Special Committee on Cost Reduction appointed

The Special Committee on Cost Reduction, as authorized by the delegates to the January Convention in San Francisco, has been appointed.

As announced in last week's issue of The NCAA News, the NCAA Administrative Committee and the officers of the NCAA Presidents Commission earlier appointed Eugene F. Corrigan, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, to chair the committee. He replaced Wilford S. Bailey, who was named by the Convention to chair and appoint the committee but who subsequently resigned.

The Administrative Committee and the Commission officers also appointed the other members of the committee, and those appointments were reviewed by Corrigan.

The Convention vote on Proposal No. 39-1 specifically earmarked all of the positions on the committee, and the appointments are consistent with the terms of that earmarking.

Named to the committee:

Chief executive officers

Bernard F. Sliger, Florida State

University (Division I-A); Stanley G. Rives, Eastern Illinois University (I-AA); Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, University of New Orleans (I-AAA); Margaret Preska, Mankato State University (II), and John R. Brazil, Southeastern Massachusetts University (III). The Presidents Commission specified in its January 8 meeting that the five CEOs appointed to the committee should be current members of the Commission.

Athletics directors

Cedric W. Dempsey, University of Arizona (Division I-A); Harley Lewis, University of Montana (I-AA); Francis X. Rienzo, Georgetown University (I-AAA); J. D. Marshall, Fayetteville State University (II), and Willard Huyck, University of the South (III).

Faculty representatives

William H. Baughn, University of Colorado (Division I-A), and Charles Whitcomb, San Jose State University (I-A).

Senior women administrators

Elaine Dreidame, University of Dayton (Division I-AAA); Karol

Kahrs, University of Illinois, Champaign (I-A), and Donna A. Lopiano, University of Texas, Austin (I-A).

Financial aid officers

Marvin G. Carmichael, Clemson University (Division I-A), and Patricia Harris, California State University, Los Angeles (II).

It is anticipated that a number of consultants may be asked to work with the committee, including additional Division I-A athletics directors and Lehigh University President Peter Likins, who developed the

Basketball issues to be discussed

An enlarged Committee on Basketball Issues will meet April 27 in Chicago to discuss NCAA legislation affecting men's basketball and will open its discussions to suggestions from athletics staff members at NCAA member institutions.

The committee, now with members representing all 30 conferences with automatic qualification to the Division I Men's Basketball Championship, also will begin discussions on proposed legislation for the 1990 NCAA Convention.

Legislation approved by the 1989 Convention that will be reviewed includes measures affecting the recruiting calendar and the total number of paid visits an institution can provide to a prospective student-athlete.

Victor A. Bubas

The committee, which was created in 1987 by the NCAA and the National Association of Basketball Coaches, is composed of athletics directors, conference commissioners, head men's basketball coaches, and representatives of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee and the NABC board of directors. Victor A. Bubas, commissioner of the Sun Belt Conference, is the committee chair.

Bubas said persons with items for the committee's agenda can contact him or their conference representatives, who are as follows:

Tom Apke, Appalachian State University; George Blaney, Holy Cross College; Bubas, Sun Belt Conference, chair; Don Cook, University of Hartford; Gary Cunningham,

For two years in row, no deaths reported directly due to football

For the second consecutive year, no deaths attributable directly to participation in college football were reported in an annual report on football-injury research.

Also, there were no deaths in 1988 due indirectly to participation in college football, according to the latest Annual Survey of Football-Injury Research.

The report was prepared by Dr. Frederick O. Mueller, chair of the American Football Coaches Association Committee on Football Injuries, and Richard D. Schindler, assistant executive director of the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFSHA). The study is conducted for the American Football Coaches Association, NFSHA and the NCAA.

Considering all levels of play in the United States, six 1988 deaths—all at the high school level—were directly attributable to football, and 11—including 10 in high schools—were indirectly due to participation in the sport.

Directly related deaths are defined as those resulting directly from participation in the fundamental skills of football (tackling, blocking, etc.). Indirect deaths are defined as fatalities caused by "systemic failure" as a result of exertion while participating in football (cardiac arrest, heat stroke, etc.) or by a complication that was secondary to a nonfatal injury.

The rate of directly related deaths per every 100,000 players was 0.38. Mueller and Schindler describe the number of directly related fatalities occurring in 1988 as "very low," considering that approximately 1.575 million people participated in the sport at the high school, college, sandlot, and professional and semi-professional levels.

Broken down, the rates per 100,000 players are 0.46 fatalities in junior and senior high school football, where there were 1.3 million participants, and zero for college football, where there were 75,000 players.

Number remains low

The directly related deaths in 1988 were up slightly from the 1987 figure of four, which was the lowest number recorded in 11 years. The number of direct deaths has topped 10 only three times since rules were changed in 1976 to prohibit using the head as a primary and initial contact area for blocking and tackling.

Four of the directly related deaths that occurred in 1988 resulted from injuries to the head. The other deaths were attributed to a fractured cervical vertebra and a helmet blow to the chest that caused an irregular heartbeat and cardiac arrest.

As has been true in the past, more direct fatalities occurred during regularly scheduled games (four) than in practice. One death occurred in August, two in September, one in October and two in November (including one resulting from injuries suffered in September).

Two of the players died from injuries sustained while tackling and one died after being tackled. Another was blocked, one was in a pile-up and the activity of the sixth victim is unknown.

Of the 11 indirect fatalities, which were the most recorded since 1982, six were related to heart failure. Two others (including one in sandlot football) were blamed on asthma attacks, two were attributed to heat stroke and one involved a ruptured spleen associated with mononucleosis.

In addition to the deaths termed direct and indirect, four deaths were reported as not related to football. They involved two high school players—one who died in his sleep from a heart problem and one who suffered a cerebral hemorrhage—and two college players—one who died in a library from apparent heart failure and one who died from liver and kidney failure after he became ill during a winter workout.

The 1988 data prompted Mueller and Schindler to urge an "all-out effort...to keep these figures low and to strive for the elimination of football fatalities."

Noting that most fatalities since 1960 have been attributable to head See For two years, page 2

Tournament won't have sponsors

The NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee has stated that it does not plan to consider any type of title sponsorship for the men's basketball tournament.

The committee met in Kansas City last week to begin its overall review of the tournament. During the meeting, the committee also renewed its ban on commercial signage at the sites of the basketball tournament.

"These two expressions are consistent with the positions previously adopted by the NCAA Executive Committee," said Cedric W. Dempsey, committee chair and athletics director at the University of Arizona. "Those policies prohibit title sponsorship and commercial signage at NCAA championships."

"The basketball committee will continue to explore the image it wants the tournament to project," Dempsey continued. "Through this process, it hopes to maintain and improve both the image and the reality of the collegiate atmosphere of the men's basketball championship."

'90 Final Four ticket forms available

Ticket applications for the 1990 Final Four are being accepted until midnight, April 30, 1989.

The 1990 Final Four will be held in Denver, Colorado. Each $55 ticket will admit the bearer to two semifinal games (March 31) and one championship game (April 2). No application shall be accepted for more than two tickets.

The official order form or a photocopy of it must be used to apply for tickets. Payments without official order forms will not be accepted. A copy of the order form appears on page 3 of this issue of the News. Beginning March 6, forms also may be obtained by calling 913/339-1990.

A separate application form must accompany each payment. Each form must include a personal check for the correct amount in U.S. currency. It should be made payable to the "NCAA Final Four." A $1 non-refundable handling fee has been added to each order. Please do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Each check will be deposited upon receipt. If an applicant's check is deposited, that indicates that the application will be included in the selection process. It does not mean that the applicant will receive tickets.

Interest income generated by ticket application moneys will be used to support one or more of the NCAA youth programs (Youth Education through Sports Clinics and the National Youth Sports Program) and drug-education efforts.

The NCAA or United Missouri Bank of Kansas City, N.A., is not responsible for returning incorrect applications to the sender before the April 30 deadline. Applications received after the midnight April 30 deadline will be returned unopened to the sender.

In May, a random, computerized drawing from among all qualified applications will be held to determine the recipients of tickets. Persons successful in the drawing will be send their game tickets by first-class mail about June 30, 1989. Unsuccessful applicants will receive a full refund.

Championships could be affected by measles cases

Recent measles/rubella outbreaks on several campuses could affect scheduled NCAA championships events.

At present, no championships site is subject to access restrictions imposed by local public-health authorities.

However, as a precautionary measure, institutions that anticipate sending teams or individuals to championships events may wish to assemble measles/rubella inoculation data for student-athletes and other official-traveling-party members.

NCAA Bylaw 30.2.2—college all-star basketball and football contests

Member institutions are reminded that under the provisions of Bylaw 30.2.2 (formerly Bylaw 2-3), no member institution shall permit its student-athletes (i.e., those who were members of its intercollegiate team in the sport in question) to compete in or its facilities to be utilized for any college all-star basketball or football contest unless the contest is approved by the NCAA Special Events Committee and certified by the NCAA Council. Further, Bylaw 30.2.2.4 [formerly Bylaw 2-3(a)] limits participation in a certified all-star game to enrolled or graduated student-athletes who have exhausted their seasons of eligibility in the sport in question but who were eligible to participate on their institutions' intercollegiate teams in that sport during the preceding season. Finally, Bylaw 30.2.2.5 [formerly Bylaw 2-3(d)] stipulates that the management of a certified all-star game shall obtain permission from an institution's director of athletics before inviting a student-athlete from that institution to compete in the all-star game. NCAA-certified all-star basketball games for the current academic year include the following:

1. Aloha Classic	Tokyo, Japan	May 11-14, 1989
2. Louisiana Association of Basketball Coaches	Ruston, Louisiana	April 17, 1989
3. Metropolitan Senior	Jamaica, New York	April 9, 1989
4. Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference	St. Paul, Minnesota	April 9, 1989
5. NABC All-America	Seattle, Washington	March 30, 1989
6. New England Hall of Fame	Springfield, Massachusetts	April 8, 1989
7. New Jersey Collegiate Basketball Coaches	Teaneck, New Jersey	April 4-9, 1989
8. Orlando Classic	Orlando, Florida	April 13-15, 1989
9. Pizza Hunt Shootout	Marietta, Georgia	April 23, 1989
10. Portsmouth Invitational	Portsmouth, Virginia	April 5-8, 1989

Plan could cut premiums for insurance

A plan to combat increases in insurance costs and lawsuits in college sports has been developed by The Center for Sport Law and Risk Management, Inc., in association with the National Sports Underwriters, which provides numerous NCAA member institutions with insurance coverage, including catastrophic-injury insurance protection.

The risk-review program is designed to eliminate hazards in athletics programs before a participant or spectator is injured and lawsuits result.

The risk-review program includes in-depth consultation in all areas related to the operation of an intercollegiate athletics program, on-site inspections of equipment and facilities, and a risk-reduction seminar for athletics staff members.

About 15 NCAA member institutions are currently implementing the program.

A report that details recommendations to minimize the risks of injury and potential liability follows the on-site inspections.

Thomas F. Wilson Jr., president of National Sports Underwriters, said it is possible that institutions can qualify for reductions in insurance premiums if they participate in the risk-review program.

The catastrophic-injury insurance program, however, is not available at a discounted rate because "there is no real way to reduce the exposure to those types of injuries," Wilson said.

Wilson said the reductions in insurance costs most likely would come on basic insurance and liability coverage.

"To underscore the importance of this program, we are prepared to offer premium credits of up to 10 percent on some of our insurance programs when our client institutions successfully complete the risk-review process," Wilson said.

Ron Baron, a lawyer and executive director of The Center for Sports Law and Risk Management, said, "College and universities implementing the risk-review program will be able to provide the safest program possible."

member of the faculty.

- Coaches, trainers, physicians, manufacturers, administrators and other groups interested in athletics medicine should maintain cooperative liaisons.

- Game rules and administrative regulations designed to protect the health of athletes should be enforced by administrators, coaches and officials.

- A renewed interest should be placed on employing well-trained personnel, providing excellent facilities and securing the safest and best equipment possible.

- Research concerning safety in football should continue.

Sudden-death period sought for field hockey season, play-offs

The NCAA Field Hockey Committee has voted to recommend to the Executive Committee that a sudden-death period become part of the process for breaking a tie during both regular-season and championship play.

If a regular-season game is tied at the end of regulation, one 10-minute, field-play period would be played. If the score still is tied at the end of that period, one 10-minute sudden-death period would be played. In championship play, a tie would be broken by playing up to one 10-minute, field-play period and two 10-minute, sudden-death periods. If the tie is broken at the end of the first extra period, the game is complete.

In the sudden-death periods, the game is complete as soon as a goal is scored. In championship play, a series of penalty strokes would be taken if the score remains tied at the end of the third extra period.

In other actions regarding rules modifications taken during a February 21-24 meeting in San Diego, the committee voted to follow international rules on the ball stop during a penalty corner. However, the corner shall be considered over if the ball crosses the 25-yard line. The committee also voted to retain the modification that allows a goal to be scored from any point on the playing field.

The committee also will recommend to the Executive Committee that it be allowed to use a power-rating system on an experimental basis. The power-rating system would be used for both the poll and the selection process in Division I but only for selections in Division

III.

The committee voted to continue with separate sites for the Division I and Division III semifinal and championship games.

The regional competition in the Division I championship will be Saturday and Sunday, November 11 and 12, and the semifinals and championship will be Saturday and Sunday, November 18 and 19. The site for the semifinals and championship is to be determined. The regional competition in the Division III championship will be Friday and Saturday, November 3 and 4, and the semifinals and championship games will be played Friday and Saturday, November 10 and 11.

The semifinals and championship will played on the campus of one of the competing institutions.

The Penn Monto Elite Turf ball was selected as the ball for all championship play. The committee also established an officials evaluation card for coaches to fill out after each regular-season game.

The Division I subcommittee will make a recommendation to the Executive Committee regarding the placement of teams in the championship bracket. The top four teams would receive first-round byes, and the remaining teams would be paired geographically.

The subcommittee also will recommend that the Atlantic 10 Conference be granted automatic qualification to the 1989 championship and that Kentucky be aligned with the Midwest rather than the South region.

The subcommittee also discussed conducting the championship over a 2½- or three-week period. It plans to survey coaches and administrators regarding this topic.

The Division III subcommittee will recommend that 20 teams be included in the biweekly poll. This past season, 10 teams were ranked.

Opinions on play-off changes sought in II women's volleyball

The Division II Women's Volleyball Committee has voted to solicit opinions from Division II coaches through a survey to be conducted within the next month, with items to include the following:

- The possibility of going to Saturday-Sunday-Monday finals rather than the current Friday-Saturday-Sunday format.

- Moving the 1990 championship up a week, with regionals to be held beginning November 23-24.

- Going to a predetermined site for the final eight in the 1990 championship.

- Opinions concerning collegiate coaches' involvement in U.S. Volleyball Association junior programs.

Also, the committee reconfirmed its support of the eight-team-final format.

The following conferences were selected to receive automatic qualifying privileges for the 1989 championship: the California Collegiate Athletic Association, the Continental Divide Conference, the Lone Star Conference and the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

However, the Lone Star Conference received a warning from the committee that it may be in jeopardy of losing automatic-qualifying privileges if the quality of competition and strength of schedule within the conference are not improved.

The committee met February 21-24 at Palm Springs, California.

News quiz

The following questions relate to information that appeared in February issues of The NCAA News. How many can you answer?

1. Prior to adoption of the revised NCAA Manual, the Association's initial-eligibility legislation was contained in Bylaw 5-1(j). Where is it in the new Manual? (a) Bylaw 5.1; (b) Bylaw 17.4; (c) Bylaw 14.3; (d) Bylaw 7.7.

2. What was the average grade-point average (4.000 scale) of the 36 football players interviewed recently for an Associated Press story on academics and athletics? (a) 2.670; (b) 2.175; (c) 2.779; (d) 2.346.

3. Which company supplies the official basketballs for NCAA men's and women's championships? (a) Rawlings; (b) Spalding; (c) Voit; (d) Wilson.

4. True or false: Gannon University will sponsor football as a varsity sport for the first time in 1989.

5. By the time the 1989 Division I Men's Basketball Championship is over, how many games will have been played in the 51-year history of these play-offs? (a) 1,000; (b) 1,296; (c) 1,347; (d) 1,500.

6. True or false: University of Pittsburgh, Johnstown, wrestler Carlton Haselrig has won all of his matches since losing in the semifinals of the 1986 Division II championships.

7. Which of these schools currently has the most graduates serving as head coaches in Division I men's basketball? (a) Duke University; (b) Indiana University, Bloomington; (c) University of Maryland, College Park; (d) University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

8. Who will chair the Special Committee on Cost Reduction? (a) Wilford S. Bailey; (b) Eugene F. Corrigan; (c) Donna A. Lopiano; (d) John B. Slaughter.

9. True or false: Through games of February 20, the leading scorer in Division I men's basketball had not made a three-point field goal.

10. Sidney J. Watson, chair of the NCAA Ice Hockey Rules Committee, represents which NCAA member institution? (a) Boston College; (b) Bowdoin College; (c) University of North Dakota; (d) University of Rochester.

Schultz rejects 'Pollyanna' label

By Owen Canfield

Although problems exist in intercollegiate athletics, the overwhelming majority of athletes are upstanding men and women, the NCAA's executive director said February 28.

"For every athlete making a mistake, there are a thousand who are doing things right," said Richard D. Schultz, addressing a Fellowship of Christian Athletes luncheon in Oklahoma City.

Schultz made mention of a Sports Illustrated issue in which he was referred to as "pollyanish" because he said 99 percent of what goes on in college athletics is positive. The article detailed recent problems involving athletes.

Schultz told a large crowd at the Marriott Hotel that about 286,700 men and women participate in NCAA sports nationwide.

While admitting there are "plenty of problems" in college sports, Schultz said the author of the article "needs to go out and find a couple thousand other athletes before he can break that 99 percent I talked about."

He also said the NCAA for years has tried to legislate integrity, without success. The only way there will be "complete integrity" in college athletics is when each institution makes a commitment to guarantee that integrity, he said.

The major responsibility, Schultz said, rests with governing boards that "can't start waffling in the wind" when a decision is needed on possible action against a popular coach or program.

"Without that, we will never have integrity, regardless of the rules we have," he said.

Schultz said one misconception about him is that he is the most powerful man in collegiate sports.

"I'm so powerful, I can't make a rule and I can't change a rule," he said. "We have a lot of rules that are passed that are bad rules. But the NCAA is the member institutions. There's not one rule that exists that was not passed by the member institutions."

He also said he doesn't believe state or Federal governments should

"If you pay an athlete $200 a month, all you've done is raise the ante for cheaters."

get involved in NCAA business.

"Any time the state or Federal governments start to intermingle in private associations, there's a problem," he said. "Most state legislatures and the Federal government have problems of their own that they don't do a real good job of dealing with."

Schultz also said he does not believe paying athletes will solve the problem of cheating.

"If athletes are hurting financially, there has to be another way of dealing with that, other than paying them an outright stipend," he said. "If you pay an athlete $200 a month, all you've done is raise the ante for the cheaters."

"If there are athletes who have need, then I think we need to address that, and I think the membership has not addressed that quickly enough," he said. "I think it's going to be difficult to address that until there's some fine-tuning of the structure of the organization."

Canfield writes for the Associated Press.

Nebraska bill would require due process in NCAA probes

A bill to require the NCAA to use due process in disciplinary proceedings against Nebraska universities and colleges gained unanimous first-round approval in the state legislature February 24.

If the bill passes, Nebraska would become the first state in the nation to respond to a Supreme Court ruling that the constitutional guarantee of due process does not apply to the NCAA because it is a private association.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, advanced on a 27-0 vote. It says the NCAA and other athletics associations must conduct fair disciplinary hearings whenever they are considering punishment against an institution or individual for an alleged infraction in an athletics program, United Press International reported.

If the association does not use due process, the institution could take it to court to seek damages, which would be determined by the amount of money the school made the previous year in that athletics event.

Chambers said the bill is an outgrowth of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that determined constitutional requirements of due process do not apply to the NCAA.

The ruling was a victory for the NCAA in a case involving Jerry Tarkanian, head men's basketball coach at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

The NCAA, finding 38 violations of NCAA rules at that school, put the men's basketball program on two years' probation in 1977 and recommended that the school disassociate itself from Tarkanian.

The Nevada Supreme Court issued an injunction preventing Tarkanian's dismissal by the university. The NCAA subsequently filed an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Tarkanian, however, still is coaching at UNLV.

Chambers said because of the court ruling, state legislation is the only way to affect the actions of the NCAA. The bill advanced with limited discussion.

Later start for basketball suggested

To the Editor:

The basketball season for many Division III teams is so broken up with holidays and semester breaks that many games are played without school being in session. Players are on campus weeks at a time, while others in the student body are home.

We played 12 games through January 21, which is 3½ months of practice and game time, and we will play our remaining 12 games in 30 days.

Perhaps a later start would solve the situation. Teams could play into the first week of March and then conclude with the regionals, NCAA and ECAC tournaments. Any ideas out there?

Keep the tee in high school football

To the Editor:

Ray Pelfrey's suggestion (The NCAA News, February 8) to change the high school rules for place kickers is another example of misunderstanding in today's programs.

He says, "Do what you can in high school to get them ready for college so that they can do what they can to get them ready for the pros."

It's exciting and a lot of fun to many high school kids just to be a high school kicker. Give them a little extra; give them some encouragement; give them a tee.

Most schools operate clean sports programs

By Bill Benner
The Indianapolis Star
Excerpted from a column

Marshall McLuhan, what are you doing?

The man who coined the phrase and wrote a book, "The Medium is the Message," might have enjoyed segments of the annual NCAA College Football Preview.

The event brings together NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, 10 coaches and a group of sportswriters from around the country for a give-and-take session on the state of the game and intercollegiate athletics.

And what they were telling us—the messengers—is that the message getting out is wrong.

Or at least distorted out of proportion to the reality.

University of Nebraska, Lincoln, coach Tom Osborne summed it up when he said, "We understand that bad news is good news, and that good news is no news."

The result, Osborne said, "is that the average fan doesn't have an accurate perception of what goes on in intercollegiate athletics."

As an example, Osborne pointed to a recent incident in which one of his players was arrested for shooting at a stop sign with a BB gun. This seemingly innocent youthful prank became a "Nebraska Player Cited for Firearms Violation" headline all over the state.

"We get a lot of good press," Osborne stated. "But I wonder if it's in balance."

I would argue with Osborne that it is, indeed, in balance. When I pick up the sports pages or watch television, I see far more positive articles

Referees unwillingly caught up in nation's distortion of sports

By Dick Fenlon
The Columbus Dispatch
Excerpted from a column

Ron Winter makes $350 a game refereeing Big Ten basketball. It wouldn't be worth it if he made $1,000 a game. Or $5,000. The other day, somebody telephoned the Big Ten office. Winter, the caller said, was going to die.

"I'm very concerned about death threats," supervisor of officials Bob Wortman said. "I don't care if they don't amount to anything. They do to me. My guys are very important to me."

In our descent to total distortion of sports and sportsmanship, we have, it seems, lowered ourselves to the second rung from the bottom. On the way down, the stages in which referees are baited and harassed by coaches and subjected to the worst sort of vulgarity and obscenity by students and fans has been reached and passed. Now, we're at the threat step. Could the ultimate tragedy, violent injury or death, really be at hand?

Bill Benner, who covers Big Ten basketball for The Indianapolis Star thinks so.

"I know it's going to happen," he wrote recently, even before the death threat against Winter was received. "Just as I also know people will be blaming the referees for letting the game get out of hand, even as one of the zebras is carried out on a stretcher. But we'll all have his blood on our hands."

Assistant Commissioner Clarence Underwood, the Big Ten's liaison to officials, confirmed the threat to Winter.

"We did receive an anonymous phone call, with the death threat," Underwood said. "We have no way of knowing where it came from."

Asked if the conference is taking it seriously, he said, "Very seriously. We had to notify the person involved (Winter) and let him make the decision. It's his life and livelihood. He was very professional about it."

Winter was not available for comment.

But Wortman was.

"I'm very concerned about the rest of the schedule and about what Bill Benner wrote about," he said. "I'm concerned about it every time we go out on the floor. I don't know what I'm going to do, but I'm going to do what I have to. I've got 25 guys to think about. Some kook is going to do it. These days, you don't know what some people are going to do."

Wortman blames the media. Or coaches and media.

"What coaches have done is gone on the air and in newspapers and blasted our people," he said. "I thought we had a gag rule. That's the purpose of the gag rule—so that we can't initiate any problems. It's just a matter of common sense that you don't go that way. This is what can result from it. We've got too many doors open now. Now, I've got to make changes, because I'm not going to subject an individual to harm or abuse or something."

Wortman spent 29 years as a referee in major conferences. He officiated hundreds of games. He made it to the Final Four. Nobody ever threatened his life.

Is refereeing worth it now? Is $350 enough to have somebody threaten to kill you?

"I don't think so," Wortman said. "I wouldn't blame the guys if they said, 'This ain't worth it.' For what they're going through? 'But let me tell you something else: A lot of these guys bring it on themselves. Because they don't take care of what needs to be taken care of. I'm not saying that it's a one-way street. I'm saying that if you've got a job to do, you'd better do it. For your own sake.'"

"We take the cheap shots and have to live with them," Wortman said.

Isn't it time, when living with them turns into maybe dying for them, that we all try to get the game back into perspective?

Without tee, offenses will open up

Dennis Green, head football coach
Stanford University
San Francisco Chronicle

"I like it (rule change in football eliminating kicking tees for extra points and field goals). Of course, I haven't seen tee kicking lately, being with the 49ers. But the tee was always an important tool when I coached in college, at Stanford and Northwestern."

"I think this rule revision will open up the college game and make scoring drives more important. Now, when the ball reaches the opponent's 40, let's say, the coach won't automatically tune his thinking to the field-goal kicker."

"The coach will want the team to get closer and closer to the goal or, better yet, go all the way."

Charlie Baumann, former varsity football player
West Virginia University
Erie (Pennsylvania) Times-News

"They've outlawed kicking tees, which means field goals and extra points will be way down next season."

"Last year, 98 percent of all extra-point attempts were good. I expect that to drop to about 70 percent in 1989. The rule change also will cost kickers an average of 10 to 15 yards on their field goals. You'll be seeing a lot of crazy scores next season."

Tim Bucey, sports editor

"Like it or not, athletes are ambassadors for their universities."

"Athletes and coaches are the most visible members of a college or university for much of the public."

"Wittenberg holds up well under such scrutiny. So do other Ohio Athletic Conference schools...."

"There was even the connotation at one time that if your school is successful athletically, it must be admitting marginal athletes academically."

"The two don't have to go hand-in-hand. Look at Penn State, Notre Dame, Stanford and Duke for examples in Division I."

"Division III athletes take a back seat to those in Divisions I and II in terms of skills, but the cost in maintaining a winning program among the big schools seems awfully steep. And I'm not talking money here."

"Wittenberg enjoys the best of both worlds—successful athletics programs, especially among the most visible sports—while maintaining high academic standards. Can it be done at the scholarship-granting level?

"It wouldn't be easy, but many schools could at least make a better effort."

"Though I believe that national championships erode many of the virtues of the Division III athletics philosophy, I also believe it is valuable for the better athletes to test themselves beyond the level of conference play. Regional championships, absorbing but a single postseason weekend, are the appropriate response to this need."

"The multiplicity of such championships would allow much broader participation than do national championships, and they would drain away much less time from academic pursuits."

"Furthermore, regional championships would foster a greater array of natural rivalries."

"I repeat, intercollegiate athletics is too important to allow the distortions caused by national championships. Let's move, instead, to regional championships, first in football, and then in the other team sports. If these succeed, then the individual sports should follow."

Inventor claims breakaway bases will reduce injuries sharply

By Tim Dahlberg

For 15 frustrating years, Roger Hall has been trying to convince baseball that his breakaway bases will drastically reduce the most common sliding injuries.

For just as long, he has been rebuffed at almost every turn by traditionalists unwilling to alter such an integral part of the game.

The mere idea of bases designed to break apart in a hard slide seemed to horrify the purists of the game. Most regarded Hall's product as nothing more than a gimmick, like Charles Finley's orange baseballs.

"Nobody was really concerned about a better product, and that was what really irritated me," said Hall, an Elizabethtown, Pennsylvania, inventor and longtime baseball coach. "They didn't seem to care that these bases could stop a lot of senseless injuries."

Baseball people still may not care, but Hall's invention is getting some backing from an unlikely source—the doctors who treat injured ballplayers.

Orthopedic surgeons at the University of Michigan who conducted extensive studies of the bases on local softball players say they all but eliminate the sliding injuries so frequent in the sport.

In the newest study released recently at the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons annual meeting in Las Vegas, the surgeons estimated the bases could prevent a staggering 1.5 million injuries a year and save more than $2 billion annually in medical care if used in the country's softball and baseball fields.

"People are getting injured for no reason at all because they don't know these bases exist," said David H. Janda, an orthopedic surgeon who headed the study. "The bottom line is these bases work to prevent injuries."

Janda's study looked at injuries suffered in more than 2,000 softball games in Ann Arbor, Michigan, played on fields with normal bases and with the new breakaway bases.

In one phase of the study, 633 games were played on breakaway bases and 627 on regular bases in the Ann Arbor summer league, where players ranged in age from 18 to 55.

The study found 45 sliding injuries on the regular bases to only two injuries on the breakaway bases. The cost for treating the injuries suffered on the regular bases was $55,000, compared to $700 for the two injuries suffered on breakaway bases.

Janda's team followed up on that finding by analyzing 1,035 games played on fields outfitted with breakaway bases. Two people were injured while sliding in those games, both suffering minor ankle sprains.

"Not only were the injuries drastically cut, there was not one complaint about the base breaking away too early," he said. "You need horizontal force, not vertical force, to break the base, and it just didn't happen."

Hall began his long search for a breakaway base in 1973 after noticing the severity and frequency of sliding injuries in both softball and amateur baseball leagues.

"A good friend of mine was seriously injured at second base and ended up losing his leg, while another lost his kneecap on a base when the metal anchor sheared his knee," said Hall. "It didn't take me long to figure out there had to be a better way."

After five years of research and design, Hall came up with the forerunner of his current base, essentially a square rubber platform mounted flush with the ground, with a base top that attaches with 20 strategically located flexible rubber amateur and professional leagues.

"Baseball people are traditionalists and are afraid of change," said Hall. "I've run into more ego problems with baseball coaches. Their theory is if you're an advanced enough player, you don't need them. I say if you don't need them, my base will prove it. If you break it away, you're not as skilled as you thought."

The San Francisco Giants eventually used an older, inferior set of bases in their spring training camp while Frank Robinson was the manager, Hall said. But his efforts to get other major-league teams to try the perfected model have failed.

"I'd love to put these bases on a pro field and see what they can do," he said. "What you have to remember is a breakaway base isn't a breakaway base 99.9 percent of the time. It's just that one time when the slide is too late and the runner hits the bag hard enough to injure himself that they will break loose."

"No system is foolproof, but it's a safety measure," said Janda. "The National Hockey League has gone to breakaway nets to prevent injuries to its players, and that has cut injuries, but not nearly on the scale that this would."

Janda, who says he has no financial interest in Hall's bases, said he wrote to the head of Little League baseball about the bases and received no response. He said American League President Bobby Brown forwarded his study to team doctors for their response and the Houston Astros are planning to use the bases in spring training.

Hall, meanwhile, has terminated his licensing agreement with a California manufacturer who made about 2,000 of the bases and is seeking backers to manufacture the bases himself.

"If I had to do it all over again, I wouldn't even try it," Hall said. "I'm just grateful for Dr. Janda. If it weren't for his study, my bases would have wound up on the scrap pile somewhere."

New indoor track host city earns crown as sport's hub

As the new host city for the NCAA Division I Men's and Women's Indoor Track Championships, Indianapolis has added another jewel to the crown it wears as America's track and field capital.

The city's Indiana Hoosier Dome will serve as the site of the indoor meet for the next three years under an agreement that also represents a groundbreaking joint venture involving the Association and the nation's governing body for track and field, The Athletics Congress.

Last year, the NCAA Executive Committee gave its approval to an arrangement under which TAC will serve as coordinator for the championships. Under that agreement, the Division I indoor championships become the first NCAA championships to be managed by another national sports governing body.

The agreement also ensured that Indianapolis would add the NCAA meet to a list of recent track events in the city that includes the Pan American Games, the World Indoor Track and Field Championships, and last year's U.S. Olympic Trials.

As a city accustomed to top-flight performers, Indianapolis shouldn't be disappointed by its newest acquisition.

Two Southwest Athletic Conference schools, Arkansas and Texas, won last year's men's and women's team titles, respectively, and enter this year's championships as favorites. Each team features a defending individual multiple titlist.

But schools from the Southeastern Conference should provide formidable competition in both men's and women's events, as will a women's squad from Villanova.

Men's championships

Arkansas travels to Indianapolis in search of its sixth consecutive men's title. As was true last year, the Razorbacks' hopes rest on the performance of a corps of dominating middle-distance runners.

Leading the charge is senior Joe Falcon, who has won six NCAA titles in cross country and indoor and outdoor track. At last year's indoor meet in Oklahoma City, Falcon won both the mile and 3,000-meter events; he also won the 3,000 meters in 1987.

Falcon recently won both events at the Southwest Conference indoor meet in Fort Worth, Texas, which the Razorbacks won convincingly despite failing to score points in five of the 12 events. Of Arkansas' 130 points at the meet, 66 came in three events—the mile and the 800- and 3,000-meter events.

Falcon ran the mile in 3:58.67 to break his own year-old SWC record and register the first sub-four-minute mile in the meet's history. Teammate Reuben Reina also finished under four minutes in the event and enters NCAA competition qualified to participate in the mile and 5,000-meter runs.

The Razorbacks are not likely to score in the sprints but potentially could win individual titles in two other events at Indianapolis—the triple jump and 800-meter run. Edrick Floreal won the Division I outdoor triple jump last spring to help Arkansas place third at that meet, and Lorenzo Brown was a finalist in the indoor 800 last year and won this year's SWC event.

At last year's meet, Arkansas won the team title by only five points, and this year's competition may be just as close. Two Southeastern Conference entries, Florida and Auburn, conceivably could stop the Razorbacks' victory streak.

Florida won last year's 1,600-meter relay, and two members of that team—Olympian Mark Everett and Calvin Long—are on the Gator mile team that has qualified for this year's meet. Everett also has qualified for the 400- and 800-meter runs, and Long is eligible for the 200-meter dash, which was won last year by former Gator sprinter Dennis Mitchell.

Other Gator qualifiers this season include Tyrone Kemp in the 400 meters and pole-vaulter Mike Holloway.

Auburn is led by Clifton Campbell, who won the 400-meter dash at last year's championships and has qualified for this year's 200-meter event. He also anchors the Tigers' 1,600-meter relay team, which finished seventh last year.

Championships Preview

Among other Auburn qualifiers are Boris Goins in the long jump and Alexander Wright, who ranks just behind Campbell in the 200-meter dash.

Two other teams that were in last year's top five—runner-up Illinois and Manhattan—return to the meet with individual title hopefuls. Dean Starkey of Illinois is the defending pole vault champion, while Manhattan's Bruce Phillip has recorded a 46.38 time this season in the 400 meters, where he finished third last year. Manhattan's 1,600-meter relay team, which Phillip anchors, also has qualified.

Vicki Huber

Women's championships

Like the Arkansas men's team, the defending champion Texas women's team is led by a multiple-event champion.

The Longhorns' Carlette Guidry, now a sophomore, burst onto the scene at last year's indoor meet with victories in the 55-meter dash and the long jump. She also was a member of Texas' victorious 1,600-meter relay team and finished second in the 200-meter dash.

Guidry returns in the sprints and long jump, as does defending high jump champion Angie Bradburn, to make Texas a strong favorite to win its third indoor title in four years.

Texas has qualifiers in eight of this year's events, including Shola Lynch, who finished sixth in the 800 meters last year, and Trina Leopold, who was fourth in last year's 3,000-meter run and has moved to the 5,000-meter event this year.

Also representing the Longhorns will be Leslie Hardison, a qualifier at 200 and 400 meters who also anchors the 1,600-meter relay team, and fellow relay runner Barbara Flowers, who has qualified at 400 meters.

Texas claimed six individual titles at the recent Southwest Conference meet, including three by Guidry and record-setting performances by Hardison in the 400 and Lynch in the 800.

Challenging the Longhorns at Indianapolis will be Villanova, last year's runner-up, and Louisiana State, which seeks to reclaim the indoor crown it won in 1987.

Villanova returns its "Terrific Trio" of Michelle DiMuro, Kathy Franey and Olympian Vicki Huber, who is back to defend her Division I titles in the mile and 3,000-meter run. The three seniors led the Wildcats to a third-place finish two years ago and moved Villanova up the standings ladder one rung last season; now, they hope they have the talent to move to the top.

It's possible. Huber and Franey appear set to repeat their one-two finish in last year's mile run, and Villanova also is favored to defend the 3,200-meter relay title it won last year.

The Wildcats also will be a contender in the 800 meters, where DiMuro is the top returner from last year's finals and sophomore Michelle Bennett also is a qualifier.

Louisiana State will bring at least eight qualifiers to the meet, including senior sensation Dawn Sowell, who recently ran a record-setting 60 meters at the Los Angeles Times Invitational to end former NCAA champion Gwen Torrence's streak of 50 consecutive victories in indoor dashes.

NCAA champion Joe Falcon of Arkansas

Sowell joins returning 55- and 200-meter dash finalist Esther Jones as Louisiana State's qualifiers in those events and is a member of LSU's 1,600-meter relay team, which looks to make up for the Tigers' disqualification in that event last year.

Also back for the Tigers is Tannajalyn Stanley, a finalist in last year's 55-meter hurdles.

Two other Southeastern Conference entries, Alabama and Kentucky, also could score at Indianapolis.

Defending 200-meter titlist Pauline Davis of Alabama returns to battle Sowell and Jones in that event. Flora Hyacinth, a finalist for the Crimson Tide last year in the triple jump, has qualified for this year's long jump and 55-meter hurdles.

Kentucky's Lisa Breiding is entered in the mile and 3,000-meter run, and the Wildcats' 3,200-meter relay team also has qualified.

Championships Profile

Event: Division I men's and women's indoor track.

Field: All eligible student-athletes who meet the established qualifying standard for each event may compete. The standards were developed with the intent of qualifying 20 athletes per event (except for 24 in the 55-meter dash and 55-meter hurdles) and 12 relay teams.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champions: Arkansas won its fifth straight men's title in 1988, outscoring runner-up Illinois, 34-29. Texas won its second women's title in three years, beating Villanova, 71-52.

Schedule: The men's and women's championships will be contested March 10-11 at the Indiana Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis.

The NCAA News coverage: Results will appear in the March 15 issue of the News.

Contenders: Men's contenders include Arkansas, Florida and Auburn. Women's contenders include Texas, Villanova and Louisiana State.

Championships notes: Two men's records (200-meter dash and high jump) and three women's records (200- and 400-meter dashes and the mile run) were set at the 1988 championships... Athletes from 58 different institutions scored points a year ago in men's events, as did women from 31 institutions... The 1988 meet was the last of three consecutive Division I Men's and Women's Indoor Track Championships staged in Oklahoma City... More indoor championships meets have been held in Detroit (17, plus two in Pontiac, Michigan) than any other city.

Texas' Carlette Guidry (No. 173) returns to defend her 1988 title in the 55-meter dash

Abilene Christian, St. Augustine's likely to top II track again

Once again, St. Augustine's and Abilene Christian appear to be the powers of Division II indoor track. This year, however, the rivals won't have to share the spotlight quite to the extent they did last year.

Abilene Christian claimed team titles in both men's and women's competition, but the men had to share their title with St. Augustine's. It was the first time in the history of NCAA track and field that two teams tied for a championship.

This year, however, Abilene Christian has elected not to enter its men's team in the meet, apparently leaving the field clear for an extremely deep and powerful squad from St. Augustine's.

But Abilene Christian's women will be on hand to defend their crown; they, too, can be rated as heavy favorites to repeat.

Men's championships

Even if Abilene Christian should reverse its decision and travel to South Dakota for the fourth Division II championships, the Wildcats would have a rough time stopping a St. Augustine's team that will enter the meet with at least 16 individual qualifiers.

St. Augustine's is seeking its third consecutive Division II men's indoor crown, and coach George Williams believes his squad will be very difficult to beat.

"I think this is one of the strongest indoor teams I've ever had," he says—no small claim from someone who has coached a division-leading six individual champions through the first three national meets.

One of those champions is Xavier

Championships Previews

Donaldson, who won both the indoor and outdoor long jumps for the Falcons last year. Unfortunately, Donaldson is recovering from knee surgery and is "on the bubble" as a qualifier for this year's indoor competition, Williams said.

Even without Donaldson, the Falcons threaten to overwhelm the competition.

Four team members are qualified for the 55-meter dash, including last year's runner-up, Terrell Carpenter. Carpenter also is one of three Falcons—not counting Donaldson—who are qualified for the long jump, an event that St. Augustine's dominated last year.

Other key personnel for St. Augustine's include Antonio Carter, a finalist last year in the 55-meter hurdles; Darrin Moore, runner-up in the indoor and outdoor high jumps last year; Ian Thompson, who finished fourth in the high jump last year, and Earl Randolph, who returns for the triple jump after finishing fourth in that event last year and is also one of St. Augustine's long jump hopefuls.

The Falcons also boast an Olympian, Jamaica's Trevor Graham, who has qualified for the 400-meter dash and still could make the 800-meter field.

"If everything goes as it is and the chemistry is there, I don't think anything should stop us," Williams said.

With Abilene Christian out of the picture, it is difficult to name other challengers for the title. The view is clouded further by the move of Mount St. Mary's (Maryland), last year's runner-up, to Division I.

Southeast Missouri State, which won the first men's team title in 1985, had qualified only three athletes for the meet as of late February. But the trio features Brian Radle,

Sylvia Dyer

who is the top returning finisher from last year's 1,500-meter event (although he will be challenged by South Dakota State's Rod DeHaven, the 1985 titlist who sat out last season). Also representing the Indians will be long jumper Rashid Ward, who finished sixth in that event in 1988.

Women's championships

Abilene Christian shouldn't lose any of its visibility at the Division II meet, even if the men are not present.

The Wildcats dominated last year's women's competition, claiming four individual titles and outscoring runner-up Hampton by 40 points, and they threaten to do it again.

Two of Abilene Christian's individuals

Dominant athletes fuel III track contenders' title hopes

Superb individual performances have been common at the Division III Men's and Women's Indoor Track Championships.

In recent years, Maynard Hurd of Frostburg State dominated the 55-meter hurdles, Genesia Eddins was a three-time 800-meter champion from Massachusetts-Boston, and Terry Strouf of Wisconsin-Stevens Point owned the shot put and 35-pound weight throw titles for what seemed like forever.

Two new dominating forces appear ready to make their presence known this year.

Keep an eye on two-time NCAA champion Sheila Trice of Christopher Newport and, among the men, Jan Cado of North Central. Both have compiled impressive performances so far this season.

Men's championships

North Central coach Al Carius has an excellent shot at picking up his school's first-ever indoor track team title. Leading the point parade for the Cardinals will be the versatile Cado, who notched an incredible 56-5/4 triple jump—by far the best Division III mark this season. Cado also has a season-best 24-7 long jump and a 6.56 55 meters.

Dan Baker, the returning 800 meters champion, should score well, having run a 1:53.4 in the 800 meters and a 3:55.47 in the 1,500. Rich Scopp, who finished fifth in the 800 meters last year, has posted a 1:53.84 this season.

Two-time defending champion Wisconsin-LaCrosse will not rely solely on weight events this year in defense of its crown, but Troy Nelson, runner-up to Strouf in the shot put at last year's championships, returns with a season-best mark of 53-11/2. Darin Shepardson should score in the 800 meters (1:53.7) and 1,500 (3:51.49), while teammates Brett Burt (5,000 meters—14:26.3) and Chris Schumacher (triple jump—48-2/4) look to keep the team championship trophy in LaCrosse.

At Nebraska Wesleyan, high jumper Tim Goldsberry (6-9/2) will contend for national honors, as will Scott Dice in the pole vault (15-6) and long jump (23-2).

Lincoln (Pennsylvania) has another strong sprint team this year. The Lions' 1,600-meter relay team of Andre Randolph, Juan Edney, Vernon Miller and Mark E. Long posted a division-best 3:17.91. Victor Colter (55-meter hurdles—7.54), Mark Whitsett (55-meter hurdles—7.64), Long (400 meters—49.11) and Edney (400 meters—49.54) have all posted outstanding times.

Other top performances this season, as compiled by track coach

Sheila Trice

Sherry Calvert of Whittier:

55-meter dash: Chris Coleman, Binghamton, 6.34; Edward Milling, Christopher Newport, 6.35; Michael Scott, Ithaca, 6.40.

55-meter hurdles: Darian Hinds, Stony Brook, 7.74; Chris Campbell, Illinois Wesleyan, 7.75; Damon Lee, Brandeis, 7.83.

400-meter dash: Jamie Wyeth, Fitchburg State, 48.98; Mark Dunzo, MIT, 49.92.

800-meter run: Ken Forde, Brandeis, 1:54.1; Lance Campbell, Westfield State, 1:54.90; Adam Pearl, Bridgewater State (Massachusetts), 1:55.26.

1,500-meter run: Daniel Casper, Carleton, 3:55.61; Mark Gaffney, Cortland State, 3:56.78; Michael Piepergerdes, MIT, 3:56.78.

5,000-meter run: Sean Kelly, MIT, 14:51.27; Jesse Palmer, Brandeis, 14:55.6; Scott Moore, St. Lawrence, 15:02.63.

1,600-meter relay: Brandeis, 3:21.13; MIT, 3:21.70; Albany (New York), 3:22.06.

High jump: Derrick Dorsey, Fredonia State, 6-10/4; Tim Goldsberry, Nebraska Wesleyan, 6-9/2.

Pole vault: Alex Grelend, St. Lawrence, 15-9; Scott Dice, Nebraska Wesleyan, 15-6; Bill Singhose, MIT, 15-1/4.

Long jump: Dice, Nebraska Wesleyan, 23-2; Dan Reichenbach, Moravian, 23-1/4; Jamie Shankle, Westfield State, 22-10.

Triple jump: Miles Woodhouse, Westfield State, 48-1; Brian Rounsavill, Moravian, 47-1; Derrick Dorsey, Fredonia State, 46-9/2.

Shot put: John Wood, Ursinus, 54-2; David Giehlbrock, Hamline, 52-4/2; Todd Callicoat, Otterbein, 51-3/2.

35-pound weight: Scott Deering, MIT, 59-1/4; Peter Goodrich, Bates, 58-6/2; Kevin Sullivan, Fredonia State, 55-3/2.

Women's championships

Christopher Newport, with Trice capable of scoring 40 team points, is favored to defend its team championship. Trice has posted division-best times in the 55-meter dash (7.08) and the 55-meter hurdles (8.17), as well as the best long jump (18-9/2). She also has leaped 37-7/4 in preparing for her defense of the triple jump title.

Joseph Benzoni and Rochester also could be a factor at the championships. Benzoni is the favorite in the 1,500 (4:27.9) and also is strong in the 3,000 meters (9:42.1), although Carleton's Anna Prineas, the returning champion in the 3,000, returns in that event. Benzoni also has posted a 2:14.61 in the 800 meters.

Not to be outdone, versatile Kim Oden of Nebraska Wesleyan is a triple threat with an 8.44 55-meter hurdles, a 5-9/4 high jump and a triple jump best of 36-11/4.

Cortland State might be the surprise team at the women's championships. The Red Dragons are led by Rebecca Bieber in the 800 meters (2:14.01) and Tracy McPherson in the long jump (18-5). They also have quality distance runners and an excellent 1,600-meter relay squad (4:07.0).

Other top performances this season include:

55-meter dash: Anne Millham, Bates, 7.41; April Smith, Ithaca, 7.44; Linda Turnbull, Wesleyan, 7.44.

55-meter hurdles: Ophelia Johnson, North Central, 8.74; Tanya Benbow, Frostburg State, 8.82.

400-meter dash: June Parks, Brandeis, 58.83; Megan Allen, North Central, 58.99; Vera Stenhouse, Tufts, 59.13.

800-meter run: Parks, Brandeis, 2:18.44; Stephanie Reents, Amherst, 2:19.04.

1,500-meter run: Marybeth Crawley, Cortland State, 4:28.27; Kathy Kane, Plattsburgh State, 4:37.33; Anne Platt, Williams, 4:38.56.

3,000-meter run: Anna Prineas, Carleton, 9:56.6; Kane, Plattsburgh State, 9:57.1; Judy Sparks, Cortland State, 9:59.2.

1,600-meter relay: Simpson, 4:07.0.

High jump: Carol Tate, Tufts, 5-9; Amy Cayemberry, Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 5-7/4.

Long jump: Tracy McPherson, Cortland State, 18-5; Sarah Lenchner, Stony Brook, 18-3; April Smith, Ithaca, 17-10/2.

Triple jump: Stenhouse, Tufts, 38-7/4; Lenchner, Stony Brook, 37-11/2.

Shot put: Vicki Lucas, Heidelberg, 42-1/4; Gina Bowman, Frostburg State, 41-6/4; Renee Hudson, Simpson, 40-10/4.

Championships Profile

Event: Division III men's and women's indoor track.

Field: Men's competitors will total 134 in individual events, with six teams in the 1,600-meter relay. In women's competition, six teams in the 1,600-meter relay and 114 individuals will compete.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Christopher Newport broke Massachusetts-Boston's three-year title reign and won its first women's indoor track championship. Wisconsin-LaCrosse defended its men's championship, becoming the first Division III team to win two indoor titles.

Schedule: The championships will take place March 10-11 at Bowdoin College.

The NCAA News coverage: Complete results will appear in the March 15 issue of the News.

Contenders: Men's contenders include North Central, Wisconsin-LaCrosse, Lincoln (Pennsylvania) and Nebraska Wesleyan. Women's contenders include Christopher Newport, Rochester, Nebraska Wesleyan and Cortland State.

Championships notes: Men's competitors representing 45 institutions scored points at the 1988 championships, while women representing 30 institutions scored points at last year's finals... Terry Strouf of Wisconsin-LaCrosse won his third consecutive shot put championship last year, and his second consecutive 35-pound weight throw title... In the women's championships, Christopher Newport and Massachusetts-Boston have won nine all-time individual championships—the most in Division III.

Good team battles are shaping up in II swimming

Eavesdrop in Division II men's swimming circles and you will hear about a good fight shaping up for the Division II team title between Cal State Bakersfield and Oakland. The two teams have finished one-two for the past two seasons and are expected to do the same this year.

On the other side of the fence, many women's coaches say that some changes are to be expected at the 1989 Division II championships. Several factors, including stronger individual performances, will play a part in the changing picture.

Following is a look at some of the top teams and individuals for both the men's and women's fields.

Men's championships

Defending champion Cal State Bakersfield returns, among others, national-record-holder Rick Graves. His time of 3:59.56 in the 400-yard individual medley last March was a little more than two seconds faster than teammate Andrew Shattuck. And Shattuck recently turned in a personal best (4:00.68) in the event. Another potential scorer for the Roadrunners is backstroke Shawn Copeland.

"We're at almost the same spot as we were last year, with a little more depth overall," observed coach Ernie Maglischo. "We did have a great loss with the graduation of (freestyler) Bartt Frey," he added. "The only pressure to win a fourth championship is the pressure that I put on myself.

"I'm mostly concerned with what's best for the swimmers personally," he concluded.

With 16 swimmers and three divers qualified for the championships, Cal State Chico coach Clark Yeager believes his team has a good shot at another top-five finish.

Championships Previews

The Wildcats finished at No. 5 last year.

Two standout performers for the Wildcats this season are freshman freestyler Brian Murray and breast-stroker Kevin McKenna. And, according to Yeager, the individual medleys are a little stronger this year with the addition of Jim Aird.

Cal State Chico recently lost its first conference meet in 14 years, but Yeager does not feel that will have a negative effect on his squad as it heads into the championships. He explained that now that the loss is out of the way, the Wildcats can give full concentration to bettering last year's finish.

Even though Clarion lost a diver and two freestylers to graduation, things still look good for the Golden Eagles. Freestyler Damon Pietronigro, who claimed the No. 1 spot in the 1,650-yard freestyle last year, is back and as strong as ever. Pietronigro also is a potential scorer in the 200- and 500-yard freestyles.

Another strong point for the Golden Eagles is divers Tim Etter, Eric Muntan, Marcus Hevelke and Robert Walker. Etter was the top finisher of the four, claiming second on both boards last year. Muntan was the No. 3 finisher on the one-meter, and Hevelke finished third on the three-meter. Walker made it as far as the consolations in 1988 but has the potential to finish higher this year.

Oakland is ready to break out of a routine after finishing No. 2 behind Cal State Bakersfield for the past two seasons, but coach Pete Hovland still will be satisfied if the Pioneers continue performing as they have been.

The consistency should be there again this year with the return of all-America Hilton Woods, and top-five finishers Erik Strom and Eric Dresbach. Woods' 20.23 performance in the 50-yard freestyle last year gave him an NCAA record, and a time of 44.85 in the 100 freestyle earned him a third-place finish.

Strom placed third and second in the 200- and 500-yard freestyles, Event: Division II men's and women's swimming and diving.

Fields: Fields for the championships will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champions: Cal State Bakersfield captured its third consecutive men's title last year, and Cal State Northridge won its second women's championship in a row.

Schedule: The State University of New York, Buffalo, will host the 1989 championships March 8-11.

The NCAA News coverage: The March 15 issue of the News will contain results of both the men's and women's championships.

Contenders: Men's contenders include California State University, Bakersfield; California State University, Chico; Clarion University of Pennsylvania; Oakland University, and Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania. The top women's teams include Oakland University, U.S. Military Academy, U.S. Naval Academy and the University of North Dakota.

Championships notes: Of the top two men's teams, Cal State Bakersfield has finished first three times (1986-87-88) and Oakland has made it to the top once (1980). Oakland women's coach Tracy Huth swam for the Oakland men's team from 1981 to 1984 and earned eight individual titles during that period. On the women's side, Clarion has finished first three times (1983-84-86), Cal State Northridge claimed the top spot three times (1982-87-88) and South Florida once (1985). Eight records fell last year at the women's meet, including those in four of the five relays.

respectively, and Dresbach brought in additional points with a fourth-place finish in the 100-yard butterfly and a fifth-place finish in the 200-yard butterfly. Another scoring threat this season comes from freshman Eric McIlquham, who has qualified in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle events. McIlquham's 50.39 qualifying time in the 100-yard butterfly could mean a top-five finish for him.

Shippensburg coach Don Miller confidently noted that "for the last few years, we've finished in the top 10, but this could be the first year we break the top five."

Veteran Raiders include sophomore Brady Stauffer, who is ranked among the best in the country in the 100-yard backstroke (52:12) and

Kenyon women swimming for Division III team crown No. 6

Kenyon College, under the direction of head coach Jim Steen, will be looking for a sixth straight team title at the 1989 Division III women's swimming championships, which would give the Ladies the most consecutive wins in women's swimming history.

Kenyon cocaptains Erin Finneran and Jeannine Gury—whom Steen terms "two of the finest swimmers in school history"—return for their final season with the Ladies. Finneran holds national records in the 100- and 200-yard backstroke events, and Gury is the national record-holder in the 100- and 200-yard breaststrokes.

One of the Ladies' up-and-coming performers is freshman Carrie Nealon, who shattered the 500-yard freestyle record (5:02.32) at the recent North Coast Athletic Conference championships. Steen commented that Nealon "has trained very hard and will be one of the team's outstanding performers."

Kenyon won all five relay events in the 1988 Division III championships, but Steen is not predicting another sweep. "I can't see us winning all the relays again," he offered. "We're a little bit weaker this year in the freestyle relays.

"But we'll still be competitive in the relays. We think that attitude personifies the team aspect of competitive swimming," he concluded.

Championships Previews

UC San Diego, last year's second-place finisher, once again should finish among the top five under the direction of coach Bill Morgan.

The Tritons have qualified 12 swimmers for the championships as of mid-February, including veterans Jennifer Banaszek and Joan Macaulay. Banaszek, who finished fifth in the 500-yard freestyle (5:04.99) at the 1988 meet, has met time standards in the 200- and 500-yard freestyles. Also, she was the seventh-place finisher in the 200-yard butterfly last year.

Macaulay again will be a top contender in the backstroke and individual medley events.

Ithaca swimmers appear to be in about the same position as last year, due to the loss of only one all-America swimmer and the addition of a freshman who already has qualified for the championships.

Returning from last year's seventh-place finish are all-Americas Nancy Stapp and Amy Robinson. Stapp finished fourth in the 200-yard individual medley and sixth in both breaststroke events, while Robinson earned second place in the 100-yard backstroke.

Also returning are junior Donna Ratte and Kelly Kisner, both of whom contributed to several top relay finishes.

Event: Division III women's swimming and diving.

Field: The field will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Kenyon College's Ladies are back to defend their crown while going for the team's sixth consecutive championship title.

Schedule: The University of Notre Dame will host the eighth annual championships March 9-11.

The NCAA News coverage: Results from the championships will appear in the March 15 issue of the News.

Contenders: Top teams going into the 1989 championships include the University of California, San Diego; Kenyon College; Ithaca College, and the University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire.

Championships notes: Last year's meet was highlighted by eight broken records, four of which were by Kenyon swimmers. Multiple record-setters last year were Shelly Russell, Hope (500- and 1,650-yard freestyles) and Jeannine Gury, Kenyon (100- and 200-yard breaststrokes). Kenyon relay teams turned in outstanding performances by claiming all five relay titles. Denison's Natalie Gibbs swept both the one- and three-meter boards at the 1988 meet. Williams, with wins in 1982 and 1983, is the only other school to win the team championship in Division III women's history.

Prophetic coach leads Division III ice hockey favorites

Four years.

That is how long Wisconsin-Stevens Point coach Mark Mazzoleni said it would take to build the Pointers' ice hockey program into a contender for national honors. He spoke those prophetic words in 1985—four years ago.

Having reached that goal, Mazzoleni's squad is the favorite to earn the coveted top seed in this year's Division III Men's Ice Hockey Championship, which secures home-ice privileges.

Other teams likely to challenge Wisconsin-Stevens Point include Rochester Institute of Technology, Wisconsin-Eau Claire and Babson.

The Pointers (27-4) skated to a 24-0 start before they lost their first game to Bemidji State February 4. Center Ralph Barahona (30 goals, 38 assists, 68 points), who had a 45-game scoring streak stretching back to December 1987 snapped earlier this year, leads the aggressive, fore-check-happy squad.

Ralph Barahona

"Ralph has had an exceptional year," said Mazzoleni. "I think he is the premier Division III player in the West."

Two-time all-America Pat McPartlin should skate at full-speed after suffering a torn Achilles' tendon at midseason. A senior forward, McPartlin "lends a great deal of presence to our team," said Mazzoleni.

One of the biggest squads physically in Division III, the Pointers skate eight defensemen, led by all-America Tim Coghlin (5-14-19). In goal, sophomore Pat Watson (12-3, 3.23 goals-against average, .877 save percentage) has been steady all season.

Fred Abraham

Gained maturity

Said Mazzoleni, "By advancing to the (NCAA) quarterfinals last year, I think we have gained a lot of maturity. Just getting a taste of it

Championship Profile

Event: Division III men's ice hockey.

Field: Eight teams will be selected for the 1989 championship.

Automatic qualification: Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northern Collegiate Hockey Association, State University of New York Athletic Conference.

Defending champion: Wisconsin-River Falls defeated Elmira 7-1, 3-5, 3-0 (mini-game tie-breaker system), to win its first Division III ice hockey title.

Schedule: On-campus sites will be used for all tournament games. First-round games will take place March 10-11 or 11-12. Semifinals will be played March 17-18 or 18-19. The championship is set for March 24, 25 or 26.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will appear in the March 15 and March 22 issues of the News. Championship results will be published March 29.

Contenders: Wisconsin-Stevens Point, Rochester Institute of Technology, Wisconsin-Eau Claire, Babson, Bemidji State, Union (New York), Mankato State, St. Thomas (Minnesota).

Championship notes: Seventeen institutions have participated in the tournament through its first five years. Babson is the only school that has participated in all five championships. Rochester Institute of Technology owns the best play-off winning percentage (10-2, .833). The winning team in the championship game or series has never scored less than five goals.

Women could attain dominance in rifle championships

Women could sweep the individual titles at the 1989 National Collegiate Men's and Women's Rifle Championships, during which defending team champion West Virginia probably will have to fend off challenges from perennial power Tennessee Tech, South Florida and upstart UTEP.

Women have claimed three individual titles in the nine-year history of the championships, but never before have there been as many women among the nation's elite.

Five of the top 10 qualifiers in individual smallbore and an equal number in individual air rifle are women. Alaska-Fairbanks, South Florida, Tennessee Tech, UTEP and West Virginia all have women who could claim at least one individual championship.

Among them are Alaska-Fairbanks' Deb Sinclair; South Florida's Michelle Scarborough, Elaine Worland and Kris Peterson; Tennessee Tech's Lana Ward; UTEP's Soma Dutta, and West Virginia's Tammie DeAngelis, Kim Hogrefe and Ann Pfiffner.

"No doubt there are several women who could win the individual matches," said West Virginia coach Ed Etzel, who also coordinates the collection and analysis of qualifying scores in his role as secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Men's and Women's Rifle Committee. "But there also have been some outstanding scores fired this season by men. It's safe to say that this field should be among the strongest ever for the championships."

Sadly, Jim Newkirk will not be on hand for the fireworks. The long-time Tennessee Tech coach, whose Eagles captured the first three NCAA team titles, died in his sleep February 14. Wayne Dellinger, who shot for Newkirk as a Tech undergraduate and now is completing work on a doctorate at the school, has taken over.

"From what I can tell, the team is handling (Newkirk's sudden death) well," he offered. "They are a great bunch of kids... they seem to know what they need to do at Murray State."

So do the other championships contenders. Pardon the pun, but everyone will be gunning for West Virginia.

And with good reason. The Mountaineers' qualifying score of 6,243 (4,677 smallbore, 1,566 air rifle) is 14 points higher than the best team score ever fired in the championships.

Michelle Scarborough

Lana Ward

Tammie DeAngelis

Kim Hogrefe

South Florida coach Roger Johnson probably is excited about his team's chances, too. Even with a subpar performance in the prone portion of the smallbore qualifying shoot, South Florida turned in the third-best team score.

"Even though we dropped 25 points in prone during qualifying, we have been pretty consistent this season," Johnson said. "And the kids all are doing very well in school. That is as pleasing as their work on the range."

Elvis Green, whose Murray State team has traded titles with West Virginia (4,676 smallbore, 1,566 air rifle), 6,242; Tennessee Tech (4,638, 1,532), 6,170; South Florida (4,608, 1,551), 6,159; Murray State (4,597, 1,522), 6,119; UTEP (4,588, 1,531), 6,119; Air Force (4,564, 1,545), 6,109; Alaska-Fairbanks (4,574, 1,527), 6,101; Tennessee-Martin, 4,584 (smallbore only), and Navy, 1,524 (air rifle only).

Most surprising among team qualifiers may be UTEP. The Miners' aggregate qualifying score of 6,119 suggests that these championships newcomers have a good chance at a top-four finish.

Following is a list of teams and individuals who have qualified for the 1989 championships, with qualifying scores:

Team

West Virginia (4,676 smallbore, 1,566 air rifle), 6,242; Tennessee Tech (4,638, 1,532), 6,170; South Florida (4,608, 1,551), 6,159; Murray State (4,597, 1,522), 6,119; UTEP (4,588, 1,531), 6,119; Air Force (4,564, 1,545), 6,109; Alaska-Fairbanks (4,574, 1,527), 6,101; Tennessee-Martin, 4,584 (smallbore only), and Navy, 1,524 (air rifle only).

Individual smallbore

Gary Hardy, West Virginia, 1,175; Debra Sinclair, Alaska-Fairbanks, 1,172; Tammie DeAngelis, West Virginia, 1,170; Lance Goldhahn, Murray State, 1,170; Lana Ward, Tennessee Tech, 1,170; Kim Hogrefe, West Virginia, 1,168; Soma Dutta, UTEP, 1,168; Thomas Bernstein, West Virginia, 1,166; Ken Johnson, Clarkson, 1,165; David Clarke, Tennessee-Martin, 1,165.

Web Wright, West Virginia, 1,165; Dallas Smith, Tennessee Tech, 1,163; Michael Casey, West Texas State, 1,163; Manny Goodman, Tennessee Tech, 1,161; Michelle Scarborough, South Florida, 1,159; Troy Bassham, UTEP, 1,159; Will Suggs, Navy, 1,158; Matt Suggs, South Florida, 1,156; Matt Bykowski, Xavier (Ohio), 1,155; Joe Hendricks, West Virginia, 1,155.

Don Kristiansen, Murray State, 1,155; Mike Terzi, Alaska-Fairbanks, 1,154; Roxanne Atreides, St. John's (New York), 1,153; Wayne Johnson, UTEP, 1,153; Fritz Borke, Tennessee Tech, 1,151; Ken Wallo, South Florida, 1,151; Dale Herr, Army, 1,150; Elaine Worland, South Florida, 1,150; Karen Valente, Tennessee Tech, 1,150.

Individual air rifle

DeAngelis, West Virginia, 394; Bernstein, West Virginia, 394; Sinclair, Alaska-Fairbanks, 394; Bassham, UTEP, 393; Jim Meger, Air Force, 392; Suggs, South Florida, 392; Kris Gerig, Kentucky, 392; Ann Pfiffner, West Virginia, 391; Hogrefe, West Virginia, 390; Scarborough, South Florida, 390; Kris Peterson, South Florida, 390.

Johnson, UTEP, 390; Suggs, Navy, 388; Trace Weisenberger, Air Force, 388; Hardy, West Virginia, 388; Bryant Dunbar, UTEP, 388; Hendricks, West Virginia, 386; Borke, Tennessee Tech, 386; Paul Weiss, Air Force, 386; Wright, West Virginia, 386; Dutta, UTEP, 386; Casey, West Texas State, 386.

Travis Kuenning, Tennessee Tech, 385; Robert Bramer, Tennessee-Martin, 385; Vince Pestilli, Tennessee Tech, 385; Goodman, Tennessee Tech, 385; Sabrina DiBiagio, Xavier (Ohio), 384; Ward, Tennessee Tech, 384; Valente, Tennessee Tech, 384; Ed Davis, Tennessee-Martin, 384; Atreides, St. John's (New York), 383; Bob Barush, Army, 383.

Virginia the past four years (it won in 1985 and 1987, West Virginia in 1986 and 1988), may not find himself churning with a case of "championships nerves" this season.

"Our goal at the start of the season was to finish fourth in the nation or better," Green said, "and it looks like we're about fourth right now."

Notably absent from the team-championship competition, which is decided by the aggregate of team smallbore and team air rifle, are Army and Navy. Although one or the other has been shut out of championship contention in the past, this is the first year that neither will be in the hunt.

Air Force, however, is in the team-title running for the first time. Although the Falcons' score in team smallbore was the lowest among

Championships Profile

Event: Men's and women's rifle.

Field: Based on qualifying scores, a maximum of 56 competitors will be selected for the championships.

Defending champion: West Virginia won the school's fourth team rifle title in the past six years with a nine-point victory over 1987 champion Murray State.

Schedule: Murray State will host the championships March 10-11.

The NCAA News coverage: Complete results will be published March 15.

Contenders: Alaska-Fairbanks, Murray State, South Florida, Tennessee Tech, UTEP, West Virginia.

Championships notes: In the four championships held since Murray State last was host, the Racers won two team titles (1985 and 1987) and finished second twice (1986 and 1988). Three women have won individual titles in the nine-year history of the championships, and all of them (Pat Spurgin, Marianne Wallace and Deena Wigger) were from Murray State. Tennessee Tech's Manny Goodman tied a championships record last year by firing a 397 (400 is perfect) in the kneeling portion of the individual smallbore competition.

and segments dealing with college athletes and athletics.

But the media certainly no longer take the hear-no-evil, see-no-evil approach when it comes to reporting and investigating—breaches of conduct and the rules, both society's and the NCAA's.

"We need to start talking about all the positive things going on," insists Schultz, who has been doing just that since replacing Walter Byers as the NCAA's executive director 18 months ago.

"We keep getting burdened down with the broad-brush principle because one school steps out of line, one athlete has a problem, one coach has a problem, and all the innocent are guilty by association."

Schultz said more vigorous, and swifter, action by the NCAA's enforcement staff and its infractions committee has resulted in a number of programs going on probation.

"But the penalties don't really describe what's going on in intercollegiate athletics today," he said.

"The number of serious violations is down substantially, and they've been going down at a steady rate the last three to four years."

Schultz also said surveys show football and basketball players are graduating at a rate almost identical to the student body at large, and when all athletes are factored in, their graduation rate is eight percent higher than the student body as a whole.

I thought Michigan's Bo Schembechler put it best when he outlined the five general standards a football coach and program—in particular, his—must adhere to.

"No. 1," said Schembechler, "I've got to fill that stadium. If it isn't filled, we're not going to have enough money to run our program. That's fundamental."

"No. 2 is that we're going to obey all the NCAA and Big Ten rules.

We're not going to violate any rules to fill that stadium, I promise you that."

"The third thing is we've got to graduate every kid we bring in here. The university can't graduate every kid they admit, but they're going to expect us to graduate every single guy we bring in."

"No. 4, you always have to present a positive image throughout the country because your program is very visible and you as a coach are very visible. And that means all of our players and coaches must be morally better than any other student or faculty member on campus."

"And last, but certainly not least, you've got to win all your games. That's basically our goal."

"If we were absolutely perfect," Bo concluded, "we'd achieve all of our goals. We're not going to, but we want to have a program that comes close."

Most of them do. And that's a message worth getting out.

Committee reviews plans to promote women's basketball

The NCAA Communications Committee, meeting February 21 in Kansas City, spent considerable time reviewing the 1989 NCAA women's basketball television package.

It was noted that Rawlings—as part of a new, three-year official-ball contract—has agreed to underwrite NCAA-produced women's basketball telecasts for the next three years.

"We are extremely gratified that Rawlings has seen fit to make this extraordinary commitment," said Roger O. Valdiserri, committee chair and associate director of athletics at the University of Notre Dame.

"We hope that Rawlings' investment will send a strong message to other potential sponsors that women's basketball is indeed an exciting and viable television property."

The committee also reviewed the five-tier NCAA promotions program, the general feeling being that the women's basketball preview held annually in New York should be continued because of the positive learning experience for student-athletes.

It was suggested that the following recommendations be added to the NCAA's media guidelines publication:

- That television cameras not be allowed in team huddles; floor cameramen should be restricted to the baseline during games and to the "paint" during timeouts.

- That the visiting scorer in basketball should be seated next to the official scorer.

- That the play-by-play report should be typed at all basketball games.

Also, the committee reviewed a draft of a guideline for printed recruiting aids and recommended its release later this year.

Women's hoop contenders helped by II play-off games

Experience in the Division II Women's Basketball Championship means different things to different teams.

St. Joseph's (Indiana) made its first tournament appearance last year and came away with new motivation and added confidence. In 1988, the Pumas got to within one game of the semifinal round. Reaching that round became the goal of this year's team.

Coach Dave Smith also thought his team came of age in the quarter-final game at North Dakota State. Since there were no seniors on that squad, the experience boded well for this year.

"We got down to a good team on their territory and showed the poise and maturity to come back," he said.

In addition, last year's tournament showed Smith a phase of his team's game that needed improvement—defense. The Pumas traditionally have been a good offensive team. They are again this year and were leading the country in scoring offense and field-goal percentage through games of February 11. Because of last year's loss at North Dakota State, Smith has emphasized improved defense.

sized improved defense.

"When you get in the tournament, you have got to be able to play defense and rebound," he said. "Good teams normally play good defense, so you are not going to get a lot of easy shots."

Good defense also could help Bloomsburg in this year's tournament. The Huskies are looking for their first bid to the tournament. Through games of February 11, they were ranked second nationally in scoring defense, allowing 56.1 points per game. They also were ranked fifth in field-goal percentage defense, holding opponents to a 35.6 field-goal percentage.

"As long as we continue to play good defense, we can play with a lot of teams," coach Joe Bressi said.

Central Missouri State was ranked first nationally in scoring margin and was ranked fifth in scoring defense. The Jennies have been to six straight NCAA championships, winning the title in 1984 and finishing second in 1985.

"When you play good people, you get better," coach Jon Pye said about competing in the championship.

Cal Poly Pomona has experienced the excitement of winning the championship three times and has finished second twice. Past successes have not diminished the tournament experience for the Broncos.

"(The championship) is what you work the whole year for," coach Darlene May said. "It is a tremendous experience for the individuals and for the team to be there."

vidual crowns were won by Sylvia Dyer, a senior from Jamaica who will return to defend her championship in the 55-meter hurdles.

As of late February, Dyer had not qualified to defend her 1988 title in the triple jump, but teammate Mazel Thomas, also a senior from Jamaica, is likely to make up for that and more. Thomas has qualified for three events—the long jump, triple jump and high jump—and should be considered a favorite in each.

As Dyer's heir apparent in the triple jump, Thomas already has recorded one of this year's best leaps nationally—13.01 meters (42-8½). That jump is more than 2½ feet longer than Dyer's winning leads the team in points and ranks third on the all-time Tiger scoring chart. Centers Chris Palmer (27-18-45) and Steve Mirabile (12-26-38) compliment a talented offensive unit that averages 6.3 goals per game.

Powers' young defense struggled early but has improved greatly as of late. Tim Cordick (9-18-27) and Kevin Cassells (4-22-26) anchor the blue line, while Fred Abraham (16-5-1, 3.41, .887), the ECAC rookie of the year in 1988, has had a great year in goal.

With eight of its top nine scorers back from last year's squad, Wisconsin-Eau Claire (15-9-4) successfully has blended a youthful influx of talent.

Senior Jeff Jaraczewski (23-22-45), an all-conference performer the last two years, set a school record for points this season. Said coach Troy Ward, "Jeff is a small player (5-6, 180), but he is also one of the strongest players on the team. He's hard to get hold of because of his size and quickness."

Freshmen contribute

Freshman forward Alex Hicks (19-23-42) and his brother, Mark (12-25-37), have played much better than Ward expected, as has freshman Mike Lintner (20-18-38).

Goaltender Darren Brinker (8-3-1, 3.38, .890) was a walk-on practice player last year but has earned high praise from his young coach.

"Darren has a great glove, and he plays the angles well. He also will not beat himself; you have to beat him," said Ward.

At Babson (18-7), a trip to the championship tournament is nothing new. The Beavers won the first Division III championship in 1984 and are striving for their eighth consecutive bid to the tournament.

Coach Steve Sterling skates 16 players with NCAA tournament experience, including senior captain Ron Beran (23-18-41). Beran, who ranks fourth on the school's all-time scoring list, has notched 156 career points. Mark Allen (12-19-31) and Jamie Rice (9-22-31) add much-needed goal-scoring potential to a team that averaged only 3.7 goals per game.

Defense and goaltending are Babson's strengths. Jim Creamer (2-13-15) has been the Beavers' most consistent and durable defenseman this season, averaging close to 35 minutes per contest. Also manning the blue line will be Nick Bokavich and versatile Shawn Martin.

Sophomore goaltender Joe Capprini has had an outstanding year. Besides compiling a .921 save percentage, Capprini led all ECAC goaltenders with a 2.19 goals-against average.

jump in the event last year.

Thomas also is a defending champion in her own right, having won last year's long jump, and she was the 1988 runner-up in the high jump.

Altogether, the Wildcats will enter the NCAA meet with at least nine qualifiers. Another returning championships veteran is sprinter Alesia Turner, who finished third last year in the 55-meter dash and is undefeated through three meets this season.

Like last year, Hampton and Southeast Missouri State appear to be best equipped to chase Abilene Christian for the women's crown.

Hampton enters the Division II meet after winning its second consecutive Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association indoor crown. The Lady Pirates, however, have lost some of the scoring punch they had last year in two events—the 55-meter hurdles and the 400-meter dash.

Still, triple jumper Debra Alexander is back as the top returning finisher in that event from last year, and the senior also has qualified for the long jump. In addition, 1988 55-meter finalist Kina Edwards is back, and the Lady Pirates also could pick up points from sophomore Mariska Stubbs in the 400-meter dash and from the 1,600-meter relay team.

Southeast Missouri State's hopes center around triple-qualifier Laura Byrne, who won the Division II women's cross country race last fall. Byrne is entered in the 800 meters, mile and 3,000 meters.

Two other Otahkians with championships experience also have qualified to return to this year's meet. Kelly Cracchiolo, who was sixth in last year's 1,500-meter run, has met the standard for the mile run, and Linda Wilson has qualified for the shot put, where she finished third a year ago.

Championships Profile

Event: Division II men's and women's indoor track.

Field: In men's competition, 102 athletes will participate in 11 individual events, and six teams will compete in the 1,600-meter relay. Ninety women will compete in 10 individual events, and six teams will run in the 1,600-meter relay.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champions: Abilene Christian and St. Augustine's each scored 62 points to tie for the men's team title. The title was St. Augustine's second in a row, while Abilene Christian was competing in its first Division II indoor meet. Abilene Christian's women also won a team title in their first appearance at the meet, easily outdistancing runner-up Hampton, 91-51.

Schedule: South Dakota will be host for the March 10-11 championships.

The NCAA News coverage: Complete championships results will appear in the March 15 issue of the News.

Contenders: St. Augustine's and Southeast Missouri State in men's competition, and Abilene Christian, Hampton and Southeast Missouri State in women's competition.

Championships notes: South Dakota will serve as host for the second consecutive year. North Dakota State hosted the first two Division II meets... St. Augustine's has won two men's and two women's team titles in indoor competition... Athletes from 24 schools scored points in the 1988 men's meet, while representatives of 25 schools scored points in women's competition... The championships were not held in 1986.

UCLA seeks $25 million in private support for athletics programs

The University of California, Los Angeles, is launching a five-year campaign to raise $25 million in private support for the department of intercollegiate athletics, Chancellor Charles E. Young has announced.

The funds raised from the campaign will provide support in three areas:

- Endowment for the athletics grants-in-aid program, academic support services and general program support $12 million.
- Operating support for department activities $10 million.
- Capital improvements, including additional space and enhanced facilities for the academic support services program—$3 million.

UCLA's 23-sport program has won 60 NCAA championships, 53 men's titles and seven women's (the NCAA has awarded women's championships just since 1981-82). UCLA is the only school to win three consecutive Knoxville Journal men's all-sports championships (1986-87-88), awarded to the nation's top overall program, and also earned the Journal's all-sports title for women in 1988. UCLA is the only school ever to win both the men's and women's championship in the same year.

"To preserve the high quality of our program in the face of spiraling expenses and diminishing income, we must now call upon our friends to invest in UCLA athletics," said Young. "Given the benefits that would accrue to our world-class student-athletes and to the entire campus community, it is an investment well worth making."

Athletics director Peter T. Dalis said the campaign has become a necessity because, "We can no longer maintain our commitment to providing an outstanding broad-based sports program without additional help from our alumni and friends. Increased expenses have outstripped

Charles E. Young

our ability to fund the athletics program through such traditional revenue sources as income from television appearances and gate receipts."

The UCLA athletics program is a self-supporting enterprise, and its principal sources of income are ticket revenue, broadcast fees and private support.

"Our television revenue has been declining since the Supreme Court deregulated NCAA television rights in 1984. In addition, we are competing against other highly successful Los Angeles sports teams for ticket revenue. Thus, we feel that private support, more than ever, is the key to ensuring that UCLA maintains its status as the nation's leading athletics program," Dalis said.

Heading the fund-raising effort is Stanley A. Wainer, chair of the board of Wyle Laboratories and vice-president—athletics on the UCLA board of trustees. Wainer chairs the UCLA athletics campaign committee, which is composed of members of the business community, educators and former UCLA athletes.

"UCLA is an excellent educational institution as well as the No. 1 university for athletics in the United States. It's important that we continue to be No. 1 in our athletics program, our facilities and in the quality of the educational experience we provide," Wainer said.

A February 25 dinner for more than 800 UCLA friends and alumni who support the athletics program kicked off the public phase of the athletics campaign.

"We are optimistic about the ultimate success of the endeavor," said Young. "Athletics energizes the university, bringing national and international visibility, and helps us to provide a well-rounded educational experience that extends beyond the classroom. With state-of-the-art facilities, comprehensive support services and increased support for the grants-in-aid program, our current and future student-athletes will be assured of the best possible experience at UCLA."

Akron joins Northeast

The University of Akron has accepted membership in the Northeast Conference, effective with the 1990-91 season.

Akron will bring the conference's membership to nine. In addition to Akron, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Teaneck; Long Island University, Brooklyn Center; Monmouth College; Mount St. Mary's College; Robert Morris College; St. Francis College (New York); St. Francis College (Pennsylvania), and Wagner College will compose the 1990-91 membership.

"We are delighted to have Akron join our conference," said NEC Commissioner Chris Monasch. "Akron has had an outstanding athletics program for years, and we feel the school will enhance our conference as we look toward the 1990s. Akron's basketball and soccer programs will benefit from our automatic bids in those sports and make our league all the more competitive. This is an exciting move for the Northeast Conference."

When Akron begins conference competition, it will compete in all 12 conference championship sports.

"One of the priority items on our agenda has been conference affiliation," said Akron Director of Athletics Jim Dennison. "Our philosophy was that we were an independent and had to make our product as attractive as possible. If that happened, someone would ask us to be part of their conference. And that's exactly what happened."

Field hockey—Teri Edgerly resigned after three years at Western Connecticut State to pursue other interests. Her teams were 7-33-2.

Football Appalachian State's Sparky Woods selected at South Carolina. Woods led his Appalachian State teams to a 38-19-2 record and two appearances in the Division I-AA Football Championship. He also has been an assistant at Tennessee, Kansas, North Alabama and Iowa State. Rick Pardy named at Marist after four years as an assistant at Hamilton. He was a member of Ithaca's 1979 national-championship team in Division III. Mike Brady elevated from assistant to acting head coach at Bemidji State, replacing John Peterson, who was named director of player personnel with the Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League. Peterson's teams were 31-40-2 through seven seasons, including an 8-3 record in 1984. Jimmy Johnson stepped down at Miami (Florida) to become head coach of the National Football League's Dallas Cowboys. Through five seasons at Miami, Johnson led the Hurricanes to a 52-9 record, and his 1987 team finished the season ranked No. 1 in national wire service polls. He also has served as head coach at Oklahoma State.

Football assistants Ray McCartney named outside linebackers coach at Ball State. He previously was defensive coordinator at Wittenberg, where he served on the staff for three years. Jim Tompkins hired as inside linebackers coach at Mississippi State after serving last season as defensive coordinator at Southern Illinois. He also has coached at Troy State, Jacksonville State, Richmond and Southern Mississippi. Steve Axman resigned after two seasons as offensive coordinator at UCLA to pursue other opportunities. Johnny Chavis hired as defensive line coach at Tennessee, replacing Dick Bumpas, who joined the staff at Arkansas. Chavis is a former Tennessee player who coached the past three years at Alabama A&M. Mike Cassity and Jim Holland selected as defense coaches at Northeast Louisiana. Both served previously at Western Kentucky, where Cassity was defensive backfield coach and Holland was linebackers coach. Fred Jackson hired as quarterback coach at Purdue after coaching wide receivers and tight ends last season at South Carolina. He also has served at Toledo, Wisconsin and Navy.

Men's ice hockey—Bob Pedersen resigned after 16 seasons at Brockport State, where his teams were 179-179-8.

Women's soccer—Rusty Scarborough resigned at North Carolina Wesleyan

Western Carolina picked Bobby N. Setzer as athletics director

Sparky Woods named head football coach at South Carolina

after leading the Battling Bishops to a 10-7-1 mark and a berth in the Division III Women's Soccer Championship last season. He has accepted a managerial position with a North Carolina manufacturing firm.

Women's volleyball—Bill MacLachlan stepped down after four years at Drake to become an assistant at Colorado State. MacLachlan's Drake teams recorded a 16-97 mark during his tenure.

Wrestling Mike McCarty announced his retirement from coaching at Southwest Missouri State, effective at the end of the season. McCarty recently recorded his 150th dual-meet coaching victory, and he coached five Division II all-Americans during his 23-year tenure. After a year's sabbatical, he will return to full-time teaching duties at the school.

STAFF

Compliance intern Indiana's Michael R. Lysko named corporate account manager for Branada Sports Group in Toronto, Canada.

Marketing assistant Kip Helt selected as assistant marketing director at Kansas after a year as assistant sports information director at Washburn.

Sports information assistant Washburn's Kip Helt named assistant director of marketing at Kansas.

Strength coach Greg Tiner hired at Mississippi State. He has been assistant strength coach at Louisiana State since 1986.

NOTABLES

Agnes Kurtz, the first woman appointed to the athletics staff at Dartmouth and former assistant athletics director and field hockey and lacrosse coach at the school, announced her resignation as the Big Green's women's squash coach to pursue other interests. She was assistant AD from 1974 to 1979.

DEATHS

Robert E. Weingart, who served as trainer at Marquette from 1946 to 1984, died February 23 while vacationing in Panama City, Florida. He was 69. He served as president of the National Athletic Trainers Association in 1959-60 and is a member of the organization's hall of fame.

CORRECTION

Due to an editor's error, the Opinions section of the February 8 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly identified the school where Charles Harris serves as director of athletics. He is AD at Arizona State.

The top 20 NCAA Division III wrestling teams as listed by the National Wrestling Coaches Association through February 22:

Hawaii is most improved Division I team so far

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Hawaii appears to have the inside track over Ball State in a two-team race for the national most-improved title in men's Division I basketball.

Hawaii is coached by 47-year-old Riley Wallace, who gained a lot of respect last year despite a 4-25 finish. Playing with an eight-man squad, his team lost 10 cliffhangers—three in overtime and nearly upset Brigham Young on its home court in the Western Athletic Conference tournament.

Now, the Rainbows are 15-10 through February 27—an improvement of 13 games (11 more victories and 15 fewer losses is 26; divide by two)—and rank fourth in the nine-team WAC. Observers expected Wallace to move up in his second year, but almost no one picked his team higher than sixth, and many said eighth.

Ball State is coached by Rick Majerus, rotund master of the one-liner who was playing possum at the Mid-American Conference kickoff luncheon. He first made light of his weight, discussed a pork-chop place he had discovered, then quickly summed up his squad as having "so many newcomers we need name tags to identify one another." Early in the season, he said: "There is a better chance of Our Lady of Fatima reappearing than us beating Purdue." Final score: Ball State 70, Purdue 56.

Now, his team already is the MAC champion at 23-2 with two regular-season games left. That is an improvement of 10½ games over last season's 14-14 (a team he pronounced "just plain lousy" before the season).

Hawaii has the inside track because the absolute worst it can finish is up 11½ games by losing March 2 at UTEP, March 4 at New Mexico and in the first round of the WAC tournament. Ball State could reach 11½ by winning its last two regular-season games, then would need a winning postseason record.

Four other teams are up at least nine games but would need great finishes to have a chance for the title. Here are the 13 teams up at least 7½ games through February 27:

	1988	1989	Gms	Up
Hawaii	4-25	15-10	13
Ball St.	14-14	23-2	10½
California	9-20	18-10	9½
Weber St.	9-21	16-9	9½
Northern Iowa	10-18	18-8	9
Tulsa	8-20	18-12	9
Morehead St.	5-22	15-15	8½
Delaware St.	3-25	11-16	8½
Rutgers	7-22	14-12	8½
West Va.	18-14	23-3	8
Providence	11-17	17-8	7½
Kent	10-18	16-9	7½
McNeese St.	7-22	13-13	7½

Wallace blended a talented group of transfers and freshmen with his two best returning players, 6-8 Reggie Cross and 6-3 Chris Gaines. A Centenary graduate, Wallace head-coached his alma mater for two years, assisted at Hawaii for five, then coached Seminole Junior College in Oklahoma for three (68-35) before he returned to Hawaii. He is a native of Alton, Illinois, and earned a master's degree in guidance and counseling at Illinois in 1968.

Majerus' candor is such that some believed him when he downplayed his squad. Many, however, remembered his "lousy" 1988 prediction (14-14) and picked Ball State second in the MAC. After all, he had five talented transfers (including 6-9 Curtis Kidd and 6-7 Paris McCurdy, both from Arkansas-Little Rock) to go with some solid holdovers, creating a lot of depth. The Cardinals have beaten two other Big Ten teams, Minnesota in Minneapolis and Northwestern in a Florida Christmas tournament, in their drive to the MAC title.

California coach Lou Campanelli passed 300 career victories en route to his team's high ranking on the most-improved list. California's comeback has been helped greatly by a healthy Leonard Taylor, a 6-8, 220-pound senior who had missed a season and a half with neck and foot injuries. Weber State, also up 9½, is coached by Denny Huston—in his first year on the job and only his second as a head coach (14-11 in 1982 at Western Washington, his alma mater). He assisted at Stanford before coming to Weber State.

Next at nine games are a pair of veterans—Northern Iowa's Eldon Miller, now closing in on 450 victo-

Women's race close

St. Mary's (California) leads a close race for the most-improved crown in women's Division I basketball, having gone from last place to first in the West Coast Athletic Conference in one year. Terri Rubenstein's team, 6-21 last year, was 18-9 through February 26 and had gained at least a tie for the title. A victory in the last regular-season game will wrap it up.

That is an improvement of 12 games. The Gaels are led by two of the WCAC's top three scorers, Anja Bordt at 22.3 and Cheree Tappin at 20.3.

Next at 11½ games is North Carolina State (10-17 to 21-5), coached by veteran Kay Yow, who coached the United States Olympic team to the gold medal and overcame cancer along the way. Her career record is in this season's national rankings). It also was the highest total vs. a Division I team in 12 years.

A total of 63 points is needed to reach the top 10. Louisiana State's Pete Maravich scored 63 or more three times, Oral Roberts' Anthony Roberts did it twice and five others once each—Haffner, Niagara's Calvin Murphy, Washington and Lee's Jay Handlan, Mississippi's Johnny Neumann and Bradley's Hersey Hawkins.

Haffner bombed 11 three-point goals, a pair of layups and the rest from medium range as he went 23-for-29 from the field (Hawkins made only three three-point goals last year and shot 21-for-28; he had 18 free throws to Haffner's eight).

Haffner, a 6-4 senior and transfer from Illinois, said he didn't know how many points he had until "some guy held up his hand, showing five fingers and then one, for 51." As a freshman at Noblesville High School, north of Indianapolis, "I couldn't throw it in the ocean... so I started going to shooting camps."

Here are the top 10 totals in history against Division I opponents:

Pts.	Year
69—Maravich vs. Alabama	1970
68—Murphy vs. Syracuse	1969
66—Handlan vs. Furman	1951
66—Maravich vs. Tulane	1969
66—Roberts vs. North Caro. A&T	1977
65—Haffner vs. Dayton	1989
65—Roberts vs. Oregon	1977
64—Maravich vs. Kentucky	1970
63—Hawkins vs. Detroit	1988
63—Neumann vs. Louisiana St.	1971

On 10 other occasions in Division I history since 1948, a Division I player reached 63 or more points but did it against opponents below the Division I level. Furman's Frank Selvy leads with his 100 points vs. Newberry in 1954 and had a 63-pointer vs. Mercer in 1953.

Portland State's Freeman Williams did it three times (81, 71, 66) in two seasons (1977 and 1978 vs. Rocky Mountain, Southern Oregon and George Fox, respectively) and five others once each. They are Villanova's Paul Arizin, 85 vs. Philadelphia NAMC in 1949; Temple's Bill Milky (the "Owl without a vowel"), 73 vs. Wilkes in 1951; Furman's Darrell Floyd, 67 vs. Morehead State in 1955; Bob Zawoluk of St. John's (New York), 65 vs. St. Peter's in 1950, and Long Island-Brooklyn's Sherman White, 63 vs. John Marshall in 1950. Morehead State, St. Peter's and Mercer all later became Division I members.

Quotes of the week

Indiana State head coach Andrea Myers, following a 79-66 victory over Drake February 9: "I've been looking for every possible way to get them (the team) fired up, so I told them that if they beat Drake, I'd come out and do the twist before ries, and Tulsa's J. D. Barnett, who has passed 250.

Basketball notes

Morehead State came back strong in Tommy Gaither's sixth season after a 5-22 finish in 1988. Next are veteran Bob Wenzel at Rutgers and Delaware State's Jeff Jones, in his third season.

'Most courageous'

Wenzel, a 1971 Rutgers graduate, received the most-courageous award from the basketball writers after successfully returning to coaching following a life-threatening cerebral aneurysm while he coached Jacksonville in 1985. As Bill Foster's assistant at Duke, Wenzel, now 39, helped the Blue Devils improve from 14-13 in 1977 to 27-7 in 1978, losing the championship game to Kentucky.

West Virginia, the only team on the most-improved list with a winning record last season (18-14), jumped to 23-3 under veteran coach Gale Catlett with a 22-game winning streak. During one recent period, the Mountaineers won three road games in five days, making five road victories in a six-game stretch. A 1963 West Virginia graduate, Catlett does not say his team should be No. 1, but he says, "I think we have a pretty good team. I think we have the talent to make the final 16, maybe even the final eight."

Catlett's team beat Pittsburgh, which has defeated four top-10 teams this season. Said senior forward Darryl Prue: "We went in there against a hostile crowd and won, and we've been doing that all season." West Virginia has clinched the regular-season title in the Atlantic 10 Conference.

369-129.

Southern Mississippi and Wisconsin, both up 11 games, are very much in the race, as are Weber State and Canisius, both up 10 games. Here is the top 10:

	1988	1989	Gms	Up
St. Mary's (Cal.)	6-21	18-9	12
North Caro. St.	10-17	21-5	11½
Southern Miss.	12-16	21-3	11
Wisconsin	4-24	12-10	11
Weber St.	7-20	16-10	9½
Canisius	7-18	17-8	10
Idaho	7-20	16-10	9½
Southeastern La.	6-20	16-11	9½
Kansas St.	8-20	17-10	9½
Brown	6-20	14-10	9

Southern Mississippi is coached by veteran Kay James, with a 291-141 career record. Wisconsin's Mary Murphy, in her third year, is headed for her first winning season. Weber State is led by 27-year-old Carla Taylor, in her first year as a head coach. She is a Weber State grad who assisted at Utah.

Canisius coach Mike Rappl had only 17 total victories his first two seasons and already has equaled that. Idaho coach Laurie Taylor now is 108-83 in her seventh season. Southeastern Louisiana's Frank Schneider is 153-134 in his 10th and Kansas State's Matilda Willis Mossman is 146-92 in her eighth. Brown's Jean Marie Burr, 33, ex-Fairfield assistant, is in her first head-coaching season.

Haffner's harvest

Evansville's Scott Haffner burned Dayton with a 65-point game February 18. That tied him for the sixth-highest total against a Division I opponent since official NCAA record-keeping began in 1948 (and he vaulted from 50th place to 18th the start of our next game. After the way they played tonight, I'd better start taking some dancing lessons." Nine minutes before the start of the Indiana State-Northern Iowa game February 11, Myers fulfilled her promise at center court as the pep band played "Twist and Shout." (Karen Griess, Indiana State associate SID)

Southern California men's coach George Raveling, scanning the newspaper with an eye to future opponents: "I'm one of the few coaches in the country who reads the standings from the bottom up."

St. John's (New York) coach Lou Carnesecca, asked if there was anything his team could have done to slow down Syracuse after his team lost, 92-69: "Yeah. Take the ball and stick a pin in it."

Oklahoma State coach Leonard Hamilton on his soft-spoken freshman star, Byron Houston: "When I was recruiting him, I told our staff he talked like Jane and played like Tarzan." Missouri seven-footer Gary Leonard, asked if beating top-ranked Oklahoma was a stepping stone for the rest of the season: "It's more than that—it's the whole staircase." Nebraska seven-footer Rich King on Leonard: "His reach is ungodly. When he goes to shoot, it's like his arms just unfold and all you can do is stand there and watch." (Tim Allen, Big Eight Conference SID)

Can you top these?

Not only did the New Orleans men win three straight road games in eight days, but the Privateers shot at least 60 percent in each game—.608 at Lamar, .644 at Oral Roberts and .632 at Southwestern Louisiana. Then, the Privateers swept their last three games at home over Florida State, Louisiana Tech and Arkansas State to wrap up the American South Conference regular-season championship (7-3 and 18-9) after being a nearly unanimous preseason choice for last place. (Ed Cassiere, New Orleans SID)

Arizona boasts the longest home-court winning streak in Division I basketball at 33 games, with this season's home schedule completed. Oklahoma is next at 28, with its next home game March 1. Then come Temple 25, Siena 23, Illinois 20, Georgetown 20, Arkansas State 19, UTEP 18, St. Louis 18, Alabama 16, Indiana 15, Evansville 15, Missouri 15, Georgia Southern 14 and Oklahoma State 14—all through February 27. Temple, Georgetown, Arkansas State and Evansville also have no more games left this season.

Talk about hard luck. Tennessee Tech has lost three Ohio Valley Conference games in the final two seconds and gave up another seem-

Administrative Committee minutes

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. (February 21) Suspended the Council's October 1988 action approving a recommendation by the Special Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Exceptions that a student-athlete could not be eligible for a waiver from that subcommittee if the student-athlete had played, practiced or received aid while ineligible under the provisions of Bylaw 14.3, noting that the subcommittee intends to submit a revised recommendation at the April Council meeting.

b. (February 21) Appointed Charles S. Boone, University of Richmond, to the Division I-AA Football Committee, replacing Charles F. "Rick" Taylor, no longer at a Division I-AA institution.

c. Approved the following recommendations by the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports:

(1) That the committee's unofficial "permanent secretary" position be eliminated upon the retirement July 1, 1989, of Carl S. Blyth, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

(2) That Fisher DeBerry, U.S. Air Force Academy, be appointed to replace Grant Teaff, Baylor University, as the committee's representative from the Football Rules Committee immediately, rather than September 1.

d. Approved a recommendation by the Committee on Women's Athletics that Kathleen M. McNally, La Salle University, be appointed to the vacant Division I position on the committee, instead of continuing to serve as the Council's representative on the committee; placed on the agenda for the April meeting of the Division I Steering Committee appointment of another Council member to serve in the spot vacated by Ms. McNally.

e. Agreed that Michael DeCicco, University of Notre Dame, may be considered an administrator on the Men's Fencing Committee for purposes of Bylaw 21.4.1.2.

f. Appointed Stephen J. Kurth, University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire, to a vacancy on the Division III Men's Ice Hockey Committee that was not filled at the January Convention.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Directed that the Association's Korean trademark rights, currently registered in the name of Executive Director Emeritus Walter Byers, be reregistered in the name of the NCAA Marketing Corporation; further, delegated to the executive director the power to transfer assets to the Marketing Corporation when, in his opinion, such transfer would be in the best interests of the Association; agreed to consider in the next Administrative Committee telephone conference a proposed resolution prepared by Association legal counsel regarding the Marketing Corporation.

b. Granted an appeal by Menlo College for a waiver of Bylaw 31.2.1.4 to permit the institution to be eligible for the 1989 NCAA championships in Division III men's basketball, baseball and women's softball, noting that the institution initially had filed its declaration to be eligible for NAIA championships but subsequently had discontinued its membership in that organization.

SEC alters scheduling in football

Southeastern Conference athletics directors have resolved the issue of football scheduling by adopting a new system for the 1996 through 2003 seasons at a recent meeting in Orlando, Florida.

The new plan changes the permanent opponents in the conference's seven-game rotating schedule. Under the current formula, each school plays five opponents on an annual basis, while rotating the remaining four schools on a two-year schedule.

The new formula will still utilize the 5-2 rotation system but will alter the five permanent opponents.

The athletics directors also approved a new conference baseball schedule for 1990 and 1991, whereby each school will play eight league opponents instead of all nine.

The action was taken at the recommendation of the conference baseball coaches in an effort to allow for scheduling of more inter-sectional games.

c. Approved a recommendation by the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports that the previously approved funding for the development of a videotape on eating disorders be increased to permit development of three such tapes, with the additional funding to be paid from contingency funds in the current budget.

Conference No. 3

d. Appointed the following to serve as the Special Committee on Women's Basketball Television: Judith R. Holland, University of California, Los Angeles, and Susie Jones, George Washington University, representing the Division I Women's Basketball Committee; Phyllis Howlett, Big Ten Conference, and Patricia W. Wall, Southeastern Conference, representing the Committee on Women's Athletics, and Debbie Byrne, Old Dominion University, and Roger O. Valdiserri, University of Notre Dame, representing the Communications Committee, with Mr. Valdiserri to serve as chair.

(1) Charged the special committee with setting policies for selection of teams for regular-season telecasts, determining the number of appearances for any institution, determining the method of transmission and administering the regular-season women's basketball television plan (excluding negotiation of rights fees) until such time as the Association determines that its assistance no longer is essential.

(2) Directed that the special committee report to the Marketing Subcommittee of the Executive Committee.

c. Approved a request by the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Membership Structure for an exception to the meeting-site provisions of Bylaw 31.7.2.1.5 (b), if needed.

1. Noted that the executive director had utilized one of the two "wild-card" staff administrative positions authorized by the Staff Evaluation Subcommittee in August 1988 to approve the addition of a second assistant director of youth programs.

3. Reports of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2.

a. Acting for the Council:

(1) Granted waivers per 14.8.6.1-(c) [formerly Constitution 3-9-(c)-(2)-(iii)] as follows:

(a) To permit a student-athlete from a member institution to participate in soccer competition as a member of the U.S. national team.

(b) To permit various student-athletes from a member institution to participate in skiing competition as members of the U.S. and Canadian national teams.

(2) Granted a waiver per 14.8.6.2-(c) [formerly Constitution 3-9-(b)-(4)-(vi)] to permit a student-athlete from a member institution to participate in competition as part of a Sport for Understanding foreign tour.

(3) Granted waivers per Bylaw 16.3.1-(h) [formerly Constitution 3-1-(h)-(4)-(vii)] as follows:

(a) To permit Grambling State University to provide travel expenses for various student-athletes to attend a teammate's funeral.

(b) To permit the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, to provide travel expenses for a student-athlete to return home to attend her father's funeral.

(c) To permit the University of Dayton to provide travel expenses for a student-athlete to return home to attend his aunt's funeral.

(d) To permit the University of Georgia to provide travel expenses for a student-athlete to return home to attend his brother's funeral.

b. Acting for the Executive Committee:

(1) Granted waivers for championships eligibility per Bylaw 31.2.1.3 [formerly Executive Regulation 1-5-(e)] to the following institutions that failed to submit institutional information forms or to pay membership dues by the specified deadline: University of California, Berkeley; Curry College; Mount St. Mary's College (Maryland); Paine College; Prairie View A&M University; Upsala College, and Virginia Union University.

Federal trial for Walters, Bloom set to begin in Chicago

By James Litke

In the dry, precise language of the law, the indictment charges that sports agents Norby Walters and Lloyd Bloom, backed by a reputed mobster, used lucrative bonuses to sign college athletes to contracts, then threatened to break their legs—or worse—if they tried to back out.

Their Federal court trial in Chicago promises a behind-the-scenes look at the seamier side of college sports, long on drama, celebrities and legal heavyweights.

But some detractors contend it could come up short on facts.

"What these guys did was custom and practice in the industry long before they ever got into it," said a source with intimate knowledge of the case, who spoke only on the condition that he not be identified by name.

"With all the hoopla surrounding this thing, people will expect beatings, point-shaving and who knows what else. When it comes down to it, though, you've got only one guy with mob ties, Norby, and a kid with a big mouth, Lloyd, making empty threats. The most amazing thing about all this," he continued, "is how much mileage the government is going to try to get out of this."

Moved into sports

Walters, 58, a fast-talking, successful show-business agent before he moved into sports in 1984, and Bloom, 29, a former bouncer and professional party giver, were charged with racketeering, mail fraud, wire fraud and extortion last August.

Both have pleaded not guilty.

Named as an unindicted coconspirator but considered crucial to the government's case is Michael Franzese, a reputed member of New York's Colombo organized-crime family.

The indictment claims Walters used Franzese to intimidate the manager of the Jackson Five in an effort to become the booking agent for the 1981 tour by the musical group and says that both Walters and Bloom used his reputation to coerce athletes to sign and keep them from defecting.

Franzese, 37, is also alleged to have given Walters $50,000 seed money to move into the sports-agent business. He is currently completing a 10-year prison term for racketeering and tax violations but is on the government's witness list for the trial and, according to sources, will testify against the two after initially refusing to do so.

Trial date

The trial is scheduled to begin with jury selection March 1. The case will pit U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas and Assistant U.S. Attorney Howard Pearl against seasoned defense lawyers Robert Gold of New York, representing Walters, and Dan Webb, who preceded Valukas in the Federal prosecutor's job, representing Bloom.

Walters and Bloom are accused of offering cash, cars, clothing, concert tickets and trips to some four dozen athletes in exchange for signed and usually postdated—agreements giving them exclusive rights to represent the athletes in professional contract negotiations.

The government alleges that the agreements defrauded the universities involved because athletes continued to receive athletics scholarships even though those same agreements made them ineligible under NCAA rules.

The list of those who took the cash and signed and agreed to cooperate as witnesses to avoid prosecution—is 43 names long and includes NBA first-round pick Brad Sellers of the Chicago Bulls, NFL running back Ronnie Harmon of Buffalo and seven players selected in the first round of the 1987 NFL draft.

List of players

The list of players the indictment alleges were threatened with physical or economic harm when they informed Walters and Bloom that they wanted out of the deals is much shorter. Seattle Seahawk Tony Woods, Chicago Bears Maurice Douglass and Ron Morris, and Everett Gay, who played college ball at the University of Texas, Austin.

Linked to the charge that Walters and Bloom used Franzese's reputation to scare players back into line, this group is expected to provide the month-long trial's most dramatic testimony.

Among a number of threatening conversations alleged in the indictment is an October 1986 telephone call in which Bloom is quoted as telling Morris that the money he was paid to sign the contract came from people in Los Angeles who "don't play around" and who "don't care what they do to you and your family."

Threat alleged

The indictment alleges that Walters, in a January 1987 telephone call, threatened to ruin Woods, then a linebacker at the University of Pittsburgh, by revealing that Woods' brother had violated recruiting rules and that Woods' family had already taken money from Walters and Bloom.

"This is my life on the line... now, it's your life on the line... your reputation, your business... your family, your brother, your school, everything is going to be tainted and tainted bad. It's gonna be terrible for you."

The incident that sources say sparked the 18-month investigation by FBI agents is not even mentioned in the indictment.

In March 1987, Kathe Clements, an associate of Chicago sports agent Steve Zucker, was slashed and beaten while working alone in Zucker's suburban Chicago office by a man wearing a ski mask and gloves.

The beating took place not long after Zucker signed three of Walters' former clients—Tim McGee of Cincinnati, Doug DuBose of San Francisco and Reggie Rogers of Detroit.

"People say the feds got involved because of that and because of complaints by other agents that Norby and Lloyd already had everybody signed," said the source. "The truth of the matter is these guys were double- and triple-signing with everybody."

"The reason Norby got them is he paid bonuses in thousands," he said, "instead of hundreds of dollars. That seems to be his biggest mistake."

Graduate assistant doubles as scorer at East Stroudsburg

Anne Bennett continues to rack up points with both hands—a modification of abilities she developed as a basketball player at Moravian College. Now a graduate assistant in the East Stroudsburg University of Pennsylvania sports information office, the 22-year-old Easton, Pennsylvania, native serves as “two-handed” official scorer at some home basketball games.

“It’s much easier than having to keep reaching from side to side or having to turn the scorebook,” she offered. Pete Nevins, East Stroudsburg sports information director, said his first encounter with Bennett’s unique approach to filling a scorebook was quite a surprise.

“I gave her two pencils, and she asked for two more,” he recalled. “I couldn’t figure out why until I saw how she kept the book. She kidded me that she should get double pay because she is working twice as hard.”

Dartmouth College alumnus Reggie Williams, a 13-year veteran of the NFL Cincinnati Bengals, spoke to Bowling Green State University student-athletes February 26 on setting goals, motivation, and drug and alcohol avoidance.

Noted for his community and charitable activities, Williams was voted Bengals man of the year for five consecutive seasons (1982 through 1986). He was named NFL man of the year in 1986, and he recently received the Governor’s Award—Ohio’s highest honor for humanitarian service.

Rollins College tennis coach Norm Copeland earned career victory No. 600 February 15 when his squad defeated Flagler College, 5-4. A Rollins alumnus (1950), Copeland’s all-time record with that victory became an amazing 600-185 (.764). His 1966 and 1972 teams won NCAA titles in Division II.

Trivia Time: Rollins’ 1972 team title actually was a co-championship. With whom did the Tars share the spotlight? Answer later.

Approximately 40 representatives of Southland Conference member institutions attended a two-day, league-sponsored workshop on chemical-use problem prevention in Dallas recently. The event was conducted by Karla Hill-Donisch and Roger Svendsen of the Minneapolis-based Hazelden Foundation and financed by funds made available through the NCAA conference-grant program.

Southwest Athletic Conference Commissioner Fred Jacoby and Kevin Lennon, assistant commissioner for compliance and education, conducted the league’s first compliance seminar for member institutions February 20 in Dallas.

“This is an effort to improve the compliance efforts at all institutions in the conference,” Lennon said. “It is a logical step in the ongoing informational and educational process.”

Western Carolina University’s football team will travel only as far as Atlanta next season to face Georgia Institute of Technology. For a while, it looked like the game would be played in Toulouse, France.

However, Homer Rice, Georgia Tech athletics director, has announced that lack of negotiating time forced the game to be set for Atlanta. “We just did not have enough time this year to get this done,” he explained. “We may pursue (a contest in Europe) in a later year. Because of the need to begin preparations for our 1989 home season, it just was not possible to permit another extension of time.”

Joining Hartford will be teams from Adelphi University; Boston University; Howard University; Long Island University-Brooklyn Center; the University of Massachusetts, Amherst; the University of Rhode Island, and the University of Vermont.

The University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, athletics department hosted the first-ever Panther Family Pizza Party February 18, immediately following the men’s basketball game against Quincy College. All fans at the game were treated to free pizza and soft drinks, and Panther players, coaches and athletics staff members were on hand to show their appreciation for support of the 1988-89 season.

“Daily campus activities are of a serious and stressful nature,” said Bud Haidet, athletics director at the school. “Athletics can provide a more fun and relaxed atmosphere.”

An economic and fiscal analysis prepared for the 1990 Goodwill Games by R. E. Hansen Research Associates, Inc., indicates that the Washington economy can expect a total financial impact in excess of $309 million from the games.

According to Bob Cowan, vice-president of finance for the Seattle organizing committee, the study projects $160 million in direct spending and a $149 million “ripple effect” of indirect and induced economic activity.

More Report Cards: Robert A. Dowd, director of athletics at South-eastern Massachusetts University, has announced that 50 student-athletes earned grade-point averages of at least 3.200 (4.000 scale) during the fall semester. The group was led by senior volleyball player and mathematics major Francine Cabral, who earned a 4.000.

Thirty-two student-athletes from the University of Maryland, Baltimore County, earned GPAs better than 3.500 during the fall, including seven with 4.000s. They are Rob Magin, Jeffrey Gale, Michelle Connell, Christina Mychajliw, Kim Anderson, Roni Majewski and Leann Matlaga. It also was noted that the cumulative GPA for the entire group of 248 student-athletes was 2.568.

High Country Athletic Conference officials have announced that 209 student-athletes have been named academic all-conference for 1989. The honorees have maintained a cumulative GPA of at least 3.200 through the fall semester.

New Mexico State University officials have announced that 43 women student-athletes have been named High Country Athletic Conference academic all-conference, and 41 men have been honored by the school for similar academic accomplishments. Members of both groups have cumulative GPAs of 3.200 or higher. Kate Babbitt (women’s golf), Judith Kirk (women’s tennis) and Jim Jamison (football) made the lists with 4.000s.

By achieving a semester GPA of at least 3.000 or maintaining a cumulative GPA of at least 3.000, 46 student-athletes at Brockport State University College were named to the school’s athletics-academic honor roll for the fall semester. The football team produced the most honorees (18) and the highest GPA wide receiver David Butler’s 3.770.

the 200-yard backstroke (1:52.82). One of the standout freshmen swimming under Miller is Dan Lee, who has turned in times of 1:55.70 and 4:08.37 in the 200- and 400-yard individual medleys, respectively.

Stauffer and Lee are just two of Miller’s swimmers who have qualified for the championships. “We’ve qualified all of our relays and we feel good about finishing higher this year,” Miller commented. “I think this has been our best season in my 17 years here.”

One of the most versatile swimmers from last year’s meet—Army’s Ann Wycoff—has qualified this year in the 200- and 400-yard individual medleys, the 200-yard butterfly, and the 1,650-yard freestyle. Wycoff was the top finisher in all four events at the 1988 meet.

Also returning from last year are backstroke Jennifer Grzbek and breaststroke Colleen Criscillo, who finished second in the 100-yard race.

“We have a little more quality this year, even though we lost some of our high-caliber swimmers,” first-year coach Ray Bosse said. “We may have lost some high scorers, but we hope to make up with a greater number of scorers.”

Navy coach Dick Purdy considers his already strong team a little more so, not only because of several veterans, but also because of diver Stacia Johnson.

“We anticipate Stacia doing well on both boards,” Purdy said of the freshman who recently set conference records in the one- and three-meter events.

Among the returnees are backstroke Debbie Williams and distance freestyler Jennifer Rowe.

Williams finished second in the 100-yard event (58.47) and fifth in the 200-yard race (2:07.63), and Rowe was fourth in the 1,650-yard freestyle (17:08.31).

North Dakota has several top scorers back this year, led by Marion Warner (fifth in the 100-yard breaststroke, fourth in the 200-yard breaststroke and second in the 200-yard individual medley), Kim Foster (third in the 200-yard backstroke and fifth in the 400-yard individual medley) and Janine Etchepare (sixth in the 50-yard freestyle).

Coach Mike Stromberg feels his team has a good chance of improving last year’s fifth-place finish, due in part to the number of qualifiers this year. “Last year we took seven individuals to the nationals. This year, we have eight swimmers and three divers who have qualified and all of them are capable of scoring,” he explained.

Oakland has experienced a boost of confidence by winning a dual meet over Northern Michigan, and the Pioneers stand a good chance of overcoming their rivals in the conference meet as well. Coach Tracy Huth feels his squad may go as far as a third-place finish this year, up from sixth in 1988.

Helping the Pioneers this season are veterans Lisa Guilfoyle and Dana Kennedy and newcomers Lyn Schermer and Katie Ill. Guilfoyle was a finalist in the 50-yard freestyle last year and also may swim the breaststroke events.

Schermer, sister of former distance freestyler Nancy, and Ill will be helping not only in several individual races, but in the relays as well.

SEC to hold seminar on drug education

The Southeastern Conference is sponsoring a drug-education seminar May 5-7 in Atlanta.

The seminar will be conducted for student-athletes attending institutions on both the collegiate and high school levels throughout the Southeast.

According to SEC Associate Commissioner Jim McCullough, the seminar will feature top athletes, attorneys, sports physicians, faculty athletics representatives and student-athletes.

“We’re bringing in prominent people from each of these areas,” McCullough said. “We want to help educate the sports community to the dangers of drugs.”

ingly sure victory when a running, half-court three-pointer forced a game into overtime and Tech went on to lose in double overtime. The real killer was an 86-85 loss to Austin Peay State. In that one, a desperation two-pointer by Austin Peay missed, but officials ruled basket interference or goal-tending. (Robert Schabert, Tennessee Tech SID)

Baldwin-Wallace junior Valerie Kepner finished the season as the top all-time women's collegiate free-throw shooter, hitting on a record 63 of 66 for 95.5 percent—the best season mark ever in any division. The 5-9 guard from Hartford, Ohio, also set an all-time men's and women's record by making 69 consecutive free throws (61 in a row this year—she had made eight straight to end the 1986-87 season, and she did not play last year after transferring from Lake Erie). (Kevin Ruple, Baldwin-Wallace SID)

Quinnipiac senior forward Diane

Dodge hit nine consecutive three-point field goals in the first half of an 86-73 loss to New Haven February 6. She set three Division II records and finished with 10 of 12 three-pointers for the game, prompting head coach Bill Dixon to comment: "Half time came too early, that was our downfall. If only we could have played through half time..." (Linda Wooster, Quinnipiac SID)

With its 73-52 victory over Ferris State February 9, Michigan Tech guaranteed itself only the second winning season in the history of the women's program. Tech's other winning season came in 1975-76, the first year of women's basketball at the school. (Dave Fisher, Michigan Tech SID)

Illinois State point guard Ellen McGraw ended a nearly perfect first half at Indiana State February 1 with a long overhead pass that banked in the basket at the buzzer for a 46-27 half-time lead. The Lady Redbirds won, 86-65, extending their victory streak to 10. (Christie Price, Illinois State)

After 85 free throws, 67 fouls and two hours and forty minutes, Grand Valley State's women finally defeated Ferris State, 90-86, in two overtimes February 2. Six Ferris State players fouled out, including all five starters, while Grand Valley had three players foul out. (Don Thomas, Grand Valley State SID)

For some reason, the shots just were not dropping for the Westfield State and Nichols men in the opening minutes at Westfield. The coaches and fans attributed the lack of shooting prowess to pregame jitters. The officials quickly solved the mystery when they discovered the men were actually using the smaller women's ball. The women's regulation ball is one inch smaller in circumference.

The Humboldt State women snapped a 29-game conference losing streak earlier this season with a 78-65 win over Cal State Hayward. On January 21, they posted a first-ever, three-game winning streak with a 64-61 victory over Cal State Chico. It also was the first win over Cal State Chico in the modern history of Humboldt State women's basketball (beginning with the start of the five-on-five era). (Tom Trepiak, Humboldt State SID)

The Western Maryland women's junior varsity team came within three fouls of having the entire squad foul out of its January 25 game at Dickinson. Seven players suited up for the game, and one fouled out in regulation. Three more followed in the second overtime, and the trio remaining on the court had four fouls each. Dickinson used its two-player advantage to take an 85-82 lead and held on to win, 85-84. (Scott Deitch, Western Maryland SID)

Auburn guard, one of 20 in family, becomes one of a kind on court

By Robert Mount
The Auburn Eagle

Ruthie Bolton, a senior starting at point guard for the unbeaten Auburn University Lady Tigers basketball team, enjoys family support—and lots of it. Bolton is the 16th child in a family of 20 children.

"There were so many kids around when I was growing up that it was just chaotic," the mild-mannered health promotion major said. "And, of course, all us kids had friends, and that just made it worse. I began to appreciate it, though, the older I got; and, looking back, I wouldn't trade my childhood for anything. I'm blessed to be a part of such a big family."

Bolton and her 19 brothers and sisters grew up on a farm near McClain, Mississippi, where, after school, the kids were assigned to chores around the house and farm, she said.

"I was a real tomboy," she said. "If I wasn't playing basketball at school, I was playing baseball with the boys, or out in the pasture jumping fences. There was always something fun to do on the farm."

Bolton played on the varsity basketball team at McClain High School, sharing various honors with her older sister, Mae Ola. She was also on the team when McClain, for two consecutive years, won the state championship.

When Bolton was a junior in high school, her sister, a senior, accepted a scholarship to Auburn University. After a stellar college career of her own, Mae Ola currently plays professional basketball in Italy.

Bolton was heavily recruited as a senior and eventually signed with Auburn. Her decision to play at Auburn was her own, and she contends that she was not necessarily "following in my sister's footsteps."

"When I first started getting recruited, I had my eye on other schools. Auburn really never even entered my mind," she said. "Then I came to see Mae Ola play in several home games, and that was when I saw what a nice place Auburn was."

Bolton was played sparingly her freshman year until the final eight games, in which she earned the starting position.

Her sophomore year passed un-spectacularly, but academically, she was named to the quarterly academic top-30 list. At the close of the season, Bolton decided to explore another avenue and signed up for Army basic training.

"I didn't have anything to do that summer, so I signed up," she said.

After boot camp at Ft. Knox, Kentucky, Bolton was assigned to advanced infantry training at Fort Riley, Kansas.

Bolton returned to Auburn in the fall and was awarded, in addition to her basketball scholarship, an ROTC scholarship.

Upon graduation, Bolton will be commissioned in the U.S. Army.

Bolton is a key member of the currently No. 1-ranked women's basketball team, a fact she says is still hard for her to imagine.

"Every year, we lose more key players; and every year, we keep getting better," she said. "It's astonishing. We must be doing something right."

"Knowing that I have the ability to reach the heights I want to ascend to, and being secure in that knowledge, is inspirational in itself," she said.

"Plus, God is also behind me all the way, and that's a heck of a boost. Then there's my father, who always urges me to look on the bright side when things aren't going so hot. 'Don't worry,' he'll say. 'Things could be worse.' My family means everything in the world to me."

Purdue wrestler wants shot at Big Ten title

Purdue University wrestler Terry Kissel has overcome great adversity to excel at the sport of wrestling.

La Salle University wrestler Thad Nowakowski (The NCAA News, February 8) and Kissel have a great deal in common.

While Nowakowski lost his leg in a shooting accident at the age of four, Kissel lost his right leg in a farming accident at the age of three. Both men have shown that the loss of a limb does not prevent them from competing in the sport they love.

Kissel started wrestling in the sixth grade. "Wrestling was a sport that didn't require as much running as other sports," Kissel says. "I don't really consider myself handicapped. If you have some sort of disability, it really shouldn't stand in the way of doing anything that you really want to do."

Kissel's accomplishments speak for themselves: a 104-12 record including a 30-1 mark as a senior at

Terry Kissel

Gibson Southern High School near Evansville, Indiana. Kissel's 104 wins in his high school career and 30 victories as a senior are both Gibson Southern all-time records.

His college record is also very good when you consider the competition at the intercollegiate level. Kissel, a sophomore major in management, is 7-7 so far this year, including two victories in the Eastern Michigan Open, three wins in the Sunshine Open in Tampa and a pin in the first round of the Ohio Open. Kissel didn't compete as a freshman.

Head coach Mitch Hull says, "People on the team don't think Terry Kissel has a handicap, I don't think Terry Kissel has a handicap, and I don't think Terry Kissel thinks Terry Kissel has a handicap."

"Terry is a true competitor," Hull says. "He gained the respect from his teammates in the fall practices when he did all the conditioning with the team."

Kissel said, "Coach Hull said that when running the stadium stairs, he figured I had worked hard enough so that whenever the lead guys got done, then I could quit. The first couple of times, he asked me if I was going to quit; I said I'm going the run them all."

Kissel is still fighting for a spot to represent Purdue in the 142-pound class in the Big Ten Conference wrestling championships at Mackey Arena on the Purdue campus March 4-5.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI STATE UNIVERSITY ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Southeast Missouri State University invites applications and nominations for the position of Athletic Director. Southeast Missouri State University is a comprehensive institution in Cape Girardeau, located on the Mississippi River 120 miles south of St. Louis and 150 miles north of Memphis, with a student enrollment of 8,500. The University is presently a Division II member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association with plans to move to Division I in 1990. The Athletic Director administers the intercollegiate athletics program for men and women and reports directly to the University Provost.

The Athletic Director must have a clear understanding of the academic mission of the University as well as the comprehensive nature of a successful athletics program and the variety of men's and women's sports in which the University participates. This individual must also be attuned to the rapidly changing environment of intercollegiate athletics and must possess a commitment to uphold the integrity, character, and winning tradition of the athletics program at Southeast Missouri State University. A clear understanding of intercollegiate athletics is imperative to assist in moving the athletics program from Division II to Division I in 1990.

Candidates must possess a Master's Degree as a minimum and must have demonstrated the administrative experience and skill necessary to operate an intercollegiate athletics program in compliance with rules and regulations of associations and conferences of which the University is a member. This position requires a professional with significant, successful experience, preferably at the Division I level. Human relations, management and budgetary skills are essential to administer a large and highly visible program.

Nominations and applications must be received by the Search Committee no later than March 24, 1989. Applicants should submit an up-to-date resume, three letters of recommendation, transcripts of their academic record, and a statement addressing the role and integrity of athletics in a modern comprehensive university. Position will be available on or about July 1, 1989. Send nominations and applications to the following:

Tournament sponsor not in ACC plans

By Tom Foreman

While a number of college basketball tournaments have corporate sponsors, the Atlantic Coast Conference won't join them as long as it continues its success on the court and over the airwaves, says Commissioner Eugene F. Corrigan.

"I don't mean that we're so financially secure. It's been brought up at the conference meeting," Corrigan said. "You might have some sponsorships for some things, but you would not have one for the ACC basketball tournament."

"The schools themselves don't believe it should happen," Corrigan said, pointing to several ACC arenas where commercial advertising cannot be found.

"There are a lot of places that have been able to make it without doing that, and they'd like to continue to do it," he said. "They would like to keep it as pure as they can, but who knows what will happen five years down the road?"

One thing that could happen is that the television money could start to dry up. Television pays the rights to broadcast the seemingly endless number of games from November through the end of March.

"We'll have to see what happens with future television situations," Corrigan said. "If we continue to have contracts with television that are ultimately profitable to us, then we can cover our expenses."

Until those profits start to dry up, it will be known as the ACC tournament, plain and simple. Also, it will be regarded as the tournament that started it all.

"Our people look on our tournament as the founder of all tournaments. The ACC and the Southern Conference were the only ones that had tournaments. It's only been very recently that these other conference have gone to tournaments," Corrigan said.

"Our season-ending tournament is something our people consider to be very special. They don't want to put a name on it."

Foreman writes for the Associated Press.

Rollins conducts seminar on drugs

Rollins College hosted a two-day seminar on alcohol and drug abuse recently. Among the speakers was Michael Green, president of College Consultants on Drugs and Alcohol.

"We continue to be concerned about the drug and alcohol problems existing in college athletics," said athletics director Gordon E. Howell. "We have a responsibility to our athletes at Rollins, and we are pleased to make available this excellent program."

Sport dropped

Tennessee Technological University has dropped its men's soccer program, leaving the school with seven men's varsity sports and six for women.

The decision to drop the sport was made "because we cannot fund soccer on a decent level," said David Larimore, vice-president for administration and planning. "I don't think Tennessee Tech should sponsor a sport unless it can provide a certain level of decent funding for its student-athletes," Larimore said.

Warfield to speak at MAC antidrug seminar

The Mid-American Athletic Conference is sponsoring two drug-education seminars in conjunction with the conference's basketball tournament in Toledo in March.

One of the seminars is directed toward students in grades six through 12, and the other is for high school principals, counselors and other advisers.

Both seminars will be held Friday, March 10, on the University of Toledo campus.

The alcohol- and drug-education awareness clinic for students will be held at John F. Savage Hall, the site of the tournament. The one-hour seminar runs from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. The seminar will be led by Gregory Harden, executive director of Leaders in Prevention and personal development counselor and consultant for the University of Michigan athletics department.

"America's Pride," a group of 50 high school students from the Toledo area that has traveled the country promoting alcohol- and drug-free living to their peers, will make a presentation during the clinic.

National Football League hall-of-famer Paul Warfield, a former all-America at Ohio State University, will be the keynote speaker at the drug-education seminar for high school principals and counselors. This seminar will begin at 9:30 a.m. at Driscoll Continuing Education Center on campus.

It will be followed at 11 a.m. by a seminar on collegiate recruiting regulations and freshman eligibility conducted by MAC Associate Commissioner Jamie McCloskey and Tom Colaner, regional director for American College Testing.

"The Mid-American Conference is extremely pleased to be able to sponsor these two drug-education seminars in conjunction with our basketball tournament," Commissioner James W. Lessig said. "We will be providing a service to high school principals, coaches and guidance counselors, as well as junior high and high school students.

"The funds provided by the NCAA for drug education through the block-grant program allow us to bring in highly qualified speakers for each session," Lessig said. "We feel such a program fits in well with the excitement surrounding our post-season basketball tournament."

$50,000 donated

University of New Hampshire alumnus James H. "Red" Hayes has donated $50,000 to the school for construction of a football locker room. New Hampshire is the only member of the Yankee Conference currently without such a facility.
