End to player-agent program is sought

The NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee is recommending that the Council eliminate the Association's voluntary player-agent registration program.

At its April 10-13 meeting in Orlando, Florida, the committee decided to seek an end to the program because it is not used efficiently by member institutions.

If the program is eliminated, unscrupulous agents no longer can say that the NCAA certifies their practices, committee members believe. The committee also feels that player-agent programs established by the National Football League, Major League Baseball and the National Basketball Association may be proficient in dealing with the unscrupulous agent and that the elimination of the NCAA program would not leave a void in this area.

The committee will recommend that the Council support career-counseling programs and approve funding for a three-year education program. The program would help institutions create career-counseling panels as well as support existing programs.

The career-counseling programs assist student-athletes in making informed decisions regarding future professional athletics careers.

The NCAA legislative services department would implement the three-year education plan, including national forums at six-month intervals, to support these panels.

In a related development, the National Football League Players Association and the National Basketball Association agreed to accept an educational role with the career-

Sports sponsorship steady, but participation is down

The total number of participants in intercollegiate athletics at NCAA member institutions clearly is declining, despite the fact that the institutions, on the average, are sponsoring about the same number of sports as they have in the past.

That was the bottom-line finding in the annual review of sports sponsorship and participation data, conducted by the NCAA Committee on Review and Planning in its spring meeting in Seattle.

The data in the annual review are taken from institutional information forms submitted by member institutions. The committee also reviews high school sponsorship and participation information supplied by the National Federation of State High School Associations.

Noting that the participation totals were down in all three membership divisions and that the average squad size had declined in nearly every sport, both men's and women's, the committee cited four possible contributing factors:

- The number of college students in the traditional age cohort—18 to 21 years of age—apparently is diminishing to some degree.

- Some coaches express a desire to work with a smaller squad.

- Traditionally, squad sizes tend to diminish when the number of participants receiving athletically related financial aid increases.

- There may be a trend toward young people pursuing other types of physical activity; i.e., recreational pursuits rather than intercollegiate competition.

The committee asked the national office staff to analyze the data in the Association's next study of the sports and recreational programs at all member institutions which includes club, intramural and recreational sports activities—to determine if participation in those types of activities also is declining or if it may be replacing participation in intercollegiate sports.

The full text of the committee's participation and sponsorship analysis follows.

Total Participation

Participation in intercollegiate athletics is declining. In 1987-88, the totals were 178,941 men and 89,825 women, for an overall total of 268,766. That is down for the second straight year. The decline is 4.4 percent from the year before.

Since 1985-86, the total is down nearly 20,000 (19,863) participants.

The men's figure represents a decline of 5.8 percent from the 190,017 recorded in 1986-87, and it is the third straight year for a drop in men's participation. The women's total, down for the second straight year after several years of steady

Catastrophic-injury insurance program expected to grow

As the fourth year of the NCAA's lifetime catastrophic-injury insurance plan draws to a close, Association officials are expecting member participation in the plan to approach the two-thirds mark in 1989-90.

This year, nearly 60 percent (454) of member institutions are participating in the plan, a significant increase over 1987-88 levels (47 percent, 364 institutions). Member participation has increased each year since the program began in 1985.

"This continues to be a real success story," said Richard D. Hunter, NCAA director of operations. "The plan has worked just like it was envisioned by the former Insurance Committee when committee members began developing it in 1983. It's quite unusual when something this comprehensive, created from scratch, works just as planned."

NCAA member institutions soon will receive information packets describing the lifetime catastrophic-injury plan, as well as the NCAA's basic athletics-injury program and an athletics staff-accident plan. Lincoln National Health and Casualty Insurance Company is the underwriting carrier for the plans, which are administered by National Sports Underwriters, Inc.

"We have made a long-term commitment to providing this important coverage through the NCAA," said Thomas F. Wilson, president of National Sports Underwriters. "The financial basis of the program improves every year, and there is a large premium pool available to pay the claims. This situation will only get better as participation increases."

The program has been so successful, in fact, that the premium rates actually have decreased 20 percent since it began. The NCAA and National Sports Underwriters have been able to negotiate such favorable rates because of high membership participation, positive claims experience and Association subsidy.

The NCAA pays the entire premium for catastrophic-injury coverage for all Division I men's and women's basketball participants. In addition, the NCAA pays one-half the premium for all other Division I sports and the entire cost of coverage for all NCAA championships events. Funding for this coverage is provided by revenue from the Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

Hunter said the subsidy, approved last year by the Association's Executive Committee, has been a major reason that more than 75 percent of Division I institutions have purchased the catastrophic-injury plan. This high level of participation also has made the insurer feel comfortable lowering the rates for Divisions II and III.

"The NCAA has clearly demonstrated a commitment to this insurance program, and that has made it much easier for us to enhance the plans and maintain or reduce rates each year," Wilson said.

The catastrophic-injury plan provides lifetime benefits, with no overall policy maximum, to student-athletes who suffer catastrophic injuries while participating in intercollegiate sports or traveling to and from athletics competitions. This year, the plan began providing up to $25,000 for family-adjustment expenses and a $3,000 accidental-death benefit should the injured student-athlete die within a year as a result of the covered accident.

The plan supplements the NCAA's basic athletics-injury program, which provides medical expenses for two years to a maximum of $25,000 for injured student participants.

"The catastrophic and basic plans dovetail," said Hunter, noting that participation in the basic plan also is increasing. "Institutions that purchase the catastrophic plan will need something—either the NCAA's basic plan or coverage through another carrier—that will supplement it."

During this academic year, two student-athletes sustained injuries that are covered by the catastrophic plan. One of the injuries occurred in gains, is down 1.4 percent from 91,101 in 1986-87.

The participation totals are down in all three divisions, for both men and women.

The male-to-female ratio continues at about a two-thirds/one-third split. In 1987-88, 66.6 percent of the participants were men, 33.4 percent women. That compares to 67.6 percent and 32.4 percent in 1986-87.

Average Squad Size

Last year, the committee said it would have to wait another year to determine if declining average squad sizes represented a trend. They clearly do.

In 1987-88, the average squad size was smaller in 14 of 19 men's sports and 13 of 15 women's sports. Since 1984-85, covering a four-year period, the average squad size has declined in all 15 women's sports and in all men's sports except fencing and volleyball.

Comparing 1987-88 to 1986-87, squad sizes increased in men's fencing, volleyball, skiing, lacrosse and water polo. Based on the premise that an increase or decrease of less than one participant in a sport might result simply from variations in reporting, the only significant increases were in fencing (up 2.19 participants per squad) and volleyball (1.38). Significant decreases among the men's sports were in football (down 7.62 participants per squad, and down 3.44 per squad in Division I-A), ice hockey (4.08), wrestling (3.02) and baseball (2.86).

Only golf and swimming showed increases in women's sports, and neither was significant (one-tenth of a participant in golf; one-one-hundredth of a participant in swimming).

Sponsorship Numbers

Including only those sports recognized by the NCAA, the total number of teams sponsored went up this time. The men's total rose by six, the women's by 65. By division, it was a Division III increase. Among men's sports, Division I decreased by nine and Division II by 36, but Division III went up 51 teams. In women's sports, Division I was up seven, Division II was down 19 and Division III jumped by 77 teams.

Institutions with men's programs sponsored an average of 8.77 NCAA sports in 1987-88, almost exactly the same as a year earlier (8.78). It was 8.85 in 1985-86 and 8.97 in 1984-85. Institutions with women's programs continued to increase their sponsorship. They averaged 7.17 NCAA sports in 1987-88, up from 7.10 in 1986-87 and 7.00 in 1985-86.

What does all that mean? NCAA member institutions, on the average, are offering about the same or more sports than before, but there are fewer participants, virtually across the board.

For men, 10 sports increased in numbers of sponsors, seven decreased and two were unchanged. Those increasing were swimming (up eight); indoor track (seven); golf (six); baseball (four); skiing (three); ice hockey and water polo (each two), and cross country, rifle and tennis (each one). Football and volleyball remained the same. Those declining in numbers of sponsors were wrestling (down 11), gymnastics (six), outdoor track (five), fencing (three), soccer (two), and basketball and lacrosse (one each).

For women, seven increased in numbers of sponsors, five decreased and three were unchanged. Increases were posted by soccer (29), indoor track (25), outdoor track (11), cross country and swimming (each five), volleyball (four), and skiing (two). Unchanged: lacrosse, softball and tennis. Decreases: golf (six), gymnastics (four), fencing (three), field hockey (two) and basketball (one).

Still dealing with the raw numbers of institutions sponsoring the various sports, there are seven men's sports and three women's sports that actually are sponsored by fewer institutions now than in 1979-80 for men and 1981-82 for women. These are the sports that truly have declined during those periods, because there have been 41 new NCAA members sponsoring men's programs since 1979-80 and 34 new members sponsoring women's programs since 1981-82.

These clearly are the declining men's sports over that period: wrestling (down 85 in sponsorship), gymnastics (54), golf and swimming (36 each), fencing (31), volleyball (30), rifle (24), and skiing (14).

The declining women's sports on the raw-number comparison, as the committee has seen for several years, are gymnastics (down 58 schools), field hockey (37) and fencing (16).

Sponsorship Percentage

The most accurate means of determining sponsorship trends among NCAA sports is not by means of the raw numbers, but by studying the percentage of the membership sponsoring each sport from year to year. That eliminates the effect of changes in membership totals. The committee has that information for men's programs covering nine years and for women's sports over seven years.

In terms of the percentage of the membership sponsoring the various sports, five gained from 1986-87 to 1987-88, 13 declined and one remained the same. Gainers: outdoor track, baseball, indoor track, water polo and ice hockey. Outdoor track was the most significant, increasing 3.2 percent in membership sponsorship; the other four went up half of one percent or less. Volleyball was unchanged. All others declined, led by golf and wrestling (each losing 1.5 percent), cross country (1.4) and tennis (1.2).

In terms of "popularity"—the percentage of the membership sponsoring each sport—outdoor track passed golf to move into fifth place.

Since 1979-80, eight men's sports have increased in sponsorship percentage, while 11 have decreased. Soccer is the biggest gainer, up 5.1 percent (from 66.2 percent of the membership in 1979-80 to 71.3 percent in 1987-88). Cross country is up 1.9, lacrosse 1.2, indoor track 1.0. Also up, but less than one percent: football, ice hockey, basketball, water polo. The biggest drops have been in wrestling (13.9 percent, from 51.6 percent of the membership in 1979-80 to 37.3 percent in 1987-88), golf (9.1), gymnastics (7.8), swimming (7.7), fencing (4.6), volleyball (4.5) and tennis (4.1). Also declining on this basis: skiing, baseball, rifle, outdoor track.

Another look at those data: Wrestling has declined every year since 1979-80. Golf, gymnastics and fencing have dropped every year but one; outdoor track and rifle every year but two. Tennis, previously on an up-and-down path, now has dropped four straight years. Meanwhile, football has increased in percentage all but two years in the nine-year period, and soccer increased all but three. Ice hockey has held even or increased for the past four years; water polo has increased (albeit slightly) for the past three years.

Among women's sports from 1986-87 to 1987-88, seven gained in percentage, seven lost and one remained the same. Those gaining were soccer, indoor track, outdoor track, cross country, swimming, volleyball and skiing—the biggest were soccer at 3.7 and indoor track at 3.1. Lacrosse was unchanged. All others were down—the only ones at one percent or more were tennis (down 1.4) and gymnastics (1.0).

In the "popularity" listing, indoor track passed swimming, moving into seventh place, and soccer moved to ninth, ahead of field hockey.

For the period since 1981-82, the pattern identified in previous years continues: 12 women's sports have grown in sponsorship percentage, while three continually decline. Every sport has gained over the span except gymnastics (down 8.4), field hockey (6.2) and fencing (2.4). The biggest increases have been in cross country (up 28.0, from 53.2 percent of the membership in 1981-82 to 81.2 percent in 1987-88), soccer (22.8), indoor track (15.9), softball (14.7) and outdoor track (11.5).

Gymnastics, field hockey and fencing have dropped every year in that span. Meanwhile, soccer, outdoor track, cross country and swimming have increased every year, while tennis, volleyball, softball, indoor track and skiing have increased every year but one.

High School Data

The annual study by the National Federation shows increases from 1986-87 to 1987-88 in both boys' participation and girls' participation—the boys by 1.8 percent (up for the second straight year) and the girls by a slight seven-tenths of one percent (up for at least the third straight year). These increases, however slight, are despite the fact that the total enrollment in the schools governed by the state high school associations dropped somewhat.

Among boys' sports, all of the more popular ones gained, however slightly, in participation except outdoor track and wrestling. The big gainers were football, up 18,000, and golf, up nearly 11,000.

In the girl's sports, volleyball, tennis, soccer and slow-pitch softball gained in participation, with volleyball and soccer each jumping by about 10,000. The other more popular sports for girls declined. Again, there were no changes in the relative rankings of the most popular girls' participation sports.

In terms of sponsorship, only one of the top 10 boys' sports grew in numbers of schools sponsoring them—soccer. All others declined, although some of the drops were very small. There were no changes in the relative rankings.

For girls, volleyball, fast-pitch softball, swimming, golf, soccer and indoor track gained in sponsorship, and indoor track moved into 10th place, dropping gymnastics from the top 10. Those that declined in sponsorship were basketball, outdoor track, cross country, tennis and gymnastics.

According to the NFSHSA data, the state associations included 45 fewer schools (17,469 compared to 17,514 a year before) and those schools had 16,500 fewer students (11,110,500 compared to 11,127,000). So those gaining in participation and/or sponsorship are "real" gains because the numbers of schools and numbers of students were slightly lower.

ice hockey, the other in gymnastics. Wilson said that these students are receiving significant benefits.

"While these injuries obviously are tragic, we're glad to see benefits being paid to those who need them," Hunter said.

Student-athletes who sustain such injuries but do not have adequate insurance coverage often go to court to get money from the school, Wilson said. However, no liability suits have been brought as a result of injuries covered by the NCAA plan. "Institutions can reduce their liability exposure by having a catastrophic-injury plan in place," he said.

Special coverage for club and intramural sports also is available, according to Wilson, and an increasing number of member institutions have expressed an interest in purchasing the catastrophic plan for such programs.

Institutions interested in receiving further details about any of the three NCAA-sponsored plans should contact National Sports Underwriters at 9300 Metcalf Avenue, Suite 350, Overland Park, Kansas 66212 (telephone 800/621-2116).

Career counseling forum planned

The Association's legislative services department has announced plans for another career counseling panel forum—the second of six to be held through 1991 as part of a three-year plan recently endorsed by the NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee.

The event is set for June 16 and will be held at the Hyatt Regency DFW in Dallas. A registration form appears on this page, and additional information is available from the NCAA legislative services department.

NCAA legislation permits the establishment of on-campus career counseling panels to assist student-athletes in determining their options in professional sports and to provide information on player agents and related issues. As well as providing a forum for members of established panels to exchange ideas, the NCAA forums also are designed to encourage development of career counseling panels at member institutions.

The first forum, held last December in Chicago, included appearances by former University of Miami

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz will speak at the Dallas forum on the Association's views regarding career counseling panels. In addition, representatives of Major League Baseball and the National Football League will appear to discuss issues related to careers in professional sports and their agent-certification programs.

Legislative services staff members will provide recommended guidelines for administering successful on-campus counseling panels. A review of NCAA legislation regarding amateurism and professionalism will be provided, and a round-table discussion session will afford the opportunity for attendees who now serve on institutional career counseling panels to break into small groups and discuss relevant issues.

Also on the forum's agenda is a session regarding Federal legislation that has been proposed by Rep. John Bryant (D-Texas) to regulate agents.

Those interested in attending the forum must register by using the form in this issue of the News. Member institutions' chief executive officers and career counseling panel members, and any conference officials are encouraged to attend.

Those making hotel reservations must contact Diane Nixon at the NCAA (913/384-3220) by June 1. Travel and hotel accommodations are the responsibility of those attending.

Full agendas for the forum and other written materials will be distributed at the Hyatt.

Questions and requests for additional information on the forum should be directed to Richard J. Evrard, director of legislative services, or Richard C. Perko, legislative assistant, at the Association's national office.

Council to act on postseason bowl certification

During its April 11-13 meeting in Coronado, California, the NCAA Postseason Football Subcommittee voted to recommend to the Council that 18 postseason football games be certified for the 1989-90 bowl season, an increase of one from last season.

The bowls will not be certified officially until the recommendations are acted upon by the Council at its August 2-4 meeting in San Diego.

The new bowl is the Copper Bowl, to be played in Tucson, Arizona, December 30 at 5 p.m. (Eastern time).

The 1988-89 bowls generated gross receipts of over $66 million; about $53 million was distributed to the participating institutions, an increase of more than $5 million over the previous year.

Following is the complete list of games the committee voted to recommend to the Council for certification for the 1989-90 bowl season (starting times listed are Eastern time):

All American Bowl, Birmingham, Alabama, December 28, 8 p.m.; Eagle Aloha Bowl, Honolulu, Hawaii, December 25, 3:30 p.m.; California Bowl, Fresno, California, December 9, 4 p.m. (tentative); Copper Bowl, Tucson, Arizona, December 30, 5 p.m.; Cotton Bowl, Dallas, Texas, January 1, 1:30 p.m.; Sunkist Fiesta Bowl, Tempe, Arizona, January 1, 4:30 p.m.; Florida Citrus Bowl, Orlando, Florida, January 1, 1:30 p.m.; Freedom Bowl, Anaheim, California, December 29, 9 p.m. (tentative); Mazda Gator Bowl, Jacksonville, Florida, December 30, 8 p.m.

Hall of Fame Bowl, Tampa, Florida, January 1, 1 p.m.; Sea World Holiday Bowl, San Diego, California, December 29, 8 p.m.; Independence Bowl, Shreveport, Louisiana, December 16, 8 p.m.; Liberty Bowl, Memphis, Tennessee, December 29, 8 p.m.; Orange Bowl, Miami, Florida, January 1, 8 p.m.; The Peach Bowl, Atlanta, Georgia, December 30, 2:30 p.m.; Rose Bowl, Pasadena, California, January 1, 5 p.m.; USF&G Sugar Bowl, New Orleans, Louisiana, January 1, 7:30 p.m.; John Hancock Sun Bowl, El Paso, Texas, December 30, 1 p.m. (tentative).

counseling program.

The committee also will recommend to the Council that student-athletes be permitted negotiation opportunities when discussing a potential professional athletics career with a professional sports team. The committee believes that student-athletes need to be able to analyze and assess their worth in the marketplace.

Representatives of the National Football League, National Football League Players' Association, National Basketball Association, Major League Baseball and National Hockey League, and four National Football League general managers, joined the committee to discuss other topics of concern.

Among the topics of discussion with each league were:

- The creation of a development foundation, whereby developmental monies for specific sport development, officiating programs and drug-testing would be available.

- Drug-testing programs for each professional league, which were studied in depth.

- Player-agents.

- The draft systems of each league, with emphasis on the pressure placed on the student-athlete.

to harm clients at other schools if they tried to renege.

The jury deliberated 40 hours before convicting Walters, 58, and Bloom, 29, both based in New York, on charges of racketeering, conspiracy, racketeering conspiracy and mail fraud. They each face up to 55 years in prison and fines of up to $1.25 million.

The verdicts were read in the courtroom of U.S. District Judge George Marovich, where the trial began last month.

Lawyers for both men promised to appeal the guilty verdicts, the Associated Press reported.

"We'll take them in the next round," Walters said. "We'll be vindicated."

U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas called the trial a "war for both sides," but he said there was a message in the verdicts.

"I think the message is that the Federal criminal laws apply across the board to the universities, to the athletes and to the agents who do business with them," Valukas said.

Marovich set a hearing on the government's request for forfeitures of $250,000 by Walters and $125,000 by Bloom. Under racketeering laws, the government can seek to recover profits that result from an illegal scheme.

The judge also set sentencing for the week of May 23.

Walters and Bloom were convicted of conspiring to defraud six schools—Big Ten Conference members the University of Michigan, Michigan State University, the University of Iowa and Purdue University, as well as the University of Notre Dame and Temple University.

But the pair was convicted of actually defrauding only two—Michigan and Purdue.

The jury acquitted Walters and Bloom of mail fraud counts involving Michigan State and Iowa and was not required to decide the facts regarding Notre Dame and Temple because only two fraudulent acts were required to meet the racketeering standards.

In a novel application of racketeering laws, the government charged the two sports agents defrauded six universities by signing student-athletes to representation contracts that violated NCAA eligibility rules, then postdating the contracts and concealing their existence.

Prosecutors contended such arrangements effectively denied the schools their right to control athletics scholarships. Representatives of several schools testified they would have terminated the scholarships of the athletes who signed with Walters and Bloom if they had learned of the signings.

Defense attorneys had argued the agents were "ripped off" by the athletes who planned to cheat them out of commissions when the players signed with professional football teams.

The defense also tried to portray college sports as the villain. Defense attorneys said athletes were kept in school with poor grades only so they could continue playing.

"To make Bloom and Walters the scapegoats for what's wrong in college football today is simply not fair," Bloom's attorney, Dan Webb, said in closing arguments.

But prosecutors said it was a case of fraud, pure and simple,

The average student-athlete is a pretty good role model

By Daniel P. Starr

National Student-Athlete Day (April 6) appropriately is celebrated the same week that the NCAA Division I men's basketball champion is crowned appropriately, in that while some genuine student-athletes were actually playing in the tournament, many observers were overly impressed by the unprecedented pot of gold that awaited the participating institutions.

It was only a short time ago that we spoke in terms of thousands of dollars for NCAA tournament participants; now, we speak of millions. Is it any wonder that the academic side of the student-athlete equation is overlooked?

We read constantly about the sordid exploits of top football and basketball players. And we read about them not in the grocery-store tabloids but in our most highly rated magazines and newspapers.

Factual ammunition supports the contention that the student-athlete is really an athlete-student at best and, in some cases, simply a Neanderthal-type more or less hired by a college to perform on the court or gridiron.

We all know that there is another side to the story, but we need to be reminded of that, and National Student-Athlete Day does just that. There are literally millions of young men and women and boys and girls competing in organized athletics in middle school, high school and college.

It is only very few who make the headlines for making a mockery of academia by majoring in water colors or driving a red sports car, courtesy of an improper recruiting enticement; or terrorizing coeds; peddling drugs or otherwise creating mayhem.

Having been involved with college athletes and nonathletes for many years, I am aware that neither has a monopoly on ignorance and stupidity nor on brain power and brilliance. The fact is, as NCAA studies and various authorities have shown, most of our student-athletes are not much different from other students when it comes to academic achievement. A few are, and those are the ones who receive notoriety.

That being the case, it is incumbent upon us to emphasize the others, those who really are student-athletes, those who graduate on time after having spent long hours in the library and on the playing field.

We should hold up as role models former athletes who have made it in the so-called real world. Sen. Bill Bradley, Cabinet member Jack Kemp and so forth.

We should call attention to football coach Marv Levy, whose demeanor reflects an earned master's degree from Harvard, and to professional tennis star Arthur Ashe, whose research and writing in the discipline of history have earned him accolades.

In our schools, we should extol the baseball player who makes the dean's list, the power forward who earns a B-plus in a difficult science curriculum and the high school pole vaulter who wins an academic scholarship to Stanford. These are the focus of National Student-Athlete Day.

But, we must not forget the accomplishments of the average student-athlete. The mere fact that all seniors on a football team graduate on time may not be earth-shaking, but it is noteworthy; it is the bread and butter of the student-athlete concept.

Black athletes' problems require CEOs' attention

The Kansas City Star
An editorial

Black athletes feel isolated at predominantly white universities, according to a report prepared for the NCAA. That's hardly surprising. It wasn't all that many years ago, after all, that Blacks were kept out of big-time college and professional sports altogether.

The NCAA Presidents Commission authorized a study two years ago after a wave of criticism hit schools over the authorized handling of all athletes. "The presidents need to know what it's like to be a black student-athlete on a predominantly white campus," said the chief researcher for the group that conducted the NCAA study.

The news isn't encouraging.

Nearly 70 percent of black football and basketball players feel they are "different" from others on the campuses. Just over 50 percent report feeling racially isolated. Many athletes also have grander expectations than reality dictates for their futures. 44 percent said they expected to become professional athletes, wholly out of line with the number that will reach their dream.

Getting a college degree is the much safer, saner path to follow to earn a future living. Even here, black athletes are not doing well. Almost 40 percent have grade-point averages below 2.000, indicating they are not likely degree candidates.

The report follows another NCAA study that showed athletes spend more time practicing for their sport than they do in class.

Again, that wasn't a big surprise. It was just another indication of how out of kilter athletics concerns have grown at universities across the nation. It's shameful corruption of academic ideals.

The plight of black athletes can be improved. Coaches and assistants need to spend more time and attention on classroom attendance and grades. Presidents can try to make sure Blacks are made to feel welcome to all activities on campus.

The NCAA's report will be helpful if it can be another nudge toward treating black athletes not as dumb muscle to be exploited but as people with special concerns and problems.

Don't put down 'Prop 48' nonqualifiers

Tony Rice, varsity football player
University of Notre Dame

Chicago Tribune

"It was the best and the worst thing for me (being a 'Proposition 48' casualty in 1986). It was tough not being able to play. I couldn't even bear going to practices. I felt like I was living in another world.

"But at the same time, I was able to get a foot down on my classes. It helped.

"It's not easy. I'm still fighting. A lot of people said I wouldn't make it through. But I have one more year left to get my degree. I've got one requirement left in my major.

"You get a stamp: Prop. 48. Don't be so quick to put those students down. Give them a chance."

Steve Fisher, head men's basketball coach
University of Michigan

Houston Chronicle

"The situation with cheating and the pressure that's being placed on coaches to win isn't going to get any better until there's a more nearly equal split of the money in the (Division I men's basketball) tournament.

"I don't have a final answer and a definite plan, but I think we create a monster when we give only the (final) four teams these big payoffs."

Charles M. Neinas, executive director
College Football Association

CFA Sidelines

"Nothing is ever perfect, but it is encouraging that head coaches, recruiting coordinators and assistant coaches appear anxious to improve their profession and are receiving strong support from chief executive officers and athletics administrators."

Joe Krivak, head football coach
University of Maryland, College Park

United Press International

"Everybody in college sports is worried about our image. You don't hear about responsible coaches or clean programs. You hear about winners and sometimes the guys who are winning aren't doing everything right.

"You put (coaches) in pressure cookers, and they get in a bind. Some of them compromise their integrity; most do not."

John Chaney, head men's basketball coach
Temple University

The Washington Post

"I did not have any confidence they would do anything any different (Presidents Commission's statement that it would develop legislation to support the intended effect of Proposal No. 42 while providing certain nonqualifiers an opportunity to receive need-based institutional financial aid).

"It's a vain attempt to soften the blow for all the young folk, especially poor athletes, black and white.

"With Proposition 48, it was a truck that just ran over you, and the guy said, 'Excuse me.'

"Now we see the truck coming back."

Pat O'Morrow, varsity football player
Ohio State University

The Associated Press

"Everything's got to be perfect now (with the elimination of the kicking tee from college football).

Opinions

Peter Alfano, columnist
The New York Times

"The expanded play-off and tournament formats in most sports have probably made a coach's job more difficult.

"College coaches who cannot earn one of the 64 NCAA or 32 NIT berths in short order are facing dismissal.

"And because 96 schools participate in postseason play, making the tournament every year soon becomes expected. Progress must be shown.

"Personality conflicts, coaching styles, recruiting methods also play a part in whether a coach solidifies his position or is considered vulnerable.

"As long as the focus of college sports remains on winning and generating revenue, coaches will continue playing musical chairs, staying one step ahead of the lynch mob."

Chris Weller, head women's basketball coach
University of Maryland, College Park

The New York Times

"The reason I coach is because sports is all about goals, the confidence to succeed.

"The university is a role model for a sense of community. In this do-your-own-thing world, we are still social beings. It is what separates us from other animals.

"I am all for things that create community. I believe sports does that for a university."

Through sports, Liberty seeks status equal to BYU, Notre Dame

Liberty University recently moved its athletics program to Division I largely because it wanted to use sports to attract national attention to its religious principles.

It now can claim to have spread its message from coast to coast.

Articles about Liberty—particularly its Division I-AA football program, which is led by former Cleveland Browns coach Sam Rutigliano—appeared recently in The New York Times and the Los Angeles Times.

The school was founded as a Bible college in 1971 by evangelist Jerry Falwell; its initial enrollment was 250 students. Today, with Falwell as its president, Liberty boasts more than 5,000 students.

Liberty sponsors 10 men's and six women's sports; its men's basketball team recently completed its first Division I season with a 10-17 record. The baseball team is coached by former New York Yankees second baseman Bobby Richardson.

In football, the school already has enjoyed success—but not without controversy.

Seeking visibility

The 1988 Liberty football squad finished with an 8-3 record against opponents that included seven Division I-AA opponents. While that debut served notice that the Flames were capable of beating tougher competition, events that followed the season demonstrated just how serious Liberty is about becoming a nationally visible program.

Last season's Liberty team was coached by Morgan Hout, who learned on the same day last December that he was named Virginia Division I football coach of the year that he had lost his job to Rutigliano.

9,200 seats to be added at Penn State

Pennsylvania State University's Board of Trustees has approved the hiring of an architect to design a 9,200-seat addition to Beaver Stadium. Officials hope the project will be completed before the 1990 college football season.

The additional seats will increase capacity of the stadium, the sixth largest on-campus facility in the country, from 83,370 to 92,500.

"The unparalleled success of Penn State's football program has taxed the seating capacity of Beaver Stadium beyond its current limit," athletics director James I. Tarman said. "We have sold out 65 consecutive games and found it necessary to put a cap on season-ticket sales to alumni, faculty, students and the general public."

Tarman said the season ticket renewals from alumni, members of the Nittany Lions Club and the general public exceeded 98 percent in the 1987 and 1988 seasons. All the 3,500 faculty tickets were purchased, and the 18,600 season tickets for Penn State students have been sold by early July each of the past two seasons.

Tarman said that 17,000 applications for 40,000 single-game tickets had to be returned because of lack of availability and more than 2,000 applications from Nittany Lion Club members for new season tickets were left unfulfilled. It has become increasingly difficult to provide additional single-game tickets for such special events as homecoming and All-University Day. Parents Day this year has been moved to a date when the football team is on the road because it was impossible to satisfy ticket demand, Tarman said.

Sam Rutigliano

Hout was offered a job as assistant athletics director but he decided to seek a coaching job elsewhere; even so, he departed amiably with a statement thanking Falwell for the opportunity "to prove myself as a football coach."

In making the announcement,

Falwell said the football program needed someone of Rutigliano's stature to bring the team and the school the national attention they seek.

"I think that now is a good time for Liberty to attempt to become, for evangelical young people, what Brigham Young is for the Mormon youth, Notre Dame for the Roman Catholic youth; that is, a world-class university both academically and athletically," Falwell said. He also announced that the school would build a 12,000-seat football stadium that could be expanded to 35,000 seats, as well as a 10,000-seat arena for the basketball program.

'Bottom line'

"He wants to go big time," Rutigliano told Los Angeles Times reporter Richard Hoffer of Falwell's hopes for the program. "Because, bottom line, he wants to spread the message of what Liberty University is all about. Sports is a powerful force. He wants to spread the word, save some souls."

Next season, all of Liberty's home football games will be aired on FamilyNet, Falwell's cable-television network, and the Flames will play their first Division I-A opponent, Eastern Michigan University. The school also is seeking admission to the Southern Conference (The NCAA News, March 8), of which 1988 Division I-AA football champion Furman University is a member.

"At the present time, (Liberty) may be the best candidate out there as far as expansion is concerned," Southern Conference Commissioner Dave Hart told The New York Times. "That's not saying they'll get in, but they keep improving every year, and our people know that."

On several occasions, Falwell has said he dreams of the day when Liberty will face the University of Notre Dame on the gridiron.

"He made that claim when he first started," Lynchburg (Virginia) News and Daily Advance sports writer Scott Tolley told Hoffer. "And we thought he was joking at the time."

The idea apparently is not entirely a joke to Falwell or Rutigliano, who sees playing Notre Dame as the "bull's-eye" of Liberty's efforts.

"Play a William and Mary, a Virginia, a James Madison," Rutigliano told Hoffer, "make your next step, a few TV games, build your stadium to 36,000 and move up to Northwestern, Stanford."

"We have to win," he said. "We have to get people's attention."

Illini take team title in men's gymnastics

Illinois defeated host and defending champion Nebraska, 283.400-282.300, to win the team title at the National Collegiate Men's Gymnastics Championships, held April 13-15.

The title was the ninth overall for the Illini but their first since 1958. Illinois now is tied with Penn State for most team championships. Illinois was runner-up to Nebraska last year. Nebraska has finished second four times in the past five years.

"We brought everybody back from our team that finished second last year, so we knew it was up to us and how we performed," Illinois coach Yoshi Hayasaki said.

In individual events, Chad Fox of New Mexico became the first gymnast in the championships' history to win four individual titles on the same apparatus. He won his fourth straight title in the vault with a score of 9.625. Fox has five career titles, including the 1987 floor-exercise crown.

Paul O'Neill of New Mexico tied Alfonso Rodriguez of Houston Baptist for top honors on the still rings. The title was the third for O'Neill on that apparatus, and he joins Jim Hartung of Nebraska as a three-time winner on the rings. O'Neill began his career at Houston Baptist and was a teammate of Rodriguez. Rodriguez also won the individual title on the parallel bars.

Miguel Rubio of Houston Baptist won his second consecutive horizontal-bar title with a score of 9.950. Rubio had to pass up this year's all-around competition because of a sore wrist. He was the defending champion.

Mark Sohn of Penn State tied for first on the pommel horse for the second straight year. This year, Sohn and Chris Waller of UCLA both scored 9.850.

TEAM RESULTS

1. Illinois, 283.400; 2. Nebraska, 282.300; 3. Minnesota, 280.550; 4. UCLA, 282.600; Houston Baptist, 281.300; Stanford, 279.250; 7. Ohio St., 278.950; 8. Arizona St., 276.350; 9. Penn St., 275.150; 10. Iowa 272.200.

Georgia women win second women's gym crown since '87

Host Georgia won its second National Collegiate Women's Gymnastics Championships team title in three years, defeating UCLA, 192.65-192.60. The championships were held April 14-15.

Georgia's winning score was the highest in the championships' history. Last year, Alabama became the first team to break the 190-point mark. This year, the top five teams bettered that bench mark.

Georgia's victory also marked the third straight year that the team championship was won by a Southeastern Conference member.

In individual competition, the Bulldogs' Lucy Wener won a third title on the uneven bars, scoring a perfect 10.000. Kim Hamilton of UCLA tied for first in the floor exercise, making her the first gymnast to win three consecutive titles in an event. The only other gymnast to win three titles in the same event is Elaine Alfano of Utah, who won the vault in 1982, 1983 and 1985.

Hamilton also won the vault, giving her four career titles. That ties her with Kelly Garrison-Steves of Oklahoma and Penney Hauschild of Alabama for the championships record.

Corrinne Wright of Georgia, who tied with Hamilton for the floor exercise title, took top honors in the all-around competition.

TEAM RESULTS

1. Georgia, 192.650; 2. UCLA, 192.600; 3. Alabama, 192.100; 4. Nebraska, 190.800; 5.

Utah, 190.200; 6. Cal St. Fullerton, 189.45; 7. (tie) Arizona St. and Oregon St., 187.900; 9. Oklahoma, 187.050; 10. Florida, 187.000; 11. Arizona, 186.500; 12. Ohio St., 186.400.

INDIVIDUAL RESULTS

All-around: 1. Corrinne Wright, Georgia, 38.900; 2. (tie) Tanya Service, UCLA, and Lucy Wener, Georgia, 38.700; 4. (tie) Jill Andrews, UCLA, and Melissa Miller, Florida, 38.650; 6. Kim Masters, Alabama, 38.600.

NCAA awards postgraduate scholarships in basketball

Postgraduate scholarships of $4,000 each have been presented to 20 basketball players (10 each for men and women) at NCAA member institutions.

The Association annually awards 100 such scholarships. In addition to the basketball scholarships, 25 awards have been presented to student-athletes in football, and 55 awards (30 for men and 25 for women) will be given in other sports in which the NCAA conducts championships competition.

Including the 1988-89 basketball awards listed below, the NCAA postgraduate scholarship program has presented scholarships worth $3,244,000 to 1,949 student-athletes since 1964. To qualify, a student-athlete must maintain a minimum 3.000 grade-point average on a 4.000 scale—or the equivalent—and perform with distinction in a varsity sport.

Following are the accomplishments of the 1988-89 postgraduate scholarship winners in basketball.

Men's Division I

Scott Richard Haffner (University of Evansville, 3.360 grade-point average in marketing) Haffner recently was voted Midwestern Collegiate Conference player of the year and was honored as a GTE academic all-America. He is the school's sixth leading scorer and holds Evansville's record for assists. He currently is pursuing an MBA at Evansville.

Richard Jason Hall (Ball State University, 3.944 grade-point average in accounting/political science)—Hall served as an intern with Sen. Richard Lugar's staff, with duties including researching political issues and assisting in the press department. He also has volunteered in the local Big Brother program. He is a member of the Blue Key national honor society and Beta Alpha Psi accounting honor society. Hall was named to the Mid-American Athletic Conference and the District 5 academic teams. He plans a career in public service and will begin law studies this fall.

Michael John Smith (Brigham Young University, 3.520 grade-point average in Spanish)—Smith's many activities include serving as Utah's Special Olympics coordinator in 1988 and serving as an assistant to a Latter Day Saints mission president in Argentina. His achievements include selection as GTE academic all-America of the year for 1988. He will graduate this spring and pursue a career in sports broadcasting or physical therapy.

Marc Wayne Urquhart (Iowa State University, 3.330 grade-point average in biology)—Urquhart is a member of the Golden Key national honor society and the Mortar Board senior honor society and received Iowa State's student-athlete award for two years. He also has been active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He led his team in assists in six games last season and in rebounds once. He will enter medical school this fall with hopes of becoming a surgeon.

Men's Divisions II-III

John Patrick Banovetz (Hamline University, 3.990 grade-point average in chemistry)—Banovetz has been active in the Hamline Student Congress, with duties including parliamentarian and chair of the economic affairs committee. He was a Rhodes Scholar finalist and was a 3M merit scholar for the past three years. He recently was named Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference player of the week and earned team most-improved honors for the 1986-87 season. He plans to pursue a doctorate in inorganic chemistry.

James David Martin (Lewis University, 3.700 grade-point average in finance) A student representative to Lewis' academic affairs committee, Martin also was active in the Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity. He has earned Great Lakes Valley Conference academic honors the past three seasons and has been nominated to receive GTE academic all-America honors this season. He plans to enter the MBA program at DePaul University this fall.

Joseph Alan Regnier (North Dakota State University, 3.600 grade-point average in business administration)—Regnier is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society and Phi Beta Lambda business society. On the court, he holds the school record for career blocked shots, career rebounds and career scoring. He was a member of the GTE all-district academic team and was the conference's player of the year this past season. Regnier hopes to begin work toward an MBA this fall.

Robert Edward Sundell (Northwest Missouri State University, 3.860 grade-point average in political science)—Sundell's activities include membership in the Blue Key national honor society, Fellowship of Christian Athletes and the Political Science Club.

Richard Jason Hall

Michael John Smith

Michelle Renee Flamoe

Jennifer Jill Goldberg

The team captain recently was named to the GTE academic all-America second team. Also, Sundell is the Division II outdoor track champion in the high jump. He is interested in criminal law and will begin graduate studies this fall.

Men's at-large

Kristopher Joseph Kearney (Florida Southern College, 3.047 grade-point average in business administration)—Kearney has volunteered for the past three years with the local Special Olympics and in the Big Brother program. He was the season's Division II player of the year and earned NABC all-America first-team honors the past two seasons. Also, Kearney led teammates this season in scoring, rebounds and field goal percentage. He plans to enter the University of South Florida's MBA program this fall.

Joseph Stephen Novak (Drew University, 3.740 grade-point average in biology/pre-medicine)—Novak is a member of Beta Beta Beta biology honor society and chaired Drew's Housing Concerns Committee. He has been on the dean's list for seven semesters and was a GTE academic all-America District 2 selection this season. He will begin studies this summer at the University of Virginia School of Medicine.

Men's alternates

Andrew Scott Fisher, University of Toledo; Douglas Anthony Cornwall, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Kevin Michael

Presto, University of Miami (Florida); Kenneth Charles Heinecke, Luther College.

Women's Division I

Michelle Renee Flamoe (Oregon State University, 3.910 grade-point average in general science)—Flamoe served as women's basketball representative on the student-athlete council and was a discipleship group leader for Campus Crusade for Christ. She is the second highest scorer in Pacific-10 Conference history and has been named Pac-10 player of the week several times in her career. She plans to attend medical school in the fall of 1990.

Beth Leigh Laney (Appalachian State University, 3.818 grade-point average in mathematics/secondary education)—Honors include membership in Pi Mu Epsilon mathematics honor society, Gamma Beta Phi honor society and Alpha Chi honor society. Laney is a Southern Conference drug-awareness spokesperson this year and has been active in the Student-Athlete in Drug Defense Program. She was the conference's leading scorer and leading field-goal shooter this past season. She will continue studies in mathematics beginning in 1990.

SEC plans seminar on drugs

Physicians, law-enforcement personnel, athletics trainers and politicians will appear at a Drug Education Seminar sponsored by the Southeastern Conference in Atlanta May 5-6.

"Issues surrounding substance abuse have become very important to everyone in athletics," said SEC Commissioner Harvey W. Schiller.

The seminar begins at 1 p.m. Friday, May 5, at the Ramada Renaissance Hotel near Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport and will end at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Among the speakers are Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young; Tom Sykes, director of public affairs for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency; Investigator W. J. Steward of the Atlanta Police Department; David Black, M.D., director of Vanderbilt University's Steroid Testing Program; former professional sports agent Tom Collins; and Tim Kerin, head trainer at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

These and other speakers will address issues such as the impact of Federal policies on drug-enforcement programs on campus, physical and psychological problems associated with steroid use, how an athlete's substance abuse affects a team and the coach, how to improve a school's substance-abuse policies and programs, where do students' rights stop and school liability begin, and legal issues over testing, uncovering drug abuse on campus, rehabilitation and release of information.

CoSIDA to help those seeking jobs

For the fifth straight year, a job-placement service will be incorporated in the annual workshop of the College Sports Information Directors of America. CoSIDA's 1989 meeting is set for June 30 to July 6 at the Crystal Gateway Marriott in Washington, D.C.

At last year's CoSIDA workshop, which was held in Kansas City, 120 job seekers participated and more than 60 positions were posted. It is expected that available positions this summer will include full-time positions in sports information and promotions as well as graduate assistantships and internships.

Potential job seekers and institutional representatives who anticipate filling positions at the workshop are being urged by CoSIDA officials to preregister for the Washington conference. Attendance, however, is not required for individuals seeking jobs and institutions seeking to fill positions.

Those interested in taking part, regardless of their plans for attending the CoSIDA workshop, should forward three copies of pertinent information (i.e., personal resumes or position-vacancy announcements) to Fred Stabley, P.O. Box 6411, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan 48826.

Susan Rose Shea (Monmouth College (New Jersey), 3.810 grade-point average in social work) Shea was president of the National Social Work honor society and was active in the local Big Sister program. She also was named to the GTE academic all-district team. She will enter graduate school next spring and eventually enter the field of gerontology.

Stephanie Marie Webb (Butler University, 4.000 grade-point average in biological science/zoology)—Webb's honors include membership in the Mortar Board senior honor society and Butler's honor society. Also, she received the school's Weiss Scholarship, given to an outstanding zoology student. She was voted the team's most improved player in 1986 and received GTE academic all-district honors this season. Webb will enter Ohio State University's School of Medicine this fall.

Women's Divisions II-III

Cindy June Burkett (Emory and Henry College, 3.810 grade-point average in physical education) Burkett was president of Fellowship of Christian Athletes, served on the appeals board of the Council of Student Affairs and was vice president of the Cardinal Key honor society. She also was a member of Sigma Mu scholarship society. She holds the school record for single-game field-goal percentage and scored more than 1,000 career points. She will pursue a graduate program in physical education with hopes of teaching and coaching on the collegiate level.

Daria Anna Klachko (Fairleigh Dickinson University, Madison, 3.750 grade-point average in biology) Klachko was an organic chemistry group tutor and was lab assistant in entomological research. She was secretary/treasurer for Omicron Delta Kappa national honor society and president of the Leadership Honor Society. She ranks first in school history in career rebounds and second in career points. Also, she was a GTE academic all-district selection this season. She hopes to enter the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey this fall.

Kristi Lea Kremer (North Dakota State University, 3.900 grade-point average in nursing) A member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society, Kremer received the C. V. Mosby award given to the school's outstanding nursing student. She was selected to the NCAA all-tournament team at last year's Division II championship. She hopes to begin work this fall toward a master's degree in nursing at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities.

Mary Kate Long (University of Tennessee, Martin, 4.000 grade-point average in English) Long was vice president of Phi Kappa Phi honor society and was senior representative to the University Scholar's Organization. She received the Bettye Giles Award, given to the school's outstanding female student-athlete, and recently was named GTE college division academic-athlete of the year. She plans to earn a doctorate in English and eventually teach on the college level.

Women's at-large

versity, 3.530 grade-point average in economics) Goldberg was active in the school's Handicap Awareness Project, was active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and participated in the International Studies in London program. She received all-Southeastern Conference honors three times and was a GTE all-district honoree. She hopes to begin work toward an MBA degree this fall.

Amy Sue Vanderkolk (Indiana State University, 3.840 grade-point average in accounting) A member of Phi Kappa Phi and Beta Gamma Sigma honor societies, Vanderkolk also was active in the National Association of Accountants. She was voted the team's most valuable player last year and was a GTE District 5 academic all-America this season. Also, she was the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference scoring and rebounding leader this year. She has applied to Yale University, where she will pursue an MBA.

Women's alternates

Tracy Kristine Morton, Angelo State University; Susan Lynette Gregg, U.S. Coast Guard Academy; Paulette Marie Stall, Louisiana Tech University; Pamela Lynn Tanner, Illinois State University.

Freshman ends team's 16-game slide with perfect game

After watching his Mount St. Mary's College teammates absorb their 16th consecutive road defeat in baseball (dating back to the 1988 season), freshman pitcher Will Milligan came up with what some observers are calling the perfect remedy. After the Mountaineers dropped the first game of a twin bill to Long Island University-Brooklyn Center April 9, Milligan simply went out and fashioned a perfect game in the nightcap.

"Heck, this is my first career shutout, first no-hitter and first perfect game at any level," said the native of Summitt, New Jersey, after needing only 63 pitches to pick up a 10-0 victory.

"The key to my pitching performance was keeping the ball low and mixing the pitches," Milligan added. "Even though I only had one strikeout, I was consistently ahead of the hitters."

Everything went Milligan's way—including an appeal of an apparent double in the sixth inning by Long Island-Brooklyn's James Ruocchio. In the excitement of breaking up Milligan's perfect game with a smash to the outfield, Ruocchio missed first base. He was called out upon a Mountaineer appeal.

"Very seldom do you get an appeal call to work out," Milligan offered. "After he was called out, I breathed a sigh of relief."

Robert Mizerek, who has coached Rutgers University, Newark, athletics teams since 1962, earned his 500th career coaching victory at the school April 8 when his men's tennis team defeated Stevens Institute of Technology, 9-0.

Mizerek has coached wrestling and men's and women's tennis at the school. As of April 5, when the Rutgers-Newark sports information office issued a release in advance of his reaching this coaching milestone, Mizerek's lowest winning percentage in any one sport was .721.

He left the wrestling program in 1982 with that mark, the result of a 191-74 career record. As of April 5, Mizerek's winning percentages in men's and women's tennis were .731 (204-75) and .851 (103-18), respectively.

Rudy Abbott, head baseball coach at Jacksonville State University, got career victory No. 600 April 9 when his team defeated Valdosta State University, 8-2. Abbott is in his 20th season with the Gamecocks, and his 1989 team went to 24-7 with the decision over Valdosta State.

A rifle scholarship fund has been established at Tennessee Technological University in memory of James R. Newkirk, the highly successful Golden Eagle coach who died unexpectedly in February. Every one of Newkirk's teams finished among the top six at the National Collegiate Men's and Women's Rifle Championships, and three of them captured team titles.

Information on the memorial is available from the Jim Newkirk Scholarship Fund, Tennessee Technological University, Box 5047, Cookeville, Tennessee 38505 (telephone 615/526-1136).

As part of the Soviet baseball team's tour of the United States, during which the Russians have played several NCAA teams, hall-of-fame member Brooks Robinson presented Soviet coach Alexander Ardatov with a commemorative jersey specially designed for the occasion by Russell Athletic. The presentation was made April 13 at the University of Maryland, College Park, when the Russians met the Terrapins on the diamond.

Two women's tennis matches, a women's softball double-header and free ice cream sundaes are on the program for the College of St. Benedict's second annual "Sundae in the Park," which is set for April 22—a Saturday.

Rudy Abbott

The event, designed to promote Blazer women's athletics, will feature the tennis team facing Gustavus Adolphus College at 10:30 a.m. and Hamline University at 3 p.m. The softball team will play two against St. Mary's College (Minnesota), with the first pitch also set for 3 p.m.

Admission is free, and the local Kemps Clover Leaf Dairy will provide free ice cream sundaes to fans at approximately 3:30 p.m.

Illinois-based Chicagoland Processing has minted 20,000 coins commemorating the University of Michigan's 1989 Division I men's basketball title. Each coin features Michigan's Wolverine logo and the words "national champions" on one side and the Final Four logo on the other side. Priced at $24.95 each, they are available by calling 800/742-1989.

In other Michigan men's basketball news, guard Rumeal Robinson got another chance to sink a big free throw under pressure April 12. No title was on the line this time, but President George H. W. Bush was.

During a visit to the White House and tour of the nation's capital, Robinson joined Bush in the Rose Garden for a little foul shooting at a portable basket that had been erected for the occasion. Robinson, who sank two free throws in the final five seconds of the 1989 Division I championship game to give Michigan a victory over Seton Hall University and the national title, sank his first attempt... as did Bush.

"Today, 'Hail to the Victors' is the No. 1 basketball hit-parade song," Bush told Wolverine players and head coach Steve Fisher. "Mission impossible? Yours has been a mission accomplished."

should mark April 29 on their TV calendars. The network will show the consolation and championship games from the sixth World Collegiate Soccer Championships, held April 14 and 16 at Diablo Stadium in Tempe, Arizona.

Competing teams included 1988 NCAA Division I champion Indiana University, Bloomington; Sangamon State University (Springfield, Illinois), the 1988 NAIA titlist; the University of Toronto, Canada's reigning champs, and Mexico's top team, La LaGuna Technological Institute.

Teams from Clemson University and the University of California, Los Angeles, also have appeared in the tournament. Clemson won the 1985 and 1987 titles, and UCLA captured the 1986 crown.

For the first time in meet history, a 6,000-meter relay race for women will be run at the 1989 University of Pennsylvania Relay Carnival. The Penn Relays are set for April 27-29 on the Philadelphia campus.

"We believe this event will immediately become a highlight of the carnival," said Timothy Baker, meet director. "Women's collegiate distance running has made significant strides in the past few years, and the 4x1,500 will give the participants an opportunity to showcase their talents."

Officials said a world-record performance is possible. Runners from the University of Virginia set the existing record, 17:48.76, in 1987.

Trivia Time: Although no 6,000-meter relay has been held in NCAA women's track championships, the individual 1,500-meter race has been contested. In all divisions, who has run the fastest time in an NCAA championships 1,500-meter race? Answer later.

Former Dartmouth College skiing coach Al Merrill, an internationally recognized authority on Nordic skiing, recently was named winner of the Eastern Intercollegiate Ski Association's 1989 Service Award.

Merrill retired as Dartmouth coach in 1983. His 27-year tenure at the school included one NCAA team title, three second-place finishes and seven third-place finishes. He coached the U.S. Nordic team at the 1956 winter Olympics and was head coach of the entire U.S. teams at the 1964 and 1968 Olympics.

Northern Illinois University's football team has developed the Huskie Outreach Program, in which players and coaches will visit the DeKalb (Illinois) Area Retirement Center throughout the next year. The program will include four or five visits to the center over the next year. Residents of the center also will receive weekly videos of Northern Illinois games this fall.

Among the 30-40 team members who joined coach Jerry Pettibone for the first visit, April 11, were all-America candidate Adam Dach, a running back, and cornerback Brett Tucker.

Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference Commissioner Ralph McFillen announced recently that the league's men's basketball television package enjoyed a 12.5 percent ratings increase last season (over 1987-88), according to A.C. Nielsen figures.

University of South Alabama officials announced that the school's Scholarship Invitational golf tournament, held April 4 at Mobile Country Club, raised $7,000 for the men's golf program. Part of those proceeds also will be used for letter-winner awards for all Jaguar student-athletes.

North Carolina State University officials and student-athletes participated April 12 in a public rally to raise additional funds for the Centennial Center, a 25,000-seat facility set for construction adjacent to the school's Carter-Finley Stadium.

North Carolina's General Assembly already has pledged a dollar-for-dollar match of private funds raised for the center. Plans call for the two-year construction project to begin in late 1990.

Among those participating in the rally, which was held in Reynolds Coliseum, were Bruce R. Poulton, North Carolina State chancellor; Ron Butler, associate vice-chancellor for student affairs; Jim Valvano, athletics director and head men's basketball coach, and Wolfpack cheerleaders and the pep band.

An article written by three Hope College staff members appears in the Spring 1989 issue of Athletic Training, the official journal of the National Athletic Trainers Association.

"Facilitating Team Grieving: A Case Study," was coauthored by Rich Ray, Hope's head athletics trainer and an assistant professor of physical education; Joyce Hanlon, at the time director of counseling services, and Rev. Gerard Van Heest, Hope's chaplain. The story outlines the grieving process associated with the death of a teammate, using the 1987 death of Hope football student-athlete Erik H. Exum as a case study.

His 10-8 singles record through April 5 apparently does not reflect accurately on the improvement Ohio University student-athlete John Beathler has made on the tennis court. The story of how he earned one of those 10 victories, however, does.

The sophomore from Mansfield, Ohio, who lays No. 3 singles for the Bobcats, faced Michigan State University freshman Brad Rosenbaum in a weekend road match. Rosenbaum had been ranked higher than Beathler as a junior player and had defeated him two years earlier. This time, Beathler prevailed, 6-1, 6-2.

In the classroom, Beathler's accomplishments are even more notable. He carries a cumulative grade-point average of 3.625 (4.000 scale), and the premedicine major had a 4.000 last quarter.

On the Mary Washington baseball diamond, a team of all-freshmen starters (field positions) posted a 7-3 record through the season's first 10 games—and the seven victories were consecutive. In only its second year of existence on the varsity level, the baseball team's roster includes no juniors or seniors.

Coach Tom Sheridan led the club to an 8-0 season in the Blue-Grey Conference last season, the sport's first at the school.

Trivia Answer: During the 1987 Division I Women's Outdoor Track Championships, Suzy Favor of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, covered 1,500 meters in 4:09.85—the fastest time in any NCAA women's championships meet (all divisions) in the event.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Joseph D. Sterrett appointed at Lehigh, where he also will be assistant vice-president for student affairs. The former all-America football quarterback previously served as assistant vice-president for student affairs and also has been an assistant football coach and associate admissions director at the school. Thomas H. Wonderling named at Wisconsin-LaCrosse, effective June 12. He is a former AD at three schools—Western Michigan, Cal Poly Pomona and Florida International—and has served most recently as vice-president for institutional advancement at Defiance.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Dan Meinert selected at Minnesota after serving since 1985 as assistant AD at Ohio State. Sandy Barbour resigned at Northwestern, effective August 31. She served as director of recruiting services at Northwestern before becoming assistant AD in 1984. Barbour plans to pursue graduate studies at the school.

COACHES

Baseball—Perry Bove hired at St. Michael's. The school will reinstate the sport next season after dropping it in 1981. Bove has coached for 22 years at the high school, American Legion and semi-professional levels.

Baseball assistants—Len Whitehouse named pitching coach for the reinstated program at St. Michael's, which also announced the appointments of Greg Wells as infield coach and Tom Leavitt as outfield coach.

Men's basketball—Greg Blatt appointed at Western Carolina. He previously was head coach at Presbyterian, where his teams recorded an 89-35 mark through four seasons. Blatt also has been an assistant at College of Charleston, South Carolina, Citadel and Jacksonville. Jerry Loyd promoted from assistant at Louisiana Tech, where he has been on the staff for three seasons. Loyd also has coached at the high school and junior college levels. Lute Olson received a new contract at Arizona after leading the Wildcats to a No. 1 regular-season ranking. Bob Bender selected at Illinois State after six years as an aide at Duke. As a player, Bender was a freshman on Indiana's 1976 national-championship team and later transferred to Duke to play on the Blue Devils' 1978 Division I runner-up team.

Also, Bobby Hussey resigned at Davidson, citing philosophical differences and his concern that the school may reclassify its basketball program. Davidson officials responded that "maintenance of a nationally competitive NCAA Division I basketball program remains a policy of the Davidson College Board of Trustees." Through eight seasons at the school, Hussey led his teams to a 108-127 record and one appearance in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship. Alcorn State's Dave Whitney reassigned to the post of academic adviser to student-athletes at the school. Whitney, who led four Alcorn State teams to appearances in the Division I tournament, recently completed his 25th season as a head coach.

Men's basketball assistants—Carl "Rags" Ingersoll released at Brigham Young, where he was on the staff for nine seasons. Jack Thigpen joined the staff at Louisiana Tech, which also announced the promotion of Steve Buckelew from graduate assistant coach. Thigpen is a former Northeast Louisiana assistant who coached Ruston (Louisiana) High School to a state championship in 1988. Denison's Paul Hammond appointed equipment supervisor at Wooster.

Men's and women's cross country—John McVan given additional duties at Muhlenberg, where he is men's and women's track coach. During 1988, he coached a women's cross country club team at Muhlenberg that will receive varsity status this fall. McVan replaces Bill Flamish, who retired after 19 years as men's cross country coach.

Football—Raymond McDougal returned to the head coach's post he held from 1970 to 1979 at Fayetteville State. He coached the Broncos to a 50-43-3 record before serving as the school's intramural director from 1980 to 1988 and as interim head men's basketball coach last season. McDougal also has been head men's basketball coach at Bethune-Cookman. James M. Meyer promoted from assistant head coach and offensive coordinator at Kenyon, succeeding Larry Kindbom who was named head coach at Washington (Missouri). Meyer joined the Kenyon staff two years ago after coaching at Bethany (West Virginia) for five years. Kindbom coached Kenyon to a 28-30-1 record during his six-year tenure, including a 6-4 mark last season. He also coached baseball at the school for five seasons.

Football assistants—Bob Sutton given additional duties as associate head coach at Army, where he retains the title of defensive coordinator that he has held since 1983. Also, the academy announced the appointments of Mike Haywood as defensive backs coach, Doug Mallory as offensive line coach and Jeff Marron as tight ends coach. Haywood was a graduate assistant coach at Minnesota last year; Mallory assisted his father, Bill Mallory, at Indiana, and Marron has served on the staffs at Michigan State and Eastern Michigan. Dana Bible named quarterbacks coach and Rod Sherrill selected as outside linebackers coach at Miami (Ohio). Since serving during 1981 on the Miami staff, Bible has been an aide at North Carolina State and San Diego State. Sherrill spent 11 of the past 13 years at Southern Illinois, in addition to coaching at the high school level in the early 1980s. Keith Armstrong joined the Akron staff as wide receivers coach following two years as defensive backs coach at Miami (Florida). He also has coached at Temple.

In addition, Walk Criner resigned as assistant head coach and running backs coach at Idaho State, effective May 1, to become head coach at Indio (California) High School. Criner joined the Bengal staff as offensive line coach in 1987 and was recently promoted. David Sollazzo appointed defensive line coach at Citadel, his alma mater. Sollazzo, who previously served on the staff at Guilford, takes the spot vacated on the Bulldog staff by Richard Wilson, who was named receivers coach at Arkansas. Former Citadel defensive line coach Marty Long moved into the Bulldogs' outside linebackers post. Deon Chester named receivers coach at Ball State, his alma mater. He served last fall as an assistant football coach at Lawrence Central High School in Indiana. Bob Harris appointed linebackers coach at North Alabama, where he was a student assistant last season. Harris was an all-Southeastern Conference defensive back at Auburn who later played with the St. Louis Cardinals and Kansas City Chiefs. He replaces Ruffin McNeill, who was named outside linebackers coach at Appalachian State.

Also joining the Appalachian State staff were offensive coordinator and offensive backs coach Rob Best, defensive coordinator and inside linebackers coach David Knaus, offensive line coach David Browning, defensive line coach Gary Griffin, tight ends and tackles coach Blake

Feldt, receivers coach Danny Nutt and secondary coach John Wiley. Best is a former Texas Tech and North Texas assistant. Knaus coached at a Texas high school the past two seasons. Browning previously was offensive line coach at Texas A&I. Griffin was defensive coordinator and head track coach at Ranger Junior College in Texas. Feldt and Wiley were on the staff at Texas, and Nutt served at Arkansas. Rob Bernardi appointed football program coordinator at Arizona, where he previously was a graduate assistant. Tom Radulski selected as defensive coordinator and inside linebackers coach at Columbia, which also named Sean McDonnell to coach outside linebackers. Radulski previously was on the staff at Allegheny and McConnell coached tight ends last season at Boston College. Tony Lombardi named defensive backs coach at Mankato State after three years as an assistant at Wisconsin.

Men's and women's soccer coach—Roy Stanley hired as men's and women's coach at Arkansas-Little Rock. The former Princeton all-Ivy Group player has been a men's and women's assistant at Tulsa the past two years and also has been an aide at Evansville. Stanley replaces Logan Fleck, who was named assistant men's coach at South Florida. Robert Bigney named men's coach at North Carolina Wesleyan, replacing Tony Ferrell, who stepped down after leading the Battling Bishops to an appearance in the Division III Men's Soccer Championship last season. Bigney coached the past two years at LaGrange College in Georgia and is a former assistant at Richmond.

Women's softball—Linda Wells appointed at Arizona State, effective after the completion of her 15th season at Minnesota. Wells led the Golden Gophers to Big Ten Conference titles in 1986 and 1988 and has coached her teams to more than 340 victories.

Men's and women's swimming and diving—Preston Hobbie resigned after four years at Western Illinois, citing personal reasons. One of Hobbie's men's teams won an Association of Mid-Central Universities title.

Women's track and field—Loren Seagrave dismissed at Louisiana State, where he has led the Tigers to four Division I championships, including this year's indoor title. School officials did not offer an explanation for the dismissal but said it was "necessary" and "in the best interests of (the) track program."

Women's volleyball assistant—Maria Perez named at Notre Dame after serving last season at Rutgers. She also has coached a team in the European Men's Professional League and was an assistant for Major League Volleyball's Chicago Breeze, in addition to serving on the women's staffs at Northern Illinois and Eastern Michigan.

STAFF

Academic adviser—Dave Whitney named at Alcorn State, where he previously was head men's basketball coach.

Equipment supervisor—Paul Hammond appointed at Wooster, succeeding John Hatfield, who joined the staff at Pittsburgh. Hammond previously was assistant men's basketball coach at Denison and also has assisted with baseball at Kent.

Sports information directors—Frank Cicero resigned at Harvard, effective June 30. Cicero was assistant SID at the school for two years before his promotion to the director's post in 1987. Mark Reinhiller promoted to interim women's SID at North Dakota State, replacing JoDee Bock, who resigned to become public relations director for Cass County Electric in North Dakota.

Stadium superintendent—Steve Simmerman promoted from assistant stadium superintendent at Purdue, replacing Bob McVey, who went on long-term disability leave.

NOTABLES

John Moon, head men's and women's track coach at Seton Hall, and Marty Stern, head women's track coach at Villanova, named honorary college referees for men and women, respectively, at the 1989 Penn Relays Carnival. Also, Howard athletics director and track coach William P. Moultrie was named honorary carnival referee. Matt Mimitz, head track and cross country coach at Elmhurst, took on additional duties as executive director of the Chicago Area Runners Association. Doug Orr, head men's soccer coach at Hartford, selected to coach the Connecticut Senior Soccer Association team of players under age 23. Bobby Cremins, head men's basketball coach at Georgia Tech, appointed head coach for the U.S. men's basketball team at the Pan American Basketball Confederation World Championship Qualifying Tournament during June in Mexico City.

Also, Bruce Hutchinson, head men's swimming coach at Southern Connecticut State, received the Connecticut Interscholastic Swim Coaches Association's Distinguished Service Award for his contributions to high school swimming. June Courteau, supervisor of women's basketball officials in the Southern Conference, received the Naismith Award as the nation's top women's college basketball official. Dana Barros of Boston College, Leo Parent of Lowell and Jeff Bowers of Southern Maine named players of the year in Divisions I, II, and III, respectively, by the New England Basketball Coaches Association. Coaches of the year are Rick Barnes of Providence, Frank Sullivan of Bentley and John Conti of Williams. The association also will present its Doggie Julian Award to Dave Cavitt, commissioner of the Big East Conference, in recognition of his 20 years of service to the NEBCA, and will give a special award to retiring Springfield athletics director Edward S. Steitz. Andrea Kremer named Midwest reporter for the Sports-Center program on ESPN. She previously worked at NFL Films.

DEATHS

Lawrence Cooley, who joined the Cincinnati football staff during March as offensive line coach, was killed April 12 in an automobile accident in Cincinnati. He was 33. Cooley was a starting lineman at Nebraska during the 1970s who later held coaching posts at Minnesota, Northern Illinois and Ball State. Joseph Ogden, a diver who recently transferred to Texas from Arkansas, died April 11 of an apparent blood clot in the brain. He was 20. Jim Oler, a basketball player at Florida State during the 1950s who remains the leading scorer in school history, died of a heart attack April 10 in Panama City, Florida. He was 55. Oler later coached basketball teams at Brevard Junior College and Gulf Coast Community College. Bob Purcell, equipment and stadium operations coordinator at Miami (Ohio), died April 9 of a heart attack suffered while he participated in the 5K Red Brick Run in Oxford, Ohio. He was 63. Purcell had served at Miami since 1969. Edward P. Hurt, former athletics director at Morgan State, died March 24 in Baltimore at age 89.

CORRECTIONS

Due to incorrect information received by The NCAA News, the April 5 issue incorrectly identified an Indiana diver as Division I men's diver of the year. The award was presented to Cincinnati's Pat Evans, who won the three-meter championship and was runner-up in the one-meter and platform diving events.

Due to an editor's error, the Record section in the April 5 issue of the News incorrectly identified the new head men's basketball coach at Glassboro State. John Giannini was named to the post after two years as an assistant at Illinois.

According to the sports information office at Columbia, Aladar Kogler and George Kolombatovich should have been identified in the April 5 issue of the News as cohead coaches of the Columbia men's fencing squad that won the team title at the National Collegiate Men's Fencing Championships. Kogler and Kolombatovich also were cohead coaches of Columbia's 1988 national-championship team.

Basketball Hall of Fame to devote section to women's game

For the first time in its 21-year history, the Basketball Hall of Fame will devote a section to women's basketball.

The Jiffy Lube International Women's Game Exhibit will be dedicated April 28 at the hall of fame in Springfield, Massachusetts. Representatives of Jiffy Lube, which contributed $50,000 for the exhibit, and the Women's Basketball Coaches Association will participate, along with four representatives of Smith College, where the first women's game was played in 1893.

Among materials to be displayed at the hall are memorabilia, awards, photographs, records and uniforms from NCAA competition. A videotape of Division I Women's Basketball Championship title-game highlights is included in the exhibit and will be updated annually, said Michael A. Brooslin, the hall's curator.

The exhibit also will pay photographic tribute to a number of outstanding players and coaches, including Olympians Anne Donovan, Teresa Edwards and Suzie McConnell, who won the hall's annual Naismith Award in 1988; Nancy Lieberman of Old Dominion University; former Delta State University coach Margaret Wade, a member of the hall of fame, and 6-foot-7 Georgeann Wells of West Virginia University, the first woman to dunk a basketball.

Also on display are such items as the NCAA championship ring presented to members of the 1986 University of Texas, Austin, national-championship team; the game ball from a 1987 game between Texas and the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, where the women's regular-season attendance record of 24,653 was set, and the game ball that Wells dunked in 1984.

In addition, several awards are featured, including the Wade Trophy, which is named for Delta State's Wade and is presented annually to the nation's most outstanding woman college player. Also on display are the Champion Products Player-of-the-Year Trophy and the Stayfree Coach-of-the-Year award.

The exhibit was made possible through the efforts of Stephen Spinelli Jr., chairman of the board of the Springfield-based American Oil Change Corporation, which is Jiffy Lube's largest franchise operation.

"Giving something back to the local communities in which we operate has been part of the operating philosophy of Jiffy Lube from the beginning," Spinelli said. "We started our company in the Springfield area; so having the opportunity to do something for the Basketball Hall of Fame, which is a very important asset to our community, is doubly gratifying."

"I grew up on the south end of Springfield, just a few blocks away, and played baseball on a field where the Basketball Hall of Fame now sits," he added. "So I've always felt a personal relationship with the hall of fame."

Joining Spinelli at the dedication ceremonies will be Joe O'Brien, the hall's executive director, and coach Margo Plotzke of Boston College, a seven-year director of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association.

Representing Smith College at the ceremony will be Larry Fink, faculty athletics representative and former athletics director; Linda Hackett, current athletics director; Jim Babyak, head women's basketball coach, and Carole A. Grills, sports information director.

Sport dropped

Regis College (Colorado) will discontinue varsity women's swimming. The school dropped men's swimming three years ago.

Tom Dedin, athletics director, said, "We will concentrate the resources on our two new intercollegiate programs — women's soccer and softball."

Governmental affairs report

A review of recent Federal government activities affecting the NCAA membership is published quarterly in The NCAA News. These reports are prepared by Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, the Association's Washington, D.C., legal counsel.

Congressional investigation into the role of college athletics

Rep. George Miller, D-California, issued a press release April 7 announcing that the House Education and Labor Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education will hold a hearing May 18 regarding "the proper role of collegiate athletics and the future of college athletes." Rep. Miller is a member of that subcommittee as well as chair of the Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families.

In the release, he states that too many schools and colleges are failing to prepare young athletes for careers and too many students are getting failing grades "as they pursue the dream of sports success." Rep. Miller cites statistics concerning the percentage of high school senior basketball and football players who are functionally illiterate and refers to reports of problems in college athletics, including recruiting violations, drug abuse and illegal payments.

Earlier, Martin A. Massengale, chair of the NCAA Presidents Commission, and NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz met with a representative of the General Accounting Office who, at the request of the Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education, is conducting research into materials concerning the progress of student-athletes in completing their education. The NCAA anticipates testifying at the hearing.

Final Four Congressional reception

The NCAA held a buffet reception at the Kingdome April 3 for members of Congress who were attending the Division I Men's Basketball Championship in Seattle. The following Congressmen participated in the event: Norman Dicks, D-Washington; Jim Hayes, D-Louisiana; Tom McMillen, D-Maryland, and Donald Payne, D-New Jersey. Rep. Dicks is a member of the House Appropriations Committee, and Rep. McMillen is one of the sponsors of the Student-Athlete Right-to-Know Act (see below). NCAA representatives attending the reception included President Albert M. Witte, Secretary-Treasurer Judith M. Sweet, Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, members of the Council and Executive Committee, conference commissioners, NCAA staff members, and Washington, D.C., legal counsel. Schultz gave informal welcoming comments and expressed appreciation to the Congress for its continued support of the National Youth Sports Program.

Academic and enforcement issues

Student-Athlete Right-to-Know Act: On March 15, Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey, and Rep. Ed Towns, D-New York, introduced companion bills, S. 480 and H.R. 1454, entitled the Student-Athlete Right-to-Know Act. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Massachusetts, and Rep. Tom McMillen, D-Maryland, cosponsored the bills. Senate hearings on the bill are expected to be held before the summer recess.

In most respects, the proposed act is identical to the bill introduced by the same members last session. Each postsecondary institution receiving Federal financial assistance and awarding "athletics scholarships" would be required to report the following information annually to the secretary of education:

1. The graduation rate for students at the institution who received athletics scholarships, broken down by sport, race and sex;

2. The graduation rate for all students at the institution, broken down by race and sex;

6. The number and proportion of students at the institution who earned a degree within five years, broken down by race and sex;

7. The amount of Federal financial assistance received by students at the institution who participated in intercollegiate athletics.

The bills also require that the foregoing information be provided to recruited high school athletes and that the National Letter of Intent indicate that the student has reviewed the information and discussed it with his or her principal or guidance counselor.

At the time of the NCAA's 1989 Convention, the NCAA Presidents Commission determined that it would support legislation at the 1990 Convention requiring member institutions to make admissions and graduation-rate data, relating to student-athletes and to students generally, available to prospective students. The sponsors of the bill are aware of this Commission proposal but have expressed some skepticism that it will be adopted by the NCAA membership.

Sports-agent legislation. Late last year, Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas, circulated draft legislation to the sports community for comment, which would have required sports agents to register with the Department of Commerce and to disclose a wide range of their activities, as well as prior criminal, regulatory or civil actions against them. His staff now is considering a different approach to the regulation of sports agents. The focus of any Federal sports-agents legislation that the staff may develop will be on preventing the "raiding" of college student-athletes.

The 1989 Buick Riviera. It's a classic all over again.

The 1989 Riviera. It is noticeably longer, and its styling is totally new, yet you recognize it immediately. It is as contemporary as a car can be, yet it recalls a grand tradition.

And, since it is the Riviera, it is very well equipped indeed: ■ 165-horsepower 3800 V-6 engine ■ 4-speed automatic transmission with overdrive ■ 4-wheel independent DynaRide suspension ■ 4-wheel power disc brakes ■ Electronic Touch Climate Control air conditioning ■ Electronic Control Center ■ 6-way power driver's seat ■ And more.

The new Riviera is a classic all over again. See your Buick dealer for a test drive.

Drug-abuse prevention

Drug-testing: legislative developments: On January 4, House Energy and Commerce Committee Chair John Dingell, D-Michigan, and Rep. Thomas Bliley, R-Virginia, introduced H.R. 33, a bill that would amend the Public Health Service Act to establish standards for the certification of laboratories engaged in urine drug testing. The legislation is patterned after the provisions of section 10006 of the House antidrug abuse bill, which passed the House last fall but the provisions were dropped during the negotiation following a deadlock between the House and Senate. Hearings on the bill, originally scheduled April 11, have been postponed until the Senate confirms the nominations of one or more agency officials who would be asked to testify.

In brief, H.R. 33 would extend the existing guidelines regarding drug testing of Federal workers to the private sector but would give the secretary of health and human services the flexibility to revise the program as needed. Of particular interest to the NCAA, the bill permits the secretary to take into consideration any special factors or circumstances applicable to the testing of participants in amateur athletics competition that warrant separate or different treatment in the certification program.

Litigation developments: In two decisions issued March 21, the Supreme Court ruled for the first time on the constitutionality of mandatory drug testing in the work place. In National Treasury Employees Union v. Von Raab, the Court upheld, by a 5 to 4 vote, the Customs Service policy of testing Customs Service employees who apply for promotions to certain drug-enforcement jobs. In Skinner v. Railway Labor Executives Association, the court ruled 7 to 2 that Federal Railroad Administration regulations for testing railroad crews after accidents are constitutional. The close vote in the Customs Service case and the general tone of the decisions make it uncertain whether the court would uphold government-sponsored mandatory drug-testing programs that do not have a clear connection to law enforcement, national security or public-safety concerns.

Anabolic steroids: legislative developments:

Anabolic Steroid Restriction Act. On February 9, Pete Stark, D-California, introduced the "Anabolic Steroid Restriction Act of 1989," H.R. 995, which would ban any solicitation—e.g., by mail, radio, television or magazine—for anabolic steroids, with an exception for legitimate mailings to certified medical professionals. The bill also clarifies that anabolic steroids may not be mailed for any use other than the treatment of disease pursuant to the order of a physician. Hearings on the bill were held March 23, and additional hearings are likely. Olympic gold medalist Carl Lewis was among the witnesses testifying March 23.

On February 28, Senate Judiciary Committee Chair Joseph Biden, D-Delaware, introduced a similar bill, S. 466. The Senate Judiciary Committee held a field hearing on anabolic steroid abuse April 3, at which athletes (including Olympic gold medalist Evelyn Ashford), coaches and medical experts testified. A second hearing on the same subject in Washington, D.C., is planned. The focus of both hearings is on the abuse of steroids in sports.

These efforts to impose criminal penalties for selling and soliciting the sale of anabolic steroids are in addition to the measure passed last fall as part of the Anti-Drug Abuse Act, which increased to felony status the penalty for illegally distributing anabolic steroids.

Administrative developments: As required by the 1988 Anti-Drug Abuse Act, the comptroller general is conducting a study on the health consequences and extent of anabolic steroid and human growth hormone use among high school students, college students and adults. He is to report to Congress by June 1, 1989.

Government recognition of and support of athletics

National Student-Athlete Day: On February 28, the Senate passed S.J. Res. 39, designating April 6, 1989, as National Student-Athlete Day. A companion resolution, H.J.

Res. 190, is pending in the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee. The resolutions state that there is a need to reemphasize the "student" in the term "student-athlete." H.J. Res. 190 was introduced in the House March 13 by Rep. McMillen, and S.J. Res. 39 was introduced in the Senate on January 31 by Sen. Bradley.

National Women and Girls in Sports Day: On February 28, the Senate passed S.J. Res. 32, which was introduced January 21 by Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Oregon, and designated February 2, 1989, as "National Women and Girls in Sports Day." A companion resolution, H.J. Res. 82, introduced January 19 by Rep. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, and 63 cosponsors, remains pending in the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Tax law proposals

Regulation of lobbying by non-profit organizations: Hearings on the proposed new IRS regulations defining the amount of political lobbying that certain nonprofit 501 (c)(3) organizations may do and still retain their tax-exempt status were held April 3. According to press reports, the charities testifying generally supported the proposed regulations but criticized a rule for certain mass media solicitations that are made less than two weeks before a vote on highly publicized legislation. The proposals, which were published in late December, provide guidance concerning what activities constitute "grass-roots lobbying" and "direct lobbying" for purposes of IRS limitations on the amount of lobbying in which a 501 (c)(3) charitable organization or private foundation may engage without subjecting itself to an excise tax or jeopardizing its tax exemption.

National Youth Sports Program

FY 1990 appropriation. In his fiscal year 1990 budget, President Reagan again proposed to eliminate Federal funding for the Community Services Block Grant program, through which the NYSP is funded. President Bush made no specific recommendation regarding funding for the program, but his budget proposals anticipate at least a $10 billion reduction in nondefense discretionary spending, which is the category in which the program's funding is classified. The chairs of the House and Senate Budget Committees currently are engaged in negotiations with the Office of Management and Budget regarding the budget.

The NCAA has been scheduled to testify before the House Appropriations Subcommittee May 3. No date has been set for testimony before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, and no witness has yet been selected.

NYSP reception. On March 2, the NCAA held a lunch in the Dirksen Senate Office Building to thank members of Congress for their support for the NYSP and to advise members and their staffs about the increased emphasis on drug-abuse education and prevention in the NYSP. Three senators and eight Congressmen — Sens. DeConcini, D-Arizona; Domenici, R-New Mexico, and Thurmond, R-South Carolina, and Reps. Bateman, R-Virginia; Coble, R-North Carolina; Coleman, R-Missouri; Holloway, R-Louisiana; Livingston, R-Louisiana; Larkin Smith, R-Mississippi, and Tauke, R-Iowa, and Delegate Fauntroy, D-D.C.—and many staff members from Congressional offices attended. In addition, on the same day, representatives of NYSP projects met with their Congressmen and senators to discuss the NYSP and its funding needs.

Drug funding: On January 13, then Health and Human Services Secretary Otis Bowen advised Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Massachusetts, that HHS intends to release the $3 million appropriated for the NYSP under the Anti-Drug Abuse Act in conjunction with the regular NYSP funding under the Community Services Block Grant. On February 16, the NCAA submitted a concept paper to the HHS Office of Community Services describing how the drug funding would be used. HHS responded March 1, and the NCAA plans to submit a combined application to OCS for fiscal year 1989 regular and drug funding April 7.

On January 25, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-New York, introduced S. 26, the Anti-Drug Abuse Supplemental Appropriations Act of 1989. Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-New York, introduced a companion bill, H.R. 705, January 27. The bills would provide $1.786 billion to fund fully the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988 and would express the sense of Congress that Federal antidrug efforts be fully funded in fiscal year 1990. Under the bills, the HHS Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration would receive an additional $895 million for 1989 (the current fiscal year), of which some would be available for the Community Youth Activity Program, through which drug funding for the NYSP is authorized. The bills have been referred to the Appropriations Committee in each chamber.

Title IX

Federal administrative developments: Title IX complaints: According to Department of Education staff, as of the end of January, 16 Title IX intercollegiate athletics complaints had been filed since March 22, 1988, when the Civil Rights Restoration Act became law. As previously reported, approximately 15 of those complaints had been filed before August 31, 1988.

Title IX policy: No further information is available concerning the status of the previously announced plans of the Department of Education, Office for Civil Rights (OCR) to revise its interim Title IX intercollegiate athletics investigator's manual, which was issued in 1980. According to OCR staff, the revised manual generally is not expected to alter OCR's current approach to assessing compliance with Title IX.

Litigation development: The appeal in Leake v. Long Island Jewish Medical Center is pending in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Last year, the lower court ruled that the Civil Rights Restoration Act applied retroactively to cases pending on the date of its enactment.

According to counsel for the Department of Justice, the University of Alaska, Anchorage, and the Department of Justice still are discussing concerns about the university's compliance with the terms of a 1981 consent decree issued in Pavey v. University of Alaska. In 1987, the Justice Department raised questions about the university's accommodation of female students' athletics interests and abilities and its expenditures for publicity, recruitment and game guarantees.

Oral argument in the appeal from the dismissal of WEAL v. Bennett, a long-standing suit against the Federal government, is scheduled April 11. In previous orders issued in WEAL and related cases, the district court has established mandatory time limits for the investigation of Title IX and other civil-rights complaints by the Department of Education.

Legislative developments: House Education and Labor Committee Chair Augustus F. Hawkins, D-California, issued a report February 16 accusing the Education Department of failing vigorously to enforce civil-rights laws protecting the rights of women and minorities in education during the Reagan Administration. According to the report, OCR investigated nearly 99,800 complaints between 1981 and 1988, most of which involved alleged discrimination on the basis of handicap. About 17 percent of the complaints were based on gender, 15 percent on race and three percent on national origin. The full Education and Labor Committee has not adopted the report. A response from OCR contesting the conclusions in the report was published as an appendix.

Copyright

1988 cable royalty fees: Cable royalties and interest for 1988 amount to $189.8 million, which makes the 1988 royalty pool the largest to date. Claims for the 1988 fees will be filed in July.

1987 cable royalty fees: On March 30, following the filing of comments by claimants, the Copyright Royalty Tribunal published a notice commencing a proceeding to distribute the $169.4 million in 1987 royalty fees. The tribunal also requested that claimants file comments concerning how much of the 1987 fund could be distributed before all controversies are resolved. Settlement discussions among the parties are continuing.

Other developments affecting the amount of royalty fees:

The Copyright Office has not yet issued a decision concerning whether cable systems will be required to pay interest on nearly $100 million in overdue royalties that are payable as a result of the January 5, 1988, Cablevision decision. The Joint Sports Claimants filed comments last year urging the Copyright Office to assess interest not only on these

Seminar is first step toward developing athletics ethics code

A summer seminar exploring the role of ethics and sportsmanship in contemporary sport will open a three-year program that is expected to result in the development of a code of ethics for athletics organizations across the United States.

The "Ethics and Sportsmanship" seminar will be presented June 21-24 by the Institute for International Sport, an independent organization at the University of Rhode Island. Presentations and panel discussions involving leading academicians, coaches, athletes and media representatives are scheduled during the event, which will be at Rhode Island's Kingston campus and is sponsored in part by Braniff Airlines.

Eventually, a 25-member "blue ribbon" committee will assist the institute in the development of a specific code of ethics during what organizers are calling "phase II" of the program.

"The phase II follow-up is the key to the entire project," said Daniel E. Doyle Jr., executive director of the institute. Using the Rhode Island Interscholastic League as a model, the institute will create a training program in ethics and sportsmanship for coaches.

Then, the institute will encourage high school associations and other sports organizations in the United States to adopt the code of ethics and participate in the training program.

CBS wins Emmy for coverage of men's tournament

CBS Sports recently won an Emmy award in the category of best live sports series for its coverage of the 1988 Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

In receiving the award for programming presented during the 1988 calendar year, CBS' tournament coverage beat NBC's "Major League Baseball Game of the Week" and "College Basketball on NBC," ABC's "NFL Monday Night Football," and CBS' "NFL Football on CBS."

The Emmy was CBS' second involving NCAA basketball. In 1982, the network received the award for best live sports special for its coverage of the Division I championship game between Georgetown University and the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

The executive producer of CBS Sports is Ted Shaker, and Bob Dekas is the network's lead producer of NCAA basketball.

late payments, but on any future late-filed cable royalty fees as well.

Recommendation for repeal of cable compulsory license: The Federal Communications Commission has not yet adopted a report in connection with its vote last fall to recommend that Congress repeal the compulsory license for cable-system carriage of distant broadcast signals. Such repeal would require cable systems to negotiate directly with the owners of copyrighted non-network broadcast programming, including the owners of nonnetwork sports programming, before retransmitting it. During consideration of the Copyright Revision Act of 1976, the NCAA and the professional sports leagues opposed the compulsory license and supported such retransmission consent.

Among the participants in the opening seminar will be Richard D. Schultz, executive director of the NCAA, who will speak during a June 23 luncheon on "The State of Ethics in Intercollegiate Athletics." Also participating will be Merrily Dean Baker, NCAA assistant executive director for administration, who will participate in a June 22 panel discussion on the topic, "Winning Is the Name of the Game... or Is It?"

Other panel topics include "Coaching Ethics," "How to Stop Cheating in Athletics," "Youth Sport: A Training Ground for Life?," "The Recruitment of Blue-Chip Athletes," "Competitive Sport and Journalistic Ethics: Does the Media Put Too Much Emphasis on Performance in Sports?," "Playing with Injuries: Knowing When to Say

When" and "Performance-Enhancing Drugs: Should There Be a Choice?"

A number of coaches are scheduled to appear, including Mike Krzyzewski, head men's basketball coach at Duke University, and Joe Paterno, head football coach at Pennsylvania State University.

Other participants include football coaches Jack Bicknell of Boston College, Vic Gatto of Davidson College and Bob Griffin of Rhode Island; basketball coaches Paula Sullivan of Stonchill College, George Blaney of Holy Cross College, Kay Yow of North Carolina State University, Kathy Delaney Smith of Harvard University and Mike Jarvis of Boston University; baseball coach Mike Walsh of Dartmouth College, and men's ice hockey coach Don Armstrong of Roger Williams College.

Also scheduled to participate are Donald "Dee" Rowe and Patricia Meiser-McKnett, associate athletics directors at the University of Connecticut; Lynn Sheedy, athletics director at Salve Regina College; Bradley L. Rothermel, athletics director at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas; Brian Colleary, recently named athletics director at Duquesne University; Robert E. Frederick, athletics director at the University of Kansas; Donna A. Lopiano, director of women's athletics at the University of Texas, Austin; Rudy Davalos, athletics director at the University of Houston; Ellie Lemaire, associate athletics director at Rhode Island, and Arlene Gorton, associate athletics director at Brown University.

Other scheduled seminar participants include Michael Cleary, executive director of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics; David Swank, interim president of the University of Oklahoma; Alexander Wolff of Sports Illustrated magazine; journalist Jeffrey Marx, and Richard Lapchick, executive director of the Center for the Study of Sport in Society.

The registration fee, which includes three lunches, one dinner and all conference materials, is $125 in advance or $135 for those registering at the conference. Undergraduate students may register for $75.

More information is available from the Institute for International Sport, University of Rhode Island, 306 Adams Hall, Kingston, Rhode Island 02881; telephone 401/792-2375.

32 summer leagues are approved

An additional 32 summer basketball leagues have been approved for student-athlete participation, bringing to 78 the number that have been certified by the NCAA Council.

The first list of approved summer leagues appeared in the April 12 issue of The NCAA News.

Questions concerning the application process or the requirements for NCAA approval of summer leagues should be directed to Louis A. Onofrio, legislative assistant, at the NCAA national office.

Following are the 24 men's and eight women's leagues recently approved for participation.

Men's leagues

California—San Fran Bay Area Pro-Am Basketball League, San Francisco. Connecticut—Shoot Straight Park League, Groton; Nike-Pearl Street Summer Basketball League, Waterbury. Florida—Wildwood Summer Adult League, St. Petersburg. Illinois—Summer Basketball League, Aurora; East Central Illinois Community Action Program, Danville; Westmont Park District Summer AAA Basketball League, Westmont.

Minnesota-Duluth forfeits seasons

The University of Minnesota, Duluth, will forfeit its 1987 football season and league championship and the 1988 baseball season for using an ineligible player, the Northern Intercollegiate Conference announced April 12.

The NAIA recently ruled that Duluth player Mike Petrich got credit for repeat courses that did not count toward fulfilling NAIA eligibility requirements, said conference publicity director Larry Scott.

Minnesota-Duluth won the NIC football title in 1987 with a 5-1 record and finished 8-3 overall. Last spring, the Bulldog baseball team placed third in the conference with a 10-10 record and finished 20-18 overall.

Petrich, a senior last year, was a defensive back and split end in football and a starting outfielder in baseball. He was injured last fall and missed most of the 1988 football season.

Since the forfeiture will affect other teams' records, the NIC is reviewing the conference's 1987 football and 1988 baseball champions and will announce a decision later this spring, Scott said.

Student-athlete enjoys internship in Britain's Parliament

Deana Bergquist loves pressure... she says it motivates her.

Maybe that's why she delivered the game-winning hit in Central College's (Iowa) national-championship softball game last season, and why she enjoyed her recent experience as an intern in the British Parliament.

Bergquist, a senior political science major from Ottumwa, Iowa, worked six months for John Browne, an influential member of the House of Commons whom she called "one of the most demanding people I've ever met."

As a research assistant for Browne, Bergquist was involved in one of the most controversial pieces of legislation proposed in Britain in the past year. The "Privacy Bill" imposes restrictions on press investigations of stories involving private citizens. The bill was designed to rein in British tabloids, which are notorious for their sensationalism of so-called human-interest stories. The bill prevents reporters from a range of activities that are currently widespread, including bugging private residences with listening devices.

Bergquist's duties primarily involved research. She prepared briefings based on voluminous documents that had to be summarized in a few paragraphs. She also:

- Revised and edited a weekly column for a constituency newspaper and a paper entitled "The Gorbachev Revolution and the Western Response."
- Prepared oral and written briefings on subjects ranging from East-West relations to television broadcasting.
- Developed questions for a television interview that Browne conducted with former White House

NBC names Ebersol head of sports

Dick Ebersol has been named president of NBC Sports, effective May 1. He succeeds Arthur A. Watson, who was appointed executive vice-president of NBC in anticipation of his impending retirement next year.

Watson will have primary responsibility for all of NBC's major sports-rights negotiations. Both Ebersol and Watson will report to Robert C. Wright, president and CEO of NBC.

Ebersol's career in sports television started at ABC Sports in 1967, when he was a Winter and Summer Olympics television researcher for both 1968 Games. In 1971, he became executive assistant to Roone Arledge, president of ABC Sports, and he later was named director of all sports-program development for ABC Sports. Ebersol also produced numerous NCAA college football telecasts and "Wide World of Sports" events, and he was a member of ABC sports' Emmy-winning Munich Olympics production team.

Now the executive producer of NBC's "Later with Bob Costas," Ebersol previously joined NBC in 1974 as director of weekend late-night programming. In 1978, at age 28, he became NBC's first vice-president under the age of 30.

Watson, completing his 10th year as president of NBC Sports, joined the company as an operations analyst in 1956.

Deana Bergquist

Chief of Staff Donald Regan.

Bergquist's internship was arranged through Central's international studies office, which administers the college's permanent program in London. Students spend either one semester or an entire school year in the program, which is located in the heart of London's Bloomsbury district.

Bergquist said the internship helped her overcome a fear of being "the little girl from Iowa."

"The second week I was there, Mr. Browne asked me to write a speech brief on the Education Reform Act. There was no one watching over me to tell me how to do it. You just had to rely on your intellect. I think that was sort of a test; and after that, he placed a lot of trust in me and gave me added responsibilities."

In Britain, legislators are not provided with large staffs. Members of Parliament have only one full-time paid employee—a secretary—and must hire other assistants themselves. Bergquist said 40 staff people would work on a bill the equivalent of the Privacy Bill in the U.S. Congress. Browne's skeleton staff, including Bergquist, worked long hours to try to push the bill through.

Browne demanded that his staff people work as hard as he did, Bergquist said, and his expectations were very high. "It was a lot of pressure, but I think I work better when I'm pressured a little. It motivates me."

Despite the demands of the job, Bergquist said the internship was more valuable than anything else she could have done in London.

"I learned the most about the people and culture of England through the internship. It was a real maturing experience. I gained confidence in myself and my ability to tackle new challenges."

There were perks, too. She attended the State Opening of Parliament, an exclusive event in which the queen gives a speech to introduce the legislative session.

Bergquist now is in the final term of an illustrious college career. In addition to her internship and overseas experience, she was instrumental in Central's NCAA Division III softball championship last season.

The all-Iowa Conference center fielder is a cocaptain of this year's squad.

A top student, she recently received the Prins Scholarship Award, presented annually to a senior who demonstrates outstanding sportsmanship in daily life.

This summer, she will spend six weeks at the Institute for Comparative Political and Economic Systems at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. She plans to attend law school.

Buffalo is seeking World University Games for 1993

Buffalo is seeking designation as the host for the 1993 World University Games, and sports officials associated with the Games are optimistic that the city's bid will be accepted by the International University Sports Federation (FISU).

This year's biennial summer Games will be held in Duisburg, West Germany. The 1991 Games are scheduled for Sheffield, England.

Since 1965, the United States has participated in various sports events under the jurisdiction of the International University Sports Federation.

The United States has competed in over 30 World University Championships in sports such as table tennis, European handball, cross country, judo, cycling, golf, taekwondo, basketball, wrestling, skiing, track and field, and gymnastics.

"The World University Games have not received proper recognition in the United States, even though we have been represented by many world-class athletes," said Nicholas Rodis, secretary general/executive director of the U.S. Collegiate Sports Council, which is a member of FISU. "There is a great competition in our country from various segments of the sports world for media coverage of professional sports, intercollegiate sports, world championships and the Olympic Games."

Many in the FISU movement believe the United States has an excellent chance of receiving the bid for 1993.

The U.S. last hosted a World University Games competition at Lake Placid, New York, in 1972.

In 1957, the United States National Students Association (USNSA) was awarded the franchise to the International University Sports Federation for the United States. USNSA did not participate in the sports activities of FISU but was active in sending representatives to general assembly and executive committee meetings.

Information regarding FISU and its programs during the early 1960's came from many sources, including coaches and physical education administrators who were recruited for the Department of State's cultural exchange programs.

Primo Nebiolo, president of FISU, made at least three trips to the United States during this period to meet with leaders in sports and physical education to enlist their support for FISU and its sports

Indianapolis lab says problem with IOC corrected

The Indiana University Medical Center has altered procedures at its drug-testing laboratory to meet International Olympic Committee standards, the Associated Press reported.

Carleton D. Nordschow, M.D., head of the lab and chair of the pathology department at the school of medicine, said April 11 the laboratory had corrected a problem in analyzing testosterone levels in athletes.

The correction will be reviewed by the IOC Medical Commission.

Prince Alexandre de Merode, chair of the Medical Commission, said laboratories in Indianapolis, Moscow, Calgary, Helsinki and Rome had been removed from the register for four months for failing to meet strict new antidoping standards.

events. Although some of our leaders showed some interest in assisting him, nothing concrete was done.

Very little was known about FISU, and the fact that USNSA had membership in the organization caused confusion. USNSA was not involved directly in any sports or physical education programs.

In January 1963, Adin Talbar, an Israeli diplomat, met with officials of the Department of State to try to encourage government support for FISU and to urge the participation of athletes in the World University Summer Games that were to be held in Porto Alegre, Brazil.

Talbar had participated in FISU events representing his country and was very knowledgeable about FISU.

Inasmuch as not enough was known about FISU and the games, it was decided that before any government funds would be allocated for any of those events, it would be necessary to collect more information about the organization.

The Department of State proceeded to gather as much information as possible, and several high level meetings were held to decide what role the department would play in the FISU movement.

After the Games in Porto Alegre, the Department of State met with the USNSA, the franchise holder for FISU events, to discuss plans for the participation of the United States in the World University Summer Games that were to be held in Budapest in 1965.

USNSA named James Fowler as sports coordinator for FISU events, and an advisory committee was created consisting of Bud Wilkinson former chair of the President's Council for Physical Fitness and Sport; Ross Merrick of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, and Olympians Rafer Johnson and the Rev. Bob Richards to coordinate efforts with the Department of State to send athletes to Budapest.

With funding from the department and the assistance of a number of sports governing bodies, the United States was represented for the first time in these Games with a group of world-class athletes.

Among the athletes who competed in Budapest were Sen. Bill Bradley, Bill Cunningham, Lou Hudson, Tom and Dick Van Arsdale in basketball; Willie Davenport, John Pennel, Bill Toomey and Randy Matson in track and field; Mike Burton, Carl Robie and Mike Wall in swimming; Rick Gilbert and Bernie Wrightson in diving; Mankato Sakamoto in gymnastics, and Don Dell in tennis. Bud Wilkinson attended the Games and gave a very positive report to the Department of State.

After the Budapest Games, the Department of State urged the formation of a national collegiate organization to deal with FISU and its programs. Leadership roles in the formation of the United States Collegiate Sports Council (USCSC), which was to consist of AAHPER, NAIA, NCAA, USNSA and the National Junior College Athletic Association, were provided by the Department of State, AAHPER and USNSA.

A series of meetings was held to discuss the formation of the new organization. It was decided that USNSA would withdraw as a member of FISU and that the USCSC would apply for membership in the world body. At the FISU General Assembly in Tokyo in September 1967, the USCSC was accepted as the governing body in the United States.

Since 1967, the USCSC has been instrumental in sending scores of athletes and officials to the World University Winter and Summer Games.

Indiana State will replace surfaces at three facilities

Crews began work April 19 replacing the artificial turf in the Indiana State University football stadium, the first of three of the university's main athletics facilities being upgraded with new playing surfaces.

An artificial surface also will be installed on Sycamore Field for baseball, and a portable wooden floor for basketball will be added at the Hulman Center.

At Memorial Stadium, the current artificial-turf surface was installed in 1977, replacing an earlier artificial surface that had covered the field for 10 years.

The asphalt foundation will be kept, although some patching may be necessary, athletics director Bruce Faison said.

The board of trustees recently approved $500,000 for the football and baseball fields, with the funds coming from the university's foundation. The Hulman Center project, estimated at $50,000 to $65,000, will be funded separately, and the athletics department will have to come up with the money.

Work on Sycamore Field will include replacement of the infield grass and about half of the distance between foul lines, dugouts and backstop with artificial turf. The outfield area will remain grass.

A new outfield fence already has been installed and a concession stand is being built. Plans call for the installation of lights, a new permanent seating area and remodeled press box, the Associated Press reported.

The new Hulman Center floor is expected to be ready for use by the start of next season. Work on the football and baseball fields should be completed by June 30.

Clarkson to get new ice hockey arena

Fund-raising efforts have begun at Clarkson University to raise money for construction of a $13 million multipurpose facility that will include a 2,500-seat hockey arena. An architectural model of the complex, which also will include a student center, was unveiled last month by school officials.

"We've tried to envision a building that reflects the long-standing traditions at Clarkson," said school President Richard H. Gallagher.

According to a report in the Watertown (New York) Daily Times, the proposed 110,000-square-foot facility is to be built adjacent to Clarkson's Snell Field and opposite the school's new Center for Advanced Materials Processing (CAMP).

Plans drawn up by the architectural firm of Bohlin Powell Larkin Cywinski call for a combined student center and hockey arena the latter designed to permit conversion of the regulation playing area into a multipurpose arena for concerts and other special events.

The student center will feature a large glass-enclosed courtyard and will share snack-bar and restroom facilities with the hockey arena. Expanded student-organization offices, a university bakery, a post office and a student-activities office also are planned for the complex.

Unlike the $24.5 million CAMP building, which is being funded by the state of New York, the student-center project must be financed through private donations.

Clarkson's director of development, Richard W. Johnson II, told the Daily Times that the university already had received $6 million in commitments for the complex. In addition, Clarkson undergraduate students have acted to provide a portion of their $125 student-activity fee to the project.

Funding for water polo available

NCAA member institutions that desire to add water polo as an intercollegiate varsity sport may receive financial assistance from the governing body of amateur water polo.

United States Water Polo, Inc., will provide up to $6,000 over a three-year period to NCAA member institutions. The funding, which is to be used at the discretion of the institution, can be used for equipment, salaries, travel and scholarships. Club-level programs that are moving to varsity status also are eligible for the funds.

Information about the grant program can be obtained from Kaia Hedlund, Crawford Hall, University of California, Irvine, California 92717; telephone 714/856-7590.

NCAA Bylaw 13.1.4.9—recruiting contacts subsequent to National Letter of Intent signing

NCAA Divisions I and II member institutions are reminded that in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 13.1.4.9, subsequent to the occasion on which the prospect signs a National Letter of Intent, there shall be no limit on the number of contacts with a prospect, the prospect's relatives or legal guardians by the institution with which the prospect has signed; however, such contacts must be consistent with the provisions of Bylaw 13.1.4.9. This being the case, the institution with which the prospect has signed is not required to follow the contact and evaluation calendar for basketball and football as set forth in Bylaw 13.1.3 for that prospect, with the exception of the provisions of Bylaw 13.1.4.9. This does not permit the contact or evaluation of other prospective student-athletes who may be associated with the signed prospect outside the permissible contact or evaluation periods.

The NCAA Council has confirmed for Divisions I-A and I-AA football and Division I basketball that any contact at the prospect's educational institution shall be confined to the permissible contact period and shall not exceed one visit per week; once the contact period ends, a member of the institution's coaching staff is precluded from visiting the high school to contact a prospective student-athlete who has signed a National Letter of Intent.

Finally, inasmuch as a student-athlete who has signed a National Letter of Intent is considered a prospect until the student has enrolled in a full-time program of studies at the institution, all in-person contact with the prospect, the prospect's relatives or legal guardian shall be made by those institutional staff members who are allowed to recruit and scout off campus; in-person, off-campus contact by representatives of an institution's athletics interests is prohibited in accordance with Bylaws 13.1.2.1 and 13.1.2.2. Further, all other recruiting legislation applies subsequent to the occasion of the National Letter of Intent signing unless specifically provided for in the legislation.

NCAA Bylaw 15.1.3—financial aid reduction resulting from a student-athlete's income after completion of eligibility

The NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee recently reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 15.1, 15.1.1 and 15.1.3 and confirmed that a member institution would be required to reduce the financial aid of student-athletes who participate in a "barnstorming" tour (e.g., basketball competition against teams composed of former players from the same institution or against other outside teams) within the institution's state or general area when the student-athletes receive remuneration beyond actual and necessary expenses for their participation.

NCAA Bylaw 13.5.2.3.3—transportation by charter airplane on official paid visit

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee recently reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 13.5.2.3.3 and confirmed that a member institution may use an airplane owned personally by one individual to provide transportation to a prospect on an official visit. Further, the committee recommended that in order to simplify the application of Bylaw 13.5.2.3.3, the regulation be amended to delete the reference to an airplane owned personally by one individual and to stipulate instead that when an institution utilizes any aircraft other than commercial airline transportation, the institution must pay the charter rate for the use of such aircraft.

NCAA Bylaw 13.1—recruiting contacts during the same day and in the same category

The Divisions I and II subcommittees of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee recently confirmed a staff interpretation of Bylaw 13.1 that any number of contacts made in the same category (i.e., either at sites other than the prospect's educational institution or on the grounds of the prospect's educational institution) during the same day (defined as 12:01 a.m. to midnight) count as one contact. Consequently, if coaches in different sports contact a multisport prospective student-athlete on the grounds of the prospect's educational institution at different times during the same day, one institutional contact would be utilized.

Baseball program reinstated

St. Michael's College has officially announced that varsity baseball will be reinstated for the 1989-90 academic year, ending a nine-year absence of the sport from the campus.

At the close of the 1981 season, the college decided to drop baseball and softball from its athletics program because of the inclement spring weather that resulted in intensified scheduling.

However, when the school joined the Northeast-10 Conference (NCAA Division II) in 1987, it was with the understanding that baseball and softball, both conference sports, would be reinstated as soon as possible.

Perry Bove has been named head baseball coach. He has a total of 22 years of coaching experience at the high school, American Legion and semipro levels. He is a 1975 master's degree graduate of the University of Vermont.

The Purple Knights will play their home games on a new baseball diamond adjacent to the campus quadrangle.

Backstrom, Hardaway win Naismith awards

Paulette A. Backstrom, a 5-5 guard from Bowling Green State University, and 5-11 Tim Hardaway of the University of Texas, El Paso, will be the recipients of the Frances Pomeroy Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame Award, according to Executive Director Joe O'Brien.

The award, sponsored by Shawmut First Bank & Trust Co., will be presented at a special awards luncheon May 9 at the Sheraton Tara Hotel in Springfield, Massachusetts.

The awards luncheon is one of many events in the Basketball Hall of Fame's enshrinement ceremonies, which take place that evening in the Springfield Civic Center.

The new electees are K. C. Jones, Lenny Wilkens and "Pop" Gates. Also to be honored at the awards luncheon will be the recipient of the 19th annual Joe Lapchick Trophy awarded to the nation's most outstanding senior collegiate basketball player. The winner will be announced soon.

The Frances Pomeroy Naismith Award honors the nation's most outstanding senior collegians, male under six feet and women under 5-6. It was established for men in 1969 and for women in 1984.

The recipients are selected by the respective coaching organizations—Women's Basketball Coaches Association, chaired by coach Susan Zawacki of Amherst College, and the National Association of Basketball Coaches, chaired by coach Clarence Gaines of Winston-Salem State University.

Backstrom is a two-time first team all-Mid-American Athletic Conference point guard who has led the league in assists the past two seasons. In the 1989 MAC tournament, she was named most outstanding player.

Hardaway was the most valuable player in the NABC All-Star Game in Seattle earlier this month.

UTEP coach Don Haskins said, "I've been fortunate in my years at UTEP by having a number of outstanding players. I can not recall having one any better than Tim Hardaway."

During his four-year career with the Miners, Hardaway was the first

Tim Hardaway

UTEP player to be named Western Athletic Conference player-of-the-year. He was the university's all-time career scoring leader with 1,586 points in 124 games.

Backstrom had something to prove

By Damon Beck
Bowling Green Sentinel-Tribune

Late in the season, Paulette Backstrom faced a personal crisis that dwarfed anything she ever had to deal with on the basketball court.

One day in February, she was making plans with her father for the Mid-American Athletic Conference tournament coming up in March. The next news she heard from home in Flint, Michigan, was that her father had died unexpectedly.

"The last time I spoke with him, he was making plans for the MAC tournament, making sure he was going to be available to come that weekend," she said, "(Shortly after) that is when things happened."

Backstrom went home and the Falcons played the next Wednesday night without their playmaker for the first and only time in her four-year career. A fired up bunch of Falcons turned it into an easy win over Miami (Ohio).

Coach Fran Voll and Backstrom's fellow seniors, Jackie Motycka and Megan McGuire, along with her best friends on the team Tecca Thompson and Wanda Lyle, drove up to Flint the next day for the funeral.

Return questioned

There were questions about when Backstrom might come back and if she would be able to play with the bulldog intensity she had displayed throughout her career.

Backstrom was back on campus that Saturday for another easy Bowling Green win, this time against Western Michigan.

After not playing for a week, Backstrom was winded a couple of times during the game, but she was determined to play the best basketball she could. She wanted to play well for her father.

"I have always been driven, but there was something extra going on within me down the stretch this season," she said.

The Falcons were in the middle of a 20-game win streak, and Backstrom put on one outstanding performance after another as Bowling Green's third straight championship season wound down.

Third title

The 5-5 point guard grabbed seven rebounds and had nine assists the night Bowling Green clinched a share of the MAC regular-season title at Central Michigan. It won again at Eastern Michigan to secure outright possession of its third straight championship and polished off a 16-0 conference record by beating second-place Toledo in the regular-season finale.

It was a triumphant night for the three Bowling Green seniors who were playing in their last scheduled game at Anderson Arena. A record crowd turned out to see the group that had put the Bowling Green women's program on the national collegiate basketball map. Backstrom said it was the most memorable game of her career.

A first team all-conference pick her junior season, Backstrom was easily the best point guard in the conference all through her senior year; but toward the end, she seemed to have turned up her game one more notch.

"My play at the end of the year was largely a result of the effect on me after the death of my father," she said. "I wanted to show him something."

Her fine defensive performance against Toledo star Kelly Savage and 15 points and nine assists in the final regular-season game were a prelude of what was still to come.

The MAC tournament, the last thing she had discussed with her father, was Backstrom's show.

Tournament MVP

She was the tournament MVP after collecting 35 points, 18 assists, 12 rebounds and three steals in the Falcons' two tourney victories. In the first game, with Ball State, Backstrom, the shortest player on the floor, grabbed a game-high eight rebounds. She scored a career-high 26 points (hitting a school record five-of-five three-pointers) in the 39-point championship game win over archrival Toledo. She also set five MAC tournament records.

"I just wanted to do something special because I knew he was watching," she said of her father. "I was proud I could accomplish that for him and my family."

The Falcons received an NCAA tournament home bid and defeated Cincinnati in front of another record crowd to highlight the most successful year yet for Bowling Green.

Backstrom's importance to her team was demonstrated most vividly in the final game of the season at Maryland in the NCAA second round. With her on the bench with foul trouble, Bowling Green couldn't handle the Terrapins pressure defense and was eliminated from the tournament.

The national exposure the Falcons gained at the end of the season probably had a lot to do with Backstrom winning the prestigious Naismith Award as the best senior in the country 5-6 and under.

"Now with this award, I have given him one more reason to be proud," Backstrom said.

Any father would tell you he would be very proud to have a daughter like Paulette Backstrom.

Writers honor 'Dogs' Kessler

University of Georgia junior center Alec Kessler has been named college basketball's scholar-athlete of the year by the United States Basketball Writers Association.

Kessler, an all-Southeastern Conference performer this season, carries a 3.890 grade-point average in microbiology.

The USBWA Scholar-Athlete award gives the 6-11 Kessler claim to each of the two major academic awards for the 1988-89 season. He also was voted the Academic All-America of the Year by CoSIDA. Kessler has been a first-team selection each of the past two seasons.

Kessler led the Bulldogs in scoring (19.2) and rebounding (9.7). He became the first Georgia player since 1973 to lead the SEC in rebounding.

This coach didn't want taller men on his team

By Dick Kishpaugh

The publicity given to the shorter basketball players in the college ranks brings a smile to the faces of oldtimers at Kalamazoo College.

They talk of a wily promoter/coach, Len Colby, who parlayed the manpower shortage of the second World War, a 1944-45 basketball squad recruited from a male student body of fewer than 50 men and his own publicity efforts into worldwide attention as the shortest college basketball team of the times.

The claim was legitimate. The five starters averaged just 5-8. This was a far cry from prewar seasons when tall Kalamazoo teams were a dominant power in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

The height problem was apparent when practice opened, and it got worse even before a game was played. One tall player, Felix Racette, was drafted on the eve of the season opener, and the average height of the potential starters dropped by more than an inch.

The remaining starters ranged from 5-11 Gus Birtsas to 5-4 Tom Sugihara; others were Paul Hiyama at 5-10, Lou Spitters at 5-9 and Captain Hazen Keyser at 5-6.

Giving away a height advantage in every game, the Hornets still managed to post five victories in 14 contests, including two decisive wins over archrival Hillsdale College. Kalamazoo also tackled a few giants—Michigan State University and a talent-laden Fort Custer team.

In midseason, Colby decided to send photos of the starters to the International News Service and Newspaper Enterprise Association with the title of "the nation's shortest team;" and the publicity mushroomed. No other claimants to the title appeared on the scene.

The military newspaper, Stars and Stripes, carried the story to the far corners of the globe, and the school was soon inundated with requests for more information.

Colby basked in the limelight and issued bushels of press releases, including one "League of Nations" story that pointed out that the starters included two men of Japanese descent, one of Swedish, one of Greek and one of Hungarian.

Since the story was legitimate, Colby welcomed the proposed visit by a representative of the INS to do a followup story.

But there was panic in the publicity office when a three-time prewar letterman, 6-7 Warren Taylor, suddenly appeared on the scene after receiving an early Army discharge.

With Taylor on the bench, the INS reporter would suspect trickery. So, Colby barred Taylor from the squad for "breaking training" and ordered the bewildered candidate to remain well-hidden until the story had run its course.

In commenting on Taylor, Colby remarked that he just couldn't let the tall youngster foul up the gimmick. The "short" image would have gone down the drain. Little was said about the effect of "breaking training" on Taylor's image—his goal was to become a minister.

Colby went on to become a well-known newspaper publisher and community activist in Kalamazoo before his death in 1984. Taylor did indeed become a minister and was able to explain that "breaking training" was just a ploy to gain publicity for Kalamazoo.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than May 10, 1989.

Basketball Officiating Committee: Replacement for C. Vivian Stringer, women's basketball coach, University of Iowa, declined. Appointee must be a Division I women's basketball coach.

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q What kinds of ads are accepted for publication in The Market section of The NCAA News? When announcing a staff vacancy in The Market, how much lead time should be allowed to permit those interested in applying for a position to do so before closing?

A The Market section of The NCAA News lists positions available at senior colleges and universities, junior colleges and high schools. Also accepted are ads for open dates in playing schedules and other appropriate ads. "Positions wanted" advertisements are not accepted.

Because most issues of The NCAA News are delivered by second-class mail, some readers do not receive their papers until seven days after publication (i.e., the issue of the News in which this Q&A appears was printed and mailed April 19. Some people will not receive this paper until April 26 or possibly later). For that reason, institutions, conferences and other organizations planning to list job vacancies in The Market should allow a minimum of two weeks from the date of the last issue in which an ad appears to the closing date for applications (i.e., ads appearing in this issue of the News—April 19—probably should include closing dates no earlier than May 3). This will help insure that as many potential applicants for a job as possible have an opportunity to receive the News, see the listing in The Market and reply before the application deadline.

For more information on The Market, contact Marlynn Jones, advertising manager, at the Association's national office.
