NYSP gets $3 million for drug-abuse prevention

The expanded role of drug education in the National Youth Sports Program as NYSP embarks on its 21st year was the focus of discussion at the program's national workshop March 3-4 in Washington, D.C.

A $3 million Federal appropriation will allow NYSP to expand its efforts in the area of drug-abuse prevention. The number of hours devoted to this subject in the program's enrichment component will increase from three to 7½.

In addition, a drug-education specialist will be hired by each project to coordinate the program curriculum with existing drug-abuse education resources in the community. The specialists will be drawn from among professionals in the area of drug education.

Year-round programming is being proposed at selected institutions to serve youth in areas that have a high occurrence of drug abuse and related problems. These NYSP projects would include mentoring/role-model associations with undergraduate student-athletes, referral of drug-abuse problem cases to supportive community service agencies, and extended family activities designed to involve parents of program participants in drug education.

Between October and April, participating institutions would serve approximately 250 enrolled participants, of which half would be returnees from the NYSP summer program.

This year's workshop included a session on drug education conducted by Mark Lucas and Ken Cunningham of Hazelden Health Promotion Services.

Other workshops will be held before the project starting dates. A national drug-education specialist training workshop is scheduled April 15-16 at the Kansas City International Marriott, and 22 regional workshops for auxiliary staff members will be held in April and May.

During the national workshop, NYSP representatives took time out to visit the offices of members of Congress. These sessions are used to thank the members for past support of NYSP and to ask for support for future funding.

A lunch reception was held on Capitol Hill March 2. Georgetown University men's basketball coach John Thompson was a featured speaker, as was Marino H. Casem, director of athletics at Southern University, Baton Rouge, and a member of the NCAA Executive Committee.

In attendance were Sens. Dennis DeConcini, D-Arizona; Pete V. Domenici, R-New Mexico, and Strom Thurmond, R-South Carolina; Reps. Herbert H. Bateman, R-Virginia; Howard Coble, R-North Carolina; E. Thomas Coleman, R-Missouri; Clyde C. Holloway, R-Louisiana; Bob Livingston, R-Louisiana; Larkin Smith, R-Mississippi, and Tom Tauke, R-Iowa, and Delegate Walter E. Fauntroy, D-District of Columbia. It was the largest number of Congressmen to attend the luncheon in the past three years.

Legislation on graduation rates revived

Sen. Bill Bradley and two other former college athletes who are now members of Congress reintroduced legislation March 14 that would require colleges and universities to disclose the graduation rates of student-athletes, saying academics often is sidelined by the dream of going professional in sports.

"Too many student-athletes sacrifice academic achievement to the fantasy of professional sports," said Bradley, D-New Jersey, a former Rhodes scholar who played basketball for Princeton University and the New York Knicks.

"Only one of 10,000 high school athletes who want a career in professional sports ever realizes that aspiration," he said.

Under the "Student Right-to-Know Act," colleges and universities receiving Federal aid would be re-

Statement on governance issues expected by May

The Presidents Commission Advisory Committee to Review the NCAA Governance Process is developing a formal statement of its recommendations regarding governance issues and hopes to conclude its work in May.

Conducting its second meeting March 16 in Kansas City, Missouri, the committee agreed to present a status report to the Presidents Commission at its April 5-6 meeting and to meet again in mid-May in Washington, D.C., to complete its assignment.

That schedule would enable the Commission to take action on the committee's recommendations in its fall meeting, in time to submit any desired legislation for action at the 1990 NCAA Convention.

The committee also will invite University of Vermont President Lattie F. Coor to its May meeting. Coor's governance proposal at the June 1988 session in the Presidents Commission National Forum was referred to the advisory committee.

In its March 16 meeting, the committee began work on its statement after receiving reports from the three task forces that it created in its first meeting. Those subunits dealt with the NCAA legislative process (chaired by Stephen Horn, former president of California, State University, Long Beach), the role of the chief executive officer (Otis A. Singletary, former president of the University of Kentucky) and the NCAA Convention format (John L. Toner, former director of athletics at the University of Connecticut).

Included in the advisory committee's statement will be recommendations and commentary in the following areas:

- The background regarding CEO involvement in athletics matters, including creation of the Pres-

Foundation director appointed

Robert C. Khayat, vice-chancellor for university relations and professor of law at the University of Mississippi, has been appointed executive director of the NCAA Foundation.

The foundation was organized last year to fund scholarships for former student-athletes who did not complete their undergraduate degree, have exhausted their eligibility and desire to obtain that degree; to fund a major drug-education program; to fund research in intercollegiate athletics, and to administer fellowships to needy young men and women to prepare them for careers in sports administration.

Khayat has been a member of the University of Mississippi law school faculty since 1969. He received his undergraduate degree from Mississippi and earned law degrees from Mississippi and Yale University.

- The role of the institutional CEO at the campus and national levels.

- Assistance to new presidents and chancellors.

NYSP hosts Congressmen

National Youth Sports Program Committee members and staff members from various NCAA member institutions participated in a workshop in Washington, D.C., March 3-4.

NYSP representatives visited with those representatives of Congress who have supported the program over the years during a luncheon and reception on Capitol Hill.

Keynote speaker for the event was Willye White, who competed on five Olympic teams.

This year's workshop included a session on drug-abuse education, for which Congress has appropriated $3 million to NYSP.

A national drug-education training workshop is scheduled for NYSP representatives April 15-16 in Kansas City, Missouri.

Khayat organized and directed the first capital campaign in the history of the University of Mississippi, raising more than $40 million.

"The NCAA is extremely fortunate to find someone of Robert Khayat's caliber," said Thomas J. Frericks, vice-president and director of athletics at the University of Dayton and chair of the NCAA Foundation Organizing Committee.

"Robert's outstanding background in athletics, academics and fundraising makes him a terrific choice for this important position."

1989 Column No. 12

NCAA Bylaws 13.1.5.2.2 and 14.7—high school all-star games/recruiting contacts and evaluation activities/numerical limitations

NCAA Division I member institutions are reminded that 1989 Convention Proposal No. 84, which amended Bylaw 13.1.5.2.2 [formerly Bylaw 1-2-(f)], prohibits in-person contact with and evaluation of prospective student-athletes by a Division I member institution's coaching staff on or off the campus in conjunction with any athletics event (including high school all-star games) involving prospective student-athletes in the sports of football and basketball, unless such contact or evaluation occurs within the permissible contact or evaluation periods for those sports. Additionally, it should be understood that evaluation (but not contact) is permitted if such a prospective student-athlete is participating on the member institution's campus in a sport other than football or basketball.

Further, according to Bylaw 14.7 [formerly NCAA Constitution 3-9-(a)], a student-athlete shall be denied the first year of intercollegiate athletics competition if, following completion of high school eligibility in the student-athlete's sport and prior to the student-athlete's high school graduation, the student-athlete participates in more than two all-star football contests or two all-star basketball contests. (Bylaw 30.2.1.1 defines high school all-star contest.)

NCAA Bylaw 16.4.1-(h)—permissible medical expenses

Recently, the NCAA Council, in reviewing Bylaw 16.4.1-(h) (formerly NCAA Case No. 74), approved the following interpretations regarding institutional payment of expenses for medical services unrelated to athletics participation:

1. Payment of medication, physical therapy and doctor bills should be permissible up to the point at which it is determined that the illness or injury is not related to athletics participation; at that time, payment of doctor bills should cease.

2. A member institution is precluded from paying for medical services (diagnostic examinations, hospital care, etc.), except that payment of such medical services is permissible up to the point at which it is determined that the illness or injury is not related to athletics participation; at that time, payment of such expenses should cease.

In both Nos. 1 and 2, the Council determined that payment of such additional expenses (beyond medication and physical therapy) is permissible under the condition cited only if the student-athlete has been referred to the involved doctor based on the team physician's findings.

3. Payment by a member institution for any additional medical or dental services expenses of a student-athlete, including surgery, must be related to intercollegiate athletics participation.

4. The current distinction between the payment of expenses for medication and physical therapy (permissible even if the student-athlete's illness or injury was not caused during practice for or participation in intercollegiate athletics at the institution) and the payment of expenses for dental services (not permissible unless the expense relates to an injury that occurred during practice or intercollegiate competition) should be maintained.

NCAA member institutions also are reminded of a previous Council-approved interpretation (April 1986) stipulating that a dental examination is permitted in conjunction with a regular preseason physical examination per Bylaw 17.8.2 or 17.8.3 [formerly Bylaw 3-1-(k)], but dental care such as teeth cleaning and provisional filling is not permitted unless the expense relates to an injury that occurred during practice or intercollegiate competition. Further, the Council concluded that an institution is not permitted to pay the expenses for dental work related to extensive tooth decay, unless the dental work performed directly relates to an athletics injury and is necessary in the treatment of the injury that occurred during practice or intercollegiate competition.

NCAA Bylaws 13.6.5.2.2 and 13.7.24—entertainment/tickets—NCAA championships

Each member institution is reminded that if it is chosen to participate in an NCAA championship, either on its campus or within 30 miles of the institution's main campus, it may not provide prospective student-athletes on their official expense-paid visits with complimentary or reduced-cost admissions to the championship, inasmuch as this would constitute excessive entertainment under the provisions of Bylaw 13.6.5.2.2 [formerly Bylaw 1-9-(j)-(3)] and may provide a member institution with a significant recruiting advantage over other institutions. Further, institutional funds for entertaining prospective student-athletes under Bylaw 13.6.5.4 [formerly Bylaw 1-9-(j)-(2)-(i)] may not be utilized to purchase these tickets.

In addition, the provisions of Bylaw 13.7.2.4 [formerly 1985 Legislative Assistance Column No. 9, Item (b)] would prohibit the institution from providing such complimentary or reduced-cost admissions to a prospect making an unofficial, self-financed visit to the institution's campus. Further, the provisions of Bylaw 13.2.1 [formerly Bylaw 1-1-(b)] would prohibit the institution from making special arrangements to have tickets for these events available for purchase by a prospective student-athlete. The prospect may purchase these tickets only in the same manner as any other member of the general public. Please note that these rules and interpretations apply to all rounds of an NCAA tournament or championship.

Athletics-alumni relations to be explored during conference

The links between a school's athletics department and alumni office will be explored during an April conference in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Titled "Alumni Relations and Athletics: Developing a Partnership," the conference will be presented April 17-18 by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). Its five-member "faculty" of athletics administrators and alumni specialists will be chaired by Charles F. Lennon Jr., executive director of the University of Notre Dame Alumni Association.

The conference, which is designed particularly for alumni and athletics administrators, will address such issues as effectively managing alumni and donors; fund-raising and its impact on sports, facilities and scholarships, and strengthening the relationship between alumni and athletics offices.

Specific topics for the first day of the conference, which opens at 1 p.m. at the Adam's Mark Hotel in Charlotte, are:

• "How Athletics Have Affected the Overall Image of Institutions."

• "The Alumni Office's Perspective: How We'd Like to Work with the Athletics Office."

• "The Fund-Raising Partnership."

The second day's topics are:

• "The Athletics Office's Perspective: How We'd Like to Work with the Alumni Office."

• "Current Legislation and Regulations Affecting Alumni and Athletics Offices."

• "Athletics Booster Clubs."

• "Fund-Raising Issues for Alumni/Athletics Offices."

Time also will be provided for small-group discussions.

Joining Lennon as faculty members for the conference will be John R. Gerdy, NCAA legislative assistant; Kevin C. Lennon, assistant commissioner for enforcement and compliance, Southwest Athletic Conference; Christopher B. "Kit" Morris, director of athletics, Davidson College, and Debbie Yow, director of the Spartan Excellence Fund and assistant director of athletics for public affairs, University of North Carolina, Greensboro.

The registration fee is $280 for people who work at CASE member institutions and $375 for non-members, and registrations should be submitted in advance. A registration form/hotel registration form and further information about the conference can be obtained from CASE program director Becky Herring by calling 202/328-5924.

Rooms are available at the Adam's Mark for the single-room rate of $72 per night or the double-room rate of $82. Reservations are due by April 3.

Legislation

quired to disclose graduation rates of students and student-athletes. The information, to be provided to the Education Department, would be broken down by sport, race, sex and field of study.

Bradley said schools currently only provide such information to the NCAA. The NCAA requirement affects only Division I institutions.

Rep. Tom McMillen, D-Maryland, another Rhodes scholar, who played for the University of Maryland, College Park, the Atlanta Hawks and the Washington Bullets, dismissed as insufficient current or pending NCAA rules requiring a specific level of high school academic achievement for recipients of college athletics grants-in-aid.

He said the legislation is necessary "to restore the balance between athletics and academics."

Rep. Ed Towns, D-New York, who played sports at North Carolina A&T State University, said the bill will provide "consumers with information about the quality of education provided to athletes," United Press International reported.

Bradley said he knows one school, which he left unidentified, whose graduation rate for student-athletes was seven percent over a decade.

"Availability and discussion of graduation-rate data will aid high school student-athletes in making informed judgments about the general character of the education they may expect to receive at the schools under consideration," Bradley said.

Sister Mary Alan, athletics director of St. Anthony's High School in Jersey City, New Jersey—which fields one of the best high school boys' basketball teams in the country—supported the legislation.

"The onus (to ensure that student-athletes are ready for the real world) has been put purely on high schools, and nothing seems to be laid at the feet of colleges," she said. "This bill will force students to have the facts in front of them."

Those opposing the legislation last year cited government intrusion and increased paperwork burdens.

At the NCAA Convention in January, the NCAA Presidents Commission said it would sponsor legislation at the 1990 Association Convention to instruct member institutions to establish data collection and disclosure of graduation rates for student-athletes and students in general.

At the same time, the Commission urged those institutions already collecting such data to make that information public.

Play-off gives 'Davids' a shot at the 'Goliaths'

By Hal Bock
Excerpted from a column

The NCAA tournament was down to the Sweet Sixteen by March 19, a more manageable size and about the number of teams that had a realistic chance to win the thing when college basketball's March madness began with 64 schools.

Thirty conference champions, running the spectrum of college athletics from heavyweights to half-pints, get automatic invitations to this show.

That sometimes creates lopsided pairings, especially in the first round.

The question then is whether the 64-team NCAA tournament ocean has too many rowboats sailing around, appealing little targets for those great big icebergs.

"I've never liked 64 at all," said John Wooden, who won 10 championships in 12 years with UCLA. "Those little schools have a very small chance of winning even one game. They've got a team with 13 losses in there. In the past, they've had teams that lost more than that. My 10 (championship) teams lost 10 games, total."

"I don't like letting five and six teams from a conference in. You play all season to see which is the best team. That ought to mean something. Then they bring in fifth- and sixth-place teams. If you let 64 in, you ought to let them all in."

Wooden means it. He has proposed a tournament that would include all Division I teams that are not on probation. It is a share-the-wealth plan that would parcel proceeds of this rich event to all eligible schools, instead of just the lucky 64.

"You cut the season back one week to get the time," he said. "In one weekend, you'd be down to 64. All the money generated would be divided into shares so that every school got one share for each game it plays."

Based on the money distributed in last year's tournament, Wooden said his formula would give half of the competing schools—those eliminated after one game—$51,000. "If they played two games, they'd get twice that. (National champion) Kansas would have gotten $300,000, Oklahoma $250,000 and the other semifinalists $200,000 each."

The existing plan pays all Final Four teams more than $1.25 million. "Some of the small schools could use that $51,000 better than the big ones use that million," Wooden said.

An invitation to the tournament is an automatic $250,000 payoff for first-round losers. So the smaller schools are more than happy to join the party, even if it means an almost-certain early exit. And every now and then, one of longshots springs a surprise.

Indiana's 1987 national championship was sandwiched around first-round wipeouts by lightly regarded Cleveland State three years ago and Richmond last year. The same year that Cleveland State took out Indiana, 14th-seeded Arkansas-Little Rock kayoed No. 3 seed Notre Dame.

Upsets like that are why some observers like ex-coach and current broadcaster Dick Vitale endorse the 64-team field.

"It's not too many," Vitale said. "It's a good number. It means you've got to win six games. There are no byes."

"In essence, it's open to everyone. You have one shot to play and get in. An idealist might argue that it should be restricted to league cham-

Illegal recruiting a school problem, not one for state's police officials

By Ed Fowler
Houston Chronicle
Excerpted from a column

Here's a little Texas two-step exercise that isn't that hard. You can probably complete it in half a day if you apply yourself. Find a person selling illegal, potentially lethal drugs to another person. Then find a high school classroom in which there are students who read at a fourth-grade level.

After you've seen how easy it is, decide whether or not the most pressing need for this state's limited funds is enforcing NCAA rules.

That's what a posse of legislators wants to do, throw the force of law behind NCAA prohibitions against giving extracurricular inducements to prospective college athletes. Try as they must have, they can't think of a single better way to spend our money.

These guys need help.

In the process, they have created a fine fiction. Enact a law that attaches criminal penalties to shady recruiting and obtain a single conviction under it, they say, and the problem will disappear. They are offering magic legislation. Like elixirs once sold out of covered wagons, it'll fix you up in a jiffy.

In fact, our schools have been getting exactly what they want. If they weren't, they would summarily fire coaches who get caught running corrupt programs. Instead, boards of regents stop little short of throwing themselves in front of firing squads to save these coaches' rotten hides.

If society is ready to cry "enough!" that's well and good, but the legislature has no business putting it off on taxpayers to clean up after universities that can't seem to restrain themselves from behaving like the Mafia. Money spent on education, the drug fight, water, the environment, roads, research works to the benefit of everyone. Not so this measure.

Our legislators want to make born-again moralists of us. Trouble is, some of us haven't transgressed, at least not in this fashion. Let those who have, or those who condoned their actions, put their own house in order. Our police agencies do not report needing something else to keep them occupied.

A crime is supposed to involve a victim. The victims of these proposed crimes are universities that should have stood up for decency long ago in the forum already available to them, the NCAA. They can stand up now. The way to do it is to hold accountable those in a position to cheat or to promote or countenance cheating by others.

If all eight Southwest Athletic Conference schools in Texas would implement the same conditions and enforce them, we'd have a far better deterrent than the proposed law. If Texas universities would take the lead in the NCAA to implement reforms nationally, including pay to athletes to lessen the pressure to cheat, we wouldn't need fear the scourge of out-of-state vultures.

And if they won't, that's their problem. One dollar diverted from real problems to police school games is one too many.

Letter to the Editor

'You have to earn it' approach best

It was great to read Tom Porter's Letter to the Editor in the February 15 issue of The NCAA News and realize there are still a few people who believe in, as he put it, "the old-fashioned way— you have to earn it."

There seem to be many misconceptions floating around with reference to collegiate athletes:

1. If they are signed to a scholarship, the coaching staff or institution owes them a degree.
2. The institution or coaching staff exploits a young man if he excels in athletics but does not get a diploma.
3. College athletes should be compensated financially by the institution for contributing to the financial success of the institution.
4. All individuals are born with the ability to score 15 on the ACT test; therefore, if they don't, they are undeserving, regardless of their success in the classroom.

Consider the following:

Give me the opportunity to play the game I love and earn a college degree. I will give it my best shot. If I fail, at least I was given the opportunity.

I only made 14 on the ACT but maintained a 3.000 grade-point average in a college-preparatory curriculum. A friend of mine made 20 on the ACT but barely had a 2.000 GPA. I was told he copied answers off me on our physics final so he could get a passing grade. I've worked very hard in all of my classes for the opportunity to further my playing career and earn a degree. Please don't penalize me because I achieved at a higher level than my test score would indicate.

Whatever happened to the old-fashioned way— give youngsters the opportunity and reward overachievers? A couple of thoughts I have come across, I believe, should be our standards:

- A man's worth should be judged not for getting ahead of others, but by surpassing himself— Unknown.
- The highest reward for man's toil is not what he gets for it, but what he becomes by it— Ruskin.

Mr. Porter, thanks again for your thoughts. I hope those I have expressed coincide with yours.

"Sure, the NCAA could replace tournament beer ads without financial hardship. The tournament's an easy sell.

"The university has to be realistic in assessing the chances of academic success for student-athletes. It is not morally right to recruit, to invite someone to this university, only to have him find out that he really does not have a chance to succeed.

"Student-athletes need to meet the expectations of the nonathlete student. In fact, they have to exceed those requirements. For example, they have to carry, as a minimum, 12 credit hours, and they have to demonstrate progress toward a degree.

Tournament lives up to its unpredictable reputation

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Every NCAA tournament is different, and the 51st National Collegiate Division I Men's Basketball Championship certainly is no exception.

So far, the tournament has had a record number of first-round upsets and near-upsets, the death of Cinderella with no upsets in the second round, the highest scoring since 1975, and an unusually prestigious Sweet Sixteen field:

- A record seven first-round upsets involving a spread of at least five places in the seeding was only part of the story. In two other games (Georgetown 50, Princeton 49, and Oklahoma 72, East Tennessee State 71), a No. 1 seed escaped by an eyelash over a No. 16 seed—something that had never happened.

After the most competitive first round ever, the Cinderellas were squashed in the second round. Well, No. 11 Minnesota did win, but over No. 14 Siena.

- Tournament scoring is up to 158.6 points per game (both teams combined), fourth highest ever and highest since 161.1 in 1975. The record is 172.6 in 1972 and second is the 161.2 in 1965. Give the 45-second clock and the three-point goal all the credit (assuming you like more scoring).

- Of the seven colleges with at least five Sweet Sixteen trips in the 1980s, six are in the current field (all but Kentucky). North Carolina and Dean Smith are making the regional semifinals a ninth straight year—a streak exceeded only by (guess who) UCLA at 13 straight, the first eight under John Wooden. Smith's nine is the longest Sweet Sixteen streak by a coach.

It is no surprise that the No. 1 and No. 2 seeded teams have had the best records in NCAA tournament play over the past 10 years.

There are four No. 1 seeds, one in each regional, making 40 top seeds in the decade. And 17 of these reached the Final Four. Nine of these reached the title game, and three won the championship—Indiana in 1987, Georgetown in 1984 and North Carolina in 1982. Overall, they are 105-38 in tournament play for .734.

Nine No. 2 seeds made the Final Four, six reached the title game and three won the crown—Louisville in 1986, Louisville in 1980 and Michigan State in 1979. Overall, the second seeds are 79-37 for .681.

But third place is a surprise—the No. 6 seeds have the third best record at 61-38 for .616, with five Final Four teams and two champions—Kansas in 1988 and North Carolina State in 1983.

The two championships do not explain it. Even if Kansas and North Carolina State, each 6-0, are eliminated, the sixth seeds are .563 over 10 years—still third best. If it is luck, it has run out—all four sixth seeds were beaten in this year's first round. Here are the won-lost records by seeds the last 10 years:

Seed*	Won	Lost	Pct.	FF	CH

1979 in a 40-team field (up from 32 in 1975-78), 12 in 1980 through 1984 (the "opening rounds" in 1983 and 1984 were not seeded; the winners made the 48-team bracket) and 16 seeds since 1985.

Only one team seeded below sixth has won the championship in the past 10 years—Villanova in 1985 as a No. 8 (that means 28 teams were seeded above Villanova). The other champion was Indiana, a No. 3 seed, in 1981.

No champion in the 10-year span beat two No. 1 seeds in the Final Four, but five, including Villanova, faced a No. 1 and a No. 2 in the Final Four—Kansas in 1988, Indiana in 1987, Georgetown in 1985 and Indiana in 1981.

Villanova had the toughest route to the Final Four in seeding terms and Kansas the easiest, facing the pions. But this is the real world, and 64 is here to stay."

Vitale said the crowded field used to bother him but that he has changed his view of it.

"I think 64 makes the end of the year more meaningful," he said. "Will you get the quarter million? It creates excitement. It lets the Mississippi Valley States challenge the Dukes. It gives the little guys hope, a dream."

That dream was exactly what Lehigh rode into the tournament in 1985. Coach Tom Schneider's team was 12-18 during the regular season but won the East Coast Conference tournament and an automatic berth—against Georgetown, the defending national champion.

The result was predictable: Georgetown 68, Lehigh 43.

Schneider wasn't complaining, though. "It was the first time in the school's history that it got into the tournament, and it was a great experience for the kids," he said.

Two years later, Schneider took a 13-13 Penn team to the Ivy League title and a first-round tournament assignment against North Carolina. "We were competitive for a half," he said. "It was a one-point game at half time."

Final score: North Carolina 113, Penn 82.

"You hope a blowout doesn't happen," Schneider said. "But I still feel that getting a chance like that epitomizes college athletics."

As an example, Schneider cited something Don Henderson, Lehigh's 6-foot-6 center, said as the youngster prepared to match up with Georgetown's 7-foot Patrick Ewing.

"He was an accounting major, and I remember him saying that down the road, he'd get a job someplace and make his $40,000. But he could always go to NBA games and know that he once played against Ewing."

"That's what college athletics is all about. It gives kids the opportunity to achieve the most they can, to be student-athletes."

And at tournament time, they can do that regardless of whether they go to a Goliath-sized school, or a David.

Cowboys win school's first wrestling crown in 18 years

Oklahoma State's Cowboys won the school's first Division I wrestling team title in 18 years and three 1988 champions defended their individual crowns at the 59th annual NCAA Division I Wrestling Championships March 16-18 in Oklahoma City.

Oklahoma State, the all-time leader in team championships with 28 (Iowa is second with 11), had plenty of fan support at the Myriad Convention Center, but the team race came to a quiet end early in the fifth session when the Pokes' Chuck Barbee scored a 14-3 decision over Aniba Nieves of East Stroudsburg for fifth place at 134 pounds.

The Cowboys topped their championship drive with individual titles by Kendall Cross (126) and Chris Barnes (177) before a finals crowd of 9,145. Oklahoma State outdistanced 1988 champion Arizona State by 20½ points.

Championship Results

"It's one of the highest points in my life," said fifth-year Oklahoma State coach Joe Seay, who guided Cal State Bakersfield to seven Division II team titles. "I don't know what to compare it to. I've won other titles, I've had all-Americas and national champions.

"But this group works so hard, and it's nice to see hard work and dedication rewarded."

Cross, who faced North Carolina State's Michael Stokes in the championship match, used a first-period escape after both wrestlers had scored takedowns, added another escape in the second period and rode out the third period for a 5-2 victory.

"When I found out I'd be wrestling Stokes in the finals, the first thing I thought was that I could beat him," Cross said. "Some styles fit me better, and he's one of those people I can open up on."

Barnes needed an overtime period to get past Lock Haven's Brad Lloyd, the No. 1 seed, to win a 1-1, 2-2 criteria decision—thanks to a first-period takedown in overtime that allowed him to take the neutral position in the second period.

"He's really good on top," Barnes said. "We wrestled for third place last year, and he ate me alive on top."

In addition to Barbee's fifth-place finish for the Cowboys, Mike Farrell (167) placed third, Todd Chesbro (150) finished fifth and unseeded heavyweight Kirk Mammen placed sixth.

Oklahoma State set up its team triumph in the fourth session by sweeping four quarterfinal and three consolation matches.

"We had a great first round, and the second round was kind of shaky," Seay said. "I told them we have to have seven wins, and if they believed in the program and believed in their preparation they could do it."

"I think that was the turning point, because we beat some quality people."

East Stroudsburg's Jack Cuvo defended his 118-pound title with a 10-8 decision over North Carolina's Doug Wyland, the No. 3 seed, and Pittsburgh's Pat Santoro defeated Arizona State's Junior Saunders with a 6-6, 1-1 criteria decision (riding time) to defend his 142-pound title; however, heavyweight Carlton Haselrig's title defense was the headliner.

Haselrig, a three-time Division II champion, won his third consecutive Division I title with a 1-0 decision over Northern Iowa's second-seeded Joel Greenlee.

Iowa State's Tim Krieger pinned his first three opponents and defeated Oklahoma State's Chesbro 11-0 in the semifinals en route to a 5-0 decision over Montclair State's Karl Monaco for the 150-pound title. Krieger, who also won the 150-pound title in 1987, was named the tournament's outstanding wrestler.

Teammate Royce Alger won the 190-pound title to lead the Cyclones to a third-place finish. Alger also won the 190-pound title in 1987.

A total of 46,324 fans attended the six sessions.

Stanford outlasts Texas for women's swimming title

Stanford won the team title at the Division I Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, giving coach Richard Quick his sixth straight title.

Quick, who also was named coach of the year, led Texas to the past five team titles before leaving the Longhorns last summer to coach Stanford.

The Cardinal, which also was team champion in 1983, outscored Texas 610½ to 547 at the March 16-18 championships in Indianapolis.

"When I first came to Stanford, I didn't think we had a chance to win the NCAA championship," Quick said. "But that's because I didn't know the true character of this team."

"It was during Christmas training that I first began to think we could win the nationals," Quick said. "I saw the team was willing to pay the price at the toughest time. They showed me they had the character necessary to win. I felt going into the meet that if we were close on the second day, we had a chance to win. When we led after the second day, I felt great about our chances," he added.

Texas sophomore Leigh Ann Fetter had two record-setting performances in the 50-yard freestyle Thursday—first with a time of 22.10 during preliminaries and later that evening with a time of 22.05. She also won the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 48.68. Other multiple winners were Clemson's Mitzi Kremer in the 200- and 500-yard freestyles and Florida's Kristen Linehan in the backstroke events.

Fetter, who was chosen swimmer of the year by coaches at the meet, also helped her team break records in the 200- and 400-yard freestyle relays with times of 1:28.90 and 3:15.48, respectively.

Kenyon men claim No. 10

Kenyon coach Jim Steen earned an unprecedented 10th consecutive NCAA team title as his Lords once again swamped the competition at the Division III Men's Swimming and Diving Championships.

The Lords, who have dominated the championships since 1980, won their 10th consecutive title during the March 16-18 meet at Bowdoin. UC San Diego finished a distant second, nearly 150 points behind the Lords.

The relay events again proved to be one of the Lords' strong points as they won four of the five events, with UC San Diego taking the 400-yard medley title. Kenyon swimmers who claimed individual titles were Shawn Kelly in the 200-yard butterfly, Alan Schmidt in the 100-yard backstroke and Jon Howell in the 50-yard freestyle.

Senior Kevin Casson turned in the only record-breaking performance with a time of 15:37.04 in the 1,650-yard freestyle. The St. Olaf veteran bettered his own year-old record by 0.68. Casson also swam to a No. 1 finish in the 500-yard freestyle.

However, the big multiple winner was Thomas Donley of Amherst. The junior won the 100- and 200-yard freestyles and the 200-yard individual medley.

Emory's Chris Radpour and Merchant Marine's William Nixon split the diving events, with Radpour taking the one-meter title and Nixon claiming first place on the three-meter. Nixon also won on the three-meter board last year.

Wisconsin-Whitewater owns another III men's basketball title

Wisconsin-Whitewater used the alley-oop to spark a 94-86 victory over Trenton State in the Division III Men's Basketball Championship in Springfield, Ohio.

"We try to go (to the lob) early, and it does put some notice out there that we can do that and do it effectively, and it does loosen up our shooters a little bit," Warhawk coach Dave Vander Meulen said.

"Right away, they are very comfortable and very confident," Trenton State coach Kevin Bannon said. "You feel each other out early in games and early in second halves; and if they're going to get that kind of stuff, then they're obviously going to feel a lot better about themselves."

The title was the second for Wisconsin-Whitewater and Vander Meulen. Trenton State reached the semifinals and championship game for the first time.

Lions guard Greg Grant scored 35 points in the championship game despite shooting only 39 percent from the field. He scored a record 167 points in the tournament.

Grant was the championship's most valuable player. He was joined on the all-tournament team by Ricky Spicer, Elbert Gordon and Jeff Seifriz of Wisconsin-Whitewater; Danny Johnson of Centre, and Jeff Bowers of Southern Maine.

Grant named player of year

Trenton State senior guard Greg Grant has been named the Hershey's Chocolate/National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) Division III player of the year.

The 5-7 Grant led the Lions to a 30-2 record and the runner-up spot in the Division III Men's Basketball Championship. He set a tournament scoring record with 167 points in five games.

He also set a Division III season scoring record of 1,044 points, and he scored 20 or more points in 30 games and topped the 40-point mark 10 times. He also set a Division III record for career scoring average with 30.7 in 85 games.

It is anticipated that he will be the leading scorer in Division III this year with a 32.6 average. (Note: Final statistics are not compiled until late April.)

Grant shot 52.6 percent from the field and 81.9 percent from the line this season. He also had 113 assists and 148 steals, leading his team in both categories.

The player of the year is the individual who has the most votes in the NABC's all-America balloting. Grant will receive an all-expenses-paid trip to the Final Four in Seattle to receive his award.

Elizabethtown claims a second III women's basketball title

Elizabethtown's Nancy Keene is hemmed in by Cal State Stanislaus' Allison Solis and Lisa Minturn (30). Keene scored 24 points in the final.

Sophomore forward Sue Kreider hit a free throw with two seconds left to give Elizabethtown a 66-65 victory over Cal State Stanislaus in the Division III Women's Basketball Championship at Danville, Kentucky.

Cal State Stanislaus had a nine-point lead, tying its biggest margin of the game, with 6:38 remaining. But Elizabethtown outscored the Warriors, 13-4, in the next 5½ minutes with seniors Kim Cahill, Nancy Keene and Lori Lobb accounting for 10 points.

Keene, who was five of eight from beyond the three-point arc, hit one during the late-game run, and a Kreider free throw gave Elizabethtown its first lead since the 17:06 mark of the first half.

Elizabethtown becomes the first team to win two championships. The Lady Jays took their first title in 1982, then finished second the next two years.

Kirsten Dumford and Lisa Minturn of Cal State Stanislaus, Amy Huestis of Clarkson, and Susan Yates of Centre joined Keene on the all-tournament team.

Columbia likely to retain hold on men's fencing title

No matter how the points are scored, Columbia reigns as the dominating power in NCAA men's fencing.

Under a scoring system that has been in effect since the 1987 championships, the Lions have won two consecutive team titles. That system allows only one fencer from a school to score points in each of three weapon classes.

Columbia would have won the titles, however, even if the previously used scoring system had been in effect.

The old system, which allowed two fencers from each school to score in a weapon, placed more emphasis on team depth. But Columbia, in addition to winning four of six possible individual titles in the past two years, has placed 11 of 12 fencers among the top six in each of the three weapons—a feat unmatched by rival schools.

Last year, the Lions overpowered the field by sweeping the weapons and scoring a perfect 90 points, and they appear extremely capable of repeating that effort during this year's championships at Northwestern.

Two of last year's titlists—foil specialist Marc Kent and Jon Normile in epee—are back to defend their championships. Columbia's third champ, Robert Cottingham, is gone, but his shoes should be filled capably by the Lions' Chris Reohr, who was runner-up in sabre to Cottingham last year.

That's not to say Columbia is unbeatable. In February, a Lion dual-match winning streak that had grown to 51 victories through four years was snapped by Penn State. A month later, Columbia failed to win its fourth consecutive Intercollegiate Fencing Association (IFA) title, losing by one point to Yale in a meet at which Reohr was beaten in sabre and that Kent missed with an injury.

Those results suggest that Columbia is not as deep in talent as in the past, but the Lions still finished the season with a 10-1 dual mark that included triumphs over Yale, Pennsylvania and Rutgers. And Kent will be back in the Lions' lineup for the NCAA meet.

Even if Columbia is unable to repeat its sweep of the individual titles, the Lions are confident that they can finish among the top three in each event, which would give them at least 84 points. Even that tally would be hard for Columbia's top challengers to beat.

The rivals who stand the best chance to top that mark appear to be the teams that finished second through fourth last year—Notre Dame, Penn State and Pennsylvania.

Notre Dame boasts top-six finishers in all three weapons, including last year's epee runner-up, Todd Griffie. Leszek Nowosielski, who finished fourth in the talent-packed sabre class as a freshman last year, also is back, as is championships veteran Yehuda Kovacs, fourth in foil a year ago.

Penn State returns to the championships with contenders in the foil and sabre. Edward Mufel was runner-up in last year's foil event and could move to the top if Kent is not at full strength, and the Nittany Lions' sabre hopes ride with the Cox brothers—Peter, who finished third last year, and David, who was in fifth.

However, Penn State appears to lack a title contender in epee—a problem that also afflicts Pennsylvania.

The Red and Blue finished behind Yale and Columbia at the recent IFA championships, where Penn junior David Stollman defeated Columbia's Reohr for the sabre title. Penn also can look to veterans Chris Owen, who was sixth in sabre last year, and Chris O'Loughlin, who finished fifth in epee, but the Philadelphians lack strength in foil.

Also carrying hopes for a team

title are Yale, which won no individual titles in its IFA victory, and Rutgers, which finished fourth at the IFA meet and is especially strong in sabre with two-time all-America John Toomer.

Championships Profile

Event: Men's fencing.

Field: Each of the three events—sabre, foil and epee—will feature competition involving no more than 30 individuals. No school may enter more than two competitors in each event. Each school's highest finisher in an event contributes points to the school's team score.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Columbia, which is seeking its 11th team title this year, scored a perfect 90 points at last year's championships.

Schedule: Northwestern will be host for the championships, set for March 30 through April 1.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the April 5 issue of the News.

Contenders: Columbia, Notre Dame, Penn State, Pennsylvania.

Championships notes: Columbia, which ranks second in men's fencing team championships, needs two more to match the 12 won by New York University. The Lions also rank second in individual titles with 20, compared to 28 for NYU. Penn State and Yale never have won a team title in men's fencing. Penn State was runner-up to Wayne State (Michigan) in 1984. Northwestern, which won the first NCAA fencing title in 1941, is serving as host of the championships for the first time.

Irish, Columbia-Barnard top contenders in women's fencing

Only once in seven years of NCAA women's fencing competition has a school claimed both the individual and team titles at the same tournament.

Notre Dame's Molly Sullivan won the individual title twice (1986 and 1988), but she was only third-best in 1987 when the Fighting Irish won their only team crown. She lost that year to the championships' only other two-time winner, Caitlin Bilodeaux, who never was able to lead her Columbia-Barnard team to a title.

Sullivan and Bilodeaux are gone, and their respective schools aren't expected to claim this year's individual title. True to the trend, however, Notre Dame and Columbia-Barnard are favorites to capture the team championship when competition gets under way in early April at Northwestern.

Notre Dame's top returning individual performer is Kristin Kralicek, who finished 13th in last year's individual competition. But Kralicek leads a hard-working team lineup that has beaten defending team champion Wayne State (Michigan) twice in dual competition and has won titles at the Great Lakes Invitational and the recent Midwest regional.

"Our women did very well," coach Yves Auriol said of his team's performance at the regional, which served as a qualifying meet for the NCAA championships. Notre Dame's senior captain, Janice Hynes, placed fourth at the meet and freshman Heidi Piper also performed well.

"Our team already has been selected for the NCAAAs as the top seed. I believe that this is a strong testament to the hard work we've had to put into the competition this season," Auriol said. "I hope it continues into the NCAAAs."

Despite Bilodeaux's success in individual competition, Columbia-Barnard never has won a team championship. For that matter, the Light Blue never had won an Ivy Group title—until this year.

This year's squad became the first Columbia-Barnard team in any sport to win an Ivy title when it recorded a 5-0 mark in league dual-meet competition, including an early season 9-7 victory over longtime nemesis Pennsylvania.

The Light Blue are led by Tzu Moy, who is Columbia-Barnard's best hope for an individual title after finishing seventh last year as a freshman. Tzu and junior Amee Manges lead a battle-tested squad that lost only to Penn State in compiling an overall 13-1 dual record.

Also fueling Columbia-Barnard's hopes for a team title are senior Darlene Pratschler; freshman Jill Tobia, who was the highest-ranked high school woman fencer in the nation last year, and junior captain Liz Melcher.

While Notre Dame and Columbia-Barnard like their chances in the team competition, Wayne State (Michigan) enjoys the possibly mixed blessing of arriving at the championships with the top-ranked individual fencer.

Loredana Ranza finished second in last year's individual competition behind the Fighting Irish's Sullivan, in addition to leading her teammates to the school's second women's team title; this year, she has lost only one match. However, like Sullivan and Bilodeaux before her, she will be hard-pressed to lead the Tartars to another crown this year.

In addition to Ranza, Wayne State's lineup will include Yasemin Topcu, who finished fourth individually last year. But the Tartars' losses to Notre Dame indicate that they may not have the necessary depth to claim team honors.

Traditional Ivy Group power Pennsylvania's loss to Columbia-Barnard did nothing to eliminate the Red and Blue from its accustomed position as a team-title contender. Penn won all of its other nine dual matches, including victories over Penn State, Temple, Yale

Championship Profile

Event: Women's fencing.

Field: Twelve teams will be selected for the team competition, and 24 individuals will compete for the individual championship.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Wayne State (Michigan) won its second title at the 1988 tournament.

Schedule: The 1989 championships will be April 2-4 at Northwestern.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the April 5 issue of the News.

Contenders: Notre Dame, Columbia-Barnard, Wayne State (Michigan) and Pennsylvania.

Championships notes: Penn State is the only school to claim team and individual championships in the same year (1983). Jana Angelakis won the individual title for the Lions. Wayne State (Michigan) and Yale are the only schools to win two team championships. Wayne State also was a runner-up in 1983. Yale's Henry Harutunian is the only coach to claim two team titles.

and Harvard; individual standouts Jane Hall (eighth last year) and Jean Yee (14th) led the way.

Other challengers for the title include Temple, which lost only to Columbia and Penn, and Penn State, which showed what it can do in its victory over Columbia-Barnard.

As for other individual hopefuls, Ohio State senior all-America De Ann Dobesh will take one last shot at the title after finishing first individually at the Midwest regional.

Texas expected to defend men's swimming title

After practically coming out of nowhere last year to claim the Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships team title, Texas is the popular choice to repeat as champion this year. Texas coach Eddie Reese even is confident about his team.

"We've got an excellent chance to repeat," Reese said. "We have most of our swimmers back from last year, plus we had a fairly good recruiting class."

Included among the newcomers are distance freestyler Ethan Saulnier and backstroker Jeff Thibault, and Matt Stahlman in the individual medleys. Reese predicts that all three should finish among the top eight in their events.

Longhorn veterans include Doug Gjertsen, Kirk Stackle and Keith Anderson. Gjertsen is defending champion in the 200-yard freestyle, while Stackle will go for a repeat title in the 200-yard breaststroke. Anderson was a vital part of two of the Longhorns' winning relays in 1988.

Things looked great for California at the start of the season but slowly started falling apart as the Golden Bears lost several potential scorers, including Jeff Prior, who retired from swimming.

"We started out with high expectations until we had several people retire," head coach Nort Thornton said. "We still went undefeated in conference dual meets, but it's a lot different on the national level."

"Everyone worked harder because they knew they had to take up the slack. I'll be pleased if we finish in the top five," Thornton added. The Bears finished fourth last year with 250 points.

Returning for the squad are distance freestyler Sean Killion, breaststroker Ron Karnaugh, backstroker Paul Kingsman and sprint freestyler Joel Thomas. Of the four, Killion and Kingsman had the highest finishes last year — Killion was third in the 1,650-yard freestyle and Kingsman swam third in the 200-yard backstroke.

Michigan returns 159½ of last year's 203½ points, which earned the Wolverines fifth place. Included among the veterans are Brent Lang, Mike Barrowman and diver Lee Michaud.

"Mike probably has the fastest time going into the nationals in the 200 breaststroke," coach Jon Urbanchek said. "He also holds the U.S. record in the 200-meter breaststroke. And Brent stands a good chance of winning the 100 free again this year, but Shaun Jordan of Texas probably will challenge him for the title."

Lang, the squad's top scorer at the 1988 meet, not only was the 100-yard freestyle winner, but he also swam to third place in the 50- and 200-yard freestyles.

Southern Cal brings back a handful of scorers, including the top scorer from the 1988 meet, David Wharton. The Olympic silver medalist will defend titles in the 200- and 400-yard individual medleys and stands a good chance of bettering his second-place finish in the 200-yard butterfly.

Other veterans from last year's No. 2 team include Dan Jorgensen, Chris Chalmers, Chip Hobson, Ray Looze, Javier Cereaga (an Olympic swimmer for Mexico) and Vagn Pederssen. Jorgensen won the 1,650-yard freestyle and tied for second in the 500-yard freestyle.

Among the top newcomers are

Kirk
Stackle

Doug Gjertsen

Olympian Lars Jorgensen, a distance freestyler like older brother Dan; backstroker Gary Anderson, and distance freestylers Stephen Grant and Dan Pierce.

Stanford's outstanding recruiting class will be a big boost for the Cardinal this year with the addition of distance freestylers Alex Kostich and Jason Plummer and backstrokers Jeff Rouse and Andy Lloyd. Kostich also may pose a scoring threat in the individual medleys.

Defending Cardinal titlists are John Witchel in the 500-yard freestyle and Jay Mortenson in the 100-yard backstroke and the 100-yard butterfly.

Championships Profile

Event: Division I men's swimming and diving.

Field: The field will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Texas won its second title under head coach Eddie Reese.

Schedule: The championships will be held March 30-April 1 at the Indiana University Natatorium. Indiana will serve as host for the event.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the April 5 issue of the News.

Top contenders: California, Michigan, Southern California, Stanford and Texas.

Championships notes: Defending champion Texas has claimed the title only twice in the 56-year history of the event (1981 and 1988)... The only records broken at the 1988 meet were by Southern Cal's David Wharton with a time of 3:42.23 in the 400-yard individual medley and by Texas with a 2:52.01 in the 400-yard freestyle relay... Stanford's Jay Mortenson and Southern Cal's David Wharton both won multiple titles last year — Mortenson in the 100 backstroke and the 100 butterfly and Wharton in the 200 and 400 individual medley... Ohio State's Patrick Jeffrey was a double winner in diving last year.

14-7-4 seeds, total 25, after the first round.

Only two teams seeded below eighth in a regional have reached the Final Four—Pennsylvania (No. 9) in 1979 and Louisiana State (No. 11) in 1986. Each lost to the eventual champion in the semifinals—Penn by 34 to Michigan State and LSU by 11 to Louisville.

That makes Minnesota's task look formidable as a No. 11 seed.

The seven first-round upsets are more than the last two seasons combined and two above the previous mark of five in 1985. In the second round, the higher seeded team won every game except one (No. 5 North Carolina State over No. 4 Iowa) the first time that has happened in the tournament.

This is North Carolina's 18th trip to the Sweet Sixteen, tops in the current field, and its nine Final Four trips also leads this group. Its 18 is third in history (Kentucky 30, UCLA 21) and its nine is tied for second (with Kentucky behind UCLA's 14, Indiana's five championships are tied for second place (with Kentucky) behind UCLA's 10).

This is Dean Smith's ninth straight trip to the regional semifinals and 15th consecutive NCAA tournament team. Both are records by a coach. His mark of seven Final Four teams is second to Wooden's 12. Louisville's Denny Crum, with six Final Four teams, is tied for third with Kentucky's Adolph Rupp. Bob Knight's three championships are third behind Wooden (10) and Rupp (4).

In tournament wins, Smith's total of 41 ranks second to Wooden's 47, while Crum (31) is third and Knight (29) fifth. Knight's .763 winning percentage (29-9; Crum is 31-13; Smith 41-19) now is ninth (minimum 10 games), above Larry Brown's .760 (19-6 at Kansas and UCLA).

Only seven colleges have reached the Sweet Sixteen at least five times in the 1980s, and six are in the current field—North Carolina nine, Louisville seven, Georgetown and Indiana six each, and Duke and Virginia five each. Kentucky with six is the only one missing.

This is Seton Hall's first-ever trip to the Sweet Sixteen, while Missouri, Minnesota and Seton Hall never have been to the Final Four.

Missouri was second in the regionals (one victory from the Final Four) in 1976. Louisville has a perfect 7-0 record in regional championship games. Here is the current field by regions and by semifinal pairings:

Sd	Region	*S16	R2	FF	CH
Midwest
1	Illinois	9	2	3	0
4	Louisville	17	0	7	2
3	Missouri	5	1	0	0

Scoring climbs

Introduction of the 45-second clock in 1986 helped tournament scoring reach 143 points per game, a big jump from the 127.4 in 1984—second lowest figure in 32 years. When the three-pointer was added in 1987, scoring jumped again, to 154.56, and 1988 barely edged that at 154.63.

Now with 48 games played and 15 to go in this tournament, scoring is up to 158.6 (fourth highest ever, as mentioned). The main factor seems to be higher two-point accuracy, as the inside game opens up with greater use of the three pointer. Two-point accuracy was 50.9 percent in 1987, edged up to 51.0 in 1988 and now is at 52.0.

Three-point shooting is virtually the same, with 10.00 made in 27.06 attempts so far this time vs. 10.03 in 27.17 in 1988.

The national midseason trends showed scoring at 151.4, two-point accuracy at 48.8 percent and three-point shooting averaging 8.6 made in 23.1 attempts.

The Big Ten Conference and Atlantic Coast Conference have four teams each in the Sweet Sixteen, the Big East Conference three and the Big Eight Conference two.

That is 13 teams from four conferences. Three are represented by one team each—the Pacific-10 Conference, Big West Conference and Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference. Big Ten teams have a 9-1 record so far, ACC 9-2, Big East 6-2, Big Eight 4-2, Big West 2-0, Pac-10 3-3 and Metro 2-3.

The Sweet Sixteen field for the eighth annual NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship includes a solid majority of all the top finishers in the first seven years of tournament history. Eleven are repeaters from 1988.

For instance, four of the seven championship teams are represented, along with four of seven second-place teams; 16 of the 28 teams that reached the national semifinals; 19 of the 28 regional second-place teams, and 71 of 128 teams that reached the regional semifinal round, or Sweet Sixteen.

Three colleges in the current field have made all eight Sweet Sixteens in history. They are Louisiana Tech and coach Leon Barmore, Tennessee and Pat Summitt, and Long Beach State and Joan Bonvicini. Two other colleges are in the regional semifinals a seventh straight year after missing the first year in 1982. They are Texas and coach Jody Conradt and Mississippi and Van Chancellor.

Barmore, Summitt and Conradt coached the last three national-title teams. Louisiana Tech and Tennessee each have five trips to the national semifinals in seven tries. Conradt three times lost in the regional finals, as did Bonvicini. Tech, Iowa, Mississippi and Ohio State each lost twice in the regional finals.

Six other repeaters are on streaks. Auburn and Ohio State are making the Sweet Sixteen a fifth straight season, Iowa and Virginia a third straight year, and Stanford and Maryland a second time in a row.

Louisiana State made it for the first time since 1986 and North Carolina State for the first time since 1987.

Three teams made it for the first time ever—Clemson, Stephen F. Austin State and Nevada-Las Vegas. Only UNLV, a No. 6 seed, defeated a higher-seeded team to reach this round, beating No. 3 seed Colorado in the West region. But three survived cliffhangers—North Carolina State winning by two, LSU by one and Iowa by two.

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee:

Financial aid

1. Student-athlete's income after completion of eligibility. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaws 15.1.1, 15.1.2 and 15.1.3, and confirmed that a member institution would be required to reduce the financial aid of basketball student-athletes who participate in a "barnstorming" tour (i.e., basketball competition against teams composed of former players from the same institution or against other outside teams) within the institution's state when the student-athletes receive remuneration beyond actual and necessary expenses for their participation.

Official visits/transportation

2. Use of charter aircraft for transporting prospective student-athletes on official visits. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 13.5.2.3.3 and a previous committee decision (reference: Item No. 9 of the minutes of the committee's June 18, 1987, conference), and confirmed that a member institution may use an airplane owned personally by one individual to provide transportation to a prospect on an official visit; further, recommended that in order to simplify the application of Bylaw 13.5.2.3.3, the regulation be amended to delete the reference to an airplane owned personally by one individual and to stipulate instead that when an institution utilizes any aircraft other than commercial airline transportation, the institution must pay the charter rate for the use of such aircraft.

Entertainment/tickets on official visit

3. Permissible entertainment expenses for prospects and parents on official visits. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 13.6.5

Conference No. 4
March 2, 1989

and information received at the 1989 NCAA Interpretations Seminar indicating that the current entertainment expense interpretation (permitting limited entertainment that may involve costs beyond the student host's expense allowance) be modified to require the cost of all entertainment provided to a prospective student (and parents) both on and off campus, with the exception of meals and campus events (i.e., those events produced or performed by the institution's faculty, staff or students), to be included in the $20 (or $10 for Divisions II and III) per-day entertainment allowance provided to the student host; declined to modify the current interpretation at this time, but directed the staff to draft proposed legislation to reflect the recommended interpretation and obtain reactions from the NCAA Recruiting Committee and conferences (through the conference contact program); finally, recommended that the Council sponsor this legislation for consideration by the membership during the 1990 NCAA Convention.

Visitations/entertainment

4. Complimentary admissions to athletics events for prospective student-athletes on official and unofficial visits. Confirmed a current interpretation that as a general rule, complimentary admissions to attend post-season football games and postseason tournaments (other than a conference tournament held on the institution's campus) may not be provided to prospects or high school or junior college coaches, noting that this prohibition includes non-NCAA postseason events (e.g., an NAIA contest or a game in the National Invitation Tournament); agreed that a prospective student-athlete would be permitted to attend such a contest only if the ticket was purchased at the prospect's own expense and no special arrangement was made for the purchase of the ticket.

Professional teams

5. Professional teams contributing to Football Coaches Retirement Trust Benefit Game. Agreed that the provisions of NCAA Constitution 1.3.1 and Bylaw 11.3.2 would not preclude National Football League teams from making contributions to the Football Coaches Retirement Trust Benefit Game approved at the 1989 Convention; noted that there is no direct connection between the professional contributions and an individual institution or an individual staff member and, therefore, this arrangement does not compromise the intent of Constitution 1.3.1.

Financial aid/scholarship/grant-in-aid

6. Scholarship consisting of partial grant and partial loan. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 15.1.1-(g) and determined that a loan received from a scholarship provided through a member institution's "Mineral Industry Education Fund" (administered by the department of civil and mineral engineering of the involved member institution's Institute of Technology) could be considered noncountable financial assistance since the loan is available to all students in that field of study.

Financial aid/scholarship/grant-in-aid

7. Countable grant. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 15.1.1-(c) and a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 6 of the minutes of the committee's October 20, 1988, conference), and agreed that a scholarship awarded to a student seeking advanced education in medicine and the natural sciences would be considered to have an educational purpose although the grant has no specific stipulations regarding how the funds must be spent; concluded, therefore, that the grant would be considered countable financial assistance in accordance with Bylaw 15.1.1.

Contacts

8. Counting contacts utilized during the same day and the same category (Divisions I and II). Confirmed a staff interpretation of Bylaw 13.1 that any number of contacts made in the same category (i.e., either at sites other than the prospect's educational institution or on the grounds of the prospect's educational institution) during the same day (defined as 12:01 a.m. to midnight) count as one contact; thus, if coaches in different sports contact a multisport prospective student-athlete on the grounds of the prospect's educational institution at different times during the same day, one institutional contact would be utilized.

Virginia Military Institute men's basketball opponents have been seeing double for three seasons, thanks to the nearly identical playing careers of identical twins Damon and Ramon Williams of Roanoke, Virginia.

Through three seasons, the 6-3 guards are only 47 points and 15 rebounds apart in career statistics. Damon has 1,043 points and 255 rebounds, while Ramon has racked up 1,090 and 240. Both attempted 406 field goals this season, and both broke the 1,000-point career mark in games where they started with 988—and each scored 31 in those milestone contests.

Mike Stricker, VMI sports information director, reports that the Williams brothers could become the highest scoring set of twins since Dick and Tom Van Arsdale, who played for Indiana University, Bloomington, in the 1960s.

Fans attending the 1989 Northeast Intercollegiate Athletic Conference women's basketball tournament earlier this month got a chance to see some of the highest scorers in all of college basketball—on entrance exams, at least.

As noted in a release from Kathryn D. Smith, sports information director at NIAC member Connecticut College, the average SAT scores at the four institutions represented in the play-off field (Amherst College, Connecticut College, Middlebury College and Williams College) is 1,256. Smith also reported that only 28 percent of those who apply are admitted to any of the schools.

Notably, the talents of the student-athletes representing these institutions apparently are not limited to the classroom. Seven players on tournament teams were nationally ranked in NCAA Division III statistical categories.

finals and championship. Each ball will bear the stamp "1989 Final Four."

Only a few of the balls will be used in one of the games. The rest will be used for Final Four warm-ups. All will have been broken in and quality-control tested at Rawlings' engineering facility in Licking, Missouri.

A. Bartlett Giamatti, former president of Yale University who becomes commissioner of Major League Baseball next month, will be a featured guest at Seton Hall University's April 28 symposium on sports law.

Also scheduled to take part in the event are Harry Carson of the NFL New York Giants and Will McDonough of the Boston Globe and CBS-TV.

Registration for attorneys and nonstudents is $55. Students may register for $30. More information may be obtained from Lawrence Bershad, Seton Hall law professor, at 1111 Raymond Boulevard, Newark, New Jersey 07102.

Another conference, this one on sports psychology for coaches, will be conducted June 8-10 in Miami. Sponsored by the Sport Psychology Institute, the event will feature more than four dozen psychologists.

University of North Dakota officials have announced establishment of the W. Lloyd Richmond Sr. Athletics Scholarship Endowment by virtue of a $25,000 donation from William L. "Boots" and Wilhelmina "Billie" Richmond. Both are North Dakota alumni, as was "Boots" Sr., a Fighting Sioux running back in the 1930s for whom the endowment is named.

The endowment income will be used to provide an annual scholarship to "a backfield player in football who is of good moral character, has shown growth in athletics achievement and exemplifies the spirit of competitive sportsmanship through being a 'team' player."

Manny Manolas, a kicker last season on the Bethune-Cookman College football team, recently received the Eddie Robinson athletics achievement award from the Georgia-based "100% Wrong Club."

Manolas, who maintains a 3.600 grade-point average (4.000 scale) with a double major of accounting and hospitality management, set a Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference record last fall with a 53-yard field goal.
