Commission equal to the task, Massengale testifies

The NCAA Presidents Commission is the best answer to the problems in college athletics and is best suited to keep intercollegiate competition in its proper perspective to the overall educational purpose of the institution, Martin A. Massengale, Commission chair, told a Congressional hearing in Washington, D.C., last week.

Massengale, chancellor of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, said he agreed with those who say the process of change can be time-consuming, but he said, "I believe that the Presidents Commission is the proper body to develop a consensus and to keep intercollegiate athletics on the right track."

Massengale was among several education, political and athletics notables who testified on the current status of intercollegiate athletics before the House Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education. Testimony was heard May 18 and 24.

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz testified May 18 that the current status of intercollegiate athletics from a standpoint of integrity is better than at any time in history and that additional progress can be expected.

Massengale told the House subcommittee that control of successful, so-called "big-time" athletics programs by the chief executive officer of the institution is definitely possible and that such a trend has been growing steadily, particularly in the past several years.

It is possible for the CEO to assure that the "nature and scope of that (athletics) program are consistent with the educational mission of the institutions" as defined by the trustees or the state legislature, Massengale said in a written statement submitted to the subcommittee.

Massengale said, however, that such situations require regular attention to the program by the CEO and a willingness by the trustees to completely support the CEO's efforts to assure integrity in the athletics program.

Massengale said he believes there is a "new spirit alive" among CEOs with respect to athletics.

He cited the conduct of the University of Kentucky administration in cooperating with an NCAA investigation of its basketball program recently.

"I believe that kind of institutional remedial conduct is becoming more and more the norm in connection with NCAA infractions cases and in fact represents the real promise for integrity in intercollegiate athletics."

The establishment of the Presidents Commission in 1984 provides the vehicle for continuous CEO involvement in college athletics, and to represent CEO interests in major policy issues in college athletics, Massengale said.

Noting a "mixed success" in the legislative efforts of the Commission, Massengale said the main effort of the Commission has evolved into consensus building among college leaders to gather support for Commission initiatives.

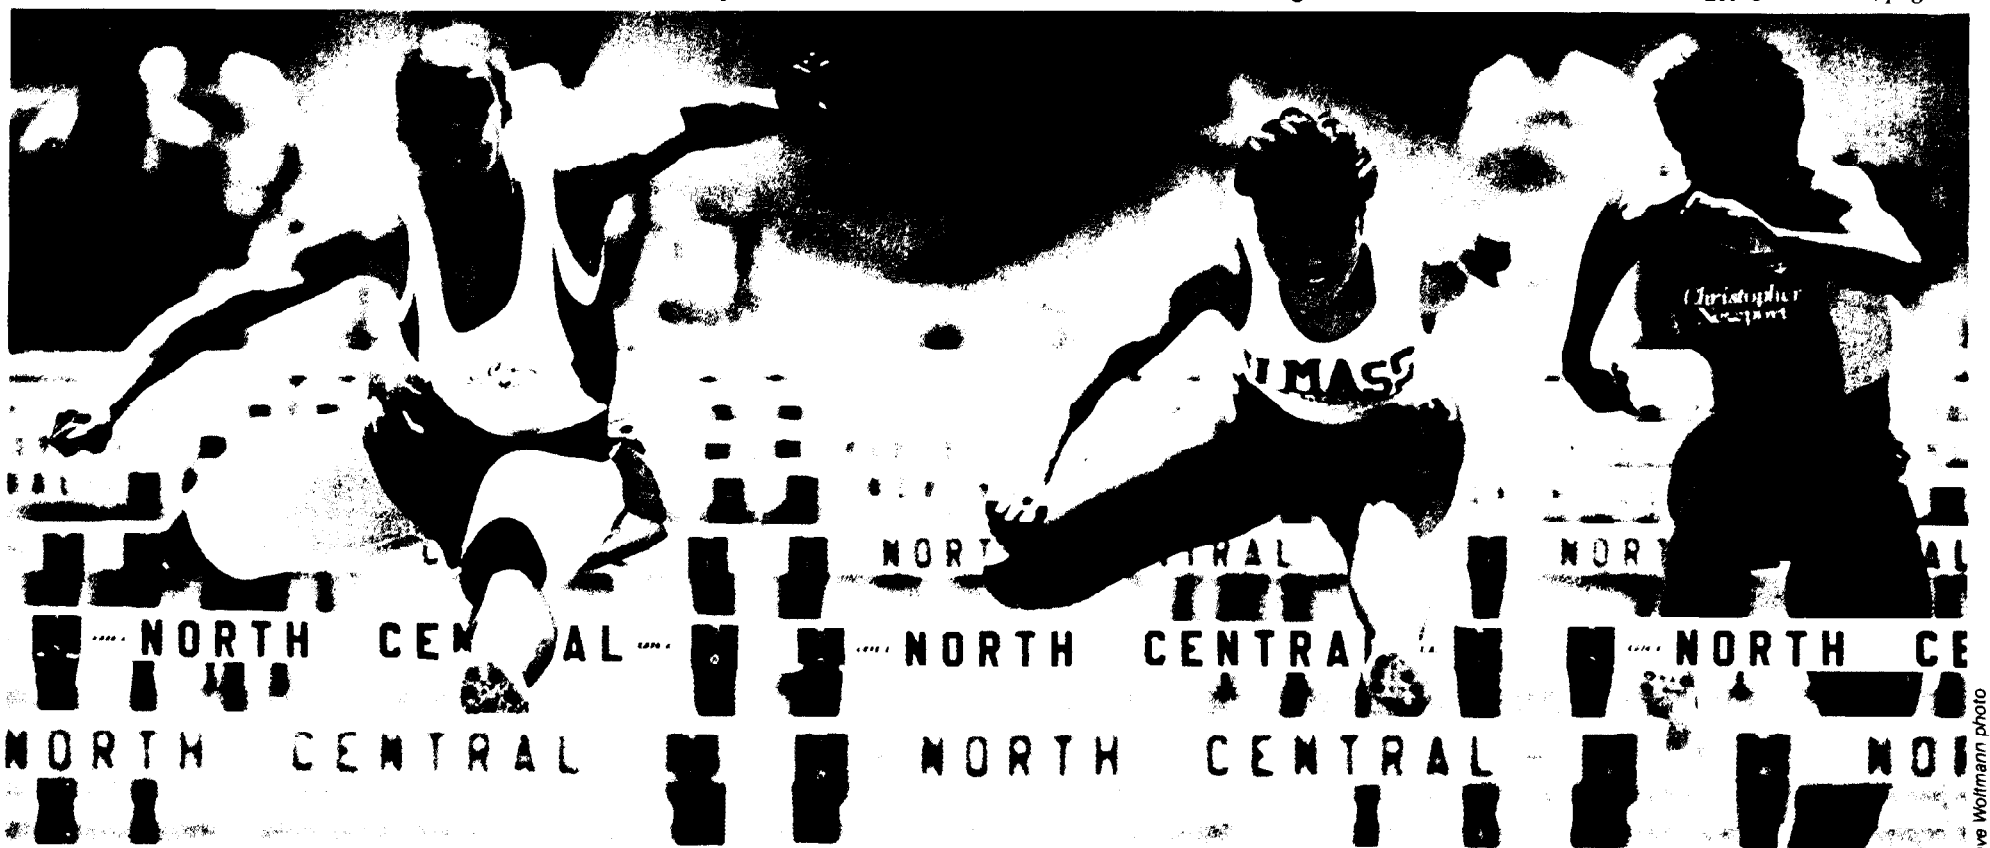

He cited the National Forum and a series of studies sponsored by the Commission as valuable tools by which consensus among CEOs can be built.

The Presidents Commission has authorized a series of studies by the American Institutes for Research to provide in-depth information on the student-athlete and college athletics in general. Those studies are continuing.

Massengale said he disagreed with those who testified that intercollegiate athletics is so fundamentally flawed that the NCAA is incapable of dealing with its problems.

"I think the NCAA has made really remarkable strides in the past

CFA to discuss I-A championship

The membership of the College Football Association will discuss a proposal for a 16-team Division I-A football championship during the association's annual meeting June 2-4 in Dallas.

The championship format will be presented by the CFA Television Committee, chaired by Cecil W. Ingram, athletics director at Florida State University. The committee also has been working on a regular-season football television package for 1991 and beyond.

The CFA Monitoring Committee will report on its suggestion that the CFA support in principle the development of a recruiting certification program. Current plans call for full details of a certification program to be presented to CFA members at the 1990 annual meeting for final action.

Also on the agenda are panel discussions on NCAA Proposal No. 42 and financial aid regulations.

Before the start of the annual meeting, the CFA will sponsor a seminar on recruiting June 1. The two-day symposium will focus on recruiting from the perspective of high school coaches and student-athletes.

Group sessions for faculty athletics representatives, athletics directors and football coaches are scheduled June 3.

A general business session will be conducted June 4 and will include a summary of actions by the board of directors and reports by the chief executive officers, faculty representatives, athletics directors and head football coaches.

Col. John J. Clune, athletics director at the U.S. Air Force Academy and chair of the CFA board of directors, will preside at the general sessions.

Committee's work cited

The Association's Committee on Women's Athletics has received one of the inaugural Enhanced Opportunity Awards recently announced by the Council of Collegiate Women Athletic Administrators. All honorees were approved by the CCWAA board of directors at its spring meeting, after having been thoroughly researched and recommended by the group's enhanced-opportunities committee.

"The response (to a call for award nominees) has been excellent," said Sharon Holmberg, chair of the CCWAA enhanced-opportunities committee and commissioner of the Big Sky Conference. "We already have three more nominees to recommend to the board of directors later this year."

Holmberg said the first group of award recipients was chosen because they made significant contributions to the enhancement of opportunities for women in intercollegiate athletics. "That is the basic criterion for our consideration of individuals and groups," she added.

Text of Massengale's testimony to House subcommittee

(Editor's Note: Following is the full text of Presidents Commission Chair Martin A. Massengale's written testimony submitted to the House Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education. Massengale is chancellor of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.)

Chairman Williams, members of the subcommittee. I am Martin A. Massengale, chancellor of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln. I am also the current chair of the NCAA Presidents Commission. I appreciate the opportunity to appear here today, both as a chief executive officer of a Division I NCAA member institution and as chair of the Commission, to discuss the current state of intercollegiate athletics.

Through the NCAA, I am generally familiar with the testimony presented at your hearings last week, and in particular I have reviewed the formal statements of ACE President Atwell and intend to orient my statement today to matters raised at those hearings.

My institution is a member of NCAA Division I-A and is also a member of the College Football Association. In the academic year now just ending, 450 young men and 150 young women will have participated in Nebraska's intercollegiate athletics programs. We offer 10 sports for men and nine sports for women. Our football team is perennially one of the most successful in the country, having been ranked in the top 10 for 19 consecutive years and having made a post-season bowl appearance every year in the past two decades.

Our university has produced 34 academic all-America student-athletes since 1960, 21 recipients of NCAA postgraduate scholarships, and eight National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame postgraduate scholarships. Our current budget for intercollegiate athletics is approximately $13 million, of which about 90 percent will be covered by revenues from our football program. Except for football and men's basketball, none of the sports in our athletics program generates revenues in excess of expenses.

I understand, Mr. Chairman, that your first question during the last hearing related to the capacity of an institutional chief executive to maintain control over the institution's intercollegiate athletics program, particularly in the context of a successful "big time" football or basketball program conducted by an able and popular coach. Tom Osborne, our head football coach for the past 16 years, is certainly such an individual. At Nebraska, the athletics director reports directly to the chancellor's office, and I make it a point to meet with him regularly. At least once a year, I meet with all our head coaches to let them know what is expected of them by me; at any time a new head coach is hired, I make it a point to meet with him for much the same purpose. In addition, before each NCAA Convention, I will meet with our athletics director, our NCAA faculty representative and possibly one or two of our coaches to go over all important legislative proposals and determine an institutional position. I am also fortunate to be able to work with a board of regents that has never attempted to subvert my control over the athletics program; as you know, potentially serious problems can arise when an athletics director or coach attempts to "go around" the CEO to the trustees.

In short, it is possible for a CEO to maintain control of a successful athletics program and to assure that the nature and scope of that program are consistent with the educational mission of the institution as defined by the trustees (regents) and in the case of a public institution, in part by the legislature. This requires, however, regular attention to the program by the CEO and, I will concede, a willingness by the trustees to completely support the CEO in to give you some background on the development of the Commission and some of its work.

Since the mid-1970s, the NCAA has sought the most effective means of bringing about presidential involvement in the affairs of the Association. It was in the middle of that decade that attendance by chief executive officers at NCAA Con-his efforts to assure integrity in the program.

The Presidents Commission

As noted by Dick Schultz last week, the NCAA Presidents Commission has been instrumental in placing into the hands of university presidents and chancellors the tools by which they can appropriately oversee the conduct of the intercollegiate athletics programs. I'd like ventions increased markedly, and since that time, 100 or more chief executives have attended each NCAA Convention.

Through the late 1970s and early 1980s, however, the Association's efforts to assure CEOs' involvement in other ways met with limited success. Certain positions on the NCAA Council, the division steering committees and certain other NCAA committees were earmarked for CEOs; and in the early 1980s, the NCAA conducted an annual September program for a representative group of presidents and chancellors. While those activities were beneficial, they did not develop into a significant role for CEOs within the Association.

In 1983, the NCAA Council—working by means of a subcommittee that included presidents who were serving on the Council—developed a proposal to establish an NCAA Presidents Commission as an ongoing entity within the Association's administrative structure. Concurrently, a committee of the American Council on Education was formulating a proposal to establish a Board of Presidents that would transcend the NCAA structure inasmuch as it would have veto power over the actions of the NCAA membership as a whole.

At the January 1984 NCAA Convention, the membership, after more than two hours of debate, defeated the ACE's Board of Presidents proposal, with 313 voting in favor and 328 against. A two-thirds majority was required for passage. The membership then voted overwhelmingly to create the NCAA Presidents Commission as proposed by the NCAA Council.

As established in the legislation, the Commission was to serve as a leadership structure and forum for presidential interests in intercollegiate athletics matters. It was the first defined, ongoing forum for chief executive officers within the NCAA structure, and its primary function was and is to represent the interests of presidents and chancellors in major policy issues in college athletics.

Commission powers

The legislation adopted in 1984 granted the Commission substantial authorities. The Commission is empowered to:

- Review any activity of the NCAA;
- Place any matter of concern on the agenda for any meeting of the Council or for any NCAA Convention;
- Commission studies of intercollegiate athletics issues (by means of the customary NCAA budget procedures) and urge certain courses of

Legislative Assistance

1989 Column No. 22

NCAA Bylaws 16.7 and 16.9—foreign tours/team entertainment and expenses

According to the provisions set forth in Bylaws 17.23.1 and 30.6, a member institution may participate in a foreign tour in any sport (see Bylaw 17.23), provided the conditions specified in Bylaw 30.6 are met. The institution must certify in writing that the conditions set forth in Bylaw 30.6 are met and must maintain the certification on file in the athletics department. (Note: The adoption of 1989 Convention Proposal No. 38 eliminated the requirement for NCAA Council approval of institutional foreign-tour competition.)

As member institutions plan institutional foreign tours during the summer vacation period, please review the provisions of Bylaws 16.7 and 16.9. According to the provisions of Bylaw 16.7.1, an institution may pay the actual cost for reasonable entertainment that takes place within a 100-mile radius of where a team plays or practices in conjunction with an away-from-home contest. It is not permissible for a team to remain more than 48 hours after an event or to transport the team to another area for entertainment purposes. Bylaw 16.7.3 states that any practice on an extended road trip shall take place either at the competition site or on a direct route between two consecutive competition sites. It is not permissible for an institution to schedule practice sessions at other locations in order to provide entertainment opportunities for team members.

Additionally, according to Bylaw 16.9, an institution may provide a student-athlete $10 per day to cover unitemized incidental expenses incurred in connection with the foreign tour in his or her particular sport. This expense allowance may be provided for each day of the tour up to a maximum of 21 days. An institution also may purchase a passport for a student-athlete that is required for travel in connection with the foreign tour, and the student-athlete may retain ownership of such a passport. Please note, however, that an institution may not provide transportation expenses to return home for a student-athlete who remains in the foreign country after the foreign tour is completed.

NCAA Bylaw 13.1.5.2—recruiting contacts prior to any athletics competition at the practice or competition site

Member institutions in all divisions are reminded of recently amended Bylaw 13.1.5.2, which stipulates that recruiting contact may not be made with a prospective student-athlete prior to any athletics competition in which the prospect is a participant during the day or days of competition. Such contact shall not be made with the prospect at any site prior to the contest on the day or days of competition. The NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee recently concluded that these restrictions would prohibit a member institution's coach from contacting a prospective student-athlete prior to the prospect's participation in a contest on that calendar day, even if such a contact occurs during the prospect's official or unofficial visit to the institution.

Additionally, such contact shall not be made with the prospect from the time he or she reports on call (at the direction of the prospect's coach or comparable authority) and becomes involved in a team activity (e.g., traveling to an away-from-home game) to the end of the competition, even if such activities are initiated prior to the day or days of competition. Contact shall not be made after the competition until the prospect is released by the appropriate institutional authority and departs the dressing and meeting facility. Further, contact shall not be made with the prospect involved in competition that requires more than one day of participation (e.g., basketball tournament) until after the prospect's final contest is completed and he or she is released by the appropriate institutional authority and leaves the dressing and meeting facility. According to Bylaw 13.1.5.2.1, it is permissible for athletics staff members who are responsible for conducting an approved athletics event (see Bylaw 13.11.3) involving high school students to come into normal contact with participants; however, under no circumstances may recruitment take place.

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee recently determined that the provisions of Bylaw 13.1.5.2 should extend to contacts with the parents of prospective student-athletes but received approval from the Council to delay the effective date of this interpretation until August 1, 1989, to complete the current recruiting season without this restriction. In addition, the committee agreed that the provisions of Bylaw 14.2.4.5.2 defining "organized athletics competition" would be the standard utilized to determine the competition to which the restrictions in Bylaw 13.1.5.2 would apply. For example, a member institution's golf coach would not be permitted to contact a prospective student-athlete during the prospect's participation in a golf tournament in which individual or team standings are maintained.

NCAA Bylaws 12.5.1.1 and 13.15—institutional, charitable or educational promotions and precollege expenses

The provisions of Bylaw 12.5.1.1 permit a member institution or an organized entity thereof (e.g., fraternity, sorority or student government organization) or a noninstitutional charitable or educational agency to use the student-athlete's name, picture or appearance to support its charitable or educational activities, or to support activities considered incidental to the student-athlete's participation in intercollegiate athletics, provided the conditions set forth in Bylaw 12.5.1.1 are met. For example, the specific activity or project in which the student-athlete participates may not involve cosponsorship, advertisement or promotion by a commercial agency other than through the reproduction of the sponsoring company's regular trademark or logo on printed materials such as pictures, posters and calendars.

In this regard, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee has agreed that this provision restricts the sponsor's identification appearing on such an item to information normally included in the sponsor's logo (i.e., the company's emblem, name, address, telephone number), and initially determined that no personal names, messages or slogans could be included in the logo under such circumstances. However, the committee recently reconsidered this interpretation and agreed that a commercial sponsor's slogan may be used in conjunction with an institutional promotion when the slogan is part of the commercial sponsor's officially registered trademark (e.g., Pizza Hut - Making It Great).

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee also has reviewed the provisions of 1989 Convention Proposal No. 144 amending Bylaw 12.5.1.1, and confirmed that a member institution now may provide or sell autographed game balls to support the charitable or educational activities of member institutions or noninstitutional charitable or educational agencies or to support activities considered incidental to the student-athlete's participation in intercollegiate athletics. The committee also previously has noted that the involvement of a member institution's student-athletes in fund-raising activities for high schools, preparatory schools or junior colleges would be prohibited under Bylaw 13.15, which prohibits an institution or a representative of its athletics interests from offering, providing or arranging financial assistance, directly or indirectly, to pay (in whole or in part) the cost of the prospect's educational or other expenses for any period prior to his or her enrollment. Consequently, the provision of autographed game balls to high schools, preparatory schools or junior colleges for fund-raising purposes would not be permissible.

- Propose (sponsor) legislation directly to any NCAA Convention;

- Establish the final sequence of legislative proposals in any Convention agenda, within the Association's constitutional procedures;

- Call a special Convention of the Association;

- Designate specific Convention proposals for which a roll-call vote of the eligible voters will be mandatory, and

- Approve the appointment of the NCAA executive director.

The Commission conducted its organizational meeting in June 1984, and at its second meeting, held in October 1984, the Commission took action to conduct a confidential survey of CEOs at all NCAA member institutions regarding integrity and economic issues and agreed to call a special NCAA Convention in 1985 to act upon proposals the Commission would develop from the results of that survey.

The Commission's first chair—John W. Ryan of Indiana University—selected the American Institutes for Research to conduct the CEO survey. In December 1984, the special Convention was scheduled for June 1985. In the intervening months, the Commission developed a series of eight legislative proposals for action at the special Convention. All eight were successful, and all by substantial margins. The special Convention attracted 199 chief executive officers, and numerous others dispatched a vice-president or vice-chancellor to represent them. That special Convention was a landmark in the Association's history. Among the Commission proposals adopted—and these were all described in Dick Schultz's statement—were the institutional self-study requirement, the Division I academic-reporting requirement, the differentiation between major and secondary violations of NCAA legislation and the so-called "death penalty" for repeat offenders, and the annual financial audit requirement.

After that special Convention, the Commission reviewed other results in the survey of CEOs and began 1986 by identifying financial aid, academic integrity, and enforcement and compliance issues as its next major topics. Late in 1986, however, a delegation from an American Council on Education committee appeared before the Division I subcommittee of the Commission with seven specific recommendations for Commission consideration and urged the Commission to take action in those areas. In response, the Commission approved a statement drafted by Chancellor Ira Michael Heyman of the University of California, Berkeley, then the Commission's Division I chair, and appointed him to chair an Ad Hoc Committee on Institutional Responsibility.

In 1986, the Ad Hoc Committee of the Commission conferred with two NCAA Council subcommittees in the areas of playing-season limitations and cost-containment issues and called a special NCAA Convention for June 1987. At that Convention, the Commission's proposals met with mixed success—some succeeded, some failed and some were deferred for further study—but the membership did vote to approve establishment of an 18-month National Forum on the proper role of intercollegiate athletics in higher education, as well as a series of research studies (again done by AIR) in that regard. It also adopted the Commission's proposals calling for studies of financial aid limitations, numbers of individuals involved on institutional athletics staffs, limiting recruiting periods and the effects of varsity participation on the academic performance of freshman student-athletes.

National Forum

The National Forum was introduced at that special Convention, and subsequent sessions were conducted at the annual NCAA Convention in Nashville in January 1988 (featuring economic considerations in athletics); in Orlando in June 1988 (emphasizing the NCAA membership structure, NCAA legislative and governance procedures, and financial aid), and at the annual Convention in San Francisco in January 1989 (the effects of intercollegiate athletics participation on the student-athlete, based on results of research studies by the American Institutes for Research).

I would be the first to agree that the mixed success of the Commission's rather detailed proposals at the 1987 special Convention was at least in part a product of inadequate preparation and consensus building on the Commission's part. Indeed, after that Convention the Commission adopted a resolution to the effect that it would forgo the submission of detailed legislation in the future, unless there is overwhelming support for a particular proposal, and that it would emphasize more effective contact with CEOs to build support for Commission initiatives. That has been the focus of the Commission while I have been chair.

I believe that the National Forum and the AIR studies, three more of which are yet to be released this year, will represent valuable tools by which such consensus among CEOs can be built. I agree with ACE President Atwell that as a practical matter, there is only a limited amount that one CEO can do to change the role of intercollegiate athletics, but I also strongly believe that the Commission represents the most viable practical means by which consensus on various matters can be achieved.

I also want to say that I strongly believe there is a new spirit alive, among CEOs, with respect to intercollegiate athletics. As evidence, I need point you no further than the story in The Washington Post last Saturday on the sanctions taken by the NCAA against the University of Kentucky's basketball program. Although the headlines focus on the violations and the severe penalties assessed, the real headlines are that the NCAA Committee on Infractions tempered the penalties because of the outstanding cooperation given to the NCAA investigation by the university administration, led by the CEO, and by the strong steps unilaterally taken by the university against those involved. I believe that kind of institutional remedial conduct is becoming more and more the norm in connection with NCAA infractions cases and in fact represents the real promise for integrity in intercollegiate athletics.

Schaus ending notable 40-year career in athletics

By Jim O'Brien

Fred Schaus showed up in the picture every time the TV cameras focused on Steve Fisher, the University of Michigan coach, during the NCAA men's basketball championship tournament.

Schaus, the director of athletics at West Virginia University, had been assigned to look after the Michigan team as a member of the nine-man NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

"I like the way he (Fisher) handled himself and his players, and the way he worked on the sideline," Schaus said. "He was coaching and, more important, his players were listening. I saw all six of their games and was impressed with their play."

Schaus can appreciate such things. He's been there himself, and then some. Schaus set an NCAA record that still stands when he took West Virginia to the tournament in each of his first six years (1955 to 1960) as coach at his alma mater.

Schaus left West Virginia after that six-year stint (146-37 record) to become the coach of the Los Angeles Lakers for seven years (312-245), stayed on for five more years as that NBA team's vice-president and general manager, and then went to Purdue University as head coach for six seasons (96-58); he spent three more years as Purdue's associate AD. In 1981, he went back to Morgantown to take over an ailing athletics program as AD.

This June 30, Schaus will step down as athletics director. Only two programs in the country can claim a combined winning percentage (.861) for basketball (26-5) and football (11-1) in 1988-89. The Mountaineers also captured some championships winning records in several nonrevenue sports.

The program's never been in better shape.

Fortunately, for all concerned, Schaus still will be on the scene on a part-time basis to look after special projects.

"Fred is a first-class person of high integrity and one of the nation's finest administrators," Neil S. Bucklew, West Virginia's president, said when the announcement was made. "Under the leadership, our athletics programs have flourished to where they are among the most respected and competitive in the nation."

Or, as sports columnist Mickey Furfari of the Morgantown Dominion Post put it, "Fred Schaus brought class, respect and distinction not only to West Virginia University, but also to the state. He never had to apologize for anything he did or said."

Anyone who ever has been associated with Schaus has to be happy with how things have worked out for him. He and his wife, Barbara, are two of the best people one could meet on the national athletics scene. They always have been a class act—always approachable, always affable, always the personal touch.

Asked to name the highlight of his student days at West Virginia, Schaus said, "Well, as a student, I met my wife here. We sat next to each other in a lot of classes where they had alphabetical seating. I was Schaus and she was Scheer. In some classes, a guy named Schaeffer sat between us."

"We've always been at home here. This is Barbara's home town, and we both went to school here. I'm also proud of the fact that I graduated in three years. I'd come out of the military service, and I was 21 years old when I started college. I figured I better get on with it, so I went to summer school every year and graduated early."

"We played in the NIT several times. I played five years in the NBA, four with the Fort Wayne Pistons and one with the New York Knicks. And I came back to West Virginia and got my master's degree."

Red Brown, who coached Schaus at West Virginia, called upon Fred to come back and coach the school's team even though he had no previous coaching experience.

"I had some very fine players," said Schaus. "Everybody always mentions that I had Jerry West and Hot Rod Hundley, but they never mention my other players. There was no question how great West and Hundley were, but we had a lot of players to complement them."

"We won our conference (Southern) every year. In 1959, West's junior year, we went to the NCAA final before we were beaten by Pete Newell's California club. Actually, I thought we had a better team, a deeper team, the year before."

In his final season, his team compiled a 26-5 record. Then, he left to take the coaching job with the Lakers.

"I enjoyed that time," said Schaus. "I had a good future here at the time. I had recruited Rod Thorn and he was a freshman, and I knew we would win the next few years. But the Lakers looked like an opportunity I couldn't pass up."

"They had Elgin Baylor and Rudy LaRusso, and they had just left Minneapolis for Los Angeles. I found out that Jerry West would definitely be with them after the Rome Olympics. I knew they'd have a good franchise. I'd had some

Atwell correctly exempts no one from problems in athletics

By Furman Bisher

The Atlanta Journal and Constitution
Excerpted from a column

Robert H. Atwell is not a famous man, not one scrounging for headlines. Ask all the college athletes in the country who he is, probably not a hundred could identify him as the president of the American Council on Education.

It's not that he hasn't made recommendations before. It's just that nobody was paying much attention. And his testimony wasn't emphasized by the picture of a big-time athlete sobbing on the witness stand at another hearing in Washington, D.C. Dexter Manley made his 260 pounds felt in a way he never has before as a Washington Redskin.

A $400,000-a-year illiterate, and ashamed of it to the point that he humbly did something about it.

Mission prostituted

I don't dare try to put a number on the illiterates running around in athletic glory these days. Blame the people who run college athletics departments; but before them, get back to the high schools that have prostituted their mission in education. Too many concessions have been made to Blacks that have been more unjust than righteous. The athlete gets the idea he can go through life on a pass, and he can, until life calls time on him.

While Manley was laying his soul open before one Congressional committee, Atwell was giving another an earful about NCAA hypocrites and athletics. He recommended:

Seasons should be cut. Scholarships should be awarded on a need basis only. Even the National Football League splits income among its 28 teams; why shouldn't colleges do the same with national-tournament income? If athletics are so important to the institution, why shouldn't the programs be subsidized by the institutions? Do away with freshman eligibility in varsity sports.

No off-season practice

Atwell has, at other times, advised that off-season practices be discontinued. He was saying a lot of things athletics directors and coaches don't want to hear. For one thing, the Atwell program would cut into their big-time cash flow, their sweetheart relationship with television, their celebrity and their lifestyle. (The proposition that an athletics department should be able to function as a corporate entity separate from its university has always been puzzling to me.)

One of those who didn't enjoy hearing it was Dr. Homer Rice, as he is known, at Georgia Tech.

"We're in a situation now where we've made the rules and we have to live by them," he said.

"We" who? The "we" who run the athletics departments, the institutions that form the NCAA body. Just as easily as they have been made, they can be amended. They did go as far as to vote in the famous Prop. 48, but implementing it has been oozing along.

Weakness in presidencies

Dr. Rice further: "If the leaders of the institutions, the presidents, can't make the rules, we have problems."

The "we" have problems. Presidents as a body have little power to deal with these powerful athletics figures. That's where the weakness lies, in the presidencies. Presidents are sorely disinclined to do combat with the moneybags alumni who would hand them their heads in a jiffy.

A President Commission has made all manners of recommendations, passed all sorts of motions, and pursuit of the bluechip recruit, the big cash bowl bid and a place in the basketball championships goes on unimpeded.

Tournament redundant

That brings up conference basketball tournaments, "a redundancy justified and motivated only by the money they generate."

Atwell lets no one off easy, including us. "We live in a sportscrazed society... generate billions of dollars... television. The spectator sports craze is fed and accentuated by the media."

Right on the money. We contribute to it because we cover it. We inflate high school kids, still pubescent and concerned with pimples, into a state of celebrity during the recruiting craze. We turn the Big Game into Armageddon. We justify it as we do the coverage of murder—we may not approve of it, but it's there.

The present chairman of the Presidents Commission openly speaks out against any kind of Division I-A football play-off. "Anything that would extend the season would be of great concern," Martin A. Masengale of Nebraska said.

Play-off plan goes ahead

Meantime, the College Football Association, the heavyweights who would divorce themselves of the Slippery Rocks and the Denisons, forges blithely ahead toward working out a play-off schedule with television.

They're picking up $36 million in bowl games now; they figure they can raise the pot to $50 million-plus with a play-off.

Naturally, they would fund a program to reduce their performers from a life of illiteracy—in a pig's eye.

Grant isn't a right, it's a privilege

Mary Littlewood, women's softball coach

"There are some negative things that go along with women getting athletics scholarships. I can see a change in female athletes now from what they used to be.

"Without scholarships, they came out to play because they wanted to play. They wanted to test their abilities against somebody else. They didn't assume anything. They had no money, no uniforms, nothing.

"Nowadays, a lot of kids come in on a full-ride scholarship and just assume that this is something owed to them. Sometimes, they just don't realize this is something they have to earn in order to keep."

"Graduating is one of the things I've always wanted to do. It's taken a while because I've only been able to be in school one quarter of the year, but finishing was important to me and I always planned to.

"I enjoy football, but I've planned for the future. The average career in pro football (James plays with the San Diego Chargers) lasts three years, but the average life span of the human is between 68 and 72 years. When I'm not playing football anymore, what will I do with the rest of my life?"

"I want to be a math teacher, because I like kids and math is something I'm good at.

"I feel that if I'm a role model and I'm benefiting from being a role model, then it's my duty to put something back into the community. If I can help somebody and encourage someone to do his best, I want to."

"As a coach in any sport, you're always pushing your athletes to the edge emotionally.

"There are occasions, there have to be occasions, when this (fighting) happens. You can't play on the edge all the time without any spillage."

Grades block top recruit's plan for college football career

Chuck Jones' all-America year has turned to ashes.

Jones has not met the necessary academic requirements to graduate from Chillicothe (Ohio) High School next month. He must forfeit the tuition aid he was scheduled to receive to attend and play football for Ohio State University.

"I messed up," Jones said. "It's nobody's fault but mine. I'm not blaming anyone but me. Others with that opportunity would have worked hard and gotten the job done in the classroom."

Jones helped guide Chillicothe to its second straight Ohio Capital Conference title. He was a first-team Associated Press all-Ohio choice and was selected to USA

Today's all-America team.

The 6-foot-5, 295-pound defensive tackle was considered one of the best defensive linemen in the nation because of his combination of size and speed—he runs the 40-yard dash in 4.6 seconds. Ohio State coach John Cooper signed him to a letter of intent. He was ready to dominate college football and someday the National Football League.

"It hurts me when I really think about what I did have and what I could have had," Jones said. The scholarship "was enough motivation. I guess I didn't have enough motivation in the classroom."

Jones said his academic downfall came in a required government class. His failing grade will keep him one-half credit short of his academic requirements.

He said his grades in several classes were borderline all semester, and he realized recently that he wasn't going to make it.

"I was in class and we went over our grades and it didn't look like I was looking too good. I had a 55 percent in government and needed a 60 percent to pass," he said.

Jones said he will attend 20 hours of summer school classes. But it will be too late to salvage his football scholarship.

"I'm sorry that he didn't have the desire to put forth the effort that was necessary to graduate," Chillicothe football coach John Sines said. "But that was his choice."

"It's a real shame," principal Roger Crago told the Associated Press.

Government wasn't Jones' only problem. Getting to school in the morning was another.

Throughout most of the school year, Sines came to Jones' house each morning to wake him up and take him to school.

But Jones still was absent often, he admitted.

"I missed a lot of school," he said. "I missed more this year than all my years of school. Some people say I'm lazy. I'm not lazy. I'm hard-headed in regards to school. It's not that I don't like school, it's just I like to sleep in the mornings. I should have gotten up."

Although he won't play major-college sports—at least this fall his football days might not be over. Jones said he would like to leave Chillicothe to attend a junior college.

"I just might have to make it the hard way," he said.

Schaus

opportunities to coach in the NBA before but never felt they were right for me. I enjoyed my 12 years with the Lakers. We were in the play-offs every year (seven as coach).

"At first, I liked being general manager, but it got to the point where agents and attorneys were getting more involved, and I was missing the personal involvement with the players.

"In 1972, the NCAA tournament was held in Los Angeles. George King, who'd been my assistant at West Virginia and succeeded me as coach there, was the athletics director as well as the coach at Purdue, and he didn't want to do both jobs. He asked me if I'd be interested in getting back to coaching, and I said I would. In my final year with the Lakers, we had Wilt (Chamberlain) and West and Jim McMillian and Gail Goodrich and Happy Hairston, and we won the NBA title."

Most of all, Schaus has enjoyed the past eight years at the helm of the West Virginia athletics program. "I have great love for this institution, this state and its people. I've been very gratified by the success of our teams, nonrevenue as well as the football and basketball programs."

In his first year back, the football team under Don Nehlen went to the Peach Bowl. The football team has been in bowl games in six of the past eight years, including a New Year's Day appearance against Notre Dame in the Fiesta Bowl this year for the mythical national championship.

The basketball team, under Gale Catlett, has been to nine straight tournaments, including six NCAA appearances.

The program had been in bad financial shape before Schaus set up shop, but the success of the teams and the money they've attracted has turned things around.

Soon after the season, Catlett was permitted by Schaus to be interviewed for the head coaching job at Auburn University, to replace Sonny Smith, who left for Virginia Commonwealth. Catlett decided he didn't want to leave West Virginia.

"I'd have been disappointed for him if he'd have gone to Auburn," said Schaus. "He's a West Virginia native. His whole family is in this state. It would have been a mistake. He's getting toward the twilight of his coaching career—not that he's that old, but I know he doesn't want to coach that long—and he has some quality years left, and I think he should spend them at his alma mater. I think he'll be better off and happier here."

Then again, people who follow the Mountaineers might have felt the same way when Schaus left town to go to Los Angeles and back in 1960. Oh, well. All's well that ends well, right?

"Wherever I've been, I've been happy," said Schaus. "After 40 some years in this business, I can still say that. It's been a great trip. But this is going to be nice, too. There are just so many things we've wanted to do, but weren't able to get away for one reason or another. We're looking forward to spending more time with those grandkids."

Stanford men overcome tough field, win 10th tennis crown

Top-seeded Stanford emerged from what was regarded as one of the most competitive fields ever and successfully defended its team title May 19-28 at the Division I Men's Tennis Championships.

With a 5-3 victory over Georgia in the championship match, coach Dick Gould's Cardinal won its 10th title—all since 1973. Only UCLA (15) and Southern California (12) have more titles.

It also is the third time in four years that Stanford has won both the men's and women's Division I team tennis titles.

Stanford's men never lost a doubles match in a march through the 20-team, single-elimination tournament that also featured Cardinal victories over Miami (Florida), Louisiana State and South Carolina.

Georgia's loss to Stanford in the final was the Bulldogs' first loss in three championship-match appearances on their home court. Georgia won titles at Athens in 1985 and 1987.

A capacity crowd of 5,227 viewed the team final at Georgia's Henry Field Stadium. This was the 13th consecutive year that Georgia hosted the tournament.

"I really do hate to leave (Athens)," said Gould of the tournament's move next year to Indian Wells, California. "I hope we're back soon. I think we helped (Georgia's) case. Didn't we just prove you can beat Georgia at Georgia?"

"If it was my decision, I'd want it to stay here forever," said Jeff Tarango, Stanford's No. 1 singles player.

While Stanford was able to hold its ranking through the team competition, the top seeds in individual play fell early.

Only one of the eight top-seeded singles players—No. 7 Al Parker of Georgia—advanced as far as the quarterfinals of that competition, and none of the top four doubles teams advanced past quarterfinal play.

In singles, No. 13 seed Donni

Leaycraft of Louisiana State defeated unseeded Steven Jung of Nebraska in the championship final, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

The Southern Cal doubles team of Eric Amend and Byron Black captured the Trojans' 19th NCAA doubles title with a 7-5, 6-7, 7-5 victory over UC Irvine's Mike Briggs and Trevor Kronemann. It also was the Trojans' third doubles title in four years.

UC Irvine advanced two teams to the doubles semifinals.

Syracuse defends I men's lacrosse championship

Syracuse won its second straight Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship May 29, defeating Johns Hopkins, 13-12, at College Park, Maryland.

Syracuse had a 5-4 edge at the end of the first quarter but did not lead again until John Zuberli scored with 8:42 remaining in the fourth quarter. That goal put the Orangemen up 12-11. Rodney Dumpson scored what proved to be the game-prouder of these guys and the effort they gave today," Johns Hopkins coach Don Zimmerman said. "We even had a shot there at the end to tie it. Dressel made a great shot, but their goalie made a great save. I couldn't ask any more from my team."

A record crowd of 23,893 witnessed the championship game. Vice-President Dan Quayle and his wife, Marilyn, were among the spectators. Attendance records for a single day (23,893 May 29), the semifinals (20,263) and the championship weekend (44,156) also were set.

winner with 4:47 remaining. It was Dumpson's second and Syracuse's fourth consecutive goal of the quarter.

Johns Hopkins got its only goal of the final period when John Wilkens scored with 2:03 remaining. The game, in which the score was tied seven times, was not decided until Syracuse goalie Matt Palumb stopped John Dressel's shot with one second left.

"I made myself as wide as I could, and I caught it with my chest," Palumb said of the shot. "It was great coaching strategy on both sides. They gave it to a hot player, and we put our best defenseman on him."

"Back-to-back championships are hard to come by," Syracuse coach Roy Simmons Jr. said. "We did what we had to do. It's great for the game of lacrosse to have the two best teams play."

Medalist's final putt earns crown for San Jose State's women's team

San Jose State won the National Collegiate Women's Golf Championship, which was hosted May 24-27 by Stanford, in dramatic fashion.

The Spartans and defending-champion Tulsa were within strokes of each other throughout the tournament—even with San Jose State's Pat Hurst standing over a four-foot putt on the 72nd hole.

Hurst nailed it for a 292 finish, which gave her the individual title by two strokes over Arizona's Susan Slaughter (294).

And, her final-hole birdie pushed San Jose State ahead of Tulsa for good, giving the Spartans their second team title in the eight-year history of the tournament.

San Jose State had rounds of 308-296-293-311 for a 1,208 total, and Tulsa had rounds of 294-301-299-315 for a 1,209. Oklahoma State (1,218), Arizona (1,220) and Florida (1,230) rounded out the top five.

Georgia, last year's runner-up, tied with Arizona State for sixth place (1,234).

Other Spartans finishing among the top 20 included Denise Philbrick, whose 300 total earned her a tie for ninth, and Dina Ammacapane, who tied for 15th with a 302. Tulsa's top finisher was Cathy Mockett, who tied for sixth at 298.

Single run, stingy defense earn UCLA fifth softball title

Lorraine Maynez's two-out single in the bottom of the third inning, which drove in pinch runner Julie Poulos, was all defending champion UCLA needed to defeat Fresno State, 1-0, and win the school's fifth NCAA Division I Women's Softball Championship.

Hosted by California, the tournament was played May 24-28 at Twin Creeks Sports Complex, Sunnysvale, California.

UCLA opened the third inning of the championship game with an infield single by catcher Erica Ziencina. Poulos, who came in to run for Ziencina, moved to second on Kerry Dienelt's sacrifice bunt. The pinch runner then advanced to third on a ground ball by Shanna Flynn and scored easily when Maynez smacked a hit off Fresno State first baseman Kerri Donis' glove.

Freshman Tiffany Boyd pitched a three-hit shutout for the Bruins, with two of those hits coming in the first inning. Fresno State had runners on first and third with two outs, but Kathy Mayer struck out swinging to end the threat.

Fresno State's only other base runners came in the third, when Shelly Stokes reached base on a single to center but was stranded, and in the sixth, when Stokes drew a lead-off walk. She was forced at second on Martha Noffsinger's sacrifice attempt, and Noffsinger was stranded when Gina LoPiccolo and Donis both struck out.

Boyd improved her record to 19-2, striking out six and walking just one. "In the championship game, I think I did the job just fine," she said. "Fresno State's a great team, take nothing away from them. My job is to get them to hit the ball to the defense. We're 16 players strong, and I never worry when the ball is hit. I just let the defense take care of it," she added.

UCLA ended the season with a 48-4 record, winning back-to-back softball titles for the second time. The Bruins previously accomplished this feat in 1984 and 1985. The team's other title came in 1982, the first year of the tournament.

Named to the all-tournament team were Boyd, Dienelt, Missy Phillips, Janice Parks and Maynez, UCLA; Carie Dever, Stokes, Noffsinger and Jill Polanco, Fresno State; Kristin Gauthier and Nicki Dennis, Arizona, and Michele Smith, Oklahoma State.

Mighty Falcons soar to II men's track victory

St. Augustine's scored heavily in the sprints, relays and jumps to overcome Angelo State's strength in the field events and win its first team title at the Division II Men's Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

With the victory, St. Augustine's ended Abilene Christian's seven-year reign as Division II men's champion. The Wildcats finished fourth.

St. Augustine's also completed a sweep of this year's men's track team titles during the May 25-27 meet at Hampton. The Mighty Falcons won the indoor team title in March.

Sixty-one of St. Augustine's 107½ points came in the three sprint events and the two relays, and another 29 points were scored in the jumps 21 in the long jump. Those 90 points were enough to take the title from Angelo State, which scored most of its 84 points in the field events.

St. Augustine's claimed five individual titles, including victories in the 400-meter and 1,600-meter relays and Charles Johnson's championship in the 110-meter hurdles.

Also, Kenneth Brockenburr won the 200-meter dash, in addition to finishing second at 100 meters. The title complements Brockenburr's victory in the 55-meter dash at the indoor championships in March. Mark Mason won the long jump ahead of Mighty Falcon teammates Earl Randolph (second), Tarrell Carpenter (seventh) and Xavier Donaldson (eighth). Donaldson was defending champion in the long jump, and Carpenter won the event indoors this year.

Angelo State's Mike Smierciak successfully defended his title in the javelin throw and Kile Freeman added a title in the shot put for the Rams. However, the best finish Angelo State could post in the running events came in the 400-meter hurdles, where defending champion Randy Simmons finished second.

In other individual-event highlights, Norm McGee of North Dakota won his third straight title in the 100-meter dash. McGee also finished second at 200 meters for the third time.

The meet's only double winner was Darin Slade of Cal State Sacramento, who captured the 800- and 1,500-meter runs.

Others who successfully defended titles from last year were Howard Burnett of New York Tech in the 400-meter dash, Doug Hanson of North Dakota State in the 10,000-meter run and James Browne of Abilene Christian in the triple jump. Also, St. Augustine's victory in the 400-meter relay was its second straight.

Mustangs claim fourth track crown

Cal Poly San Luis Obispo bounced back from last year's worst showing ever to win its fourth team title at the Division II Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

The Mustangs, who won the first three Division II championships (1982 through 1984) and finished second the next three years, were fifth last year. But Cal Poly SLO scored heavily in the distance events May 25-27 at Hampton to hold off Abilene Christian, 103-70, and snap the Wildcats' four-year winning streak.

Abilene Christian, which won this year's indoor team championship, and Cal Poly SLO are the only schools to win Division II women's outdoor track titles.

The Mustangs claimed only three individual titles at Hampton—Teena Colebrook's third consecutive victory in the 800-meter run and second meet record in the 1,500-meter run, and Gina Albanese's first-place finish in the 400-meter hurdles. But Cal Poly SLO scored 17 points in the 3,000-meter run, 15 points in the 5,000-meter run and 12 points in the 10,000-meter run—and picked up a total of 37 points in the 800- and 1,500-meter events—to counter an outstanding performance by Abilene Christian's Mazel Thomas.

Thomas won the high jump, was second in the long jump and finished third in the triple jump as she again showed the form that captured high jump and long jump championships at the Division II indoor meet in March.

Alesia Turner claimed Abilene Christian's only other individual title with a victory in the 100-meter dash.

Seattle Pacific finished third in the competition behind Bente Moe's victory in the 10,000-meter run and her runner-up finish at 5,000 meters. Moe finished her collegiate career with four outdoor titles and one cross country crown.

Other repeat champions included Darcy Arreola of Cal State Northridge in the 3,000-meter run and Durrelle Schimek of Cal Poly Pomona in the javelin throw. Schimek, however, was unable to defend her championship in the heptathlon, where she was outscored by Lizz Barringer of Southeast Missouri State.

Alabama A&M successfully defended its title in the 1,600-meter relay.

North Central men win again

Scan the Division III Men's Outdoor Track Championships team results, and you might conclude that nothing has changed but the date.

As was the case at the NCAA Division III indoor championships two months ago, North Central claimed the outdoor team title—thanks in part to outstanding performances by Jan Cado. North Central hosted the outdoor meet May 24-27.

Also, as was the case indoors, Lincoln (Pennsylvania) finished second and Wisconsin-LaCrosse was third.

Cado won the long jump and triple jump, as he did indoors, but he set only one record. His triple jump of 54-4¼ fell only a quarter-inch short of besting the old meet record by a yard.

As expected, Cado's teammate, Shawn Welti, advanced to the long jump final and finished sixth overall. But this pair didn't win the title alone.

Help came from Rich Scopp, who won the 1,500-meter race in 3:48.44, and John Collet, who finished second at 10,000 meters.

Other top performers included Loras' Barry Harris, who won both sprints, and both of Lincoln's relay teams, which claimed victories.

John Wood of Ursinus earned titles in the shot put and javelin.

Cado's was the only record set during the meet.

In winning the triple jump, North Central's Jan Cado bettered the meet record in the event by almost a yard

Lady Captains continue dominance of III women's track

Christopher Newport claimed a third consecutive team title at the Division III Women's Outdoor Track Championships, hosted May 24-27 by North Central. With the victory, the Lady Captains extended a reign of dominance in Division III women's track that dates back to spring 1987.

Christopher Newport now has won every Division III women's track title—indoor and outdoor—since the 1987 Lady Captains claimed the school's first track crown outdoors.

Once again, Sheila Trice led Christopher Newport's march to the victory stand. Trice finished no lower than fifth in any of the five individual events she qualified for, and she defended her 1988 crown at 100 meters.

Trice also helped Christopher Newport take the 400-meter relay crown for the third consecutive year. Interestingly and unlike past championships those two individual titles were the only ones claimed by Christopher Newport athletes.

Double champions included Carleton's Anna Prineas (5,000 meters and 10,000 meters) and Shannon Quigley of UC San Diego (shot put and discus).

Only two records fell at the 1989 meet—both in hurdles races.

At 100 meters, Ophelia Johnson of host North Central took almost a 10th of a second off the mark set in 1985 by Redlands' Margo Edwards.

At 400 meters, Augsburg's Carolyn Ross shaved more than a half-second off the record she established in winning the 1988 crown.

ment on the action of the Presidents Commission on this issue so far this year. I must say I find the senator's reported statement of shock that the NCAA is "opposing" the bill because it has not already adopted the principles of the bill to be a bit disingenuous: The senator and the other sponsors of the legislation in the House are certainly aware that opposition to the principles of the bill were expressed not by NCAA representatives, but by the president of American Council on Education. As noted in Dick Schultz's testimony last week, the NCAA is a democratic body; and as with any important legislative concept, time is required to define the objectives, draft legislation that reflects those objectives and then build consensus that permits passage of a legislative proposal, or some variant thereof. In that respect, the NCAA is not different from this body, or indeed from the United States Senate.

As I believe Mr. Schultz told you, the Presidents Commission discussed the Student Athlete Right-to-Know Act at its meeting in connection with the NCAA Convention last January. A resolution was adopted by the Commission calling upon the NCAA staff to draft proposed legislation by which admissions, academic and graduation-rate data would be made available to prospective student-athletes, especially as a part of the recruitment process. As you know, these data are currently collected by the NCAA from Division I institutions and are published by type of Division I institution and by geographical region, but without identification of any individual institution. Many institutions make these data available to recruits on a voluntary basis, and indeed, members of the College Football Association make graduation-rate data on football players publicly available through the CFA.

The NCAA staff has prepared draft legislation that would require institutions to make available to prospects and their parents, and to high school coaches and two-year college coaches, precisely the same admissions, academic and graduation-rate data now being reported to the NCAA. At our most recent meeting two months ago, each of the division subcommittees of the Commission endorsed the original Commission resolution to propose graduation-rate disclosure legislation and discussed in general terms the content of the legislative proposal. We will discuss specific legis-

SWAC announces penalties against Prairie View A&M

The Southwestern Athletic Conference has announced penalties against Prairie View A&M University for using ineligible players in games the football team won against Southern University, Baton Rouge, and Texas Southern.

Penalties imposed on the Texas school by the conference include a public reprimand and censure, forfeiture of the game against Southern, a fine of undisclosed amount, and a "recertification" by the university that its current policies and practices conform with requirements of the SWAC manual and NCAA regulations.

Prairie View was not required to forfeit the Texas Southern game because Texas Southern also used an ineligible player and faces penalties that will be announced later, Conference Commissioner James Frank said in a news release.

lation at our meeting in October, and we will submit legislation at the upcoming NCAA championship in January 1990.

Quite frankly, there are a number of issues to be analyzed. Here are a few:

1. Which institutions should be

2. Should raw graduation-rate data, or adjusted-rate data as defined in NCAA legislation, be reported? The former can be very misleading, but compilation of the latter, for many institutions, may be expensive.

3. Should data be reported by

"I think the NCAA has made remarkable strides in the past decade, and that all signs point to further progress."

included in the reporting obligation? Right now, of course, only Division I institutions file reports with the NCAA. Is it equally appropriate that all NCAA institutions, even those in Division III, which do not award athletically related financial aid, be required to report?

race, as suggested in the Bradley-McMillen bill? Many institutions would find such reporting conceptually offensive, and in some institutions, reporting on this basis might create Buckley Amendment problems.

4. To whom should the data ultimately be reported, and by what means?

5. Should special provision be made for those public institutions that are required, under state law, to pursue an open admissions policy for state residents? Such a policy might seriously skew reported data, and it may be unfair to compare such an institution against a private university or one with different admissions policies.

These are all legitimate questions, even for one who believes in the fundamental concept of disclosure. We in the Commission will review each of them, and others, with care in the upcoming months and will draft a final proposal for consideration by the next Convention. I am optimistic that a good proposal can be fashioned and can be accepted by our member institutions.

I close by expressing my disagreement with the claims by Messrs. Atwell and Deford at your hearings last week that intercollegiate athletics is so fundamentally sick that the NCAA is incapable of dealing with its problems. I think the NCAA has made really remarkable strides in the past decade, and that all signs point to further progress. I note the frustration publicly expressed last week by my colleague on the Commission, Father Healy of Georgetown. I agree that the development of consensus within the NCAA and its divisions is often difficult and time-consuming, but I also believe that the Presidents Commission is the proper body to develop that consensus and to keep intercollegiate athletics on the right track.

Thank you.

Court lets Abernethy dismissal stand

The Alabama Supreme Court has refused to alter a lower-court decision that threw out the misdemeanor game-tampering conviction of former Atlanta sports agent Jim Abernethy.

The state's high court issued no opinion May 26 as it let stand an Alabama Court of Criminal Appeals ruling that said state prosecutors "utterly and completely failed" to prove Abernethy violated criminal law when he paid money to Auburn University football star Kevin Porter during the 1987 season.

The payments violated NCAA rules. After Abernethy disclosed the dealings in a report in The Atlanta Constitution, Porter was declared ineligible for Auburn's game against Syracuse in the 1988 Sugar Bowl.

A Lee County Circuit Court jury convicted Abernethy on the sports-tampering charge in March 1988, and a judge sentenced him to one year in prison and fined him $2,000. The appeals court threw out the conviction last December.

"If ever there was a case where we could say 'We told you so,' this was the one," Birmingham lawyer Bill Baxley, a former Alabama attorney general who represented Abernethy, said after the Supreme Court ruling. "The man just did not break any law.... The state tried to slide him under a law that didn't exist." Atty. Gen. Don Siegelman, whose office prosecuted Abernethy, as well as New York agent Norby Walters on similar charges in a University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, case, was not immediately available for comment, the Associated Press reported.

Siegelman said previously that his goal in the prosecution of the sports agents was to "send them a message." Under a negotiated agreement, Walters agreed to pay the University of Alabama some $220,000 to avoid trial. He later was convicted in a Federal racketeering case in Chicago involving college athlete contracts. Siegelman said he felt the prosecutions "proved a point."

Baxley, however, said May 26 that Abernethy's case was not in the same category as that of Walters and his former associate, Lloyd Bloom. He said their cases involved allegations of physical threats and extortion in violation of Federal law. "All Abernethy did was sign up to represent college athletes as their agent, and he admitted he did it," said Baxley.

"If there had been a law against it, he never would have done it," said the attorney.

The state appeals court's December ruling said in part: "Mere tampering with a player's eligibility in violation of NCAA rules is not a criminal offense unless done with the specific intent to influence the outcome of a sports contest."

The state utterly and completely failed to prove that Abernethy tampered with a sports contest with the criminal intent to influence its outcome," the court said.

After loss of thumb, softball player has best season

Ohio University student-athlete Lisa McCort recently completed her best softball season ever for the Bobcats. The team cocaptain finished third in hitting (.241) average and recorded a fielding percentage of .895... not bad for someone who lost a thumb in an accident.

"I just don't like anyone telling me what I can or cannot do," said McCort, after doctors told her a June 1987 mowing accident had ended her softball career. She was cutting a hillside when the mower flipped, severing her right thumb and pinning her underneath.

She managed to kill the engine with her right foot, and a passing motorist stopped to help after spotting her. After treatment at a hospital near her Logan, Ohio, home, McCort was transferred to Columbus.

Surgeons reattached the thumb, holding out half-hearted hope for a successful procedure. Three weeks later, the thumb was showing healthy signs, and doctors were calling the results miraculous.

"She was one of our strongest players for attitude," said teammate Anne Maglia. "When you realize what she came back from and that she works twice as hard as anyone, it's impossible not to work harder yourself."

David R. Gavitt, Big East Conference commissioner, received honorary degrees from two Big East member institutions the weekend of May 20-21.

20. The next day, he received an honorary doctorate in business administration from Providence College.

Last year, Gavitt received an honorary degree from Franklin Pierce College.

More than 100 University of California, Berkeley, student-athletes recently participated in the first Big C Career Day, which will become an annual event. More than 40 alumni, many of them former student-athletes, offered programs covering 18 different career areas.

Sessions on interview skills and a resume-writing workshop also were held.

"The members of the Big C wanted to be part of something that truly helps the student-athletes at Cal," said Joe Griffin, president of the varsity lettermen's club, which is open to undergraduates and alumni. "(We wanted to) show that the institution and its people do have an interest in (student-athletes') long-term aspirations—beyond what happens on the playing field."

On the Airwaves: According to the information from the A. C. Nielsen Company, ESPN now is available in 50.9 million American homes which is more than 56 percent of U.S. households with television.

Ted Kearly, Michigan Technological University athletics director, has announced that Desnick Broadcasting has been awarded radio rights for all Huskie sports. The Houghton, Michigan, firm is expected to carry Michigan Tech football and ice hockey on its FM station, WHUH, and Huskie men's basketball on its AM outlet, WCCY. USA Network's coverage of the Recently elected officers of the State University of New York Athletic Conference for 1989-90 were: Carol Blazina, women's athletics director at Oneonta State University College, president; Fred Hartrick, Buffalo State College athletics director, president-elect; Lee Roberts, athletics director at Cortland State University College, men's division chair, and Jo Ann Meadows, women's athletics director at Oswego State University College, women's division chair.

Division II Softball Postscript: From California State University, Bakersfield, comes word of Margaret Harvey's interesting performance during the 1989 Division II championship.

Harvey earned victories in two of the Roadrunners' three triumphs in the finals (they defended their 1988 title) and was named to the all-tournament team for the second consecutive year. Not bad, considering the near-sighted hurler lost a contact lens during regional competition and pitched both games including a one-hitter with only one contact.

Franklin and Marshall College officials announced May 22 that the Diplomat baseball team's two-week trip to the People's Republic of China has been postponed until next year due to the unstable political situation in the host country.

From Tim Stephens, DePaul University sports information director, comes a conference-style set of final statistics ranking players on the 23 teams that competed in Division I men's basketball last season as independents. Team rankings also are included.

Stephens and Shawn Ahearn of Chicago State University compiled these final stats, which are available by contacting Stephens (312/341-8545) or Ahearn (312/995-2217). Copies also may be requested in writing—the address is 1011 West Trivia Time: Who was the leading scorer among players on Division I independent teams last season? Answer later.

Sports Illustrated photographers and editors will conduct a week-long seminar on shooting sports action during the 1989 U.S. Olympic Festival, July 21-28 in Oklahoma City.

The session is being offered by Maine Photographic Workshops (Rockport, Maine 04856, telephone 207/236-8581).

During a recent six-week fund-raising effort, 25 community volunteers raised $101,500 for California State University, Northridge, athletics programs. Ran Railey, the school's director of athletics development, coordinated the effort.

Kerry Mayer, vice-president of the school's athletics association, earned special recognition for bringing in over $11,000 in contributions.

Another fund-raising effort, this one at Northern Illinois University, already has produced $212,000—and they're still counting. Organizers are hoping to exceed $250,000 in pledges before the end of the year.

Awards and Many More Report Cards: Bethany College (West Virginia) student-athletes Dave Douglass and Enid Cobb have been named 1989 recipients of the Hanna Award, given annually on the basis of athletics performance, leadership and academic excellence. The award is named in memory of William H. Hanna Jr., a 1937 Bethany graduate who played football for the Bisons and was an assistant coach at the school.

Among the Lake Superior State University student-athletes honored at the school's sports awards banquet were recipients of two academic honors. Elise Wilcheck, a women's tennis player, earned the Kiwanis Scholastic Award after compiling a 3.500 grade-point average (4.000 scale) in computer science. The Ray Chelberg Award, given to the outstanding student-athlete majoring in natural sciences, was to basketball player Rick Gray, owner of a 3.700 GPA in premedicine.

John Schwab and Pamela Atkinson have been named scholar-athletes of 1989 by La Salle University. Schwab earned a 3.900 GPA in accounting, and Atkinson carried a 3.590 in biology—with a minor in psychology.

Among the 400 varsity athletes honored at Columbia University's Varsity "C" Club awards banquet were Tom Auth and Kathrin Wanner, who were named the school's outstanding male and female scholar-athletes. Auth has a 3.964 GPA in political science. Wanner, on a 4.000 scale, produced an outstanding 4.006 in psychology. Both plan to attend law school.

Receiving the University of Hartford's outstanding scholar-athlete awards recently were Maribeth Blonski and Doug Bronson. The awards are presented to the Hartford seniors with the highest GPAs. Both student-athletes carry 3.600s—Blonski as an illustration major, Bronson in mechanical engineering.

University of Maryland, College Park, officials have announced that 168 student-athletes have been recognized for maintaining GPAs above 3.000 during the 1988 calendar year. Among them were 30 who posted 4.000s for at least one semester.

Thirty-nine Maryville College (Missouri) student-athletes recently became the first recipients of the new Athletics Director's Academic Excellence Award, which will be given to those with cumulative GPAs of at least 3.300.

In announcing that 120 student-athletes from the eight member schools have been named to the North Coast Conference's 1988-89 academic honor roll, league President Jean Lenti Ponsetto of DePaul University noted that Lynn Davis of Marquette University became only the fifth student-athlete in conference history to make the honor roll four consecutive years. To be named, student-athletes must have a cumulative GPA of at least 3.250.

Two of those recognized, Diane Breuer of Marquette and Valparaiso University's Diana Kardos, have 4.000s.

Included on the 1988-89 Midwestern Collegiate Conference academic honor roll are 219 student-athletes—110 men and 109 women. To qualify, they must have participated in a conference sport, have completed at least three semesters as a full-time student at the same MCC member institution and have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.250.

Seven student-athletes from Missouri Valley Conference schools have received conference medallions—the highest award given by the league. They include Stephen Baab, Bradley University (3.190 GPA); John Svoboda, Creighton University (3.800); Allan Wallace, Drake University (3.710); Dallas Kelsey, Indiana State University (3.430); Juan Martinez, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale (3.220); Lane Wilson, University of Tulsa (3.300), and Ulrik Persson, Wichita State University (3.490). All except Svoboda (golf) and Persson (track) are tennis players.

Rob Arthur has been named winner of the ninth annual Jimmy Starr Memorial Scholarship at Carnegie-Mellon University. The $2,000 award, given to a football player for outstanding academic and athletics achievement, is named in memory of former Tartan tight end Jimmy Starr, who died 10 years ago in an auto accident.

During the 1989 winter term at Washington and Lee University, 48 student-athletes earned 3.500 GPAs or higher. Five of the school's 19 varsity teams posted combined GPAs of at least 3.000—led by the women's soccer squad (3.406).

The following Michigan Technological University student-athletes have received scholastic achievement awards for their 1988-89 classroom performances: Andy Van Hoef, Niki Diehm, Regina Cook (cheerleader), Pete Weiss, Robb Dettman, Mike Meyer, Kregg Raducha, Birgit Kuschnerus, Sherri Huggett, Brenda Bujanowski, Toby Pallett and Jeff Nicholas.

Ashland College's Larry Adolph has received the Heartland Collegiate Conference's Tony Hinkle Scholar-Athlete Award. Adolph carries a 3.160 in biology.

1989 academic honor roll includes 273 student-athletes, all of whom earned a varsity letter and posted GPAs of at least 3.000.

Ninety student-athletes compose the Big Eight Conference's men's and women's track academic honor rolls for 1989. Among them are Iowa State University junior biology major Lisa Skidmore and Oklahoma State University sophomore chemistry major Cynthia Shafer, who have 4.000s.

Villanova University student-athletes Chris Craft (men's swimming) and Vicki Huber (track) have been named the Big East Conference's scholar-athletes of the year. Craft has a 3.720 in marketing, Huber a 3.420 in psychology.

Central Connecticut State University President John W. Shumaker recently presented medals of merit to student-athletes Taklai Ngai and Christine Osborn, who compiled the top GPAs over the past four years. Ngai has a 3.540, Osborn a 3.790.

Carroll College's top senior male student-athlete is basketball player Pete Claffin, who received the school's Buschkopf Award. The Kilgour Award, presented annually to the top senior female student-athlete, went to cowinners Patti Warden and Chris Yelton.

The Mid-American Conference's Commissioner's Award, awarded annually for academic excellence, has been given to 133 student-athletes from member schools. Each winner has a cumulative GPA of at least 3.500.

Fifty-eight of Weber State College's 240 student-athletes posted GPAs of at least 3.300 for the fall and winter quarters. Six earned 4.000s.

Connecticut College student-athletes Karen DiLisio, Terry Fracassa, Maria Gluch and Joelle Patten were among 44 seniors at the school recently elected into the Connecticut College chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Marcy Erickson has been named athlete of the year and has received the President's Award at the College of St. Benedict. The senior women's tennis player carries a 4.000 in liberal studies with a minor in mathematics.

Among the players named to the 1989 North Central Conference all-academic baseball team were four repeat selections from 1988: Jeff Jeremiason, Augustana College (South Dakota) (3.810 in chemistry/mathematics); Jeff Skibicki, University of North Dakota (3.650 in mathematics); Mike Skowronek, Mankato State University (3.750 in prephysical therapy), and Randy Stone, South Dakota State University (2.900 in economics).

At-large, baseball and women's softball all-academic teams have been announced by the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletics Conference. In all, 60 student-athletes were recognized—and half of them had GPAs of at least 3.500.

Seventeen Murray State University female student-athletes have posted GPAs of at least 3.300. The women's volleyball team produced the best combined GPA among women's sports teams—3.260.

Forty-one percent of the student-athletes at the University of North Carolina, Greensboro (48 of 117), posted GPAs of at least 3.000 during the spring semester. Among them was Todd Jackson, who produced a 4.000 for the entire academic year—for the second consecutive year.

Following are the East Coast Conference's 1989 scholar-athletes from spring sports: Baseball Ed

Horowitz, Rider College. Golf—Jim Riley, University of Delaware. Men's lacrosse—Ed Brady, Delaware. Women's lacrosse—Susan Lang, Bucknell University. Men's outdoor track—Steve West, Bucknell. Women's outdoor track—Judy Perry, Bucknell. Women's softball—Kerrin Mohr, Towson State University. Men's tennis—Tim Jennison, Rider.

Fourteen student-athletes (nine women and five men) compose the first class of Chancellor's Scholar Athletes selected at the University of Wisconsin, Whitewater. All are seniors, have accumulated at least 90 degree credits and have completed the fall semester of their final year with cumulative GPAs of at least 3.250.

Ninety-four student-athletes from the University of California, Irvine, were honored as scholar-athletes recently. Each maintained a GPA of at least 3.000 over the past three academic quarters (3.200 for the past two quarters for freshmen).

California State University, Fullerton, officials recently honored 57 student-athlete graduating with the class of 1989—the largest graduating class of student-athletes in school history.

Canisius College student-athletes Craig Brandon, Kevin Hinterberger, Kris Killeen, Tim Lazarus, Matt Radomski and Brian Syxmanski have received the school's student-athlete awards for 1988-89. All carried GPAs of at least 3.000.

Trivia Answer: Eric Brown of the University of Miami (Florida) led all scorers on Division I independent men's basketball teams last season with a 24.7 average.

Michigan to meet Arizona in Tip-Off

Michigan and Arizona will meet in the 11th annual Basketball Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic November 25 in the Springfield Civic Center.

Burt Weinbaum, president of the Tip-Off Classic Committee, announced three major changes in the classic, the official opening game of the collegiate basketball season.

Arizona, the team that finished the season No. 1 in both the Associated Press and United Press International polls, will replace Villanova as Michigan's opponent. Michigan won the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship under coach Steve Fisher.

"We have been fortunate to sign a contract with ABC-TV for coverage of the Tip-Off Classic," Weinbaum said. "As a result, the date of the game has been changed to November 25 at 4 p.m. Villanova, the team that was originally scheduled to meet Michigan, had a schedule conflict and consented to bow out and accept our offer to play in the 1990 Tip-Off Classic." Villanova will be in the Maui Classic in Hawaii November 25.

Coach Lute Olson's Arizona team is the Pacific-10 Conference champion. The Wildcats finished the season with a record of 29-4, including 11 consecutive wins. Arizona made its fifth consecutive appearance in the NCAA championship under coach Olson.

Eastern Washington cancels vote on staying in Big Sky

Eastern Washington University President Alexander Schilt asked a school committee to cancel a May 24 vote on whether Eastern should remain in the Big Sky Conference, prompting one committee member to resign.

Critics say the costs of Big Sky membership are harming academic programs, and they hoped the athletics policy board would vote to recommend leaving the conference, United Press International reported.

The panel held a series of public hearings this spring and convened May 24 to cast secret ballots but abandoned the plan after Schilt said he did not want a vote.

Instead, he asked for a set of "principles and guidelines" that would help him develop a plan to present to Eastern's board of trustees, which ultimately will decide the issue.

"Leave it to management to manage within those guidelines," Schilt said.

Schilt said the Big Sky Conference has established a task force to examine cost-cutting measures.

He said the conference may provide flexibility in each school's level of participation, allowing a school to remain in the conference but to compete at a less expensive level.

Bob Morgenstern, a member of the athletics policy board and a professor of government, resigned.

"I think it's erroneous to think the Big Sky presidents are going to come up with some magical solution," said Morgenstern. "(Schilt) has made a decision and, quite obviously, it's to stay in the Big Sky. I think it's terribly unfortunate, and I have resigned from the committee."

Students have voted twice this year to reduce the portion of student fees devoted to intercollegiate athletics, and the faculty senate voted 25-3 May 22 to leave the Big Sky and "suspend participation in intercollegiate athletics until appropriate funding and study of all athletics options are fully considered."

Skik Young, an economics professor and chair of the athletics policy board, said he did not think the panel's charge had been changed despite the canceled vote.

"I think all the processes we went through are valuable experiences to us," said Young. "We still have the responsibility to make the recommendation to the president. Now, it all hinges on what kind of principles we're going to come up with."

The athletics policy board had planned to vote on whether to stay in the Big Sky, remain in NCAA Division I as an independent, move to Division II or NAIA, or eliminate athletics altogether. Several of the options would require ending football, the most expensive sport.

Darlenc Bailey, associate athletics director, said the uncertainty is creating recruiting and other problems.

"We're very concerned about our student-athletes," Bailey said. "I feel like we're still putting them on hold a little bit."

Grand jury indicts four sports agents in Florida

A Federal grand jury has indicted four south Florida sports agents for allegedly making secret cash payments to six athletes while they were students at the University of Florida.

The indictment charges the agents with fraud, mail fraud, wire fraud and racketeering. The indictment charges the agents gave illegal payments ranging from $100 to $3,000 at a time while the athletes still were eligible for college play.

The four agents, all based in Hollywood, Florida, are Gregory Latimer, Gerald Gratenstein, Glenn Haft and John Kasbar. All pleaded not guilty May 22 and have been released on $500,000 surety bond each.

According to the indictment, the illegal payments date to 1985. The players allegedly received payments of up to $3,000 to sign personal representation contracts and received occasional cash payments, Western Union money orders, interest-free loans, hotel accommodations, airline tickets, payments to family members and use of rental cars.

Most of the athletes named later turned professional and were represented by the agents on a commission basis.

Named were basketball player Vernon Maxwell, now with the San Antonio Spurs of the NBA; and football players Alonzo Mitz, now with the Seattle Seahawks; Ron Moten of the Philadelphia Eagles; Clifford Charlton of the Cleveland Browns; Frankie Neal, a former member of the Green Bay Packers; and Tommy Duhart, who later transferred to Southeastern Oklahoma State.

In addition to the Florida athletes, the indictment said Onzy Flam, a football player at Tennessee State University and now of the New York Jets, also got money from one of the agents.

None of the athletes was charged.

University of Florida Interim President Robert Bryan said the indictments give the university a welcome chance to end negative speculation caused by the investigation. He said he did not believe the university itself would be charged with violating NCAA rules, he told United Press International.

"We have worked for a number of years and will continue to work with student-athletes and their families to make them aware that their association with professional sports agents can place their college and professional careers in jeopardy," Bryan said.

All four agents are officers in a corporation called Professional Athletes Financial Advisors. Gratenstein is listed as corporation president, Latimer and Kasbar as vice-presidents, and Haft as secretary.

Nothing in the 90-page indictment indicates any wrongdoing by any university official. University officials have been unable to comment publicly during most of the time the grand jury investigation has been going on because U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul issued a gag order.

Administrative Committee minutes

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Appointed Craig Thompson, American South Conference, to the NCAA Council, replacing James W. Shaffer, Midwestern Collegiate Conference, who has accepted a position as a vice-president at Butler University.

b. Appointed Frederick E. Gruninger, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, to serve as chair of the Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals.

c. Appointed Linda MacDonald, Temple University, to the Women's Basketball Rules Committee, replacing Annette W. Lynch, resigned from the University of Rhode Island.

d. Granted an appeal by the University of Maine that the Association's official written materials refer to the institution by that name, rather than the University of Maine, Orono, noting that the change of name had occurred by legislative action.

e. Considered a request by the University of South Alabama for a review of the authority to waive the application of NCAA regulations for a student-athlete at that institution; affirmed that no authority exists for any NCAA administrative entity to waive the rule in question, and that only the voting members of the Association, in Convention assembled, can alter an NCAA regulation, which, in this case, the Division I membership declined to do at the 1989 Convention; noted that while the institution can challenge this ruling with the Council, that body also does not have the authority to grant the relief requested; agreed to inform the institution that the Administrative Committee believes the institution has exhausted its remedies within the Association in this matter.

f. Confirmed that Sarah E. J. Yates, Florida A&M University, will continue to serve as the Division I Council representative on the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Approved the following recommendations by the Men's Soccer Committee:

(1) That the following receive automatic qualification for the 1989 Division I Men's Soccer Championship: Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic 10 Conference, Big East Conference, Big West Conference, Midwestern Collegiate Conference, Northeast Conference, West Coast Athletic Conference, Colonial Athletic Association and Ivy Group.

(2) That the format for the expanded bracket be as follows:

(a) The two top-ranked teams in each of eight geographical regions would be selected, which may include the champions of conferences receiving automatic qualification; the remaining teams would be selected at large.

(b) The Division I subcommittee of the Men's Soccer Committee would identify the top four teams and place them in the bracket to receive first-round byes.

(c) The remaining 24 teams would be paired geographically according to proximity to one another and to the teams receiving first-round byes.

b. Approved a recommendation by the Division I Men's Basketball Committee that the University of Utah serve as host for a first/second-round session in the West regional of the 1990 Division I Men's Basketball Championship, March 15 and 17, replacing Brigham Young University, which withdrew as host.

c. Appointed the Credentials Committee for the 1990 NCAA Convention as follows: Reappointed Fran Curci, University of Tampa, and Diane Fairchild, Grinnell College; appointed Johnny Hardwick, Alabama State University, replacing Charles Prophet, Mississippi Valley State University, no longer eligible; appointed Ms. Fairchild to serve as chair.

d. Appointed the Memorial Resolutions Committee for the 1990 Convention as follows: Reappointed Joanne A. Fortunato, Keene State College, and appointed her to serve as chair; appointed James Doyle, DePaul University, and Laurie Priest, Marymount University (Virginia), replacing Bradford W. Hovious, University of Texas, El Paso, and Reginald L. Price, California State University, San Bernardino, both no longer eligible.

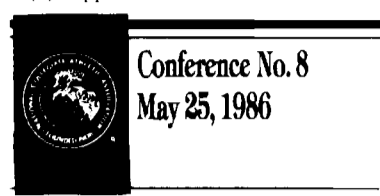

e. Appointed the Voting Committee for the 1990 NCAA Convention as follows: Reappointed Richard J. Hazelton, Trinity College (Connecticut); Joseph Barresi, College of Staten Island; Eric Hyman, Virginia Military Institute; Marnie W. Swift, University of Toledo; Katherine E. Noble, University of Montana; Bradley L. Rothermel, University of Nevada, Las Vegas; Prentice Gault, Big Eight Conference; Patricia W. Wall, Southeastern Conference, and John C. Martin, Delaware State College; appointed Ms. Swift to serve as chair; appointed Gerard L. St. Martin, University of Southwestern Louisiana; Daniel P. Starr, Canisius College; Norman D. Kaye, St. Leo College, and Sandra Jerstad, Augustana College (South Dakota), replacing Leanne Grotke, California State University, Fullerton; John Semanik, Drexel University; Erv Mondt, Morningside College, and G. Ann Uhlir, Texas Women's University, respectively, all no longer eligible.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2.

Acting for the Council:

(1) Approved 55 summer basketball leagues (39 for men and 16 for women) per Bylaws 14.8.5.2 and 30.11, as reported earlier in The NCAA News.

(2) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1-(c) to permit student-athletes from eight member institutions to participate in basketball tryouts and competition involving national teams.

(3) Granted waivers per Bylaws 14.8.6.1-

(d) and 14.8.6.2-(b) to permit student-athletes from various member institutions to participate in competition as part of the 1989 Star of the North State Games (Minnesota) and Garden State Games (New Jersey).

(4) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.2-(c) to permit student-athletes from various institutions to participate in foreign tours sponsored by the following: NBC camp, Australia and Brazil; Atlantic Coast Conference, Greece; Big Fight Conference, Australia; Big East Conference, France and Spain; Northeast Conference, Central America, and People to People, Spain (all basketball except Northeast Conference, volleyball).

(5) Granted a waiver of the transfer residence requirement per Bylaw 14.9.2.2 for reasons of health. Due to a previously sustained spinal-column injury, the student-athlete's present institution refuses to allow (based upon a diagnosis by its regular team physician) the student-athlete to participate in the sport of football. The student-athlete has obtained another medical opinion clearing him for participation. Inasmuch as his opportunity to continue to participate at his current institution has been denied, the student-athlete wishes to transfer and participate immediately at another institution.

(6) Granted a waiver of Bylaw 16.13 to permit West Texas State University to provide a student-athlete expenses to travel home to attend his father's funeral.

Louisiana State University: Baton Rouge

Should you build a new stadium for $1,000 per seat, or make the one you have as good as new for $50 per seat?

The decision to restore the 77,000 seat stadium at Louisiana State University — rather than build a new one — was based in large part on how well one company, The Western Group*, had already done restorations for over 25 large college and professional stadiums. And at costs far below what the costs would have been to build.

The University learned that The Western Group's nearly 30 years of experience in stadium restoration and extensive technical know-how, coupled with financial responsibility and proven guarantees, is what kept making them the contractor of choice in stadium work across the U.S.

The Western Group points with pride at these major stadium projects: Duke, Harvard, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Workers install an overlay on every step to allow positive drainage.

How The Western Group restored this stadium

The restoration plan for LSU was developed by architectural engineers, Clement, Blanchard & Holmes (Baton Rouge). The actual restoration work was performed by the New Orleans branch of Western Waterproofing Company, a member of The Western Group.

First, existing plank seats and brackets were removed. Then, damaged and/or spalled topside concrete treads and risers were repaired, as were structural cracks in the concrete seating area.

Concrete is protected from weather and traffic with a special coating.

Latex concrete leveling courses were applied on all treads, and all topside expansion and control joints were repaired and sealed.

After the entire surface was cleaned by high-pressure water blasting, 3M's Scotch-Clad Brand Sports Stadium Waterproof Traffic Topping was applied prior to the installation of the new seats.

Beneath the stands, Western workmen repaired concrete spalls and installed a new drainage system. They cleaned, repaired and applied acrylic waterproofing coatings to entranceway walls.

Amid expansion talks, SEC coach sees scheduling problems

Presidents of Southeastern Conference schools will discuss the possibility of expanding the 10-team league during its annual spring meeting, Associate Commissioner Brad Davis says.

"This is one of the issues that everybody wants to know what everybody is thinking," Davis said.

The presidents had a favorable reaction when asked about the concept earlier in a survey commissioned by the league, he said.

"The feedback was much more positive than I anticipated," Davis told the Associated Press.

SEC administrators and coaches will also discuss expansion as well as other topics at the meeting.

Talk of expansion has escalated in the wake of reports that as many as nine schools including the University of Miami (Florida), Florida State University and the University of South Carolina—might be interested in joining the SEC if the league decides to expand.

Not all administrators and coaches are sold on the idea of a so-called superconference that would include up to 16 teams.

Bill Curry, head football coach at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, said commitments that have the league's football programs locked into schedules for years to come would prove a hindrance to expanding any time soon in that sport.

And, the University of Florida's Norm Sloan said the idea of adding conference members is "utterly ridiculous from a basketball point of view."

"There are too many teams in the SEC as it is in basketball," Sloan said. "I don't see any advantage at all unless your only goal is to become the biggest conference in the country."

Meanwhile, Sloan expressed support for three proposals coming out of a meeting of basketball coaches.

One would allow the SEC to experiment with a six-foul rule in conference games next season. The second would award three fouls to a player fouled on a three-point-goal attempt. The third would urge officials to use the shot clock to make calls on 10-second backcourt violations.

"Basketball has changed over the years, and we need to change with it," Sloan said.

"Players are bigger and more physical," he added. "It's unfair to the fans to have a star player sit down with two fouls in the first half. An extra foul means the star players can play more."

If approved by SEC athletics directors and presidents, the proposal would be passed on to the NCAA, which has the final say-so on whether the league can experiment during the 1989-90 season.

"I don't think any of us know whether all of (the rules) will be accepted," said University of Tennessee, Knoxville, coach Wade Houston, "but all of them make a lot of sense."

In other business Monday, the league's football coaches unanimously expressed opposition to Proposal 42. It eliminates athletics scholarship aid for partial qualifiers—those who fail to meet the NCAA's core-curriculum and test-score requirements but who have an overall 2.000 in high school. The proposal was sponsored by the SEC at the 1989 Convention.

Curry, speaking for the coaches, said the group feels it's unfair to use the results of a standardized test to determine a student's eligibility for an athletics scholarship.

Four-year Utah linebacker earns political stripes, too

Since leaving the football field and entering the political arena, Molonai Hola has felt right at home.

The four-year letterman on the University of Utah football team put down his helmet for the final time November 19 after a 57-28 victory over Brigham Young.

In March, Hola, a native of Tonga, was elected the Associated Students of the University of Utah student-body president. Instead of playing before 25,000 fans in Rice Stadium, his new calling is to lead

Now, the international economics major has made another successful switch.

"I'm not going to solve all the problems with the student body, but at least I'll let them know I care," Hola continued. "Maybe some of the ideas I have are ludicrous, but I'm going to die trying to accomplish some of them."

Molonai

the university's 25,000 students.

"I decided to run (for office) about 18 months ago," Hola said. "I knew I had gone as far as I could with football, and I thought I had the capabilities, the leadership, the drive and support to win."

The former linebacker credits his four-year football career at Utah as playing a pivotal role in his switch from football to student government.

"Football taught me to be a team player and how to work out problems for myself," Hola said. "It also taught me that life changes and you can't be set in your ways."

Buffalo competing with Shanghai for '93 university games

Organizers in Buffalo, New York, are stepping up their efforts in competition with Shanghai, China, to win the role of host for the 1993 World University Summer Games.

The International University Sports Federation (FISU) is expected to decide between the two cities this summer, according to a news release from the United States Collegiate Sports Council, which nominated Buffalo to serve as host for the games.

Coach sues school after his dismissal

Former Louisiana State University track coach Loren Seagrave, released in April, has filed a $2 million suit against the school, athletics director Joe Dean and head track coach Pat Henry.

Seagrave, who led the Lady Tigers to two Division I outdoor and two indoor team titles, claims he was fired without just cause and was not given a fair hearing on the firing in accordance with school guidelines.

In February, Seagrave was denied the Southeastern Conference women's track coach-of-the-year title because the LSU athletics department said he officially was an assistant coach and not the women's track coach, according to the Associated Press.

On April 4, Dean asked for Seagrave's resignation "allegedly because of a conference that occurred in July 1988 involving plaintiff's counseling of one of his athletes for several hours" late at night, the Federal suit says.

When Seagrave refused to resign, he was informed by Dean that he was terminated, the suit claims.

"However, later the same day, plaintiff was informed that he was no longer fired but instead was advised that a written reprimand had been placed in his personnel file, his wages were frozen and he was on probation for one year," according to the suit.

The suit says that eight days later, Seagrave was fired by Dean and Henry with no stated cause, although the LSU staff handbook covering termination requires that dismissals can be only for cause and must be in writing.

The suit seeks $500,000 for humiliation, pain, suffering, emotional distress and loss of reputation; $1 million for loss of income and fringe benefits, and $500,000 for punitive damages.

The suit also asks the court to reinstate Seagrave as the women's track coach.

"I will say that LSU gave Loren Seagrave the opportunity to exhaust all the proper appeal processes within the university, and his appeal was denied at every level. Since he has decided to make this a legal matter, it is unwise to make any further comment at this time," Dean said in a prepared statement.

The suit also charges that Dean did not consider Seagrave for the head men's track coach job in 1987 because Seagrave, who is white, was engaged to a black woman whom he later married.

Seagrave claims that Dean holds "certain sexually discriminating values, views and beliefs... and (Seagrave's) failure to impose these 'sexually discriminating beliefs' and values upon the members of the women's track team" cost him a chance to become the men's head coach.

ganizing Committee, western New York business and civic leader Burt P. Flickinger Jr. recently wrote a letter formally inviting FISU to send an inspection team to tour the Buffalo area and its sports facilities.

In the letter, which was addressed to inspection-team member and FISU President Primo Nebiolo of Italy, Flickinger wrote that "the people of Buffalo, USA, are brimming with enthusiasm" over the prospect of serving as host.

"We understand the importance of your investigation as a member of the inspection team, and are therefore anxious for you to see firsthand all that Buffalo has to offer," Flickinger told Nebiolo. "We believe you'll find both our city and our facilities exceedingly well-suited to the needs of the World University Games."

Buffalo's efforts to attract the 1993 games began nearly a year ago, when a group of area government, business and educational leaders met to develop strategy for winning the host's role. The U.S. Collegiate Sports Council chose Buffalo as its candidate during a meeting last December in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

At that time, Buffalo's boosters believed the city was certain to host the games because of the attention and profits that such an event could expect to generate in the United States. Then, Shanghai entered the picture, apparently as part of a larger plan to attract the Olympic Games to China in the year 2000.

Despite the recently heightened interest of the Chinese in hosting the 1993 World University Games, Flickinger believes Buffalo will maintain an edge in the competition. For example, the Chinese will have to build nearly all of the facilities needed for the games, while housing and event venues already are available in the Buffalo area.

"If we're successful, the economic impact upon Buffalo and western New York could be tremendous," he said. "We've conservatively estimated that between $40 million and $50 million will be generated by the 10-day event," which, he added, will attract an estimated 7,000 athletes, coaches and officials from more than 100 countries as well as "tens of thousands" of visitors.

"Our facilities are outstanding; world-class," Flickinger said. "We can house all of the athletes on the campus of the State University of New York and Buffalo and will also be able to hold many of the competitions at nearby campus facilities. The other main sites—Pilot Field, Rich Stadium and Memorial Auditorium—are ideal venues as well."

Western New York is eager to support the games, Flickinger said.

"Our community is extremely proud of its heritage and its rich ethnic diversity," he said. "Buffalonians will provide the intangibles of friendliness and warmth that are so valuable and that make the World University Games a truly enriching experience for all the participating athletes and everyone else concerned."

"And, let's not forget either that Buffalonians are among the world's most avid sports fans, as evidenced by the tremendous support that they lend to our professional football, hockey and baseball teams as well as amateur sports of all kinds."

Notre Dame athletes get advice on how to handle the media

University of Notre Dame quarterback Tony Rice stands before a television camera and says he doesn't care about the Heisman Trophy. The same camera catches speedy flanker Raghob "Rocket" Ismail seated for an interview, but moving around like he's in mid-sprint.

Rice says playing well matters most, but he'd be delighted to win the Heisman. Fidgety Rocket now it's the very picture of calm composure.

On the surface, the difference is a two-hour session with a media consultant.

Looking a little deeper, into the very deep pockets of television sponsors and NFL team owners, the difference might be measured in fan adulation and many dollar bills.

The top athletes on Notre Dame's defending national-championship team already may be well-aware of that reality. But pointers from a North Carolina consultant last month may help these savvy players fine-tune their performances, the Associated Press reported.

"With sports, it's not brain surgery all the time, but I think it prepares you for situations that may be more complex," Irish spokesman John Heisler said.

Sixteen players got tips on how to give quotes that get used, how to say what they really mean and even how to be patient when the same dumb question gets asked for the umpteenth time.

Consultant Kathleen Hessert of Communications Concept Inc. in Charlotte taped mock interviews, critiqued the results and gave the players a written pocket guide on avoiding bad quotes and garbled body language.

"For instance, Rice has been quoted as saying he doesn't care about the Heisman. He doesn't mean that he doesn't care," Hessert said. "What he means is, it's not his focus. His focus is to have fun and play good ball."

To a viewer, a reader or a sports-writer with a Heisman vote, Rice's seeming indifference may send the wrong message: The New York Athletic Club's prize trophy isn't worth the bother.

"So I told him, 'Don't say I don't care about the Heisman.' It's a wonderful award and he knows that."

Ismail's speed and dazzling cuts serve him well on punt returns and pass plays. But he even idles at high rpm's, and the camera sends another unintended message.

"The one thing I told him was don't move around so much, because on camera, you're going to look nervous," Hessert said.

The top athletes who can project a positive image and come across as genuine can just about bank on that, she said. "Their value is much higher, both to the reporter and the audience, as well as to the sponsor or the endorsement, if he's a pro athlete."

For some, the task may be hard.

Michael Stonebreaker, a linebacker who won all-America honors in 1988, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of driving while intoxicated, going to court four days before his scheduled appearance and avoiding reporters and cameras. The charge stemmed from an auto accident that injured his right hip and knee and caused serious injury to a passenger.

University officials particularly wanted Stonebreaker to join the session. He will face continuing questions from reporters and from the students he addresses as part of his court sentence.

Hessert said she believes Stonebreaker when he expresses remorse. Others will have to be convinced, she acknowledged.

"I went away from our sessions with Mike feeling he had a much better understanding of the importance of what he says, and how it projects both on his personal image and the university's image," she said. "And that's key."

Joe Frederick, a basketball player at the University of Notre Dame, was one of several Fighting Irish student-athletes who participated in the media training seminar conducted by Sports Media Challenge, which is affiliated with Communications Concepts, Inc. Shown conducting a mock interview with Frederick are Andy Brigham, who heads Sports Media Challenge, and Kathleen Hessert, founder of Communications Concepts, Inc.

SWC toughens penalty for positive drug test, alters TV plan

Tougher drug procedures, a "wild card" television package and a lengthy list of medical hardship cases for "redshirting" highlighted the 75th annual spring meeting of the Southwest Athletic Conference, which ended May 27.

The executive council approved a one-calendar-year suspension for all cases of positive tests for steroids in the conference's drug program. In past years, the suspension was scheduled from the time of the positive test result to the end of the season in which the student-athlete was competing.

New measures call for a full, calendar-year suspension, which could result in suspension for parts of two seasons if a student-athlete shows signs of steroids in his system.

A revised television package between the conference and Raycom Sports and Entertainment of Charlotte, North Carolina, calls for all 11 contests to be scheduled through the conference and network. Under the old system, the conference and Raycom would negotiate three games, while the six teams competing in three other contests would negotiate broadcast rights separately.

The conference and Raycom also will telecast three "wild card" games in mid- and late-season settings.

"We were a little disappointed that the networks didn't carry the Texas-Arkansas football game last year," said Commissioner Fred Jacoby, "and this gives Raycom a chance to select a game of this caliber on a regional basis."

Besides the hardship "redshirt" cases, which are approved at the conference's December and May meetings upon appeals from the member institutions, several other agenda items were acted upon or approved by the executive council, the league's voting arm for all legislation within the conference.

Basketball officiating consistency will be aided by a first annual summer officiating camp for 10 Southwest Conference basketball officials July 10 to 14 at Sam Houston State University.

Last year, conference officials had a chance to get off-season activity and to be evaluated with five prospective conference officiating candidates at a camp at Arkansas State University. Under new University Interscholastic League guidelines, this will be the first time for conference basketball officials' evaluation within Texas.

The conference will consider during a June 2 meeting a raise of $50 from $300 to $350 for conference basketball officials' game fees.

Scouting change

Both basketball and football will have scouting exchanges by videotape instead of the 16-mm film swaps of old at an anticipated savings of $22,000 per year to the conference budget.

Conference officials are trying to avoid having conference championship meets or tournaments during the spring of the 1990 final-examination period, which starts April 25, 1990, and extends through May 15 at the nine league schools. Schedules are being reworked to come up with a composite calendar for the meets. Conference authorities are paying particular attention to the fact that NCAA regional baseball tournaments begin during the fourth week in May and are seeking to avoid time conflicts with team-selection dates (usually announced on the third Monday in May).

In 1990, the women's basketball tournament finals will be held for the second straight year at Reunion Arena, March 10. Last March's Arkansas-Texas game attracted 7,206 fans. The four games prior to the women's tourney final, which determines the conference's automatic NCAA bid recipient, will be played May 7-8 at Southern Methodist University's Moody Coliseum.

"We have four one-year options on continuing to hold the basketball tournament at Reunion Arena," Jacoby said, "and that runs through 1994. Other sites we have considered are the Summit in Houston and in San Antonio."

Revised package

In other action, Southern Methodist was provided a one-year period to negotiate its own local radio rights for football and basketball outside the Host Communications, Inc., contract.

The conference also will reduce the appeals process for positive steroid testing from five days to 48 hours and will continue to give a 48-hour notice to schools during the August, September and spring dates for random drug testing in football and other sports.

ESPN to feature black schools' sports

Next fall, the four historically black NCAA athletics conferences will be featured in a weekly 30-minute television program entitled "This Week in Black College Sports."

The 26-week broadcast is produced by Focus Marketing, Inc., of Greensboro, North Carolina.

The show will highlight football, basketball and other sports at more than 40 predominant black colleges and universities. The schools are members of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and the Southwestern Athletic Conference.

The new program will be telecast by ESPN, the nation's largest cable network, Wednesdays at 2:30 p.m. Eastern time starting September 13 and will continue weekly through the completion of each conference's 1989-90 basketball season.

According to conference commissioners, ESPN's presentation of "This Week in Black College Sports" will be the most extensive weekly television exposure ever for black-college sports. ESPN reaches more than 56 percent of all U.S. television households.

The program was announced at the 14th annual convention of the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education in Washington, D.C., April 19 to 23. On hand for the announcement were Frederick S. Humphries, president of Florida A&M University; James Frank, commissioner of the Southwestern Athletic Conference; Tom Odjakjian, program manager at ESPN, and Phillip McAlpin, president of Focus Marketing.

"This Week in Black College Sports" is the culmination of efforts by McAlpin and Odjakjian. "ESPN is the network for college sports, and this series will strengthen that position. We are pleased to offer this exciting series on black-college sports," Odjakjian said.

McAlpin, who is executive producer of the program, said, "The time is right for black-college sports to rise to new heights in exposure and appeal. Focus Marketing is honored to have the opportunity to present the CIAA, MEAC, SIAC and SWAC and their special brand of athletics competition."

Former basketball coach files suit

Art Tolis, who led the University of New Orleans men's basketball team to a 21-11 record and the National Invitation Tournament in 1988, has sued school officials and others for $200,000.

In the lawsuit filed in Civil District Court in New Orleans, Tolis claims the money was part of his resignation terms. He said the school promised to pay the settlement money on or before March 15, 1989, the Associated Press reported.

Tolis was released in March 1988 after completing one year of a three-year contract as head coach. According to a press release, he was terminated for "a number of actions by Mr. Tolis that are detrimental to the university in fulfilling its primary mission of education of students."

Tolis threatened to sue when he was released. But the next month, he joined school officials to announce that a contract settlement had been reached. Terms of the agreement were not released.

Defendants named in the lawsuit include Chancellor Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, athletics director Ronald J. Maestri and the LSU Board of Supervisors.

Summer leagues approved

An additional 33 summer basketball leagues have been approved for student-athlete participation, bringing to 191 the number that have been certified by the NCAA Council.

Following are the 21 men's and 12 women's leagues recently approved for participation.

Men's leagues

Alaska—Anchorage Summer Recreational Basketball, Anchorage. Connecticut—Sand Men's Summer Basketball League, Hartford. Delaware—Wilmington Department of Parks and Recreation, Wilmington. Florida—Riverfront Summer Basketball, Tampa; Nettoppers Collegiate Summer Basketball, West Palm Beach. Georgia—Atlanta Pro-Am, Atlanta. Massachusetts—Greenfield Basketball League, Greenfield. Mississippi—Minute Maid Queen City SBL, Meridian. Nebraska—Sports Courts SBL, Lincoln; YMCA Summer Men's Basketball, Lincoln; NCAA Men's Basketball League, Omaha. New Jersey—Cliffside Park Recreation, Cliffside

Women's leagues

Connecticut—Sand Ladies Summer Basketball, Hartford. Florida—Riverfront Summer Basketball, Tampa. Georgia—Atlanta Pro-Am, Atlanta. New Jersey—Mercer County Women's SBL, Trenton. New York—Town of Hamburg SBL, Hamburg; City of New Rochelle, New Rochelle; Jumpin' Jack Shootout Basketball, Greece. Pennsylvania—Lehigh Valley Adult Women's Basketball, Allentown. West Virginia—Whelcing Recreation Summer League, Wheeling.

Committee's

Along with the NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics, the initial group of honorees includes the Trial Lawyers for Public Justice, P.C., and the National Women's Law Center, which were involved in a class-action lawsuit regarding allegations of sex discrimination at Temple University; the Louisiana Network for Girls' and Women's Sports, which sponsors an annual women's athletics conference and a women's postgraduate scholarship, and the Colorado "Sports Need You" Project, a network designed to recruit, retain and advance women in coaching, officiating and athletics administration.

Following are reports provided by the CCWAA on each of the award winners.

NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics (presented to NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz): Noted among the committee's achievements during the past two years were:

- Institution of a postgraduate scholarship program for women preparing to enter an athletics-related career or profession.
Institution of an intern program at the Association's national office.
Institution of a vita bank for women that is based at the national office.
Institution of a major study on the needs and realities of women administrators, coaches, student-athletes and officials.
Implementation of an eating-disorders project that has led to development of a three-part video series on eating disorders, which will be distributed to NCAA member institutions this fall.
Trial Lawyers for Public Justice, P.C. (Arthur Bryant, counselor at law), and National Women's Law Center (Ellen Vargyas, counselor at law): Representatives of both organizations served as counsel for the plaintiffs in the Haffer vs. Temple litigation, which was settled after eight years of legal action.

According to the CCWAA, the settlement produced a sex-equity-compliance model for all intercollegiate athletics programs that established for the nation a method for measuring equity, an example of reasonable equity goals and an acceptable compliance timetable.

Louisiana Network for Girls' and Women's Sports (Darlene Kluka, Grambling State University, and Phyllis Love, Louisiana Tech University, codirectors): In spite of operating on a small budget, the network sponsors annual women's athletics conferences, a graduate scholarship for women planning careers in athletics, a statewide 10-kilometer run to raise funds for the scholarship and a newsletter published three times a year in an effort to unite and inform women's sports advocates.

Colorado "Sports Need You" Project (Susan Schafer, Colorado Department of Education): This project according to the CCWAA, has resulted in an increase in the number and percentage of women coaching high school girls' sports in the state.

The project has become a prototype network that has been copied by 10 other states in attempts to recruit, retain and advance women in coaching, officiating and athletics administration.

The network conducts annual coaching clinics/recertification classes; publishes a newsletter updating women's sports advocates on equity issues in sports, and monitors policies and proposed legislation affecting girls' and women's sports.

Holmberg said the CCWAA's committee on enhancement opportunities welcomes nominations of groups or individuals that may be qualified to receive an Enhanced Opportunity Award. She said the awards will be given as frequently as necessary. Holmberg may be reached at the Big Sky Conference (P.O. Box 1736, Boise, Idaho 83701, telephone 208/345-5393).

decade, and that all signs point to further progress," Massengale said.

In other testimony, the Rev. Timothy J. Healy, former president of Georgetown University and former member of the Presidents Commission, said, "We need to develop a means of ensuring accountability on the part of our colleges and universities for the education of their scholarship athletes. Anything would be better than we have today."

Among Rev. Healy's recommendations were a shortening of the basketball season so that no team would play more than 20 games, ruling freshmen ineligible for varsity sports and developing a means to hold institutions accountable for the education of scholarship athletes by requiring schools to have a graduation rate in its athletics program equal to the graduation rate for the entire school.

Rev. Healy said the current basketball schedule "makes it impossible for an undergraduate...to have anything remotely resembling the traditional college experience."

Implementing freshman athletics teams would be worth the additional costs, Rev. Healy said, because it would result in a "far better academic experience for our students" by not competing on varsity teams.

The hearings originally were scheduled to hear testimony on the proposed Student Athlete Right-To-Know Act that would require institutions to make public the graduation rates of their student-athletes.

It later was decided by the House subcommittee to expand the testimony into the overall current status of college athletics. Subcommittee members would not comment on the possibility of further legislation being developed from the hearings.

College World Series TV coverage scheduled to begin June 2 on ESPN

ESPN's 10th consecutive year of covering the NCAA College World Series will begin June 2 at 5 p.m. Eastern time from Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha. ESPN will provide coverage of up to 14 games (through June 9) leading to the championship.

CBS-TV will televise the championship game June 10.

ESPN's coverage will include live double-headers June 2, 3, 6 and 9 and live single games June 4, 7 and 8.

ESPN's Ron Franklin and Bob Carpenter will alternate play-by-play duties for ESPN during the College World Series. Veteran major-league pitcher Jim Kaat, who will be working his fourth series for ESPN, and former major-league third baseman Ray Knight will split the analyst duties.

In 1980, when ESPN first televised five College World Series games live from Omaha, attendance of college baseball games was estimated by Collegiate Baseball newspaper at approximately 6.8 million.

The network expanded its coverage of the series each of the following years. In 1982, ESPN carried the entire series and by 1984 the network had added a regular-season schedule to its lineup. By 1988, attendance for college baseball had grown to 13.3 million.

The telecast and commentator schedules are as follows: Friday, June 2, 5 p.m., Carpenter, Knight; Friday June 2, 8 p.m., Franklin, Kaat; Saturday, June 3, 5 p.m., Carpenter, Knight; Saturday, June 3, 8 p.m., Franklin, Kaat; Sunday, June 4, 8 p.m., Franklin, Kaat; Monday, June 5, 3 a.m. (taped), Carpenter, Knight; Monday, June 5, 5 p.m., Carpenter, Knight; Monday, June 5, 8 p.m., Franklin, Kaat; Tuesday, June 6, 5 p.m., Carpenter, Knight; Tuesday, June 6, 8:30 p.m., Franklin, Kaat; Wednesday, June 7, 8 p.m., Franklin, Kaat; Thursday, June 8, 8 p.m., Carpenter, Knight; Friday, June 9, 5 p.m. (if necessary), Carpenter, Knight; Friday, June 9, 8 p.m. (if necessary), Franklin, Kaat.

Fund-raising efforts pump new life into three Colorado State sports

As many as three new baseball grants-in-aid could be available at Colorado State University by September if fund-raising activities continue to be successful, athletics director L. Oval Jaynes said May 24.

Colorado State officially reinstated baseball and women's golf and tennis May 24 after an earlier announcement that the three programs would be dropped because of a financial drain on the athletics department.

A fund-raising project by parents and boosters has generated about $100,000 toward a goal of $180,000 to fund the programs for next year. The eventual goal is to secure commitments for $720,000, or enough funds to continue the programs for the next four years.

"I doubt if we will have the full allotment of 13 (baseball scholarships) by this fall, but I would hope within a period of time we'd get to that level," Jaynes said. "I think we can see two or three more scholarships in our program."

Colorado State has operated a baseball program on just five scholarships since the early 1980s.

Larry McVay, one of the organizers of the fund-raising campaign, said the group remains confident it can raise $180,000 by September 1.

"We hope people who have been waiting in the wings to see what happens will jump on the bandwagon," said McVay, whose son, Heath, is a Ram infielder. McVay said at least 50 people have worked on the drive, and additional fund-raising events are scheduled this summer, including a golf tournament.

Meanwhile, Ram baseball coach Glen Schwab, in limbo since the announcement April 6 that baseball would be discontinued, has begun calling recruits.

"We lose five seniors, and we are concentrating our recruiting effort on the kids in Colorado," he said.

Schwab was encouraged by the possibility of being able to offer more scholarships. "In the past, we had to cut corners to get people with what we had to offer," he said.

Colorado State finished last season with a 14-35 record and was last in the Western Athletic Conference.

Cousy selected as president of Basketball Hall of Fame

For the first time since the Basketball Hall of Fame was chartered May 8, 1959, a hall-of-famer will serve as president.

Bob Cousy, who played at Holy Cross College and as a professional with the Boston Celtics, has been elected president of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame. It is a one-year term.

Cousy, a resident of Worcester, Massachusetts, was elected to the hall of fame as a player in 1970. He has served as vice-president the past two years under Richard J. Boushka, president, of Wichita, Kansas.

For the past four years, Cousy has chaired the hall's screening committee, a group of seven that reviews all nominations to the Basketball Hall of Fame. He was also chair of the national committee that raised $11.5 million to construct the new Basketball Hall of Fame that opened June 30, 1985.

Irish sign cable agreement

SportsChannel America has signed an agreement with the University of Notre Dame to become the national carrier for a package of Irish sports events.

The agreement begins this fall and includes athletics events that will be available to cable television viewers in the Midwest from SportsChannel Chicago.

According to the agreement, SportsChannel will have the rights to live coverage of football games not televised by network television, live coverage of basketball games not covered by network television and rebroadcast rights to all Notre Dame football games. SportsChannel will telecast tape-delay rebroadcasts of all Irish games Sunday mornings; live and taped coverage of a complete package of Olympic-oriented sports, including women's basketball, hockey, volleyball, wrestling and baseball, and weekly telecasts of the Lou Holtz and Digger Phelps programs.

SportsChannel America is operated by Rainbow Program Enterprises, which is jointly owned by Cablevision Systems Corporation and the National Broadcasting Company. SportsChannel Chicago is SCA's regional affiliate in the Midwest.

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q Can a member institution make arrangements for a prospective student-athlete to receive educational loans?

A According to NCAA Bylaw 13.2.4, arrangements for educational loans may be made for a prospect by a member institution, provided the loans are not made prior to completion of the prospect's senior year in high school. When permitted, the loans must be from a regular lending agency and based on a regular repayment schedule.

How Well VS How Long

Many people confuse experience with longevity. It's not how long you've been in business. Many companies just hang around with look-alikes to pick up the crumbs.

How well is another story. You don't stay on top and ahead of the pack without doing it better and more often than the competition.

AstroTurf pioneered synthetic turf. We were not only first but we've maintained our leadership with more innovations than the rest of the industry combined. And naturally, we've picked up a tremendous backlog of experience to go along with our creativity.

Just take a look at the many "firsts" in the AstroTurf recordbook.

- FIRST to produce a nylon textured turf

- FIRST to install artificial turf indoor and outdoors
- FIRST synthetic turf to be used in Olympic competition (Field hockey in Montreal, 1976)
- FIRST to install a water removal system and vertical drain field in North America
- FIRST to offer an eight year warranty on a field installation and performance
- FIRST to produce 15 ft. widths, knitted turf sewn seams, closed cell pad
- FIRST to develop ways to test traction, shock absorbency and ball responses on synthetic turf before starting production; then developing monitoring programs for post-installation support
- FIRST to develop a surface system specifically for soccer and field hockey

- FIRST to offer complete quality control and monitoring through every phase of manufacturing, engineering, installation and post-installation services
- FIRST (and only) synthetic turf supplier in business for 25 uninterrupted years

And we still have an on-time installation record of never having missed an opening day deadline!

We've not only been FIRST but we've been the BEST. And we plan to remain the BEST. In the synthetic turf field, there's still no substitute for performance, quality, reliability and talent. Ask the guys who've been wallowing in our wake for the last 25 years.
