Financial aid sought for ex-athletes without degrees

Former student-athletes at NCAA member institutions whose circumstances will permit only part-time study toward completion of undergraduate-degree requirements may be able to seek financial assistance from the Association in the future.

Meeting March 2-3 in Marco Island, Florida, the NCAA Committee on Grants to Undergraduates Who Have Exhausted Institutional Financial Aid Opportunity voted to recommend to the Association's Executive Committee that, effective with the 1990-91 academic year, individuals wishing to return to class part-time be eligible to apply for grants.

Currently, only former student-athletes with less than 30 credit hours needed for a degree who plan to attend classes full-time may apply for grants. Awards include tuition, fees, room, board and books, and those applying must have exhausted all financial aid opportunities available to them through the institution.

Under the recommendation approved by the committee for Executive Committee review, former student-athletes seeking to return to school part-time could apply for grants covering tuition, fees and up to $100 for books. Part-time students who receive grants would have to pass a minimum of six credit hours with a grade-point average of at least 2.000 (4.000 scale) during their first semester of enrollment to gain approval for second-semester funding.

Under the current system, which applies only to full-time students, at least 12 credit hours must be passed with a minimum 2.000 GPA in the first semester to gain second-semester funding.

The committee also voted to recommend implementation of an appeals subcommittee, which would review appeals from grant recipients who did not meet the established first-semester credit-hour and GPA requirements due to extenuating circumstances. If the recommendation on part-time students is approved by the Executive Committee, this subcommittee — if approved — also would hear appeals from grant recipients who are part-time students.

Letters that go from the committee to financial aid officers requesting first-semester grade reports on grant recipients also would include information on this appeal process.

It was noted that applications for grants to students interested in enrolling for 1989-90 must be returned to the NCAA national office by May 15. Applicants should note that, in addition to needing fewer than 30 hours to complete degree

Big East leads ACC in tournament wins

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

The NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship, otherwise known as "March Madness," is here; and it is time for a long look at some cherished history, starting with the never-ending argument about which conference or region plays the best basketball and produces the most great players and coaches.

From the very beginning 50 years ago, the NCAA tournament had a balanced look, with one team from each of eight geographical districts (as opposed to the National Invitation Tournament, with most of its field from the East).

The all-time conference chart on page six represents history, because it uses only the actual lineups competing for conference championships each season (as opposed to taking current lineups back 50 years).

It shows a tight race for No. 1 in tournament winning percentage, led by the Big East Conference, now

Going up

Concrete work has begun on the Association's new headquarters building in Overland Park, Kansas. As initial supports go up, earth-moving continues. A crane also is at the site for use throughout the spring and summer in completion of the building's shell. Located at the intersection of College Boulevard (111th Street) and Lamar Avenue in Overland Park, the new headquarters building is approximately six miles south of the NCAA's current national office buildings, which are situated at 63rd Street and Nall Avenue in Mission, Kansas. Completion of the project is expected within the next year.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancies must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than March 31, 1989.

Division III Baseball: Replacement for Charlie Goehl, Elmhurst College, who has declined to serve as a member of the new Division III Baseball Committee because he has resigned as baseball coach at Elmhurst to become the head football coach. Appointee must be from the Division III baseball Midwest region.

Vacancies on the Men's and Women's Committee on Committees and the Nominating Committee will be filled by the Council during its April 17-19 meeting in Kansas City. Following is a list of those whose terms expire, including those eligible and not eligible for reelection. Committee members' divisions, districts or regions are in parentheses:

Men's Committee on Committees: Three-year term with no immediate reelection. Four expirations and one vacancy. Not eligible for reelection: Lawrence P. Boyd, Framingham State College (III-1); Gene A. Carpenter, Millersville University of Pennsylvania (II-2); Ronald D. Stephenson, Big Sky Conference (I-7); Charles Whitcomb, San Jose State University, chair (I-8). McKinley Boston Jr., formerly at Kean College (III-at large), now at the University of Rhode Island (I-1), may continue to serve if appointed to one of the Division I positions, either at large or in District I; otherwise, he must be replaced. The new chair is to be selected from among members who will be in the last year of their terms: Dave Hart, Southern Conference; Don Landry, Southland Conference; William D. McHenry, Washington and Lee University; John Williams, Mississippi College.

Women's Committee on Committees: Three-year term with no immediate reelection. Four expirations. Eligible for reelection: Bettye Giles, University of Tennessee, Martin (II-3). Not eligible for reelection: Martha E. Hawthorne, Rice University (I-6); Judith R. Holland, University of California, Los Angeles, chair (I-8); Mary Frances Heishman, Bridgewater College (Virginia) (III-AL). The new chair is to be selected from among members who will be in the last year of their terms: Susan W. Lubking, West Chester University of Pennsylvania; Marnie W. Swift, University of Toledo; Elizabeth Murphey, University of Georgia; Lynn M. Pacala, Occidental College.

Nominating Committee: One-year terms; limit of three years in a five-year period. Sixteen members, at least one from each district. Four members must be Council members whose terms do not expire in January 1990 (two from Division I and one each from Divisions II and III). Chair must be selected from among the four Council representatives. Members are listed below by division and region:

Division I: Eight members, including at least two women. There must be two members from each Division I Council representation region. Eligible for reelection only if selected as one of the Council representatives: B. J. Skelton, Clemson University (I-2).

Eligible for reelection if all bylaw requirements are met: Kevin M. White, University of Maine, Orono (I-1); Richard L. Sander, Virginia Commonwealth University (I-2); Bradford E. Kinsman, University of Detroit (I-3); Daniel G. Gibbens, University of Oklahoma (I-3); Michael T. Johnson, University of Houston (I-4); Margie H. McDonald, High Country Athletic Conference (I-4).

Not eligible: Kathleen M. McNally, LaSalle University, chair (I-1).

Division II: Four members, including at least one woman; one from each Division II Council representation region.

Eligible for reelection only if selected as the Division II Council representative: Karen L. Miller, California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (II-4).

Eligible for reelection if all bylaw requirements are met: Francis W. Poisson, University of Bridgeport (II-1); Wilburn A. Campbell Jr., Albany State College (Georgia) (II-2).

Not eligible for reelection: George MacDonald, Grand Valley State University (II-3).

Division III: Four members, including at least one woman; one from each Division III Council representation region. Eligible for reelection only if selected as the Division III Council representative: John M. Schael, Washington University (Missouri) (III-4).

Eligible for reelection if all bylaw requirements are met: Lawrence R. Schiner, Jersey City State College (III-1); Maureen T. Horan-Peasc, Drew University (III-2); Louis F. Miller, Hampden-Sydney College (III-3).

requirements and intending to enroll full-time, they also will be subject to the credit-hour and GPA requirements outlined earlier.

The committee also agreed to recommend for the 1990 applicants that students be permitted to apply for grants that cover any two consecutive class sessions (i.e., fall-spring, spring-summer or summer-fall). It was noted, however, that the May 15 deadline would be observed regardless of class cycle desired by an applicant.

Legislative Assistance

1989 Column No. 10

NCAA Bylaw 20.8.2—eligibility for division championships/Division II options when no Division II championship is conducted NCAA Division II member institutions are reminded of Bylaw 20.8.2 [formerly Bylaw 10-6-(c)], which stipulates that an active member institution that holds membership in Division II is eligible to compete in either the Division I or the Division III championship in those sports for which no championship is conducted in Division II. A Division II institution shall declare its intention to compete by June 1. This declaration of intent shall be effective for a minimum of three years. To be eligible for the Division I championship in such a sport, the Division II member institution is required to meet all Division I institutional and individual eligibility requirements and may use Division I financial aid limitations in that sport as permitted under Bylaw 20.8.1.1 [formerly Bylaw 5-6-(g)-(1)]. To be eligible for the Division III championship in such a sport, the Division II member institution is required to meet all Division III institutional and individual eligibility requirements and shall schedule and play more than 50 percent of its contests in that sport against Division III members. Finally, a Division II member institution that is eligible for a championship in another division because there is no championship in that sport in its membership division shall apply the maximum number of contests or dates of competition in the sport involved that applies to the division in which it declares its intention to compete.

NCAA Bylaw 13.10.6—publicity/announcement of signing

NCAA member institutions are reminded of the provisions of Bylaw 13.10.6 [formerly Bylaw 1-4-(b)] stipulating that publicity released by an institution concerning a prospect's commitment to attend the institution shall occur only after the prospect's signed acceptance of the institution's written offer of admission and/or financial aid. Such a communication shall be limited to those media forms normally used by the institution. Further, institutional press conferences, receptions, dinners and similar meetings held for the purpose of making such an announcement are expressly prohibited. However, according to Bylaw 13.10.6.2.1 [formerly Legislative Assistance Column 87.20-(b)], an institution may make an announcement on the institution's campus for the sole purpose of presenting at one time to the media the names of all prospects who have accepted offers of athletically related aid in a particular sport from that institution, with the understanding that no prospects (or their friends or relatives) may be in attendance.

NCAA Bylaw 16.8—permissible practice expenses

As set forth in Bylaw 16.8.1.1 [formerly Constitution 3-1-(h)-(1)], a member institution may provide a student-athlete expenses for practice sessions only if they are associated with an away-from-home contest or conducted at a site located within the member institution's state or, if outside that state, no more than 100 miles from the institution's campus. Further, any practice on an extended road trip shall take place either at the competition site or on a direct route between two consecutive competition sites. It is not permissible for an institution to schedule practice sessions at other locations in order to provide entertainment opportunities for team members. For example, traditional winter or spring trips to warm-weather locations must involve actual competition, as listed on the institution's official schedule, in order for the institution to provide any expenses for the trip.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Play-off pairings available on satellite hookup

The NCAA will transmit by satellite a press conference announcing team selections for the 1989 Division I Ice Hockey Championship. The announcement will be made Sunday, March 12, from 4 p.m. to 4:45 p.m. Central time at the Radisson Hotel, St. Paul, Minnesota.

The press conference will be available on KU-band and C-band satellites. The KU satellite is K2, 8A (lower half of transponder 8); the audio will be on 5.8. The C-band satellite is Westar V, Channel 24; the audio will be on 6.2 and 6.8.

The press conference will be chaired by Bruce McLeod, chair of the NCAA Division I Ice Hockey Committee and athletics director at the University of Minnesota, Duluth.

Media representatives can hear the press conference and ask questions of McLeod by calling 1-800/776-7880. The 12 teams selected to compete in the 1989 championship will be announced, as will the first-round pairings and sites.

The national semifinals and finals will be played March 20-April 1 at the St. Paul Civic Center in St. Paul, Minnesota. One semifinal is scheduled for Thursday, March 30, at 7:30 p.m. Central time; the other semifinal will be Friday, March 31, at 7:30 p.m. (Note: This information about the semifinal dates corrects information in a February 6 memorandum to television stations regarding television rights to these games.)

The championship game is scheduled Saturday, April 1, at 7:30 p.m.

Championships radio network includes most of top markets

As of March 3, 364 stations had signed up to present NCAA Radio Network broadcasts of the Division I Men's and Women's Basketball Championships.

At this stage, the network exceeds last year's total by 173 stations. These clearances all have been made prior to the selection of teams for either championship.

A total of 89 stations are set to carry the women's championship game, an increase of 31 stations over last year's total.

The network includes 87 of the top 100 markets and all of the top 10 markets. A total of 21 50,000-watt AM stations have been cleared and eight of those are clear-channel facilities.

The network will cover men's regional contests and the Final Four and the women's semifinal and championship games. Two call-in programs, "Selection Sunday" and "Eve of the Final Four," also are available.

The network is composed of CBS affiliates and additional stations cleared by Host Communications Inc. of Lexington, Kentucky. A state-by-state list of stations cleared through March 3 follows. A station carrying the women's semifinals or championship is indicated by a (w) after its call letters:

College athletics running out of control, and with no brakes

By Bob Lipper
Richmond Times-Dispatch
Excerpted from a column

The tractor-trailer is out of control.

It's careening down the highway, gathering momentum, shearing tree branches, spreading panic.

Pedestrians dive for cover. Motorists swerve into bushes and guard rails to avert a collision. Property owners are frozen in terror.

It's a runaway 18-wheeler.

And there's no one behind the wheel.

The vehicle is big-time college athletics. And unless Indiana Jones or some other made-in-Hollywood hero slides into the driver's seat and slams on the brakes, it's going to trample everything in its path, not the least of which is the integrity of our institutions of so-called higher learning.

I don't mean to come off as a cynic. I'm as sentimental as the next guy. I stop to smell the roses. I pull for the underdog. I enjoy sports. But the way things are going on the college level, the only thing I'm tempted to pull is the plug. There aren't many roses to smell out there either, just a growing stench of hazardous waste and lawlessness.

The issue was crystalized this week by "An American Tragedy," Sports Illustrated's penetrating look at the rampant excesses of college athletics and athletes in general. Mind you, we're not talking boys-will-be-boys high jinks here. We're talking rape, battery, assault with a deadly weapon, drug trafficking, the works.

So long, Animal House.

Hello, Big House.

Scan the sports section of your newspaper on any given day and, more often than not, you'll spot a reference about an athlete who's broken bad. Getting declared academically ineligible. Being suspended for an undisclosed conduct violation. Committing a misdemeanor or felony.

We've become so accustomed to the transgressions of our athletics gladiators that we're no longer shocked by them—or by accounts of illicit payments and grade-tampering on the part of their keepers.

One of the problems is that we've allowed athletes to think of themselves as above the law or the norms that are socially acceptable in society, or the requirements that govern the vast body of college students....

Mostly, the marriage of high-powered athletics and higher education is a marriage made in corporate boardrooms and TV negotiating sessions, not heaven.

Nor are there any quick-fix solutions. Eliminate freshman eligibility? Good idea. Abolish athletics dorms?

A dandy suggestion. Tighten eligibility standards? Terrific. But what these and other measures require are strong institutional controls and tough-minded presidents who'll risk bowl revenues and Final Four possibilities to put their academic houses in order.

Will it happen? I wouldn't hold my breath. The truck is picking up speed. And Indiana Jones is busy promoting his next film. It's called "The Last Crusade."

At least the title fits.

Problem with officiating is that analysts say there is a problem

Wayne Duke, commissioner
Big Ten Conference
Chicago Tribune

"With 89 of 90 (Big Ten) games being televised, our problems is not with the officials, it's with the commentators who say we have a problem with officiating.

"It's that time of year again when coaches and players don't lose games; officials do. Officials are the only people in the world who are expected to start out being perfect and improve as they go along.

"Abb Curtis, the longtime Pacific Coast and Southwest (Athletics) Conference football and basketball supervisor, told me (when Duke was commissioner of the Big Eight Conference), 'Young man, one problem you will never resolve is officiating. Because, simply and plainly, in every game, there is a winner and a loser.'"

Cedric W. Dempsey, athletics director
Arizona State University

The Associated Press

"The committee (NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee) has wrestled with that (home-crowd advantage during the Division I championship) ever since I've been on the committee.

"We feel we made a good move on the neutrality of home floors. But we don't see an answer for developing any policy relating to home crowds. We feel it would reduce the number of sites to where it would be impractical at this time."

Curley Hallman, head football coach
University of Southern Mississippi

CFA Sidelines

"The NCAA continues to send out a very clear message (about recruiting violations), and the element of fear that has been established by the severity of some of the penalties has had a very positive effect on the entire recruiting process.

"As far as problems that still exist, one area that still concerns me is 'negative recruiting.'

"Many schools, instead of trying to sell their own programs, recruit by trying to downgrade other teams' programs."

Bill Curry, head football coach
University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa

Richmond Times-Dispatch

"You talk to kids these days, and when they really tell you the truth, they'll tell you that some kids go out with the idea of getting wasted. They don't drink three beers; they drink 19. I'm not talking about athletes; I'm talking about everybody.

"For us to pay for our business with beer dollars is really ugly to me. I think we ought to drop all of it."

Connie Kelch, head women's basketball coach
University of Texas, Arlington

NCAA Women's College Basketball Media Kit

"Recruiting: It's a tough world, and so many players are lied to and offered things that cannot be provided. Where an athlete chooses to go for her education is very important; and we, as college coaches, sometimes forget this aspect.

"When I do, I want out."

Michael Kelly, columnist
(Omaha) Sunday World-Herald

"If only the NCAA could legislate morality.

"No one can, but that doesn't mean that the public and 'the good kids' among college athletes can't rise up in moral indignation, or that universities cannot insist on responsible conduct.

"Sports Illustrated says that 'a violent and unprecedented lawlessness has arisen among college athletes in all parts of the country.'

"Its evidence is mostly anecdotal—that is, the magazine gives a number of examples, but has no empirical data for comparison. It's doubtful that such data exist.

"But the feeling, as expressed by America's most prominent sports journal, is that criminal activity among athletes is on the rise.

Curley Hallman

Connie Kelch

"NU (University of Nebraska, Lincoln) players, fortunately, weren't all over the police blotter last fall. Let's hope that the national attention on athletes has a positive effect."

Dave Dutton, head men's basketball coach
Shenandoah College

NCAA Men's College Basketball Media Kit

"As a James Madison assistant, I scouted West Virginia. My head coach asked me what was the biggest thing we had to prepare for. I told him, 'The possibility of one of our guys having a heart attack when that nut (the Mountaineer) runs out of the tunnel and fires that gun (musket).'"

Larry Conley, ESPN basketball analyst

The Associated Press

"As a spectator sport, the (college) game has improved. The players are better, and that's the most important change.

"The emphasis today is on fitness. For a basketball player, that leads to quickness and size. If someone 20 years ago had said that 6-8 guards would not be all that rare, I would not have believed it.

Collegiate athletics victimized by media

By Roger Stanton
Basketball Weekly
An editorial

On a recent ABC-TV Sunday night newscast, the commentator addressed himself to the "current scandal" at a certain university and suggested this was typical of big-time college basketball.

What a shameful and untrue comment.

Yet, this is the type of reporting that college sports has had to endure during this decade when negative sports writing and sports broadcasting dominate the media at both the local and national levels. It is no wonder that the average uninformed citizen has a bleak picture of college athletics.

That very same week, Sports Illustrated ran a shameful piece that ripped head coach Barry Switzer to shreds. It was a brutal presentation of half-truths and portrayed the Oklahoma athletics department as being responsible for the criminal activities of five football players.

What they neglected to mention was that in 16 years at Oklahoma, Switzer and his staff have turned out hundreds of young people who have become important members of society as lawyers, doctors, businessmen, salesmen, car dealers, etc.

It seems that Sports Illustrated and others don't want to look at the whole picture. They want to focus on the worst part of college sports so they can sell magazines and increase circulation. This irresponsible reporting hurts all of the fine young men and women who work hard to be good students and good athletes and are law-abiding citizens.

We don't condone anyone breaking the law anywhere. Yet, we recognize that the segment of America known as the college athletics world is far from being perfect. We don't expect it to be.

But the general media make a headline story out of any wrongdoings in college sports. They paint an exaggerated and negative picture, which is as far from the truth as can be.

Our whole nation is filled with outstanding examples of ex-college athletes who have benefited from the system and are making important contributions to society. We should be pleased and proud of our athletes and their accomplishments.

"Our whole nation is filled with outstanding examples of ex-college athletes who have benefited from the system and are making important contributions to society."

Negative sports journalism dominates our newspapers, radio and television reporting. We at Basketball Weekly (and Football News) aren't overlooking the imperfections of the college sports world, but we aren't featuring them to the exclusion of the positive aspects.

Let's not allow Sports Illustrated, ABC-TV and other media giants to unfairly attack the college sports scene. Your letters to them hopefully will encourage their editors to provide more responsible reporting on college sports.

In Texas, it's a felony to bribe prospective student-athletes

The Texas Senate, fed up with the state's history of NCAA recruiting violations, adopted a bill March 6 that would make it a felony to bribe high school athletes to attend a particular college or university.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, the bill's sponsor, said it was time to provide tough sanctions against college recruiters, athletics department personnel and "over-zealous" alumni who violate NCAA rules by offering cash, cars or other valuables to prospective players.

"Texas is in the forefront of athletics recruiting scandals across the nation," Glasgow said. "I'm just saying we ought to put a stop to it."

The bill, adopted on a voice vote, would make it a third-degree felony to offer money or any other benefits to a high school athlete as an inducement to enroll in college or participate in intercollegiate athletics, United Press International reported.

It also would be a class A misdemeanor for student-athletes either to solicit or to accept such an inducement, unless they disclose the incident to authorities in a timely fashion. It also would not apply to close relatives of the athlete.

The Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, that would have reduced the first offense from a felony to a misdemeanor for inducements worth less than $750.

"I think that the initial penalty of a third-degree felony on first offense is just really ludicrous. I think that's far too strong a first-offense penalty," Brooks said.

During the debate, Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, quipped, "We're not criminalizing the bribery of football players. We're just regulating the price."

The amendment, which Glasgow said would gut the bill, was defeated by an 18-12 vote.

"If you reduce that to a misdemeanor, I don't think there is a county attorney in Texas who will go through that process to get a conviction," Glasgow argued, adding that it would be impossible to extradite offenders from other states unless the violation is a felony.

The Senate also rejected an amendment by Brooks that would have required full disclosure of all bonuses, payments, gifts, salaries and other financial arrangements associated with the recruitment of an athlete or coach.

Both of the defeated amendments, particularly the one reducing the first offense to a misdemeanor, might be attached to the bill when it is considered in the House, Brooks said.

Prairie View will retain Catchings as head coach

Prairie View A&M University will retain head football coach Haneey Catchings but will take steps to improve academics for its athletes, school President Percy Pierre announced March 7.

Pierre decided to keep Catchings despite a vow by striking football players not to play for the coach. The players began a boycott February 5, claiming they didn't want to play for Catchings because he allegedly was interfering with their attempts to get an education.

Admits problems

Pierre admitted there were problems with academics, but he added that Catchings was not responsible in many cases.

But Pierre said Catchings would be instructed to "communicate the priority of academics to his players, work out a program with the administration for study hall and limit his practice time."

The striking players were surprised by the announcement to retain Catchings, who was not immediately available for comment.

"I don't know how they can do that and say they're interested in academics," striking players' spokesman Richard Haynes said. "We feel they are being unfair with our academic future and our lives."

"We're going to continue the strike; this team has never been more united," Haynes added.

School will compete

But Pierre said Prairie View will field a football team next season regardless of the players' strike, the Associated Press reported.

"We realize a lot of players don't like him (Catchings)," Pierre said. "But we don't hire and fire people on the basis of popularity. We hope these players will reevaluate their situation and come together with us. But I do guarantee you we will have a football team next fall."

"For any athlete who refuses his athletics scholarship because he refuses to play for coach Catchings, the university will make a concerted effort to assist that student in obtaining aid from other sources for which he is eligible," he said.

Data support charges

Pierre said there were data to support the players' charge that academic achievement had been on the decline in recent years. He noted that Catchings was only responsible for controlling practice time, but Pierre didn't specify any time limits.

Pierre also said he would appoint George Stafford, a former admissions director, to serve as athletics director, at least until August 31. Stafford, he said, would give priority to administrative functions affecting the academic performance of students.

Pierre had appointed Harold Bonner, Prairie View vice-president, to oversee the investigation into the players' complaints.

Investigation supported

Athletics director Brutus Jackson February 6 asked to be reassigned within the school until the investigation was completed.

Jackson said he supported the in its 10th season, at .655. The Atlantic Coast Conference, now in its 37th season, is second at .649. The next two conferences are older than the tournament—the Big Ten Conference at .638 and the Pacific-10 Conference at .626. Fifth at .600 is the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, now in its 14th season.

Only three other conferences have winning records and all three go back all 50 seasons—Southeastern Conference .570, Big Eight Conference .568 and Missouri Valley Conference .533. The West Coast Athletic Conference is exactly .500—39-39 over 36 seasons. Rounding out the top 10 at .486 is the Atlantic 10 Conference, now in its 13th season.

Most championships

The Pacific-10 holds a big lead in championships with 13—10 by UCLA's amazing John Wooden in a 12-year span ending with 1975. The Big Ten is next with eight titles, then the SEC with five, and the ACC and Missouri Valley with four each (all four MVC titles were won by teams now in other conferences).

Three titles were won by Eastern independents and two each by the Big Eight, Big East, Metro, WCAC Midwest independents and the old Skyline Eight Conference, forerunner of the Western Athletic Conference; one was claimed by Southwest independents (UTEP in 1966, before it entered the WAC).

Final Four leaders

The Big Ten has had the most entrants in the Final Four at 28, followed by the Pac-10 25, ACC and Eastern independents 19 each, Big Eight 17, MVC 16, SEC 13, Southwest Athletic Conference 11, Big East and Midwest independents seven each, and Metro five. Sixteen other conferences and/or independent groups made it at least once.

The Eastern independents lead in regional second-place teams (one victory from the Final Four) at 25, then the SEC 18, Big Eight 17, ACC 16, Big Ten 15, Pacific-10 and old Skyline Eight 12 each, and WCAC 10.

Independents disappear

With the formation of more conferences to gain automatic bids and television revenue, prominent independents have almost disappeared from the scene. There were more than 80 independents in the mid-1970s; but only about one-fourth that many are independents now, and most of those are waiting to get into conferences.

Over the 50 years, independents have a 302-300 won-lost record, six won it all and 38 entrants reached the Final Four. But over the last four years of 64-team fields, all independents combined were only 9-10 with no Final Fours.

The last independent to reach the Final Four was DePaul under Ray Meyer in 1979 (losing a semifinal to Indiana State and Larry Bird). The last independent champion was Marquette in 1977. Al McGuire's last season (beating Dean Smith's North Carolina team).

Four-year leaders

Over the last four seasons of 64-team fields, only eight conferences have had teams in the Final Four. The Big East (43-20) leads with five and the Big Eight (30-16) is next with three. The ACC (39-22) and Metro (14-7) have produced two Final Four teams each. The SEC (33-20), Big Ten (27-22), Big West Conference (8-6) and Pac-10 (5-10) have produced one each.

The championships went to the Big East, Big Eight, Big Ten and Metro.

Two more conferences reached the round-of-eight once each—the Atlantic 10 Conference (9-8) and the Colonial Athletic Association (6-5).

Ten more conferences won at least one game—Sun Belt Conference 6-10, WAC 5-10, SWC 4-10, Association of Mid-Century Universities 3-3, Midwestern Collegiate Conference 3-4, Southland Conference 2-4, Ohio Valley Conference 2-5, MVC 2-9, Trans America Athletic Conference 1-4 and WCAC 1-5.

Another ten conferences have a combined 0-42 record in the last four years, and the other two Division I conferences have yet to have a team in the tournament.

Regional leaders

As the chart shows, every region in the country has won at least one NCAA crown and each can look back on many moments of glory. Midlands teams (Big Eight and Missouri Valley) have the best won-lost percentage, .5479 to the Pacific's .5476, followed by the Midwest .537, South .524, East .463, Southwest .450 and Rockies .347.

The Pacific has won 15 titles, South 11, Midwest 10, Midlands six and East five. The Rockies region had six teams in the Final Four and two champions (Wyoming in 1943 and Utah in 1944), plus 20 other teams that missed the Final Four by one victory. Not bad for an area with such sparse population.

The Southwest's only champion was UTEP, then known as Texas Western. The team is still coached by Don Haskins, now one of the game's big winners with close to 540 victories.

Haskins was a pupil of the legendary Henry Iba at Oklahoma State (767 career victories, third on the all-time Division I list). Haskins' team won that 1966 title game over Kentucky, coached by Adolph Rupp, the all-time leader with 875 coaching victories.

Great players, coaches

It is difficult to think of a great player who did not play in the NCAA tournament (there are a handful, because the field was only eight teams the first 12 years). Outstanding player awardees include Lew Alcindor (now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar—he was selected a record three times), Wilt Chamberlain, Bill Russell, Elgin Baylor, Jerry West, Jerry Lucas, Bill Bradley, Magic Johnson, Isiah Thomas, Darrell Griffith, Bill Walton, David Thompson, James Worthy, Akeem Olajuwon and, more recently, Patrick Ewing and Danny Manning. No, Larry Bird did not win it—his Indiana State team was second to Johnson's Michigan State team in 1979, in the highest-rated TV basketball game ever.

Last year, the fans selected the five players they considered to be the best in Final Four history. The five were Jabbar, Bird, Chamberlain, Johnson and Michael Jordan, a North Carolina freshman in 1982 when his basket in the closing seconds beat Georgetown, 63-62, in a memorable championship game in New Orleans.

Bird and Chamberlain never played on a championship team, although Chamberlain was voted most outstanding player after his Kansas team lost a triple-overtime classic, 54-53, to Frank McGuire's 32-0 North Carolina team in 1957.

The history of the tournament is a history of the great coaches and their teams. The coach-pupil connections are endless. Wooden, as mentioned, stands alone with 10

Three of four '88 Final Four teams could return this year

In the 1980s, four teams have made consecutive appearances in the Final Four. Georgetown was the last team to do so, winning the championship in 1984 and finishing second in 1985.

This year, Arizona, Oklahoma and Duke all have the potential to reach the Final Four for the second straight year. All three teams have been ranked No. 1 at some point during the season, and all three have some key players back from last year.

If all three manage to reach Seattle, they will duplicate a feat that has occurred only one other time in the 51 years of championship competition. UCLA, Houston and North Carolina all reached the Final Four in 1967 and 1968; UCLA and North Carolina went again in 1969.

"You certainly have to like their chances," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said of the possibility of a repeat appearance by any of the three teams. "You can't pick a prototype (Final Four team). That's what makes it fun."

In addition to the three consecutive appearances in the 1960s, the Tar Heels made back-to-back trips in 1981 and 1982. They reached the final game the first year and came back to win the championship the next year.

"We had a veteran team (in 1982)," he said. "They wanted to come back and win. That's all they talked about."

"It is going to be a big challenge," Oklahoma coach Billy Tubbs said about returning to the Final Four. "It is not 'Mission Impossible,' but it certainly is 'mission tough.'"

Sooner senior Stacey King was a member of last year's all-tournament team. He was the second-leading scorer and rebounder in the tournament behind Kansas' Danny Manning. Through games played February 27, King was sixth nationally in scoring with a 26.5 average. He also ranked 14th in rebounding with a 10.6 average.

His teammate, senior Mookie Blaylock, has passed the century mark in both steals and assists for the second straight year. In last year's tournament, he set a series record for steals with 23. He was No. 1 in that category this season with a 3.9 average through games played February 27.

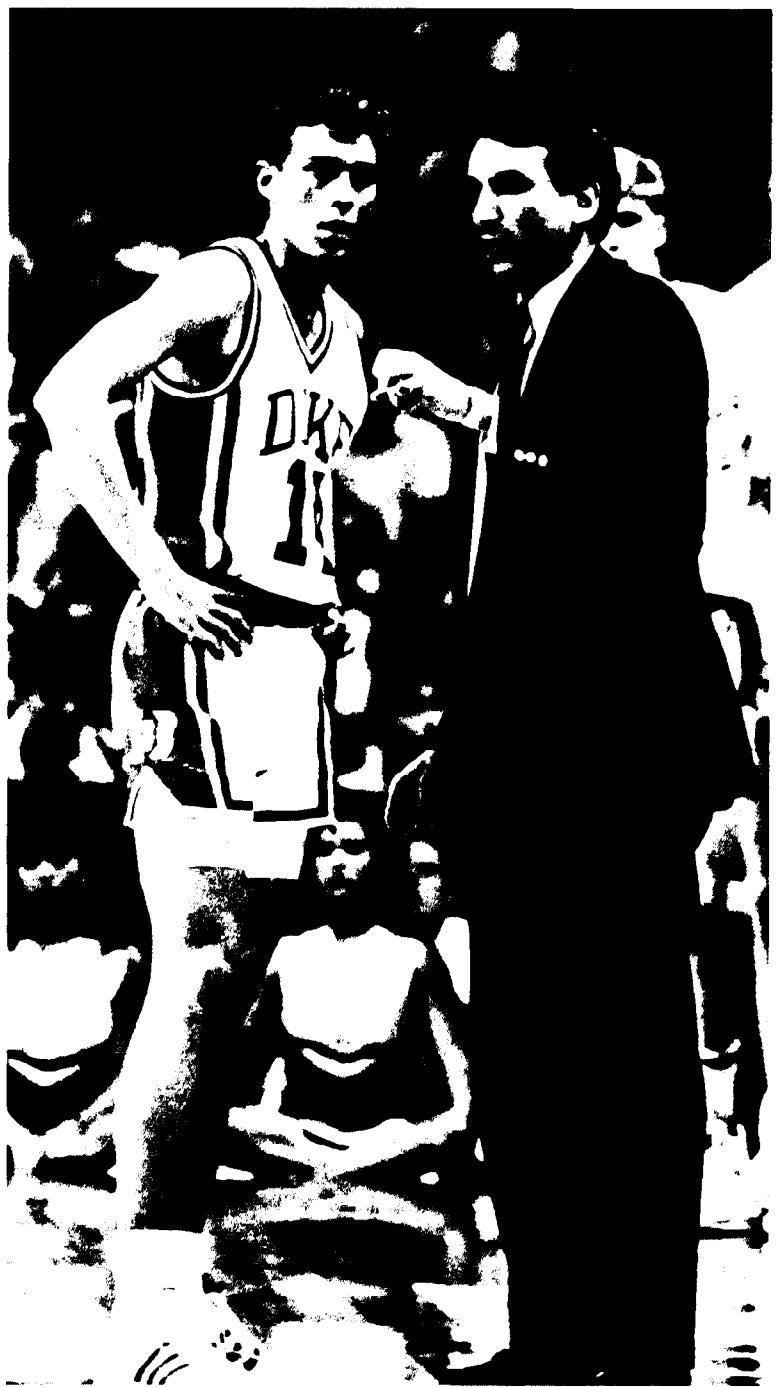

"(Last year), we were physically and mentally at a peak to start the tournament," Tubbs said. "I think that we made the right plays at the right time. In the final game (a loss to Kansas), that left us a little bit."

Like King, Arizona's Sean Elliott earned all-tournament honors a year ago. He was third in scoring in the 1988 tournament and averaged 23.2 points per game. Teammate Anthony Cook was 10th and had a 16.2 average. Cook has been among the national leaders in field-goal percentage this season, hitting 63.8 percent through February 27.

"Arizona is so sound in so many phases of the game," Tubbs said. "They do a good job defensively. They are just a very sound team."

Duke has reached the Final Four twice in the past three years. Last year, Danny Ferry was seventh in scoring in the tournament. He averaged 17.8 points and 9.2 rebounds.

"We were all healthy and we got momentum from our conference tournament," coach Mike Krzy-

Duke's Quin Snyder and coach Mike Krzyzewski

zewski said. "Winning the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament gave us a lot of confidence."

Krzyzewski thinks focus is critical in tournament play. He wants his players to focus on each weekend, with the approach that they are playing in consecutive four-team tournaments.

"If you win the first four-team tournament, you go on to the second; and if you win the second, you go to the best four-team tournament in the world," he said.

Championship Profile

Event: Division I men's basketball.

Field: A total of 64 teams will compete for the 1989 championship.

Automatic qualification: Association of Mid-Century Universities, Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic 10 Conference, Big East Conference, Big Eight Conference, Big Sky Conference, Big Ten Conference, Big West Conference, Colonial Athletic Association, East Coast Conference, Eastern College Athletic Conference, North Atlantic, Ivy Group, Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, Mid-American Athletic Conference, Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, Midwestern Collegiate Conference, Missouri Valley Conference, Northeast Conference, Ohio Valley Conference, Pacific-10 Conference, Southeastern Conference, Southern Conference, Southland Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference, Southwestern Athletic Conference, Sun Belt Conference, Trans America Athletic Conference, West Coast Athletic Conference, Western Athletic Conference.

Schedule: First-round games will be played March 16 and 17; second-round games will be played March 18 and 19. The Midwest and East regionals are scheduled for March 24 and 26, and the Southeast and West regionals are scheduled for March 23 and 25. The Final Four will be April 1 and 3 in Seattle.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings will appear in the March 22 and March 29 issues of the News. Championship results will be published April 5.

Contenders: Arizona, Oklahoma, Duke, Indiana, Georgetown, North Carolina.

Championship notes: Houston went to the Final Four in 1982, 1983 and 1984 and Louisville went in 1982 and 1983... UCLA made 10 straight Final Four appearances between 1967 and 1976 and won eight championships... The Bruins went 13 times in 15 years and won 10 titles... North Carolina has reached the Final Four nine times, including seven trips under Dean Smith.

Play-off appearance gives women's teams stature at home

Players on perennially powerful Division I women's basketball teams started practice last October confident they would end up in the NCAA play-offs. In other programs, selection to the 1989 field was never expected.

For the latter—especially those who make the Division I championship field for the first time—the experience is unlike anything they've ever had.

Look at 1988's first-timers, for example. Colorado, Eastern Illinois, Fairfield, Houston, Nebraska and Wake Forest all were selected to compete in the championship for the first time. Although none of those teams came home with the title, neither did any walk away from the championship empty-handed.

"For us, it was a real dream come true," Fairfield coach Dianne Nolan said. "The day we won our conference tournament, it was mission accomplished."

This year, the Lady Stags had six regular-season games on cable television and attendance has increased. Nolan attributes both facts to the tournament appearance.

"The experience made us a team that is recognized in our state," she said.

Wake Forest coach Joe Sanchez also believes a tournament appearance helps give a team recognition in its community and conference. For the first time this year, the Lady Deacons had crowds of more than 2,000 for some conference games.

"The NCAA tournament appearance is a reinforcement for the program," Sanchez said. "Everybody takes note of who makes the tournament."

The Lady Deacons had the experience of traveling to Tennessee to play the Lady Vols in a second-round game.

"It is an awakening to a program to see what Tennessee is like," Sanchez said. "It gives you an idea of the steps you have to take to become a Tennessean."

"(Competing in the tournament) is the first step toward getting some credibility for a program," Houston coach Greg Williams said.

The tournament appearance generated more excitement than a regular-season game, and his team received more attention from the local media.

As did Wake Forest, Houston traveled to meet a Southeastern Conference power, Mississippi. The game was televised in Mississippi, and the gym was lined with banners from the Lady Rebels' previous tournament appearances.

"I don't think my players were intimidated," Williams said. "They played extremely well. It was really a good game."

"I think it is the culmination of a lot of hard work," Nebraska coach Angela Beck said. "Obviously, it is a great experience and such a deserving experience for the student-athletes."

She said the tournament appearance was a building block for the program and helped recruiting. "It was an exciting time for the players," Eastern Illinois coach Barbara Hilke said. "The grass-roots community support takes a jump."

The interest generated by the tournament bid has continued into this season, and attendance at the Panthers' games has increased. In addition, the tournament appearance becomes a bench mark for future teams.

"Your program never loses that," Hilke said. "A new group of players comes in and thinks—those players did it, we can, too."

Defending champion: Louisiana Tech defeated Auburn, 56-54, to win the 1988 title.

Schedule: First-round games will be played March 15 and second-round games will take place March 17, 18 or 19. Regionals will be held March 23 and 25. The semifinal and championship games will be played in Tacoma, Washington, March 31 and April 2.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings will appear in the March 22 and March 29 issues of the News. Championship results will be published April 5.

Contenders: Auburn, Tennessee, Louisiana Tech, Stanford, Maryland.

Championship notes: This is the eighth championship... Last year, Louisiana Tech became the second team to win a second title... Southern California won back-to-back championships in 1983 and 1984... Louisiana Tech has reached the title game four times, including the last two years... Southeastern Conference teams have been selected 37 times, the Atlantic Coast Conference is second with 22 and the Pacific-10 is third with 21.

Florida could snap Texas' hold on women's swimming crown

An interesting game of musical chairs was played this past year in Division I women's swimming when coach Richard Quick left defending champion Texas and the country's most successful club coach, Mark Schubert, took his place.

Quick, after leading the Longhorns to five consecutive team titles, took the head-coaching position at rival Stanford, replacing the retiring George Haines. Quick announced his decision two days after the U.S. trials in August.

The vacancy left by Quick was not filled until late October, when

Dara Torres

The Gators scored 907½ points to runner-up Tennessee's 664.

Veterans Dara Torres, Julie Gorman and Lorraine Perkins paved the way as the Lady Gators won every individual swimming event except the 1,650-yard freestyle and the 400-yard individual medley (won by Georgia). Also, Florida made a clean sweep of all five relays.

The Stanford Cardinal came close in 1987 to upsetting Texas' reign by finishing a mere 17 points behind the Longhorns but fell to a disappointing third-place finish last year. A high point this year for the squad is the return of 11 scorers, more than any other team in the nation.

Among the top returners are Jenna Johnson, Aimee Berzins and Michelle Griglione, who redshirted last season to train for the Olympics. "Both Jenna and Aimee are doing excellent jobs, and so is Michelle," Quick commented. "Michelle recently won three individual events in a dual meet against Texas, which we ended up winning," he added.

"I'm really pleased with the way the team has adjusted to me as coach," Quick continued. "George (Haines) really taught the girls to coach themselves, and that has been a big help."

Though Tennessee finished 11th last season with only 108 points, the Volunteers may be the big surprise at the 1989 meet. The Lady Vols finished 39th in 1986 and jumped to 14th the following year under first-year coach Dave Roach.

"We've given the swimmers a little more direction, set higher goals and given them more motivation," Roach said of the team's improvement. "The group I have right now is the best, both mentally and physically, I've worked with in my 11 years of coaching."

The return of Tracy Ignatosky and Missy Hoy—plus the addition of seven outstanding freshmen—adds up to a lot of scoring potential. Ignatosky finished second in both breaststroke events at the SEC championships, and Hoy was fifth in the 1,650-yard freestyle.

Texas is returning only 316½ of last year's 661 points but still should manage a strong finish. Schubert feels his team has one or two good swimmers in each of the stroke events (rather than the usual three or four) and says the Longhorns' strength lies in the sprints.

Leigh Ann Fetter, who tied for first last year in the 50-yard freestyle with Florida's Torres, also was a part of the winning 200-yard freestyle relay squad. Other sprint freestylers to watch are Courtney Madsen, freshman Julie Cooper and Stacy Cassidy.

Championships Previews

Texas women's athletics director Donna Lopiano introduced Schubert, former club coach at Mission Viejo (California) and Mission Bay (Florida).

But even though Stanford and Texas have two of the top coaches in the sport, Florida may be the top team at this year's championships.

Returning eight Division I champions and five Olympians, Florida is the popular pick to unseat Texas. Giving the Lady Gators a boost is the squad's recent win in the Southeastern Conference championships.

Injury could dim Sun Devils' hopes of second wrestling title

Parity is a word that seldom was heard over the past 20 years of the NCAA Division I Wrestling Championships.

Since 1969, Iowa has won 11 team titles and Iowa State has captured six. Arizona State became the first team west of the Rockies to win the team title. Oklahoma and Oklahoma State have been the only other teams to break into the team-championship column during the state of Iowa's reign.

Although Iowa is capable of adding a 12th team title to its collection, at least four other teams should be in contention for the title at the 59th annual championships.

Defending champion Arizona State has another well-conditioned, physical team that again could rise to the occasion. The Sun Devils won last year's team title—without taking an individual title—by relying on its depth.

Coach Bobby Douglas has another solid team but might be hard-pressed to repeat if Jim Gressley, who is a top contender for the 177-pound title, does not recover from a groin injury.

The Sun Devils will need strong performances from their powerful middleweights, Junior Sanders (142), Thom Ortiz (150) and Dan St. John (158), if the team title is to stay west of the Rockies.

Oklahoma State is relying on six returning all-Americans to bring the team title back to Stillwater, where the team trophy has not been since 1971. In his fifth year at Oklahoma State, coach Joe Seay has built a powerful team that has spent much of the season ranked No. 1.

The Cowboys' lineup features potential champions in Mike Farrell (167) and Chris Barnes (177). Seay also is banking on strong showings by Kendall Cross (126) and Todd Chesbro (150) to aid Oklahoma State's title drive.

Penn State is capable of breaking the team-title drought that has plagued Eastern teams for 35 years. The Nittany Lions won the team title in 1953, but no Eastern team has captured it since.

Coach Rich Lorenzo has a solid championships. Coach Dale Bahr, who is a leading contender for coach-of-the-year honors, has the Wolverines prepared to improve last year's sixth-place championships finish.

With No. 1-ranked contenders John Fisher (134) and Joe Pantaleo (158) leading the way and potential all-America Mike Amine (167) in the lineup, the Wolverines' aim should be on the mark.

A preview of what could turn out to be an exciting battle for the championships' team title took place a few weeks ago. Iowa knocked off Oklahoma State, which was ranked No. 1 at the time, in dual-meet action, by a 26-10 count. The Hawkeyes then defeated Arizona State, which also has held the No. 1 spot this season, by a 20-14 mark.

The team ranked No. 1 going into the championships will be fortunate if it leaves with the top ranking.

Championships Profile

Event: Division I wrestling.

Field: A field of 330 Division I wrestlers will compete for team and individual championships. In addition, 25 Division II and 10 Division III qualifying wrestlers will compete for individual honors.

Automatic qualification: Big Ten Conference, Big Eight Conference, Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association, Pacific-10 Conference, Eastern Wrestling League, Mid-American Athletic Conference, East Coast Conference, Atlantic Coast Conference, Southern Conference, Big Sky/Western Athletic Conferences and New England University Wrestling Association, and two regional qualifying tournaments.

Defending champion: Arizona State.

Schedule: Oklahoma and Oklahoma State will host the March 16-18 championships, which will be held in Oklahoma City's Myriad Convention Center.

The NCAA News coverage: Results from the championships will appear in the March 22 issue of the News.

Contenders: Iowa, Oklahoma State, Arizona State, Oklahoma, Penn State, Michigan.

Championships notes: The Sun Devils' victory last year was the first time in 14 years that a team outside the state of Iowa emerged with the team title. . . . Wrestlers out to defend their individual championships include East Stroudsburg's Jack Cuvo (118), Penn State's Jim Martin (126), Pittsburgh's Pat Santoro (142) and Pittsburgh-Johnstown's Carlton Haselrig, who is the two-time defending heavyweight champion of the Division I and Division II championships. . . . Iowa's Tim Krieger and Iowa State's Eric Voelker won the 150-pound and 190-pound titles, respectively, at the 1987 championships and entered the championships as the top-ranked wrestlers in their weight classes. . . . Oklahoma State leads in all-time team championships with 27 and individual championships with 105. . . . At the 1986 championships, Iowa set the record for the number of individual champions in one year with five.

Division II men's basketball play-off goes to new format

Fans attending the Division II Men's Basketball Championship in Springfield, Massachusetts, will see more tournament action than ever.

Eight teams will travel to Springfield so that the quarterfinal, semifinal and championship games can be played on consecutive days at a neutral site.

"I think it is going to cause a lot more excitement for the players in regional play," Bentley coach Frank Sullivan said.

In addition, he likes the fact that players now will be able to see a team from each of the other regions and compare styles and quality of play. This will be the only opportunity many players get to see the other top teams.

"We don't really know the other teams in the top 20, except on paper," he said. "Now, in one conglomeration, the players can see the (statistical) leaders or the teams in the top 20 they have been reading about."

Bentley guard Jim Ferrer is one of those leaders. Through games of February 18, he was ranked third nationally in assists with a 9.7 average.

"Winning in the regional now becomes what you're trying to do," Ferris State coach Tom Ludwig said. "The importance of hosting the regional takes on new significance."

Ludwig likes the idea of adding another round at a neutral site. He would favor bringing all 32 teams to one site to play as the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics does.

"I really like (the new format)," Virginia Union coach Dave Robbins said. "It will give more teams and coaches an opportunity to see a first-class tournament (in Springfield)."

He said playing the quarterfinal game at a neutral site is probably fairer than playing it on a home court. He said some coaches might consider losing the week of preparation between the quarterfinals and the semifinals as a disadvantage, although he does not view it that way.

Robbins takes the approach that his team has to work on playing well rather than concerning itself with what the other team does.

"Talent is going to take over, and what you did all year is going to take over," Tampa coach Richard Schmidt said about the lack of preparation time.

Playing three games on consecutive nights could have a positive effect on the quality of play.

"Once you get started in a big tournament, everyone is keyed up and that lends itself to better play," Schmidt said.

Bellarmine coach Joe Reibel thinks that extra intensity is a hallmark of championship play.

"One thing you see in the tournament that you don't see during the year is the adrenaline flowing," Reibel said. "I think you see greater effort than at any other time."

Billy Holden, Bentley junior guard, has played a key role in the Falcons' outstanding season

Championship Profile

Event: Division II men's basketball.

Field: A total of 32 teams will compete for the 1989 championship.

Automatic qualification: California Collegiate Athletic Association, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Great Lakes Valley Conference, Great Northwest Conference, Gulf South Conference, Lone Star Conference, Midwest Collegiate Conference, Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New England Collegiate Conference, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northeast-10 Conference, Northern California Athletic Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Sunshine State Conference.

Defending champion: Lowell defeated Alaska-Anchorage, 75-72, to win the 1988 title.

Schedule: Regionals will be played March 17 and 18. The quarterfinals, semifinals and final will be played March 23 through 25 at the Springfield Civic Center in Springfield, Massachusetts.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores from the regionals and pairings will appear March 22. Championship results will be published March 29.

Contenders: UC Riverside, Virginia Union, Alaska-Anchorage, Bentley, Lock Haven.

Championship notes: This is the 33rd championship... Kentucky Wesleyan has played in 20 championships and has won five titles... Evansville (now in Division I) also has five titles... No other school has won more than one title... Last year, Lowell won the championship in its first tournament appearance... Two individual records and one team record set in the first tournament (1957) still stand.

Kenyon men seek 10th straight Division III swimming crown

Kenyon has dominated Division III men's swimming since 1980, when the Lords defeated Johns Hopkins by 96 points to capture the school's first NCAA team title in the sport. Eight more followed, usually in dominant fashion (the lowest margin of victory for Kenyon in those nine title-winning seasons was 46 points in 1981).

After a 36th consecutive North Coast Athletic Conference crown, Kenyon coach Jim Steen is favored to gain his 10th straight Division III men's title, a plateau never reached by an NCAA coach in any sport.

Senior Tom Creech, after sitting out last year, is swimming faster and stronger than ever, according to Steen. At the NCAC meet, Creech won three events and was part of two winning relay teams.

Another integral part of the Lords' squad is sprinter Jon Howell, who claimed two individual titles and swam on two winning relays. "Jon probably is our best sprinter,"

Jim Steen

Steen said. "He really is a sprinter in the best Kenyon tradition." The junior is the defending 50-yard freestyle champion and was fifth in the 100-yard freestyle at the 1988 championships.

Another characteristic of the team is strength in relays, which the Lords swept last year in the Division III championships. "We'll be hard pressed to win all five relays again this year, but I think it's still possible," Steen said. Last year, "David (Wenz) was a member of the 800 free relay that was one of the fastest ever." The performance (6:40.08) bettered the record set by Kenyon in 1986 by more than three seconds.

St. Olaf, sixth last year, should finish at least fourth this year—if coach David Hauck's predictions are accurate. "We recognize that we'll have to continue to work hard," Hauck commented.

"Every year, we try to finish in the top five or six. We have a lot of scoring potential, especially from the relays, so we're aiming for a higher finish this year."

That scoring potential can be found in Kevin Casson, Tim Niznik and Tim Olson. Casson, the defending champion and Division III record-holder in the 1,650-yard freestyle, also should place high in the 500-yard freestyle.

Meanwhile, UC San Diego may be the team best equipped to challenge Kenyon, but coach Bill Morgan emphasizes that "the individual efforts are what count in the team total.

"We're not going to the meet to beat Kenyon. Jim (Steen) has set a high standard for Division III swimming, one that's as good as most Division I schools," Morgan explained. "We use that as motivation to swim our best and score whatever points we can."

Included among the qualifiers who Morgan feels are capable of scoring are Dave Sacco, Brad Thomas and freshman Shannon Smith. Sacco was the runner-up in the 1,650-yard freestyle with a time of 15:38.24 and finished third in the 500-yard freestyle at 4:33.94.

Wheaton (Illinois) will be relying a lot on the relays to boost the team's finish, according to coach

Jon Lederhouse. "Since we have all of our individual-event swimmers back from last year and didn't really gain anyone, it will have to be the relays that make the difference," he said. The Crusaders return the swimmers who scored all 103 of last year's points.

Scoring credit goes in part to senior Rob O'Dell and juniors Rob Emary and Clark Richardson. O'Dell finished third last year in the 200-yard freestyle and fifth in the 500-yard freestyle, while Emary claimed first in the 200-yard butterfly. Lederhouse feels that Richardson's performances in the individual medleys and breaststroke events have improved and that Mark Aierstok is capable of scoring in the 1,650-yard freestyle.

Westfield State will drop nine sports because of costs

Westfield State College officials have announced that they are dropping nine varsity sports next fall because there is no money.

Athletics director F. Paul Bogan said the entire budget for college varsity sports as well as the intramural program comes from student fees, and administrators were reluctant to boost the $113.50 charge because of increased tuition and other fees students have faced due to state funding cutbacks.

The sports dropped are hockey, lacrosse, men's and women's volleyball, men's and women's tennis, golf, gymnastics, and indoor track, Bogan said.

The 3,000-student college currently participates in 23 varsity sports on the Division III level, according to Bogan.

The sports retained are football, men's and women's basketball, field hockey, track, men's and women's soccer, swimming, baseball, and softball.

Bogan said the college had estimated that the full sports program would have cost $361,862, while student fees would have generated about $317,000.

Liberty seeks Southern membership

The Southern Conference is studying Liberty University's application for membership, but a vote on the matter isn't likely for several years, a newspaper report says.

"There won't be a vote on Liberty this year," conference Commissioner Dave Hart told the Roanoke Times & World-News in an interview published March 6. "We're probably talking two years down the road, at least."

Hart said the conference will continue to study the program at the Lynchburg, Virginia, school. Liberty is in its first season playing in NCAA Division I.

Under conference rules, a school seeking affiliation would need votes from six of eight schools to gain membership.

Championships Profile

Event: Division III men's swimming and diving

Field: The field will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Kenyon will be going for its 10th consecutive team championship, all under head coach Jim Steen.

Schedule: Bowdoin will host the championships March 16-18.

The NCAA News coverage: Results will be published in the March 22 issue of the News.

Top contenders: UC San Diego, Kenyon, St. Olaf and Wheaton (Illinois).

Championships notes: In the 14 years of the Division III men's championships, only four schools have won the team title - Cal St. Chico (one), St. Lawrence (one), Johns Hopkins (three) and Kenyon (nine)... The one-meter diving champion from last year was Oberlin's Sean Fri, while three-meter honors went to Bill Nixon of Merchant Marine... Kenyon claimed a record number of individual championships last year, winning nine of the 20 events... Records broken in 1988 were in the 200- and 500-yard freestyles (Dennis Mulvihill, Kenyon), the 200-yard medley relay (Kenyon), and the 200- and 800-yard freestyle relays (Kenyon).

Vermont mounts comeback for team skiing title

After trailing by 14 points on the final day of competition in a championship that saw the lead change six times over four days, Vermont emerged as a four-point champion over Utah in the NCAA Men's and Women's Skiing Championships.

It took a perfect 1-2-3-4 finish in the women's freestyle cross country event for the Catamounts to overtake defending champion Utah, 672-668, in the meet hosted by Wyoming and held at Jackson Hole.

Colorado finished third (608½) and Wyoming was fourth (592).

"Until I saw the official team results, I was still eating Roloids," Vermont ski coach Chip LaCasse said. "It was one of the most exciting championships I have seen in 20 years of going to these as a participant and coach."

The championship was a match up between two undefeated squads in regular-season competition; and the premeet favorite was Utah, which was regarded as having its best team in a decade that already has seen coach Pat Miller collect six NCAA titles.

Everything seemed to be going according to script after the first day. In an abbreviated women's giant slalom—the event was discontinued after one run because of heavy snowfall and poor visibility—Utah was 20 points ahead of New Mexico. Vermont was 57 points behind in sixth place.

"The next day, we lost 72 points to Vermont in some very predictable races," Miller said. "That was really the killer."

Vermont put three skiers in the top 10 of the postponed men's giant slalom, while Utah had only one. Then, Sari Argillander and Laura Wilson finished first and second in the women's diagonal cross country and Joe Galanes was second to Utah's Hans Sjulstad in the men's. Vermont was ahead, 344-331, at the end of the day.

"It was like a roller coaster," LaCasse said. "Our kids were really low after the first day. The fog was really bad when we were on the hill (in the women's giant slalom), and our kids felt that they had been taken out of the meet."

"But I have to hand it to them. They never gave up; and the next day, we were back on top again."

The ride wasn't over, however. Vermont's Gabriella Hamberg defended her championship in the women's slalom; but the Catamounts' No. 2 Alpine skier, Sirgrid Katzenberger, was injured free skiing and was unable to compete.

Utah swept the next four places after Hamberg and beat Vermont in the men's slalom to recapture the lead, 501-487, at the end of the third day. Time was running out for LaCasse and the Cats.

"The women's mass-start freestyle cross country was one of the most exciting and beautiful races I've ever seen," LaCasse said.

Vermont's Argillander, Selma Lie, Brenda White and Wilson broke from the pack early in the 15-kilometer event and raced the course together, changing the lead frequently and "drafting" off each other.

"The last 400 meters opens up, and the sight of four members of the same team sprinting for the finish and the top four places is really a beautiful thing to see," LaCasse said. "As far as I'm concerned, they all finished first."

Officially, it was Argillander, Lie, White and Wilson; but Wilson was only one second behind Argillander.

Ice hockey rosters dotted with Olympic standouts

Last year, they were teammates on the U.S. Olympic ice hockey team. This year, as many as five former Olympians could compete against each other at the NCAA Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship.

"I think the field this year is outstanding; better than last year," said Ron Mason, coach at Michigan State. "For one thing, it's not an Olympic year and you have a lot of kids back from that squad."

With the return of Olympic standouts Lane MacDonald and Allen Bourbeau, Harvard (24-2) successfully has reunited a talented group of returning players to contend once again for the national title.

But Bill Cleary, in his 19th year as coach of the Crimson, is quick to point out that this is not a two-man team.

Crimson gold

"This is the best group of forwards that I have ever had at Harvard. We play all four lines and each one of them can score goals."

MacDonald (22 goals, 24 assists, 46 points), whom Cleary claims "can do it all," and the talented Bourbeau (10-33-43) have "taken the pressure off the younger kids," as evidenced by the play of sophomore Peter Ciavaglia (10-38-48), Harvard's leading scorer for the second straight year, and forwards C. J. Young (26-18-44) and Ted Donato (11-29-40).

The move of senior Nick Carone (7-12-19) from forward to the blue line has added strength to the Crimson defense. Josh Caplan, Kevan Melrose, Kevin Sneddon and Brian McCormack all have performed "extremely well" this season.

In goal, Cleary has rotated freshmen Chuckie Hughes (11-1, 2.73 goals-against average, .904 save percentage) and Allain Roy (11-1, 2.46, .916), with nearly identical results.

Home-town favorites

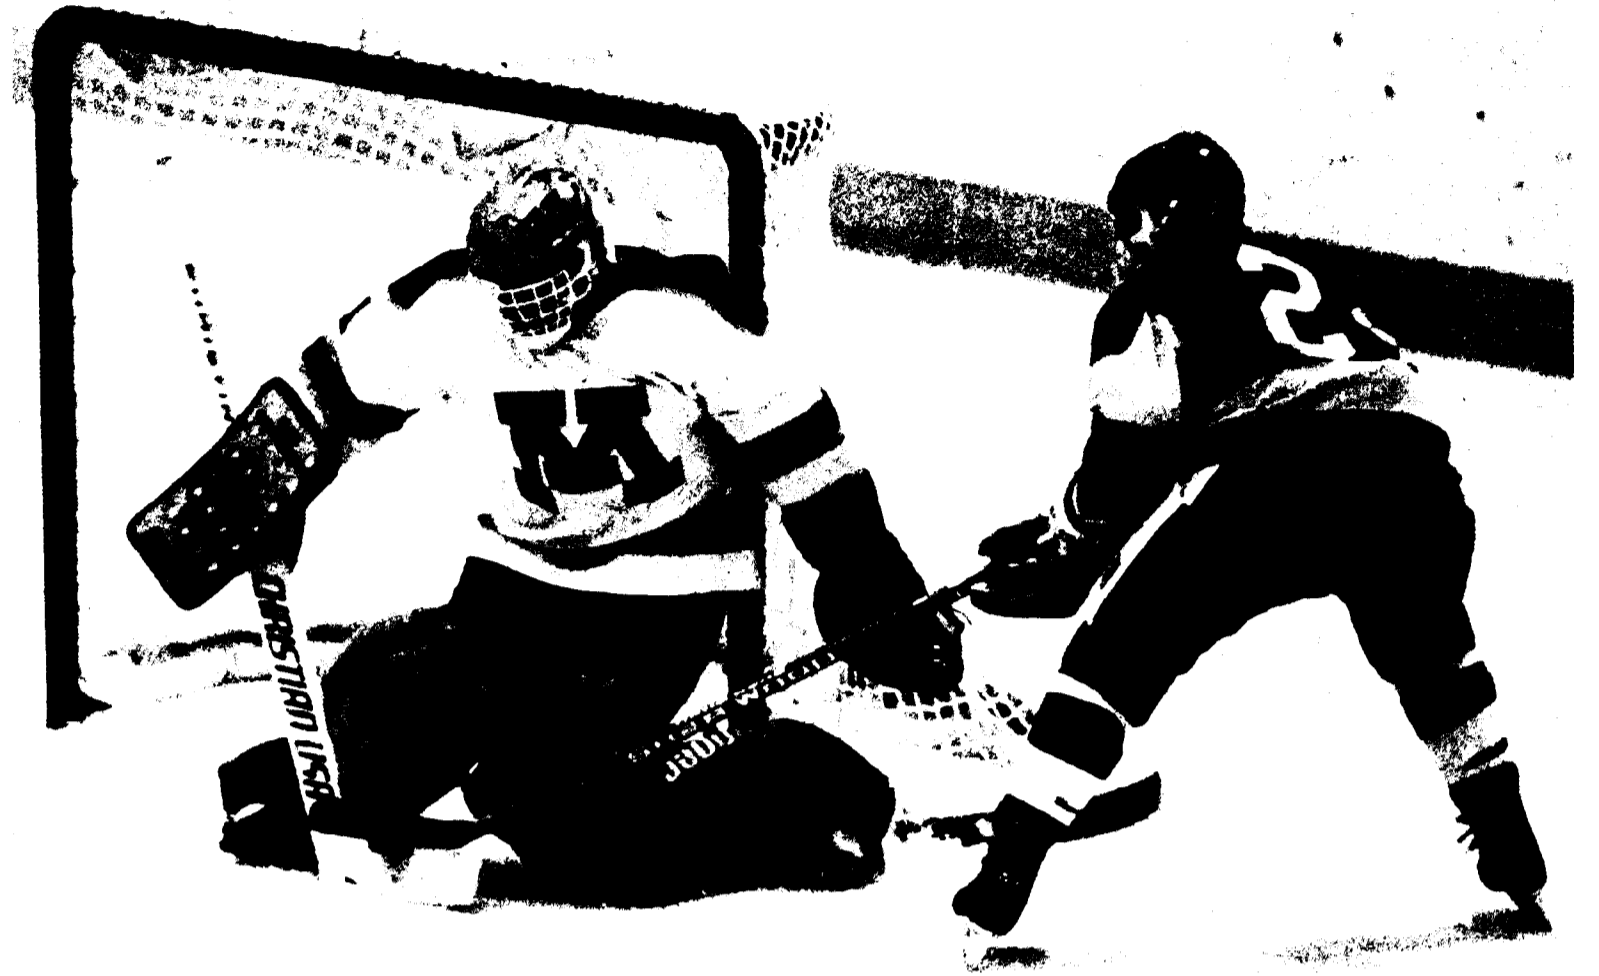

Think Minnesota's faithful had anything to do with the St. Paul Civic Center selling out two months in advance of this year's championship? You bet, and with good reason.

Championship preview

Doug Woog possibly has the finest squad in his four years as coach of the Golden Gophers. For the fifth year in a row, Minnesota (31-8-3) has notched at least 30 victories. In addition, the Golden Gophers won the Western Collegiate Hockey Association for the second year in a row, and by the largest margin ever—14 points.

Olympic teammates Dave Snuggerud (27-19-46) and Tom Chorske (23-16-39), along with right wing

1988 Hobey Baker Award winner Robb Stauber is in goal again for Minnesota and has compiled season statistics that are better than Peter Hankinson (15-25-40) and center Jason Miller (11-27-38), have led the offensive attack.

Defensively, Todd Richards (5-28-33), the all-time leading Gopher defenseman in assists and total points, heads a unit that also in-

Nos. 1 and 2

The Spartans' explosive offense is led by the nation's two leading scorers, center Kip Miller (28-41-69) and left wing Bobby Reynolds (30-34-64).

A team that "has the ingredients to be successful," Mason's squad has relied on skill and finesse in posting its third Central Collegiate Hockey Association title in the last five years.

"We have a better balanced team than I have had in a while," said Mason, who this season moved into second place on the all-time victory chart. "We have a lot of guys who can score goals but we also have played excellent defense. Our special teams also have been very good all year long."

Outstanding is more like it. The Spartans have scored 73 power-play goals—one short of the Michigan State record.

At the blue line, Steve Beadle (12-33-45), captain Chris Luongo (4-18-22) and Chris Woolley (11-17-28) have been outstanding. The three also have delivered the puck at the offensive end. Sophomore goaltender Jason Muzzatti (25-7-1, 2.82, .879), who Mason says "is an aggressive-style goalie with great on-ice presence," led the CCHA in wins, goals-against average and shut-outs (three).

Eagles dare

With the return of Tim Sweeney from injury and Greg Brown from the Olympic squad and the outstanding performance of senior goaltender David Littman, Boston College (21-8-4) is back in the hunt after a losing season last year.

The Eagles won their fourth Hockey East regular-season title in five years with a 16-6-4 mark. Along with those he posted last season. Stauber is fully healed from an ankle injury he sustained earlier this season.

way, coach Len Ceglarski won his 600th game, becoming the first coach in collegiate ice hockey history to accomplish the feat.

Sweeney (23-36-59) scored at least one point in 30 of 33 games en route to the Hockey East scoring title. Sophomores David Emma (16-28-44) and Steve Scheifele (23-14-37), along with freshman Steve Heinze (20-17-37), have added punch up front.

Brown (9-30-39), a talented sophomore, has been the solidifying force in the Eagles attack. As well as patrolling the defensive zone with Paul Marshall, David Buckley and Mike Mallowney, Brown also runs the power play.

Littman (15-6-4, 3.09, .902) leads the league in victories, games, goals-against average and save percentage.

Olympic standout Lane MacDonald of Harvard is called a player who "can do it all" by his coach, Bill Cleary

Championship Profile

Event: Division I men's ice hockey.

Automatic qualification: Central Collegiate Hockey Association, Eastern College Athletic Conference, Hockey East, Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

Defending champion: Lake Superior State defeated St. Lawrence in overtime, 4-3, for the 1988 title.

Schedule: First-round games are set for March 17, 18 or 19 and will be played at on-campus sites. Also to be played on campus are the quarterfinals, March 24, 25, 26 or 27. The semifinals and championship will be played March 30, 31 and April 1 at the Civic Center in St. Paul, Minnesota.

The NCAA News coverage: The March 22 and 29 issues of the News will carry scores and pairings. Championship results will appear April 5.

Contenders: Boston College, Harvard, Lake Superior State, Maine, Michigan State, Minnesota, St. Lawrence.

Championship notes: Teams from 31 institutions have played in the championship... Only twice (1968 and 1972) has the championship game featured a shut-out... Colorado Springs was the site of the first 10 championship games... Denver owns the largest margin of victory in a title game (10 goals). The Pioneers defeated St. Lawrence, 12-2, in 1961... Minnesota has won 25 games in championship competition—more than any Division I institution.

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee:

Amateurism—Olympic Games

1. Expenses for national team participation. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 16.11.1.3, a Council-approved interpretation [reference: Legislative Assistance Column No. 5 (April 25, 1984), Item No. 1] and Bylaw 12.5.1.2.1(a), and agreed that a student-athlete who was a member of the U.S. national volleyball team and received expenses for personal appearances and remuneration for the use of his name and picture to advertise the sale of a commercial product acted contrary to the provisions of Bylaws 12.5.1.2.1 and 16.11.1.3; requested that the Council ask the NCAA Special Committee to Review Amateurism Issues to consider the provisions of Bylaws 12.1.2(e) and 16.11.1.3 and develop more specific language to define proper expenses (including housing) that athletes may receive from outside sports teams.

Charitable/educational promotions

2. Involvement of coaches and enrolled student-athletes in public service announcements. Determined that a state high school athletics association is not considered a charitable or educational agency under the provisions of Bylaw 12.5.1.1.2; agreed, therefore, that the provisions of Bylaws 13.3.3.1 and 13.15 would preclude a coach's or student-athlete's picture from being used in a public service announcement for state high school athletics associations.

Conference No. 3
February 9, 1989

Equipment

3. Use of institutional athletics equipment during the academic year. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 16.12.1.6 and 16.12.2.6, and a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 10 of the minutes of the committee's February 19, 1987, conference), and confirmed that a student-athlete would initiate the provisions of Bylaw 17.02.7(e) [participation in intercollegiate competition] if the student-athlete retains and utilizes institutional athletics equipment (e.g., golf bag, tennis racquet case) for any competition throughout the regular academic year.

Convention Proposal No. 16

4. International football contest. Requested that the Council review the provisions of Bylaw 17.7.5.2(g) and the provisions of 1989 Convention Proposal No. 16 to determine whether the annual exemption for international football competition was intended to include competition against a foreign team other than contests that take place on foreign tours; suggested that such an exemption (for other competition) should not be available and that the Council should sponsor legislation to delete the international game exemption under Bylaw 17.7.5.2, since it is understood to relate to foreign tour activities that now are monitored by the involved member institution.

Eligibility

5. Use of remedial courses for purposes of full-time enrollment. Agreed that the provisions of Bylaw 14.1.5.2.3 would permit a member institution to count noncredit work

Georgia Tech finds point guard in English soccer player

Karl Brown, starting point guard on the Georgia Institute of Technology men's basketball team, has come a long way from his native Leicester, England. "All I wanted to do was stay (in America) one year and go back home," he said recently. Five years ago, he arrived in the U.S. for a year at South Dade High School in Homestead, Florida, as an exchange student.

"I played basketball at the high school I attended, and I enjoyed it and did pretty well," he said of that sophomore season. "My coach asked me if I would come back again, so I came back for my junior year. I didn't want to come back for my senior year, but then I thought I should go ahead and get my high school diploma. I had a really good senior year, and that's how I really got started."

Brown now runs the Georgia Tech offense, after spending two years at Chipola Junior College in Marianna, Florida. "I always wanted to come (to America)," said the former soccer player. "I gave up my soccer career to experience this."

Several member institutions' baseball teams will host the Soviet national team on that squad's first American tour. After arriving in Washington, D.C., April 9, the Russian team will play exhibition games at Florida Southern University; George Washington University; Georgia Institute of Technology; the University of Maryland, College Park; the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; the U.S. Naval Academy, and Virginia Commonwealth University.

The tour is being sponsored by the United States Baseball Federation.

Trivia Time: How many no-hitters have occurred in the College World Series? Answer later.

Mike DeCicco, who is completing his 28th season as men's fencing coach at the University of Notre Dame, has received the U.S. Olympic Committee's Jack Kelly Fair Play Award for 1988. DeCicco accepted the award last month in Portland, Oregon, during the USOC's quadrennial meeting.

Established in 1985 to honor the late John B. Kelly Jr., former USOC president and the brother of Grace Kelly, the award is presented annually by the USOC education committee to an athlete, coach or official for an outstanding act of fair play and sportsmanship. DeCicco was recognized for efforts that averted a potentially serious international incident during the 1988 world fencing championships, which Notre Dame hosted.

During opening ceremonies, each country's national anthem was played while its team entered the arena—except for Cuba. When an error on the schedule caused omission of the Cuban national anthem, that country's delegation immediately departed intending to withdraw from the competition.

DeCicco stopped Rafaela Gonzalez, leader of the Cuban delegation, and explained the situation. He then escorted the group back into the opening ceremonies, carrying the team's banner.

ball—the show on the scoreboard ought to be a good one, too.

During the recent Information, Display and Entertainment Association (IDEA) convention in Anaheim, California, a "Golden Matrix Award" for best musical piece was presented to Galen Armstrong, director of scoreboard operations at the Kingdome, for a motorcycle-racing "music video" he developed on the arena's Mitsubishi Diamond Vision screen.

Taking two GMAs for his work on a Whiteway 1000 Matrix Board was Joe Daniels, director of scoreboard operations at Ohio State University. He won for best matrix-board presentation and most imaginative use of existing equipment.

With its February 28 home men's basketball game against the University of Connecticut, Syracuse University became the first member institution in NCAA history to exceed 500,000 in single-season home attendance.

Louisiana Tech alumnus Terry Bradshaw, who went on to earn a spot in the pro football hall of fame by leading the Pittsburgh Steelers to four world championships, has established an athletics award and a scholarship at the Ruston, Louisiana, school.

The Bradshaw Scholarship will be presented annually and will be funded in part by proceeds from a celebrity golf tournament. In addition, the Louisiana Tech student-athlete chosen as the school's athlete of the year will receive the Bradshaw Award.

"We are excited about having Terry involved in these projects," said Paul A. Miller, Louisiana Tech athletics director. "I am particularly excited about the scholarship," added Bradshaw, "because I think it is important to link athletics and academics."

Proceeds from the 14th annual Whaling City Ford Men's Basketball Tournament, hosted by Connecticut College and the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, recently were donated by the schools' athletics directors to an educational foundation established by the parents of four area youths who died in a traffic accident last November.

He accepted the donation from Charles Luce, Connecticut College AD, and Capt. James E. Foels, Coast Guard AD.

More Report Cards: Charlie Stock and Casey Bradley became the first four-time academic all-North Coast Conference football players recently when the North Dakota State University seniors were named to the league's 1988 team. Stock, a linebacker, had a 3.620 grade-point average (4.000 scale) in physical education. A punter, Bradley maintained a 3.080 GPA in business administration.

According to a news release from Georgia Southern College, Eagle baseball player Darin Van Tassel was the only varsity athlete among the 12 national finalists for a Rhodes scholarship.

Four Southeastern Louisiana University student-athletes earned 4.000 GPAs last fall and were among 43 student-athletes who compiled GPAs of at least 3.000, according to Al LeBlanc, associate athletics director. The perfect quartet included men's tennis players Hakan Bennhage, Ola Fjellstrom and Mickael Johnsson and women's basketball player Pat Jackson. "The semester grade-point average for our athletes was up for the third straight term to 2.544," LeBlanc noted.

February 25, fans at Brown University and Davidson College bade farewell to comfortable old basketball facilities. Brown's Marvel Gymnasium was closed after 62 seasons and will be replaced by the Paul Bailey Pizzitola Memorial Sports Center. Davidson's Johnston Gym was closed after 40 seasons. Wildcat

Wolfpack joins antidrug effort

The North Carolina State University men's basketball team is sending out a message against drug abuse.

For the second consecutive year, local police departments are giving out North Carolina State basketball trading cards that include antidrug slogans. The cards, which feature color photos of players, head coach James T. Valvano and women's basketball coach Kay Yow, the coach of the gold medal U.S. Olympic women's team, are sponsored by the Adolescent CareUnit of the Alamance Health Services and IBM.

"This is one of the most gratifying service projects our students have been involved in," said Valvano. "Certainly, with the drug-abuse crisis in our country, we appreciate the opportunity to encourage youngsters to fight against drugs."

Police departments that will have a supply of trading cards are the Raleigh Police Department, Durham City Police, Durham County Sheriff's Department, Orange County Sheriff's Department, Chapel Hill Police, Burlington Police, Hawl River Police, Greensboro Police and Winston-Salem Police. Larry Haverland, program director of the Adolescent CareUnit, is coordinating the distribution.

Cards also were available to the first 2,500 fans attending the North Carolina State basketball game with Virginia February 26 in Reynolds Coliseum.

teams will move into Belk Arena in the Baker Sports Complex next year.

More Report Cards: From Pan American University comes a report card with a twist. Abel Cavazos, superintendent of the LaSara Independent School District near Pan American, treated 51 elementary students (kindergarten through eighth grade) to Pan American's men's basketball game against the University of Missouri, Kansas City, as a reward for their reading accomplishments. The youngsters combined to read 1,632 books an average of 32 each—during this school year.

Six Drake University student-athletes with 4.000 grade-point averages (4.000 scale) were among 76 scholar-athletes honored by the school late last month. All earned GPAs of at least 3.000. The 4.000s were compiled by Susan Brandt, Jeffrey Glasheen, Michael Kennedy, Patrick Kitchen, Tracey Neuville and Jeffery Wiese.

Three football players with GPAs of 3.700 or higher were among the 26 named to the Heartland Collegiate Conference all-academic team for 1988. All of the honorees carried at least a 3.000. The top GPAs belong to Ashland College junior Doug Powell (3.800 in business management), Butler University sophomore Jon Evans (3.700 in economics) and Valparaiso University senior Mike Deisher (3.700 in engineering).

Millersville University of Pennsylvania women student-athletes handled themselves well in the classroom during the fall semester, according to data released by Marjorie A. Trout, women's athletics director. The combined GPA for all women student-athletes was 2.870, and those competing in fall sports combined to produce a 3.000 GPA.

With 4.000s, Jill Everhart and Lisa Reichenbach head a list of 99 Mary Washington College student-athletes who were named to the school's athletics honor roll by earning at least a 3.000 for the fall semester. "At a school in which admission and academic curricula are exceptionally high, we feel that (this) is an outstanding achievement," wrote Vince Benigni, Mary Washington sports information director.

University of South Florida officials have announced that 68 of the school's 183 student-athletes earned fall-semester GPAs of at least 3.000. The rifle, women's tennis and women's cross country teams all produced cumulative semester GPAs above 3.000.

Trivia Answer: Two no-hitters have been pitched during the College World Series—and Dwight D. Eisenhower was in the White House for the last one. Jim Ehrlert turned in the first no-hitter June 19, 1950, while on the mound for the University of Texas, Austin, in a CWS game against Tufts University. The second—and last—CWS no-hitter was turned in by Oklahoma State University pitcher Jim Wixson against North Carolina State University June 15, 1960. Final scores? Both were 7-0.

Nebraska bill to control sports agents survives kill attempt

A measure that would require sports agents to register and post bond with the Nebraska secretary of state survived a kill attempt during lengthy debate on the floor of the Nebraska Legislature March 6.

This was the first year that the bill, sponsored by Sens. Jim McFarland of Lincoln, Jerry Chizek of Omaha and Elroy Hefner of Cole-ridge, made it out of committee for consideration by the entire legislature. The Judiciary Committee voted 5-1 to send the bill to the floor this year.

championships. His teams made 12 trips to the Final Four and were 47-10 in tournament play.

Before you give your coach a hard time for "not winning the big one," consider that Wooden's won-lost record over his first 12 NCAA tournament games was 3-9. His finish was a trifle better at 44-1.

Wooden was a product of Indiana high school basketball probably the hottest of all basketball hot beds. There are high school conferences in Indiana with per-game attendance averages above the national Division I average.

Wooden was a three-time all-America at Purdue in 1930-31-32. Another Indiana product who did not play college ball but was a big-winning high school coach in Indiana was Everett Case, a .739 winner over 19 seasons at North Carolina State through 1964. One of Case's pupils was Vic Bubas, who had a 213-67 record at Duke in the decade of the 1960s, with three Final Four teams. Wooden's first title came in 1964 over a Bubas team in Kansas City. Bubas now is commissioner of the Sun Belt Conference.

Kentucky's Rupp ranks second to Wooden with four championships and a 30-18 record in NCAA tournament play. He had six teams in the Final Four and eight others missed the Final Four by one victory.

Rupp played under another legend, Forrest C. "Phog" Allen, on a Kansas team that was named Helms Foundation national champion for 1923. Allen, whose 770 victories are second to Rupp, played at Kansas under James Naismith, who had invented the game in 1891 at Springfield College.

Allen's pupils at Kansas include the top two active coaches in Division I in career wins — Ralph Miller of Oregon State and Dean Smith of North Carolina. Miller enters the Pac-10 tournament with a 21-6 record and 673 career wins, while Smith enters the ACC meet with a 24-7 record and 662 lifetime victories. Smith's NCAA record is 39-19 (second to Wooden in wins), with seven teams in the Final Four and four more that missed it by one victory.

Women's leaders

Louisiana Tech has the best tournament record in NCAA women's Division I championship history at 25-5 with two champions and five teams in the finals and semifinals. Southern California at 19-5 with two champions and Tennessee, 21-6 with one champion, are next.

Four more teams have double-digit total victories in NCAA play — Texas 15-5 with one champion, Long Beach State 14-7 with two semifinalists, Old Dominion 12-5 with one champion, and Georgia 12-7 with two semifinalists. These seven teams have won all seven titles since the first tournament in 1982.

McFarland, a former University of Nebraska, Lincoln, football player who also played professional ball with the then-St. Louis Cardinals, said the bill is necessary to prevent the abuses of a few unscrupulous sports agents in dealing with student-athletes.

Agents would be required to:

- Register with the secretary of state.
- Post a $25,000 surety bond and pay a $250 filing fee.
- Have fees, not to exceed 10 percent of the contract, approved by the secretary of state.
- Submit to an irrevocable consent to service and be subject to the long-arm statutes so they can be prosecuted if they live out of state.
- Be subject to a class III misdemeanor (three months in prison, $500 fine) for violation.

Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha, who has several athletics bills in various stages of legislative consideration now, opposed the bill for a variety of reasons, best summed up by his statement that "this is a bad bill in more ways than one."

He said the bill would make "the state the enforcement arm of the NCAA," the Associated Press reported.

In making a motion to kill the bill, Chambers said, "The key terms are not defined; there needs to be more work done on the bill."

The motion failed by a vote of 29-13.

Chambers then offered the first of what he said would be several amendments to the bill. Hefner said Chambers, who voted against advancement from committee, should have offered the amendment in committee.

McFarland said he'd be willing to work out any problems with the bill but was critical of Chambers' attempts to do that on the floor "and taking up the time of the whole body."

The amendment, which would strike a portion dealing with a written warning to student-athletes about signing a contract, failed by a 15-11 vote.

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q Has a coach ever led men's and women's teams to NCAA titles in the same sport in the same year?

A Two coaches have accomplished such double victories. Ivan Danois was the first. His Wayne State University (Michigan) men's and women's fencing squads won NCAA team titles in 1982. Five years later, George Williams led the men's and women's indoor track teams from St. Augustine's College to NCAA Division III team crowns.

Two repeat as basketball academic all America selections

Michael Smith of Brigham Young University and Alec Kessler of the University of Georgia are repeat first-team GTE basketball academic all-Americans.

The team is selected by a vote of the 1,400-member College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA). A student-athlete must be a starter or a key reserve on a varsity team and must maintain a cumulative grade-point average of at least 3.200 (4.000 scale).

This marks the third time that Smith has been named to the first team. The 6-10 center ranks among the nation's leaders in scoring and free-throw percentage. He is a senior majoring in Spanish.

Kessler, a 6-10 forward, is averaging about 20 points per game and has paced the Southeastern Conference in rebounding with an average of approximately 10 rebounds per game. He is a junior majoring in microbiology.

Kessler and Phil Hutcheson of David Lipscomb College were named academic all-Americans of the year in the university and college divisions, respectively. This honor goes to the individuals who "best represent the qualities of an academic all-America." Hutcheson is a junior and has maintained a 4.000 GPA as a political science/communications major. The 6-8 forward averages just under 30 points per

Federation names assistant director

Frank Kovaleski, director of athletics for the Richmond Community Schools, Richmond, Indiana, will join the National Federation of State High School Associations staff June 1 as an assistant director.

Kovaleski's responsibilities will include administering programs and serving as rules editor in track and field; working with athletics directors' programs, including the National Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association (NIAAA), as well as selecting sites and planning meetings for the National Federation's four annual meetings.

His duties will be basically the same as those held by Tom Frederick, associate director of the National Federation who is retiring effective July 31. Frederick, who will work with Kovaleski for two months, is retiring after 22 years with the National Federation.

A graduate of Bicknell (Indiana) High School, Kovaleski earned a bachelor's degree in 1963 from Indiana State University and a master's in 1969 from St. Francis College (Indiana).

(including remedial courses) toward fulfilling the minimum full-time enrollment (12-hour) requirement, provided the noncredit work is given the same academic load value and is considered by the institution to be a requirement for the degree currently being pursued by the student.

Printed recruiting aids

6. Conference academic brochures/Convention Proposal No. 99 (Divisions I and II). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 13.3.1 and a previous committee decision (reference: Item No. 7 of the minutes of the committee's January 22, 1987, conference), and agreed that a member conference may not produce a separate academic brochure for distribution to prospective student-athletes; further, agreed that a member institution may print both an annual athletics press guide and an annual athletics recruiting brochure with the understanding that it is permitted to send only one to prospective student-athletes; finally, confirmed a staff interpretation that the provisions of 1989 Convention Proposal No. 99 amending Bylaw 13.3.1 would permit a member institution to produce one student-athlete handbook with the same color of printing on the covers and throughout the handbook.

Financial aid

7. Terms of institutional financial aid award (Divisions I and II). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 15.3.1.3 and 15.3.2.3, and determined that a student-athlete who transferred from one Division I member institution to another could receive financial aid for the fall 1988 semester (although it was not distributed until February 1989) when the second institution held the financial assistance until its registrar received the student's official transcript to confirm the student's eligibility to receive athletically related financial aid; noted that the institution had provided a conference's declaration of athletics eligibility form signed by the student-athlete outlining the athletically related financial assistance that the student-athlete expected to receive for the fall 1988 term.

Football playing season

8. Football playing season by Division I-A schools in the Football Hall of Fame Game (Division I). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 17.7.5.2-(b) and the legislative intent (page 182, 1983 NCAA Convention Proceedings) of this bylaw, and confirmed the understanding that at least seven Division I-A member conferences must have a representative participate in the Football Hall of Fame Game at least one time every seven years; instructed the staff to correspond with the game's organizers to communicate this understanding.

Convention Proposal No. 144

9. Promotional activities. Reviewed the provisions of 1989 Convention Proposal No. 144 amending Bylaw 12.5, which allows member institutions and charitable organizations to utilize a student-athlete's name, picture or appearance to support their charitable or educational activities, or to support activities considered incidental to the student-athlete's participation in intercollegiate athletics; confirmed that a member institution now may provide or sell autographed game balls for this purpose; further, agreed that a student-athlete should be permitted to receive actual and necessary travel and meal expenses only within the state or, if outside the state, within a 100-mile radius of the institution's campus, when the student-athlete participates in the permissible charitable or educational activities.

Donations honor former athletes

Subscriptions totaling $800,000 in honor of eight former Abilene Christian University football players have been made to the football endowment fund.

The $800,000 in gifts and pledges and a $12 million endowment campaign for athletics were announced February 18.

Eight $100,000 endowment funds were established for Don Cobb of Stamford, Pat Holder of Bedford, Jerry Jones of Brownfield, Jack Kiser of Austin, Jim Lindsey of Abilene, Steve Paxton of Richardson, Wayne Walton of Colleyville, and Jack Stites of Cookeville, Tennessee.

Ivy teams to note 50th anniversary of televised sports

By Mark Panus

The 50th anniversary of the first televised sporting event, the 1939 Princeton vs. Columbia baseball game, will be celebrated by the Ivy League, Columbia University and Princeton University April 8.

Jeffrey H. Orleans, executive director of the Council of Ivy Group Presidents, has announced that before this year's Princeton-Columbia double-header, the anniversary will be marked by a short ceremony and the dedication of a plaque commemorating the 1939 event.

The ceremony will take place at Columbia's Baker Field at 11:30 a.m., and the first game of the double-header is scheduled to begin at 12 p.m. In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held at Christie Fieldhouse, adjacent to Baker Field.

On May 17, 1939, Columbia played host to Princeton in a game that transcended the Eastern Baseball League's standings in terms of historic impact. The second game of the twin bill was unique because a single NBC camera, perched precariously on a wooden stand overlooking Baker Field in Manhattan, was making television history. A sporting event was being televised for the first time.

Fewer than 400 television sets were in use at the time, and there were no network facilities. From a 12-foot-high wooden stand constructed on the third-base side of the diamond, a 16-man crew from NBC manned a pioneer iconoscope camera that transmitted picture impulses of the game through a coiling cable to the truck. The impulses were directed from the truck to the 85th floor of the Empire State Building by means of the flagpole antenna.

There, they were retransmitted by NBC's experimental station W2XBS to clusters of viewers in Radio City, advertising agencies and the homes of pioneer set owners.

Announcer Bill Stern called the game, a formidable task without the benefit of knowing what the viewers were seeing. Stern did not have a monitor; and in any event, filming the game with just one camera did not allow the viewers to follow all the action. For that reason, Stern and his colleagues found themselves rooting for strikeouts, because that was the only action that the viewer could clearly follow.

Measles causes public lockout for tournament

Fans have been barred from attending the 1989 Eastern College Athletic Conference North Atlantic men's basketball tournament March 9-11 at the Hartford, Connecticut, Civic Center because of measles outbreaks on two member campuses.

League Commissioner Stuart P. Haskell Jr., after meeting with representatives from league members in Boston February 24, announced that only coaches, players, media and support personnel would be permitted inside the civic center for the three-day play-offs.

The lockout was ordered after measles outbreaks at the University of Hartford and Siena College and is intended to prevent the possibility of the highly contagious disease being transmitted by Siena and Hartford fans.

All players have been tested for measles, and only those who pose no threat of spreading the disease will be permitted to play.

handily, 8-6, but the televised half of the double-header was more exciting. Both pitchers, Hector Dowd of Columbia and Dan Carmichael of

The importance of that Princeton-Columbia encounter was not then apparent to everyone. Newspaper accounts on the following day

"That one baseball game had been televised was given very little attention in the papers. Many critics assumed that televised sports were little more than a passing fancy."

made much of the fact that by winning two games, Princeton had knocked Columbia out of contention for the Eastern Baseball title. That one baseball game had been televised was given very little attention in the papers.

Many critics assumed that televised sports were little more than a passing fancy.

In a Sunday New York Times review, Orrin E. Dunlap Jr. remarked that the viewer lacked freedom; that seeing baseball by television was too confining, and that it was a novelty. Dunlap posed the question, "Where are the peanuts, the pop, the scorecards, hot-dogs and the mustard pot?"

Others who witnessed the first baseball telecast, however, recognized in the event the dawning of a new day in American sports. The fight promoter, Mike Jacobs, speculated after the Columbia-Princeton game that someday, he'd sell television rights for a championship bout for as much as $1 million.

NBC must have been satisfied with its $3,000 experiment because later that summer, NBC aired its first Major League Baseball game—

August 26, 1939, Dodgers vs. Reds from Ebbets Field—and in the fall of 1939, its first football game—Fordham vs. Waynesburg College from Randall's Island Stadium.

From a modest beginning just 50 years ago, televised sports have become a national fixture and an industry worth billions of dollars.

Merely speculated about in 1939, rights fees for premiere events are well over the million-dollar mark today. Televising sports has done more than create jobs. Television has increased the spectator aspect of all sports and broadened the spectator base from those at the game to those in front of a television set—a quantum leap in terms of audience and appeal.
