Witte, Sweet elected to top Association offices

Albert M. Witte, professor of law and faculty athletics representative at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, was elected to a two-year term as president of the NCAA at the Association's 83rd annual Convention in San Francisco January 8-12.

Witte completed a term as Division I vice-president during the Convention.

Judith M. Sweet, director of athletics at the University of California, San Diego, was elected secretary-treasurer and becomes the first woman in NCAA history to hold that position.

Witte replaces Wilford S. Bailey, faculty athletics representative at Auburn University, and Sweet replaces Thomas J. Frericks, vice-president and director of athletics at the University of Dayton.

Other officers elected to two-year terms are Division I Vice-President B. J. Skelton, director of admissions and registration at Clemson University, and Division II Vice-President Jerry M. Hughes, director of athletics at Central Missouri State University.

Alvin J. Van Wie, director of athletics and chair of the physical education department at the College of Wooster, continues his term as Division III vice-president for one more year.

Skelton has been a member of the Council for the past three years. Hughes, elected to the Council in 1987, replaces Howard "Bud" Elwell, director of athletics at Gannon University.

Following is a look at new members of the NCAA Council elected by the Convention.

Division I

Division I-A conferences: C. J. Slanicka, chair and professor, academic faculty of labor education and research, college of business, Ohio State University, replacing Frederick Hemke, faculty athletics representative, Northwestern University (Big Ten Conference); David B. Keilitz, director of athletics, Central Michigan University, replacing James W. Lessig, commissioner, Mid-American Athletic Conference; Frank Windegger, director of athletics, Texas Christian University, replacing Witte as an elected Council member (Southwest Athletic Conference).

Division I-AA Central region: Thurston E. Banks, associate professor of chemistry, Tennessee Technological University, reelected.

Division I-AA South region: Albert E. Smith, president of South Carolina State College, replacing John E. Thomas, chancellor, Appalachian State University.

Division I at large: Sarah E. J. Yates, associate director of athletics, Florida A&M University, reelected.

Division II

Region II-3: James Fallis, director of athletics, Lake Superior State University, replacing Joan Board, coordinator for women's athletics,

Convention drops grants to Bylaw 5-1-(j) partial qualifiers

Beginning with the 1990-91 academic year, partial qualifiers under NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j) will no longer be eligible for athletics grants-in-aid, it was determined in voting by delegates to the 83rd annual NCAA Convention in San Francisco January 8-12.

Those prospective student-athletes who do not have a 2.000 grade-point average in a core curriculum of studies and a 700 on the SAT or 15 on the ACT can no longer be offered athletics grants while they sit out their freshman year.

The new legislation, Proposal No. 42, first was voted down. It later was approved by a 163-154 vote in Division I.

Delegates voted down legislation that would have granted Bylaw 5-1-(j) nonqualifiers a fourth year of eligibility after the freshman year.

Other significant legislative action, according to NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, included Proposal No. 39-1, which authorizes the establishment of a Special Committee on Cost Reduction. The committee will be chaired by outgoing NCAA President Wilford S. Bailey.

A revised NCAA Manual was approved without opposition under Proposal No. 69, bringing to a culmination a 3½-year project by the Special Committee on Deregulation and Rules Simplification, chaired by Bailey.

Bailey and his committee were applauded by Convention delegates for their work on the revised Manual.

Delegates approved the adoption of a new legislative calendar designed to reduce the quantity and improve the quality of annual Convention legislation.

By approving an amended Proposal No. 48, delegates authorized the revision of the legislative calendar by establishing earlier dates for submission of legislation and amendments to amendments as well increasing the minimum number of sponsors required to submit legislation from six to eight sponsors.

Schultz pointed with particular pride to the approval of Proposal No. 77, which authorizes a Student-Athlete Advisory Committee.

"It's time that student-athletes are consulted and have time to react to things that we say are done for their benefit," Schultz said.

Division III delegates reaffirmed that athletics ability is not to be considered in formulating financial aid packages for student-athletes by

• A Basketball Officiating Committee to monitor Division I men's and women's basketball officiating programs.

• The exemption of benefits to member to serve as faculty athletics representative. A faculty representative appointed after January 12 cannot hold an athletics department position.

• The NCAA to test student-athletes in sports other than football for steroids during the off-season.

• A Legislative Review Committee to review and refine legislative proposals, incorporate new legislation and interpretations in the NCAA Manual, and review deregulation issues.

Testing service challenges NCAA's No. 42

The National Center for Fair and Open Testing (FairTest) has challenged the NCAA either to justify the use of SAT and ACT scores in its new legislation (Proposal No. 42) or to drop the requirement.

At the 83rd annual Convention in San Francisco last week, NCAA delegates eliminated partial qualifiers under Bylaw 5-1-(j).

In a letter to NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, the testing service said, "By adding Proposal 42, the NCAA is asserting that applicants who score less than 700 on the SAT or 15 on the ACT cannot do college-level work.

"Guidelines for proper test use mandate an up-to-date validity study proving that such a conclusion is accurate before any test-score requirement can be imposed. But evidence already exists that the NCAA is wrong," FairTest said.

"Recent reports demonstrate that minority athletes with low scores can do satisfactory work in college and complete academic degree requirements," FairTest continued.

The testing service said that unless the NCAA can produce studies justifying its position, the new legislation must immediately be abandoned.

The approval of the legislation brought criticism from several members of the men's basketball coaching community and a boycott of his own team's game by Georgetown University head coach John Thompson.

Others claimed that the legislation is racist because it primarily will affect black students.

In response to criticism over the membership in a legislative session."

Schultz announced January 17 that the NCAA Administrative Committee and the officers of the NCAA Presidents Commission will discuss the matter in a meeting in the next 30 days.

Harvey W. Schiller, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference, which sponsored the legislation, said he is open to more discussion and possible change in the rule before it is implemented for the 1990-91 school year.

Schiller told The Washington Post, "If we are denying opportunities (for minorities, in particular) with this piece of legislation, then I'm against it."

Schiller said, "If any part of NCAA (rules) is diminishing the opportunity for minorities, then it ought to be examined and we ought to eliminate them. We ought not Rules Committee to formulate playing rules in baseball and the establishment of Divisions I, II and III baseball committees to conduct championships in the respective divisions.

• The establishment of a pre-season football game to benefit the football coaches retirement trust and to exclude the contest from the limitation on number of contests in one season.

Among legislation that was rejected by delegates was a proposal to permit increases in Pell Grant awards under specified conditions, a proposal to allow a 12th football game in Division I-A during the regular season, a resolution to establish a national clearinghouse to certify student-athletes under Bylaw 5-1-(j), proposals to further define satisfactory progress toward graduation, a proposal to permit the awarding of financial aid for summer school for incoming freshmen student-athletes, and a proposal to establish an annual limit of 24 grants in Division I-A football and remove the annual limit of 95 total financial aid awards that can be in effect in the same year.

Also rejected was a resolution to overturn Executive Committee approval of conference automatic-qualification restrictions for the Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

Unofficial attendance for the Convention was 1,888, which would exceed the record of 1,861 set in 1986 in New Orleans. The unofficial count for registered voters was 748, which would exceed the 741 registered for the 1987 Convention in San Diego.

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q How are NCAA polls conducted to determine the top teams?

A For the sports in which the NCAA sponsors polls, the representatives of the sports' regions, as defined by the governing sports committees, hold regular conference calls during the sports' seasons. During these calls, each representative updates competition results for the top teams in his or her region. The representatives then thoroughly discuss the merits of the top teams until a consensus can be reached on the teams to be included in the poll. Each representative ranks the teams from one through 20 (or one through 10 in some sports), with the top team receiving the most points, the second team receiving the next most, on down the line. If there is a tie in point totals, both teams are tied in that week's poll.

1989 Column No. 3

NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)—satisfactory progress

NCAA Divisions I and II member institutions are reminded that according to Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6), eligibility for regular-season competition subsequent to a student-athlete's first academic year in residence or after the student-athlete has utilized one season of eligibility in any sport at the certifying institution shall be determined by the student-athlete's academic record in existence at the beginning of the fall term of the regular academic year. A student-athlete who is ineligible at the beginning of the fall term may have his or her eligibility reinstated at the beginning of any other regular term of that academic year based upon: (1) an accumulative total of semester or quarter hours of academic credit that is equivalent to the completion of an average of at least 12 semester or quarter hours during each of the previous academic terms in academic years in which the student-athlete has been enrolled in a term or terms, or (2) satisfactory completion of 24 semester or 36 quarter hours of academic credit during the certifying institution's preceding regular two semester or three quarters. Further, the NCAA Council has approved a limited exception for student-athletes who have not satisfactorily completed either 24 semester or 36 quarter hours of academic credit during the certifying institution's preceding regular two semesters or three quarters. The Council agreed that during the 1988-89 academic year only, a student-athlete may be eligible if he or she has satisfactorily completed 24 semester or 36 quarter hours of academic credit since the beginning of the student-athlete's last season of competition.

NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaw 7-1-(h)—graduate assistant coaches

The NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee recently reviewed the application of Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaw 7-1-(h) and agreed that a newly appointed graduate assistant coach who has preexisting relationships with members of the institution's team because of his previous participation on that team would not be permitted to provide transportation to enrolled student-athletes based on the preexisting relationships. The committee noted that when the individual assumes and accepts the responsibilities of becoming a coaching staff member, he must conform to the rules and regulations that accompany such responsibilities.

NCAA Bylaw 4-1-(d)—complimentary admissions

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee recently reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 4-1-(d) and agreed that a foreign student-athlete (whose family members and relatives reside in a foreign country and are unable to attend any of the student-athlete's games during the regular season) would not be permitted to provide his or her permissible complimentary admissions to anyone other than family members, relatives or fellow students. The committee noted that the distance of the student-athlete's family from the campus is not a factor in the application of Bylaw 4-1-(d).

Teresa Weatherspoon

Weatherspoon named woman athlete of '88

Teresa Weatherspoon, a basketball guard who led Louisiana Tech University to the 1988 Division I national championship and was a starter on last year's U.S. Olympic women's team, received the Honda-Broderick Cup as collegiate woman athlete of the year.

Also honored during a January 10 banquet in San Francisco were Angela Brinton, a volleyball player at California State University, Northridge, who was named Division II woman athlete of the year, and Jessica Beachy, a basketball player at Concordia College, Moorhead, who was named woman athlete of the year in Division III.

The awards in Divisions II and III were presented for the first time, as was the Inspiration Award that was presented to deaf gymnast Marie Roethlisberger of the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities.

Athletics directors at NCAA member institutions participated in voting for the awards, which were presented by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

Weatherspoon returned from Italy, where she is playing for a club team, to accept her award. She was selected not only for her athletics achievements, but as an embodiment of the ideals of team contribution, scholastic endeavor, school and community involvement, and personal character.

The 5-8 point guard was named all-America in her junior and senior years at Louisiana Tech, where she established school career records for assists and steals. The school retired her jersey during ceremonies January 7 in Ruston, Louisiana.

Other finalists for the Honda-Broderick Cup were Kim Betz, Indiana University, Bloomington, cross country; Tracey Fuchs, University of Connecticut, field hockey; Christina Barrett, Longwood College, golf; Kelly Garrison-Stevens, University of Oklahoma, gymnastics; Lisa Longaker, University of California, Los Angeles, softball; Betsy Mitchell, University of Texas, Austin, swimming and diving; Shaun Stafford, University of Florida, tennis; Vicki Huber, Villanova University, track and field, and Suzanne Eagye, University of Hawaii, volleyball.

Proposals to change No. 42 likely in 1990, Schultz says

In a press conference following the NCAA Convention in San Francisco, NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz said proposals to change the legislation (Proposal No. 42) eliminating partial qualifiers under Bylaw 5-1-(j) would not be unexpected at the 1990 Convention in Dallas.

"We have had proposals concerning Bylaw 5-1-(j) on every Convention agenda since the legislation was passed in 1983," Schultz said.

When asked if he thought the partial-qualifier legislation would be reinstated, Schultz said, "It could happen."

Schultz's remarks preceded widespread criticism of the adoption of Proposal No. 42 by members of the coaching community, particularly Georgetown University's head men's basketball coach, John Thompson.

In other remarks, Schultz said, "I think the changes needed, for the most part, took place." He pointed to new legislation to reduce the quantity and improve the quality of Convention legislation with the adoption of Proposal No. 48, the approval of the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee, the adoption of the revised NCAA Manual, a resolution (Proposal No. 39-1) to place financial aid and other cost-reduction issues under further study, and the reaffirmation by Division III not to give consideration to athletics ability in awarding financial aid to student-athletes.

Of the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee, Schultz said, "I hope that over a short time, they can react to legislation and they can bring forth ideas to generate legislation that will work to their benefit."

Responding to a question about criticism from some conferences over the ceiling of 30 automatic-qualifying conferences for the Division I Men's Basketball Championship, Schultz said threats by some groups to leave the NCAA were misguided. In two years, 32 conferences will be eligible for automatic qualification to the tournament.

"It's not that the world has come to an end for those conferences (that may not receive automatic tournament births). They are involved in more than basketball," Schultz said.

Schultz noted that those conferences "are paid back 20 times from their NCAA dues" in other activities and services.

"They need to add up the pluses and minuses" in belonging to the Association, Schultz said.

Schultz said the 83rd Convention in San Francisco has "established a base for outstanding procedural reform" in the NCAA and that "1990 might be a blockbuster of a Convention."

Schultz's "State of the Association" address to the Convention will be published in its entirety in a later issue of The NCAA News.

Government offering grants for drug-testing programs

The U.S. Department of Education is offering funds through four grant programs for the purpose of developing, implementing, operating and improving drug-abuse education and prevention programs for students at universities and colleges.

One of the grant programs is for comprehensive, institution-wide projects that are designed to prevent or eliminate students' use of illegal drugs and abuse of other drugs and alcohol. Among eligible projects are those that seek directly or indirectly to train students, faculty and staff in drug-abuse education and prevention.

An estimated 75 to 125 grants will be awarded for such projects, in amounts ranging from $10,000 to $250,000. The application deadline is March 1.

The other three grant programs are described by the education department as "special focus." They are:

• A program for the development and implementation of programs conducted in conjunction with national student networks or organizations. Institutions must apply on behalf of networks or organizations for the grants. Two to four such grants are available in amounts estimated to range from $100,000 to $250,000; the application deadline is May 1.

• A program to fund the development of new theories, theoretical models and conceptual approaches relating to individual and institutional leadership and responsibility in drug-abuse education and prevention. Approximately six awards of up to $15,000 are available for such projects, with applications due February 8.

• A program encouraging the development, implementation, operation or improvement of higher education consortia for drug prevention. An estimated 30 to 60 awards in amounts ranging from $5,000 to $40,000 are available for such projects. The application deadline is June 1.

Further information on the grant programs and application forms are available from the fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education, ROB-3, Room 3100, Seventh and D Streets, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20202-5175; telephone 202/732-5750.

David E. Cawood, NCAA assistant executive director for communications, said, "The legislation was available for the members to review 45 days prior to the start of the Convention to provide each institution the opportunity to review and determine an institutional position on each proposal."

"I do not believe that the delegates who voted for the proposal considered it a racial issue, but as a means to strengthen the academic entrance requirements for freshman students who will participate in athletics."

The terms of all other Council members continue.

Following are biographical sketches of the new Council members.

Slanicka

Slanicka serves on the management review and finance committee and the television committee for the Big Ten Conference. He is Ohio State's faculty athletics representative.

He is a professor of management and human resources and serves as chair of the academic faculty of labor education and research service in the college of business at Ohio State. Before joining the Ohio State faculty, he was a professor of labor studies at Pennsylvania State University from 1960 to 1968.

Slanicka has been an adviser to many international unions, the AFI-CIO, and various state and national government agencies.

A native of Tarentum, Pennsylvania, Slanicka earned a bachelor's degree and an MBA from the University of Pittsburgh.

Keilitz

Keilitz is in his fourth year at athletics director at Central Michigan, where he played varsity baseball and served as baseball coach from 1971 through 1984. His teams won four Mid-American Athletic Conference championships. Keilitz's coaching record was 453-203-6.

As athletics director, Keilitz has overseen numerous projects to improve athletics facilities.

He holds a specialist degree in physical education from Central Michigan.

Windegger

Long active in collegiate athletics affairs, Windegger has been athletics director at Texas Christian for 14 years and a member of the athletics staff for 30 years.

He is a member of the board of directors of the College Football Association and has served on the board of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics. He has served for seven years on the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

As a student-athlete at Texas Christian, Windegger excelled in football and baseball. He later coached the baseball team for 14 years, and his teams won four Southwestern Athletic Conference championships.

After graduation from Texas Christian in 1957, Windegger also served as business manager and ticket manager.

Smith

Smith became South Carolina State's sixth president July 1, 1986, after serving as vice-chancellor for development and university relations at North Carolina A&T State University. He also was a professor of education and executive director of the North Carolina A&T University Foundation, Inc.

In 1975, he was named director of athletics at Eastern Michigan University after three years as executive assistant director of athletics at the University of Pittsburgh. At Pittsburgh, he earned a Ph.D. in higher education administration.

As an undergraduate at North Carolina A&T, Smith signed a professional baseball contract with the St. Louis Cardinals and played in their farm system. He finished his bachelor's degree in 1956.

A knee injury prevented his return to baseball after military service, and he joined the Chicago Metropolitan YMCA in 1959. He earned a master's degree in recreation administration while in Chicago.

In 1964, he was named student union director and head baseball coach at Knoxville College, and later was named student union director and athletics director at North Carolina A&T before joining the Pittsburgh staff.

Fallis

After serving as interim athletics director at Lake Superior State, Fallis was named AD in February 1987.

A varsity wrestler as a student-athlete at Lake Superior State, Fallis was named head coach of the program upon graduation with a degree in history. He served as wrestling coach from 1974 to 1986.

Fallis was a four-time NAIA all-America wrestler and twice named his school's outstanding athlete. He is a member of the NAIA wrestling hall of fame.

While coaching the wrestlers, Fallis earned a master's degree in education from Northern Michigan University in 1977.

He is a lifetime member of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

Ceddia

Ceddia has served as president of Shippensburg since 1981.

For 10 years prior to becoming that institution's CEO, he served in a number of capacities at North Adams State College, including stints as executive vice-president and acting president. He also was a member of the faculty at North Adams State.

A native of Boston, Ceddia earned bachelor's and master's degrees at Northeastern University and a doctorate at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. He also studied at the Western New England School of Law.

Porter

Porter has been head football coach and director of athletics at Fort Valley State College since 1979 and supervised the institution's transition from NCAA Division III to Division II.

Before that, he was head football coach at Howard University from 1975 to 1978.

Porter's administrative and coaching career began in 1956 as a backfield coach at Xavier University (Louisiana). He then held positions at Mississippi Valley State University and Grambling State University.

He currently is president of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Porter earned a bachelor's degree at Xavier and a master's at Indiana University, Bloomington.

A photograph of Porter was not available.

Jacobs

Jacobs is head basketball coach at Whittier in addition to serving as athletics director and is chair of the NCAA Division III Men's Basketball Committee.

At Whittier, Jacobs' coaching record over 17 seasons is 263-193.

Before going to Whittier, Jacobs was an assistant basketball coach and head baseball coach at Hartwick College, and before that he served as assistant basketball coach at Springfield College.

He earned bachelor's and master's degrees at Springfield and participated in varsity basketball and baseball.

Bottoms

Bottoms accepted the presidency of DePauw in 1986 after having served as acting president during the fall of 1985.

Prior to that, he was executive vice-president of the university from 1983 to 1986. He began his association with DePauw as vice-president for university relations in 1978 and was named executive vice-president for external relations in 1979.

He also served as assistant dean of church and ministry for the Vanderbilt Divinity School from 1975 to 1978.

He is a graduate of Birmingham-

Robert G. Bottoms

Arthur Eason

Southern College and holds a bachelor of divinity degree from Emory University. He earned a doctorate of ministry from Vanderbilt in 1972.

Bottoms serves as a consultant to seminars and various foundations.

Eason

Eason has been director of athletics at William Paterson since 1972 and has overseen a number of improvements to athletics facilities, including the opening of the school's new recreation center, which is the home of Pioneer basketball.

He has been instrumental in the growth of an athletics program that competes in NCAA Division III.

Eason is a graduate of Montclair State College and holds a master's degree from William Paterson.

In addition to his NCAA assignment, Eason is active in the New Jersey Athletic Conference and the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

DePaul considers joining league

DePaul University, now an independent in men's athletics competition, is considering the possibility of joining a conference, athletics director Bill Bradshaw says.

The seven-school Midwestern Collegiate Conference, which recently added the University of Dayton and Marquette University from the independent ranks, has issued an invitation to DePaul to join the league.

"We're constantly re-evaluating our status," Bradshaw said. "It's uncomfortable not to be in a conference in men's basketball and men's nonrevenue sports. It's ideal to be in a conference in all sports."

DePaul's women's teams compete in the North Star Conference, but none of the men's sports has a conference affiliation.

Satisfactory-progress votes not really misfires

By Bob Gertz
The Kansas City Times

On the surface, it looks like another case of the NCAA shooting itself in the foot—something this august body makes a regular habit of doing.

In January 10 votes on two different proposals and again January 11 with another proposal, the NCAA Convention defeated the idea of (strengthening) satisfactory progress toward graduation by student-athletes.

One proposal would have required a 1.600 grade-point average after one season, a 1.800 after two years and a 2.000 in the third and fourth years of eligibility. A second proposal would have forced the athlete to achieve a 2.000 by the beginning of the third year. The third proposal would have increased the number of credits that must be earned toward graduation in each semester. All of the ideas failed overwhelmingly.

What's wrong with an athlete making progress toward a degree? Nothing. Every NCAA member school wants that.

How tough is it to get a 2.000, which is the equivalent of a C average, especially with all the tutoring help the big-time football and basketball players get? Not very.

So what the heck is wrong with the NCAA for rejecting these kinds of rules for the second year in a row?

Absolutely nothing.

Confused? Well, such is life trying to understand the combination of athletics and academics. But the NCAA actually did the right thing by rejecting these ideas on satisfactory progress.

There are more than 800 schools in the NCAA, ranging from some of the greatest universities in the world to others that barely turn out graduates that could be called educated. You simply can't compare them, and that's what a grade-point scale would do.

Let's take just Division I, which has more than 290 schools. It ranges from schools like Harvard, Duke, Stanford and Notre Dame—where the academics come first and where they come hard—to other schools where the curricula are not as tough; where standards aren't as high, and teachers aren't as tough.

That's why Duke, for instance, was against the satisfactory-progress legislation.

"We very much applaud the (objectives) that motivate the proposals," said a representative for Duke on the Convention floor. "The truth is the formulations do not fit other institutions of equal motivation and determination.

"... the NCAA actually did the right thing by rejecting these ideas on satisfactory progress."

"This is a Cinderella slipper that does not fit all the worthy maidens. It does not fit Duke."

A representative from California rose to speak against the idea because: "How do you compare a degree from Solid as a Rock University, compared to one earned at Piece of Cake College?"

For instance, why should a young person who has gone to Georgia Tech and taken electrical engineering be penalized because going into his third year he had a 1.900 GPA? That's the equivalent of a C-minus in a very hard curriculum. Should he be forced off the field while an athlete at Any University, who is majoring in something called general studies, communications or, heaven forbid, journalism, be allowed to play when he has a 2.100 GPA? I think not.

Not only is there a wide variety in the quality of education, but there is a wide diversity in how schools handle the mechanics of education.

For instance, in some schools, a class can be dropped right until the day before the final exam and that class will never show up in a player's GPA. At other schools, a grade of a D or F is removed from the student's record if the course is repeated and he scores a higher grade. And all schools do not require GPA progress as a requirement for graduation.

These are not special rules for athletes. These are rules for all students.

Satisfactory-progress rules across the board would not help educate athletes. Instead, they would have the schools that are more interested in eligibility forcing those players into fields of study where they know they can maintain the required GPA.

Athletes would be discouraged from taking more difficult courses, and there would develop a two-tiered system: those students trying to graduate, and those athletes trying to maintain eligibility.

So what is there to do about making sure an athlete makes progress toward graduation? That's easy.

Make every university release the graduation data for all of its athletes every semester. As one of the speakers at the Presidents Commission National Forum said in San Francisco, let's keep score on commencement day as well as on game day.

Let's not compare this information college-against-college, because that would be just as unfair as comparing grade-point averages. No, we simply should see how many athletes are doing the academic work to graduate.

And to put teeth in the graduation data, make it a violation to allow your athletes' rate of graduation to fall below that of the student body. Schools that could not achieve that level would be placed on probation for the next semester, or until they improved.

This would push colleges to work on the graduation rates, without unfairly pigeon-holing every college in the country.

Committee's message: Comply

D. Alan Williams, faculty athletics representative
University of Virginia
Chair, NCAA Committee on Infractions
Des Moines Sunday Register

"It is clear that our message to all schools is to comply (with NCAA rules). That was the message of 1985, and that is what we are continuing to do.

"There have been a number of examples recently when athletics department and school officials genuinely didn't know what was going on, and their coaches lied to them.

"There are (now) more joint interviews (involving NCAA enforcement representatives and school officials) and that type of cooperation. At first, a school has trouble with the kind of things that we bring to them, but generally they are beginning to see that a clean athletics program is in their best interests."

Scott says steroid 'black eye' unfair

By Mike Barnes

Steve Scott, one of the great milers in American history, says it's not fair to make pariahs of track athletes caught using steroids while making heroes of steroid-using football players.

"It's really unfortunate that track and field gets the black eye from the steroid issue," Scott said January 10.

"Ben Johnson gets caught for steroids and is an embarrassment to his country, the Olympic Games, himself and young people all over.

"On the other hand, you have 'The Boz' (former University of Oklahoma linebacker Brian Bosworth) getting busted for steroids, and he's a hero in this country. Here's a football player who is doing the exact same thing. He gets caught, and he's a freakin' hero. What sense can be made out of that?"

Scott, the only miler to be ranked in the top 10 for 10 straight years, then criticized NCAA drug testing.

"I was at the Fiesta Bowl, and I'm seeing the players walk down the hallways and they're beehives," he said. "They do their little drug test at a bowl game and everyone's clean. Well, of course they're going to be clean; they know what they're doing (how to disguise steroid use). They have it to a science.

"If they really want to address the drug problem, they should have random drug testing at every game in college. And have the NCAA do it. Don't leave it up to the schools, because they won't bust their own people.

"(The National Football League and NCAA) talk a mean story, but when it comes down to 'Are you helping the youth of America stay healthy?' the answer is no."

Barnes writes for United Press International.

or six or seven years are going to be years when we're going to see a lot of changes in college athletics, and as an Association, we're going to have to change also. We're going to have to make some changes that maybe we've been reluctant to make in the past.

"We're going to have to keep pace. We've got to always stay not only in the present world but ahead of time. The question the membership must ask itself is, should we be changing with the times, or is our time the right time?"

Schools going 'big time' are turning to 'celebrity coaches'

By Andy Call
Medina (Ohio) County Gazette

When the University of Akron decided to romance the big time, it punted veteran coach Jim Dennison upstairs to the associate athletics directors office and hired Gerry Faust, fired after five years of inflicting anguish on University of Notre Dame fans.

When Liberty University found itself ready to join the big time, it replaced Morgan Hout with Sam Rutigliano. Hout was voted Virginia's coach of the year in 1988 after leading the Division I-AA Flames to an 8-3 record, while Rutigliano, formerly of the Cleveland Browns, was proving much more adept at writing than he had ever been at coaching.

But Rutigliano was a celebrity coach, and Hout wasn't. Hout now has until the middle of this month to decide if he wishes to accept the position of assistant athletics director, a job even more lucrative than associate athletics director.

A trend? Maybe.

Schools welcomed in the big time know they must gain national recognition to woo potential recruits. The determining factor is what place on the priority list loyalty holds.

"I think it's healthy," said athletics director Joseph Malmisur of Division I-AA Youngstown State University. "Certainly, those two names are viable names. When people like that come into those positions, it adds credibility to the program. Division I-AA is exciting, but the next step is the big time."

The Rev. Jerry Falwell, Liberty's chancellor, said when Rutigliano was hired that the former Browns head coach "shares the same vision for the athletics program that we do." Rutigliano said, "I didn't come here to play Kutztown or Towson State."

What was left unsaid at the press conference was that (either) Hout didn't share that vision or he was satisfied playing Kutztown. If that isn't true, Liberty must have felt Hout wasn't capable of doing the job at the next level.

CMU exits league

Carnegie-Mellon University, which plans to concentrate on its University Athletic Association membership, has become the third school in three months to leave the Presidents' Athletic Conference.

Carnegie-Mellon has held dual membership in the PAC and the UAA since 1986. The Tartans have won 33 PAC championships, including six in football, since joining the league in 1972.

"With membership in the University Athletic Association as our primary arena of competition, and considering the pending realignment of the PAC, it appears that this would be an appropriate opportunity to conclude our membership in the Presidents Athletic Conference," William F. Elliott, Carnegie-Mellon's acting athletics director and vice-president for enrollment, told the Associated Press.

Carnegie-Mellon will leave the PAC after the 1989-90 academic year.

John Carroll University and Hiram College announced last November that they would leave the PAC to rejoin the Ohio Athletic Conference. Unless new members are added, the PAC will have just four schools after 1989-90: Washington and Jefferson College, Grove City College, Thiel College, and Bethany College (West Virginia).

Or he just didn't fit the image of a celebrity coach.

"There's more to either one of those situations than we'll ever know," said Malmisur, whose Penguins were trampled by both Akron and Liberty last fall.

Athletics director Lee Moon of Marshall University oversees a perennial I-AA winner. The Thundering Herd was ranked No. 1 most of the season, and George Chaump was voted national coach of the year. Even with bonafide celebrity coaches such as Jack Elway and Jackie Sherrill searching for jobs, Moon said he's not opening envelopes marked "resume."

"For me, there's other qualities," Moon said. "I don't think I'd be overly impressed with that (celebrity). You have to look at individual abilities—you can't get hung up on where they've coached. With those people, you also have to consider if their goals or their means to an end for athletics are what you want.

"I have a commitment to our coaches. I wouldn't want to change that."

The next school considering moving into the big time is Arkansas State University. Indians coach Larry Lacewell has one advantage over Dennison and Hout—he's also the ASU athletics director.

"We don't see that a decision to move to I-A would cause any vacancy in the head-coaching position," ASU President Eugene Smith said. "Before he came here, Larry was defensive coordinator at Oklahoma for a number of years. We know he can do the job."

Joseph
F.
Malmisur

Lee
Moon

"I think I might call it commitment rather than loyalty. We think we have an excellent situation, and part of that comes from a stable coaching situation."

Dennison, who since has become Akron's athletics director, said he is happy in his present job. But the hurt of 1985 still is there.

"I guess my decision to stay was a good one," Dennison said. "I would have given up too much if I had left Ohio, and things have worked out well."

"But I still miss it (the coaching) today."

Summary of all actions on legislation at 83rd Convention

Following is a listing of the legislative actions taken by the delegates attending the 83rd NCAA Convention January 10-11 in San Francisco.

This report is designed to provide an immediate review of the Convention decisions. It presents the specific action taken on each numbered proposal and on each amendment to an amendment during the Convention. The numbers of the proposals (1 through 147) are the same as those in the Convention Official Notice and the Convention Program, as well as the compilation of amendments to the amendments (e.g., No. 16-1) and other proposals (Nos. 148 and 149) distributed to delegates at the Convention.

Amendments to amendments are listed with the proposals they were to amend. Each includes a statement of the basic intent for those readers who do not have the materials distributed at the Convention.

Proposals finally approved (all or in part) are in bold type and are indicated further by an asterisk before the proposal number.

Basketball spotlight unveils five schools' coaches, players

Coaches and players from five of the nation's outstanding women's collegiate basketball programs will participate in the seventh annual NCAA Spotlight on Women's Basketball press conference Wednesday, January 25, at the New York Hilton and Towers in New York City.

The participants will be coach C. Vivian Stringer and Shanda Berry of the University of Iowa; coach Joan Bonvicini and Penny Toler of California State University, Long Beach; coach Chris Weller and Vicky Bullett of the University of Maryland, College Park; coach Tara Van Derveer and Katy Steding of Stanford University; and coach Pat Summitt and Bridgette Gordon of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

Members of the media are invited to interview the coaches and players beginning at 10 a.m. A reception and luncheon follows at noon.

The Spotlight is held each year to promote the sport of women's basketball. The event, developed by the former NCAA Public Relations and Promotion Committee, was initiated in 1983. The Spotlight affords members of the media the opportunity to meet with and interview some of the top players and coaches in women's basketball in a setting outside of the competitive arena.

This year's Spotlight also will help launch the NCAA Women's Basketball Game of the Week television package, produced by NCAA Productions. Iowa, Long Beach State and Tennessee are three of the 11 teams that will be televised in the six-game series, which tips off Tuesday, January 31, with Tennessee vs. Texas in Austin, Texas.

The first five games will be played on consecutive Tuesdays at 8 p.m. Eastern time. The sixth game is the championship game of the Atlantic 10 Conference tournament, set for 5 p.m. Eastern time Saturday, March 11.

Also on the schedule are Long Beach State at Washington, February 7; Tennessee at Louisiana Tech, February 14; Iowa at Ohio State, February 21, and Auburn at Georgia, February 28.

The games have been syndicated to stations in the teams' areas of interest and to regional cable networks around the country.

Following is biographical information about this year's Spotlight participants:

Iowa

Stringer, in her sixth year as head coach at Iowa, was named the 1988 Converse Coach of the Year. The Hawkeyes have won the Big Ten Conference championship and advanced to the NCAA regional championship game the last two years. She is third among women's basketball coaches in victories and the only coach ever to lead two schools—Cheyney University of Pennsylvania and Iowa—to a No. 2 ranking or better in the Associated Press poll.

Berry is a 6-2 senior center from Oelwein, Iowa. The two-year starter participated in the 1988 Olympic Trials and has been a member of U.S. teams that have played in Taiwan, Korea and Canada. She was a second-team all-Big Ten choice last year and was named to the NCAA West regional all-tournament team.

Long Beach State

Tenth-year coach Bonvicini has produced at least 24 victories in each season and has led the 49ers to the semifinals of the last two NCAA championships. She earned coach-of-the-year honors following the 1980-81 season—only her second year as a collegiate coach—and her 49er teams have won eight conference championships. Long Beach State is known for its fast-break style of play and has been ranked either first or second in the nation in scoring during the last three years.

Toler, a 5-8 senior guard from Washington, D.C., averaged 22.5 points per game last year and was named a first-team Kodak all-America. Last year, she was the coplayer of the year in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association (now Big West), was named to the NCAA West regional all-tournament team and was a finalist for the 1988 U.S. Olympic team. She has scored more than 1,650 points in less than three years at Long Beach State.

Maryland

Since Weller took control of the Maryland program in 1975, her teams have appeared in nine postseason tournaments, won seven Atlantic Coast Conference championships and reached the semifinals in the 1982 NCAA championship. Eleven of her teams have finished the season ranked in the top 20. Weller has seen 20 Maryland players play on international teams, and she was the assistant coach for the gold-medal-winning U.S. National Jones Cup Team in 1985. She is a graduate of Maryland, where she was a four-year basketball letter winner and a member of the swimming and lacrosse teams.

A member of the gold-medal-winning 1988 U.S. Olympic women's basketball team, Bullett is a 6-3 senior forward from Martinsburg, West Virginia. She earned first-team all-ACC honors in 1988 and also was named to the NCAA Mid-east regional all-tournament team. She has scored more than 1,400 points at Maryland and is within reach of school scoring and rebounding records.

Stanford

In just four years, coach Van Derveer has turned the Cardinal into one of the nation's top teams. She returns 12 letter winners from last year's 27-5 squad that made its first postseason appearance in six years and advanced to the NCAA Midwest regional semifinals. In 1986, she coached the East squad in the U.S. Olympic Festival. Before joining the Cardinal staff, Van Derveer was at Ohio State University for five years, leading it to national prominence and four Big Ten Conference championships. She is a graduate of Indiana University, Bloomington, and was a three-year starter on the basketball team.

Steding, a 6-0 forward from Lake Oswego, Oregon, leads Stanford in scoring, rebounding and blocks. An honors candidate, she was the first player Van Derveer signed at Stanford. She earned first-team all-Pacific-10 Conference honors in 1988 and also was named to the confer-

Seven begin service on Presidents Commission

Seven new NCAA Presidents Commission members began serving four-year terms at the conclusion of the 83rd annual Convention January 8-12 in San Francisco.

The new members were chosen by chief executive officers of NCAA member institutions who voted by mail ballot for candidates representing the various divisions.

New members and their divisions are as follows:

• Division I: Paul J. Olscamp, Bowling Green State University (position designated by the Mid-American Athletic Conference); Gen. Dave R. Palmer, U.S. Military Academy (Division I-A North independents); Sheldon Hackney, University of Pennsylvania (Division I-AA East region), and Joseph B. Johnson, Grambling State University (Division I-AA at large).

• Division II: Robert Dickeson, University of Northern Colorado (Region 4).

• Division III: David L. Warren, Ohio Wesleyan University (Region 3), and David Marker, Cornell College (Region 4).

Following are biographical sketches of the new additions to the 44-member Commission:

Dickeson

Dickeson earned bachelor's and master's degrees and a doctorate in political science at the University of Missouri, Columbia, where he also began his career as an administrator by serving as director of student activities and later as assistant dean of students.

In 1969, he became a dean and a member of the political science faculty at Northern Arizona University, where he later became vice-president. Then, in 1979, Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt named Dickeson director of the state's Department of Administration and chair of the governor's cabinet. Later that year, he was appointed to the presidency at Northern Colorado.

A graduate of Harvard University's Institute for Educational Management, Dickeson has chaired blue-ribbon commissions appointed by three governors in two states; is an officer of 30 corporate, government or public affairs organizations, and is Colorado's commissioner to the Education Commission of the States. In 1987, he took a nine-month leave from his presidency to serve as chief of staff for newly elected Colorado Gov. Roy Romer.

Dickeson, who recently was honored as a distinguished alumnus at Missouri, has continued to teach annually in addition to pursuing his administrative and governmental activities.

Hackney

Hackney became the 21st president at Pennsylvania in 1981 after serving as president at Tulane University and as provost at Princeton University. He also is a professor of history at Penn and a historian of the American South.

Born in Birmingham, Alabama, he received his bachelor of arts degree from Vanderbilt University in 1955, then served in the U.S. Navy from 1956 to 1959. Hackney received a master of arts degree in 1963 and his doctorate in 1966 from Yale University.

His 1969 book, "Populism to Progressivism in Alabama," was awarded the Albert J. Beveridge Prize as the year's best book in American history and the Charles S. Sydnor Prize as the year's best work in Southern history. He also is the author of "Populism: The Critical Issues" and of several journal articles on Southern history and on university affairs.

Hackney is a former member of the Interassociation Presidents' Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics, sponsored by the American Council on Education, and ACE's Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics. He also has served on the Rockefeller Commission on the Humanities and chaired the board of directors of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Johnson

Johnson became only the third president of Grambling in July 1977. He previously was a member of the physical education and recreation faculty at the University of Colorado, Boulder, and served in various administrative positions there, including a stint as executive assistant to the president.

After the New Orleans native earned a bachelor of science degree in health, physical education and recreation at Grambling in 1957, he taught in Louisiana public schools. Johnson later received the master of science degree in physical education and recreation and a doctorate in administration of higher education at Colorado. In 1976, he attended Harvard's Institute for Educational Management.

He has chaired the Louisiana delegation to the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and the board of directors of the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education. He also organized the Southwestern Athletic Conference's Presidents' Council.

Johnson has been honored at Colorado with a Distinguished Alumni Achievement award and also has received honors from Western Michigan University and Harris-Stowe State College. The Jewish National Fund presented him with its Tree of Life Award in 1980.

Marker

The Atlantic, Iowa, native returned to his home state in 1984 to accept the presidency at Cornell

College. He previously was affiliated with Hope College, where he directed the computer center, chaired the computer science department and was associate dean for academic affairs before becoming the school's provost in 1974.

Trained as a physicist, Marker received his bachelor's degree from Grinnell College in 1959 and his master's degree in 1962 and doctorate in 1966 from Pennsylvania State University. From 1966 to 1973, he held summer research fellowships with the theoretical physics group at Michigan State University, and he won a research grant from the National Science Foundation.

While at Hope, Marker served on a variety of campus committees, culminating with service on the college's board of trustees from 1971 to 1973. He also was elected outstanding professor at Hope by the senior class of 1970.

Marker has been active in numerous academic, professional, civic and educational organizations and has served as a consultant.

Olscamp

Olscamp became president at Bowling Green in 1982 after serving for seven years as president of Western Washington University.

Born in Montreal, Olscamp received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Western Ontario before becoming the first person to earn a doctorate in philosophy at the University of Rochester, in 1962. He subsequently joined the philosophy faculty at Ohio State University, where he later became an associate dean.

Before accepting the presidency at Western Washington, Olscamp also served as vice-president for academic affairs, dean of faculties and professor of philosophy at Roosevelt University and as executive assistant to the chancellor and vice-chancellor for student programs at Syracuse University. He continues to teach a philosophy course at Bowling Green.

Olscamp has published four books on philosophy and numerous articles on his academic specialty and on higher education management. He also has served on several national higher education committees, including the board of directors of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, and was appointed by President Ronald Reagan in 1987 to the National Council on the Humanities.

Palmer

A veteran of two tours of duty in Vietnam, Lt. Gen. Palmer became the 53rd superintendent at West Point in 1986. He is a 1956 graduate of the academy and received his commission in the armor branch of the U.S. Army. He also holds a master's degree in history from Duke University and is a graduate of the Army War College.

Prior to arriving at West Point, Palmer commanded the 1st Armored Division in Europe. He has held various other tactical commands and is a recipient of the Distinguished Service Medal, the Defense Superior Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star and the Air Medal.

Palmer's academic assignments include service as deputy commandant of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. He is the author of three books.

The Ada, Oklahoma, native has served at the Pentagon as deputy director of political-military affairs in the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and as chief of the congress-sional activities team in the Office of the Chief of Staff of the Army.

Warren

A former Fulbright scholar, Warren became Ohio Wesleyan's 13th president in 1984. He previously was chief administrative officer for the city of New Haven, Connecticut, where he earlier served in various administrative and teaching positions at Yale University.

Warren received his bachelor's degree in English in 1965 from Washington State University, where he was the outstanding scholar in sciences and arts and also a member of the school's nationally ranked track team. He earned two master's degrees—in divinity and urban studies—from Yale and received a doctorate in higher education administration at the University of Michigan in 1976.

Besides visiting India as a Fulbright scholar during the mid-1960s, Warren was the recipient of two Rockefeller Brothers Fellowships and was a national Rhodes scholarship finalist.

Warren has received national attention at Ohio Wesleyan for his

"live-in presidency," in which he lives for periods of time with students in residence halls, fraternity houses and other facilities. He also has written articles and is frequently interviewed by media on the topics of volunteerism, student activism, crisis management and theology.

Tennessee

Summitt, one of the country's most respected coaches, is in her 15th season at Tennessee. Her Lady Vol teams have averaged 26 wins against just seven losses per season and have appeared in nine championship semifinals. In 1987, Tennessee won the NCAA championship and Summitt earned coach-of-the-year honors. Additionally, she has produced seven U.S. basketball Olympians, 12 all-Americans and 21 international performers. A graduate of the University of Tennessee, Martin, Summitt was a member of the 1976 U.S. Olympic team that earned a silver medal, and she coached the U.S. women's national team to its first Olympic gold medal in 1984.

Gordon, a 1988 first-team all-America selection, was a member of the gold-medal-winning 1988 U.S. Olympic women's basketball team. The 6-0 senior forward from Deland, Florida, was the leading scorer and rebounder in the 1987 NCAA championship and earned all-tournament honors. A three-time all-Southeastern Conference selection, Gordon could become the Lady Vols' first four-time scoring leader. She is also on track to become the first Lady Vol to score more than 2,000 points.

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Coastal Carolina's George F. "Buddy" Sasser appointed commissioner of the Big South Conference, effective at the end of the current academic year.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Gerry Gallagher of St. Francis (Pennsylvania) named head football coach at William Paterson.

COACHES

Men's basketball — Terry Smith promoted from assistant to interim head coach at Lake Superior State, stepping in for Bob Eldridge, who will be sidelined indefinitely while recovering from Guillain-Barre syndrome. Doctors believe Eldridge will recover fully from the rare neurological disorder. Roy H. Dow selected for the new varsity program at Wheaton (Massachusetts), which will begin play next season. He previously was an assistant at Colby.

Men's basketball assistant — Kevin Bray selected for the staff at Tennessee Tech. He previously coached for three years at Jackson County (Tennessee) High School.

Women's basketball — Susan Buntin promoted from assistant to interim head coach at Mankato State. She replaces Sarah Novak, who resigned. Novak's teams compiled a 53-34 record and won a North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title in 1986.

Men's and women's cross country — John Francis resigned after 1½ years at Sam Houston State, where he also will step down as men's and women's track and field coach. He plans to pursue a career in high school administration.

Football — Gerry Gallagher named at William Paterson after three years at St. Francis (Pennsylvania), where he also was assistant athletics director. Gallagher's St. Francis teams were 8-19 during his tenure. Pat Collins resigned at Northeast Louisiana, citing his arrest January 14 following a domestic dispute. Collins led his 1987 team to the Division I-AA title and had a 57-35 record at the school, where he was promoted from assistant to head coach in 1981.

Football assistants — Richard Bell appointed secondary coach at Georgia after serving as defensive coordinator at East Carolina. Bell is a former head coach at South Carolina who also has been on the staffs at Virginia Military, Georgia Tech, West Virginia, Texas Tech and Duke. Also, Georgia announced the selection of Frank Orgel as linebackers coach. He previously was inside linebackers coach at South Carolina and he also has served at Clemson, East Carolina, North Alabama and Auburn. Tim Burke named defensive backs coach at Ball State. He previously was defensive coordinator and secondary coach for three years at North Dakota and he also has coached at Minnesota, Gardner-Webb, Appalachian State and South Dakota. Ulima Afoa rehired at San Diego State to replace Al Tanara, who resigned. Afoa served at the school from 1982 until the end of the 1988 season, when he was released.

Also, Sonny Lubick named defensive coordinator at Washington State. He previously coached linebackers and defensive backs at Stanford for four years and is a former head coach at Montana State, where he led the Bobcats to a Big Sky Conference title in 1979. Keith Daniels selected as offensive coordinator at Mississippi State after serving two seasons as offensive backs coach at Mississippi. He also has been offensive coordinator at North Texas and Southern Mississippi, in addition to serving on the staffs at Rice, East Tennessee State and Memphis State. Tom Grogan, a former quarterback at Iowa, named assistant recruiting coordinator and assistant quarterbacks coach at Kansas State. L. T. Helton appointed offensive coordinator at Tennessee Tech, where he also will coach the offensive line. He is a former assistant at East Tennessee State and Middle Tennessee State who served last season as an aide at Sevier County (Tennessee) High School.

In addition, Land Jacobsen hired as defensive coordinator and secondary coach at Idaho State. He previously assisted with the secondary at Brigham Young and is a former defensive coordinator at New Mexico State, as well as a former assistant at Northwestern Oklahoma State, Wisconsin, Montana State and Utah. UCLA codefensive coordinator Tom Hayes and Oregon offensive coordinator Bob Toledo selected at Texas A&M, where Hayes will be assistant head

He is a former marketing and promotions intern at Hawaii who recently completed the athletics administration graduate program at Idaho State.

DEATHS

John Carnegie Sim, former coach and retired athletics director at Stevens Tech, died December 31 at his home in Woodhaven, New York. He was 95. Sim coached Stevens Tech's men's lacrosse teams to a 131-54-4 record from 1927 to 1950 and coached basketball from 1926 to 1937, compiling a 101-44 mark. He was athletics director and chaired the school's physical education department from 1949 to 1963.

CORRECTIONS

Due to incorrect information received by The NCAA News, a story in the December 21 issue erroneously reported that the NCAA Men's Water Polo Committee recommended the elimination of the stalling warning rule (Rules 2-6-h and 7-1-i) to the Executive Committee. The committee has recommended that the stalling rule be deleted.

The Opinions section of the December 28 issue of the News incorrectly identified the school where student-athlete Marv Cook is enrolled. Cook attends the University of Iowa.

Due to an editor's error, Howard C. "Bully" Gilstrap's name was misspelled in a death notice that appeared in the Record section of the January 11 issue of the News.

New game known as 'Copper Bowl'

Organizers of the newest college football bowl game have agreed to call it the Copper Bowl, the executive director of the bowl committee said in Tucson.

Merle Miller said the name was chosen from among 1,300 entries in a "name the bowl" contest. The entries came from 30 cities in six states, he told the Associated Press.

Plans call for the inaugural game to be played Dec. 30, 1989.

Spartans' ice hockey coach moves up in career victories

Ronald H. Mason, head men's ice hockey coach at Michigan State University, recently moved into second place in all-time victories among NCAA ice hockey coaches.

A 3-0 Spartan victory over Ferris State University December 16 was the 556th for Mason, who is in his 23rd season as a head coach. He also coached at Lake Superior State University and Bowling Green State University.

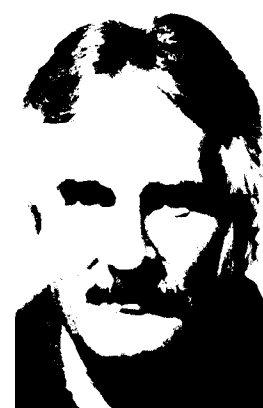

On the all-time victories chart, Mason passed the late John MacInnes, who coached Michigan Technological University to 555 victories from 1956 to 1982.

"If you stay around long enough and have any success at all, the numbers are going to come," Mason told the Lansing State Journal. "If this number is important, it is only because people will remember and think about John MacInnes."

Mason and MacInnes first coached against each other in 1956, when Mason was at Lake Superior State, then known as Michigan Tech/Sault Branch.

Lake Superior State was starting its ice hockey program, and MacInnes' Michigan Tech squad scheduled games against the Lakers.

"For me, John MacInnes was a

man I idolized because of where I was located," said Mason. "I will always remember the way he conducted himself. But no matter how much success I have, I will never be John MacInnes."

Following the victory over Ferris State, Mason was honored with a plaque of appreciation and a long ovation by 6,685 Spartan fans.

"It was kind of a neat thing. Any chance you get to be recognized by the fans is great. A lot stuck around. You really appreciate that."

As of mid-January, Mason's record was 558-238-27 overall and 269-128-13 at Michigan State. He trails only Len Ceglarski of Boston College, who is nearing the 600-victory mark.

College World Series attendance revenue marks within reach in '89

NCAA College World Series net receipts set a record in 1988 and could do so again in 1989 with another nine-session tournament, says the chair of the nonprofit College World Series Inc.

CWS chair Jack Diesing reported net receipts of $380,933 for 1988, which is 16.2 percent more than the $327,867 of 1987.

The championship can be decided in as little as eight playing dates.

"If we have nine sessions, we look for increased attendance," Diesing told the Associated Press. Last year, record attendance of 132,698 produced ticket receipts of $644,085, about $120,000 more than the previous year.

Expenses rose, too.

"Because of the NCAA rules," Diesing said, "the per diem went up from $60 to $70, and the team transportation and per diem increased $24,000."

Teams were allowed $176,198 for transportation and per diem, up 15.4 percent from the $152,657 of the previous year.

Creighton University, the host institution, also was paid more $15,000, up from $10,000 in 1987. The university provides personnel to help administer the tournament.

The NCAA and CWS Inc. divide the net receipts evenly—with shares of $190,466 for each in 1988. CWS Inc. maintains its nonprofit status by making donations to support baseball and softball.

Though CBS-TV paid $500,000 to televise the championship game, that did not increase the receipts for

False-start policy reminder issued

The NCAA Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee is reminding track coaches of the new false-start policy applicable to qualification for the indoor and outdoor track and field championships.

The change, instituted by the track and field committee at its June meeting, allows student athletes to qualify for the NCAA championships even from meets at which the NCAA false-start rule is not applied.

The new policy is designed to allow student athletes to qualify from major meets conducted under International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF) rules.

The NCAA rule, which still applies for collegiate meets, disqualifies runners after a false start. IAAF rules allow one false start before a runner is subject to disqualification.

Track coaches also should be aware of an error in the 1989 NCAA Men's and Women's Track and Field and Cross Country Rules.

Rule 5-5-2, changed for the 1989 seasons, should state that the referee, after consulting with the appropriate officials, shall not disqualify competitors who are pushed or forced by another runner to step on or over the lane line to the left with no material advantage, or who step out of their lanes on the straightaway.

ESPN top cable

ESPN became the first cable network to surpass the 50-million mark in subscriber households nationwide, according to the A.C. Nielson Co. ESPN was received in 50,132,000 homes as of last December 26, 55.5 percent of U.S. television households.

ESPN has been the nation's largest cable network since August 1, 1983, when it reached 27.5 million households.

CWS Inc.

"Our agreement with the NCAA is that we share television revenue up to a maximum of $125,000," Diesing said. The $125,000 mark had already been reached with fees paid by ESPN in previous years.

ESPN continues to televise all games except the title game. CBS again this year is scheduled to air the championship game June 10 between the two winners of double-elimination brackets.

The CWS format was changed in 1988 to provide the one-game championship for over-the-air television. In the final game last year, Stanford beat Arizona State, 9-4.

Diesing reported that each university in the final game, under a new NCAA allocation policy not tied directly to TV revenue, received $55,774.

"Before that, the champion used to get about $5,000," Diesing said.

The NCAA paid lesser amounts to each of the other 46 regional qualifiers, the amount determined by how far each advanced. The smallest amount paid a CWS participant was $31,871, with no regional qualifier receiving less than $7,968.

Those disbursements, totaling $880,428, resulted in a $316,759 deficit for the NCAA for the overall tournament—the regionals and the CWS. The deficit was charged to the Association's general operating budget.

Fiesta Bowl biggest draw

NBC Sports' telecast of the Fiesta Bowl game between the University of Notre Dame and West Virginia University January 2 drew a 17.0 national rating, the highest of any bowl game this year, the network reported.

Playing opposite the Fiesta Bowl, ABC's Rose Bowl had a 10.8 rating, lowest in the television history of the game, an NBC researcher said.

The rating means an average of 17 percent of all U.S. TV households were tuned in to the Fiesta Bowl, or about 15.4 million households.

"The Fiesta Bowl, of course, was for the national championship, and it was the highest-rated of the year, facing what traditionally is the highest-rated bowl game," NBC research specialist Gray Seamans told the Associated Press. "And we beat it handily by 57 percent."

CBS' Cotton Bowl drew a 9.8 rating, lowest in its history, and the Hall of Fame Bowl on NBC had an 8.1. The Florida Citrus Bowl, on ABC, had a 7.2 rating.

National ratings were announced earlier for NBC's Orange Bowl (12.8) and ABC's Sugar Bowl (8.1), which faced each other in prime time.

Seamans said the highest-rated bowl game ever was the Fiesta Bowl's national-championship showdown two years ago, which had a 25.1 rating.

"Remember, that was in prime time, and it was unopposed by any other bowl game," Seamans said.

National offensive leaders top AP I-AA squad

Lafayette quarterback Frank Baur, Eastern Kentucky running back Elroy Harris and Connecticut wide receiver Glenn Antrum—the nation's leading passer, rusher and receiver, respectively—lead the Associated Press Division I-AA All-America first team.

The team also includes four returnees from 1987—tight end Sean Doctor of Marshall, linebacker Glenn Sanders of Louisiana Tech, and defensive backs Mark Seals of Boston University and Kevin Dent of Jackson State.

Baur, one of six juniors on the team, completed 164 of 256 passes for 2,621 yards and 23 touchdowns. He was a runaway winner in the passing-efficiency category and finished second in total offense with 272.7 yards per game, less than three yards behind the leader.

Harris, also a junior, rushed for 1,543 yards on 277 carries. His average of 154.3 yards per game was more than 15 yards ahead of the runner-up. The other running back, Joe Arnold of Western Kentucky, finished fourth nationally with 1,461 yards, an average of 132.8.

Antrum caught 77 passes for 1,130 yards. The other wide receiver, Mark Stock of Virginia Military, had 74 receptions and 1,161 yards. Doctor caught 45 passes for 682 yards.

Besides Baur and Arnold, other juniors on the team are Sanders, outside linebacker Tim Hauck of Montana, defensive lineman John Jurkovic of Eastern Illinois and inside linebacker Demetrius Harrison of North Carolina A&T.

The rest of the I-AA first team consists of offensive tackles Dean Tichout of Western Kentucky and Jim Zdelar of Youngstown State, guards Carlos Avalos of The Citadel and Ron Nesbitt of Western Illinois, center Dennis Franklin of Georgia Southern, placekicker Bjorn Nittmo of Appalachian State, defensive end Jessie Small of Eastern Kentucky, defensive lineman Darren Alford of Georgia Southern, linebackers Jeff Blankenship of national champion Furman and Don Thomas of Middle Tennessee State, de-

Bailey becomes three-time Little All-America

Junior running back Johnny Bailey of Texas A&I was named to the Associated Press Little All-America college football team for the third year in a row.

Bailey led NCAA Division II with 144.2 yards a game—1,442 yards on 229 carries. He also scored 15 touchdowns.

The only other repeater from 1987 is center Mike Favor, one of three players from 1988 Division II national champion North Dakota State.

The Little All-America team includes players from NCAA Divisions II and III and all National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics schools.

The quarterback is Portland State's Chris Crawford, who completed 177 of 290 passes during the regular season for 2,265 yards and 16 touchdowns, with only nine interceptions. The other running back is Wagner's Terry Underwood, who led Division III with 1,809 yards on 245 carries in nine games—averaging 201 yards a game—and also shared the division scoring lead with 21 touchdowns.

The wide receivers are Otis Amy of Austin College and Troy Slusser of Washburn. Amy caught 74 passes for 1,231 yards and 11 touchdowns, while Slusser had 63 receptions for 1,394 yards and 19 TDs. The tight end, Portland State's Barry Naone, caught 48 passes for 530 yards.

The rest of the offensive team consists of offensive linemen Joe Billingsley of Jacksonville State, Ken Bonner of Wittenberg, Rod Mounts of Texas A&I and Matt Tracy of North Dakota State and placekicker Tracy Bennett of Mesa State.

Johnny Bailey

The defensive unit consists of linemen Emanuel McNeil of Tennessee-Martin, Mike Parker of Allegheny, John Randle of Texas A&I and Mike Stumberg of Central (Iowa); linebackers Henry Alsbrooks of Angelo State, Yorrick Byers of North Dakota State and Doug VanderEsch of South Dakota, and backs Marty Hurley of Canisius, Pete Jaros of Augustana (South Dakota), Tom Salamone of Hofstra and Jerry Woods of Northern Michigan.

The punter is David Lewis of Stony Brook.

It's been a record breaking year

This is the first of a series of monthly columns we'll be using to update the NCAA community on AstroTurf happenings, opinions and information we think you'd like to know about.

We've enjoyed a long and fruitful relationship with NCAA schools that dates back almost a quarter of a century. Yes, AstroTurf has been around that long. What's particularly gratifying is that not only were we the first in the field, but we're still the leader. Competition comes and goes, but there's only one AstroTurf. Quality and commitment pays off on every level of endeavour.

Excuse the horn tooting in our first outing, but we've had an outstanding year. In addition to extensive overseas installations, we completed 21 North American projects, and every one on schedule. In fact, we've never missed a deadline in our history. 1989 shapes up even better.

Colleges and universities remain an important part of our business, helping them meet their sports and recreational objectives. Much of the time we're working with schools who already are AstroTurf customers. So whether it's an upgraded replacement field or a surface for a new facility, product satisfaction invariably brings them back for more. It's also our key to new customers.

For example, new practice fields at Boston University and Penn State. Wisconsin's impressive McClain Athletic Facility. The third replacement field at Middle Tennessee. Jones Stadium at Texas Tech. Viking Field at Diablo Valley College. Scott Stadium at Virginia and the Olney and Margolis Athletic Center at Brown. A new outdoor field for the Air Force Academy.

Customer loyalty just doesn't happen. We have a longtime tradition of teamwork, service, insistence on product quality and technical excellence. Our staff, both in the plant and out in the field, is hardworking and enthusiastic.

Last year, we added more sales and project engineering people to provide even more personalized service. We've strengthened our manufacturing capabilities and administrative organization, the people behind the people in the field.

We established alltime production records April through June and for the year as a whole. Our plant capacity has been expanded to meet sales projections.

Our pledge to you is that in 1989 and in future years, we'll continue to supply the best value and quality performance in playing surfaces. We aim to keep our top ranking.

Four are 'Coaches' Choice'

Heisman Trophy-winning running back Barry Sanders of Oklahoma State University, wide receiver Mike Barber of Marshall University, and running backs Johnny Bailey of Texas A&I University and Terry Underwood of Wagner College are the four division winners of the first Domino's Pizza-American Football Coaches Association "Coaches' Choice" awards.

The awards were voted on by more than 3,000 active member of the AFCA and were presented on opening day of the association's January 9-12 convention in Nashville.

Sanders won the award for NCAA Division I-A players and Barber was honored as the top player in NCAA Division I-AA.

Bailey represents College Division I, which includes NCAA Division II and National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Division I schools, and Underwood was selected in College Division II, which includes NCAA Division III and NAIA Division II institutions.

Athletics administration reorganized

The University of Illinois, Campaign, has a new organization to operate its athletics programs, replacing the independent athletics association.

Illinois trustees voted January 12 to approve creation of a division of intercollegiate athletics, which will be under direct control of the university.

Trustees also approved the appointment of football coach John Mackovic as athletics director, according to the Associated Press.

The reorganization carries the "strongest possible recommendation" from Chancellor Morton Weir, said Donald Wendel, vice-chancellor of administrative affairs.

The reorganization approved by trustees provides "an automatic strengthening of oversight," said Craig Bazzani, the school's top business officer.

Under the plan approved by trustees, the athletics director will report directly to the chancellor. The business unit of the new division will report to the chief business officer of the campus, as well as to the athletics director.

A transition team will be named to handle the details of integrating Athletic Association finances, policies and employees into the university structure.

Team seeks move

The College of St. Rose plans to seek NCAA Division I status for its baseball team, athletics director Cathy Haker said.

The school announced in November that it plans to join Division II this fall. Under NCAA rules, Division II schools can field a Division I team in one sport.

St. Rose baseball coach Bob Belizzi told the Associated Press that his team now has 12 Division I-quality players, which he said would be a good nucleus for building a Division I program.

Canisius planning $4 million project for athletics

A $4 million multipurpose outdoor athletics field, will be built adjacent to the Koessler Athletic Field at Canisius College this spring. The project, which will provide a home field for Canisius athletes and enhance the school's outdoor intramurals and community sports programs, includes the construction of an addition to the Koessler Athletic Center.

The multiuse surface will encompass football, lacrosse and soccer fields, a baseball diamond, and two softball diamonds that meet the NCAA-recommended standards, and a jogging track. Bleachers will seat 800. Each playing field will be lighted.

The support building, an addition to the existing Koessler Center, will house locker rooms for visiting teams and Canisius female athletes, as well as a concession stand and lavatories.

"This should be a model for urban planning in terms of unique space utilization," said Paul E. Bieron, director of the Koessler Athletic Center. "We will now be able to handle intramurals as well as our daily physical education classes, in addition to team practices and games. We will be able to enhance the offerings of the National Youth Sports Program, in its 20th year at Canisius College this summer—the program serves 450 Western New York youngsters annually. And we plan to invite area high school championship games to be played on our new field."

Daniel P. Starr, director of athletics, notes the new field will enhance Canisius' image as a new member of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. "Now we will be able to host some of the conference championships for various sports, just as other schools in the MAAC do."

The project has been four years in the planning, since the college's athletics board recommended in November 1984 that outdoor athletics facilities be expanded.

In April of 1985, the Undergraduate Student Assembly voted unanimously to endorse the project and provided $5,000 from the student contingency fund to hire an architect to study and complete plans for such a facility.

In January of 1987, the Undergraduate Student Assembly voted to raise student fees $2 per credit hour to begin a building fund for the athletics facility.

Subsequently, the college's board of trustees approved a match from college funds for this student fee yield of approximately $200,000 a year.

An athletics field fund-raising campaign will be launched by the college to pay for the remainder of the $4 million project.

The field was designed by The Saratoga Associates of Buffalo. Balling Construction is managing the overall project.

Pay for athletes boosts USOC's budget

The U.S. Olympic Committee has proposed a $249 million budget for 1989-1992, an increase of nearly $100 million over its 1985-88 budget.

The increase will go primarily to payments to athletes, training programs and the 40 national governing bodies.

"There will be no increase in the dollar amount of the USOC's administrative costs from present levels," USOC president Robert Helmick said. "In terms of the percentage of the entire budget, we have reduced administrative costs from 12.9 percent to 8.5 percent."

The proposed expense budget of $239.4 million will be presented for approval February 19 at the USOC's quadrennial meeting, which will be at Portland, Oregon.

Baaron Pittinger, executive director of the USOC, said he anticipates revenues of $248.7 million from 1989-1992.

More than $16 million will be given to athletes. The USOC raised $25 million from the sale of Olympic coins, and $9 million was paid to support athletes prior to the Seoul Olympics.

Pittinger also said $64.95 million would be available in grants from the USOC and the U.S. Olympic Foundation.

The USOC's program of grants to athletes based on rankings in international events will increase to $4 million from $1.8 million.

The USOC proposed a $25 million budget for the Olympic training centers in Colorado Springs, Colorado; Lake Placid, New York, and Marquette, Michigan.

Smith's Tar Heels win impressively despite modest start

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Under coach Dean Smith, North Carolina has averaged an incredible 26 victories per season over the last 22 years with an .809 winning percentage—but he might never have made it past his fifth season in today's high-pressure atmosphere.

Smith's record was a modest 66-47 (.584) over his first five seasons, with no NCAA tournament appearances and only 13.2 victories per season. The program Smith inherited from Frank McGuire (who led the Tar Heels to the national championship in 1957) was coming off probation, limited to a 17-game schedule and not allowed to recruit outside the state.

His first team (1962) finished 8-9—his only losing season. It was not until his sixth season that Smith's teams became big winners. Under current Division I conditions, he might have been fired before then. But his teaching ability and intellect had impressed the administration.

The big change, Smith once said, really came when 6-11 Rusty Clark chose to become a Tar Heel. "He was the first big man I coached. If Rusty hadn't grown up in the state, he probably wouldn't have come to North Carolina and I might not be coaching here."

Smith's 1967 team finished 26-6 and reached the Final Four. Amazingly, 26-6 has been the average season at North Carolina the last 22 seasons, at 572-135. His seven Final Four trips are second in history to 12 by UCLA's John Wooden and he has missed the Final Four by just one victory four times since winning the 1982 championship (1983, 1986, 1987, 1988)—with seven straight times in the "sweet 16."

His roots are in the pressure defense he learned under the legendary Forrest "Phog" Allen at Kansas in the 1950s. Before that, his father was a high school coach in Topeka, Kansas, and he was fascinated by coaching at an early age.

Comparing the greats

No other coach ever has matched Smith's 26-victory average over 22 seasons, but parallel comparisons cannot be made because shorter schedules made this all but impossible. In the early years, teams often did not even play 26 games. Adolph Rupp of Kentucky, the all-time leader with 875 victories, averaged 22.3 wins and 5.3 losses his last 22 seasons—490-117 for .807 (last season: 1972). Wooden averaged 23.6 wins and 4.7 losses his last 22 seasons—520-103 for .835 (last season: 1975).

Long Island's Clair Bee, the all-time Division I leader in career winning percentage at .827, coached 21 seasons (last season: 1951) and averaged 19.5 wins and 4.1 losses (410-86).

Tarkanian, Crum 1-2

Smith was averaging 23.6 wins per season entering 1988-89 over his entire 27-year career (638-182). That ranks fifth among active Division I coaches with at least five seasons as a Division I head coach.

Topping the active list at a remarkable 25.1 victories per season is Jerry Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas with 501-106 for .825 over 20 seasons entering this one. His winning percentage is second in Division I history to Bee's, using a minimum of 10 seasons as a Division I head coach. (Including his 6-3 NCAA tournament record at Long Beach State, vacated by NCAA action, his winning percentage drops to .823, but his wins per season average climbs to 25.4.)

Loy Vaught, Michigan, is the top field-goal shooter among Division I men

South Florida's Wanda Guyton leads Division I women in rebounding at 14.9

Millersville senior Karen Arnold is among Division II women's free-throw leaders

Brad Block, Aurora, is No. 2 in Division III three-pointers per game at 4.4

Louisville's Denny Crum is second at 24.2 for 17 seasons. Others in the top 10 are Syracuse's Jim Boeheim, 23.9 for 12; Temple's John Chaney, 23.7 for 16; Smith, 23.6; Georgetown's John Thompson, 23.1 for 16; Marshall's Rick Huckabay, 22.8 for five; Cleveland State's Kevin Mackey, 22.2 for five; Kentucky's Eddie Sutton, 22.1 for 19, and Lou Carnesecca of St. John's (New York), 22.0 for 20.

Four Division I coaches over 22 wins per season did not meet the minimum of five head-coaching seasons in Division I, although they had from six to 12 years as a head coach. They are Western Carolina's David Possinger, 28.3 for 12; Middle Tennessee State's Bruce Stewart, 24.8 for six; Wright State's Ralph Underhill, 22.5 for 10, and Valparaiso's Homer Drew, 22.4 for 12 entering the season.

While 25 victories now is the one-season mark of excellence due to with four each.

Twelve have three—Appalachian State, Brigham Young, Charleston, Immaculata, Indiana, Miami (Ohio), North Carolina, Northwestern State (Louisiana), Slippery Rock, Southern California, Southern Connecticut State and Tennessee Tech.

In terms of total victories and winning percentage, however, no college is close to the three graduates of Immaculata, which dominated in the early years of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (IAIW) under coach Cathy Rush. Three Rush pupils now are among the top winners in the game—Theresa Grentz (class of 1974) at Rutgers, Rene Portland (1975) at Penn State and Marianne Stanley (1976) at Pennsylvania.

West Chester's five graduates in Division I are Geno Auriemma (1981) at Connecticut, Karen Harden (1976) at Wichita State,

Walking into the interview room after a 94-74 loss to Alaska-Anchorage (upset winner over Michigan), Cal State Sacramento men's coach Joe Anders said: "No, I don't want to play Duke." Later, he said: "They played like they had just beaten Michigan; we played like they had just beaten Michigan." (Jeff Minahan, Cal State Sacramento SID)

After his team had played three consecutive overtime games in a five-night stretch (winning two), Louisiana Tech men's coach Tommy Joe Eagles said: "We would just like to win them the old-fashioned way—in regulation." (Tom Burnett, Louisiana Tech assistant SID)

The New Orleans men average 6-2½. Said coach Tim Floyd after changing planes in Houston on their first road trip: "That's the first time no one in an airport asked me if I was with a basketball team." The Privateers have just one player taller than 6-5. He is 6-8 senior Chris Trunk, who does not start. Does any Division I team have a smaller squad? (Ed Cassiere, New Orleans SID)

The North Adams State men already have two juniors over the 1,000-point mark in career scoring this season (Phil Beldsoe and his former army buddy, Bernard Alexander), and a delighted coach Al Sokaitis says: "The only senior on the team is the manager, and he can't shoot a lick." (Wayne Soares, SID office)

After his 5-10 sophomore point guard, Donald Whiteside, produced a career-high 31 points and eight rebounds vs. Eastern Illinois, Northern Illinois coach Jim Rosborough suggested Whiteside might be a viable candidate for the Naismith Award, given to the nation's top player under six feet tall. But to be eligible, a player must be a senior. Jerry Healy, information director at the Basketball Hall of Fame, had this advice for Rosborough: "Tell Donald not to grow for two years." (Mike Korcek, Northern Illinois SID)

Dave Armstrong, Raycom play-by-play man, on the free-throw shooting of Kansas State's Steve Henson, going for his second straight national Division I title in free-throw accuracy: "Henson misses a free throw about as often as Vanna White turns the wrong letter." Two nights later, Henson missed for only the third time all season in 49 attempts, and his percentage fell to 93.9. (Tim Allen, Big Eight Conference SID)

Can you top these?

Florida State's Brad Johnson is gaining near-folk-hero status by playing two sports. The 10-1 football team was practicing for the Sugar Bowl, while the basketball team was playing a tournament in Orlando,

Florida, with its national ranking on the line. So Johnson practiced football for 90 minutes, hopped a flight to Orlando, and scored 13 points in a one-point loss to Villanova. He came in with the team down 13 and made three straight three-point goals to put the Seminoles back in it. In the Sugar Bowl, Johnson, a backup quarterback, again just missed being a hero. On a fake field goal, Johnson, the holder, was ready to throw a pass to a wide-open receiver when he was hit by a lineman the kicker was supposed to block. (Rob Wilson, Florida State assistant SID)

Gordon was without its top player, Bobby Brooks, for six games during the semester break, including a six-game trip to California, because he led a group of 50 Gordon students who went to the Dominican Republic to build a church. Brooks was averaging nearly 18 points—24.5 in his last four games—and was hitting 45 percent from three-point range. Said coach John Block: "He is our best outside shooter and best defensive player, but this decision could be a life-changing event for him." (Steve Cowen, Gordon SID)

DePaul played the last game at Illinois State's Horton Field House and, ironically, Illinois State played the last game in DePaul's Alumni Hall in Chicago. A year ago, DePaul played the last game in Marquette's Mecca Arena. DePaul won all three of those games. (Tim Hagn, intern in DePaul SID office)

Jackson State is 1988 leader in I-AA attendance

Jackson State University is the Division I-AA football attendance champion for 1988, not Florida A&M University, as a result of a correction in the final attendance figures. It is Jackson State's third straight I-AA attendance crown and its fifth title in the last six seasons.

Florida A&M's November 19 home game with Central State University (Ohio), which totaled 7,647 spectators, was left out of its final 1988 figures. This changes its average to 24,774 per game for eight games, compared to Jackson State's 26,500 for four games, and places Florida A&M second in the final rankings.

The Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference season average drops to 11,949, still a record for that conference. The Division I-AA total becomes 4,801,637 and its average drops to 10,326.

The national total increases to 35,581,790, down 880,881 or 2.42 percent, from 1987, and the lowest since 1980.

Basketball notes

much longer seasons, it still is a major feat to average 20 victories over a career. Only 17 more Division I coaches have averaged 20 victories using the minimums above. The list includes Indiana's Bob Knight, who reached 500 victories January 14.

Division II-III leaders

Bill Morse of Fort Hays State leads the Division II list with 26.7 for 11 entering 1988-89, followed by Southwest Baptist's Jerry Kirksey, 26.2; Paine's Ron Spry, 25.5; Washburn's Bob Chipman, 24.1; West Texas State's Mark Adams, 24.0; Gannon's Tom Chapman, 23.7; Florida Southern's George Scholz, 23.5; Virginia Union's Dave Robbins, 23.3; Millersville's John Kochan, 22.8, and Franklin Pierce's Bruce Kirsh, 22.5 (Kirsh had 11 seasons, Robbins and Chapman 10 each).

In Division III, only eight average 20, led by Wisconsin-Eau Claire's Ken Anderson at 23.5 for 20 years. Next are Wittenberg's Larry Hunter, 23.2 for 12; Roanoke's Ed Green, 22.27 to 22.25 over Cabrini's John Dzik; Brian Baptiste of Southeastern Massachusetts, 20.8; Rick Simmonds of St. Joseph's (Maine), 20.7; Potsdam State's Jerry Welsh, 20.3 over 19 seasons, and Scranton's Bob Bessoir, 20.2 over 16. (At 11, Green is the other coach above with double-digit years.)

Women's alma maters

In the current field of 284 Division I women's head coaches (169 women, 115 men), West Chester with five graduates is No. 1. Next are Ithaca, Kent, Ohio State, Old Dominion and Wayland Baptist, all Linda MacDonald (1970) at Temple, Anne Sinnott-Skutches (1976) at Lehigh and Marian Washington (1970) at Kansas. Washington leads the group with 268 career wins entering the season.

Ithaca's four Division I coaches are Lisa Boyer (1979) at Bradley, Cathy Kunz (1973) at Duquesne, Ken Babineau (1972) at Marist and Joy Malchodi (1970) at Northeastern. Kent's four are John Sutherland (1981) of Arkansas, Alice Kohl (1972) of Cleveland State, Joe McKeown (1978) of New Mexico State and Melissa DeMarchi (1974) of Pacific. Ohio State's four are Molly Perdue (1982) of Brooklyn, Laurie Pirtle (1980) of Cincinnati, Kim Jordan (1980) of Cornell and Mark Ehlen (1975) of Xavier (Ohio).

Old Dominion's four graduates are Maura McHugh (1975) of Arizona State, Cindy Russo (1975) of Florida International, Jean Walling Murphy (1981) of Hartford and Wendy Larry (1977) of Old Dominion. Wayland Baptist's four are Charlotte Mason (1969) of Nevada-Reno, Valerie Goodwin-Colbert (1979) of Oklahoma, Linda Tucker (1969) of Rice and Marsha Sharp (1974) of Texas Tech.

Quotes of the week

After Montclair State's upset victory over New Jersey Tech, veteran men's coach Ollie Gelston said: "It's like that song 'Getting to know you' (from the musical 'The King and I'). It's just a question of the young kids becoming acclimated with each other." (Allan Langer, Montclair State SID)

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS California State University, Sacramento

California State University, Sacramento, seeks candidates for Director of Athletics to oversee a Division II program in seventeen men's and women's sports with grants-in-aid offered in most. A plan has been adopted which will lead to Division I competition except in football by 1991 (contingent upon appropriate funding and conference affiliation). The University seeks to create an environment in which student-athletes are most likely to realize academic as well as competitive goals.

We seek candidates with at least a Bachelor's degree in an appropriate field; an earned doctorate is preferred. Experience in administration of a complex, highly competitive program is prerequisite, as is commitment to integrity in administration of the program. We will give particular attention to experience demonstrating awareness and ability to support successful student academic as well as athletic careers. Candidates demonstrating ability to administer a grants-in-aid program and work with community support groups will be favored.

Candidates must communicate effectively, provide leadership for coaches as well as other staff and support groups, and interpret the athletic program to the campus community. Fund-raising and program promotion experience is desirable.

The University enrolls over 25,000 students, is located in one of the most rapidly growing regions in the West and is the twentieth largest media market in the nation.

Applicants are asked to submit the following materials, postmarked no later than March 1, 1989: Letter of application, current resume; names, addresses and telephone numbers of three (3) references who can address applicant's professional preparation and experience. Finalists will be asked to provide verification of the highest earned degree. Send to Office of Faculty and Staff Affairs, California State University, Sacramento, 6000 J Street, Box AD, Sacramento, CA 95819. Letters of nomination will be accepted until February 15, 1989, and should be accompanied by current resume of the nominee.

The appointment will be effective in late Summer of 1989. Salary will be commensurate with the background and experience of the individual selected.

CSUS is an AA/EEO Employer.

The University of Georgia

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

The University of Georgia invites applications and nominations for the position of Athletic Director. The University of Georgia is a major land grant research institution with a student population of over 25,000, located in Athens, Georgia, approximately 70 miles northeast of Atlanta. The University is a Division I member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and of the South eastern Conference. The Athletic Director administers the intercollegiate athletics program of the University of Georgia and reports directly to the President.

The Athletic Director must have a clear understanding of the academic mission of a major research university as well as the comprehensive nature of a large and successful athletic program and the wide variety of both men's and women's sports in which the University participates. This individual must also be attuned to the rapidly changing environment of intercollegiate athletics and must possess a commitment to upholding the integrity, character and winning tradition of the athletics program of the University of Georgia.

Candidates must possess a Bachelor's degree as a minimum and have demonstrated the administrative experience and skill necessary to operate an intercollegiate athletics program in compliance with rules and regulations of associations and conferences of which the University is a member. This position requires an experienced professional capable of administering a large and highly visible department. In this capacity, management and budgetary skills are essential.

Nominations and applications must be received by the Search Committee no later than February 10, 1989. Send nominations and applications to the following:

Dr. Allan W. Barber
Chair, Search Committee

Father-son team puts on show at New Mexico

Australian Luc Longley, in America as a student-athlete at the University of New Mexico, recently displayed defensive prowess when his last-minute blocked shot helped preserve a Western Athletic Conference basketball victory over Brigham Young University.

The 7-2 sophomore practically had to do something important, given his father's performance at half time.

On his first visit to this country to see his son play, 47-year-old Richard Longley made a half-court shot in a promotional event that was worth $500 for charity.

"I tried to make it look as elegant as I could, but I never thought I would make (the shot)," Longley told Associated Press writer Tom Coyne. "Nobody can look bad trying to make a half-court shot," he continued. "Now, if they had told me to take the shot from three feet away, I would have been nervous."

"He's always had a better shooting touch than me," Luc Longley said of his 6-10 father.

"Graham McNamee, nationally known radio announcer, may be a wizard at painting word pictures, but he doesn't know his pigskins, in the opinion of University of California, Berkeley, football managers.

"In the face of this protest, McNamee has agreed to turn over his microphone to a substitute when the National Radio Broadcast sends

New grid gear is high-tech

A quick stroll through the Opryland Hotel's exhibition center during the recent American Football Coaches Association convention in Nashville undoubtedly left some observers wondering if sports-equipment manufacturers were attempting to help teams win football games or travel to the moon.

According to the Associated Press, there was marked evidence that the sport has entered the space age.

One product, Dri-Ball, promised that team managers no longer have to towel-dry footballs on a rainy day.

The soggy pigskin is placed in a plastic bag containing white crystals and shaken vigorously for 30 seconds. What emerges from the bag is a football dry enough to satisfy even the most picky quarterback, according to display manager Chuck Grant.

Grant said the chemicals in the packet are secret because the product's patent is still pending, but they produce heat that speeds up evaporation.

Another eye-catcher was Ron Micchia's Hawk-Eye-Patch—black, stick-on patches designed to replace grease under the eyes used by athletes to avoid sweaty glare.

The patches have an advantage over grease, Micchia said, because they don't smear, don't get on clothes and won't towel off.

"They're made of a medical-grade tissue material," Micchia explained. "They are nonirritating and allow moisture to pass through."

Nashville model Stacy Taylor spent her week modeling air-filled protective padding while a salesman in the booth attempted to grab some of the spotlight by being hit with a baseball bat.
