diem received by student-athletes in conjunction with a bowl game in which the institution is participating, with the understanding that student-athletes also may receive an additional $10 per day for incidental expenses in accordance with Case No. 89.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

overcome that problem and present those changes at the next Convention.

"It's a safety valve," Bailey said of the second resolution. "The membership need not have an undue concern about any legislation being changed in the revision process."

Convention delegates also will have an opportunity, if they desire, to amend certain elements of the revised Manual that have been added during the three-year revision project.

"There are a limited number of new things in the revised Manual," Bailey said. "These will be identified and will be subject to the amendment-to-amendment process at the 1989 Convention."

Examples include some of the principles for the conduct of intercollegiate athletics that were given preliminary approval by the membership at the 1988 Convention. "At that time," Bailey noted, "delegates were told that these new items would be subject to amendment at the 1989 Convention."

Bailey said all "new items" like these new principles are identified in the proposed Manual. "If Convention delegates feel that any of those new items can be improved by a modification," he added, "they may submit an amendment to amendment, following existing procedure."

Another category of new Manual material that will be subject to amendment deals with interpretations to legislation that have been made by the Council and the Legislation and Interpretations Committee.

"The Council authorized (the deregulation committee) last year to incorporate a limited number of interpretations in order to clarify certain regulations," said Bailey, who noted that a large number deal with playing and practice seasons.

"The incorporated interpretations will be identified through reference to (Legislation and Interpretations Committee) minutes or Legislative Assistance columns published in The NCAA News, or—in the case of new Council interpretations—to Council action," Bailey offered. "Any paragraph so noted in the revised Manual will contain some incorporated interpretation that will be subject to the amendment-to-amendment process."

Also subject to amendment are proposed changes in voting requirements for certain sections of the revised Manual. "When we restructured (the Manual) and moved things around," he related, "there were things presented in a given context where the current voting requirement did not seem to be the most desirable voting requirement.

"All of our proposed changes in voting requirements will be in parentheses in the new Manual, directly under the current voting requirement, and they will be subject to the amendment-to-amendment process. If there are no amendments to amendments (affecting proposed new voting requirements), the changes will become the new voting requirements upon adoption of the revised Manual."

Bailey said a significant resource to Convention delegates will be copies of side-by-side NCAA Manuals being prepared for San Francisco. "This left-side, right-side approach will show information in the revised Manual directly adjacent to the spot in the current Manual containing the same information."

"We have not changed any NCAA legislation," Bailey added. "We will display at the Convention the left-side, right-side documents to give delegates an opportunity to compare, side-by-side, the current Manual and incorporated interpretations with the revised Manual. The incorporated interpretations will be in bold type on the right side. This is the wording that will be subject to amendment."

Following adoption by the membership, Bailey said the master version of the revised Manual will be prepared, published and distributed first, followed by the division operating manuals that will include only operating-by-law legislation applicable to a given NCAA membership division. "It will take a little longer this year to get the master Manual ready because of the need to work the January amendments into the revised format, he said.

"Following completion of the master Manual, work will begin on the division publications," Bailey added. "They will be printed and available to the membership as quickly as possible."

He noted that current plans call for each NCAA member to receive the same number of copies of the master Manual as it did of the current Manual. Division operating manuals probably will have to be purchased, Bailey said.

"This should not cause any significant concern on the part of the membership," he noted. "Many institutions now buy additional copies of the existing Manual, and it simply will be a matter of purchasing an appropriate number of division manuals."

Next week: What's next?

The men's gymnastics proposal... would establish two regional qualifying tournaments beginning in 1990.

ing common-site (men's and women's) championships would be increased commensurately (i.e., $1,000 for regional competition and $3,000 for final competition).

The men's gymnastics proposal, if approved, would establish two regional qualifying tournaments beginning in 1990. The current East and Midwest regions would be combined to form the East region, and the current Midwest and West regions would be combined to form the West region.

Ten teams would compete in each regional, along with all-around and individual-event performers who have not qualified as members of a team or, in the case of individual-event performers, as all-arounders.

Four teams, 12 all-arounders and 12 individual-event performers in each event would qualify for the championships from each regional.

Many of the Executive Committee's other championships considerations during the December 5 meeting will focus on recommended dates and sites for future championships competition.

The group also will hear a report on the NCAA conference-grant program, a report from the Committee on Grants for Undergraduates Who Have Exhausted Institutional Financial Aid Opportunity and a report on development of the National Collegiate Foundation.

The NCAA News will report on major actions taken by the Executive Committee in the December 14 issue. A summary of all actions taken at the December 5 meeting will be published in the December 21 News.

Reluctance to eliminate rules noted

Wil Bailey doesn't really bristle when the subject of NCAA deregulation comes up... it's just not his nature. However, that's not to suggest he doesn't have reason for irritation.

"It is quite clear that the membership at this point in time has no significant interest in or enthusiasm for eliminating the (NCAA) rules that have been put in place," he offered recently.

If anyone has a good feeling for this, it's Bailey and the other members of the Special Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification that he has chaired since 1985.

Sure, they've totally revised the NCAA Manual—spent upwards of 40 months in the process. Which is ironic, since rebuilding the book was not part of their original charge.

"We started out with specific instructions concerning deregulation and rules simplification," he recalled. "We had the Manual revision added to our assignments—properly so, I believe, but it was not part of our original charge."

Bailey and the other members of the special committee have continued to solicit ideas from various NCAA constituencies concerning rules that could be simplified or even eliminated. Apparently, that task has been akin to locating a spring-fed trout stream in Death Valley.

"We have sought input from individuals, from committees, from coaches' associations. Essentially, we have had none.

"You may recall," he continued, "that we made a special effort to gather input and suggestions during the past two annual Conventions. At the 1988 Convention, we got one suggestion for deregulation; and it wasn't really a deregulation that was proposed, but a change in a regulation.

"We (members of the special committee) are convinced that there is an interest now in the membership to reduce the complexity of some of the rules. We doubt, based on what we have seen, that the membership will want to eliminate any large number of rules.

"It is indeed ironic that deregulation was a primary charge and that we have accomplished relatively little deregulation," Bailey noted. "However, we believe we have set the stage (with the revised Manual) for what can be more deregulation if the membership really wants to accomplish that."

Legislative

Convention.

As reported in several earlier issues of The NCAA News, the proposal would permit each division—and, in the future, each Division I subdivision—to determine its own limitation on the amount of financial aid a student-athlete could receive.

It would specify that no student-athlete could receive aid exceeding (1) the cost of attendance at the institution or (2) the value of "basic educational expenses" (tuition, fees and books) plus room and board and $1,600, whichever figure is less.

Then, it would offer each division three alternatives:

- All aid based on need; or
- "Basic educational expenses" based on athletics ability, with all other aid (including room and board) based on need, or
- Full athletics grants, not to exceed the cost of attendance or the combination of "basic educational expenses," room and board, and $1,600, whichever is less.

Divisions I and II will vote on portions of the proposal that would limit aid in all sports to the second of those alternatives (the "BEE" grant) except that up to five sports could be exempted by the institution: men's and women's basketball, football, and two other women's sports to be determined by each institution. In those sports, the third alternative—full athletics grants—could be given.

The proposal would not become effective until 1990 and, in effect, would be phased in over a four-year period.

The other financial aid proposals in the package include one for the general session and two for Division III only.

The Council proposal would remove the current $1,400 (Division I) and $900 (Divisions II and III) Pell Grant limitations in the Association's aid legislation, instead permitting receipt of a combination of financial assistance (institutionally administered and Pell funds) that does not exceed the cost of attendance normally incurred by students enrolled in a comparable program at the given institution.

Both Division III proposals come from members of that division that seek to reverse last year's decision to eliminate consideration of athletics ability in the packaging of financial aid for Division III student-athletes. One would simply permit such consideration; the other, an alternative, would specify certain percentage comparisons with aid received by students generally.

Bylaw 5-1-(j)

In the Division I business session, the delegates will deal with four proposals affecting partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1-(j).

Two of them would do away with the partial qualifier category entirely. A partial qualifier is one who does not meet the test-score and core-curriculum requirements of the legislation but who has a 2.000 overall grade-point average in high school.

A Southeastern Conference proposal simply would eliminate the partial qualifier, while the Colonial Athletic Association proposal—which will be voted upon first—would do the same but also would give a fourth season of eligibility to a nonqualifier.

Meanwhile, the Big West Conference is proposing that both partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers be permitted a fourth season of eligibility, so long as they successfully complete a number of credit hours toward a degree by the start of their fifth year of enrollment—96 semester hours or 144 quarter hours.

Finally, Division I will face a roll-call vote on a proposal to require a transfer from a junior college to sit out a year at a Division I institution if the individual was a nonqualifier coming out of high school. That is offered by several Big Ten Conference members and other Division I institutions.

Calendars

The NCAA Council's two alternative proposals to extend the Association's legislative calendar will conclude the Presidents Commission's grouping, and both will be voted upon in the general business session.

Motivating the Council in both alternatives is a desire to "slow down" the legislative process and to insure that there is time to study, discuss and refine legislative proposals before they are finally submitted for action at a Convention.

One of the proposals establishes a biennial approach to legislative Conventions. Only every other year would the membership vote on the types of legislative issues that it now faces annually. Conventions would be held in the alternate years, but the only legislation that could be considered at those would be matters that the Council or the Commission would submit on an "emergency" basis. Instead, the "off-year" Conventions would feature forums and round-table discussions.

The other proposal continues the annual voting Convention, but with considerably earlier deadlines in the legislative process.

In either case, a specific, extended calendar is envisioned, and either proposal would not go into effect until 1990.

The biennial calendar envisions the following schedule:

- March 15: Deadline for submission of legislation.
- April 15: Completion of staff review, consultation and refinement regarding the proposals, under the guidance of a proposed new Legislative Review Committee. Publication in The NCAA News by this date, including statements of both intent and rationale.

• June 15: Deadline for responses to the amendments, including interpretation questions; new committee reviews those matters.

• August 15: Deadline for Council reaction to proposals; also, opportunity for final submissions by Council or Commission.

• September 15: Publication in the News of all legislation still "alive."

• October 15: Deadline for submission of amendments to the amendments, as well as resolutions.

• November 15: Publication of the Official Notice of the Convention.

For continuation of the annual voting Convention, the schedule is only slightly different. The initial submission deadline would be April 15; staff review and refinement, as well as initial publication in the News, would be by May 15, and the deadline for responses and questions would be July 15. The August, September, October and November deadlines in the biennial calendar also would apply in the annual calendar.

Following is a summary of the 10 proposals in the grouping as they appear in the Official Notice of the Convention:

- No. 39: To establish need-based financial aid restrictions in Divisions I and II in all sports other than football, men's and women's basketball, and not more than two additional women's sports determined by each institution, for student-athletes receiving financial aid that exceeds the value of "basic educational expenses" (tuition, fees, books); to specify that in football, men's and women's basketball, and the two discretionary women's sports, student-athletes may receive financial aid not to exceed "basic educational expenses," room and board, and—based on demonstrated need—either the cost of attendance at the institution or $1,600, whichever is less; to permit, in the future, each Division I subdivision to vote separately on the financial aid limitation; to establish Division I-AAA as a voting subdivision, and to specify that a member institution is permitted to vote on legislative issues directly affecting only a particular sport in the division in which it is classified in that sport. Roll-call vote.

No. 40: To permit a student-athlete who receives a Pell Grant and institutionally administered financial assistance to receive a maximum combined amount that does not exceed the cost of attendance that normally is incurred by students enrolled in a comparable program at that institution. Roll-call vote.

No. 41: To eliminate the "partial qualifier" provision and restore one season of eligibility for the nonqualifier. Roll-call vote, Division I.

No. 42: To eliminate the "partial qualifier" provision. Roll-call vote, Division I.

No. 43: To permit nonqualifiers or partial qualifiers to earn a fourth season of athletics eligibility, provided they successfully complete 96 semester or 144 quarter units toward a specific baccalaureate degree program at the certifying institution by the beginning of the fifth year. Roll-call vote, Division I.

No. 44: To require a junior college transfer student who was a nonqualifier to complete one academic year in residence at the certifying institution, regardless of whether the student has fulfilled other transfer eligibility requirements. Roll-call vote, Division I.

No. 45: To permit consideration of athletics ability in the formulation of need-based financial aid packages in Division III, as was the case prior to the 1988 Convention. Roll-call vote, Division III.

No. 46: To permit consideration of athletics ability in the formulation of need-based financial aid packages in Division III, subject to certain percentage restrictions based on consideration given to similar abilities and interests of non-athlete students. Roll-call vote, Division III.

No. 47: To establish a biennial legislative Convention and a revised legislative calendar permitting submission of legislative proposals on a biennial basis; also, to increase the minimum sponsorship requirement for amendments from six to 10 member institutions (not more than five from the same conference) and for amendments to amendments from one to 10 member institutions (not more than five from any single conference).

No. 48: To revise the Association's annual legislative calendar by establishing earlier submission dates for all forms of legislation; also, to increase the sponsorship requirements in the same manner as in Proposal No. 47.

and no woman has served as president. She would be the first Division III representative to serve as secretary-treasurer since Edgar A. Sherman of Muskingum College was elected to serve with Thompson 12 years ago.

Skelton, a member of the NCAA Council for the past three years, is nominated to replace Witte as Division I vice-president. Hughes, who was elected to the Council in 1987, would replace Howard "Bud" Elwell, Gannon University, as Division II vice-president.

Election of the division vice-presidents occurs in the appropriate division business sessions at the January Convention, and those elections then must be ratified in the general business session. The election of the president and secretary-treasurer occurs in the general business session.

The Nominating Committee's recommendations to fill Council vacancies also will be voted upon in the respective division business sessions at the January Convention.

Elect Arthur Eason, director of athletics, William Paterson College, to replace Thomas M. Kinder, Bridgewater College (Virginia). Reelect Jeneffer P. Shillingford, director of athletics, Bryn Mawr College, for a term expiring in January 1992.

The terms of all other Council members continue.

This year's Nominating Committee is chaired by Kathleen M. McNally, assistant director of athletics at La Salle University.

Association promotes Baker

Lacy Lee Baker has been named associate director of championships at the national office. She replaces Daniel B. "Tucker" DiEdwardo, who was named director of championships last month.

Baker joined the national office staff as a publications editor in March 1985. She was named assistant director of championships in 1987.

Baker holds undergraduate degrees from Delta State University and the University of Southern Mississippi. Prior to joining the NCAA, she served as editor and manager of the Olympic Record, the daily program for the 1984 summer games in Los Angeles.

She joined the Olympic staff from Stanford University, where she had been director of athletics publications. She also has served as assistant sports information director at San Diego State University and editor of the NASA National Space Technologies Laboratory newspaper in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi.

Fan club aimed at youngsters

Women's basketball and volleyball teams at Purdue University have a new fan club to allow youngsters from first through eighth grades to learn more about women's sports at the school.

The Little Lady Boiler Club gives the children role models so that they can learn about academics and athletics and how to combine the two successfully, according to the sports information office.

For a $15 membership, a club member receives a season ticket to women's basketball and volleyball games, media guides, schedule cards, posters, a t-shirt, newsletter, membership card, and a chance for a free attendance at a basketball and volleyball clinic. Autograph sessions with players also are scheduled.

Head women's basketball coach Lin Dunn said, "The Little Lady Boiler Club is an excellent opportunity for children to associate with outstanding women student-athletes at Purdue. At Purdue, we care about the youth in our community."

Head volleyball coach Carol Dewey said, "This club is not only for children; it's for the whole family. We invite families to accompany their club member to games. We're family-oriented, and we want to extend that feeling to families."

Comment

NCAA transfer rule should be amended

By Allen R. Bohl

Without question, the NCAA must enforce its rules and regulations to protect against abuses by member schools.

However, in certain cases, the legislation, or its ambiguity, discriminates against certain worthy student-athletes.

A case that the University of Toledo will be bringing before the NCAA Convention in January concerns a unique situation involving a transfer student to our school.

Craig Sutters, a Toledo signee, will be unable to compete as a member of the Rocket basketball team during the 1988-89 season because of a technicality in NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(k)-(1).

Craig attended Flint Academy, graduating in 1986. He applied and was accepted for admission at the University of Michigan, Flint. He was placed in a "challenge program" over the summer, finished first in his class and was given an academic scholarship.

Michigan-Flint doesn't sponsor any intercollegiate athletics programs.

Because of a lack of personal finances, he left Flint after successfully completing one semester.

In September 1987, he enrolled at Mott Community College in Flint. While at Mott, he was approached by the basketball coach, who asked him to try out for the team. He made the squad as a walk-on but received no athletically related financial aid.

He was recruited by several schools and chose Toledo, mainly because of its engineering program.

Had Craig gone directly from Flint to Toledo, he would have been eligible immediately and had four years of eligibility, according to NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(8)-(ii).

Had he gone directly to Mott, played one year and then transferred to Toledo, he would have been immediately eligible with three years of eligibility, according to NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(8).

However, NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(k)-(1) states that a student who transfers from a four-year school to a two-year school to a second four-year school must graduate from the two-year school. The intent is clearly to keep student-athletes from transferring to a junior college to avoid the residence requirement.

Though Sutters satisfied all NCAA academic requirements, he did not graduate from Mott.

The case was presented to the NCAA Council; and though the Council felt the case had merit, it did not feel it had the authority to grant eligibility to Sutters.

Toledo is understanding but very disappointed that the NCAA Council could not grant relief to Craig. This case is unique, in that Craig initially attended a four-year school that did not sponsor any sports on an

'NCAA bureaucrats' fail to grasp members' needs

By Norm Frauenheim
The Arizona Republic
Excerpted from a column

Too often, the NCAA bureaucrats seem to have little, if any, understanding of the pressures that swamp their members.

The NCAA issues righteous proclamations about the necessity of eliminating beer ads from the (Division I Men's Basketball Championship) tournament lineup. Sometimes, the bureaucrats sound as if they are swinging (Carrie) Nation's ax.

The NCAA's concern is that the ads seem to encourage drinking in a time when drug abuse is rampant. The idea is that the NCAA can't accept money from one while preaching against the evils of the other.

The movement to eliminate beer bucks is beginning to sound as if compromise will not be tolerated. The needs of its (NCAA) members apparently matter very little.

The guess is that the NCAA will not succeed. The coaches won't permit it because their livelihood hangs in the balance. It might be very difficult to replace revenue generated by the advertising on the giant beer companies.

But, above all, the NCAA is foolish in its intent to eliminate the ads. Forget about the money, a difficult task.

The beer won't vanish just because the ads do. The day that sports fans, college or pro, quit drinking beer is the day that Los Angeles Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda quits pasta.

There are excesses, to be sure. But the NCAA is supposed to represent educational institutions.

It seems that the NCAA would serve everyone much better if it spent a percentage of the advertising dollars on a program that would attempt to educate the public on substance abuse.

Fans won't stop drinking because the breweries can't advertise during timeouts at the Final Four.

Big Ten wants eligibility delay for transfers from junior colleges

The Big Ten Conference will ask the NCAA membership to adopt a rule the conference put into effect for August 1, 1989, that would restrict the athletics eligibility of junior college transfer student-athletes who failed to meet the requirements of Bylaw 5-1-(j) when they graduated from high school.

The rule, approved last winter by Big Ten faculty athletics representatives, states that a junior college transfer who fails to meet the bylaw's requirements must sit out his first season in the Big Ten.

The student-athlete would be on a grant-in-aid and would be able to practice with his or her team. The athlete also would be eligible for two seasons after sitting out the initial year at a conference school.

Big Ten coaches believe the rule puts them at a disadvantage because most junior college players do not want to sit out a year after transferring.

"It's ridiculous," said Gene Keady, head men's basketball coach at Purdue University. "When it's just the Big Ten that has the rule, all it does is kill you. It's kind of frustrating for Big Ten coaches right now."

Lou Henson, head men's basketball coach at the University of Illinois, Champaign, told the Chicago Tribune, "The feeling of the coaches is that if it is on the national level, fine, but not on an island by ourselves."

Some junior college coaches also disagree with the Big Ten rule.

"I think for basketball, it's a bad rule," said Vincennes (Indiana) University Junior College coach Dan Sparks, "because probably nine of 10 kids from junior colleges will not go to the Big Ten and sit out a year to play two years."

"You talk to many Big Ten coaches who say, 'We're out of the junior college business.' I don't think they'll even try to recruit kids. It's not bad for a kid to sit a year, but most want to play right away."

Those advocating the rule apparently were aiming it more at football players than basketball. Some Big Ten schools have not had good records recently in graduating junior college transfers in football.

Big Ten officials believe they can alleviate much of that abuse by forcing Bylaw 5-1-(j) nonqualifiers to spread their remaining eligibility over a three-year period.

Some junior college coaches contend that the Big Ten is trying to ensure that talented Bylaw 5-1-(j) casualties will enroll at a Big Ten school immediately rather than attend a junior college, according to Tribune sportswriter Barry Temkin.

Big Ten officials maintain, however, that their only reason for instituting the rule was to improve the graduation rates of junior college products, he reports.

If the Big Ten continues to stand alone, junior college transfers won't totally disappear from the conference, according to Temkin.

Junior college rosters include many players who were good students in high school but were late bloomers as athletes. Several such players currently are on Big Ten rosters.

A toast for end to TV beer ads

"The NCAA is considering limits on beer commercials in negotiations for its next championship event TV contracts.

"I applaud the good gentlemen of the NCAA who feel that way.

"I toast them... with a glass of ginger ale.

"For far too long, we have been beset by a host of problems from the ill-conceived union of alcohol and athletics. There have been some redeeming aspects, granted; but basically, it's been a rocky marriage; and mostly, I wish the two had never been introduced.

Reluctance to institute I-A play-off due to bowl pay-offs

By David Moffit

Talk to just about any reasonable athletics official, especially if you promise not to quote him by name, and he'll tell you that a play-off lies in the future of major-college football.

The idea of having the top teams in Division I-A football stage a postseason play-off to pick a national champion isn't radical. After all, that's how the NCAA picks all of its other sports champions.

So, what's the delay?

There are 17 postseason college football bowls—18 when and if the Bluebonnet Bowl is revived—paying a combined $50 million to their participating teams, and school officials question whether a play-off system would be as lucrative.

The bowls, convinced that a play-off system—even one that includes them—would lessen their prestige, feed on that financial fear to keep the schools in line.

The NCAA actually agreed a couple of years ago to study the possibility of a one-game national championship play-off after the bowl season ended. But even that was a more daring proposal than college administrators were willing to accept, although the committee chair said he had no doubt that "in time, such a game will become a reality."

Play-off advocates insist the schools, and the bowls, would profit from a play-off system. They point out that a play-off involving the top 32 major college teams could make use of 16 of the 17 present bowls, with the lesser bowls hosting the early round games and the big-time bowls rotating for the quarterfinals, semifinals and championship.

Opponents point out that a 32-team play-off would mean that the two teams in the championship would have to play five postseason games; that even an eight-team play-off would require the finalists to play three postseason games.

They also insist that the major colleges have an "obligation" to continue to support the bowls, which have poured huge sums into those schools' athletics programs over the years. The bowls—fearful that early round play-off games might not draw the financial support, especially from television, they now enjoy—lead the antiplay-off lobby.

Proponents insist the extra games, many of which would be played during a period when most schools don't hold classes, would be no more of a strain on I-A teams than they are on I-AA and Division II and Division III football teams that do have postseason play-offs to decide their national champions.

And they say the financial fears are unwarranted; that play-off games leading to a national college championship would attract fan and television support similar to that enjoyed by the NFL for its postseason play.

The main thing, say the play-off advocates, is that college football can't crown a true national champion under the present system, wherein a "mythical" champion is picked by a handful of voters rather than on the playing field, even though the two wire services—with United Press International using coaches' rankings and the Associated Press using media rankings—have wound up with the same No. 1 the past nine years in a row.

The ranking system worked out pretty well the past two years when unbeaten Penn State wound up No. 1 by beating previously unbeaten Miami (Florida) in the 1987 Fiesta Bowl and unbeaten Miami wound up No. 1 by beating previously unbeaten Oklahoma in the 1988 Orange Bowl.

A similar situation could occur in this year's Fiesta Bowl with No. 1 Notre Dame and No. 4 West Virginia. Both could be unbeaten going into that game.

But what happens to that "championship" bowl if Southern Cal beats Notre Dame, which in turn beats West Virginia in Phoenix?

A play-off, its supporters point out, would eliminate such confusion.

Moffit writes for United Press International.

Time to end the charade

By Doug Bandow

Cato Institute

Excerpted from USA Today

The NCAA has embarked on yet another futile campaign to purify college sports. Kansas, the 1988 (Division I) basketball champion, is the latest victim.

What kind of system threatens to destroy a top basketball program because a coach bought a needy player a $366 airline ticket so he could visit his ill grandmother before she died? And because a booster loaned the athlete $350 to pay her electric bill?

If the goal is to maintain the fiction that college sports is a pristine, amateur affair, the ruthless enforcement of arbitrary, picayune and inconsequential rules is inevitable.

It's time to drop the entire NCAA charade.

College basketball and football teams act as de facto farm clubs for the pros. Let the universities pay their players like the pros do.

Those who were more interested in earning a degree than a shot at the pros still could do so, attending schools that decided to rely on genuine student-athletes. But players who are just marking time before the NBA or NFL draft could receive a fair return for their services.

Such a system also would eliminate the hypocrisy that now envelops college sports, with schools expressing concern over their players' academic well-being while banking the cash the athletes help bring in.

academic rather than an athletics scholarship prior to transferring to Mott Community College.

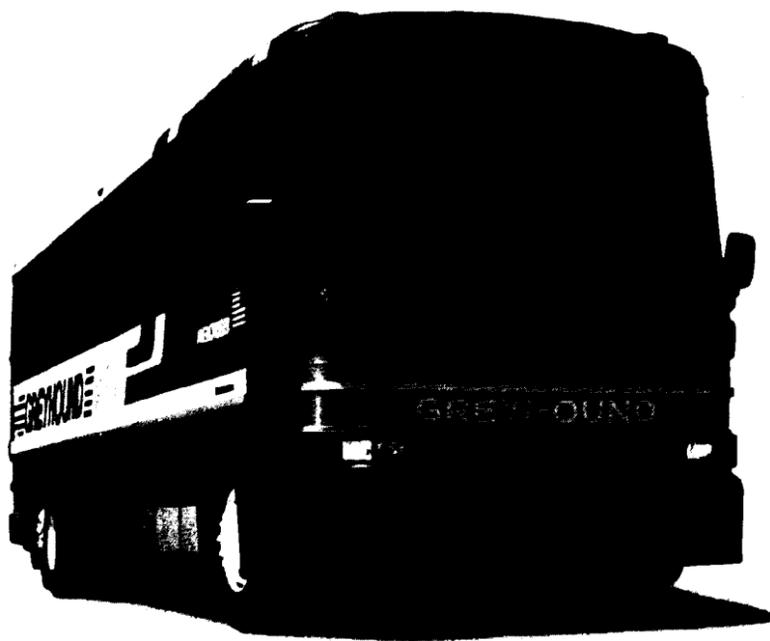

Toledo received a lot of support from people who felt that Craig should be eligible.

It seems a shame that a student-athlete is being punished for making an academic decision. Craig is an outstanding young man who we feel is being victimized by the very system that has been set up to protect against abuses.

Toledo will be asking for an amendment to NCAA Bylaw 5-1, requesting that relief be granted for student-athletes in this situation who initially transfer from a four-year school without athletics.

Wisconsin men cruise to cross country crown

Wisconsin, its top finishers packed together just behind the individual leaders, easily won the team title at the Division I Men's Cross Country Championships November 21. Iowa State University hosted the men's and women's races.

The Badgers, ranked at the top of the coaches' poll throughout the season, confirmed their status as the nation's top team with a 55-point margin of victory over runner-up Northern Arizona in Des Moines, Iowa.

No Wisconsin runner crossed the finish line until Chris Borsa placed 17th individually, but three teammates trailed closely. Scott Fry and Phil Schoensee were barely 10 seconds off Borsa's pace. Jay Korhonen and Mike Huffman also placed in the top 50 to make it an all-senior finish for the Badgers.

"I think the kids sensed that they could win it at four or five miles," said Wisconsin coach Martin Smith. "I don't think we lost any places after three miles and we might have picked up some."

"The guys made up their mind to enjoy it," he added. "They didn't come here to finish second."

The Wisconsin victory ended a two-year hold on the title by Arkansas, which slipped to 10th. It marked the Badgers' third title in seven seasons, matching Arkansas' total during the same period.

Freshman Robert Kennedy of Indiana was the first competitor across the finish line, giving the Hoosiers individual titles in both

Two days after winning the Division II individual title, North Dakota State's Doug Hanson (No. 997) had traveled from Clinton, Mississippi, to Des Moines, Iowa, for the Division I championship race. Running with Hanson, who finished 77th overall, were Penn State's Steven Brown (No. 212); Providence's David Burke (No. 127); Penn State's Ken Frazier (No. 215); Arkansas' Edgar Hallock (No. 616), and Wake Forest's Jon Hume (No. 344).

"I just relaxed and gathered myself for the stretch," said Kennedy. "I wanted to win it, and I knew I was capable. It depended on how I ran and how everyone else ran."

Kentucky women use balance to win cross country title

Kentucky, displaying remarkable balance, enjoyed a record margin of victory at the Division I Women's Cross Country Championships November 21. Iowa State University hosted the men's and women's races.

Defending champion Oregon finished second, 53 points behind the Lady Kats. It was the widest gap between champion and runner-up since the championships began in 1981.

Kentucky, which did not qualify for the championships a year ago, placed four runners among the top 20 team scorers and a fifth in 28th position to notch its first Division I women's championship in any sport.

Juniors Lisa Breiding and Valerie McGovern finished 11th and 12th individually, with two other juniors, Kristy Orre and Sherry Hoover, less than 30 seconds behind. Sophomore Denise Bushallow completed the scoring for the Lady Kats.

"The main thing was our top three ran about as well we could expect," said Kentucky coach Don Weber. "I was thinking that if Denise really got into it, she could finish in the top three, but it didn't work out. Fortunately, our top three gave us the lead we needed."

Indiana claimed the individual champion for the second straight year. Junior Michelle Dekkers, competing barefoot, won the race in 16:30—four seconds ahead of UTEP's Tina Ljungberg. Oklahoma State teammates Sonia Barry and Jackie Goodman followed the leaders across the finish line. Goodman was individual runner-up last season.

California bests UCLA in water polo final 'rematch'

By Matt Farmer

The 20th NCAA National Collegiate Men's Water Polo Championship was practically a mirror image of the first. Only the outcome was different.

California won its second consecutive water polo championship with a 14-11 victory over UCLA November 27 at the Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool in Long Beach, California. The University of California, Irvine, hosted the event.

The title was California's fourth in the last six years and a record eighth in the history of the tournament.

In 1969, UCLA defeated California, 5-2, in the first National Collegiate Water Polo Championship.

This time, the Golden Bears stunned UCLA with six first-period goals; but the Bruins battled to within one goal after the second and third periods.

"We had the momentum early, which is a big plus," said California coach Pete Cutino, who finished his 26th year as coach of the Golden Bears. "I don't think we slowed down as much as UCLA got hot and took it to us."

California senior all-America Kirk Everist, who scored four goals against UCLA and seven for the tournament, was named the championship's most outstanding player.

The Golden Bears advanced to the final by defeating Arkansas-Little Rock, 17-6, and Stanford, 10-6. California finished the season with a record of 33-3.

UCLA defeated Navy, 11-3, and Southern California, 13-10, en route to a 29-5 mark.

"Our balance was the key this season," Cutino said. "We didn't have the best two-meter man; but from top to bottom, we had a lot of balance. That made it tough for our opponents to key on one player."

Joining Everist on the all-tournament squad were teammates Jeff Brush and Rich Ambidge; UCLA's Fernando Carsalade and Alexis Rousseau, and Southern Cal's Zoltan Berty and Rob Carver.

First-round games: California 17, Ark-Lit. Rock 6; UCLA 11, Navy 3; Southern Cal 13, UC Irvine 11; Stanford 5, Long Beach St. 4.

Consolation semifinals: Long Beach St. 13, Ark-Lit. Rock 10; UC Irvine 17, Navy 5.

Championship semifinals: California 10, Stanford 6; UCLA 13, Southern Cal 10.

Seventh place: Ark-Lit. Rock 10, Navy 9 (ot).

UC San Diego real winner in III men's soccer

[Editor's Note: How did it happen? The same way errors in the publishing business have been happening since the first ink-stained type splashed its message on newsprint for all to review.]

Through a combination of reporting, editing and fact-checking errors, the November 21 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly reported that Rochester Institute defeated UC San Diego, 3-0, and claimed the 1988 Division III Men's Soccer Championship. In fact, UC San Diego won, 3-0 (at least we got the score right.)

Following is an accurate account of the championship's semifinal and final rounds. Our apologies to the participants and to our readers.]

The University of California, San Diego, won its first Division III Men's Soccer Championship with a 3-0 victory over host Rochester Institute of Technology November 19. The Tigers hosted the semifinals and championship.

Both semifinal matches went into overtime, with each game being won on penalty kicks. UC San Diego and Messiah were scoreless through overtime play and the Tritons became the eventual winner by outkicking Messiah, 9-8, in the shootout. In the second match November 18, Rochester Institute got off to a good start when Pete Mojsej scored at 43:52. Scoring then alternated between the two teams, with Salem State's Len Jonasson getting in a shot at 46:07 before Rochester Institute's Martin Moreno scored at 65:35.

'AIDS in Sport' pamphlet is offered free

The American Coaching Effectiveness Program (ACEP) has produced a 32-page pamphlet entitled "AIDS in Sport," which will be distributed free to any coach who sends in a self-addressed, stamped envelope with 40 cents postage to the ACEP National Center, P.O. Box 5076, Champaign, Illinois.

This is a nationwide effort to educate coaches about AIDS as it pertains to sport, according to a news release from ACEP.

The pamphlet was written by Gregory Landry, M.D., head of sports medicine at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

The pamphlet specifically addresses AIDS and how it relates to sports participation. The pamphlet is written in a question-and-answer format, allowing coaches to find answers to specific questions quickly.

Coaches today are asking many questions about the AIDS virus, such as: Should an athlete be allowed to compete with AIDS? In which sports? What precautions should be taken? Should I drain the swimming pool if an AIDS-infected athlete bleeds in it?

The "AIDS in Sport" pamphlet answers these questions.

The American Coaching Effectiveness Program is dedicated to improving the sporting experience of the nation's youth.

ACEP has developed a multilevel coaching-education program designed to educate coaches utilizing the latest in sports science, sports management, sports medicine and sport-specific information.

ACEP has trained and certified more than 65,000 coaches nationwide over the last 10 years.

Undefeated, untied bowl match-ups are a rarity

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Notre Dame vs. West Virginia in the Fiesta Bowl will be only the 13th match-up of two undefeated, untied teams in bowl history, but it will be the third in three years. Two were in the Fiesta.

The Rose Bowl had the first four such games over a 10-year span but has had none since.

The Orange Bowl has had four, the Sugar Bowl three and the Fiesta two. The Penn State-Miami (Florida) game in the Fiesta two years ago was the first perfect match-up since New Year's Eve, 1973, when Notre Dame nipped Alabama in the Sugar. Miami (Florida) vs. Oklahoma last year was the Orange Bowl's fourth.

Neither Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz nor West Virginia coach Don Nehlen has ever coached a national-championship team. Since the first wire-service poll in 1936, Notre Dame has won or shared national titles in 1943, 1946, 1947, 1949, 1964, 1966, 1973 and 1977—eight in all. West Virginia never has won a national crown. They are the only remaining perfect-record teams this fall. The list:

Bowl	Date	Teams, Coaches, Score
Rose	1-1-21	California (Andy Smith) 28, Ohio St. (John Wilce) 0
Rose	1-2-22	California (Andy Smith) 0, Wash. & Jeff. (Earle "Greasy" Neale) 0
Rose	1-1-27	Stanford (Glenn "Pop" Warner) 7, Alabama (Wallace Wade) 7

Orange	1-2-39	Tennessee (Bob Neyland) 17, Oklahoma (Tom Stidham) 0
Sugar	1-1-41	Boston College (Frank Leahy) 19, Tennessee (Bob Neyland) 13

Sugar	12-31-73	Notre Dame (Ara Parseghian) 24, Alabama (Paul "Bear" Bryant) 23

Dooley and Kidd

Georgia's Vince Dooley became the 18th college coach in history, regardless of division or association (10th in I-A), to win 200 games when his team defeated Georgia Tech November 26. Eastern Kentucky's Roy Kidd got his 198th the same day in the Division I-AA championship play-off and could become the 19th with two more play-off victories (that would put his team in the finals).

The 200 club has six active members—Grambling's Eddie Robinson (the all-time leader at 349), John Gagliardi of St. John's (Minnesota), Central's (Iowa) Ron Schipper, Michigan's Bo Schembechler, Penn State's Joe Paterno and Dooley.

Both Dooley and Kidd are in their 25th college head-coaching season, all at the same school. "This also belongs to all the players and assistant coaches who have been with me over the years," said Dooley, a 1954 Auburn graduate. He talked his players out of carrying him off the field on their shoulders. Dooley won a national championship in 1980 and his career record is 200-77-10.

Kidd, a former quarterback at Eastern Kentucky, won national I-AA titles in 1979 and 1982. The past four years, Kidd has set aside funds from his summer football camp—money he could have paid to himself—to pay for regular drug testing for all Eastern players. "If you test positive once, it's between you and the trainer," Kidd says. "The second time, I will be told and so will your parents, and you must enter counseling and straighten up before you come back."

Kidd is recognized in college and professional circles as one of the finest teachers in the game. He has had many chances to move up to I-A, but ego and money are not big in his life. Wife Sue tells about the time he was hired as head coach: "Roy came home and said, 'Sue, you're looking at the new head coach.' I said, 'That's great, Roy, how much are they paying us?' He had no idea. It never occurred to him to ask about that."

A standoff

When the top teams in the top Division I-A conferences tangle in bowl games, things even out at the break-even level over the long run.

That is another way of saying that little can be proved about the relative strength of conferences or regions from a study of all-time major bowl history.

Using current conference and independent lineups, every conference is within a few games of the break-even .500 level over the entire history of all the major bowls, which began with the Rose Bowl in 1902.

First, a definition of a major bowl: All bowls played by a current or former major-college or Division I-A team, provided it played an opponent classified as major at the time of the bowl, or it was classified major itself at the time (Southern Methodist, back in the I-A fold in 1989, is included).

The list excludes games in which a home team was determined in preseason as the host, regardless of its record, and/or games scheduled before the season, thus eliminating the old Pineapple, Glass and Palm Festival.

Using this definition, there have been 546 major bowl games in history, which involved 100 current I-A teams (including SMU) and 49 former majors, nonmajors or service teams. Among current I-A teams, only Akron, Ball State, Central Michigan, Hawaii and Southwestern Louisiana have yet to appear in a major bowl.

All-bowls list

Looking at the all-bowls list, the Southeastern Conference is 10 games above .500, but if just six of its 197 bowl games had gone the other way, it would be a game under .500. The Pacific-10 is nine over .500, but switch the winner in just five of its 121 games and it would be one game under.

As the chart below shows, three conferences or independent groups are exactly at .500 and four are from one to four games over. Regionally it is much the same (we are combining the East and South because the Atlantic Coast Conference is in both regions):

Remember, we are using current conference and independent lineups, and this partly is why Southern independents are 17 under and the

San Jose State's Johnny Johnson is second among I-A all-purpose runners

Southwest Athletic Conference is 10 under. The SWC record includes Texas Tech's 3-13-1 record, most of it coming before it joined the SWC. And the ACC record includes Georgia Tech's 15-8. Tech came to the ACC recently from the Southern independent ranks. Put it back there, and the Southern independent figure would be much better, and is even more of a standoff. No single conference, independent group or region is more than six games above or below the break-even mark. The Pacific-10 Conference leads with 39-33-3 for .540, but this means that if the winner were switched just three times in its 75 games, it would be exactly at .500.

In comparing all bowls vs. Big the ACC would be under .500 (Georgia Tech also was once in the SEC).

But the point is, all conferences are very close to .500. Even the 49 former majors, nonmajors and service teams that played in major bowls are exactly .500.

'Big Four' list

If the comparison is limited only to the "Big Four," that is, the traditional four New Year's bowls that go back more than a half century, it

Four, note that the SWC jumps up to .500 and the SEC falls to .500, while Eastern independents go from three over to six under. The Pac-10, SWC, Big Eight Conference, Midwest independents, ACC and Southern independents all have better marks in the Big Four than in all bowls.

677 for 'Perpetual Pellerin'

The Notre Dame game November 26 was the 677th consecutive Southern California football game (home and away) attended by Giles "Perpetual" Pellerin, who will be 82 two days before Christmas. Michigan in the Rose Bowl will be No. 678.

"We can look down on the Rose Bowl parade from our condominium," Pellerin told Jay Simon of the Green Valley, Arizona, News & Sun, before watching his beloved Trojans whip Arizona State, 50-0. "I figure if we get in a bowl next year, I'll see my 700th straight when we play UCLA in 1990." In between, the Trojans likely will play Illinois in Moscow next season. "It looks like we'll be making a trip to Russia next season," said Pellerin, his eyes dancing like a kid at his first circus. His streak started in 1926, and he remembers a lot of scrimping in the early 1930s to make some of the trips. "I was only making $150 a month in those days. You could get a round trip (train) ticket to Chicago for about $60. This year, it was $600 for a seat on the team charter to Boston."

His favorite game? "I'd have to say the 1939 Rose Bowl when we beat Duke," he said. Duke was undefeated, untied and unscored upon, "but sophomores Doyle Nave (quarterback) and Al Krueger (end) came off the bench and won it in the last minute, 7-3."

There was one close call in 1949, when his appendix was removed on a Tuesday before the Washington game in Los Angeles: "My doctor told me Friday there was no way I

In Division I-AA, they're saying, 'Wait 'til next year'

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Except for Holy Cross senior Jeff Wiley, high on the all-time NCAA collegiate, or all-divisions career charts in passing and total offense, 1988 is the "year of the junior" in Division I-AA football. This gifted group will put a lot of records in danger in 1989.

Eastern Kentucky junior Elroy Harris wins the national rushing and scoring titles at 154.3 yards per game and 12.8 points per game.

Lafayette junior Frank Baur wins the passing-efficiency championship with a division-record 171.1 rating points and is a close second in total offense.

Idaho junior John "Deep" Friesz wins the total-offense title, averaging 275.1 rushing-passing yards per game (with Baur second at 272.7 and New Hampshire's Bob Jean third on 272.3 in a tight three-man race).

Still another junior, Northern Arizona's Greg Wyatt, already has 8,014 passing yards and 7,777 in total offense, even though he went down for the season with an injury in the first half of the ninth game. He seems likely to reach 10,000 yards in both categories next season, surpassing Wiley, while Friesz can surpass 9,000 in both with another season like 1988.

Harris can go even higher, to record career levels, in rushing and scoring by duplicating his 1988 figures next year. That would give him 5,372 rushing yards and 416 points, surpassing the I-AA records of 5,333 by Frank Hawkins in 1977-80 at Nevada-Reno and 385 by Marty Zendejas in 1984-87 at the same college.

'Sometimes you wonder'

Wiley reached ninth on the collegiate, or all-divisions career list with 9,877 yards in total offense and 10th on the collegiate passing yardage list at 9,698. On the I-AA charts, he is fifth in total offense yards, fourth in passing yards and his career completion percentage of 59.9 is a I-AA record.

Not bad for a little guy (5-9 and 173) who had no scholarship offers for three months after ending a highly productive high school career in Celina, Ohio. Then, Holy Cross took a chance on him.

"Sometimes you wonder why good things happen to you, when you're not that much different from anybody else," Wiley says. The record indicates he is special. He was voted academic all-America a year ago (when he was passing-efficiency and total-offense champion) with a 3.300 grade-point average (4.000 scale) as a major in political science and premedicine. He now seems to be leaning toward dentistry because he doesn't want to be on call 24 hours a day, as doctors are. But he first may take a year off from college, just to see what is out there for him in the business world.

Rushing, scoring and all-purpose

Harris, a 5-10, 215-pounder from Winter Park, Florida, is the latest in a long line of 1,000-yard tailbacks who have played for Roy Kidd in his 25 years at Eastern Kentucky (he soon will join the select group of college 200-game winners). Kidd worked extremely hard to recruit Harris, who was considered the equal of Sammie Smith, now at Florida State. He was perfect for Kidd's option game. The coach considers the option play "the toughest play to defend in football."

One of nine Eastern starters from Florida, Harris led the team to a 9-2 season and the I-AA play-offs

Lafayette's Frank Baur led I-AA in passing efficiency with 171.1 points while taking the rushing and scoring titles. The lack of recognition does not bother Harris. "Just look at what Walter Payton (former Jackson State star who became the game's top career rusher) did in the NFL."

Harris took a year away from football in 1986 to concentrate on his studies, so will be eligible for the pro draft in the spring but says he will not decide on that until after the season.

Western Carolina senior receiver Otis Washington, from Dillon, South Carolina, won the title in all-purpose running at 189.6 yards per game. His 19.7 yards per play is a record, using minimums of 1,500 yards and 100 plays (had 907 yards in receiving, a record 1,113 kickoff-return yards and only 66 yards rushing). Another senior receiver, Virginia Military's Mark Stock, was a close second.

On the career charts, Nevada-Reno's Charvez Foger wound up No. 3 in rushing yards at 4,484 and first in scoring among nonkickers at 362 (second among all scorers). Jackson State's Lewis Tillman is next among seniors in rushing yards at 3,824—five yards behind Harris. Alabama State senior Brad Baxter had 3,732.

Passing, total offense

En route to his I-AA record in passing efficiency, Baur led Lafayette to the Colonial League championship, unseating Holy Cross. The 6-5, 224-pounder from Forty Fort, Pennsylvania, led his team to an 8-2-1 season, compared to 4-7 last year. He improved his skills and had a better supporting cast this time.

"He's so big and strong he rarely goes down with the first hit," says his coach, Bill Russo. "So often, he has shaken off the rush and made the big play for us."

In his first two seasons, Baur had 24 interceptions and 24 touchdown passes. This fall, it was 23 TDs vs. 11 interceptions, with a lot of big plays as he averaged 10.24 yards per attempt, just missing the I-AA record of 10.31 by Northern Iowa's Mike Smith in 1986.

Baur's 9.57 yards per total-offense play set a record, smashing the 8.37 by Smith in 1986 for a minimum of 2,500 yards gained.

Princeton's Jason Garrett set two I-AA season records: His 68.2 completion percentage broke the record for at least 275 attempts (66.3 by Wiley last year), and he had just one percent intercepted (three in 299 attempts).

Total-offense champion Friesz, who led Idaho into the I-AA play-offs a second straight season, is similar to Baur at 6-4 and 214 pounds. He is from Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

On the career charts (in addition to Wiley), Nevada-Reno's Jim Zacheo reached fifth in passing efficiency at 142, Garrett seventh at 140.2 and Wiley eighth at 136.3, while Weber State's Jeff Carlson finished 10th in per-game total offense at 252.5 in basically a two-season career.

Simply by maintaining his career per-game figures, Wyatt would yards at 1,161. Indiana State's Steve Elmlinger leads in yards per catch among the top 50 receivers at 21 and Phillip Ng of Lafayette in TD catches at 13.

On the career chart, Marshall's Mike Barber finished third in receiving yards at 3,520 and fifth in catches at 209, while Northern Arizona's Shawn Collins reached eighth at 201 (and tied for second among tight ends). Stock had 3,091. New Hampshire junior Curtis Olds al-

Jeff Wiley, Holy Cross, reached ninth on all-divisions career list with 9,877 yards in total offense

Keith Chapman. Lutz was the most accurate in this group, missing only twice from under 46 yards in 21 attempts. Penaflo was perfect (13-for-13) from under 44 yards.

On the career list, senior Bjorn Nittmo of Appalachian State, a native of Lomma, Sweden, reached fifth at 55 made (in 74 attempts).

In kick scoring, Sam Houston State's Bill Hayes reached eighth on the career list at 258 points. Lafayette's Jim Hodson set a season record by making all 51 of his extra-point kicks, bettering by one the record Hayes set a year ago. In career consecutive PATs made, Montana State's Anders Larsson, Varberg, Sweden, set a record for a minimum of 100 attempts by making all 101 in his career.

Team champions

Lehigh is the only double national champion in the team figures, winning in passing offense at 330.1 yards per game and in total offense at 485.6 yards per game. Lafayette, a close second to Lehigh in total offense at 478.4, is the scoring champion at 38.2. Eastern Kentucky wins the rushing crown at 303.

Defensively, Stephen F. Austin State wins in rushing, allowing 83.5 yards per game, and Middle Tennessee State in passing, allowing 90.8. In total defense, it is Alcorn State, allowing 215.4; and in scoring defense, it is Furman, allowing 9.7 points per game, with Jackson State second in both categories.

Arkansas State wins in turnover margin at 1.82, taking the ball away 38 times on fumbles and interceptions while losing it only 18 times in the same ways. In net punting (runbacks subtracted), Montana is the winner at 39.8 per punt. Florida A&M wins in punt-return average at 18.4 and Northern Iowa in kickoff-return average at 23.5.

The bowl field

If the bowl field is familiar, it is no wonder. Of the 34 teams in the 17 major bowls, 24 are repeaters from last year, as noted in the chart. All 24 have the same head coach as last season.

Five coaches are head-coaching in a major bowl for the first time in their career, as the chart shows. They are Houston's Jack Pardee, UTEP's Bob Stull, Southern Mississippi's Curley Hallman (in his first head-coaching season at the four-year level), Washington State's Dennis Erickson and Western Michigan's Al Molde. That brings to 365 the all-time total of head coaches in major bowls.

Georgia's Vince Dooley is in his 20th bowl, second in history to the 29 for Paul "Bear" Bryant. Nebraska's Tom Osborne and Michigan's reach 10,536 yards in total offense and 10,858 in passing yardage. By duplicating his 1988 totals, Friesz would reach 9,085 in total offense and 9,530 in passing yards. Friesz threw only 26 passes his first season.

Next in career passing among seniors are Western Illinois' Paul Singer at 7,850 and New Hampshire's Bob Jean at 7,704. In total offense, it was Jean at 7,621 and Singer 7,392.

Receiving and runbacks

Connecticut senior Glenn Antrum is the receiving champion, edging Boston U. sophomore Daren Altieri, 7 to 6.9 catches per game. Virginia Military senior Mark Stock, third in catches, leads in ready has 3,028 yards on 193 catches.

In interceptions, Rhode Island senior Kevin Smith is the champion with nine catches in 10 games for 0.90 per game. Prominent on the career chart are Holy Cross junior Dave Murphy, already tied for third with 23 (the record of 24 is shared by two players, so he needs only two in 1989 to break it), and East Tennessee State senior Rick Harris, whose 452 interception-return yards and 22.6 average (minimum 15 returns) set I-AA records. Three seniors tied for sixth at 21 each—Jackson State's Kevin Dent, Illinois State's Jeff Smith and Mark Seals of Boston U.

A pair of juniors, Delaware State's Tim Egerton and Florida A&M's Howard Huckaby, shared honors in punt returns: Egerton's 23-yard average is a I-AA record, and Huckaby's four punt-return touchdowns is another I-AA season mark.

Huckaby's 18.4-yard average is the sixth highest ever in I-AA. Last year, he was the national champion in kickoff-return average. On the career chart, Egerton has five punt-return TDs to equal the record, so he and Huckaby both have a shot at that one in 1989. In career punt-return average, Egerton's 17.9 puts him in position to break the record of 16.4 next year.

The season kickoff-return champion is Towson State senior Dave Meggett with a 32.2-yard average—second highest ever in I-AA.

Punting and field goals

Illinois State senior Mike McCabe is the punting champion at 44.1, while the field-goal title is shared by Princeton sophomore Chris Lutz and Stephen F. Austin State freshman Chuck Rawlinson, with 19 in 10 games for 1.90 per game.

Two others made 19 in 11 games—Northern Arizona's Micky Penaflo and North Texas'

John Friesz of Idaho claimed Division I-AA's total-offense crown

Booklet warns runners of dangers of dieting

Editor's Note: One of the top priorities of the NCAA Women's Committee on Athletics is further study of anorexia nervosa, which basically is an eating disorder that mostly strikes young women. The NCAA research staff, with the aid of consultants, is planning a series of four videotapes that will deal with various aspects of the problem. Following is an article by Robert Millward of the Associated Press concerning a booklet on the subject published in London.

Women runners who diet obsessively are more likely to become skinny and undernourished rather than improve their performance, and they risk developing anorexia nervosa, a sports-medicine expert said.

"We are getting to hear of many female runners, some of them at the international level, who have become trapped by anorexia," said Dr. John Fox, chief doctor for Britain's track and field federation.

"There are those who suffer from the condition and have not got the will power to get out of it," Fox said. "But there are also many others who are running and training every day who do not realize they are suffering from the problem."

Fox, chair of the British Amateur Athletics Board's medical commission, has contributed to a booklet on the subject.

Entitled "Too Thin To Win?" and published earlier in November by a branch of the International Amateur Athletics Federation, the booklet outlines the dangers of obsessive dieting among athletes and what to do when the problem of anorexia arises.

Anorexia nervosa, which literally means loss of appetite for nervous reasons, involves people who deliberately starve themselves to the state of acute—and sometimes fatal—malnutrition.

Over the years, the booklet said, there have been many tragic cases of young women who literally starved themselves slowly to death.

In an interview with the Associated Press, Fox said that sports doctors were more and more aware of runners who become obsessive about losing weight in a desperate bid to trim their times.

Fox said there were three known deaths from anorexia among sports women in West Germany over the past decade, and records show that the disease was blamed for the death of Helga Braathen, a former gymnastics champion from Norway. Braathen died at age 29, several years after her gymnastics career ended.

But the nature of the condition, which is mainly psychological, was such that many other cases remain unreported, Fox said.

Quite apart from the health dangers, he said, it is also counterproductive because excessive slimming deprived the body of vital nutrients needed for stamina and to help the body recover from injuries.

Although the runner may see initial improvements in times and performances, Fox said, there is no long term benefit and, instead, the result can be tragic.

"There is a total misconception that the thinner you are, the better athlete you are," Fox said.

"People see runners who are naturally skinny, like Liz McColgan and Wendy Sly (two British Olympic silver medalists), and think they have to be like them to be successful.

"But they are naturally built like that and, although it probably does help their running, they don't have to starve themselves to be successful."

The booklet quoted Sly and U.S. cross country champion Lynn Jennings as leading athletes who have become aware of the problem.

Sly, who won a silver medal in the 3,000 meters at Los Angeles, said she became calorie conscious at age 17 and almost fell into the trap.

All her friends at school, she said, were keeping to 1,500 calories a day, whereas she was consuming some 4,000.

"But as I now realize, unlike them, I also was running 100 kilometers (over 60 miles) a week for top-level competition and growing too. I needed those calories," Sly, 28, said.

"So when I obstinately cut down, I became much too thin. My clothes got baggy, and I must have looked dreadful. I was running badly too, because I had lost my strength."

Fox said it was unlikely that sufferers would themselves notice the condition coming on. And once they had become anorexic, they would do everything but admit it, he said. So it was up to others, family, coaches and doctors to look for the signs.

"The symptoms to watch for are obvious weight loss, obsessive preoccupation with weight and character changes," he said.

"The people who are suffering don't realize what they are doing to themselves. It's really up to those around them to help them out of it."

Visitors

Members of the Texas A&I University football team took some time before a recent home game to entertain patients at Ada Wilson Children's Hospital in Corpus Christi. Team members plan yearly visits to give the youngsters game programs and souvenirs. In the photo at top, wide receiver Kerry Simien signs autographs. Jennifer: A name that turns (seven) heads Wittenberg University's women's soccer team has its own claim to fame with a name... just like the East Stroudsburg University of Pennsylvania women's tennis team, which was featured in the November 7 issue of The NCAA News.

Chris is the name at East Stroudsburg, where six tennis players have some version of that first name. At Wittenberg, however, Jennifer is the name that turns heads—seven to be exact.

Jennifer Armour, Jennifer Darlington, Jennifer Duff, Jennifer Frey, Jennifer Johnson, Jennifer McCall and Jennifer Rader played this fall for first-year coach Diana Daniels.

Drexel University and the University of Pennsylvania will cohost the 23rd Annual National Wrestling Coaches Association Classic next February 7. "It's the premier collegiate wrestling event in the nation other than the NCAA meet," said Roger Reina, Pennsylvania head coach.

Last year, seven of the 10 Division I champions from 1987 and five runners-up participated. Invitations are extended annually to the top competitors in 10 weight classes.

Coaches for the 1989 event include Jim Miller, Ferris State University; John Clark, St. Lawrence University; Joe Seay, Oklahoma State University, and Mike DeAnna, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania.

Trivia Time: Michigan State University holds the all-time record for Division I men's cross country team titles with eight. When is the last time the Spartans won the NCAA crown? Answer later.

Apologies to Roland and Kathy Marpe, who were identified as women's basketball coaches at the University of California, San Diego, in the November 14 edition of the News. The Marpes coach at the University of San Diego.

In the NCAA Record published in the November 14 issue of the News, it was noted that Soo Kyo Park had joined the basketball coaching staff at California State University, Los Angeles. According to head coach Henry Dyer, Park really is an intern.

"It's a learning situation for him," Dyer noted. "He's a player who wants to get into coaching, and they felt it would be good for him to come and get some ideas."

Briefly in the News

"They" are the sponsors of the Hyundai semiprofessional team in Park's native South Korea. After serving at Cal State Los Angeles, he will return home to coach the Hyundai squad. Park, a 32-year-old former captain of South Korea's national team, had been a player-coach for Hyundai.

Marty Marbach, men's basketball coach at Canisius College, is enforcing a "weight/wait policy" on senior guard Grady Minnick. When Minnick reported for preseason practice 20 pounds overweight, he was suspended by Marbach until he lost the extra pounds.

According to Brigham Young University's sports information office, women's volleyball player Dylann Duncan established a Division I collegiate record for career kills November 17 when the Cougars defeated Colorado State University, 3-1.

With 28 kills in the match, Duncan's career total climbed to 2,109, surpassing the 2,099 career kills amassed by former University of Oregon standout Sue Harbour.

The U.S. Tennis Association's 1988-89 College Tennis Guide is available from the USTA (707 Alexander Road, Princeton, New Jersey 08540). The publication provides information on tennis programs and scholarships at nearly 1,500 two- and four-year colleges and universities nationwide.

The book is $6 for USTA members, $6.50 for nonmembers.

In other USTA news, the association has announced plans for a tennis workshop next February 7-9 in Atlanta. Information on the program is available from Helen Keeler at USTA headquarters (telephone 609/452-2580).

Trivia Answer: Although Michigan State holds the Division I record for most national team titles in men's cross country with eight, the Spartans have not claimed an NCAA crown in the sport since 1959.

Helmet use in tackling causes serious injuries, study shows

A number of paralyzing football injuries are caused by a combination of stronger helmets and dangerous tackling techniques not simply freak accidents—according to a study by orthopedic surgeon Joseph Torg, M.D.

Torg, director of the sports-medicine center at Penn Medical Center, started the National Football Head and Neck Injury Registry to collect data from 1971 to 1975 on head and neck injuries resulting from tackling.

Comparison of data from 1959 to 1963 and from 1971 to 1975 showed that the number of injuries resulting in quadriplegia had increased from an average of six per year to more than 30 per year.

By watching game films sent in by schools where the injuries had occurred, Torg discovered the reason for the injuries.

"It was apparent that with the improved capabilities of the helmet, the kids were using their heads as battering-rams," he said. He realized that the injuries were the result of the tackling techniques kids were being taught and allowed to use.

"We took this information to the NCAA, recommended rules changes; and within a year, essentially rewrote the tackling rules."

Rules adopted in 1976 prohibit a player from intentionally striking a runner with the crown or top of the helmet, shearing (deliberate use of the helmet in an attempt to punish the opponent), and use of the helmet to butt or ram an opponent.

"While 34 kids became quadriplegic in 1976; by 1984, there were only five," Torg said. He began his study while at Temple University.

"By erasing the 'freak injury' menality, I think that people responsible for the administration of the game understand that injuries can be prevented.

"As far as American football goes, I think it's a great game. And it can be played safely if a more rational, scientific, analytic approach is taken to handling injuries," Torg told Public Relations Newswire.

Bo Schembechler both are in their 16th, tied for fifth on the all-time list, while three more are tied for eighth at 13 bowls—Notre Dame's Lou Holtz, Oklahoma's Barry Switzer and Brigham Young's LaVell Edwards.

Switzer and Osborne are tied for fifth with eight bowl victories each (Bryant leads this list at 15 with Penn State's Joe Paterno second with 12).

Narrowing it down to the traditional "Big Four" (Rose, Orange, Sugar and Cotton), Switzer is in a five-way tie for second with six victories, a group that Osborne, now 5-4 in the Big Four, can join with an Orange Bowl victory (Bryant leads this list with 12). In Big Four games, Schembechler now is third at 11, trailing Bryant (20) and Texas' Darrell Royal (12), with Osborne at 10 tied for fourth with three others.

UCLA and Terry Donahue have won six bowl games in six years, equalling the record set by Georgia Tech and Bobby Dodd, starting with the 1951 season, and thus can break that mark with a Cotton Bowl victory over Arkansas.

Osborne has the longest current streak with 16 straight years in a bowl (he has gone bowling every season of his career), second longest in history to Bryant's 24. Schembechler has 14 straight, Edwards 11, Dooley nine, Iowa's Hayden Fry eight and Florida State's Bobby Bowden seven in a row. Notable among the missing are Paterno, Washington's Don James and Tennessee's Johnny Majors.

Team streaks? Nebraska leads with 20 straight years in bowls (Alabama's 24 leads) and Michigan's 14 is tied for fourth on the all-time list. Four teams have gone bowling all nine seasons of the 1980s—Brigham Young, Georgia, Michigan and Nebraska.

Building construction under way

Construction of the Association's new national office building is under way.

Ground was broken November 14 for the NCAA headquarters in Overland Park, Kansas. Occupancy is expected by early 1990.

The seven-story building will comprise 154,700 square feet. The initial NCAA lease will be for 118,500 square feet. The remainder initially will be leased to other tenants, with the Association taking occupancy of the entire structure over a period of 10 years.

Construction, set to begin in September, was delayed while the national office and the developer, Copaken, White and Blitt, negotiated the final details of the lease and construction specifications.

"It takes time to put together a deal of this magnitude and a design this complicated," said Estel Hipp of Copaken, White and Blitt. "Think of building a house, then multiply the details by about 100, and that's how complicated it is. We're thrilled to finally have it under way.

"We think it's going to be the best-looking building in that commercial area, and we're proud to have the NCAA as the tenant."

A visitors center on the first floor of the new headquarters will open in the spring of 1990.

"We have a very good plan and a fair lease," said Richard D. Hunter, NCAA director of operations. "We were able to address our expansion needs, which are constantly changing.

"At this point, we are at the mercy of the weather. If everything goes perfectly, the building could be ready to occupy by the end of 1989. But there are a lot of intangibles to consider."

Work has begun on the Association's new headquarters buildings at College Boulevard and Lamar Avenue in Overland Park, Kansas. Earth-moving crews have begun site preparation work for the new office building, which will include a visitors' center.

Testing during training is key

U.S., Soviets nearer to drug-test accord

The United States and the Soviet Union have signed a "memorandum of agreement" that could lead to the first drug-testing program of top athletes from both nations during training, a Soviet sports official said November 22.

Sergei Portugalov, a doctor of medicine on the Soviet Sports Committee and a member of the American-Soviet panel, said the agreement was signed late November 21 after "lengthy talks."

The document was signed by Baaron Pittenger, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, and Vasily Gromyko, deputy chair of the Soviet State Committee for Physical Culture and Sports. It is subject to approval by both nations' Olympic committees.

Portugalov said the document would be published "within a week" by the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Most observers believe that without testing in training, the fight against doping—the use of drugs by athletes to improve their performance—will never be won.

Currently, American and Soviet athletes are tested only during certain events, including the Olympics and other major championships. They generally are not tested during the off-season or on short notice.

Portugalov said "the U.S.-Soviet Commission will be devoted to solving the problem of doping in sport and the first idea is to test athletes in both countries during training."

Edwin Moses, a two-time Olympic champion in the 400-meter hurdles, said the agreement "will reduce the paranoia between their athletes and ours, the skepticism, especially on our side, which has led to the escalation of abuse. This is a major step forward."

Moses, who has been a longtime campaigner against drug abuse, said he believes most U.S. athletes generally would accept the agreement, the Associated Press reported.

"I think our athletes will view this situation of being an Olympic competitor as being a responsibility more than being a privilege and will be pleased to be involved," Moses said.

Portugalov, who also heads the sports-medicine laboratory section of the Soviet Sports Committee, said athletes will be tested twice a year.

No dates have been set and no decision has been made on how many athletes will be subject to the testing, Portugalov said.

"American officials will visit Soviet training camps, and Soviet officials will go to U.S. training sites twice a year to carry out the testing," Portugalov said.

Anabolic steroids, which can improve an athlete's bulk and performance, are not the only substance for which tests will be conducted.

"We want to test any group of drugs that are banned by the International Olympic Committee," Portugalov said.

Drug tests also will be carried out during dual American-Soviet athletics meets.

Portugalov said he hopes other nations will join the U.S.-Soviet initiative.

"This agreement is open for all other countries," he said. "We invite any other country to join us in our battle to solve the doping issue in sports," Portugalov said.

The International Olympic Committee has sponsored an antidoping charter, and sports ministers from at least 70 countries were expected to ratify it during a conference in Moscow that began November 21 and that was independent of the meeting of sports officials from the two superpowers.

The only problem in the U.S.-Soviet agreement was blood doping

Dr. Sergei Portugalov, M.D., member, Soviet Sports Committee

"because there are no test methods yet," Portugalov said.

Testing for blood doping, which can improve an athlete's performance in endurance sports like cross-country skiing and marathon running, has not started yet.

The first international sports event to conduct blood-doping tests will be the World Nordic Ski Championships in Lahti, Finland, next February. Blood doping is banned by the IOC.

Other U.S. members of the joint initiative to eliminate use of drugs in sports were Dr. Don Catlin, a member of the USOC's executive board, and Dr. Ralph Hayle, former president of the U.S. Water Polo Association.
